Councilmen Smith, McEwen win runoff

By JAMES WERRELL

Big Spring City Councilman Jack Y. Smith was returned to the Place 3 seat, and newcomer Robert "Russ" McEwen was chosen to occupy the Place 4 seat, in Tuesday's city runoff election.

Smith polled 791 votes, compared to 441 for his challenger, Michael W. Randle. McEwen outdistanced Donna Fish, 803 votes to 393.

Smith was appointed to the seat in 1979, shortly after the resignation of John Massey, who had won the post in that year's election. Massey left Big Spring to pursue a business venture in another city.

Smith was subsequently elected by fellow members to serve as Mayor Pro-Tem.

When Smith failed by one vote to garner over 50 percent of the total vote, a runoff with the second-place finisher was required.

The race for the Place 4 seat on the council drew three challengers after incumbent Larry Miller chose not to seek reelection. As was the case with Smith and Randle, McEwen failed to attract a majority of the votes in the regular election, making the runoff necessary.

Both Smith and McEwen will be sworn in during the regular meeting of the council on Tuesday.

For the first time, local voters cast ballots in only two locations. Voters

EROSION WOES — Tuesday's heavy rains caused some of roadway on a connector thoroughfare near US 87 and the Gail Road north of town to give way, posing problems for both passing motorists and highway reconstruction crews.

Heavy rains pose problems in Knott

County roads damaged by water

By CAROL HART

The most widespread rains of 1981 hit the Big Spring area Tuesday, posing problems for motorists, washing out several roads, and flooding an area the county has been trying to drain for months.

County Judge Bill Tune advised that the Ward and Pirkle Lakes, water buildings which accumulated during September and have posed a problem for residents near Knott ever since, are again flowing over county roads in the Knott area.

In September, heavy rains caused extensive flooding, which saw houses swamped with water and driving over certain roads made impossible. Now, "Pirkle Lake caught another foot of water," Tune said. He added that Ward Lake is also up over the road. Culverts in the area were also damaged.

"The Road and Bridge department crews are out checking" roads today, Tune said. "There was fairly heavy damage to roads in some areas" throughout the county.

Pumping efforts in the area, which have been under way several months, had been halted recently because the pumps were broken down, Tune said.

High water and dangerous traveling conditions were called in to county authorities following the downpour

Tuesday.

Howard County Sheriff's department officials were advised that a bridge, located on Highway 669 six miles south of Gail, had washed out during the heavy rain.

Traffic was also blocked on the road to Vealmoor, as heavy rains made driving there impossible for a while. Road crews were summoned to put down barricades at the flooded areas.

High water was reported east of Cosden on the north and south service roads, and the Lake Way Grocery exit off interstate 20 was reportedly flooded for awhile.

Scurry County officials also called local authorities to report that high water and dangerous conditions were prevalent on Highway 350 one mile north of the old Howard County airport.

Extensive damage was also reported on the first paved road north of Pinkies that goes from North 87 to the Gail Road.

The official rainfall for Big Spring, as recorded at the U.S. Experiment Station, located north of town, was 1.45 inches, bringing the year's total to 5.92 inches.

That's more than double the average for the year — 2.90 inches.

1.8 inches fell at the Luther Gin northeast of Big Spring. On the Blassingame place 1.25 miles south of the Luther gin, 2.4 inches of rain was measured.

Heaviest rainfall was reported at Ackerly, 23 miles northwest of Big Spring. Up to 4.5 inches of rain fell there.

The Glasscock County Agent's office reported two inches of rain, and Coahoma reported 2.5 inches. At Sand Springs, a resident living there reported that 3.3 inches of rain fell in 30 minutes time.

Knott reported 2.5 inches, the Planter's Gin at Lomax reported 2.5 inches of rain.

Westerman are predicting a chance of more rain through today.

Leases for two park buildings transferred to OIL

The Big Spring City Council met in special session this morning to formally transfer the leases for two industrial-park buildings to Oilfield Industrial Lines, Inc.

The two buildings, the former Webb Air Force Base engine and machine shops, were rented a year ago to the Lantex Hydraulic Corporation. That company chose not to locate its operations in Big Spring, but maintained control of the leases on the buildings.

When O.I.L. moved to the city, Lantex agreed to sublease the buildings to the new company. Subject to agreement by Lantex officials, councilmen today voted to dissolve the original contract and rent the buildings directly to O.I.L.

"The rental fee will remain the same, 7.5 cents per square-foot," said City Manager Don Davis.

O.I.L. recently became a subsidiary of Kidde, Inc., a highly diversified industry with home offices in New Jersey.

that may have been started by an arsonist, said Fire Marshal Carl Dorton, this morning.

The fire was reported, 3:02 p.m. Tuesday, at a home on the north end of Carey belonging to R.N. Del Bosque. The home is just outside the city limits, said Dorton.

"The fire started in the southwest bedroom of the home, and we are investigating the possibility of arson," said Dorton, today. "Luckily there wasn't much damage."

Although the fire itself was fairly routine, getting to it wasn't. Firefighters were forced to cross a bridge spanning a small creek to reach the home, and the bridge collapsed as the fire truck crossed it, said the fire marshal.

"We almost lost the truck," he added.

In order to move the truck, firefighters dumped the tank of water it was carrying, reinforced the bridge, and drove on to fight the fire. Dorton stated that the truck retained enough water to do the job, but if extra water had been needed, it could have been pumped from the creek.

"The police and fire departments did an excellent job in responding to the fire. In those weather conditions, it could have been considered a real emergency situation, and I am very pleased with the job that was done," said City Manager Don Davis, this morning.

Two reservoirs maintained by CRMWD gulping water

The two reservoirs maintained by the Colorado River Municipal Water District are benefiting from runoffs produced by Tuesday's widespread rains.

Lake Thomas, located along the Borden-Scurry county lines grew vertically by a foot and two inches, with prospects that it might add another foot. The lake is already 3,400 acre feet larger than it was two days ago.

The Colorado River is flowing seven feet over the CRMWD's diversionary dam, with all of that water headed for Lake Spence, located near Robert Lee.

CRMWD officials are expecting the vertical rise there to be a foot and a half, which means the big basin will add a total of 8,000 acre feet of water.

All of that is "quality water," ac-ording to Paschal Odom, CRMWD's assistant general manager. That's another way of saying the taste of the Spence water will improve.

Moss Lake, located six miles southeast of Big Spring, does not have water going over the spillway but another rain would send it over. At the present time, the lake has all the water it can handle.

Roads leading into the Moss recreational area were closed for a time Tuesday due to high water but the lake reopened this morning.

For three weekends in a row, attendance at Moss Lake has been outstanding. On Easter, the lake couldn't have accommodated many more people than it did.

Lake attendants, however, lauded the behavior of the visitors, adding there were no problems.

Jean Jenkins leading First Lady contest

Jean Jenkins is leading the standings in the campaign to name a First Lady, who will serve the community during the upcoming Centennial Celebration.

Others among the top 20 in the race for the honor, in the appointed order, are Brenda Moore, Becky McCauley, Ann Drake, Agnes Currie, Loma Jean Wynn, Evelyn Vise, Helen Segrest, Linda Cathey and Donna Carey.

Then comes Deloris Albert, Sue Armstrong, Cindy Frank, Lillian Rhyne, Darlene Brooks, Frances Hendricks, Marilyn Newsom, Nola Story, Sandra Haney and Ann Sheedy.

IT BEATS SWIMMING — When Ceci and Nicho Gutierrez found themselves stranded by high water after leaving school in Big Spring Tuesday following heavy rains, they didn't have to wait long before their father, Hipolito

Gutierrez, showed up with a vehicle that doesn't float but negotiates water in low-lying areas quite well. Ceci, seen peering from the cab at the left, is a student at Washington School while Nicho (right) attends Goliad Middle School.

Bill to allow SWCID to accept federal property moves along

Harjo-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The Texas Senate late Wednesday morning approved 27-0 a bill that would allow the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf to accept federal property at the old Webb AFB.

Sen. Chet Brooks of Pasadena, sponsor of the bill, told the Senate that the institute is one of only three of the nation's three colleges for the deaf.

The bill, he said, also would place the institute under the authority of the regents of Howard County Junior College District.

Brooks said the bill would require no additional appropriation of state funds for the school during the state's next biennial. That, he said, would be taken care of out of the Texas Education Association budget now under consideration by the Legislature.

Some future funding, Brooks said, is expected to come from the federal government, just as similar colleges in the Washington, D.C., area and in Rochester, N.Y., now received federal money.

Sen. Ed Howard of Texarkana said he is concerned that current moves to trim federal spending might hurt the institute's chances of obtaining those funds in the future.

Brooks stated, however, that officials he had talked to in Washington said no cutbacks in aid to colleges for the deaf are anticipated.

Focalpoint

Action / reaction: Jury duty

Q. I know the county pays you when you serve on jury duty, but I want to know whether your employer also is required to pay you. The reason I'm asking is, my father was called for jury duty recently and his company docked him eight hours' pay for the time he was absent from work.

A. No law requires payment of employees for time missed because of jury service. However, a permanent employee's right to re-employment in his former job upon his return from jury service is protected by statute. This protection hinges on the individual letting his employer know as soon as practicable after being released from jury service that he intends to return to his job. An employee injured by a violation of this law may collect up to six months' compensation from his ex-employer, but it is a defense for an employer to claim that during the employee's jury service the firm's circumstances changed to an extent that re-employment was impossible or unreasonable.

Extremely heavy rains pound Mitchell County

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Extremely heavy rains, which resulted in some flooding, pounded Mitchell County Tuesday afternoon. Most of the rainfall reports received were in excess of three inches.

Local law enforcement officers were busy most of the day assisting motorists who became stranded when their cars drowned out in high water.

One of the more serious incidents involved a pickup truck on US 208 north of Colorado City, when the truck and its driver were swept off the highway into a field. A unit from the Colorado City Fire Department rescued the man by throwing him a rope. One witness said water was waist deep across 208, which was closed to traffic for a short time.

Colorado City police were hampered in their rescue efforts when telephone service went out and they were unable to receive calls from citizens.

The heaviest rainfall total in Colorado City Tuesday came from Nolan Byrd at the Soil Conservation Office in the G-Kell Building, with a reading of 3.85 inches of rain.

The elevation of Lake Colorado City is now 2,070.30 feet, which is a foot and 3-10 inches over the first service spillway.

Storm 'real good test of our civil defense'

Those who were wondering who was watching over them during Tuesday's ominous-looking storms needn't have worried. Local Civil Defense Director Larry Miller announced, this morning, that Big Spring Police and Fire Department officials were on full alert.

"All the warning sirens were activated in case of an emergency," said Miller.

City Manager Don Davis added that some policemen have received training recently as weather watchers. Sgt. Jerry Edwards was stationed on top of Scenic Mountain monitoring the weather during the thick of the storm, and roving patrolmen also were on the lookout for any unusual developments.

"I think this was a real good test of our civil defense. Several of our policemen have attended weather watch classes here, sponsored by the state civil defense liaison man from Midland," said Davis, today. "Eventually, we hope to have enough officers trained to man every shift in case of dangerous weather," he added.

Tarbox out of hospital

Elmer Tarbox, a former Big Spring resident, has returned to his home in Lubbock after spending several days in a Lubbock Hospital.

Tarbox, a victim of Parkinson's Disease, is planning to go to Albuquerque shortly for possible surgery.

The surgery, still regarded as largely experimental, could afford him at least partial relief, if successful. Tarbox's condition is such that it severely restricts his mobility.

Rainbow Girls, advisory board sponsoring dinner

The Rainbow Girls and advisory board will sponsor a chicken spaghetti dinner in the Howard College Cafeteria from 5:30 to 8 p.m., Friday. Tickets are $3 single and $10 each for families. The public is invited to the dinner. Proceeds go to help Rainbow Girl causes. Tickets can be purchased at the door.

Two burglars prison bound

Daniel Velasquez, 20, of 507 W. 7th St., entered a guilty plea to a burglary charge in 118th District Court Tuesday.

Velasquez was given a three year sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections, Huntsville. Joey Mauldin entered a guilty plea to a charge of burglary in 118th District Court Tuesday, and was also given a three year sentence in T.D.C. Mauldin, 17, resided at 511 Bell.

Reagan discusses shooting

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, declaring that the attempt on his life "still seems unreal," said today in his first interview since he was wounded that he continues to suffer pain from his injury.

He said he hopes his assailant will "get well, too." Reagan said he remains optimistic that he will be able to win approval of his budget and tax-cut proposals. He also said he remains opposed to gun control.

Reagan met at the White House with the senior news service reporters James Gerstenzang of The Associated Press and Helen Thomas of United Press International. Questions were limited to incidents surrounding the shooting.

The president, wearing a blue-gray suit, walked with a steady although slightly stiff gait as he entered the map room in the White House for the 19-minute interview. His cheeks were ruddy and his voice showed no effect of the lung injury he received.

"It still seems unreal," he said when asked about the attack outside the Washington Hilton Hotel on March 30.

He said he realized there had been shots fired and that his first instinct was "to take a look." But he said a Secret Service agent "had a different idea."

He described the sensation of being shot as "the most paralyzing pain, as if someone hit me with a hammer." But the president said that sensation did not occur until he was in his limousine speeding away from the shooting scene.

He described his near-panic trying to get air after he was taken to George Washington University Hospital, and said, "the more I tried to breathe," the less air he felt he was getting.

"I almost had the feeling it would diminish to the point I wasn't getting any," Reagan said, adding that "then they shut me up" by sticking a breathing tube down his throat.

Asked how he felt about his assailant, the president said: "The feeling is, indeed I pray, that he can find an answer to his problem. He seems to be a very disturbed young man."

Tool box, 18-inch thief stolen

Thieves were active in the city, Tuesday. A tool box was stolen from the back of a pickup belonging to Patricio Nieto, Route 2, while it was parked at the La Posada Restaurant, 10 p.m. Tuesday. Loss was estimated at $150.

wipers, an 18-inch thief and a hydrometer. Loss was estimated at $337.24.

Two tires and two mag wheels were stolen from the front porch at the home of Jeff Dekeyser, 1103 E. 6th, sometime Tuesday morning. Loss was estimated at $50.

N.W. 4th, was treated at the Veterans Administration Medical Center, Tuesday night, after being beaten.

According to police, a man known to Scott barged into his residence, and struck him with his fists, causing bruises and minor cuts on Scott's face.

Parade deadline extended

Due to an overwhelming response by the local area, the deadline for submitting an entry in the Centennial Parade has been extended to May 15. The parade, which will be held on Monday, May 25, is scheduled to begin at 4 p.m. in downtown Big Spring.

Vandals slashed a radial tire on a car belonging to Blaine Larson, 1403 Robin, sometime Monday night. The tire was valued at $140. Robert Scott, 47, 403 1/2

All individuals and groups interested in entering a float, marching band or musical group, walking group, horse-animal stock, motorized vehicle, or other items, are asked to contact either Lynn Hise at the Big Spring High School or Dr. Charles Hays at Howard College.

INGENIOUS WAYS — First Lady candidates have devised several effective ways to sell their tickets. Jean Jenkins found that a sign in the front of Citizens Federal Credit Union, her place of employment, worked best for her. Deloris Albert, on the other hand, an employee of the Herald, found that advertisements in the local newspaper helped her move some of her "Iron Horse Revue" tickets. The First Lady reigns during the Railroad Centennial scheduled in May.

HC Presidential Award goes to Forsan soph

Beth Boeker, a sophomore from Forsan, was honored with the Presidential Award for Outstanding Student of the Year during Tuesday night's 1980-81 Howard County Junior College District's Annual Awards Convocation.

Dr. Charles Hays, president of the HCJCD, presented Miss Boeker with the award. The award is given to the student who best exemplifies the personality, character, and ability, which when combined, make an excellent leader and student for the District, said Dr. Hays.

Dr. Douglas Burke, district vice-president for SWCID, presented awards for the Outstanding Preparatory Student to Teresa Eckstein of Berryville, Ark., and to Vicki Fawcett of Hope, Ark., for the Most Outstanding SWCID Student.

Presenting the Wall Street Journal Award, a trophy given to the outstanding business student, was Ralph Smith, business instructor at Howard College. Recipient of the award was Connie Garcia, sophomore from Big Spring.

Another prestigious award presented was the American Legion Citizenship Award, which was presented by Dr. Halvard T. Hansen to Sherrrie Daniel, SWCID student from South Gate, Cal., and Mike Evans, sophomore from Big Spring.

Receiving awards for academic excellence were Karen Hahn, A.D.N.; Sharon Dwire, Business; Lana Schueller, English; Nickie Billingsley, Science; Frankie Noyola, Art; Jason Moore, Chemistry; Debra Woods, Health & P.E.; Vonda Wyre, Mid-Management; Cliff Bodiford, Trade & Industrial; Sarah De Groff and Victoria Berry, Biology; Judith Rickey, Computer Programming; Dwight Heins, Journalism; Jack Nixon and Andrian Ornelas, Music; and Nat Nunez, Math.

Outstanding members of the various organizations of the District were also recognized. They were Herbert Moore, Baptist Student Union; Carol Morehead, Phi Theta Kappa; Tony Shankles, Epsilon Delta Phi; Gib Bell, Rodeo Club; Javier Martinez, Art Club; Sandy Robbins; Thistles; Byron Lewis and Charles Doan; OEA; and Leslie Williams, TNSA.

Dr. Burke also presented leadership awards to the Outstanding SWCID Man, to Norbert Irion of St. Catharines, Ontario, Canada, and to Sherrrie Daniel for Outstanding Woman.

Carroll Choate captures coveted conservation award

Carroll Choate was presented with an award as the Outstanding Conservation Cooperator for 1981 at the annual Howard County Soil and Water Conservation District's award banquet held Tuesday evening at La Posada Restaurant.

Choate, who is married to the former Joyce Kilpatrick of the Luther community, has carried out two Great Plains conservation plans on his land. Under these plans, Carroll has installed two pipelines for livestock water.

Brush control and range seeding has been carried out on his place where it was needed and 92 acres of land unsuited to cotton were planted to grass. Diversion terraces and waterways were installed to stop gullies where needed.

Poster winners recognized by the district included Tracey Martin, Big Spring, first grade; April Massey, Big Spring, second grade; Stacey Scoggin, Sterling City Rte. 1, fourth grade; Isabel Hilario, Big Spring, fifth grade; Kasey Ducote, Big Spring, sixth grade.

In all, there were 183 entrants from eight schools. Essay winners recognized include Paul Allen, Coahoma, high school, and Arnold Solis, Big Spring, junior, Forsan High; Sonceia Scott, Coahoma Junior High; Vance Gaston, Forsan Junior High; Kasey Ducote, Big Spring, Goliad; and Quag Mai, Big Spring, Rannels.

There were 34 entrants from seven schools in the competition. The land judging FFA team representing Big Spring was a first place winner. Members are Dana Cannon, Walter Brumley, Carrie Howard, and Stephen Tillery. The high individual FFA award went to Miss Cannon, the high individual 4H prize to Tammy Peugh, Sands High School.

The Outstanding Conservation Educator was judged to Mrs. Virginia

Allen, wife of Paul Allen, now a Howard County Commissioner and conservationist. She formerly worked as a Home Economics Teacher at Coahoma High School, is now employed as an elementary school teacher in Coahoma. She is a native of the Benger, Okla., area.

The awards were presented by Bill Ward, Bruce Griffith, a Big Spring banker, was the principal speaker. J.M. Sterling presided. Neil Fryar welcomed guests. Dr. Kenneth Patrick gave the invocation.

Suspect posts $10,000 bail

Mini-mill way rising from rust of old giants

Steel industry booming in Sunbelt states

By JACK FISCHER
States News Service

WASHINGTON — The steel industry is booming — if you know where to look. It's not Bethlehem, Pittsburgh or the other traditional steel regions in the Northeast. The future of the industry is largely in the Sunbelt states, where a new approach toward making steel is taking place. The key word is mini-mills. While industry giants, like U.S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel are languishing in low profits and outmoded plants, the mini-mill way of steel-making is rising literally from the rust of the old giants.

Also called "non-integrated" companies by those in the industry, mini-mills produce an increasing variety of simple steel products using iron scrap instead of iron ore. The use of scrap, modern production techniques, and regional markets may mean the mini-mills will spell a thorough restructuring of the domestic steel industry.

"There's a quiet revolution going on out there and no one is paying any attention to it," said Joel Hirschhorn, director of a study of the steel industry conducted last year by the congressional Office of Technology Assessment.

Growing from a handful of plants that produced about one million tons of steel in 1960, more than 40 plants have been built to date, including three in Texas: Bordeur Steel Mill, Inc., in El Paso, Chaparral Steel Co. in Midlothian and Kucor Corp. in Jewett.

As of last year, 50 mini-mills across the country produced more than 12 million tons, or 15 percent of the total domestic steel output.

Hirschhorn and other observers believe that market share will grow to 25 percent of all domestic steel production by 1998. And if technological advances bear fruit, these mills could capture a maximum of half the market by the year 2000, Hirschhorn said.

One reason why the mini-mills have been so start-ingly successful in so little time is their higher productivity and lower production costs. OTA estimates the mini-mills pre-tax profits are $31.60 for each ton of steel shipped, compared to the meager $9.60 a ton produced by the integrated firms.

In addition, mini-mill owners use the most modern technology, like electric arc furnaces and continuous casting, which eliminates the need to cool iron ingots before shaping them into the final products. Together with the frequent use of non-union labor, that puts employment costs for mini-mills at $138 for each ton shipped, compared to $200 a ton for the major producers, the OTA steel report states.

Because the mini-mills use nearly supplies of iron scrap to produce steel instead of fashioning iron ingots first like the integrated companies, their electricity costs have been a quarter of those of their giant brothers in the industry, according to the report.

Using iron scrap also cuts the cost of building a mini-mill to one-tenth of the cost of the integrated companies, in part because the absence of iron production equipment reduces pollution — and with it, the costly pollution control devices that sap the integrated steel industry's investment capital.

In more ways than one, the term mini-mill is a misnomer. Many are expanding their product lines from the simple reinforcing bars they first produced to steel angles, channels and bars, cutting further into integrated steel's market.

How are the giants of the industry responding to all this? Top executives of integrated companies like U.S. Steel said at a recent meeting of the Senate Steel Caucus that the construction of mini-mills might be at least a partial solution to the industry's problems.

Joseph C. Wyman, a steel analyst for the New York brokerage firm of Shearson, Loeb Rhoades Inc., sees the emergence of the mini-mills as nothing less than "a restructuring of the steel industry from the outside."

The number of jobs gained in the mini-mills is not expected to come close to absorbing the amount lost in the traditional steel industry.

Weather

Afternoon thunderstorms in West Texas forecast

By the Associated Press
Another cloudy, warm and humid day punctuated with thunderstorms was in store for all of Texas today. Forecasts called for afternoon thunderstorms over western sections of the state this afternoon and for the remainder of the state tonight.

Highs were to be mostly in the 70s and 80s.

A tornado, hail and some flash flooding were reported over the state Tuesday as thunderstorms battered all but extreme South Texas.

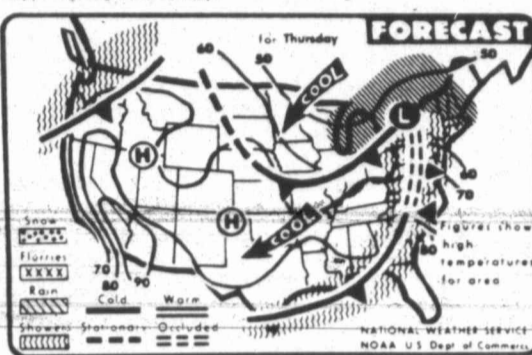

A tornado watch was in effect for Northeast Texas and the Panhandle for several hours Tuesday and a flash flood watch was in effect in parts of West Texas and the Hill Country.

WEATHER FORECAST

WEST TEXAS — Scattered showers and thunderstorms most sections today and south and southeast tonight with some locally heavy thunderstorms southeast tonight. Clear north and partly cloudy south.

EXTENDED FORECAST

WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy with a warming trend Friday through Sunday. Lows 40s north to 50s south. Clear, warming to 50s north to upper 40s south Sunday. Highs 70s north to low 90s Big Bend Friday warming to 80s north to upper 90s Big Bend Sunday.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecasts rain and showers for Thursday from Texas to Maine. Showers are also expected in portions of Washington and Oregon.

On track

Parts still open for 'Iron Horse Revue'

"On Track" is an official column prepared by the Big Spring Centennial, Inc., and lists the various events and meetings being held in conjunction with the upcoming Big Spring-Howard County Centennial to be held May 21-30. Individuals wishing to list their activities and events in this column are asked to call Mel Prather at 267-6373, or bring their items by Citizens Federal Credit Union.

CAST PARTS: Individuals wishing to be in the cast of the "Iron Horse Revue" are encouraged to contact Gary Welz at the Centennial Store-Headquarters at 267-3641 prior to the beginning rehearsals this evening in the Rannels Junior High School gym.

COMMEMORATIVE PLATES: The shipment of centennial commemorative plates recently received at the Centennial Store-Headquarters is going fast. Individuals wishing to purchase these two attractive commemorative items at $6 each are encouraged to do so in the near future.

STOCK CERTIFICATES AND TRAIN PRINTS: Both the stock certificates and the limited edition of 250 signed and numbered train prints are still being sold through the centennial store and Citizens Federal Credit Union. Persons buying the stock certificates will have their names included in the commemorative book as stock holders in the centennial celebration. The cost for both the stock certificates and the train prints is only $5.00 each.

SHAVING PERMITS: The shaving permits that went on sale Monday at the centennial store are selling fast. Any adult male failing to either grow facial hair and be a member of the Brothers of the Brush, or who fails to purchase a shaving permit, will be subject to arrest by the Keystone Kops and trial in the Kangaroo Court on Fridays of each week.

FIRST PROMENADE AND KANGAROO KOURT: The first promenade will be held in downtown Big Spring Friday, April 24, and will originate at the Ritz Theatre parking lot at 5 p.m. The promenade of both Centennial Belles and Brothers of the Brush will then proceed north on Main to Third Street, west on Third to Scurry, and around the courthouse to the east lawn, where the first Kangaroo Court will be held at 5:30 p.m. Friday is also dress up day and all area residents are encouraged to wear their old-style clothes and take part in the festivities.

Dallas child abducted from hospital is found

DALLAS (AP) — His disappearance has not been explained but Rafael Delgado's return to Children's Medical Center hospital was an occasion for rejoicing to his doctors, his family and the police.

"I was so happy," said Mary Delgado, Rafael's mother.

"It's just tremendous," said Dr. Heinz Eichenwald, hospital chief of staff.

Rafael is a month-old child, suffering from seizures that result from a brain infection, and he was abducted from his hospital bed shortly after midnight Tuesday, 10 minutes after a nurse had checked his crib.

He remained missing most of the day, with police and doctors issuing dire warnings that 24 hours without medication could spell death for the infant.

Finally, he was returned to the hospital by police officers and ambulance attendants after an anonymous tipster notified police there was an abandoned child inside a soft drink crate behind a store eight miles from the hospital.

"Some people found him in a Coke box behind the Best-for-Less Food Mart," said police information officer Bob Shaw. "They (patrolmen) don't think he had been there very long."

The infant was taken hurriedly to the hospital where Eichenwald and his pediatrician, Dr. Ron Perkin, examined him, verified he was Rafael and returned him to the intensive care unit.

"The baby is in good shape," Eichenwald said, adding that "a great load has been lifted" with Rafael's return.

The child's vital signs were stable and "we will continue his therapy," said

Perkin. "I couldn't be happier."

Rafael was born prematurely at a hospital in suburban Mesquite and was immediately transferred to Children's Medical Center when he developed a breathing difficulty.

He recovered from that problem, caused by immature lungs, but by then doctors had spotted a central nervous system disorder and have been treating the child with a dose of anti-convulsant medicine every 24 hours since then.

Doctors publicly pleaded for Rafael's return after Tuesday's abduction because the child's seizures resemble drowsiness rather than nervous twitching and any person who tried to feed him in that condition ran the risk of killing him.

"Without proper training most people wouldn't be able to detect a seizure in such a small infant," said Perkin. "The baby just appears sleepy, but he isn't able to take feedings appropriately."

If feeding was attempted, the formula "could get in his lungs," Perkin continued. "There is a chance the child could die from asphyxiation."

Until three days ago, when his alertness improved enough to permit normal feedings, the child was fed through a tube, Perkin said.

Mrs. Delgado, 20, is separated from Rafael's father, Trinidad Delgado, 22. The father was contacted Monday in Laredo, Mexico.

Eighth grade boy dies in Dallas classroom

DALLAS (AP) — A stocky, outgoing 14-year-old boy, described by his principal as "the idyllic teen-ager," collapsed Tuesday during an afternoon history class and died while paramedics and a school nurse tried to revive him, officials said.

Roger Woodall, who lived with his father Carl Woodall in southwest Dallas, was pronounced dead at 4:10 p.m. at Methodist Hospital after emergency room physicians there unsuccessfully attempted to resuscitate the youth, hospital officials said.

The 8th grader at L.V. Stockard Middle School stopped breathing about 3 p.m. and his heart stopped just minutes later as paramedics attempted to revive him, said the school's principal Robert C. Ballew.

Though no official cause of death has been determined, Ballew said paramedics told him "the outward signs" showed the youth may have suffered a heart attack or a stroke. An autopsy was ordered.

About four hours before his death the youth had a routine physical examination by a school nurse and showed no signs of illness, officials said.

But during an afternoon class, teacher Ben Ortiz says his pupil slumped over his desk and fell to the floor crying and gasping.

Japan threatens nuclear execs with prosecution

TOKYO (AP) — The government has threatened executives of a nuclear power plant with criminal prosecution for failing to report a spill of radioactive waste water that exposed 56 workers to possible contamination and leaked into a nearby bay.

Officials of the Ministry of International Trade and Industry, which has overall responsibility for Japan's nuclear power plants, said publicly they doubted the company's version of the second accident this year at the Tsuruga nuclear power station on the Japan Sea, 200 miles west of Tokyo.

Officials of the company also did not report the first accident, three months ago, as required by law, and no charges have been filed. But the government said that accident was "still under investigation."

International Trade and Industry Minister Rokusuke Tanaka said if an investigation finds that officials of the Japan Atomic Power Co. violated the Electricity Utility Industry Law by failing to disclose the second leak immediately, they would be prosecuted and "rigorously punished." The maximum penalty is a three-year prison term.

The second leak, which officials called the worst in Japan's nuclear power history, has stirred a new uproar among the nation's nuclear power opponents and demands that the company's top executives resign.

Pecan grafting clinic booked

Pecan enthusiasts will have an opportunity to be able to receive training in pecan grafting, Friday, at 2 p.m. in the Texas Electric Building's Reddy Room.

A brief discussion by area Extension horticulturists, Austin Stockton, will begin the afternoon program. It will deal with procedures and equipment needs. Demonstrations on actual pecan trees will conclude the days program. Participants are reminded to be on time so as to not miss the discussion portion of the training meeting. More information on the program may be had by contacting the Howard County Extension Office.

Justice Department closes book on Billy Carter-Libyan affair

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department, writing the final chapter to Billy Carter's Libyan affair, concludes there was no wrongdoing in the White House or anywhere else in the Carter administration. But it still says the former president's brother lied to investigators.

Michael E. Shaheen, the Justice Department's chief internal investigator, turned over a final report Tuesday to Solicitor General Wade H. McCree and the department's criminal division, which earlier had decided not to seek any charges in the case.

Billy Carter, reached Tuesday night in Haleyville, Ala., by the Atlanta Journal, said he believes Shaheen's report "kind of closes the book" on the episode.

"I think it's a good report," said Carter, who now is a traveling salesman for an Americus, Ga., company which makes moldings for houses and mobile homes. "They didn't find anything that would turn me out."

A statement issued by the criminal division saying it would examine the material Shaheen developed "and reach a conclusion whether it warrants further action" could provide the only epilogue to the story.

But the division earlier sought only a civil settlement with Billy Carter, who registered as a foreign agent for Libya and acknowledged receiving $220,000 from the radical Arab regime. A charge of lying to government agents is rarely filed in the absence of other criminal charges.

Shaheen's report specifically said former President Carter; his attorney general, Benjamin Civiletti; and former national security chief Zbigniew Brzezinski committed no illegal acts.

The 10-page report concluded a nine-month investigation in which more than 50 people — including the former president, Brzezinski and Civiletti — were interviewed.

Shaheen said President Carter was interviewed under oath at the White House last Dec. 19 and was asked about his advance knowledge of his brother's dealings with Libya and about his own directions to other government agencies as a result of those dealings.

"Our primary conclusion is that no government officials or employees have been shown to have engaged in illegal conduct," Shaheen wrote. "Nothing suggests that President Carter acted to frustrate or impede the Department of Justice's investigation of Billy Carter or that he sought to assist his brother in attempts to engage in business transactions with the Libyans."

The president's younger brother registered as a foreign agent after 18 months of prodding by the Justice Department but contended most of the money was in two installment payments on an unconditional $500,000 loan.

Shaheen repeated his conclusion, contained in an interim report last October, that Billy Carter had lied in first denying he received any money from Libya and then not telling the truth about the nature of the payments.

The final report also concluded that Civiletti acted within his legitimate discretion when he told President Carter at the White House on June 17, 1980 that his brother probably would not be prosecuted if he registered as a foreign agent. Two weeks later, Billy Carter registered.

Shaheen said he also would forward a copy of his final report to the Senate Judiciary Committee, which had earlier investigated the Billy Carter case.

Shelters for battered wives 'prison-like'?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A state senator opposes funding of shelters for battered wives because he thinks "love and devotion of a family" are better than the "prison-type environment" of shelters, an aide says.

Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, closely questioned a representative of the Texas Council on Family Violence when she appeared Tuesday before the Senate Human Resources Committee. Debby Tucker spoke in favor of a bill to fund the centers.

The measure by Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, would dedicate 4 percent of money raised by the mixed drink tax to a fund for services to victims of domestic violence.

"What about the wife going back to Mother, or some other member of the family?" Leedom asked Ms. Tucker. "One of the checks you used to have on an abusive son-in-law was a father. My concern is that your batter wives' shelters are helping to change that."

Leedom left for Dallas before the committee voted on the measure, but his aide, Bill McKenzie, said "I know the senator is opposed."

"He thinks the love and devotion of the family circle are better than the prison-type atmosphere of the centers," McKenzie said.

Texas has about 20 such shelters where women and their children can seek refuge from violent husbands. Ms. Tucker said she invited Leedom to tour the Austin center, but he refused because he did not have time.

The comment that centers are "prison-like" puzzled her, she said.

"It's more like a dormitory ... it's more like a home," she said.

She added that anti-feminist leader Phyllis Schlafly had written an article saying that the centers were "government-funded places where women go to get R&R (rest and recreation)," but that local "pro-family" groups supported the center.

Local Eagle Forum lobbyist Linda Studdard said she was not aware of Schlafly's position and couldn't comment on the proposed legislation.

Leedom said shelters are anti-family.

"The pro-family concept is that the family circle is not just the husband and wife, it's children and aunts and uncles, brothers and sisters. ... Why can't we aim that troubled person into a loving environment?" he asked.

Ms. Tucker explained that families often are scattered across the country, and parents separated from children by hundreds or even thousands of miles.

"Then why can't you buy her (the battered wife) a bus ticket to Chicago? That probably wouldn't cost more than $200," Leedom replied.

"But you're driving that person out of the community, ending a chance for a reconciliation," Ms. Tucker said.

She said 40 percent of women served by the Austin Family Violence Center reunited with their husbands and "established a good family."

Trustees at Coahoma add computer program

COAHOMA — Coahoma school trustees voted Monday at their regular meeting to add a computer program to the high school curriculum. The board will take bids on the machines for the course.

In other action, the trustees authorized the taking of bids for the Building Trades house when it is completed, authorized the purchase of a Toro 52-inch riding lawnmower complete with grass catcher, approved paying tuition costs for three Awake students who will be attending the summer workshop at Texas Tech University in Lubbock, approved the appointment of Danella to the junior high school and Talented and Gifted program and gave their blessing for the annual Senior Prom. The destination this year will be Six Flags Over Texas amusement park May 15-16.

In other business, the trustees assigned a committee to work with the school superintendent on the possible repair of school houses, named a group to work with the superintendent on a material selections policy for the school library, and set up a budget work session for next Monday at 8 p.m.

Supt. Richard Souter said that 96 percent of the current tax roll had been collected, leaving a total of $81,000 on the current tax roll.

Voting on the board of directors for the Education Service Center in Midland was completed. A vacancy exists in the school's maintenance department. Anyone interested in the position should contact the school superintendent's office.

Atlanta prison filled with 1,800 felons

Unwanted Cubans await government's next move

EDITOR'S NOTE: Fidel Castro offered Cuba's prison inmates freedom last year if they would take the "Freedom Flotilla" to America. A year later, the hard core of these confessed criminals is being held in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta where AP Special Correspondent Peter Arnett visited cells and interviewed inmates.

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

ATLANTA (AP) — They came expecting freedom in America. But they weren't welcome and have been told they can't stay. Now, amid violence and legal skirmishing, nearly 1,800 confessed Cuban felons impatiently wait in their cells for officials to make the next move.

"Whenever the rumor gets around that we're shipping them home, they get very unsettled," said William Noonan, deputy warden of the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, home to these unwanted Cubans.

Two deaths occurred on a day this reporter visited, a not unusual happening," said Noonan.

The prisoners came to the United States a year ago after President Fidel Castro swung open Cuba's prison doors to let criminals who wished to leave his Caribbean island join the "Freedom Flotilla."

About 19,000 inmates made the 90-mile trip to Florida, and many were soon released because their crimes were viewed as political. But nearly 1,800 were disappointed in their quest — incarcerated, most of them, inside the thick stone walls of the Atlanta prison.

Cuba has refused to discuss the return of any of them.

"Who gets out and who stays in?" E.M. Treminsky, director of immigration processing at the prison, asked rhetorically.

"Some we never want to see on the streets," he said. "But then, there are others we feel should be out but who will probably never get sponsored. It is a continuing dilemma."

Thirty-one of the Cubans have confessed to murder or attempted murder. Others have admitted to crimes from rape to theft.

But as the near-certainty of deportation rulings become apparent, many of the inmates are recanting their earlier confessions and seeking help from public defenders and civil rights groups.

One of these is Hector Zulueta Menocal, 24. "I was never a delinquent," he insisted in an interview, explaining that he had received a 14-year sentence for carrying two pairs of pants and two shirts "that I truly needed for my family."

Zulueta has been sponsored by relatives but has not been allowed to leave.

Another man served 10 years in a Cuban prison for a 1950 murder. He had been free for 20 years, but has spent the past 10 months in the Atlanta prison.

"We have approved this man for sponsorship because we feel he has paid his price to society," said Robert McCarthy of the U.S. Catholic Conference, the only sponsoring agency at the prison. "But the authorities will not let him go."

Program director, Gerry Wynne, said the Catholic Conference's first priority "is getting the Cubans out of the Atlanta slammer." But no one is being freed simply because he's being held in jail.

"We won't touch the serious cases," Wynne said. Deciding between the "good" and "bad" Cubans is a major problem for U.S. officials, who must decide whether they should be permitted to go out into American society while awaiting deportation. Virtually all those confessing to crimes of "moral turpitude" are routinely receiving deportation orders, but enforcing the orders could take years.

"We have no paper at all from Cuba on these people, only their confessions," said Treminsky, the prison's top immigration officer. "The seriousness of a crime is much like beauty, it's in the eye of the beholder."

To behold the Cubans in the Atlanta "slammer" is to enter a sobering world of iron bars, clanging steel doors, shouted orders and crowded cells. The 80-year-old prison, built with rock from Georgia's Stone Mountain, was scheduled to close soon because it is outdated. The installation has now been almost entirely devoted to the Cubans and will remain open indefinitely.

The prisoners in "A" block are living eight to a cell, twice the number intended when the jail was built. The Atlanta Legal Aid Society has filed suits, including inadequate medical conditions and ill treatment by guards.

"There may be bad people there, but there are also good people and they should be protected," said Legal Aid lawyer Myron Kramer.

Asked to comment on the charges, deputy warden Noonan responded, "You've seen the cells, you tell me if they are crowded." He insisted that his guards "don't use rifle butts like they do in Cuban prisons" to enforce discipline, but that "we are not soft and expect them to obey the rules."

In an interview, inmate Zulueta said that while he personally had no complaints, "the others that do complain have reason." Particularly feared, he said, was solitary confinement, the only part of the prison off-limits to visiting reporters. Noonan said the worst disciplinary cases were held there.

Officials said their biggest initial problem was vast cultural differences. "The Cubans beat on the cell bars to make mariachi music. They sing a lot, and yell to each other across the cell blocks," said Noonan. "And they are mercurial in behavior, wanting to fight you one moment, then be your friend. In general they seem flexible and good-natured."

The first group of Cuban prisoners in Atlanta flushed the toilets for drinking water because they had never seen them before.

"And many fought over their first meals because they thought it might be their last. Food had to be scrounged back in Cuba's jails," Noonan said. Now the Cubans eat seven pounds of food each day, nearly two pounds more than an American prisoner. The emphasis is on rice and beans.

The guards also had to adjust to the Cubans' habit of carrying knives. "They'll make a stabbing implement out of anything," said Noonan. "A soft metal cardholder, copper tubing off a sink, even a sharpened toothbrush."

"We count all the bones after a sparrers dinner just in case they sharpen one of them," he said with a straight face.

The concern is justified. The two men stabbed on a day this reporter visited were in a group playing cards in "A" block. A man was stabbed to death in January in a fight over a plastic comb.

"All prisons have such incidents. They're all cooped up, they'll take justice into their own hands," Noonan said. But he and other American officials said the Cuban macho image leads to more stabbings than normal.

Of greater concern are "hot tools" that can bring escape. Jail officials always measure the bandsaw blades to make sure a prisoner didn't take a piece for his own use. Two Americans escaped over the prison's high back wall in 1975.

The Cubans are encouraged to learn English and practice simple crafts such as brushmaking and broommaking and the construction of red paper parachutes for the weather service. The pay is from 38 to 57 cents an hour.

For recreation, first-run movies such as "Dressed to Kill" are shown regularly. The Cubans play baseball in a yard under the eyes of armed guards on the wall towers.

Only about 100 of the prisoners have visitors, but all seek out the Legal Aid lawyers and the Catholic Conference resettlement officials because they represent freedom.

"We believe that as many as 40 percent of the prisoners at Atlanta can be safely sponsored into American communities," said Wynne.

Immigration authorities have approved the release of more than 100 inmates, but sponsors cannot be found for them. And the Catholic Conference has sponsors for 40 inmates who are not allowed out.

Famed DeBaKey debunks jogging

HOUSTON (AP) — Dr. Michael DeBaKey says such exercising as jogging will not prevent heart attacks.

The 72-year-old internationally known cardiovascular surgeon says reasonable exercise is healthy "but it's not going to prevent you from having a heart attack."

Speaking before a group of businessmen Tuesday, DeBaKey said, "I don't have any strong objection to jogging for people who are relatively young, say, under 30."

"I do have some objections to joggers who get out in the middle of the street, especially at dusk or dawn when I've nearly run into them," he said. "I think that's dangerous."

Big Spring girl is 1981 Miss T.E.E.N. Texas

Felicia Ford, 16, 424 Edwards, was crowned 1981 Texas Miss T.E.E.N. Saturday night at the Sheraton Hotel in Dallas. Miss Ford was also among the top 10 in talent and was chosen Miss Photogenic.

Felicia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V.P. Dunbar and Ray Ford of Big Spring and is listed among the Distinguished American High School Students of America.

Tamara Hext, Vidor, the 1980 Miss T.E.E.N., crowned Miss Ford who competed among 117 contestants from throughout the state.

The first runner-up to Miss Ford was Melissa Paxton, Garland; second runner-up,

Shower honors Miss Speegle

Jennifer Speegle, bride-elect of Scott Wilder, was honored with a bridal shower Saturday in the home of Mrs. Bob Simpson.

Corsages were presented to the honoree and her mother, Mrs. J.W. Speegle.

The refreshment table, covered with a crocheted cloth, was centered with a floral arrangement in the bride-elect's chosen colors of blue and white.

Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Bob Simpson, Gina Simpson, Mrs. Jerry Foresyth and Mrs. Dean Swinney. The hostesses presented Miss Speegle with a covered wooden cheese board and a silk flower arrangement.

The couple will wed May 22 in the home of the bride-elect's parents.

Area art show is held at Armory

The Big Spring Art Association 1981 Area Show was held Saturday and Sunday at the National Guard Armory. There were 117 entries from local and area artists. Cash prizes and ribbons were awarded to winners.

The Best of Show Award went to Gregory Price for a painting, "Study In Gray & Yellow." The popular vote went to Larry Christensen for a western.

Other awards included Auditions to be held in Snyder

SNYDER — Scholarship auditions for a 17-25 piece jazz-rock ensemble will be held May 18-22 at Western Texas College, Snyder.

Auditions will be from 1-5 p.m. each afternoon in room 102 of the Fine Arts Building, said Guy Gamble, ensemble director. Instruments needed are saxes, trombones, trumpets, keyboard, bass guitar, and trap drums. Scholarships and work-study employment are available. Gamble added, and interested students are invited to contact him at 573-8511, extension 323 or 234.

Try Snappy Cheese Nachos

When you need a quick and easy appetizer, try Snappy Cheese nachos. Place 36 round tortilla chips on an unbuttered baking sheet. Combine one and one-half cups (6 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese, three tablespoons each picante sauce and chopped green onion; mix well. Place about one teaspoon cheese mixture atop each tortilla chip. Bake in a moderate (350 degree F.) oven about 10 minutes or until cheese melts. Remove from baking sheet and serve at once.

Girl Scouts entertain fathers

"Early Days of Big Spring" was the theme of the Girl Scout Father Daughter Banquet April 14 in the Big Spring High School Cafeteria.

Three hundred fathers and daughters attended this joint effort of Units Nos. 34 and 36.

Cadet Troop No. 63 gave the welcome and conducted the flag ceremony. Brownie Troop No. 340 voiced the opening grace.

The scouts decorated their food boxes to coincide with the banquet theme. Prizes were given for the cutest, most original, prettiest and best suited to the theme.

Cookie patches were awarded for Girl Scout Cookies sales.

Songs and skits were presented by troops Nos. 36, 64, 77, 102, 115, 121, 131 and 156.

Bowlegged Teen Wants Straight Answer

DEAR ABBY: I've never seen my problem mentioned in your column. I'm bowlegged. I am 18 and not a bad-looking guy, but there's a separation of about five inches between my knees when I stand up straight.

I am so self-conscious about this that I'm afraid to ask a girl for a date. My parents tell me not to worry about it, but I can't help feeling inferior and deformed. I even went to a doctor and asked him if something could be done. He just laughed at me.

Abby, do you know of any bone specialist who could break my legs and reset them? Or maybe put my legs in braces to straighten them out? Or am I too old for that? I would do just about anything to have straight legs like other guys.

Please don't tell me to thank God that I can walk. (Everybody tells me that.) I am praying that you won't let me down.

BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE

DEAR BOWLEGGED: You have a problem that is far more serious than bowed legs. It's the way you perceive yourself. Please see a psychologist or psychiatrist. He (or she) will not laugh at you: Your thinking, not your legs, needs straightening out. In the meantime, consider this "prayer": "God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to know the difference."

DEAR ABBY: How does a person get a letter to you? Our newspaper never prints your address. Also, do I have to sign my name in order to be answered in your column?

WONDERING IN HONG KONG

DEAR WONDERING: Write to ABBY, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. And you need not sign your name. Because column space is limited, obviously every letter will not appear in print.

DEAR ABBY: I loved your answer to the Minneapolis man who was embarrassed by the loud laughter of his ladyfriend whenever they went to a comedy. (You said, "Hearty explosive laughter is characteristic of an uninhibited, outgoing personality — a healthy plus.")

For 25 years, my sister-in-law told me to "hold it down" every time I laughed in public. Even when others around us were laughing more loudly than I, I was told to "tone down" or "be quiet." (Sometimes she wasn't that polite.) It put a damper on my spirits and spoiled my fun, so as much as I like this sister-in-law, I have quit going places with her.

I can't help how I laugh. People have told me I sound like Phyllis Diller. Well, I take that as a compliment, as she seems to be a lady who enjoys life to the fullest and isn't afraid to be herself.

LOVES TO LAUGH IN NORWALK

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

BS to host PTA Spring conference

Texas PTA's District 17 Spring Conference will be held April 28, at 8:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m., at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. PTA members from a 15-county area of West Texas will be coming to Big Spring, according to Leslie Earnest, president of the Big Spring Council of the Parent-Teacher Association.

"Big Spring has more than 2,100 members," said Mrs. Earnest. "We hope to have a good sized local group at the conference."

"All PTA members are urged to attend, and the public is invited," emphasized District 17 PTA president Glenda Pruitt of Midland.

Workshop topics will be: "Speaking Out for Your Children," by Ann Page, Midland School Board member; Frank Marlow, Midland principal and Molly Bedrich, PTA District 17 legislative chairman.

"Parenting Challenges of the '80s" by Sue Willbanks, chairman of the Big Spring High School homemaking department.

"Texans' War on Drugs," by Tyler Thomas, regional coordinator of DARE (Drug Abuse Research and Education Foundation) and Robert Barnes of the Midland Police Department's crime prevention unit.

"What Is Your Non-Verbal I.Q.?" by Maridell Fryar, coordinator of fine arts and speech for the Midland Public Schools.

"How Nutrition Affects Your Child and More" by Virginia Martin, Big Spring High School homemaking teacher.

"A Walk Through the Tool Kit," by Mrs. Mervin Bingham, PTA Region 5 vice-president from Orange, Tex.

Conference registration fee is $2 and lunch (chicken fried steak dinner) is $4.50. Pre-registrations are being collected by the five local PTA units.

College Heights, Kentwood, Marcy, Moss and Washington PTAs are sending home conference information to parents this week. Pre-registrations should be returned to those schools by Friday.

Parents and other interested persons not receiving conference registration letters may call Leslie Earnest 267-1736 or Barbara Claxton 267-8867.

Wrap-up planning session for the District Conference will be at 2 p.m. April 23, at First Christian Church.

Each Big Spring PTA is asked to send one or more representatives.

Do beards makes sages of us all?

A reader who calls himself the Shadetree Philosopher says that, malcontents to the contrary, the upcoming Big Spring Railroad Centennial will be a definite plus for the community.

What good or tangible benefit will come out of all the activity and energy? For one thing, it will reaffirm our heritage, he says. By reliving the past, we learn to appreciate the present, he adds.

The reflective one also is of the opinion the Centennial makes the men of Big Spring wiser because they are responding to the challenge to grow beards. All wise men, he insists, have beards.

Can you picture Aristotle clean shaven, he asks? Or Albert Einstein, Sigmund Freud, Sir Isaac Newton, Galileo?

"Call to yourself an image of the brilliant men in the highly vaulted think tanks around the nation," the Shadetree Philosopher suggests. "Everytime you see one of these fellows he has a beard and a pipe while he lectures us on the obvious and makes us feel dumb because we don't understand."

Of course, a lot of the aforementioned wore beards in their time because it was highly fashionable and because safety razors hadn't been invented in their day. Einstein, if memory serves, made do with a mustache rather than a beard.

Of course, there were some rather famous rogues down through the years who encouraged the hirsute look, too — people like Fidel Castro and Bluebeard, to name a couple.

But the Shadetree Philosopher may have a point. How does the simple act of growing hair on one's face improve one's mind? Think a minute, the local sage says — a person, he maintains is as smart as he himself thinks he is and as others think he is. If everyone thinks you are stupid and you think you are stupid, you will act stupid (our advisor suggests). Conversely, he contends, if everyone thinks the opposite, including yourself, you will act smart. It's like a self-fulfilling prophecy, according to our contributing editor. Our opinions of others are very powerful, he points out, and people tend to live up to (or down to) their reputations.

"Therefore," our Shadetree Philosopher makes the point, "the Centennial Celebration make the town wiser, and if that is not a tangible benefit, I don't know one."

Whatever the end result might be, beards have become the rule rather than the exception in Big Spring — it doesn't take a wise man to detect that change. And most everyone would agree that beards (as well as old-fashioned bonnets) remind us that the Centennial is nearing — which was the original idea behind the bearded look, anyway. The people behind the thought aren't so dumb.

Lots to do Around the rim

Tina Miller

Have you been considering a weekend trip lately? If so, you have probably realized how far it is to "anywhere" from here. Unless you have a week, or at least a long weekend, it seems almost hopeless.

Perhaps your desire is to see the Alamo or the state capital. Or maybe the kids want to go to Six Flags or swim in the Gulf. It doesn't take long to discover that all of those places require at least a round-trip total of 10 hours driving. If you can afford flying (and it must be nice), some type of transportation must still be found after you arrive at your destination.

IT'S NOT THAT there is nothing to see and do within a shorter distance. For example, the Monahans Sand Dunes, the Abilene Zoo and State Park and Colorado City Lake are all well within reach. But how many times have you been to all those places? Many of us have lost count.

All is not lost, however, and a careful study of a good map may reveal possibilities that they may have been previously overlooked. Within a radius of 150 miles (give or take a few) Texas has something to offer almost every weekend traveler.

Contrary to popular belief, fishermen do not have to trot half-way across the state to catch a decent fish. Lake Thomas fishermen have caught many fish that approach the state record in size. Lake Spence is also an option that should be considered.

For camping enthusiasts who enjoy lakes and the greener pastures of the central and eastern portions of the state, Lake Brownwood, Lake Coleman and Hords Creek Lake are all in the same general area, and all offer beautiful scenery. Recent rains, I am told have helped to create a greater abundance of beautiful flowers than ever before. Acres of bluebonnets and other flowers in a rainbow of colors are everywhere — even here. If you haven't been out toward Forsan lately, do so. You may be pleasantly surprised.

BALMORHEA, LOCATED SOUTH of Ft. Worth, is a small town in the Solomon Springs. These springs created the world's largest spring-fed walled swimming pool. It covers two acres, is 30 feet deep and holds more than 3½ million gallons of water. Year around water temperatures range between 72-76 degrees.

For those interested in history, West Texas has its share of museums. Our own Heritage Museum is well worth seeing, and San Angelo's Fort Concho Museum provides it's share of the history of that area. The Permian Basin Petroleum Museum in Midland provides a bit of the background of the oil industry in the area, while the Meteor Crater and Museum, located west of Odessa, provides history of a different type.

And you thought there was nowhere to go. The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department publishes a very helpful magazine for those interested in other attractions in the state. For more information, write to Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept., 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Tex., 78744.

Budget high noon

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Passing out 50,000 copies of a Washington newspaper editorial on the streets of Tulsa, Okla., April 10, Republican operatives began the battle for Ronald Reagan's budget that will be the first decisive test of the 97th Congress.

The Washington Star lead editorial the previous day, sarcastically titled "Jim Jones for President?" criticized Rep. James R. Jones, chairman of the House Budget Committee, for presuming too much in presenting an alternative budget to Ronald Reagan's. The Republican congressional campaign committee hastened to spread the word in Rep. Jones' conservative Tulsa district, plotting to cut him down.

WHATEVER IMPACT this might have on Jones' 1982 re-election campaign, it certainly will not soften his opposition to the Reagan budget. Rather, the concerted campaign against Jones by Republicans and right-wing operatives is intended to frighten conservative Democrats and make them support Reagan's budget in the floor vote early next month following the current Easter recess.

The House will be choosing between rival budgets put forth by Reagan and Jones in a high noon gunfight that will shape the Reagan administration's first two years. While the budget merely sets upper limits on spending and tax cutting, the battle is a vote of confidence or no confidence in the Reagan economic plan, certain to have repercussions on the tax cut bill. Jimmy Jones is central to this. While Democratic leaders babbling aimlessly about a response to Reaganism, Jones acted. His budget is a political masterpiece. Wrongly styled more conservative than Reagan's because of smaller projected deficits, it in fact cuts defense, boosts social welfare and savages Reagan's tax plans.

As such, Jones' alternative looks a little as though it emerged from the hip pocket of his old boss, Lyndon B. Johnson, who as Senate majority leader gave a little here, a little there for all kinds of Democrats, enveloping the whole scene in soft lights and draperies. Whereas two months ago Jones was thought by many Democrats too conservative to be a future speaker, now a few important liberal activists tout him as presidential timber.

Even if all Republicans support the president on the budget resolution, he will still need at least 26 votes. Their primary source is the 44-member Conservative Democratic Forum (CDF) — the "Redneck Caucus" — whose members long have regarded Jones (with his 33 percent liberal voting record) as a kindred soul.

That explains the intensifying assault on Jones: Make him irredeemable as a standard for conservative Democrats. The strategy of Rep. Ed Bethune of Arkansas, a Republican Budget Committee member and a comer, is to convince conservative Democrats they must choose between two antithetical poles: Speaker Tip O'Neill and President Reagan, with no Jones middle ground.

BESIDES STIGMATIZING Jones as a born-again liberal, the Republican tactic is to pressure the redneck caucus. Word is being spread that any Democrats representing conservative districts — Rep. Marvin Leath of Texas is singled out as typical — can expect Republican colleagues campaigning on their doorsteps if they vote against Reagan. But such a vote in Leath's case is highly unlikely.

"We want to warn CDF... member," says a House Republican strategy memo, "that talking conservative while voting liberal is very dangerous."

Coldness doesn't provide thyroid diagnosis

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My secretary has a thyroid problem. Her body temperature is 97 to 97.7 on a daily basis. We understand this is a true sign of underactive thyroid. Even when she takes more thyroid capsules, the body temperature remains in the same range. She has done everything she knows. She has painted the soles of her feet with iodine, to no avail. She has eaten kelp, to no avail. She would like to know the cause and cure of treatment of this condition. — R.B.

You understand how hazardous it would be to attempt to diagnose your secretary's problem from a letter. I will not do that. However, I will be happy to explain a few facts about temperature and the thyroid gland. For the moment, discard all you apparently have read and heard about this gland.

There really is no such thing as normal temperature. It can vary from 96.5 to 99.0 F. Some people stay at the lower reading all the time. Even during the day there can be variations, the higher ones occurring later in the day. Temperature can drop as much as two degrees during sleep.

The maintenance of temperature is a complicated process, involving special brain centers, food metabolism, muscle action and — yes — thyroid hormones. But your secretary should not try to gauge her thyroid state by her temperature. She should not paint iodine on her feet and she should not increase her thyroid medicine dose because her temperature is 97 degrees. She should not try to raise her temperature just for the sake of making it register 98.6.

People who are hypothyroid have an intolerance to cold. All that means is that in a cold environment they cannot speed up their heat-producing mechanisms to make them feel warm. But with the full replacement of thyroid hormone (and your secretary is getting full replacement, according to your letter) this symptom should disappear. You cannot ascribe her feeling colder than others in the same room to a need for more thyroid hormone.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can you tell me what test is taken to diagnose narcolepsy? — L.R.

Narcolepsy is the condition where there are irresistible attacks of sleep during normal waking hours of the day. The sleep usually lasts less than 15 minutes. I know of no one test for this condition.

Narcolepsy can be diagnosed with certainty from the presence of three symptoms — cataplexy, sleep paralysis and hypnagogic hallucinations. Cataplexy means the muscles suddenly go limp after emotional stress. For example after a hearty laugh the head may fall forward because neck muscles have lost strength. Sleep paralysis means the person actually falls just before or after a sleep attack. Hypnagogic hallucinations are sensations of peculiar sights and sounds just before a sleep attack.

If all three of these symptoms are present narcolepsy can be diagnosed with certainty. Fortunately, amphetamines are used to prevent the sleep attacks and allow the narcoleptic to function normally. If all three symptoms are not present the diagnosis of narcolepsy is less certain.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My ex-husband takes Halotestin and has for several years. He never took these pills when we were married. Is this pill harmful to him? He is now 50. He didn't have sex with me, but now he claims he can by taking these pills. Is this true? — I.R.

Halotestin (generic name is fluoxymesterone) is a male hormone. If his impotency were due to a lack of male hormone, then Halotestin would be helpful.

If you look in the drug book for all the possible side effects of this drug you would find a large list. If water were listed in that book, I am sure you would find an equally impressive list of adverse effects. Everything has potential for harm. However, when wisely used under supervision, harmful effects can be checked for and the medicine stopped if they develop.

If we were overly concerned with potential side effects of approved medicines we would not be able to use any of them. It's not so much what might happen. The danger is in taking medicines without adequate supervision or in continuing to take them despite the presence of adverse effects. If your ex-husband follows those rules he will not suffer any harm.

Your thyroid plays a critical health role — in everything from eyesight to fertility. The booklet "Your Thyroid: How It Works for You" explains this important, and misunderstood, gland. To get a copy, enclose 50 cents and a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What damage does cocaine sniffed in the nose do? — K.Y.

It can damage the mucous membrane of the nose. Done to excess this can actually cause a perforation of the nasal septum (dividing wall).

You can lose weight if you really want to. The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I read a book once which claimed to have a physical description of Jesus. Do you know what Jesus looked like? — V.T.

DEAR V.T.: No, we do not. Neither the Bible nor any other books from the ancient world give us a description of Jesus. (There are some fanciful descriptions from later works, but they are not based on first-hand knowledge and are not reliable.)

The writers of the New Testament did not give us a physical description of Jesus because such details were not important to them. The reason they were not important is because they did not want anything to detract from the central theme of salvation. Jesus Christ came into the world to bring us salvation. "Here is a trustworthy saying that deserves full acceptance: Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners" (1 Timothy 1:15). He was God, and yet he also became man. He came to show us how much God loves us, and he did that by willingly going to the cross and dying for our sins. What he looked like is not important — what is important is that we understand that "God demonstrates his own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8).

I have sometimes thought also that another reason the Bible does not give us a description of what Jesus looked like is that some people might try to make idols of him, and worship idols instead of Jesus Christ. This would be wrong, for "you shall not make for yourself an idol in the form of anything in heaven above or on the earth beneath or in the waters below. You shall not bow down to them or worship them" (Exodus 20:4).

Although the Bible does not tell us what Jesus looked like, it tells us fully what he was like in his character. He loves us, and it grieves him when we turn our backs on God. He also is holy and without sin, and some day he will judge sin. He knows what it is to endure suffering and he has compassion for all who suffer. If you want to know what God is like, look at Christ — both in what he said and what he did. He is worthy of your trust and commitment.

WASHINGTON — Labor Secretary Ray Donovan was the last of President Reagan's Cabinet appointments to be confirmed. His confirmation hearing was held up to give the FBI time to investigate charges that Donovan and his New Jersey firm, the Schiavone Construction Co., had ties to the Mafia.

Donovan was outraged at the allegations, and told the Senate Labor Committee so in unmistakable terms. "I look forward to the time when as secretary of labor I can do all within my power to stamp out the sort of activities which have been wrongly attributed to me and my company," he swore.

HE NOW HAS THE power to help the committee with its investigation of the very mobster-Teamster connections which had been attributed to him. Specifically, Chairman Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, wanted information from Labor Department files that might help his committee determine whether the Mafia has a pipeline into the Teamsters Union.

Yet Donovan refused to turn over the requested material to the committee, forcing Hatch to subpoena it. This was a strange attitude for Donovan to take with the senator who not only oversees the Labor Department but is a staunch supporter of the Reagan administration. Hatch should be the last person Donovan would want to antagonize by reneging on a sworn pledge and stonewalling on a Mafia investigation.

Donovan is a tough talker who made his way to the top ranks of the economic ladder on his own undeniable ability. One of 12 children of an oil company payroll clerk, he is very Irish and very New Jersey.

His background includes such odd jobs as making shampoo and loading Ballantine beer onto delivery trucks. He took over the Schiavone Construction Co. in 1959 when it was doing $200,000 worth of business a year, and guided it to the point where business increased to $150 million.

Yet he was confirmed too fast to please some FBI officials who thought his background should have been scrutinized more closely. The charge that Donovan had Mob connections was made by Ralph Picardo, a tested informant who has helped the FBI get convictions of Mafia hoods in New Jersey.

Picardo claimed to have received payoffs from Donovan personally on several occasions — a claim that was never substantiated by the FBI and therefore was shrugged off by the Senate committee.

BUT THE FBI heard the same tale from other underworld sources; one reported that Picardo had picked up payments from Donovan for the late mobster Sal Briguglio. The latter was a notorious member of the Vito Genovese crime family.

This part of the FBI report was withheld from the public. One statement in the purged report quotes an underworld informant as reporting that "Picardo was a bagman for Sal Briguglio and made pickups from Ray Donovan."

According to this informant, Briguglio wound up in the slammer, and for a while former Teamster official Fred Furino "picked up money from Donovan." Then Furino followed Briguglio to jail and "a Vic Alteri acted as bagman." The FBI informant added that "Briguglio was 'thick' with Donovan." This information didn't reach the bureau, incidentally, until two days before its report was handed over to the Senate.

Still another FBI source, Pat Kelly, claimed that Donovan's construction company had ties to the Genovese crime family, my associate Tony Capaccio has learned. Joe Adonis Jr., the son of a Mafia godfather, told Kelly that he had the right of "first refusal" on deals with Donovan's company.

In an aside, Kelly told G-men that Adonis provided a pocketful of quarters during one meal so that the restaurant jukebox could play continuous background music from "The Godfather."

Footnote: These suppressed statements, though they confirm Picardo's charge, do not constitute real proof that Donovan had Mob ties. A spokesman for the labor secretary refused comment on the allegations contained in the unpublished part of the FBI report. He merely referred to Donovan's public statement that he has never met Picardo or Briguglio.

UNDER THE DOME: Since Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., has become chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, his staff no longer gathers in his office at the end of the day to unwind. The senator is too busy. Observers at home have also noted a difference in Domenici's performance. Said one: "He does more homework now, and doesn't come across with some of the dumb answers he used to."

Mailbag

Dear Editor: It has been my privilege to be closely associated with the Big Spring Community Concert Series for 11 years. I find it very painful to realize that with the death of the local series this association is now over.

Sometimes you don't know how nice something was until you don't have it anymore. I feverently hope that concerts will someday, somehow return to Big Spring. How many times have I heard, "there's nothing to do in Big Spring." Well, now there's no concert to go to.

In closing I am reminded of the words of a hardline Communist leader (proving that the desire for culture is worldwide and crosses all boundaries). Nikita Khrushchev once said: "Literature and the cultural arts — music, ballet, opera and the like — are not necessary to life.... But they are the only things that make life worth living."

Dear Editor: In regards to Mr. Gilstrap's recent letter in the Mail Bag, I and several others would like to applaud him. What he said was all true. I know it to be a fact.

My family and I were victims of circumstances and a homicide nine months ago and these liberals have here did nothing about it.

Just like Mr. Gilstrap said in his letter, it became possible for the criminals to go out and kill again.

In the past nine months, there have been eight homicides, one of those a hit-and-run. Just think of what percentage that figures out to in a town this size. The ones who do it can indeed get off scot-free.

I am saying this because my family and I went through it nine months ago and we are still going through it. Maybe some day this town will be rid of these Liberals. Let's hope and pray to God that it will happen.

Saudis now major worry for Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia, considered too weak to become involved in a Middle East war just 7½ years ago, is well on its way to becoming a dominant military power in the Moslem world and a major worry for Israel.

The transformation of Saudi Arabia from minor to major military status is underscored by the Reagan administration's announcement Tuesday that it wants to sell the oil-rich desert country five sophisticated radar reconnaissance planes called AWACS, as well as equipment to improve the firepower and range of 62 sophisticated F-15 jet fighters.

The administration decided to go ahead with the sale despite strong opposition from congressional supporters of Israel. Leaders of the Jewish state say the sale threatens Israel's security in any future war with Arab states.

But Saudi Arabia had pressured the administration to proceed quickly on its request for the AWACS—Airborne Warning and Control Systems—aircraft.

Saudi Arabia, with its vast oil supplies and reputation as a pillar of moderation, has become increasingly important to the United States since U.S.-Iranian relations were broken off. The United States, in arming Saudi Arabia, hopes to build an anti-Soviet coalition in the Persian Gulf.

But even before the Iranian crisis and the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, U.S. administrations had begun courting Saudi Arabia as a major ally and had begun building up Saudi forces.

U.S. intelligence officials said in 1973 that a lack of military strength made the Saudis reluctant to become embroiled in the Yom Kippur War between Israeli and Arab armies.

Since then, the Saudis have been spending freely on arms because of their huge oil revenue.

Until now, the Saudis have bought almost $35 billion worth of arms, equipment and military construction from the United States. According to a report recently sent to Congress, the Saudis are expected to buy an additional $4.4 billion in military gear this year and another $4 billion next year.

This will bring the overall total of Saudi arms purchases, most of them since 1973, to about $43 billion.

The Saudi total dwarfs the more than $20 billion which Iran bought from the United States before Shah put our farmers in a very precarious situation and to make them compete for high-priced labor and supplies would be more than any farmer could withstand," he added.

Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was deposed. Much of the Iranian purchases were canceled after the revolution in 1979.

And Dan Robinson of the Bravo Dome Free and Public Land Association of Union, Quay and Harding counties of New Mexico, said a weapons system in the area would remove all animals and birds now known to frequent the western United States.

Burton Schubert of Spearman, representing the Texas Farmers Union, said area towns would be expected to absorb thousands of workers on a short-term basis during construction of the project.

Jack Osborne, director of the Texas Farm Bureau, contended the system should be placed on federal lands.

Dalhart residents oppose MX plan

DALHART, Texas (AP) — Air Force officials say they have no plans to import water for construction of the MX missile system if it is located in Texas and New Mexico.

At one of a series of hearings in areas being considered for the multi-billion-dollar system, Air Force Col. Bill Sims said the government plans to lease or purchase water rights for the 30,000 acre-feet of water that would be needed during the peak construction year. Demand then would drop to 13,000 acre-feet for the two bases in West Texas and eastern New Mexico.

The amount would equal about 7 percent of the water now used in the area, he said.

A lack of water was but one of the reasons cited as New Mexicans joined High Plains residents in voicing opposition to placing the system in their states at Tuesday's hearing.

Travis Nelson, chairman of the Quay County, N.M., board of commissioners, said a lack of water would be the primary problem involved in locating the missiles in his area.

And Mayor Joe B. Keast of Dalhart said he had not "found anything concrete in the impact statement that assures me that our taxpayers would not be saddled with a long-term indebtedness to pay for facilities needed during the boom phase created during the construction period."

He said he believes split basing — with half the system in Utah and Nevada and the other half in Texas and New Mexico — would "create economic conditions that many of our farmers could not survive."

"Inflation and the high cost of energy have already put our farmers in a very precarious situation and to make them compete for high-priced labor and supplies would be more than any farmer could withstand," he added.

And Dan Robinson of the Bravo Dome Free and Public Land Association of Union, Quay and Harding counties of New Mexico, said a weapons system in the area would remove all animals and birds now known to frequent the western United States.

Burton Schubert of Spearman, representing the Texas Farmers Union, said area towns would be expected to absorb thousands of workers on a short-term basis during construction of the project.

Jack Osborne, director of the Texas Farm Bureau, contended the system should be placed on federal lands.

Television community wary

Los Angeles mayor to appear in Hollywood drug hearings

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With a wary film and television community fearing a McCarthy-style witch hunt, law enforcement officials were to testify here today in the first of a series of congressional hearings on drug abuse.

Scheduled to appear at the Los Angeles Federal Building were Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, state Attorney General George Deukmejian and U.S. customs, drug enforcement and Coast Guard officials, said Phil Leshin, press secretary to the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control.

The hearings, headed by Rep. Leo C. Zeferetti, D-N.Y., have been widely regarded as an investigation of Hollywood drug use — an assertion Leshin denies.

"Today's session covers law enforcement, what their problems are, what their perception is of drug use on the West Coast. So it's not only Hollywood, it's the West Coast," he said, noting that future hearings will be held around the country with sports figures, business leaders, "even aerospace workers in Miami."

"We're looking for a voluntary hearing where people from the (entertainment) industry would come forward and tell us what their perception of drug use in the industry is. We're looking for a fresh approach," said Leshin, a one-time Hollywood press agent who admitted that beginning the hearings in Hollywood would result in maximum publicity.

"This is to attract attention...and there is nothing wrong with that," he said. "We're going to the sports world next. It's not a McCarthy witch hunt. There are no subpoenas."

Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis., led anti-communist investigations in the 1950s, although the House Un-American Activities Committee was more closely identified with Hollywood blacklisting.

Leshin said part of his focus would be on the way movies and television shows portray drug use.

"Maybe there is a problem with the way they (Hollywood producers) do not portray it. It has become a very chic and acceptable thing," Leshin noted, saying a congressional solution to the problem could be to ask producers "to have a conscious, to try to deglamorize something that has become chic...To say, 'Hey, Hollywood, we've got a problem!'"

Witnesses scheduled for Thursday include Alan Horn, president of T.A.T. Productions ("Archie Bunker's Place"), actors Dennis Weaver, Greg Morris and Michael Roberts, along with George French of Listen, America! a privately funded anti-drug, anti-alcohol organization based in Atlanta that has actress Carol Lawrence on its board.

Leshin said he also hoped for an appearance Thursday by U.S. skating champion Tai Babaonia and other U.S. Olympic athletes. But he noted that the star turnout was less than expected because of what he termed "media distortion" of the committee's purpose, plus the recent series of articles in TV Guide on alleged Hollywood drug use.

New prime-time series has gay lead character

NEW YORK (AP) — "Sidney Shorr," a prime-time series planned by NBC for broadcast in the fall, is based on a pilot movie with a gay leading character — though the network says homosexuality never was intended to be the focus of the plot.

"One might presume that he is (homosexual)," Irv Wilson, an NBC programming executive, said Tuesday. "He talks in the movie about a relationship he once had with another man."

Tony Randall, an Emmy-winner for "The Odd Couple" on ABC in the mid-'70s who has been cast as Shorr, has on several occasions described the character he plays as homosexual.

"When I saw the script for the movie," said Newton Dieter of the Gay Media Task Force, "I was pleased to see this warm, sympathetic character, clearly gay, shown in a positive light. When the story was developed for the series, his homosexuality became incidental."

Rockets explode in 2nd half past Kings

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Never in their long history of National Basketball Association playoff games have the Houston Rockets met an opponent as generous with turnovers as Kansas City was Tuesday night.

Twenty-five times the Kings turned the ball over, Kansas City's sloppy ways, plus Moses Malone's 29 points, triggered a 97-78 victory that gives the Rockets a 1-0 advantage in the best-of-seven Western Conference finals between the only two sub-.500 teams to make this season's playoffs.

"I didn't think our club was as prepared as it could have been," said Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons. "I think they were a little better prepared than we were. They were aggressive, and caused many of the turnovers. But we made a lot of mistakes. We'll play better next game."

Malone, held to just 10 points in the first half, unleashed a 19-point effort after intermission and triggered a third quarter surge to put the Rockets in control. Houston took charge for good with a 16-8 run at the start of the fourth period that turned a 70-63 lead into an 86-71 bulge.

"I got more aggressive with the ball in the second half," said Malone. "I started going to the offensive boards and that opened up a lot of opportunities for me."

Game two of the series is tonight in Kansas City.

"It was a very important win," said Malone. "It's up to them to win tomorrow (tonight). We're going to come back here and play the same way."

The Kings pulled a surprise move by starting point guard Phil Ford, who had not played since he suffered an eye injury Feb. 22. But although the Rockets admitted they were caught off guard, Ford was obviously rusty, winding up with only five points and four assists.

five of the turnovers.

"I was hoping we'd get some cheap buckets early in the game, and then walk it down," said Fitzsimmons. "It really came down to some carelessness on our part," said Fitzsimmons.

Forward Robert Reid, who scored 19 points for the Rockets, credited Houston's pressure defense with throwing the Kings out of rhythm.

"We never did let up on the pressure," he said. "Phoenix let Ernie (Grunfeld), Sam (Lacey) and Scotty (Wedman) shoot the ball and those guys can flat-out shoot. We pressured the ball and made them miss the shot."

Grunfeld wound up with 20 points while Wedman had 19 and Lacey six.

"Now we have a little bit of breathing room," added Reid. "But this game is over and we have to come out more aggressive than we did tonight."

The victory pushed the Rockets, who finished with the same 40-42 regular season as the Kings, over the break-even mark for the first time this year.

"Two months ago, who would have thought we would have been in the playoffs?" said Reid. "This win gives us the psychological edge."

Toney's heroics give 76ers series lead

BOSTON (AP) — The first battle is over. With cool Andrew Toney's final salvo, the Philadelphia 76ers captured their thrill-filled opening confrontation with the Boston Celtics.

Certainly, the second engagement here tonight can't be as intense.

"I think it will be more so," said Philadelphia's Caldwell Jones following the 76ers 105-104 victory in the opening game of their National Basketball Association playoff series.

"It will be all-out war, like the war of the worlds. Everything's on the line. We can't afford to let them get their confidence back," Jones added.

Confidence may not be as important a weapon for the Celtics to restore to their arsenal as good foul shooting, a productive running game, or crisp ball movement.

All were in short supply Tuesday night when Toney calmly canned two free throws with two seconds left.

Though the Celtics weren't sharp entering the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final after a nine-day layoff, Boston Coach Bill Fitch said, "No one should get much momentum from tonight. They still have to win three more times. No one should feel inferior or superior after tonight's game."

The setback cost Boston the home-court advantage it gained on the last day of the regular season by beating the 76ers here, 98-94. That triumph had given them the Atlantic Division crown over Philadelphia.

However, 76er Coach Billy Cunningham said, "I just don't think the home court is going to make a big difference. The reason I say that is, you look at the way these teams played all year. We both were 62-20. You don't do that by not doing well on the road."

One of Toney's favorite road stops has been Boston. The 6-foot-3 guard from Southwestern Louisiana averaged 12.9 points per game this season, but averaged 15 against the Celtics. In the season finale he poured in 35 points and Tuesday night he led the 76ers with 26.

"It's nothing personal against them, but anytime you feel your shot going you have to go with it," the confident rookie said.

With four seconds left and Boston ahead 104-103, Toney, Philadelphia's first choice to get the ball, took the inbound pass. He was fouled by Cedric Maxwell.

While Caldwell Jones said the 76ers, who wrapped up a seven-game series with Milwaukee Sunday, "are really in shape for this," teammate Bobby Jones said the Celtics "may have been stale. I think they were missing the shots they normally make."

Boston had fought back from a 100-91 deficit to take a 104-103 lead with four seconds to go on two free throws by Larry Bird, who topped all scorers with 33 points.

Knepper does it all in Astros win

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston pitcher Bob Knepper, trying to break the Astros out of a four-game losing streak and protecting a one-run lead, had to double-check to make sure the Astros really were in a devastating slump.

"In San Francisco after three or four losses, the throats would tighten up and everybody would be drinking a lot of water," Knepper said Tuesday night after he had quieted Los Angeles on three hits for a 1-0 victory.

It was Houston's third victory in 11 starts this season but Knepper didn't feel the pressure.

"Here, you'd have thought we were 8-2," said Knepper, an off-season acquisition from the Giants. "I've never been nervous with this team. The whole atmosphere is so relaxed."

Knepper's relaxation lulled the Dodger bats into only their second loss of the season. Pedro Guerrero got a pair of singles and Dusty Baker added a seventh inning hit for the only safeties off Knepper.

The Astros offense, brunt all season, did not explode against loser Jerry Reuss, 0-1, who yielded eight hits. But Knepper's third inning double and a run-scoring single by Cesar Cedeño was enough for the Astros to win for the third time in 11 games this season.

"Numerically this was an important victory," Knepper said. "It was important for us to establish that we could beat Los Angeles and that they hadn't psyched us out. You don't want to go 2-20. Eventually you have to start putting something together."

Reuss, making his first start of the season, said "I was satisfied with my game. How could I not be? He (Knepper) outpitched me and he outhit me too."

Knepper, 1-0, said he hoped he could continue hitting but would have to improve his baserunning. Knepper was thrown out trying to stretch a seventh inning single into a double.

"It was terrible baserunning," Knepper said. "I stopped at first base for coffee and pizza before going to second base."

Student-parent golf set Saturday

The Big Spring Booster Club is sponsoring a Scotch-Twoome golf tournament for any area student-parent team in high school or junior high on Saturday, April 25 at the Comanche Trail Golf Course.

The Booster Club is inviting students from Big Spring, Forsan, Coahoma, Sands, Grady, Stanton, and any others that are interested.

The entry fee will be 12 dollars per team, with an assortment of trophies and prizes being given at the conclusion.

The reason for the unique student-parent format is that the Booster Club is hoping to raise money for its Spring Banquet, which is set for May 5.

BSCC Partnership this weekend

The Big Spring Country Club is hoping for more entries than have come in as their annual Partnership Tournament gets closer.

The entry fee for the tournament, set for April 25-26, is 70 dollars per team. Included in that fee will be a barbecue and dance for all contestants and their wives on Saturday night.

Flights will not be determined until after the first day. Club Pro C.G. Griffin also explained that there will be an optional scratch flight for all interested golfers for an additional 15 dollars.

Tournament Chairman is Jerry Foresyth. For more information on the tourney, call 267-5354.

2nd Annual Y Racquetball nearing

The Big Spring YMCA will host its 2nd Annual Spring Invitational Racquetball Tournament on Friday through Sunday, May 8-10. The tournament will be conducted on both the YMCA courts and at Garrett Coliseum.

Entry fee is 15 dollars per person for the singles division, and 20 dollars per person for the doubles division. A match will consist of the best two out of three games to 15 points.

Besides the trophies awarded to first, second and consolation winners, all players will receive collared T-shirts.

The entry deadline is April 28.

Trevino upsets New Orleans Open

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tom Watson is on hand to defend his title, but officials still are fuming about the absence of Lee Trevino in the $350,000 USF&G New Orleans Open golf tournament.

"I just hope whatever he's doing is worth more than $163,000," said Jack Weiss, tournament director for the event that gets started Thursday on the 7,080-yard, par 72 Lakewood Country Club course.

Trevino, a former winner here, took the title last weekend in the prestigious Tournament of Champions but declined to enter the New Orleans event.

5-AAAA baseball a rainy scene

Ablene High and Midland Lee opened their District 5-AAAA second half slates with wins Tuesday afternoon, while four teams had to wait once more as rain was the biggest victor of the day.

Ablene High used a four-hitter by Mike Harge-shimer, who also struck out 10 hitters, in taking a 6-0 win over Odessa Permian.

Ablene scored three runs in the first inning to get all of the runs they would need. The Eagles rapped out 10 hits in the game.

Meanwhile, the Midland Lee Rebels took advantage of a five-hitter by Bill Dern and six San Angelo errors to score an 8-1 win. Dern also had three hits for the Rebels, who can gain a share of the first half with Ablene and Abilene Cooper by beating crosstown rival Midland in a make-up game.

CHECK FOR RELATIVES IN CEMETERY — Two residents of Ciudad Delgado in El Salvador, check the corpse of a victim of El Salvador's civil war in the city's cemetery. Bodies are routinely dropped off at the cemetery where local residents come to check for missing relatives. The man checking this body said it bore the marks of torture.

Grand jury begins investigation into McAllen police brutality

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A federal grand jury looking into allegations of brutality within the McAllen Police Department is a long way from returning indictments, says the prosecutor handling the case.

"It will take several months, for sure," Assistant U.S. Attorney Lupe Salinas said Tuesday after the grand jury heard testimony from the McAllen police chief in its first day of meeting on the case.

The grand jury will not meet continuously on the case and is regularly scheduled to convene every other week.

Police Chief Roy Eckhardt spent 40 minutes before the panel and brought a box of videotapes made at the police booking desk.

In other tapes shown at a civil hearing last month, officers were seen beating, kicking and throwing defendants against the wall at the booking desk.

The federal investigation began after several civil rights suits seeking damages from the city of McAllen were filed on behalf of 17 plaintiffs. The city agreed to an out-of-court settlement of $250,000.

The attorney representing the plaintiffs, Jim Harrington of the American Civil Liberties Union, also obtained an injunction from U.S. District Judge James DeAnda against future misuse of force.

Eckhardt said before entering the grand jury meeting room that he had brought videotapes made since DeAnda's March 27 injunction. The grand jury already had possession of tapes used at the civil hearing.

Salinas would not say if other witnesses have been subpoenaed to appear. He emphasized the probe was just beginning and no individuals are being investigated at this time.

Harrington has accused McAllen Mayor Othal Brand and other city officials of trying to cover-up problems within the department. Brand has denied that allegation.

In an unrelated case, the grand jury returned an indictment against a La Joya police officer on one count of criminal civil rights violation and two counts of perjury.

Foiled by greed and ignorance

Pennsylvania Lottery fix a bit too simple

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — It was a simple scheme: rig the Pennsylvania Lottery drawing so a few people could get rich quick and nobody would be the wiser. It was a little too simple.

No one got rich, and eight people found themselves facing an array of criminal charges. The fatal flaws, investigators say, were ignorance of the lottery system's intricacies — and greed.

After several months' investigation, a state grand jury accused the eight of rigging the April 24, 1980, Daily Number drawing at WTAE-TV in Pittsburgh.

Now, six of them plan to testify for the state. The other two, former television emcee Nick Perry and Edward Plevel, the suspended Lottery Bureau district manager, face a Common Pleas Court trial next month.

The grand jury concluded that Perry, who was host of the nightly drawing, was the mastermind, Plevel the inside man, in a scheme which resulted in a record $3.5 million payout when the number 6-6-6 popped up on pingpong balls used in the drawing.

They are charged with theft by deception, rigging a publicly exhibited contest, criminal mischief, criminal conspiracy and perjury. Plevel also is charged with unsworn falsification.

Investigators say if betting had been limited to about $100,000 every six months, the scheme might have gone undetected. But somewhere along the line, the grand jury says, Perry issued the order to "bet heavy."

The grand jury said Peter Maragos, his brother, James, and James' wife, Jean, bought more than 10,000 Lottery tickets of various combinations of "4" and "6" at least a dozen locations. Another brother, Jack Maragos, also bought winning tickets, the panel said.

So many tickets were bought, the grand jury said, that people were paid to cash partial lots of the $1.2 million in winning tickets.

During one court appearance, Peter Maragos testified he borrowed $32,000 from a bank to buy tickets. Peter and Jack Maragos and Perry were business partners in a food vending business.

Peter Maragos also testified that he and Perry discussed the scheme over the telephone and at the church they both attend. He said after the drawing, he delivered a total of $35,000 to Perry at two meetings — one at a cemetery and the other behind a shopping center.

Investigators say the accused were apparently unaware the Lottery Bureau's computer system recorded the sales for that day — revealing unusually heavy betting patterns on the numbers "4" and "6" in the Philadelphia area.

As the evidence mounted, the four Maragos family members agreed in December to be state witnesses — giving the prosecution its first inside look at the alleged conspiracy.

In return for their testimony, Peter and Jack Maragos pleaded guilty to reduced charges in the hope of gaining five-year probationary sentences. Under a similar agreement, charges against James and Jean Maragos would be dropped after they testify for the state.

Part of the agreement involved the Maragos family making restitution, and officials say they have recovered more than $700,000 in cash and unredeemed winning tickets.

In addition, Joseph Bock and Frederick Luman, two former television stagehands implicated by the grand jury, decided in March to join the Maragos family as state witnesses in an effort to get lighter sentences.

At his January preliminary hearing, Bock testified he weighted the bogus pingpong balls, except those numbered "4" and "6", by injecting them with white latex paint. He said he affixed store-bought numbers and letters to make them look like the official balls.

Bock testified he brought the bogus balls to the television station in a brown paper bag and minutes after the drawing burned them in an old paint can in his shop.

The grand jury said it was Luman who actually switched the balls in the drawing machines — three glass boxes containing numbered balls that dance on a current of air. When a small door is opened at the top of the box, one ball is sucked into a trap, thus producing one digit of the winning combination.

A year after the scandal broke, lottery officials say the legal betting business is better than ever in Pennsylvania. Lottery Bureau Director Lynn Nelson estimates gross sales for the fiscal year ending June 30 will be at least $430 million. The Daily Number drawing, one of four lottery games conducted by the state, accounts for about 70 percent of the gross revenue, he said.

Recruitment is rapidly increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recruiting and re-enlistment are improving so rapidly that one of the two military pay increases proposed for this year can be skipped, argues Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis.

Aspin said in a statement Sunday an 11.7 percent pay increase last fall had helped the services exceed their enlistment target by 1 percent.

The administration is calling for a 5.3 percent pay raise effective July 1 and a 9.1 percent boost on Oct. 1, but Aspin said he thought the July increase could safely be skipped.

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, APR. 23, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A wonderful day to make an advancement in career activities, but be sure not to force your will on others. You can easily extend your ideas beyond present boundaries now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Extend your interests so you can gain more profits in the future. Be less demanding of family members. Express happiness.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid an outside foe and be more concerned with improving business affairs. Study every angle of a new project.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Schedule your activities wisely so you get maximum use of your time. Be sure to use extreme caution in motion today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you take care of monetary affairs sensibly and don't become involved in any fly-by-night schemes.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Go after your finest personal aims and you can easily gain them. Sidestep a foe who could spoil your happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be sure to finish regular routines before engaging in amusements. An argument with a friend is not serious, so forget it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Go after personal aims with more enthusiasm and effort and you can easily gain them. Be alert at all times today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listen to the ideas of higher-ups and go along with them for best results now. Take no risks in motion today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can make a good impression on others by showing you are honest and decent. Relax at home tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be more objective in dealing with others where business matters are concerned or you could jeopardize your security.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be sure to keep the promises made to family members. Come to a better accord with associates. Think constructively.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Go after your aims in a positive manner and get excellent results. Contact loyal friends who can be helpful to you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be capable of comprehending a great deal of knowledge, so give the finest education you can afford and there can be much success. Don't neglect religious tenets that are important to a good way of life.

Trail of blood leads police to armored car bandits

HOUSTON (AP) — A trail of blood leading into a heavily weeded area in southeast Houston led police to two men who were arrested in connection with an ambush on a Puralator Armored Inc. car, the fatal shooting of its driver and the theft of $600,000, officers said.

A 21-year-old Houston mechanic and a 24-year-old unemployed laborer were arrested and jailed Tuesday after the bungled heist, the second on the Gulf Freeway in four days. No charges have been filed.

Police also found a 12-gauge shotgun and a 9mm pistol and recovered five blood-spattered money bags. They were uncertain whether any of the money was missing.

Puralator officials declined to comment on the incident. One witness, who described the mid-day shooting scene at the Sage department store "like something in a movie," said the gunmen blasted the car repeatedly.

Detective Jerry Welch said the bandits apparently had been waiting in the store parking lot when the armored car arrived and "they jumped out and held guns on it."

Oliver Gonzales Flores, 29, the father of three, was gunned down as he stepped from the vehicle, said John David Hester, who watched the shooting in the store parking lot. "He didn't have a chance to unbuckle his holster," Hester said.

Welch said a second guard, an unidentified woman, was held at gunpoint briefly by the robbers but was released unharmed.

The robbers, wearing baseball caps and olive jump suits, fired at least 10 times at the bullet-resistant Econoline before they broke a window, entered the car and the sped away, investigators said.

Another witness, Lester Jackson, said he was delivering linen across an alley and saw part of the incident.

"They ran to the truck and they couldn't open the doors to the Puralator truck so they started shooting the doors off and windows off and reached in and opened the doors," Jackson said.

The pair had trouble starting the car, but when they finally did "they make a U-turn but the door won't close.

They were having to try to hold the doors and try to drive at the same time, and they're all going crazy," Jackson said.

Welch said the robbers then drove to a vacant construction shed a block away and then fled into the weeded area on foot.

Police, acting on tips by citizens, followed a trail of blood and SWAT team officers, assisted by policemen in helicopters, joined the manhunt. The robbers surrender within an hour.

"Apparently he (victim killed) fell on them and got them all bloody," Welch said.

Last Saturday, an estimated $500,000 in cash and checks was taken by men wearing stocking masks who robbed a Security Transport Corp. van after it stalled near Ellington Air Force Base just south of Houston.

Theresa Garrett, a guard, said two or three men held up the van after the other guard left to call for assistance.

RUBBING NOSES — Britain's Prince Charles gets a Maori style kiss from Diane Green today in Hobart, Australia. She has given the Maori style kiss, rubbing noses, to other royalty in the past: Earl Mountbatten, Prince Phillip and Queen Elizabeth II.

Men accused of aiding suicide face 10 years

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP) — Two men accused of helping a crippled friend commit suicide face up to 10 years in prison after changing their pleas and pleading guilty to a charge of second-degree manslaughter.

Brian W. Taylor, 25, of North Stonington, and William R. King, 26, of Ledyard, said Tuesday they were changing their pleas because they were convinced prosecutors had enough evidence to win a conviction.

The two also said through their attorneys that they hoped to receive lenient sentences in return for the pleas.

According to prosecutors, the two aided the Sept. 27 suicide of Kenneth B. Wright, 24, of Ledyard, who didn't want to live with the paralysis he suffered in an informal wrestling match in 1979.

Satti said Wright once had told Taylor "he'd rather be dead than live in the condition in which he was living."

Taylor and King pushed and carried Wright, who was incapacitated and bound to a wheelchair, into a wood where they left him with a sawed-off 12-gauge shotgun, State's Attorney C. Robert Satti said Tuesday.

The men had helped cut eight inches off the shotgun's barrel so Wright could point it at his stomach and still pull the trigger, the prosecutor said.

The victim's mother, Phyllis Wright, had told the prosecutor she did not want Taylor and King sent to prison, Satti said. He said the mother told him if she had her way the two men, who were her son's close friends, never would have been prosecuted.

"He couldn't cope. He was an athlete," Wright's mother said last fall after her son's death.

'Jane Doe' leaves hospital

PEMBROKE PINES, Fla. (AP) — Amnesia victim Jane Doe still doesn't remember her parents, but she has left the hospital where she has been since November to spend a week with her mother, a South Florida State Hospital spokeswoman said.

Spokeswoman Jackie Dale said that although Jane still can't remember her past and hasn't acknowledged she is the 34-year-old daughter of Irene and Andrew Tomiczek, she has spent time with Mrs. Tomiczek and enjoys her company.

The week's "leave of absence" at an undisclosed location is part of the hospital's regular procedure of preparing patients for discharge, Ms. Dale said.

"If, during the seven days, she finds that she can't cope, all she has to do is come back," the spokeswoman said. "Jane no longer needs to be in a restrictive setting."

Jane and the Tomiczeks, of Rosemont, will "get acquainted and see how it works — it's very simple and uncomplicated," Ms. Dale said.

The 34-year-old woman, whose search for her past drew nationwide attention, was identified as Cheryl Ann Tomiczek at a tearful reunion last month. A week later, she asked the family to leave her alone for awhile as she struggled to overcome amnesia and rebuild her life.

Wildcat info is disclosed

McCann Corp., Big Spring, will drill the No. 2-A Flanagan, a 9,600-foot wildcat in Howard County, 3/4-mile southeast of the Mississippi oil opener and lone producer from that pay and one mile southeast of the Fusselman oil opener and lone producer from that pay in the Red Draw field of Howard County, four miles southeast of Big Spring.
