Train with bells ringing heralds 100th birthday

By CAROL HART

With its horn blowing and bells ringing, a train consisting of an engine, caboose and club car pulled into the Big Spring depot Thursday, in a token acknowledgment of the 100th birthday of the local branch of the Missouri-Pacific line.

The Texas-Pacific railroad first pulled into Big Spring May 28, 1881, an event which tied the town to the rest of the nation.

Aboard the train Thursday were several officials of the MoPac line. The men stepped out on a platform at 3 p.m. to greet a crowd of people gathered to honor both the railroad and the men and women who built it into the thriving business it is today.

K.D. Hestes, vice president of operations of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, presented a plaque to Centennial General Chairman John Taylor and members of his committee, in recognition of the celebration the community has been observing. In turn, Taylor presented Hestes a plaque with the map of Texas inscribed upon it. The route of the railroad, with Big Spring highlighted, was also on the plaque.

Hestes took the plaque, saying "we will cherish this plaque for the next 100 years."

Emcee of the event was Joe Pickle. Other dignitaries present were Charlie Baldwin, general superintendent of safety, L.L. Carmichael, superintendent of Rio Grande District, E.N. Craven, trainmaster of the local yard, and Willard Schultz, regional public relations director for MoPac.

R.M. Blanchette, federal Railroad Administration, and Jim Winston, his aide, were also present. Blanchette told the crowd that he wanted the connection between the railroad and the government severed. "I want the railroad to move freight, and the government to move out," he told the crowd.

"Bureaucrats cannot enforce the laws of the marketplace," Blanchette said.

Names of people who have devoted 40 or more years to the railroad were read. They included Lee Barber, Margaret Barnett, E.R. Brown, E.C. Casey, N.O. Decker, C.W. Dickerson, D.D. Dyer, J.H. Garcia, Joe Hendricks, R.C. Hill, Gordon Hughes and W.C. Jones.

Others were A. McCasland, W.W. Marland, Tony Marquez, R.H. Miller, R.H. Moore, G.P. Morrison, J.O. Murphy, A.W. Page, A.V. Puente, G.C. Ragsdale, and J.J. Richardson.

Also H.L. Ross, H. Ruben, T.A. Underhill and Ruben Marquez.

Following the speeches, the crowd moved inside the freight station, where cake and punch were served in honor of the railroad's birthday.

Thus began the second hundred years of relationship between the community and the railroad.

RAILROAD VEEP ACCEPTS PLAQUE — John Taylor (in derby hat), general chairman of the Big Spring-Howard County Railroad Centennial Celebration committee, is shown giving a plaque commemorating the railroad's part in the development of Big Spring to K.D. Hestes, vice-president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad. The ritual took place in the Mo-Pac yards aboard a club car brought here for the occasion. The Centennial First Lady, Donna Carey, and Centennial president Joe Pickle (left) are among others on the car's platform.

NOSTALGIC MOMENT FOR BIG SPRING HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS — Some members of the 1981 Senior class at Big Spring High School appear to be breathing sighs of relief, others may not be able to comprehend what has happened after each had been presented with diplomas attesting to the fact that he or she had indeed qualified for graduation. The 266 members of the class gathered in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum to listen to a talk made by T.L. Patterson of Texas Tech and receive their graduation certification.

Howard College to receive $38 million in state funds

Martha Henke Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Unless some unexpected last-minute changes are made in the state spending bill, Howard County Junior College in Big Spring will receive about $3.8 million in state funds for the 1982-83 biennium, House and Senate conferees decided this week.

Rain returns to Big Spring

Rain returned to Big Spring and environs before daybreak today. The official measurement at the U.S. Experiment Station at 8 a.m., was .71 of an inch.

That brought the year's total to 7.66 inches. Normal for the year through May 28 is 6.37 inches.

The rains appeared to be heavier in the northwest portion of Howard County, lighter in the southern sections. No turbulence accompanied the moisture-laden clouds. Several funnel clouds were reported in Ector County, however, more than 70 miles removed from Big Spring.

High winds were also reported in the Wink area.

In the last state biennium, the college received $2.4 million.

The state spending bill also includes:

— $10.8 million for Odessa College, $2.6 million more than the current budget.

— $6.8 million for Midland College, $2.1 million more.

— $6.1 million for Southwest Texas State County Junior College at Uvalde, $1.9 million more.

— $3 million for the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf at Big Spring, less than the $4.1 million originally requested.

— $3.8 million for Western Texas College at Snyder, $1.9 million more than received during the current biennium.

The conferees also voted not to fund a Navarro College computer follow-up of vocational and technical graduates after college officials wrote saying that requirements for the study have been dropped by the federal government.

The Senate Finance Committee had set aside $213,600 to pay for one year of the study that benefits all 47 community colleges in the state.

Problem of locating landfill site solved

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Colorado City apparently has at long last solved its problem of locating a landfill site. City officials have been advised by the state Department of Health that the current site is acceptable, if a compound known as Bentonite is mixed with soil. The present location will serve for another 10 months, with another two years' service possible with the digging of another pit. The cost will approximately be $18,000, including the Bentonite, which will represent substantial savings for the city. State health officials informed city officials that only a few cities have experimented with Bentonite and Colorado City's landfill site will be closely monitored for developments after having applied the product. Mayor Elmer Martin expressed the city's thanks to Weldon Hardegree for having made possible an alternate site.

NOT YET — Even though ceremonies were conducted Thursday afternoon the time capsule, to be opened May 28, 2031 will not be buried until June 15. The reason for this, explained Centennial Chairman John Taylor (at microphone) is because many area residents have not had time to prepare something for the capsule because they have been kept so busy with Centennial activities. The capsule is now in the Chamber of Commerce offices. It costs 50 cents to register each item, after which it is stamped with the official Centennial Celebration seal.

Poles mourn Wyszynski

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Hundreds of grieving Poles prayed through the night at the bier of Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski as the government joined church leaders in preparations for the funeral of the man who led the Roman Catholic Church's struggle to survive under communism in Poland. The body of the 79-year-old primate was to lie in state at the seminary church on Krakowski Przedmiescie until the funeral Sunday. The mourners sat silently in the pews, waiting for the priest to take the body of the late cardinal, who died Thursday after a six-week battle with cancer. Thousands stood in the rain to file past the coffin at his residence, then packed the sidewalks as priests, members of the Solidarity labor federation and firemen carried it to the church a mile away. After a Requiem Mass at the church Sunday, there will be an open-air service in Victory Square, where Pope John Paul II celebrated Mass during his homecoming visit in 1978. Interment will follow in the crypt beneath nearby St. John's Cathedral. A joint church and state commission met to plan the funeral, which is expected to draw church leaders from around the world. The Vatican secretary of state, Cardinal Agostino Casaroli, is expected to represent the pope, who as Karol Wojtyla, a Polish priest and cardinal, was a protege of Wyszynski. The pontiff, recuperating in a Rome hospital from an assassination attempt two weeks ago, asked to be left alone to pray when told of the death of his mentor. Later he celebrated a memorial Mass in his room and sent a telegram to Poland saying he shared his homeland's "grief and prayers." Poland's communist government — officially atheist in a country whose citizens are overwhelmingly Roman Catholic — described Wyszynski as "an outstanding priest and a great patriot."

Brady has pneumonia

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary James S. Brady, shot during an assassination attempt on President Reagan, is being treated with an antibiotic for pneumonia in his left lung, a George Washington University Hospital spokesman says. Brady, recovering from a gunshot wound in his brain, has been running fevers reaching between 103 and 105 degrees since Tuesday. Dr. Dennis O'Leary, a hospital spokesman, said the viral-like pneumonia was discovered through X-rays Thursday when Brady's fever "was starting to inch back up." There was "a rather striking difference" in pictures taken Wednesday and Thursday, O'Leary said. Although doctors remain unsure whether a virus or bacteria is causing the pneumonia, they are treating it with an antibiotic used in viral cases, he said. "Anytime you're dealing with a pneumonia, that's a serious infection," O'Leary said. But he added that "this kind of pneumonia is more like a pneumonia you might walk into a doctor's office with." He described it as "a highly manageable situation" and said doctors were relieved that the fever was not associated with Brady's head wound. O'Leary said Brady "has a pretty good tolerance for temperature elevation" and "looks much better than someone with a high temperature should look."

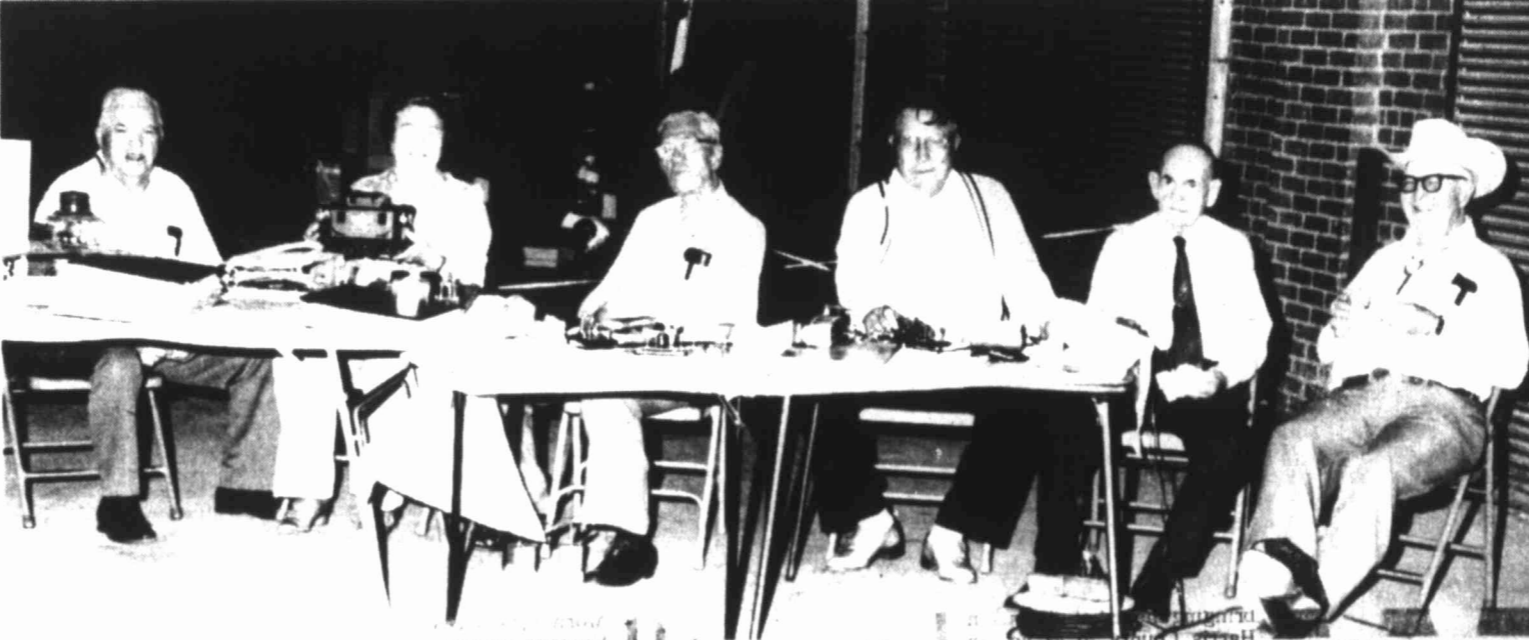

'Other woman' shunned when Mr. Ra-Zor buried

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Mitchell County Centennial's Mr. Ra-Zor was buried Thursday in impressive ceremonies held at the Centennial headquarters. The Rev. Ron Hamby, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, led the procession, which included Brothers of the Brush, Centennial Belles chapters as well as the bereaved "widow," her assortment of offspring and the "other woman" who was appropriately shunned by the ladies of the community. Adding to the solemnity of the occasion was a quartet, "Judge Bill Carter and Three Suspects," who paid tribute to the deceased with stirring lyrics set to a melody which resembled the "Aggie War Hymn." The body of Mr. Ra-Zor will lie in state a considerable length of time (a concern of the community due to the high temperature) until the end of the Centennial Celebration in July.

Police Beat Robbery suspect jailed

A second suspect was arrested, Thursday, in the aggravated robbery of a local man. Lorraine Harvey, 632 N.W. 4th, was accused by two men, 10:30 p.m. Friday, who struck him with a two-by-four, and stole $80 from him. On Tuesday afternoon, local detectives arrested Lonell Lott, 20, 1002 N. Main, on suspicion of committing the robbery. At 8:26 a.m. Thursday, officers arrested James Earl White, 18, 901 N.W. 5th, on suspicion of being Lott's accomplice. White, too, will face charges of aggravated robbery. A domestic argument led to a stabbing, 11:30 p.m. Thursday. Officers received a call about a domestic squabble occurring on the 100 block of Northwest Eighth, and when they arrived at the scene, they found that a woman had stabbed her husband in the back with a kitchen knife. He was treated at a local hospital, and told police that he did not want to press charges, said Lt. George Quintero. Richard Nunez, 710 Scurry, placed a $1,700 gold and diamond ring and $20 inside a money bag which he left on the front seat of his car parked in the lot of the Federal Building. Because of the heat, he also left a window open a crack, and when he returned to the car, the bag was gone. Kathy Patterson, 2608 Barksdale, heard a loud noise in her front yard, 4:30 a.m. Thursday. When she looked out the window, she found that someone had smashed the front and rear windshields of her car. She believes she knows who did it, but has not estimated the cost of the damage. Police caught two male juveniles inside the home of Yicidro Villareal, 703 Douglas, around 2 p.m. Thursday. The youths were arrested and charged with burglary of a habitation. While Susan Heard, 1202 Nolan, was in the process of moving from her home, Thursday, someone stole a wall clock and six baseball

O'Neill bids to restore budget cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats are at odds over a proposal by Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. to restore billions of dollars for social programs cut from the 1982 spending blueprint enacted by Congress at President Reagan's behest. O'Neill says the Democrats have a duty to protect the social programs they have built over the years and not "roll over and play dead." But critics argue that the speaker is not reflecting the majority sentiment of his party and that a move like he wants to make likely would lead to an embarrassing defeat on the House floor. House Democrats met privately Thursday to discuss the matter, but participants said no decisions were reached. O'Neill, a Massachusetts Democrat, vowed Thursday to pursue the strategy "unless I'm voted down by my caucus." At issue is the portion of the $69.4 billion blueprint adopted earlier this month that requires House and Senate committees to revise or eliminate existing programs within their jurisdictions to achieve about $35 billion worth of cuts for next year. Under the so-called "reconciliation" process, committees are forced to reconcile the existing laws providing various programs with budget policy as reflected in the spending blueprint.

Weather Violent weather hits most of West Texas

By the Associated Press.

Tornado funnels dipped out of the sky, winds gusted to 60 mph and severe thunderstorms were widespread as violent weather moved across West Texas early today.

A tornado warning was issued for Midland and Ector Counties after two funnel clouds were sighted about six miles east of Odessa. There were no immediate reports of damage.

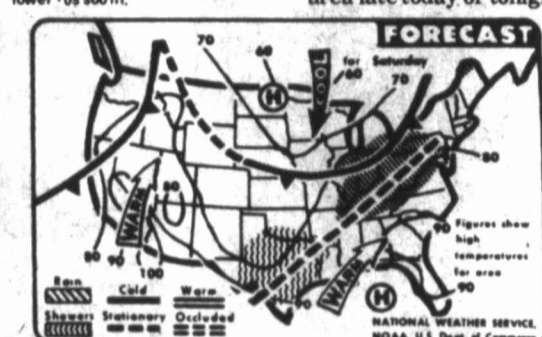

Wink reported wind gusts of up to 60 mph early today as a severe thunderstorm moved through.

Numerous severe thunderstorm warnings were issued throughout the night and a flash flood watch was in effect today for northeast sections of the South Plains, southeast portions of the Panhandle and northwest sections of North Central Texas.

Forecasters warned that heavy rains resulting from today's storm could cause flash flooding because the ground is saturated from storms earlier this week.

Heavy thunderstorms were reported along the Texas-Mexico border near Eagle Pass and very heavy thunderstorms were scattered from the Davis and Guadalupe Mountains across the Permian Basin, Concho Valley and South Plains.

Forecasters called for scattered thunderstorms producing locally heavy rain and possibly some flash flooding over east portions of Northwest Texas. The scattered thunderstorms and heavy showers will spread eastward across North Central Texas causing possible flash floods in western sections of that area late today or tonight.

Remains inmate at Big Spring camp

Billie Sol Estes' conviction is upheld by fed appeals court

The conviction of Billie Sol Estes for hiding income from tax collectors has been upheld by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Estes, who was sent to the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp last year, had claimed that federal prosecutors had a vendetta against him. His attorney maintained that at least one juror was prejudiced by the publicity over his troubles.

The New Orleans court did remand the case to the lower court "solely to allow Estes to permit his motion for reduction of sentence..."

Estes, who was convicted of fraud in the early 60s in a celebrated case that shook a few skeletons in closets in Washington, served eight years in jail. He still has a federal tax liability in the tens of millions of dollars dating from the collapse of his paper empire nearly 20 years ago.

Estes went bankrupt. His parole was revoked. In addition, he was sentenced for five years because of an apparent forgery of some documents while he was trying to buy an electronics company with other people's money. That's in addition to the five years he received while trying to conceal income from the Internal Revenue Service.

Estes, at the present time, is an inmate in the federal prison camp here. His presumed release date, according to camp superintendent John Allman, is 1983.

His case could be reviewed once or twice prior to that time, however.

The appeals court rejected the arguments of Estes and co-defendant Raymond K. Horton, ruling in a 10-page opinion that there was "no error in the convictions of the appellants..."

The government began investigating his most recent dealings in 1977.

The IRS contends that Estes and Horton, a wealthy oilman, participated in deals which included percentages of profits in deferred payments, a trust fund set up through Estes' brother for Estes' children and business ventures under Horton's name but Estes' control.

"Government agents, acting as potential investors with shady, Mafia-like connections, contacted Estes to discuss certain business deals," the appeals court said in its opinion.

The agents, using concealed recorders and wire taps, got Estes talking big. The tapes were later introduced at his trial.

"In these tapes, Estes told the government agents that he had ownership rights in Horton's business, that he knew how to handle Horton and that he in effect controlled Horton," the 5th Circuit said.

"Estes also told the agents that his actual worth was very high, but that his money was kept in the name of someone else, since he was not allowed to have it in his name."

Estes was sentenced to five years, to run consecutively with his other five-year sentence. Horton was sentenced to three years in jail and a fine of $10,000.

Both appealed. Among other arguments in his appeal, Horton said the trial court should have barred as evidence some of the things Estes said and that the court should have granted him a separate trial.

Special registration to be held Monday at 'Y'

The Big Spring YMCA will hold a special registration at 7 a.m., Monday for those parents who were unable to enroll their children earlier for "Y" summer programs.

This will promote speedier processing of the registrations. Monday is the first day of the summer activities at the Y.

The YMCA has restructured its classes for the summer, putting a limit on the number allowed in one class. Under the new rule, one instructor will have anywhere from six to 10 students. Bob Cappel, executive director of the Y, says the change will allow for better learning processes.

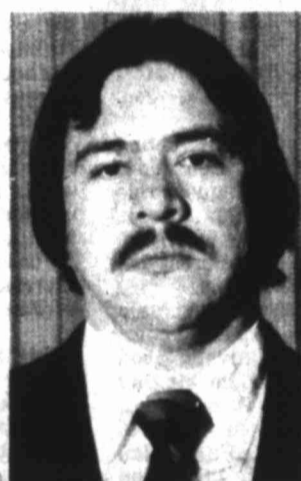

Those parents unable to register their children earlier should be on time Monday, Cappel said, to make sure that their children get a spot in selected classes.

One can obtain additional information by contacting the Y at 267-8234.

FRESH WATER FROM AN OLD WELL

"If you were Noah and there were a flood today, and you could pick out the people to live with you on the ark to start the world over again, who would you choose?" The question was directed to George Bernard Shaw, the great playwright. His cryptic answer was, "I'd let them all drown!"

I'm glad God doesn't feel that way today! In fact, He is actively seeking each of us in order to fill our lives to overflowing. If you do not have a settled calm at the core of your mind and soul, God's peace is available to you today.

That gnawing restlessness you feel is the result of your soul being homesick for God. Open your life to Him. He loves you and is searching for you this moment. He offers you the gift of peace — peace of mind!

Urban sprawl real threat to farming

Between sink holes and urban sprawl, the farm land in this nation is fast disappearing.

The Kermit-Wink sinkhole in West Texas, which occurred last year, got a lot of attention in the press but it occurred in an area where very little grows.

More sinkholes have occurred in Florida recently and they took place in some prime farming land. More and more land can be expected to collapse across the country as more and more water is drawn from the ground by thirsty communities and farmers trying to irrigate thirsty crops.

The threat of sink holes isn't nearly as grave to the farming industry, however, as is suburban housing.

FOR YEARS, SUBURBIA has claimed more and more crop land in California's burgeoning cities. Recently in Austin, Texas, a 250-acre ranch was put up for sale for conversion to suburban housing.

Time was within the recent memory of man when America had more farm land than it knew what to do with. But farm land is rapidly diminishing throughout the nation. In Austin's case, the city limits have expanded so rapidly that what was cattle country a generation ago is now prime housing acreage.

The thinking people in the brain stores and in Washington are aware of all this. The Reagan Administration's new farm bill contains a section establishing a national policy to lessen the threat to farmland.

Rep. James Jeffords, R-Vt., and Sen. Roger Jenson, R-Iowa, neither of whom has ever been accused of being wild-eyed liberals, want to go beyond policy to give more federal aid to states to help deal with the problem.

A recent federal study reports: — The U.S. is converting farmland to non-farm uses at a rate of three million acres annually.

— The nation now has 413 million acres of cropland and 127 million acres of potential cropland. Another 268 million acres of rural land have low potential for cultivation.

In the next 20 years, demand for U.S. farm products will rise 60 to 85 percent. That, reminds Agriculture Secretary John Block, means most of the nation's 540-million acre cropland base "would have to be in cultivation."

THIS COUNTRY WILL be facing increasing pressure to export farm products to a hungry world (the harvest of one of every three acres already is exported), growing domestic demand and rising use of corn-produced ethanol.

All this, says Block, "would mean major shifts in the U.S. agricultural system: Take lands away from forage and grazing uses, farming poor-quality land costly to cultivate and subject to erosion, higher food prices."

Block's worry is not peculiar to the Republican party. His predecessor, Bob Bergland, says that in his lifetime we have paved over the equivalent of all the cropland of Ohio. Before the century is out, we'll pave over an area the size of Indiana, he adds.

Each mile of interstate highways consumes 48 acres. Federal dams flood thousands of rich acres.

Some states are working hard to counter the threat. All of them should be.

Pulling together

Around the rim

James Werrell

The "Iron Horse Revue," that colorful blast from the past, was almost as much fun as a night of blues with a saloon girl.

I wasn't in the production, but was able to ride in on the satin skirts of my wife, who, by the way, was a saloon girl. She was the 13-year-old trotter who was trundled off to El Paso with a little over $20 in her bodice.

Although it wasn't mentioned in the revue, when she got to El Paso, she spent the 20 bucks on a couple of new dresses and went to work in another saloon.

I WAS MERELY an interloper backstage at the revue, and was unable to bathe in the applause of the hundreds of spectators, but I was able to soak up some of the camaraderie that developed behind the scenes. All sorts of people were thrown together for the cause, and it was a leveling experience.

Everyone was pulling together for a common purpose; trying not to miss cues, trying to stay in step with your dance partner, trying to make sure the mules didn't stampede. When not in the limelights, cast members wandered freely among the various groups that had staked out their turf with blankets, picnic baskets, coolers and lounge chairs.

One of the groups would be passing out barbecue. Another would offer lemonade, and still another would have something to make the lemonade more interesting.

In the dark it was sometimes difficult to tell one thermos from another, and the various concoctions could be a little strange. One thermos contained a variety of ingredients including not only a Coca-Cola but also the can it came in.

The mixture was appropriately dubbed an Iron Horse, and it could kick.

Things could sometimes get disconcerting. One second you'd be talking with a cowboy or somebody decked out in Gay '90s garb; they would hear the strains of Cotton Eyed Joe or the Charleston, and they were off and running on mules for the wings.

DESPITE THE attractions of lounging around backstage, it was impossible to resist sneaking a peek at what was going on out front. Over and over again, you would hear whispers from the crowd, "I never thought the show would look this professional."

Before seeing the revue, I had the apprehension that I might be in for two and a half hours of corn and clumsy melodrama. Wrong!

It was a spectacular, exciting entertainment from the first Indian to the last laser. Everyone connected with the "Iron Horse Revue," especially the folks who worked hard in it for nothing, should be very proud. Worn out, no doubt, but proud.

Mideastern goals

WASHINGTON — Basic, but often hidden realities of life in the Middle East emerge anew from the latest American effort to prevent conflagration in the area.

The importance of reconstructing an independent state in the Lebanon is a cardinal point. The ambiguous role of Russia is a second. Thirdly, there is the potential for developing an underlying community of interest between Israel and Saudi Arabia.

The Lebanon, a complicated mosaic of Christian and Moslem communities, enjoyed relatively good relations with Israel until the Six Day War of 1967. After the Arab defeat, refugees in the Lebanon came to identify strongly with the Palestinian resistance. The Palestine Liberation Organization took over a portion of the Lebanon as a staging ground for attacks on Israel.

CLASHES BETWEEN the PLO and the Lebanese authorities fostered a civil war between the Moslem and Christian communities. Syrian forces intervened to put down the trouble in 1975. Since then, Lebanon has been a confused battleground among the Syrians, the PLO, various Moslem communities and some Christian communities supported by the Israelis.

The most recent trouble broke out when one of the Christian communities started to occupy a town in a valley which runs south toward Israel. Syrian forces mounted air and artillery attacks on the Christians. The Israeli air force shot down two Syrian helicopters. The Syrians then moved into the valley some ground-to-air missiles furnished by the Soviet Union. The Israelis threatened to wipe out the missiles. At that point Secretary of State Alexander Haig summoned former Ambassador Philip Habib out of retirement. Ambassador Habib has been shuttling back and forth among the Lebanon, Syria, Israel and Saudi Arabia ever since.

A striking absence of conflict between Moslems and Christians in the Lebanon has marked that period of almost constant high tension. After years of strife, the various Lebanese communities now seem prepared to bury the hatchet. So the essence of the proposals advanced by Habib has been a restoration of authority to the Lebanese government, and a gradual scaling down of the positions staked out in the country by the Syrians, the Israelis and the Palestinians.

The Russians enter the picture as the chief supporters of the Syrian regime of President Hafez Assad, who has been under pressure at home and increasingly isolated in the Arab world. A top Soviet diplomat, Georgi Kornienko, visited Damascus just after the missiles were moved forward. As a backup to the Habib mission, Secretary Haig has been inviting the Russians, through Ambassador Anatoli Dobrynin, to exercise a restraining influence on the Syrians.

THE SOVIET RESPONSE has been unclear. American officials believe Moscow has assured President Assad of continued support. But they do not think Russia has been needing the crisis, pushing the Syrians on in order to test the reactions of the Reagan Administration.

On the contrary, the Washington view, which tended to be confirmed by President Brezhnev's speech Friday, is that the Russians would like to use the occasion as a vehicle for re-entry into Middle East diplomacy. The American hope is to hold the Russians off, while wooing the Syrians away from Moscow by a combined carrot-and-stick approach. Which is where the Israelis and Saudis come in.

Israel holds the stick. Israeli planes could take out the missiles, and Prime Minister Menachem Begin has military reasons, as well as the possibility of political gains in a pre-electoral period, to order a strike. While urging restraint upon the Israeli leader, the U.S. has not flatly condemned military action. Rather it has tried to use the threat as one reason for the Syrians to remove the missiles.

The Saudis hold the carrot. President Assad cannot be seen yielding to Israeli threats, and he flatly rejected Habib's original plea to pull out the missiles. But if Saudi officials make the plea, and if they accompany it with financial aid and measures that bring Syria back into the Arab community, that is a very different story. President Assad can easily accept from the Saudis what he has to spurn when it comes from Israel.

With so many uncertainties in play, the outcome of the Habib mission remains in doubt. But the mission rests on a solid confluence of interest — the interest shared by Israel and Saudi Arabia in the restoration of a peaceful Lebanon that exports expertise and financial resources rather than terrorism and instability.

We have already apologized to Mrs. Stewart for the mix-up (she was very gracious, by the way), but I wanted to let your readers know that not only do I read their letters, I count on them heavily for direction in the thousands of votes I must cast during the legislative session. So keep those cards and letters coming.

Social Security blunder

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Premature announcement of Social Security reform is soberly acknowledged at the White House as Ronald Reagan's first unadorned blunder as president, but it goes unrecognized as a display of traditional Republican masochism.

Although something close to the Reagan reforms will be necessary to save Social Security, the White House did almost nothing right in exposing them to public view. The too few who saw the program in advance failed to perceive how Democrats would help build a political firestorm.

All that is understood belatedly by Reagan's senior advisers. What they do not fully comprehend is how the Social Security fiasco follows an historical syndrome: Republicans seeking to alleviate national problems through pain and suffering, only to end up wounding themselves to the benefit of Democrats.

Those wounds were deeply felt by Republican lawmakers leaving Washington to spend the Memorial Day benefits to the Reagan tax cut. Even ardent Reaganite members of Congress were wondering whether they could wholeheartedly support the Reagan program any longer.

THE REASONS FOR such poor political timing in unveiling a long-range reform program were twofold: First, Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee prodded the White House for a Social Security plan, promising they would not take political advantage of the new proposal; second, the administration's economic policymakers wanted to impress sickly financial markets with their deficit-slashing courage.

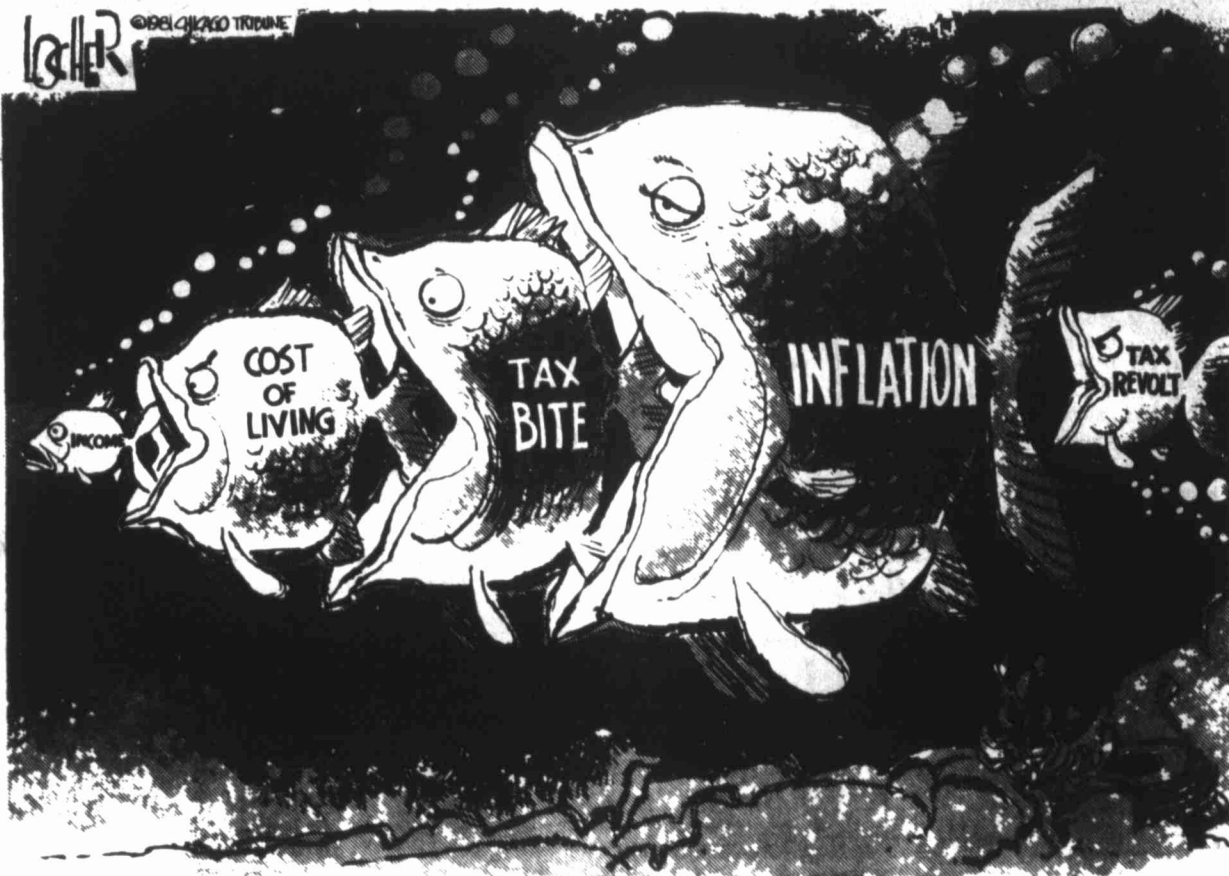

The first reason impelled Richard Schweiker, secretary of Health and Human Services, who drafted the plan; the second reason moved budget director David Stockman, who strongly supported it. What soon would be known as Schweiker's folly arrived at the White House on Saturday May 9, two days after Reagan's budget victory in the House had stirred pretensions of omnipotence and infallibility.

Chief of Staff James Baker was not present. Presidential counselor Edwin Meese was busy, gave the Social Security scheme a cursory glance and scheduled it for a Cabinet Council session on Monday, May 11. The White House staffers whose alarm bells might have rang, congressional lobbyist Max Friedersdorf and political aide Lyn Nofziger, were not alerted. Nor were senior Republicans in Congress.

When Baker returned on Monday for the Cabinet Council meeting, his alarm bell did go off — but not sufficiently to stop the programs. At the cabinet Council session, President Reagan enthusiastically endorsed a reform he long had felt necessary. The only precaution was to keep Reagan himself publicly at arm's length from his new program.

As promised, Democratic Ways and Means members who had solicited the president's ideas did not attack them. But to believe that their example would be followed by Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and House Majority Leader Jim Wright revealed unsuspected political naivete within Reagan's inner circle. Eager to retaliate after their beating on the budget, the Democratic leaders assaulted the Reagan plan without mercy.

POOR COORDINATION, BAD judgment and even hubris are acknowledged at the White House.

Noise problem usually limited to one ear

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am bothered with a miserable ringing in my ear. The other ear doesn't seem to bother too awful much. My hearing has been reduced considerably in the ear that has the ringing in it. Can you be helpful in this? Can I see a specialist? — E.F.P.

If you put people in an absolutely quiet room, most would complain of the same thing you do — ringing in the ear. In fact, studies have been done using this very technique. We are not bothered by these constant companions during the normal course of events because outside noise surrounding the ear noises mask them. Most ringing, buzzing and hissing noises come on in middle years. In half the cases it is limited to one ear. From the volume of mail on ear noises, I sometimes suspect half the people in the world have noises in one ear and the other half have them in the other ear.

There are many causes to explain it. The doctor who can be of most help is an otolaryngologist. He can track down the cause from a long list of possibilities. Something as simple as wax pressing on the eardrum can cause the noises. Tinnitus (ringing in the ear) also happens with hearing loss. As the hearing cells in the ear die they can cause ringing to begin. A hardening of bones in the middle ear (otosclerosis) or hardening of arteries, especially those serving the ear, are other examples of the many causes. What I am trying to do by listing the few examples is to point out the complexity of such a problem.

I must admit that in many cases a treatable cause cannot be found. There are ways to eliminate or lessen the annoyance. A small device, a tinnitus masker, can be worn like a hearing aid. It creates sounds that mimic the ear noises. Or you can tune in your bedside radio to a point on the dial where you get only the background whine and try to adjust the dial until you match the particular frequency of your noise.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Any help for a basket case of rectal itching? — K.H.

There are many causes for rectal itching and they have to be looked for if it is ever to be solved. Hemorrhoids and rectal fissures are often part of the picture, as are skin infections and diseases of the skin, like yeast or psoriasis. A particular brand of toilet tissue might be irritating. Caffeine can cause it. Other dietary factors are frequently mentioned, and some feel diet alteration helps.

For starters, avoid beer, tea, coffee, chocolate, tomatoes, cola drinks, milk, spices and peppers. The message is that you have to seek the cause of your individual problem rather than rely exclusively on products that only alleviate the symptoms.

Immediately, stop scratching. The scratching irritates the skin further and leads to more itching. Until the skin heals, stop using toilet paper.

Instead use some of the cotton ball wraps you can find in your drug store.

Avoid harsh soaps when bathing. See if elimination of some of the foods listed above helps. A skin-softening lotion applied two or three times a day should be used. And incidentally, you might try laundering your undergarments in a less harsh soap or detergent. Some residue may remain and cause the itch.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I know that Jesus Christ is to be my Lord as well as my Savior, but how do I make Christ Lord of my life? — C.D.V.

DEAR C.D.V.: When you accepted Jesus as your Savior, your life came under new management. The Lord Jesus Christ took up residence in your life. You make him Lord of your life when you obey him and give him complete control of your life. For the Christian, the Lordship of Christ is not an option, but a commandment. The Bible says, "But in your hearts set apart Christ as Lord" (1 Peter 3:15). How can you do this?

FIRST, learn to say no to sin. When the temptation to sin comes knocking at your door, do not answer. "Therefore do not let sin reign in your mortal body... For sin shall not be your master" (Romans 6:12, 14).

Secondly, learn to say yes to Christ. Be consistent in your obedience to Christ. Learn his commands and do them. Study your Bible regularly and ask God to show you how to apply what you learn to your life. Jesus said, "Why do you call me, 'Lord, Lord,' and do not do what I say? I will show you what he is like who comes to me and hears my words and puts them into practice. He is like a man building a house, who dug down deep and laid the foundation on rock. When a flood came, the torrent struck that house but could not shake it, because it was well built" (Luke 6:46-48).

As you learn and obey the teachings of Jesus, you will discover that he will develop within you a stability and strength which will enable you to successfully face the pressures in life.

As you grow in Christ, there will be times when you will fail him. No one except Christ has lived a perfect life. Be willing to admit you have failed and confess your sin. And then get back on the path of obedience. God bless you.

Big Spring Herald

Dear Editor:

In the Thursday, May 21st edition of The Herald, Mrs. Mickie Stewart's letter to the editor described a mistake my office had made in responding to her letter on the Texas "blue laws". We've contacted Mrs. Stewart to explain to her how the mistake was made, but I thought I should pass the explanation on to you as well.

After reading that Mrs. Stewart supported the bill to repeal the blue laws, I jotted "blue law—opposes" at the top of the letter and gave it to my secretary so she could type a reply letter. She, however, misinterpreted my note to mean that Mrs. Stewart's letter was in opposition to the repeal of the blue laws, and as a result, Mrs. Stewart received a letter incorrectly acknowledging my agreement with her position. In truth, I eventually voted against repeal of the blue laws, a position which Mrs. Stewart, of course, did not share.

Although it was an honest mistake, Mrs. Stewart was understandably concerned that I had not given her letter my full attention. Admittedly, the reply she received would indicate as much, but such was not the case. We have received a tremendous volume of mail during the session. My staff does weed some of it out, but I personally read any mail we receive from people who actually live in my district. We answer it all, however, either by return letter or, in urgent cases, by phone. With that volume of outgoing mail, I suppose it was inevitable that a mistake of this sort would eventually occur.

We have already apologized to Mrs. Stewart for the mix-up (she was very gracious, by the way), but I wanted to let your readers know that not only do I read their letters, I count on them heavily for direction in the thousands of votes I must cast during the legislative session. So keep those cards and letters coming.

Peace effort 'miraculous'

Envoy to return to Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying the results of U.S. peace efforts have been "miraculous" so far, President Reagan today asked his special Mideast envoy, Philip Habib, to continue his attempts to avoid war between Israel and Syria in the Lebanese missile crisis.

"At the president's instruction, my mission is continuing and I will be returning to the area sometime next week," Habib told reporters after a 50-minute meeting with Reagan at the White House.

But if Habib and Reagan decided on a new approach in the three-week effort to defuse the crisis, Habib offered no clue as to what it was. He said no one has set any deadlines for his efforts, however, and that the intensive U.S. peace effort is appreciated in the area.

"Nobody on any side has put any time limits on me," he said. He said all sides have indicated he would be "welcome anytime I want to come back and talk with them."

Habib expressed optimism there would be a favorable outcome to the efforts, saying "a peaceful resolution to the immediate issue is achievable."

"It's clear to me ... that in all my conversations out there, none of the people want to go to war; none of the people want to have this thing get completely out of hand."

He said U.S. efforts have helped create an atmosphere to "hopefully control what appeared to be a course which was going to lead to major hostilities."

Inflation gradually slowing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Double-digit inflation, the scourge of the nation's economy since early 1979, has been declining gradually over the past year, a survey of consumer prices shows.

The decline has prompted some economists to express optimism that the nation is coming out of a spell of high inflation.

"I'm increasingly optimistic we have turned the corner on inflation," said Allen Sinai, vice president and senior economist at Data Resources, Inc., Lexington, Mass., a leading economic forecasting firm.

Thomas D. Thomson, senior vice president and chief economist for the Crocker National Bank in San Francisco, said he, too, was "fairly optimistic" the nation has moved away from a period of high inflation.

A survey of inflation figures shows that after peaking at nearly 15 percent in the spring of 1980, increases in the Consumer Price Index have been in the verge of moving back into the single digits.

The CPI is the government's most common measure of inflation.

Some private economists are optimistic a worldwide oil glut, favorable weather in the Midwest grain-producing areas, a strong dollar and government efforts aimed at reducing federal spending will help keep the trend going.

Other economists caution that the tough problem of spiraling wage increases outstripping productivity growth needs to be resolved to make sharp and lasting reductions in inflation rates.

A look at the year-to-year increases in the CPI shows that inflation reached a peak in March and April of 1980 when the index jumped 14.7 percent above the same months the previous year.

The rate of inflation then started declining last May when it slipped to 14.4 percent above May 1979 levels.

WOUNDED SHIPMATE — A Nimitz crewman injured in Tuesday night's jet crash and fire aboard the aircraft carrier is carried off the giant warship after it docked in Norfolk, Va. Thursday.

Damaged Nimitz may be ready Saturday

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The aircraft carrier USS Nimitz, in port after a jet crash that left 62 crewmen dead or injured and about $100 million in damage, may be cleaned up and ready to resume its training cruise by Saturday, Navy officials say.

The Nimitz sailed into its home port Thursday, returning damaged aircraft and the bodies of 13 of the 14 crewmen killed in the crash of the Marine EA-6B and its fiery aftermath.

The body of Marine 1st Lt. Laurence Cragun, the plane's electronics officer, still had not been found by today. Twenty-one of the injured crewmen were flown to hospitals in Florida and Texas after Tuesday's accident off the Florida coast. The other 27 injured crewmen were treated in sick bay. The Nimitz carried about 3,000 sailors and 2,500 airmen.

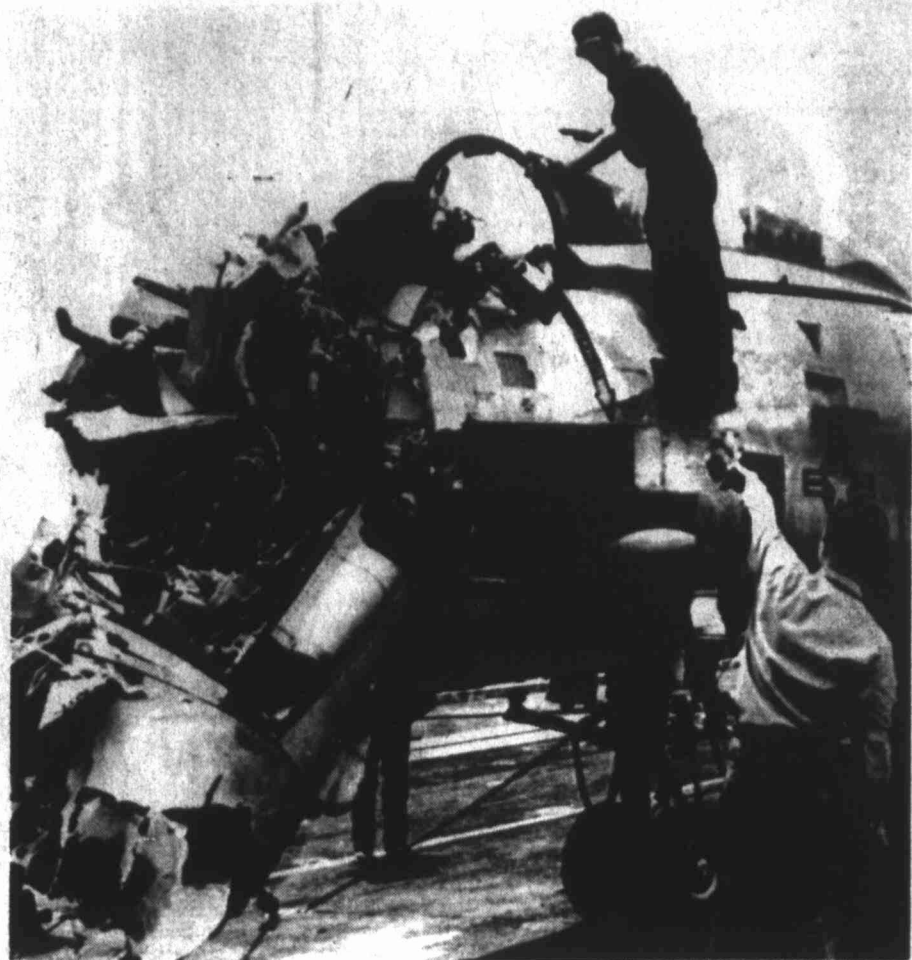

Four young sailors severely burned in the crash were "alert and responsive" but still in critical condition at the Brooke Army Medical Center burn unit at Fort Sam Houston in Texas, Col. Basil A. Pruitt Jr. said Thursday afternoon.

The wreckage of four planes — the EA-6B Prowler that crashed and three F-14 Tomcats — was discarded overboard. Seven other aircraft suffered major damage and were sent off for repairs. Minor damage to another nine planes had been repaired.

There was no official value placed on the damage, but "$100 million would not be a bad estimate," said Vice Adm. Gus Kinnear, commander Naval Air Forces Atlantic.

On Thursday, Dale Stewart, a 19-year-old airman apprentice, had a bandage around his fractured knuckles, stitches up his chin and a missing tooth. He was on the flight deck under a plane Tuesday night before the crash.

"I got clear and then a grabbed a firehose," he said. "There was just one big boom. All you could see was flying pieces of aircraft. The A-6 just got too close to the island. It was hitting one airplane after another in a chain reaction."

INSPECT DAMAGE — Crewmen inspect the damage to one of the damaged Navy planes on the flight deck of the USS Nimitz Thursday at the Norfolk Navy Base in Norfolk, Va. None planes were destroyed or damaged in Tuesday's crash of a Marine electronics-warfare jet onto the flight deck. Fourteen crew members were killed in the accident.

'Ghost Stories of Texas'

Big Spring haunting place, author writes

Big Spring not only centers a broad West Texas area rich in supernatural lore, but it can claim one of the most extraordinary hauntings in recent years, according to Kerrville author Ed Syers, who has spent two years researching the state's 50 major stories of the eerie and inexplicable.

Several regional stories came under consideration for his "Ghost Stories of Texas," a book to be released by Halloween this year. The novelist-historian, who concentrates on Texas legends, is noted for such highly regarded works as "The Beaten Trail," a comprehensive state guide, "Backroads of Texas," and a centennial historical novel, "The Devil Gun."

In his current work, the strange appearance of a centuries-old ghost, Sue, in Big Spring, is a major story. Also included are the baffling Marfa Lights, legendary Stampede Mesa near Post and haunted Presslar's Draw, near Spur. "Several others nearly made the collection," Syers adds. "An old house at Stanton, the Queen Sabe Ranch on the Pecos, and a supposed haunting near Paint Rock. I couldn't develop solid stories on these, and the inexplicable cattle mutilations have had to wait until my own research is more complete."

The author, a widely-read feature columnist for many years, credits the Texas press for most of his leads. His own research required some 15,000 miles of travel and more than 200 interviews, all resulting in the first statewide compilation of supernatural tales. Television's "That's Incredible" already has filmed one story for fall viewing and plans another, Syers says.

He denies that this book departs from his usual field of Texas heritage. "Folklore runs deep in our many cultures, and the supernatural is a big part of it," he contends. "A statewide book needed writing."

Syers hedges on our ghostliest story. "They're too different," he says. "The Chinati Lights, below Marfa, are probably best known. Then there's Lake Espanosa — literally Lake of Terror — near Carrizo Springs. And you'd get argument from Stephenville's sinister McDow Hole. Then what's happening today — here in Big Spring for example — is mighty hard to shrug off."

The ghost hunter admits that his search may not be over. "If more people were willing to reveal their own experiences, we might be astonished. What stops them is the fear of ridicule."

Coal industry, miners reach agreement

CHURCH GAVEL — United Mine Workers President Sam Church lifts a large gavel today in Washington at the start of a session of the union's bargaining council to approve a tentative agreement reached early this morning between the union and the coal industry to settle the coal strike.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of striking miners and the soft coal industry announced tentative agreement on a new contract early today. If approved by the rank and file, the pact will end a walkout that lasted more than two months.

The announcement was made at 12:55 a.m. EST by United Mine Workers President Sam Church. "We have a contract," he said, ending a day of marathon meetings that had begun at 9:30 a.m. Thursday.

Bobby R. Brown, chief negotiator for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, emerged from the negotiating room in a downtown hotel moments later and said: "We have addressed most of the issues that were outstanding and we believe it's a good contract for the union."

Neither side would discuss changes made in the tentative pact since an earlier proposal was turned down overwhelmingly by UMW members more than two months ago.

Was the new contract a better one, Church was asked. "It's better," he replied.

Asked whether the union had won agreement on the crucial point that the industry pay a royalty on non-union coal it purchases, Church said, "That's no problem."

The UMW president said he would present the new proposal today — on the 64th day of the strike — to the 39-member union bargaining council that must approve the pact before it can be sent to minefield locals for approval of the members.

The council approved the earlier contract by a 21-14 margin only to see it rejected by rank-and-file miners by a margin of better than 2-to-1.

Ratification of the new three-year accord by some 160,000 miners in Appalachian and mid-western coalfields would take about 10 days under rules laid out in the union's constitution.

Today's announcement came two days after the negotiators reached agreement on the major sticking point — the question of unionized coal companies subcontracting work to outside, nonunion personnel.

As talks ended Wednesday, an effusive Church told reporters: "We made a lot of progress. We've still got some unresolved problems but I'm optimistic. I feel much better than I have in quite some time."

Brown, reserved by nature and reticent with reporters throughout the talks, said only: "We're making progress. I'm not pessimistic."

Apparently what tied up the talks for a series of three meetings that lasted almost 10 hours Thursday were questions of money.

The miners' wages were not at issue — union and management had agreed earlier on a $3.30 hourly raise that would give top-scale miners $14 an hour. But there were disagreements over several points that could cost the coal companies millions of dollars.

Sources who asked not to be identified by name indicated that the last obstacle was whether a new $100-a-month pension already agreed to for widows of miners who retired prior to 1978 should be reduced in view of the industry's agreement to restore the royalty clause.

It was not certain how that issue was resolved, but the sources said the tentative agreement included these provisions:

—The industry agreed to limitations on work by non-union subcontractors at mine sites in exchange for an end to the union demand that the contract work standard apply to some 14,000 unionized mine construction workers employed by outside contractors.

—The BCOA agreed to union demands that a 45-day probationary period for new miners be dropped.

—In return, the industry reportedly won an end to union demands for nullification of all precedent-setting decisions by the Arbitration Review Board, a joint labor-management panel the two sides had agreed to abolish in the tentative contract settlement reached March 23 and rejected a few days later. The industry sought to retain the board's decisions for use as precedents in grievance cases.

—The industry agreed to restore a provision requiring coal companies to pay a royalty into union health and retirement funds for each ton of non-union coal purchased for resale.

This apparently was a concession the BCOA knew it had to make in the wake of the rejection of the earlier accord, and the issue was considered "non-negotiable" by the union. The BCOA bargaining team evidently made no attempt to fight restoration of the provision.

The strike began March 27, when the previous three-year contract expired. It has been marked by many violent incidents, most involving clashes between striking miners and those working for non-union companies still producing coal.

The economic impact, virtually negligible in the first weeks of the walkout, has been more widely felt recently as layoffs in industries allied with mining have risen. The price of coal rose rapidly on the spot market with the dwindling of large stockpiles once held by electric utilities.

The BCOA, which represents 130 coal companies, had faced a threat by Church to break off the talks if management failed to improve its contract offer.

On Tuesday, Church and his three-member union negotiating team turned down a contract package from the industry committee, even though the union president indicated to reporters that the work standard provision was no longer an obstacle.

Parents of child killed by bulldog file suit

LEVELAND — The parents of a two-year-old child who was killed by a pit bulldog in Leveland April 29 have sued the owner of the dog and the city, which owns the property where the attack took place. The amount sought in the suit is over $1 million.

Victims of the attack was Kelly Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brown, of Sunday Lake, who was mauled after straying from his parents' front yard. The dog was chained nearby.

The Browns are asking for $1.1 million in exemplary damages and $105,000 for the loss of the child and funeral expenses.

Defendants in the case are Charles Cotten, owner of the dog, and D.C. Well Service Inc. Representing the plaintiffs in the case is attorney G. Bert Smith Jr.

Fort Worth civic leaders plan award-a-cop program

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — City policemen may soon get more than a pat on the back and a job well done from civic leaders who want to contribute to the reduction of crime in Cowtown.

A blue ribbon group of 40 community leaders have donated $200,000 to state a private endowment program aimed at helping the boys in blue combat Fort Worth's soaring crime rate.

The Fort Worth Police Officers' Award Foundation is designed with the earmarks of an incentive program to recognize and reward excellence by law enforcement officers, said attorney Thomas Law, trustee and secretary of the foundation.

"Our ultimate goal is to contribute the reduction of crime in our community," said Law.

The civic leaders announced the formation of the foundation during a luncheon Thursday.

Law said the program is "unique and unprecedented" and is intended to promote "a more professionally effective police department."

He stressed the need for widespread public support.

"We must have the commitment of the total community if we are to combat crime effectively," said businessman J. Edd Lott, foundation chairman.

Lott said the founders, concerned with the soaring crime rate, "have been aware of the need for an all-encompassing program to support the Fort Worth Police Department."

According to police statistics, crime in this city of almost 400,000 skyrocketed 72 percent during the 1970s and included a 14 percent jump from 1979 to 1980 alone.

"Unless we as a community can continue to focus more attention on this problem, crime figures show that one out of every seven Fort Worth residents could be a victim of crime this year," said Fort Worth Police Chief H.F. Hopkins.

And now, TOMORROW

The cap... the diploma... symbols of achievement. They mark the end of one way of life and imply the beginning of another. But ten years from now, where will this diploma be and what will it mean? Will it be packed away in an attic trunk... framed on the wall of a room or office? Will it have been thrown out by accident or cast into a seldom-noticed corner? And what of the hopes and dreams that go with it? What will have happened to them?

Who knows? There is no set answer to life, no single solution to all its problems. Nor can anyone live life alone. Whether your diploma is still crisp or has gotten dusty... whether your dreams are still bright or have become slightly tarnished... forget about personal ambition as the sole answer to everything. Think of your own immortal soul. Talk to God about it, through prayer and regular weekly worship.

Vacation Bible School next week

"God's Astronauts" is the theme of the Daily Vacation Bible School at Trinity Baptist Church beginning at 8:30 a.m. Monday and continuing through Friday. Exciting lessons will be taught about Enoch, Elijah, the Ascension of Jesus, the Rapture of Saints and the Reentry, when the Lord comes again.

Awards will be presented to boys and girls in each department, ages three (toddlers) through teens. The attendance plaque will be presented to the winning department, figured on percentage and enrollment.

The children will assemble in front of the auditorium at 8:30 Monday morning, march in, then go to individual classes to register. Tuesday through Friday students will go directly to the departments at 9 a.m. to register and will be in class until 11:30 a.m.

Buses will pick up those who need rides and refreshments will be served each day. Call 267-6344, 267-6055 or 263-3715 for bus service. Everyone from age three through teens is invited.

CONFIRMATION CEREMONY — The Rev. Carroll Kohl, St. Paul's Lutheran Church, will confirm the five young people above Sunday morning at 10:45. Left to right are Dana Kohl, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Carroll Kohl; Christi Bartlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bartlett; Kathie Berg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bonnie Palmer and Scott Jensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Jensen.

IHM schedules School of Religion

The Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church announces a Summer School of Religion for Nursery (ages 3-4) — 6th grade beginning June 8 and ending June 19. Hours for the classes are 9 to 11:30 a.m. daily, Monday through Friday. The registration fee is $3 per child and not more than $10 per family. There will be evening classes for high school students and adults on Tuesday and Thursday.

The theme for the school is "God's People - Together in Christ." Bus service will be provided. All faiths welcome. For more information and registration call the Church office at 267-3882.

Willing Workers meet and have salad supper

The Willing Workers Sunday school class of Baptist Temple Church met in the home of Mrs. Maedell Bennett, May 21, for the monthly business meeting, salad supper and fellowship.

Mrs. Marjorie Grissam, class outreach leader, called the meeting to order. Mrs. Eunice Page, Department Director, a visitor, voiced the opening prayer. Mrs. Bennett presented the devotional thought following the meal, entitled, "Good Old Days", based on the book of Job, chapter 29: 1-6.

Mrs. Mary Lee gave the closing prayer. Nine were present including one other visitor, Mrs. Velma Graham.

Would Jesus support ERA?

ELKINS, W.Va. (AP) — If Jesus were around today he'd support equal rights for women with the same fervor that he taught love, says Theologian William E. Phipps.

"I think the norm for human sexuality and Jesus' belief about it are well documented in the opening chapter of Genesis — men and women are created equal and both sexes should have dominion over the earth," says Phipps, head of religion and philosophy at Davis and Elkins College.

"I think a scholarly look at the basic Judeo-Christian background would find equal sex roles with a strong emphasis on the bonding purpose of human sexuality," Phipps says.

The 50-year-old educator contends that Christianity was transformed by a myriad of male interpretations.

"This notion of lifelong virginity came from pagan sources — the Romans and a number of Mediterranean religions. As Christianity moved westward it took on some of the mores of the dominant religions of that time and many had an extremely subordinating attitude toward women."

Phipps has written books and numerous articles on the subject.

He says his first book, "Was Jesus Married?", seriously raising that question about the long stretch of unrecorded years in Jesus's life, was denounced by the Vatican as "highly unacceptable."

views of sexuality as seen by Jesus, philosopher John Donne, St. Paul, Presbyterian church founder John Knox, St. Augustine and St. Jerome.

Phipps says his theories stem from a 1967 visit to Israel when he "noticed how offensive the notion of celibacy" was to the Hebrews.

Since no written documents reveal the events of Jesus' life between the ages of 12 and 30, Phipps says he has made some deductive leaps.

"Many Christians maintain that marriage is defiling in itself," he explains. "But I know that did not come out of the Hebrew part of the Bible, and I presume Jesus and Paul followed their beliefs."

"Lifelong virginity was to be lamented, not enshrined." There is no place in the New Testament, he says, "that you find Jesus using any typical macho dealing. There's no place where he treats women without dignity and respect and certainly not in a subordinate position."

"It's one giant step for the ERA."

A Presbyterian, Phipps says he is "embarrassed" by church founder John Knox and his attitudes toward women.

Hands are important in infant's growth

Have you watched a baby absorbed in exploring his own hands? He's learning to separate himself from the world around him.

"Growing Child," the monthly child development newsletter, reports that at first, a baby will spend long periods of time simply looking at his outstretched hand. Why? It's the "eight-inch connection."

A month-old baby is very near-sighted. Like a camera which is focused only for close-ups, the baby's eyes see clearly only those things about eight inches from his nose. Faces, when they get into the eight-inch range, fascinate him. So do mobiles and bright shiny, colorful things.

Officers installed at banquet

"We appreciate you," Superintendent of Schools Lynn Hise told PTA members attending Tuesday's installation banquet of the Big Spring Council of the Parent Teacher Association at La Posada.

Certificates of Honor were presented by Hise on behalf of the local school district to outgoing officers of Big Spring's PTA Council and the five PTA units at College Heights, Kentwood, Marcy, Moss and Washington elementaries.

"Ole PTA" pins were presented by Council president Leslie Earnest to 1980-81 council officers and "PTA Participate" pins were presented to outgoing unit presidents. Mrs. Earnest received a president's pin from the PTA Council.

New officers of Big Spring's PTA Council were installed by District 17 PTA president, Glenn Kim of Earnest, president; Leslie Earnest, president; Kim Wooten, first vice-president; Shelane Roberts, second vice-president; Nelda Reagan, recording secretary; Marcia Rogers, corresponding secretary; Mattie Watson, treasurer; and Cleo Carlisle, parliamentarian.

Amy Grant receives honors in gymnastic competition

Amy Grant, 9, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Thomas A. Grant, placed second in All Around gymnastic honors in the U.S.G.F. Alaska State Class III Compulsories and Optional Meet May 16 and 17 in Anchorage, Ala.

Amy is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Grant, Coshoma and Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Stegald, 905 E. 16th. She worked out with Connie Helms at the Big Spring Academy of Gymnastics while visiting her grandparents last summer.

In addition, Amy took 2nd place on bars and vault in the compulsories, and 2nd place on bars and beam in the optionals competition. Twenty-five competitors throughout the State qualified in the 9-11 age group to compete in the State Meet.

Maj. and Mrs. Grant were transferred to Ft. Richar-son in Anchorage from Little Rock, Ark. in July 1980.

But there's one thing that is always eight inches away from a baby. It's always available. It's under the baby's control. That eight-inch connection is the baby's own outstretched hand!

The baby's hand provides a stable and dependable object to look at. It is exactly the distance away that he can see. By studying it, he learns to focus first one eye and then both eyes on a point or object. Later he learns eye movement, two-eyed vision, and depth perception.

At first, a baby will spend considerable time just looking at the outstretched hand. He will also grasp small objects that you give him.

At about four months old, he will succeed in bringing his two hands together. Then he will begin exploring the fingers of one hand with those of the other.

The joining of hands is an important milestone in an infant's development. As he grasps one hand with the other, he feels the squeezing. This sensation tells him that what he has seen and grasped is part of him.

Discovering himself as something distinct from other objects around him is very interesting and exciting to a baby, and he will spend hours exploring his two hands and finding out what they can do.

This begins the process of finding out what is self and what is not self. The baby will pay careful attention to everything he touches to see if feelings come from the touched object as well as the hand that does the touching. It is in this way that he begins to distinguish fully where his own body stops and the outside world begins.

At this point, give the baby objects to hold. Vary sizes, shapes, textures, weights. Household objects are the best: the variety is endless.

More information on this subject and about the physical and social development of children up to six years old can be obtained by writing to "Growing Child," 22 North Second Street, P.O. Box 620, N. Lafayette, Ind. 47902. When writing, include child's birthdate.

AMY GRANT

Dear Abby

Wife's Open Mouth Meets Husband's Closed Ears

DEAR ABBY: What's my problem? My husband doesn't want me to talk to him. Gerhard asks me not to talk to him during mealtime because he's "busy" eating. He doesn't want me to talk to him while he's driving because he's "busy" driving. And God forbid I should try to talk to him while he's reading or watching TV!

Abby, this is very hard on me because I come from a large, talkative Jewish family and I love to talk. Gerhard is half-Norwegian and half-German. (Cold and bossy.)

He calls me from work every day to find out what was in the mail. Then I get to talk.

Please put this in your column. Gerhard never misses "Dear Abby," and it's the only way to tell him what I think.

ESTHER IN FLATBUSH

DEAR ESTHER: If this is the only way of telling Gerhard what you think, face it, Esther, your marriage is finished in English, "kaput" in German, "ferdig" in Norwegian, and "in drerd" in Yiddish.

DEAR ABBY: National Secretaries Week appears to be going the route of the office Christmas party and the company picnic for boorish managerial behavior.

A few weeks ago, our audit managers took their two secretaries out for a lunch which lasted four hours, and consisted mostly of drinking, a pastime the managers were obviously more accustomed to than were the two young ladies. Consequently, on their return to the office, the secretaries were bouncing off the walls and vomiting on everything from a typewriter to the car upholstery en route home.

Ours is a Fortune 500 company and there is not much one can do with entrenched management. However, by printing this you may elicit some words of wisdom from your readers as to how young secretaries can best cope with such situations.

DISMAYED MALE IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR MALE: Young secretaries can begin by knowing their capacities, and not exceeding them.

DEAR ABBY: May I clear up the answer you gave to A NICE GIRL? She said she had Herpes Simplex and had not slept around, and neither did her husband.

I am also a victim of Herpes Simplex 2, and I contacted it without having had sex with anybody but my husband. And my husband has never had sex with anybody but me!

Doctors call Herpes Simplex 2 a venereal disease because it can be spread by sexual intercourse, but apparently that is not the only way a person can get it.

I have been plagued by it for two years, and I still resent my own doctor insinuating that I must have caught it from another man because I got it before my husband.

I may not know much about Herpes, but I do know what I have and have not done, so how about printing this letter — for me and a lot of other "nice" people out there who are innocent but have Herpes 2?

INNOCENT VICTIM

DEAR INNOCENT: I believe you, and here's your letter. For more information on this subject, please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: HELP, P.O. Box 100, Palo Alto, Calif. 94302.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MOTHER OF TWO IN BALTIMORE: One does not get VD from picking up heavy objects in a shipyard. Your husband must have picked up something else.

Program on succulents given to Garden Club

Terry Johansen gave the history and care of succulent plants to the Rosebud Garden Club at a Luncheon Wednesday at Big Spring Country Club. Mrs. Johansen is a new member of the club. Edna Womack and Leola Edwards were the hostesses.

Mrs. Johansen said, "Succulent plants are rewarding, easy to care for, have beautiful foliage, flowers and adaptability. They thrive in potting soil plus sand for good drainage. 'Soggy soil' is lethal, so don't over-water," she warned.

Mrs. Womack, incoming president, presided over the business meeting, presenting geranium plants to members who had helped and taken part in the Centennial flower show.

Families are poor savers, says survey

Most families do not save money regularly. They are more likely to save it only "occasionally" or "infrequently," says the American Council of Life Insurance.

In a nationwide survey conducted by the Council, four in 10 of the respondents said they or their families save money "regularly."

However, three in 10 said they saved it "occasionally," and another three in 10 said "infrequently" or "never."

Not surprisingly, the more money a family is making, says the Council, the more likely it is to be saving.

Cloudcroft campout is planned

Twelve rigs pulled into Water Valley for the May 15 through 17 campout of the Good Sams Club. Recent rains had made the trees more beautiful, green, and with leaves thicker than seen in years past. The river was running swiftly and several members enjoyed fishing.

For example, about two in three families with an income of over $30,000 said they saved regularly, compared with only one in five of those earning $7,500 or less.

When asked why they are saving, three in 10 mentioned retirement or old age. Other reasons included: for a rainy day, emergencies, education, security, and one in 10 said for vacations.

Several members, or their families were ill and summer vacations and campouts were already taking their toll of numbers present.

The study also found that age was a factor in saving with nearly half of those aged 45 to 64 saving for retirement.

One of the largest "saving" group was the unemployed, who said they save for emergencies.

Program on succulents given to Garden Club

Harold Dietrich led the group singing during the devotional Sunday morning.

The pot luck supper and business meeting was held in the Flame Room May 24. It was announced that part of the club was going to Cloudcroft for a campout. Another campout to Cloudcroft is planned for August.

The June campout will be held 26 through 28 because of Father's Day falling on the regular weekend. This event will be held at Colorado City with the membership serving as hosts. The June potluck supper will be held June 23 at the Flame Room.

Lawmakers plan weekend spending bill action

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — With only four days left in the 1981 Legislature, lawmakers still have to deal with the mammoth state spending bill, now expected to appear this weekend.

House and Senate negotiators resolved their differences Thursday, agreeing on a $25.8 billion compromise bill to pay for running state government during the two years beginning Sept. 1.

Optimistic conferees had said when negotiations opened May 17 that lawmakers would have the bill in their hands by May 27, but late Thursday the measure was still being prepared for publication.

The crush of work in both houses as the June 1 adjournment nears, and extended committee debate over funding the state prison and welfare systems, delayed action. Meetings were often interrupted, postponed or abbreviated while conferees conducted other legislative business.

But committee co-chairman Rep. Bill Prensall, D-Bryan, said he still hoped debate could begin Saturday.

The original Senate version of the bill was $191 million more than Comptroller Bob Bullock said was available in state revenues. The House bill left $12 million on the table, Prensall said.

The final spending bill must be within the amount Bullock says is in state coffers or it cannot become law.

Bullock said Thursday he probably would not issue a new estimate of available revenues, but would "just wait and see what happens."

He said that he would decide if enough money is available when he sees the final bill.

The most difficult compromises — money for the state welfare and prison systems — were worked out in midnight agreements Tuesday.

Thursday's meeting spent $8.5 million more for state bilingual education programs, gave the attorney general $5 million to pay judgments against the state, and set aside $1.35 million for centers for battered wives.

The Texas Department of Corrections budget brought out some of the least temperate rhetoric in committee negotiations. Representatives took a hardline attitude toward appropriating money to meet expenses related to the federal civil rights suit on conditions in state prisons. They said they hoped the judgment that Texas prisons violate inmates' civil rights would be overturned on appeal. Prensall called U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice, who is presiding over the case, a "dictator."

Senators said they wanted to respond positively to the court order. They proposed spending $88.9 million more than the House for construction to relieve overcrowding, and created a $6.4 million contingency fund for "flexibility" and $7.5 million contingency item for security.

The committee combined the two contingency funds into one item and allocated $10 million to it.

Negotiators slashed the Senate's $191.3 million biennial prison construction budget by $45 million. Prensall said the Senate appropriation was more than could be spent in two years because sites for new prisons had not been selected yet. The new figure is $25 million more than the House wanted to spend.

Prison construction could also be funded from $28 million earmarked for site acquisition, architectural development, purchase or construction of new facilities. The House had originally proposed to spend nothing on acquisition.

Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said the figure was $3 million above the minimum that Department of Corrections officials said they could live with.

Welfare spending, another sticking point, was also settled at the witching hour Tuesday. The compromise proposal includes two-year totals of $34.6 million for family planning services, $253 million for community-based alternative care facilities, and $80.3 million for day care centers.

Emergency family services got $5 million. A special provision set aside $100,000 annually to be used to match federal money that might be available to centers for battered women. Such grants, if forthcoming, would be added to the money agreed upon Thursday.

Airline workers challenge leadership

Texas International president tongue-lashed

HOUSTON (AP) — They lined up by the dozens for a chance to give the president of their company a piece of their minds. They booed and hooted as he spoke, they accused him of breaking his word and spreading "out and out lies" — and challenged his ability to run a major airline. But Frank A. Lorenzo resisted any temptation he may have felt to fire the lot of disgruntled Texas International Airlines pilots and stewardesses. Instead, the president of Texas Air Corp., TIA's holding company, stood calmly and allowed the dissenters to speak their peace at TAC's annual shareholders meeting Thursday.

For Lorenzo, the victory came when the votes were counted. One resolution proposed by the unhappy employees drew about 35,000 votes but did not come close to passing — ballots against it totaled more than 5 million.

Lorenzo, who wants the pilots to fly more hours per month, said the $100,000 he mentioned referred to the cost to the company of pay and benefits for senior captains, and he insisted it was correct.

TIA also announced at the meeting that it has asked a U.S. district court in Los Angeles to halt a move by Continental employees to buy stock and take over their own company.

War on Drugs proposals given preliminary OK

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Texas War on Drugs bill, designed to catch doctors who put "hard drugs" into the illicit drug traffic, gained preliminary approval in the House late Thursday night.

The measure advanced, 89-46, with a final vote expected today. A number of minor amendments would send it back to the Senate for further action.

Doctors would have to write their prescriptions for such drugs as dilaudid, demerol, methaqualones, amphetamines, narcotics and barbiturates on special pre-printed, serially numbered pads provided by the Department of Public Safety. Information on the form would include the name, age and address of the patient.

The physician, the druggist and the DPS each would get a copy of the prescription, which the DPS would record in a computer for correlations that might point to doctors who make a business of prescribing drugs with high street values.

Rep. Walter Grubbs, D-Abilene, the sponsor, told the House the measure would be "a deterrent to illegal prescriptions and illegal drugs."

He said drugs covered by the bill amount to only 7 percent of all prescriptions.

Grubbs added that "prescription forgery is easy and widespread."

Debate on the measure centered on privacy issues, and Grubbs said the DPS would be prohibited from making information in its computers available to the public. He said data on a prescription would be purged from the computer after 180 days.

Rep. Matt Garcia, D-San Antonio, attempted to eliminate the requirement that the prescription forms show the name and address of the patient.

"I am afraid we are sacrificing the right of privacy in the name of law enforcement," he said.

Rep. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, answered that without data on patients, law enforcement officers could not identify persons who go from doctor to doctor, persuading them to prescribe drugs that could be abused.

"The bill covers only seriously addictive narcotic drugs," McFarland said. Garcia's amendment was tabled, 86-50.

The results were generally the same on every issue pitting Lorenzo and shareholders sympathetic to him against the rowdy group of about 200 pilots and stewardesses among about 1,000 persons attending the meeting.

The dissenters, mostly union-covered workers angry about TIA's unsuccessful efforts to take over Continental Airlines and other "fiscal manipulations," nominated to TIA's board of directors five pilots suspended earlier this month after they wore lapel buttons critical of the company. Lorenzo's slate of officers soundly defeated them, but it did not quell their anger.

"I'm concerned about the out-and-out lies that our employees are being told, an example being your statement that TI pilots are being paid $100,000," said Mike Wood, one of the suspended pilots. Wood said the actual salary is about half that.

Rejection of armadillo stirs new mascot debate

MCQUEENEY, Texas (AP) — The Texas Senate's rejection of the armadillo as the state animal has prompted new debate on which creature best represents the Texan image.

Actor Guich Kooch of Fredericksburg is still pushing for the mythical unicorn, a creature of San Antonio legend. Kooch is promoting the unicorn as the state animal in a television series called "Carter Country" which will feature Kooch as the mythical creature. Kooch is also promoting the unicorn in a series of commercials for the "Buffalo Phil" brand of underwear.

And now McQueeney's "Buffalo Phil" Koehne contends the buffalo is superior to either of the aforementioned beasts.

Lewis was livid Thursday that the State Sen. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, helped kill a measure that would have named the armadillo the state mascot. Vale was quoted as saying the armadillo is a "God awful animal."

Meanwhile, Kooch used the occasion to plead that the unicorn be reconsidered, and Koehne joined in the continuing humorous encounter by recommending the buffalo as an alternative.

"The unicorn is beautiful to behold, one of a kind. The unicorn represents the true Texas spirit," said Kooch, a star of the former "Carter Country" television series who will join with Gabe Kaplan for a network series entitled "Gabe and Guich" this fall.

Kooch is referring to a rare angora goat, born with a single spiraled horn in its forehead, that he intends to bring from California and present as "the unicorn" at his Fifth Sometimes Annual Luckenbach World's Fair scheduled for June 26-27 and July 4-5.

But Koehne got into the running spoof by releasing a letter he wrote to Sen. Glenn Kothman, D-San Antonio, backing the buffalo as the preferred state animal.

"First, the buffalo is a Texan and American. The armadillo is a newcomer. Guich Kooch, who loves unicorns, says they were first smuggled into Texas under cover of darkness by the unlamented first Republican Governor of Texas, Edmund J. Davis in 1871. This is the only thing Guich says that I believe," Koehne said.

"There is only one choice and that is the American Bison, better known as the buffalo," Koehne wrote.

Kooch earlier referred to the armadillo as "lowly, mudslinging and cowardly." Lewis promised political reprisal for the killing of the measure to make the armadillo the state animal.

"This is base calumny and will not go unnoticed," Lewis said in angrily denouncing Vale.

Wood suspect planned murder in prison

Plot to have witness killed revealed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A key suspect in the slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. also allegedly tried to have a witness in his trial killed while serving time in Leavenworth Prison, a newspaper reports.

The San Antonio Express quoted sources as saying Jimmy Chagra allegedly attempted to arrange the death of ex-convict Henry Wallace, the government's star witness in Chagra's narcotics smuggling trial in Austin in August 1979.

Testimony of Wallace, a federally protected witness, aided Chagra's conviction and subsequent 30-year, no parole prison sentence for continuing criminal enterprise.

The man Chagra asked to arrange the killing was Jerry Ray James, a fellow inmate of Chagra's at the Leavenworth, Kan., federal penitentiary, according to James' attorney, Don Montoya.

"Chagra asked Jerry to arrange the killing," Montoya said.

Montoya, of Santa Fe, N.M., confirmed the alleged murder plot, but would not name the purported target. However, the Express said it learned from other sources that the intended victim was Wallace.

James has emerged as a key government witness in the investigation into the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., who had been scheduled to preside at Chagra's trial at the time the judge was gunned down in San Antonio on May 29, 1979.

Last month, New Mexico governor Bruce King granted James, a former member of the FBI's 10 most wanted fugitives list, a conditional release from prison for his cooperation in the Wood case. Federal agents taped conversations between James and Chagra at Leavenworth from August 1980 until February 1981.

"The attempt on Wallace's life was never carried out because James was working as an informant for the FBI and allowed his prison conversations with Chagra to be tape recorded," the Express reported.

James has been removed from Leavenworth and now is in the federal witness program. Chagra was moved to the maximum security prison at Marion, Ill.

It was during the prison conversations between Chagra and James that Chagra not only allegedly asked James to arrange Wallace's death, but also allegedly told James that he contracted with convicted hit man Charles V. Harrelson to have Wood slain, Montoya said.

Oscar Goodman, a Las Vegas attorney representing Chagra, said he had not heard the tapes of the conversations between James and Chagra and added, "I question those types of discussions, whether they are figments of a person's imagination, puffing or the like. I don't put too much credence in those conversations."

Goodman said that Chagra had a reputation for boasting and was only telling James what he wanted to hear.

"When he (Chagra) was out here (Las Vegas) he was telling everyone he was the world's greatest gambler, when in fact every representation to me was that he was a loser all the time," Goodman said. "An individual will sometimes say things to make himself appear to be a big dealer or big shot."

Wallace, who was convicted in Colorado for possession of cocaine, testified during Chagra's trial that Chagra headed an international drug smuggling operation in 1977 and 1978.

Testifying under a grant of immunity, Wallace described five of Chagra's drug smuggling ventures, including one successful scheme to import 13.2 pounds of cocaine into Florida from Colombia, and attempts to bring four ships loaded with 93 tons of marijuana into the country from Colombia. Three of the four ships were seized by the Coast Guard.

Montoya said that Chagra first approached James about killing Wallace in the summer of 1980 and offered James a large sum of money to have it done.

BORG WINS SECOND MATCH — Sweden's Bjorn Borg connects with the ball Thursday during his match against Cassio Motta of Brazil at the Roland-Garros tennis tournament near Paris. Borg defeated Motta 6-1, 7-5, 6-0 and advanced into the third round.

At least until court ruling Baseball strike stopped, for now

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball player union leaders have supported Executive Director Marvin Miller's participation in an agreement to put off their threatened strike, but they are taking a wait-and-see approach to a federal court case on which the postponement was based.

The executive board of the Major League Players Association voted Thursday night to hold off their strike plans while U.S. District Judge Henry Werker considers a National Labor Relations Board request for an injunction.

The strike, over the issue of free agent compensation, was to have started after Thursday night's games. But Miller and Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the 26 club owners, agreed hours before the deadline to allow the game to go on pending next week's court hearing.

"There will be no strike until we see what the court does," said Doug DeCinces of the Baltimore Orioles, the American League player representative. "Once they rule, we'll see if the outcome is positive or negative for the association."

"If it's positive, it looks like we won't have a strike. If it's negative, we could go out. And if there's no movement, there will be a strike."

If the NLRB gets the injunction it is seeking, the players will get another year of free agency as it currently stands, with the only compensation an amateur draft choice.

"There's nothing concrete gained," said Belanger, "but we maintain the status quo — and that's what we're asking."

The Philadelphia Phillies' Bob Boone, the National League player rep, said there was hope of avoiding a strike but refused to predict if the entire season could be saved.

"There are too many variables involved," Boone said. "I would hope this issue can be bargained out and negotiated fairly. But there's hope now that we can keep baseball in front of the country."

Player reps from 16 teams, plus Miller and union general counsel Don Fehr, attended Thursday night's meeting.

Slugging Kiner recalls date with Liz Taylor

By the Associated Press

When Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh's former home run king who is baseball's official traveling salesman for the midsummer All-Star game, conducts a press conference, somebody inevitably brings up the subject of his embarrassing date with beautiful Liz Taylor.

Sure, they ask about all those balls he hit out of the park, his own personal role in the All-Star game and stuff about the alleged superiority of the National League, but there's always some guy in the audience who asks about:

"That's fine, Ralph, but tell us about you and Liz in the Hollywood parking lot."

"Aw, you don't want to hear that story again," Ralph says, blushing. "Everybody's heard it. Now about that 1950 game..."

"Come on, Ralph, let's hear about Liz."

"Okay," Kiner accedes. "The year was 1949, I think. I was getting some attention over my home run production (51 in 1947, 54 in 1949) and Liz was a budding star in the movies. So some mutual friend fixes me up with a date to take Liz to the movie premiere of 'Twelve O'Clock High.'"

Kiner had to pause to relish thoughts of the occasion. "I drove over to pick her up at her home in the hills. She was still getting ready. I talked to her father, a nice guy, and her mother, a domineering woman. Then Liz entered the room. She was breath-taking."

"We drove to the Grumman Theater — you know the place where the footprints and handprints of the stars are in concrete. Searchlights blinded you. Thousands of people lined the sidewalks just to get a glimpse of the celebrities."

"I got to meet Cary Grant and other movie stars. After the movie, everybody came out to get their cars. I gave the doorman my name. Limousines kept coming up and leaving. Liz and I just stood there figeting. I gave my name again. No car. Finally, I became impatient and yelled, 'Where in the hell is my car?'"

"I'm sorry, sir," the doorman said. "What is your chauffeur's name?"

"I don't have a chauffeur," I snapped. "I'm driving."

"Oh, in that case," the uniformed doorman replied haughtily. "Your car must be in the lot down the street." So we trudged a couple of blocks. We drove to one of those fancy restaurants but I couldn't enjoy the food or the company. It was humiliating."

"Right after that Liz married Nicky Hilton, the hotel tycoon."

For Kiner, it proved home run hitters don't always hit home runs.

But he hit his share.

Rich owner Gene Autry names Gene Mauch new manager Fregosi fired by Angels

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — "If it's not you, it will be someone else," California Angels' owner Gene Autry says he told Gene Mauch, when Mauch didn't want to take over for about-to-be fired Jim Fregosi as manager of the Angels.

"Then it's me," Autry said Mauch reluctantly told him after the former manager at Philadelphia, Montreal and Minnesota had turned down the job the night before, and repeatedly told the baseball team's owner in recent weeks he did not want to take the reins in midseason. But the Angels said that three teams have been asking the Angels to talk to Mauch about managing, and Autry did not want to lose him.

On Thursday former Angel shortstop Fregosi was formally fired from the team he had directed to its only American League West Division pennant in 1979.

Former movie cowboy and singer Autry offered the job to Mauch Tuesday night, and was turned down, but when he made the offer again Wednesday night Mauch accepted when he was told the Angels were committed to making a managerial change, Autry said.

Mauch, who managed in the major leagues 20½ years, never has won a pennant but finished second with the Philadelphia Phillies in 1964. He left Minnesota in mid-season last year and joined California this year as director of player personnel.

But Mauch has been highly-regarded for the work he did building the Philadelphia and Montreal teams. In Minnesota his teams never had pennant personnel, largely due to a club policy of turning loose high-priced top players, such as seven-time American League batting champion Rod Carew, now with the Angels.

In 1980 the Angels, with a lineup stocked with newly-millionaire free agents, lost most of them to injuries and sagged to a 65-95 record. This year California has started 22-25 to be 7½ games behind AL West leader Oakland.

It was rumored earlier this month that Fregosi, one of the most popular players in the team's history, was on his way out as manager. Autry wondered out loud if Fregosi inspired his players. That was followed by a strong mid-May winning streak, with most of the victories on their last road trip to Milwaukee, Detroit, Cleveland and Baltimore, but the woes of early May resumed when the team came home last week.

When the Angels concluded a home stand Wednesday night with a 3-1 loss to Toronto, California had dropped seven of the nine games at Anaheim Stadium.

After testifying at Raider vs. NFL trial Charger owner has heart attack

LOS ANGELES (AP) — San Diego Chargers owner Eugene Klein suffered an apparent heart seizure as he left a courtroom after four hours of intense testimony in the antitrust trial of the NFL and the Oakland Raiders.

Klein, 60, who had ended his witness stand stint with a passionate defense of the league, walked outside the courtroom, broke into a sweat and complained of chest pains. He was taken to a nearby witness room, where paramedics attended to him. An ambulance then arrived to take him to Queen of Angels Hospital.

"He's been diagnosed as having a heart attack," said

Kenneth Gosting, public affairs coordinator at the hospital. "He's stable."

"I would call it a major heart attack — acute, to be medically correct," Gosting said, but added that Klein was conscious and his son Mike was with him when he was brought into the emergency unit at the hospital.

Undefeated Angels test mark Sunday

The Big Spring Angels semi-pro baseball team, still undefeated after five games, return to action Sunday afternoon when they host the Hobbs Pirates.

Game time for the opener is 1 p.m. at Steer Park.

The Angels will have Frankie Rubio on the mound in the opener today, and the former Big Spring Steer and Midwestern University standout might have a short summer for the local team. The pro baseball draft is upcoming in June, and Rubio has a chance at being drafted and put into some major league team's farm system.

The Angels won last week over the Snyder Red Legs by a count of 9-7, with Ysa Rubio slamming two homers and Boy Olague one.

Rain helps putting

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Australian Jack Newton says he has finally rid himself of a golfer's elbow through pills and an ointment for horses.

Newton and John Cook, winner of the Bing Crosby at Pebble Beach earlier this year, took advantage of a steady rain which softened the greens Thursday to fire 5-under-par 65. They jumped to a 1-stroke lead after the first round of the $400,000 Kemper Open at the Congressional Country Club in suburban Washington.

Behind Newton and Cook was Howard Twitty, winner at Hartford last year, with a 36 over the famed 7,054-yard, par 70 course, site of the 1964 U.S. Open and 1976 PGA Championship.

Despite the pre-tournament complaints, the players found the rain made the greens play easier in the opening round although the accompanying lightning held up play for 30 minutes with all the field, including Cook, still out on the course.

Van Heafner, son of former pro Clayton "Candyman" Heafner, needed only 22 putts to tie with Craig Stadler, second place finisher here a year ago, and Danny Edwards with a 67, two strokes behind the leaders, Tom Weiskopf, Tom Purtzer, D.A. Weibring, Mike Reid and Mark O'Meara had 68.

John Mahaffey, who won the tournament a year ago, the first time it was played here after moving from Charlotte, N.C., was among the 20 who came in with one over par 71. Tom Watson, the player of the year the last four years and No. 2 among the money winners this year, also was at 71.

Newton, who has had a sore elbow since last year's U.S. Open, said he had been flinching when he hit the ball, but that he feels no pain now.

"I couldn't lift a cup of coffee at Christmas time," he said. "It has given me so much trouble. Now, it's fine again — it's about 90 per cent."

Four strokes behind the leaders at 69 were Mike Donald, Doug Tewell, Scott Hoch, Jim Simons, Beau Hahn, Jim Nelford and Dan Pohl. Ray Floyd, a former PGA and Masters champion and No. 3 money-winner this year with consecutive victories at Doral and the Tournament Players Championship, Tom Kite, and Lon Hinkle were among the 13 who came in at even par.

Braves bomb Valenzuela

After a fabulous start, Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers is starting to struggle a bit. Atlanta's Gaylord Perry knows something about struggling.

"It took a few games to get that one," said Perry after recording his 293rd career victory Thursday night with a 9-4 decision over the Dodgers and their news-making rookie pitcher.

The 42-year-old Perry had misfired on three previous starts for victory No. 293 and currently has a 4-3 record.

"The way some guys (pitchers) were getting demoted around here pretty quick, I decided I better do a little bit better, especially in the first inning," said Perry, who had allowed 11 first-inning runs in his last four starts.

As it was, Perry didn't allow a run until the sixth and left after scattering nine hits in eight innings.

Valenzuela, meanwhile,

lasted only 32-3 innings and was shelled in the midst of a seven-run rally in the Braves' fourth. That marked the first time that the hard-throwing left-hander had failed to pitch at least seven innings and reduced his season's record to 8-2 after a brilliant 8-0 start that included five shutouts.

"My control was good but they were getting the hits when they needed them," said Valenzuela. "I was just pitching the same way as always. I know I'm going to win some and lose some."

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati beat San Francisco 7-4 and Pittsburgh walloped Chicago 9-4. In the only American League game, Milwaukee whipped Detroit 7-1 and Texas stopped Minnesota 6-2.

Perry aided his cause with a two-run single in the fourth when the Braves sent 12 batters to the plate and scored seven runs on six hits, two walks and a hit batter.

Perry gave up the sixth on Ken Landreaux's RBI double, then allowed three more runs in the eighth, two on a homer by Steve Garvey, before getting ninth-inning relief from

Red hot or not, Rangers Roberts going to bench

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Texas outfielder Billy Sample has been out of action since April 30, when he fractured his left wrist diving for a fly ball.

Latest medical reports indicate he should be ready for duty early next week, and that has put the tough decision squarely on the shoulders of Texas manager Don Zimmer — what does he do with Leon Roberts?

Roberts, Sample's replacement, has been ripping the ball for a month. He got two hits in three times at bat Thursday night against Minnesota, and his three-run homer highlighted an eighth-inning uprising that gave the Rangers their 6-2 win.

His batting average is up to .307, he has two home

But Zimmer has decreed that when Sample heals, he will return to the lineup and Roberts will return to the bench.

"Sample was hitting .317 when he was hurt, and when he is well, he is going back to left," Zimmer said after the Rangers won their third game from the Twins in four tries. "If he was hitting .240, that would be different. Leon has been doing a super job, and I've told him that. But Sample is my left fielder."

"Inside, I don't feel too good," Roberts admitted. "On the outside, what can I do? I've never been one to kick up a fuss. No amount of hollering or screaming will change anything. I've just got to hope something else will happen to let me play."

Niekro defends elderly

ATLANTA (AP) — Knuckleballer Phil Niekro, who forms a 42-year-old pitching duo for the Atlanta Braves with Gaylord Perry, watched Perry derail rookie sensation Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-4 Thursday night.

"What did you think of the young hurler?" Niekro was asked after the game. He quickly quipped: "I thought Gaylord pitched a heck of a game."

Women's world sprint records in jeopardy

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Nebraska's Merlene Ottey, the sophomore Olympian from Jamaica, believes the women's world 100 meter record of 10.98 could be in danger at the ninth annual AIAW Track and Field Championships if the weather cooperates.

Ottey ran a wind-aided

Sonics get Gus Williams back

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — The Seattle SuperSonics have taken a deep plunge into the free agent pool, reaching agreement with recalcitrant guard Gus Williams on a five-year contract and also coming to terms with veteran free agents Alex English of Denver and Steve Hawes of Atlanta.

Williams, who led the Sonics in scoring for three seasons and helped them win the National Basketball Association championship in 1979, became a free agent a year ago but sat out the entire 1980-81 campaign when he was unable to come to terms with Seattle or any other team.

While the Sonics are assured of having the 27-year-old Williams, a five-year veteran with a career scoring average of 16.1, in uniform next season, the status of English and Hawes is uncertain. Under the right of first refusal system, which replaced compensation for veteran free agents this summer, Denver and Atlanta have the option of keeping their players by matching Seattle's offers within 15 days.

And executives of both clubs say they will seriously consider matching the offers.

English and Hawes are the third and fourth players to sign offer sheets this summer. Otis Birdsong, formerly of Kansas City, and James Edwards, formerly of Indiana, have signed to play with Cleveland, although their old teams still have time to exercise the right of first refusal.

English's agent, Ted Steinberg of Los Angeles, said his client actually received a more lucrative offer from Cleveland.

"His decision to sign with Seattle was a quality of life decision rather than one there," she said.

Ottey also won the 200 meter trials in a breeze with an excellent time of 22.38 seconds. The wind was over the allowable at 3.69 meters. She has an AIAW record time of 22.86 and has the fastest time in the world this year in the event at 22.35.

The world record in the 200 meters is 21.71 by Marita Koch of East Germany.

"I'm more sure of my starts in the 200 meters," she said. "I know I can pick things up at the end if I get off to a poor start."

UCLA is heavily favored to capture the team title and the Bruins did little harm Thursday in their chances.

The Bruins qualified nine individuals and two relay teams. Jackie Joyner's failure to qualify in the long jump was the only disappointment for UCLA Coach Scott Chisam.

Roberts, the next hitter, greeted relief pitcher Don Cooper with a towering shot that landed 30 rows deep in the left field bleachers.

The four-run outburst broke up a tight pitching duel between Erickson and Texas starter Rick Honeycutt, 4-1.

"Our pitching has been super — we just haven't had the offense," moaned Twins manager Danny Gardner. "We just can't get the hits we need."

Leaders praise Golden Lights

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Much of the talk after the opening round of the $125,000 LPGA Golden Lights Championship focused on the course, with many of the players, especially the leaders, praising it as tough but fair.

The tournament is being played at the 6,239-yard Stanwich Club for the first time after having been held at the Wykagyl Country Club in New Rochelle, N.Y., the previous five years.

"It's truly a championship course from tee to green," said Pat Bradley. "It is a

Oilers waive Tatum

HOUSTON (AP) — Defensive back Jack Tatum, who rode the bench for the Houston Oilers most of last year after the Oakland Raiders traded him, has been put on waivers.

The waiving of the three-time Pro Bowl defensive back and the signing of wide receiver Mike Renfro to a multi-year contract was announced Thursday.

Coach Ed Bills said the decision to waive the 11-year veteran was "an effort for the Oilers to bring along a younger speedier backup defensive player and special teamer."

Jack's contribution to the Oakland Raiders' success was a major one and he also had a positive influence on some of our players in a reserve role in his one season with the Oilers."

Tatum came to the Oilers last year in a trade that sent seldom-used running back Kenny King and two Oiler draft choices to Oakland. King became a starter while Tatum played a backup role for the Oilers.

Tatum played in the 1973, 1974 and 1977 Pro Bowls and

BYU leads, but Aggies close in NCAA golf tourney

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Richard Zokol of Brigham Young University made five straight birdies en route to a 5-under par 66 and teammate Rick Fehr had a 69 as the Cougars took the team lead in the 84th NCAA Golf Championships.

BYU, the NCAA runner-up last year, had a 36-hole total of 574 on Thursday. Texas A & M was second at 579 midway through the tournament, and Houston and Oral Roberts were at 580.

Rick Dalpos of Purdue moved into the individual lead by posting his second consecutive 69, a round including seven birdies, three bogies and one double bogey.

Alcohol, drugs, adaptation to normal life the biggest problems

Athletes sometimes can't adjust

EDITOR'S NOTE: Athletes are acknowledging now that they have troubles like anyone else. The difference for them is that they perform in the public eye. The final part of a five-part series on stress details what teams, leagues and the medical profession are doing to help athletes live with the pressures of fame and competition.

are making available programs to prepare athletes for life after sports. The players associations in some sports are providing counseling and going after the leagues to do more.

Larry Fleisher, executive director of the NBA Players Association, said: "We're all learning. We're seriously considering something jointly with the league on a counseling program."

says it is crucial in counseling to play down hero worship. "That's the last thing they need. That's often part of the problem to begin with. Athletes compete in a very intense, high-pressure, exposed market. They're so idolized that they begin to think that none of the rules pertain to them, that they're bigger than life."

Eventually, a big source of anxiety for athletes off the field can be concern about what they will do after their sports careers. Many have left sports with no plans for their futures.

in the NBA is 3.9 years, so you're then talking about 26-year-olds looking for jobs who aren't properly prepared," said Fleisher.

The NFL's Management Council co-sponsored a career-counseling program with the football union in 1978, but pulled out two years later. "It wasn't a lot of money, but there was only 5 percent participation," said Rusty Martin, a spokesman for the Management Council.

"The clubs just felt the money would be better spent at the club level."

In hockey, the Philadelphia Flyers work with EAS and have a model career-guidance program. Since September, the Flyers have sent half their players to the service. "They're the first team to pick up the tab to provide career counseling, even for the guys who've been traded," said Dr. James Johnston of EAS.

Athletes are loved for their bodies, not their minds.

Bandages, medicine and whirlpools mend physical injuries. But emotional problems — the ones associated with job pressure, celebrity and lifestyle — are more difficult to pinpoint and treat. Some teams and leagues are trying.

In the North American Soccer League, fines paid by the players for various infractions go into a career counseling program. The National Football League, major league baseball and the National Basketball Association provide confidential contacts in rehabilitation centers for athletes seeking help for alcohol and drug problems.

Some individual teams are seeking help for their athletes, with the realization that a contented player often is a better performer. Some offer counseling for emotional problems. A few Fleisher said it's possible such programs might become a collective bargaining issue.

The policy of the major leagues is still largely disciplinary where drugs and alcohol are concerned. Quite simply, they tell their employees not to use drugs.

The NFL and NBA have elaborate inventory procedures to make sure that team physicians and trainers don't get carried away in dispensing drugs. DENNIS THE MENACE

...THEN THEY PUT IT IN A BIGGER PIGGY BANK.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"That man said an X-rated word."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Avoid a dispute over past conditions with close ties and you can grasp the chance for a new beginning. You can easily get the backing you need to become more successful.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Ideal day to make plans that can bring greater abundance in the future. Show others that you're a logical person.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use a new system now that can improve the quality of your work. Be alert to new interests that could prove profitable.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A new activity could be just the tonic you need now to gain greater happiness. Show loved one that you are truly devoted.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A day to entertain new acquaintances and make a fine impression on them. Show that you have poise.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Avoid controversial subjects when dealing with others today. Take no chances with your fine reputation. Be careful of finances.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study new ways to add to your income and decide what is best for you. Sidestep one who spends money foolishly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Steer clear of those you've had altercations with in the past and avoid trouble. A good time to engage in favorite hobby.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't waste energy over something which you cannot change. A new philosophy of life can be most rewarding now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make it your business to meet new and interesting persons today, but maintain loyalty to long-time friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Obey every rule and regulation that applies to you and thereby escape possible trouble with the law. Be happy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you take a new view of an old problem, you find that this can prove most advantageous. Be more objective in your thinking.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use good judgment for solving a dispute and forget those hunches which are erroneous now. Be wary of strangers.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be more concerned with the past than the present, so teach to hold on to which is good of the past and adopt that which is good of the present. Don't neglect the right kind of spiritual training.

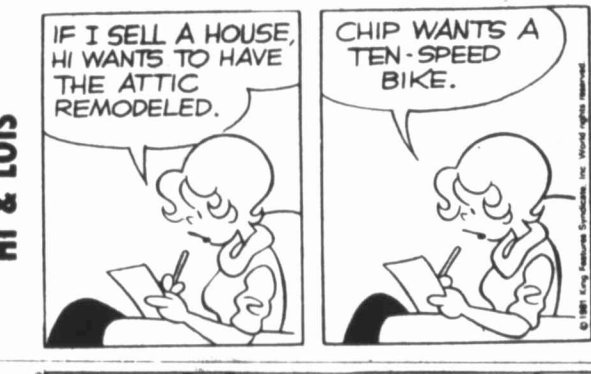

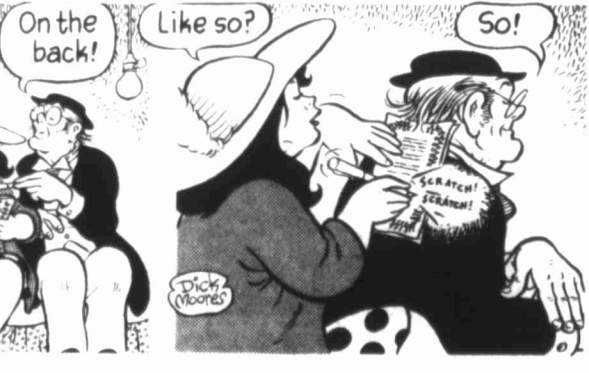

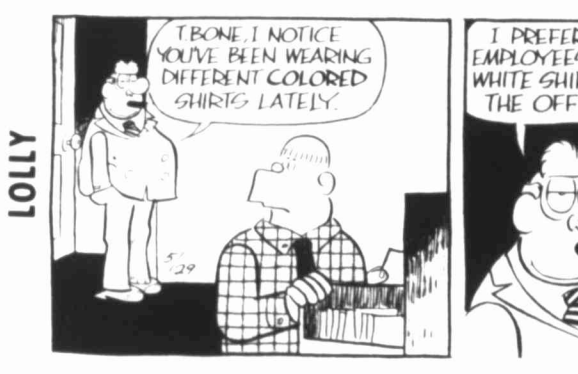

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Clements seeks government aid for flooding victims

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements asked President Reagan Thursday to declare Travis and Williamson counties disaster areas because of the May 24-25 flash floods.

"The damages that occurred during this disaster are of such severity and magnitude that effective recovery is beyond the capabilities of the state and local governments," Clements said in an official request to Washington.

Thirteen homes were destroyed in Austin and another 375 damaged.

House approves wiretap bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements smiled from above when the House vote board lit up green, signifying approval of his wiretap bill.

Opponents of the bill — a major piece of Clements' anti-crime package — took last shots at the measure Thursday, but they failed and the House voted 97-46 to send the bill to the governor's desk.

"This has been a great day for law enforcement and the continuing war on drugs," Clements said after he came down from the House gallery. "Time will demonstrate its success."

The bill, which will get a quick signature from Clements, allows prosecutors to ask judges to allow the Department of Public Safety to tap telephones of suspected drug dealers.

Senators changed Rep. Bennie Bock's bill make it expire automatically in 1985 unless that year's Legislature decides it should be continued. Bock said he agreed with all the changes made in the Senate.

"The Senate in my opinion has done some things which probably improve the bill," said Bock, D-New Braunfels.

Opponents of the measure took to the microphones in an effort to win at least a delay. Rep. Wilhemina Delco, D-Austin, said the DPS would need $1.2 million during the biennium to supervise the wiretaps.

"I'd spend $1.2 million to save my kid from a drug pusher," Bock replied.

Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, led the opposition with a motion to reject the Senate changes and send the bill to conference committee. He argued against a portion of the bill allowing covert entry to plant bugs.

Rep. Bob Bush, D-Sherman, joined Wilson. "I don't feel like we can trust human beings with technology with the massive potential for abuse this technology permits," Bush said.

The House voted 96-45 against Wilson's motion for a conference committee. Bush said he thought some members — who gave in to leadership of people not located in this House — might have changed their mind on wiretapping in the weeks since it won House approval. He said some newer House members might have been pressured earlier in the session because they thought they "had to vote along to get along ... because it was sponsored by a very important person."

Clements, wife Rita, and legislative aide Jim Kaster watched from the House gallery as the green lights on the voting board indicated approval of the bill.

Later, the governor said the bill poses no threat to innocent citizens.

"Safeguards in the bill assure that the basic rights of law-abiding citizens will not be invaded. Illegal use is punishable by imprisonment and fine, and damages could be collected in case of illegal taps," Clements said.

Reagan aides not ashamed of leader's woodchopping

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan's staff may be the first in the White House in a generation — at least since Dwight D. Eisenhower — to have no fear in saying that their boss is taking a few days rest.

Vacation mail tips provided

Before leaving on vacation several simple steps can make sure your mail is handled smoothly while you're away.

Postmaster Frank Hardesty said today: "Ask a neighbor or relative to remove mail and newspapers from your mailbox daily, or have mail held at the post office," he said. "A written request to hold mail up to 30 days can be given to your letter carrier or submitted at the local post office. If an extended absence is anticipated, a temporary mail forwarding order can be requested."

Hardesty stressed the importance of not letting mail accumulate in a mailbox, saying "it's a sign even novice burglars can detect." Other tips include taking an ample supply of stamps and postal cards on your trip and remembering to take the addresses of those to whom you may write. Don't forget, post cards only require 12 cents postage, while standard letters one ounce or less need an 18 cents stamp.

Try as they might to discover that under a guise of woodchopping, the president was really working at more conventional tasks, reporters at Santa Barbara, Calif., last weekend reported, for the most part, on such duties as horseback riding three days in a row.

Spokesman Larry Speakes, on a foggy, cool Memorial Day, told the world President Reagan's schedule that afternoon: "as you might guess, is clearing brush and chopping wood." And what that — and a few words pried out of him about such diverse subjects as the Middle East and Nancy Reagan's fear of field mice at the ranch — he announced that his next briefing would be at 6 p.m. The time was set because it would allow sun worshipers on the White House staff and in the press corps to pursue their solar activities.

White Reagan loped around his 688 acres, there was a fascination with motion 30 miles east-southeast down the coast where the White House staff set up temporary headquarters in Santa Barbara.

Up the road, just below a summit where the blacktop gave way to dusty red-brown dirt, a police officer and Secret Service agent standing in front of a locked gate were the only evidence that Ronald Reagan was in the vicinity.

Unlike Plains, Ga., home of one president, Santa Barbara, now the preferred home of another, shows no inclination to capitalize on its celebrity. It was known for many things — its mild climate, palm trees, beaches and a brutal off-shore oil blowout — long before Ronald Reagan became president.

Although the best part of the day was given to the activities that helped him achieve a ruddy, sunburned look — riding and woodchopping — Reagan devoted some time to his business.

Speakes said this included reviewing written reports on Philip C. Babib's mission to the Middle East. Telephone contact with the special envoy was deemed unnecessary. Also deemed unnecessary was any photograph of the president at his ranch. News photographers and the official White House photographer were told to stay away.

Reporters had to be content with seeing Reagan for one minute and 11 seconds while he transferred from his Marine Corps helicopter to Air Force One at Point Mugu Naval Air Station in Oxnard, Calif., Tuesday.
