House won't cut birth control funds

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House members today refused an anti-abortion legislator's plea to cut state expenditures on birth control by $25 million but also rejected attempts to increase family planning expenditures.

The action occurred as representatives entered their third day of debate on a $26.5 billion state budget bill for 1982-83.

The House Appropriations Committee cut family planning funds below current levels, and Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas, tried to decimate the program by chopping the amount from $27 million to $2 million for the two years.

Ceverha said the Department of Human Resources contracts with more than 80 private organizations, including Planned Parenthood, for birth control services.

"We are talking about counseling with pregnant mothers, including recommendations and discussions of abortions," Ceverha said.

He also contended family planning clinics donate money to the National Family Planning Association "to lobby against pro-life legislation."

Rep. Wilhelmina Deico, D-Austin, defended the family planning clinics, saying they provide not only birth control information but pap tests, breast cancer examinations, blood pressure checks and other medical services.

"They are the only medical center a vast number of poor women utilize," she said.

Ceverha's amendment was tabled, 103-28.

Also tabled were attempts to raise the level of birth control funding by $9 million and $13 million. Authors of the amendments said increased family planning would save the state both welfare and foster care expenses and prevent both child abuse and abortions.

In Tuesday's floor session, House members voted to beef up state police salaries and funds to prevent child abuse while rejecting an attempt to slash state funding for the arts.

The Senate Finance Committee approved its version Tuesday of the bill by a 13-0 margin and the Senate is expected to begin debate on the measure Monday.

After the House and Senate complete debate on their respective versions, the final bill will be written by a 10-member House-Senate committee of negotiators, probably prior to the June 1 adjournment date.

Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, tried

Tuesday to cut $1 million from the recommended $4 million appropriation for the Texas Commission on the Arts, a pet of Gov. Bill Clements.

Green said the commission funds projects in areas that are "among the richest in the state," like Highland Park in Dallas and River Oaks in Houston, but has refused grants to groups in his working class district.

"It is insensitive to non-Anglo and working class artists. Our job as custodian of these funds is to be sure money is spent in service of our constituents," Green said.

"When somebody takes a pot shot at the arts, they always use the minorities," grumbled black Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, who voted against the cut.

Rep. Larry Shaw, D-Big Spring, won an overwhelming voice vote for his amendment increasing Department of Public Safety salary money by $2 million. Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, added another $400,000 for comparable salaries for game wardens and liquor agents.

Shaw said some highway patrolmen would make career decisions based on the Legislature's salary actions. He said a DPS officer makes "less than a Dallas rookie cop does."

Anti-British riots continue as thousands mourn Sands

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Sporadic anti-British rioting continued in Northern Ireland without letup as thousands filed past Bobby Sands' open coffin in his family's small row house.

In the Maze, the prison where the 27-year-old guerrilla's hunger strike ended in death early Tuesday, three other fasting members of the Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing grew weaker, and 70 of the 440 IRA prisoners threatened to join their hunger strike.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher declared again that Britain would never grant the fasters' demand that imprisoned IRA members be classified as political prisoners. Leaders of the opposition Labor Party supported her stand.

Up to midnight, 22 people were reported injured, three of them critically, in the rioting that erupted in Roman Catholic districts of Belfast and Londonderry early Tuesday when words of Sands' death spread.

It was the worst violence in two weeks of daily disturbances, since it became apparent that he was determined to die and that the British government would not give in.

Security forces were prepared for worse violence after Sands' funeral Thursday and the end of the three-day mourning period proclaimed by the IRA. But so far the riots had not spread to Protestant districts, where militants vowed to fight if attacked.

Rioters hurling gasoline fire bombs clashed repeatedly through the day and night with troops and police. Police said a police car and an army patrol were fired on in West Belfast, and a policeman was wounded in the shoulder. The Great Hall of Queen's University, in Belfast, was badly damaged by a fire believed to have been caused by an incendiary bomb.

In County Tyrone, a supermarket was bombed and vehicles were hijacked and set ablaze. In Dungannon, rioters hurled fire bombs at the police who replied with plastic bullets.

Rocks were still being thrown in Belfast at 4 a.m. today. In Londonderry, the province's second largest city, a police station was attacked with gasoline bombs; an eyewitness said groups of Catholic residents stood by laughing.

Sands' death also touched off violence in Dublin, the capital of the Irish Republic to the south. Marches carrying black flags raged in Dublin and Cork, and youths who broke away from the Dublin rally fought with police in the center of the city, set fire to cars, smashed storefronts and threw rocks through the windows of the exclusive Royal Hibernian Hotel.

In London, a letter bomb addressed to Prince Charles, the heir to the British throne, was detected in a postal sorting office and defused. IRA sympathizers were suspected. Buckingham Palace said it was the first mail bomb ever sent to a member of the royal family.

Amidst the worldwide wave of sympathy for IRA hunger striker Bobby Sands, a Protestant woman whose husband and brother were killed by the Irish Republican Army has opened a campaign on behalf of the relatives of victims of terrorism in Northern Ireland.

"After listening to all the stories about criminals and seeing that nobody cares about their victims, I decided there is something that one person can do," said Edith Elliott.

The 47-year-old mother of five children wants to bring her own case and those of others who have had relatives murdered to the attention of the European Human Rights Commission in Strasbourg, France, to publicize their plight.

Since the campaign was launched a week ago through the Protestant press, 109 widows and other relatives have sent in dossiers. Mrs. Elliott said. A few were Roman Catholics.

"You have to be a 'troubles' widow to know what people like myself have been going through. It's just impossible to describe," she said in a telephone interview from her farm home in Moy, 35 miles from Belfast, near the border with the Irish Republic. "Troubles" is the euphemism used for the terrorist violence and sectarian strife that has taken at least 2,000 lives in British-ruled Northern Ireland since August 1969.

Reward of $1,000 offered for fire death information

A reward of up to $1,000 has been offered for information regarding a Northside fire in which an 81-year-old man died on April 6.

Charlie Beard, 404 N. Bell, was pronounced dead at the scene of a fire that consumed his home on the night of April 6. Local and state arson investigators have been seeking the cause of the fire ever since.

"We now believe that the fire was incendiary in nature, and that a flammable material was used to start it," said Rodney Phillips, Big Spring arson investigator.

The reward was set Tuesday by the Crimestoppers-Arson Reward Committee of the Big Spring Area

Chamber of Commerce. The reward would be paid for information that leads to the indictment or conviction of the persons who set the fire.

Those with such information should call one of two numbers. Phillips may be reached at 263-8311, extension 61, from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. The Arson Hotline number, 263-6261, is in operation 24 hours a day with a tape recorder that will receive the phone number or location at which to meet with the caller.

Arrangements may be made to insure that the name of the caller remains a secret said Phillips.

Services set Friday

Big Spring teen girl dies from auto wreck injuries

Sherri Sundy, 18, Big Spring, died Tuesday night in a Midland hospital.

Miss Sundy was involved in a major accident involving a vehicle driven by Robert Walker, P.O. Box 1015, and a tractor-trailer rig parked at 18th and Johnson. The rig belonged to Abtex Beverage Corporation. The accident occurred at 11:48 p.m. April 27.

Services for Miss Sundy will be at 2 p.m. Friday at the Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel.

She was born Sept. 12, 1962 in Big Spring. She was a lifetime resident of Big Spring, attending Big Spring schools. She was a nurse at Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital and a member of Calvary Baptist Church.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Sundy of Big Spring; a sister, Mrs. Gary (Rita) Faulkner of Big Spring; three brothers, Steven Sundy and Mark Sundy, both of Big Spring; and Randy Sundy of Odessa; and six nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harrell and Mack Sundy and a sister, Linda Kay Sundy.

Police seek clues in strange deaths of 26 hospital patients

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Investigators seeking clues in the mysterious deaths of 26 hospital patients will dig up and examine 10 of the bodies, hoping there is still enough time to detect traces of potentially dangerous chemicals.

Permission to exhume two other bodies, one in Minnesota and one in New Mexico, will also be sought, authorities said.

Autopsies already performed on nine bodies that had not been buried or cremated showed that several had abnormally high concentrations of an unidentified drug and that hospital death certificates in six cases listed the wrong cause of death, officials said.

A broadcast report said that a nurse had been suspended and was under investigation in the deaths, but Assistant District Attorney Thomas Hollenhorst refused to confirm that Tuesday.

All of the patients were elderly, and they died with common symptoms in a two-month period in the intensive-care units of two small hospitals in Southern California.

The string of deaths came under investigation by local, state and federal officials after 24 elderly patients died at Community Hospital of the Valley in Perris during March and April. Three other deaths at San Geronimo Pass Hospital in Banning, 30 miles away, were being investigated, but officials said Tuesday one of those has been eliminated as unrelated.

By comparison, only six people died in the Perris hospital's intensive-care unit in all of 1980.

Meantime, Hollenhorst said "there is no firm evidence at this time of criminal activity."

"Many people, many witnesses are being talked to," Hollenhorst said. "We are attempting to keep an open mind as to what the investigation might reveal."

KNTV-TV in Los Angeles, which reported the suspension of the nurse, who reportedly worked at both hospitals, also said the nurse was under surveillance. KABC in Los Angeles identified the substance found in the victims as Lidocaine, a anesthetic administered intravenously.

Reagan close to victory O'Neill tells Democrats not to 'run into woods'

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. faced with almost certain defeat in efforts to cut off an administration-backed budget blueprint, is pleading with divided Democrats not to "run into the woods" simply because they fear President Reagan's popularity.

Reagan, taking no chances on a last-minute slip in support, was putting his popularity to work right up to the vote, now expected Thursday. Fifty-one House members have been brought to the White House for face-to-face chats with the president, with another dozen due today.

An Associated Press survey late last week and private counts by both parties showed dozens of Democrats ready to join minority Republicans and give Reagan a budget plan tailored to his deep cuts in social programs and a three-year, 30 percent tax reduction.

Nevertheless, Reagan said Tuesday, "You know me. I run scared all the time."

While the White House was practicing a soft sell, O'Neill used an impassioned speech to step up pressure on Democrats to resist the Reagan tide.

"Listen, you have got to have courage along the line and courage is thinking of Americans first," O'Neill told Democrats during a private caucus Tuesday. His office released a transcript of his remarks.

O'Neill described himself as a lifelong liberal and pleaded with his colleagues to reject Reagan's budget, which he said would cut "off aid for health, education and senior services," and support a less-austere Democratic plan.

The Democrats' alternative isn't ideal, O'Neill acknowledged. But he said "it cuts you off at the knees so you will use a prosthesis, rather than cutting you off at the hip where you have to walk along with a crutch the rest of your life."

The Massachusetts Democrat cited gains made in combating poverty from the worst days of the Great Depression and said: "You don't think that happened by accident, do you? That happened by design and by legislation of the Democratic party through the years...."

Police Beat

Lubbock man wouldn't take 'no' for answer

A 60-year-old Lubbock man wouldn't take "no" for an answer. The man had been notified by letter that he was not authorized to enter the Big Spring Veterans Administration Medical Center. According to reports, that didn't faze him. He allegedly walked into the VA center, 2:40 p.m. Tuesday, entered the canteen, and shoplifted a tube of Dentu-Creme valued at $1.50. Officers were notified, and the man was arrested inside the hospital. He now faces charges of criminal trespass, public intoxication and theft under $5. Two machines thought to have been stolen in the burglary of the All-State Insurance Company, 610 Johnson, over the weekend, were recovered this morning. Burglars stole seven items from the All-State office with a total of value of $1,475. A large desk calculator and a microfiche machine bearing the All-State emblem were found by sanitation workers, around 9:30 this morning, in an alley at Seventh and Runnels. Police will investigate further. Vandals tossed a bottle through a plate-glass window at the Johnson Photography Shop, 302 E. 9th, damaging several pictures inside, Monday night. Total loss was estimated at $250. Jennie Oldaker, 3305 Maple, reported that someone she knows forged four checks from her account during April. Loss was estimated at $45. Officials at the Seven-Eleven Store at 902 Willia, reported that a man walked into the store, 1:04 a.m. today, stole a case of beer, and walked out. The beer was valued at $9.44. Burglars broke into a car belonging to R.L. Millaway, 1201 Sycamore, while it was parked at the Mity Mart Grocery, Tuesday night. Although the burglars managed to get inside the auto, nothing was stolen. Three mishaps were reported Tuesday. Vehicles driven by Jay Morren, 106 11th, and Dennis Morrison, 1504 E. Cherokee, collided at 901 Willia, 12:31 a.m. Vehicles driven by Jerry Burchell, 3 Glenwick Cove, and Keitha Coffman, Garden City Route, collided on the 100 block of East Third, 2:02 p.m. Vehicles driven by Joe A. Ramiriz, 708 Douglas, and Nieves A. Loya, 3208 W. 9th, collided at Seventh and Abrams, 1:44 p.m.

RALLYING SUPPORT — Jean Jenkins (center), leading First Lady candidate after three weeks of competition, sells tickets to Mayor Milton Ham, Mayor of Snyder, during her visit to that city this past weekend. All First Lady candidates participating in the caravan were provided transportation in motorhomes.

Digest

Israeli overflight

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes streaked through Lebanese skies today and there was a report they had buzzed Syrian surface-to-air missile batteries in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley. The United States and Soviet Union prepared new diplomatic efforts to defuse the Israeli-Syrian crisis, but Syria insisted it would not remove the missiles. Israel's demand for their withdrawal is "ridiculous and not negotiable," said Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam. "The Syrian peacekeeping force is the only legitimate law-enforcing force in Lebanon, and its right to self-defense by whatever defensive weapons is unquestionable and undebatable." But Khaddam said his government is prepared to listen to what special U.S. envoy Philip C. Habib has to say.

Bell must roll back rates

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell may have to start giving customers refunds next month, the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals ruled today. The court set a June 1 deadline for the company to comply with a rate order set by the Public Utility Commission, unless the Texas Supreme Court enters an order earlier. Bell spokesman Gray Kerrick said he did not yet know whether the company would appeal. The company is contesting a PUC order that it start charging rates that would give it an increase of about $114.3 million — about $38 million less than the rates Bell put into effect. Bell gave itself the rate increase of about $152 million last November, while waiting for PUC to set a rate. The company had asked for a hike of $326 million in its original application in July 1980. On Feb. 28, PUC ordered the company to implement the commission's lower rates and refund the difference to customers. Bell appealed, saying the PUC rates gave the company a profit that was "wholly inadequate and confiscatory." The company asked a district court in Austin to grant a temporary injunction against enforcement of the PUC order while the court considered the merits of the company's appeal. The court refused. The appeals court said the trial court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to grant the injunction. The court held the utility may implement its own unofficial rates while waiting for a determination of "official or legal rates." "If these new official or legal rates are finally adjudged valid, their validity relates back to Feb. 28," the court said. "No one ever had a right thereafter to charge or pay for the utility's services according to any other system of rates."

Fitzsimmons dies

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Teamsters Union President Frank Fitzsimmons died of cancer Wednesday in Scripps Clinic, the San Diego Evening Tribune reported. Quoting "a source," the newspaper said the 73-year-old labor leader died after three weeks of treatment in the La Jolla facility. Fitzsimmons had run the union since 1967 when he was hand-picked by former Teamsters president James R. Hoffa to be general executive vice president and Hoffa's successor. At the time, union officials said Hoffa had wanted him to serve as caretaker while Hoffa served a prison sentence for pension fund fraud and jury tampering.

Mormons opposing MX missile

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Mormon Church's plea that the MX missile system not be based in Utah and Nevada, could have "enormous ramifications" on proposals to base the missile in the area, two governors say. Church President Spencer W. Kimball, 86, revered as a prophet by 4.7 million Mormons, urged Tuesday that President Reagan not base the giant mobile missile system in Utah and Nevada, as the Air Force proposes. In Washington, Air Force Lt. Gen. Kelly Burke said the effect of the statement by the mostly conservative and staunchly anti-communist church hierarchy would be "not inconsiderable." Results of polls and special ballot questions in Utah and Nevada consistently have shown a majority oppose the MX. "We've known that it was coming, but there's very little we can do about it," said Maj. Robert McMain, chief Air Force MX spokesman in Utah. Missile backers and critics alike said Kimball's position could have substantial impact on the issue, since over two-thirds of Utah residents are church members and Mormons make up 7 percent of Nevada's population. Moreover, it is a tenet of Mormon faith that Kimball speaks for God in spiritual matters. And while officially shunning partisan politics, church leaders also take stands on what they believe to be moral issues. Kimball's opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment is an example.

Senior Demonstration Team qualifies for state roundup

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The Senior Demonstration Team of Dan Lemons and Jody Bolin qualified for the state 4-H Roundup at the District Seven 4-H Roundup held last weekend in San Angelo. They placed second in the Resource Management Educational Activity and are coached by Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Lemons. In the Agronomy Junior Division, Lisa Putman and Staci Smith placed first. In Safety and Accident Prevention Junior Division, Katie Walls and James Woods placed second.

Junior Foods and Nutrition team of Elizabeth Burnett and Jennifer Beasley placed fourth. The Junior Share the Fun group of Shelia Benson, Robert Lemons, Blaine Lemons, Melaine Aston, Melanie Rees, Cory Flannigan, Mitzi Woods, Kim Wulsjen and Wylde Dakan placed fourth. The Junior Rifle Team of Ty Watlington, Chris Anderson, Kendall McGuire and Larry Hearn placed sixth. The state 4-H Roundup will be held June 2-4 at Texas A & M University, according to Bob Benson, county agent.

Retiring BSISD staff, faculty members honored

By CAROL HART
Big Spring Independent School District personnel gathered Tuesday night to honor retiring faculty and staff members, distribute service pins, and introduce professional association officers. The group gathered in the Big Spring High School cafeteria. Cleo Carlile, president of the local unit of the Association of Teachers and Professional Educators, presided at the event. Invocation was given by Bill Irwin, president-elect of the local Classroom Teachers Association. Six retirees were honored during the evening. They included Lorene Jones, who has been with the school system for 21 years, 14 of those years as cafeteria manager at Runnels Junior High School. Maria Luisa Rodriguez, who has been with the system 10 years at the Runnels cafeteria, was also recognized. Eugene (Bud) Smith, retiring custodial supervisor for the system, was recognized for 12 years of service. Former Big Spring High School principal John F. Smith, who is retiring after 34 years in education, was also recognized. Smith served as principal of Big Spring High School for 20 years, and has been in the administration office the last year. Marguerite Schwarzenbach, who was with the Goliad school for 21 years, many as a social studies teacher, was another of the retirees honored. Laura Whitley, who spent 23 years at Washington Elementary School, was recognized as the flower lady, who always brought flowers to school. In recognition, she was given a bouquet of roses. Mrs. Whitley has been in education 38 years. Ten year service pins were given to Gloria Arroyo, Marisue Bowers, Ruth Ann Box, Betty Cain, Janell Clark, Gloria Coffee, Concha DeLeon, Maria Florez, Elmire Forman, Juan Guevara and Millie Hartfield. Others were given to Joe Horton, Margaret Horton, Maurice Jennings, Clara Lewis, Nettie Miller, Blanche Moore, Gustavo Rodriguez, Maria Louise Rodriguez, Harvey Rothell, Camella Ryan and Cynthia Schaffer. Fifteen year pins were given to Walter Alexander, Audrey Arnold, Mabel Beene, Bill Bradley, Barbara Ervin, Katherine Gresham, Charlotte Hamilton, Lynn Hise, Freda Hoover and Velta Lloyd. Fifteen year pins were also awarded Willie McDaniel, Richardo Monje, Loyce Phillips, Patty Prather, Alberta Stanaland, Geraldine Stallcup, Ernestine Stephens, Ruth Williams, Vevagene Williams, Nellie Wright, Maxine Zant and Lynn Hise. Twenty year pins were distributed to Polly Adams, Averil Bradford, Cleo Carlile, Betty Conley, Joe Dawnes and Kathaleen Elliott. Other 20-year honorees were Lee Freeze, Rueleen Freeze, Nan Howard, Harland Huibregtse, Dorothy Humphreys and Undine Kernedole. Mary Koger, Viola Merritt, Marjorie Mooris, C.W. Tanner and Bobby Zellars were given 25-year pins. Essie Person, librarian at Goliad, was recognized and given a pin for 30 years of service to the Big Spring Independent School District. Officers of three professional organizations were introduced. Incoming officers for the Association of Teachers and Professional Educators are Jean Wilder, president; Bobby Grant, vice-president; Trumanell Maples, treasurer; and Joyce Ellis, secretary. Bill Irwin is president of the Classroom Teachers Association. Hannah Coleman is president-elect, Mike Randle, treasurer and Clovie Shirey, secretary. Betty Leppard is president of the Texas State Teachers Association, with Mary Helen Garcia, president-elect; Cynthia Shaffer, secretary and Maxine Zant, treasurer. Pat Porter, humorist from Gall, gave a program during the evening, entitled "No Need in Writing Home ... Nobody's Going To Believe It." The New Dimensions, Howard College singers under the direction of Joe Whitten, provided dinner music.

First Lady candidates paced by Jean Jenkins

After three weeks of the four-week First Lady competition, the top field of candidates remained fairly uniform from the previous week. The candidate selling the most tickets to the "Iron Horse Revue" will be named First Lady for the Big Spring-Howard County Centennial celebration set for later this month and will be honored during the ten-day festivities, as well as receiving a trip for two for a week in Hawaii. Jean Jenkins of Citizens Federal Credit Union, who has led the field of competition since the first week, still holds onto a narrow lead. The next five candidates were unchanged from the previous week. These five are Donna Carey, Brenda Moore, Sandra Haney, Agnes Currie, and Ann Drake. Evelyn Vise, Marilyn Newsom, Loma Jean Wymm and Linda Cathey round out the top ten list. The second ten is made up of Becky McCauley, Helen Segrest, Peggy Payne, Deloris Albert, Nelda Coldazar, Nola Story, Barbara Justiss, Geneva Clinkscals, Lillian Rhnye, and Joan Beil. The fourth, and deciding week, is now in progress, with the competition running very close among the top 20 candidates. These candidates, as well as all others competing in the First Lady contest are being reminded that all tickets must be turned in by the Centennial Store-Headquarters at 900 Main no later than 7 p.m. on Tuesday, May 12.

Cong. Pickle to attend Cannibal Draw Reunion

Cong. J. J. (Jake) Pickle, who represents the Austin area in the U.S. Congress, reassured H.M. (Mack) Underwood by telephone this morning that he would attend the May 23 Cannibal Draw Reunion here. The reunion will start at 6 p.m., in the Brandin' Iron Restaurant. Cong. Pickle's credentials as a Cannibal Draw member are authentic, since he lived in that section of town as a youngster. He is a brother of Joe Pickle of Big Spring, who will also be present for the banquet. Underwood, who conceived the idea of the reunion, said that those reunion members planning on going to Memorial Stadium later in the evening, where they will be recognized, will need tickets for admission to the stadium. If they have already purchased tickets for the "Iron Horse Revue" for some night other than May 23, they will need to exchange them at the Centennial Headquarters, 900 Main Street.

Plane crash kills eleven

WALKERSVILLE, Md. (AP) — A C-135 military jet transport crashed and burned on a farm near this western Maryland community today, killing at least 11 people, authorities said. "It apparently blew up in the air," said A.E. Appleby, police communications officer at the Frederick state police barracks. The sources said that the FBI has prepared a roughly 1,200-page memorandum for prosecutors in the case against Hinckley, who is charged with attempting to assassinate Reagan. According to the sources, the investigation is continuing and the report is an interim document based on more than 1,000 interviews by federal law enforcement agents. The sources said the document was transmitted last Friday to Attorney General William French

More rain falls in area

Another .12 of an inch of rain was recorded by personnel at the Big Spring U.S. Experiment Station for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today. Most of that came in showers that fell shortly before daybreak. Big Spring's rainfall total for the year now stands at 6.79 inches. Normal for the year through May 5 is 4.12 inches.

Two former BSISD students receive awards at banquet

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Two former Big Spring High School students, received awards Tuesday night at the Colorado City High School Annual All-Sports Banquet held in the Colorado Middle School cafeteria. Receiving a letter jacket in varsity track was senior Jim Baum, along with fellow seniors, Doug Johnson, Mark Carter, and Jay Green being honored. Winning one of the three special awards, the "spirit" award, which, according to Coach George Martin, "is given to the athlete who is selected by his teammates as showing the most spirit in support of both girls' and boys' athletics," was won by Laura Baum, freshman transfer student from Big Spring. Receiving the two additional awards were Mark Carter, senior, recipient of the "C" award for being voted by his teammates as showing outstanding leadership and dedication, and Kim Hargee, girls' recipient of the coveted "C" award.

Two Loraine scholars lauded

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The Loraine Senior Citizens honored the 1981 graduating class of Loraine High School with their annual "Break Bread Together" luncheon Wednesday in the Loraine Senior Center. This is the third year for the group to honor graduating seniors. Two honor students, Sarah Munoz and Joe Lara, were presented a $100 scholarship each for academic achievement.

Deaths

John Christian

LAS CRUCES, N.M. — John Christian, father of Johnnie Christian, Big Spring, died Monday in a local hospital. Funeral services were held today at Graham Mortuary Chapel with the Rev. Waudell Maples, Temple Baptist Church, officiating. Burial was in Masonic Cemetery. Survivors include the wife, Iler of the home; five sons, Ted of Las Cruces; Leonard of Atlanta, Ga.; William and Andy, both of Alamogordo, N.M. and Johnnie; two daughters, Martha Stanfield, Las Cruces and Sandra Siebenther of Muscat, Republic of Oman; a sister, 31 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Jack Hightower

Jack D. Hightower Sr., 91, died Tuesday morning in Oklahoma City after a sudden illness. He was visiting his son. Graveside services are set for 10 a.m. Friday at Trinity Memorial Park. The Rev. Retiring BSISD staff, faculty members honored

By CAROL HART
Big Spring Independent School District personnel gathered Tuesday night to honor retiring faculty and staff members, distribute service pins, and introduce professional association officers. The group gathered in the Big Spring High School cafeteria. Cleo Carlile, president of the local unit of the Association of Teachers and Professional Educators, presided at the event. Invocation was given by Bill Irwin, president-elect of the local Classroom Teachers Association. Six retirees were honored during the evening. They included Lorene Jones, who has been with the school system for 21 years, 14 of those years as cafeteria manager at Runnels Junior High School. Maria Luisa Rodriguez, who has been with the system 10 years at the Runnels cafeteria, was also recognized. Eugene (Bud) Smith, retiring custodial supervisor for the system, was recognized for 12 years of service. Former Big Spring High School principal John F. Smith, who is retiring after 34 years in education, was also recognized. Smith served as principal of Big Spring High School for 20 years, and has been in the administration office the last year. Marguerite Schwarzenbach, who was with the Goliad school for 21 years, many as a social studies teacher, was another of the retirees honored. Laura Whitley, who spent 23 years at Washington Elementary School, was recognized as the flower lady, who always brought flowers to school. In recognition, she was given a bouquet of roses. Mrs. Whitley has been in education 38 years. Ten year service pins were given to Gloria Arroyo, Marisue Bowers, Ruth Ann Box, Betty Cain, Janell Clark, Gloria Coffee, Concha DeLeon, Maria Florez, Elmire Forman, Juan Guevara and Millie Hartfield. Others were given to Joe Horton, Margaret Horton, Maurice Jennings, Clara Lewis, Nettie Miller, Blanche Moore, Gustavo Rodriguez, Maria Louise Rodriguez, Harvey Rothell, Camella Ryan and Cynthia Schaffer. Fifteen year pins were given to Walter Alexander, Audrey Arnold, Mabel Beene, Bill Bradley, Barbara Ervin, Katherine Gresham, Charlotte Hamilton, Lynn Hise, Freda Hoover and Velta Lloyd. Fifteen year pins were also awarded Willie McDaniel, Richardo Monje, Loyce Phillips, Patty Prather, Alberta Stanaland, Geraldine Stallcup, Ernestine Stephens, Ruth Williams, Vevagene Williams, Nellie Wright, Maxine Zant and Lynn Hise. Twenty year pins were distributed to Polly Adams, Averil Bradford, Cleo Carlile, Betty Conley, Joe Dawnes and Kathaleen Elliott. Other 20-year honorees were Lee Freeze, Rueleen Freeze, Nan Howard, Harland Huibregtse, Dorothy Humphreys and Undine Kernedole. Mary Koger, Viola Merritt, Marjorie Mooris, C.W. Tanner and Bobby Zellars were given 25-year pins. Essie Person, librarian at Goliad, was recognized and given a pin for 30 years of service to the Big Spring Independent School District. Officers of three professional organizations were introduced. Incoming officers for the Association of Teachers and Professional Educators are Jean Wilder, president; Bobby Grant, vice-president; Trumanell Maples, treasurer; and Joyce Ellis, secretary. Bill Irwin is president of the Classroom Teachers Association. Hannah Coleman is president-elect, Mike Randle, treasurer and Clovie Shirey, secretary. Betty Leppard is president of the Texas State Teachers Association, with Mary Helen Garcia, president-elect; Cynthia Shaffer, secretary and Maxine Zant, treasurer. Pat Porter, humorist from Gall, gave a program during the evening, entitled "No Need in Writing Home ... Nobody's Going To Believe It." The New Dimensions, Howard College singers under the direction of Joe Whitten, provided dinner music.

Hinckley didn't stalk other political figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigators have found no hard evidence that John W. Hinckley, charged with attempting to assassinate President Reagan, was stalking the president or other political figures, federal law enforcement sources said today. The sources, who declined to be identified, said Hinckley's infatuation with actress Jodie Foster may have played a role in his nomadic travels around the country prior to March 30, when Reagan was shot in Washington. The sources said that, in the absence of interviews with Hinckley himself, investigators could speculate that the plot of the film "Taxi Driver," in which Miss Foster starred, may have been a model for some of Hinckley's actions. In the movie an alienated New York City taxi driver plots the assassination of a political figure. According to the sources, Hinckley's mother, Jo Ann Hinckley, apparently used "Jodie" as a nickname. The sources said that evidence gathered so far about Hinckley's wanderings around the country indicates that it may have been simply coincidental that he turned up last year in the same cities as presidential candidates, including then-President Jimmy Carter, did on several days. The sources said that the FBI has prepared a roughly 1,200-page memorandum for prosecutors in the case against Hinckley, who is charged with attempting to assassinate Reagan. According to the sources, the investigation is continuing and the report is an interim document based on more than 1,000 interviews by federal law enforcement agents. The sources said the document was transmitted last Friday to Attorney General William French

Plane crash kills eleven

WALKERSVILLE, Md. (AP) — A C-135 military jet transport crashed and burned on a farm near this western Maryland community today, killing at least 11 people, authorities said. "It apparently blew up in the air," said A.E. Appleby, police communications officer at the Frederick state police barracks. The sources said that the FBI has prepared a roughly 1,200-page memorandum for prosecutors in the case against Hinckley, who is charged with attempting to assassinate Reagan. According to the sources, the investigation is continuing and the report is an interim document based on more than 1,000 interviews by federal law enforcement agents. More rain falls in area

Another .12 of an inch of rain was recorded by personnel at the Big Spring U.S. Experiment Station for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today. Most of that came in showers that fell shortly before daybreak. Big Spring's rainfall total for the year now stands at 6.79 inches. Normal for the year through May 5 is 4.12 inches.

Two former BSISD students receive awards at banquet

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Two former Big Spring High School students, received awards Tuesday night at the Colorado City High School Annual All-Sports Banquet held in the Colorado Middle School cafeteria. Receiving a letter jacket in varsity track was senior Jim Baum, along with fellow seniors, Doug Johnson, Mark Carter, and Jay Green being honored. Winning one of the three special awards, the "spirit" award, which, according to Coach George Martin, "is given to the athlete who is selected by his teammates as showing the most spirit in support of both girls' and boys' athletics," was won by Laura Baum, freshman transfer student from Big Spring. Receiving the two additional awards were Mark Carter, senior, recipient of the "C" award for being voted by his teammates as showing outstanding leadership and dedication, and Kim Hargee, girls' recipient of the coveted "C" award.

Two Loraine scholars lauded

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The Loraine Senior Citizens honored the 1981 graduating class of Loraine High School with their annual "Break Bread Together" luncheon Wednesday in the Loraine Senior Center. This is the third year for the group to honor graduating seniors. Two honor students, Sarah Munoz and Joe Lara, were presented a $100 scholarship each for academic achievement.

Sherrie: Invaluable employee

(Editor's Note: May 3-9 is Deaf Awareness Week. In conjunction with the week, the Herald and the staff of the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf have prepared several articles concerning the deaf community.)

By CAROL HART
In January, Sherrie Daniel answered an ad in the Howard College paper about a job at First Federal Savings and Loan. Sherrie had an interpreter at the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf call First Federal to make an appointment, but she went on the interview alone.

Sherrie was born deaf. She explained that her parents are hearing. "We don't know what caused the deafness." When she was younger, she attended a hearing school which offered a program for the deaf.

"I went to classes with hearing students. I liked that school very much, because of the challenge."

Lu Norris, vice-president of First Federal, recalls that she was impressed with Sherrie, and with the fact that she wanted to work with the First Federal staff. Although the position advertised in the paper had been filled, Mrs. Norris said a job was created for Sherrie, because she felt the bank could benefit from hiring a deaf employee.

It was a situation which has paid off. Sherrie is a good worker, according to Mrs. Norris. She is also friendly, and provided the spark many of the employees needed to enroll in sign language classes. Sherrie is also an invaluable employee when other deaf persons come into First Federal, said Mrs. Norris. Sherrie is often called upon to translate banking matters for other deaf people in the community.

In addition to helping as an interpreter, Sherrie runs errands, serves as office clerk, types, handles computer runs, runs postage, goes to the bank for deposits, and goes to the post office.

Employees at First Federal "love her," said Mrs. Norris of Sherrie. "She's mischievous, and lots of fun. She's real special to all of us."

At first, the employees and Sherrie had a little trouble communicating. Most information was transferred back and forth via notes. But, now, Mrs. Norris said Sherrie reads lips very well, and 18 employees at the savings and loan are learning sign language, a language Sherrie has full command.

During the interview, Sherrie communicated with notes and sign language.

Sherrie is from South Gate, Calif., and plans to return there for the summer. She is a student at Howard College, and plans to return to Big Spring, Howard College, and her job at First Federal in late August.

Sherrie lives in the dorms at SWCID. Her major is computer science, and she is studying business at Howard College. She explained that she goes to classes with hearing students, with interpreters and notetakers provided by SWCID.

Prior to attending the local college, Sherrie attended Gallaudet College in Washington, D.C., and California State University in Northridge.

Concerning her job at First Federal, Sherrie wrote "I have enjoyed working there. I work with great people, because they have a lot of patience, and understanding with me. I want them to get aware about deafness, so I came here to work with them, and teach them. I'd like to see a beautiful relationship between the deaf and hearing community."

hearing people who are afraid" to talk to her. Concerning future employers, Mrs. Norris said of Sherrie, "I'd recommend her to anyone."

Tuesday was Sherrie's last day on the job until August. Employees at First Federal threw her a party, complete with a horseshoe-shaped cake, as a going-away present.

Deaf Awareness Week is a good benefit to this community, because people here will get to know what deafness is. We have to learn about the hearing world, so we want the hearing to learn about us, because we want a great relationship. We'd all like to see this town growing bigger. (SWCID) makes this town famous, because all the deaf community looks at this town, and they will come here for education."

Mrs. Norris said "I don't know how many local employers hire the deaf, but if they don't they are missing something. Sherrie can do anything except communicate with

Continental employees move their tales to buy airline

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Welcome to OUR airline," pilots at Continental Airlines are saying these days as they greet passengers. And the emphasis is definitely on "our" because the employees may soon control the company.

In the midst of a bitter corporate takeover battle that is threatening their jobs and security, about 10,400 pilots, flight attendants, ticket agents and mechanics are close to purchasing 51 percent of the country's 11th largest airline.

A key test was awaited today in Denver, where Continental's management, which supports the employees, was expected to beat back an attempt by Texas International Airlines to thwart the workers' move.

Some industry leaders say the employee purchase, if successful, could become a model for a rapidly changing airline industry trying to trim lower labor costs.

"When they see us succeed, when they see the productivity, when they see the savings to the company, this industry, the entrenched airlines are going to have to go for it," beamed Paul Eckel, a 16-year veteran at Continental, formerly its chief pilot and leader of the employee takeover move.

Several other air carriers have stock purchase plans, but at none do the employees have a majority holding or — as is expected to be the case at Continental — membership on the board of directors.

The Continental effort has the full support of management, especially the company's president, Alfred L. Feldman, who grabbed it as a last hope of keeping Texas International from taking over Continental.

After Texas International purchased 48.5 percent of Continental's stock earlier this year, the pilots selected Eckel, a onetime Brigham Young football star, to lead the employee counterattack. The pilots counted commitments for $110 million, but the effort fell short when the Civil Aeronautics Board refused to give them another 10 days to put the plan together.

"I thought we were dead," recalls Eckel.

But many of the Continental employees feared loss of their jobs in the merger and inundated Eckel and the pilot group's leaders with 25 or more suggestions a day on how to stop the merger. The best of the lot were forwarded to Feldman and other top executives.

By the second week in March, Feldman was about ready to give in to Texas International. "I knew we were running out of exciting ideas," he recalled in an interview.

On track Calling all Scouts in 'Iron Horse Revue'

"On Track" is an official column prepared by the Big Spring Centennial, Inc., and lists the various events and meetings being held in conjunction with the upcoming Big Spring-Howard County Centennial to be held May 21-30. Individuals wishing to list their activities and events in this column are asked to call Mel Prather at 267-6373, or bring their items by Citizens Federal Credit Union.

SCOUT TROOPS: Members of area Boy Scout, Girl Scout, and Brownie troops who have not been contacted about being in the opening ceremony of the "Iron Horse Revue" should contact the Centennial Store-Headquarters at 267-3641.

STOCK CERTIFICATES: Stock certificates for one share in the local centennial celebration are still available at the centennial store for persons interested in purchasing one of these commemorative items. The cost is $5 each and designates that individual as being a stock holder in the Big Spring-Howard County Centennial.

EXECUTIVE MEETING: There will be an executive meeting of the Big Spring Centennial, Inc., today at 4 p.m. at the Centennial Store-Headquarters at 900 Main. All division and committee chairmen are encouraged to attend the meeting.

BELLES AND BROTHERS BUTTONS IN: The third, and final, shipment of Centennial Belles and Brothers of the Brush buttons is at the centennial store. Individuals who have received ribbons between shipments are responsible for redeeming the ribbons for the buttons. The buttons sell for $1 each and each person joining one of the organizations also received a certificate with their name on it.

Computers may do it all in future

Automobile computer systems may do the bus companies one better when they say, in effect, "leave the driving to us."

An article appearing in a recent edition of Popular Mechanics Magazine paints a rosy future for the family runabout. Relaxed and get this picture:

A driver enters his car, buckles his seat belt, starts the engine and announces his destination to the dashboard. Within an instant, the dashboard answers him with information such as the time it will take to reach that destination, the estimated time of arrival, and the road and traffic conditions along the way.

THE VOICE WILL also tell him that he will need to gas up to reach his destination, that he should remember to pay the electric bill, and that he should pick up his shirts from the laundry on his way home.

Meanwhile, says the magazine article, the car's computer has simultaneously searched through a file of 54,000 detailed street maps stored on a videodisc that is inserted in the dashboard. The map showing the exact area the car is moving through is displayed on a small television screen on the dashboard. The car is located on the map by a moving dot, which is accurate to 20 feet of the car's position at that time.

The computer leads the driver to his destination, avoiding two traffic jams and a road block.

Science fiction, you say? Not really. The things listed here are possible with today's existing computer technology. In fact, there are computers now in some cars presently on the road that could accomplish the scenario described above with ease. All General Motors cars beginning with the 1981 models, in fact, are equipped with just such a computer that now monitors and controls engine functions to limit exhaust emissions, but is capable of doing much more. Some Datsun vehicles on the road today have computer voice capability that reminds the driver to shut off the lights and take the key out of the ignition.

ACCORDING TO THE magazine, the driver of the near future will never be lost driving his car. The vehicle will store, via a bubble memory, maps of the 300 largest American cities. Under the hood will be a sophisticated locating system based on today's Loran C radio navigational aid. Loran C compares directional radio signals to locate the receiving station within a few feet of its actual location anywhere in the world.

In all, there will be six different displays on the dashboard to show such things as a 'ghost' representation of the car itself. If anything goes wrong mechanically, the offending part or system will flash red on the display.

The car computer system of the future might also include an accident avoidance system that will be able to judge the proximity of other vehicles in the area and 'take control' of a car should an accident be immediately impending.

If you haven't been to Six Flags Over Texas recently, and are considering doing so in the near future, here are just a few pointers of which you might want to take note.

First, a word about the official, handy-dandy, complete and semi-accurate map of the park. It's cheaper in the parking lot than it is inside the park, and it really is quite colorful. However, when trying to locate the Astrolift that appears on the map, you will find that the ride does not exist. In fact, all traces of it have been carefully eliminated, and in its place is another souvenir shop.

longer. By mounting cameras on the front of such rides as the Shock Wave and Judge Roy Bean's Scream Machine, the film makers have created the sensation in the audience that they are riding these and other attractions. After watching the film, you may think twice about riding the Scream Machine.

Thrill seekers everywhere, of course, love to ride the Shock Wave. If you don't mind being yanked in every direction, turned upside down, and then having the bottom seemingly drop out from under you, the ride is wonderfully exhilarating. If you are the type that gets dizzy on elevators, this roller coaster is definitely not for you.

FINALLY, IN BETWEEN all the rides and shops and stores, the air is filled with the aromas of dozens of varieties of food. The smell of fried chicken and the sight of Pink Things and ice cream sundaes is just too much to resist, so don't fight it. But, be prepared for the highest prices since gasoline. They have you, and they know it.

Six Flags is an amusement for children of all ages and the child in all of us. But don't forget the aspirin and Alka Seltzer. After a day of rides, food and crowds, chances are you'll need them both.

EVERYONE HAS a favorite ride, and though most of them remain unchanged, some minor details are altered on occasion. For instance, there is the Log Ride, a favorite of almost everyone on the hot summer days in the park. Remember how the person riding in front got wet, while the rest of the riders felt only a few sprinkles? Forget it. Somehow, the ride is now "rigged" so that every person in the log gets soaked to the front, since you can duck just in time to let the poor sucker behind you catch the worst of it.

If you have avoided the "Chevy Show" in the past because you believed it was nothing but a long commercial for Chevrolets, avoid no

WASHINGTON — In the first 100 days, Ronald Reagan built a glow of good feeling. He identified himself with the morale of the majority. He showed appreciation for the great moments of the American past. He evinced gallantry in distress. So much more than mawkish sentimentality over the assassination attempt underlies the soaring of his popularity, and the truly touching reception he received in the Congress Tuesday night.

Still, connected with his popularity is a program woven from the unresolved conflicts of public opinion. The public hates inflation and blames it on government spending. So the President has called for truly draconian cuts — 40 percent below present levels by 1984 — in federal spending for assistance to education, food housing, health and transportation.

THE PUBLIC WANTS lower taxes and faster economic growth and more jobs. In response, the President has backed an economic stimulus a massive, three-year transfer of resources from the public to the private sector known as the Kemp-Roth tax cut.

The public also favors a firm stance against the Soviet Union. So the president has endorsed a huge and rapid hike in defense spending — up from $163 billion now to $256 billion in the next three years.

Add bigger defense spending to a major tax cut, and there emerges a large budget deficit — about $50 billion. But deficits are the living symbol of inflation, so there are implicit contradictions in the central themes of the Administration. During the latter part of the first 100 days, these contradictions have been made explicit on both the domestic and the foreign side.

On the domestic side, Chairman James Jones of the House Budget Committee put together a program that combined a rise in social spending with a cut in defense spending to end up with a smaller total outlay and a lower deficit. To fight the Jones package in the House, the Administration has embraced a compromise known after its proponents as the Gramm-Latta amendment. Gramm-Latta reduces the Administration deficit by driving social cuts even deeper.

The president has gone all out for the compromise — first in telephoning the congressmen while convalescing, then on Tuesday night in his speech to the Congress. The vote in the House promises to be the first major test of Reagan popularity as applied to programs.

Even if Reagan wins, however, he is only back to square one. He has yet to drive the budget through the major congressional committees and both houses of Congress. He has also to maintain Kemp-Roth, with its three-year tax cut, against a one-year cut put forward by Chairman Dan Rostenkowski of the House Ways and Means Committee with impressive bipartisan support. So there is no chance the Administration will get the quick, clean program it sought by July 1. Popularity or not, in other words, the president is still deep in the congressional woods.

NOR HAS POPULARITY saved the president from being caught in the conflict between foreign policy and domestic politics. Secretary Alexander Haig, in the interests of a coherent policy, sought primacy of place for the State Department, particularly in the matter of crisis management. He tried to postpone any action in the Middle East, at least until after the Israeli elections on June 30.

Many factors involved in fatty liver

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My doctor has diagnosed my fatty liver. I do not know how I got it. I do get my blood tested every two months. I am 45 years old. — Mrs. J. S.

Quite a few conditions can cause the liver cells to become engorged with fat. Some of them can be reversed. For example, alcohol can be associated with fatty liver. With abstinence from alcohol the liver cells lose their fat and return to normal. Malnutrition or obesity can produce a fatty liver, and that can be corrected through proper diet or weight loss. The diabetic who is obese and whose diabetes is not under control may develop fatty liver. Again, losing the extra weight and bringing the diabetes under control corrects the problem.

Prolonged use of the cortisone-type drugs may lead to fatty liver. So can some of the non-alcohol toxic substances, such as certain chemicals. Malabsorption problems of the intestines may lead to it, particularly colitis (bowel inflammation).

So there are quite a few possible causes. I do not know how your condition came about. Sometimes no cause can be found, as your doctor told you. Frequently, very mild fattiness in the liver can be a transient condition of no real significance. If you are not feeling ill, if you are careful about not taking anything that is harmful to your liver, like alcohol, and if you continue faithful to your follow-up testing schedule, then I would expect you to do quite well.

Be sure you are getting an adequate diet, one that supplies all the nutrients you need, but which, at the same time, will allow you to lose any excess weight you need to lose. Fatty liver is confirmed by biopsy.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Recently, I had a heart attack. The doctor has put me on a salt-restricted diet for high blood pressure. Nothing is appetizing, so I don't eat much. I am 80 years old. What is your opinion of this diet? Would appreciate it if you could give me some tips. — Mrs. A. S.

A salt-restriction diet can seem most unpalatable, especially when you are trying to get used to it. But if you need one for your health's sake, you should abide by it. Eventually, you can learn to enjoy it. Ask your doctor if it is OK for you to use a salt substitute. There are many available, using potassium instead of sodium.

But you do have to check that with your doctor because he may have reasons he does not want you to be getting extra potassium.

Beyond that, there are many other conditions that can add zest to meals. I guess we forget about them because it is so easy to reach for the salt shaker. Lemon juice, vinegar, salt-free ketchup, paprika and basil are a few examples. There are quite a few low-salt cookbooks around. I saw a couple recently while browsing through the book section of a large department store.

The librarian at your local library, or a hospital nutritionist, might help. At your age, it is important not to sacrifice balanced nutrition for your salt-restriction diet.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a question. I had the experience of a lump in my throat and went to a doctor about it. He gave me a thorough examination and sent me to the hospital for barium X-rays. I also had blood work done. It indicated that I had a low red blood count, so iron supplements were prescribed. The doctor mentioned something about a "ring" in my throat that sometimes is found with low blood counts. Could you explain? — Mrs. M. P.

A few people who have iron deficiency anemia develop the Plummer-Vinson syndrome. These people form a crescent-like web in the back of the throat. The web makes swallowing difficult. When the anemia is corrected with iron, the problem with swallowing goes away. Now I can hear you saying "Huh? Low blood iron, ring in the throat? Why should this be?" The answer is, we don't know.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I face hemorrhoid surgery. I am fearful because I have heard that hemorrhoid surgery (for internal hemorrhoids) causes one to lose bowel control. Can you comment? — B. I.

That is a rarity. It should not happen. The hemorrhoids are close to the surface and the muscles that control the bowels are deep. They should not be damaged during surgery.

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with this or other rectal problems, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I don't know anything about the Bible, but I feel a need of God in my life. Where in the Bible does it say that God came down in the form of his Son Jesus Christ and died for our sins? — Mrs. K. C. S.

DEAR MRS. K. C. S.: I am thankful you want God in your life, and I want to assure you that God will honor that desire. The Bible promises, "Ask and it will be given to you; seek and you will find; knock and the door will be opened to you" (Matthew 7:7). God wants to come into your life because he loves you, and he will if you open your heart to him.

The entire Bible tells us of God's love for us. It tells us that God created us, but it also reminds us that we have turned our backs on God and tried to go our own way without Him. This is what the Bible calls sin. Yet God still loves us in spite of the way we have treated him, and throughout history he has been pursuing us and seeking to bring us back to himself.

It is in the New Testament that we find clearly what God has done to make it possible for us to know him and be forgiven of all our sins. Incredible as it may seem to you at first, God himself came down to this earth in the person of Jesus Christ. He did this to show us just how much he loves us. And he showed us how much he loves us by willingly dying on the cross as a perfect and complete sacrifice for our sins. You and I deserved to die as punishment for our sins, but Christ died in our place.

What must we do? We must respond to God's love. We must accept the gift of salvation which he offers us. We do that by acknowledging to God that we have sinned, and believing that Christ died for our sins and rose again from the dead to give us eternal life. By turning to Christ as our Savior, trusting him alone for our salvation and turning our lives over to him as Lord, we become his children by faith.

The Bible summarizes it like this: "For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). You can know this personally as you turn to Christ and believe in him.

Trouble ahead?

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Several weeks ago, I warned that the United States was inviting another Iran-style disaster in the Middle East by cozying up to Pakistan's hated dictator, Gen. Muhammad Zia-ul-Haq.

Since then, according to the latest intelligence reports, the situation has deteriorated inside Pakistan. Yet the Reagan administration, instead of backing away from this potential nightmare, is planning to commit the United States even more deeply to Zia's unpopular, repressive regime.

Secret foreign intelligence cables reviewed by my associate Jack Mitchell reveal that the "Shah Syndrome" is already beginning to materialize in Pakistan. American citizens have been assassinated, and a daylight on the street in one of Pakistan's largest cities — for the sole reason that they are identified with the United States, which is supporting their detested dictator.

SURROUNDED BY SHAMELESS yes-men, Zia has delayed three times the free elections he promised, has instituted unprecedented martial law and has arrested and tortured thousands. He is caught in a vicious circle of his own making. The more he cracks down on his countrymen, the more unpopular he is and the more vocal his opponents become. This then causes him to tighten the screws still more.

But though Zia sits precariously on a powder keg, White House policymakers seem determined to provide him with the latest in military technology. The reasons are the same as those advanced to justify support to the shah. The United States needs a "dependable ally" in the region to confront the Soviet Union, and Saudi Arabia must be protected to assure a continued flow of oil.

But diplomatic sources warn that time may be running out on Zia, just as it did for the shah. Pakistan's highest judges have refused to go along with the general's kangaroo courts, in which defendants are convicted without benefit of witnesses, lawyers or appeals. Lawyers have also shown their distaste for the dictatorship by openly supporting prominent colleagues who have been arrested on trumped-up charges and tortured.

The recent burning of a DC-10 at the Karachi airport was officially termed an accident, but government insiders say it was sabotage.

Still the repression continues. Newspapers carry photographs of cruel floggings, and the possibility has been discussed of punishing adultery by publicly stoning the transgressors to death.

EDUCATION IS DETERIORATING; Zia and his generals have closed down schools as a means of curbing opposition. The government has also increased censorship of the media.

Yet it is this hated dictatorship that the White House seems determined to identify with, trying to prop up Zia's shaky regime with hundreds of millions of dollars in military aid. If there are dissenting views in the administration, they have been effectively silenced by Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

The really sad part of this is that the administration's policy may actually help to achieve exactly the opposite of its intended goal. By helping Zia, we could drive the opposition — which includes virtually all political parties — and the people of Pakistan into Soviet arms. That would make Zia's downfall doubly disastrous for the United States.

NOTE: Reagan administration has tried to distinguish between authoritarian and totalitarian regimes, but Zia has even been denounced by former supporters for flouting the nation's constitution. State Department spokesmen refused repeated requests for comment.

REAGAN-GO-ROUND: Ronald Reagan has an engaging all-American quality that is changing the character of the White House. His goody-goo approach to government has perceptibly reduced the intrigues and animosities that usually abound in the White House. Indeed, he has succeeded in warming some of the coldest hearts in Washington.

The president has had the same mellowing effect, according to the polls, on the public at large. Last June, a disarming 77 percent of those polled believed the government had jumped the track. But a few days ago, the White House pollster, Richard Wirthlin, reported this unfavorable figure had dropped to 48 percent. Conversely, only 16 percent of the people felt the government was moving in the right direction last June. But Wirthlin's private polls show 46 percent now think the direction is right.

— Former President Jimmy Carter put on a show of piety, but some of his aides led riotous private lives. Ronald Reagan is quiet about his religious life and moral code. But the word has gone out from the Republican National Committee that aides should set a moral example. Anyone caught reveling and womanizing will be fired, the staff has been warned.

WATCH ON WASTE: It's no secret that Congress is a law unto itself. In no field is this more obvious than electioneering. Not only do members of Congress get several free trips home to politick each year, but they have permitted themselves to send out virtually unlimited "campaign brochures" at the public's expense. Congressional mail to constituents costs the taxpayers more than $60 million a year now, and the price is going up.

Battle lines drawn over money market bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Money men competing for Texans' savings are fighting over a bill that could dull the luster of high-interest money market funds, which have lured $5.5 billion from Texans.

More than 200,000 Texans have decided money market funds — paying about triple the interest of a passbook savings account — are the place for their money. Much of that money has been shifted from passbook accounts.

Sen. Bill Meier's proposal, which eased through a Senate committee last Thursday, would require the funds to maintain reserves, just as banks do.

The uninsured funds now do not have reserves, and that is part of the reason they easily top the 5½ percent return on passbook savings accounts.

Money market funds have paid as much as 17 percent in recent months. The current yield is around 14 percent, said Carl Stuart of Rotan-Mosle in Austin. The funds pool investors' money and invest heavily in high-yield short-term debt such as commercial paper and U.S. Treasury bills.

The first shot in the lobby battle came Friday when Reg Green of the Investment Company Institute jettied here to fight the Meier effort. Radio and full-page newspaper ads urging Texans to voice their opposition appeared within days, winning the professional respect of the opposing lobbyists.

"I have never seen such a sophisticated and well-financed lobby group," Texas Savings and Loan League lobbyist Durwood Curlee said of the opposition. "It's a level of lobbying effort I've never experienced."

Curlee said Texas savings and loans have lost hundreds of millions of dollars in deposits in recent months, with much of it going to the money market funds.

"It's become the new savings account," said Stuart of Rotan-Mosle, which handles a money market fund.

He said the bankers and savings and loan officials don't like the competition.

"A few years ago you and I couldn't get 14 percent on our money. Now we can and the competition is something uncomfortable for them," he said. "Now that they have to compete for the money, they want to change the rules of the game."

Stuart and Green said maintaining reserves would force inevitable changes in the funds.

"At best, it would reduce the rate of return. At worst, it could make them inoperable in Texas," said Green.

The decrease in interest would depend on what reserve requirement was set by the state banking commissioner.

If the drop is large, the funds might decide to cease operations in Texas rather than force investors nationwide to face lower interest, said Green.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

Evaluating new administrations after the first 100 days in office has become a tradition among political commentators. That's not a magical number, but since it does serve as a useful benchmark, let's look for a moment at what the Reagan Administration and the new Congress have done in their first hundred days.

The Administration has had the cooperation of the Congress in focusing attention and energy on the critical problems facing our economy. These problems did not develop overnight and won't be solved immediately, and for that very reason it is urgent that we act now to start the healing process.

In addition, both the Administration and the Congress seem to have learned the painful lesson from past years that trying to concentrate on too many issues at the same time means nothing is accomplished.

On the economic front, the Administration proposed a plan for economic recovery which has more chance for meeting its goals than any proposal put forth in years. Broad, bipartisan support has emerged for the domestic spending cuts that form one of the two platforms on which the plan rests. These cuts were approved overwhelmingly by the Senate, and by the end of the 100-day period, prospects for passage in the House looked good.

Moreover, the Senate Budget Committee had reversed its earlier action and approved a budget resolution consistent with the President's plan.

The other platform on which the economic recovery plan is built is a three-year reduction in personal income tax rates.

The tax cut faces more opposition in the Congress than the spending cuts.

These tax cuts are essential to the program, however, because we must act to encourage hard work, savings and investment. If we don't cut tax rates, most people actually will wind up paying much more in taxes, than they are now — making it even more difficult to keep up with the cost of living.

While the primary focus of the Administration and the Congress' attentions has been the economic program, progress was made during the first hundred days toward rebuilding our defense system.

The Administration kept its promise to propose a stronger defense, with more adequate funding. The Senate Armed Services Committee gave its approval on the 99th day of the new Administration to a spending authorization bill which is fully consistent with the Administration request.

After a decade of neglecting our defenses, we are on the road to correcting the downward trend.

Finally, in a move of particular interest to Texas, the President lifted the grain embargo — which had unfairly burdened farmers while failing to accomplish its objective of hurting Soviet meat production.

So all in all, the first 100 days of the new Administration and the new Congress have been productive ones. But however good the beginning, it is only a start. There is much work to do. The citizenry is watching us, and we know it. I am confident we will make real strides during the rest of the Congress toward meeting the responsibilities of government.

On the light side

Florida tuxedos

ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP) — The next musical drama that Winthrop College professor Chris Reynolds writes will have to be called "100 Tuxedos."

That's the joke going around the English department of the small South Carolina school, which has become the owner of 212 tuxedos — all sizes and colors.

It all began last month when Marion H. Campbell of Jacksonville, Fla., called department chairman Earl Wilcox and said he wanted to make a "donation to the arts." Campbell delivered the tuxedos to the college, Wilcox said.

Wilcox said he later learned Campbell had been to a Winthrop Theater production years ago and has a sister living in the area.

The tuxedos are "very nice, indeed," said Wilcox. The classy dress suits range in size from boys' to men's. There are standard black models, some white ones and others in bright colors, said Reynolds.

Heated matter

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The secret to making perfect crepes is all in the pan, a local expert told the attentive group — it must be neither too hot nor too cold.

One member of her audience asked Marion Conlin to speak up.

"We don't make crepes in federal court very often," said U.S. District Judge Harry MacLaughlin.

The cooking lesson occurred Monday as part of a suit by Creative Cookware of Boulder, Colo., against Northland Aluminum Products of suburban St. Louis Park.

The Colorado company obtained a patent for an upside-down crepe pan in 1974. In 1975, Northland introduced an upside-down crepe pan.

The pans are used the same way. The bottom is dipped into the batter and the crepe is cooked on the outside of the pan.

Creative Cookware is claiming lost profits of $1.6 million. Northland contends the patent is not valid, the design is obvious and the two pans are different.

Texas firm to handle detonation

BRIDGEWATER, N.J. (AP) — Hazardous material experts from Texas arrived at the American Cyanamid plant Tuesday to detonate an old canister of potentially explosive hydrogen cyanide gas, discovered during a routine safety and housekeeping inspection.

The 30-inch canister, which holds up to 30 pounds of the lethal substance, was found in an outside storage area next to the laboratory building in the center of American Cyanamid's 150-acre manufacturing complex.

Weeds and what to do about them

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

Weeds are a problem in backyard gardens just as they are in large fields of vegetables, grain sorghum, or cotton. They compete with your desirable plants for water, soil nutrients, sunlight and air. In some cases, they may harbor many different kinds of insects as well as diseases.

What can you do about weeds in your garden? Believe it or not, hand hoeing is probably still the best answer. It is inexpensive, quite selective, accurate, effective and, for some, even enjoyable. Some local gardeners feel a great deal of emotional satisfaction from leaning on a hoe handle and viewing a clean row where weeds stood only minutes before.

Remember, weeds should be relatively small when hoed or pulled from your garden since damage may occur to vegetables if weeds are allowed to get too big before being removed.

Another effective method of controlling garden weeds is to use a mulch. Mulching is one of the real keys to a successful garden in this part of Texas. A mulch is simply defined as "any material spread on garden soil to protect plant roots from heat, cold or drought, reduce problem weeds and keep fruit clean."

A mulch controls weeds by keeping light away from seedlings and by providing a mechanical barrier to their emergence. Mulches work best against weeds and grass that come up from seed each year. Any weeds that do come through the mulch can be spotted easily and removed from the garden.

Good mulching materials in this area are compost, straw, leaves, hay, sawdust, wood shavings, bark, newspaper and plastic sheeting. (Add or delete according to availability of materials in your specific county.) Organic mulches are, by far, the most common but remember that they should not be applied too early in the spring. If you mulch a cold garden soil, it warms up slower, delaying the maturity of most vegetables. One benefit when using organic mulches is that at the end of the season, they can be turned under to improve the physical condition of your garden soil.

Black plastic film has been used as a garden mulch for a long time. It is probably the most popular synthetic material available. It will result in a warmer soil early in the season and will greatly reduce the weed population. However, if weeds are not a problem, it is an excellent mulching material.

Several sheets of newspapers laid flat over the top of the garden row will also help control most weeds. However, like organic mulches, newspaper can cause delayed maturity of many garden vegetables such as tomatoes, peppers and squash if applied too early.

A third method which I feel has limited value for garden weed control is herbicides. While such chemicals work well in single crop situations, it's difficult to use them in a garden where a wide assortment of vegetables may occupy a fairly small space. I personally feel that herbicides are difficult to use in most garden situations and should not be used by the average home gardener in Howard County.

However, if you are determined to use chemicals for garden weed control, remember that some herbicides may work with some crops but may damage others. Be sure to follow the exact application rate and use only the correct amount. If you have a relatively large garden, it's possible to use herbicides satisfactorily by grouping vegetables for their tolerance to certain chemicals and diligently following all label precautions. However, your best bet for satisfactory weed control is to sharpen your trusty hoe and to practice the age-old and time-tested art of mulching.

Enough on this subject. Next time I'll discuss a real mystery to most gardeners — how to tell when to water.

Interstate system back on track

WASHINGTON (AP) — There may be fewer rest stops than planned, but the Reagan Administration believes it can complete the interstate highway system by 1990 for $31.5 billion.

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis told a Senate subcommittee Wednesday that the money should be sufficient to construct the 2,500 or so miles needed to finish the system.

"Our system may have fewer frills, such as rest stops and extended lanes," he said, "we want to redefine our system, close those gaps and close those long distances, like in Florida and Texas."

TOWNSFOLK RALLY TO SUPPORT FBI FUGITIVE — An FBI agent escorts Charles Everett Hughes from a federal courthouse April 30 after an appearance before U.S. Magistrate Charles Powers in Aberdeen, Miss. Hughes, 36, alias George Hacker, was on the FBI's 10 Most Wanted List for the 1978 slayings of four persons in Bay County, Fla. FBI agents who arrested Hughes in Myrtle, Miss., said he had been living in the small town under the name Hacker for several years. The townspeople of Myrtle, convinced of Hughes' innocence, have started a defense fund for him.

Town raises money to help ex-most-wanted fugitive

MYRTLE, Miss. (AP) — Authorities say George Hacker is really Charles Everett Hughes, who was on the FBI's most-wanted list until his arrest last week. But some residents of this tiny Mississippi town say Hacker is a "good friend," and they're raising money to help him.

While some Myrtle residents decry the effort, boys are mowing lawns for cash, a rummage sale is in the works and waitresses are donating their tips to a fund for the man authorities believe responsible for the slayings of four people in Florida.

"We've gotten about $2,000, mostly in ones, fives and tens," said Opal Hutson, owner of a restaurant and one of the organizers of the fund-raising effort. "We're looking for the lawyer right now but we're finding it is going to be costly."

Mrs. Hutson said the town of 300 wanted to "let a friend know he has not been forgotten and to make sure he gets a fair trial."

However, others in Myrtle questioned the attempt to help Hughes.

Randolph Goode, a service station owner, said he had not been approached about donating money to secure an attorney and "I hope I'm not."

"I want no part in upholding that sort of thing," he said. "I feel the FBI had him on the 10 most wanted list and they knew what they were doing," Goode said.

"I agree with Mr. Goode, if the FBI wanted him they had a reason," said Jim McAlister, a town alderman. "We try to have a clean town and that's just a small group that's putting all that stuff out about raising money. It's not the citizens of Myrtle."

FBI officials in Florida and Mississippi had no comment on the fund-raising efforts.

Hacker, who had lived here for about eight months, was arrested a week ago and taken to Panama City, Fla., to face charges of killing two adults and two teen-age sisters in 1977. Authorities said the victims were slain in a remote, coastal area of Bay County, Fla., apparently after they stumbled upon a marijuana smuggling operation.

"We've heard a lot of different things since his arrest but people are still wondering whether this could be the same man," said Gerald Nolan, who operates the auto shop where Hacker worked.

"A lot of people like him and were shocked," Nolan said. "We want him to have a fair trial but we know he's broke and on the mercy of the world."

Mrs. Hutson said "about half the town" showed up at her restaurant Monday night to help organize the money-raising project. She said boys volunteered to mow lawns to raise money and "there were young men and women who pledged to save part of their paychecks until he is free or his attorney has to be paid."

Waitresses at her restaurant are putting their tips into a collection jar, she said, adding as much as $50,000 may be needed.

"We knew a man who worked every day from 8 a.m. until midnight and he didn't have any money," said Mrs. Hutson. "The only thing he had was himself and he gave that freely to anyone who needed a friend."

NOTED HYPNOTISTS IN BIG SPRING TO HELP SMOKERS & THE OVERWEIGHT

WADE M. GENTNER, F.A.I.H.

Director of Techniques For Living

Are you overweight or a cigarette smoker? Have you tried to lose weight or stop smoking, only to fail time and time again? If you find yourself answering "yes" to either of these questions then the Techniques For Living Seminar, under the direction of Wade M. Gentner F.A.I.H. at the Ramada Inn, 1-20 at Highway 176 will be the place for you to be on Wednesday, May 13. Techniques For Living will be conducting their famous Lose Weight — Stop Smoking Seminar which has helped thousands of people throughout the United States. Techniques For Living is a national organization dedicated to helping Americans solve these and other problems that have kept them from enjoying their lives to the fullest.

The subject of numerous newspaper and magazine articles as well as television appearances, Mr. Gentner and his staff have been conducting these seminars throughout the country. In a comprehensive and fascinating three hour program, those who attend the seminar experience the relaxing and beneficial effects of clinical hypnosis. Not only do people permanently lose weight and stop smoking as a result of the seminar, they also report that they sleep better, feel more energetic, and generally enjoy life more than they had previously.

Mr. Gentner's skill in clinical hypnosis was noted by Dan Rather of CBS' "60 Minutes," who referred to him in a national televised report as a well-trained and highly experienced hypnotist.

"Clinical hypnosis is the easiest way there is to solve these problems", Gentner says. "Simply put, it helps to eliminate these types of problems permanently."

Gentner says that the reason clinical hypnosis is so successful is that "it removes the causes of problems, not just the symptoms." For example, he explains: "People who are overweight go on diets. A diet is only good for as long as you can follow it. Once you stop the diet you re-gain the weight. Hypnosis is permanent because it eliminates the causes of overeating, not just the symptoms." The same holds true for smokers where the need to prevent cravings for cigarettes or weight gain is just as important. Both problems are covered at the seminar, and each seminar leader is personally trained by Mr. Gentner. Further information can be obtained by calling, toll free 1-800-645-5454.

Immigrant sentenced to 99 years in stepdaughter slaying

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A District Court jury has recommended that a 30-year-old Yugoslavian immigrant be sentenced to a 99-year prison term following his conviction in the murder and sexual abuse of his 4-year-old stepdaughter.

Muharem Mustaface, 30, who cried throughout most of his five-day trial and testified in stilted English that he would "never again spank a child," was convicted of the July 6 slaying of Felicia Evonne Owens. The child was pronounced dead on arrival at White Settlement Hospital after she suffered a perforated rectum that caused massive internal bleeding, medical authorities testified. An autopsy showed she had more than 50 bruises and abrasions on her body. At the time, Felicia was living with her stepfather and her mother, Diane Wilson, in a motel room in West Fort Worth. Mustaface testified that he spanked the child in an "uncontrollable" fit of rage after he caught her looking out the motel room window, which he had forbidden her to do. When the child began bleeding, he said, he attempted to wash away the blood in the shower. He then took the child to the hospital. Mustaface's attorney, Jack Beech, portrayed his client as a frustrated man who was the product of an East European culture in which a father is the undisputed head of his household. Mustaface denied deliberately killing the child and disputed medical evidence suggesting that the child's internal bleeding was the result of sexual abuse. District Judge Tom Cave is to sentence Mustaface later this month.

CAYLOR ART BOOK — Tumbleweed Smith (Bob Lewis), left, emcee for the Chuck Wagon Party and John Taylor, publications chairman, display the Caylor Art Book. Chuck Wagon festivities begin at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The book will be introduced for the first time and offered for sale at a reduced price.

Annual Chuck Wagon Party is sold out for first time

Jack Cook, Heritage Museum president, is pleased with the way the Eighth Annual Chuck Wagon Party is coming along.

Bob Lewis has a wonderful program planned; guests are coming from California, District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, Oklahoma, Washington and Missouri. From Texas towns they are coming from Galveston, Huntsville, College Station, San Antonio, Austin, San Angelo, Midland, El Paso, Lubbock, Colorado City, Fort Worth, Corpus Christi and Dallas.

Bee Zinn, membership chairman, is well pleased with the increase in membership as a result of the event.

Barbara Ratliff, general chairman, was overwhelmed when told that more than 600 tickets had been sold by April 29. This is the first time for a complete ticket sellout.

John Taylor, publications chairman, is well pleased with the increase in membership as a result of the event.

Share talents and save money says specialist

COLLEGE STATION — With increasing prices, and the decreasing value of incomes, today's families are searching for ways to increase their buying skills to maintain their level of living. So says Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist.

To do that, families must turn to such tactics as "do-it-yourself" repairs, sharing talents with others and using community resources more than in the past few years, she says. Mrs. McCormack is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Do-it-yourself" expertise will lessen your dependence on professionals and save repair money while keeping the house and car in working order, Mrs. McCormack says.

Learn to perform maintenance on such household possessions as the car, appliances and plumbing, and visit the library for publications on consumer topics.

Judith Gray presents program to Mu Zetas

Mu Zeta met in the home of Kathy Schrum April 27. A Pledge Ritual was held for Marian Buzbee, Rene Eyskens and Debbie Walling.

Judith Gray of the Howard County Library presented the program, "Children's Literature". She stressed that the two most important things for children are "the ability to read" and "the ability to listen." We, as parents, can encourage our children by having books at home to enjoy, having discussions and reading to the child.

Members were reminded that the next meeting is for installation of new officers, and a Legacy Ritual will be held.

Volunteer program to begin

The Coahoma Elementary School will begin a school volunteer program in the fall of 1981. Applications for volunteers, however, may be filled out now.

The volunteer has a choice of preference on job assignment and teacher assignment. He or she may choose the particular grade level, K-5, in which he would most enjoy working. Coahoma's Volunteer Program requires a minimum of 2 hours per week in volunteer service and training sessions, to begin in August 1981.

Volunteers give of their time, loyalty, and interests. The education of a person does not mean he has any more or any less to give a child. Each person has a unique quality to be shared with someone else. Children are the key to our future. Share a part of that future in Coahoma Elementary.

If you are interested in volunteering your time next fall in Elementary, go by the Administration office or the Elementary office and pick up an application. For further information, call 394-4323 and ask for Sherry Rowden or Danella Souter. Applications need to be returned to the Elementary office.

Making a tour of the museum were Mr. and Mrs. Stevens and Martha, of Theodore, Queensland, Australia, and Elsie Willis, with whom they are visiting.

Recent new and renewal members are: Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Max Coffee, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Adams, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Addy, Dr. and Mrs. John R. Fish, Akin M. Simpson, Rick Seagraves, Mr. and Mrs. Rich Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. C.L. Richardson, Eunice M. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Russ McEwen, Mr. and Mrs. Winston Wrinkle, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Read, Mr. and Mrs. Don Davis, Mrs. Albert Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Fran Bordofoke, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nichols, Dr. and Mrs. John R. Key and Mr. and Mrs. L.E. McCutchan.

Other charter members attending will be Mrs. Ira L. Watkins, Midland, Mrs. Bill Conger, and another ex-president Mrs. Joe Holladay, Dallas. Former members planning to attend are Mrs. Bob Honeycutt, Monahans, Mrs. Glenn Whittenburg, Gatesville, and Mrs. Arthur Barton, Forsan.

The club requests all former members who would like to attend the Homecoming luncheon to contact Frances Cosselman at 457-2291 or Eunice Thixton after 4 p.m. at 263-4874. These ladies need to be contacted by May 10. The cost of the meal will be $6.75.

For the record

In Sunday's article on Coahoma's Kindergarten Rodeo, the Herald inadvertently omitted the names of two of the Kindergarten teachers, Mrs. Karen Helton and Mrs. Tommie Perez contributed a great deal toward the success of the event. The Herald regrets this omission.

Dear Abby

No Deferred Payments In This Marriage Contract

DEAR ABBY: In your recent column concerning premarital contracts, I'm glad you agreed that they made sense. I offer my own experience as a testimonial. I have been widowed twice, run a very successful business and at 32 am now married to a wonderful man of 56. We have a premarital contract, and it's no problem at all. I gave my husband the beautiful 2,000-acre ranch we live on and an allowance for life. So far it's been a perfect marriage. I work at my business all day and come home to a chilled martini and a gourmet dinner prepared by my husband, who's a marvelous cook. While he jokes about being a "kept man," I know he is delighted with this arrangement.

He putters around the ranch and plays golf. He is a wonderful father to the children of my second marriage. On our first anniversary I gave him a paid-up country club membership for life and I find myself continuously buying him presents to show my devotion. This is the best business deal I ever made!

HAPPY IN SANTA YNEZ

DEAR HAPPY: And your husband made a pretty good deal, too!

ANN ARBOR ATTORNEY

DEAR ATTORNEY: Not necessarily. In some cases it's better to anticipate divorce than to be surprised by bankruptcy.

DEAR ABBY: I know I must have many sympathizers on this one. I need some up-to-date advice on how to look feminine and glamorous at the office without letting men think I am on the make.

If I wear high-fashion clothes that flatter my figure and bring out the best in me, all the old creeps (never the nice eligible men) make passes at me. If I dress to repel the old creeps, I creep further into old-maidhood. I am 30. Any suggestions?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: "Nice, eligible men" never make passes at anyone. A guide to appropriate office attire includes a long list of don'ts:

Don't strive for "glamour" in the office. Femininity, yes. Glamour, no! Don't wear shorts, or too-short skirts. Don't wear plunging necklines or anything skin tight. See-through blouses are a no-no. Leave the junk jewelry at home. Don't wear cocktail clothes to work. Pants are fine if they are well-tailored and worn with a matching jacket. Lounging pajamas, jumpsuits or jeans with T-shirts are inappropriate.

If you follow the above suggestions, and the old creeps still make passes at you, you'd better check the look in your eye.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Musicale reveals superb artistry

By MICKIE DICKSON
The Musicale, performed by four members of the Big Spring Music Club Sunday at 3 p.m. at Potton House, was excellent. The performance was one of seven to be given this week by members of the club to commemorate National Music Week, May 3-10.

Joyce Bradley, lyric soprano, sang seven selections of wide appeal in flawless voice: "Where My Caravan Has Rested" by Lohr, accompanied by Joan Bell with Danna Moore on the viola; "For You Alone" by Kiehl; "Liebestraum" by Liszt; "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" by Herbert; "Mighty Lik' a Rose", a spiritual lullaby by Nevin and "Beautiful Dreamer" by Stephen Foster were all sung to the able accompaniment of Joan Bell.

Mrs. Moore again joined the two on the viola in the performance of "A Perfect Day" by Bond. These three ladies gave an outstanding performance of flawless musicianship. Mary Skalicky, concert pianist, performed seven more selections: "Rustless of Spring" by Sinding;

"Melodie in F" by Rubenstein; "Papillon" (Butterfly) by Grieg; "Moonlight Sonata, 1st movement" by Beethoven; "Polish Dance" by Scharwenke; "Nocturne in E Flat" by Chopin and a rousing finale with "Military Polonaise" by Chopin.

Some 30 people attended the performance, many of them touring the Potton House afterwards. Helen Acuff, whose childhood home was Potton House, served as hostess to those attending.

The four ladies went immediately to Canterbury Apartments and repeated the same performance at 4 p.m.

Mona Lue Tonn, vocalist, presented a program of gospel music at 9:30 a.m. Sunday at the United Christian Center. The same program will be presented at the Veterans Administration Medical Center Chapel next Sunday at 6:30 p.m.

The Bell Ringers of the First United Methodist Church will present a Mother's Day concert at 3 p.m. Sunday, celebrating not only National Music Week, but their tenth anniversary as a musical group.

U.S. may promote sexual discipline among teens

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal to spend federal money to promote "self-discipline and chastity" among teen-agers is speeding toward a vote in a Senate committee.

"When young people engage in intimate physical relationships before they are ready or willing to take on the responsibilities of marriage or child-rearing, they jeopardize their own emotional or physical health," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, chairman of the Senate Committee on Human Resources.

With Hatch's support, the legislation drafted by Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., is scheduled for a vote by the full committee next Wednesday. Preliminary indications are it will have broad support.

At a time of federal budget austerity, the Denton bill would provide $30 million for continued operation of 27 centers whose functions would be redirected to a "pro-family emphasis," instead of helping pregnant adolescents or young girls seek information or birth control devices.

Other centers could be added later.

The Reagan administration is proposing to cut specific federal funds for the centers.

Specifically, Denton wants to prohibit the centers from referring pregnant teen-agers to abortion clinics.

Teen-age girls also would be required to get their parents' permission before being provided birth control information or devices.

Local sponsors of the centers would be encouraged to find ways to spend money to "promote self-discipline and chastity and other positive family-centered approaches" to reduce adolescent pregnancies, according to the language of the legislation.

The bill would apply to all teen-agers but with priority given to those 17 years old and younger.

The only major similarity to the centers as they now exist would be to provide information and advice to pregnant teen-agers on adoption agencies.

Denton, chairman of a subcommittee on aging, family and human services, held no hearings on the legislation before sending it directly to the full Human Resources Committee for a vote.

But his views on morality and sex have been developing since he returned from a North Vietnamese prisoner of war camp in 1973.

During his election campaign last fall, Denton said, "No nation can survive long unless it can teach its young to withhold indulgence in their sexual appetites until marriage."

$7.5 million sale revealed by Siboney

Siboney Corporation announced that it had completed the sale of its wholly owned subsidiary, Bitucote Products Company to Elf Aquitaine Asphalt, Inc., for a consideration of approximately $7.5 million.

Bitucote Products Company, headquartered in St. Louis, Mo., is engaged in the manufacture and sale of asphalt and tar emulsions for road and specialty applications. It operates seven manufacturing plants in the midwestern part of the United States.

Elf Aquitaine, Inc. is a subsidiary of Societe Nationale Elf Aquitaine, a major French oil company.

Siboney directly and through wholly owned subsidiaries is engaged in various lines of business activities including interests in oil and gas permits in the Canadian Arctic Islands, producing oil and gas properties in Texas, the manufacture and sale of lighting systems and plastic products, educational equipment and supplies, arts and crafts and hobby materials and the sale and rental of audio and video products.

For the year ended Dec. 31, 1980, Siboney Corporation reported revenues of $26,142,000, an increase of $3.5 million over the revenues realized in the year 1979.

Women find it harder to kick smoking habit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women find it harder to quit smoking than men, but for the first time in 15 years, less than 30 percent of the nation's adult women are reaching for cigarettes, new government statistics show.

Of the 8 million men and 8 million women who tried to give up cigarettes last year, 24 percent of the men succeeded compared to 18 percent of the women, according to data compiled in the 1980 National Health Interview Survey. Officials at the Department of Health and Human Services could offer no reason for the disparity.

The interview survey estimated that 3.5 million persons succeeded in quitting smoking in 1980. A total of 16.3 million tried to give up the habit.

The National Center for Health Statistics, which conducted the survey, said the total number of adult Americans who smoke dropped from 33.7 percent of the population in 1978 to 32.6 percent in 1980.

Less than 29 percent of women over 16 now smoke cigarettes compared with 30.4 percent in 1978, John Pinney, director of the Office of Smoking and Health, said Tuesday.

Smokers now make up 36.7 percent of the adult male population compared with 34.7 percent in 1978.

There were 100,000 more smokers in 1980 than the 52.3 million in 1978, but the adult population increased by 5.6 million people, to 160.8 million, during the same period.

Dr. Joanne Luoto, the Office of Smoking and Health's medical staff director, said the figures show for the first time since 1968 that the number of women who smoke fell below 30 percent of the female population.

Nearly 53 percent of all men smoked and 24.5 percent of the women smoked in 1968, she said. By 1968, the proportion of men had dropped to 50 percent while that for women rose to 32.3 percent. The proportion of women smokers has stayed in that range ever since.

Spring Ornamental Plant clinic scheduled May 14

The annual Spring Ornamental Plant disease and insect control diagnostic clinic will be conducted Thursday May 14, 1981 in Big Spring at Mr. G's Garden Center.

The Clinic is sponsored by the Howard County Extension Horticultural Committee as one of its educational activities held throughout the year.

Area Extension specialist, Austin Stockton, horticulturist, Charles Neeb, entomologist and Harold

At second half 5-AAAAA title

OHS hurts Steers chances

The Odessa Bronchos used an 11-hit attack and five Big Spring errors to take a 5-4 District 5-AAAAA second half win here Tuesday afternoon. The OHS triumph also severely damped the Steers hopes at winning the district title.

Both teams are now 3-2 in second half play, with two games remaining. But the Steers are not totally out of it. If they can defeat both Midland and San Angelo to end the regular season, they would be 5-2 in the second half. But they must also root for a Midland win over Midland Lee on Saturday, which would put those two teams at 5-2.

Actually, the score could have been higher on both sides. A total of 21 runners were stranded in the affair, with 13 of them being Bronchos.

But while OHS did leave the 13 runners, it will be the Steers that no doubt will be haunted the most. In five of the innings, they left runners in scoring position.

Odessa's Hector Sanchez opened the game with a single and finally came around to score. OHS had the bases filled with one out, but Steer hurler Moe Rubio worked his way out without any further damage.

But the Steers leadoff man, Mark Warren, also opened his side's attack with a single. He moved to second on Dickie Wrightsill's single, and scored when Blake Rosson knocked the ball out of the Odessa first baseman's glove on an attempted double play.

OHS regained the lead in the second inning with a pair of runs, but they used only one hit in doing so. It was an ironic inning in the field for the Bovines. With one out, Dickie Wrightsill dropped a routine fly ball, giving the Bronchos a baserunner. But Warren made a beautiful diving catch after a lengthy haul in deep left-center, and it appeared that things had evened out.

But Rubio walked Lemy Alvarado, and the Bronchos then used a wild throw by the Steer catcher on a double steal to score one run and move Alvarado to third. Efran Gallegos then singled for a 3-1 OHS lead.

It moved to 4-1 in the third when Darin Carr scored when Rubio mishandled a squeeze bunt by Johnny Subia.

The Bovines rallied in the third when Tommy Rodriguez singled and Wrightsill doubled to put runners on second and third. Blake Rosson singled to plate Rodriguez, with a sacrifice fly by Tommy Olague. Rusty Hayworth singled Rosson to second, but OHS hurler Tommy Stahl escaped without further damage.

Odessa scored its final run in the fourth inning, thanks to a dropped fly ball by Steer left fielder Tim Shaver, but Shaver prevented another OHS run when he drilled the ball to home, where Lupe Ontiveros made simply a great play.

Ontiveros grabbed the hard throw from Shaver with his bare right hand, and then managed to hold on and tag a quickly onrushing Ismael Tavarez to end the inning.

From that point, Rubio and the Steers blanked the Bronchos.

That left the Steers with three at bats to overcome the Bronchos, and they nearly did.

In the fifth, Rosson walked, Hayworth singled and Shaver walked to fill the bases. But Stahl forced a groundout from the bat of Ontiveros to squelch that uprising.

Back-to-back doubles with one out in the sixth inning by Rodriguez and Warren narrowed the OHS lead to 5-4, but a pair of long fly balls were caught to stop Warren from advancing and tying the score.

In the seventh, Stahl retired the Bovines in order to clinch the win and severely hurt the Steers second half chances.

In other second half action on Tuesday, Abilene handed Midland Lee its initial loss in second half play by a score of 8-5. Odessa Permian rallied from a 5-0 deficit for a 6-5 win over hapless San Angelo, and Midland stayed alive in the second half race with an 8-3 win over Abilene Cooper.

HAYWORTH EYES HIT... Big Spring's Rusty Hayworth checks out one of his two hits during the Steers game with Odessa High Tuesday afternoon.

Watson ready to win again in Byron Nelson

DALLAS (AP) — Masters champion Tom Watson doesn't put much stock in the adage "you can never go home," but he's not a bit unhappy about the prospect of returning to the Byron Nelson Classic.

"Well, if you have to go back to play," says Watson, who has carried home tournament honors at the Nelson event three times before, "you may as well win again — if you can."

Watson, fresh off a win at New Orleans, has set a new standard of money winning at the Nelson tournament and says he's got his sights set on picking up more of the green stuff.

"I have that Texas Bonanza (a $200,000 bonus that goes to the golfer who wins the Nelson tournament and the Colonial Open next week) in the back of my mind," he said Tuesday after a practice round.

Watson has collected $196,626 in nine Nelson outings, a cool $120,000 ahead of Ray Floyd, who has played here 12 times.

The 10-year veteran of the PGA tour says his game is in about the same place as last year, less than cheerful news for other Nelson entrants.

Watson says he's "driving better than I was a year ago" when he had logged four tournament victories before the Nelson Classic.

"I've played 10 tournaments," said Watson, who has claimed 23 tour victories and two British Open crowns during his career.

"I'm still fresh, but I'm tournament-tough, tournament-ready."

HANGIN' TOUGH — Boston Celtics Nate Archibald hangs on to the ball after colliding with Houston Rockets Mike Dunleavy (10) during third period National Basketball Association championship action Tuesday night at Boston Garden. The Celtics narrowly edged to a 98-95 victory in the first game of the best-of-seven series for the NBA title.

Judge halts letters of Billie Jean King

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge has granted a request from tennis star Billie Jean King to temporarily bar her former homosexual lover from selling some 100 letters that Mrs. King wants to keep "forever private and confidential."

Documents filed by Mrs. King's lawyer alleged that Marilyn Barnett had been threatening for two to three years to publish personal letters Mrs. King wrote to her during their affair "if Billie Jean King did not give Marilyn Barnett what she wanted."

The documents say Mrs. Barnett claimed she had been offered $25,000 by the National Enquirer for rights to some 100 letters which Mrs. King wrote to her during their love affair. Neither Mrs. Barnett nor her lawyer could be reached, and there was no immediate comment from the newspaper.

Meanwhile, the Women's Tennis Association urged Mrs. King to remain its president. WTA Executive Director Jerry Diamond said that 10 of the WTA's 15 board members had been polled following King's offer to resign after she admitted to the relationship with Ms. Barnett and all favored her staying on.

In an affidavit filed with her request for a court order, Mrs. King said, "I wrote the letters to Barnett with the intent and understanding that they were and would remain forever private and confidential."

Mrs. Barnett, 33, who became a paraplegic in a fall last year, is pressing Mrs. King, in a so-called palimony suit, for lifetime support and for a Malibu home, which she said she was promised when she and Mrs. King were lovers.

After the lawsuit was filed, Mrs. King, 37, admitted last week that she had a homosexual affair with Ms. Barnett, but said the affair has been over for some time and said she had promised Ms. Barnett nothing.

Mrs. King and her husband, Larry, said their 19-year marriage was stronger than ever.

Mrs. Barnett has been living in the Malibu beach house purchased by the Kings in 1974. The Kings contend that Ms. Barnett's lawsuit was prompted by their request that she move out so the house could be sold.

Over Rockets in first game of NBA finals

Celtics rally for tough 98-95 win

BOSTON (AP) — The atmosphere in the winning locker room was subdued, almost funereal. There were few smiles.

The Boston Celtics knew they had escaped with a victory that very easily could have been a loss. In the opener of their National Basketball Association championship series with the Houston Rockets, the Celtics played like anything but champions.

"We didn't play well as a team," said an unusually restrained Boston forward Cedric Maxwell. "We're almost talking like we lost this game. But we didn't."

For three quarters, the Rockets played like the team that pulled playoff upsets over Los Angeles and San Antonio before beating Kansas City to reach the finals. For the last quarter, they played like the team that struggled to a 40-42 regular-season record.

"We were patient early in the game and didn't give the Celtics good shots. The Celtics were able to get back in the game with opportunity baskets," said Houston reserve guard Calvin Murphy, who scored 16 points. "We lost our composure at the end."

The Rockets, who have lost their last 14 games with Boston, carried an 81-76 lead into the final quarter, but scored just 14 more points. After Murphy's jumper gave them a 91-88 lead with 5:18 to play, they managed just two field goals by Tom Henderson.

Consecutive baskets by Robert Parish, Bird, M.L. Carr and Maxwell put the Celtics ahead for good, 96-91, with 2:54 left. Henderson then sank his two buckets. Bird finished with 21 rebounds, matching his regular-season high; 18 points, eight of them in the final quarter, and nine assists.

The Rockets, the first team with a losing record to reach the NBA finals since 1959, maintained leads of 29-24 after the first quarter and 57-51 at halftime.

axwell's two free throws with 3:24 left in the third quarter produced Boston's first lead of the game, 69-68.

Houston center Moses Malone, the NBA's leading rebounder with a 14.8 average, grabbed 15 rebounds, but wasn't a dominant force. His 13 points were less than half his 27.8 regular-season average.

Nor did the Rockets, now 3-31 in Boston, see the real Celtics who tied the 76ers for the best record in the NBA, 62-20, then battled back from a 3-1 deficit to capture their best-of-seven series with Philadelphia.

"I'm just glad we got this game out of our system and came out with a win," said Ford.

Brazilian upsets McEnroe in lucrative NY affair

NEW YORK (AP) — Carlos Kirmayr isn't an unknown in tennis circles. After all, he's been a member of the Brazilian Davis Cup team since 1971 and he numbers among his victims Jose-Luis Clerc, Eddie Dibbs, Victor Pecci, Elliot Teltscher and Ilie Nastase.

Now you can add John McEnroe.

Kirmayr stunned the top seed in the $592,000 Tournament of Champions at Forest Hills Tuesday, 5-7, 7-6, 6-2.

Also upset was third-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis, the defending champion. He was beaten by hard-serving Fritz Buehning 7-5, 7-5. But it was McEnroe's defeat — and the way that it was accomplished — that sparked the sparse crowd.

"He ran me around like a yo-yo," McEnroe said. "He deserved to win because he outplayed me."

"He has a nice touch — he doesn't hit the ball hard, but he's a smart player. He makes the most of what he has and I give him credit."

Umpires meet tonight

There will be a meeting of the Big Spring Umpires Association tonight at seven o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce. All umpires and anyone else interested in starting to call games are urged to attend.

UNsung HERO... While most sports banquets strictly honor the athletes, Big Spring High School Athletic Trainer Everett Blackburn (left) felt it only appropriate to honor somebody from his crew for their much needed work behind the scenes in helping the local athletes keep up with their garb and bodies. For that reason, the first annual BSHS Student Trainer-Manager Award was given during the Spring Sports Banquet Monday night. Pictured is this year's winner, Dean Restelli (center) with the award. On the right is Dr. James Cowan, who presented the award and also aids the Steer program in his spare time.

Norris moves mark to 6-0 as A's take win

By the Associated Press
Wayne Gross is finally hitting his weight. Don Baylor, on the other hand, still isn't hitting anyone's weight, but at least he's starting to hit.

After a week's absence from the lineup while Oakland faced a diet of left-handed pitchers, the 205-pound Gross boosted his average from .143 to .308 Tuesday night with a solo homer, two doubles, a single and three RBIs as the A's trimmed the Detroit Tigers 6-2.

Baylor, California's 210-pound designated hitter, jumped from .083 to .118 with three singles and three RBIs in four at-bats to lead the Angels to a 6-2 victory over the New York Yankees.

In other American League action Tuesday, the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Minnesota Twins 3-2, the Milwaukee Brewers downed the Seattle Mariners 4-1, the Texas Rangers whipped the Chicago White Sox 6-1 and the Kansas City Royals

Giant pitcher nearly burned in shower

By the Associated Press
Tom Griffin was in the shower when he heard that his nine-run lead was going down the drain.

"There I was taking a leisurely shower when I heard a lot of noise on the radio in the dressing room," said the San Francisco Giants' pitcher. "I paid little attention at first but when the roaring kept on, I left my shower to find out what was going on.

"To my amazement, I discovered the Mets were scoring like crazy and had the tying runs on base before Greg Minton finally put out the fire."

Before it was over, the Mets were able to put seven runs across to jeopardize Griffin's second victory of the season. But the Giants managed to hold on and win 9-7.

Griffin, 2-2, had pitched just two days before, getting pounded by Philadelphia before exiting after two and a third innings, so he didn't complain too loudly when Manager Frank Robinson lifted him after seven innings with a 9-0 lead. Griffin had given up but four hits to that point.

In other National League action Tuesday, Philadelphia nipped Los Angeles 8-7, Montreal edged San Diego 4-3, St. Louis beat Atlanta 4-1 and Houston trimmed Chicago 4-3. Rain postponed the Pittsburgh-Cincinnati game.

BS Yankees improve mark in sweep

The Big Spring Yankees opened their home semi-pro schedule here Sunday by sweeping a twinbill from the Miles Outlaws.

In the opener, Ricky Myers hurled a three-hitter and struck out 10 Outlaws to move his personal record to 2-0.

The Outlaws led until the bottom of the fifth, when the Yankees erupted for six runs.

In the second game, Yankee Manager-Player Chris Uchman made his 1981 mound debut, blanking the Outlaws by a score of 9-0. Uchman allowed only five hits in the game, but credited the Yankee defense with the key to the shutout. The game was called after four innings due to a severe injury suffered by the Outlaw catcher while sliding into second base.

The Yankees, who are hitting a red-hot .440 as a team, were paced by Keith Stone and Tommy Arguello, who had four hits on the day. Stone has a .688 average on the year with 11 RBIs, while Arguello is hitting .769 with seven ribbies.

The Yankees, now 4-0 on the year, will visit the San Angelo Astros next Sunday for the beginning of four straight games with that team. A twinbill is set for next Sunday, with the same in Big Spring on May 17.

Couples golf begins tomorrow at Muny

The Comanche Trail Golf Couples will begin their weekly tournaments on Thursday evening beginning at 5:35 p.m. All interested golfing couples are invited to participate.

The action is not for married couples only. If not married or your spouse won't play, the CTCG urges all interested to find a partner and come play, provided it is a man and woman team. All couples should bring a covered food dish.

Those unable to find a partner should contact either Bob or June Waters at 7-7337.

Following the action and the prizes, the golfers share in the covered dish dinner.

A big eight-run fifth inning sparked the Red Sox. Leading that uprising were Adam Yanez and Ernie Garcia. Both had two hits.

In the nightcap, Luis Rodriguez allowed three second inning runs, but then settled down to halt the Lions roar as the Red Sox went on to a 10-3 triumph.

Mike Gamboa has three hits to pace the Red Sox charge, with Melchie Sarmiento, and Santos Olague adding two hits each.

The Red Sox, now 3-1 on the year, return home next Sunday to host the Snyder A's.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 7, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are now in a good position to improve relationships with others by extending some courtesy or kindness. Be sure to carry through with plans you have made.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Situations arise that give you a better picture of your relationships with associates. Show others you have wisdom.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan how to establish more harmony with co-workers and everything will work out better in the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure that you are handling financial matters wisely. Spare time should be spent at amusements with congenials.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to give more thought to home improvements and increase harmony with close ties. Express happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't invest more money than you can afford in a new enterprise or you could regret it later. Don't neglect to pay your bills.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Look into the detailed part of a financial matter and be sure you understand it thoroughly. Sidestep a troublemaker.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study details of any plans you have made and correct possible errors. Be sure business affairs are running smoothly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Gain favors from your friends since they are in a fine mood for such now. Make the evening a happy one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are desirous of gaining aims that are vital to your existence, but first study every angle involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Put your talents to work and make a fine impression on higher-ups. Express happiness with loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan to meet talented persons who can help you advance in career matters. Avoid heavy expenditures of money.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Ideal day to keep promises made and clear the slate. Be it in business or personal life. Not a good day to take risks.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who likes to please others, so whether it be in the field of entertainment, nursing, or whatever, be sure to give as fine an education as you can. There's a talent for music in this chart. Don't neglect ethical training.

Oranges, strawberries are springtime favorites

Desserts help make Mother's Day special

SPECIALLY FOR MOM — The Hats-off-to-Mom cake features the tangy taste of orange in the unique hat design. The cake is one of the many fruit-flavored desserts guaranteed to make Mom's special day even better.

Mother's Day brightens up the already beautiful month of May and gives us a celebration that is most truly our own... for mothers are special — and each mother is different.

A wonderfully visual tribute, and delicious to boot, the Hats-Off-To-Mom Cake has the wholesome flavor of an oldtime made-from-scratch cake with a batter fragrant with the sunny-sweet taste of fresh Florida oranges. Made in two pans, one an inch wider, the cakes are layered to give the hat a brim. The decoration can be as frivolous or dramatic as you like. Orange slices make a fine band around the top, and fresh flowers add a beautiful touch of delicate color.

Orange-Strawberry Chiffon Pie has a lighter than air filling in a yummy coconut pie shell lined with strawberries. Fresh orange juice lends citrus-sweet goodness to the filling while grated orange peel gives it a zest that fairly sings.

Hats Off to the cooks who take Hats Off To Mom!

HATS-OFF-TO-MOM CAKE

1 package (18 or 19 ounces) white cake mix
1/2 cup Florida orange juice
1 tablespoon grated orange peel

Orange Filling
Cream Frosting
1 Florida orange thinly sliced

Prepare cake mix, according to package directions, substituting orange juice for the liquid called for on the package. Add orange peel. Turn 3 cups of the batter into a greased and floured 8-inch round cake pan; turn remaining batter into greased and floured 9-inch cake pan. Bake cakes in a 350 degree F. oven 30 to 35 minutes for the 8-inch layer and 25 to 30 minutes for the 9-inch layer. Cool 10 minutes; remove cakes from pans. Cool completely on wire racks. Place 9-inch layer on serving plate. Spread top with Orange Filling; spread 1/2 cup Cream Frosting over the Orange Filling. Place remaining layer on top; frost tops and sides with remaining Cream Frosting. Cover. Chill at least 4 hours or overnight. Arrange orange slices on cake just before serving. Decorate with tiny, fresh flowers, if desired.

YIELD: 8 to 10 servings.

ORANGE FILLING

1/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
1-3 cup Florida orange juice
2 teaspoons grated orange peel

In small saucepan combine sugar and cornstarch. Stir in orange juice. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Boil 1 minute. Remove from heat; add grated peel. Cool. Yield: 1/2 cup.

CREAM FROSTING

1 cup heavy cream
1/4 cup sour cream
1/2 cup confectioners' sugar
1/8 teaspoon almond extract

In large mixing bowl combine all ingredients. Beat at medium speed until frosting is of spreading consistency, about 4 minutes.

YIELD: 3 cups.

ORANGE STRAWBERRY CHIFFON PIE

1/2 cup sugar, divided
1 envelope unflavored gelatine

1/4 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, separated
1 1/2 cups Florida orange juice
3/4 teaspoon grated orange peel
1/4 teaspoon vanilla extract
Toasted Coconut Pie Shell
1 cup sliced, fresh strawberries
1 Florida orange, peeled and sectioned
Whole strawberries

In medium saucepan combine 1/4 cup sugar, gelatine and salt. Beat egg yolks with orange juice; blend into gelatine mixture. Stir over low heat until gelatine is completely dissolved, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in orange peel and vanilla. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; gradually add remaining 1/4 cup sugar and beat until stiff. Fold in gelatine mixture. Line bottom with sliced strawberries; spoon gelatine mixture over berries. Chill until firm. Garnish with orange sections and whole strawberries. YIELD: 8 servings.

7-MINUTE STRAWBERRY 'N' ICE CREAM PIE

3/4 cup crushed strawberries
2 tablespoons sugar (optional)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 pint vanilla ice cream, softened
1 container (8 oz.) Cool Whip non-dairy whipped topping, thawed

Easy crumb crust
Combine strawberries, sugar and lemon juice in bowl. Spoon in ice cream and blend. Fold in whipped topping, blending well. Freeze, if necessary, until mixture will mound. Spoon into crust and freeze until firm, at least 4 hours. Garnish with additional strawberries, if desired. Store any leftover pie in freezer.

Easy Crumb Crust: Combine 1/4 cups fine graham cracker, chocolate or vanilla wafer, shortbread or gingersnap crumbs with 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine. Press on bottom and sides of 9-inch pie pan. Chill at least 1 hour before using.

about 4 hours, or freeze until firm. Garnish with additional strawberries, if desired.

FROZEN STRAWBERRY "DREAM" PIE

2 pints strawberries
2 tablespoons sugar (optional)
2 envelopes Dream Whip

whipped topping mix
2 1/2 cups cold milk
2 packages (4-serving size) Jello-O instantpudding, vanilla flavor

1 baked 9-inch pie shell with high fluted edge, cooled
Finely chop enough strawberries to measure 2 cups; add sugar and set aside. Reserve remaining strawberries for garnish. Prepare whipped topping mix with 1 cup of milk as directed on package, using large mixer bowl. Add remaining 1 1/2 cups milk and pudding mix. Blend, then beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Fold in chopped strawberries. Spoon into pie shell. Freeze at least 5 hours. Let stand at room temperature 20 minutes before cutting. Garnish with reserved berries. Pick fresh and luscious strawberries as the starting point of your next-party dessert. The making is easy, the results spectacular.

Names in the news

JEAN HARRIS ELLEN BURSTYN

Jean Harris on TV

BEDFORD HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Ellen Burstyn will have an expert audience for her performance in "The People vs. Jean Harris."

Lou Ganim, a spokesman for the state Department of Corrections, says Mrs. Harris, who is serving a prison sentence of 15 years to life for the slaying of Scarsdale Diet developer Dr. Herman Tarnower, will be in front of a TV for the NBC movie based on her trial.

Mrs. Harris, former headmistress of an exclusive girls' school, was convicted earlier this year of murdering her long-time lover. Prosecutors contended she killed the millionaire cardiologist in a jealous rage over his affair with a younger woman, while the defense contended Mrs. Harris meant to kill herself and shot him accidentally.

Mrs. Burstyn, who has appeared in "The Exorcist" and "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore," will play the defendant in the three-hour movie, to be broadcast Thursday and Friday.

Protestors don't sell

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland (AP) — Demonstrators selling sandwiches and protesting American aid to El Salvador got no business from Liberals and little sympathy from Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

As Trudeau arrived Tuesday night at a Liberal fund-raising dinner, the 40 demonstrators urged him to condemn American economic and military support for the Salvadoran government and accused him of supporting the ruling military junta in the Central American country.

"We are not supporting the government in El Salvador," Trudeau told the crowd.

Carey wants sanction

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York's new first lady has officially asked her husband's church to sanction their recent marriage.

In a brief statement issued by Gov. Hugh Carey's press office Tuesday, the couple said they had asked the marriage tribunal of Albany's Roman Catholic Diocese to "review the facts surrounding Mrs. Carey's previous marriages."

Carey and Evangeline Gouletas, a millionaire Chicago real estate developer married three times previously, were wed in a Greek Orthodox ceremony April 11.

Carey is Roman Catholic. His church does not recognize the marriage, and Carey cannot officially participate in certain church rites.

Two Howard County ranches to be represented at sale

Two Howard County cattle ranches will be represented in the third annual Blue Ribbon Hereford Female Sale scheduled to get under way at 1 p.m. next Monday in the Nolan County Coliseum and Fair Grounds in Sweetwater.

The Patterson brothers of Howard County will take 12 females to the sale, Leland Wallace ten. In all, 85 females (70 registered and 15 commercial) will be paraded before the buyers in

Other consignments are from Jackson Brothers and Son, Abilene; Dalton Johnson, Abilene; Musselman Ranch Co., Albany; and Pied Piper Farms, Hamlin.

Stanley Stout will be the auctioneer. The sale is sponsored by the West Texas Hereford Association, Sweetwater Area Hereford Association, Anxiety 4th Hereford Association and Howard County Hereford Association.

Curtsy creates flap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lenore Annenberg bent a knee and lifted eyebrows all over Washington.

Mrs. Annenberg, the State Department's chief of protocol, greeted the visiting Prince Charles of Britain with a deep knee bend when he arrived on American soil last Thursday.

Tongues thereupon wagged.

Mrs. Annenberg was taken to task. Americans, she was told, do not curtsy.

The Washington Post's etiquette writer, Judith Martin, who uses the pseudonym "Miss Manners," printed a special task in Saturday's paper.

"A great deal of effort was once put into freeing Americans from the necessity of bending their knees in recognition of British sovereignty, and Miss Manners believes that achievement should not be mocked," she wrote under the headline, "A Miss Manners Ruling."

Writers of letters to the editor of the Post took up the cry.

"How dare she?" asked reader Mary Ruth Holroyd. Joel Anne Sherman said a photograph of the curtsy "made me gag on my orange juice."

Wrote Catherine M. Collins: "We do not bend the knee in this country before any except God."

Richard M. Sawyer said he could only assume "that Mrs. Annenberg was caught in the act of arising after retrieving a glove, or perhaps a handkerchief."

In an interview, James Symington, one of Mrs. Annenberg's predecessors in the protocol job, was chivalrous. He recalled that Mrs. Annenberg, as wife of the former U.S. ambassador to Britain, probably got in the habit of curtsying, and properly so, on British soil to British royalty. He called her curtsy "a throwback... a learned instinct."

Government spokesmen spoke, too.

At the State Department, spokesman David Passage sought to make light of Mrs. Annenberg's gesture.

"Mrs. Annenberg's reaction was a gesture of courtesy, no more, no less," Passage said. "It was a gesture without political implications. It was a gesture without political significance. It was a personal one."

At the White House, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes noted that Mrs. Annenberg had kissed the prince upon his departure.

"She covered both ends of the spectrum, so to speak," Speakes said.

Mrs. Annenberg was unavailable for comment Tuesday. She was in New York to welcome the prime minister of Japan, whom she greeted inside an airplane out of public view.

Oranges, strawberries are springtime favorites

Desserts help make Mother's Day special

SPECIALLY FOR MOM — The Hats-off-to-Mom cake features the tangy taste of orange in the unique hat design. The cake is one of the many fruit-flavored desserts guaranteed to make Mom's special day even better.

Mother's Day brightens up the already beautiful month of May and gives us a celebration that is most truly our own... for mothers are special — and each mother is different.

A wonderfully visual tribute, and delicious to boot, the Hats-Off-To-Mom Cake has the wholesome flavor of an oldtime made-from-scratch cake with a batter fragrant with the sunny-sweet taste of fresh Florida oranges. Made in two pans, one an inch wider, the cakes are layered to give the hat a brim. The decoration can be as frivolous or dramatic as you like. Orange slices make a fine band around the top, and fresh flowers add a beautiful touch of delicate color.

Orange-Strawberry Chiffon Pie has a lighter than air filling in a yummy coconut pie shell lined with strawberries. Fresh orange juice lends citrus-sweet goodness to the filling while grated orange peel gives it a zest that fairly sings.

Hats Off to the cooks who take Hats Off To Mom!

HATS-OFF-TO-MOM CAKE

1 package (18 or 19 ounces) white cake mix
1/2 cup Florida orange juice
1 tablespoon grated orange peel

Orange Filling
Cream Frosting
1 Florida orange thinly sliced

Prepare cake mix, according to package directions, substituting orange juice for the liquid called for on the package. Add orange peel. Turn 3 cups of the batter into a greased and floured 9-inch round cake pan; turn remaining batter into greased and floured 9-inch cake pan. Bake cakes in a 350 degree F. oven 30 to 35 minutes for the 8-inch layer and 25 to 30 minutes for the 9-inch layer. Cool 10 minutes; remove cakes from pans. Cool completely on wire racks. Place 9-inch layer on serving plate. Spread top with Orange Filling; spread 1/2 cup Cream Frosting over the Orange Filling. Place remaining layer on top; frost tops and sides with remaining Cream Frosting. Cover. Chill at least 4 hours or overnight. Arrange orange slices on cake just before serving. Decorate with tiny, fresh flowers, if desired.

YIELD: 8 to 10 servings.

ORANGE FILLING

1/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
1-3 cup Florida orange juice
2 teaspoons grated orange peel

In small saucepan combine sugar and cornstarch. Stir in orange juice. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Boil 1 minute. Remove from heat; add grated peel. Cool. Yield: 1/2 cup.

CREAM FROSTING

1 cup heavy cream
1/4 cup sour cream
1/2 cup confectioners' sugar
1/8 teaspoon almond extract

In large mixing bowl combine all ingredients. Beat at medium speed until frosting is of spreading consistency, about 4 minutes.

YIELD: 3 cups.

ORANGE STRAWBERRY CHIFFON PIE

1/2 cup sugar, divided
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, separated
1 1/2 cups Florida orange juice
3/4 teaspoon grated orange peel
1/4 teaspoon vanilla extract

Toasted Coconut Pie Shell
1 cup sliced, fresh strawberries
1 Florida orange, peeled and sectioned
Whole strawberries

In medium saucepan combine 1/4 cup sugar, gelatine and salt. Beat egg yolks with orange juice; blend into gelatine mixture. Stir over low heat until gelatine is completely dissolved, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in orange peel and vanilla. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; gradually add remaining 1/4 cup sugar and beat until stiff. Fold in gelatine mixture. Line bottom with sliced strawberries; spoon gelatine mixture over berries. Chill until firm. Garnish with orange sections and whole strawberries.

YIELD: 8 servings.

7-MINUTE STRAWBERRY 'N' ICE CREAM PIE

3/4 cup crushed strawberries
2 tablespoons sugar (optional)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 pint vanilla ice cream, softened
1 container (8 oz.) Cool Whip non-dairy whipped topping, thawed
Easy crumb crust

Combine strawberries, sugar and lemon juice in bowl. Spoon in ice cream and blend. Fold in whipped topping, blending well. Freeze, if necessary, until mixture will mound. Spoon into crust and freeze until firm, at least 4 hours. Garnish with additional strawberries, if desired. Store any leftover pie in freezer.

Easy Crumb Crust: Combine 1/4 cups fine graham cracker, chocolate or vanilla wafer, shortbread or gingersnap crumbs with 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine. Press on bottom and sides of 9-inch pie pan. Chill at least 1 hour before using.

about 4 hours, or freeze until firm. Garnish with additional strawberries, if desired.

FROZEN STRAWBERRY "DREAM" PIE

2 pints strawberries
2 tablespoons sugar (optional)
2 envelopes Dream Whip

whipped topping mix
2 1/2 cups cold milk
2 packages (4-serving size) Jello-O instantpudding, vanilla flavor

1 baked 9-inch pie shell with high fluted edge, cooled. Finely chop enough strawberries to measure 2 cups; add sugar and set aside. Reserve remaining strawberries for garnish. Prepare whipped topping mix with 1 cup of milk as directed on package, using large mixer bowl. Add remaining 1 1/2 cups milk and pudding mix. Blend, then beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Fold in chopped strawberries. Spoon into pie shell. Freeze at least 5 hours. Let stand at room temperature 20 minutes before cutting. Garnish with reserved berries. Pick fresh and luscious strawberries as the starting point of your next-party dessert. The making is easy, the results spectacular.

JEAN HARRIS ELLEN BURSTYN

Jean Harris on TV

BEDFORD HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Ellen Burstyn will have an expert audience for her performance in "The People vs. Jean Harris."

Lou Ganim, a spokesman for the state Department of Corrections, says Mrs. Harris, who is serving a prison sentence of 15 years to life for the slaying of Scarsdale Diet developer Dr. Herman Tarnower, will be in front of a TV for the NBC movie based on her trial.

Mrs. Harris, former headmistress of an exclusive girls' school, was convicted earlier this year of murdering her long-time lover. Prosecutors contended she killed the millionaire cardiologist in a jealous rage over his affair with a younger woman, while the defense contended Mrs. Harris meant to kill herself and shot him accidentally.

Ms. Burstyn, who has appeared in "The Exorcist" and "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore," will play the defendant in the three-hour movie, to be broadcast Thursday and Friday.

Protestors don't sell

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland (AP) — Demonstrators selling sandwiches and protesting American aid to El Salvador got no business from Liberals and little sympathy from Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

As Trudeau arrived Tuesday night at a Liberal fund-raising dinner, the 40 demonstrators urged him to condemn American economic and military support for the Salvadoran government and accused him of supporting the ruling military junta in the Central American country.

"We are not supporting the government in El Salvador," Trudeau told the crowd.

Carey wants sanction

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York's new first lady has officially asked her husband's church to sanction their recent marriage.

In a brief statement issued by Gov. Hugh Carey's press office Tuesday, the couple said they had asked the marriage tribunal of Albany's Roman Catholic Diocese to "review the facts surrounding Mrs. Carey's previous marriages."

Carey and Evangeline Gouletas, a millionaire Chicago real estate developer married three times previously, were wed in a Greek Orthodox ceremony April 11.

Carey is Roman Catholic. His church does not recognize the marriage, and Carey cannot officially participate in certain church rites.

Two Howard County ranches to be represented at sale

Two Howard County cattle ranches will be represented in the third annual Blue Ribbon Hereford Female Sale scheduled to get under way at 1 p.m. next Monday in the Nolan County Coliseum and Fair Grounds in Sweetwater.

Other consignments are from Jackson Brothers and Son, Abilene; Dalton Johnson, Abilene; Musselman Ranch Co., Albany; and Pied Piper Farms, Hamlin.

The Patterson brothers of Howard County will take 12 females to the sale, Leland Wallace ten. In all, 85 females (70 registered and 15 commercial) will be paraded before the buyers in

Stanley Stout will be the auctioneer. The sale is sponsored by the West Texas Hereford Association, Sweetwater Area Hereford Association, Anxiety 4th Hereford Association and Howard County Hereford Association.

Curtsy creates flap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lenore Annenberg bent a knee and lifted eyebrows all over Washington.

Mrs. Annenberg, the State Department's chief of protocol, greeted the visiting Prince Charles of Britain with a deep knee bend when he arrived on American soil last Thursday.

Tongues thereupon wagged.

Mrs. Annenberg was taken to task. Americans, she was told, do not curtsy.

The Washington Post's etiquette writer, Judith Martin, who uses the pseudonym "Miss Manners," printed a special task in Saturday's paper.

"A great deal of effort was once put into freeing Americans from the necessity of bending their knees in recognition of British sovereignty, and Miss Manners believes that achievement should not be mocked," she wrote under the headline, "A Miss Manners Ruling."

Writers of letters to the editor of the Post took up the cry.

"How dare she?" asked reader Mary Ruth Holroyd.

Joel Anne Sherman said a photograph of the curtsy "made me gag on my orange juice."

Wrote Catherine M. Collins: "We do not bend the knee in this country before any except God."

Richard M. Sawyer said he could only assume "that Mrs. Annenberg was caught in the act of arising after retrieving a glove, or perhaps a handkerchief."

In an interview, James Symington, one of Mrs. Annenberg's predecessors in the protocol job, was chivalrous. He recalled that Mrs. Annenberg, as wife of the former U.S. ambassador to Britain, probably got in the habit of curtsying, and properly so, on British soil to British royalty. He called her curtsy "a throwback... a learned instinct."

Government spokesmen spoke, too.

At the State Department, spokesman David Passage sought to make light of Mrs. Annenberg's gesture.

"Mrs. Annenberg's reaction was a gesture of courtesy, no more, no less," Passage said. "It was a gesture without political implications. It was a gesture without political significance. It was a personal one."

At the White House, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes noted that Mrs. Annenberg had kissed the prince upon his departure.

"She covered both ends of the spectrum, so to speak," Speakes said.

Mrs. Annenberg was unavailable for comment Tuesday. She was in New York to welcome the prime minister of Japan, whom she greeted inside an airplane out of public view.

County claims state is only 'pacifying'

Texas prisoners' rights remedies criticized

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The state is just trying to pacify Walker County officials by only giving the county money — instead of more power — to look into state prisoners' claims of civil rights violations, a county investigator says.

Prisoners have slapped the county with three lawsuits alleging it is doing a bad job of looking into complaints. And officials say the nine-man sheriff's department — with one man assigned to prisoners' rights — is snowed under.

County officials want out of the civil rights investigation business, but state law requires some Texas law enforcement group to check prisoner complaints and the Department of Public Safety has opposed a bill that would give it the responsibility.

Almost 10,000 inmates are held in five state prison units in Walker County. They are, one official said this week,

"10,000 potential civil rights plaintiffs."

"It's going to get to the point where it's going to be a burden on the small counties," said sheriff's investigator Ted Pierce. "We just don't have the manpower."

Local law enforcement agencies pay the bill for investigating, prosecuting and conducting all criminal and civil cases involving inmates or prison employees.

County officials reason that since the inmates are state prisoners, looking after their civil rights should be the state's job. DPS officials disagree.

Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, thought he had solved the problem Tuesday when he added a last-minute amendment to a bill that would reimburse counties for criminal prosecution of an inmate or prison employee.

The amendment also would repay counties for investigating alleged civil rights violations.

Caperton said the compromise was worked out among Walker County officials, his office, and DPS Col. Jim Adams. The amended bill will substitute for another — now languishing in committee — that would have delegated the investigative task to the DPS.

"Adams didn't want it. Nobody really wants it," Caperton said. He said the repayment compromise was the best that could be done late in the legislative session and he would let his bill giving investigative responsibility to the DPS die.

Pierce said at first, in a telephone interview, that the compromise "won't solve a thing" because it would generate reams of paperwork without giving him more men to handle the investigations.

"...It's not what we want," he said, adding that he was beginning to understand why Grimes County residents strongly opposed locating a new prison there. "The state just gave us a little bit to nibble on, I guess to kind of pacify us."

The number of civil rights complaints has increased sharply in recent years, he said.

And he predicted that U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice's ruling that Texas prison conditions violate inmates civil rights will generate even more complaints.

A call from Caperton's office calmed him, he said later.

"It was a little hot over not getting the manpower, but I'm real happy with what we got," he said.

Curriculum bill goes to House

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House members have a good chance to consider a bill that would set out basic standards for instruction in Texas public schools.

The controversial bill passed the House once but it did not pass the Senate Tuesday before it was approved by voice vote in the Senate and sent back to the House.

Lawmakers have tried to answer the criticism we have had of the bill since the House passed it," said Sen. Pete Stangor, D-Midland.

Basically the bill gives the State Board of Education responsibility for setting out standards for courses of instruction in Texas public schools, but it also gives school boards a final decision.

The bill says that subjects from kindergarten through the 12th grade shall include English, other languages, math, science, social studies, physical education, arts, social studies, civics "with emphasis on free enterprise system," business education, vocational education, and Texas and United States history as well as other subjects and in other courses.

A Senate amendment states that "a primary purpose of public school curriculum is to prepare citizens who can function in a free enterprise system."

Stangor, reacting to recent criticism, said the bill requires that the State Board of Education and local school boards "shall continue the tradition of teaching U.S. and Texas history and the free enterprise system in the public schools."

Lawmakers approved on Tuesday an amendment that would allow a child to be excused from any class, by a parent, if the excusal included photographs or motion pictures on any subject conflicting with the religious teachings of the child's faith.

Senate debate on pending legislation is scheduled to begin next week.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Lawmakers expect to debate a version of a 1982-83 state spending bill next week beginning Monday if technical problems can be worked out.

The bill was approved 13-0 by the Senate Finance Committee Tuesday but Senate officials said it would take several days for the bill's document to be printed and distributed to all members of the Senate.

Lawmakers expect that the House will have finished debate on its version of the general appropriations bill by Monday.

After the House and Senate complete debate on their respective versions, the final bill will be written by a 10-member House-Senate committee of negotiators, probably shortly before the June adjournment date.

Gov. Bill Hobby urged the Senate committee to take a common-sense approach to setting a budget when it comes up for floor debate, "in true Senatorial tradition."

However, there was some dissension among the committee members Tuesday before the final vote.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Austin, committee chair, urged to recognize the state's economic situation and to raise the state teachers pay raise in the bill from a 22 percent increase to 26 percent for most teachers.

Chagra's prison mate had long history with law

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — In 1967, Jerry Ray James made the FBI's list of the 10 most-wanted fugitives. But 14 years later, federal authorities want only to keep him alive.

James, 42, was granted a conditional release from prison by Gov. Bruce King on Monday in exchange for cooperating with officials in the investigation of the unsolved 1979 murder of a federal judge in Texas.

James' attorney, Don Montoya of Santa Fe, said taped conversations between James and El Paso, Texas, gambler Jimmy Chagra at the federal prison in Leavenworth, Kan., link Chagra to the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood in San Antonio.

James met Chagra at Leavenworth where he was transferred after the Feb. 23, 1980, riot at the New Mexico State Penitentiary, Montoya said.

James has been in and out of federal and state prisons since 1958, when he was first convicted of burglary in Taylor County, Texas. His FBI rap sheet fills five full pages.

In his travels through the South and Southwest, he was known by at least 10 aliases, including Luke J. Rich and Jessie Lee Taylor.

It was the highly publicized 1977 robbery of a prominent Tatum rancher that sent James to the New Mexico State Penitentiary, where he served from 1978 until his transfer to Leavenworth.

James was convicted of guiding a pair of prison escapees from Kentucky to the home of Dessie Sawyer, a former longtime Democratic national committeewoman, and then helping them sell more than $200,000 of diamond jewelry taken there. The diamonds were never recovered.

Contacted at her Tatum ranch Tuesday night, Mrs. Sawyer said she was aware of the conditional release granted to James by the governor.

"I didn't like it, but I don't want any more publicity about it," Mrs. Sawyer said. Mrs. Sawyer also said King had attended a charity party at the Sawyer ranch last Saturday but had made no mention of James. Asked if the governor might not have been aware that James was serving a prison term for the robbery at the Sawyer ranch, Mrs. Sawyer said, "He had to know who he was. Everybody in New Mexico knows about him."

James was sentenced to concurrent 1- to 5-year and 10- to 50-year prison terms as an accessory to the robbery and for conspiracy to commit the crime. He later was found to be an habitual offender and his sentence was enhanced in 1979 to a life term at the state prison.

Law enforcement officers in eastern New Mexico are upset about the conditional release granted by King.

"It's a travesty of justice," Tatum Police Chief Les Dudley said Tuesday.

Dudley, who said he has known James since 1964, said he expects James to "be back at it again. The only life he knows is the life of crime, but James has been around enough to know the information they're seeking. James probably knows everybody from the West Coast to the East Coast."

Lea County Sheriff Ralph Wrinkle also expressed displeasure with King's decision.

"I certainly don't like to see someone of his caliber walking the streets," said Wrinkle, who worked on the Sawyer case. "He was where he belonged. I can't agree with the governor's decision. I don't know what he could tell them to justify pardoning him. I think it's a bad move. This probably won't make me popular with the feds (federal agents)."

Lovington Police Chief Archie Cunningham called the conditional release "a shame. James hasn't exactly been a model citizen. It will only be a matter of time before society has him on their hands again."

A series of arrests and fugitive warrants appear in James' record until September 1964, when he scuffled with police in a Hobbs bar.

A 1967 FBI bulletin called James "glib, luxury-loving and escape prone."

"James fancies himself as a modern-day Al Capone... (He) has reportedly told associates he will not be taken alive by law enforcement officers. He has allegedly fired at arresting officers and is extremely dangerous," the bulletin said.

In June 1968, James and five associates were convicted in El Paso of conspiracy to commit bank burglary. A series of convictions over the next several years for bank robbery, burglary and conspiracy kept him in and out of federal prisons for the next 10 years.

King signed an executive order Monday granting the release.

U.S. Attorney R.E. Thompson of Albuquerque said Tuesday the release will become effective "upon the certification by the United States that James had testified and fulfilled certain conditions in connection with a pending major investigation and contemplated prosecution."

Montoya said the U.S. Department of Justice had in its possession recordings of conversations between Chagra and James that were taped from August 1980 to February 1981 and that those tapes contained evidence linking Chagra to the slaying of Wood.

Montoya declined to say if he has heard the recordings. But he said, "All the specifics as to the planning, how the assassination was to be carried out, the amount of money that was to be paid and to whom it was going to be paid were discussed."

In a prepared statement, Thompson said, "As a result of his assistance and his cooperation Mr. James has furnished crucial evidence in an investigation of unique significance to the entire criminal justice system."

"As a consequence, he has placed his life in severe jeopardy. These matters were communicated to Governor King by the Department of Justice and we are very appreciative of his consideration in this very difficult but important matter."

Thompson said the Justice Department previously had advised King that the release of James, requested by Montoya, "was in the interest of justice."

King's order said that "At great personal risk and danger to himself, (James) permitted himself, as well as his jail cell, to be electronically (monitored) by agents of the federal government and this surveillance has provided the government with direct admissions from an individual who admitted responsibility for the murder of the honorable John H. Wood."

Nuclear plant opponent says phone tapped

HOUSTON (AP) — An opponent of the South Texas Nuclear Project says her telephone may have been tapped in connection with her comments about the $2.7 billion nuclear construction project near Bay City.

Officials of the project and Peggy Buchorn traded charges Tuesday following disclosure of an alleged plot to obstruct a federal investigation by nuclear inspectors.

NRC investigators said three employees at the project were involved in moving three cases of equipment, one also containing records, out of an electrical tool shack prior to an investigation last October.

Steve Grote of Brown & Root, said he believes 95 record documents were planted in an equipment tool case that figured in the alleged conspiracy.

Buchorn said she suspects the project management may have tapped her Bay City office telephone to find out which workers are feeding her information about problems at the construction site near Bay City.

Buchorn said the workers who gave her information had received disciplinary action.

WANTS TO BE A DISCO SINGER — Ricky Tummillo, 12, plays a disco record as his mother, Karen, watches in Chicago. Ricky suffers from a rare skin disorder.

dystrophic Epidermolysis Bullosa (D.E.B.R.A.), which causes his skin to blister when touched.

Boy battles rare skin disorder

(Herald Staff) — Ricky's mother was kept from seeing the day he was born. Permitted her first glimpse of the baby a day later, she was stunned to see his arms and legs were tied to the sides of an incubator.

"There was no skin on the top of his hands or on his feet," Karen Tummillo recalled. "I couldn't pick him up and hold him. I had to put my hands under and sort of scoop him up."

"He had a water blister on his nose, another on his forehead, and another blister would form and would tear away. He was tied to the incubator so he couldn't move and rub his skin off."

"He looked like he had been burned," said Mrs. Tummillo.

While at the hospital in Niles, Mich., didn't know what was wrong. Ricky was taken to the University of Michigan hospital in Ann Arbor, where specialists diagnosed dystrophic epidermolysis bullosa, a rare skin disorder that affects only about 500 Americans.

"I was told Mrs. Tummillo he might not live more than two weeks longer. That was 12 years ago. No one could tell how much longer Ricky has. He and his brother, Ricky Jr., were Mrs. Tummillo's sons by a first marriage. They were born to her and her second husband, Frank, a city engineer. The Tummillos also have a 4-year-old daughter. Ricky is in a sixth grade special education class with 18 other children with disabilities.

"I worry about what will happen to him. He has more scars than most kids. He's a fighter. He never gives up, and he never gives up fighting for him," Mrs. Tummillo said.

"There never is another child born like Ricky. But maybe he may be lucky. He can talk, he can see, he can hear. He can tell me his feelings."

Outside the house, the boy with blotchy, flaking, peeling skin and webbed fingers and toes is often shunned and teased.

"The other kids know not to touch him and they don't have much to do with him. Some even are mean enough to call him 'snake' because his skin is peeling," said Mrs. Tummillo.

The mother said a man once accused her of burning Ricky with cigarettes. Child welfare officers came to the house to investigate, where Mrs. Tummillo convinced them of her son's ailment.

"When he was 10 and we lived in another neighborhood, a woman told other children not to play with Ricky or they would die — and she said I was not a Christian woman or I would not have had him," Mrs. Tummillo recalled. "When Ricky was much younger, a mother with a young child in tow pointed to Ricky and said: 'If you are bad, you will start looking like him.'"

"At other times, when we go to the store or to a restaurant, people will walk up and say: 'What happened to him? My God, what is the matter with him?' They will stare at him, either afraid of what they see or from mere curiosity."

"I had cards printed. When these things begin happening, I pass out the cards explaining about my little boy," she said.

Mrs. Tummillo said she tries to keep Ricky active. He likes to play disco records and says he wants to be a disco singer.

"I want him to do things himself, to be as normal as possible," she said. "A lot of parents whose children have the disease don't want them to do anything. If you treat a child like he is handicapped, he will grow up and become a handicapped adult."

Costly wiretap bill sent to Senate

By JAY ROSSER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Only the Senate now stands between the concept and the reality of wiretapping in Texas, a cornerstone of Gov. Bill Clements' anti-crime package that federal data indicate could be an expensive proposition.

The House, by a voice vote, passed Clements' electronic surveillance proposal Monday. It won preliminary House approval Friday by a 96-32 vote.

The measure now faces Senate scrutiny before heading for the governor's certain signature.

Senators, during the 1979 session, passed a wiretapping bill.

House liberals Monday unsuccessfully struggled during 1½ hours of debate to weaken the proposal through amendments. None won the required 100 votes for adoption.

Sponsored in the House by Rep. Bennie Bock of New Braunfels, the wiretap bill would allow the Texas Department of Public Safety to wiretap or bug the phones of suspected drug pushers.

The proposal is being carried in the Senate by Sen. Ed Howard of Texasarkana.

House passage of the proposal coincided with the release of a federal report outlining the expense and numbers of wiretaps authorized on the state and federal level.

The average cost of wiretaps, according to the latest federal figures, rose 4.3 percent last year and now averages $17,146.

During 1979, the average cost of each wiretap was $16,437, according to federal records.

The records, compiled by the Administrative Office of the United States Courts and obtained by the Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau, shows the average cost of federal and state wiretaps was $6,970 in 1975 and has increased by 146 percent in the last five years.

The statistics were compiled from information gathered on state and federal wiretaps authorized in 1980.

Federal and state law enforcement agencies are required to file details of each authorized wiretap with the administrative office under the 1968 Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act.

Couple found stabbed to death in their home

DALLAS (AP) — A concerned father, who drove more than 100 miles Tuesday after his repeated telephone calls went unanswered, discovered his son and daughter-in-law had been stabbed to death in their northeast Dallas home, police said.

The bodies of Billy J. Baker, 55, and his wife, Jessie Baker, 56, were found shortly before noon, after police accompanied 77-year-old H.C. Baker to their home, officials said.

The elder Baker told police he became suspicious when the couple failed to visit his Paris home over the weekend and did not answer their phone.

A back window of the house had been broken out and there was evidence of a struggle, police said.

Investigators had not determined if anything had been stolen and had no suspects, said a police spokeswoman who asked not to be identified.

The Bakers last were seen late Friday afternoon, she said.

Crop projections released soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department will begin next week to unfold new projections on this year's crop prospects.

A summary of a forthcoming feed situation report had been scheduled for release Tuesday afternoon, but reporters were told at the last minute it would be delayed until May 15.

Walter Spilka Jr., the report's coordinator, later said it was held up so that new information about U.S. and world crop prospects could be reviewed and incorporated into the analysis.

The timetable calls for the department's Crop Reporting Board to issue on May 11 a new estimate of U.S. winter wheat production this year. Also scheduled are the first estimate of world grain production for 1981-82, including the department's first of the season for the Soviet Union's 1981 grain harvest.

On the following day, May 12, the department will issue a "supply and demand" analysis, including the first 1981-82 forecast for individual grains and soybeans.

The early-season forecasting will be based mostly on an analysis of trends, weather and economic factors and "on the judgment of USDA analysts," says Dawson Ahalt, deputy assistant secretary for economics.

Except for winter wheat, which is nearing maturity in parts of the nation, official production estimates based on actual field surveys are still weeks away. The department's first U.S. corn estimate, for example, will not be ready until July 10.

Meanwhile, weekly reports on weather and crop conditions continue to show that many farmers are still bogged down by wet weather as they try to plant this year's corn crop.

As of early May, corn planting was about 24 percent completed in the 17 major producing states, 12 percentage points behind its progress a year ago and two points behind the average for this time, the Joint Agricultural Weather Facility reported Tuesday.

The facility, which is operated by the departments of commerce and agriculture, said progress was behind normal in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota and Ohio.

However, cotton planting reached 45 percent of completion during the week of April 27-May 3 and was 11 percentage points ahead of a year ago, the report said.

"Soybean planting was under way in most major producing states, but only minor acreages have been planted thus far," it said.

Winter wheat, which was planted last fall, was rated "fair to mostly good in all major producing areas." Heading of the crop was "well underway in Kansas and just beginning in Nebraska," the report said.

"Early-planted fields (of winter wheat) across the South were ripening," it said. "Fields in Arizona were maturing rapidly, and harvesting was expected to get underway soon."

"Planting of spring wheat was 77 percent complete in the five major states, compared to 72 percent a year ago."

Valuable ginseng root exports jump in 1980

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exports of ginseng, a root held in high esteem by those who believe it has powerful medicinal qualities, jumped sharply last year, the Agriculture Department says.

Ginseng also is valued by some who believe it has the capability of restoring or enhancing sexual vigor as well as being a virtual cure-all.

About 293 metric tons of ginseng worth $39 million were exported, mostly to Asia, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said Tuesday. Sales in 1979 were 161 metric tons worth $22.2 million.

Hong Kong, the largest market for U.S. ginseng, imported about 245 metric tons. Other significant markets included Canada, 2 metric tons; Taiwan, 6; West Germany, 3; Japan, 19, and Singapore, 4.

The average export price of U.S. ginseng last year was about $133 per kilogram, or approximately $60 a pound. That was a decline from about $138 a kilogram, or $63 a pound, in 1979.

Most of the ginseng grown commercially in the United States comes from around Wausau, Wis., the report said. Wild ginseng, which is found in parts of most states in the eastern half of the country, is a protected species and requires a federal permit for export. Cultivated ginseng does not.

Gordon E. Patty of the agency's horticultural and tropical products division said there was no accurate measure of how much wild ginseng was exported last year. But in the past, he said, wild roots made up about 25 percent of the total.

Mosquito-borne virus threatens Texas, South

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — A Texas A&M entomologist says he expects summer to bring Texas more cases of a disease that one sufferer said made him feel like his joints had been broken with a hammer.

Dr. Jim Olson said Monday that 58 cases of the mosquito-borne virus dengue, pronounced "dang-gee," were reported in Texas last summer. He said the illness is nicknamed break-bone fever.

"Where it's going this year we don't know," Olson said. "It's already occurring in Tampico, Mexico, and eyes are turning back towards South Texas."

Olson said the yellow-fever mosquito carries dengue. "We're fertile ground to both the yellow fever and dengue outbreaks because of the mild winter and the build-up of this species of mosquito in Texas," Olson said.

"The medical community needs to be aware of the potential re-entrance of the virus back into Texas and the United States."

A case last fall involving a 5-year-old Brownsville girl marked the first time since 1945 that a person in the United States had caught the disease locally, Olson said.

The Texas A&M researcher said the essential element to stopping the virus is stopping the mosquito. This appears to break a natural cycle, he said. If a mosquito bites a person with dengue it can spread the disease by biting another person.

The major symptoms are high fever, severe headache, pain behind the eyes, backache, joint pains and sometimes a rash. It rarely is fatal.

Olson said there is currently no vaccine for the virus and the disease is difficult to diagnose.

Mandate of public 'shatters on specific economic ideas

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Congress tries to show President Reagan's budget plan, politicians glance worriedly over their shoulders at a public seemingly demanding budget cuts, tax cuts and changes in Washington.

"I believe that the people you and I represent are ready to chart a new course," Reagan told Congress in his April 28 speech to a joint session of the House and the Senate.

While Reagan has the overall public mood pegged well, that's not the whole picture. Public opinion on federal spending and taxes is laced with contradictory currents.

Americans do support Reagan's tax and budget cuts — as a whole — by substantial margins. This is not surprising, since national polls for the past several years have found strong support for cutting federal spending and reducing federal taxes.

Sakharov appeals for aid to dissidents

MOSCOW (AP) — Leading Soviet dissident Andrei D. Sakharov has appealed for international support for Alexander Bolonkin, an imprisoned mathematician who Sakharov says faces a third term in labor camp.

The 1975 Nobel Peace Prize winner's statement was released Tuesday night in Moscow by his wife, Yelena Bonner. Sakharov has been exiled to the Volga River city of Gorky since January 1980.

Mormon missionaries seek converts to ERA

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Nine women and a man, modeling their technique to that of Mormon missionaries, set off Monday to win converts to the Equal Rights Amendment.

"Considering our comparatively minuscule numbers, it's rather flattering that our critics give the church credit for damming the progress of the amendment," LeFevre said.

But you must remember we aren't alone. There are millions of anti-ERA, thoughtful people in this country who obviously share our concerns. Otherwise the amendment would have been ratified long ago.

The missionaries, wearing sensible shoes, were traveling in cars, as is the practice of the church's missionaries, mostly young men whose expenses are paid by themselves and their families.

LeFevre said the Salt Lake-based church has opposed the proposed amendment, contending it would threaten the family. The church has 200,000 members in the United States.

The ERA missionaries also have come at their own expense, and sponsors expect more to come through the summer, each committing two weeks to the project.

Butrick and Twiss Butler came from Houston, Texas, where Butler gave up his job with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to campaign for the ERA.

"I'm here to make my mark in history," said Joyce Bonior of Union, N.J. "Eggy N-train of Portland, Ore., and she hoped her 10-year-old daughter would not find that the woman before her had not "rocked the boat enough."

She said she thought that a "strong" amendment of the ERA would cause support for the ERA to drop.

"I don't know what she means by that," she said. "I suspect she's just actually coming out of the closet. I mean, she who opposes the ERA in church circles is now in the church's support line."

The missionaries will ask people to send Kimball a postcard asking he reconsider his opposition to the ERA. They also will seek signatures on a petition asking Reagan to support the amendment.

Texas towns unite to gain New Mexico water

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The small town of Anthony, N.M., has joined a coalition of 10 other towns to challenge a federal court ruling that a New Mexico ground water export ban is unconstitutional.

Bratton has yet to rule on the Elephant Butte Irrigation District's request to join the lawsuit as a party.

The district's motion was filed last week. In the motion, lawyers for the towns said they represent the private water right interests of more than 5,700 members to whom it delivers irrigation water.

Officials for Anthony, an incorporated Texas town that borders New Mexico, in March asked Bratton's permission to join El Paso's fight against New Mexico's water export ban.

The letter urged Bratton to lift the stay he imposed on the lawsuit and proceed toward a quick resolution of the challenge to the export ban.

The ground water sought by El Paso lies in Dona Ana and Otero counties. El Paso officials claim the water represents the best single source for meeting the city's future water needs.

In the motion, Anthony officials said their town shares with El Paso an interest in New Mexico ground water to support future growth.

The motion said New Mexico ground water is the only additional water source available to Anthony for its future needs.

The motion said that because El Paso is a "potential competitor of the town of Anthony" for the New Mexico water, El Paso could not be expected to represent the town's interests adequately in the lawsuit.

Policeman shot in nose

DALLAS (AP) — An off-duty policeman was shot in the nose late Tuesday night in downtown Dallas as he exchanged fire with two suspects he was frisking, killing one of the men, officials said.

At Jerry Rose, a 16-year-old veteran, was in fair condition Tuesday night at Parkland Hospital, said a hospital spokesman who asked not to be identified.

Rose was working off duty as a security official at the downtown Employers Insurance of Texas when he heard two shots fired and went outside to investigate, police spokesman Bob Shaw said.

He apprehended two men and was conducting a body search when one of the men pulled a pistol and told Rose to "back off," Shaw said.

"We shot each other at the same time," the wounded officer told Shaw.

Inmates spent night in field in protest

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Inmates in the Texas Department of Corrections' Latham Unit spent the night in the farm fields protesting prison conditions, the third such demonstration in the last two weeks.

TDIC officials Tuesday confirmed that the inmates, the protest, no demands were part of about 100 inmates who took part Friday in the protest at the facility, located in Houston County.

"They were apparently very sympathetic with inmates at the Ellis Unit," TDIC spokesman Rick Hartley said, referring to a work stoppage last week at the maximum security facility near Huntsville.

About 1,500 inmates at the Ellis Unit in Huntsville staged a three-day strike, asking to be paid for their agricultural work.

The inmates also asked Texas to drop its appeal of a federal court order calling for widespread changes in the prison system.

Houston holds gun auction to raise much-needed money

HOUSTON (AP) - A local official says he expects some criticism after a city-sponsored, public auction of 535 unclaimed rifles and shotguns seized over the past year by police, but he said Houston needs the money too badly to worry about it.

"I'm sure some people won't like it, but we have to do what we think is best for the city," said Assistant Treasurer George Odum.

Tuesday's gun auction raised more than $43,000, or about $80 per gun. Another $3,000 was spent on other items such as holsters, ammo clips, bowling balls and tennis rackets.

Odum said it was the first time in the city's history that unclaimed firearms had been auctioned, but he said it would probably be done regularly twice a year from now on. He said handguns seized by police were not included.

"Handguns are never put back into circulation," Odum said. The police department says it routinely melts down pistols and revolvers, but Odum said the city could not resist turning a profit from the long guns.

"There's an awful lot of money over there (at the auction), and I'm sitting here trying to put together a budget to finance the city operations," he said. "It would seem a crying shame not to have that money available."

He said previously the rifles and shotguns were sold at a retail store on the north side of town, but he said not too many people knew about it and it wasn't bringing in enough money.

The sale attracted more than 240 hunters, collectors, dealers, off-duty policemen and family men who brought their wives and said they wanted a gun for self defense at home.

"We're looking for a gun for home protection," said Charles Edworthy as he showed a 12-gauge shotgun to his wife, Teri. "I'm looking for something with a large caliber - something I can use close-in in the house - just in case."

Buyers, who paid a $10 registration fee each, were given an hour to inspect the guns, stacked on tables on the floor of the downtown coliseum.

Prices for rifles in good repair ranged over $200 - one went for $425 - but single-shot shotguns and .22-caliber rifles were being sold for less than $100. An AR-15 carbine, similar to the combat rifle used by U.S. troops in Vietnam, brought $390 from an off-duty policeman.

Some bidders left early, grumbling that there were few bargains to be had.

"These prices are what you would expect to pay in a retail store," said collector Rick Henry, 37, of Richmond, Texas.

Buyers had to show a driver's license to get in, but auctioneer Bill Hollis said the main purpose was not to register the gun but to help identify bidders and prevent any from leaving without paying.

"There is no registration of these (guns)," Hollis said. "It's like buying antiques. These are all unregistered firearms."

OOOPS! - Illinois Department of Transportation crews striping lanes on U.S. Highway 51 in downtown Centralia apparently didn't let anything get in their way earlier this week - not even a cap which is now sporting a neat racing stripe. Judging from the odd tracks parallel to the line, motorists apparently didn't let the fresh new stripes bother them either.

CBS wins again with help from 'Dallas' cliffhanger

NEW YORK (AP) - CBS won the networks' prime-time ratings race for the third week in a row, with seven of the 10 highest-rated programs including the season finale of "Dallas," figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

CBS' score for the week ending May 3 - the second since the end of the 1980-81 TV year - was 17.9 to 15.1 for ABC and 14.7 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 17.9 percent of the nation's homes with TV were tuned to CBS.

"Dallas," which ended the 1979-80 season with the now-famous "Who shot J.R.?" episode, wrapped up the most recent TV year with another cliffhanger. The rating was 32.9, and Nielsen says that means of all the nation's homes with television, nearly one in three - 32.9 percent - saw at least part of the concluding episode.

In addition to the first-run installment from "Dallas," CBS listed repeats from a half-dozen other series in the week's Top 10.

Despite its ninth consecutive last-place finish in the networks' weekly competition, NBC scored with the first installment in a two-part drama, "Murder in Texas," No. 5.

Two ABC series still in first run, "Fantasy Island" and "Hart to Hart," finished ninth and 10th for the week, with a CBS movie, "We're Fighting Back," in a tie for 11th place. NBC's broadcast of the Academy of Country Music awards show was No. 18.

ABC had three of the week's five lowest-rated shows, beginning with a Friday night movie combination, "For the Love of Benji" and "Americathon," in 60th place. An "ABC News Closeup," "Near Armageddon: Spread of Nuclear Weapons," was No. 61, followed by "The Gangster Chronicles" on NBC, "Those Amazing Animals" on ABC and CBS' "WKRP in Cincinnati."
