Rejects foreign condemnation of raid

Begin basking in Israeli glory

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli newspapers rang with praise today for Prime Minister Menachem Begin's decision to bomb an Iraqi nuclear reactor, and the voters who will decide his political fate June 30 seemed pleased with the daring raid.

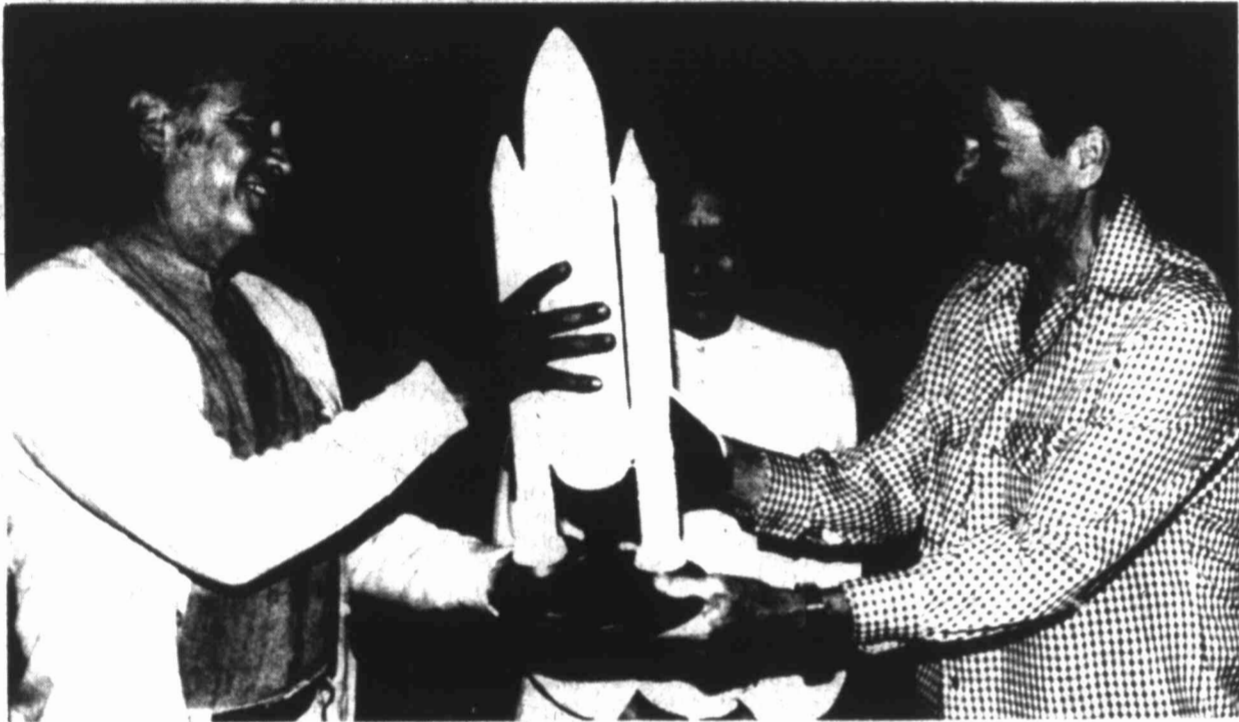

Israeli planes, flying a circuitous route over Saudi Arabia, bombed the reactor outside the Iraqi capital of Baghdad on Sunday. A French technician was killed, but Iraq did not issue an immediate report on any Iraqi casualties.

Begin defended the raid, saying Iraq planned to use the reactor for manufacturing nuclear weapons to bomb Israel. Arab leaders condemned the attack as an "act of terrorism" and the United States condemned the action.

The mission met with widespread approval in Israel. "Israel acted according to an old rule, hit them before they hit you," the conservative daily Maariv said in an editorial. The newspaper said Israel had a "complete right to act before the threat to her existence was realized."

The liberal daily Haaretz editorialized, "There is no doubt that the danger that threatens us from the eastern front has been diminished." Haaretz' military writer, Zeev Schiff, said in a commentary, "What the Israeli pilots did in this complex and dangerous operation was like entering a beehive, taking the queen and getting away without being stung."

Foreign Affairs and Security Committee, where members of the Labor Party would get their first full report on the raid. The prime minister dismissed widespread foreign condemnation of the Israeli bombing. "We are not afraid of any reaction by the world," Begin said in a broadcast Monday night. "We had to act to safeguard the safety and wellbeing of the Israeli people."

U.S. fears escalating Mideast tensions after Israeli attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is bracing for what officials say may be an ominous escalation of tensions in the Middle East following Israel's destruction of an Iraqi nuclear reactor with American-made jet fighters.

Administration officials and congressional leaders condemned the attack and voiced fears Monday that it might generate anti-American anger in the Arab world, sabotage ongoing U.S. peace initiatives and even produce a cutoff of American arms sales to Israel.

The State Department said Sunday's raid could accelerate existing tensions in the region. Despite Israel's claims that the French-built reactor posed a "mortal danger" to Israel, available evidence suggests that American-made equipment was used by Israel in "possible violation" of U.S. law, the department said.

Reagan, Lopez Portillo pledge neighborly cooperation, trust

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Reagan and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo, publicly submerging any differences, are stressing trust and neighborly cooperation in their talks at this mountaintop retreat.

Devolving extraordinary personal attention to his guest, Reagan spent more than 3½ hours Monday in discussions with Lopez Portillo, took him horseback riding and capped the day with a candlelight dinner on the terrace overlooking Reagan's pool.

While we deal with you as a representative of a great nation, we can't help but think of you as brothers," Reagan said in a toast following the roast sirloin dinner.

Sakharov's stepson to marry Moscow sweetheart by proxy

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — The 24-year-old stepson of exiled Soviet dissident and Nobel laureate Andrei D. Sakharov arranged to marry his Moscow sweetheart today by proxy, hoping the brideless wedding will help her win permission to join him in America.

Chronica Press, an emigre magazine. Reached at a motel in Butte, Kline said he was acting as a legal representative for the bride. "I'm sure getting married by proxy is not a very satisfactory way for her," he added.

Alexey Semyonov and Liza Alexeyeva, also 24, met while studying together in Moscow but were separated when Semyonov emigrated to the United States in 1978, relatives say.

Semyonov could not be contacted. Sakharov, 60, a physicist who won the Nobel Prize in 1975, was expelled from Moscow and sent into internal exile in Gorky, 260 miles east of Moscow, in January 1980 for his dissident activities.

Miss Alexeyeva was officially denied permission to emigrate May 11 because "she lacked the grounds for a reunion," said the bridegroom's sister, Tanya Yankelevich of Newton, Mass. Both Mrs. Yankelevich and Semyonov are Sakharov's stepchildren.

Sakharov has made an exit visa for Miss Alexeyeva a condition for resuming cooperation with official Soviet research institutes.

Last month in Moscow, Sakharov's wife, Yelena Bonner, said passport officials informed Miss Alexeyeva there was "insufficient reason" to let her leave for Boston to get married.

Mrs. Yankelevich said she believes the Soviet government has denied Miss Alexeyeva permission to leave the country as a means of "harassing and putting pressure" on Sakharov so he will "stop his activities."

The young woman also was expelled from college and has been subjected to harassment and questioning from police, Mrs. Yankelevich said.

"The Soviets will have to recognize this as a legal marriage," she said.

U.S. military equipment supplied to foreign countries can be used only for defensive purposes, and the administration is preparing a report for Congress on whether Israel violated that provision.

After a briefing by Deputy Secretary of State William Clark, Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., told reporters that if Israel were in violation of the statute, "there would be a prohibition for a period of time on selling more arms to them."

Earlier, Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, called the Israeli raid "an offensive act, not a defensive act," which "may destroy" the Camp David peace process.

Administration officials said the attack could complicate special envoy Philip Habib's attempts to defuse tensions between Israel and Syria.

Habib left Paris on Monday for the Middle East to resume his peacemaking effort after a 12-day pause. His destination was not announced.

Beyond the Habib mission, officials wondered where the seemingly endless spiraling of tensions in the Middle East would end. By flying 600 miles deep into hostile Arab territory, one official noted, the Israelis added a new military dimension to their decades-long conflict.

The administration adamantly insisted it had no prior knowledge of the Israeli attack. But Pressler, echoing a sentiment heard around the State Department, said the Arab world undoubtedly perceives otherwise.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., who also attended the briefing by Clark at County commissioners received good news at Monday afternoon's meeting. County tax collector-assessor Mike Burt reported mineral valuations for the next year will be $390 million. Those figures come from Pritchard and Abbott, the firm hired by the county to determine mineral values.

Last year's mineral valuations were $276 million. New production totals $34,400,000, which Burt estimates will add $80,000 to $90,000 in new tax dollars to the county's funds.

Additionally, this will mean approximately $50,000 in new funds for the hospital district.

Additionally, Gladys Odom was named to replace Geneva Jones as assistant librarian, effective July 1. Ms. Jones is resigning as of July 1.

Apply now for financial aid at Howard College

Students who plan to attend Howard College during the fall semester and are in need of financial aid should apply now for financial aid, according to Ann Duncan, director of financial aid.

Howard College offers a wide range of financial aids. Included among these are grants, scholarships, work study jobs, and short and long term loans.

"The process of applying is simple and must be done on an individual basis," said

Duncan. "Each person should complete the Basic Grant application. These applications are kept in high school counselor's offices and the Financial Aids Office at Howard College.

"The best way to determine if you qualify for financial assistance is to come by the financial Aids Office," Duncan concluded.

The Financial Aids Office is located in the Administration Building on campus, or call 267-6311, extension 28.

The intruder broke into the store and stole five chain saws, a display case full of tape measures, six aluminum levels and a large variety of other tools and merchandise valued at over $1,250. On Monday afternoon, however Officer Mike Hillers and Sgt. Jimmy Hensley received a tip that some of the stolen merchandise might be located at a local home.

Colorado City school trustees eye results

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Highlighting a three-hour meeting of the Colorado City school trustees Monday night were the results of the Texas Assessment of Basic Skills recently compiled.

According to Supt. of Schools Charlie Uselton "these tests were administered for the first time to our third grade students, as well as to previously tested fifth and ninth graders. Overall, we were quite proud of our students, even though we aren't satisfied with some of the scores; however, we are improving, and if we continue at the current testing rate, and maintain the level of improvement shown from previous testing, we will be in good shape with continued progress."

In additional board business, Supt. Uselton announced no bids were received for the Building Trades Class housing project. Uselton mentioned the current interest rate level is a contributing factor but the school district will open bids again in July with the hope some bids will be received prior to the project's needing to be begun.

A change in the grading system will be implemented this fall, with report cards a number grade rather than a letter grade. Uselton reported a survey of school faculty had ascertained a desire for this change, with an explanation of each number grade as it relates to a letter grade on each report card.

Uselton also noted drawings have been accepted and cost figures are being sought concerning remodeling of administration building space with the possibility of renting the remodeled facilities to the tax appraisal board, which is seeking office space.

Final business included a decision to appoint a committee to ascertain the use of energy in the school system to determine in what areas conservation can be accelerated. The committee will consist of persons in both educational field as well as experts in this particular field.

Allen Ludden dead at 63

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Allen Ludden, longtime host of the popular television game show "Password," died early today after a long battle with cancer, a family spokesman said.

Ludden, 63, died at Good Samaritan Hospital at 1:25 a.m. PDT, said Larry Bloustein, a spokesman for Ludden's wife, actress Betty White.

He had been in and out of the hospital in recent months because of ailments stemming from cancer that was diagnosed a year and a half ago.

But the exact cause of death was not immediately known, said hospital spokeswoman Betty Sheller.

During a visit to Monterey last fall, Ludden went into a coma and was forced to leave "Password" in its 20th anniversary year.

In January he told The Associated Press he hoped to return to television if only to thank the fans who had sent him their good wishes during his illness.

"I've been on television for about 20 years, and I just did my job," he said. "But the mail that I have had, the prayers I've had — I start to cry every time I talk about it. ... You just don't realize how many people can really relate to you and care about you."

He did some TV commercials for the Southern California Gas Co. after that, but never returned to "Password."

Ludden's broadcast career began before World War II, but he was most identified with "Password," which he emceed from its inception in 1961.

The show, in which contestants tried to figure out a mystery word based on one-word clues given by a partner, was one of a few of its kind to become a hit on prime-time television. In its heyday, it attracted an impressive roster of celebrity guests who never before wanted to appear on game shows, including Lucille Ball, Fred Astaire, Jack Benny and Olivia de Havilland.

"Password" parties became a Hollywood thing," Ludden once recalled. "I remember Peter Lawford having a lot of them."

Suspect reports wrong

ATLANTA (AP) — A top police official today dismissed as "not accurate" reports that a witness had given authorities a possible link between the man they questioned extensively last week and one of the 28 black youths murdered here.

"All I can say is that the ... (report) you read me is not accurate," said Deputy Chief Morris Redding, commander of the special police task force investigating the slayings.

The report said a witness approached police overnight with information that he saw the black man questioned by police with Yusuf Bell two days before the 9-year-old Bell was last seen alive. Bell was last seen Oct. 21, 1979, heading to a grocery store. He was found strangled two weeks later, his body stuffed into a crawl space under an abandoned school in southeast Atlanta.

Beverly Harvard, Public Safety Department spokeswoman, said Commissioner Lee Brown would have no comment on the matter.

Fulton County District Attorney Lewis Slaton said he had no knowledge about a witness, adding, "It doesn't sound real important — you're going back a long ways (with the Bell case)."

Meanwhile, police continued their surveillance of the man they questioned for 12 hours last week, but authorities said they do not have sufficient evidence to make an arrest "at this time."

And thousands of running, squirming children poured into city recreation centers for the opening of "Safe Summer '81" — a multimillion-dollar program aimed at protecting youngsters.

The recreation program, which got under way Monday at 61 sites, was conceived during the winter as officials sought ways to keep children under close supervision once schools close for the summer.

All but five of the 28 young blacks found slain in the Atlanta area since July 1979 have been 17 or younger. A special police task force has been investigating, but no one has been charged in any of the cases.

Representative Larry Don Shaw Reports from Austin

Legislature adjourns ... for time being

At long last, the Legislature adjourned at midnight on Monday, June 1. Unfortunately, a number of issues were not resolved before the constitutional deadline and we will have to come back this summer for a special session.

Among the matters that will probably be considered in the special session are congressional redistricting, the establishment of a state water trust fund, passage of the Medical Practices Act, several amendments to clean up some problems with the property tax reforms passed in 1979, and higher education funding. In addition, I am requesting that the Governor include in his call the bill to exempt gasoline from the nickel-per-gallon state gasoline tax. This measure nearly passed during the regular session, but one senator's delaying tactics during the final days succeeded in killing it.

All in all, I was pleased

County Extension agent Don Richardson will coordinate the seminar. Speakers will include Charles Neeb, an area entomologist, Bob Bittsche of Moby Chemical, Buddy Ross, of Bio Insect Control, and David Foster, county extension agent for entomology (pest management).

Lybrand quits as councilman

LAMESA — Bennie Lybrand has resigned as a Lamesa city councilman to avoid any "possibility of conflict of interest" with the engineering firm he manages.

Lybrand's term of office would have ended in 1982. Lybrand was appointed to the council in 1978 when Ricky Smith resigned to become Lamesa city attorney and was elected to a regular term the following year.

"I feel I can more effectively serve the people and the City of Lamesa by making my engineering and surveying services available without any possibility of conflict of interest," Lybrand said, in announcing his decision to leave the council.

My bill to assist veterans exposed to Agent Orange during the Vietnam War was passed by both houses and has gone to the Governor for his signature. Passage of the bill was reported by the nationwide Cable News Network, by the CBS Evening News with Dan Rather, by the CBS Radio Network, and by National Public Radio. As a result, my office has received calls from legislators in states all around the country. If several other states enact similar legislation, I'm confident that the federal Veterans Administration will be forced to acknowledge the problem and begin to help these veterans. It's long overdue.

succeeded in passing a bill to prohibit the Highway Department from claiming and then selling the mineral rights to highway right-of-way lands acquired more than 40 years ago. As I explained when I introduced my bill, I view this recent Highway Department policy as an unfair raid on these mineral rights which, up until two or three years ago, had rightfully been retained by the owners of the land adjacent to the highways. In the end, the substance of my bill was included in a bill sponsored by Sen. Kent Caperton of Bryan, and we succeeded in passing it on the last day of the session.

Among my other successes, I have to include the pay raise we gave to the personnel of the Department of Public Safety. I originally introduced a separate bill to accomplish the DPS pay raise, but eventually we got it done by offering a floor amendment to the appropriations bill. My amendment, by the way, was the first one to win House approval during the appropriations debate after a long list of other amendments had gone down to defeat.

Later in the appropriations debate, I helped save the funding for the Deaf Infant Screening Program. The program was passed by the Legislature in 1979, but it was not funded at that time, and it appeared that the funding would be denied again this year until I joined with Rep. Ron Coleman of El Paso to convince the House to leave it in.

And, as I reported to you earlier, I co-sponsored the generic drug bill, which finally passed this session after dying in the previous three sessions. That one measure should save Texans millions of dollars each year on the cost of prescription drugs, and also help our sick and elderly people. I look forward to seeing you in person during the coming weeks before I have to return to Austin for the special session.

"The decision is an enormous victory for those fighting to end sex discrimination in employment," said Judith Lichtman, executive director of the Women's Legal Defense Fund.

The justices ruled that women who claim wage discrimination are not bound by a federal law requiring equal pay only for equal work. In essence, the justices made it illegal for women to be paid less simply because they work in jobs held primarily by females. But certain limitations still remain.

Free road map as rare as 30 cents gallon gas

By CHARLES PARKER
"Back When Gas Was 30 Cents a Gallon" is not just a song title by Tom T. Hall. It suggests a period in time when complete service on a car was standard procedure.

Station customers could not only get their tires and batteries checked and their windshields washed, they could pick up a road map just for the asking.

Those days, for the most part, may be gone for ever. Now gasoline is $1.25 a gallon. Motorists clean their own windshields and personally check the vehicle's oil dip sticks. And road maps have practically disappeared from some stations. The cost of reproducing them has gone so high, a station no longer feels he can afford that kind of give-away.

Those stations which still carry the Atlases charge anywhere from 25 cents to $1.50 each for them.

Some stations still give away maps as part of their service but they're getting fewer all the time.

The decision to phase out road maps, of course, was made by the major oil companies. Their officials either did not want to worry about production of the maps or else felt that the public should pay for what it gets.

A cross-country motorist feels obligated to know the road, so he has a decision to make. Does he make use of old maps, which in 10 years' time may have been sadly outdated? Does he trust his ability to read road signs and start out with any kind of a map? After all, the expense of such an aid is infinitesimal, compared to the cost of the trip overall.

Most people apparently opt to invest in a new map. After all, it's better than getting lost and most automobile drivers come to the conclusion that those specializing in such a service should not be deprived of the chance to show a fair profit for the contributions they're making to modern driving.

Another cease fire; more Syrian shelling

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An attempt by Saudi Arabia and Kuwait to mediate between the warring Syrians and Lebanese Christians produced another cease-fire, but the Christians immediately accused the Syrians of breaking it.

The Christian radio station, the Voice of Lebanon, said Syrian troops opened up with artillery, rockets and tank cannon on the besieged Christian city of Zahle, in east central Lebanon, just before the cease-fire was announced Monday.

Lebanese police in Beirut said they had no confirmation of the renewed shelling after a two-day lull in the Christian-Syrian fighting, which has spawned an Israeli-Syrian missile crisis that threatens to start a new Arab-Israeli war.

There have been dozens of cease-fires, most of them very brief, in the 10 weeks since the Syrians began attacking the Christians in Zahle.

At least 644 Lebanese have been reported killed in the fighting in Zahle and Beirut. Syria has not announced its casualties.

The foreign ministers of Saudi Arabia and Kuwait and the secretary-general of the Arab League met for the past three days with the foreign minister of Syria and leaders of Lebanese Christian and Moslem factions in the mountain resort of Beiteddin, 19 miles southeast of Beirut, in an attempt to work out a comprehensive peace agreement for Lebanon.

A communique said "all parties involved have pledged to abide by a cease-fire on Lebanon's entire territory." But it indicated there was no agreement on arrangements to end the fighting that has erupted periodically in Lebanon since the 1975-76 civil war.

The communique said the three foreign ministers — Prince Saud al-Faisal of Saudi Arabia, Abdul-Halim Khaddam of Syria and Sheik Sabah al-Sabah of Kuwait — would meet in Saudi Arabia on June 23 to prepare for another conference on July 4 with Lebanese President Elias Sarkis, a Christian, and Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan, a Moslem.

Informed sources said Syria's insistence that the Christians renounce Israeli support blocked a comprehensive truce. The sources said the Christian leaders agreed only to acknowledge "a unity of destiny between Lebanon and the rest of the Arab world," without specific reference to Israel.

U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib, who has been trying for the past month to ease the Syrian-Israeli standoff over Syrian missiles in eastern Lebanon, left Paris on Monday to resume his shuttle between capitals in the Middle East.

Women's groups applaud worker rights decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women's groups are applauding a Supreme Court decision that gives female workers a new right to seek wages equal to those of their male counterparts, but legal experts say many key questions remain open.

The high court, on a 5-4 vote, ruled Monday that women can use the sweeping provisions of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to file wage-discrimination lawsuits without proving that they perform the same jobs as men who get paid more.

"The decision is an enormous victory for those fighting to end sex discrimination in employment," said Judith Lichtman, executive director of the Women's Legal Defense Fund.

The justices ruled that women who claim wage discrimination are not bound by a federal law requiring equal pay only for equal work.

In essence, the justices made it illegal for women to be paid less simply because they work in jobs held primarily by females. But certain limitations still remain.

City's people must learn to expect less

The problems the City of Big Spring has experienced in the recent past are not an exception to the rule. Municipal governments everywhere are in the deep fry, according to a survey made of 275 cities by a congressional group.

Invariably, the cities of America are spending more on operations than they are taking in. That kind of an arrangement cannot long continue, although the worst offender of deficit spending — the United States of America — has done a pretty good job of surviving.

THE STUDY SHOWED that 79 percent of the municipalities will have less income than outgo at the end of their fiscal years.

Their plight will get worse as federal handouts are reduced as a part of the absolutely necessary budget balancing act being forced on Congress.

The solution has to be that the cities, like the state and federal governments, must find more efficient ways to deliver services and must quit giving "the people" everything they want.

WHILE THIS particular study did not delve deeply into reason for municipal budget deficits, the underlying causes are well known.

Employee pay and pension systems are bloated, the taxpayers being increasingly required to pay two people to do one job: One person on active duty and another in "retirement" at middle age.

Fire departments are universally overstaffed and police payrolls are, too, in many older cities. As is obvious to the eye, this overstaffing has not reduced losses of life and property to fire and crime. Cities must learn to do a better job with fewer people.

Other municipal bureaucracies likewise have too many supervisors and too-idle employees, often doing jobs that aren't necessary in the first place. Mass transit systems are an especially notorious arena for featherbedded work rules and union pay gouges.

THE SURVEY FURTHER confirmed another alarming practice: When budgets must be tightened, city halls refuse to bite the bullet and effect operating efficiencies. Instead, they cut back on street and park maintenance and on capital improvements.

Inevitably, this leads to further deterioration of the urban environment, reducing taxable values and breeding more crime and fires while making the cities less desirable and the suburbs more attractive for living.

Cities must quit looking to Washington for operating funds and the provision of local services. They must, instead, tighten their own belts and begin educating their citizenry to count on fewer "free" services.

And, like the federal government, cities must learn that reductions in, and a restructuring of, tax rates to encourage more investment capital will in the long run result in more tax revenue.

It's a simple lesson that politicians seem incapable of understanding.

Danger looms

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — This is an account of the odyssey of a reporter who tried to join the Kurdish underground which operates in the no-man's-land of the Iran-Iraq war.

The reporter is my bewhiskered associate, Peter Grant, who sought out the fierce mountain tribesmen who move dangerously between the warring sides. All he had was a portable typewriter, a camera and a letter of introduction from Kurdish leaders to a contact in a remote village on the Turkish-Iranian border.

HE ALSO POSSESSED youthful enthusiasm and some fluency in French (but none in Turkish). By battered bus, he traveled into the wilds of Turkish Kurdistan. The military regime keeps tight control over the border regions, and contact with Kurdish separatists is strictly forbidden. So Grant adopted the unlikely guise of a tourist far off the sightseeing circuit.

He quickly discovered that it was impossible to avoid instant and overwhelming attention. Merely asking directions to the next village drew dozens of curious spectators. "What I was trying to do, I realized, was something like leading a camel caravan through the streets of a small Midwestern town and asking to see the mayor — without attracting the attention of the barbershop crowd," Grant reported.

Because of the ever-present danger of bandits, buses traversing the mountain passes are provided with submachine-gun-toting soldiers for protection. Additional soldiers are stationed at military checkpoints where the passengers were repeatedly searched for contraband — though fortunately not thoroughly enough to uncover the incriminating letter hidden in Grant's camera case.

Grant got past the checkpoints by repeating the word, "Tourist," with shrugs of incomprehension until he reached what turned out to be the last checkpoint. He reported:

"Suddenly I heard behind me in perfect English, 'Just what are you doing here, Mr. Grant?' I whirled around to find the commanding officer of the district, who happened to have spent a year in the United States on a Pentagon training program.

"He did not buy my tourist story. When I told him the village I was heading for, he said: 'There is nothing touristic to see there.' He ordered me outside and had one of his men frisk me. After I passed the search, he said apologetically, 'You know the problems we have in my country. It is terrible the things we have to do.'

"Then, to show there were no hard feelings, he offered me a seat and gave me a cup of sweet milk to drink while he roughly interrogated other passengers."

WHEN GRANT FINALLY reached the village, he ducked into a native restaurant, ordered some food and — as casually as he could — mentioned the name of his contact to the waiter.

The waiter passed the name to another customer, who left briefly and returned with a third man. The three of them then led Grant out and down the street — picking up a dozen curious villagers along the way. They escorted him to an office and pointed to a mustachioed man seated behind a desk.

One of the crowd spoke French, and gladly served as interpreter. The man at the desk was the son of Grant's contact.

"Where is your father?" I asked. "He is dead," the man answered. "What did you want with him?" Grant could hardly explain his purpose in front of half the village. "I murmured something about just wanting to say hello. Then I shrugged, said goodbye and walked back to the bus station for the long trip to Ankara."

In the capital, Grant made one last try. He knew that his supposed contact had another son living in Ankara, and after two days of searching, he found the man and gave him the letter.

"His hand shook as he read it," Grant reported. "He handed it back to me and told me if I tried to contact him again he would call the police."

The next day, Grant found two plainclothesmen waiting for him at his hotel. "Where is the letter?" they demanded. "I threw it away," Grant replied. "What did it say?" "I don't know. I was just delivering it as a favor for a friend in America."

For some reason, the detectives believed him. The visions of "Midnight Express" faded from his mind. But after they left, Grant decided he had used up all his luck in the search for the Kurdish underground. "Next time," he wrote, "I'll let them find me."

WATCH ON WASTE: The buddy system is thriving in the Defense Nuclear Agency. Pentagon auditors discovered recently that out of 115 contracts, worth $41.9 million, all but one had been awarded without competitive bidding, and the same 10 major contractors get the lion's share of the agency's contracts.

"When... and how is this dopey-looking bird supposed to start flying?"

Back to bribery

Art Buchwald

The White House has proposed a serious relaxation in the 1977 Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, which was intended to prevent American companies from bribing foreign officials.

The administration maintains that the United States is losing too much business to competitors because we can't grease the palms of some of our best customers.

If Congress goes along with it, American executives are going to have to do a complete switch, as most of them had given strict orders not to offer bribes for contracts abroad. The truth of the matter is, U.S. company sales reps are out of practice.

A FRIEND OF mine from a multinational confessed this to me the other day. "I was pretty good at bribing politicians abroad in my time," he told me. "But I think I've lost my touch."

"It will come back," I assured him. "It's like a foreign language. All you need is a little practice."

"That's why I came over tonight," he said. "I was hoping you would help me brush up."

"Sure," I told him. "Why don't you play yourself and I'll play the brother-in-law of the president of a country where you're trying to get a big order."

"That would be great. Let's pretend that we're having dinner at the brother-in-law's palace."

"You're on."

"Your Excellency, thank you for your wonderful hospitality. I have never had such a sumptuous banquet in my life."

"It is my pleasure, Mr. Doppel. Tell me, what brings you to Enchilada?"

"My company is interested in arranging a contract for the sale of puppy formula. We believe this could make a great health contribution to Enchilada, as it would save your dogs from breast-feeding their young."

"Everyone has been offering us puppy formula. What are your terms?"

"A five-year, low-interest, financed contract in which you would guarantee to buy $10 million of formula at world market prices."

"That's very interesting. My brother-in-law would like that. But what about his wife's foundation for the widows and orphans of Enchilada?"

"We would be happy to make a contribution."

"Good. The money is to be deposited in Switzerland."

"Why Switzerland?"

"That is where the foundation has its headquarters."

"No problem. Then it's a deal?"

"Not yet. I'm sure your country is interested in the welfare of our people. I am the president of Enchilada United Way, and we are in the middle of our fund drive."

"Of course. Our company always gives to the United Way."

"HERE IS THE numbered bank account of the Enchilada United Way in Liechtenstein. Just have your bank wire my cousin's bank in Miami. He is treasurer of the fund."

"Our bank will attend to it. Can we sign a letter of agreement now?"

"I'm not in the position to sign such a letter. That has to be done by my uncle, who is minister of commerce. I will write a note to him, but I warn you he's a tough man to deal with. He only accepts diamonds."

"We'll find diamonds. Anyone else on the list. I should know about that?"

"If you could find it in your heart to spare a few dollars for Army Chief General Valdez's Veterans Hospital, he would be eternally grateful."

"Of course. Where is the hospital?"

"It hasn't been built yet. But he'll be happy to show you the plans."

"If my company has anything to say about it, he shall have his hospital."

"You've done great," I told Doppel. "You're going to make a great comeback in the international bribery business."

"Whew," he said, relieved, "for a while I thought I had lost my fast ball."

Around the rim Out with class

Richard Horn

Last Thursday, without fanfare or even a mention in TV Guide, The Waltons said goodnight for the last time. After close to ten years on Thursday nights, one of television's most solid programs has been cancelled because of low ratings.

Like most other people my age, I thought "The Waltons" was a pretty stupid show when it first appeared. There were these kids called Jim Bob and John Boy (John Boy?), a couple of nifty grandpa figures who actually lived in the same house with everybody else, and a general store clerk named, yes, Ike.

THE REST OF MY family found the show interesting and was often there to watch but I always had better things to do. After a while, those better things became boring and I slowly got hooked. I never admitted it to anyone else, but I found myself relating to the children on the show, to the point of getting misty eyed when John Boy finally left the mountain to go out and seek his fortune.

The show wandered after that, with everybody dying or moving to Arizona. I wandered too, as many other people did, apparently. When I caught up with it again a few months ago, I realized that despite its sometimes silly plots and cavity-provoking sentimentality, it was one of the best shows on television.

What saved it was the intelligence of its creator, Earl Hamner. Hamner was the show's guiding force and the true-life model for John Boy. I'm sure he fictionalized quite a bit as he went along, but "The Waltons" never lost the affectionate memories that made it so sturdy.

It is ironic that the show was cancelled at the same time as groups like the Coalition for Better Television are putting pressure on networks to put more shows like "The Waltons" on the air. If those lobby groups are successful, an unfortunate effect will be that the resulting programs will be "moral" just for the sake of advertising. They will loudly proclaim their morality on the surface, but will probably be rotten to the core — just the way most of today's programs are.

THAT MAY PLEASE the leaders of the coalition, but it won't make watching television very much fun. I don't know what Jerry Falwell likes to watch, but I don't imagine he and I would get along too well in a room with one TV. "The Waltons" was one of the few shows that we could probably agree on.

But now it will not be so. About the only programs I ever tried to watch regularly were "The Waltons," MASH, and, of course, "Lou Grant." Now I understand that CBS is letting the Korean War end next season, so Hawkeye will shortly be returning to Crab Apple Cove, Maine. Things do not bode well for my little idiot box.

But "The Waltons" went out with class and without hype. You could not even tell it was the final show until Earl Hamner came on at the end to ask that we remember Walton's Mountain the way he did, and the way he let us. He said a final goodnight and that was it.

Chances are it will stay off the air with class, also. Nothing could be worse than to see CBS in such dire straits five years from that they gather the cast for a television extravaganza: "Gilligan's Island on Walton's Mountain."

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Why don't you speak out more on political issues? It seems to me you could do a lot of good if you did. — S.J.L.

DEAR S.J.L.: There are several reasons I do not feel it would be right for me to do this, but the main one is that I believe God has given me the specific and definite calling to be an evangelist.

If I become involved in partisan political issues I will inevitably be diverted from the calling God has given me. I have much the same feeling as the Apostle Paul: "I cannot boast, for I am compelled to preach. Woe to me if I do not preach the gospel!" (1 Corinthians 9:16).

Having said that, let me add several other things to clarify my personal position. For one thing, I believe there are some people who are called of God to become very actively involved in political matters. I am thankful for Christian politicians I have met — men and women who are seeking to live for Christ and serve him in the political arena.

I am also thankful for the governmental officials of all kinds who believe God has placed them in their positions of responsibility and are seeking to be faithful to him in their duties.

A minister of the Gospel — whether he is a pastor, an evangelist, or has some other responsibility — is primarily called of God to proclaim the Gospel. Paul told the young pastor Timothy, "Preach the word, be diligent in season and out of season, convince, rebuke, and exhort, be unfailing in patience and in teaching... do the work of an evangelist, fulfill your ministry" (2 Timothy 4:2,5, RSV).

Lecithin benefits remain uncertain

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: In the vitamin booklet I ordered there was nothing about lecithin. Could you write an article on this? I understand it is very helpful to clear one's arteries and keep circulation good. True or false? — E.S.

Much has been written about the benefits of lecithin, much of it interesting. However, more studies will have to be done before claims made for it can be proven.

To begin with, a well-balanced diet is abundant in lecithin, which is found in many plant and animal products.

Much of the interest in lecithin surrounds its chief component, choline. This chemical is necessary for the proper working of brain cells, so one claim for lecithin is improvement of memory. It has been used experimentally for some neurological diseases. It is also involved in the blood cholesterol levels. That is how the circulation claims you heard about arise. But since a balanced diet supplies ample amounts of the substance and since the body manufactures its own in its own way, there is seldom a need for supplements.

On the other hand, I have found nothing indicating toxic effects of lecithin, so I assume it is safe. I cannot give you any more scientific advice about it. I don't believe it will hurt you, but I cannot state unequivocally at this moment that it will help you. If more conclusive studies are published, I'll print that.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have dizziness when I get up the morning and sometimes after working during the day I get dizzy when I stand up from a sitting position. I am told that this is postural low blood pressure. Have you any comments about this to help me? — Mrs. G.P.

You may have postural hypotension. Certainly these symptoms indicate that. But if it is you would want to be examined for the cause. That can range from neurological problems to unsuspected blood loss.

There are some mechanical measures you may want to try, such as sleeping with the head of your bed elevated (up to a foot). This will help eliminate the problem in the morning if postural hypotension is what you have. You should also sit on the edge of your bed before getting up on your feet. Specially-fitted elastic hose can be worn. Put them on before arising, that is while you are still lying in bed.

Certain exercises can help, but I would prefer to leave their description and prescription to your doctor, who you really should see about this. Various causes of dizziness are discussed in the booklet "Dizzy Spells." For a copy, write me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

What can vitamins really do for you — and what can't they do? In his new booklet, Dr. Paul Donohue separates the common sense from the nonsense about this controversial health aid. For your copy of "Vitamins: Facts You Need to Know," send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Judge: Transfer of Iran's assets unconstitutional

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. District Judge Robert O. Porter says former President Jimmy Carter overstepped his constitutional authority when he ordered $20 million in frozen Iranian assets transferred to a New York Federal Reserve Bank.

Porter made permanent a temporary injunction that he granted in February 1980 at the request of Electronic Data Systems, when he halted the transfer of $20 million in Iranian funds frozen by Carter Nov. 14, 1979.

The money is being held under court-ordered injunction in New York's Midland Bank while the Iranian government appeals Porter's May 9, 1980 award of $20 million to EDS in a breach of contract suit that involved Iran's failure to pay for a data processing system installed by EDS.

About 450 claims have been filed by U.S. companies against Iran since the American Embassy was seized in November 1979.

The money is part of $4 billion that was to have transferred to the Federal Reserve Bank in New York July 19. An international claims commission was to have settled any claims against the Iranian government.

Carter ordered all claims against Iran suspended and for companies to file their claims with the international commission.

Porter wrote in his opinion, released Sunday, that Carter lacked either "statutory or constitutional authority" to order the money transferred to the New York bank as part of an agreement with Iran to release the 52 American hostages.

In his 26-page opinion, Porter wrote that he was basing his decision on whether the President of the United States has the authority to suspend or nullify rulings made in court, a reference to the original award.

"The issue is," he wrote, "whether the power exercised by the president alone, without the consent of Congress, may constitutionally undo what the Congress has expressly directed the courts to do."

"Congress is free to suspend pending claims brought under the (Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act), or may even, with a clear act of delegation, authorize the president to do so."

"It is my firm opinion, however," Porter wrote, "that the president may not do so alone."

Attorneys for the United States declined to comment on the ruling until they had time to study it.

But EDS attorney David Bryant said the decision, even though it involved a claim made prior to the freezing of the Iranian funds, might open the door for claims made after Carter's decision to hold the money.

"It (the opinion) could have much broader implications," Bryant said.

"All those creditors will have to make the decision whether to file their cases with the federal courts or with the international arbitration board."

He said he thought a lot of companies would pursue their suits through federal court instead of the international commission if Porter's decision is upheld.

Dear Abby

Elementary Solutions For Bowlegged Boy

DEAR ABBY: I teach fourth grade at Theiss Elementary School in Houston. My students are 9-10 years old, and they all read "Dear Abby" in the Houston Post. We discussed the letter from the 18-year-old boy who was so self-conscious about being bowlegged, he was afraid to ask a girl for a date. He signed himself BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE.

I told the students to pretend that they were "Dear Abby," and I gave them five minutes to answer that boy's cry for help.

I'm so proud of these children. I am sending you their letters to share with your readers if you think they are worth printing in your column.

JUDY (MRS. J.F.) FRANKLIN

DEAR JUDY: I do, and here are a few:

"DEAR BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE: Don't let it bother you. It's all right to be different. Everybody is different in some way. I'm different because I wear contact lenses."

JODI SIMME

"I have a suggestion for you. Lay on your bed and put your legs together, then tie them together with wide bands of material for about 10 hours. Make sure you have something good to read or watch TV."

ALTONETTE PERRY

"I know a very good bone specialist named Dr. Fitzgerald. He can fix just about any bone problem. Try him."

JIM REILLEY

"Don't be afraid to ask a girl for a date. It's the way you think and feel that counts. I don't know of any specialist you can go to, but keep trying if it means that much to you."

JENNY JONES

"Don't worry about it. The most world famous rodeo people have bow legs and so do some rock stars, so look around you. You will see that the real world is full of bowlegs."

HAL MILTON

"I had a problem with a leg once, and what you do is tie your legs together and stand on a slanted board. It stretches your tendons."

BRYAN FITZGERALD

"Don't feel down in the morning. Don't care if people laugh at you. Just prove you are as good as everybody else."

LISA TALKEN

I know just how you feel. When I was young, my joints were not together in my legs, and I had to wear braces. Maybe Dr. Stuart can help you. Your legs don't have to be perfect. Mine aren't.

ANGELA MULLER

"At my point of view, being bowlegged is quite unique. Keep asking other people if they will say yes then you will know you are not alone. That's regardless."

KATHY SMITH

"Some people have bow legs and they manage to live a normal life and you can do it too."

MONICA HANDY

"I'll try to find a doctor who can help you, and if I do I will send you the phone number."

Self-paced learning programs successful

Ninety-five percent of the children in school today can master any given subject well enough to deserve an "A" when they're allowed to learn at their own rate.

That positive assumption is the basis of "Mastery Learning", a revolutionary teaching technique started in mid-1960s and now used in about 3,000 schools in Chicago, Denver, New York, San Jose, and other major cities. So says a recent Family Circle magazine report, "The Schools Where Everyone Gets A's", by Anthony Brandt.

Mastery learning, says Brandt, challenges the system of instruction used in most schools that insists children learn the same things at the same time, with no regard for the different rates at which children learn.

Research studies at schools urging mastery training, says the magazine, show that this technique is a great success with parents, teachers and — most of all — kids. A controlled study in Chicago, for example, showed that mastery-taught students studying a second language achieved scores 25 percent higher than non-mastery-taught students. Eighty percent of the mastery-taught students at the Edward B. Shallow Jr. High School in New York "are doing B-level work or better, which is three times the usual rate," says that school's principal.

The logistics of setting up a mastery training program vary from school to school. In Family Circle, Brandt

Karen Spears is honored with shower

Karen Spears, bride-elect of Timmy Waters, was honored with a Tupperware party May 31 in the Signal Mountain Room of Coahoma State Bank.

Hostesses for the 2:30 p.m. event were Mrs. R. Lanham Hodnett, Pam Hodnett and Stacy Hodnett.

The refreshment table was covered with an antique lace crocheted tablecloth with yellow underlay. A glass basket, filled with handmade silk yellow daisies, served as centerpiece, and silver appointments were used.

The hostesses presented the bride-elect with a yellow daisy corsage and a recipe book containing recipes from the guests present.

Special guests included Mrs. Billy Spears, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Jim Waters, mother of the prospective groom.

The couple will exchange vows June 12 in the First Baptist Church, Coahoma.

NARFE meeting is announced

The June meeting of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees Chapter 1095, will begin at 9:30 a.m. Thursday with the program given by a barbershop quartet.

The meeting will be at the Kentwood Older Adults Activities Center on Lynn Drive. Following the program, a business meeting and fellowship will take place.

All federal retirees and guests are cordially invited to this meeting and then describes one of the most innovative programs, at Johnson City, New York, where different grades are combined under a single teaching team. In that city's Harry L. Johnson Elementary School, for example, the second, third and fourth grades are combined in two groups taught by two separate teaching teams. These groups are divided into smaller subgroups (of about six or seven children) according to the students' rate of learning in a given subject, not necessarily according to their grade level.

(For example, a third grader might learn arithmetic with fourth graders, reading with second graders and social studies with other third graders.) A team of teachers, often three or four to a team, divide their time among the small subgroups, giving each child individual attention directed to his or her specific learning needs at the moment. This allows teachers to monitor each child's progress. When a student in a subgroup has difficulties with a learning task, he receives individual attention.

Benjamin S. Bloom, professor of education at the University of Chicago and chief proponent and developer of Mastery Learning, advocates in the article, breaking subjects down into short, clearly defined "learning tasks," making sure the child masters the task before moving on to the next one.

According to Brandt, mastery learning also has psychic benefits. Children feel better as well as learn better. The Johnson City superintendent of schools Dr. John Champlin explains: "As children enjoy success, very positive feelings toward school; they want to attend."

Salt by any other name is still salt, says American Heart Association

If you're trying to cut down on salt, the American Heart Association suggests you learn what to look for when you check the contents of the foods you buy.

In addition to the words salt or sodium on food containers, check for other salty substances such as brine, di-sodium phosphate, benzoate, hydroxide propionate or sulfite, sodium glutamate, baking powder and baking soda. Actually, sodium is a mineral essential to life but if the body gets more of this mineral than it can handle, illness can develop.

Sodium and salt are not the same but salt, (sodium chloride), is about half sodium.

Baking soda (sodium bicarbonate or bicarbonate of soda) is most often used to leaven breads and cakes. Sometimes it is also used for indigestion but is not recommended for anyone with high blood pressure or on a salt-restricted diet for any other reason. An effective antacid with a low salt content such as Riopan can be taken instead, according to medical and pharmaceutical publications.

Researchers have found that sodium is a significant factor in the development of high blood pressure. However, they have also found that cutting down on salt helps to control high blood pressure.

Credit record is vital

COLLEGE STATION — Her own credit record is a "must" for the woman who is widowed or divorced, so it's important to establish one early, advises Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist.

"Because some women have no independent credit history, they may find credit accounts they've shared for years with their husbands suddenly terminated upon death or a divorce," the specialist explains.

Mrs. McCormack is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Here are her suggestions for building a credit record: Start your credit history in your own name — for example, Carol Bryan White, rather than Mrs. William White or just Carol White.

Open a savings account and a checking account in your name. Add to the savings account regularly, and don't overdraw your checking account. These two steps will demonstrate your ability to manage money.

Apply for a charge account at a local store. Pay bills promptly and in full so no finance charge will be assessed.

In addition, apply for a gasoline or national credit card and use other accounts as references.

'Genius' fugitive captured

NEW YORK (AP) — A genius fugitive who frustrated authorities with masterful disguises and taunting notes for 18 months — winning a spot on the FBI's most-wanted list — has been captured after a shootout in the lobby of a seedy Manhattan hotel.

Ronald Williams, 38, was shot Monday by one of seven FBI agents who had staked out the Hotel George Washington. He was reported in fair condition at Bellevue Hospital with wounds to the head, chest and arm.

Officials who have been chasing Williams called his capture "a wonderful thing."

Williams was serving a life term in the West Virginia Penitentiary at Moundsville for killing a police officer when he escaped in November 1979.

He also is wanted in Arizona for a murder last March and has been linked to crimes in Colorado and Pennsylvania, authorities say.

FBI Agent John Dalseg, who headed the stake-out team, said agents "had information" that Williams was going to be in the area. An FBI agent was posing as the desk clerk when Williams walked into the hotel shortly after noon.

Dalseg said Williams chatted with the "clerk" but became suspicious and pulled out a .38-caliber pistol.

Dalseg said the agent moved from behind the desk and pulled out his gun, shouting: "FBI! Drop the weapon!"

"Drop dead! Drop yours!" Williams reportedly replied as he pulled the trigger of his gun. But Williams' gun misfired, and another agent shot Williams, Dalseg said.

Dalseg said a 9mm handgun was found in a paper bag Williams was carrying.

Williams, who has spent half his life in prisons but has managed to escape from them at least five times, had a long record of arrests for armed robbery, kidnapping and arson when he was convicted of the 1975 murder of Police Sgt. David Lilly in Beckley, W.Va.

A coal miner's son who is said to have an IQ of 145, Williams took a Dale Carnegie course on "how to win friends and influence people" and studied the gold and silver market while at Moundsville.

Two years into his term, Williams escaped while being treated at a hospital but was caught a short time later. On Nov. 7, 1979, he and 14 other prisoners broke out of Moundsville. Officials said Williams probably was carrying between $5,000 and $6,000 made on the prison's black market.

Off-duty state trooper Philip Kesner was slain when the escapees commandeered his car as he drove past the prison. A prisoner was also slain.

Plan to end busing costs $53 million

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Independent School District officials say it would cost almost $53 million to end court-ordered busing and allow city students to attend neighborhood schools.

The Dallas school board and several intervenors in a pending desegregation case have asked U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders to halt mandatory busing and allow the school district to institute program changes they say would increase integration of the city's public schools.

The program changes would include a major construction program and would require approval of a $48.15 million bond issue, according to court documents. Another $3.4 million would be needed annually for new programs and $1.3 million would be needed to cover nonrecurring costs.

Not everyone approves of high interest rates

NEW YORK (AP) — It is now almost an article of faith that domestic inflation is caused by excessive growth of the money supply, and it is a dictum of monetary policy that high interest rates are the cure.

It is the uncritical acceptance of this analysis, and the resulting course of action, that explains why men such as John Wright can be seen holding their heads and looking baffled, frustrated and angry.

To Wright, who founded and presides over a respected service for institutional investors, including many banks, the theory is mindless and the course of action destructive. In short, it is mad.

If continued, he states in an analysis issued recently from Wright Investors' Service headquarters in Bridgeport, Conn., the current high interest rates "will destroy the American economic system."

First, "they take from the poor and add to the rich," says Wright, whose own portfolio choices regularly include the bluest of the blue chip stocks. He isn't against the rich; he is against poorness.

Next, he says, they diminish the producers and expand the lenders, and in his view that is somewhat contrary to the desires of most Americans. In his view, people have an instinctive desire to produce.

High rates "inhibit and diminish long-term capital investment, productivity, research and development, production and development of new sources and efficient applications of energy."

"They are," he states, "bankrupting small businesses, increasing the concentration of economic productive power, drastically reducing effective, competitive price cutting and have caused the highest rate of bankruptcies in our history since the Great Depression."

Mandrell sisters win most of Music Awards

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Barbara Mandrell and her sisters, who won or shared a host of awards, turned the 15th Music City News Cover Awards into a family bonanza.

The irrepressible Miss Mandrell was voted female vocalist of the year for the second time in the past three years Monday night and also was chosen top musician. Her NBC television show, "Barbara Mandrell and the Mandrell Sisters," was voted country music TV show of the year, and she and her captivating sisters, Louise and Irlene, were chosen as the top comedy act.

The winners, picked by readers of the Music City News, a Nashville-based music publication, were announced at the Grand Ole Opry House during a syndicated television show.

"I'm numb. I'm just numb," Barbara Mandrell told a reporter moments after the show. "I especially wanted to win top television show. It showed what the fans thought of the show."

Louise Mandrell won or shared three awards, earning most promising female vocalist along with sharing honors for No. 1 comedy act and top television show.

"I'd first like to say that Barbara is a great opening act," she quipped during her acceptance speech.

George Jones, a country music legend who has battled back from alcoholism, was voted male vocalist of the year and his throbbing song, "He Stopped Loving Her Today," was picked single record of the year.

Ex-wife Tammy Wynette accepted the awards for him, saying "it's been a great year for him."

The Statler Brothers were double winners, earning top group for the 10th straight year and No. 1 album for "Tenth Anniversary."

"We sign autographs every night until everyone leaves the building," said Don Reid of the veteran quartet. "This is to show you what we think of you. If this is what you think of us, we appreciate it."

Injured longshoreman's left foot is amputated

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Physicians today are closely watching an infection in Savannah longshoreman's left foot two weeks ago in a grueling operation have been forced to amputate one of the feet and now fear complications in the other one.

Physicians today are closely watching an infection in Ward's right foot, said the spokeswoman, Julie Guillebeau.

"His vital signs are stable. He's awake and alert," Ms. Guillebeau said after Ward's surgery.

Johnny Ward's left foot was amputated between the ankle and the knee Monday afternoon, 13 days after both feet were ripped off in a dockside accident and then reattached in a 12-hour operation at Talmadge Memorial Hospital, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The foot had been packed in ice all weekend to prevent deterioration of the tissue after blood ceased to circulate in the extremity on Friday, she said.

Ward and his severed feet were flown the 100 miles to the Augusta hospital for the reattachment surgery.

Electricity's costing a lot more this summer.

Live warmer and help hold down your bills.

You may not feel quite comfortable at first when you set your thermostat at 80° or higher, but most people adjust very quickly to living warmer. At the same time, if you dress cooler and use a fan, you may not even notice the difference. But it will help hold down your electric bill.
