Democrats vow to fight change

Social Security cuts reconsidered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, faced with a growing congressional uproar, appears to be stepping back from its call for major Social Security cuts starting next year. A White House spokesman says the proposals were just "ideas" that can be improved.

Senate Democrats, in a rare display of unity, vowed Tuesday to use every ounce of their minority strength to fight the changes, and one congressional source said the administration's proposal for stiffer penalties for early retirement "is two steps away from death row."

Under President Reagan's package, people retiring at age 62 after next Jan. 1 would receive 55 percent of full benefits, instead of the 80 percent they now get. "If it had any chance at all, it would have to be phased in," said the congressional source, who asked not to be identified.

Reagan last week proposed cutting Social Security benefits by $53 billion over the next five years to save the system from bankruptcy, but Social Security Commissioner John Svahn said Tuesday that the administration always intended to seek a bipartisan approach.

"I don't think we're backing away from anything," Svahn said, but he added: "There's nobody set in concrete or wedded to any particular part of that package."

At the White House, meanwhile, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said he was "sure" the administration's proposals could be improved upon.

He said Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Tex., chairman of a House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security, asked the administration to submit "our ideas and that's what we did. We think it's the best route to go...but whatever Congress will do with them, you know, we'll certainly state our position as we go along if they want to make changes in our plan."

Speakes said it would be reasonable to conclude that the administration is more flexible about compromising on Social Security than it is on Reagan's call for tax cuts.

O'Neill not to blame for defeat

Rep. Wilson says disciplining defecting Demos is 'suicidal'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liberals in the Democratic Party would be "committing suicide" if they disciplined conservatives who voted with a solid Republican bloc recently to give President Reagan a victory on his budget recommendations, a Texas congressman says.

The disenchanted liberals, unhappy the Democratic majority was unable to prevail, would guarantee giving the Republicans control of the House — and along with it the committee chairmanships the Democrats now hold, said Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin.

Wilson, considered a liberal-moderate, called a news conference in his office Tuesday to condemn his liberal colleagues for blaming the budget defeat on House Speaker Tip O'Neill and Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Fort Worth.

"It's a bum rap. There's absolutely nothing they could have done to change the outcome, and I happen to know that because I was one of the votes that was felt might be changed, and I know the effort that was made," said Wilson, the only non-conservative among the nine Texas Democrats who went with Reagan.

The mood of his Southeast Texas district and of the country as a whole was behind the president's programs and the best thing the Democratic Party could have done was to have gracefully yielded and allowed the president to have his way "rather than have Armageddon, where we were bound to lose," he added.

"It's like trying to pass a personal income tax in Texas. There ain't no votes for that, and you can't blame the leadership."

Wilson said it would have been "an absolute insult" for him and other Texas Democrats to have voted against the president on the budget, considering its strong endorsement by their constituents.

Wilson said he has heard "not a word" of anyone considering changing parties and said it would be to the advantage of liberals and conservatives alike if the conservatives stayed in the Democratic Party. The party umbrella is big enough for both philosophies, he said.

"For one thing, the liberals have to have these guys in order to have any hope of keeping the Democratic Party in the majority next year, and therefore keeping their committee chairmanships," Wilson said.

It's not clearcut that a conservative Democrat would win reelection if he switched to the Republican Party, Wilson said.

For example, he said, Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, represents a conservative West Texas district and came to Congress after beating George Bush, son of the vice president, in the General Election of 1978.

"He's the last one who would do this, but take him for example. If he changed to a Republican, he couldn't beat George Bush in the primary. If a Republican voter has a choice, he's going to vote for the one who's always been a Republican," Wilson said.

"Any Democrat, no matter how popular he is, would be hard pressed to win in the Republican primary."

The proof that the party is big enough for both the liberals and conservatives probably will be evident in the upcoming tax bill debate, Wilson said.

"I feel fairly confident there will be a lot more Democratic unity on the tax bill than on the budget."

The 63 Democrats who voted for Reagan's budget several weeks ago included 38 members of the 47-member Conservative Democratic Forum, headed by Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford.

The CDF has drawn the liberals' wrath, but Wilson said the critics can't really want Stenholm's group to join the Republicans because it would guarantee a GOP majority in the House next session by doing so.

The GOP trails the Democrats by 51 seats, but likely will pick up more than half of the 26-vote swing they need through redistricting, he said, primarily in Texas, Arizona, Washington, Indiana, Florida and other states.

at noon. From the left, they are David Winkle, Rose Thomas, Mary Valli and Travis Floyd. Some one present will win some cash awards given away by the Chamber and the sponsoring organizations, Skipper Travel and the Big Spring Kiwanis Club.

1981 Big Spring Rodeo will be held June 24-27

The 1981 Big Spring Rodeo and Cowboy Reunion, the community's oldest, continuous live entertainment, will be held in the Rodeo Bowl June 24-27.

The rodeo was founded in 1933 by a group of Howard County people who were seeking to preserve something of the old west. The late Tom Good was named president of the association. Under Good's guidance, the association acquired 20 acres across the street west from what is now Howard College.

The association later acquired 45 acres of land in the west part of Big Spring and built its modern rodeo bowl there, after selling its property fronting on Birdwell Lane to a developer.

Some of the greatest cowboys and entertainers in the world have appeared in the rodeo down through the years. Larry Mahan, Jim Shoulders and Walt Garrison are among the cowboys who have competed locally.

The entertainers signed on here include Barbara Mandrell, Barbara

Fairchild, Ken Curtis ("Festus Haggin" in the long-running TV series, "Gunsmoke"), Michael Landon, Jim Ed Brown, Moe Brandy, Charley McLain and others.

Quail Dobbs, fast becoming recognized as the best rodeo clown in America, will return with his unique tricks.

Charlie Creighton is the current president of the association. E.P. Driver and Toots Mansfield serve as vice-presidents, Jimmy Taylor as treasurer and Malcolm Patterson as secretary and parade marshal.

Other members of the board include Leland Wallace, Harry Middleton, Rich Anderson, Hezlie Read, W.L. Wilson, Tommy Newman, Skip Driver, Kenny Thompson, Dr. Hank Thompson and Jack Lewis.

Skip Driver is a third generation member of the board. He is the son of E.P. Driver and was the grandson of Ira Driver, who was active in the organization in the 30s. Harry Middleton's father, R.V. Middleton, was active in the association.

Miss NY ejected for making mountains out of molehills

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Miss New York was expelled from the Miss USA Pageant Tuesday after officials charged she made public a decision to penalize her for wearing a padded bra in the swimsuit competition.

Harold L. Glasser, president of Miss Universe Inc., which produces the Miss USA Pageant under way at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum, said the pageant had no choice but to ask Deborah Fountain to leave.

"A lot of others have done this and it is humiliating that they should single me out," said the 5-foot-7-inch, 110-pound Miss Fountain, who measures 35-23-35.

She said she decided to wear padding because the swimsuit she was given was "way too big."

Miss Fountain, 25, said she asked a pageant staff member to fix the suit or give her another one prior to the Sunday night competition but the request was refused.

"I was able to take up the legs myself but not the top," she said, "so I had to try to make myself look the best I could. I did not know you could be disqualified for this or I never would have done it."

Miss Fountain said pageant officials threatened to take the credentials away from her business manager, Angelo Guillaforte, if she refused.

She said Guillaforte also worked with Miss New Jersey, Christie Gartwaite, and could not afford to leave before the final competition. Miss Fountain said she planned to remain at the pageant as a spectator because "I have made a lot of friends."

Glasser said Guillaforte had no official standing with the Miss USA contest. He said Guillaforte had been allowed to attend preliminaries on a visitor's pass and indicated the pass had been withdrawn.

GOING HOME — Deborah Fountain, Miss New York, poses for photographers as she packs her bag to leave Biloxi, Miss., Tuesday.

Glasser said he had talked with Miss Fountain, whose home is in the Bronx, at least three times and that she had told him that other contestants used padding.

"She never made that statement to me," he said. "You know that when you get caught with your hand in the till you usually scream foul."

Glasser said she admitted wearing padding under her swimsuit while appearing before the pageant's panel of judges on Sunday night.

Glasser said all sides had agreed to keep the matter secret but Miss Fountain had hired an attorney and both allegedly discussed the incident with various newspapers.

Early warning missile attack system is called 'inadequate'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The computerized system designed to give early warning of a missile attack on the United States is unreliable and inadequate because of poor design and management, congressional investigators charge.

In strongly worded testimony to a House Government Operations subcommittee Tuesday, acting Comptroller General Milton J. Socolar said the problem stems from a decision by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in 1970 to use the same type of computer in all elements of the Pentagon's worldwide military command and control system.

In a continuation of the hearing today, Richard D. DeLauer, under secretary of defense for research engineering, said the Pentagon has begun taking steps to correct the deficiencies cited by the GAO.

He said, for example, that automatic data-processing system at the North American Aerospace Defense Command is being developed separately from that of the World Wide Command and Control System because of the differing nature of their missions. And he said a fail-safe electric power system is being developed at NORAD's headquarters in Colorado Springs, Colo.

In a series of barbed questions and comments, Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, subcommittee chairman, noted that the GAO's report had said that the NORAD computer system now deemed inadequate had gone into service four years behind schedule and $100 million above its planned cost.

"If we're going to spend $1.65 trillion in the next five years (on defense), we ought to have a good warning system to know whether we fight or not," Brooks declared.

NORAD's current commander, Lt. Gen. James V. Hartinger, said in testimony Tuesday that he agreed with his predecessors that the needs of his command were unique and that it should have had its own computer design. But he said he and his superiors were taking steps to improve the current system.

And Hartinger said human error and a defective comment, not the computer system itself, were to blame for three incidents in 1979 and 1980 in which false alerts of an imminent enemy missile attack were sounded.

In his statement, Socolar said deficiencies in the current system have jeopardized the multibillion-dollar investment the United States has made in its strategic defense.

The board, in addition, gave approval of a plan to acquire four dormitories from the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp. Three of the dorms would be removed to SWCID property while the fourth would be taken to the Howard College campus where it would eventually become an extension to the women's dorm.

The board also approved plans for the addition of a three-level elevator to Garrett Coliseum. The lower level of the elevator, which would cost an estimated $60,000, would open on the dressing room floors.

The elevator, which will be built with donated funds, would be installed primarily for the benefit of handicapped persons. The cab would have a capacity of 17 people. It was specified that the elevator would be comparable to Westhouse Hydraulic.

Members of both the faculty and the school administration will get salary increases ranging from 9.6 to 15 percent starting with the 1981-82 school year.

The announcement was made by Dr. Charles Hays, president of the Howard County Junior College District, following an executive meeting on the board Tuesday.

Those benefiting the most from the increases will get what has come to be known as merit raises. Sixty percent of the money allotted for salary boosts will be for across-the-board increases, the remainder to be apportioned for payment under a one-year incentive plan adopted by school trustees.

In other action, the trustees voted to hire Barbara Holdampe as director of the college's ADN (nursing) program and Sharon Andrews as registrar for the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf.

Malone-Hogan Hospital's exhibit honors four doctors

Recognition of the history of West Texas, pride in its people, and commemoration of the role of doctors in the development of Howard County are reasons for Malone-Hogan Hospital's Centennial exhibit, opening Friday.

The historical medical exhibit is a nostalgic trip into Howard County's beginnings, as seen by those doctors, against a mural that shows what Texas medical historians claim is the first surgery performed in North America, by Spanish explorer Cabeza de Vaca, while a prisoner of the Indians in West Texas, in the year 1535.

An original painting, on loan from the Texas Medical Branch in Galveston, depicts the de Vaca surgery, will be on display.

The coming of the railroad in 1882 ended forever the isolation of West Texas from the rest of the state and the nation. But de Vaca had already put the area into the pages of history, when he followed the Indian trails through West Texas more than 250 years ago.

The exhibit honors four doctors, who practiced here at the turn of the century, likely coming here by rail. Over 42 registered in Howard County during the first 25 years of its history. Of these, four would leave a lasting impact upon the town.

Dr. Will C. Barnett was the son of an earlier physician, Dr. J.W. Barnett, who came here in 1882. A former State Representative from Weatherford, the older doctor had voted for the use of granite in the building of the state capitol in Austin. He was probably the railroad's first doctor.

The younger Dr. Barnett stayed on 46 years to become the "Old Dr. Barnett" of the 1920s and the 1930s. But in his first year of practice, he earned the distinction of being one of the best "pneumonia doctors" in the area. Years later, he would welcome a young doctor from Tennessee in 1929, who would co-found a multi-specialty clinic in the forties.

Dr. J.H. Hurt, who "doctored" for the railroad for 47 years in Howard County, was a familiar figure in the life of the town as the century turned. The railroad was a major employer of the town's citizenry, and this was his primary responsibility. He also had a large private practice, that spread from Baird to Toyah, Tex. He was the first to encourage a local young man to enter medical school and return to Big Spring to practice medicine.

Dr. G.T. Hall, who had come to Big Spring as a boy and graduated from Big Spring High School, did go to medical school in Galveston, returning in 1908 to set up his practice here. That practice would last 57 years, and during that time he would build a hospital.

One year later, Dr. G.E. True, already in his forties, came to Big Spring in search of a drier climate for his youngest son, who had tuberculosis. He became the first "specialist" in Big Spring, delivering 6,000 babies in the course of his 58 years practice, of which 43 were spent in Big Spring.

"I have stood in awe of the resourcefulness of the people of West Texas since coming here 34 years ago from the land of the Brazos, near Possum Kingdom. The story of these doctors reinforces my belief that there is something about this area that spawns creativeness and ingenuity. It shapes individuals who will attempt, and usually do, the impossible," said Emily Ward, public relations director of the hospital.

The exhibit will be open from 9 to 5, beginning Friday through Monday. Part of the exhibit will remain a permanent one.

The Malone-Hogan Hospital Volunteers are co-sponsoring the exhibit.

RECOVERING — Pope John Paul II sits upright in his bed at Rome's Policlinico Gemelli today. The pontiff, whose condition has been listed as "vastly improved," was reported to have sipped tea for breakfast, done light physical exercise and for the first time resumed Vatican business since he was shot and wounded.

Pope's doctors expected to predict full recovery

ROME (AP) — Encouraged because Pope John Paul II's fever has subsided, the pontiff's doctors hope to make a formal prediction by Thursday of his full recovery from gunshot wounds suffered in an assassination attempt.

"The pope is optimistic," Vatican Secretary of State Cardinal Agostino Casaroli said after visiting the pontiff today. "He is doing a lot of talking."

Today's medical bulletin said the pope was continuing to recover normally, and his gastrointestinal faculties were operating "regularly."

"Yesterday morning and afternoon the Holy Father took a few steps and he rested in an armchair for a short time," the bulletin said, adding that he also increased his intake of liquids, sipping tea and water.

"He looks splendid to me. He looks better than I do," said Dr. Claude E. Welch of Boston's Massachusetts General Hospital, one of six non-Italian specialists who examined the pope Tuesday.

The foreign doctors visited the pope's hospital again this morning and conferred with his Italian physicians, but did not see the pontiff. Welch and Dr. Kevin M. Cahill, of New York's Lenox Hill Hospital, flew home today, said Francesco Crucitti, one of the pope's doctors.

Italian police reported little progress in the interrogation of the Turkish gunman accused of shooting the pope and two American women in St. Peter's Square one week ago.

The suspect, Mehmet Ali Agca, has boasted that he considered killing Queen Elizabeth II of Britain and other international dignitaries, authorities said. But a police source said officials believe he may be fabricating the claims to confuse them.

The police source, who asked not to be identified, described Agca, 23, as a "fanatical right-wing Moslem," and said police believe there is a "fifty-fifty" chance he will be arrested by authorities and may have been hired by someone to kill the pope.

"He's a fanatic, both religious and political. He's also a young man who likes the good life, fancy hotels and nice vacations," the source told The Associated Press.

Three mishaps were reported Tuesday.

Vehicles driven by Carlisle Robison, P.O. Box 6281, and Priscilla Herrera, 506 E. 12th, collided on the 1300 block of Gregg, 3:49 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Angela Honeycutt, Route 1, and Irma Price, 1905 Wasson, collided in the parking lot of the Gill's Fried Chicken Restaurant, 7:25 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Terry Cunningham, 2202 S. Monticello, and Jess Elliott, Sterling City Route, collided on the 1100 block of Lamar, 8:05 p.m.

Digest

Reworked budget OKed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted overwhelmingly today for President Reagan's slightly reworked budget blueprint approved last week by House-Senate conferees.

On a 244-155 vote, the House endorsed the plan for $695.5 billion in spending with a $37.7 billion deficit in fiscal 1982, which begins Oct. 1.

The Senate was due to consider the blueprint by Thursday.

The House acted quickly, taking about 30 minutes for discussion of the measure which sets targets for congressional committees to follow as they make their spending decisions.

In addition, the package accommodates the three-year, 30 percent reduction in personal income tax rates that Reagan has called for.

Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, voted for the measure, but said he did so "with very major reservations."

"The prudence of this economic policy is very suspect at best," Jones said.

Meanwhile, committees are working to bring individual segments of the spending program into line with the master plan.

In a related development, a proposed constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget, advocated as an anti-inflation tool but opposed by the president, has passed its first major congressional test.

The proposal was approved 11-5 Tuesday by the Senate Judiciary Committee, but it faces a long process before it can become effective: two-thirds approval by the Senate and House and ratification by 38 states.

It would limit spending to federal revenues unless Congress votes to exceed the ceiling in time of war or national emergency. Any deficit would have to be eliminated within two years, either through spending cuts or tax increases.

Death penalty upheld

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — In a case that one judge said might return to haunt it, the Court of Criminal Appeals today upheld the death penalty conviction of Robert Allan May in the kill-for-pay slaying of his stepfather.

The 6-3 decision affirmed a Houston jury verdict that May must die for hiring Arthur Smith, who confessed to shooting Roy Melton Ayotte to death outside Ayotte's Acme Refrigeration Co. on Dec. 3, 1977.

Smith, who testified against May in return for the state's agreement not to seek the death penalty, said he got a 1968 Oldsmobile, $150 in cash and the promise of another $350 for killing Ayotte.

The court rejected the arguments of May's attorneys that Smith's testimony was not corroborated by other evidence as required by Texas criminal law.

The court recited the testimony of others, including Smith's ex-wife, who told police where to find the rifle used in the killing. Smith was arrested in Louisiana.

"There is ample evidence in the record to corroborate Smith's testimony other than the mere commission of the offense," the high court said.

May also objected to the use of accomplice testimony during the punishment phase of the trial, where a key issue was whether he would endanger society if allowed to live.

U.S. votes against code

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The World Health Organization voted 93-3 today to endorse a code of conduct framed to restrict marketing of baby formula and to encourage infant health by breastfeeding. The United States voted against the code.

Chad and Bangladesh also voted against the code, and nine countries abstained. Those abstaining were Thailand, Guinea, Japan, Malawi, Yugoslavia, Argentina, Morocco, South Korea and Romania.

The code was adopted as a nonbinding recommendation. Member governments of the health organization were urged to "translate" it into national law and regulations.

The code is an eight-page document drafted after years of often fierce international debate about the proper role for breast milk substitutes.

The U.S. ambassador to U.N. organizations in Geneva, Gerald Helman, took the floor after the roll call and said American opposition was based on the code's "overall effect of prescribing a rigid set of rules applicable to companies, health workers and health care systems in all parts of the world."

He said the code also "contains provisions that will cause serious legal and constitutional problems for the United States itself."

Moreover, he declared, "We have serious concern about this organization's involvement in commercial codes."

New version keeps county in Stenholm's district

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A new version of a Texas Senate subcommittee's plan for congressional redistricting keeps Howard County in U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm's District 17.

If adopted by the full Senate, which will sit as a redistricting committee of the whole tonight, the new version would mean that Howard County is fixed in District 17 in the plans of both Texas houses.

The House gave final approval to its plan Tuesday.

For the Big Spring area, the only difference in the two plans — as of today — is that the Senate subcommittee proposes placing Dawson County in District 19, now held by U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock.

The House plan would put Dawson County in District 17.

The county currently is split between the two districts.

Martin County, which now is in Hance's district, would move to Stenholm's under both plans.

Both plans also call for moving Midland County — and its Republican voting record — from Hance, a Democrat to District 21, U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler of Hunt, a Republican, holds that District 21 seat.

All 31 senators will meet tonight as redistricting committee of the whole to consider the subcommittee proposal.

They later will give final approval to that plan, either as proposed or as amended tonight.

A conference committee with members from both houses will work out a compromise plan, which then must be approved by each house before the legislative session ends June 1 — or a special session will have to be called by Gov. Bill Clements.

Clements also could veto the final plan and call a special session.

Police Beat

Ring, camera, $50 stolen

A visitor to Big Spring was the victim of a burglary, Monday night.

While Wayne K. Jones, Dallas, was staying at the local Ramada Inn, burglars broke into his room and stole a college ring with a 30-point diamond, a Polaroid camera and $50 in cash. Total loss was estimated at $180.

Cynthia Diliberto, 3706 Dixon, believes she knows who slashed a tire and scratched paint from the trunk lid of her car, over the weekend. Damage was estimated at $110.

Vandals also hit at the Wilson Construction Company, 905 N. Benton, sometime Monday night. The intruders broke the lock on the company gas pump, and cut the nozzle from the pump's hose. Damage was estimated at $50.

Thieves stole four wire-spoke hubcaps from a car belonging to L.C. Money, 414 N.W. 4th, sometime Monday night. The wheel covers were valued at $80.

Thieves lifted a ceramic pot and two ceramic bowls from the front porch of the home of Jane Hadderton, 1022 Nolan, sometime Monday night. Value of the items has not been estimated.

Vandals tossed a brick through the living room window at the home of Rosalind Howard, 1902 Hearn, 9:30 p.m. Tuesday. Cost of the damage has not been estimated.

Owners of the Mr. Transmission Shop, 421 E. 3rd, reported that an employee left without returning six pairs of work pants and six work shirts. The clothing was valued at $90.

Three mishaps were reported Tuesday.

Vehicles driven by Carlisle Robison, P.O. Box 6281, and Priscilla Herrera, 506 E. 12th, collided on the 1300 block of Gregg, 3:49 p.m.

Gun running charges dropped

HOUSTON (AP) — Charges stemming from a $1.2 million gun running scheme have been dropped against three of the six Europeans initially accused in the operation last week.

U.S. Magistrate Calvin Botley granted a government motion requesting charges be dropped against crewmen of an Austrian jetliner including Manfred Stoss, 41, Peter Lentz, 23 and Heinz Pollani, 36, all of Austria.

Two English arms brokers, Peter Towers 51 and John Parks, 43, are still being held on bonds of $1.5 million each while the pilot, George Bellamy 57, is jailed on a $500,000 bond.

The men were scheduled to seek bond reductions today in federal court.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Mike Brown said it was doubtful the crewmen knew the shipment of guns was an illegal transaction.

Pasadena citizens proud of their redneck image

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — Residents of this working-class, urban frontier town made famous as the headquarters of Gilley's Club know what to expect when they tell citizens of nearby Houston where they live.

"People roll their eyeballs," said City Councilman Vernan Atkinson. "It seems like a big city needs an adjacent smaller city to be the brunt of its jokes."

Some unmerciful Houstonians say a rich Pasadenian is different from a poor one only in that he can afford to put two cars up on blocks in his front yard.

But Chamber of Commerce President Marshall Clinkscales says, "I don't think Pasadena has anything to be defensive about." He says the city of 113,000 has "the world's largest concentration of pickup trucks" and "comes by its redneck reputation honestly."

In fact, many Pasadenans seem to flaunt their lack of sophistication. David Pomeroy, president of the Pasadena Historical Society and a fourth-generation descendant of a city founder, sees a "reverse snobbery" among many of his neighbors.

"There is something of an anti-culture movement here, and you are looked down upon if you appear too cultured," he said. "People seem to be saying, 'I'm a redneck and I'm proud of it.'"

The city, after all, is not without its charms. City Council meetings are showcases for country aphorisms, and horses are plentiful here.

Gilley's, the honky-tonk promoted to national fame in the John Travolta film "Urban Cowboy" typifies Pasadena's bigger-is-better philosophy and its fondness for sprawling, single-story architecture.

But in many ways,

Pasadena has clung to the old ways that saw it grow from a strawberry farming area in the 1920s to a major shipbuilding center during World War II. Even today, less than 1 percent of the population is black.

Pomeroy said that was a legacy of the 1930s and 1940s when "you didn't let the sun set on you in Pasadena if you were black." He said black friends have declined dinner invitations to his home saying, "I'm sorry, but you live in Pasadena."

Pasadena's 190-man police force has a single black, and the city houses the headquarters of the Texas Ku Klux Klan.

Critics also point to its image as a brawling, blue-collar town of redneck bars and nose-numbing smokestacks. However, city leaders say its neighborhoods are more tranquil than those in its big neighbor to the west.

"We're a much quieter and safer place to live and raise families than Houston," said Mayor Jim Clark.

He attributes the city's conservative, fundamentalist traditions to the "country rednecks" from East Texas who led the migration to the ship channel in search of jobs 35 years ago.

"They're good, solid citizens who believe in individual responsibility," he said. "They are what helps Pasadena keep its small-town atmosphere."

City secretary J.L. Pitre said, "You have a relatively small number of extremely wealthy or extremely poor people here. It's a working-class town, and these people tend to be more family-oriented."

Mayor-elect Johnny Isbell said the suburb's hotbed of political corruption was its major claim to fame before Gilley's opened.

U.S. planning Soviet talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, after a two-month delay, is going ahead with U.S.-Soviet talks on compliance with arms limitation agreements, even though it still is trying to figure out if the Russians have violated the treaties.

The meeting, initially set for March and now scheduled to begin in Geneva on May 27, follows an acrimonious debate within the administration on whether the Soviets have adhered to both the SALT I and SALT II agreements.

The 1972 SALT I agreement has expired and the SALT II accord is unratified, but the Reagan administration has said it will abide by both as long as the Soviets do the same.

Things are not always what they seem

Things are not always what they seem. Take the shadow cast by those Big Spring residents who got into the spirit of the 1949 Centennial. The men wore beards and western clothes.

They also strapped on hardware, carrying pistols that either had been plugged or else were imitation guns sold to children. The women settled for period dresses, bonnets and maybe carried a derring or two which, in reality, were often cigarette-lighters.

CO-INCIDENTALLY, BIG Spring had a professional baseball team that year. It so happened management had struck a deal with the late Joe Cambria of the Washington Senators to scout talent for it. Cambria, although he spoke the Spanish language with great difficulty, did a lot of his scouting in Cuba. The makeup of the local team had a decidedly Latin flavor, for that reason.

One of those dispatched here was Al Valdes, a catcher by trade. He had stopped at Sherman-Denison, where life was normal, but came on to Big Spring because Sherman-Denison was well stocked with receivers.

Valdes was an impressionable youngster at the time. He had long been an aficionado of Western movies and most of those films he had seen were about rugged, laconic, heavily-armed, straight-shooting Texans.

It's not difficult to imagine how he felt when he alighted from the bus. Here he was in a foreign land, all but unable to communicate with the natives, and every male he saw was wearing a side-arm. Furthermore, they seemed ready to draw their weapons at the slightest provocation.

Al told himself: "Everything I have heard about West Texans is true. I can see it now. The first close play at home they don't like, they'll shoot everyone in sight, and then ask questions afterwards."

Valdes retreated to his hotel room and sat down to write a letter to his mother back in Cuba, telling her, in effort, that there was still a lot of the old west in West Texas and that a stranger in this alien land would have to exercise great caution and use great tact just to stay alive.

Valdes not only remained alive but stayed on to become one of Big Spring's leading citizens, a man who has served the city in many ways and who still finds it hard to say no to anyone who comes to him with an appeal to help promote the community he has come to love.

Had Valdes been bi-lingual at the time, he would, of course, been able to better understand the scene as it had been set for him on that particular day.

WE'VE COME AROUND to the time for another Centennial Celebration. Perhaps there has been too much violence in the world for the males to strap on side-arms again, but many of the citizens walking the streets are wearing raiment that harks back to the days of the raw frontier. As a matter of fact, Valdes has gotten into the spirit of the times with a carefully groomed mustache, doing what he can to promote interest in our railroad festival.

Valdes says he still has difficulty with the English language but he is bi-lingual, which is more than most of us can say. He thinks Americans would be better off if they would learn a second language. That makes good sense in any tongue.

Unwritten rules

Around the rim

Tina Miller

There is something about taking a husband to a shopping center that is somewhat like giving a bath to a cat. Both of them fight as if their life depends on it to avoid getting their feet wet, growl during the entire ordeal, and slink away afterwards to lick their wounds.

Somewhere along the way, women are taught to enjoy shopping and men are programmed to hate it. There are exceptions to the rule, of course, but it generally holds true. This unwritten rule is especially true when it comes to buying clothes. It's not that men don't like to have nice clothes — it's just that they don't want to shop for them. According to their "illogic," that's what wives are for.

BUT, NO MATTER how irritating this attitude may be, it really is quite understandable. Shopping is a battle, and just getting ready for it requires a great deal of strategic planning.

First, a choice must be made between dressing in a style or dressing for combat. Once this decision has been made, a purse (about the size of a small suitcase) must be carefully packed with all the necessities such as checkbook, aspirin, two shopping lists (one to lose), and countless other items. Before leaving, lift the purse above your head three times. If you can do this easily, empty contents and begin again for you have certainly forgotten something.

After all preparations for the battle have been completed, the journey to the "front" begins. Several skirmishes, such as those with traffic and parking lots, will occur along the way, but these are merely unnerving rather than fatal. When you finally arrive at the shopping center "battleground" and complete the two mile hike from your car, the major battle will begin. (Note: should there be a major sale in progress, a crash helmet should be worn to avoid head injuries.)

Every experienced shopper knows the unwritten rule by heart: No matter what you are looking for, you will not be able to find it in your size. The exception to the rule is also memorized: If you find it in your size, the color will be the pits.

THEREFORE, SOONER OR later, you will probably settle for something other than what you originally wanted. Should you decide to do this, however, be certain that within one week, you will find exactly what you wanted to start with, and for $20 less than you paid for your second choice.

By the time the ordeal is over, provided you have survived, your feet are aching, your head is splitting, the kids are crying and the checkbook is empty. Those of you who were naive enough to dress in style will have runners in your pantyhose, mascara smudges under your eyes and the overall appearance of a survivor from Custer's Last Stand. You who dressed for battle will look as badly as you feel.

Now class, you may be wondering what the moral is to this story. Put simply, it is this: Husbands are a lot smarter than most wives give them credit for.

To aid Guatemala

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration still plans to resume the sale of arms to the military government of Guatemala, despite warnings by our embassy there that right-wing terrorists supported by the regime were probably responsible for a recent massacre of 24 townspeople — one of them a young girl.

The torture and execution of the villagers occurred in the small farming community of Chuabajito on April 9, according to the U.S. Embassy's confidential cable to Washington. Anywhere from 20 to 60 masked men in civilian clothes, armed with machetes and automatic weapons, descended on the town in three trucks that had no license plates.

THE INVADERS WENT from house to house demanding supposedly hidden firearms. They fired shots in the air and put up leftist revolutionary propaganda posters in the village. The masked gang rounded up 23 men and led them blindfolded to the village schoolhouse, where they were butchered within the hour.

The embassy cable describes the scene of horror the terrorists left behind: "The bodies bore machete or bullet wounds or both; and at least some showed explicit torture. Ostensibly the intruders killed the child when she ran to embrace her father. Purportedly because of fear of reprisal, most of the bodies went unclaimed."

The bodies were buried in a mass grave. Some of them, according to Guatemalan reports, had been brutalized to the point of decapitation.

When reports of the massacre began to filter out the hinterlands, the government of Maj. Gen. Fernando Romero Lucas Garcia promised a complete investigation. Within a week, the military regime issued a report blaming the atrocity on "criminal subversives" — meaning leftist guerrillas.

But political experts in the U.S. Embassy smelled a rat. Their analysis, based on knowledge of the intricate, dog-eat-dog of right-left violence in Guatemala, suggested that the military was covering up for a right-wing death squad. The cable to Foggy Bottom, reviewed by my associate Bob Sherman, explains the experts' reasoning this way:

"The government explanation strains credulity. Although the guerrillas claim more campesino (peasant) victims than they are usually credited with, torture is not usually part of the modus operandi; nor would guerrillas be searching for arms in campesino homes, or be traveling in plateless vehicles, which could be expected to attract the attention of authorities.

"A guerrilla motive would be hard to fathom," the cable continues, "unless it would have been to pin an atrocity on the government, in which case the intruders should have been dressed in uniform..."

THE EMBASSY ANALYSTS concluded that the brutal attack may have been part of a pattern of government retribution against peasants in areas in which the leftists enjoy wide support. "Grim experience suggests that Chuabajito was a reprisal, with a bow to plausible denial, in the pattern of earlier incidents."

The Reagan administration appears to be unmoved by the suspicions of the embassy experts on the scene, however. My sources say the State Department still plans to recommend a resumption of weapons sales to the Guatemalan regime. The sales were halted by President Carter in 1977 when the military regime failed to give satisfactory assurances that it would try to clean up its human rights act.

GERMAN QUALMS: West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt is due in Washington today, and most diplomatic observers believe his talks with President Reagan will be genuinely warm.

But there is one issue that can bring trouble if it is raised: arms control. Both the Carter and Reagan administrations supported the upgrading of short-range "theater nuclear weapons" in Europe. Like other European allies, the West Germans are nervous about the politically controversial stationing of nukes on their soil.

Most worrisome of all, though, in European eyes, is the space shuttle. The Europeans just don't believe that this latest achievement of the U.S. space program is as peaceful as the United States has insisted it is. They note that future shuttle flights will carry military payloads.

The Europeans also note that administration hawks are bringing pressure to exploit the full military potential of the space shuttle. Intelligence analysts say that within three years the Pentagon could ferry enough weapons into space on the shuttle to give the United States an "overwhelming" strategic advantage. What they mean by this, according to a recent Defense Intelligence Agency analysis, is that we could annihilate the Soviet Union while suffering "acceptable" losses of 40 percent of our industry and 20 percent of the population — or 40 million casualties.

STEADY, EDDIE: New York's ebullient Mayor Ed Koch is a Democrat, but he has been cozying up to the Reagan administration in apparent hopes that he'll get re-election endorsements from both parties. So far, however, White House aides have been cautious about Koch's courtship. "He's still a Democrat, and we are interested in electing Republicans," said one Reagan insider, adding slyly: "But we are always glad to have the mayor's friendship."

Rethinking Europe

Joseph Kraft

PARIS — On top of the huge pile of uncertainties in the world power struggle — Poland, Afghanistan, Lebanon, the Persian Gulf, Central America and southern Africa — the French election last Sunday heaped further puzzles.

Nobody knows how the new president of France, Francois Mitterand, can impose a Socialist regime on a society that remains profoundly conservative. Nor to what extent his victory will strengthen the neutralist assault on Chancellor Helmut Schmidt in West Germany.

So mere prudence requires the U.S. to reassess the Atlantic connection. That means thinking explicitly about two different global strategies that have already emerged implicitly in a series of clashes between Secretary of State Alexander Haig and the Defense Department under Caspar Weinberger.

A CHANGE IN the geography and balance of world power provides the starting point for both strategies. The rivalry between the U.S. and Russia, which began in Europe and then shifted to Asia, now centers around the Persian Gulf. Though the Russians have been contained in both Europe and Asia, they have steadily increased both their nuclear and conventional military strength relative to the U.S. At the same time, the U.S. has lost much of its competitive edge over such allied nations as Japan, Germany and France.

The Haig strategy continues, nevertheless, to emphasize allied solidarity. The Secretary of State favors a joint buildup of U.S. and allied forces in both the conventional and nuclear domains. He seeks to enlist the help of the European allies in the Persian Gulf, and in applying pressure to such Soviet surrogates as the Cubans and the Libyans.

More important, once the military balance has been righted, Haig would work hard to achieve what the Europeans chiefly seek — detente with the Soviet Union. Thus, in keeping with the European preferences, he laid out at the NATO foreign ministers meeting in Rome two weeks ago a timetable for beginning talks with Andrei Gromyko on arms control before the end of this year.

The Pentagon strategy has not yet been fully articulated. But it has deep roots in the isolationist tradition and the Pacific emphasis so dear to the Republican Party. It keeps cropping up in comments by Secretary Weinberger and his principal aides.

THE U.S., IN the Pentagon view as I interpret it, is an insular power. It depends upon the outside world for markets and for access to raw materials. A chief security requirement is protecting the sea lanes. Naval strength is critical in that respect. Equally important, besides a position in Europe, are footholds all over the rest of the world — in Panama, Brazil and Argentina; in Egypt, Israel, Saudi Arabia, Turkey and Pakistan; in Japan, the Philippines and Taiwan; and in South Africa.

Restoring American military power has to be done rapidly and on a big scale. With allied help, if possible. But if the European allies are not prepared to shoulder responsibilities outside the Continent, then — the theory runs — the U.S. should not shrink from going it alone. Nor is there any urgency about coming to terms with Russia on arms control. On the contrary, the crucial matter is maintaining the right conditions for a sustained American military buildup.

One reading rarely hypertension

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My son, who is in his 20s and normal in weight and height, has trouble getting accepted for a job because they say he has high blood pressure. He gets nervous and his pressure rises, so when they take it for the exam he's disqualified. Any tips for him? I am sure that he doesn't have high blood pressure, only during the test. — D.H.

You usually cannot confirm high blood pressure from a single reading. There are many external factors at work — anxiety, discomfort, physical activity, for examples. The stress of being in a doctor's office can make a reading abnormally high.

Your son should ask that his blood pressure be checked on three separate days. He ought to lie down for five minutes before the pressure is read, and it should be recorded with him lying down and standing up.

I don't want to be in the position of offering a manual on "How to Beat the EKG" or anything like that, but I can tell you son how to get a more reliable blood pressure reading. He ought not to drink any caffeine or smoke cigarettes before having the test. These will make pressure rise. If possible, it would be helpful to have his blood pressure taken in less anxiety-provoking circumstances — at home.

It is worthless to tell him to relax. When I am told to relax, I become more uptight than ever. Tell your son to cut down on his salt intake and exercise regularly before his next examination. If he is overweight, he must reduce. These factors will help bring down his pressure and lessen the effects of his anxiety. Of course, all the things I'm suggesting are things he ought to do anyway, whether he is going to be tested or not.

There are people whose pressures fluctuate between normal and slightly high. They are called "labile hypertensives." They should be checked regularly to see if their pressures are staying within normal ranges. I don't know if your son fits into this category. However, I must emphasize that the diagnosis of high blood pressure is not made from a single reading unless the pressure is so obviously abnormal that follow-up readings are unnecessary. That's what you left out of your letter — those figures.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 69 years of age. Except for the usual aches and pains of age and a lack of stamina, I do not have physical problems — except one. It is not earth-shaking, but annoying and embarrassing. My right eyelid quivers uncontrollably. Sometimes it does so when I am sleeping. Sometimes it may happen when I am talking with someone. Sometimes I find myself winking at strange men! Are there vitamins missing in my diet? What can you suggest? — Mrs. F.E.K.

The twitching of an eyelid is more of a nuisance than an illness. It comes from multiple contractions of the eyelid muscles — somewhat like receptive cramps. It most often is brought on by fatigue or irritation of the muscles. Sometimes a simple warm compress with a handcloth soaked in hot water and applied to the lid brings relief. Are you getting sufficient rest? It's not a sign of vitamin deficiency.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I wrote before but have not heard from you. I am interested in an article you wrote sometime back dealing with an uncommon condition that had all the characteristics of rheumatoid arthritis and was prevalent in people of Mediterranean background. The article stated there was a marked drop in blood platelets. I was recently hospitalized for a severe drop in platelet count. I can't recall the name of the disease to which you referred. I want to be tested for it. — Mrs. A.S.

I searched my files and could not come up with such an article. I do remember writing about familial Mediterranean fever, an unusual illness found in some descendants of people from that part of the world.

That is characterized by sudden and repeated attacks of fever, abdominal pain, joint pain and skin rashes. A low platelet count is not a part of this.

Another illness common to people of Mediterranean background is thalassemia, a form of anemia. But neither is associated with low platelets. This must be very frustrating to you. It certainly is to me. Of course, Mrs. A.S. you must remember that many diseases can be associated with low platelets, diseases that have nothing to do with your family background.

To find out what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it, send for a copy of "Controlling Your Blood Pressure (Hypertension) Write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Mononucleosis is primarily a disease that hits young people. To learn more about it, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "Mononucleosis: What It Is; What To Do." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer.

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am 10 years old, and I want to know why God doesn't abolish sickness and evil if he is all-powerful. — K.T.

DEAR K.T.: A few years ago I undertook a systematic study of this subject to see what the Bible had to say. I eventually wrote a recently published book on this problem. But the more I studied, the more I realized that this is a very difficult question to answer fully. Nevertheless, the Bible does give us some definite guidance, and it is important for us to know what God has revealed about this problem.

Yes, God could abolish all sickness and evil if he wanted to, since he is all-powerful and ultimately in control. But I want you to think about something for a minute. If God abolished all evil, what would happen to each one of us? After all, each one of us has sinned, and we all have selfish and sinful thoughts every day.

If God were to abolish evil, he also would have to abolish those who commit evil. But God does not want to do that, because he loves us and wants each of us to love him in return. The Bible says, "He is patient with you, not wanting anyone to perish, but everyone to come to repentance" (2 Peter 3:9).

But there are two other things I need to say. First, some day God will abolish all evil and sin. The Bible does not tell us when this will happen, but it does say that at the end of time as we know it Christ will be Lord of all and everything which is evil will be destroyed. "We are looking forward to a new heaven and a new earth, and the home of righteousness" (2 Peter 3:13).

Second, Christ came to bring us forgiveness, and also to make it possible for us to live as God wants us to live. Christ died on the cross for our sins and, by coming back from the grave, he assured us that he had conquered sin and evil. Have you given your heart to him? Let Christ come into your life, and then trust him and follow him in the years ahead.

Garden clubs sponsor flower show at bank

The Big Spring Council of Garden Clubs will be sponsoring a standard flower show on Saturday at the First National Bank. The show, which will be a juried show open to all residents of Big Spring and Howard County, will be held in conjunction with the local Centennial Celebration.

Edna Womack, general chairman of the show, said entries would be received in all categories from 8 to 11:30 a.m. at the bank, located at Fourth and Main. She said judging would begin at 11:30 a.m. and the show would be open to the general public from 3 to 6 p.m.

Womack stressed the importance of the show being open to all area residents and said she hoped a large group would be competing for the national awards to be presented during the one-day show.

Talking about the show, Womack said persons could enter any type of plant they wished because of the large selection of categories in the various divisions. She said schedules of the show, as well as the rules and regulations, were available at the Centennial Store-Headquarters at 900 Main and that contestants would need to pick up and read the literature before bringing their entries to the bank.

Entries may be made by any amateur gardener in Howard County and those entries not conforming to the rules and regulations outlined in the schedule will still be placed on display. All points awarded to entries will be according to the scale outlined in the 1977 Handbook and Plant Societies unless otherwise stated.

SEC seeks denial of Hunt motion

DALLAS (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission has asked a federal judge to deny an amended motion that would end the SEC investigation of the wealthy Hunt family's role in the silver market crash last year.

SEC attorneys told U.S. District Judge Robert Porter Tuesday the Hunts have raised new issues that the commission has not had a chance to investigate. SEC attorneys also said the new motion was not in proper form to comply with court rules.

The SEC is investigating silver dealings by the W. Herbert Hunt, Nelson Bunker and four other family members in connection with the "Silver Thursday" crash on March 27, 1980.

In the original suit, the Hunts charged that the SEC exceeded the scope of its investigation and intruded into the jurisdiction of the Commodities and Futures Trading Commission.

Porter issued a temporary restraining order against the SEC which is still in effect. The Hunts sought a temporary injunction claiming the SEC violated the 1978 Right to Financial Privacy Act.

Porter has heard testimony in the case in which SEC investigators admitted procedural guidelines were not followed. But they denied there was any attempt at willful violation of the act and vowed to change their operations to comply with the Privacy Act.

On May 8 the Hunts asked the court for permission to amend their original complaint. They have also asked that all court proceedings be temporarily stayed until the SEC internal investigation of their case has been concluded.

Motorcycle safety course to be offered

A course in motorcycle safety will be offered by the Adult and Continuing Education Department of Howard College, announced Martha Pierre, director. Classes will meet from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Thursday in Practical Arts Building.

Instructor for the course will be Louise Spencer, a chief motorcycle safety instructor. Cost of the course is $10.

Interested persons must pre-register in the Continuing Education Office located in the Storage Garret Building. For further information, call the Adult and Continuing Education Department at 267-0311, ext. 70.

According to regulations, an exhibitor may make only one entry in any class or subdivision, but may enter as many classes in the Horticulture Division as desired.

The judging will be done by nationally accredited amateur Flower Show and Student Judges using the standard system. One blue, one red, and one yellow ribbon will be awarded in each class, with as many honorable mentions being awarded in each subdivision as deemed appropriate by the judges.

The decisions of the judges will be final and they may withhold awards at their discretion. Entries must also remain on display through the public viewing time from 3 to 6 p.m., but must be removed shortly after 6 p.m.

Interested persons wishing to receive additional information on the flower show should pick up a schedule from the centennial store.

RIOT BLAZE — A blazing barricade in the Twinbrooke estate, a Republican area of Belfast, is all that remains of a riot Tuesday night in which a girl was seriously injured.

Irish provincial vote tests militant spirit

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — IRA sniper fire raked this beleaguered province early today as voters prepared to choose district councils in a test of militant sentiment among both Catholics and Protestants.

Authorities said snipers fired on police patrols in Londonderry and in Catholic west Belfast at the end of a night of widespread rioting. The riots killed five British soldiers near the border with the Irish Republic.

Police said an 11-year-old girl was hit in the head and badly wounded by one of the plastic bullets fired by police to disperse rioters in largely Roman Catholic west Belfast.

Gangs hurled gasoline bombs and stones at security forces in the Catholic Falls Road district of Belfast, with some streets barricaded with hijacked vehicles, police said.

The latest surge of bloodshed has been fueled by a hunger strike by convicted IRA men in Belfast's Maze prison demanding political prisoner status.

Two of the strikers have died, and Raymond McCreech, in the 60th day of his fast, was reported grave condition today by Sinn Fein, the IRA's political front.

A Sinn Fein spokesman said McCreech, 24, serving a 14-year term for the attempted murder of British soldiers, could die within 48 hours. Another hunger striker, Patrick "Patsy" O'Hara, also on his 60th day without food, was reported seriously weakening, but not likely to die before McCreech.

Army squads deployed to guard schools to be used as polling stations today quickly became targets for rioters in Catholic districts.

Lawmaker claims property tax exemption is political move

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A proposal to let local governments exempt up to 40 percent of a home's value from property taxes is purely "political" and will bring more pressure for local sales taxes, a lawmaker says.

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, says city councils, county commissioners and school boards would feel pressured to grant the exemptions, even in cases when they should not. The House passed the proposed constitutional amendment Tuesday, 132-13, and sent it to the Senate, where approval by a two-thirds majority would submit it to the voters in November.

Rep. Lee Jackson, R-Dallas, the sponsor, said the proposal was needed to offset a shift in tax burden from businesses to homes resulting from reappraisals required in all taxing jurisdictions next year.

"This is the only way to counter what is possibly going to be a disaster in many areas in 1982," said Rep. Doug McLeod, D-Galveston, a supporter of the measure.

Davis called a vote for the Jackson amendment a "political vote" and predicted tax exemptions could increase pressure on the Legislature for more local sales taxes.

"I would tend to disagree with that," said Rep. Paul Colbert, D-Houston, author of a competing constitutional amendment now in committee. He said taxing authorities could make up the difference by raising the tax rate instead of asking for a sales tax.

If the Jackson amendment becomes part of the Texas Constitution, a local government could exempt up to 40 percent of the value of homesteads in 1982, 30 percent in 1983 and 20 percent in 1984 and thereafter, except in Houston, where the exemption stays at 30 percent.

Jackson said the reason for the shift is that residential property values are rising much more rapidly than those for business and industrial property.

But another explanation for the shift is that business property is measured by "a different yardstick" than homes — a depreciating rather than appreciating scale, Colbert said after the vote.

Businesses also "render" their own values — that is, for all practical purposes they assess themselves, he said.

"Jackson is correct in that what will happen on the average is that (the amendment) will nullify the shift that would otherwise occur," Colbert said, "but it is still inadequate if you are hurt worse than the average."

A person who bought a $15,000 home in a neighborhood that later saw values skyrocket ten-fold would not be helped significantly, he said, because the homeowner's income would not have matched the 800 percent increase in value that would still be left after a 20 percent exemption.

Colbert amended the measure so that homeowners would still receive the $5,000 homestead exemption passed by the voters in 1977. He said the additional exemption was needed to avoid shifting the tax burden onto the poorest property owners.

Under Jackson's proposal, the Legislature also could prescribe the maximum exemptions to avoid too great a tax break for owners of expensive houses.

Subcommittee approves of House districts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Senate subcommittee dominated by Democrats has approved a congressional redistricting proposal that could result in Republicans winning all three of the new congressional seats.

Texas' population growth since 1970 will add three congressmen to the 24-member delegation, which now includes five Republicans.

Subcommittee chairman Jack Ogg said Tuesday the plan virtually guarantees the election of GOP candidates from new districts in the Houston and Dallas areas and gives Republicans at least an even chance in a new Central Texas district.

The plan was approved, 12-1, after the Subcommittee on Redistricting rejected a proposal to realign the Hill Country district that first elected Lyndon Johnson to Congress.

Johnson went to Congress from Big Spring in 1937 and became president in 1963 after John F. Kennedy was assassinated.

His old congressional district, now represented by U.S. Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle of Austin, consists of Bastrop, Blanco, Caldwell, Hays, Lee, Travis counties and part of Williamson County.

Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, offered an amendment that would remove Blanco, Hays and Caldwell counties from the 10th Congressional District and would add Williamson County.

Williamson would be removed from the proposed 27th district, and Blanco, Hays and Caldwell would be added. As approved by the subcommittee, it would include nine counties and parts of Bexar, Williamson and Milam.

Ogg, D-Houston, said the 10th district "historically has had a community of interests... and it was also the district former President Johnson was elected from."

"I'm sorry Lyndon wouldn't approve," said Traeger, whose amendment failed, 8-4.

The Houston-area district would include southeast Harris County and Fort Bend County. The Dallas-area district would include Denton County and parts of Cooke, Collin, Dallas and Tarrant counties.

Sen. Carlos Truan's proposal to create a South Texas district stretching south from his hometown of Corpus Christi was rejected, 11-2.

'Boomtown Review' wins name contest

COLORADO CITY (SC) — From a list of more than 250 entries, a committee of three, composed of Mrs. Louise Johnston, Mrs. Bebe Colaw, and Mrs. Bill Denson selected "Boomtown Review" as the official name for the Centennial spectacle for Mitchell County.

Submitting the winning entry was Mrs. Louise Sweatt, who will receive a $50 savings bond.

According to Bog Rely, chairman of the selection board, "It certainly was a difficult decision for the committee to make from the number of entries submitted. Now that a decision has been made, we can get on with the show."

ASTRONAUTS AT WHITE HOUSE — President Reagan, left, meets with Space Shuttle Astronauts John Young and Robert Crippen, right, at the White House Tuesday after he awarded the Congressional Space Medal of Honor and the Distinguished Service Medal Citation to Young and the Distinguished Service Medal Citation to Crippen.

Shuttle astronauts honored in ceremony at White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan asked those in the audience who had flown in space to stand up. About 40 did, and before him were the pioneers who blazed America's path into a new world.

It was the largest assembly ever of former American astronauts. These men of Mercury, Gemini, Apollo and Skylab gathered at the White House on Tuesday to join Reagan in honoring the nation's newest space heroes — the pilots who successfully guided the space shuttle Columbia on its maiden flight last month.

John Young and Bob Crippen have made us very proud," the president said. "Their deeds reminded us that we as a free people can accomplish whatever we set out to do. Nothing binds our abilities except our expectations, and given that, the farthest star is within our reach."

The flight of Columbia, he said, "was a victory for the American spirit." He pinned Distinguished Service Medals on the breast pockets of both men and further honored Young with the Congressional Space Medal of Honor, commemorating his five space flights during two decades as an astronaut.

The occasion was a luncheon hosted by the president and first lady Nancy Reagan in a large tent erected over the White House Rose Garden. It was a celebration of the entire U.S. space effort, with many former and present space officials on the guest list of 160.

The roster of astronauts read like a who's who of space travel. Many of the names are legendary.

Six of the seven original Project Mercury pilots were there — Alan Shepard, the first American in space; John Glenn, the first to orbit; Scott Carpenter; Wally Schirra; Gordon Cooper, and Donald Slayton. The seventh Mercury pilot, Gus Grissom, was killed in a launch pad fire 14 years ago.

All 12 Americans who walked on the moon were there, including the first two, Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin, as were the nine men of Skylab who stayed away from their home planet for periods of 28 to 84 days.

Reagan, obviously enjoying the company of these brave trailblazers, said he was honored to be in such "very, very distinguished company."

But, in accepting a gold space flight jacket from Young and Crippen, he indicated he wasn't quite ready for a space trip. "You won't mind if I only wear this in Earth's atmosphere," he quipped.

Yarbrough conviction upheld

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Former Supreme Court Justice Donald B. Yarbrough, who resigned from office just as the Legislature began removal proceedings, today lost his appeal of a 1978 aggravated perjury conviction.

Yarbrough was convicted of lying to a Travis County grand jury about his relationship with John William Rothkopf, a business associate.

Yarbrough was sentenced to five years in prison, but remained free pending the outcome of his appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeals. He has since left the country.

The court ruled today that Yarbrough was not denied a fair trial for perjury by the admission of evidence about other offenses he allegedly committed, including forgery of a car title and theft of $4,000.

The evidence was properly admitted in order to prove Yarbrough's motive for denying to the grand jury that he met Rothkopf on May 16, 1977, the court opinion said.

"The appellant, in testifying falsely before the grand jury, sought to prevent the detection of these crimes," the court said.

GERI ODOM JOSEPH BADER HERBERT WOOD

Odom, Bader, Wood added to staff at local VAMC

Mrs. Gerajd H. (Geri) Odom, Dr. Joseph Bader and Herbert A. Wood have recently been added to the staff at the Big Spring VA Medical Center.

Mrs. Odom's new title is Chief, Fiscal Service. She formerly was with the VA Medical Center in Dallas.

She began her VA career at the VAMC in Houston in October 1959 in Accounting and Finance activities. In 1970, she became Chief of Voucher Examining at the data processing center in Austin, where she participated in the original conversions of VA Installations to the consolidated accounting for local management (CALM) project, which is the VA's nationwide sophisticated accounting and payment system.

She held a position at the VAMC in San Antonio in 1974 and was Chief of Finance Operations at the VA Regional office in Houston in 1975, returning to the VAMC in Houston as Chief of Finance in 1976.

Geri was selected for fiscal officer's training in October 1979 and spent a year at the VAMC in Dallas. She was originally a West Texan, having lived near Snyder and Roscoe as well as Big Spring.

She taught school for two years in the Cauble system, was a piano teacher in Big Spring and also worked at Radio Station KBST prior to moving to Houston in 1953. She attended McMurry College and had accounting courses at the University of Texas while employed at the VADPC in Austin.

Dr. Bader recently reported to the VAMC as staff physician in ambulatory care. He comes here from Hoffman-Laroche Laboratories where he served as Southwest Regional Medical Director. Originally from St. Louis, Mo., he received his A.A. degree in 1941 from Edinburg Junior College, Edinburg, Tex., and his B.A. degree in 1943 from University of Texas, Austin. His M.D. degree was granted in 1946 from University of Texas Medical Branch, Galveston. His internship was served at the U.S. Naval Hospital, Oakland, Cal., 1946-47.

He attended the School of Aviation Medicine, Pensacola, Fla., and was designated naval flight surgeon April 16, 1948. He had rotating residency at Breckenridge Hospital, Austin, from 1949-50. Dr. Bader was in general practice in Edna, Tex., from 1950 to 1966 when he joined the staff of Eli Lilly Company, serving until 1979 in Ceylon, India, Pakistan, South Africa and England. Dr. Bader is married and has three daughters.

Wood, Chief, Supply Service, came to VA Medical Center Big Spring from VAMC, Fargo, N.C., where he served as chief, supply service since 1979.

Wood began his career as assistant chief, supply processing and distribution at Fresno, Cal., in 1968 and entered the supply management program in November 1972 in Gainesville, Fla.

Upon completion of the training program in 1973, he was assigned as assistant chief, supply processing and distribution at Audie Murphy VA Medical Center, San Antonio, until 1974 when he was selected as assistant chief, Supply Service, VAMC, Kerrville, Tex.

He has also served at VA Medical Centers in Marion, Ind., and Oklahoma City, Wood is a native of Massachusetts. He is married to Charlene and they have three sons, Twins Mark and Michael, age 19, and David, age 17. Hobbies include fishing, golf, tennis and music.

Program will not end Lakeview YMCA building will be closed June 1

The building now being used by the Lakeview YMCA will be closed June 1. The first and only director of the Lakeview Y has ever had, Sam Dawson, looks upon the closure with mixed emotions.

The building will be shuttered because it has become a safety hazard. Too, its insurance rates are becoming prohibitive.

Dawson began teaching at Lakeview High School after arriving here in 1958. An extra wing was added to the school building the following year. The Lakeview Y was started when the wing was opened, at which time Dawson was named director of the facility. The Lakeview school later closed but the Lakeview Y received certification from the state of Texas to continue operations.

Since 1969, the Lakeview YMCA has operated largely on gifts from individuals and clubs. Among the more generous givers have been Dr. Floyd Mays, Jane Thomas, Edna Womack and Mrs. Dorothy Garrett, who was acting on behalf of the Roberts Foundation. The Hyperion Club also helped.

Down through the years, the Lakeview YMCA has contributed valuable services to the community. As an example, it operated a nursery when Webb AFB was active. Upwards to 40 children could be accommodated in the nursery.

The North Side YMCA program will not end with the closing of the building. There is a plan afoot to start summer programs involving different kinds of games. There is also a possibility a bus will be purchased to transport children from one place to another. That would include trips to the Central YMCA swimming pool and the Comanche Trail Park pool. A variety of other programs are being organized.

Dawson plans to remain in charge of the North Side Y program. He will also continue as an instructor at Bauer Elementary School, too.

The Lakeview school building will be returned to the Big Spring Independent School District. So far, nothing is planned for the structure. Originally, the building was a part of the old Big Spring Bombardier School.

Vickie Daniel to contest estate appraisal

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — Vickie Daniel, now living in a sparsely furnished one bedroom apartment and accepting food stamps, will contest the inventory and appraisal on the estate of former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., her attorneys say.

Attorney Harlan D. Friend, Liberty, labeled as ludicrous documents filed in Liberty County Probate Court showing Mrs. Daniel would receive $15,375 from community property acquired during her four-year marriage to Daniel, fatally shot at his home here Jan. 19.

"We're going to have to contest it," Friend said Tuesday. "We're going to be able to show she has a community interest in a good portion of the property listed as separate. Vickie contends they did not report all of the property in the inventory."

Total assets listed in the estate were $691,022 with liabilities totalling $126,563. Executor Jean Daniel Murph said Mrs. Daniel's community property share was $15,375 after $26,000 in community liabilities were deducted.

Mrs. Daniel, charged with murder in her husband's death, was excluded from his will dated May 23, 1960, seven months before Mrs. Daniel filed for divorce.

Forsan Study Club holds homecoming

The GFWC Forsan Study Club had their Homecoming Luncheon May 16, 12:30 p.m. at K-Bob's Steak House.

Nola Story, the moderator, welcomed the out of town guests and also introduced special guests Charter members present were: Loula Belle Dunn, Odessa; Clarie Conger, Big Spring; Frances Watkins, Midland and Ruby Burkhardt, Hamlin.

Past presidents were: Gwen Holladay, Dallas; Edith Grissom, Monahans; Lea Long, Big Spring; (Ruby Boyd Midland).

Former members attending were: Frances Honeycutt, Monahans; Elsie Whittenberg, Gatesville; Kathryn Inglish, Midland; Mary Branton, Tulsa, Okla.; Ruby McElrath, Big Spring; and Anta Shoultz, Evelyn Cowley, Lucille Overton and Blanche Cardwell from Fossan.

Mrs. Conger began the program by relating events prior to the organization and federation of the club in 1938. She gave special tributes to Ethel Foster and Lorene Williams. Miss Foster, a native of Sterling City, was instrumental in organizing the Forsan Study Club. She was the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs State President and later became the General Federation of Women's Clubs National President. Mrs. Williams' strong leadership as the first president made the beginning successful. Strict parliamentary procedure and the wearing of hats and gloves were a necessity in the early days. The club's formal events were the social highlights of the community.

Mrs. Grissom, 1958 president, gave a resume of club activities from 1938 to 1954. The ladies of that era had few outside activities so

Adult sore throat may be 'acute epiglottitis'

CHICAGO, ILL. — A sore throat and difficulty in swallowing are sometimes neglected in an adult and can become life-threatening.

Writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Robert H. Ossoff, MD of Northwestern University, Chicago, explains that "sometimes the epiglottis (at the back of the throat) becomes swollen and inflamed. If untreated, it can swell so large that it blocks air from getting into the windpipe. A tracheotomy, which requires cutting into the windpipe and inserting a breathing tube, is then necessary to permit the victim to breathe. Dr. Ossoff says that the diagnosis of 'acute epiglottitis' should be considered in an adult with a sore throat and difficulty in swallowing. The disease responds well to treatment.

Mother's Swollen Ankles Caused by Swelled Pride

DEAR ABBY: We have a 68-year-old widowed mother who needs a doctor but refuses to go to one or let one come to her house. She told us that if we bring a doctor to the house, she will throw us and the doctor out. She is not a Christian Scientist; she has had doctors in the past but she doesn't want one now.

Abby, her feet and ankles are so swollen they look like elephant's feet! She can't wear shoes and isn't able to stand for more than five minutes. Her feet and legs are purplish, so it's obvious she has some kind of circulatory problem.

We have a brother living at home who does the laundry and cooking. He says Mother is so stubborn he can't cope with her. She's not senile; her mind is sharp as a razor. We feel so helpless. Every doctor we've spoken to says he can't treat Mother without her consent. We can't drag her to a doctor if she doesn't want to go. Or can we?

HELPLESS

DEAR HELPLESS: No, you can't drag her to a doctor. Assuming Mother is of sound mind, the responsibility of what happens to her body must be hers. Don't fight her. When her condition becomes unbearable to her, she will be forced to do something about it.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think an ex-priest would make a good husband? I'm going with one who wants to marry me.

CATHY IN DETROIT

DEAR CATHY: Ex-priests should make excellent husbands. They've already taken an oath of chastity, obedience and poverty.

DEAR ABBY: You stated that people who avoid shaking hands are "mysophobic" — they have a pathological fear of germ contamination. Not necessarily.

As a violinist, my sensitive hands are sometimes crushed to a pulp by home-crushing handshakes from overly enthusiastic well-wishers. Crippling handshakes can also be expressions of conscious or unconscious hostility.

Furthermore, many physicians believe that handshakes are the most common culprit in transmitting cold germs.

According to one theory, the custom of handshaking was originally intended to demonstrate that the hand concealed no weapon. How much more graceful is the Oriental greeting of bowing with upturned hands joined together as in prayer, demonstrating that neither hand conceals a weapon.

Could anything be more useful in today's gun-loving U.S.A.?

HENRY TEMIANKA, L.A., CALIF.

DEAR HENRY: Gun control might help.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in reply to the 21-year-old girl who said her boyfriend doesn't kiss her because she wears braces on her teeth. Well, I have no idea why her boyfriend doesn't kiss her, but I'm sure the braces have nothing to do with it. You said that maybe the lips get cut from too much pressure. Wrong. I have a boyfriend with braces and he is better than anyone I've ever kissed.

I had my lip cut once during a kiss and the guy didn't even wear braces.

Using bark as backfill helps plants survive

A high percentage of the trees and shrubs planted each spring will die within the first two years after planting. Many more are slow to become established and may take years before they start to grow properly.

The chance for survival of new plantings can be materially increased by using a good backfill mix when planting. Too often the soil in which trees and shrubs must be planted is not suitable for good root development. A tight clay soil with poor aeration and drainage qualities prevents necessary root growth of newly planted shrubs. To insure proper root development, planting should be done in a hole of adequate size and a good soil mix used to backfill around the plant ball or roots.

Good soil mixtures for backfilling around newly planted trees and shrubs should be high in organic matter. One of the most readily available, least expensive and easily handled sources of organic matter for use in backfill mixes is bark.

The best bark product is one in which 90 percent of the particle size is 1/4 inch or less. If soil conditioner grade is not readily available, basic bark mulch can be substituted with little loss of effectiveness.

Using bark in your backfill material will permit better water and air relationship in the mixtures as well as provide the other important benefits derived from organic matter.

It is the lack of proper water and air relationship in soils that is the basic cause of improper root development on newly planted trees and shrubs.

Most gardeners know that trees and shrubs must be watered regularly during the first two years after planting; but unless the percolation of water throughout the root zone is fairly rapid and retention of water after watering is adequate, the roots simply cannot develop proportionately to top growth so death results.

It is most difficult for the average gardener to properly water plants which are planted in poor soil. A bonus of using bark as the organic material in a backfill mix is that it decomposes over a period of several years thus insuring the benefits over a period of time that is much longer than can be expected from the other commonly used sources of organic material. This is especially important in sandy soil.

For further information, please write the National Bark Producers Association, Maple Ave. West, Vienna, Va. 22180.

Florida drought not letting up

Only rain can stop Big Cypress fires

BIG CYPRESS FIREFIGHTER — Ed Stewart tries to contain a massive swampland fire burning out of control. Over 102,000 acres of dry swampland have been scorched in the Everglades by Monday. Gov. Graham has signed an executive order telling the national guard and all state agencies to assist the division of forestry in fighting all the brush and forest fires.

BIG CYPRESS NATIONAL PRESERVE, Fla. (AP) — With water cascading around them from a helicopter skimming over the trees, two yellow-clad firefighters, nearly obscured by choking gray smoke, furiously hacked away at flames in the parched swampgrass.

The crackling inferno muted the noise from the hovering chopper as its pilot maneuvered a water-filled bucket and dumped its cargo on a flash fire that exploded around the firemen. There was a sizzling sound, and the "spot fire" was out.

Their faces sooty and streaked with sweat from the fire and the equally torrid tropical sun, the two men wearily picked up "flappers" — a square of hard rubber attached to a stick that's used to smother flames — and trudged back to their four-wheel drive vehicle.

Their work wasn't over. The Big Cypress fire was still burning.

Since the first of the year, these National Park Service employees have joined firefighters throughout Florida in a largely unsuccessful war against wildfires that have blackened more than 385,000 acres. The Big Cypress fire is the worst — an estimated 105,000 acres charred so far, and no end is in sight.

Hot weather, low humidity and one of the worst droughts in state history have parched the hammocks and brushlands of South Florida, turning usually damp muckland into an inferno.

The fires spawned thick smoke that rolled over South Florida last week. Doctors warned patients with respiratory ailments to stay inside, and visibility dropped to less than a mile in some areas. The Highway Patrol was forced to close Alligator Alley, a major east-west highway, for about 20 hours.

Inside this 2,400-square-mile preserve, swampland normally under water and teeming with alligators, snakes, rabbits and exotic insects and plants has dried out, stranding wildlife in a few ponds just ahead of advancing flames. The ground is strewn with the charred remains of creatures caught by the fire.

Firefighters say there is very little they can do to save the land or animals. Only heavy rain can stop the fires, which were caused by anything from a careless motorist's cigarette butt to arson.

The rainy season generally begins in May and lasts for several months, but this year has been an exception. There were thundershowers Tuesday in the Florida Panhandle and weather forecasters said there was some prospect of rain through the end of the week.

"You can't fight a fire like this directly because the conditions are too severe — the drought, the low humidity and the winds," said ranger Robert Yates as he took a swig of Gatorade and watched flames jump from top to top of cypress trees along Burns Road, a strip of gravel that cuts through the middle of the preserve some 70 miles west of Miami.

"So all we're trying to do is fight it indirectly and protect the structures that may be around it."

Adds Rick Smith, assistant superintendent of Everglades National Park: "Our philosophy is to protect structural property and human life. It's pretty hard to attack a fire of this size with the idea of putting it out."

Mum is the word as Shaw's agent orange bill advances

By JAY ROSSER
Huntsville Staff Bureau

AUSTIN — Rep. Larry Don Shaw didn't have to say a word Tuesday to gain House favor for a proposal designed to aid Vietnam veterans exposed to the controversial chemical defoliant Agent Orange during their military stings.

The Big Spring legislator's proposal passed overwhelmingly by voice vote — would require the State Health Department to provide free genetic screening to veterans exposed to the chemical. It passed overwhelmingly by voice vote.

It would enable the state attorney general's office to represent Texans in suits seeking information from the federal government.

The genetic screening, Shaw said after the vote, would enable veterans to learn in advance of any adverse effects the chemical could produce in their offspring.

The Federal government, he said, has refused to subject itself to damage suits filed by exposed veterans and has been slow to release reports on the chemical's effects on humans.

Agent Orange contained dioxin, a toxic substance suspected of causing cancer, genetic damage, nervous disorders, skin, joint and digestive ailments.

But a tough chore lies ahead for Shaw as he con-

Liddy claims prison guards are stupid

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — G. Gordon Liddy says the average prison guard is stupid.

The former FBI agent who served four years in prison for his part in the Watergate break-in also says inmates, not administrators, run prisons.

Liddy participated Tuesday night in the 16th Interagency Workshop at the Criminal Justice Center of Sam Houston State University.

tinues, his efforts to help veterans exposed to the chemical used to strip Vietnam's jungles of foliage and destroy enemy crops between 1962 and 1973.

"Getting it through the Senate is going to be tough," Shaw said. "We are running out of time."

The current legislative session ends June 1. The Senate so far has failed to act on the proposal.

House members declined to debate the Big Spring legislator's proposal, instead greeting him with shouts of "vote, vote" even before Shaw hit the microphone.

Shaw had roamed the House floor twice before lobbying for the support of fellow lawmakers, he passed out orange buttons to fellow lawmakers as a sponsor of the legislation. Both times the proposal was postponed.

"I guess you could tell we worked the floor pretty hard," Shaw said Tuesday.

"Can we throw away these orange buttons?" queried

Rep. Froy Salinas of Lubbock after Shaw's proposal won the tentative House acceptance.

"Thank goodness," replied House Speaker Billy Clayton in mock jest.

Final House action on the proposal is expected today. Similar legislation is being carried in the Senate by Sen. John Wilson of LaGrange.

The legislation carries an estimated $2.8 million pricetag over the biennium.

About 500,000 Vietnam veterans are believed living in the state with about 145,000 possibly having come in contact with the chemical during overseas assignments, Shaw said.

Shaw's proposal would also require doctors or medical officials treating exposed veterans after December to report the symptoms, diagnosis and medical treatment to the State Health Department in an attempt to gain more information about the chemical's affects.

Over 200 calls disrupt New York

Phony bomb threats unrelated to killer blast

NEW YORK (AP) — A rash of more than 200 phony bomb threats that has forced office workers from skyscrapers and diplomats from their missions since Monday probably is not the work of Puerto Rican terrorists who claimed responsibility for a killer blast over the weekend, police say.

"Every time there is a bombing all the kooks come out of the woodwork and start making calls," New York City Detective Peter Perotta said Tuesday as a 24-member elite bomb squad tried to keep up with the rash of calls.

"I guess they like to hear the sirens and see crowds." Bomb threats Tuesday forced the evacuation of thousands of people from the giant Chrysler and Pan Am buildings, diplomatic missions, airport terminals and department stores.

Perotta said some of the calls probably came from people who have been frightened since a bomb exploded

Saturday in a Kennedy Airport washroom, killing airport employee Alex McMillan, 26. Two other bombs were found in airport terminals before they detonated, and two bombs were found in the mail Monday at diplomatic missions.

"Everytime somebody sees something suspicious, he thinks it's another bomb and he calls up," Perotta said. "Sometimes it's a sandwich. Sometimes it's a clock."

"Sometimes it's a suitcase somebody left to go and make a telephone call. Everybody becomes paranoid." A group calling itself the Puerto Rican Armed Resistance Movement, which police believe is an offshoot of the Puerto Rican terrorist group FALN, claimed responsibility for three of the five bombs and police say they suspect the group was responsible for the other two. But police do not believe the group is involved in the phony calls.

"There is a big difference between making a bomb and making a telephone call," said a spokesman at police headquarters.

Security at the city's air, bus and rail terminals was beefed up today and extra precautions were taken at some office complexes and several foreign consulates.

In Sacramento, Calif., a bomb blast late Tuesday ripped through a downtown building just across the street from the county courthouse, where a device found earlier in the day that was suspected of being a pipe bomb turned out to be a fake. No one was hurt in the blast and no one claimed responsibility, police said. The explosion ripped a hole in the rear wall of the two-story structure.

Regional police in St. Catharines, Ont., removed explosive devices from three hydrofoils tied up there. Police said the devices contained a "tremendous amount" of explosives, one of them them 20 sticks of dynamite.

GETTING A LIFT — Six-year-old Ted Mosteller, left, just wasn't quite tall enough to reach the mailbox in front of their Medina County, Iowa home, but that didn't deter him. By lifting his brother Tim, 3, high enough to get his hand in the box, the mail was recovered successfully.

The camp will start June 1 and will be held in two week sessions through Aug 7. Fee for each session is $7 for members, and $15 for non-members.

The Y will also offer a day camp for youths 6-12 years old. YMCA camp Muskrat Day Camp is held at the Comanche Trail Park, and is designed around a camp "special" theme.

Day camp will begin June 1 through Aug 7, and will be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Fees are $15 for Y members, and $10 for additional children, or $28 for non-Y members, and $15 for each additional child.

Kindergym gymnastic instructor. This class is designed for children 3 to 5 years of age. The class is based on movement and locomotive exploration and body awareness. It also helps develop balance and coordination.

A special youth membership will be offered this summer. Any youth wishing to take part in only summer programs can buy a membership from June 1 through Aug 21. The membership privileges will include the same as the regular membership. The fee will be $18. Those who cannot afford the fee are provided by the Friend of Youth Program.

This summer the Y offers a new swim program for the handicapped. This program is taught by certified handicapped instructors. All levels and ages and types of handicapped will be taught.

A special summer membership for women is planned. The membership will include unlimited use of the Health Center, unlimited enrollment in all women's classes, and normal privileges for Y members. The membership fee is $70 and can be paid in two month installments. Membership will be in effect from June 1 thru Aug 21.

Versatile schoolgirl to bring talents to HC

Forsan's Adams a Hawk Queen

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

The Howard College Hawk Queens added a touch of flavor to their local lineup recently by signing Forsan's Christi Adams, but it certainly was not to please the fans of the successful girls juco team.

Adams is a proven quality when it comes to high school athletes, and will no doubt make her appearance known for Coach Don Stevens team next year.

"She's a very good all-around athlete, and that's one aspect that makes her signing a big one," said Stevens.

That might be a necessity for Adams at Howard, as both Stevens and the latest Hawk Queen recruit have stated that she will play at a wing position next year. That's a big change from her post position that she played at Forsan with her 5-8 height.

She's going to have to make an adjustment to the outside," noted Stevens, then adding, "but I have been so far surprised at her range so far. She's worked out with us some recently, and I think she'll be okay out there."

Adams' versatility in high school was exceptional. As well as leading the Buffalo Queens to the Region I-A Tournament two straight years in basketball, she was also the state Class AA girl shot put champion in track.

On the basketball court, Adams averaged 17 points and 12 rebounds per contest, in the process making All-District and All-Region Tournament for two straight years. She was also named First Team All-South Plains this year after helping pace the Forsan girls to their second consecutive 5-AA title.

In track, Adams culminated an excellent high school career by heaving the shot put 40'3 1/4" in the State Meet to win Class AA. She was second in the state shot put as a junior.

Adams chose Howard after considering offers from Angelo State and Western Texas College. "I think they're going to have a real good team and I'd like to play for them," said Adams in explaining her decision. "I guess I'm just lucky to get the scholarship."

But Stevens considered himself to be the lucky one, and feels that she will make a valuable addition to his 1981-82 team in time.

"She is a real aggressive player," he said. "It's just a matter of finding a place for her to play."

North Stars stay alive in Stanley Cup finals

SQUARING OFF — San Diego Padre Chris Welch and Montreal catcher Gary Carter collide at home plate as Welch tried to score from first on a hit by Rupert Jones. Welch was out by a large margin and neither player was hurt on the play during the fifth inning of their game Monday night in San Angelo.

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Over and over Glen Sonmor drilled it into them. "Not tonight," he kept saying. "Not tonight."

He told them in practice. He wrote it on the locker room blackboard. He reminded them between periods. "They have to beat us once. But not tonight."

"No team of Glen Sonmor's is ever going to let down, whatever the odds," said Bobby Smith, following the Minnesota North Stars' 4-2 National Hockey League Stanley Cup victory over the New York Islanders Tuesday night. "A great deal of leadership came from the coach. It gives you a good feeling."

The triumph, before 15,784 screaming fans at the Met Center, forced a fifth game in the best-of-seven series. The defending champion Islanders, who now lead the series 3-1, can wrap up their second Stanley Cup title Thursday night at the Nassau County Coliseum, but that goal is getting period, but Minnesota countered on a power play goal by Craig Hartsburg at 11:34.

"He's not exactly Bossy's imitation," said Sonmor of Lane, who scored his first goal of the playoffs. "When that happened I said, 'What now?'"

The two teams also traded goals in the second period, Al MacAdam scoring for the North Stars at 5:15 and Mike McEwen connecting on a powerplay at 7:37.

Then came the intense third period. Both teams were flying yet still cautious, perhaps waiting for that one break which would put them ahead.

Steve Payne, Minnesota's third-year winger, planted himself in the slot and waited for an opportunity. It came in the form of a Brad Maxwell slapshot from the point. Payne, left unattended by the normally attentive Islanders, deflected the puck past Billy Smith, giving the North Stars a 3-2 lead.

"Last year this team might have folded if it got down 3-0," said Payne, whose 17th goal of the playoffs tied Bossy for the lead. "Last year we upset Montreal and we made a big deal of it, like our job was finished."

"We don't have anything like that this year; nobody is satisfied and we won't be satisfied by losing in the finals. We're not the type of group to say, 'Well, we've got our one win.' We learned our lesson against Philadelphia last year."

"As soon as we scored that third goal I knew it was up to me," said Don Beaupre, who allowed six goals in Game 2 back on Long Island.

In bi-district battle

Lee Rebels stifled

MIDLAND — Bron Beal and Doug Smith combined on a two-hitter to pace the Lewisville Farmers to a 4-0 win over the Midland Lee Rebels in the first game of a best of three Class AAAAA bi-district series.

Lewisville now needs only one more win over Lee. The two teams will square off again Friday afternoon on the Farmers home field. Should Lee win, a third decisive game would take place.

Beal went 4 2-3 innings before exiting. He was forced to leave when Lee's Alan Koonce stopped his no-hitter on a line drive off his

BS Yankees keep record perfect

The Big Spring Yankees continued their perfect season here Sunday, sweeping a twinbill from the San Angelo Astros by lopsided scores.

In the opener, the Yankees, now 6-0 for the season, used the two-hit pitching of Ricky Myers in a 19-1 triumph. Myers upped his personal record to 4-0 in the contest, striking out 11 Astros in the process.

Louie Smith had three hits for the Yankees, with David Barbee and Dennis Iker getting two each. Iker had four ribbies.

In the second contest, Charlie Vernon made his mound debut for the Yankees, pitching three-innings of one-hit ball before being relieved by Manager-Player Chris Uchman. The final score was 19-1.

The Yankees had 16 hits in the game, with Ricky Stones three hits and Jeter Grant's pair pacing the win.

As AL East sweeps West Comical arguments highlight NY rally

By the Associated Press

Barry Foote and Gene Michael have added dirt and jackets to the list of things to throw during a baseball argument.

Bats, balls, gloves and hats have been used many times to register displeasure on the field, but the dust was literally flying in the midst of the New York Yankees comeback from a 5-0 deficit to a 6-5 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

All the runs were scored in the first five innings, with the Royals taking the lead as John Wathan drove in three runs with a double and a single.

Then the Yankees scored a run in the bottom of the third. Oscar Gamble triggered a three-run fourth with a homer and 115 hitter Jim Spencer slugged a towering two-run shot off the facade of the upper deck in right field for the tying and winning runs in the fifth.

Doug Bird, 3-0, and Ron Davis kept the Royals scoreless the rest of the way, but all the early run production didn't match the last four innings for fireworks.

First, Dale Ford thumbed Jim Frey, the Kansas City manager, for contesting a strike call in the top of the sixth. Frey stormed from the dugout, fired his cap to the ground, kicked it several times and repeatedly kicked dirt over Ford's trousers and home plate.

This was a standard baseball temper tantrum, but some of the dirt went into Yankee catcher Foote's eyes, so he grabbed a handful and flung it back at Frey. The dust storm even forced Willie Wilson to move away from the plate.

Ford said he chased Frey for charging to the top step of the dugout after he was told to cease his griping.

That argument was mild compared to the one that erupted in the eighth. With Wathan on first, Frank White bunted and what resulted was reminiscent of the Houston-Philadelphia playoff argument last fall.

First, the Yankees thought they had doubled Wathan off first on a diving stab of the bunt by first baseman Dennis Werth, only to see the Royals wind up with runners at first and second when third base umpire Joe Brinkman ruled Werth trapped the ball.

When Brinkman overruled Ford's call, Michael erupted. He sailed his cap 60 feet down the third base line and took off his jacket, tossing it in the air.

In other AL games, Boston blanked Seattle 4-0, Baltimore edged Oakland 6-5, Toronto tripped Chicago 9-5, Cleveland defeated California 7-3, Detroit bombed Texas 14-1 and Milwaukee edged Minnesota 4-3.

Red Sox 4, Mariners 0

Frank Tanana, returning to the power pitching style he used to feature, won his first game in five decisions for Boston with a five-hitter, while Carl Yastrzemski doubled home two runs and Tony Perez hit a two-run homer against Seattle.

Tanana, acquired from California last winter, struck out nine and walked only two for his 25th career shutout.

Tigers 14, Rangers 1

Dan Schatzeder pitched a four-hitter and got plenty of hitting support as Detroit romped over Texas.

Tom Brookens slugged a three-run homer, Richie Hebner hit a two-run triple, Al Cowens and Champ Summers both had two run-scoring singles and Lance Parrish singled home two runs to highlight the Tigers' 16-hit attack.

Indians 7, Angels 3

Bo Diaz walloped a three-run homer and Dan Spillner scattered six hits over eight innings in Cleveland's victory over California.

Brewers 4, Twins 3

Cecil Cooper and Ted Simmons homered and slump-plagued Ed Romero delivered a key double as Milwaukee held off Minnesota despite being outthit 13-8.

Cooper's two-run homer in the third gave Minnesota a 3-1 lead and Romero's two-out double gave the Brewers an insurance run they needed when John Castino hit a two-run homer in the ninth.

Orioles 6, A's 5

Eddie Murray triggered a two-run rally with a leadoff homer in the seventh inning as Baltimore won for the seventh straight time and sent Oakland to its sixth consecutive defeat.

Blue Jays 9, White Sox 5

Otto Velez had a run-scoring triple and a solo homer to pace Toronto's 11-hit attack that snapped its three-game losing streak and Chicago's three-game winning streak.

John Mayberry also drove in two runs with a homer and a single and Al Woods had a two-run double for the Blue Jays, who tied a club record with three triples.

Defending Memorial champ disputes putting theory

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Most golfers argue that putting is the most important part of their game. David Graham says that isn't so, at least for the $400,000 Memorial Tournament beginning Thursday. The 34-year-old Australian should know. He won this PGA Tour stop last year on Jack Nicklaus' Muirfield

Although the invited international field of 91 is the Memorial's smallest ever, it ranks as one of the best for 1981. The most notable absentees are Raymond Floyd, Johnny Miller and Lee Trevino, all among the top 10 money-winners this year.

Shopping and food storage require special techniques

With many members of the family using the refrigerator while preparing meals, food is sometimes tossed in unwrapped or carelessly stored. A few lessons in careful food storage to preserve freshness, flavor and nutrients will benefit the whole family, and add up to money and time saved.

Here are some special storage tips contributed by the Educational Services Department of Tupperware:

Seal cheese in plastic containers to keep moisture in, air out. Most cheese may be frozen, but only in pieces of less than a pound and not more than an inch thick. Allow to thaw entirely before using.

Poultry is very perishable both raw or cooked. Place in the coldest part of the refrigerator and eat within one or two days.

Store milk in coldest part of the refrigerator.

Hot dogs, lunch meat will dry out and harden if not removed from open packages and stored in tightly sealed plastic containers.

Opened olive oil and salad oil should be refrigerated on the bottom shelf of the door. This keeps them fresh yet minimizes solidifying. Opened syrup should be refrigerated too.

Ask your family to match the size of the plastic storage container to the amount of food to be refrigerated so there is as little air as possible in the container.

Marketing is one of the most time-consuming chores to be done, but without somebody's weekly visit to the supermarket, most households would quickly grind to a complete halt. Nevertheless, for the woman who works long hours, it is a struggle to free the time to wheel that basket around the store.

It takes hours to lay in a week's supplies. Labels must be read, prices compared, brands evaluated, items searched for, decisions made, long checkout lines suffered. Here, from the Educational Services Department of Tupperware, are a few tips to shave some of the precious time con-

Common sense cooking

BY RUTH MCDANIEL
In answer to many request — Here's Herman!

HERMAN — A moist Pass to a Friend Cake Herman, the 10 day pass to a friend cake is fun to have around. It's like coffee cake so it's great for coffee get-togethers or dessert. The glaze is optional — Herman's sweet without it.

HERMAN STARTER:
1 pkg. dry yeast
2 cups lukewarm water
2 cups flour

In large glass bowl or jar, dissolve 1 pkg. dry yeast in the water. Add flour. Beat till smooth. Cover. Let set at room temperature 48 hours. Makes 2 cups starter. Use 1 cup only to begin feeding instructions as if a friend had just surprised you with a cup-gift of Herman.

HERMAN FEEDING:
Feed him 1/2 cup sugar, 1 cup flour, 1 cup milk. Put him in refrigerator and stir the next 3 days. On the 5th day, feed him again, the same as day 1. Continue to stir every day. On day 10, you'll have 4 cups of Herman and will be ready to bake a Herman cake. You'll use 2 cups of Herman in the cake; save 1 cup for future Herman baking and pass 1 cup along to a friend. Don't forget to give your friend feeding instructions too!

HERMAN — the 10 day Pass to a Friend Cake
2 cups Herman
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
Two-third cup oil
1/2 tsp. salt
sliced apples (optional)
2 cups flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 cup raisin or dates
1/2 tsp. soda
1/2 cup nuts

TOPPING:
2 Tbsp. cinnamon
1 Tbsp. flour
1 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup butter, melted

GLAZE:
1 stick butter
2 cups brown sugar
1/2 cup milk

Boil 5 minutes. (It's very rich. I think half a recipe is enough.)

Mix together Herman, (room temperature), eggs and oil. Add dry ingredients, raisins and nuts; mix well. Pour into greased 9x13" pan. Sprinkle with topping. Bake 40 minutes at 350 degrees. Pour glaze over desired.

sumed visiting the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker.

Make a shopping list to speed things up, grouping items according to store aisles, with meats and frozen things last. It is surprising how many people are spotted ransacking their memories for what else they need while stalled among the canned peas. Use a magnet holder to attach a weekly shopping list to your refrigerator door and insist that anyone finishing an item immediately note it on the list for replacement.

Write down planned menus for the week. You'll know just what to put on your shopping list. Leave one day optional to take advantage of what's on special when you shop.

Buy in larger quantities when food is on special and store remainders until used. An extra lettuce can be kept fresh in a sealed plastic "crisp-it," two stalks of celery or extra vegetables can be stored in a sealed plastic container with a special draining grid. Sliced cheese, luncheon meats, bacon, cupcakes, salines, shelled nuts and so forth, bought in larger amounts, can be kept fresh in the proper sealed containers, refrigerated or on the shelf. This makes your next marketing list shorter...and quicker to accomplish.

Shop at night. Paula Hawkins, U.S. Senator from Florida, says she does. The aisles aren't crowded, checkout lines are short. But have a quick bite beforehand so you won't be hungry and overbuy.

Shop alone (without small children), it's faster. Or bring someone able to shop the farthest aisles for you and save you the time.

If you use coupons, organize them before you get to checkout.

Dear Mrs. McDaniel:
Just finished making sweetened condensed milk from your recipe column in the Columbus Telegram. At 70 cents a can I'm sure glad I now can make it myself so cheap. It turned out perfect. I used to have a Key Lime Pie recipe using it, but mislaid it. I enjoy all your recipes so much, I'm hoping you have a good recipe for Key Lime Pie. Thanks,
Lois T.

Thanks, Lois. I've had so many responses from this recipe, I'm going to repeat it for those who missed it.

HOME MADE SWEETENED CONDENSED MILK
You can make sweetened condensed milk in your kitchen using powdered milk! It's so easy and inexpensive! The "store bought" kind is made by evaporating whole milk and sugar till it's thick and creamy. It's used in many tasty desserts. It makes about the same amount as the canned and can be used in any recipe calling for Sweetened Condensed Milk. It costs just a fraction of what it costs to buy in the store. Keeps several weeks in the refrigerator.

1 cup Instant Nonfat Milk
1-3 cup boiling water
3 Tbsp. melted butter or margarine
2-3 cup sugar
pinch of salt
Put in blender and process till smooth.

KEY LIME PIE
1 1/2 c. sweetened condensed milk
2 eggs, separated
1/2 c. lime juice
1 Tbsp. grated lime rind
Blend condensed milk, juice and rind. Add egg yolks. Mix well. Pour into baked pie shell. Beat egg whites stiff. Gradually add 4 tablespoons sugar, beating constantly. Swirl meringue on top of filling. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes.

If you'd like more delicious recipes using Sweet Condensed Milk, send stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1 to Ruth McDaniel, in care of the Big Spring Herald, 11409 116 Ave. N., Largo, Fla. 33540. Artist guilty despite his claim terrorist act was performance

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — When local artist Bill McLean burst into a museum symposium last year, carrying what looked to be a pistol and two Molotov cocktails, it was merely a work of "performance art," he said.

Monday a six-member jury disagreed. They found McLean guilty of a making a terroristic threat, a Class A misdemeanor, and recommended he be fined $500 and put on probation for a year.

"Six people of a Tarrant County jury decided it wasn't art," McLean said after the verdict. "I think they should accept responsibility. It has been defined as non-art. So I have nothing more to say. It's not the role of the artist to talk."

He told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, "I did my work as an artist. I didn't want to talk about it. Other people have testified that it was not art. It's not my decision."

McLean's attorney, Tom Hill, said he was pleased with the decision but if McLean could afford to appeal, he probably would.

"We had a quarrel with the jury but the war ain't over yet," Hill said.

Witnesses said McLean burst in on a crowded, Dec. 2, 1980, symposium at the Fort Worth Art Museum, a discussion on how artists can survive financially outside New York City. Police were told McLean brandished two wick-topped bottles filled with a clear liquid and a plastic jug filled with gasoline.

Witnesses testified McLean loudly lectured the audience on the meaninglessness of the panel discussion when a front-row spectator tried to grab the bottles and McLean pulled out a gun and threatened the spectator.

As the crowd rushed toward the exits, the witnesses testified, McLean said, "If you don't want to play my game, I'm leaving."

The gun later was shown to be a toy and the clear liquid in the bottles was water. McLean surrendered voluntarily that same night and has contended his act was an artistic statement intended to make the audience think about its own survival and expand the panel discussion.

"I didn't intend to sustain the uneasiness very long," he said, adding that the trial has not dampened his artistic spirit.

"I will go on creating art in any media I think is suitable — painting, sculpture, print-making, maybe performance art."

Hill said in final arguments that while his client may have been guilty of poor judgment or even disturbing the peace, "his intent was not to go in there and terrorize those people."

However, prosecutor Larry Moore countered that McLean did intend to "alarm" the audience.

Moore played a tape-recording for the jury that contained the sounds of Moore's remarks and a noise witnesses identified as panicky spectators scrambling for safety.

"Can't you hear the fear of those people?" Moore asked the jury. "You heard testimony of people being knocked down, stepped on."

McLean steadfastly maintained his right to make an artistic statement and did not apologize for his actions, only for the consequences.

"I'm sorry for having broken the law," he said.

Big Spring's sales tax rebates spiral to $576,059 this year

Big Spring's sales tax rebate for this month showed a remarkable rise over the payment for the same month last year.

The city received a check totaling $223,780.14, compared to $73,476.13 last year. This brings the total payments for the year-to-date to $576,059.73, a 55-percent increase over the $371,590.74 total for the same period in 1980.

Area cities showed similar increases for the month and year-to-date. Coahoma received $4,638.71 compared to $1,152.34, raising total payments so far by 55 percent.

Colorado City received a rebate of $25,541.78, compared to $11,977.34, raising total payments by 58 percent. Lamesa received $70,966.15, compared to $30,780.66, raising total payments by 26 percent.

Loraine's check rose from $500.00 to $887.82, with total payments rising by 10 percent. Stanton's check rose from $2,545.50 to $7,444.45, adding to the largest increase of total payments at 63 percent.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said rebates for the one-percent city sales tax for the first five months this year are up more than 40 percent over the same period last year.

Bill Moyer to return to CBS news

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Moyers, the veteran broadcast journalist and former White House press secretary, will return to CBS News as a national correspondent with a regular program similar to his "Bill Moyers' Journal" on public TV, The Associated Press learned today.

Moyers also will provide CBS' "Evening News" with commentary and analysis and will report on news specials and documentaries.

There was no official word from CBS News on Moyers, though the network scheduled a mid-afternoon news conference for an undisclosed announcement.

Moyers himself could not be reached for comment.

ABC winner of weekly ratings race

NEW YORK (AP) - Drawing big audiences for several first-run programs, including a made-for-TV movie called "The Best Little Girl in the World," ABC won the networks' weekly ratings race for the first time in a month, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show. ABC tied CBS, the No. 1 network in the recently completed 1980-81 season, in last week's competition. CBS finished first the three previous weeks. ABC listed five of the 10 highest-rated programs in the week ending May 17, and compiled an average rating of 17, compared to 16.2 for NBC - runnerup for the first time since early March - and 15.4 for CBS. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 17 percent of the nation's homes with television were tuned to ABC. NBC's escape from the ratings cellar was aided by a first-run movie, "Meatballs," starring former "Saturday Night Live" player Bill Murray, a special called "TV's Censored Bloopers," and an episode of "Little House on the Prairie." The rating for "Best Little Girl," the week's No. 1 show, was 25.5. Nielsen says that means of all the TV-equipped homes in the country, 25.5 percent saw at least part of the show. Only one of the top 10 shows, CBS' "60 Minutes" in ninth place, was a rerun. Nineteen of the 55 programs rated during the week fell into that category. CBS scored with a film biography of country star Tammy Wynette, "Stand By Your Man," which finished seventh, but most other first-run specials and movies broadcast during the week were only moderately successful. "Ladies and Gentlemen... Bob Newhart, Part II," on CBS was No. 26 for the week.

On The Light Side

Bull weevil memorial ENTERPRISE, Ala. (AP) - Someone has taken a cotton to Enterprise's local landmark. The Bull Weevil is missing from its monument for the fourth time and "it's the talk of the town," Police Chief Robert Paschal said. Thieves broke the metal bull weevil from the statue of a woman holding it aloft sometime over the weekend, Paschal said. None of the previous weevils has been found and there are no clues in the latest buggnapping, the police chief said. The Bull Weevil Monument was erected as a memorial to the insect that wiped out the southeast Alabama area's cotton crop and forced farmers to go into the more lucrative peanut business. ATHENS, Tenn. (AP) - As the ceremonial torch - lit by a kerosene camping lantern - heads for Moscow, Tenn., tobacco spitters and skillet throwers are warming up for the second annual Moscow Olympics. Tennessee's own version of the famed games got off the ground Monday when two high school girls began the first leg of a 350-mile relay to run a flaming torch from Athens to Moscow, a small West Tennessee town about 40 miles east of Memphis. Ceremonies opened Monday when Dave Thompson, president of the Hiwassee Coon Hunters' Association, lit the flame. He did the honors because the official mascot of the Moscow Olympics is a raccoon. Moscow residents began their games in 1980 as a spoof of the real thing after then-President Carter directed Americans to boycott the summer Olympics to protest the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. A senate put-on WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan is masterminding a $137 million cover-up. The New York Democrat can't bear the sight of the Philip A. Hart Senate Office Building, due to open early next year. So, he introduced this resolution Tuesday: "Whereas in the fall of 1980 the frame of the new Senate Office Building was covered with plastic sheathing in order that construction might continue during the winter months. A DOG'S LIFE? — Zonker, a roller coaster-riding keeshond, and owner Joseph T. Barna, of New Haven, Conn., take a ride on the "American Eagle" roller coaster at Great America in Gurnee, Ill. Wednesday.

The dog has ridden on 10 roller coasters across the country, for a total of 31 rides. The "American Eagle" is the tallest wooden roller coaster in the world.

Rejected money market bill called aid to middle-class

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Senate committee has rejected a proposal investment officers claim would threaten the only chance middle-class America has to "offset the pain of inflation."

Sen. Bill Meier's proposal would only have required money market funds to report their finances every six months to the State Banking Department.

Several witnesses, however, told the Senate Economic Development Committee the measure was part of a scheme by banks and savings and loan institutions to force the funds out of Texas.

The Mond measure, Arnold Scott, senior vice president of Massachusetts Financial Services, said if the House-approved bill got to the Senate floor it would become a "Christmas tree for the proponents who came before this committee this morning."

"What they really want is to force money market funds out of Texas," said Scott.

A banker and representatives of savings and loan associations, builders, realtors and apartment owners supported Meier's proposal.

It was stated that money market funds have total assets of $117 billion, and DeWitt Hale of the Texas Association of Builders said $100 billion of that amount had been withdrawn from savings accounts.

Six million Americans, including 217,000 Texans, own shares of money market funds, which pay higher yields than savings accounts, the committee was told.

"Texans are now $160 million wealthier over the first four months of 1981 alone by virtue of their placement of funds in MMF's versus passbook savings accounts," testified George Morgan, finance professor at the University of Texas at Austin.

Austin lawyer C.C. Small Jr., general counsel for the Texas Savings and Loan League, said Texas savings institutions "are being crippled every day" by withdrawals that go into money market funds.

"Those being hurt are people who need capital to run businesses and to live on," said Small. "It's high time something is done in this state to help borrowers of money."

Witnesses for the funds said they already report four times a year more information than Meier's bill would require to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Texas Securities Board and six million shareholders.

Meier contended his bill was necessary because investors in funds that operate as business trusts could be liable for more than their original investment if the fund should fold.

Such dangers, said J. Leon Lebowitz, UT-Austin law professor, are "much more theoretical than real" and "extremely remote."

Not once in almost 50 years, he said, "has any shareholder of these funds been held liable for its debts solely because of his status as a shareholder or participant in a business trust."

A disclosure requirement such as Meier proposed would only create "uncertainty," said Harvey Pitt of Washington, special counsel for the Investment Company Institute, which has more than 500 member companies.

"From the standpoint of investor protection, there is absolutely nothing to be gained by superimposing another conflicting, regulatory structure on this industry," Pitt said.

"We should be here cheering and commending" money market funds — "not trying to pass restrictive and punitive legislation to destroy them," said Thomas Powers of Houston, president of Funds, Inc.

Paul Jacobs of the American Association of Retired Persons said the funds "are the first and only opportunity for small investors" to fight double-digit inflation. "It is his or her best chance of just staying even," he said.

Meier originally proposed strict state regulation of the funds, and the committee quickly approved his proposal as an amendment to an innocuous bill updating banking regulations.

Such a furor developed, however, that the Senate voted to send the bill back to committee for a full hearing on Meier's proposal.

On Monday he withdrew the amendment calling for regulation and substituted the disclosure requirement, which was defeated.

Chinese dancer given alien status card

HOUSTON (AP) — A Chinese ballet student who decided to stay in Houston after marrying a U.S. citizen has been granted legal alien status by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Immigration officials said the "green card" was given to Li Cunxin legal alien status with residence rights.

Li was detained nearly 24 hours at the Chinese consulate last month while his request to remain in this country was studied.

The incident developed two days after Li married another Houston Ballet Academy student, Elizabeth Mackey, and two days before his visa was to have expired.

Li began his training here in June 1979 and holds a 1981-82 contract at the soloist level with the Houston Ballet.

The Veterans Administration and the Department of Justice have begun a nationwide effort to collect debts owed by veterans who attended school under the GI Bill.

Mystery writer Mickey Spillane now composing childrens' books

NEW YORK (AP) — It had rained for two days. Now it was muggy. It was always muggy when Mickey had some news to tell.

The brunette knew where to find him. She called him on the hotel phone, as she tightened the belt on her gray trenchcoat.

"It's me," she whispered sweetly. She was no brassy bimbo.

He gave her the room number. She made a mental note. He opened the door, a bear of a man with precision cut hair. It stood at attention. He didn't. He reached out and grabbed her hand. It was gentle; it could have been violent.

"You want a beer? Jeez, I could use one," he said.

But Mickey Spillane, the man who breathed life into Mike Hammer, private eye, didn't have any beer. Strange. He sells beer. Lite Beer for Miller.

What he did have was something on his mind. Children's books. He's writing them. Yeah, just like that...

Mickey Spillane, the best-selling author who once was called a "semiliterate fantasist of violence and squalor" by a magazine critic, is writing adventures for the junior sleuth set. And he's loving every minute of it.

But Spillane's first juvenile novel, "The Day the Sea Rolled Back," is a departure from his Mike Hammer books in more ways than one. The style is different. Lyric prose has replaced staccato narrative. And, of course, there are no sleazy bars or sultry goddesses.

Instead there are the "clear green waters" and "gentle waves" of the Caribbean and the mysteries of an ancient shipwreck.

"Children love to fantasize," Spillane said. "They don't want to listen to realities. I still think like a kid."

"Hey, when was the last time you saw the underside of a table?" he asked in that voice that praises Brooklyn. "When you were seven, right? Well, kids still crawl under tables and it becomes a whole world for them under there."

Spillane went into juvenile literature on a dare from his editors.

"They were kidding around with me and said, 'You can write this mystery stuff, that's easy, but try writing juvenile books. That's really hard,'" he said.

But it was easy for this 62-year-old writer who looks closer to 50 with his barely wrinkled face and hair only speckled with gray.

He knocked it off in a little over a week. It takes two weeks to write a Mike Hammer mystery. "The best thing about it is that when I get a rejection slip, it's only been two weeks out of my life instead of some poor guy who spends two years writing a book."

Spillane long ago left the noise and crush of the north for the bucolic splendor of the South Carolina coast. It's all just a little bit easier in Murrells Inlet — including writing.

"I don't like to just sit in the sun and get tan and not do anything," he said. "So I take my boat out, put three fish heads in the water for crabs and sit at my typewriter. So I work and catch my dinner at the same time."

"I write when I feel like it, but when the fishing gets very good, work gets slower."

Murrells Inlet, where he lives with his wife and where they raised their four children, was an inspiration for Spillane's new book.

"Where I live sometimes the tide goes out, and a strong wind comes along and pushes it way back," he said. "The kids go out and jump off the pier where 10 feet of water used to be. They have these wooden boxes and run down and collect all the lead weights. They run back with about $40 worth of lead."

This happens in "The Day the Sea Rolled Back." An extraordinary low tide pushes the sea back so far that a sunken ship is revealed.

"These things do happen," Spillane said matter-of-factly.

He plans to root himself in children's lit with six novels on tap. "The kids' market is the thing that's big today. It's really developing. Kids are constantly reading."

But he hasn't entirely thrown old Mike Hammer to those treacherous blonde vixens. He plans a new story for the earthy private eye.

Hammer originated as Mike Danger, a comic book hero, because Spillane wrote comics before novels. "Then the reprint market came to fore," he said. "I got in with the right book at the right time."

That was in 1947 when Mike Hammer shot a blonde in the belly and liked it.

Suspect in church killings still incompetent for trial

DALLAS (AP) — The man accused of killing five people by spraying an East Texas church with gunfire last summer remains incompetent to stand trial, a Rusk State Hospital medical evaluation says.

Alvin Lee King III, 45, suffers from delusions caused by a self-inflicted bullet wound to the brain, the latest 90-day evaluation says.

The report, like the previous two, says King eventually might be able to stand trial.

"We still don't feel like he'll be able to assist his attorneys, and that's why he has been found incompetent," said Dr. S. Srinivasan, medical director of the maximum-security hospital in East Texas and the official who makes the final decisions on competency.

King is accused of killing five people and wounding 10 others during a June 22 worship service at Daingerfield's First Baptist Church. Minutes after the shootings, King shot himself in the head with a .22-caliber pistol a few blocks from the church.

The bullet entered King's left temple just above his eye and traveled across the frontal lobes of his brain, said Dr. Howard Eisenberg, the physician who removed the bullet fragments. While King recovered physically, doctors are unsure how much brain damage the wound caused.

Big Spring YMCA will offer 'Ladies Summer Membership'

The Big Spring YMCA will offer a special "Ladies Summer Membership," open to women 18 and over, beginning June 1 and running through Aug. 31.

Members who wish to continue with a full membership will be given credit for the summer rates.

Privileges for the summer membership include unlimited use of the Health Center during hours of operation for women. The Health Center has free towel service, free unlimited massages, locker rental, free laundry service, whirlpool, sauna and steam room.

Also planned is unlimited enrollment in all classes for women. The summer program will include Fitness Fantasia, which is choreographed movements and exercises to music. Also included is Slimnastics, and women's aquatic aerobics.

Also featured this summer are adult co-ed fitness classes, calisthenics and aerobic exercises with an emphasis on cardiovascular endurance, flexibility, strength and muscle tone. Adult swim lessons, with instruction of all levels of swimming skills from beginners to advance, is planned. The membership also includes participation on the Big Spring YMCA Swim Team, for ages 20 to 80 plus.

Remember the
GOD OLD DAYS

This handsome floor covering is fashioned on the most durable synthetic fiber known to man, crafted on machines of the latest technology into a pile that rivals the most lustrous silk then passed to talented dyers whose superlative craftsmanship adds the rich colours that bring so much to your home. Engineered into the fiber is the most recent development in resistance to stains of all manner to aid you in your housekeeping duties. Although we offer the cheaper kinds as well as the better grades, it is found that a dollar or two added to the price of your floor covering can add many years of additional beauty and usefulness. There is integrity in floor covering as in other merchandise and they should be made to stand the wear and tear they are sure to get from time to time.

Emeralds, May's birthstone.

From the days of Cleopatra, whose mines, 2000 years ago, provided the Queen of the Nile with these exotic stones... to the early Greeks who dedicated the stone to Aphrodite, the goddess of love... to the Spanish conquistadors, who first brought the gem to Europe... the emerald has been looked upon as the symbol of wealth, success and continually growing love. Its shades of green, which run the gamut of deep, rich verdancy to lighter, brighter hues, are said to refresh the eyes. Certainly its beauty refreshes the heart! The emerald is one of the most prized gems in the world. Find hers at Zales. Give it with love.

BIG SPRING, TEXAS MAY 20, 1981 80

TIME CAPSULE READIED — A time capsule commemorating the 1981 Big Spring and Howard County Centennial, donated by Phillips Petroleum Co., and prepared by the Cosden Production Laboratory here, will be moved to the Centennial Store Monday, to be stored with relics before it is buried May 28. Sig Rogers (center in the above photo) did the lettering on the capsule. With him are Raleigh Rutledge (left) and Richard Mitchell of the laboratory.

To be buried May 28

Mementoes can be placed in time capsule Monday

A Big Spring Centennial time capsule, which after it goes into the ground on the courthouse square will remain buried for 90 years, will be placed in the Centennial Store, 900 Main Street, Monday.

People wishing to have paper items or flat objects buried in the receptacle can take them by the store anytime prior to May 28. Size of the objects should not exceed 8 inches by 11 inches. Cost per item will be 50 cents, money which will be used to defray expenses of the operation.

Phillips Petroleum supplied the polystyrene joint of pipe, which is three feet in length. The Cosden Production Laboratory, under the direction of Granville Hahn, made the plastic materials that will be used to seal both ends of the capsule. Objects going into the container will be stamped with the Centennial logo.

Suggested items to go into the capsule include letters to descendants, self-addressed letters, messages sent to current street addresses (to be opened by who ever occupies the quarters when opened), letters to businesses, pictures of all kinds, club rosters, church bulletins, savings account records (some one might deposit $5 in such an account and dictate that it be given to some direct descendant to or a charity), commemorative plates, buttons, engraved coins or magazines.

The capsule will be buried in a formal ceremony and appropriately marked with a 24" X 12" bronze marker, supplied without charge by Trinity Memorial Park. The marker will say "Big Spring-Howard County Time Capsule, buried May 28, 1981, to be opened May 28, 2031."

Why a 50-year lapse, and not 100 years? Centennial officials felt there are some taking part in this year's Centennial who will still be around half a hundred years from now who might recall 1981 as a vintage year, a time to be remembered for all time.

Two sentenced after confessing pot possession in prison camp

Two former inmates of the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp, Gilbert Saenz of Austin and Jose Pineda Garcia of Midland, have been sentenced in Abilene Federal District Court after entering pleas of guilty to charges of possessing marijuana at the camp in 1980.

Saenz received four months in prison and eight months probation. He was serving a sentence here for possession of marijuana, federal records reveal.

Garcia received a year's probation. He was confined at the federal prison complex here for smuggling aliens, evidence showed.

Judge Hal Woodward passed sentence on the two.

Woodward also sentenced three Abilene women to six months in federal prison for embezzling money from two Abilene banks and a savings and loan firm.

They are Debra Kay Neff, 28; Teary Haynes, 23; and Jeanine Ferguson, 20. The sentence of each will be followed by 4½ years of probation.

The women were ordered to report to Deputy U.S. Marshall Richard Jones June 1 for transfer to federal prison. They were also ordered to make restitution, each paying $25 a month.

Janet Lilljedahl, 35, entered a plea of guilty to the charge of taking $642 from Citizens National Bank of Abilene.

BIG BAND SOUND — Tickets to the Centennial Ball to be held Saturday, May 30, on the main floor of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, are now on sale at the Centennial Store-Headquarters at 900 Main. Dave Adams and his orchestra will provide a large variety of entertainment during the festive evening.

Variety of music to be offered Tickets on sale for ball

The Centennial Ball, which will mark the close of the Big Spring-Howard County Centennial celebration, will be held Saturday, May 30, on the main floor of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Tickets for the gala evening are currently on sale at the Centennial Store-Headquarters at 900 Main and are being sold on a first come, first served basis.

Entertainment for the festive event will be provided by Dave Adams and his 20-piece orchestra. The orchestra, which will be enhanced by four vocalists, will provide a variety of music to draw attention to the local centennial celebration. Selections to be played by the well-received musical group include country, disco, big band and a variety of other popular music through the last century.

Joyce Wash, chairperson of the ball committee, said the cost for admission to the Centennial Ball would be a tax-deductible donation of $15 to the Big Spring Centennial, Inc. Wash said the tickets would include entertainment, a variety of snacks, and all types of beverages. "In other words," Wash said, "persons attending the Centennial Ball won't need to bring anything — everything will be provided for them in exchange for the $15 donation."

Wash said a total of 1,040 seats would be set up on the main coliseum floor, with ample space being set aside for dancing. She said there would not be any reserved seating and persons wishing to sit at a front table would need to arrive early. Doors for the Centennial Ball are scheduled to open at 8 p.m., with the band playing from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Talking about the dress for the ball, Wash said she felt the centennial clothing that many people had purchased during the centennial celebration would be appropriate for the occasion. At the same time, she also said that persons could wear contemporary clothing, depending on their preferences.

The Centennial Ball will be a milestone for the city in a couple of important ways. Not only will it mark the close of the 10-day centennial celebration, but will also be the first public ball of its type to be held in the city in many years.

Persons wishing to participate in the festive evening are being encouraged to purchase their tickets early since the tickets are being sold on a first serve, first served basis. Persons unable to come by the Centennial Store-Headquarters at 900 Main may call and ask that tickets be held for them by calling

DOUBLE WHAMMY — Howard County Judge Bill Tune climbs from a dunking pool on the courthouse square Friday after he had been given a double sentence by the 'hanging judge,' Frank Hardesty, for fracturing some laws passed by the Big Spring Centennial Committee. Tune not only got soaked but had a pie thrown in his face on orders from Hardesty, who ordered the Keystone Kops to carry out the sentences.

Record attendance

Heritage Museum curator apologizes student

Gerri Atwell, curator of Heritage Museum would like to apologize for running out of tickets for the chuck wagon party this year, which was the biggest in attendance in its history. More than 600 tickets were sold and according to Mrs. Atwell, 300 more could have been sold.

It was thought this record attendance was due to the excellent performance of Bob (Tumbleweed Smith) Lewis, who kept the various events of the evening going smoothly and on time, and the Caylor Art book presentation plus the fact that the Odessa Chuck Wagon Gang served the meal. Some 52 Caylor paintings owners, whose pictures were used in the book, were presented a complimentary copy of the book.

Attending the affair from out-of-town to receive their copies were: Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Pealer, Ft. Worth; Dr. and Mrs. William C. Winter, San Antonio; and Mrs.

John T. Quinn, Annapolis, Md.; Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Hardy, Sonora, Capt. Karl M. Duff, Alexandria, Va.; H. Wayne Allen, Kansas City, Stock Yards, Kansas City, Mo.; Chris Scharbauer, Midland; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kellogg, Huntsville and Creed Coffee, Corpus Christi.

Everyone tremendously enjoyed Tom Castle and his band who have played for this event since it started eight years ago.

Following the dinner, Bob Lewis presented a brief slide show of the Caylor paintings included in the book; after which John Taylor, publication chairman and Jack Cook, museum president, presented complimentary copies of the book to the Caylor owners whose pictures appeared in the book.

Barbara and Arlis Ratliff, general chairmen of the party, and their committee: Mary Nell Mansfield, Toni Choyte, Beverly Taylor, Jeannette Middleton, Louise Worthy, Ann Turner and Ruby Allred, did an outstanding job in decorating the tables and other areas of the building. They also helped with the Caylor book sales after the party.

According to Jack Cook, museum president, among the many benefits of the chuck wagon party to the museum includes increased membership, and the impact that the museum has on the community in preserving its heritage for posterity; in bringing together friends and neighbors for an evening of good clean fun and entertainment, and in just visiting!

A plaque of appreciation was awarded Taylor for accomplishing the publication of the Caylor Art Book, and a lovely bouquet was presented to Mrs. Atwell in appreciation for her invaluable assistance.

The Caylor Art book, which is a beautifully done piece of work, contains 52 of the best of Caylor, with Joe Pickle doing the introduction and picture captions, and is available at the museum. The museum still has some of the first printing of the book "Gettin' Started" by Joe Pickle.

93 students from Coahoma school toured the museum accompanied by Sue Tindol, instructor.

Kathryn Morris, Graham, Tex., visited the museum with her host Mrs. John Quigley, Mrs. Morris is visiting in the Quigley home.

Dominoes form railroad yards

Members of the Boys' Club of Big Spring depicted the railroad yards of the city with dominoes in the Boys' Clubs of America Mego Incredible Domino Rally Contest, held Monday.

They competed with Boys' Clubs across the country.

Multi-colored dominoes were used, along with tracks, elevators and bridges.

Each club was to depict some part of their city when using the dominoes. Since Big Spring is celebrating the Centennial of the railroad, the boys decided to depict the railroad yard.

The boys competed for cash prizes, awarded on the basis of originality as well as artistic and educational merit.

Catfish stay hot at Lake Spence

The big strippers are biting again at Lake Spence, and catfish are continuing their hot streak.

There were several reports of striped bass in the 13 to 21-lb. range during the past week, along with numerous catches of sizeable channel, blue and yellow catfish. Toward the end of the week windy weather put a momentary crimp in sportsman traffic.

Reports from the lake included: Wainwright's Point Creek Marlin — Smokey and Tom Roberts, San Angelo, two strippers to 3 lbs., four white bass to 7 1/2-lb., 12 small black bass; Sparks Barlett, Robert Lee, two blue catfish 10 lbs., 7 oz. and 8 lb., 14 oz.; Roy Blair and Doug Phillips, Shreveport, a 13-lb., 6 oz. stripper, two blue catfish 11 lb., 12 oz. and 7 lb., 2 oz.; and a 6-lb., 4-oz. channel catfish; Johnny Walker, Shirley Walker, Alton Underwood, Rev. Kenneth Patrick, Big Spring, 21-lb., 3-oz. yellow catfish and a 3-lb. channel catfish.

CENTENNIAL STROKERS — The golfers in the Ladies Golf Association at the Country Club got together earlier this week to celebrate the centennial, having a tournament to honor the occasion. Dressed with the spirit of the Centennial for their golfing were (from the left) Alta

Lee Underwood, Peggy Marshall, Mavis Jones, Madeline Atkins, Martha Saunders, Mary Morrison, Bernice Jordan, Helen Terry, Margy Thompson and Flo Hallam.

Shroyers are still in business here after half a century

Marrying Vallie Thorp was probably the greatest thing ever to happen to Alvin H. Shroyer. Deciding to come to Big Spring would probably rank No. Two on the list of all-time plusses in Alvin's book, although a man with Shroyer's grit and determination likely would have succeeded anywhere.

Alvin actually had called at the Thorp household to visit with Vallie's sister, but the sister happened to be away from home at the time, so Shroyer asked Vallie for a date.

The two went together regularly after that and on June 1, 1926, they were married in San Saba.

Today, nearly 55 years later, Vallie remains very much a part of Alvin's life. She serves as secretary-treasurer for the automobile company they own. Their son, Alvin Jr., (Sonny) is the firm's vice-president.

MR. AND MRS. ALVIN SHROYER

Shroyer made a deal with the late Hart Phillips for business property at 424 East Third. When told by Alvin he didn't have any money, Phillips drew up papers that enabled Alvin to pay out the property on time. The deal proved to be the business arrangement that has offered him nothing but satisfaction for 50 years. The Shroyers are observing that milestone this week.

The one-time salesman of such cars as Dodge, Oakland, Pontiac, Marquette, Viking and Buick became the Oldsmobile dealer here in 1933. His first Oldsmobile customer was L.E. Lomax, who made a deal for one of four cars Alvin acquired. If Alvin ever had any doubt about the high regard the motoring public had for his particular General Motors vehicle or for his sales ability, those doubts were soon erased.

He disposed of all four vehicles in a matter of two days and put in an order for more. An eight-cylinder Olds cost somewhere between $700 and $800 in those days.

Since that time, Alvin and his staff have sold thousands of Oldsmobiles to people all over Texas. Alvin has not always found it easy to keep an adequate supply of Olds on hand.

One of his most faithful customers has been Arthur Stallings, a former Howard County commissioner, who is now driving his 17th Olds. It probably wasn't funny to Alvin at the time but he has since grown to treasure the memory of one deal he made: He delivered a car to the late Andy Brown in Ackerly. Andy, a great practical joker, told Alvin to find his own way back to Big Spring. Alvin had to call Big Perry Daily was his service station then.

Alvin's first salesman here were his brother, Ira, J.B. Stewart and R.W. Carr.

Alvin still owns 1292 acres of the old home place. Down through the years, he has hosted numerous deer hunting parties in a prime deer hunting area. His own deer sausage, which he has shared generously with his friends and employees, has become famous locally.

Lightning has twice wreaked heavy damage on the Shroyer property on East Third street, the first time in 1939 and again a couple of years ago. Each time, the Shroyers swiftly repaired the damage and continued 'business as usual.'

Already recognized as one of Texas' Olds dealers with the most seniority, Alvin is looking forward to celebrating his 75th year in the same location. He fully expects to be here when it happens. Those who know him respect his enthusiasm for life and have few doubts that he will make it.

He keeps the walls of his office filled with vintage pictures and old calendars that have meant a great deal to him. He may not have the faculty for total recall but his mind remains keen and alert. He may worry about things but it rarely shows. Life has been good to him and he appreciates the chance to serve his fellow man.

TV certificates given hospitals

Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital and Cowper Clinic and Hospital, both of Big Spring, have joined other hospitals throughout Texas and the nation in attacking the rising costs of health care.

As a result of their commitments to a policy of cost effectiveness and restraint, the two hospitals have been awarded 1981 Certificates of Participation by the Texas Voluntary Effort (TVE).

Charles A. Wegg, administrator of the Hall-Bennett Hospital, and Truett Thomas, who operates in a similar capacity for Cowper Clinic and Hospital, accepted the certificates on behalf of their hospital governing board, medical staffs and employees.

Wegg and Thomas issued the following joint statement:

Howard County chapter of ACS establishes memorial program

The Howard County chapter of the American Cancer Society has an established memorial program, according to Londa Henry of the local chapter.

Memorials may be sent to The American Cancer Society, Box 2121, care of Mrs. Merle Stewart, Big Spring, Tx. 79720.

Mrs. Stewart sends donors a receipt for income tax purposes. Notes are also sent to the relatives of the person in whose name a memorial is made.

The local chapter held a meeting recently at the La Posada Restaurant. It was reported that $1,411.75 was collected in the door-to-door campaign.

The local district is the first to reach 100 percent per capita goal, and the first in services provided, it was reported.

Next meeting for the local chapter is in September.

Savings bonds sales reported

December sales of Series EE & HH United States Savings Bonds in Howard County were reported today by County Bond Chairman Jimmy Taylor to be $59,473. Sales for the first 12 month period totaled $506,549 for 81 percent of the 1980 goal of $625,000.

Special award goes to BSSH employee

Peggy Sue Williams of Coahoma was recently honored with a Special Employee Award in Austin. The award was presented by State Commissioner John J. Kavanough, M.D., at the 24th Annual Nutrition and Food Service Management Seminar.

Mrs. Williams received a personally signed letter from commissioner Kavanough and a framed certificate for her dedicated service to the clients at the Big Spring State Hospital and the special effort she has put forth to better quality herself to serve these clients.

Mrs. Williams is scheduled to attend the NRA Convention held in Chicago, Ill., this week. She will be accompanied by her supervisor, Michele Mahaffey, Chief of Food Service Management.

Employed at the Big Spring State Hospital May 15, 1972, she began her career as a Clerk III in the Supply Department. She is presently employed as a Food Service Manager II.

She has attended Howard College at night for three years working toward a Management degree. She has maintained a 3.8 grade point average and in April was presented with a certificate of honor. Mrs. Williams will complete her associate degree in the near future.

She has received a certificate of appreciation from Big Spring State Hospital in 1977; was nominated for a commendation award in 1980, 1981 and the Board of Directors of The Credit Union. She is presently secretary for the Texas Public Employees Association and works to support any program associated with the Department of MHMR.

Her personal concern for improving employees education has helped many employees receive GEDs and take courses in Food Service and management at Howard College.

Peggy Sue is married to Tommy F. Williams. He is employed by Cosden Oil and Chemical. They have three sons: Robert, Eddie and Michael.

With a busy schedule as a wife and mother, career person and student, Mrs. Williams enjoys and finds time for other activities such as her animal friends which presently consist of a horse, "Bojangles," a cocolatee, numerous rabbits, a dog and a cat. She also loves working with plants, oil painting and sewing when time permits.

Westex Board company sued by Cosden firm

A suit was filed in 118th District Court today by Cosden Oil and Chemical Company against the Westex Board Company, Snyder Highway, and Joe Liggett and Mylene Liggett, individually.

According to a petition filed in the suit, Westex executed and delivered to Cosden a promissory note in the principal amount of $250,000, calling for five annual payments beginning April 1, 1980. The petition charges that Westex defaulted in payments due under the note.

Cosden is also seeking payment on another promissory note for $121,343, for materials totaling $14,810, for a judgment against the defendant Westex and Mylene Liggett for $9,890, and exemplary damages of $100,000.

Both Joe Liggett and Mylene Liggett give addresses in New York City.

Attorneys for the plaintiff are with the firm of Maxwell, Bennett, Thomas, Carolton and Godwin of Dallas.

Revenues, expenses reflect wet spring

Reflecting an unusually wet spring, both revenues and expenses of the Colorado River Municipal Water District are running under budget estimates for the first four months.

Revenues of $2,694,988 were $117,000 under budget projections for the initial four months, but the heavy revenue months do not come until peak demands for water in the summer. Expenses through April aggregated $1,377,934, or $262,000 under budget estimates.

The big item of expense is electric energy in the amount of $796,159, up $246,000 over a year ago although about the same amount of water was pumped. Higher rates accounted for the difference. Through April, the district delivered 4,472,833,000 gallons of water, or 51,000,000 more than the same time in 1980. April deliveries of 1,042,567,000 gallons to cities were down 200,000,000 over the same month the previous year. Successive rains were responsible for that. Oil company draws, however, were gaining with 756,160,000 gallons for the four months as compared to 601,826,000 for the same period in 1980.

As of April 30, the reserve situation was much improved with 66,717 acre feet in Lake Thomas and 270,280 acre feet in Lake Spence; a year ago Thomas had only 12,508 acre feet and Spence 94,892 acre feet. Of total deliveries through April, 86.35 percent came from the two lakes.

Representative Larry Don Shaw Reports from Austin

Gasohol: Good news, bad news

At long last, the House has okayed a measure which, if approved by the Senate, will exempt gasohol (90 percent gasoline and 10 percent ethyl alcohol) from the 5 cent-gallon state gasoline tax and make gasohol price-competitive with unleaded gas.

I co-sponsored the bill, and I'm confident that it represents a significant shot in the arm for the alcohol-gasohol industry in Texas. That means a major market for Texas farmers, and it means Texas, following the lead of all five surrounding states, is taking a step to encourage this industry which can have a big impact on reducing U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

All the news regarding gasohol is not good, though. Here's the situation: Texas liquor laws prohibit issuing alcohol production or liquor sale permits to any company which is not at least 51 percent Texas-owned.

Last session, however, the Legislature passed a bill which would exempt a company from the 51 percent requirement so long as it only produces alcohol which is unfit for human consumption. It's clear that most members of the Legislature thought this meant only that the alcohol could not be used for alcoholic beverages.

Less than a month after the last legislative session ended, however (and too late to clarify the language of the new law), the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission decided that raw alcohol is fit for human consumption, and therefore any company that's less than 51 percent Texas-owned cannot get an alcohol production permit unless they agree to denature the alcohol they produce — in other words, to add something or treat it so as to make it unfit for human consumption.

The only problem is that the ruling eliminates a number of other non-beverage uses for Texas-produced alcohol — foot extracts or vinegars, for instance, or medicinal or pharmaceutical products.

Until that ABC ruling, a company called Midwest Solvents was planning to build a $25 million, 10-to-12 million gal.-year alcohol plant at Santa Rosa in the Rio Grande Valley. Estimates are that it would have added 485 new jobs in the community and pumped $26 million a year into the Texas economy.

After the ABC ruling, the deal fell through, and Midwest Solvents is building the plant in another state. Why? The elimination of the non-gasohol market for the alcohol made the plant a much greater risk. Midwest Solvents needed the assurance that if the multi-billion-dollar federal synfuels program does result in a federally-subsidized cheap motor fuel, they would be able to keep their alcohol plant running and sell the alcohol for other non-gasohol, non-beverage uses.

I am sponsoring House Bill 136, which would allow companies less than 51 percent Texas-owned to obtain permits to produce and sell alcohol for any non-beverage purpose.

This would greatly reduce the risk for any potential out-of-state investors in the Texas alcohol-gasohol industry who want to know that they'll still have a market for their alcohol if future developments made gasohol uneconomical as a motor fuel.

Unfortunately, the House Liquor Regulation Committee is sitting on this bill, and prospects for its passage this session appear at this point to be slim and none.

JIM NUGENT

Jim Nugent will speak at luncheon

Jim Nugent, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission, will be the guest speaker at a special luncheon to be held in the east room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum on Tuesday, May 26, 1981. The luncheon will be a part of the day-long Oil-Energy Day activities being planned in conjunction with the Big Spring-Howard County centennial.

Nugent, who is the 29th railroad commissioner in the state's history, took office on Jan. 4, 1979. He served 18 years in the Texas House of Representatives immediately prior to his appointment to the railroad commission by Gov. Dolph Briscoe. During his legislative career, Nugent chaired numerous committees and passed major legislation dealing with ethics for public officials, the Texas Penal Code, highway and education improvement. When appointed to the railroad commission in 1979, he was speaker pro-tem of the House of Representatives, where he was also named by Texas Monthly as one of the "Top Ten" legislators.

A native of San Angelo, Nugent attended Schreiner College at Kerrville and received both mechanical engineering and law degrees from the University of Texas at Austin.

He won both the primary and general elections to his seat in 1980, and was named to chair the committee in January 1981. He currently serves on national committees dealing with energy resources, pipeline safety and air, rail and motor carriers.

Tickets for the luncheon are $4 and will go on sale Monday, May 18, at the Centennial Store-Headquarters at 900 Main.

Local artist provides paintings

Inspired by the festivities surrounding the Big Spring Railroad Centennial, Virginia Whitten, local artist and art instructor, recently painted two works of art depicting subject matter identified with the West Texas scene.

One was a large watercolor entitled "Cotton Blossoms," which received a cash award after placing first in the watercolor division of the Andrews Art Show.

The second was an oil painting in a West Texas rural setting. This one received the top purchase award at the same show.

"Cotton Blossoms" will be on display at Mrs. Whitten's booth at the Spring Arts and Crafts Fair, scheduled next Sunday in the Dora Roberts Community Center at Comanche Trail Park Lake. Mrs. Whitten teaches painting locally at the Hobby Center and has taught several semesters at Howard College.

Fiddlers vie in mall here

An old-fashioned fiddling contest, open to anyone who cares to compete, will be held in the Highland South Mall at 1 p.m., next Saturday. Admission is free.

The musicians will compete in age groups: 1 to 30; 31 to 54; and 55 and older. Cash prizes of $50, $30 and $20 will go to the best fiddlers in each division. In addition, there will be a $50 grand prize.

The contest will be held in conjunction with a Health Fair sponsored by United Blood Services.

All prizes in the fiddling contest are being donated by the Highland South merchants.
