Black Muslims suspects in Ray stabbing attack

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — Members of a Black Muslim group are believed responsible for the prison stabbing of James Earl Ray, who pleaded guilty to killing Martin Luther King, according to the director of the state Bureau of Investigation.

Ray, meanwhile, was reported in stable condition today at a hospital, recovering from stab wounds to his head, chest and an arm.

Ray's wife said she was upset because her husband was shackled to his hospital bed.

"If this was happening to a cat or dog there'd be public outrage," Anna Sandhu Ray told reporters Thursday night. "He's been stabbed 22 times; he's got two IVs (intravenous tubes), and they think he's gonna walk away."

Prison officials had no comment on her statements. Ray, 53, has tried to escape from prison four times since 1969, but he managed to get outside prison walls only once.

Ray was beaten and stabbed by other inmates early Thursday morning as he studied lawbooks in the library at Brushy Mountain Penitentiary, a maximum-security prison set among East Tennessee mountains in Petros, authorities said.

A crew of doctors, paramedics and prison guards took Ray 15 miles to Oak Ridge Hospital where he underwent surgery for an hour.

Arzo Carson, Tennessee Bureau of Investigation director, said four black men, who he said were members of a militant Black Muslim group, were believed to have attacked Ray. He identified three of them as John W. Partee of Nashville, Jerome N. Ransom of Chattanooga and Doc Walker of Memphis.

But prison officials said three black men and two

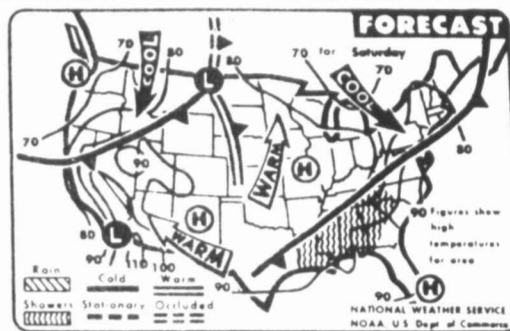

Weather Floodwaters kill two in North Texas

By the Associated Press
A 10-year-old Waco boy and an Army sergeant are dead after being trapped in floodwaters fed by yet another day of heavy rains that drenched Central and North Central Texas.

Waco officials said the body of Remigio Pena is believed trapped in a storm sewer after he and a friend were swept into Waco Creek while riding their bicycles.

Assistant Fire Chief C.W. Terry said Thursday that a search for the boy's body in the 13-block long storm sewer pipe which empties into the Brazos River will resume today.

The body of Staff Sgt. Thomas W. Edwards, 30, of Fort Hood, was found south of Killeen Thursday about three miles south of where he tried to cross a flooded road to help some stranded motorists.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for Saturday predicts showers in the South stretching from Louisiana to North Carolina. Cooler temperatures are expected in the Northeast and Northwest.

Texas seeks federal closing of Klan paramilitary camps

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorney Gen. Mark White says he asked a federal judge to close paramilitary camps used by the Ku Klux Klan in order to spare the state embarrassment over the Klan's coercive activities against Vietnamese refugee fishermen.

White, acting on behalf of the refugees who are suing the Klan and native Texas shrimpers — petitioned U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald to put the force of the federal bench behind a Texas civil law restricting the operation of paramilitary camps to the state and federal government.

The state law carries no penalty, and White wants the enforcement power of a federal court order to stop guerrilla warfare training by the Klan at two camps in Texas.

White said his office has received reports from Department of Public Safety investigators who said the Klan had been conducting paramilitary training at camps in North and Southeast Texas.

"We have seen reports of threats, and threats of violence and intimidation, and we want to make certain the state stands forthright in the defense of the individual rights of the citizens," White said. "The State of Texas does not condone this type of activity... and owes it to each of its citizens to eliminate this type of intimidation."

However, Texas Klan grand dragon Louis Beam scoffed at White's allegations saying the government is embarrassed because it is depriving whites of their constitutional rights.

"There is nothing wrong with a group of people gathering to learn how to be good soldiers. There is a constitutional right to bear arms," said Beam. "The state's intervention is an extension of a suit filed earlier this year by Vietnamese shrimpers to stop the alleged harassment by the Klan and native Texas fishermen."

Ms. McDonald issued a preliminary injunction last month ordering the Klan and native shrimpers to stop harassing and intimidating the other fishermen. She refused at that time to halt the Klan's paramilitary operations, but agreed to hear arguments when the state intervened.

FRESH WATER FROM AN OLD WELL
Right Behind Father
Many stories are told about boys who follow in their father's steps. One that bears repeating is of a man and his young son climbing a mountain. They come to a place where the climbing was difficult and even dangerous. The father stopped to consider which way he should go. He heard the lad behind him say, "Choose the good path, Daddy; I'm coming right behind you!" The head of the family bears the responsibility of going in the right path, for the children will usually follow in his footsteps.

How blessed are the children
Who in their father see
The tender father-love of God,
And find their way to Thee.

Animal part 'remedies' don't help beasts

One of the more popular items sold during the Big Spring-Howard County Centennial Celebration was the asafetida bag, symbolic of an age when people were of the persuasion that the fetid gum resin of various oriental plants served as a general prophylactic against disease.

Old legends die slowly, if at all, and the belief of some societies in their elixirs and their potions never fade, usually because there is reward in them for someone who wants to perpetuate a myth.

In a recent news release, the International Wildlife Federation expresses concern over the fact that some 'remedies' using animal parts are commonly employed by practitioners of the medical trades.

WITCH DOCTORS IN Africa prescribe crocodile scales cooked in butter for persons with aching teeth. For those cursed with rheumatic joints, those in the jungle with alleged curative powers suggest a tonic made by boiling the bones of monkey arms in water for ten days.

Other strange concoctions of wildlife parts, and their recommended uses, include:

— Pieces of tortoise, when tied on the head, a malaria preventive, the people steeped in the black arts claim.

— Musk from the glands of the musk deer, used as a stimulant to restore consciousness, to treat apoplexy and to cure boils.

— Whiskers of the golden cat, when burned and mixed with liquid opium, to relieve the pain of snake bites.

— Scales of the pangolin, a variety of anteater, to treat a wide variety of skin ailments.

— Powdered cyst from a porcupine brain, to ease the pain of burns.

Do these treatments actually work? National Wildlife Federation concedes that many animal substances do have medicinal value. For example, bee venom is used to treat arthritis and snake venoms are employed as coagulants, painkillers and are also being tested in cancer research. A substance secreted by blowfly larvae is used to promote healing of bone infections and deep wounds.

MAN, STEEPED IN superstition as he is, probably would actually be sympathetic toward the people using such 'remedies' were it not for the fact that some animal species are being hurried toward extinction because of their alleged curative powers.

International Wildlife spokesmen say this is especially true of those creatures threatened by habitat loss — among them the crocodile and rhino. The demand for medicinal animal parts was never greater in history than it is now and the implications for many wildlife populations through Africa and Asia are anything but good.

The rhino is far and away the most widely prescribed pharmaceutical animal of Asia, mostly because of the demand for its horn. In Asia and in some parts of the Middle East, the rhino horn is believed to be a most powerful aphrodisiac and is also used to cure a variety of ailments. In fact, few parts of the rhino are spared by those people seeking magic cures. It was inevitable that the price of rhino parts would reach astronomical heights. In Singapore, for instance, rhino horn rivals the cost of an ounce of gold. A pound of rhino toes fetches $180, a pound of rhino skin goes for $150.

Tigers are potent Asian symbols of power, bravery, dignity and justice. It stands to reason that their parts would be prized talismans to intimidate disease spirits and to give the wearers courage.

Asian tigers have been killed off in a way reminiscent of the slaughter of the American bison. Today, they are a protected species but that doesn't stop the poachers, who reason the rewards are worth the risk involved. International Wildlife says what may be needed is a new 'conservation juggling act' in which we try to keep the healers' medicine shelves stocked with parts of plentiful animal species, while minimizing the impact wildlife populations. It won't be easy.

WASHINGTON — More than a year ago I broke the story of "Operation Paperclip," the controversial program that brought known Nazis and suspected war criminals to this country with official blessing after World War II. Scientists and others with supposedly valuable intelligence information were allowed to settle in the United States despite their Nazi past and with the blessing of the CIA and the State Department.

The Nazi fugitives have long since outlived any usefulness they might have had, but they're still secure in their American hideouts. And because the government knew of their Nazi background, they can't be deported for failing to reveal it when they entered this country.

THE UNSOLVED CASE of Tschermig Soobzokov is a troubling example. According to a classified State Department document, the black-haired, ruddy-faced Soobzokov was born in Russia, served as a lieutenant in the Red Army and deserted to the Germans in 1943. He joined a Nazi sponsored "North Caucasian Volunteer Battalion" and rose to the rank of captain in the SS. After the war, he made his way to Jordan and was cleared for immigration to the United States in 1953.

The loquacious Soobzokov, who looks much younger than his 63 years, has been accused of brutality and extortion during World War II. What's worse, there were allegations that he continued his criminal activities after he came to this country. Yet Soobzokov has done well. A resident of Paterson, N.J., he was until recently employed by the Passaic County government.

The astonishing thing is that Soobzokov makes no attempt to deny his past. He doesn't have to. He can't be deported or prosecuted for his alleged connections to the Third Reich because he didn't lie about it when the State Department brought him here. And the allegations of brutality and extortion can't be proven.

Soobzokov, whose home has been picketed by Jewish activists, is free to stay in this country. The Justice Department's chief Nazi hunter, Allan Ryan, dropped the case against the feisty suspect last January.

SPEAKING IN A heavy East European accent, Soobzokov told my associate Bill Gruver that the SS unit he was attacked to was a "shadow" outfit that existed only on paper. The Nazi allegations are "unproven lies," said Soobzokov, who claimed to be one of the most investigated men in the United States.

EMBARRASSING BUST — The Customs Service, which has been trying to edge out the embattled Drug Enforcement Administration as the government's No. 1 narcotics bloodhound, made an embarrassing raid recently — in its own Washington headquarters.

Using videotapes and informants, Customs sleuths busted six mailroom employees for allegedly selling LSD on the job. Two other suspects left during the course of the probe.

A lawyer representing four of the accused employees insists the videotapes are "inconclusive," and says the scheduled dismissal of the employees will be contested.

EXECUTIVE MEMO — Interior Secretary James Watt apparently doesn't have enough to do signing oil leases and fighting off environmentalists' attempts to get him fired. Now he's taken up fund-raising. Watt recently signed a letter to Republican fatcats soliciting funds for the re-election of Rep. Ken Kramer, R-Colo. The secretary has also boosted a fund-raiser cocktail party for Kramer on Capitol Hill. "Both the secretary and I would like to see a Republican House of Representatives," said Kramer, an old friend of Watt's.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan isn't at all happy over the Federal Reserve Board's widely fluctuating money supply, which he lays to the Fed's failure to anticipate sudden monetary changes. At the same time, though, its prognostications of overall trends have been accurate. Regan acknowledged as much to associates when he compared Fed Chairman Paul Volcker to a golfer who drives his first shot into the rough, chips his second into a water hazard and his third into a sand trap — but gets lucky and sinks the ball on his fourth shot, making his par. "Just keep it on the fairway, Paul," Regan is reported to have pledged.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig cleaned up his act for the House Foreign Affairs Committee the second time around. His debut a couple of months ago left a sour taste with some members, who thought Haig was arrogant and condescending. Recently, though, at a private breakfast with the committee, Haig seemed more relaxed and friendly.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How can I really believe that God loves me? I know it because of what God has done for you in Jesus Christ. You are probably convinced that your biggest problem is a present difficulty, and that if it would go away you would be happy. But the Bible tells us that each of us has a far deeper problem — a spiritual problem.

Until that spiritual problem is faced and dealt with, we will never know true and lasting joy and peace in our hearts. That spiritual problem is what the Bible calls sin, and it separates us from God. Your greatest need is to be forgiven and restored to a right relationship with God.

An appeal from a drug user

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a narcotic addict. I have been on morphine for 15 years. Needless to say, I have been in the pen, hospitals and everything else that goes with drugs. I started with a half-inch needle and now am using 3-inch needles. Doctor, I know a lot of narcotic addicts would like to know what long addiction can do to the body. I know of no books to find out this kind of information.—S.T.M.

I'll answer your question if you promise to call your doctor for help. If you don't have a doctor, call any large hospital in your area to find out how you can get into a program to help you with your drug abuse. I won't even mention social consequences of drug abuse, a subject about which you could probably write a book of your own. You must know those. The medical complications of addiction are so numerous that it would take this entire newspaper to list them.

Serious infections are very common in addicts. Bacterial endocarditis, an infection of the heart valves, is often seen. That can be fatal. Hepatitis is routinely seen in addicts, too. This liver infection is easily passed on by sharing needles.

Blood clots in the lungs are potential consequences of intravenous drug abuse. Allergic reactions to the impurities in the substances used to cut drugs can result in life-threatening closing of the airways. These are just a few of the possible physical consequences of drug abuse.

Even with the length of time you have been using narcotics your case is not hopeless, and I have seen worse. I want very much for you to keep your part of this bargain and contact one of the social agencies or take one of the other steps I suggested to get person-to-person help with your addiction.

You don't need books at this point. Don't take chances with "kidney trouble" — it could be dangerous. Read the booklet, "Your Kidneys — Facts You Need to Know About Them." For a copy, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

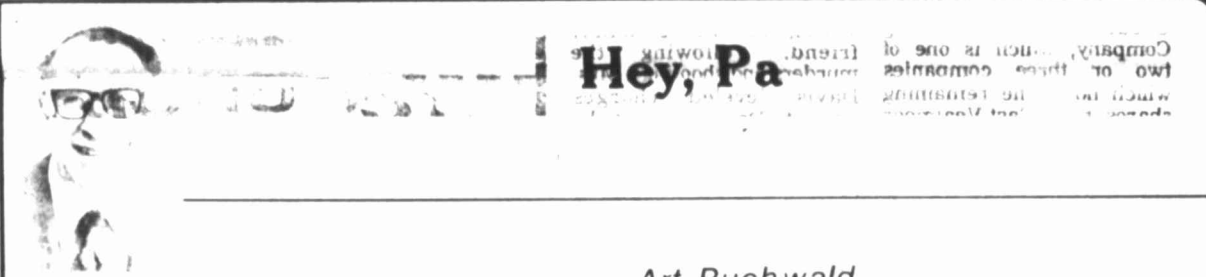

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

"You bet your sweet life I ain't ready to go. I didn't promise them fellas in Washington nothin' about when I'd kick the can. I feel better now'n I did when I was 50."

"It ain't how old you feel. It's how old you are that has them fellas in Washington biting their nails. Ma's hanging on a lot longer than she's supposed to, too."

"When did they have her snuffed out?"

"When she got to be 67."

"They don't know your Ma. She's going to be kicking up her heels until she's 90."

"Them stat-a-tussions are starting to find that out, Pa. Nobody is dying when they're supposed to. You and Ma ain't cooperating with the ax-chewer tables one lick. And neither are any of your friends."

"Wal, maybe they shouldn't have invented penicillin and all them newfangled drugs. Maybe them smart fellas in Washington didn't figure on new breakthroughs in medicine which would keep us all alive."

"They didn't, Pa, and now they have to bite the bullet. Not their bullet — yours."

"How they plannin' to do that, son?"

"It ain't clear yet, but they're trying to set up new regulations for people that wants to go on Social Security."

"What kind of regs?"

"Wal, if you're 62 years old and want to retire, you can get 55 percent of your pension, providing you agree to serve in the U.S. Army for four years."

"That seems fair."

"If YOU'RE 70 years old and have been paying into Social Security since you was a teen-ager, you're entitled to have every third filling in your mouth paid for, providing you ain't on a football scholarship."

"No one can argue with that."

"If you're over 75 years old — and can prove you're an orphan, you can get 100 percent of your benefits — unless you have a newspaper route and you don't declare your tips."

"That won't affect me. Your Ma is the one who has a newspaper route."

"If you win more than $2.50 a day at gin rummy, you have to pay the first $100 of your Medicaid bill."

"There goes my safety net."

"I'm sorry, Pa. But that's just the way it's got to be."

"I thought that fella Reagan said he wasn't going to mess with anyone's Social Security if he became president."

"He got no choice, Pa, what with you and Ma hanging on the way you've been doin'."

"Wal, your Ma and I ain't about to die just to balance the country's budget."

"Nobody wants you to die, Pa."

"Then what do them smart fellas in Washington want us to do?"

"For starters, you could go out and get a job."

Northeast-Midwest Coalition attacks Sun Belt Council.

WASHINGTON — The Sun Belt Council, founded by congressmen from 15 states, was attacked Thursday as "nationally divisive" by members of its nemesis, the Northeast-Midwest Coalition.

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Mass., said at the council's first press conference Thursday the organization is necessary to combat misconceptions by "our northern brethren" that the Sun Belt states are prospering at their expense.

"Personally, in the past, I have disliked a regional approach to national problems," said Wilson. "I voted for the Chrysler bailout and the New York loan guarantees which are being outgunned and outtalked by the northern and midwestern states. They have made the situation impossible."

But Rep. Nick Mavroules, D-Mass., a steering committee member of the five-year-old Northeast-Midwest Coalition, called the Sun Belt group "ill-advised because it will do nothing but hurt the country at large. It will be nationally divisive."

Mavroules said regionalizing disagreements about such issues as allocation of federal money for low income fuel assistance will only make Congress work more difficult.

"The problem is that there is just $1.3 billion in the Reagan budget for fuel assistance to the elderly and the poor who can't afford to keep warm," he said. "We need at least $3 billion. There should be a separate program for those people in the South who suffer from the heat and can't pay for air conditioning."

Mavroules argued that the average homeowner in the North pays utility bills that are three times higher than his southern counterpart. Wilson countered that 1,282 people, who could not afford air conditioning, died from the heat last summer, but less than 177 people actually died of cold this winter.

Mavroules made his comments at an all-day conference — Energy Issues for the Eighties — sponsored by the Northeast-Midwest Coalition, which boasts 212 members and a $125,222 annual budget in addition to a research institute in Washington.

Wilson's council, involving southern, southwestern and border states, is expected to have an annual budget of $100,000 raised in the next few months from member congressmen and interested businessmen.

"The Northeast-Midwest Coalition is the 'Goliath' of Capitol Hill," said Wilson. "The Sun Belt Council is the 'David' which will try to set the record straight on some of the myths that our cohorts have managed to perpetuate."

Rep. John Conyers, Jr., D-Mich., and another member of the Northeast-Midwest Coalition, said, "This new group is hostile to the best interests of the nation. It means the same thing — we're going to have to get a little more organized and a little more determined."

Wilson cited the 1980 repeal of the Maybank Amendment, which prohibits the payment of price differentials on defense contracts to relieve economic distress, as another key issue usually debated in regional terms.

"The Northeast-Midwest Coalition was able to repeal this amendment so that military contracts would be given to inefficient firms that could not competitively win them as they should," said Wilson. "This is unfair to our region. And the defense department does not get its best value from the money it spends."

Mavroules said that the north receives the defense contracts because more military-oriented industries are located in the region.

The new coalition also includes congressmen from Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

Murder figure owns tiny chunk of Vealmoor plant

Although T. Cullen Davis did purchase interest in the East Vealmoor Gasoline Plant in Howard County, he did not purchase 30 percent of the plant, as was stated in a story in The Herald Wednesday.

A spokesman for Getty Oil Company in Tulsa, Okla., Bob Jacob, contacted The Herald Thursday, to explain that 90.56616 percent of the East Vealmoor Gasoline Plant is owned by Getty Oil Company. Davis did not buy any percentage of the Getty holdings, said Jacob.

Davis purchased 30 percent of the interest held by Great Western Drilling Company, which is one of two or three companies which holds the remaining shares in the East Vealmoor Gasoline Plant.

When contacted, representatives of Great Western Drilling Company in both Midland and Fort Worth declined to say how much interest the company held in the East Vealmoor Gasoline Plant.

Whatever amount purchased by Davis, Jacob reasoned, would leave the Texas millionaire with only a one to one and a half percent share of the plant, instead of a 30 percent interest as stated in The Herald Thursday.

Davis achieved national attention when he was involved in a sensational murder trial, stemming from the deaths of his 12-year-old stepdaughter and his estranged wife's boyfriend, Stan Farr.

Davis' estranged wife, Priscilla Davis, was injured in a shooting spree at the Davis mansion in Fort Worth, as was a family friend. Following the murders and shootings, Mrs. Davis leveled charges against Davis, saying he committed the offenses. What followed was the longest trial in Texas history.

Davis was later acquitted of the murders of his stepdaughter and Farr, and of the shootings of Priscilla Davis and the family friend.

Cheers, jeers greet carrier Midway

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP) — The U.S. aircraft carrier Midway returned to its Japanese home port today, getting a jubilant welcome from the families of its crew inside the naval base. Outside the base, thousands demonstrated against U.S. Navy ships bringing nuclear weapons into Japanese waters.

One crewman from the carrier, Tom Kelly, of New Port Richey, Fla., said the Midway's 4,800 men had been told to expect demonstrations, "but this is something else."

About 1,700 relatives of the Midway's crew and those of the carrier's escort cheered and waved flags as the 51,000-ton flattop moored at the U.S. Yokosuka Naval Base after three months at sea.

A Japanese government delegation also was on hand to greet the ship, demonstrating support for Japan's joint defense agreement with the United States. It included Minoru Genda, a member of parliament who led one of the Japanese bomber groups in the Dec. 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor.

Outside the gates, 1,000 riot police held back some 2,000 demonstrators waving red flags and chanting anti-nuclear slogans. About 20 small boats carrying more anti-nuclear protesters bobbed about in the bay as the Midway arrived at its home port 35 miles south of Tokyo.

The demonstrators marched past the gates of the base all morning, but police made them walk in groups of about 50.

The Midway has been a center of controversy for the past month because Japanese anti-nuclear groups and opposition members of Parliament contended it and other U.S. 7th Fleet ships bring nuclear weapons into Japanese waters in violation of government bans.

Dear Abby

Native Talent Marks All Good Lovers

DEAR ABBY: It's true! The American Indian has it all over the white man when it comes to lovemaking. Ask any squaw who is familiar with the "Apache grip" or the "Kickapoo twist."

MINNIE HA HA

DEAR MINNIE: Not according to this San Francisco divorcee who's been around:

DEAR ABBY: This is for ED, who lost his girlfriend to an American Indian because they were supposed to be better lovers. (He had heard that closely guarded tribal secrets on how to please a woman were passed down from father to son.)

I'm an attractive divorcee, living in San Francisco and teaching at a nearby university. I've had highly touted Italian lovers, black lovers and even an Asian lover whom I met at the Hong Kong Hilton. (He was a lawyer from Wyoming.) In addition to the above, while visiting Mt. Rushmore, I met a tall, handsome Indian from a tribe near Rapid City, S.D. He was a good lover, but no better than the others. But he was exceptionally gentle.

No one ethnic group holds the secret to superior lovemaking. The best lover I ever had was an American (Scottish Irish English) whom I met in Louisville, Ky., at the Kentucky Derby. Sign me.

BEEN AROUND

DEAR ABBY: What's more frustrating than standing in a long checkout line, and when your turn comes, the clerk gets a telephone call, then starts fumbling around the counter to find the newspaper so she can check the ad and help the person on the phone? Meanwhile I'm waiting there with cash in my hand.

This always happens to me. I went to our local department store, found what I wanted, and after waiting for 15 minutes to pay for it, the clerk got a telephone call and I was kept waiting another five minutes while she helped the person on the phone.

Who is more important? The customer on the phone, or the person who has spent $1.40 a gallon on gas to get there? Why can't sales clerks tell the phone callers to wait until their customers with cash in their hands are waited on? Even if you don't print this, I feel better writing it down.

OFF MY CHEST IN WAYCROSS, GA

DEAR OFF: I'm sure everyone has been in your shoes. (I have.) But haven't you also been the party on the phone? (I have.)

DEAR ABBY: The BC Forbes definition of money is only adequate. Here's a much better definition by T.P. O'Connor, the editor of the once famous British weekly, "T.P.S."

"Although money may not buy happiness, I know of no misfortune in the world that having money does not mitigate, and the lack of money does not aggravate."

It may sound cynical, but when you think about it, it makes sense.

FELIX DE COLA

DEAR FELIX: It makes no sense to me. Ask anyone who has lost a child if his or her pain would have been mitigated by any amount of money.

You're never too young or too old to learn how to make people like you. Get Abby's new booklet of practical advice. Send $1 and a stamped (35 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

RTA hears railroad executive

Willard C. Schultz, regional public relations manager for the Missouri Pacific Railroad, was guest speaker for the Big Spring-Howard County Retired Teachers Association meeting May 29. Dr. Laurence Snively, president, presided over the meeting at Howard College, held in connection with the biennial celebration of the railroad.

Martin Landers voiced the invocation. Rita Palmer of the Big Spring Education Employees Federal Credit Union, discussed the benefits of the organization to retired teachers, after presenting each with a ball-point pen.

Violet Reed visited from Houston, having been a former member, and paid current dues to the local chapter. Other guests were Mack Alexander, Obera Gray, Frances Walker and Emily Elrod.

Members who celebrated birthdays in May and will celebrate in June and July were recognized appropriately.

Schultz, in his 40th year of service to the railroad, spoke of the history of the railroad, relating it to the development of the West and service to the country. Modernization of service was stressed, resulting in award winning safety measures. Schultz related the economic value of the Missouri Pacific to the state of Texas and projected a bright future of increased service.

Josephine Dawes reported that of the 44 charter members in 1972, 16 are still members and 11 are deceased.

Dr. Snively expressed his appreciation for individual and group participation and the cooperation of officers and committee members in concluding the final meeting of the year.

WCG has program on smart vacations

The Women of The Church of God met Monday at 7 p.m. at the First Church of God. They voted to participate in a Triangle Bazaar with the Youth and Koinonia Fellowship for the Fall Activity. The two representatives from the WCG to be on the Bazaar Committee will be Susan Wood and Hettie Minix.

The monthly program depicted summer vacations and how each could keep Christ in vacation plans throughout the summer.

Four speakers participated in the program, each relating to the group how summer time vacations could be relaxing and enriching. The following ideas were presented:

Vacation Bible Schools by Jean McCray, conventions, state camp meetings and retreats, by Anna Smith; vacations: Recreational and summer camps by Kathryn Thomas; and saving energy: camp outs, neighborhood gatherings and National Parks, by Nelda Reagan, Betty Reagan, moderator, reminded the group of the three R's in vacations: Relax (Physically), relate (to others), recreate (Spiritually).

The next meeting will be a Quarterly Board Meeting, July 6, at the church.

Atlanta suspect 'spotted surveillance'

HONORED ON ANNIVERSARY — Mrs. Roberta Johnson (center) was honored recently on her 23rd anniversary as an administrator of the 22-county Far West District of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. She holds a plaque concerning the occasion, given to her by district employees. With Mrs. Johnson are, from the left, Sharon Hillis, Midland; Charles W. Neeb, area entomologist; Norman C. Kohls, Glasscock County; and Shiretta Ownbey, Pecos County. Howard County is a member of the Far West District.

ATLANTA (AP) — A man who was questioned about the slayings of 28 young blacks, was picked up because authorities believed he had detected their surveillance and they were afraid potential evidence would be destroyed, a newspaper reported today.

The man, a 23-year-old black, was questioned for about 12 hours but released early Thursday without charges. Authorities would not say whether he was a suspect in the killings, but at a news conference later he said he believed police still considered him a "prime suspect."

The Atlanta Constitution, quoting unidentified officials close to the investigation, said police decided early this week to drop the "tight surveillance" that had been in effect since May 22 because it was evident the man was aware he was being tailed.

Officials decided they had to move quickly to prevent any potential evidence from being destroyed, the newspaper said.

The Constitution quoted sources as saying some evidence seized at the man's home Wednesday was similar to evidence found on bodies of several of the victims.

But the newspaper quoted one investigator as saying, "The fibers might be good enough for an arrest, but the police have to worry about a conviction. They have to think of a good defense attorney asking, 'How many blankets of this type have been made, 10,000?'"

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said the man, whose police have not identified, was released because the questioning produced no information that would result in an arrest.

Atlanta police, meanwhile, continued to look for David Litmon, missing since Tuesday. A general alarm was issued for the 15-year-old black youth, meaning that authorities stepped up patrols and set up roadblocks in the youth's neighborhood.

His disappearance had not been reported over to a special police task force investigating the 28 slayings and the disappearance of one black youth that had occurred since July 1979.

While the man was being questioned at FBI headquarters, authorities armed with a search warrant went through his home and, according to the man, seized a yellow blanket, purple robe, green carpet fibers, fibers from a bedspread, carpet sweepings and dog hairs.

That material was being analyzed at the state crime lab Thursday.

The man held the news conference on the condition that neither his name nor picture be used. He passed out resumes describing his employment history.

He also said FBI agents repeatedly accused him of some of the slayings and then told him, "It's just a matter of time before we get you."

"They did call me a suspect," he said. "They said, 'You killed Nathaniel Carter. And you know it and you're lying to us.'"

Carter, the 28th victim, was found in the Chattahoochee River northwest of Atlanta on May 24, two days after the man said he was stopped by FBI agents on a bridge over the river just upstream from where the body was found.

FBI spokesman William McGrath and Brown refused comment on the man's statements.

When FBI agents stopped the man May 22 on the bridge over the Chattahoochee, he said they asked him, "Who did you throw off the bridge?" I told them I dropped nothing.

Sources close to the task force said the man was stopped after officers conducting surveillance of the river heard a splash and moved toward the sound.

The young man, who said he was running an errand the night he was stopped, said the FBI agents let him go that night but came to his home to question him later, then "followed me all over town."

The man said he permitted agents to search his car on the bridge, and sources close to the investigation said Thursday a listening device was placed inside the man's car that night.

Although other officials, including District Attorney Lewis Slaton, said they knew of no such listening device being placed in the man's car, the source said information gained from the device helped authorities decide to pick the man up for questioning and search his home.

The source said that while he was not aware of all the information picked up over the listening device, he said authorities did hear the man stop his car in several Atlanta neighborhoods and ask residents if police were watching the area.

During the 12 hours of questioning, the man said, he agreed to take a lie detector test and an agent "said all my answers were deceptive."

After contending that investigators leaked his name to the media, the man declared, "As far as I'm concerned, if they're saying they aren't going to file any charges at this point, I'm asking for a public apology from the FBI or whoever was responsible for leaking this information to the news media."

Begin refuses to halt raids on Palestinians

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin got the backing he wanted from President Anwar Sadat in their summit conference on the Israeli-Syrian missile crisis. But Begin refused the Egyptian's request for an end to Israeli attacks on Palestinians in southern Lebanon.

The two leaders met for six hours Thursday on the southern coast of the Sinai peninsula, which Israel is to return to Egypt by next April. At a joint news conference, Sadat blamed Syrian President Hafez Assad for the Lebanese crisis and said he asked Begin to allow "ample time" for U.S. envoy Philip C. Habib to work out a peaceful settlement.

Begin said he accepted "the request of my friend President Sadat to give more time to Mr. Philip Habib to try to solve the crisis in Lebanon, caused by the Syrians," by "peaceful means."

Sadat said he also asked Begin "to end the raids on the Palestinians' in Lebanon, but the Israeli leader made it clear these would continue. He said the Palestinians were planning "day and night to carry out murderous attacks against our people," and "what we do is an act of legitimate self-defense in the highest moral sense."

Habib was leaving Washington today for more meetings with Arab and Israeli leaders, beginning in Saudi Arabia.

The crisis he is trying to resolve is due to the surface-to-air missiles Syria deployed in eastern Lebanon around the Christian city of Zahlé, where Syrian soldiers have been battling the Christian Phalangia Party's militia since April 1. Syria moved the Soviet-made SAM-6 missiles there in late April after Israeli planes shot down two Syrian helicopters operating against the Christians.

Sadat called for the withdrawal not only of the missiles but of the 22,000 troops Syria has kept in Lebanon since the 1975-76 civil war there. He charged that Assad's goal was to annex Lebanon and create a "greater Syria."

Assad claims his troops are a peacekeeping army to enforce the armistice that ended the civil war between the rightist Lebanese Christians and the alliance of leftist Lebanese Muslims and Palestinian guerrillas.

But the newspaper quoted one investigator as saying, "The fibers might be good enough for an arrest, but the police have to worry about a conviction. They have to think of a good defense attorney asking, 'How many blankets of this type have been made, 10,000?'"

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said the man, whose police have not identified, was released because the questioning produced no information

BSSH will conduct alcoholism seminar

The Big Spring State Hospital will conduct an alcoholism seminar Friday, June 12. It will be held in the Auditorium at the Big Spring State Hospital.

These seminars, made possible through the hospital, are being held in conjunction with Howard College.

Betty Scheef, Marriage and Family Therapist with Dallas Psychiatric Associates, Dallas, will be the consultant for the day-long seminar. Ms. Scheef is also a consultant to the Brookhaven Alcohol Recovery Unit and conducts workshops for both inpatient and aftercare family groups.

She developed the Family Education Program at the Dallas Council on Alcoholism. Ms. Scheef has a diploma in Nursing, a B.A. in Psychology and her original training as an alcoholism counselor was at the Johnson Institute in Minneapolis, Minn. She has been in the field of alcoholism for eight years.

This seminar will be of interest to those working in the field of alcoholism and drug abuse and to those of the general public who are interested in learning more about this problem of chemical abuse.

This seminar will involve looking at the roles which are developed in the chemically dependent family. How these roles are utilized to support the use of the chemical and may conflict with the abuser's attempts toward abstinence and growth. Come and share practical, useful skills and experiences with people who work in the same field.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. The general session will begin at 9 a.m. A registration fee of $1 will be charged, with an additional charge of $1 for those wishing to receive Continuing Education Units from Howard College. (Persons wishing to receive credit for attendance will be expected to remain the entire day.)

The theme for the day will be: "Family Roles in the Chemically Dependent Family."

Additional information can be obtained from Clyde J. Alsup, Training Officer, Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Program, Big Spring State Hospital.

Carbon in Tundra threat to global temperatures

By DONALD J. FREDRICK
National Geographic News Service

DURHAM, N.C. — Hundreds of pounds of arctic tundra in North Carolina may yield new information about the growth rate of many plants and future levels of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere.

Collected near Barrow, Alaska, the tundra was flown still frozen to Duke University's phytotron, a climate-controlled facility that has 40 "growth rooms" and six large greenhouses.

Thawed under carefully controlled conditions, the plants and peat comprising the tundra will be examined over two years at various soil and air temperatures and under light conditions duplicating the arctic summer.

Botanists Dwight Billings of Duke and Kim Peterson of Clemson University, project coordinators, hope the tests will ascertain whether the tundra absorbs or releases carbon dioxide when subjected to warmer temperatures or an increase of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere.

Many scientists have predicted that increasing use of fossil fuels such as coal will sharply boost the amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere, causing warmer global temperatures. The more serious consequences envisioned include disruptions of agriculture caused by changes in growing cycles and prolonged droughts in the farming regions of the United States and Western Europe, as well as a long-range peril — rising sea levels that would flood coastal towns.

If warmer temperatures do occur, they are expected to be more pronounced in arctic tundra regions, where an estimated third of the world's carbon is stored in peat deposits.

For most of the year, the tundra — a vast region covering some 3 million square miles — is a frigid, hostile, seemingly lifeless realm, but in June it usually comes to life for a five- to six-week growing season in most places. So far no one knows what effect a prolonged warming trend would have on this expanse.

As Billings points out, "Some researchers, myself not included, think arctic plants will absorb carbon dioxide rather than release it during a longer growing season."

"We hope to settle the question, because a lot of carbon could be released through peat decomposition, worsening an already worrisome atmospheric carbon dioxide problem. And there are indications that temperatures in the arctic will rise four to seven degrees Fahrenheit in the next 50 to 60 years, lengthening the growing season." The project is supported by the National Science Foundation.

Other investigations at the phytotron are attempting to find the long-term effects of doubled carbon dioxide levels on ordinary plants. Preliminary experiments with high concentrations of the gas have shown that some crop plants such as wheat and rice do surprisingly well.

"Carbon is one of the elements required for plant growth," explained Dr. Boyd Strain, director of the phytotron. "It acts like phosphorous or nitrogen fertilizers and helps speed up the growth and development of certain plants."

Strain cautions that such spurts might make plants less resistant to disease and insects and force them to consume more soil nutrients.

RINGING THE NORTH POLE — Arctic tundra — dark areas on map — contains an estimated third of the world's carbon stored in its peat deposits. Scientists at Duke University's phytotron — a climate — controlled facility — are trying to determine whether a warmer climate or an increased amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere would cause these vast deposits to release their own carbon dioxide and worsen a projected global warming trend.

Tests show officer was drunk during fatal running gunfight

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Blood tests have revealed that a police officer was drunk when he was accidentally shot to death by another officer after a running gunbattle with three men, according to The Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

The newspaper said Thursday that blood test results show Darrel Moon was inebriated when he was admitted July 13, 1980, to John Peter Smith Hospital. The Star-Telegram had asked for the results in last September, but said they were not released until this week after the Texas attorney general's office ruled the results a public record. The test results were sought after a grand jury declined to indict three Mexican-Americans police said were involved in the gunbattle with four plainclothes officers. The trio claimed Moon and the other officers shot at them first, after a confrontation outside a local nightclub. An investigation by police internal affairs officers resulted in disciplinary action against officers Jesus Hernandez, who was reassigned, and Alfredo Garcia, who was suspended for five days. Officer Floyd Mills, who accidentally shot his partner in the head, resigned from the force.

Special Investigations Division Capt. C.E. Hogue said the other officers were not given blood tests because "there was no indication that they had had an undue amount to drink."

Hogue said that while plainclothes vice officers are allowed to drink small amounts of alcohol in the performance of their undercover duties, drinking "should be held to a minimum."

Moon's test indicated he had a blood-alcohol content of .13. Under Texas law, a person is considered drunk if he has a blood-alcohol content of .10.

The utility's failure to halt harassment and abuse of quality control workers was a major reason for the NRC's issuance of a show-cause order in 1980. The report also quoted a chief construction engineer as complaining that some of the job's construction foremen "can't read or write very well."

Watkins' report suggested that quality control workers were having to do part of construction crews' work as well as their own. "It was noted that the construction crafts were heavily reliant upon QC for direction and instruction," Watkins wrote.

The memo's acceptance as evidence is subject to verification by attorneys for Houston Lighting & Power.

The hearing on the project has been recessed until June 15.

Gust M. Gaviotis has been elected vice president-distribution for National Supply Company, according to John W. Soden, National Supply president.

GUST M. GAVIOTIS

The newly-created position recognizes the growing importance of the distribution organization to National Supply, said Soden. The organization of 114 oilfield supply stores and five mining and industrial supply stores Gaviotis heads is part of the National Supply Production Equipment and Distribution Division.

Gaviotis joined the company in 1948 and worked in field sales and store management positions in Wyoming and New Mexico before moving to National Supply headquarters in Houston. He has general manager-Distribution in 1977.

The first National Supply store opened before the turn of the century. National has projected it will operate 200 supply stores by 1985. The majority of the company's 119 stores service United States oilfields, although 13 stores now operate in Canada and five stores have been opened overseas in such locations as Abu Dhabi and Venezuela. National added 17 stores in 1980 and nine new stores have been opened this year. National operates a store in Big Spring.

Trainer Campo still cocky for tomorrow's big test

Belmont final link to Triple Crown for Pleasant Colony

NEW YORK (AP) — Pleasant Colony will be the last horse loaded into the starting gate for Saturday's Belmont Stakes, but trainer Johnny Campo is certain his colt will be the first to finish the 1 1/2-mile grind.

"Show me a horse in this race who has won three races in a row," said Campo Thursday after 10 rivals were named to oppose the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner. "The other horses win, get beat and they (trainers) make speeches in between. But they're entitled to get beat."

Pleasant Colony, who also won the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct April 18, will be bidding to become only the 12th Triple Crown winner in thoroughbred history. The early 4-5 favorite will go from the outside No. 11 post with Jorge Velasquez in the saddle.

Nine others have won the first two legs only to falter in the Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park. The last to have his Triple Crown bid spoiled in the Belmont was heavily-favored Spectacular Bid, who finished third in 1979 to Coastal.

Saturday's field is the largest since 13 went in the 1971 Belmont won by Pass Catcher.

The son of His Majesty-Sun Colony has won more than $600,000 this year in five starts.

Thursday he had his final workout, going four furlongs over a muddy track in 46:1-5 and going an additional furlong in 59:1-5.

Key rivals are expected to be Greentree Stable's Woodchopper, Leone Peters' Tap Shoes and Pen-Y-Bryn Farm's Highland Blade.

Woodchopper, a fast-closing second in the 1 1/4-mile Derby and 11th in the 13-1/2 mile Preakness, is listed at 4-1 in the early line. Laffit Pincay replaces ailing Eddie Delahoussaye on Woodchopper.

Other 3-year-olds in the field include Double B Ranch's Bold Ego, 10th in the Derby, second in the Preakness, and Chares T. Wilson's Summing, winner of the Pennsylvania Derby May 25. Both are listed at 10-1.

Completing the field are Janice Feinberg's Paristo, third in the Preakness, 15-1; Annette Eubanks' Escambia Bay and Nathan Kelly's Bare Knuckles, seventh and eighth, respectively, in the Preakness, and Peter Barberino's Sezyou, a non-stakes winner, 50-1 each.

All starters will carry 126 pounds. Paristo is seeking to foglow Coastal and Temperance Hill as supplemental Belmont winners at a cost of $20,000.

If all go the 113th Belmont, which will be nationally televised by CBS (5-6 p.m. EDT), will be worth $284,300. The winner earns $170,580. Posttime set for 5:40 p.m. EDT.

The last Triple Crown winner was Affirmed in 1978. The others were Seattle Slew, Secretariat, Citation, Assault, Count Fleet, Whirlaway, War Admiral, Omaha, Gallant Fox and Sir Barton.

Aoki slim leader in Atlanta Open

ATLANTA (AP) — Isao Aoki plans to return to Japan following the U.S. Open in two weeks, but he insists he's not gearing his game just for that prestigious event.

"I like to play each tournament the best I can," said the Japanese star who claimed the first round lead Thursday in the $300,000 Atlanta Classic with a 5-under-par 67.

"I missed the cut last week, so I have to play much harder this week," he said through an interpreter, calling it the best round he has played this season in the United States.

"If the weather stays this way, hot, but not too hot, I think I can do well in the tournament," he said.

Aoki prevented what would have been an 11-way tie for the lead when he sank a 5-foot, par-saving putt on his final hole to take a one shot advantage over 10 other golfers, including two of the game's top stars, Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson.

Nicklaus, finishing earlier in the day on the hilly, 6,945-yard Atlanta Country Club course, missed his chance to share the lead when he bogeyed his final hole, running a 16-footer five feet past the pin and missing that coming back.

Aoki, starting on the backside, birdied his first four holes, sinking putts from the 12 to 16 foot range on the first three before placing a pitching wedge seven feet from the hole on the par 3 13th for his fourth.

He sailed over the green at the par-4 No. 5, but birdied that one anyway when he pitched in from 35 feet away. His other birdie came at No. 7 from 10 feet and he finished off the round by saving par on the ninth green.

Nicklaus, who said he played well and putted well except for a three-putt at No. 9, his final hole. He almost holed a 3-wood on the par-5 18th, where he knocked in a 5-footer for an eagle.

"Three on par five have a tendency to lower your score, and help your frame of mind," he said.

Watson, who said 4 under on the turn but played the last hole in the hole, said he was surprised that the scoreboard had 24 players grouped so closely.

Others tied at 68 with Nicklaus and Watson were Lanny Wadkins, who played one string of four holes 5 under par with three birdies and an eagle; Gary McCord; Tommy Valentine; Calvin Peete; Stan Altgelt; Jack Ferenz; Bob Eastwood; and Roger Maltbie, who birdied his last four holes.

Ray Floyd, winner of consecutive tournaments early this year, led a group of 13 at 69.

Defending champion Larry Nelson and South African Gary Player shot 73s and Arnold Palmer rallied from a frontside 40 for a 75 that left him in danger of missing the cut when the 156-man field is trimmed to the low 70 scorers for the final two rounds.

WHAT A KISS — New York Mets coach Joe Pignatano's hat stands on end as he is kissed by the Phillies fanatic during Wednesday night's game in Philadelphia.

No. 1 accomplishments are World Series rings Rose says hits not big gem

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Any day now, Pete Rose is going to erase one of baseball's hallowed records, Stan Musial's National League mark of 3,630 career hits.

Rose needs just eight hits to pass Musial and become the third all-time career major league hit producer.

The late Ty Cobb, an American League, amassed 4,191 hits, while Hank Aaron collected 3,771 — 3,600 in the end down with excitement — yet.

"Up to this point," says the Philadelphia Phillies first baseman, "it will be my biggest accomplishment. But I'll be honest with you, my proudest possessions are my three World Series rings. They're the things that mean the most to me."

"Of course it's a real thrill to be there alongside a great player like Stan Musial."

The two great ballplayers will be together in the stadium whenever Rose breaks the record. Musial has accepted the Phillies' invitation to be present on the night Rose appears to be on the brink of the record, team spokesman Larry Shenk says.

That could be this weekend in Atlanta or next week, when the Phillies return home to face Houston.

Although Rose is thrilled to become the No. 1 hit man in the 105-year history of the league, he isn't jumping up

Girls camp to stress full court strategy

The ninth annual basketball Camp of Champs for girls offered by Howard College in Big Spring will be emphasizing five man, full court basketball, according to Harold Wilder, Director of the Camp of Champs.

In addition to emphasizing the quick and proper execution of the fundamentals of shooting, dribbling, passing and defensive positioning, the Camp of Champs will provide valuable game experience at night, which will focus on the five man game.

The popular camp, held July 6-10, on the Howard College campus annually draws top players and coaches from the West Texas area. The campers live in the air-conditioned dormitory, eat at the college cafeteria, and utilize all the college facilities.

Players will be accepted if they will be in the fifth grade through Junior Varsity. Players will be grouped 8th and below in Little League, and ninth and above in Big League. All players receive individual instruction from top coaches.

More information may be obtained by contacting Wilder, at 267-8896.

Whiz kid Gretzky cops MVP in NHL

MONTREAL (AP) — Put one of hockey's most gifted playmakers against the premier goaltender in the game today for the National Hockey League's most valuable player award and the winning margin is a mere five points.

In the closest vote in the history of the Hart Memorial Trophy, Edmonton Oilers center Wayne Gretzky captured the league's MVP award for the second consecutive season, edging St. Louis Blues netminder Mike Liut.

Evert stunned in French Open

PARIS (AP) — Hana Mandlikova, the 19-year-old Czechoslovakian tennis star, upset defending champion Chris Evert Lloyd 7-5, 6-4 Thursday to reach the final round of the French Open tennis tournament.

The result ended a run of 64 straight victories on clay by the American, who was favored to win this prestigious title for the fifth time.

Sylvia Hanika of Germany defeated Andrea Jaeger 4-6, 6-1, 6-4 in the other semifinal.

Mandlikova and Hanika will meet in the final Saturday. Neither has reached the final before.

It was Lloyd's first defeat on the slow, clay courts of Roland Garros since 1973 when, at age 18, she lost to Margaret Court in the French Open final.

From August 1973 until Thursday, Lloyd had lost only one match of 196 on clay.

Lloyd led 3-0 in the first set before Mandlikova found her rhythm and unleashed a stream of brilliant forehands down the lines.

Earlier, Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia completed an upset over American John McEnroe 6-4, 6-4, 7-5 for a place in the semifinals.

The match began Wednesday night and Lendl won the first two sets, but McEnroe led 3-2 in the third when rain halted play.

McEnroe, seeded No. 3, briefly led when play resumed Thursday on the center court of Roland Garros stadium. Leading 30-0 overnight, he won the first two points to break service for a 4-2 lead. Then he held his own service with the loss of only one point and led 5-2.

But Lendl, the No. 5 seed, broke back and closed the gap to 4-5, driving every shot deep to the baseline, with

McEnroe netting three and overhitting another

Two games later McEnroe, 21, dropped his service again. He tried going forward, but sent a backward volley yards out of court, and then double faulted. Lendl, also 21, finished off the service break with a backhand return down the line.

The semifinals lineup pits Bjorn Borg of Sweden, the defending champion, against Victor Pecci of Paraguay, and Lendl against Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina.

Jimmy Connors, the No. 2 seed, lost his chance to advance to the semifinals Wednesday when he was defeated by Clerc.

Norway bans boxing

OSLO (AP) — Professional boxing will be banned in Norway before the Parliament starts its summer recess June 15.

The Odelsting lower house voted 54-24 in favor of the reform Tuesday night. Passage in the Lagting upper house is considered a mere formality.

After the ban is formally imposed, those staging professional boxing matches, taking part in such matches, or even in training or exhibition matches, can be punished with up to three months imprisonment.

The Nordic Council called for a ban of professional boxing in the Nordic countries in 1969. Sweden was the first nation to comply with the request.

Local boxers host bouts at Fair Barns tomorrow

The Big Spring Boxing Club will be hosting teams from Snyder, Sweetwater, Lamesa and a pair from Abilene tomorrow night for some exciting action at the Howard County Fair Barns.

The fighting will begin at seven o'clock, with approximately 20-30 bouts expected, which will include some excellent competition.

As well as the boxing, Garza's School of Taekwondo will present a demonstration during the course of the evening. Taekwondo is a form of karate.

The Big Spring boxers are a rapidly improving outfit, with interest increasing, as evidenced by the addition of two more coaches in the form of Danny Morales and David Baldwin.

UT stays alive in Series

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The anticipated battle of outstanding pitchers failed to materialize when No. 2 Miami, Fla., faced No. 4 Texas.

Longhorn star Tony Arnold, 17-1, pulled a groin muscle in his pregame warmups and never threw a pitch to Miami. Texas is still alive in the tournament but the injury could have sidelined Arnold for the rest of the tournament, according to Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson.

Hurricane star Neal Heaton was stung by two Texas homers in suffering his first loss of the year, 5-4, in a Thursday elimination game. Heaton had been 16-0 coming into the game.

Arnold had been 17-0 prior to meeting Arizona State in a first-round CWS game.

In the earlier Thursday game, South Carolina caught Mississippi State on a late-inning squeeze play and held off the Bulldogs 6-5 to advance to Saturday's games.

The Gamecocks will face No. 1 and 52-12 Arizona State while Texas faces third-ranked and 51-19 Oklahoma State. Game times will be announced following the game tonight between Arizona State and Oklahoma State.

"I was out on the mound throwing my usual warmup pitches and the first pitch I threw to the plate I pulled my right groin," said Arnold. "I couldn't push off with my right leg. It was real disappointing."

But Arnold's Texas teammates hammered two of Heaton's fastballs over the fence.

Cotton Mize Invitational boasts tough 12-team field

The Fourth Annual Cotton Mize Fast-Pitch Invitational kicks off tonight at eight o'clock at Johnny Stone Park, with a winner expected to be unveiled by late Saturday night.

The tournament sponsored by the fast pitch softball whiz of many years boasts many fine teams in the West Texas-Eastern New Mexico area, which no doubt will make it tough for Cotton's Chippers to repeat as the champion of the event.

Among the 11 teams entered include Lamesa, which won the state fast-pitch title two years ago, as well as a pair of local teams. Those are West-Tex Wrecking and Big Three. Big Three plays out of Coahoma.

Besides the four squads already mentioned, others gunning for the crown in the Cotton Mize Invitational include three teams from Carlsbad, N.M.; as well as one each from Hobbs, Sterling City, Levelland and Odessa.

The tournament is a double elimination affair. All but one of the teams will play tonight, with action resuming again tomorrow morning at eight o'clock. It will run straight through until a winner is decided.

Cotton's Chippers currently sport a record of 26-6, which includes the championship in the San Angelo Tournament. In that tourney, Big Three finished second.

Pitching for the Chippers in the tournament will be Sam Kerby and Johnny Mize, with recently converted softball hurler Larry Smith a possibility. The Chippers also boast All-State infielder Kenny McMurtrey in their lineup.

All action will take place at Johnny Stone. A concession stand will also be open.

Arencibia wins popular Marquez Bros. handball

Bill Arcencibia emerged as the winner in the increasingly popular Second Annual Marquez Brothers Invitational Handball Tournament the past week at the local YMCA.

Arencibia, a local player, ousted Harold Longham of San Antonio to claim the honors in the Class A competition. Claiming third place among the handball toughies was Henry Flores of Lubbock.

Raul Marquez captured the title in the B Division, defeating Jesse Marquez, Austin's Tom Hill placed third in the B Division.

In the C Division, Big Spring's Craig Neighbors claimed the championship distinction.

A total of 25 players entered the Marquez Brothers affair. As well as the trophies and T-shirts that were presented, a home cooked Mexican food dinner was served to all participants on the final day of action.

Postage remains 18 cents this year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of mailing a letter probably will stay at 18 cents for the rest of 1981, but the rate could increase as much as a nickel next year.

For the second time, the Postal Rate Commission refused Thursday to let the Postal Service implement a 20-cent charge for mailing a first-class letter. The commission, which regulates mail charges, said the rates are sufficient for the Postal Service to break even.

The Postal Service had no comment on the decision, but Postmaster General William F. Bolger has said that without the 20-cent rate now, charges probably will have to be increased again next year. Although he did not specify what the higher rate would be, it could reach as high as 21, 22 or 23 cents.

The Postal Service had asked the commission to reconsider its Feb. 19 decision allowing the rate to rise this year from 15 to 18 cents. The service said that wasn't enough to keep up with higher expenses.

The commission reaffirmed its earlier stand by a 4-1 vote. The result likely will be a new Postal Service request for a rate increase that could take effect next year.

The Postal Service request for reconsideration cited President Reagan's proposed cuts in the postal subsidies and said the current rates will bring the Postal Service about $1 billion a year less than it needs.

In reconsidering the February decision, the commission said the Postal Service asked for $900 million more annual revenue than it needs to break even.

The commission said it looked at Postal Service financial reports for periods later than those available during the earlier hearings. "Those recent reports demonstrate financial developments favorable to the Postal Service," it said.

All five commissioners filed individual opinions. "With our decision and strong indications that mail volume and postal revenues are increasing, the Postal Service will surely break even" in the test year considered in the case, Commissioner Simeon M. Bright said.
