THE GIPPER AND THE COACH — President Ronald Reagan and motion picture actor Pat O'Brien embrace as they appeared together at the commencement exercises at Notre Dame University in South Bend, Ind. They appeared together in the movie "Knute Rockne, All American" in 1940 and Sunday each received honorary degrees.

Reagan returns to Notre Dame to reminisce about movie role

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Greeted warmly as "the Gipper" but protected heavily as the president, Ronald Reagan was back at Notre Dame reminiscing about the role that gave him his big break in pictures and reciting the themes that carried him to the White House.

Nostalgia marked the day and extremely tight security surrounded the president Sunday as Reagan chose the university's 136th commencement for his first public appearance outside Washington since he was shot in an assassination attempt seven weeks ago today. The trip lasted slightly more than six hours, ending back in Washington before dark.

For Reagan, it was a return to the campus that he has said "has a very secure place in my heart."

It was in South Bend that the Notre Dame football legend of Knute Rockne and George Gipp grew — a legend that, back in 1940, was to be the turning point of Reagan's movie career.

The president, wearing a protective vest beneath his academic robe, shared a platform at the Notre Dame Athletic and Convocation Center Arena with Pat O'Brien, who in the movie "Knute Rockne — All American" played Rockne, the coach to Reagan's Gipp, the halfback who died of pneumonia.

Also on the platform were U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim; former Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie, who instead of an honorary degree received a special university medal; Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kolek and at least one black-gowned Secret Service agent.

"Win one for the Gipper," he said at one point, weaving into his speech the most famous line from his 56 movies.

Reagan, playing Gipp on his deathbed, told his coach: "Someday, when things are tough, maybe you can ask the boys to go in there and win just once for the Gipper." The coach, eight years later with his Notre Dame team on the verge of defeat at the hands of Army, brought the players to life by calling on them at halftime to "win one for the Gipper." And they did.

After O'Brien, whom Reagan had not seen since taking office, received his honorary degree, Reagan gave the 81-year-old actor a presidential bear hug.

Pope celebrates birthday by leaving intensive care

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II was moved from the intensive care unit to a general care hospital room today, his 61st birthday. In St. Peter's Basilica, where the pope was wounded five days ago, 31 cardinals led prayers in a special birthday Mass.

Doctors said the pontiff had a restful night and woke up feeling well although running a slight fever.

The Rev. Romeo Panciroli, a spokesman, said the pope's doctors were inviting foreign doctors, "in view of the great interest expressed the world over for the pontiff's health." No names were released.

As the white-and-yellow Vatican flag fluttered outside in celebration, Cardinal Carlo Confalonieri, 87-year-old dean of the College of Cardinals, led a crowd of 6,000 in a birthday Mass in the basilica, the largest church in Christendom.

The pontiff's fellow patients planned to attend a second Mass for the same purpose late this afternoon.

In his intensive care room, the pontiff rose from his bed and sat in an armchair Sunday for the first time since a gunman pumped at least two bullets into him Wednesday in St. Peter's Square, hospital officials said. He celebrated Mass.

A medical bulletin this morning said the pontiff was still running a slight fever, with his temperature oscillating around 100.4 degrees.

In a brief, tape-recorded message broadcast by loudspeaker Sunday to 15,000 people in the square, and by radio to millions more in Italy and abroad, the pope said he had pardoned his attacker.

"I pray for that brother of ours who shot me, and whom I have sincerely pardoned," he said in a slightly slurred but steady voice.

Mehmet Ali Agca, the 23-year-old Turk charged in the shooting, was under heavy guard in Rome's police headquarters. In New York, the Turkish ambassador to the United States, Sukru Elegendad, described Agca as a hired killer for an international right-wing group.

Agca has insisted that he acted alone, but Italian police believe someone helped him escape from a Turkish jail in 1979 and travel through half a dozen European countries before the shooting.

Two prisoners are returned to jail

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Two prisoners being held in the Mitchell County Jail escaped briefly when they forced their way past a jailer Sunday morning.

According to Sheriff Wendell Bryant, "we were processing some people who had been picked up the night before when the jailer on duty, Sandy Parker, opened the main security door. Two prisoners, Darren Woody and George Miles, forced their way past the jailer, hitting her and another prisoner, who was in custody, making their escape from the jail complex to a weedy area about two blocks west of the jail. The men offered no resistance when apprehended."

Sheriff Bryant added "both these men have given us trouble before, especially Miles, ever since we picked them up."

Woody is being held on a transfer from the Texas Department of Corrections on a bench warrant for robbery. Miles was arrested following a grand jury indictment for robbery.

Sheriff Bryant concluded: "We intend to file attempted escape charges if the district attorney will concur."

Reagan's citation for honorary doctor degree said in part: "His vision now, as then, (when he was governor of California) has a simplicity about it...He asks direct questions. Can we have better government but less government?...He invites us to share the greater role in creating the future out of the best of the past."

The athletic center, which seats 12,500, was filled with 1,977 graduates, parents, friends and members of the academic community. Metal detectors were used to make sure no one brought in weapons.

'Miranda doctrine' applies

Court overturns death sentence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Murder defendants must be warned before psychiatric testing if the test results would be used after a conviction to help choose life or death as punishment, the Supreme Court ruled today.

The court said its controversial "Miranda doctrine," requiring that criminal suspects be warned of their rights to remain silent and to have a lawyer's help during questioning, applies to such situations.

By a unanimous vote, the court overturned the death sentence of convicted Texas murderer Ernest Benjamin Smith, who received no such warnings before or during a 1974 interview with a psychiatrist.

Today's ruling likely will affect at least 30 other death row inmates in Texas, and perhaps dozens more in the state. It also could affect death penalty procedures in Virginia and Oklahoma, according to one of Smith's lawyers, Joel Berger of New York City.

Porter and the appeals court, and added that the questioning also violated Smith's right to receive legal help — protected by the Sixth Amendment.

"If, upon being adequately warned, (Smith) had indicated that he would not answer Dr. Grigson's questions, the validly ordered competency examination nevertheless could have proceeded upon the condition that the results would be applied solely for that purpose," Burger said.

"In such circumstances, the proper conduct and use of competency and sanity examinations are not frustrated, but the state must make its case on future dangerousness in some other way," he added.

Three justices, Potter Stewart, Lewis F. Powell and William H.

Rehnquist, voted to overturn Smith's conviction only on the Sixth Amendment grounds.

Today's ruling did not overturn Smith's murder conviction. It had to do only with his death sentence, which was overturned.

In other action today, the high court:

—Sharply limited police officers' ability to question criminal suspects who ask to have a lawyer present during interrogation while in police custody. That case involved a man who was questioned by police without his lawyer present after he had the night before asked for a lawyer. The nine justices voted unanimously to overturn the convictions of Robert Edwards.

Dr. John White elects not to seek hospital post here

AUSTIN — Dr. John D. White, who expected to be named as Big Spring State Hospital's superintendent, said Monday he no longer will seek that post.

The Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Friday voted to postpone action on White's nomination until June, despite a three-member committee's recommendation that he be named to replace acting director Dr. Wallace Hunter.

"That's the way the ball bounces," White said. "I'm disappointed, but it's their loss."

White, former medical director of the George W. Jackson Community Mental Health Center in Jonesboro, Ark., said he will not wait until the board's June 26th meeting for another interview.

"Why should I? It (the position) won't have any interest to me. This is it as far as I'm concerned," White said, adding he was not angry about the board's decision.

White, who was interviewed by the MH-MR board in Austin Friday for the position, declined to discuss his present job situation but said there are "literally hundreds and hundreds" of jobs available.

White said the board gave him no reasons for the vote. But he said Joe Herson, MH-MR's chief of personnel and training, told him his qualifications weren't a factor in their decision.

MH-MR Commissioner John J. Kavanagh has not yet decided whether he will re-advertise the job or recommend to the board one of three applicants who applied with White, Emerson said.

An applicant must be either a physician licensed in Texas with specialized training in psychiatry, Emerson said, or a graduate with a degree in hospital administration, business administration or health care administration with eight years administrative experience.

No more than 5000 will be seated nightly for show

Final rehearsals take place Wednesday night in Memorial Stadium for "The Iron Horse Revue," which will be staged on the infield of the stadium starting at 9 p.m., Thursday.

The musical extravaganza, considered the showpiece of the Centennial Celebration here, will continue nightly through Wednesday, May 27.

The revue, boasting a cast of 450, uses Big Spring's first 100 years as a basis for its music and story.

Workmen were busy over the weekend repairing the damage to the show's stage, part of which collapsed when a wind storm hit the area Friday night. The workers secured many of the areas with guy wires to allay anybody's fears that the same thing might happen again.

Tickets for the "Iron Horse Revue" are still being sold at the Centennial Store.

"The Iron Horse Revue" lasts about two hours and will be followed by one of the most spectacular shows ever seen here — a laser program where images of familiar landmarks and individuals are bunched off lightposts and focused in the sky.

Only 5,000 seats will be available nightly for "The Iron Horse Revue," since the stage was set up to face westward. Memorial Stadium seats 10,000.

Gary Welz is director of the "Iron Horse Revue."

Luncheon ticket deadline nearing

Reservations for the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce luncheon scheduled at noon Thursday in the Garrett Coliseum must be made at the Chamber office no later than Tuesday.

Tickets for the luncheon sell for $4.25 each.

More hearty meals may be in offing for students

State-Heads Averts Bureau
AUSTIN — The state's public schools may be a step closer to being served a more hearty meal.

The Senate Finance Committee Thursday approved a bill which would fund certain public education costs through the state's general appropriations bill instead of a separate public education bill.

The measure, which now goes to the Senate, will give the state's public schools a larger slice of the budget pie, said Raymon L. Bynum, the Texas Education Agency's deputy commissioner for program administration and finance.

In the past, Bynum said, items such as teachers' salaries, public school operating costs and aid for educationally disadvantaged students have been funded by formulas set by law and drafted into a public education bill.

Since that bill can only be approved after the general appropriations bill, Bynum said, funds often are scarce or nonexistent.

In the 1980s, for example, teachers were denied a $600-a-year pay raise because the state comptroller was unable to certify additional monies once the appropriations bill passed, Bynum said, which often amounts to lean portions.

"We've always gotten what was left over," Bynum said.

The past three sessions it hasn't been so bad because the state has had surplus funds. But I'm not at all convinced we'll have them in the next five years," he said.

Homer Scace, the Legislative Budget Board's senior research analyst, said teachers fared better this session because a 1979 law allowing their salaries to be funded in the appropriations instead of the public education bill.

The House Appropriations Committee approved a 27 teacher pay raise and the Senate Finance Committee a 26 percent increase for the next two school years, Scace said.

Because the appropriations committees could consider salary increases above what the formula provided, the public school finance budget is $1.2 billion fatter, Scace said.

Teachers' salaries account for 70 percent of the public school finance budget, which now totals $6.6 billion, Scace said.

In the past, Scace said, lawmakers sometimes were forced to raise taxes to foot the public education bill — an unpopular move with voters.

But the proposal sponsored by Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland puts public education in a place where it can't be blamed for a tax increase, Scace said.

Rep. Kamp Atkinson of Texarkana, House Public Education Committee chairman, is carrying the bill in the House.

Carter claims human rights stand helped save thousands

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter says he did not invent the practice of speaking out for human rights but "thousands of people are alive and millions more have hope for the future" because he and other presidents did so.

Carter, speaking of the centennial dinner of the New York Board of Rabbis in his second public address since he left the White House, also urged continued negotiations toward nuclear limitation.

It is not realism but self-defeating cynicism to rule out any discussions which might ultimately control nuclear weapons and enhance the long-range prospects for peace," Carter said Sunday night.

Referring to reports that the Reagan administration was "pulling back from so-called 'intervention' in matters of human rights," the former president added: "The new policy is being proclaimed as one of so-called 'hardheaded realism' — making accommodation with evils practiced in countries which might be our allies, recognizing the limits of United States influence and reflecting a real political approach to foreign policy."

"Sometimes," he said, "this description includes a critique of my administration as having been naive and excessively idealistic, as having placed too much emphasis on human concerns and rights."

Carter got loud applause when he said he was "convinced there is a broad and pervasive conviction in this country that freedom and the dignity of human beings are fundamental values of the United States which are worthy of protection."

"Sometimes, I wish that we had been as idealistic and interventionist as our critics claim, because we might have helped a few more people," he said.

Saying that this nation's concern for human rights was "a strong weapon in our continuing competition with Soviet ideology," Carter said the United States has been "exporting concepts of liberty" for 200 years and should continue to do so "boldly and openly."

Envoy enlists support from Saudis in crisis

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. envoy Philip C. Habib was returning to his Syria-Lebanon-Israel shuttle today after a side trip to try to enlist Saudi Arabia's support for his mission to ease the threat of a new Mideast war.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said no deadline has been set for Habib's efforts to solve the showdown between Syria and Israel over Syrian missiles in eastern Lebanon.

Syrian President Hafez Assad warned again that any form of Israeli retaliation against Syrian missiles in Lebanon would not be tolerated, indicating he had no intention of giving in to Israeli demands that the anti-aircraft missiles be removed.

The official Syrian news agency Sana said Assad vowed Sunday to "resist any Israeli aggression against Lebanon or our peacekeeping forces in Lebanon."

A police spokesman in Beirut said today that 13 civilians died and 44 were wounded as Syrian troops and Christian militia traded night-long artillery and rocket fire along the demarcation line that divides the city into Moslem and Christian sections.

Black smoke billowed from high-rise apartment buildings set on fire on both sides of the line before the exchange tapered off into sniper fire later in the morning.

In Israel, Prime Minister Menachem Begin said no deadline has been set for Habib's efforts to solve the showdown between Syria and Israel over Syrian missiles in eastern Lebanon.

"We don't want war, we want a peaceful solution," Begin told reporters Sunday, adding that his Cabinet had agreed unanimously to give Habib more time.

The prime minister's political opponent, Shimon Peres, said his Labor Party had decided not to use Begin's handling of the Syrian missiles in Lebanon as a campaign issue for the June 30 parliamentary elections.

The Labor Party agrees with Begin's demands that the missiles must be removed and does not want to clutter the diplomatic efforts, Peres said.

Habib was expected to make Damascus his first stop today after the weekend meetings with Saudi leaders in Riyadh. Saudi state radio announced that King Khalid sent a letter by special emissary to Syrian President Hafez Assad, but its contents were not released.

Arab diplomatic sources in Beirut said the Saudis, who have declared "unlimited support" for Syria, called for restraint and more cooperation with Habib.

The Syrians reportedly brought more missiles into eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley on Sunday.

Digest

Police questioning limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today sharply limited police officers' ability to question criminal suspects who ask to have a lawyer present during interrogation while in police custody.

The nine justices voted unanimously to overturn the convictions of Robert Edwards, who was convicted of robbery, burglary and first degree felony murder stemming from an October 1974 armed robbery at a Tucson, Ariz., bar.

Edwards asked for a lawyer when he was arrested on Jan. 19, 1976, but the following morning was questioned by two police officers after being told he "had to" talk to them.

Schmidt may resign

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt is urging his Social Democratic Party to stick by its support for deployment of U.S.-made nuclear missiles in Western Europe, saying he might resign if the party changes its stance.

In speeches to regional party conventions Sunday in Bavaria and the Ruhr, Schmidt said it would be dangerous for the West to abandon its missile plans while the Soviet Union continues to install more than 60 of their SS-20 multiple-warhead missiles in Eastern Europe each year.

"For years we have been the targets of these missiles," Schmidt said. "Therefore we need the counterweight of the Americans."

Schmidt, who is to meet with President Reagan in Washington on Wednesday, urged the party not to reject the 1979 NATO decision to deploy 572 Pershing II and cruise missiles while at the same time pursuing talks with the Soviets on cutting back each side's medium-range missiles.

Man injured in accident

A one-vehicle rollover this morning left a man in critical condition at Malone-Hogan Hospital.

Donald Ray Bilbo, 25, was involved in the rollover at about 1:15 a.m. this morning, according to state trooper Dean Richardson.

The vehicle was southbound on Texas Highway 350, when it went off the road and rolled two times.

Bilbo is in intensive care.

Another accident early this morning occurred when the driver swerved to avoid a dog, according to Richardson.

Gerardo, Jaime, Mexico, was driving 4.2 miles east of town on Interstate 20 when he served his Ford Courier to avoid a dog. The car rolled two times, and ran into a cyclone fence, causing $500 in damages. Jaime escaped without serious injury.

Democrats flattered, pampered Reagan's tactics compared to LBJ's persuasive powers

Ruth Owens, a member of the graduating class of 1981 Howard College Associate Degree Nursing Program, was honored as the third annual recipient of the Texas Nurses Association Award, during Convocation ceremonies for nursing graduates held recently.

The award, which was presented by Linda Miller, past president of TNA, District 24, carries with it a first year paid membership in both the American Nurses Association and the Texas Nurses Association. Mrs. Owens was recognized for her contributions in community service, and her involvement in the Texas Nursing Students Association, the student counterpart of TNA, while a student in the ADN Program.

"Ruth Owens has consistently displayed the positive qualities of informed and caring participation, which we believe are the hallmarks of professionalism," said Mrs. Miller. "The members of District 24 are pleased to honor Mrs. Owens in this manner, and welcome her as a member of the professional organization for Registered Nurses."

substitute were reminiscent of the type of lobbying the late President Lyndon Johnson perfected to an art," said Rep. Richard White of El Paso.

"The Reagan team's effort is reflected in the overwhelming vote on the measure, which passed by a 253-176 margin," said White, one of 63 Democrats who supported the bipartisan bill of cosponsored by Rep. Phil Gramm of College Station.

The president invited to the White House for a personal visit just about every Democrat who was considered a possible "aye" vote on his first major legislative test.

He bestowed on them presidential box seats in the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and presidential cufflinks — plus the personal attention that flattered their egos.

Rep. Jake Pickle of Austin, who represents the same Central Texas district that first sent LBJ to Washington, smiled at the comparison. "That sounds a lot like the way he (Johnson) used to operate," recalled Pickle, a former LBJ staffer and close friend who was involved in every campaign Johnson ever made.

Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock got a personal visit with Reagan and received the cufflinks and the Kennedy Center tickets. But that wasn't all.

Hance failed to win approval in a Ways and Means subcommittee of an administration-backed bill pertaining to unemployment benefits, but Reagan was grateful for his efforts and found a way to show it.

A day or two after the committee meeting, Hance accompanied Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford, on a trip to West Texas with Energy Secretary James Edwards.

Edwards visited a solar energy project with them at Crosbyton before going to Midland — in Hance's district — for a noon speech, which Hance also attended.

Edwards said during his speech that he had talked with the president that very morning and that the president had mentioned how he considered Hance one of the best members of Congress.

"I knew what he (Reagan) was doing," Hance said later of the roses thrown his way by Edwards, "but I still liked it." Pickle nodded when he

Wheat crop due to hit record high

AUSTIN — Texas wheat production is forecast at a record 179.2 million bushels, up 38 percent from last year, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has reported.

Brown noted "timely rains, adequate moisture levels and increased planting acreage" as the principal reasons behind the huge forecast increase from 1980.

According to the May 1 report released by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, harvested acreage, estimated at 6.4 million, is up 23 percent from last year while yield is forecast at 28 bushels per acre.

These are the regional production forecasts: The Northern High Plains production is forecast at 57 million bushels; Southern High Plains is forecast at 6.5 million; the Northern Low Plains production is forecast at 16 million; and the Southern Low Plains forecast is 19.3 million bushels.

The Cross Timber wheat production is forecast at 10.9 million while the Blacklands is forecast at 49.6 million. The forecast for Edwards Plateau is 4.9 million bushels and in the Southcentral region the forecast is 5.9 million. The production for the other districts totals 8.9 million bushels.

Peach production estimates have also increased at 625,000 bushels, a 140 percent jump from 1980. Brown attributed the increase to last year's damaging freeze which reduced 1980's harvest significantly.

In addition, the report indicated range and non-irrigated pasture conditions at 79 percent as of May 1, up from 59 percent for last year. Brown noted recent rains have helped improve conditions in most of the state.

Rainfall now totals 6.88

It didn't rain much here Friday morning — .09 of an inch to be exact — but it raised the year's total to 6.88 inches, well ahead of the average year.

Some cotton is out of the ground along the northern reaches of the county but most of the farmers are currently in the process of planting.

Second caravan visits three cities Saturday

The second of the two caravans to seven neighboring cities met with a great success Saturday. The local delegation visited Stanton, Midland and Odessa. The group, which promoted the local centennial celebration to be held later this week, met with a warm response in each of the three cities visited.

Three mayors briefly explained their plans to provide similar celebrations in their communities following the local festivities. Many said they would be closely monitoring the Big Spring-Howard County centennial celebration to get ideas on what they might do during their celebrations. The mayor of Midland also took part in the entertainment program by singing with the barber shop quartet.

The group made a brief presentation on the courthouse lawn in Stanton, the Midland Mall in Midland and the Permian Mall in Odessa.

During the promotional tour, the local delegation handed out several hundred brochures and posters, which outlines the major events to take place during the local festivities. In addition, the group also presented a lively entertainment program, featuring a group of square dancers, a barber shop quartet, and fiddling by Jody Nix and guitar playing by Pete Jenkins.

Something being done about MD shortage

The supply of medical doctors in Texas isn't equitable. Likely it will never be, because members of the medical profession are prone to head for the larger cities, where the potential for making money is better. Although most communities have a good supply of MDs, there are still areas in the state where there is a great need for licensed physicians.

THE TEXAS MEDICAL Association (TMA) is sponsoring a program at its annual meeting in Dallas later this month in efforts to match the town in search of a doctor with a doctor in search of a town.

The Practice Opportunity Matching Center, as it is called, will be open Friday, May 29, from 5 to 8 p.m., in the Austin Room of the Sheraton-Dallas Hotel.

The center will operate as a central information clearing house and as a referral house. Listings of available doctors and professional opportunities will be posted at the center. Physicians can meet representatives from communities, clinics, hospitals and private medical practices. Participants can then arrange for further discussions elsewhere.

TMA developed the Practice

Opportunity Center last year and it plans to continue the service every year during the Association's annual meeting.

Other TMA efforts designed to match community needs with available physicians include the distribution of bulletins that list both available doctors and communities in need, presentations to new doctors about establishing a practice in Texas, and support of legislation to increase the number of family practice residency training programs in Texas hospitals.

Indications are over 6,000 physicians and guests will attend the meeting.

A TOWN WITHOUT a medical doctor and medical facilities is a town living in fear. There is nothing more unsettling to a family than to be told that a loved one is in need of instant treatment with the nearest physician a half hundred miles away.

The situation would be far worse in a lot of Texas communities had not a large number of foreign doctors migrated to the state and started practices. And they have come from all continents.

Unprepared

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

It's finally occurred to me that the reason I don't know the things I should know is because I was taught the things I don't need to know now. Get it?

Well, I'll explain. I just wasn't prepared for the real world. For instance, I received applause from a teacher once when I recited, word for word, the Gettysburg Address. But in the last 19 years, not one person has asked me to recite Lincoln's words of wisdom.

MY SUNDAY SCHOOL teacher was thrilled to death when I learned all 10 commandments, in order. But the only one who discusses it with me is my father, who always repeats what he considers the 11th and 12th commandments — Thou Shalt Not Nag and Thou Shalt Honor Thy Old Man.

One time, on an algebra test, the only answer I got right was the one that went something like this: If vehicle X is going 50 miles an hour going north and vehicle Y is traveling in the opposite direction, directly toward vehicle X at 30 miles an hour and they are 1,000 feet apart, how long will it take to find answer Z, which is how long it will take for X and Y to demolish each other?

That was not asked on my driver's test when I moved to this state (they asked me the true meaning of the stop sign) nor is any officer interested in this answer when they stop me for a speeding violation.

A music teacher of mine was proud when I could identify each instrument, its family and the history of each. But no one, and I do mean no one, has ever knocked my door down to get this information.

A social studies teacher finally breathed a sigh of relief when I could name the presidents in the order of which they served.

IT'S HARD TO believe that there isn't one person who isn't dying to know who Millard Fillmore served after.

But probably the most useless thing I ever had to learn was how to diagram a sentence. For years I've been waiting for someone, anyone, to give me a sentence so I can draw my little lines and show them which is the noun, which is the verb and where the word "the" fits in. All through sixth grade I tried to explain to my teacher that no one cares and I have obviously been proven correct.

It makes you feel like your whole childhood was a waste when those well-meaning people try to prepare you for adulthood.

Down the tubes

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The American taxpayers have been sending Egypt billions of dollars in foreign aid to pay for the Israeli-Egyptian peace process. Peace in the Sinai may be well worth the price, but the taxpayers have been misled about the cost.

Much of the money has had about the same effect as pouring pitchers of water on the desert sand. The funds have been misspent with an extravagance that should be called to public attention.

In 1975, then-secretary of State Henry Kissinger promised U.S. aid in return for the Sinai Accords. I reported at the time that the cost would amount to $15 billion over the next five years. The story evoked horrified denials.

Well, I was wrong. The actual total of U.S. military and economic assistance to Egypt and Israel during the five-year period was a staggering $20.6 billion.

THEN, IN 1978, Jimmy Carter negotiated the Camp David agreement. He assured Americans it would cost them no more than about $1 billion a year in additional aid for the next five years. I reported that the Egyptians and Israelis were actually expecting an additional $19 billion over the five-year period.

Since the Camp David agreement, the American taxpayers have been subsidizing Egypt and Israel to the tune of $5.5 billion a year, which is about $3 billion more each year than Carter claimed it would cost. My $19 billion prediction, therefore, should be close to the mark in another two-and-a-half years.

In other words, our political leaders have consistently understated the price tag on the Middle East peace accords. There were also whispers that millions were disappearing down the drain. So I sent my roving foreign correspondent, Peter Grant, to Egypt to look into the situation.

For a month, Grant interviewed Egyptian officials, American businessmen and U.S. officials who disburse the economic aid in Egypt.

What he found was an Agency for International Development staff of 120 taking up three floors of one of Cairo's biggest and newest skyscrapers. He also found bales of reports and studies by highly paid consultants, identifying the critical problems of Egypt's floundering economy.

What he didn't find were any tangible results from the great accumulation of paper. Most of the ambitious projects haven't even gotten off the drawing board.

OF THE BILLIONS we have sent Egypt in economic aid, most of it has been spent on short-term patchwork programs like food and foreign exchange. In fact, about 75 percent of the money allocated for long-range development projects like roads, sewers, communications and industry — some $1.5 billion — is still waiting to be spent.

But the writer of Ecclesiastes eventually found the real answer to his search: he found God. "Here is the conclusion of the matter: Fear God and keep his commandments" (Ecclesiastes 12:13). This is what you need to do, and you can because God has done everything possible to bring himself to you.

You see, God created us for fellowship with himself. But when we leave God out of our lives, there is an empty space which he alone can fill. We have become separated from God, and yet Jesus Christ came "to bring you to God" (1 Peter 3:18). That is why I invite you to invite Jesus Christ into your heart by faith. Let him come in and become Lord of your life. And if you do, you will find a new meaning and joy in life because now you will be a child of God.

Hardly any construction projects have been completed. Not one agricultural program has advanced beyond the pilot stage. Meanwhile, Egypt's economy continues to deteriorate while its population continues to grow at more than a million a year, aggravating the problem severely. Egypt still has to import more than one-third of its food while potentially rich farmland along the Nile lies fallow for lack of development.

Much of the problem is bureaucratic — and the fault lies on both sides. Defending AID's operation, the agency's Egypt-Israel desk officer, Gerald Camens, acknowledged that there were start-up problems because "we were dealing with a country we didn't know that much about."

Another problem at the Washington end seems to be an internecine battle over "turf" between the State Department and AID. As one congressional observer told my reporter John Dillon, "AID and the (U.S.) embassy don't always see eye to eye."

The diplomats want to see more tangible results of the aid program. For example, embassy officials were reportedly upset when AID funds were used to replace engines and equipment in old tugboats working the Nile, instead of replacing the boats themselves — which would have provided visible evidence of U.S. assistance.

But by far the hairiest bureaucratic problem, Grant reports from Cairo, is in the Egyptian government, which is riddled with incompetence, duplication and corruption. Egypt's bloated bureaucracy has been described by AID officials with experience in developing nations as the worst in the world.

One reason for this is that the government guarantees college graduates jobs in the bureaucracy — as a politically expedient means of solving unemployment in a potentially dangerous segment of Egyptian society. But the government can't afford to pay its civil servants adequately — even high-level officials make less than $100 a month.

The inevitable result is that competent officials leave as soon as they can find private jobs, and bureaucrats who stay spend much of their time and effort protecting their pathetic empires. The overstaffing and jealousy lead to endless delays in getting anything accomplished, and encourage the graft that is practically guaranteed by the low salaries paid to civil servants.

HEADLINES & FOOTNOTES: Congressional stroking has reached a professional level in the Reagan administration. While Jimmy Carter's White House people couldn't even manage to spell some congressmen's names right, Reagan aides took less than an hour to get thank-you notes to members who had voted for the administration's budget. The notes were on White House stationery and were signed by the president.

Germans on Prowl

Joseph Kraft

PARIS — "An historic event," cabled former Chancellor Willy Brandt cabled lyrically in congratulating Francois Mitterand on his election as president of France last Sunday. But Helmut Schmidt, the present chancellor, spoke of the need for an early meeting and "deeper discussions."

The difference in tone reflects a difference of outlook that divides Germans at a time when, having again lost their bearings, they are once more on the prowl for new combinations at home and abroad. So the coming of a Socialist to the presidency of France has an impact across the Rhine that is bound also to engage relations between the super powers.

PROSPERITY HAS BEEN the West German religion since the inception of the Federal Republic back in 1949. For years the steady accumulation of economic power eclipsed the itch to reunify the country split asunder by World War II. But now the German economic miracle is wearing thin. This year, growth is negative, and unemployment is on the rise. Foreign trade, the motor of the German economy, is in deficit for the third year in a row.

Disturbing portents of social disorder — a new stirring of the German soul — have recently come from many quarters. In most of the major cities — in Nuremberg, Dusseldorf, Hamburg, Munich, Stuttgart and West Berlin — defiant youngsters have taken over empty buildings in a "squatters revolt." Protests against construction of nuclear power plants have disrupted the national energy program. The most popular film in the country is "Christine F.," the story of a teen-age prostitute hooked on heroin.

General unrest has worked to undermine the authority of the governing coalition led by Chancellor Schmidt. Within his own Social Democratic party there has developed a left-wing opposition centering around Herr Brandt. The Brandt wing wants to stimulate the economy more, push forward to détente with Russia, and enter more actively into economic cooperation with the Third World countries of Africa, Asia and Latin America. But Schmidt cannot make accommodations on the economy without affronting his coalition partners — the Liberals led by Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher. In foreign policy Schmidt and Genscher have worked out with the U.S. and the outgoing French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing accords for modernization of nuclear weapons in Western Europe, and for an application of some muscle — as well as economic cooperation — in the Third World.

THE VULNERABILITY of the chancellor to his internal opposition found expression last Sunday in elections in West Berlin. That city, a Socialist fief for 35 years, has been governed for the last 11 by a coalition of Socialists and Liberals. But this time the Socialists were damaged by a scandal, and outflanked on the left by an "alternate list" of squatters, environmentalists and left-wing Socialists.

In the election, the "alternate list" picked up seven percent of the vote. The Socialists and Liberals both lost heavily. The opposition Christian Democratic party will probably form a new government with an assist from the Liberals. That new coalition could serve as a model for an early change of regime in Bonn itself.

Two issues engaging the super powers become salient as the chancellor struggles to prevent further erosion. One is the modernization of nuclear weapons favored by Washington and bitterly opposed by Moscow. The other is policy toward the Third World.

Tests confirm rubella exposure

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My granddaughter is expecting her first child. She was exposed to a youngster with the three-day measles. We are worried to death about her and her baby. Is there any way doctors can tell if she was infected from the exposure? — Mrs. R.K.

Three-day measles is rubella. Although the illness is not usually a grave one for the patient, it can, when contracted during pregnancy, cause malformations in the developing fetus. The earlier in the pregnancy, the greater the danger. Yes, there are ways to tell if your granddaughter was infected with the rubella virus from this chance exposure.

(1) If she was tested at the outset of her pregnancy for previous exposure and existing immunity to rubella, that would make things easier. Such tests reveal the presence in the blood of antibodies against the virus. If the antibody level was high enough before she became pregnant, then she would have been protected against her recent exposure.

(2) If that test was not done, she should have it immediately. This should always be done as soon as possible after suspected exposure, when immunity is in question. The test will have to be repeated in about three weeks. If the antibody level rises four-fold during that time between tests, that means she was most likely recently infected and that the developing fetus could have been infected, too.

(3) If those two separated tests show no change in the antibody level, that still does not settle matters. To be certain that she was not infected, further testing may be necessary. It is important to have these tests done, even if your granddaughter did not appear sick or get a rash after exposure to the infected child. The fetus could still have been infected.

(4) She should report this exposure to her doctor as soon as possible.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My 63-year-old neighbor has contracted mono from her young granddaughter. I thought mono was limited to young people. Does this make my neighbor eligible for the Guinness Book of Records? Am I putting myself in danger by taking food over to her to help her out? — R.R.

Mono is a disease of the young, with the highest attack rate in the age group 15-24. Almost 95 percent of the population has protection against mono when they reach adulthood. Previous exposures, even if they cannot remember ever having had the illness. But that does leave 5 percent of the population that can't come down with it. Your neighbor must have been one of those. Certainly no record.

Mono is not highly contagious. Your danger is minimal in taking food over to her. Mono is spread through saliva that has the virus in it. Just common sense precaution is required. I am assuming, of course, that you are an adult. You might be approaching a record if you get it from her. I'm sure it's a record you'd rather pass up.

Mailbag

Dear Editor:

Recently I visited the Centennial Store on Main Street, to admire all the beautiful and different apparel that will be used, and which will play a big part in making our celebration a memorable and exciting one.

As I looked around, I pictured in my mind the breathtaking and impressive sight next week as all Big Springers come out to march in the parade, one of the highlights of the Centennial. Then I began to think of all those in our town, young and old, who wouldn't be able to participate and enjoy it to the fullest. Why? — because they can't afford to purchase any of the paraphernalia required to take part. Gosh!

There will be so many children and elderly who will be left out, and that just isn't right or fair. After all, this is a town-related celebration, so why shouldn't everyone who lives in it be included and involved? We probably will never have a chance to see anything like this again in our lifetimes.

Then a thought came to me. Why couldn't those of us who are more fortunate share our God-given talents with one or two less fortunate? Surely there are many, good hearted in-

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Outwardly I seem to have everything — a good job, a wonderful wife, and enough money. These are the things I always wanted out of life, but now that I have them I find I am not really happy. Can God fill the emptiness in my life? — S.F.C.

DEAR S.F.C.: Yes, he can, and in fact he is the only one who can. No matter where you search for "something" to fill the emptiness in your life, you will never find a lasting peace in your heart until you turn to God. The reason is because God created you.

Your life is not unlike that of King Solomon, who wrote his own account of his search for happiness in the Old Testament book of Ecclesiastes. He was the richest king Israel ever had, and yet his life was empty and he could not find lasting happiness. So he set out to try to find peace in his heart. He became involved in massive building projects, and he accumulated all the wealth imaginable. He tried to find happiness in sex, alcohol and all kinds of entertainment. He even tried "religion," although it was an empty ceremony without meaning. His conclusion: "Utterly meaningless! Everything is meaningless!" (Ecclesiastes 1:2).

But the writer of Ecclesiastes eventually found the real answer to his search: he found God. "Here is the conclusion of the matter: Fear God and keep his commandments" (Ecclesiastes 12:13). This is what you need to do, and you can because God has done everything possible to bring himself to you.

You see, God created us for fellowship with himself. But when we leave God out of our lives, there is an empty space which he alone can fill. We have become separated from God, and yet Jesus Christ came "to bring you to God" (1 Peter 3:18). That is why I invite you to invite Jesus Christ into your heart by faith. Let him come in and become Lord of your life. And if you do, you will find a new meaning and joy in life because now you will be a child of God.

Resources bridge the gap

COLLEGE STATION — Make the most of resources on hand to confront today's economic situation, advises Bonnie Piernot, a family resource management specialist. Resources are useful and especially important in reducing the difference between an individual's level of living and standard of living, she points out.

Mrs. Piernot is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. The standard of living is the social or individual goal, and the level of living is the actual situation, she explains.

Human resources are perhaps the most useful because an individual can exchange them for good and services, including money. They include many tools such as knowledge, skills, abilities and time, the specialist continues.

For example, someone with athletic ability might serve as a playground supervisor on a part-time salary basis. Or, exchange baby-sitting skills for someone's gardening talents.

Community resources is another means of reducing the resource gap, she suggests. There are many agencies and organizations which can provide entertainment, information or assistance. For example, take the family on a picnic at a local park instead of going out to eat.

In addition, you can use "environmental" resources to narrow the gap. This might include local art exhibits, flea markets, museums, libraries and government facilities, which you could consider "environmental" resources.

Babies' cries are analyzed

COLLEGE STATION — For years, parents have listened to their newborn babies cry without any way of telling why — sleepiness, hunger, illness or anger. Now, a doctor may have an answer.

Golub, a doctoral candidate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is developing a technique for diagnosing illnesses by listening to infants' cries, says Mary Ann Shirer, a health education specialist.

Dr. Shirer is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

After listening to numerous tape recordings of healthy and unhealthy babies, medical researchers in connection with Golub's project have programmed a computer to analyze 88 different components of a baby's cry, Dr. Shirer explains.

Researchers report that this new computer program may have the capability to detect in newborns the following conditions: jaundice, respiratory distress, brain damage and Down's Syndrome, sometimes referred to as mongolism, which is a congenital abnormality with mental and physical manifestations.

Some day Golub's technique may serve as the early-detection device for problems that would otherwise not surface until later in life.

Wire Power No Substitute For Willpower

DEAR ABBY: You are my last hope. I am an obese woman who has tried every kind of diet imaginable, but nothing works for me. I saw a woman on Tom Snyder's show a while back who had her mouth wired shut so she couldn't eat solid foods; she could only drink liquids. I can't find a dentist who does this. I even called the American Dental Association, but they said they didn't know who to call either. I am desperate. Please hurry. I weigh 320, and can hardly breathe.

NO WILLPOWER IN THE BRONX

DEAR NO WILLPOWER: I rarely give unasked-for advice, but wiring your mouth shut is not the answer. Please locate the Overeaters Anonymous chapter nearest you and go to a meeting! I've attended some of this organization's meetings and found the people there to be an unbelievably loving, supportive group. You need friends who have been through your kind of hell. Please go. Then write again and let me know how you're doing. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I work for an advertising company, selling ads on the phone. I live in Iowa and make phone calls all over the country. Last November I called a man in Texas who had the most wonderful voice I had ever heard! He bought some advertising from me, so I called him back for business reasons. He must have liked my voice too, because we started talking and found we had a lot in common. He asked for my home phone so he could call me in the evenings. We've been talking every night, and now I feel as though I've known him all my life.

Abby, is it possible to fall in love over the phone? I think about this man night and day. We exchanged pictures, and now he wants to come to Iowa to meet me. I'm so afraid if we meet in person this wonderful dream will come to an end. Do you think I'm foolish? Should I let him come? Has anyone else ever fallen in love with a voice on the phone? Please help me.

IN LOVE AT FIRST SOUND

DEAR IN LOVE: I'm sure you aren't the only person who has fallen in love with a voice, if you're both over 21 and free, meet him, and let reality take over from fantasy.

DEAR ABBY: I just hung up from a long-distance call that I must share with you. When I answered my phone, the fellow on the other end said, "Dick, I'm calling to thank you. My wife is pregnant!" I realized instantly what he meant. Early in February, while I was interviewing him for a story, I had asked routinely if he had any children.

"No," he replied, "but my wife and I have been trying for a long time." So I quipped, "You have got to quit wearing jockey shorts."

That broke him up, of course, and after admitting that he did wear jockey shorts, he asked what his shorts had to do with it. I said he had obviously missed the Dear Abby column in the Cleveland Plain Dealer in which you stated that jockey shorts reduced a man's sperm count.

I promised to send him a clip of your column, and he said that while it sounded a bit crazy, he and his wife were desperate enough to try almost anything to get pregnant. In his call today, he said that when his wife learned she was pregnant, they counted back and found that she conceived a month after he switched to boxer shorts! He also said if they have a baby girl, they may name her "Abby."

DICK ELLERS, REPORTER

DEAR DICK: Wonderful! Thanks for the report. Your letter made my day!

Dairy Council reduces good nutrition to simple formula

Fresh fruits and vegetables add color, texture and variety to our diets, as well as supply vitamins A and C. Without fruits and vegetables, it is difficult for a person to get enough of these nutrients.

How much is enough? The four food group system used by nutritionists such as those at Dairy Council, Inc., makes it easy to tell. Remember, for adults, the formula is 2-2-4-4; for children under 12 it is 2-2-4-4; and for teenagers it's 4-3-4-4. That means eating a minimum of that number of servings from the milk, meat, vegetable-fruit and bread-cereal groups.

But how much is a serving? For fruits and vegetables the rule of thumb is one-half cup cooked or juice, or one cup raw. A serving of apple or banana is a medium-sized fruit. A large potato might be equivalent to two vegetable-fruit servings. An individual bowl of salad greens would be one serving; so would a glass of orange juice, a handful of celery and carrot sticks, or a small dish of stir-fried zucchini.

Fears of death can be dispelled with understanding, says specialist

COLLEGE STATION — Many of our fears about death, natural to some extent, can be dispelled — with understanding, says a family life education specialist. "Death, after all, is the final stage of growth in an individual's life," Betty Jo Smith points out.

Dr. Smith, on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says death has been described in recent years as "the last great American taboo."

"That is, some people are afraid to talk about death, to think about death or even to consider it as a final stage of life and living," she explains. "Fear of death, of course, is a universal fear based on a natural desire for living."

"However, it is important for people to be able to discuss these general fears and the personal fright they feel when contemplating their own death. It is important that individuals, on occasion, contemplate the end of their own life," she continues.

Much of the fear that some Americans have of death results from people being alienated from the process of dying, the specialist says.

"As medicine has improved over the decades, families have seen fewer and fewer of their family members die at home, in the presence of other family members or in a family atmosphere of peace and dignity, Dr. Smith explains. For example, individuals

How to solve most common makeup problems

Poor blusher application, mismatched eyeshadow color, improper testing of foundation shades are among the most common makeup mistakes according to a recent Family Circle magazine article, "The Pharmacist's Guide to Beauty."

Here's what the magazine suggests to make sure your make-up looks most becoming to you:

Finding the right foundation: don't test foundation shades on the back of your hand. The only way to get the right color is to test it on the side of your face just along the jawline, so skin color on the neck matches up with facial tones.

Applying blusher correctly: lots of women place their blusher on the center of their cheeks instead of blending it on the cheekbones. Result: A splotch of color that does not look natural at all. To apply correctly, sweep blusher up along cheekbone (feel for bone as you are doing this), right into the hairline. Then, add more color at your temples and across your chin. Be certain to blend carefully — either buff with baby powder or take a cotton ball and gently stroke it over the color you've just applied to soften edges.

Choosing the most flattering eyeshadow color: matching eyeshadow to iris is something most women do — and it's not flattering. To really bring out eyes, wear a complimentary shadow or go neutral and try a taupe, khaki or gray shade. And for the prettiest look, don't wear just a single color — blend three similar tones (e.g. violet, orchid, plum) across upper lid, placing the lightest at inner corner, the darkest at outer corner.

with terminal diseases or severe medical or psychological problems generally have been institutionalized and hidden from society, she notes.

"In fact, our society has increasingly 'protected' its children from death, and this is a different situation than in the first 150 years of the nation's history," Dr. Smith says.

"When the United States was basically a rural society, children grew up with death — deaths of family and community members were a very real part of the agrarian lifestyle. And rural children watched farm animals and pets live and die, just as they watched the seasons bring life and death to plants and trees.

"Now the majority of our children are no longer so lucky — they see only life or an unrealistic television death that means nothing. Many of the real life experiences which can teach children about death and hence, living, are no longer available to them," Dr. Smith emphasizes.

When children, or grown-ups — who have not learned

Conferences on Ageing discusses special issues

Tens of thousands of Americans have already contributed to the process of the 1981 White House Conference on Aging. Since May 1980, about 10,000 community forums have been held throughout the country.

By June, 57 state and territorial conferences will have been held. Mini-conferences have been held throughout the country on special issues. Reports from all of these efforts are being collected in the Washington office of the White House Conference on Aging.

Next come the regional hearings which will give Americans four more opportunities to speak out about the way age is affecting them in American society. These hearings are scheduled in Nashville, Aug. 9-12, New York, Aug. 17-20, Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 30-Sept. 2 and Los Angeles, Sept. 13-16.

In June, the names of the 2,000 delegates to the national conference will be officially announced by the White House. The delegate selection process has been an important effort to find fair representation for a wide cross section of Americans. This national conference will convene with one of the best informed, most representative groups of citizens ever to be involved in a long range policy planning process. The delegates will have among their resources a wide variety of reports from the states and reports from technical committees which have researched major problems and issues in order to provide delegates with current information to help in their decision making.

Ten committees have been structured for the four regional hearings this summer and national conference in December: Research; Physical and Mental Health; Older Americans in a Changing Economy; Retirement Income; Older Americans as a Growing National Resource; Housing and Physical Environment; Social and Health Aspects of Long Term Care; Family, Social Services and other about death are faced with their own death or the death of someone close to them, they have little experience to rely upon. "They become frightened, an emotion that complicates the natural sadness of the loss," the specialist says.

Helping others and ourselves to grow and to learn that dying and death are essential to life itself is not easy, the specialist admits. In spite of the challenge, there are several things that we can do, Dr. Smith says.

Provide children and others the opportunity to know and love animals — family pets are wonderful companions and educators.

Begin to examine your own feelings about life — and death.

Share your feelings with others who are feeling in your life.

Write a will — and contemplate giving away your most prized possessions, regardless of their monetary value. This will help in your thinking about your own life, its meaning, and your death.

Pursue institutional and legislative policies that will promote peaceful and dignified death, Dr. Smith concludes.

Support Systems; Governmental Structures for the Aging and Special Issues Facing Minorities.

The Congressional resolution and the Presidential mandate of October 1978 which brought the White House Conference on Aging into being responds to the reality of a rapidly maturing America. Older Americans have become the fastest growing segment of our population. Since 1900, the number of people over 60 has increased four times as fast as for those under 60 years.

The White House Conference on Aging is wrestling with the implications of this great population shift. These implications affect the private, federal and corporate sectors and national and local programs. It is also examining the rich resources of expertise offered by older Americans in both the job marketplace and in volunteer programs.

Phils psyched for Dodger whiz-kid

By the Associated Press
Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies says "it sure ain't the World Series," but the attention that will be focused on tonight's meeting with the Los Angeles Dodgers and rookie phenom Fernando Valenzuela might make it seem so.

"We've got everything to gain and nothing to lose," Schmidt said. "The best way to approach a game like this is to not get excited."

Valenzuela, a left-handed screwball pitcher from Mexico, brings an 8-0 record with five shutouts and an 0.50 earned run average into the game at Dodger Stadium. The 20-year-old Valenzuela has yet to face the 1980 World Series champion Phillies, and Schmidt and his teammates would like nothing better than to put the first blemish on his record.

Schmidt cracked his major league-leading 11th home run of the season Sunday to help the Phillies beat San Diego 6-3 and win the rubber match of their three-game series with the Padres on the West Coast. Phils right-hander Nino Espinosa tossed a seven-hitter for his first victory since April 19 and second in five decisions.

In other National League games Sunday, Los Angeles clobbered the New York Mets 6-1, Cincinnati edged Pittsburgh 4-3, St. Louis got by Atlanta 4-3, Houston belted the Chicago Cubs 6-1 and San Francisco trimmed Montreal 5-4 in 12 innings.

The Phillies scored five runs off Padres starter Juan Eichelberger, 3-2, in the first three innings. Pete Rose and Del Unser had RBI doubles in the first inning, Espinosa singled home a run in the second, and Manny Trillo and Larry Bowa drove in third-inning scores. Schmidt's homer, with none aboard, came in the fifth.

Dodgers 6, Mets 1
The Dodgers, the hottest team in baseball with seven straight victories and 10 in 11 games, got still another fine pitching performance to beat the Mets. Left-hander Jerry Reuss, 4-1, scattered 12 hits and didn't allow a run until the ninth when Hubie Brooks hit an RBI single. Ron Cey provided the firepower with his fifth home run in six games. The Dodgers scored all their runs in the fourth off Pat Zachry, 3-5. The inning included doubles by Derrel Thomas, Dusty Baker and Pedro Guerrero and singles by Bill Russell, Reuss and Thomas.

The Mets have lost seven in a row and 22 of 30. Brooks' RBI hit snapped a string of 19 innings in which New York has failed to score.

Reds 4, Pirates 3
Ken Griffey hit a two-run, inside-the-park homer, and Ray Knight hit a solo shot to give Cincinnati a three-game sweep of the Pirates. Mario Soto, 3-5, went the distance for the Reds, scattering seven hits.

In the third inning, Griffey hit a sinking line drive to left field that bounced past John Milner and rolled to the wall. Griffey raced all the way around the bases for his first home run of the season. Knight's leadoff homer in the seventh was his third.

In the first inning, two on a single by Ken Oberkfell, and held off the Braves. Oberkfell's hit was the fifth straight single off 41-year-old right-hander Gaylord Perry, 3-3.

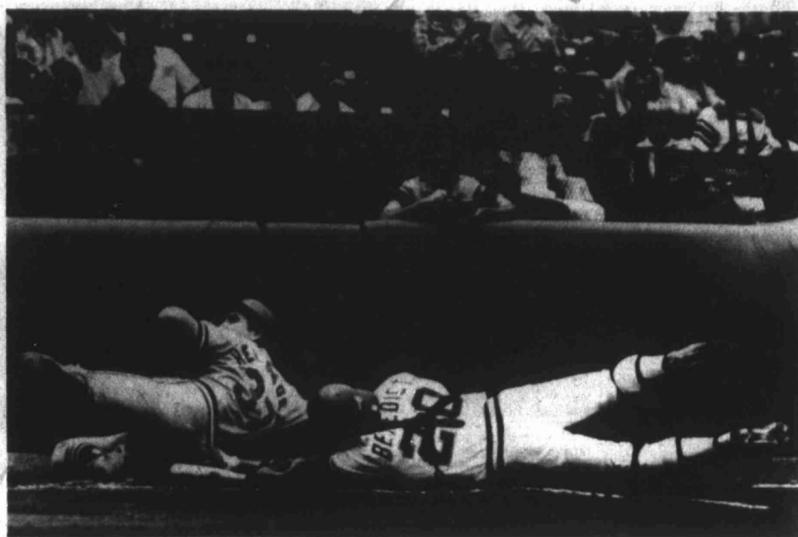

Pinch-hitter Bob Porter smacked a two-run double for Atlanta in the eighth to make it 4-3.

Bob Forsch, 3-2, went five innings for St. Louis, holding Atlanta to three hits before his shoulder stiffened.

Giants 5, Expos 4
Jack Clark cracked a bases-loaded single in the bottom of the 12th inning to help San Francisco hand the slumping Expos their fifth loss in six games. The Giants, meanwhile, have won seven of their past 10.

Mike Sadek led off the San Francisco 12th with a walk off Bill Lee, 1-2. One out later, Enos Cabell singled, sending Sadek to third, and Joe Morgan walked to load the bases for Clark.

San Francisco came up with a run in the ninth on a two-out single by pinch hitter Jim Wohlford to send the game into extra innings.

FLAT SAFE — St. Louis Cardinals Keith Hernandez eludes the tag attempt by diving catcher Bruce Benedict of the Atlanta Braves Sunday at Atlanta Fulton County Stadium in first inning. Hernandez scored on a single by teammate Dane Iorg. The Cards beat the Braves, 4-3.

Astros on the comeback trail

HOUSTON (AP) — It's been a long climb, but the Houston Astros finally have returned to the .500 mark.

The defending National League West champions won only four of their first 16 games, but evened their record at 18-18 with a 6-1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs Sunday afternoon at the Astrodome.

"I haven't known how it feels in a long time," said Astros manager Bill Virdon. "To contend, you must be over .500. This early in the season, we're in good shape. The Dodgers will have some problems." Los Angeles hasn't had any difficulty so far, winning 25 of its first 34 starts to gain a 5½-game edge over second-place Cincinnati and an 8½-game spread over the fourth-place Astros.

"I think every club has some problems during the season, and they haven't yet," Virdon said. "Their pitching's been real good, but I can't visualize anyone going 25-0. They've got two going that way, and one almost. If they do, we're in trouble — big trouble." Fernando Valenzuela's 8-0 record paces the excellent performance by the Dodgers' mound corps. But Houston has been getting some fine pitching of its own, like Bob Knepper's four-hit effort against the 5-25 Cubs Sunday.

Knepper, 4-0, struck out three and walked four, but missed out on his fourth shutout by allowing a run in the eighth on Bill Buckner's run-scoring double.

"I was just getting tired," Knepper said. "If it had been a 5-1 or 5-2 ballgame, I would have asked to be removed." It wasn't that close, thanks to eight walks issued by Cub pitchers, seven in the first three innings and six by loser Mike Krukow, 1-4, in 213 innings.

Art Howe's single with one out in the second started Houston's first scoring threat and gave the Astros' third baseman a 17-game hitting streak, the longest in the National League this year.

Alan Ashby walked and Knepper was hit by a pitch before Terry Puhl's bases-loaded walk made it 1-0.

Aggies win again

DALLAS (AP) — The Morrison-Bell Track on the Southern Methodist University campus isn't very old but it's already becoming known as one of the fastest in the Southwest.

Consider what happened Saturday at the 66th annual Southwest Conference Track and Field Championships won for the second consecutive year by the Texas Aggies:

—Carl Lewis of Houston ran a 10-flat 100 meter, third fastest in history and the quickest recorded over sea level.

—Baylor's 19-year-old sophomore Zeke Jefferson ran the fastest 400 meter ever for his age class in 44.86.

—Jefferson anchored Baylor's sprint relay team which ran a 39.10. There were three freshmen and a sophomore on the team, making it the fastest ever recorded by a foursome 19 and under.

—SMU's Sammy Koskel ran the fastest 800 meters this year in 1:45.32.

This is a very fast track, said Lewis. There were good times in every event.

Lewis had a remarkable day. Besides the 100 meter first place in the fastest time ever run by a collegian, he long jumped over 27 feet, won the 200 meter and anchored Houston's second place finish behind Baylor in the sprint relay.

The question was asked whether Lewis would be a better long jumper if he gave up the sprints or vice versa. Lewis recently turned in the second best long jump ever recorded, 28-8 3/4, although it won't be etched in the record books because the wind was barely over the allowable.

"People say you can't compete on a world class level in different events," said Lewis. "But I know what I'm doing. I really prefer to do it this way."

"I don't like worrying about just one event. It relieves the boredom and gives me something to look forward to. I silenced a lot of critics in the indoor season when I got a world record in the long jump and ran the third fastest 60 yard dash ever."

He added with a smile, "I think I have made a lot of people change their thinking outdoors, also."

Jockey had doubts about Pleasant Colony

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jorge Velasquez, rider of Pleasant Colony, says he was worried about Bold Ego for a while in Saturday's Preakness Stakes.

The jockey's statement brought a look of surprise from Pleasant Colony's trainer, Johnny Campo. "Velasquez only rode this horse twice and maybe he didn't know how good this horse is," said Campo, the self-proclaimed "Fat Man."

"Now he knows." The gangly, long-legged Pleasant Colony will win no beauty contests but he is one step from becoming only the 12th thoroughbred Triple Crown winner in history.

That opportunity will come June 6 in the Belmont Stakes, a 1 1/2 mile test at Belmont Park.

"It will be a piece of cake," said Campo after his colt earned $200,800 from the record gross purse of $270,000 by catching Bold Ego in the last 70 yards and scoring a one-length victory over the speedy New Mexico-bred.

"I'll match this horse with any good horse. He's one of the greatest race horses ever to run in the United States." With five victories in 10 career starts, the son of His Majesty-Son Colony now has earned $720,147. Campo bristles when someone mentions the spotty blotches and the red mark on the colt's flanks.

"Just watch him race," said the 5-foot-7, 250-pounder who took over the Buckland Farm Virginia-bred about two months ago and offers no answers for the colt's bad looks.

As for Pleasant Colony's lack of flesh, Campo pointed out that the colt was a May 4 foal, so that he's still growing and that he didn't actually turn 3-years-old until two days after the Kentucky Derby, first leg of the Triple Crown.

While Pleasant Colony's Derby victory left some doubts as to the colt's ability because of the suicide pace and 21-horse field, the Preakness victory erased them.

Jack Van Berg, trainer of runnerup Bold Ego who set all the pace under Johnny Lively in the 13-16 mile race at Pimlico, said, "At the head of the lane I thought we could win by two lengths...I thought we shook him off at the eighth pole, but he just overpowered us. I'm a believer in Johnny's horse now."

Barton and Dr. James Kidd, had finished 10th in the Derby after a blistering early pace. In the Preakness, Bold Ego was sent off the second choice at 7-2 behind 8-5 Pleasant Colony.

Pleasant Colony was whipped five times by Velasquez and battled through the stretch with Bold Ego before finally pulling away.

Paristo, a heavily campaigned colt who was a

$10,000 supplemental nomination by Belmont Farms, was sent off at 74-1 and surprised with a third-place finish, two lengths behind Bold Ego and five lengths ahead of the fourth-place finisher in the field of 13, Thirty Eight Paces.

Pleasant Colony's time over the fast track for the 106th Preakness was 1:54 3/5, three-fifths of a second off the track record set by Canero II in 1971. All carried 126 pounds.

This year's cars qualify faster

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Paced by the 200 mph runs of pole-winner Bobby Unser and Tom Sneva, the 33 cars that will start next Sunday's Indianapolis 500 qualified at an average 191.3 mph, some 5.7 miles per hour faster than last year and the third-quickest lineup in Indy history.

"The speed probably was the biggest surprise of qualifications," said defending champion Johnny Rutherford, who started from the pole position a year ago but had to settle for a second-row start this time. He qualified 3 mph faster than his pole speed in 1980 but still more than 5 mph slower than Unser.

"Nobody had any idea we'd be running this fast when we got here or even the first few days after practice began," Rutherford said Sunday during the final frantic efforts by some drivers to get into the lineup.

All 11 rows were filled on Saturday, leaving Sunday's windup of time trials for "bumping," while drivers of the slower cars in the lineup waited nervously.

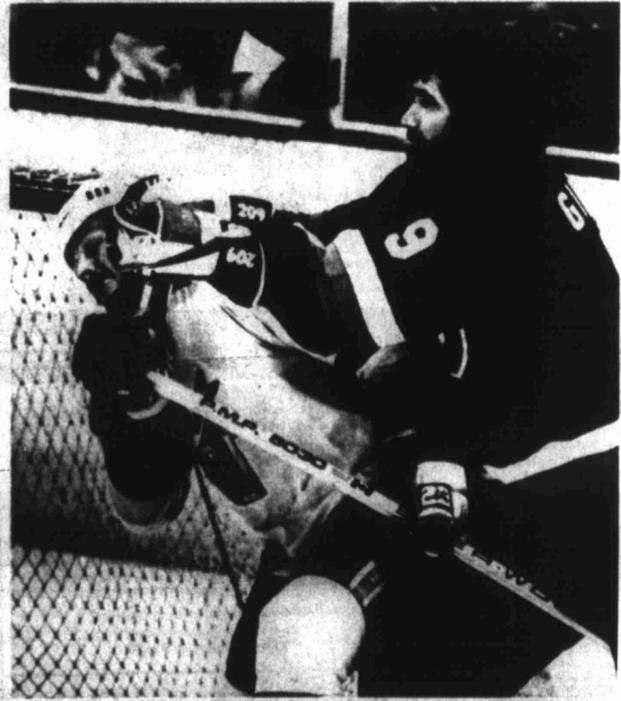

Starting next to Unser on the front row will be veterans Mike Mosley, who qualified at 197.141 mph, and four-time winner A.J. Foyt, who averaged 196.078 for the four laps around the 2¼-mile track. Former winner Gordon Johncock will start on the inside of the second row, with Rutherford in the middle and 22-year-old rookie Josele Garza of Mexico on the outside.

Bill Alsup, Wally Dallenbach and Gordon Smiley qualified for the third row, although Dallenbach was subbing for Mario Andretti who will have to start from the back of the pack when he replaces Dallenbach. Andretti was in Belgium for a Grand Prix race.

Unser qualified at 200.546 mph. The fastest qualifier, however, was Sneva, who averaged 200.691 but was not eligible to win the pole position because his car was not in the original qualification line a week earlier. Danny Ongais was also unable to qualify then because of a bad starter and will start behind Sneva with a 197.694 average.

Rick Mears, Unser's teammate, is right behind Ongais at 194.018 in his backup car.

TAKE THAT — New York Islanders wing Clark Gillies (9) delivers a shot to Minnesota North Stars defenseman Greg Smith in the second period of Sunday night's third game of the Stanley Cup playoffs. The Islanders won it 7-6 to take the lead in the series three games to none.

Islanders overcome two-goal deficit to win

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The New York Islanders turned the Minnesota North Stars every which way but loose Sunday night, clawing back from a two-goal deficit and skating to a 7-5 victory which brought them within one game of their second National Hockey League Stanley Cup championship.

"This is the position to be in," said New York's Bryan Trottier, whose club leads the best-of-seven series 3-0. "Just reach out and grab it." The youthful North Stars, perhaps a club of the future but not one, it appears, of destiny, lost a game it could not afford to lose and now is in immediate danger of being swept by the awesome Islanders. Game 4 is Tuesday night.

"This was by far our best effort and it still wasn't good enough," said Minnesota Coach Glen Sonmor. "That's as simple as I can put it."

The Islanders, "relentless," as Minnesota's Bobby Smith calls them, had as many heroes Sunday as they had records. The defending Stanley Cup champions allowed the North Stars a 3-1 first-period lead, but came back from so many angles and with so many weapons that they resembled a man meat grinder, with the North Stars as lean hamburger.

Mike Bossy, New York's

automated goal-scoring machine, had two goals — his 16th and 17th — and two assists to give him 33 playoff points, snapping the record of 29 he shared with Trottier.

Potvin's two assists gave him 25 points in the playoffs, breaking the NHL scoring record of 24 for defenseman previously held by Bobby Orr. Trottier, with an empty-net goal and an assist, scored in his 16th consecutive Stanley Cup game, also a record.

"That's the wrong team to get into a shooting match with," said Minnesota goalie Gilles Meloche. "All their lines can score." Butch Goring, the Islanders' whirling dervish whose 5-foot-9-inch frame barely seems large enough to contain his heavyweight-type energy, was the catalyst, however. Goring scored three goals, including two in the second period.

Minnesota, playing before 15,784 vocal fans at the Met Center, raced to its 3-1 lead in the first period on goals by Steve Christoff, Steve Payne and Smith to overshadow Bossy's 16th goal.

"Golf's crazy"

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — "Golf's crazy," says Fuzzy Zoeller, who spent a long, turbulent day proving it.

He suffered and survived most of the game's sensations and breezed to a four-shot victory in Sunday's wind-swept 36-hole windup to the $300,000 Colonial National Invitation tournament.

The happy-go-lucky Zoeller gunned down half a dozen challengers with a topsy-turvy 68-70 spiced with strings of bogeys and birdies, highs and lows, ups and downs.

In the end, he stripped three shots from par from the closing seven holes of Colonial's par-70 Trinity River treachery to scuttle all threats and halt a two-year slump dating back to his memorable 1979 Masters triumph.

"Really," he sighed, "it's a great feeling."

His six-under-par 274 beat runner-up Hale Irwin by four strokes, earned him $54,000, overshadowed his chronic back problem and sent him scurrying off to a champagne celebration.

"I may be sore in the morning... but who cares?" he said as he grinned and grappled with his feisty two-year-old daughter, Sunney.

It was Sunney who got off one of the best lines of the week as she helped her dad construct an opening round 67.

"Don't choke," her father quoted her as saying. "Remember, this is how you earn a living, Daddy. Keep it up."

He did, despite several notable lapses. After Friday's thundershowers necessitated a 36-hole finale, Zoeller began the day at four-under-par, a stroke ahead of Irwin and two better than Tom Kite and Keith Ferguson.

He carted four straight birdies during the morning round, opened up a six-shot lead and appeared en route to a runaway. Just as quickly, he bogeyed three in a row, finished with a third-round 68 and invited a fresh series of challenges with a shaky start on the final 18.

Ray Floyd mounted the most serious threat, reeling off five birdies through seven holes while Zoeller was dropping two more shots to par. They were tied at four under at one point.

"There was some doubt in my mind on the second 18," admitted Zoeller, "but I hit an eight-iron on the 12th hole that clinched it, I think."

ZOELLER WINS COLONIAL — Fuzzy Zoeller of New Albany, Ind., throws his arms into the air anticipating a birdie on the 18th hole in the fourth round of the Colonial Invitational Tournament.

Andy Hardy finds a bookie

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

Shortly before the curtain goes up on the Broadway musical, "Sugar Babies," a husky, bespectacled man may be seen sliding through the stage door of the Mark Hellinger Theatre, climbing one flight of steps to the dressing room of the star, Mickey Rooney.

There, Howard Henkin and Rooney pore over a sheath of racing forms, make a few quick notations and examine the previous day's parimutuel tickets before the orchestra out front strikes up "The Star-Spangled Banner."

You can make book on it. It has become a regular ritual for these two longtime show business friends — a former aeronautical expert and TV producer-writer-director turned race handicapper and the bouncy little entertainer who has been captivating audiences for more than 50 years.

You might call Henkin Mickey's racetrack broker as might a large cult of devotees from stockbrokers to celebrities.

"All my life I have been hooked on horse racing," Rooney said. "I was always a consistent loser — win one day, lose the next three. I tried every system I knew. I never knew what I was doing. Then my friend Howard came along with the simplest and most effective way I've ever seen of beating the races."

Henkin is a New York born graduate of California Institute of Aeronautics who turned from air space to show business and has spent 30 years in the TV field.

But Henkin never realized his true destiny until three years ago when he visited a racetrack for the first time and suddenly was inspired to originate a system which he contends is a foolproof way of beating the game. He now has offered this system to the world in a 155-page book called "The Dot System."

It has earned him $250,000 in winnings over the last 18 months (a fact documented by IRS statements printed in the book) and has caused him to close his TV operations and devote full time to his new occupation.

Trying to follow form I couldn't get anything. I saw little old ladies cashing tickets by the globs. Talking to them, I asked what they did. They said they just asked men behind the windows."

He spent three months studying various handicappers, starting with 30 and reducing the group to 11 or 12 whom he considered the most consistently successful. Then he took a list of the horses for each race and placed a dot beside the horse picked to win, place or show by each handicapper.

Henkin's book is in its third printing and has received favorable notices from horse race people throughout the country. None is more enthusiastic than Rooney, who has his own stable of eight thoroughbreds.

"My friend Howard has made it all very simple — and it works, Dot's the truth," Mickey guffawed at his own pun.

Hogs, Horns meet today

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Longhorns and Arkansas Razorbacks were to meet today for the championship of the Southwestern Conference baseball tournament.

The game was to be held at 1:30 p.m. The two teams advanced to the championship game with identical 9-3 victories over the Houston Cougars Sunday.

Kevin McReynolds and Kenny Rogers each had home runs Arkansas handed Houston a 9-3 defeat to oust the Cougars.

Winning Arkansas pitcher freshman Darrel Akerfelds had his third complete game of the season.

Arkansas jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first inning as Chris Shaddy and Reggie Thomas scored two Razorback runs on a single and a double.

Houston cut Arkansas' lead to 4-2 in the bottom of the second, but Rogers hit his sixth homer of the season in the fourth inning to raise Arkansas' lead to 8-2.

Chris Campbell drove in two runs with a single and scored all the way from first on a three-base throwing error to highlight a wild, seven-run outburst in the eighth inning as Texas took a 9-3 victory over Houston.

The Longhorns were leading 1-0 when the eighth inning began and they scored their seven runs on four hits, three walks, two sacrifices, one balk and the throwing error by Houston first baseman Dale Oliver.

Starter Robert Cullley, 5-1, needed relief help when Houston mounted a brief rally in the bottom of the eighth, scoring three runs on four hits, including Wesley Gregerson's double, and an infield out.

Mike Livermore added an insurance run for Texas with a solo home run in the top of the ninth inning.

FAMILY BUSINESS — The Powell brothers combined to keep this blacksmith shop going in downtown Big Spring, located where the Barnes-Pelletier Shoe Store is now situated on East Third Street. The brothers were C.C., S.I., R.F., and U.G., and they worked at everything from showing horses to repairing baby buggies.

SIGNAL PEAK — One of Howard County's best known landmarks is Signal Peak, located in the southeastern section of the county. Moss Springs was not far removed from the peak and Indians, military units and buffalo hunters alike used it to get to the precious water. Legend has it that the Indians used the peak to send smoke signals to other Indians. It is known that several skirmishes between Indians and whites took place not far from Signal Peak.

Big Spring was village of tents

Cattle roamed range but there was no milk

These are the words in part, of Will A. Robinson who came to this area in 1883 to take a job on the Rio Grande Division of the Texas and Pacific Railway. He explained those first days on the frontier:

"I left the frozen north as a trainman of 10 years experience on the C.U. and St. P. railways in February 1883 to follow one of our old officials to Big Spring when he had a bid to take over the Rio Grande division of the T&P with headquarters at Big Spring.

"Big Spring was a little frontier village of tents, a newly-made small board house, cowboys and soldiers of fortune, plenty of saloons and one long dance house were there, he was to recall later.

"I'll never forget the inspiration I had when I made my first run. The old Rio Grande division had few people along it. El Paso had only about 2,500 inhabitants. We railroad men slept there in the old Central Hotel. The first story was built of adobe with a second of wood. I used to find the adobe rooms cool in summer and warm in winter.

"Big Spring had an eating house where trains stopped for meals and if one did not eat there he would have to wait until we reached El Paso except at Sierra Blanca where we joined the Southern Pacific using the track jointly to El Paso.

"Texas had plenty of Longhorn cattle roaming the unfenced government land. But I never saw a cow milked and the railroad boys had to use condensed milk.

"There were plenty of antelope along the route near Duro, Metz and the Pecos river district. I used to see a few buffalo, probably a half-dozen, half-tamed, herded on the outskirts of a big ranch near Pecos. I saw a large buffalo lying dead near one of the small section houses east of Pecos. He looked like the last of his breed, as the monarch of the plains.

"I pulled a little hair out of his tail as a relic and mailed it up north to Milwaukee, to my little sister to paste in her scrapbook. This occurred while our engineer was taking water at an tank there along the route near where there was an operator and shanties for crew.

"On a trip from Big Spring to El Paso, the passengers on my train had a chance to see a large dead rattlesnake curled up near the engine water tank, he had 34 rattlers.

"At El Paso the landlord received $600 per month rent for the one large room with a door connecting to the office, for the gambling ex. It was generally as quiet as a church there with the old square deal operators running the games.

"The Mexican Central railway was running only as far as Chihuahua from the north and was building from Mexico City northward. I believe they joined the track a few months after I began running into El Paso in 1883, at Santa Rosalito.

"The T&P imported a number of Chinamen to work as section hands between Toyah and Sierra Blanca. Their food consisted of dried fish and tea. Each section crew had a white section boss with a Chinaman as clerk. It was hard to get white men to stay on the Rio Grande division for long periods. They would stay only long enough to get a stake and hit the trail for Mexico Central or Arizona or California.

"We hauled water cars then over the mountains from Toyah to El Paso, having a large metal tank like the Standard Oil flat cars have up north. It was coupled behind the engine. There was a large rubber hose attached to convey the water through to the engine water tank. There was one water train crew running the train of track cars over the division every day to supply the section men, operators and trainmen. It was emptied into barrels sunk down in the ground at section houses. The water was taken on at stations where there were large tanks at San Marine, Van Horn or Sierra Blanca. The cars always were left switched out at different stations, back and forth, so that trains could always couple onto one when necessary.

"At Big Spring we had a pipe line to bring water into town from the largest spring site I ever saw, about three miles from the station. The water of course was pepped in for engines at the division round house there as well as for cooking.

"In 1883 the railway company sank a well 800 feet deep at Toyah and even the cattle couldn't drink it. We couldn't use it in the engine boilers. That well was an exception, however, as only a few miles west of San Martine, we had a water tank built that supplied very fair water for engines and home consumption.

"These were the days when the cowboys rounded up thousands of beef to drive through northern Texas to ship east and north to Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha and Chicago. The cattle always put on more flesh eating that fine bunch grass in the Indian territory and up to the Kansas line. They were then shipped on the Santa Fe or Kansas Pacific. I had two prominent Milwaukee friends, one a banker, the other a board of trade men, who invested in one of the largest cattle ranches in northeast Texas.

"That old 'wire fence' whiskey promoted a fight once in awhile but in the main the women among the few we had out there in those wild, eventful days, could go around El Paso, even at night and feel safer than she might on S. Clark in Chicago. No one was even tempted to molest her.

"The frontier men were hospitable and no one needed to go hungry.

"I heard of one saloon proprietor in Big Spring who had brought a barrel of whiskey into town on construction train when road was building westward year before I was there, sold it out at the 'railroad front' and with that capital started a saloon in Big Spring. During my year there and the year after was worth probably $25,000. He became proprietor of eating house, abolished use of men waiters, went to St. Louis and brought back good girls to do the work saving $15 a month in salary each one. This saloon keeper afterwards married one of the girls and became wealthy businessman there.

"When the pay car came down and issued our check we used to cash them in saloon and generally speak about a dollar for the service.

"We had one doctor in Big Spring in 1883 but he had much practice. Everyone seemed healthy.

"We had no preacher but one day a circuit rider person came along and he service in the little board shanty school house for a few children. The married man and we boys thought we would go to church more and when we all were in together the floor fell but no one was hurt. The floor was only about a foot above the prairie.

"I will close this little sketch of the T&P before present development of and agriculture made the staked plains what the section is now with a population exemplifying the spirit of the frontier railroad man.

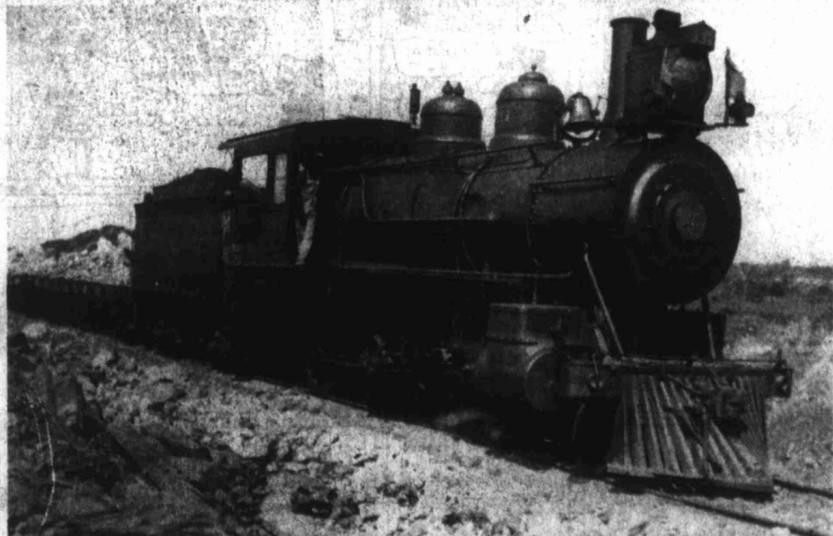

Over on the other side. What if it is forever more. We played the game on the side square. And fear no sequel over there. So treat your comrade true and kind. No vain regrets lead behind."

HOWARD COUNTY'S THREE COURTHOUSES — Pictured are the three permanent courthouses which have served Howard County since about 1884. At the top is the present day structure, built in the early 1950s at a cost of $688,000. The lower left photo shows the two-story structure started in 1883 with native limestone. The original bond issue was for $40,000 but commissioners found out this exceeded legal limits and settled their debt for half that amount. The second courthouse (lower right) was constructed in 1908, after the original stone structure had been declared inadequate and unsafe. This one was constructed of red (Pecos) sandstone, a material popular at the time.

COAL BURNER — One of the early day locomotives, the coal-burning #31, is shown on siding waiting for a through train to pass. The engine was pulling material which was used to firm up the T & P roadbed. The picture dates back to before 1915. The engineer is believed to be Johnny Swindell.

FIRST CLASS GARAGE — This started out as a blacksmith shop, but when the horseless carriage came to Big Spring, it became a first class garage. This probably was one of the W.P. Soash fleet of Buicks in which he hauled his prospects to invest inland around the Soash community. Ulnor Powell was working on the car, R.F. Powell changing the tire and their brother, S.A. Powell standing at right.

Auto thieves are sought

WESTBROOK (SC) — Four young men eluded Mitchell County's sheriff's deputies Saturday night after attempting to steal a car belonging to Mrs. Warren Zant.

According to Sheriff Wendell Bryant and Deputy Bobby Calloway, the manhunt started when four men pulled up in front of the new Church of Christ in Westbrook, which is under construction. Two of the four jumped into Mrs. Zant's car and took off but they abandoned the vehicle within two blocks when Westbrook men gave chase.

Subsequently, all four men then got in their car, which had been stolen in Monahan, and proceeded to leave. Sheriff's deputies searched throughout the county but never found a trace of the car nor the men.

Taken from Mrs. Zant's purse, which was in her car and was later recovered on IS 20, were two check books, a credit card and her driver's license.

ALMOST BUT NOT QUITE — Doug Offenhiser of San Diego, California and his frog "Jumping Jack" put a lot of effort into their actions during final competition at the annual Calaveras County Jumping Frog Jubilee at Angels Camp, Calif. Sunday but not quite enough to win first prize. Their jump was for a distance of 18 feet.

Golden Girl is newet celebrated jumping frog of Calaveras County

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP) — Golden Girl, a "big beautiful frog with a little golden on her belly," bounded to triumph amid the raucous shouts of onlookers in this tiny Sierra foothill town in the 53rd annual Calaveras County Jumping Frog Jubilee.

The spindly, slippery amphibian leaped 18 feet 6 inches Sunday to capture the 1981 championship for owner Henrietta Giudici of Los Altos, who said after the event the frog's reward for victory would be a "return to its natural habitat."

With Ms. Giudici pounding the floor and shouting encouragement, Golden Girl executed three neat hops from a green take-off pad, springing serenely across the exhibition stage before some 7,000 spectators at the Calaveras County fairgrounds.

Sanwiched between a mid-day rodeo and an evening demolition derby, the final round of the four-day event has become something of a minor national classic, inspired by Mark Twain's 1865 short story, "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County."

Golden Girl, a native of the San Joaquin Delta, beat out an estimated 3,000 other frogs and brought Ms. Giudici $300 in prize money and the top trophy. But she failed to beat the record of 20 feet 3 inches set in 1976 by frogdom's legendary E. Davey Crockett, owned by Tenny Matacsi of Mountain View.

Injured man hospitalized

COLORADO CITY (SC) — A 25-year-old Colorado City man was in good condition Sunday in Root Memorial Hospital after having been pinned beneath his truck for almost nine hours.

Steve Rich, an oil field worker, apparently failed to negotiate a curve about 11:30 p.m., Saturday.

According to Sheriff Wendell Bryant, Dave Hutchins called the sheriff's office and reported a vehicle had failed to make a turn and had landed in his pasture. A wrecker service managed to remove the vehicle and Rich was taken to the hospital.

Rich's father reported his son was driving home from a drilling rig near Silver when the accident occurred six miles south of Colorado City.

Probated term given Morris

COLORADO CITY (SC) — A young Georgia man who held up the Bell Service Station in Colorado City earlier in the year has entered a guilty plea in 32nd District Court here.

Twenty-four-year-old Jeffrey Jack Morris received a 10-year probated sentence and was fined $5,000. During a lengthy stay on the stand, Morris implicated an accomplice, Chris Thornton, in the holdup.

Morris had walked into the station and threatened attendant Yancy Speyer. Then after taking $650, returned $100 to the high school student.

No date has been set for Thornton's trial although it is expected to come up sometime in July.
