Court won't stop US busing orders

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court refused today to curtail the federal government's authority to go into court seeking mandatory busing to promote racial desegregation of schools.

The justices acted without comment in turning away efforts to scuttle a federal lawsuit aimed at forcing desegregation of two Ocala, Fla., elementary schools.

Marion County school officials who sought to kill the government's suit told the high court that similar suits have been filed against school officials in Chicago and in Marshall and Big Spring, Texas.

At issue was whether school districts can be sued by the Justice Department for practicing racial discrimination while receiving federal funds, even though Congress has forbidden the Department of Education to file such suits.

The Florida case centered on two Ocala elementary schools, Madison Street Primary and Howard Upper Elementary, each with student enrollments more than 96 per cent black.

Until 1965, all Marion County schools were racially segregated. Government lawyers contend the two schools are "vestiges" of that former official segregation.

In 1973, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare notified the Marion County school board that the agency was going to try to cut off federal funds to the district.

The district proposed a remedy that did not include busing, and HEW found the proposal inadequate.

Although an administrative law judge ruled that the school district was in compliance with a law banning racial discrimination by institutions receiving federal aid, HEW's reviewing authority reversed the ruling.

Before HEW could cut off the federal money, however, Congress passed an appropriations measure, the so-called Eagleton-Biden amendment, that barred the agency from using federal funds as a wedge to require the busing of any pupil to a school other than the one closest to home.

HEW then handed the matter over to the civil rights division of the Justice Department, which filed what amounted to a breach-of-contract lawsuit in 1978.

The suit charged that the Marion

County school district had failed to live up to its assurances that it would desegregate all its schools. Virtually every year since 1973, the district has had to search assiduously to get federal aid.

The suit against the Marion County district sought "specific performance" of those assurances — desegregation of the two elementary schools.

U.S. District Judge Charles Scott in Ocala dismissed the suit.

CHURCH DESTROYED — The Rev. Bill McClellan of the Liberty Heights Free Will Baptist Church, looks at the remains of the structure Monday after a tornado ripped through the south Tulsa suburb Sunday while an Easter service was in progress.

Five killed in trailer park

Thirty injured when twister destroys church in Oklahoma

A tornado spawned by a violent Kansas storm demolished a country church filled with Easter worshippers in northeast Oklahoma and killed five people in a nearby trailer park. Twisters also damaged homes and farms in Kentucky and Indiana.

Fifty-two people were treated for storm-related injuries in the Tulsa area, according to the Red Cross. Fifty-five homes were destroyed and 70 were damaged, the Red Cross said. Looting was reported in nearby Bixby soon after the Sunday night storm passed, officials said. Police were asked to help control the thefts, said a Civil Defense official.

The bodies of four members of the same family and a fifth man were found Sunday night after a tornado hit Bixby, a rural suburb to the south of Tulsa, leaving behind hail the size of tennis balls, police said.

Tulsa County Deputy Sheriff Buddy Mabey said four of the victims were two parents and their children. The victims were not identified.

About 30 people were injured when the Liberty Heights Freewill Baptist Church in Bixby was smashed, authorities said.

Walter Murkey said he huddled with his wife in the bathtub of his home across the street from the church as the twister howled.

When winds died down, he ran over to help rescue his brother, who was attending evening services.

"The whole neighborhood, even the people whose houses were damaged, started immediately digging at the church to get people out," he said.

The American Red Cross set up a shelter in Tulsa for the families left homeless by the storm.

A twister was spotted Sunday afternoon near Slaughters in western Kentucky, according to police. Another tornado struck just west of Newburgh, Ind., causing extensive damage to five homes.

No injuries were reported.

The tornado in Kentucky damaged a farm, uprooted trees, took shingles off a house and blew away some tool sheds, police said.

The twister in Indiana hit a subdivision in Warrick County, police said, destroying roofs of houses.

Examiner says Atlanta's 24th victim died of asphyxiation

ATLANTA (AP) — Joseph Bell, the 24th victim in Atlanta's string of slayings of young blacks, probably died of asphyxiation, a medical examiner ruled today.

The 15-year-old boy had been missing since March 2, and his body was discovered Sunday afternoon in "an isolated and very inaccessible" section of the South River in suburban DeKalb County by a couple testing a new trail bike, authorities said. He was the fifth victim to be found in a river.

DeKalb County Medical Examiner Joseph Burton, who conducted the autopsy, said Bell did not appear to have been strangled, but smothering was a "possible" cause of death.

Officials said the body may have been in the river for several weeks.

Bell, who lived in the same neighborhood as two other victims, was last seen at a restaurant where he occasionally did odd jobs.

Richard Harp, manager of the restaurant, has told police that the day after Bell was last seen, he received a telephone call from someone claiming to be Bell who said, "I'm almost dead."

Bell's disappearance was being investigated by the special task force investigating the other 23 slayings and the disappearance of 10-year-old Darron Glass, last seen Sept. 14.

Harp said the Bell case was similar to those of several other youths whose bodies have been found in DeKalb County this year after their disappearances from Atlanta. He declined to discuss details.

Authorities have said they believe that a number of the cases are isolated killings. But in all 24 of the slayings, authorities have said the victims were killed and their bodies dumped elsewhere.

Prior to the Dec. 8 discovery of the body of 16-year-old Patrick Rogers in the Chattahoochee River, however, none of the victims had been dumped in water.

With the discovery of Bell's body, five victims now have been fished out of area rivers, including four of the last five.

Authorities have speculated that the killer or killers may have started dumping the victims in rivers to wash away any clues that might have been left behind on the bodies.

Hand said Bell's body apparently had been dumped off the Klondike Bridge about three-fourths of a mile upstream from where it was found lodged in a tree at "an acute turn" in the river.

Be sure and cast ballot Tuesday

How important is one vote in any election? It's been proved time and again that a single vote can swing an election.

In the City Council primary election here April 4, a single vote kept incumbent Jack Y. Smith from winning without a runoff in the race for Councilman Place 3.

As a result, Smith must oppose Mike Randall in Tuesday's runoff election.

In the Place 4 runoff, Russ McEwen needed eight more votes to escape a runoff against Donna Fish. As a consequence, McEwen and Fish must face each other in Tuesday's election.

Your vote could be the one that swing's tomorrow's election. Make certain you cast your ballot. The voting booths will be in the East Room of the Coliseum and at the North Side Fire Station.

Action/reaction: Local cremations?

Q. Are cremations done locally? If not, where is the nearest city where they are accomplished? What is the cost involved?

A. J.C. Pickle of Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home said the nearest cities where cremations are performed are Fort Worth, Dallas, San Antonio and El Paso. Pickle also said that costs vary, depending on what kind of service is requested, and what kind of container (for the ashes) is requested.

'Special master' appointed Judge orders TDC to provide single prison cells by 1983

HOUSTON (AP) — Federal Judge William Wayne Justice issued a final decree today ordering the Texas Department of Corrections to provide single cells for inmates by August 1983.

Justice's order in the nine-year-old prison reform lawsuit also requires any new prison to be located within 50 miles of a city of at least 200,000 people and decrees that no new prison shall have more than 500 inmates.

Justice denied a request from Texas Attorney General Mark White to delay his final decree for 30 days.

White said he would appeal "as quickly as possible" to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

"It would be difficult to describe how this could get any worse," White said as he quickly scanned Justice's order.

Justice also appointed Vincent Nathan, 43, of Toledo, Ohio, as a "special master" to oversee his ruling.

Nathan, a former University of Toledo law professor, has been a special master in two prior prison cases involving the federal prison at Marion, Ill., and the Georgia prison system.

The decree came after Justice ruled last December that the Texas prison system violated the constitutional rights of its inmates. He ordered state officials at that time to reduce the inmate population, to improve health care and give prisoners more alternatives for rehabilitation.

Justice's ruling came in response to a suit filed by eight inmates who complained that Texas prisons were overcrowded, the health care was inadequate and that their incarceration constituted cruel and unusual punishment.

White had said he needed the 30-day delay to work out a compromise with Justice Department officials who had indicated in a letter to Gov. Bill Clements that they were willing to soften their position in the case.

The attorney general said the Justice Department indicated it would be willing to compromise on unresolved issues that included giving each inmate a single cell by 1982, locating all new prisons near cities with populations of at least 50,000 and limiting prisons to no more than 500 inmates.

However, Justice's decree addressed the three issues, ordering individual cells by 1983, limiting prison locations to sites within 50 miles of cities with populations of 200,000 and restricting the number of inmates to 500.

White also indicated earlier that he considered the appointment of a special master to be "one of the most critical issues in the case."

"The appointment of a master who is well-intended but with poor judgment could precipitate the destruction of our prison system," he said.

White said after today's ruling that he would file a separate motion objecting to Nathan's appointment. He declined to specify his objections to Nathan.

The attorney general said the appeal of Justice's overall ruling could take "several weeks," but that he would initiate the procedure as quickly as possible.

The 26-page final decree also prohibits prison officials putting three or more prisoners in a cell after Aug. 1, 1981; requires a ratio of one guard for every six inmates by Nov. 1, 1982 (the current ration is one-to-11); and requires the TDC to keep records of disciplinary hearings that include the reason for determination of guilt and punishment imposed.

White said the judge's order goes beyond what the constitution requires.

"What I disagree with is we should not have imposed upon this state some constitutional standard requiring private rooms for prisoners," said White. "We are not required by the constitution to build hotel facilities for prisoners."

Rainfall for year totals 4.44 in.

An additional .23 of an inch of moisture was trapped in the rain gauge at the U.S. Experiment Farm here Saturday, bringing the year's total to 4.44 inches.

Normal for the year through April 18 was 2.79 inches.

The rains, which fell locally for a period of several days, served to create an almost perfect setting around the countryside, with millions of wild flowers in full bloom.

Sunday's weather was written into the script, so to speak, for those attending church services and taking part in egg hunts and picnics. In short, it was near-perfect.

The crowd in Comanche Trail Park was one of the largest in history, taxing the facilities of the recreational area to the ultimate.

Battle lines being drawn in state bilingual ruling

The battle over bilingual education in Texas — a battle that involves an estimated 225,000 non-English speaking students — is headed back into court because state officials want a far-reaching federal edict stayed in order to find qualified teachers.

"We will have difficulty finding certified bilingual teachers," said Ed L. West, superintendent of the North East School District in San Antonio, after U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice denied a state's request to delay a court-implemented bilingual education program for Texas public schools.

Larry Ascough, director of communications for the Dallas schools, said the shortage of certified bilingual teachers is so severe that "even if we hired all the teachers coming out of the Texas colleges, there wouldn't be enough for the Dallas district."

Justice, who last year told the state to come up with a bilingual program for all grades to replace the one now in operation that covers the first three grades, has ordered the current program to extend to the fifth grade this fall and to all public school grades by 1986.

In his opinion last Friday, Justice wrote he was denying the state's request to delay offering a plan until the end of the legislative session to end a "deep sense of inferiority, cultural isolation and acceptance of failure" on the part of non-English speaking students.

State estimates show about 40 percent of non-English speaking students — about 90,000 youngsters — receive no bilingual instruction.

Texas Attorney General Mark White says he will seek a stay of the order pending an appeal to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

White also said that a Texas Education Agency report on the costs of the program would be released Monday.

Dr. Angel Gonzalez, director for bilingual education in the Dallas Independent School District.

Naturalized American applauds adopted land

West Texas Republican Women's Club met recently at La Posada Restaurant for its monthly meeting. Dene Sheppard, president, presided.

Following a prayer by the Rev. Jack Clinkscales, the group pledged allegiance to the American flag. The flag was flown over the U.S. Capitol on March 4, 1981, at the request of the Honorable Charles W. Stenholm for the Republican Women's Club. Betty Wrinkle donated a stand to the club for the flag.

Mrs. Sheppard, elected the outstanding member, will represent the club at the second annual Tribute to Women co-sponsored by Rita Clements and Anne Armstrong. The meeting will take place at the Driskell Hotel in Austin, April 29. Susan Alexander, vice president, will also attend.

The membership was encouraged to join in the Centennial festivities and support the celebration with their time and talents.

Mrs. Alexander introduced the Rev. Mr. Clinkscales, pastor of the Forsan Baptist Church, as the guest speaker.

Clinkscales, born in London, England, later moved to the country in North Essex where he graduated then joined the Air Force and served as a Spitfire pilot for the 19th squadron which was the support group that flew with General Patton in the low country of France to the gates of Berlin. After discharge, he inaugurated a system of mobile shops, which became a vogue.

He began preaching at 17 years of age. In England he was with the Plymouth Brethren of England, a conservative group and says he has retained that conservative philosophy.

In order to become an American citizen he had to first have an affidavit from a responsible citizen from each place he had lived in the U.S. and then for 25 years in Britain. He had to have a sponsor for each member of his family and study his test. A federal judge of El Paso declared them citizens. Clinkscales stated that the Daughters of the American Revolution were most helpful to them.

He stated, "Without any doubt, America is the finest country in the world and we are very proud to be American citizens."

He commented that for the last 10 years, he has watched America following the steps of Britain and reminded his listeners that Great Britain today is broke. The liberal labor party is demanding all services be free, for all citizens. By doing this the taxes are exorbitant, a gallon of gasoline costs $3, a container of Coke $1.14. Before the present conservative party took over in England, a value added tax was passed. There is a tax on everything, including groceries. The tax deductions from the workers salaries are crippling. It is increasingly hard to get into the "free hospitals". The waiting lists are long. He said, "I pray that this country will stay from the socialist leanings."

Mrs. Sheppard reported that the membership brunch held at the home of Jane Thomas in March was a success and thanked Mrs. Thomas and all of the officers for their assistance.

Next meeting will be held at noon, May 14, at La Posada Restaurant. Visitors will be welcomed.

CENTENNIAL 'COLLAR' — Linda Graham, Angel Jones and Gail Earls, the uniformed people, left to right, take Frances Wheat into custody for a 'trial' in the Big Spring Centennial Celebration's Kangaroo Court. The court will be held each Friday at 5:30 p.m., for the next four weeks at various locations throughout the city, following the promenades that get under way at 5 p.m. The Keystone Kops pictured here 'arrested' Mrs. Wheat in front of the Centennial headquarters at Ninth and Main Streets.

Marijuana evidence — LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — In a trial where sensational revelations, startling accusations and high-powered personalities have become routine, an innocuous brown paper bag is an unlikely candidate for center stage.

But the bag and its contents have held the spotlight at the custody battle over the children of former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. since last Wednesday.

It was then that flamboyant defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes plopped it down dramatically on the defense table and said it contained marijuana once owned by the slain lawyer-politician.

Haynes, representing Daniel's widow Vickie, 33, has tried to have the bag and its contents introduced as evidence.

Daniel was shot to death Jan. 19 and Vickie Daniel is charged with murder in his death. Her trial has been scheduled for this fall.

J.C. "Zeke" Zbraneck, who represents Jean Daniel Murph, Daniel's sister who is battling for custody of Marion Price Daniel IV, 1, and Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, rocketed to his feet last week when Haynes tried to have the bag admitted as evidence.

AWAITING CALL — Riot gear-equipped GIs stand ready outside containment area at the Cuban refugee relocation center at Fort Chaffee, Ark., Sunday after disturbance there. Stones hurled by unruly refugees during two days of disturbances litter the way.

Cuban resettlement camp quiet after long weekend of violence

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — A Cuban refugee resettlement camp here was quiet today after a weekend of violence apparently sparked by frustration at long detention and the shooting of a refugee by a security officer, authorities said.

More than 40 people were injured and three cars burned in the two weekend incidents, according to federal officials.

Charlie Hughes, spokesman for Cuban-Haitian Task Force here, said several refugees celebrated the end of the disturbances Sunday by "going around shaking hands with the... officers."

"They're beating drums, singing and chanting," he said.

Officials said the incidents began Saturday afternoon when Federal Protective Service Officer Ray J. Barnes shot a refugee, Jose Maria Padron, 22, who allegedly was attacking another refugee with a homemade machete. Padron turned on Barnes with the weapon, Hughes said.

Barnes has been relieved of his duties pending an investigation, Hughes said. Padron was in stable condition Sunday.

After the shooting, three bands of between 30 and 40 refugees roamed the compound, threw rocks at security officers and turned seven federal cars, burning three, Hughes said.

Officers used tear gas to turn back refugees who stormed a gate leading out of the compound and evacuated the base of 50 to 100 civilians.

Sunday morning, about 100 Cubans protested the detention of a fellow refugee whom authorities were holding for breaking curfew. Task Force public information officer Mike Sweeney said some of the refugees tossed a few rocks across a fence at military officers. He said he knew of no injuries or damage.

Hughes said the Cubans had turned in the names of five men allegedly involved in the Saturday night riot. The men were detained but no charges filed immediately.

According to Sweeney, many of the compound's 2,700 refugees were frustrated because they have not been relocated, as have most of their 127,000 countrymen who came to America in the "Freedom Flotilla" a year ago.

LOSING HAIR? TRY THIS AT NO RISK

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in the family," it is certainly not proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days — at their risk — if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail. ADV.

1. Hair loss was reduced to normal, or significantly decreased in 75 percent of the cases.
 2. Evidence of new hair growth was reported in 55 percent of the cases.
 3. The patients' hair thickened in thin areas in 50 percent of the cases.
 4. Short, thin hairs in the sparse areas were reported growing longer in 61 percent of the cases.
 5. No detrimental side effects were reported.
- They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Initiative and referendum bill faces controversial House vote

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An initiative and referendum proposal that school administrators say could damage public education but backers regard as almost too wishy-washy comes to a vote in the Texas House this week.

"It's not what we would have preferred but it's an acceptable alternative," said Jim Kaster, chief lobbyist for Gov. Bill Clements, an ardent supporter of I&R.

In other legislative action this week, the Senate Finance Committee planned a Monday night session to finish its work on a $26 billion state budget bill. The House Appropriations Committee approved its version of the bill last week.

U.S. Rep. Jim Wright of Fort Worth, House majority leader, speaks to a joint session of the Legislature on Tuesday.

The Senate Economic Development Committee planned a Monday hearing on 10 insurance and 11 banking bills, even though Monday is a holiday for legislators.

The I&R constitutional amendment came up in the House last Thursday but representatives voted to postpone it until this Thursday.

Rep. John Sharp, D-Victoria, the sponsor, claims 93 votes for the proposal and hasn't counted all House members yet. It will take 100 votes to send the measure to the Senate.

The measure would let the voters by-pass the Legislature and pass laws that limit "the gross amount of money the Legislature may appropriate" and reduce or limit the rate of existing taxes.

An initiative could go to the voters only if 10 percent of the voters in each of 190 counties signed a petition.

British army vehicle kills 2 Irish youths

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A British army vehicle killed two youths during the fifth night of rioting in Londonderry, and youths in Dublin stoned a police station. But elsewhere in Northern Ireland the 65th anniversary of the Easter Uprising was peaceful.

Rioting broke out again Sunday night in Londonderry, the province's second largest city, after a Roman Catholic march to the city cemetery commemorating the 1916 rebellion in Dublin against British rule. Young people hurling gasoline bombs and rocks fought running battles with the police. Three policemen were slightly injured, and four of the rioters were arrested.

The deaths occurred after British troops fired four warning shots over the heads of about 100 stone-throwing youths in a Catholic district. Eyewitnesses claimed an army Land-Rover came over a hill at about 50 miles an hour shortly after the shots and plowed into the crowd. Two 18-year-olds were rushed to a hospital and declared dead on arrival.

British authorities said the deaths were accidental. The army said it would make a full investigation.

The rioting subsided for awhile, then resumed after midnight. Bands of youths hurled gasoline bombs at the police, set a building afire and firebombed a civilian car.

All police leave was canceled Sunday as tens of thousands of Roman Catholics marched behind the Irish Republic's green and orange flag at eight cities and towns throughout Northern Ireland.

Police said about 100 youths in Belfast stoned a police station in a Catholic district of West Belfast shortly after a two-hour rally at a cemetery in the same district.

The rally drew about 5,000 people and was the largest in the province. Speakers warned of big trouble if jailed IRA hunger striker

For TC, how far is too far?

Have we, in nurturing television, created a monster that will in time destroy us or it is a boon that will help salvage man's sanity and enable him to co-exist with his neighbors? Right now, it could go either way.

The medium's critics point with alarm to the claim that we have turned over the teaching of morals, manners and decorum to a group of people that is utterly without a social conscience. The garbage emanating from the TV screens, they say, is not unlike that coming from an open sewer.

TODAY THE RATHER innocuous-looking set in the living room often emerges as a more powerful influence upon the minds of the youngsters than parents, school or the church.

It's disturbing when television can turn the death of a pop singer into a circus, causing thousands of people to take up vigil in the streets for days at a time. One observer said recently that such adoration, confessed publicly to disc jockeys, may nourish a psychic need but, in any instance, is synthetic. Americans, sad to state, have now reached the point where they mass in public places to 'mourn' the anniversary dates of the death of their singing idols — certain that the scene they create will be duly documented by TV cameras.

Americans mourned for the 52 American hostages when they were in Iran and rejoiced when they were turned loose but perhaps the mood of the country would have been a little more restrained had television not orchestrated the show. Much of what took place in front of the cameras was acting, and not all of it the kind that wins academy awards.

Much of the so-called comedy seen on television today is done in extremely poor taste. The writers and the actors mindlessly or spitefully ridicule old age, the infirm, the demented or the scrupulous, and the writer or the actor who won't go along with the trend doesn't last very long.

THE VIOLENCE and the degeneracy seen on some of the network shows is bad enough. It can and does get worse on satellite TV and on private entertainment channels.

Sadly, many of the very people who could supervise the viewing of our children — the parents — ignore the responsibility on grounds that it might make them less popular with their siblings.

What does the future hold for the medium? Perhaps the only hope is that change will be forced upon it through boredom of the audiences. Surely the industry can't go on as it has and not suffer from wavering attention.

Public hunger

Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON — The rapturous transports of enthusiasm evoked by the successful flight of the first Space Shuttle bear unwitting witness to a central paradox of national life. Americans hunger for public achievement, but also seek to reduce the power of government. The gulf between those two conflicting impulses measures the distance the country has yet to travel before it regains confidence and balance.

The public hunger for national success goes well beyond fascination with space gadgets. Almost all Americans want less inflation, faster growth and more jobs. The great majority favors a stronger stance against foreign adversaries, and a better showing in economic competition against other advanced countries. Most would love crime rates to come down, air to be cleaner, housing to be cheaper and schools and other public services to be better.

DISMAL EXPERIENCE DURING the past decade drove home the impression that government was an obstacle — in many minds, (ital) the (unital) obstacle — in the way of those goals. Ronald Reagan drew on that feeling to win the election, and he has made an assault on government the central theme of his Administration.

Deep cuts in federal spending for all items except defense are the President's first priority. The second is a huge transfer of tax dollars from the public to the private sector. Deregulation of industry is the third. Where regulation survives, a forthcoming study by the National Journal shows, the agencies are systematically being turned over to the industries they are supposed to regulate.

Democratic opposition differs from the Republican Administration on the duration of the tax cut, and the distribution of the spending reductions. But only in small degree. Nor is Democratic program simply a cynical holding operation by party wheel horses. The central figures are young members of the classes of 1974 and 1976 who stand in the liberal mainstream of the party. There really is a national consensus on cutting back government.

Despite the consensus, however, the anti-government approach seems highly unlikely to yield the advertised results. Some of the most prized objectives simply lie beyond the reach of private effort. Space exploration necessarily depends on the feds. So does an improved showing in maintaining American power in the world.

THE FREE ENTERPRISE system as it works in practice excludes other goals. Does anybody believe the mining and chemical companies are going to keep the water and air clean without a hard shove from government? Who can imagine that reducing funds available to the big cities will improve police work, or transit services, or local education?

Nor can chronic inflation — that foremost curse of the times — be blamed entirely on government. Spectacular price rises flowed from action by the oil companies which made this country dependent on unreliable foreign sources. King-size wage increases, negotiated in free collective bargaining between companies and unions, constitute the inertial force which imbeds inflation in the system, and spreads every price hike throughout the economy. The only way to moderate that force is by concerted action among government, business and labor to restrain the wage bargains.

But how can the country get from where it is to where it needs to be? Many devices for changing the Constitution or the nominating system of the parties have been advanced. One that looks particularly promising to me is the proposal — by William V. Roth, the Republican senator from Delaware — for a new Hoover Commission to help Congress "restructure government to make it more efficient and creative."

Set up own environment protection

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 66 years old. My biggest problem is intestinal gas. I don't think this is normal and it is very unpleasant. Please discuss — Mrs. A.D.

Intestinal gas is a mixture of hydrogen, nitrogen, oxygen, carbon dioxide and methane. We are all walking power plants, and just as in any other power plant the problem is to keep things under control.

The first step is to control the raw materials used in production. That includes the amount of air swallowed while eating and some of the foods that contribute more to gas production than others. So begin with the simple step of chewing food carefully without gulping. Give up gum chewing. That contributes to gas through excess air and sugar intake, both potent gas raw materials.

If this has no noticeable effect, then turn to the other materials. For awhile, avoid milk and milk products. Your system may have trouble handling these products and the intestinal bacteria present will digest them, producing gas. Avoid the known high gas potential foods, like beans. Carbonated drinks add to gas production, and so will a diet too high in lean meats. Are you getting too much meat?

High-fiber diets are in vogue now, and are good for proper intestinal function, but in the initial stage of such a diet an inordinate amount of gas can be produced. In time, that problem subsides.

The possibilities are great. Start with one aspect, like the milk, and if that does not appear to be the cause, go on to the next — carbonated drinks, for example, or too much sugar. You'll have to do some detective work. In most instances the cause of excess intestinal gas can be tracked down and eliminated. You have to set up your own environmental protection standards.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Will you explain the danger of vaginal cysts? — Mrs. J.C.

There are many kinds of vaginal cysts, each with a different story. One kind, quite common, is an inclusion cyst. This is formed where there was a previous laceration or scar. It seldom causes trouble.

The oil glands of the vagina can become cystic and infected, and these are called sebaceous cysts. If they are infected, they have to be drained. Another lubricating gland of the vagina, the Bartholin gland, has a duct that empties its lubricant into the vagina. If that duct is blocked, a cyst will form. It too can become infected. If so, it will need to be drained, and at times the duct and gland are removed.

In a condition called endometriosis bits of uterus lining can migrate and become implanted in the vagina where they appear as cysts. Treating the cause of the endometriosis ends the problem.

Aside from the possible discomfort and the infection, none of these conditions are what you would call dangerous. One other condition, adenosis, has the appearance of tiny granular cystic thickenings. This is more common in women whose mothers took the hormone DES during their pregnancy. That condition has to be watched for possible development of cancer.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Since I have been on a sugar restriction diet I have been bothered with diarrhea and am wondering if it is a lack of sugar in my system causing this. Do you think I now lack sugar? — Mrs. J.D.

I don't think the sugar restriction is causing your diarrhea. There have been reports of diarrhea associated with heavy use of dietetic (sugar-free) foods that contain sorbitol and mannitol. If you are using such substances you may be affected this way. If this is the basis of your diarrhea, then discontinuing the use of the sugar-free products containing the substances should end the diarrhea.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My 18-year-old daughter has developed a rash around her lips. She has never had acne. She has tried various creams but none of them seem to help. Can you suggest anything? — Mrs. E.Z.N.

Perioral dermatitis seems to be a variation of acne rosacea, which is most prevalent in young women. It can also occur around the nostrils.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am fascinated by astrology. Since God created the stars, what could be wrong with studying them? — M.S.P.

DEAR M.S.P.: I know astrology is popular today, but I must honestly tell you that the Bible states we should have nothing to do with it if we are truly committed to Jesus Christ. Throughout the Bible it is associated with pagan beliefs and practices, and therefore is not something with which a Christian should be involved. "Let no one be found among you who sacrifices his son or daughter in the fire, who practices divination or sorcery, interprets omens," (Deuteronomy 18:10). Several of the prophets scorned the pagan practice of relying on astrological signs (see for example, Isaiah 47:13 and Jeremiah 10:1-2).

There are several reasons why the Bible takes this position. In the first place, if we trust the stars for guidance we are therefore not trusting God. And yet God's will is to guide us and be our shepherd. That is one reason why we are to pray, so we will commit our ways to God and let him direct us. God has promised, "I will instruct you and teach you in the way you should go; I will counsel you and watch over you" (Psalm 32:8). The Bible also urges us to trust God, because he loves us and he can be trusted. "Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways acknowledge him, and he will make your paths straight" (Proverbs 3:5-6).

Another reason why you should avoid being involved in astrology or related subjects is that they cannot meet your true spiritual need. Your greatest need is not for guidance about the future course of your life. Your greatest need is spiritual. You need to be forgiven of your sins and brought back into a right relationship with God, who created you, and he will if you turn your life over to him. Let him be your Savior and Lord, and you will have no need of these other things.

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

I went through a back shock this week. I received an invitation to my 10-year high school class reunion. I shouldn't have been too shocked since I received information about it a few months ago, but now, with the invitation, reality has set in.

I can't believe it's been 10 years. And ten years ago I just never dreamed I'd make it.

Because of the distance involved, I probably won't go. But I hope in my absence, they don't go pulling the old discipline records out.

I don't think my ninth grade music teacher, Mr. Jack, has any desire to see me. I was assigned a permanent seat in the principal's office during my C period music class every day for three weeks. I think it had something his class, ripped my notes in half in front of him and stuck them up his tuba.

I don't think my seventh grade science teacher, Mr. Cecco, has any desire to see me either. While he was trying to lecture me on the bad grade I received on a science test, I told him I knew the difference between a mountain, a hill and a valley. If I needed to know anything else in the future, I told him, I'd look it up in the encyclopedia. I told him it just wasn't relevant to my life.

I don't think Mrs. Grady, a regular substitute teacher in ninth grade, will miss me. After finding that some of our lockers were being infested with mice, the guys in our homeroom set traps. We caught them. Then a friend and I put one in the drawer of this teacher's desk one day when she was substituting for our homeroom monitor. I was almost suspended when I told the assistant principal I was surprised she noticed the aroma. The dead mouse didn't smell much worse than the teacher. He properly gave me a lecture and then gave me a knowing look. He knew what I was talking about.

I don't think Mrs. Mason will miss me at the reunion either. One afternoon while I was sitting in detention, she walked out for a minute. A friend and I snuck out to the taco place across the street and bought dinner. When we got back, the taco we brought back for her didn't soothe her temper in any way. I think we received an extra detention.

My tenth grade vice principal won't miss me either. After a teacher came into the girls' room one day and saw smoke rising from hidden areas, she sent my girlfriend and I down to the office. The charge, smoking in the girls' room, which we were doing, I told my girlfriend to just stay quiet and I'd get us out of it.

WASHINGTON — The long line of Land Rovers pulled up at the rim of a natural amphitheater formed by huge drifts of sand. The scores of visiting dignitaries stepped out of the vehicles, dusted themselves off and stared in disbelief at the spectacle spread out below them.

In the desolate wastes of the Sahara, without a tree or manmade structure visible for miles, the military display arranged by the Polisario guerrillas seemed unreal, like a scene from an old Alexander Korda movie. But the "props" were unmistakably, grimly real.

THE OCCASION FOR the theatrical production was the fifth anniversary of the Polisario's declaration of independence; they had proclaimed the Western Sahara to be an independent nation. In celebration, the guerrillas were now showing off the booty they had won in their hit-and-run way with Morocco.

On either side of the desert arena were long lines of captured Moroccan tanks, jeeps and troop carriers. In the center was a gruesome display — hundreds of identity cards taken from dead Moroccan soldiers. And at that far end stood 400 miserable-looking prisoners of war, squinting uncomfortably into the windblown sand.

My associate Peter Grant was there. He has spent a month covering the little-known war between troops of Morocco's King Hassan and the rebel forces of the Polisario's Saharan Arab Republic. Though the guerrillas have uncontested control of the largely worthless desert that constitutes most of the former Spanish colony, Morocco occupies the few population centers and the Western Sahara's rich phosphate mines.

Grant reports that the three-day independence celebration was a diplomatic success. Delegations showed up from most of the 45 nations that have recognized the guerrilla regime.

But it was also evident that the Polisario's support is heavily anti-American in orientation and that radical political ideology is being pushed on the rebels by such allies as Libya, which is the desert tribesmen's biggest financial backer, and Cuba, which provides medical and military aid.

LARGE DELEGATIONS AT the festivities came from Iran, Nicaragua, Mozambique and Ethiopia, as well as Palestinian groups and communist parties of several Western nations. Though the Soviet Union doesn't recognize the Saharan Arab Republic, presumably

When the VP came out with our suspension notices, I told him the teacher didn't catch us smoking.

"Were you smoking in there?" he asked.

"She didn't catch us smoking," I replied.

"But you were smoking in the girls' room, weren't you?"

"She didn't see us smoking in the girls' room."

"She saw smoke rising and you two were the only two in there."

"She didn't catch us smoking."

"All right," he yelled. "But if I see you in this office ever again..."

We did get out of it.

My favorite person, who I'd love to see, but I don't think the feeling is mutual, is my vice principal from seventh, eighth and ninth grades, Mr. Bair. I was in his office so often those three years, I think many of my classmates suspected more than they were.

One day he called me in and told me he knew I hadn't been sick the previous day, I was going to receive a detention for skipping school and I might as well tell him what I did.

I told him it had been too beautiful a spring day to be stuck inside hearing some algebra teacher tell me about an obtuse angle.

"What did you do?" he asked.

"Three of us hid under the bushes on the parkway between North Park Drive and Eldeberry Drive until everyone's parents went to work."

"And then what?"

"We all went to our houses, got our bathing suits and drove down to Atlantic City."

"None of you is tan."

"Well," I replied, "if we had been on the beach too long, you would have known we all skipped school. But there's always plenty to do in Atlantic City, so we just enjoyed ourselves and then drove back before our parents got home from work."

We each received two detentions apiece.

"Andrea," I heard him call, as I was walking out of his office.

"Yes?"

"The next time it's beautiful outside, you don't feel like hearing about obtuse angles and you go to Atlantic City, would you do me a favor?"

"Sure."

"Just tell me you were lying in bed with a fever so I won't be envious."

"I've been taught never to lie, sir. I was always told to tell the truth, even if it hurts. But I never lie."

"This one hurts. Did you have that good a time to justify the two detentions?"

"We sure did, sir. We sure did."

My associate Peter Grant was there. He has spent a month covering the little-known war between troops of Morocco's King Hassan and the rebel forces of the Polisario's Saharan Arab Republic. Though the guerrillas have uncontested control of the largely worthless desert that constitutes most of the former Spanish colony, Morocco occupies the few population centers and the Western Sahara's rich phosphate mines.

Grant reports that the three-day independence celebration was a diplomatic success. Delegations showed up from most of the 45 nations that have recognized the guerrilla regime.

But it was also evident that the Polisario's support is heavily anti-American in orientation and that radical political ideology is being pushed on the rebels by such allies as Libya, which is the desert tribesmen's biggest financial backer, and Cuba, which provides medical and military aid.

LARGE DELEGATIONS AT the festivities came from Iran, Nicaragua, Mozambique and Ethiopia, as well as Palestinian groups and communist parties of several Western nations. Though the Soviet Union doesn't recognize the Saharan Arab Republic, presumably because it needs Moroccan phosphates, a camera crew from Soviet television was on the scene.

Grant spoke to many of the delegation members and concluded that several of the nations supporting the Polisario are doing so because they oppose Hassan's pro-Western regime, not from any dedication to Saharan independence as such.

Iran, for example, recognized the republic only after Hassan allowed the late shah to stop in Morocco after he was overthrown. And a West German communist candidly admitted that he is far more interested in destabilizing the West than in furthering self-determination for the Saharoui tribesmen.

Morocco has long complained that the United States doesn't seem to understand that the Saharan war is part of the East-West struggle. The Moroccans don't see why the United States doesn't provide them with the weapons they need to crush the Polisario.

During lunch with Lt. Col. Louaghi Mustapha of the Moroccan Royal Army, Grant learned how bitter the Moroccans are. Over a steaming plate of couscous in the officers' mess, Mustapha rattled off a long list of American weapons and vehicles he could use against the guerrillas. He spoke in French. "Why can't I respond to you in English?" he asked, jabbing a fork at my reporter. "It's because I never have to talk to any American military officers."

Whichever side is "right" in the desert struggle, one thing is clear, Grant reported: The Polisario guerrillas, who started off as nationalists of no strong political ideology, are in danger of falling increasingly under the influence of the anti-American radical regimes on whom they rely for their survival.

MIA UPDATE: Defense Intelligence Agency experts have told members of Congress privately that there is persuasive evidence that a small number of Americans listed as "Missing in Action" are alive in Laos. One source put the figure at 15 to 25, and said they are reportedly doing manual labor under apparently "loose" security.

The intelligence analysts have informants close to the prisoners and expect some action on the MIA's status within the next two or three months. More than six years after the end of the Southeast Asian conflict, there are still 1,363 American soldiers unaccounted for.

Post story fabrication an 'inexcusable failure'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fake story in the Washington Post that won a Pulitzer Prize was published because of the inexcusable failure of editors to do their jobs, the newspaper has concluded.

In a report to readers that covered 3½ pages in the Sunday edition, the Post's ombudsman, Bill Green, said the made-up story of an 8-year-old heroin addict got in the newspaper because of "the failure of a system that, in another industry, might be called 'quality control.'"

On newspapers, it is called editing.

The story, "Jimmy's World," was awarded the prize in the feature category on April 13. On Wednesday, two days later, the reporter who wrote it, Janet Cooke, admitted the fabrication, returned the prize and resigned.

Green also concluded that "this business of trusting reporters absolutely goes too far. Clearly it did in this case....Editors have to insist on knowing and verifying. That's one of the big reasons they hold their jobs."

The ombudsman noted that doubts of other reporters and first-line editors never reached senior editors. "While editors repeatedly talked about their trust in reporters, the trust apparently applies only to written stories, not to reporters' opinions. Otherwise, somebody with authority would have heard something about those persistent doubts on the Cooke story and would have investigated," he said.

Ben Bradlee, executive editor, told Green that "nobody ever came in...and said, 'I have doubts about the story' — before or after publication — and nobody said someone else had misgivings about the story."

After the story was published last September, District of Columbia police and Mayor Marion Barry said they did not believe it was true. Police and social agencies hunted for the child but could not find him.

Hostage gospel singers released, now inspired

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Nine gospel singers taken hostage at a state prison by two knife-wielding prison inmates say the incident, while frightening, makes them all the more determined to preach to prisoners.

"That's what we're here to do, to bring Jesus to them," Mike Capello said after he, eight other "Parable Players" and prison chaplain Al Fry, were released unharmed.

Capello said the two captors were threatening at first, then ended up praying and singing with the troupe, showing remorse and even "a softness."

The incident began Sunday afternoon at Nevada Maximum Security Prison when Albert See, 33, serving a life term for murder, and Carlos Sanders, 21, serving a 12-year term for burglary, allegedly seized hostages as the Catholic group completed an Easter musical play.

Four were let go within two hours. The others were held for five hours.

The two inmates were taken into custody.

"I was a little scared at first," said Katie Came, 17, who had makeshift knives held to her neck.

Fry said that after the inmates held knives to the girl's throat, "there were no threats of violence. We sang gospel hymns. They talked and prayed with us....It was calm, but we were all scared and nervous."

At the same time, prison negotiators heard the inmates' demands for a helicopter to take them out of the prison. The inmates gave up after they realized the demand wouldn't be met, according to Steve Robinson, prison administrative services officer.

After turning over their hand-fashioned knives, the two inmates were taken to the Medium Security Prison nearby for requested medical and psychiatric evaluations, Robinson said. He said no charges had been filed against the two.

It was the fifth time in nine months that hostages have been taken at the prison. No one was injured in any of the cases.

Medium Superintendent John Slansky, who conducted the negotiations, said a review of prison security would be made to determine whether some changes are needed to prevent future incidents.

Green's account was based on 47 interviews. Miss Cooke declined to be interviewed.

"It was a complete systems failure, and there's no excuse for it," said Green.

One of the major flaws, Green concluded, was that in reporting the story, Miss Cooke was promised anonymity for her sources and was never forced to reveal them to her editors.

Miss Cooke's editors "should have asked tough questions....And every staffer who had a serious doubt about 'Jimmy' had an unavoidable responsibility to pursue it, hard," Green

Adopted son is arrested

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Johnson have returned from Gatesville and Austin, where they attended last rites for Bucky Schloeman, 57, Mrs. Johnson's brother.

Schloeman, a retired Air Force colonel, was shot to death at his home in Gatesville. Police in Houston are holding Schloeman's adopted son, Jack Schloeman, for the murder and the attempted murder of Mrs. Schloeman.

According to reports, Mrs. Schloeman's life was saved when her husband threw himself across her body after the assailant charge into the bedroom and began firing a shotgun. Police believe she saved her own life by pretending she was dead.

The assailant took Schloeman's wallet and keys and stole a truck before disappearing into the night.

Mrs. Johnson said Schloeman's close relatives lived in fear until Jack Schloeman was apprehended the past weekend.

Jack Schloeman reportedly had a history of drug-related problem. He had been adopted as a baby by the Bucky Schloemans.

Bucky Schloeman was buried Wednesday in Austin. While active in the military, he flew for the Strategic Air Command. Mrs. Schloeman reportedly suffered wounds in the left shoulder and left leg.

Temporary jobs are increasing

If you have bills to pay and extra time on your hands, you can solve your problems by working for a temporary job service, reports an article in a recent issue of "Woman's World" magazine.

In addition, "if you play your cards right, you can find good, challenging work at a good wage." Therefore, the article suggests that it "pays to shop around" if you have the basic skills.

According to the magazine article, there is a shortage of temps and experts believe the shortage may triple in the next five years. This shortage, the article continues, "is forcing better pay and benefits."

Members of the National Association of Temporary Services (NATS) are required to "submit to inspections to determine compliance with federal standards and a code of ethics," the article noted. For example, no member company is allowed to charge an employee a fee for placing him or her on a job. Also, they cannot "seek a conversion fee" from an employee who accepts a permanent job while working for a client company.

Paid lunch hours, vacations and medical packages are now being offered by many services in order to attract highly skilled workers, the article stated. Most services even offer a "checklist to describe ideal working conditions, hours, distance from home and availability for evening or weekend work."

The article suggests "registering with several services to increase your chance of placement and also to research which services "pay best for the same job."

Temporary work is described in the article as a rewarding experience with such positive factors as always meeting new people, and since you are not around long enough, "you don't get caught up in office politics."

Annual fiction and art contests are underway

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Talented teens will have a chance to win $2,300 in cash prizes as winners in "Seventeen" Magazine's annual fiction and art contests. Winners of both contests will be announced in the January 1982 issue of the magazine.

Fiction entries, not to exceed 3,000 words, will be evaluated by "Seventeen" editors on the basis of literary worth, originality, naturalness of dialogue and convincing characterization. Art samples can be in any medium but no larger than 20 by 26 inches, with the magazine's art director selecting the finalists based on skill and originality.

Entries must be postmarked no later than July 1, 1981. Complete contest rules are in the April issue of "Seventeen."

Caffeine strips hair of color

For your hair's as well as your health's sake, go easy on caffeine. According to a recent Family Circle article, "How to Stop the Biological Clock," University of Wisconsin scientists were able to turn animal hair gray with large amounts of caffeine. The article points out that large amounts of caffeine, found in tea and coffee, remove B vitamins, and B vitamins are essential in maintaining hair color.

Dear Abby

Michelangelo's Ecstasy Not Full of Gaiety

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you stated that Michelangelo was a homosexual. Abby, that was only a rumor, not an established fact! It was started by Pietro Aretino, a columnist and professional blackmailer who had hounded Michelangelo for some free drawings and was ignored. To get back at the artist, Aretino stated that Michelangelo was a homosexual, a rumor that has come down through the ages.

Ask Irving Stone, the author of "The Agony and the Ecstasy." He probably knows more about Michelangelo than anyone living today. Stone spent years researching Michelangelo's life, and had there been any proof of his homosexuality, I'm sure it would not have been omitted from his book.

CLARA STUART

DEAR CLARA: I forwarded your letter to Irving Stone, world renowned historian and biographer, together with my own urgent "Help" message. His prompt reply (in part):

DEAR ABBY: Your correspondent, Clara Stuart, is entirely right, and quite knowledgeable in the bargain.

During the three years that my wife, Jean, and I lived in Italy researching the life of Michelangelo, we conferred in considerable length with all the authorities among the Italian historians, art critics and medical doctors who had made biographical studies of the time. In not one case did we find a scintilla of evidence to support the accusation that Michelangelo was a homosexual!

It is important to note that no one else alive at that time in Florence or Rome, either in correspondence, diaries, journals or published accounts, ever made such accusations against Michelangelo. Nevertheless, because of Aretino, the charge continued to be repeated by published authors who had made no attempt to verify it.

This charge of Aretino troubled me greatly, and I spent endless time trying to track down the truth. As Clara Stuart suggests, had I been able to prove Michelangelo's homosexuality, I would have felt obliged to include it in his life's story. I don't need to assure you, Abby, that I evaded nothing. However, there are still some few people who continue to perpetuate this charge against Michelangelo, but they offer absolutely no proof except the Aretino slander.

I do hope that you will find a few lines in your column to quote Clara Stuart, and you may, of course, use anything in this letter that you may want or need for confirmation. Cordially,

IRVING STONE

DEAR ABBY: My wife, Viola, and I disagree. I contend that eating oysters improves one's sexual prowess. My beloved Vi claims otherwise. A $10 bill rides on your answer. RANDY IN MILWAUKIE, ORE.

DEAR RANDY: That oyster story is an old (fish) wives' tale. Shell out a ten-spot for Vi.

Magazine article gives poison prevention tips for children

Over one million accidental poisoning cases (a large percentage involving children) are reported each year in the United States. According to recent figures, close to 13,000 of these incidents were fatal. In the hopes of lowering these grim statistics, a recent Family Circle magazine contained a tear-out Poison Emergency Guide, which gave these safety tips on poison prevention for young children:

Because young children are more likely to swallow a poisonous substance when they are hungry, supervise them especially carefully during the pre-dinner hours. During the winter months when you're more likely to have cold and flu medicines around, take extra precautions to see that these medicines are kept out of children's reach.

Always keep all household cleaning products safely out of children's sight and reach.

Keep all pill bottles labeled and don't mix different types of pills or tablets together. This, cautions the magazine, will make identification and treatment more difficult in case of an emergency.

If you have plants that are toxic if swallowed, label the bottom of each container. In the event of an emergency you will be able to identify the plant immediately. Call a Poison Control Center if you're not sure whether a particular plant is dangerous.

Always keep a bottle of syrup of ipecac in the house. It induces vomiting, which is advisable only in some poisoning cases. Be sure to check with a Poison Center or a physician before inducing vomiting.

For answers to any questions about drugs or chemicals call your local Poison Control Center before an emergency arises. Your local hospital can give you the center's address and phone number. Post the number near your phone.

Sewing lowers wedding costs

COLLEGE STATION — Regardless of the type of wedding, planning your clothing needs is a major aspect of it, says Becky Saunders, a clothing specialist.

With marriages and remarriages increasing, so is sewing part or all of the bride's, attendants', and other family members' garments, she adds.

Mrs. Saunders is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Cost comparisons show that home sewing can save up to three-fourths of comparable ready-to-wear coats she says. Pattern companies and fabric manufacturers now have substantially increased both pattern and fabric availability. Consider this clothing timetable for "sewing" an enjoyable and beautiful wedding and to avoid last minute headaches:

Four to six months in advance: Plan size and type of wedding such as traditional or contemporary. Determine color scheme.

Budget approximate clothing expenses and decide who pays for what.

Study magazines and investigate ready-to-wear for trends, flattering styles and colors, fabric and pattern availability.

If needed, select a seamstress to make part or all of the garments, and set a completion date.

Select patterns, fabrics, and notions. Consider your sewing abilities and time requirements for various fabrics and styles. Also, consider that some fabrics or supplies may need to be ordered.

Plan any needed garments for the honeymoon.

Discuss wedding plans and appropriate dress with family members.

Two to four months in advance: Begin or supervise sewing of garments. Buy accessories.

Assist finance with rental or coordination of his garments and those of his attendants'.

One month before: Complete garments. Finalize fitting of any rented garments.

One week before: Organize garments for packing. Check look from head to toe in full-length mirror.

Afterward: Protect the wedding gown by having it cleaned and properly stored. Gowns often can be converted for other uses by shortening the skirt, removing lace or detaching the train.

Tuesday is What Counts

Had I received one more vote on April 4, I would have been elected to Place 3 on the City Council. Tuesday we are to vote again — and I stress that this is a new election ... and the deciding election.

So you see — one vote, your vote, does make all the difference. Whether and how you vote Tuesday is tremendously important.

My record over more than two score years of working in civic, humanitarian causes and public service is clear for all to check and observe. If you feel that I have the best interest of the majority of Big Spring people at heart, that I will continue to listen to what you have to say, and then reach a decision which I believe to be fair, consistent with our ability to finance, and to work for the efficient cooperative operation of our City family, then I ask for your vote.

Whatever your choice may be, I will still do my best to work for Big Spring.

Rockets waited to win

By the Associated Press
 One of the two teams that tied for the best record in the National Basketball Association will be in the playoffs. Its opponent will be a team that didn't even have a winning record. Call it the luck of the draw, but the best-of-seven NBA semifinals beginning Tuesday will find the Boston Celtics entertaining the Philadelphia 76ers in the Eastern Conference and the Kansas City Kings playing host to the Houston Rockets in the West.

Sunday when the 76ers edged the Milwaukee Bucks 99-98 while the Kings upset the Pacific Division champion Phoenix Suns 96-88. Both victories came in the seventh game of best-of-seven quarterfinal series. Julius Erving scored 28 points and Bobby Jones had 21 for Philadelphia, which had to pull out the victory after blowing a 16-point lead with 4:41 left in the third period. A 22-5 Milwaukee rally put the Bucks on top 80-79 with 9:09 remaining and the lead seasawed until Lionel Hollins' jump shot and two free throws by Caldwell Jones gave the 76ers a 97-96 advantage. Milwaukee's Marques Johnson scored a game-high 36 points. "What can you say about a series like this?" said Philly Coach Billy Cunningham. "It was the type of game you don't know what to tell the team that lost." "We got everything we could out of our players. We have no complaints," said Milwaukee's Don Nelson. Meanwhile, Reggie King poured in 23 points, including 10 in the pivotal third period, as the injury-riddled Kings defeated the Suns in Phoenix. The Suns, who bounced back from a 3-1 deficit to even the series, led only briefly in the second half. Four points by Alvan Adams gave them a 48-45 lead one minute into the third quarter. But King then keyed a 17-4 Kansas City spree with nine points over a 5:38 span for a 60-52 lead. Ernie Grunfeld also scored 23 points for the Kings and Scott Wedman finished with 19. For Phoenix, Dennis Johnson scored a game-high 28 points, 20 in the second half, and Walter Davis had 18. "It was a great series, a very physical series," said Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons. "It was a war and we are the survivors." "Reggie did the job, just like he did all series. Grunfeld and Wedman do things a bit differently. They don't look pretty, but they're tough kids and they made the tough baskets."

Punchless Astros lose another one

HOUSTON (AP) — Pittsburgh pitcher Rod Scurry says he would have been happy with a "no decision" instead of a win against wily veteran Joe Niekro in his first major league start. But he'll settle for what he got. "It's the highlight of my career," Scurry said Sunday after he and reliever Eddie Solomon combined to scatter five hits en route to a 2-0 win over the punchless Astros. "I'd still have been happy if it went no decision," Scurry added. "Niekro threw a great game." Niekro surrendered only six hits, but Houston's sputtering offense — the Astros' team batting average is a paltry .211 — couldn't provide the crafty knuckleballer with much more than a Jeff Leonard triple that went for naught. "We're not getting any hits when we need them," Astro manager Bill Virdon sighed after the seventh loss in nine outings for last year's National League West champions. "We're not even getting runners in scoring position," he added. Nor were the Pirates exactly awesome at the plate. It took John Milner's single, a Dave Parker double and Omar Moreno's sacrifice fly to bring home the first Pirate run. Jason Thompson's solo home run in the ninth added the insurance score. Leonard's seventh inning triple had gone from scoring threat to just another man left on base when Scurry fanned catcher Luis Pujols to end the inning. Besides Leonard, only three Houston runners reached second base. The last, Craig Reynolds, singled to lead off the eighth, and went to second on Niekro's bunt, but wound up stranded.

"Casey's bet" pulls off miracles

By WILL GRIMSLEY
 AP Special Correspondent
 The whole country seems to be on a Casey Stengel nostalgia kick. On Tuesday, New York's Broadway will see the curtain go up on a one-man show starring Paul Dooley in "The Amazing Casey Stengel or Can't Anybody Here Speak This Game?" On May 6, public television will take its time at bat with a special entitled simply "Casey Stengel," featuring Charles Durning in the role of the late "Old Perfessor" who managed the New York Yankees to 10 baseball pennants in 12 years. New books are hitting the bookshelves and newspapers are devoting columns of space to the crusty old dugout wizard who departed for the Land of No Umpires five years ago at the age of 85. Yet it's neither on the stage nor on the screen, not in the prints nor electronic media that the greatest modern drama memorializing Casey Stengel is being staged. It's happening right in front of everybody's eyes out in Oakland, Calif., where a chip off the wizened skipper's old block and a favorite son is pulling off miracles that the old man would find hard to describe in his celebrated "Stengelese." Of Casey would be proud of Billy Martin, his kind of guy. "No doubt about it, Billy was Casey's bet," said

Whitey Ford, the Hall of Fame pitcher who broke in with Martin as Yankee rookies in 1950. "He was gutsy and tough," Ford said. "Case liked that. Billy loved baseball. He was a hustler. On the field he would work until he was ready to drop. "No matter how hard he was pushed, Billy took it and came back for more. Stengel had this obsession for baseball. He saw a lot of himself in Billy." Whitey, vacationing in Florida, said that he was not surprised at Martin's success with the Oakland A's, bringing them from last place to a challenger in 1980 and getting them off this year to the most remarkable start in all the game's history — 11 consecutive victories. "Billy has a staff of good, strong-armed young pitchers," Ford added. "But you must remember that they were pretty average in 1979. It took Billy to motivate and weld them into a winning unit." The A's mound corps of Mike Norris, Matt Keough, Steve McCatty, Rick Langford and Brian Kingman won 83 games under Martin in 1980, compared with 54 the year before; a 3.46 earned run average compared with 4.74, and pitched 94 complete games compared with 41 in 1979. "He did it by instilling confidence in them," Ford said.

Trevino skips chance at $100,000

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Lee Trevino turned his back on a shot at a $100,000 bonus prize after winning the MONY-Tournament of Champions, but had his sights set on one of golf's major championships. "It's a great feeling. I enjoy winning any golf tournament," Trevino said after a closing 69 had produced a two-shot victory Sunday in the elite event that brings together only the winners of PGA Tour titles from the last 12 months. "I haven't won a major since '74 (the PGA) and I'd like to do that again," he said. "This may be the year I knock off one of the majors." Trevino obviously still retains the skills to win in golf's major events. He took this title — his first ever in California — with a 273 total, 15 strokes under par and matching the course record on the tough, 6,911-yard La Costa Country Club layout. The triumph was worth $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000 and marked the 14th consecutive season Trevino has won at least once. While he's looking forward to the remaining majors, Trevino decided to skip this week's New Orleans Open despite a chance to gain a $100,000 bonus prize. The bonus was set up for any man able to sweep both the Tournament of Champions and New Orleans titles. The victory, in a head-to-head showdown with Ray Floyd, came after Trevino had finished second in this tournament four times.

Floyd, the only man in the field with a realistic chance to overtake the front-running Trevino, had a last-round 70 and a 275 total — good enough to win 10 of the 13 previous Tournament of Champions held at La Costa. Bruce Lietzke, a runner-up in each of his two previous appearances here, was third this time at 70-78. His former college roommate, Bill Rogers, was next at 71-280, with Larry Nelson another shot back at 71-280. Tom Watson, the Masters champ and winner of this title the two previous years, never really got in the chase. He finished at 70-284, 11 strokes back. Jack Nicklaus was 71-286. Trevino started the final round with a one-shot lead over Floyd and, after some jockeying back and forth, led by that margin when they went to the 13th tee.

Aggies top Tech

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Rodney Hodde hit a pair of homers and drove in three runs Sunday as Texas A&M dropped Texas Tech 6-5 in a Southwest Conference baseball game. Hodde drilled his first four-bagger in the opening inning to give the Aggies a 2-0 lead, but the Red Raiders moved out front in the bottom of the inning on a homer by Jimmy Zachry.

Hodde's second round-tripper came in the top of the sixth and snapped a 3-3 tie. There were six home runs in the contest. Steve Davis got the win for A&M, which moved its mark to 24-14-1 for the year and 4-6-1 in the SWC. David Carroll drew the loss for Tech, which dropped to 14-16 for the season and 4-9 in the conference.

Weekend NL action What's the difference?

By the Associated Press
 Reggie Smith. Pedro Guerrero. It made no difference last year. Each batted .322. And it seems to make no difference this season, either. No matter who's playing right field for Los Angeles, the Dodgers are winning. Mike Schmidt. Keith Moreland. It seems to make no difference. With Schmidt at third base, Philadelphia was winning — and with Moreland, the second-string catcher, at third, the Phillies are still winning.

Guerrero, a 24-year-old utilityman playing in place of Smith while the Dodgers' outfielder completes his recovery from last August's shoulder surgery, had a home run — his second in three games — to help the Dodgers beat San Diego 6-1. It was their eighth victory in nine games and gave them a three-game lead over Cincinnati in the National League West. Moreland played the hot corner for the Phillies this weekend while Schmidt suffered the miseries of a bad cold. And on Sunday he doubled for the tie-breaking run that propelled Philadelphia past the Chicago Cubs 7-3.

It was the Phils' sixth consecutive victory and kept them in first in the East Division, a game ahead of Montreal. In the rest of the NL, Atlanta beat San Francisco 4-3, Pittsburgh blanked Houston 2-0 and, in a doubleheader, Montreal beat the New York Mets 4-3, then the Mets won 7-2. St. Louis at Cincinnati was rained out in the third inning with the Reds ahead 1-0 on pitcher Frank Pastore's first major league home run — a homer washed out of the record books. After Ken Landreaux homered off John Curtis to tie it for Los Angeles in the sixth and Guerrero snapped the 1-1 tie with his leadoff homer to left in the seventh. Landreaux singled for two of the Dodgers' four runs in the ninth. Moreland backed Nino Espinosa's six-hitter with his timely double off Rick Reuschel after Manny Trillo had doubled with one away in the eighth and Manny Trillo had been walked intentionally. Gary Matthews followed with a two-run single, then Larry Bowa's single capped the burst for the Phillies. Mike Tyson and Bill Buckner had homers for Chicago. Braves 4, Giants 3. Like Moreland, Biff Poceroba is a reserve catcher. Like Moreland, he got a chance to play Sunday — at his familiar position behind the plate — and, like Moreland, he came through in the clutch following an international walk. Poceroba ripped a two-run single in the ninth inning to boost Atlanta past the Giants. "That's my first full game all year," he said. "To come through with the game-winning hit is great. I hope it can get me a little more playing time." The hit came off Greg Minton after Glenn Hubbard singled, Rafael Ramirez walked, Jerry Royster bunted the runners ahead and pinch-hitter Mike Lum was purposely passed.

MIXING IT UP — Jerry Narion (on top) of the Seattle Mariners, and Kim Allen of Oakland mix it up during brawl that started between Oakland pitcher Mike Norris and the Mariners' Lenny Randle. Randle was thrown out of the game that was won by Oakland.

Weekend American League action

A's break record, Seattle breaks string

By The Associated Press

It was one of those good-news, bad-news days for Billy Martin.

The good news was that his Oakland A's broke the modern record for most victories at the start of a major league season with a 6-1 conquest of the Seattle Mariners in the opener of a doubleheader for their 11th straight.

The bad news was that the A's lost the second game 3-2.

"I would have preferred to win that second game to setting the record," said the Oakland manager. "Records are all right—but they don't give me a thrill. Wins and pennants are what get me excited."

If Martin couldn't get pumped up about the A's record-breaking accomplishment, however, baseball purists can. Their blazing start surpassed the accomplishments of the 1955 Brooklyn Dodgers, the 1962 Pittsburgh Pirates and the 1966 Cleveland Indians, all of whom won 10 in a row at the start of their respective seasons. The all-time record is 20 by St. Louis of the old National Association in 1884.

The doubleheader at the Oakland Coliseum was filled with tension and fights from start to finish, and while the A's won the first game, they also lost pitcher Mike Norris to injury. Norris was thrown to the ground in a second-inning melee, which began after Norris threw close to Seattle hitter Lenny Randle. Randle took several steps toward the mound, catcher Jeff Newman got in his way and both went down as players from both teams rushed onto the field.

Norris left the game after the sixth inning and was taken to a hospital for X-rays of his pitching arm. But Martin said he thought the injury was not serious.

"He had some numbness in his fingers, and his shoulder was stiff, but we think this will go away," said Martin of the pitcher, whose record now is 3-0.

In other AL games Sunday, it was Kansas City 3, Baltimore 2; Toronto 9, Detroit 1; Texas 4, New York 0, and Boston 9, Chicago 4. Two games were rained out—Cleveland at Milwaukee and Minnesota at California.

Rickey Henderson tripled and doubled to spark Oakland in the opener. Henderson's two-run triple put the A's ahead in the third inning and they took a 5-0 lead with three runs in the fourth, two of them on a double by catcher Jeff Newman.

Henderson doubled to open the seventh inning and scored one out later on a single by Dave Revering.

Relievers Craig Minetto and Jeff Jones preserved the victory for Norris. The loss went to former A's pitcher Glenn Abbott, 0-3.

The Mariners won the second game when Richie Zisk slugged a solo home run with two out in the eighth inning, breaking a 2-2 tie.

"I have to be pretty happy the way our team didn't let down," said Seattle Manager Maury Wills. "With everything going on here this weekend, we could easily have laid down and lost four in a row."

Royals 3, Orioles 2
Lee May drove in two runs and Jerry Grote knocked in another to carry Kansas City past Baltimore behind the combined five-hit pitching of Rich Gale and Renie Martin.

May, the 38-year-old former Oriole, doubled home Frank White from second for Kansas City's first run off Mike Flanagan in the second inning. May, who collected three hits, singled home another run in the fourth inning, then the 38-year-old Grote, the former New York Met who ended a two-year retirement, doubled home another tally to make it 3-0 for the Royals' eventual winning run.

"The guys were all kidding me and making faces from the bench," said May of the Orioles, his teammates the past five years. "Terry Crowley asked me if I was afraid. I told him I was scared to death. It felt good just to get in a game."

Blue Jays 9, Tigers 1
Mark Bombardier recorded his first American League victory and Al Woods drove in three runs with a pair of doubles to pace Toronto over Detroit. Bombardier obtained earlier in the month from the New York Mets, limited the Tigers to seven hits over 72-3 innings before being relieved by Roy Lee Jackson, another former Met. Bombardier struck out three and walked four.

Red Sox 9, White Sox 4
Gary Allenson's three-run homer in the fourth inning triggered Boston over Chicago. Allenson's home run came after Ross Baumgarten hit Joe Rudi with a pitch to open the Boston fourth and Glen Hoffman singled.

That gave the Red Sox a 5-1 lead at the time and their eventual winning run. After the White Sox closed to within 5-4 with the help of Carlton Fisk's third home run of the season against his former team, Boston wrapped it up with a four-run ninth, with two of the runs scoring on Hoffman's single.

Rangers top Yanks

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP)—Jon Matlack figures the new-look Texas infield is going to make him a better pitcher and the long-suffering Rangers more than just a 500 team.

"We have the best defense we've had since I've been here," said Matlack after he limited the New York Yankees to just four hits Sunday and was bailed out of a bases-loaded jam by a slick doubleplay.

Matlack said adding Mario Mendoza at shortstop and putting Pat Putnam at first base fulltime will make second baseman Bump Willis and third baseman Buddy Bell ever better.

"Mendoza will certainly make Bump better and he was real good last year," said Matlack. "Putnam is just a hard-nosed guy at first base. He'll give you everything over there. I'd say our infield is in good shape and that gives a lot of confidence to the pitchers." Matlack struck out three and walked one and forced multi-millionaire Dave Winfield to hit into a bases-loaded double-play grounder in the third inning. Mendoza roamed deep to his left to catch the ball, nipped to ground and the relay to first just nipped the speedy Winfield.

"Mario is a vacuum cleaner at shortstop," said Matlack. "He has great range."

Back-to-back doubles from Mickey Rivers and Al Oliver in the first inning off starter Tom Underwood, 0-1, gave Matlack all the runs he needed.

The victory was a big turnaround for Matlack who was battered in New York and Cleveland in his first two starts, yielding 10 earned runs and 15 hits in 13 innings.

Matlack has a 21-10 record in Arlington stadium with the Rangers but is 9-19 on the road.
