No delay seen for Social Security hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 36 million Social Security recipients will get their cost-of-living raise this summer after all. Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker promises the issue "will not rear its ugly head again."

Schweiker announced Thursday that the Reagan administration has ruled out any postponement of the 11.2 percent July 1 increase. White House budget cutters had considered delaying until Oct. 1 to whittle $5 billion from a ballooning, $60 billion-plus deficit in fiscal 1981, which ends Sept. 30.

Schweiker had assured reporters Tuesday that there would be no tampering with the July cost-of-living increase this year, and he said Thursday that he was surprised to hear it was being studied. President Reagan's package of $53 billion in Social Security cuts by 1986 includes delaying the annual inflation adjustment until October, starting in 1982.

"It was news to me," Schweiker said. "I'd been through a number of meetings with the main people involved and it hadn't been broached there."

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes acknowledged earlier Thursday that there was a "slim" possibility Reagan might ask Congress to postpone this July's increase. But he said it was still at "the idea stage" at the Office of Management and Budget.

A three-month delay this year would have cost Social Security beneficiaries an average of $111, saving the Treasury $3.7 billion this year and several billion dollars more in forgone benefits in the future.

Schweiker said he called the White House and was assured no decision had been made. Then, after meeting with budget director David A. Stockman and other officials at the White House, Schweiker announced, "I'm delighted to say it has been dropped as a subject of consideration."

"I personally thought it would be wrong and incorrect to either amend the package or to reverse what we promulgated earlier in the week," Schweiker said. "So I made a strong statement within the system. The decision was made. ... (The issue) will not rear its ugly head again."

Stockman supports the decision, Schweiker said.

Speakes, meanwhile, said the White House had received 600 calls about Reagan's Social Security cuts and they were running 9-to-1 against them.

But Schweiker said he thinks editorial reaction to the package has been "very positive."

The Reagan plan is designed to avert a fiscal crisis that could deplete the trust fund for retirement checks before the end of next year and to forestall Social Security from falling into even deeper trouble when the post-World War II "baby boom" generation retires in the 21st century.

Pope begins physical therapy; condition serious but stable

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II began a limited form of physical therapy today, moving his arms and legs and receiving massages, hospital sources said. They said his condition was serious but stable, and his doctors said the outlook for recovery from terrorist bullet wounds was "distinctly better."

The Italian news agency ANSA quoted a hospital report saying the pope woke up repeatedly during the night with "piercing" pains. But the latest hospital bulletin said the pontiff "rested peacefully." Asked to comment, Dr. Luigi Candia, director of the hospital, said, "The Holy Father is having pains but they are not abnormal pains."

"In the second night, the Holy Father has rested peacefully. There is persistence of slight temperature. Principal clinical signs and lab results are within the normal limits in relation to the second day after the (surgical) intervention. The outlook is distinctly better. The pope continued prudent and favorable evolution of the post-operative process," the medical bulletin said.

Candia said the pope's temperature was the equivalent of 99.14 degrees Fahrenheit — less than a full degree above normal. He confirmed that the doctors are still watching the pope's gunshot wounds for signs of infection, which they say is the greatest danger he faces.

Vatican spokesman the Rev. Romeo Panciroli visited the pope and told reporters the pontiff said he knows "that everybody in the world is wishing him well."

The pontiff sat up in bed Thursday, talked with visitors and took Holy Communion. A cardinal said the pope felt "a sympathetic pardon" toward his would-be assassin.

Two American women shot alongside the pope also were still hospitalized.

Ann Odre, 58, of Buffalo, N.Y., was still listed in serious condition today, but said to be slightly improved and able to speak to her visiting daughter. Dr. Federico Meneghini, who operated to remove her spleen after the shooting, said she still suffers from "very serious internal bleeding," however.

Italian anti-terrorist experts were working today to determine whether Mehmet Ali Agca, the 23-year-old Turk charged with the shooting of the pope during his weekly audience in St. Peter's Square Wednesday, acted alone or was part of a conspiracy.

Italian press reports quoted his interrogators as saying Agca told them he acted alone.

Begin keeps with diplomacy; Syria 'ready to do battle'

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — After a crucial meeting today with U.S. Envoy Philip C. Habib, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin promised to continue diplomatic "efforts to find a peaceful solution" to the Syrian missile crisis, but gave no indication a solution might be in sight.

In Beirut, meanwhile, Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul-Halim Khaddam was quoted as saying his country was "ready to do battle if Begin translates his threats to deeds."

"The missiles will not be removed under Israeli or any other press," Khaddam was quoted as saying in Syrian newspapers. "We reject the concept that Israel has any right to dictate security regulations in Lebanon or to control its skies."

Israel has demanded it remove the batteries of Soviet-made anti-aircraft missiles Syria sent into Lebanon last month, and has threatened to wipe them out if Syria refuses.

Begin, speaking to reporters after his second meeting with Habib in 12 hours, conceded that Syria still rejected Israel's demand, but said "The United States and Israel are of the same opinion that the status quo ante must be restored."

Habib declined to speak to reporters and it was not known what his next move would be.

In Khaddam's interview he disclosed that the oil-rich Arab nations have cut off the $15 million a month they pay to Syria to fund its peacekeeping operations in Lebanon. But it was not clear whether that cut off was aimed at pressuring the Syrians out of Lebanon.

Lebanese police said, meanwhile, that fighting between Syrians and Christians in Beirut overnight injured 24 people. The rightist Christian Voice of Lebanon Radio said four people were killed and 22 wounded by Syrian shelling in the Christian city of Zahle, 30 miles east of Beirut, but the report could not be independently confirmed.

"Admittedly, time is running out," Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. told reporters in Washington Thursday.

Outstanding students honored at Youth Achievement Banquet

Matthew Alan Taylor, Big Spring; Thomas Andrew Spell, Coahoma; Christena Lee Adams, Forsan; and Scott Robinson, Sands, were named the outstanding students of their respective schools at the Zale's-Herald-Rotary Youth Achievement Banquet held Thursday night at the Big Spring Country Club.

The winners, along with the 12 other finalists, were introduced by Tom Watson, publisher of the Herald, who served as the program's master of ceremonies.

Each of the four winners received a handsomely engraved plaque and all 16 finalists were recipients of gifts presented them by Zale's at the banquet.

Representing Zale's at the banquet were Ray Shapiro, area vice president, El Paso; Larry Weismer, district manager, Odessa; Rick Miller, manager of Big Spring's downtown store; and Polly Sisson, manager of the store in College Park Shopping Center.

The banquet crowd, which included parents of the honored students, school and civic officials, heard an inspired talk by Richard T. Schlosberg, president of Newspaper Operations, Harte-Hanks Communication Inc., San Antonio.

Schlosberg, a former Air Force pilot with 200 missions to his credit in Vietnam, reminded the students present that "now is the time that dreams begin... The seeds you plant now will grow and develop for the rest of your life."

Schlosberg cautioned his listeners to be careful in planning for the future, pointing out:

"You can become a victim of your life rather than the captain of your destiny... You need to set aside a quiet place in your life to decide what you're going to do."

Schlosberg reminded the students "you have a basket full of strengths."

Examine them, make use of them, the speaker suggested. "Truth begins with yourself... Self examination is not an ego trip... The real danger is that others will build you. You must take command of your life and your destiny."

"Hold fast to the dreams you have and ask yourself, 'Why not me?'" Schlosberg said.

Other finalists present for the dinner included Charlotte Lynne Beil, Bobby Brasel and Dickie Wrightsail, all of Big Spring; Carmen Holman, Clifford Eugene Snell and Karen Jo Woodverton, all of Coahoma; James Bristo, D.F. Stanley and Ellen Williams, all of Forsan; and Aida Franco, Jana Long and Dennis Martin, all of Sands.

The invocation and benediction were pronounced by Clayton Hicks, chaplain at the local VA Medical Center.

The awards banquet annually recognizes outstanding seniors in each of the four schools. Students are nominated and judged on their academic records, leadership abilities, participation in extra-curricular activities and contributions to the community.

Centennial caravan to visit Stanton, Midland, Odessa

Second of the two caravans to visit seven neighboring cities will leave Big Spring on Saturday at 9 a.m. from the Centennial Store-Headquarters parking lot at Tenth and Main.

The caravan, which will visit the cities of Stanton, Midland, and Odessa, will follow the outline set during the previous caravan to Colorado City, Snyder, Gail, and Lamesa.

Cars participating in the caravan will receive an escort from the various law enforcement officials in the communities to be visited and the mayors of each of the three cities will be on hand to welcome the civic-minded group.

During the brief presentations, the local delegation will be promoting the centennial festivities slated to begin next week and will be encouraging their residents to participate in the fun.

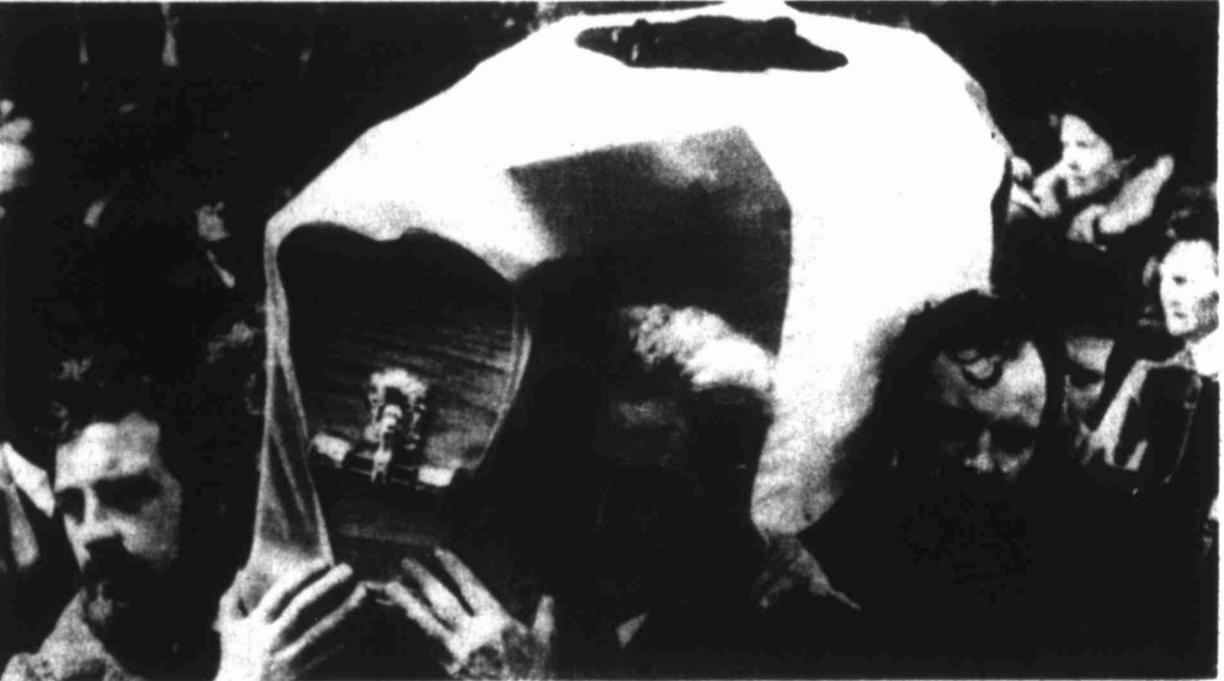

Members of the caravan will start assembling at the Centennial Store-Headquarters at 8:15 a.m. and will leave the city at 9 a.m. for Stanton. Individuals and groups wishing to participate in the caravan are being asked to decorate their vehicles to draw attention to the cars.

The winning entry will receive a cash prize of $25.00 for their efforts. In addition, all persons participating in the promotional tour are also being reminded to wear their old-style clothes and to bring a sack lunch for the break in Midland at the Midland Park Mall.

Entertainment will be provided at each of the three stops and will feature a barber shop quartet, square dancers, and other musical presentations. The caravan will be released at 2 p.m. in Odessa after the brief presentation in that city at the Permian Mall.

Since the group will be receiving live television coverage in both Midland and Odessa, officials organizing the group are hoping that a large delegation from the area will be participating in the caravan. Interested persons should contact the Centennial Store-Headquarters at 267-3641 for additional details.

FATHER CARRIES COFFIN — Patrick Hughes (right front), father of dead IRA hunger striker Francis Hughes, helps to carry the coffin of his dead son to a waiting hearse. The IRA man was given a full-scale funeral today near Belfast.

Special edition features railroad

The Herald will publish a special edition Sunday commemorating Big Spring's first 100 years and the coming of the railroad to the town.

Special mail-away copies can be ordered by calling the Circulation Department of the Herald, telephone number 363-7331, or individuals can drop by the Herald, 710 Scurry St., to initiate their requests.

The publication is replete with information about the Railroad Centennial program starting May 20, historical data and vintage pictures, some of which have never before appeared in print. Cost of the mail-away edition is 75 cents.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Changed to off-white

Q. The collars and facings on my white golf and tennis shirts have changed to an off-white or yellowish color after they've been washed a few times. What causes this?

A. The Soap and Detergent Association people say that perspiration is the culprit. It contains a high level of body oils that build up and soil the fabric. The areas must be pretreated before washing by moistening the stains and rubbing in some concentrated detergent. You can either use a pre-wash stain remover or your regular detergent for this.

Senate panel to mull redistricting ideas

A preliminary staff redistricting proposal will be presented to the Senate Redistricting Subcommittee at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in the Senate Chamber, Austin. The meeting was announced by Senator Jack Ogg, subcommittee chairman.

Prior to these hearings, demographic information gathered by the Census Bureau was compiled and distributed to various groups, individuals and the media throughout the state.

Every ten years the Legislature is charged with redrawing the political boundaries for the Texas House of Representatives, the Texas Senate and the U.S. Congress.

Under the provision of the Texas Constitution, the Legislature must complete the redistricting task by the end of the present regular session, midnight, June 1.

Bush predicts crime fight

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Vice President George Bush, closely guarded by Secret Service agents, predicted today President Reagan would offer a new attack on crime and acts of terrorism.

"There is no simple answer to their terrible incidents," he told a news conference in reference to the attacks on Pope John Paul II and Reagan.

"Yesterday President Reagan and I talked with several senators who have a strong package of crime bills. I expect in the not too distant future the administration will have a strong anti-crime package," Bush said at a Texas Capitol news conference.

When asked if it would include gun control, he replied, "We will address it the way we think you can handle guns and that is through crimes with guns," said the vice president.

He said the administration does not favor classical gun control but "we think you should go after those who do the crimes with guns."

The vice president later addressed a joint session of the Texas Legislature, a speech that originally was scheduled for March 30. He flew to Austin that day but returned to Washington immediately after hearing Reagan had been wounded.

U.S. won't apologize

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, finding nothing of strategic value in equipment seized from a Soviet jetliner, will give the cargo back but won't apologize for taking it, the chief of the Customs Service says.

"I feel it was handled in a professional way, well within our rights," William T. Archey said of the raid Tuesday night at nearby Dulles International Airport, which touched off a roar of protest from Moscow.

The raid was staged when a tipster told the Customs Service the Soviets were trying to spirit out American-made products of military value, possibly radar equipment.

But after two days of investigation — amid a drumbeat of protest from the Kremlin — Archey said all the cargo was legally exportable and the only violations were technical mistakes in accompanying paperwork.

The Soviets denounced the incident as "criminal" and "barbarous" and as proof "that terror and banditism have been elevated in the United States to the status of official policy." They said they may demand reparations.

TEXAS-SIZE BUTTERCUP PLANT — These buttercups all grew from the same stem, which was about 2 1/2 inches wide and 20 inches in length. Reba Wolf, who resides five miles north of Big Spring, found the unusual flora growing near her home. Ordinarily, buttercups bloom on individual stems.

OIL-ENERGY DAY LUNCHEON: Tickets for the Oil-Energy Day luncheon to be held Tuesday, May 26, in the east room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, will go on sale Monday at the centennial store. The price of the ticket is $4 and are being restricted to available seating. Jim Nugent, Texas Railroad Commissioner, will be the guest speaker.

ARTS AND CRAFTS ENTRIES: Individuals or groups interested in entering the Spring Arts and Crafts Fair to be held on Saturday, May 23, at the Dora Roberts Community Center and Cosden Lake, should submit their entry as soon as possible. The show will be open from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., with the 10' x 10' booths costing $10 for the day. Exhibitors are also reminded that they must furnish all of their own props and that only outside booths remain at this time. Persons wishing to exhibit should send their name, address, phone number, and items to be sold to the centennial store at 900 Main.

TICKET EXCHANGE: Persons are now being allowed to exchange the coupons they purchased from First Lady candidates for tickets to the "Iron Horse Revue." Individuals interested in reserved seating

Might challenge Short

Shaw contemplating run for State Senate

AUSTIN — Fearing his political power base will be dissipated in the legislature's decennial redistricting, Rep. Larry Don Shaw of Big Spring has begun to plot a move to bigger and better things.

The freshman lawmaker is contemplating a potential bid for the State Senate, most likely a challenge against Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka.

Those leanings are in the preliminary stage, but definitely under consideration, Shaw said. He won't know which incumbent he might face until completion of redistricting of senatorial boundaries.

"My goal isn't necessarily to run for the Senate," he said. "I'd rather stay in the House. But it's beginning to look like my choices are limited. If I have no other place to go..."

Vengeful legislators on the House redistricting committee, he said, are apparently prepared to slice up his 83rd House District.

"Apparently there is a strong attempt being put together to, quite frankly, cut me in redistricting," Shaw said.

Shaw has learned of House

LARRY DON SHAW

redistricting proposals that could strip away at least several of the six counties he represents.

A final House redistricting plan is expected to be released next week by the House Regions, Compacts and Districts Committee.

Capitol rumblings have had the redistricting committee pairing Shaw with Rep. Bill Healy of Paducah, Rep. Walter Grubbs of Abilene, Rep. Jim Rudd of Brownfield or Republican Rep. Jerry Cockerham, another freshman, from Monahan.

"I'm running for the Senate if I'm paired in a district that would be difficult and expensive for me to run in," Shaw said.

Shaw's home county, Howard, currently is being represented in the Senate by Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls. The latest senatorial proposal for senate redistricting, however, has the county in Short's jurisdiction.

"All this stuff is strictly political," Shaw complained. "There are ways to do it (redistrict) without pairing me with someone else. If I was a big team member, they'd probably do it."

Shaw's district is about 20,000 short of being an "ideal" district under the latest federal Census.

Two factors are playing against him, he said.

First, he defeated former Rep. Mike Ezzell of Snyder, considered a "team member" of House Speaker Billy Clayton.

Second, Shaw said, "I'm a freshman. Those two factors go against you when they're pairing you. It's a tradition of redistricting. If they're going to cut someone up, I'd be the perfect choice."

Deaths

'Bud' Wagner

Matt "Bud" Wagner, 64, died Thursday evening in a local hospital after a sudden illness. Graveside services will be at 10 a.m. Saturday in Trinity Memorial Park, under the direction of Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

He was born July 17, 1916, in Little Rock, Ark. He was married to Bess Hightower, in Oklahoma City, Dec. 13, 1937.

He came to Big Spring in 1962, and worked in civil service at Webb Air Force Base, retiring in 1972. He was a member of the Baptist Temple Church.

Survivors include his wife, Bess, of the home; a son, David, Abilene; a daughter, Nancy Combs, Abilene; a sister, Billye Davis, Pryor, Okla.; and three grandsons.

The family requests memorials be made to the donors favorite charity.

C.P. Davenport

C. P. Davenport, 70, Abilene, father of Donald Davenport of Big Spring was found dead at his home about 5 p.m., Thursday.

sons, Harold Caldwell, Alta Vista, Kan., J.C. Caldwell, Orlando, Fla., Ronnie Caldwell, California; three daughters, Patsy Ammons, Rogers, Ark., June Rowell, Lockney, Bonnie Caldwell, Little Rock, Ark.; 12 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Bill would let Texans import more wine

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas oenophiles who travel out of state to get interesting wines, only to find they can bring back no more than a quart, have a friend in the Senate.

Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, is the sponsor of a measure tentatively approved Thursday that would let Texas residents import six gallons of wine for personal use without a permit.

A final vote is necessary to send the bill to the House.

Under current law, Texans may import for personal use only one quart of liquor, no matter what kind.

Rain provides welcome relief

Rainfall in Big Spring before 8 a.m., today totaled .07 of an inch, coming as welcome relief to some winds that have served to dry out the soil.

Big Spring's rainfall for the year, according to figures released by the U.S. Experiment Station, now totals 6.86 inches, well above the norm for the year.

The showers continued in Big Spring until about 9 a.m.

$20,000 bail posted by Case

Michael Henry Case, 34, of 107 W. 21st St., was released on a $20,000 bond Thursday, set by Judge Lewis Heflin and posted by Wayne Basden.

Case had been charged with obtaining a controlled substance by fraud.

Thomas Everett Warren, 27, of 1804 Hearn, was released on a $10,000 bond Thursday, posted by Jo Jabor.

Warren had been arrested and charged with criminal mischief.

Local burglary trial canceled

A trial set Monday for Donald Prescott, charged with a burglary at Betty Lou's Lounge, has been canceled, according to Rick Hamby, district attorney.

Jurors will not need to report to the courthouse. Hamby said that all civil and criminal cases on the docket were settled.

Prescott's attorney is Jack Thompson.

Clements looks money market proposal over

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says his office is taking a close look at pending legislation that would require money market funds to retain reserves in Texas.

"I am concerned about personal liability of investors in these funds," he said. "I understand there may be an implied partnership that would involve an investor more than just the money he invested."

A Senate committee approved the bill but it was sent back to the committee by its sponsor, Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules. Operators of the money market funds, which are sold mostly by brokerage houses, claimed Texas banks and savings and loan companies were trying to hamper them with state regulation.

Clements told a news conference he had watched the Senate debate closely. "I favor people being able to invest their savings and resources however they would like so long as their liability and exposure to loss is fully and completely explained to them," he said in a written statement distributed.

"The very important issue of the personal liability of the investor in money market funds has been raised in this debate and is as yet unresolved."

The federal Securities and Exchange Commission requires "full disclosure" of any financial venture offered an investor.

"I want to make very sure the people of Texas have full disclosure... what may work in New York under their laws may be entirely different in Texas under our laws," he said.

Other survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Seth Powers, Abilene; and a brother, Lester Davenport, Alvin.

Survivors include his wife, Bess, of the home; a son, David, Abilene; a daughter, Nancy Combs, Abilene; a sister, Billye Davis, Pryor, Okla.; and three grandsons.

JOHN KNIERIM WILLIAM BOMAR HOWARD WILEMON

Arlington banker elected member of TESCO board

C. Howard Wilemon Jr., chairman of Texas Commerce Bank in Arlington, Thursday was elected a member of the Texas Electric Service Company board of directors.

During the TESCO board's regular quarterly meeting in Fort Worth, directors also elected John P. Knierim to the post of company treasurer. Knierim is Financial Department manager and will continue to serve in that position.

Wilemon will succeed W.P. Bomar of Fort Worth as a director.

Wilemon, a veteran of the U.S. Navy, joined Texas Commerce Bank's staff in 1947. He was elected president of the bank in 1965 and chairman in 1979. He serves on the bank's board of directors and on the executive council and board of directors of Texas Commerce Bancshares Inc. in Houston.

He also serves on the board of Arlington Hospital Foundation and has been a director of the Arlington Park Board, Chamber of Commerce and YMCA, Arlington Memorial Hospital and the North Texas Commission. He and his wife, Marjory, live in Arlington.

Knierim, a Texas Electric employee for 16 years, is a graduate of Eastern New Mexico University with a Bachelor of Business Administration degree in finance.

Bomar, whose serving to Texas Electric Service Company spanned almost half a century, was named Director Emeritus of the company.

The appointment was made in a resolution of appreciation adopted during the TESCO board's regular quarterly meeting Thursday as Bomar retired from active service on the board.

Bomar, former president of Bewley Mills and chairman of Houston Fire & Casualty Company, was elected to the TESCO board in 1936.

In the resolution naming him Director Emeritus, the board noted that Bomar has served with every president in Texas Electric's history.

"He brought to the board wisdom, a broad background of business experience and a deep faith in the investor-owned electric utility industry," the resolution says. "These qualities have been a valued asset to the company in its early development, through the rapid growth years and into the present time of challenge and dramatic change."

Extensive as was Bomar's 45-year tenure on the TESCO board, it was not his longest term of service to a Fort Worth institution.

His service as chairman of the board of W.I. Cook Children's Hospital covered 54 years. From the founding of the hospital in 1926 until his retirement in 1980, Bomar was the hospital's first and only board chairman, and upon his retirement he was named Chairman Emeritus of Cook Children's.

Sam Houston's home goes to parks board

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The House has tentatively approved a bill giving the Sam Houston homestead, now owned by Sam Houston State University, to the Parks and Wildlife Department.

The bill won voice-vote approval Thursday, and faces another vote.

SHSU graduate Rep. Bill Blythe, R-Houston, said the Parks and Wildlife Department would do a better job of maintaining the Huntsville home. He said SHSU has become too big a university to spend much time or effort maintaining the historic homestead.

Weather Thundershowers forecast today

By The Associated Press

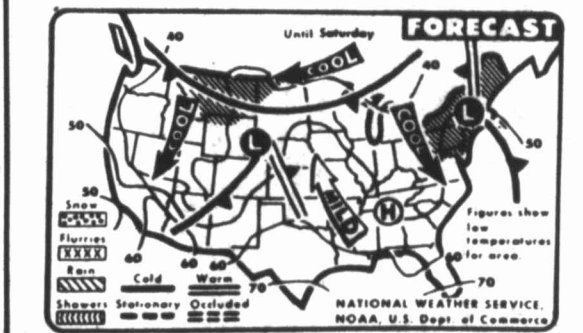

Highs were to be in the 80s and 90s.

Skies were partly cloudy over much of South Central Texas, Northwest Texas and Southwest Texas and clear over most of the remainder of the state. Some patchy fog was reported during the pre-dawn hours along middle and lower sections of the coast.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 50s and 60s although some areas of extreme South Texas had readings in the 70s. Extremes ranged from 55 at both Texarkana and Amarillo to 77 at McAllen.

WEATHER FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy through Saturday with scattered afternoon and nighttime showers and thundershowers most sections. Some thundershowers possibly severe. Warmer. Highs 80s north to mid 90s extreme south. Lows 50s north and mountains to 60s south.

EXTENDED FORECAST
WEST TEXAS: Chance of thundershowers Sunday mainly east. Mostly fair Monday and Tuesday. Not so warm the first of the week. Highs Sunday from about 80 Panhandle to the low 90s south and near 100 lower elevations of the Big Bend. Highs Monday and Tuesday from the low 70s Panhandle to the low 80s south and the mid 90s Big Bend. Lows Sunday upper 50s Panhandle to near 70 south cooling by Tuesday to a range from the upper 40s Panhandle to the upper 50s south.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for today until early Saturday predicts rain from Maryland to Maine. Rain is also forecast for most of Montana and parts of North Dakota and Wyoming.

East Texas town begins clean-up after tornado

EMBERSON, Texas (AP) — Good neighbors are making it easier for residents of this East Texas town to recover from a tornado that caused an estimated $2 million damage, a sheriff's deputy says.

Chief Deputy Ted Gibson of the Lamar County sheriff's department said Thursday night that friends and family are taking care of the homeless in the wake of the Wednesday storm that injured 30 people and leveled 22 buildings.

"The Red Cross offered to put them in motels, and didn't have any takers," Gibson said.

He said an insurance adjuster told the sheriff's office that he estimated homes suffered about $900,000 damage and that total property losses was $2 million.

Among the buildings destroyed was a Baptist church where 19 worshippers were attending a prayer service.

"Sightseers have been the biggest problem," Gibson said Thursday night. He said traffic poured into town when area roads were reopened about 2:30 p.m. Thursday.

"They were actually bumper-to-bumper. It looked like the I-37 Freeway at five o'clock," Gibson said, referring to the interstate loop around Dallas.

Some residents never saw a funnel cloud, just a wall of debris coming at them, as the twister went through the tiny town in three minutes.

"Emberson is just gone. It just got Emberson. There's no doubt about it," said sheriff's deputy John Williams after the twister, 300 to 500 yards wide, ripped through the town.

"It was so big, I never really saw a funnel, just a wall of debris coming at me," said resident Doug Winn.

Eight people were admitted to hospitals in nearby Paris, but none of their injuries were considered serious, spokesmen said.

Mr. G Has Lawn Grasses!

Tex Turf 10 A Hybrid lawn grass that has been recommended for the West Texas area because of its excellent cold and drought tolerance. It has few seed shoots. Available by the square yard.

Mr. G's Advice On Lawn Grasses

A beautiful, healthy, and well kept lawn is no accident. It requires planning, money, time and work. Some grasses found in the West Texas area are:

COMMON BERMUDA GRASS is the most extensively used grass in West Texas. It is of a coarser texture and generally not as uniform as improved varieties. It is the only turf-type bermuda grass variety that is established from seed and spreads by both rhizomes and stolons.

TEXTURF 10 is a medium textured, dark-green improved variety of bermuda grass that forms a dense turf. It withstands heavy traffic and recovers rapidly from injury. It produces few seed heads. This variety must be sprigged in or sodded.

TIFWAY both dwarf and regular is a vigorous, fast spreading improved variety of bermuda grass that forms a very dense wear-resistant sod. Should be mowed with a reel-type mower for best appearance. It often forms an undesirable thatch.

TALL FESCUE is a coarse-textured bunch grass sown from seed. Kentucky 31 is the most widely planted in West Texas. It is the most heat-tolerant of all the cool season grasses. It also tolerates shade, some drought, and heavy traffic.

ST. AUGUSTINE is a coarse-textured low-growing grass with an attractive medium light green color, spreading by means of long, thick stolons. It is sensitive to cold temperatures and will winter kill. Planted only from stolons or runners and tends to form a heavy thatch. More shade tolerant than the bermuda grasses.

ZOYSIA GRASS forms a dense low-growing, high quality turf that grows slowly with some shade tolerance. It spreads by both rhizomes and stolons that form a tight, dense turf. Meyer and Emerald are the varieties planted in West Texas. They must be planted vegetatively (plugs).

'God's Autograph'

I saw God write His autograph upon a moving stream,
While I, a creature of His hand, sat idly by to dream;
I saw Him write his powerful name across a stormy sky,
The pen He used was dipped in fire — I did not question why.
But when I saw His mighty hand, the plainest on my part,
Was when He autographed His name with love — across my heart.
I saw God write His autograph upon the Sacred Page —
Sweet message of redeeming grace for every race and age;
Amazed, I saw Him write again upon the cross of shame,
With pen divine all dipped in blood, "Forgiv'n in Jesus' name!"
'Twas then I saw His mighty hand; by faith I did my part,
And by His grace He wrote His name with Love — across my heart.

Today is special day for policemen

Today is Police Memorial Day, so proclaimed by an Act of Congress. It's another way of saying this is a special day of mourning for the 106 policemen and policewomen who died in the line of duty last year.

COL. W. W. (BILL) Moore, president of the National Association of Chiefs of Police, placed a black band on his shield to focus attention on the special day, suggesting that if all officers wore the black mourning stripe it might remind our citizens of the increasing violence the law enforcement officers face.

Col. Moore, who is director of Public Safety in Atlantic City, N.C., proposed that all police and sheriffs offices fly their flags at half mast in tribute to the more than 2,000 officers killed since 1960. Their names are enshrined in the American Police Hall of Fame memorial building.

"In these days of increasing fear, rising crime, reckless acts of violence, law enforcement officers are being swamped at the same time when fewer men are available in the war on crime," Moore said. "I think it is time to stop and thank the officers on the street and hope that citizens will take part in this day of honoring both the dead and the living."

As part of a nationwide program to encourage citizen support the American Police Hall of Fame will send free to anyone requesting one, a green bow, similar to the bows being worn in Atlanta, Ga., where a series of unsolved children's murders have taken place.

COL. MOORE SAYS the green bow is not only to remind Americans of the tragedy in that community but of the national crime wave. The bow is being made as a button with the words, 'I Care' and requests should be made with a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to: NACOP, PO Box 995,

Washington, D.C., 20015. There is no charge.

The American Police Hall of Fame and Museum, located in North Port, Fla., honors officers killed in the line of duty. It is now in its 21st year. When an officer is killed, his family is presented the Police Medal of Honor, Memorial Flag and the posthumous citation. His or her name is placed in the memorial building, which also houses police artifacts.

The list of officers killed in the line of duty since 1960 is staggering, to say the least. It includes Bryan E. Scoggins and Gordon Smith, both of Midland.

Need a cure

Around the rim

James Werrell

The Pope has been shot. Add another notch, gunlovers.

I put plenty of thought into guns after the shooting of John Lennon. That shooting was enough to stir up a sense of moral outrage, but then our President and now the Pope... it was much too much!

There will be no easy answers to the plague of handguns in this country, but the time has come and gone to begin to look for a cure. The handgun unfortunately is embedded deep in the American psyche, and the exorcism of the romance with that nasty little instrument of death will be tough.

IT IS NOW evident that the job will have to be done by sensible people, gun haters and gun enthusiasts alike.

These people have to search for a middle road.

Both sides will have to make sacrifices. I am obviously not a handgun enthusiast, but I do realize that it would be ridiculous to sanction the government to enter people's homes to take away their guns.

Pistol haters must also realize that there is a large group of genuine sportsmen, target shooters mostly, who should continue to be allowed to own handguns. Those who want to outlaw guns won't get very far if they insist on trying to deny someone his pursuit of happiness.

But the gun lobby, perhaps the largest and best financed lobby of all, insists that most gun owners buy their weapons for protection. Protection from whom? Criminals? Intruders who creep into the house in the dead of night?

Solid statistics show that if you were to get shot, it would probably be either a spouse, a neighbor, or at least someone you know pulling the trigger.

The idea of hauling out a six-gun to defend home and family strikes me as a silly hangup born in adolescent fantasies about Dodge City and being fastest on the draw.

MOST GUN OWNERS would be wise to let the police, who are the experts, do their shooting for them. If the gun lovers insist on fortifying their homes, let them use shotguns (I own a couple) which are better tactical weapons anyway.

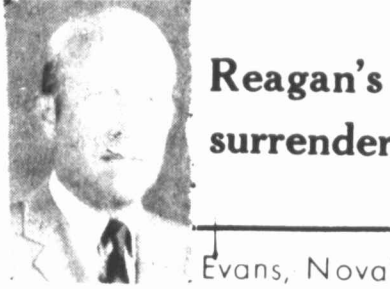

As I have said, there will be no easy answers. If laws are enacted to regulate handguns, some who deserve to own guns won't be able to get them, and some criminals, who shouldn't have guns, will.

The anti-gun group will also have to face some hard facts. There is no way to make guns magically disappear, and make the world safer for all mankind. And it is impossible to contradict the fact that a gun is a tool; intrinsically no better or worse than the one who uses it.

Pope John Paul was not shot in America by an American. In fact, he was shot in a country with rather strict gun control laws.

All that means is that the problem is universal. The impulse that provokes a man to shoot his neighbor is the same impulse that may eventually provoke the human race to blow itself off the face of the earth.

It's a big problem; perhaps an insurmountable one. Is that any excuse not to look for a solution?

Reagan's surrender

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — The negotiated Japanese auto quota, hammered out in Tokyo just before the deadline of Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki's visit to Washington last week, left senior officials in the Reagan administration apprehensive about the future and angry about the way they were treated.

The Cabinet's principle advocate of free trade — Treasury Secretary Donald T. Reagan and budget director David Stockman — had no idea what was happening in Tokyo until the quota was announced. At no time was a protectionist policy determined by the celebrated Cabinet process. Protection for Detroit was dictated by President Reagan, without even informing the free-traders.

THEIR APPREHENSION STEMS from the precedent for the future. While telling ordinary Americans they must stand on their own two feet, the president was willing to bail out incompetent auto management and inefficient auto labor. The administration now will have a more difficult time turning away thrift institutions and other troubled industries lining up at the federal handout window.

Pro-quota officials call the Japanese deal a special case caused by Reagan's campaign promise in Detroit last year. Thus, their justification for the quota is wholly political, which gives special interests a clear message: Ronald Reagan can be susceptible to the disease of political expediency that has plagued recent presidencies and destroyed Richard M. Nixon's.

Reagan, who reverses 19th century free-traders, was thought faithful to his ideology on this another issue. Consequently, when Secretary of Transportation Drew Lewis recommended Japanese import quotas, free-trade economic advisers thought he was running out of control. Later, these free-traders at Treasury and the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) thought he was in full retreat under attack when Lewis turned over the auto quota issue to the Cabinet's foremost protectionist, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige.

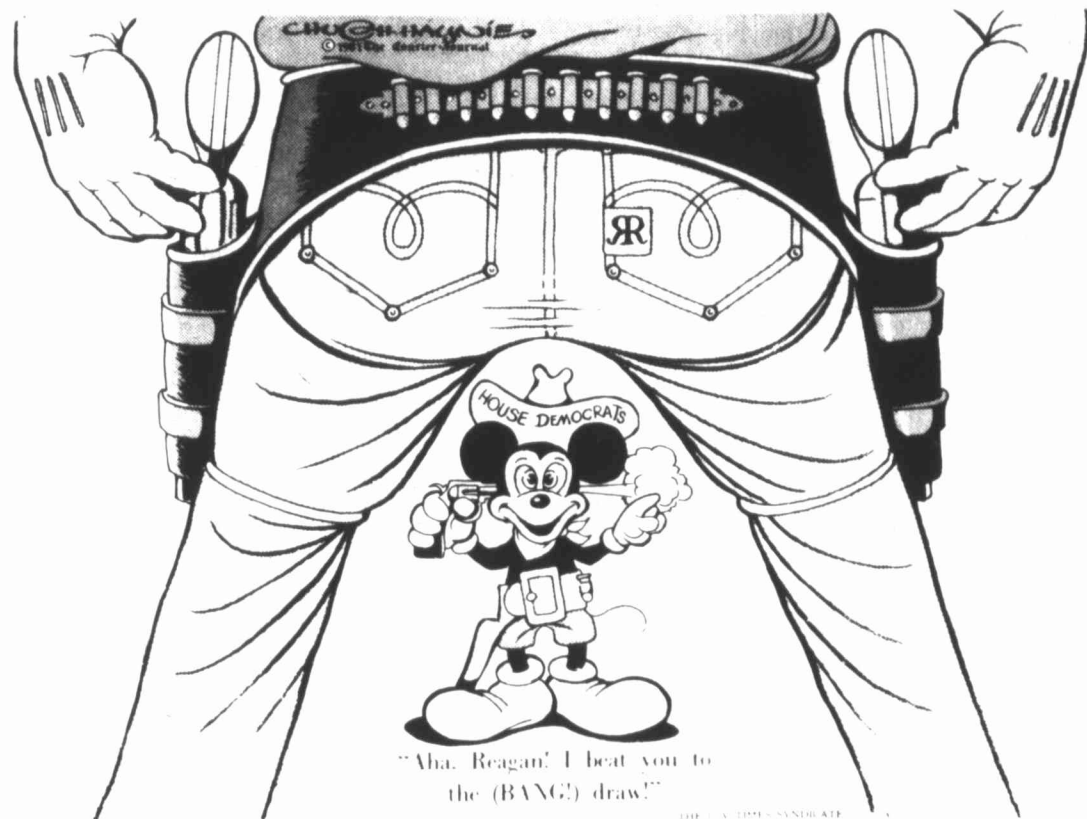

The free-traders were wrong. Lewis was getting out of the auto quota business not because he had lost but because he had won. Indeed, Lewis has maintained privately that he never would have recommended quotas had he not received marching orders from Reagan. The president's actions since then give credence to Lewis's claim.

Reagan personally ordered that Ambassador Mike Mansfield ask the Japanese government to limit imports to specific levels, which the free-traders had incorrectly interpreted as Secretary of State Alexander Haig going it alone. Since there were no more calls for meetings on auto imports, it was assumed at Treasury and the OMB that the protectionists had lost.

Actually, Don Regan and Stockman simply were not being invited to meetings. It was a sensation familiar to Drew Lewis. As Reagan's 1980 deputy national campaign chairman, he once bucked the tide by advocating presidential debates, and found himself omitted from future discussions of that question.

NO FREE-TRADERS were around when Reagan instructed Special Trade Representative William Brock on his 1.4 million cars a year and yield to 1.6 million if necessary (compared with 1.8 million last year).

There was stunned disbelief at Treasury and the OMB when the 1.78-million-car quota (just 80,000 cars over the secret bargaining limit) was announced in Tokyo. While described as "voluntary," the terms of the agreement are clearly those of a negotiated settlement.

Donohue gets some feedback

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: This letter is in response to an inquiry printed from a "farm-ranch wife" who had been taking prednisone. Your response to her indicated that you did not know where she was purchasing a prescription drug without consulting a physician. Of course we will never know for sure, but I suspect she has simply been ordering it out of a catalog.

You see ranchers and farmers, by some special law, may order what you and I would consider prescription medicines for veterinary use only. This is to relieve them of the burden of paying veterinary bills, so they are allowed to dose their own animals. We both know that the words "for veterinary use only" on a label mean nothing once it's out of the drug company's hands.

Many of these medicines are self-prescribed by people for themselves. As a veterinarian, much of my work with cattle has been undoing the damage done by people misdiagnosing and self-prescribing medicines for their herds.

So wake up, Dr. Donohue, and start feeling frustrated! When you have to deal with patients who are their own doctors, you can appreciate the problem veterinarians have had for years with ranchers trying to be their own veterinarians. We both went through special training to be able to write prescriptions, but we don't have an exclusive on it. —T.A.D.V.M.

You're right. I didn't know this. I'm a city boy.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Anytime you want to sell gold on the same scale as feathers (recent column) be my guest. Calories are the same, whether it be carbohydrate, fat or protein. A pound of feathers weighs the same as a pound of gold. Ha! I gotcha! Technically, a pound of feathers is heavier than a pound of gold. Feathers are weighed by the avoirdupois system, in which a pound equals 7,000 grains. A gold pound by the troy system, has 5,760 grains. Seriously, Dr. Donohue, your column is one I never miss. I am an art specialist and restorer of objects d'art. So we are both in the restoration work, so to speak. —D.R.

What can I say?

Dear Dr. Donohue: I wish to comment on your reply to L.L.C. concerning high-potassium foods that might be substituted for the irritating potassium chloride supplements often prescribed. The alternative is to use a potassium salt substitute sprinkled on meals. It is better tasting, less expensive, and often less irritating. The only drawback is the need to measure the substance at each meal to get the equivalent potassium one would get in the medicine. The best tasting salt substitutes according to our taste tests are Featherweight "K," Neocutal and the Morton salt substitute. —M.W.

Yes, and if taste is the only factor then tablet-form potassium might be another answer.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Perhaps I can add a dimension to your recommendations for avoiding air sickness. My daughter shares the problem and is enrolled in a self-hypnosis biofeedback class which offers considerable promise for modifying the anxiety behavior related to flying. We plan to start therapy for her a short time before our next scheduled flight. It sounds highly promising to the point that I even recommended it for a surgeon friend who recently developed Parkinson's disease. He lectures frequently and is caught up in the cycle of tremor and embarrassment. This hopefully may be controlled by hypnotic means.

I am optimistic in both cases for success. Keep up your excellent standards. You are a credit to the profession. Unfortunately, many of our patients need you because of our deficiencies in communication skills. —An M.D. Reader

Thank you, doctor, for your suggestion and kind words about my efforts.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Why are dangerous prescriptions placed in easy-opening containers by druggists, while simple aspirin bottles require an adult to open? —G.G.

I don't know they shouldn't be.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Tell me truthfully, do you dream up those questions?

No, just the answers.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I was raised in a very unhappy home, and my parents were always fighting. My mother filled me with a lot of hatred, and now I find I am having real difficulty in my own marriage over this. How can I get rid of this and love my husband as I know I should? —Mrs. A.C.D.

DEAR MRS. A.C.D.: It is good that you sense something is missing and that you are determined to do something about it; it is also probably helpful that you know at least part of the reason you have the feelings you do. The Bible says, "Do not hate your brother in your heart" (Leviticus 19:17). It also says, "You must rid yourselves of all such things as these: anger, rage, malice, slander, and filthy language from your lips" (Colossians 3:8).

The key is for you to open your life without reserve to Jesus Christ. Let him fill you with his love, and take away the resentment and anger you feel. God loves you — in spite of your lack of love for him and for other people. He knows all about your background, and he knows the way you feel

AT 3:45 ON the afternoon of Feb. 13, Customs officials in Florida "observed a radar target approximately 100 miles east of Key West, and commenced a radar track," the memo states.

The unidentified flying object was in fact a seaplane carrying Nixon and his pal Bebe Rebozo, with Secret Service bodyguards, back to the United States from a visit to Cat Cay, an island in the Bahamas. But the government radar trackers had no way of knowing this.

"The suspect aircraft neither communicated with the FAA Flight Service Station nor displayed a transponder code," the Treasury report continues. "Two Customs Service aircraft were launched to intercept the target."

The Customs officials had good reason for concern: Southern Florida and its keys are rife with drug traffic.

Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of narcotics are smuggled into the area in small aircraft. So the Customs pilots stuck close to the suspicious seaplane.

Eleven minutes after the Customs planes scrambled for the pursuit, "the suspect aircraft landed at Ocean Reef airport" in North Key Largo, the memo reports. The first pursuit plane landed five minutes later — a little too late.

"The passengers from the seaplane had departed in a vehicle," the memo continues, "and were identified as former President Richard Nixon, his friend Bebe Rebozo and Secret Service agents. None of the Nixon party, Secret Service agents or aircraft crew cleared Customs upon their arrival in the United States."

THE CUSTOMS SERVICE bureaucrats were properly outraged. Everyone entering the United States — even a serving president — is required by law to make at least a formal passage through Customs control. The officials were even more incensed when told by the Secret Service that Nixon and Rebozo had been making the trip from the Bahamas into Florida "about once every four months for the past four years and did not usually clear Customs."

As it turned out, after investigation, the Nixon party had been given a rare VIP clearance by phone from the Customs Service office in Key West. In return for this special favor, the Key West office had instructed that

WASHINGTON — In his forced retirement, Richard Nixon continues to cling to the lordly style of his imperial presidency. His disdain for legal formalities the rest of us must observe led recently to his private aircraft being chased through the Caribbean skies like a dope smuggler — which is precisely what the two pursuing Customs Service pilots thought the Nixon plane might be.

Here's what happened, according to an internal Treasury Department memo seem by my associate Jack Mitchell:

AT 3:45 ON the afternoon of Feb. 13, Customs officials in Florida "observed a radar target approximately 100 miles east of Key West, and commenced a radar track," the memo states.

The unidentified flying object was in fact a seaplane carrying Nixon and his pal Bebe Rebozo, with Secret Service bodyguards, back to the United States from a visit to Cat Cay, an island in the Bahamas. But the government radar trackers had no way of knowing this.

"The suspect aircraft neither communicated with the FAA Flight Service Station nor displayed a transponder code," the Treasury report continues. "Two Customs Service aircraft were launched to intercept the target."

The Customs officials had good reason for concern: Southern Florida and its keys are rife with drug traffic.

Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of narcotics are smuggled into the area in small aircraft. So the Customs pilots stuck close to the suspicious seaplane.

Eleven minutes after the Customs planes scrambled for the pursuit, "the suspect aircraft landed at Ocean Reef airport" in North Key Largo, the memo reports. The first pursuit plane landed five minutes later — a little too late.

"The passengers from the seaplane had departed in a vehicle," the memo continues, "and were identified as former President Richard Nixon, his friend Bebe Rebozo and Secret Service agents. As it turned out, after investigation, the Nixon party had been given a rare VIP clearance by phone from the Customs Service office in Key West. In return for this special favor, the Key West office had instructed that the pilot of Nixon's plane submit flight and customs information in writing — and in advance.

But Nixon's pilot never did send the required documents, and that, according to the officials in Key West, is why Customs had no idea what the plane was, or who was on it, when it showed up on the radar screen.

A high-ranking Customs official conceded that the mixup was "partly our fault." It was, he said, "a breakdown in communications," which has subsequently been cleared up. If it hadn't been for that communications breakdown, the official said, "we would have issued a multi-penalty" citation for customs violation.

A Secret Service spokesman insisted that "we followed proper procedures." Henceforth, though, Nixon's periodic arrivals in Florida from the Bahamas will be heralded by the necessary paperwork.

EXECUTIVE MEMO: The plight of those who are involved in auto accidents with foreign diplomats was shockingly illustrated a few years ago when a Washington area woman was crippled for life in a collision with the car of a diplomat, who claimed immunity to avoid financial responsibility for the victim's ruinous medical expenses. The situation isn't much better now. The State Department makes foreign diplomats carry the maximum liability insurance required in the jurisdiction in which their vehicles are registered. But any damage above these sometimes inadequate minimums could be evaded by claiming diplomatic immunity. So Foggy Bottom is considering a requirement that the diplomats carry more than the bare minimum.

Big Oil moguls are already rubbing their hands in glee over their friend in a crucial high place — Interior Secretary James Watt. A confidential letter to the Energy Department from Peter Lawson-Johnson, president of Anglo Energy Drilling Co., gloats that Watt "is quite receptive to the leasing of federal lands for energy development and will therefore ease up on federal land-use restrictions and regulations."

The Internal Revenue Service often deserves the bad press it gets over high-handed seizure of delinquent taxpayers' property. But a recent case was a bum rap, the IRS says. It involved breaking into a locked car and dragging the two owners out so the car could be seized in payment of delinquent taxes. What was overlooked in the reports of the incident, though, was the fact that the couple, Stephen and Mona Oliver, were not in the car when the IRS agents found it in a parking lot. The Olivers, members of a tax protest group, showed up later and were allowed to get back in the car to get personal possessions from it. That's when they locked themselves in and the revenuers broke a window and dragged them out. The IRS now has a new regulation: No one will be allowed into a vehicle being seized — even to retrieve life-saving medicine.

BREAK OUT OF YOUR SHELL

If anyone is an expert at bringin' new folks to church it's Charlie Reeger. Last week Charlie had a neighbor there who hadn't — as the expression goes — darkened a church door in years.

"The secret's simple," says Charlie. "Most people who don't worship God — it's not that they don't believe. Just that their weekend routine has become a shell shutting them off from God."

Charlie says he's no great evangelist. He's just warm and friendly and very positive about the importance of faith. He invites folks to church. God does the rest.

One of these mornings a very compelling voice within you may say "Break out today... break out of your shell and join Charlie Reeger in church."

That can be the beginning of a new life!

Leaders regret suicide of Sands

NEW YORK (AP) — High-ranking Protestant and Roman Catholic leaders have voiced regret at the fasting suicide of Irish guerrilla leader Bobby Sands, but termed it useless and in Christian teaching, wrong.

It's being used to whip up destructive passions, commented Archbishop Robert Runcie of Canterbury at the end of a U.S. tour. He said "passions from a distance" don't help the majority in Ireland, facing terrorist violence.

He said the reason "extremists are making such noise" about Sands is that they are afraid progress is being made to a peaceful solution and want to block it.

Archbishop John R. Roach, president of the U.S. Catholic bishops, voiced "profound regret" at Sands' death, calling it a "tragic sacrifice" and noted "Catholic efforts to persuade him against it."

Several church leaders, including Catholic Cardinal Basil Hume of England, termed Sands' death the moral equivalent of suicide, which Christianity rejects as a gravesin.

Anglican Bishop Edward Scott of Canada and Presiding Bishop John M. Allin of the U.S. Episcopal Church noted Sands chose death but "the same freedom of choice was not offered victims of the kind of terrorism" represented by him and his colleagues.

Church leaders pleaded that the situation not be exploited for further violence or retaliation. Bishop Roach called for "reconciliation of differences" through peaceful negotiations.

Both he and the Rev. William Howard, an American Baptist and president of the U.S. National Council of Churches, quoted Pope John Paul II's appeal on his 1979 visit to Ireland that its people reject the voices of "hatred, revenge and retaliation."

New president is chosen for Virginia Seminary

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — T. Hartley Hall IV, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Nashville, Tenn., since 1973, has been elected president of Union Theological Seminary in Virginia, the seminary announced today.

Hall, 51, will succeed Fred R. Stair, who is retiring after 14 years as president of UTS, the oldest seminary in the South. Hall will take over the presidency of the seminary here March 15.

Hall is a native of Macon, Ga., and a graduate of Davidson College in North Carolina. After Army service in Korea, he won his bachelor of divinity degree at Union Theological Seminary here in 1957.

In 1958 he was graduated from the Yale Divinity School with a master's in sacred theology.

Later he served as campus Christian life minister in Washington, N.C., and as minister of First Presbyterian Church in Washington, D.C.

His election was announced by John F. Washington Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Hall was elected UTS president by the Board of Trustees on recommendation of a presidential search committee chaired by Karl G. Hudson Jr. of Raleigh, N.C.

Bible is published in 1,700 languages

NEW YORK — Since the invention of the printing press at least one book of the Bible had been published by the end of 1980 in 1,710 of the world's languages and distinct dialects, according to the American Bible Society.

The American Bible Society's annual language count revealed an increase of 27 languages over the 1979 figure of 1,683 and marks the first time the Bible or parts thereof has been published in more than 1,700 languages.

Among the many new translations in which a whole book of the Bible appeared for the first time were: the Bible in Latin America, three in Africa, five in Australia, three in the Philippines and two in Guinea-Bissau.

Two complete Bibles were published for the first time: Kimbundu in Angola, and Kinandi in Zaire. Each was published by its own Bible Society under the auspices of the 66-member United Bible Societies, a federation of autonomous national Societies worldwide.

There were 24 languages in which complete New Testaments were reported published for the first time. New Testaments were the first Scriptures published in the languages of Ezaa, Ikwo and Izi. All are in Nigeria.

Geographically speaking, Africa has the largest number of languages (499) in which at least one book of the Bible has been translated. Asia ranks second with 434 languages and Latin America third with 283. In Australia and the South Pacific, Scriptures have been published in 251 languages, in Europe 179, and in North America 62.

The complete Bible has been published in 275 languages, New Testaments in 495, and Portions in 940.

Esperanto and Volapuk, commonly called international languages, are also included in the total count of 1,710.

Seventy-five additional Portions, (at least a single book of the Bible) were reported published for the first time in 1980. This represents 20 languages in the Philippines, 11 in Mexico, 9 in Australia, 4 each in Brazil and Ethiopia and 3 each in Colombia and Guatemala.

The historic language tally, dating from the "first printed Bible in 1456," is compiled from copies of the new Scriptures received from various organizations by the ABS library, the largest collection of its kind in the world, with more than 39,000 volumes of Scripture, documents and reference items.

The American Bible Society, founded in 1816, is a nonprofit interconfessional organization whose sole purpose is the translation, publication, and distribution of the Holy Scriptures without doctrinal note or comment and without profit.

Presbyterian Church in Lenoir, N.C., and First Presbyterian Church in Tyler, Texas, before moving to Nashville.

While pastor of the Westminster church in Nashville Hall taught at Vanderbilt University as adjunct professor of homiletics.

During the summer of 1966, Hall was staff photographer for the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem and took part in the expedition that located the biblical city of Gibeon, destroyed and lost when the Hebrews were carried into Babylonian exile.

Hillcrest Baptist Church has scheduled a revival from Sunday through Wednesday evenings. Dr. Phillip McClendon, pastor, will be preaching and Randy Anderson, Sapulpa, Okla., will be directing the music program. Services will be held at 7 o'clock each evening.

Hillcrest also will present a series of four films each Sunday evening at 6 p.m. beginning this Sunday, entitled, "The Spirit Controlled Temperament." The title of the first film is "Why You Act the Way You Do."

Anderson is a 1978 graduate of Oklahoma Baptist University with a degree in music with emphasis in church music. He has served two churches in Oklahoma as Minister of Music, and as Youth Minister in one of them. He has two gospel recordings to his credit, entitled "God's Wonderful

Indonesia is open

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board says the government of Indonesia has eased visa restrictions on foreign missionaries, granting visas for two new Southern Baptist workers.

Indonesia's government had not given visa approvals for missionaries since early 1979, but now appears "open for new missionaries to come and give assistance," says a Baptist official, the Rev. William Wakefield.

Revival, family life seminar are scheduled

Hillcrest Baptist Church has scheduled a revival from Sunday through Wednesday evenings. Dr. Phillip McClendon, pastor, will be preaching and Randy Anderson, Sapulpa, Okla., will be directing the music program. Services will be held at 7 o'clock each evening.

Hillcrest also will present a series of four films each Sunday evening at 6 p.m. beginning this Sunday, entitled, "The Spirit Controlled Temperament." The title of the first film is "Why You Act the Way You Do."

Anderson is a 1978 graduate of Oklahoma Baptist University with a degree in music with emphasis in church music. He has served two churches in Oklahoma as Minister of Music, and as Youth Minister in one of them. He has two gospel recordings to his credit, entitled "God's Wonderful

Pastoral counselors help employees to cope with life

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — Bill, a factory worker, has become increasingly quiet on the job except to criticize co-workers at awkward moments. Bill's absenteeism has increased and his productivity is sagging.

It has become obvious to Bill's supervisor that a problem, probably not related to Bill's job, is hindering his ability to work. The supervisor talks with Bill and then suggests that he visit the company counseling service. Bill follows his supervisor's advice.

Bill sought help at a crucial time because his supervisor read Bill's "smoke signals" of distress — a troubled employee's subconscious way of asking for help.

"About 20 percent of employees in the United States have personal problems which interfere with their jobs," says Rev. Rodney C. Brown, director of the Pastoral Counseling Program at R.J. Reynolds Industries, Inc. About one of every 25 employees with a problem considers suicide or homicide, is worried about a loved one hurting himself or others, or is a hazard in the workplace, Brown says.

Those numbers may seem insignificant, especially when you consider that about half of all employees who receive pastoral counseling seek it on their own initiative, Rev. Brown says. "But in terms of human lives, the numbers become important when one considers that the average size of the workforce served by pastoral counselors and industrial chaplains is 4,000."

That's one reason why early detection and referral by a distressed employee's co-workers and supervisors is so important. They could help ensure that personal problems don't reach the danger point before the person seeks help, Rev. Brown says.

Not all employees send discernible smoke signals. And those who work with a troubled employee may be preoccupied with their work and miss, ignore or misread signals.

Therefore, he says, it's important to recognize these "smoke signals" of distress: erratic job performance; a defensive, chip-on-the-shoulder attitude, chronic absenteeism; withdrawal from co-workers and unwarranted criticism of them; a don't-care attitude; failure to meet deadlines; and uncharacteristic change in behavior — such as emotional outbursts — which causes the employee undue negative attention.

R.J. Reynolds Industries' Pastoral Counseling Program is a pioneer in the detection and treatment of distress signals in the workplace. Founded in 1949, the program is believed to be the oldest of its kind presently operating in the United States.

The program serves about 15,000 employees in the Winston-Salem, N.C., area. Three full-time pastoral counselors each year conduct about 2,000 counseling sessions with more than 600 employees. About two-thirds of those counseled are production workers, while one-third involve administrative, clerical and managerial employees.

The most common problems faced by RJR employees and those across the country are marital and family discord, alcohol abuse and financial difficulties, Rev. Brown says. About half of all pastoral counselors' clients have marital difficulties.

"A variety of changing social forces are affecting American families," says Rev. Brown. "People are living on tighter budgets. Attitudes toward sex, marriage and family life are changing. People are using alcohol and drugs more and at an earlier age. Add these facts of life to the ups and downs of the struggle for career success and you get 'burnout,' feelings of 'nobodiness,' and other problems that affect job performance."

The pastoral counseling philosophy at RJR is geared to solving such problems, Rev. Brown says. "A pastoral counselor is a unique type of counselor because his philosophy stems from a perspective of faith concerning the infinite worth of the person, whether one's job is to clean the office floor or manage the office staff," Brown says.

The program has attracted attention from people who want to know how the program operates. "We are constantly getting inquiries from businesses and individuals," says Rev. Brown.

The counseling approach at R.J. Reynolds is non-denominational because a variety of religions are served, Rev. Brown says. "Pastoral counseling is offered in recognition that companies are made up of persons with all sorts of religious and non-religious beliefs," Brown says.

That doesn't mean that counselors can't respond to the religious concerns of an employee of another faith. "However, we must tow that delicate line between being responsive to the religious concerns of employees and imposing our religious faith on them."

JAMES BLACKWOOD
of the BLACKWOOD BROTHERS

'Mr. Gospel Music' will present concert here

The last remaining member of the original Blackwood Brothers Quartet, James Blackwood, "Mr. Gospel Music," will present a concert May 23 at the First Church of God, 2009 Main, at 7:30 p.m.

The Blackwood Brothers Quartet started back during the Depression in rural Choctaw County, Miss. Poor sharecroppers, the Blackwoods were brought up in a positive atmosphere of Christian faith which very early turned to music. The Blackwood Brothers Quartet was formed in 1934.

Actually, only three of the original members, Roy, Doyle and James, were brothers. The fourth member, R.W., was Roy's son.

Roy, 34, was the lead singer, and Doyle, 23, sang bass and played the guitar. James, 15, was baritone and R.W., 13, sang tenor. They moved around Jackson, Miss., Shreveport, La., and Shenandoah, Iowa until World War II took them to San Diego, Calif. in 1942 where they temporarily disbanded until the fighting was over.

The group moved back to Shenandoah after the war and broadcast daily, three times a day, from KMA Radio. Then they'd go out and work programs each night and come back in.

"The group moved to Memphis, Tenn. in 1950, which has been our base ever since," said Cecil Blackwood, co-master of ceremonies and manager of the group.

The Quartet came to national prominence in 1954 on CBS-TV's Talent Scout Show, hosted by Arthur Godfrey. Shortly afterward the group lost two members, R.W. Blackwood and Bill Lyles, in an airplane crash.

James is the only surviving member of the original Quartet. "I'm 60 years old," he said. "I've actually been in gospel music for over 50 years," he added, he and Doyle, his brother, having performed together prior to the beginning of the Quartet.

The other Blackwood in the present group is Jimmy, James' son and the lead singer.

The group won on the Godfrey show again in 1956, just one of numerous other honors they have won over the years, including several Dove and Grammy awards.

The Blackwood Brothers brand of gospel music is pretty much accepted nationwide, according to Cecil. "Right now, we praise the Lord anywhere in the United States. If a program is advertised well, we can have a nice crowd."

Many of the group's appearances are now in conjunction with evangelistic services where no admission is charged.

James Blackwood has had the distinction of singing at the White House.

"Sunday, Sept. 9, they had a three hour gospel sing on the south lawn," he told us. "We were one of the groups invited, but the group was in Texas on a tour. We couldn't get out of some of the engagements, so I flew up and sang."

The President, of course, and Mrs. Carter were there. Everybody sat right down in front, took their shoes off and set on the blanket."

The Blackwood Brothers had earlier sung for a presidential prayer breakfast at a Washington, D.C. hotel.

Blackwood believes that success is a result of their genuine love of people. They

Ethical diversity may cause downfall

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

One of America's foremost evangelical theologians, the Rev. Carl F. H. Henry, says Western civilization is being plunged toward ruin by a spreading "dogma that democracy requires ethical diversity."

If that trend isn't checked, he says, "we shall soon preside over the collapse of democracy into chaos."

Henry, a noted biblical scholar and long-time powerful voice in the rising evangelical movement in the United States, says "moral pluralism" is becoming entrenched "as a social norm."

"Moral values are menaced by the growing notion that a truly democratic society must allow, even require, ethical diversity and a tolerance of immorality ... that moral judgments are a private matter only," he says.

This widely promoted view, he says, could bring a "moral and spiritual decline beyond imagination," a time when "all moral distinctions are relative."

Henry, presently on a seven-city lecture tour in Canada, stresses that the health and survival of democratic society depend on recognizing definite moral standards, both in persons and in "public life and public affairs."

"God works providentially in the history of nations," Henry says in his text, maintaining that "ethical absolutes" apply to national life and that upholding them is essential to a nation's endurance.

"Too often, the church's mission has been limited to preoccupation with personal evangelism at the expense of public concerns," he says, citing a one-time evangelical attitude altered by a recent thrust into political affairs.

Henry, 68, who has just finished a term as president of the American Theological Society, is author of about 25 books, including the monumental, five-volume "God, Revelation and Authority."

On his 11-day Canadian tour, he cautions that "to seek all ends by politics is wrong as to seek all ends by evangelism," but he says it's imperative "to confront public conscience by the biblical criteria of morality and justice."

Christians, he says, must not yield to the modern social theorists who insist that "cultural consensus alone dictates public policy," that "public policy respecting abortion, homosexuality, prostitution, marriage and divorce, poverty or anything else is answerable only to pragmatic consensus."

Henry of Arlington, Va., has taught at numerous seminaries, was the founding editor in chief of the influential evangelical fortnightly, Christianity Today, and remains its editor at large. He also serves as lecturer at large for World Vision International.

An American Baptist, he has been a key organizer of evangelical conferences in the United States and abroad. His massive, five-volume work, the final volume of which is scheduled for issue in 1983 by Word Publishers, has been hailed by scholars as a penetrating, comprehensive treatment of biblical authority and modern issues.

Different faiths unite to help burned church

NEW YORK (AP) — In a show of brotherhood, Jews as well as Christians are contributing to the rebuilding of the Church of St. Luke in the Fields, a 160-year-old Greenwich Village landmark gutted by fire.

The congregation of Temple Emanu-El sent a $5,000 gift to express "brotherly concern." Several other Jewish groups also sent contributions.

The Rev. David R. Hunter, parish director of rebuilding, says contributions since the March fire have totaled more than $160,000 in 545 unsolicited gifts and pledges from 29 states and from Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium, but most from within the community.

Christianity Today's census of affiliations in Congress

The 97th Congress includes more Catholics and Jews than ever before, but the number of Baptists will drop slightly, CHRISTIANITY TODAY magazine found in its regular post-election census of Congress.

There are 119 Roman Catholics in the House and 17 in the Senate, for a total of 136. That's 7 more than in 1978, the previous all-time high. Among Jews, there are 26 in the House and 6 in the Senate, totaling 32. That's an increase of 2 since 1978. Jewish representation in Congress has grown steadily since 1972, when there were 14.

Three of 58 Baptists in Congress lost in the November 4 election. (The census does not pinpoint the various branches of the Baptist, Lutheran or Presbyterian churches to which members of Congress belong.)

Among clergymen, black Baptist pastors Walter Fautroy of Washington, D.C., and William Gray of Philadelphia were reelected, as was Robert Edgar, an ordained United Methodist minister. All three are Democrats. Robert Drinan, a Massachusetts Democrat and a Catholic priest, declined to run for reelection in light of the Vatican directive that Catholic clergy not run for elective political office.

Southern Baptist clergyman John Buchanan, an Alabama Republican, was defeated in a primary election by a Southern Baptist layman, Republican Albert Smith, Jr., who went on to win the general election. Buchanan was opposed in the primary by the Moral Majority organization as too liberal in his voting record. The Senate's only ordained minister is Republican John Danforth of Missouri, an Episcopalian, who did not face reelection this year. Neither did Republican Richard Lugar of Indiana, a United Methodist lay minister.

House majority whip John Brademas, an Indiana Democrat, lost reelection. He was the United Methodist representative on the central committee of the World Council of Churches.

After Roman Catholic, the church with the largest number is United Methodist, with 55 in the House, down 2 from 1978 and 16 in the Senate, also down 2 from 1978. Other totals follow, with 1978 census figures in parentheses:

Episcopal, 22 (20); Presbyterian, 33 (36); Baptist, 55 (58); Lutheran, 20 (19); United Church of Christ, 16 (16); Unitarian, 9 (12); Mormon, 11 (10); Churches of Christ, 6 (6); Eastern Orthodox, 5 (5).

Dinner and music planned

An old-fashioned gathering for worship, singing and dinner on the grounds to celebrate the Centennial will be held at Prairie View Baptist Church May 24.

Members of the church, friends, families and former ministers will gather together at 11 a.m. for the Centennial Homecoming celebration.

The program will include recognition of some of the oldest members of the congregation and former members, and a reading of the church history. Jerry and Kathy Pitman will present special music and guest ministers will speak.

Some of the finest food in the country, brought in covered dishes by the church ladies, will be served in an atmosphere of old-fashioned decor. Those who can are asked to dress Centennial.

Following the fellowship around the dinner table will be a brief program of singing favorite old-time hymns and special requests. The program should conclude at 2 p.m. with everyone's "cup running over."

The congregation and interim pastor, Jerry Pittman, of Prairie View Baptist Church, extends a cordial invitation to all members, former members, friends and citizens of Big Spring community to share in this celebration.

Ensemble will sing May 22

The Arlington Baptist College Ensemble, directed by Larry Brundage, will present a program of Gospel music at Faith Baptist Church, 1209 Wright, May 22 at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Dear Abby

Impotent Man Seeks Power of Suggestion

DEAR ABBY: I am 34 and have been married for seven months. Both my wife and I are still virgins because I am impotent. I have gone to my family doctor and he set up an appointment with a psychologist. My wife and I saw this psychologist for six weeks, then we quit going because it was too expensive and we weren't getting anywhere.

I read in your column that tight shorts could cut down a man's fertility. Is it possible that this loss of fertility could carry over to impotence?

A friend suggested I see a hypnotist. Does that make sense to you? Please help me, Abby, because my wife seems to think the problem is mine to solve. I can't go to my minister because I know him too well. Thanks.

IMPOTENT

DEAR IMPOTENT: One's fertility (or lack of it) has nothing to do with one's potency. Hypnosis can be a valuable therapeutic tool, but make absolutely certain that the hypnotist is competent and well-trained. If hypnosis fails, see a qualified sex therapist.

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice. I'm a 25-year-old newly wed woman who is against stag parties because I know they include strippers who are usually leeches. My husband (I'll call him Duffy) has been invited to a stag that's being given for a co-worker. He's not a particularly close friend — just a guy he works with.

Abby, I know what goes on at such parties. The girls undress for the men, dance with them, drink with them and a whole lot worse! I have told Duffy that I don't want him to go, but he says he has to go. He says he won't do anything, he will just go and watch.

Abby, in your opinion, should Duffy go to the stag or respect my wishes and stay home?

DUFFY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: If Duffy wants to go, he should go. It's your right to go where you want to go or stay away for your own reasons, but no one has the right to impose his (or her) wishes on another adult.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I decided to write to you about a disagreement we've had. My sister is going to the Cleveland Clinic next week for surgery. Her home is in Canada, but the clinic is only 65 miles from our home. I want to be near my sister, so I plan to stay at a motel near the clinic. My sister's husband plans to stay at the same motel, so to cut expenses we thought we'd share a room with twin beds.

I have known this brother-in-law for 13 years and we are very good friends. There is absolutely no physical attraction between us, never was, and never will be.

My husband is having a king-sized fit! He says he trusts me, and he trusts my brother-in-law, but he doesn't want us sharing a room. My sister doesn't see anything wrong with it.

What do you think? Hurry your answer.

PLAIN DEALER READER

DEAR READER: I don't see anything wrong with it either, but unless your husband is comfortable with that arrangement, don't double up with your brother-in-law. It could be a very expensive way to save money.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: One of the nicest gifts you can give someone who lives with a shut-in is a little time off. Call and tell the person who must spend 24 hours a day living with a shut-in that you would like to take over for an afternoon, an evening, or even an hour, so he (or she) can get out. What a lovely present that would be! Few realize that the companion (usually a relative) is as much a shut-in as the shut-in is.

Eastern Star officers elected at May 7 meeting

The Laura B. Hart Chapter No. 1019, Order of the Eastern Star, elected new officers May 7 at the Masonic Hall, 2101 Lancaster. Mrs. Marvin Steen was named worthy matron-elect, and Mr. Verlin Knous was named worthy patron-elect for the ensuing year.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Leroy McKendree, associate matron; Mr. E.A. Fiveash, associate patron; Mrs. Paul Malone, conductress; Mrs. Richard Sayers, associate conductress; Mrs. J. Audra Wright, secretary; and Mrs. Gordon Hughes, treasurer. The twenty-eighth installation of officers will be held June 20.

Presiding during the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sweatt, current worthy patron and worthy matron, who welcomed all present. Several visitors were present from Big Spring Chapter No. 67.

Hostesses for the evening meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Sweatt and Mrs. Sandy Huff. They served refreshments from a table covered with a white cloth and pink decorations which carried out Mrs. Sweatt's chosen colors.

A tea honoring grand officers of District 2, Section 8, was held recently at the

Credit Women's Club announces annual essay contest winners

The Credit Women's Club has announced this year's winners of the annual Ruth Apple Consumer Credit Essay Award. The purpose of the contest is to teach students about credit and also to celebrate National Credit Week, April 6-12.

This year's first place winner, receiving $25, was Joan Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Williams, 1418 Wood. Second place winner, receiving $15, was Cynthia Washington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Conner, 4006 Dixon. Brenda Clay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Clay, 2903 Goliad, was third place winner, and was awarded $10.

The topic for the essay contest, open to Big Spring High School students was "What Credit Means to Me". Entries were judged by members of the Credit Women's Club.

The essay contest is named for Ruth Apple, who was the co-owner and manager of the Credit Bureau, and promoter of the contest.

Newcomers begin Tole painting at next meeting

New projects were discussed by the members of the Newcomer's Handicraft Club at the May 6 meeting at Bonanza Steak House.

Wilma Grice, president, conducted a short business meeting for the seven members and one guest, Mrs. Trish Donaldson. The club decided to begin Tole painting. Members and newcomers are encouraged to bring something to paint on and a paint brush to the next meeting.

The next meeting will be at 1:30 p.m. May 20 in the home of Mrs. Grice, 2408 East 24th.

Officers installed at Country Club luncheon

New officers for the Permian Basin Medical Auxiliary were installed at the group's luncheon meeting Wednesday at the Big Spring Country Club.

Auxiliary leaders for 1981-82 will be Doreen Zilberg, president; Diane Rhodes, vice president; Maureen Haddad, secretary; treasurer; and Sheryl Cox, corresponding secretary.

Long-time Auxiliary member, Mrs. John Hogan, installed the officers. Table decor featured native West Texas floral arrangements of yucca and greasewood.

Plans for a gala holiday fashion show to help support Medical Auxiliary philanthropies are underway for early November.

Centennial parade plans were made. As "Harvey Girls", the club will depict waitresses who worked in the railway station restaurants.

The club adjourned for the summer.

Hidden salt content attacked by industry

There's more to cutting down on salt than taking the shaker off the table or passing up the salted snacks. Experts say that much of the salt in today's diets is consumed unknowingly, contained in processed foods. And efforts are under way by government and industry to tell shoppers how much salt they are getting in the foods they buy and to make it easier for them to cut consumption.

Among the examples: — A major supermarket chain, Jewel Food Stores of Chicago, announced recently that it was introducing a line of 10, private-label fruit and vegetable products with no salt or sugar added.

— General Foods Corp. has started labeling many of its products with the salt content when the amount of salt exceeds 35 milligrams per serving.

— The U.S. Department of Agriculture already requires some processed meat and poultry products to carry complete ingredient information — including the percentage of added salt.

The problem with salt is its sodium content; 40 percent of table salt is sodium and 60 percent is chloride. Many medical authorities say too much sodium in the diet can contribute to high blood pressure or hypertension.

The American Heart Association says a sodium intake of about two grams or 2,000 milligrams a day is adequate for good nutrition. That's about the amount of sodium in one teaspoon of salt.

Everyone seems to agree that more information about salt and sodium is needed. There are arguments, however, about whether the information should be provided on a mandatory or voluntary basis.

U.S. Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, has introduced legislation that would require manufacturers of processed foods with more than a given level of salt to label their products with the exact amount.

Michael F. Jacobson, executive director of the Center for Science in the Public Interest, wants to go one step further. He favors not only a labeling law, but also wants government regulations to restrict the amount of salt that can be added to processed foods. Virginia Knauer, President Reagan's assistant for consumer affairs, favors the voluntary approach, although she says legislation may be needed if manufacturers don't respond without prodding.

A new booklet being distributed by Cornell University helps consumers who want more information about salt. The booklet, "The Sodium Content of Your Food," lists almost 800 items and the sodium content of each. It costs $1 and is available from: Cornell Distribution Center, 7 Research Park, Ithaca, N.Y. 14850. Checks should be made payable to Cornell University.

Minister jailed for withholding information

MCKINNEY, Texas (AP) — Attorneys for a young Collin County minister say they hope to break new legal ground in Texas later this month when they appeal a contempt citation issued Thursday by a state District Court judge.

The Rev. Ronald Paul Salfen, a 33-year-old Presbyterian minister from The Colony, a Dallas suburb, spent five hours in the Collin County jail Thursday after he refused to answer questions about a counseling session he had with an employee of his church.

He was freed Thursday evening after the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ordered him released and set a May 27 appeal hearing on the Salfen's six contempt citations.

His incarceration stemmed from his refusal to answer six questions put to him last month by a county prosecutor. Salfen again refused to answer the questions Thursday when they were repeated by State District Judge John R. Roach.

"To answer the questions," Salfen told the judge, "would be contrary to the oaths and vows we take as ministers."

Salfen, minister of the Trinity Presbyterian Church in The Colony claimed the conversation about which he was asked was privileged since it took place during a pastoral counseling session.

Salfen was called as a character witness in an April 29 bond reduction hearing for Maud Williams, the church office secretary. Miss Williams faces retrial of a two-year-old drug possession charge.

She was arrested last month for allegedly jumping bail by traveling to the East Texas home of a friend.

At the April hearing, Salfen said he counseled Miss Williams on a drug problem the woman discussed with him before he hired her. But he declined to answer questions from Assistant District Attorney Bill Schultz about whether Miss Williams had mentioned any plans to leave Texas before her trial.

As his wife, Peggy, and nearly three dozen congregation members looked on, Salfen told Roach Thursday that the conversation with Miss Williams was "confidential in nature and representative of a sacred trust."

To violate the confidentiality of a pastoral counseling session, Salfen added, would subject him to possible censure or revocation of his ordination by the Presbyterian Church's governing body in Dallas, the Grace Union Presbytery.

But Roach remained unconvinced by the argument and at one point chided the pastor for not following church teachings "to obey the law."

To each of the questions put to him by the judge, Salfen replied, "I'm sorry, your honor, with all due respect I cannot answer."

Roach found Salfen in contempt for each of the unanswered questions and handed him a separate citation, a $100 fine and a 12-hour jail sentence six times during the hour-long proceeding.

The judge said Salfen would not be released from jail until he answered each of the questions to the best of his ability.

Roach ordered the courtroom cleared when Salfen's supporters rose from their seats and jeered the judge after he issued the first citation. After the outburst, he urged Salfen to preach to his congregation members on "the meaning of Christianity."

"I want you to know that I have never questioned your motives or sincerity," Roach told Salfen as the young minister was led from the courtroom by a deputy sheriff. "The court is not mad at you."

Salfen's lawyer, James "Max" Stewart of Dallas, filed a motion for a writ of habeas corpus with the criminal appeals court less than an hour after Roach issued the contempt citations.

Stewart argued Thursday that Texas statutes recognize conversations between a minister and congregation member as being confidential when they take place as part of a pastoral counseling session.

He said a provision in the statute allows a judge to compel testimony only during a "trial."

Reagan thanks 'GOP' hounds

SAN DIEGO (AP) — They may be local Republicans, but it's not too often that Tessa Jo Collins and Flash Silva get letters from the president of the United States. The two, you see, are dogs.

But President Reagan apparently wasn't discriminating when he sent "thank you" notes to all those who wished him well after he was injured by a gunman's bullet March 31.

This week, the postman delivered a letter from the White House to Tessa Jo, a 9-year-old red Irish setter, and Flash, 7, a mixed cocker spaniel. Six weeks ago, their owner, Francesca Collins, had sent photos of the dogs to the president along with a letter expressing sorrow over the attempted assassination.

"What you need are two dogs like us to protect you," said the letter. There was this P.S. over their names signed by Ms. Collins:

"We are Republican dogs."

Scholarship applications being taken

Applications are now being taken for the $200 scholarship awarded by the National Secretaries Association to any prospective Howard County Junior College District student who plans a career in the secretarial field, announced Doris Huijbregtse, Director of Mid-Management Program at HC.

The recipient must carry at least 12 credit hours, one course of which must be shorthand, at the college throughout the year for which the scholarship is assigned. The recipient must be a secretarial science or transfer business major.

Interested persons should call Doris Huijbregtse at 263-6535 or the Howard College Financial Aids Office at 267-6311, ext. 32 for an application.

Vietnamese happy with injunction against Klan

HOUSTON (AP) — Vietnamese shrimpers won a federal injunction ordering Ku Klux Klansmen and American fishermen not to harass or threaten them said they plan to take advantage of the opening of shrimp season today without fear of violence.

"Twenty-five (Vietnamese) boats will go out Friday," said Nguyen Van Nam, who filed a lawsuit with other immigrants accusing the Klan and a group of Texas fishermen of trying to run them off Galveston Bay.

"I am satisfied. I think it's okay. I think it was better to fight this dispute in court rather than fight on the water," said Nguyen, who was a colonel in the Viet-name army. He invited other Vietnamese fishermen to a mid-morning "blessing of the fleet ceremony" in a small Catholic church.

The injunction, issued Thursday by U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald, specifically prohibits the defendants from parading in Klan robes in groups of two or more before the immigrants or placing gunmen in view of the resettled refugees with the intent of intimidating them.

But Ms. McDonald did not rule on a request by the Vietnamese for federal marshals or stepped-up Coast Guard patrols to protect them in the crowded bay where a 60-day season of relaxed restrictions opens this morning.

Vietnamese who board their net-shrouded shrimp boats docked side by side on the wharf known among Texas shrimpers as "Saigon Harbor" were not likely to see any of the defendants on the bay today.

American shrimpers said they usually don't work during the first two weeks of the season because the bay is crowded with part-time shrimpers "and they'll be running all over each other." The Americans hold their blessing of the fleet ceremony Aug. 6, one week before the main, unrestricted shrimping season begins.

Ms. McDonald deferred a ruling on a request to shut down three Klan-operated paramilitary training camps in Texas, saying that was a state matter and she understood Texas Attorney General Mark White planned to file a motion to intervene and argue for such an injunction later.

The Vietnamese had argued that the Klan had trained American shrimpers at the camps in anticipation of any violence. The defendants denied the claim.

Louis Beam, the "grand dragon" of the Texas Klan and one of the defendants, called the injunction a "victory" and said "it's not going to interfere with anything we are doing."

He said he has called a cross-burning ceremony on private property in the Galveston Bay area Saturday night "to honor this victory. The Klan will continue to exercise its lawful rights."

Defense attorney Sam Adamo did not disagree with Beam but said, "I would advise him to follow the court order."

Thursday's preliminary injunction forbids the Klan and the Texas fishermen from making "armed boat patrols" like the one that cruised the bay March 15 carrying about 20 Klansmen brandishing guns. The order prohibits cross-burnings in the area "without the consent of the owner of said property."

Ms. McDonald told Jody Collins, a shrimper named in the Vietnamese suit, "I understand the frustrations you have encountered in trying to solve the problem, but the Vietnamese fishermen are here and they have a right to be here." She said it was wrong "to invite the forces of violence to help."

Defendants in the case denied they had intimidated or threatened the Vietnamese, saying they only exercised their right to free speech. Defense attorneys argued the conflict between Vietnamese refugees who settled on the bay and

Americans who were already there was not a racial dispute but an economic one involving fears the Vietnamese were overfishing the bay.

The American fishermen have complained the Vietnamese are "subsidized" by the federal government and violate fishing laws and local customs. The dispute came to a head earlier this year when American fishermen said they turned to the Klan to help them because they got no relief from state or federal authorities. Since then three Vietnamese-operated boats have been burned.

Several Klan calling cards were left anonymously at offices and homes of Americans dealing with the immigrants, and one witness said she received three threatening telephone calls.

The Vietnamese also complained they were harassed by the March 15 Klan boat ride and threatened by a demonstration on how to burn boats given at a Feb. 14 Klan rally in a bay community.

Attorney Morris Dees, representing the Vietnamese, said the Klan boat ride was "reminiscent of the days when 'night riders' came to people's homes and children ran out screaming. This may be amusing to Mr. Beam, but this is intimidation."

Defense attorney Richard Cobb said, "It seems anything anybody does intimidates these people."

Horse race betting proposal delayed to prevent 'misery'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Tom Uher thinks a horse race gambling bill can bring nothing but political misery to the House, and his fellow legislators apparently agree.

House members refused Thursday, 53-74, to force Uher to sign a report that would have sent Rep. Craig Washington's bill legalizing pari-mutuel betting to the House calendar.

Uher, D-Bay City, is chairman of the House State Affairs Committee, which approved the bill, 8-7, Monday night. Uher voted against it.

Committee action does not become official, however, until the chairman signs a report certifying approval of a bill. The bill then goes to the Calendars Committee, which sets a date for floor action.

The horse racing bill has Rep. Craig Washington's priority number on it, guaranteeing it a place on the calendar within eight days after the Calendars Committee receives it.

But time is precious, since the legislative session ends June 1, and bills can't be considered for the first time in the final three days.

Washington, D-Houston, asked the House to suspend the rule requiring the committee chairman's signature.

Uher said he was waiting for the Legislative Budget Board to furnish an estimate of the fiscal impact the measure might have on local governments.

"When all this paper work is done ... I will sign the committee report," Uher said.

"The revised fiscal note is in my hands. I have a copy of it," Washington replied.

Washington said the issue was not horse race gambling but respect for House rules.

He said that as a committee chairman he had signed reports on numerous bills to which he objected.

"I've been cajoling and waiting for the last three days for Mr. Uher to do that," he said.

House failure to force Uher to sign the report, leaves the next move in the horse race wagering conflict to Uher.

Uher said earlier this week he was sure the Senate would kill the bill and he did not want House members pushed needlessly into voting on the highly emotional issue of horse racing.

He said the horse racing lobby, at this stage in the session, just wanted to force House members into making a voting record on the issue for use in the 1982 election campaigns.

"They (the horse racing lobby) put money into this thing and they are going to put real money into it next year," he said, referring to the 1982 legislative election campaigns.

209,820 Texas veterans, survivors share $785 million

More than 209,820 Texas veterans and 92,347 survivors of veterans shared in $785,100,946 paid during 1980 in the form of Veterans Administration compensation and pension.

VA Regional Office Director Jack Coker said that some 148,070 veterans receive compensation payments for service-connected disabilities, while 61,750 receive agency pension payments for non-service-connected disabilities.

Coker noted that 2,240 are female veterans and 584 were disabled during the Vietnam Era. Over 480 were disabled during World War II.

Noting the obvious important financial impact on Texas residents, Coker said that nationwide, these combined payments constitute nearly one-half of the VA's annual budget of $24.2 billion.

Outstanding Coahoma band members honored

Keith Bearden, associate director of bands at Texas Tech University was the keynote speaker at the Coahoma High School band banquet last night. The annual awards banquet was sponsored by the Coahoma Band Boosters to honor outstanding band members and senior students.

John Gibson, Coahoma band director, presented the John Philip Sousa award for outstanding band student to Louise Shive. In addition, Bruce Broughton, Neal Barbee, Debbie Ham, Lynn Brockman, Terri Jo Cook, Andy Spell and Eddie St. John were honored for their contributions as senior band members.

Gibson recapped the years experiences and addressed the 65 members and their guests. Special thanks were given to the band boosters for sponsoring the banquet and providing valuable assistance in raising money to send the band to Phoenix, Ariz., for the Mountain States Music Festival.

Summer registration at HC begins May 28

Registration for the first summer session at Howard College will be held Thursday, May 28, from 9 a.m. till noon, from 1-4 p.m., and from 6-8 p.m. in the College Library, according to Jan Dunagan, Registrar at Howard College.

Classes begin Friday, May 29, and will end Thursday, July 2.

A comprehensive schedule of classes is being offered. Ms. Dunagan is encouraging those who wish to enroll to call her office for specific information. She also reminded prospective students that Mary Dudley, Dean of Admissions at Howard College, is available for course planning for summer as well as for fall.

Students should make an appointment to see Mrs. Dudley as soon as possible.

Monday, June 1, will be the last day to drop or add a course.

Dorothy Garrett Award goes to Leslie Williams

Leslie Williams, a member of the graduating class of 1981 Howard College Associate Degree Nursing Program, was recently honored as the fifth annual recipient of the Dorothy Garrett Outstanding Student Award, announced Mary McClendon, Acting Director of the ADN Program at Howard College.

LESLIE WILLIAMS

The prestigious Garrett Award was established by the ADN Advisory Committee in 1977 to recognize the top nursing graduate in each class of the Howard College program.

Among the criteria used as a basis for selection of the recipient are: academic and clinical excellence, consistent participation in student and professional activities, leadership qualities, and outstanding inter-personal relationships with faculty, students and hospital personnel.

Mrs. Williams, in addition to receiving an individual plaque, was honored by her name being engraved on a permanent plaque on display in the Horace Garrett Building. The award was formally presented at the annual Nursing Convocation by Mrs. McClendon.

"Leslie has consistently shown excellence during her two years at Howard College," stated McClendon. "She is a worthy recipient of the award, which also honors a very gracious and generous lady, Mrs. Dorothy Garrett."

"Leslie has been a credit to her class, and will continue to be a credit to the nursing profession throughout her nursing career," concluded Mrs. McClendon.

Colorado City resident gets life for murder

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The 32nd District Court jury which found Anastacio Gutierrez guilty of murder Thursday set his punishment at life in prison plus a $5,000 fine.

District Attorney Rusty Carroll had called on the four-man, eight-woman jury to give the defendant the maximum possible sentence. In his summation, Carroll said, "here's your chance to show others that we don't put up with murder in our community." Gutierrez had been found guilty of shooting to death Joaquin Cantu June 15, 1980.

The 55-year-old man previously had been convicted of carrying a prohibited weapon on licensed premises. On that conviction, he was given a five-year probation sentence, which later was revoked and Gutierrez served time in prison.

State to lose up to $160 million

Budget cuts to affect Texas' spending

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — If President Reagan's budget plans are approved by Congress Texas will lose up to $610 million in federal funds for the 1982-83 state budget, says Gov. Bill Clements.

Texas legislators will just have to iron out the difference in compromise talks, Clements told a Thursday news conference.

Both houses have approved a 1982-83 spending bill but there is about $188 million difference in the totals. The final version sent to Clements will be written by a 10-member House-Senate conference committee.

And before the bill gets to Clements, Comptroller Bob Bullock must certify there is enough state revenue in sight the next two years to finance it.

In addition, Clements said, federal funds received by state agencies but not appropriated by the Legislature will be reduced by $80 million in 1982, and funds of direct assistance from the federal government to local governments will be reduced by $188 million.

Clements stressed he thought there also would be benefits.

"The reductions do not reflect the considerable increase in efficiency and effectiveness which will result from the block grant approach to distribution (of federal funds to state)," he said. "In the final analysis, considering the huge outlays by the federal government for administrative overhead and regulation the state may be able to deliver more services with available funds."

Figures furnished by the governor indicated federal budget cuts would reduce state highway funds by $20 million and health funds by $16 million. Medicaid would be increased by $15 million, other Human Resources Department activities would be down $79 million, and federal grants to the Texas Education Agency for public schools would be cut by $96 million.

Clements figures a $142 million decrease next year for sewage treatment construction grants to Texas but an increase of $145 million for food stamps and a $1 million increase for student aid. Higher education research grants would be reduced $23 million in Texas.

Direct federal assistance to local governments would be down $111 million for employment and training, down $19 million for economic and regional development, down $32 million for urban development and down $26 million for mass transit.

On other matters the governor:

— Said the "tent program" to ease crowded conditions in the state prison system was well underway with 102 large tents delivered to prison sites, accompanied by a National Guard colonel and major to furnish advice. More than 100 low-risk prisoners have been approved for transfer to halfway homes next week, he said.

— Said he felt the House passage of a bill that would repeal Texas' law against free education of alien children was "not timely." He said he wished the sponsors had waited until the state's appeal of the federal court order had been completed. He said he has not decided if he will veto the bill if it is approved by the Senate.

— Said he had not decided if he would support measures giving Prairie View A&M money from the Permanent University Fund. "I want to see the final result of those negotiations and see just how much Prairie View would get," he said.

Texas man places in dice contest

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A California man has won the first World Series of Craps, beating out 900 other hopeful dice-rollers to take home $65,000 in first-place prize money.

"I feel elated," said Ken Meserve of San Jose. "All this publicity, I'm not used to that. I'm the guy who stands in a corner."

Meserve's victory came because he had the most money at the end of the one-hour final round Thursday at the Riviera Hotel.

He had $1,400 left, and was followed by Herschel Zinn of Harlingen, Texas, with $1,275, and Gino Tozzi of Sterling Heights, Mich., who had $1,046.

The tournament at the Strip resort began Monday and attracted 900 people who each paid a $250 entry fee and put up $750 at the start, said tournament spokesman Jim Overstreet.

Each round lasted one hour and those having the most money at the end of the round advanced to the next.

Land swap in West Texas provides new state park

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A 300,000-acre public park near the Big Bend National Park will result from an acre-for-acre trade the state is making with a West Texas Rancher, says Gov. Bill Clements.

"This is a marvelous acquisition for the people of Texas," Clements told a Thursday news conference, "and I think we made a good deal."

He said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton had been in on the final negotiations.

House members opened the way for the massive land trade when they approved a resolution urging the University of Texas to trade 190,000 acres it owns between El Paso and Del City for the same number of acres owned by the Diamond "A" Cattle Co.

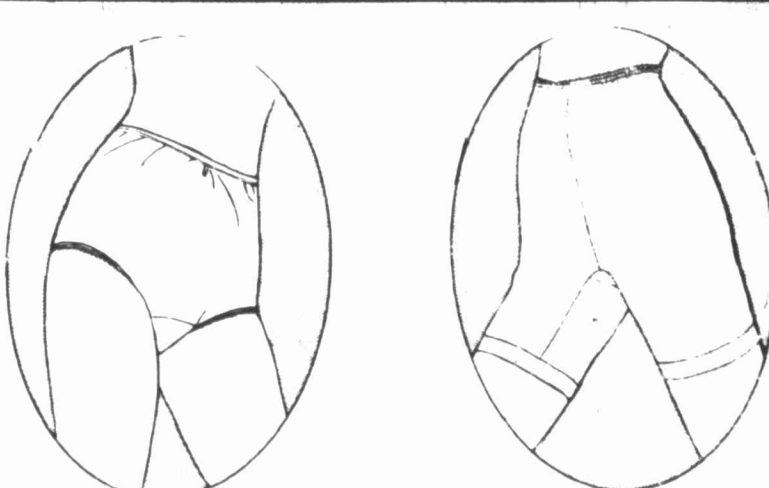

Clements said the state land was valued at about $50 a acre while the land owned by Robert Anderson, former U.S. secretary of treasury, was valued at $75 an acre — with the state retaining mineral rights on both parcels of land.

He said he understood two land syndicates had offered Anderson up to $23 million for the land.

"It's entirely possible there will be energy production on the property some day although there are no oil or gas wells on the Anderson ranch now. ... I'm sure there will be exploration for all kinds of minerals. I think this can be carried on without harming the ecology of the area," Clements said.

Clements said the plan was to put the 190,000 acres with about 60,000 acres the state owns and then acquire another 50,000 acres from private sources to make a 300,000-acre state park or wildlife area. The land includes 28 miles of frontage on the Rio Grande, and part of the Anderson ranch is less than 10 miles from Big Bend National Park.

After the land is obtained by the University of Texas, it would be leased to the Parks and Wildlife Department for development.

The Celtics won the sixth game by defeating the Houston Rockets by a score of 101-91 to gain their 14th World Championship.

Hold off fourth quarter Rocket rally Bird led Celtics claim NBA

HOUSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics were drinking champagne while Houston's Moses Malone sipped Gatorade but the Rockets suddenly talkative center didn't budge from his opinion of the National Basketball Association champion Celtics.

"I still think we are the best team but they are the world champions and you have to give them respect," Malone said Thursday night shortly after the Celtics had defeated the Rockets 102-91 to win their 14th NBA title. "I didn't say they were a bad team, I just said they could be beat."

"But they came to play and they paid their dues and that's why they are the world champions."

Malone, normally a quiet, unassuming star of the Rockets, created a furor in Boston prior to Tuesday's fifth game when he said he could take four players from his hometown of Petersburg, Va., and beat the Celtics.

Following Boston's 109-80 victory Tuesday, Malone refused to back away, adding that after the sixth game, the Celtics would be drinking Gatorade instead of champagne.

But Moses proved less a prophet than a basketball player and the Celtics weren't about to let him forget his error.

"He knows we're the champions now," said Celtic forward Larry Bird, who broke out of a series scoring slump with 27 points including a back-breaking three-point shot in the final minutes. "If he hadn't said anything, I think they could have given us a better game."

"We had the carbons of what he said and it really fired us up. He shouldn't have said something like that coming into the Garden. We worked harder than anybody in the league and we deserved everything we got."

But Malone didn't think his words lost the game.

"I have no regrets about what I said. I just said the things that I felt. (Cedric) Maxwell said some things too but nobody made a big deal about that," Malone said.

Maxwell, voted the most valuable player of the championship series, said earlier that the winner of the Eastern Conference finals between Boston and Philadelphia would win the NBA title.

The Rockets appeared headed for another blowout at the start of the fourth quarter when they trailed by 17 points but they cut the lead to 86-83 with 4:23 to go to provide one more thrill for the 16,121 Summit fans.

"Houston had all the reason in the world to quit but they kept fighting back and you've got to give them credit for that," Boston's Rick Robey said.

Celtics guard Chris Ford said, "We just played Celtics style basketball. This team has stayed together all year. There are no egomaniacs on this team."

Bird, who had been held to eight points in two consecutive games by the defensive work of Houston's Robert Reid, hit a three-point play in the final minute that spelled the end of Houston's comeback.

"That's what killed us," said Calvin Garrett, who was screened away from Bird on the play. "I just got stuck under the basket."

Reid, the emotional leader of the Rockets throughout the playoffs, admitted there were tears in his eyes as the final seconds ticked off in the game.

"They were not tears because we lost but for the Rockets fans who stayed around and gave us a standing ovation," Reid said. "They could have left at the end of the third quarter but they stayed."

"I think we held up our part in making this an NBA championship caliber series. We showed at the end that the underdog still had a little bit of fight left in him."

Big Springer honored with Wilt Chamberlain, Jo Jo White and many others

Ebling named to Kansas Hall of Fame

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

Big Spring resident Ray Ebling had to wait some 44 years for the appropriate honor, but after being inducted into the University of Kansas Athletic Hall of Fame earlier this month, undoubtedly realized that it was an elite membership that can always be remembered with great pride.

Ebling, who retired here after working for many years as an executive with American Petrofina in Big Spring, joined many other highly visible names on the induction list on May 2. Among those names are such former roundball greats as Wilt Chamberlain, Bill Bridges, Jo Jo White and Ray Evans, but also such recent stars as Darnell Valentine and Lynette Woodard.

Most basketball fans remember the men that Ebling joined in the Kansas Hall of Fame, but would overlook Woodard, Woodard, however, was voted the outstanding female collegian the past season.

Ebling earned the KU Hall of Fame by making All-American honors for two straight years in the 1935 and 1936 basketball seasons. As well as the First Team All-American honors, Ebling was also an All-Big Six (now Big Eight) performer for three years.

His college coach at Kansas was the legendary Phog Allen, regarded by most of his peers as one of the all-time great basketball mentors. And that's the way Ebling recalled him, as "just a great coach."

As well as the personal honors, Ebling's Kansas Jayhawk basketball team won the Big Six Conference title two years, advancing as far as the semifinals of the Olympic Playoffs in 1936.

At that time, there was no NBA. But Ebling did pick up with a sort of professional team, playing with the Phillips Sixers. That was a group of former outstanding collegians sponsored by Phillips Petroleum that traveled to play other outfits that were operated on a similar level.

"That Phillips Sixers team was a great team," recalled Ebling, who played on the unit for five years. "Nine of the 10 players on it were All-Americans."

In fact, the 1940 Phillips team of which Ebling was a member won the US Olympics Playoffs, and were to represent the United States in the 1940 Tokyo Olympics. But as in the case of the 1980 Olympics in Montreal, political reasons, in Ebling's case the soon to be World War II, nixed that potentially glorious trip.

Most of the inductees into this year's KU Hall of Fame were in attendance, including Chamberlain and White, who both played on NBA championship teams and were All-Pro. Ebling visited with the other Hall of Famers, and said that most of the talk regarded the past.

"Most of our conversation was just about the good old days," he reminisced. "A lot of the stories were about Phog Allen and various teams that we all played under him."

Ebling's statistics might not be worthy of All-American honors by today's standards, but the game was much different then. For instance, at the time of his graduation from Kansas, Ebling had the all-time KU point per game average, 12.5 a contest. He also had the best scoring average in a single season at 14.4 per game.

But that is worth All-American mention when considered that the highly successful Kansas Jayhawk teams that Ebling played for set a school scoring average per game, achieving a norm of 42.4 points per game. In fact, Ebling led a KU charge during his stay that resulted in a school record 63 points in one game, a win over the Oklahoma Sooners.

And that change in scoring is one big contrast in comparing the game then and now, according to Ebling.

"The biggest change from then and now are rule changes and the emphasis on offense," said Ebling. "Back then, we didn't have the 10-second rule and three-second rule."

What he is referring to is the three-second in the lane rule and the 10-seconds to cross half-court rule. That final rule limits the effectiveness of a full-court press, and subsequently limits turnovers and the increased ability to fork points on both ends.

"Today, more and more emphasis is seemingly put on the offense, and less on defense," Ebling philosophized. "And that's not only true in basketball, but in football and some other sports. But I guess that's good, because they are both more of spectator sports, now."

Tired Steers set for Saturday scrimmage

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

The Big Spring Steers conclude their second week of spring training for the upcoming football season with a Saturday afternoon scrimmage at two, and Coach Ralph Harris is hoping that his squad will have more energy than has at times been displayed this week.

"We're dragging, tired, sore, worn down and beat up," the BSHS mentor said this morning in discussing the week's practice. "But we've pushed 'em pretty hard and demanded a lot of their time and energy in the last two weeks. It's just that time of spring training."

The dragging feet is to be expected, and progress can still be made during such times. One area of improvement that in many times is overlooked by the outsider is in the coaching staff.

Williams in cast

Big Spring's All-District running back, Bobby Earl Williams, will be missing from the remainder of spring training as he is in a cast suffering from torn ligaments.

Williams had his knee set in Lubbock on Tuesday after being examined by a physician, but fortunately didn't have to undergo the knife. The cast is expected to be taken off June 2.

He hasn't been the only casualty, as Jody Dawdy also tore ligaments in his knee.

Williams, a senior-to-be who also was All-District in basketball, suffered the injury during an off the field accident on Sunday.

gaining ground from the coaching staff. As a staff, we are learning a great deal. We are adapting to what we need to prepare for next year, and pleased with what we've found out, both from the capabilities of the personnel and in our attack," said Harris.

While much of the first week was devoted strictly to the fundamentals of the game and the Steer attack, the second week has dealt more in terms of the opposition.

"From our defensive standpoint," Harris related, "we're looking at the offensive structure that teams in this part of the state will be coming at us with. In our case in this district, it's the power type of attack."

"From an offensive standpoint," continued the Steer mentor, "we've looked a great deal at the overloaded defense that we faced much of last year and probably will this year. That's when the opponents puts eight men up on the line to stop our running game. We've worked on adjusting to that. We haven't looked real polished against it, but we're making progress."

Harris mentioned that the varsity players will be working against the varsity players in the scrimmage, and the JV and sophomore squad for next year working against each other. Those younger players have been a bright spot for the team, said Harris.

"We're real pleased with the enthusiasm from the youngsters," mentioned Harris. "We've got some kids that aren't really sure if they want to pay the price yet. As I've said, we've demanded a lot of them, and a few of them have left us. Some were players that the coaching staff felt would make a big contribution to our program. But the ones that are with us are giving us the maximum. I give a lot of credit to the junior high and JV coaches that are working with them, too. They're making it so that the younger players are having a lot of fun and getting better at the same time."

While all of the gridders have worked extremely long and hard thus far, Harris stated that it would ease up in the final week.

"It should be more fun next week. We'll split them up into teams in the middle of the week and let them polish everything up, as well as putting in their trick plays in preparation for the spring game. We've only got a couple of more hard days of work. We have scheduled a real light workout today, hopefully to let them be rested for tomorrow's scrimmage," said Harris.

Astros relievers blow huge lead

HOUSTON (AP) — What happened to the Houston Astros' bullpen Thursday should be declared a disaster.

St. Louis stormed back from a 6-1 deficit to take a 7-6 win over the Astros Thursday, and even the Cardinals admitted it was somewhat phenomenal.

"In my opinion, they've got the best bullpen in the major leagues," said first baseman Keith Hernandez.

"What are the odds of scoring four runs (in the ninth) off those guys? Nine times out of 10, those guys will save the game for you."

Houston used all three of its relief aces after starter Bobby Sprowl was lifted after seven fine innings.

Dave Smith, Joe Sambito and Frank LaCorte were all victimized by the Cards' late-inning barrage that brought in two runs in the eighth and four more in the ninth.

George Hendricks' two-run double in the eighth pared Houston's lead to 6-3 at Smith's expense. After Smith walked Tommy Herr to start off the ninth, Sambito replaced him.

Sambito, 1-3, fared little better. A single by Mike Ramsey and Rafael Landestoy's error loaded the bases and Hernandez drew a walk to cut the lead to 6-4.

Then came LaCorte, who gave up another two-run double to Hendricks, and after an intentional walk, a run-scoring grounder by Orlando Sanchez.

"We made two bad plays in the ninth," said Astros manager Bill Virdon, referring to Landestoy's error and Sanchez's ground ball, either one of which could have been turned into a double play.

After consoling old friend Zimmer has no mercy

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Just 24 hours after he encouraged his old high school buddy, Jim Frey, to keep plugging away, that the sun will soon shine, Don Zimmer did his best to add to Frey's woes.

But, it was all in a day's work. Pat Putnam's tie-breaking home run in the eighth inning and Doc Medich's pitching led Texas to a 3-2 victory over the staggering Kansas City Royals Thursday night, handing the American League champions their 17th loss in 24 games.

Texas Manager Zimmer and Kansas City Manager Frey have been close friends for more than 30 years. And Zimmer's concern was obvious.

"I was with him last night for dinner," said Zimmer. "I know how terrible he feels. He never went through something like this before. He was a first-year manager last year and they went straight to the World Series. I told him you've got to take it in stride. I told him the manager can't drop his head, because if he does, the players will drop theirs."

"I told him they're too good a club to keep going like this."

The Royals, whose 7-17 record is the worst in the league and trails only the Chicago Cubs' for major league futility, suffered a double blow. George Brett, who batted .390 last season and won AL Most Valuable Player honors, was injured sliding safely across home plate in the fourth inning. A team spokesman said X-rays indicated strained ligaments in the right ankle, and the all-Star third baseman will be lost for at least a week.

It was the second time in less than two weeks Putnam has beaten the Royals with a tie-breaking home run. His 10th-inning blast off Juan Berenguer May 3 lifted the Rangers to a 9-8 victory.

North Stars better, but not enough

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The Minnesota North Stars looked more like their usual selves Thursday night but, unfortunately for them, the New York Islanders looked a lot like their old selves and cracked out a 6-3 victory in Game 2 of the Stanley Cup Finals.

The North Stars had scrambled back from a two-goal deficit to tie the game 3-3, but the defending National Hockey League champion Islanders then exploded for three straight goals in an eight-minute span to go ahead 2-0 in the best-of-seven series.

"We looked more like ourselves tonight, but obviously it wasn't enough," said Minnesota Coach Glen Sonmor. "We were a lot more in this game than we were the other night. At 3-3, I felt very good about our chances to win."

Pleasant Colony 5-2 favorite at Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — The sons of two Hall of Fame trainers, doing quite well in their own right, are taking a shot at Pleasant Colony in the Preakness.

Jack Gaver will saddle Woodchopper, while David Whiteley is training Pleasant Colony.

The Derby winner, owned by Buckland Farm and trained by Johnny Campo, also is a come-from-behind colt. With Jorge Velasquez riding, Pleasant Colony has been established as the early line 5-2 favorite over 13

Highland Blade for Saturday's 106th running of the second leg of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

Both colts are late closers who finished second to Buckland Farm's Pleasant Colony in their last starts.

Woodchopper, owned by Greentree Stable, was the runnerup by three-quarters of a length to Pleasant Colony in the May 2 Kentucky Derby. In his last start, the April 18 Wood Memorial, Pen-Y-Bryn Farm's Highland Blade finished three lengths behind rivals for the 13-16 mile test, a 16th of a mile shorter than the Derby distance.

Woodchopper, the Louisiana Derby winner, was rated the second choice at 4-1. Highland Blade, winner of three of four starts this year including the Everglades, was listed at 8-1.

Gaver, who succeeded his father, John Sr., as Greentree trainer in 1978, has saddled Eclipse winners Bowl Game and Late Bloomer.

Saturday, Woodchopper, a son of Hatched Man-Musical Chairs, will go from the No. 9 post position under Eddie Delahoussaye.

ABC will present its Preakness program from 5-6 p.m. EDT. Post time is 5:38 p.m. EDT.

After first round at Colonial

Floyd's theory worth lead

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — On a day when Bruce Lietzke flirted with disaster, and Tom Watson found it, Ray Floyd proved his theory that consistency is the secret to winning golf.

The swashbuckling Floyd forged a near-flawless 4-under-par 66 to earn a share of the lead entering today's second round of the $300,000 Colonial National Invitation.

He and burly Mike Sullivan led the select field by a stroke over Fuzzy Zoeller, Tom Kite and Rod Curl.

"I have a theory on good play," Floyd said after Thursday's opening round.

"If you keep giving yourself chances, you'll win. The key is consistency. If I can get up in the top five week in and week out, my victories will come."

"No player out here is going to win every week. I had four double bogeys in Dallas last week and it's not often you can do that and still finish in the top six."

Floyd, twice a winner this year, bagged birdie putts of two, 18, 12, seven and eight of the last five holes and salvaged a par 70.

"I don't know where my mind was, but it wasn't on Colonial," he said.

"I don't want to do anything foolish and give the tournament away. I don't think you win tournaments on Thursday or Friday. I just want to be in position to win on Sunday."

Watson, the reigning Masters champion, dumped two shots in the water at the par-3 13th, took a horrendous eight and limped in with a 76.

"There aren't too many comments you can make on a round like that," he grumbled.

Aged long jump mark in jeopardy

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two Class 5A jumpers took aim today on the oldest record at the schoolboy track and field meet — the state long jump record of 25 feet 13 inches.

The record was set 22 years ago by Dudley Haas of Corpus Christi Ray and has withstood all challenges.

By virtue of his victory at the Byron Nelson Sunday, Lietzke could capture the $200,000 Texas Bonanza with a triumph here.

But he almost shot himself out of contention with a "mental lapse" on the back nine, bogeying three holes in a row.

He regrouped, birdied two

Valenzuela wins another despite Expos homers

By The Associated Press
 Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers has made believers out of a lot of people in baseball — and nobody believes it more today than the Montreal Expos.
 For the second time in 12 days, Valenzuela beat the Expos with some late-inning help from the explosive Dodger bats.
 Earlier in May, Valenzuela whipped the Expos 6-1 in 10 innings as the Dodgers erupted for five runs in the 10th. Thursday night, the Dodgers pulled out another one for their nifty rookie, 3-2, on Pedro Guerrero's leadoff homer in the ninth.
 Before Guerrero's dramatic homer off Steve Ratzler, Valenzuela had given up a game-tying, two-out solo homer to Andre Dawson in the top of the

NL Roundup

The 20-year-old sensation thus raised his record to 8-0 and equalled an accomplishment of Dave "Boo" Ferriss of the Boston Red Sox, who won his first eight decisions as a rookie starter in 1945.
 The homer was the second of the game by the Expos and only the second of Valenzuela in 892-3 innings.

AL Roundup

The victory was the Angels' fifth in a row — Milwaukee has been the victim three times — while the Brewers lost for the seventh time in their last eight.
 In other American League games, the New York Yankees downed the Oakland A's 9-5, the Texas Rangers edged the Kansas City Royals 3-2, the Baltimore Orioles crushed the Toronto Blue Jays 10-0 and the Boston Red Sox outslugged the Minnesota Twins 9-7 in 11 innings. Chicago and Cleveland were not scheduled while Seattle and Detroit were rained out.

 The Brewers averted what would have been their sixth shutout of the season when Don Money homered in the sixth inning.
 Yankees 9, A's 5
 Dave Winfield drove in the tie-breaking run with a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning and Reggie Jackson walloped an insurance three-run homer while relief ace Rich Gossage held Oakland scoreless on two hits over the final 21-3 innings, recording six strikeouts.
 With the game tied 5-5, Barry Foote opened the New York eighth with a single off reliever Jeff Jones. Pinch runner Larry Milbourne beat the throw to second on Bucky Dent's sacrifice and a bunt single by Willie Randolph led the bases. Bobby Murcer, who hit a two-run homer in the first inning, tapped into a force at the plate before Winfield came through with his sacrifice fly and Jackson slammed his fifth home run of the season.
 Orioles 10, Blue Jays 0
 Mike Flanagan hurled a five-hitter in shutting Toronto out for the second time in two weeks and Wayne Krenchick led a 17-hit attack by driving in three runs. It also was Baltimore's second shutout in as many nights against Toronto, coming on the heels of Scott McGregor's three-hitter Wednesday night.
 Krenchick doubled home two runs in the second inning and singled a run across in the fifth while Rick Dempsey and Eddie Murray hit solo home runs.

SENIOR LEAGUE — The Gartman-Johnson Trojans pulled to an 18-5 win over the Rebels in women's softball action last night, boosting their record to 2-0 in the process.
 Chris Tamburini was the winner for the Trojans, benefitting from a 12-hit attack from his mates.
 David Moore led the Trojans hitting with two triples and two singles, with Alvin Rocha adding a double and two singles. Clark Dunham had a triple and single, Mike Leuschner a triple and Arthur Iatas a single.
 Fabian Salazar and Jay Porras had hits for the Rebels. The losing pitcher for the Rebels, now 0-2, was Michael Dood.
UOFA (DIVISION IV) — Gary's Welding Blue Demons of Big Spring eked out a 12-11 win over the Snyder Silver Streaks in women's softball.
 Leading the Big Spring hitting charge with one hit each were Cassie Abernogy, Elise Wheat, Bea Magers, Karl Robinson and Sandy Puga. They all had singles.
 Snyder's Nancy Wood had three singles and Izzy Rios a homer, but it was not enough for the Silver Streaks. Bunny Roe chipped in with two hits and Teresa Smith one for the Silver Streaks.
 Cynthia Hernandez was the winning pitcher, with Rios the loser.

WHAT CAN YOU DO — Los Angeles Dodger Jay Johnstone (21) exclaims "what can you do" as he smiles through shaving cream in the dugout before the game against the Expos in Los Angeles Thursday. Teammates Steve Yeager and Rick Monday had just dumped a bucket of shaving cream over him as he was giving a radio interview, Johnstone is wearing the radio microphone.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Coahoma High School Rodeo Club would like to say a big THANK YOU to the following people who contributed to the success of our rodeo. Without the help of those and many others we would be unable to have this rodeo. We do appreciate what you do for us. For the use of the arena. Thank you to Mr. Donald Lay and Alvin Luce, and Wendell Shive for moving the bleachers. The Coahoma High School for donating the bleachers.

Show me a woman with ten kids & I'll show you an overbearing woman.

 Bartender to male customer: "Your wife has my sympathy, I don't understand you either."

 Minister to congregation: "Contrary to popular belief, there are still a few no-no's."

 Talk about born losers ... I know a person who picked up a seashell on the beach, put it to his ear and got a busy signal.

 You'll be a winner when you shop at Big Spring Seed & Chemical, 602 N.E. 2nd, where you can still get "some varieties" of cotton seed. We have a big supply of Sancap & rats bolts & spray parts. Shop with us for "value."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening which you can use to best advantage by investigating whatever has been puzzling you in the past. You can then devise a plan to gain your goals more readily.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure you handle your regular duties in a conscientious manner at this time. Show that you are a thoughtful person.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take time to analyze where you are headed in your career. Don't lose your temper over a situation that displeases you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get busy attending to home duties early in the day. Plan time for a little entertainment in the evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be with your loved one as much as possible today and increase happiness. Relax at home tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Do nothing to irritate any family members and maintain harmony and happiness. Be more tolerant of others.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) It is important that you be most careful in motion today and tonight and avoid possible accident. Relax and ease tensions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be most careful in the handling of money matters today and avoid being a loser. Think along more constructive lines.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Not a good day or evening for the social side of life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be objective in handling a personal problem at this time. Engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Personal matters need your attention today, so forget friends for the time being. Sidestep a troublemaker.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan time to handle personal responsibilities early in the day. Taking any risks with money would be most unwise now.

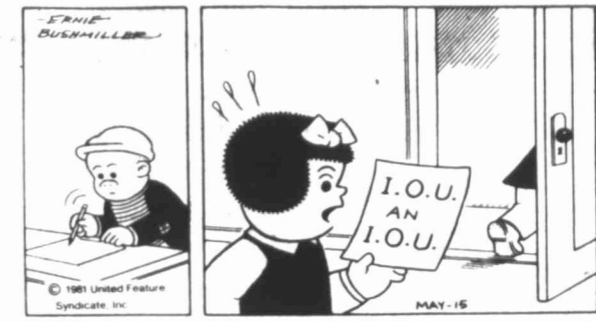

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) New ideas come to you but don't take any action on them now. Study them further. Establish more order around you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who will create problems just for the fun of showing how well they can be solved, so teach to search for harmony instead. Religious training is important. One who will excel in sports.

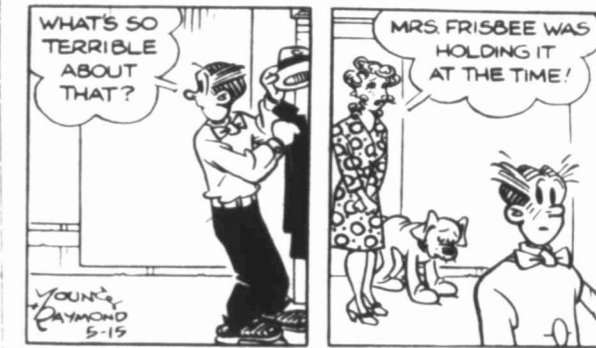

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Hollywood Deal in Ireland film life of Bobby Sands

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Hollywood Deal takes a field trip...

Drew Cummings, a self-described "writer-producer-director," is going underground in Ireland in the next two weeks to research the life of Bobby Sands for a movie he's going to write (and possibly produce-direct, too).

Cummings will fly to Ireland, where he will meet a British journalist, who'll act as his intermediary to the underground Irish Republican Army. Cummings says he will be blindfolded and taken to a secret location in the nether reaches of the IRA underground network.

Gee, it sounds like more fun than taking a meeting at Ma Maison.

Cummings has done most of his writing-producing-directing in television's "reality" circus, most recently for CBS' late (and not much lamented) "That's My Line."

His two other current projects are also reality-oriented — a script about a Southern garbageman who was jailed for going through trash to find Christmas gifts for his kids, and the ongoing case of the surrogate mother who wants to keep her child.

Cummings said he hasn't yet made a deal with any TV network for the Bobby Sands story, although he sees it as a possible movie-of-the-week. TV movies have demonstrated a regrettable inclination toward biopics lately, although the case of Bobby Sands might be too volatile even for TV's reality-into-entertainment grinder. Nah, probably not.

"I'm looking forward to a lot of repercussions," says Cummings. "Publicity will not hurt. Possibly, I'll be stopped by authorities in Dublin."

With any luck, Cummings is "changing" in right now. People want to be informed, that's why '60 Minutes' is the No. 1 show. People want real life situations as they can relate to it, not as it is in actuality. Enough said.

Michael Reagan quits company over letter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michael Reagan, saying he is "tired of having to explain" his actions, plans to resign from a company for which he wrote a letter soliciting contracts from U.S. military bases and mentioning his father, the president.

White House officials, insisting there was nothing improper in the letter, said President Reagan has asked the White House counsel to advise Michael and other members of the first family on avoiding "even the appearance of impropriety" in future business dealings.

The March 24 letter in which Michael Reagan referred to his father was written on behalf of Dana Ingalls Profile, a private military equipment supplier in Burbank, Calif., and sent to officials at Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma.

"I know that, with my father's leadership at the White House, this country's Armed Services are going to be rebuilt and strengthened," the letter said. "We at Dana Ingalls Profile want to be involved in that process."

In an interview Thursday with NBC News at his home in the San Fernando Valley, Michael Reagan said he would resign today as a vice president for marketing sales for the company, a job he had held since Feb. 27.

"Now, wherever I go, people are going to be afraid to do business with me because they don't know if the press is going to come in," he said. "I'm going to resign" today.

He said would begin searching immediately for another job. "I'm afraid to go help somebody do business or try and make a living."

Michael said he was "tired of having to explain" his job of talking to buyers and requesting permission to give quotes on business.

Spring Arts, Crafts Fair scheduled May 23

The first annual Spring Arts and Crafts Fair will be held Saturday, May 23, at the Dora Roberts Community Center and on the grounds surrounding Couden Lake.

The fair, which is being held in conjunction with the centennial celebration, will be one of the first outdoor shows of its type to be held in the city and will offer a different selection of arts and crafts.

The fair will be open to the general public from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. There will be no admission charge. Entries in the fair will include many unique items that have been available to the local area artists and art shows.

Talking about the change in selection, Mel Prather, chairman of the fair with Louis Tallant, said "an outdoor show attracts a different type of entry than an indoor show. And even though we will have many booths inside the center, there will still be a lot of entries on the grounds surrounding both the center and the lake," Prather said.

"As a result, persons who are going to be outside tend to offer a different type of arts and crafts."

As to what might be expected from the fair, Prather said that "it will provide a large selection of wood and brass items, as well as shell crafts, clay sculpture, stained glass, metal sculpture, scrimshaw, candles, jewelry, welded art, macrame, and live plants," he said. "In addition, we will also have the traditional oil paintings by many top artists that people have come to expect from the local art shows."

Entries for the fair are coming in from a large area and include numerous entries from surrounding communities who will be making their first appearance in Big Spring. Prather said they were needing to provide a drawing of the center and the grounds because of the large number of entries and because of the change in the lake due to heavy rains this year.

"We also hoping to rent some large scout tents from area scout troops to use during the day," he said. "This would not only assist those persons who fail to bring their own covering, but would also do a great deal to bring both the inside and outside sections of the show together."

He went on to say that persons interested in renting tents to the local group for the fair should contact him at Citizens Federal Credit Union. "We plan to offer a fair price for the use of the tents," Prather added.

The group has also announced contingency plans in case there should be a
