Jet delivery to Israel is suspended

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, stopping short of a definite ruling that Israel violated an agreement to use American-made arms for defense only, is suspending delivery of four F-16 fighters to Israel "for the time being." But for now, no other reprisals are being taken.

Officials at the White House and the State Department said the suspension, following the Israeli bombing of an Iraqi nuclear reactor Sunday, would have no immediate effect on large military shipments to Israel due to start next month.

Israel called Reagan's decision "unjust," expressed "deep regret and disappointment" and said its destruction of the nuclear facility was a wholly justifiable act of self-defense from building atomic bombs.

Israel's friends on Capitol Hill took a similar line, while others said some agreements are meant to be kept.

The suspension was ordered Wednesday under provisions of the 1952 Mutual Defense Assistance Agreement, in which Israel pledged not to use military equipment provided by the United States "to undertake any act of aggression against any other state."

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes indicated today that the decision on resuming the shipments to Israel would depend to some extent on the outcome of investigations in Congress.

"The decision yesterday applies to the F16s and decisions on future shipments will be made in light of the outcome of congressional studies and studies within the administration," he said.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., criticized the action, saying that "after more thorough review, the administration will be compelled by the evidence to conclude that the mission was in fact an act of self-defense by Israel."

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., called the suspension "the right decision under the circumstances."

"I agree with it and I support it," he said.

The chairmen of the Senate and House Foreign Affairs committees said their panels will consider the issue soon. Senate hearings could open as early as next Wednesday.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate committee, said either Congress or the administration can act on the possible violation.

Democrats charge Reagan tax cut to favor rich over poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats charged today that President Reagan's tax cut plan is so tilted in favor of the wealthy that lower-income Americans won't be able to keep up with inflation — even after their taxes are reduced.

"There is a class system building up in this country," Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., said as John E. Chapoton, assistant treasury secretary for tax policy, explained Reagan's plan to the House Ways and Means Committee.

"This tax cut has a negative impact on low-income people when you take into account inflation and Social Security."

Chapoton said most Americans will have inflation and higher Social Security taxes offset once the plan is fully effective. He defended the plan as necessary to spur investment and put the economy on the road to stable growth.

Tax reductions would be made in roughly the same proportion as taxes are paid. The administration argues that high-income Americans should get an equal share of the tax cut because they pay more in taxes and more likely to invest their tax savings in ways that would benefit the economy.

Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y.,

cited figures indicating that persons earning less than $15,000 a year will face a tax burden that, because of inflation and higher Social Security taxes, will grow by about $10.3 billion by 1984. Those people will get only about $6.1 billion in tax reductions under the president's plan, Downey said.

By contrast, Downey said, persons with incomes above $200,000 a year would get a tax reduction that would far more than offset inflation and higher Social Security levies.

Chapoton stressed opposition to Democratic efforts to allow the third-year tax cut in the president's plan only if inflation drops as the administration predicts. He told the committee Wednesday that "we would not go for any" proposal that does not guarantee a third-year reduction.

Such a provision, he added, would remove the certainty that Reagan insists must be provided for investors and businesses.

"There's a lot of agreement up here" for such a "trigger" on the third-year tax cut, Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, told Chapoton. "But it seems like you'd rather go for broke."

Chapoton rejected Pickle's assessment as the committee began writing its version of a tax-cut bill. No votes were taken, although some might occur by Friday on Reagan's plan for cutting business taxes by allowing faster deductions for buildings and machinery.

Chapoton spent most of Wednesday explaining Reagan's revised tax-cut plan, first to the Senate Finance Committee, which generally supports it, and then to Ways and Means, which does not.

The Finance Committee agreed that any reduction in taxes on capital gains, the profits from the sale of assets, should be retroactive to Wednesday. That idea, suggested by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, was aimed at eliminating incentives for investors to delay their decisions until Oct. 1, when the bulk of the individual tax cuts would take effect.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., the Ways and Means chairman, told Chapoton that Democrats who control his panel insist that more tax relief be directed toward the working poor. And he repeated the Democrats' position that a tax cut be for a maximum of two years.

Rep. Barber B. Conable of New York, senior GOP member on the committee, said the president and other Republicans have a program "to give the American people a real tax cut — not an illusory one." Conable said anything less than a three-year cut would not do that.

Reports say up to 1,500 killed in Iran earthquake

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A strong earthquake rocked southeastern Iran early Thursday and a spokesman for the governor's office in stricken Kerman Province said between 1,000 and 1,500 people were killed.

The spokesman said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press in Beirut that 500 to 600 others were injured in Gol Bagh village, 43 miles southeast of Kerman, where "rescuers still are pulling victims from the massive rubble."

Earlier, reports of a strong earthquake in southeast Iran reached Tehran, the official Iranian news agency Pars confirmed, but there were no immediate accounts of the extent of the damage.

In Golden, Colo., spokesman Don Finley of the U.S. Geological Society said the quake had a Richter scale magnitude of 6.9 and was centered in the area of Kerman, the capital of the region of the same name and about 500 miles southeast of the Iranian capital of Tehran.

USGS geophysicist John Minsch in Golden, Colo., said the earthquake occurred at 10:54 a.m. Iranian time, (3:24 a.m. EDT).

A quake measuring only 5.8 magnitude hit in the same general vicinity in 1977, killing about 580 people and injuring another 1,000. The USGS said it had no immediate reports on casualties and injuries in today's quake, but Minsch said an earthquake of 6.9 magnitude in that particular part of Iran was likely to be damaging.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

An earthquake of 8 can cause severe damage. A 7 reading is a "major" quake, capable of widespread heavy damage.

The San Francisco earthquake of 1906 was estimated to register 8.3 on the scale.

Call limited to five topics Clements sets special session for July 13

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements told Texas legislators Wednesday there would be a special session July 13 to reconsider their major failures of the regular session that ended June 1.

"The call will be limited to these subjects only," Clements said after listing five major issues on which compromise talks broke down in the final hours of the 140-day session.

The 30-day special session must complete its work by Aug. 11 in order to submit any proposed constitutional changes for the Nov. 3 general election, Clements said.

Clements, who said even before the regular session closed that he would call a special session later in the summer, set this agenda for the summer session:

- Repeal of the state ad valorem tax.
  - Creation of a Texas water trust fund.
  - Congressional redistricting.
  - Revision of the property tax code.
  - Consideration of the medical practice act.
- If a Legislature is unable to complete its business in a regular session, the governor has the power to call one or more 30-day sessions and specify the subjects to be debated.
- "I have discussed the timing of the session and the issues to be considered with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton, and we are in agreement," Clements said in a prepared statement.

"The call will be limited to these subjects only. Since the first two topics will require constitutional amendments which we want to submit to voters on the November general election ballot, early and prompt attention to these matters will be necessary."

A spokesman said Clements' call for the special session did not necessarily exclude discussion of some new plan to provide construction funds for state colleges not in the University of Texas or Texas A&M systems.

"If they could work out some sort of procedure where there would be a definite repeal of the state ad valorem tax included, the governor will consider that," said Jon Ford, the governor's press secretary. Clements said he hoped legislative committees could begin meeting immediately "and initiate discussions on all of these issues so that solutions can be worked out in so far as possible prior to July 13."

He said he was giving legislators more than a month's notice in order that they could have adequate time to plan their summer activities and in order "that the committees can resolve some differences in advance."

Special session to cost Texas taxpayers almost $1 million

AUSTIN — Texas taxpayers will pay almost $1 million to give the state legislature a second crack at deciding what to do about licensing doctors, redrawing congressional district boundaries and cleaning up other unfinished business of the 1981 regular session.

The House and Senate had 140 days to decide those issues, but failed. Now, facing a special session, state budget analysts are busy computing how much it will cost to bring the state's lawmakers and their staffs back to the State Capitol.

Special sessions generally are used as threats by Texas governors near the end of a session in an attempt to gain leverage for pet bills. No lawmaker in his right mind, after all, would want to pay rent on an Austin apartment or hotel room any longer than necessary.

But this time Gov. Bill Clements had no choice but to tell lawmakers that they would be returning. And, in a turn of events, it's not Clements who has to take the heat. It was the House and Senate that failed to come up with plans to the state's 27 congressional seats.

Clements can call as many special sessions as he wants, but under the Texas Constitution each can last no longer than 30 days.

The cost of the special session for the 31-member Senate is expected to exceed that of the House, which has almost five times as many members as the more prestigious body across the Capitol rotunda.

Senate budget makers are estimating the cost of the 30-day special session at about $650,000 compared to the regular session cost of $800,000 per month.

"Things just don't get wound up like they do in the regular session," said Jim Smith, a Senate auditor. "Some of the committees stop functioning and there generally just isn't as much work going on."

The Senate's tab for the special session includes $30 per day expenses for each senator in addition to their regular $600 per month salaries.

House expenses are expected to run about $10,000 per day or $300,000 for the 30-day special session, according to Tom Treadway, the House's financial director.

Almost half of each day's expenditures will go to the 150 state representatives who also receive $30 per day in expenses.

Earth is speeding up, but don't reset clocks

WASHINGTON (AP) — If life seems faster today, it might not be your imagination.

The nation's chief timekeeper says that for the first time in a quarter century, the Earth's rotation has quickened.

This reverses — at least temporarily — an eons-old slowing pattern that has made the average day about an hour longer than when dinosaurs populated the planet, according to Dr. Gernot Winkler, head of the time division at the U.S. Naval Observatory.

The last rotation speedup was noticed by scientists in 1955, and the most recent major acceleration occurred in the latter part of the 19th century, Winkler said.

Many scientists believe the long-term slowing is caused by the friction of the oceans, which are pulled by the moon's gravity.

"The whole thing is not really too well understood," said Winkler, who speculated that slowdowns may be caused by friction within the Earth.

The Earth's core spins faster than its crust, he said, because the ocean friction and pull of the moon act directly on the surface.

It may be that the core acts somewhat like a flywheel, occasionally pulling the crust along to speed it up, according to Winkler.

He said some scientists speculate that the changes may be related to atmospheric pressure waves generated by the sun's heat or by interaction of the solar wind with the Earth's magnetic field.

To keep the nation's clocks even with astronomical time, a "leap second" is added periodically, Winkler explained.

"Leap seconds" were inserted on Dec. 31 from 1973 through 1979, but to compensate for the speedup, last December's "leap second" will not be added until June 30, Winkler said.

Suit against Jaco Oil delayed indefinitely

The civil suit against John Theford Sims, Dwight Chester Wheeler, Jaco Oil Company Inc., and Wheelco Oil and Gas Company, Inc., has been delayed.

Cosden Oil and Chemical Company filed a suit against Sims, et al, following an alleged oil scam in which Sims and Wheeler were accused of selling the same barrel of oil over and over again to Cosden.

Former Ector County district attorney John Green sought and won a motion for continuance. The case was originally slated for July.

The civil suit is seeking damages in the sum of $500,000 and exemplary damages in the amount of $1,000,000.

A criminal suit against Sims, Wheeler, Jaco Oil Company Inc., and Wheelco Oil and Gas Company is still slated for July.

Editor of Megaphone awarded scholarship

A Big Spring youth was among 35 recipients of four-year college scholarships awarded this week by Conoco Inc. to children of company employees.

Tiffany D. Whiteside, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith A. Whiteside of 4113 Parkway, will receive a scholarship value at $3,200. Her father is an employee of the company's Midland production division.

For the past two years, Miss Whiteside has served as editor of the Megaphone section for the Big Spring Herald.

TIFFANY WHITESIDE

Conoco also awarded 10 vocational-technical scholarships and its top award — the Perlitz Achievement Scholarship.

The Perlitz award — $4,800 for four years — went to Catherin A. McCain of Ponca City, Okla.

Whiteside's application was reviewed by a three-member judging panel composed of two college presidents and a Fortune magazine editor.

While a student at Big Spring High School, Whiteside was a member of the National Honor Society and editor of the school annual.

She participated in her school's athletic and debate teams. Whiteside plans to attend Texas Tech University and will study public relations.

Floods reported in Austin area

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Hard overnight rain continued today, swelling Shoal Creek, the winding stream that left its banks on Memorial Day and caused a flood that killed 12.

"It's getting bad," said Austin Police Lt. Roger Roundtree. "We have reports that Shoal Creek just went out of its banks at some places."

Twenty-five intersections were under water and traffic lights were out of service along major streets.

"We're facing the same situation as a couple of weeks ago," Roundtree said, referring to the Memorial Day flood.

Fire department and police crews were standing by in flood-prone areas.

Shoal Creek, usually a trickle of a stream, was filling quickly and looked like a strong river at some parts.

Travis County Sheriff's Deputy Tony Casarez said families were being evacuated from a trailer park near Bergstrom Air Force Base. Many low-water crossings in the county were covered with water, he said.

Weather Storms cause floods in Central Texas

By the Associated Press

Heavy thunderstorms roared through the upper Texas coast, South Central Texas, the Hill Country and Southeast Texas early today.

The National Weather Service issued flash flood warnings, flash flood watches, severe thunderstorm warnings and special marine warnings as the storms dumped heavy rainfall over a vast area.

Heavy thunderstorms moved through the Austin area early today, dumping two to four inches of rain, prompting forecasters to issue a flash flood warning. There were numerous reports of street flooding in the Austin area.

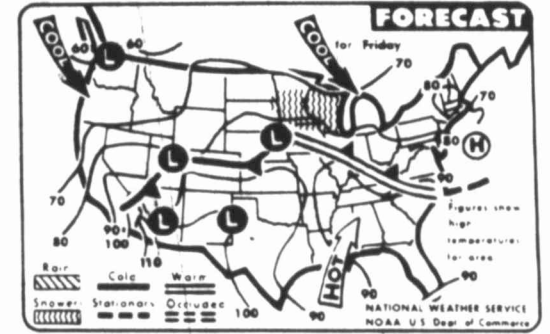

The same thunderstorm moved into Bastrop County later, prompting another flash flood warning.

A flash flood watch was in effect today for the Hill Country, South Central Texas and Southeast Texas. Forecasters said heavy, slow-moving thunderstorms were expected in those areas and warned of flash flooding at low water crossings and in low lying areas.

Forecasts called for partly cloudy skies statewide. There also was a chance of thunderstorms over South Texas, Northeast Texas, the Panhandle and far West Texas.

Highs were to range from the 80s along the upper coast to near 110 in the Big Bend country of Southwest Texas.

George Frazier, assigned to Big Spring as a Texas Ranger several years ago, has drawn a similar assignment in San Angelo.

More recently, Frazier has been assigned to duty in Eastland County. Before he joined the DPS in 1967, Frazier spent seven years in the Odessa Police Department.

Farmer, ex-gunner reluctant about shaving off his beard

John Couch, a long-time resident of the Luther area in northeast Howard County, has been a little reluctant about shaving off his beard, which he grew for the Big Spring-Howard County Centennial.

Perhaps it's because John goes a long time between such facial adornment and it takes a little something like the Big Spring-Howard County Centennial Celebration to inspire the development of such a look.

The last time John retired his razor was 32 years ago, prior to the Big Spring Centennial which celebrated the discovery of the original "big spring" by Capt. Randolph Marcy.

Couch and his wife grow cotton and feed on a 262-acre tract. They also maintain a little garden which is irrigated only by the rain gods. If the weather conditions are conducive to a good crop of peas, beans, okra and squash, they make

Three albino brothers are learning to see

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three albino brothers from Ecuador who are legally blind are learning to see — thanks to special glasses that come with their own built-in binoculars.

Byron, Edgar and Reinaldo Mino have only 2 percent normal vision because of the same genetic defect that makes them lack pigmentation.

The glasses are similar to bifocals, although the lens power is much greater, say officials at the Pennsylvania College of Optometry. Most of the time the brothers will look through a part of their glasses that is a standard prescription.

But for seeing things at a distance, they will use special lenses protruding about 1 1/2 inches in front of the glasses. The magnification is huge — about 600 times.

and later out of the Mariannas. John estimates he flew about 30 missions and was prepared to out on another sortie when the two atomic bombs were dropped over Hiroshima and Nagasaki. His orders were later changed, because Japan was preparing to sue for peace.

Couch has attended three reunions of the 20th Air Force since he returned to mufti, one at Dayton, Ohio, another at Salina, Kan., and a third at Denver. He recalls seeing five of his old crewman at Dayton.

The veterans of the 20th convene again in Milwaukee the last week in July but John doesn't know whether he'll be able to go. He would also like to return to Southern Asia, this time as a tourist.

He limited his souvenir collection to a delicately sewed silk jacket for his future wife, a few coins and, he laughs, a water pipe that could be used for smoking opium which, he understands, is popular in some cultures.

The Couches have two daughters, Martha and Annette, who live with each other in Lubbock.

John was perfectly content to settle down to the life of a farmer after having served in the Air Force in WW II.

He was a B-29 gunner, a member of an 11-man crew that participated in raids on Tokyo and other Japanese cities during the latter days of WW II.

He rose to the rank of Tech Sergeant and earned such medals as the Air Medal with three clusters, the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Participation Medal, among others.

He recalls one of the planes on which he worked, "Old Battler," sustained no fewer than 200 bullet holes during raids over enemy territory. The ack-ack came pretty to him but he never sustained an injury.

Couch's crew, which was headed by Capt. Otto W. Buenting of Cleveland, Ohio, was part of the 58th Bomb Wing, which was attached to the 20th Air Force.

Couch and his crew first flew missions out of Duddhundi, not far from Calcutta,

Suicide among young is a real problem

The figures are alarming. Suicide among the young has been increasing at a high rate during the past 10 years to the point that it is now the third leading cause of death among adolescents 15 to 19 years of age. So reports the Southern Medical Association.

Frank E. Crumley, a Dallas psychiatrist, studied 22 young people who attempted suicide and reported on their distinguishing characteristics in the May issue of the Southern Medical Journal.

OF THE 22 patients, 19 were girls. All of them were single and most of them were from middle-class families.

Depression was almost universal among the group. Typical statements made by the patients included: "My life was not worth living." "I was tired of life." "I would be better off dead." "I want it all to stop." "I want to escape the hell of living and find a better life in the next."

All of the adolescents felt worthless, helpless and hopeless. The typical statements were "I am a nothing," "I am worthless," "I am a bum."

Drug abuse occurred in 17 of the 22

patients, combined with episodic alcohol abuse in five. The most common drugs used were marijuana, amphetamines, and LSD and other psychedelic drugs. Unable to endure the stresses of daily living, these teen-agers found drugs a temporary relief and fantasy fulfillment for their longings but, in the long run, drug abuse only added to their depression.

ALTHOUGH THE ADOLESCENTS in this study were psychiatrically ill prior to their suicide attempts, Dr. Crumley warns that they may appear deceptively rational and mature and diagnosis of their psychosis requires several interviews and a comprehensive history.

Such a history will include typically running away from home, sexual promiscuity, stealing from home, shoplifting, repeated wrist cutting and drug overdose.

Hospitalization is usually indicated to provide the supportive and holding environment the teen-ager needs. Treatment consists of a combination of individual psychotherapy, group therapy, family therapy and, at times, medication.

King of Israel

Evans, Novak

JERUSALEM — In a stunning turnaround reminiscent of Harry Truman's 1948 election, Prime Minister Menachem Begin has converted Israel into a private stage of all his own and the June 30 election into a one-man show with disquieting implications for the opposition Labor Party and the United States.

The exultant mood now surrounding Begin's extraordinary comeback broke through during an outdoor campaign speech May 27 at Rehobot. During a pause in his electrifying one-hour display of campaign rhetoric, a young Oriental Jew shouted: "Menachem Begin, king of Israel." He has come to dominate the campaign so thoroughly, with both economic and foreign policy issues for the moment working powerfully in his behalf, that Shimon Peres, who leads the Labor opposition, is reduced to a single strategy: Make Begin the only issue.

ATTACKING BEGIN in an indoor rally the following evening in the coastal town of Holon, Peres — no match for Begin as a stump speaker — moved one Labor partisan to shout: "You should not criticize the prime minister." Peres shot back: "Begin, Begin, Begin, who is he that he cannot be criticized? Is he a new Khomeini?" But in making Begin the central issue of the campaign, Peres risks building him up unless events in the next four weeks hand him new ammunition.

But in the last three months, including the still-tough Lebanon crisis, the ammunition has been coming Begin's way, filling his campaign artillery with heavy explosives. With his politically brilliant handling of the unceasing economic crisis, Begin's finance minister has dipped into a bit of supply-side economics to put masses of new spending money into the pockets of hard-pressed consumers. He has brought such choice goods as color TV sets within consumer spending range and restored food and other subsidies for the low-income Sephardic and Oriental Jews who are Begin's solid constituency.

Perhaps more important, however, is the way Begin has either managed or lucked out of the Lebanon crisis. Begin's cautious refusal to use Israeli air power against Syrian missiles in Lebanon has reinforced his "peace and security" campaign slogan. His voice dripped with scorn in Rehobot when he recalled Labor's warning four years ago that if Begin became prime minister, he would take Israel into war the first day.

His voice dropping low, he asked: "Where is the war?"

He has Peres outflanked and in what looks like a political vise on Labor's continuing effort to convert him into an Israeli Attila.

Although Peres tries to ridicule him for withdrawing Jewish settlements from Egyptian Sinai, after saying "not one grain of sand" in the Sinai Desert would be returned to Egypt, he sounds hollow.

Peres and his Labor coalition enthusiastically backed the Camp David accords. Moreover, neither Peres nor any other Labor leader is credible playing the game of hawks and doves against Begin.

WHILE BEGIN STRUTS his one-man campaign around Israel, the high command of Peres plots new ways to bring him down as a man not to be "trusted," as proclaimed in Labor's heavy newspaper advertisements. But events keep overtaking their best-laid plans.

A case in point is Begin's summit meeting scheduled on June 3 at Sharm el Sheik with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. That summit, which clearly displays Begin as the winner in the eyes of the shrewd Sadat, outflanked Peres' own effort to arrange a meeting with Sadat, who suddenly has become a factor in Israel's national election. The obliging Sadat agreed quickly to meet Peres — but in Egypt, inaccessible to Israeli television sets.

Likewise, Peres' decision to seek a special session of the Knesset (parliament) to berate Begin for his secret promise to Christian Falangists in Lebanon may well backfire. It never had prior approval from some of Peres' top running-mates, including retired Gen. Haim Bar-Lev and former prime minister Itzhak Rabin.

Begin is riding a fast-moving crest, despite his running battles with the U.S., his serious 1977 heart attack and the "untrustworthy" cry of Labor. Clearly helping him, in addition to temporary improvements in the economy and his handling of the Lebanon missile crisis, is the new Israeli nationalism he has worked hard to infuse the past four years.

The new militancy, strong among the rising percentages of Sephardic and Oriental Jews, enhances his chances of winning in June 30. But it also portends deep problems for the U.S. if Begin's margin holds during the next four weeks, a subject for another column.

Mailbag

Dear Editor:

The following, entitled "What Is a Grandmother?" was written by an eight-year old boy. I'd like to share it with your readers:

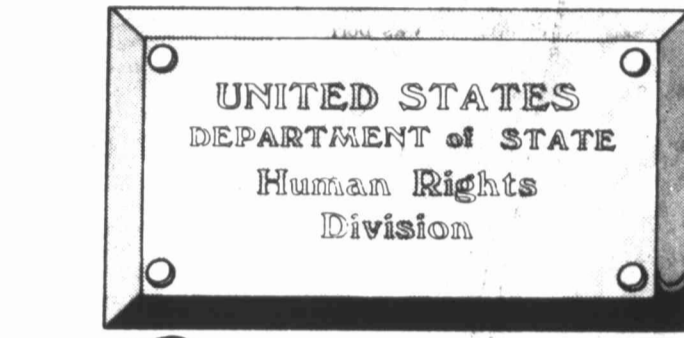

"A grandmother is a lady who has no children, so she likes other people's children."

"A grandfather is a man grandmother. He goes for walks with the boys. They talk fishing and stuff like that."

"Grandmothers don't have anything to do except just be there. It is enough that they drive us to the supermarket, where the pretend horse is, and have plenty of dimes ready."

"When taking us for walks they should slow down when passing pretty leaves and caterpillars. They never say 'hurry up.' Usually, grandmothers are fat, but not too fat to tie us kids' shoes. Grandmothers wear glasses and funny underwear. They can take their teeth and gums off. They don't have to be smart."

War stories

Art Buchwald

You'd think the children would get tired of it by now, but they never do. We were all sitting in the living room, and I think it was one of the girls who brought it up.

"Tell us, Dad, how you used to just go in a bank and ask the man for a 30-year mortgage on a house and he'd give it to you."

I leaned back in my chair, took a puff on my cigar and said, "Well, it was maybe nine or 10 years ago — I'm not exactly sure. Every paper was running these big advertisements from the banks, and the savings and loan companies were urging you to come in and borrow as much as you wanted to buy a house."

MY DAUGHTER CONNIE said to her husband, "You see, didn't I tell you that so? Dad doesn't lie."

My son-in-law said, "Yeh, but what was the gimmick? Why would a bank or savings and loan company want to lend you money to buy a house?"

"That was their business then, Randy. They had money lying all over the place and they didn't know what to do with it. They practically came out on the sidewalks on their knees with fistfuls of dollars begging you to take it."

"Yeh, but how much interest were they asking?" my son-in-law wanted to know.

"Five and a half percent, maybe six if you got unlucky."

"Ah, come on Dad," my daughter said, "you're making this all up. No bank ever loaned people money at 5 1/2 percent."

"Ask your mother. She was there when I applied for the loan. She thought 5 1/2 percent was too high for 30 years, but I wasn't in the mood to shop around, so I took it."

"And how much did a house cost in those days, Dad?" my daughter asked.

"You could get a very nice one with three bedrooms and two baths, and a completely installed kitchen and recreation room on a fair-sized lot, for somewhere around $50,000."

"Now I know you're making fun of us," my son-in-law said. "There is no way anyone could ever buy a home for that."

"Oh yeh," I said. "Suppose I told you there used to be homes in very nice neighborhoods you could pick up for $35,000 and no down payment?"

I let that one sink in. My other daughter said, "Didn't you and Mom almost buy a house for $40,000 in 1963 that recently sold for $450,000 right on the Potomac River?"

"Yup. I turned it down because the owner wouldn't paint it, and I was darned if I was going to pay $500 to put on a new coat. You want to know something? When it sold for $450,000 it still hadn't been painted."

MY SON-IN-LAW said, "Connie tells me you were offered a townhouse in Georgetown for $87,000 with a swimming pool in the back."

"I might have bought it but the savings and loan fellow got snooty, and said because the house was built in 1789 he could only give me a $50,000 loan at six percent for 25 years. I don't like anyone taking me for a fool, so I just told him what he could do with his loan. Your mother was there."

"I remember it well," my wife said. "I still think about it every time I drive by the house."

"Gosh," my daughter said. "They must have been wonderful days. To think, anybody who wanted to could just go in and buy a home."

I took another puff on my cigar. "Let's say they were different. You see we fellows, who came back from the second big war, knew how to talk to bankers and savings and loan people. They understood we weren't about to pay more than six percent for a loan, and so they didn't push us around. But the kids today don't have any backbone. They'll accept any amount of interest the bank asks for. Heck, if someone ever wanted me to pay 16 percent on a mortgage, I would pick up the papers and make him eat them."

Around the rim Beautiful state

Carol Hart

A recent trip to Austin on a hot, lazy springtime day re-affirmed my opinion that this state ranks right up there with the best of them, as far as the beauty of the countryside is concerned.

Instead of flying, I opted to drive to the Capitol last weekend. This option always looks better before the first 100 miles, then it begins to get a little tedious. But, the view out of the front windshield is spectacular. Even Texas critics probably would have to admit that there's a lot of good looking country to be seen headed south.

ON THIS TRIP, my traveling companion and I took Highway 71 out of Brady to Austin. If you're driving that direction, be warned that the view from Highway 71 is great, but the road is as full of turns and dips as the Judge Roy Scream roller coaster at Six Flags Over Texas.

The highway offers lots of green grass and hills and valleys and water and wildflowers and bluebonnets to feast your eyes on. Maybe, though, it would be better to stop the car to take in all this nature. Several times, I almost missed the road as I took in the countryside.

Whenever anyone drives through Big Spring and questions where the name came from, there is a historical marker telling all right in Comanche Trail Park. But, driving down the road past all sorts of towns makes me wonder how they were named. Some of the ones that come to mind are Vick, Voca, Pontotoc and Katemey. Then, I'm always curious about Dripping Springs, Valley Springs and Cherry Spring. I'd love to stop the car at each place and investigate why they are called what they are called, or see for myself the spring or spring bed from whence they gained their name.

ONE OF THE prettiest towns I've ever seen has to be Llano, nestled in the hills about 70 miles from Austin. When you drive Highway 71, you drive for miles and miles before you come across a town of any size, that being Llano. But driving through that picturesque city is worth it. The high school alone was really impressive, with the back windows of the school looking out toward high-rising hills, and the stadium built into a lush green valley.

I was glad to get back to Big Spring, even though, occasionally, it's great to get away. Sometimes, when you're used to the plains, it's sort of comforting to see them again. And we came back right in the middle of a West Texas sunset.

Driving down south always reminds me of the poem by Robert Frost, about the road not taken. There's a lot of choices down south, and not enough time to drive them all.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I was deeply depressed about a year ago, and even tried to kill myself. I am better now, but I wonder if God could ever forgive me for trying to take my own life. — Mrs. M.H.

DEAR MRS. H.H.: God knows your situation, and loves you. You can be sure that he understands, and not only wants to forgive you for this (and every other sin you have ever committed) but also wants to help you so that your life has a solid foundation in the future.

Listen to what the Bible says about God's understanding of us: "As a father has compassion on his children, so the Lord has compassion on those who fear him; for he knows how we are formed, he remembers that we are dust" (Psalm 103:13-14).

How can you know God's forgiveness? Realize that God has made forgiveness possible for us through Jesus Christ, who died on the cross to save us from sin and its consequences. I urge you to turn to Christ in faith and trust, and open your heart to him.

Confess your sins to him, and then accept by faith the promise God gives us in his Word: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just and will forgive us our sins and purify us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:9). God cannot lie. He has promised that those who come to Christ by faith will be forgiven.

Hormones for surgical menopause helpful

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 27 and in the "surgical pause." I am on estrogen, but this only reduces my complaints a little. I can find a lot of information on the normal pause, but nothing on the surgical kind. There's a big difference, I guess. It seems like this matter is hushed up. Is there anything you can say for us? I feel like I am 47. — D.E.

Menopause is that time in a woman's life when her ovaries stop functioning. The female hormones made by the ovaries stop or slow down at this mid-life point. That is normal menopause. The same thing happens to a woman if both of her ovaries have to be removed before her normal menopause occurs. Most of the symptoms (flushing, etc.) occur in either the normal or "surgical" menopause.

Whenever possible, a young woman who has to have her ovaries removed is given the female hormones. She stays on them until age 45 or so, up to a point where her normal menopause might have been expected to occur. Many doctors recommend that after that the hormone dose be reduced until age 50 to 55, when it can be eliminated.

One reason for the hormone emphasis in these years is, as I have pointed out to other readers, to prevent osteoporosis, bone thinning. In addition, the hormones help maintain the health of the female genital tract. They may even help prevent premature hardening of the arteries in such women.

I read your letter (parts deleted) carefully a few times, but could not really isolate your specific questions. If you have any, write again. Your dose of hormones in the future will be determined by how you feel and your response to them. It can be increased or decreased according to your needs, now or in the future. But with replacement therapy, you should be able to age normally, just as you would have with your ovaries intact.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have arthritis in my fingers and over the years the joints have become enlarged and stiff. Is there some therapy I can do at home or ways to prevent further damage and make hand movements easier? — Mrs. B.S.

I can offer a few tips for use of your arthritic hands, but I hope you are getting complete arthritis care — medicine if you need it, and physical therapy along with rest of the joints.

Many arthritics have difficulty in such simple tasks as writing. It is often helpful for them to hold the pen or pencil between the index and middle fingers only. That spares pressure on the thumb, which often takes the brunt of arthritic changes.

Stir, dust and make other circular movements toward the thumb side of the hands (counterclockwise for the right hand). That, again, helps relieve pressure from the thumb. Eating utensils should have extra heavy handles for easy grasping. Use a palm wrap-around grip when handling utensils. You may even find practicing these techniques good therapy.

This certainly will not arrest arthritis, nor do these tips exhaust all of the many methods you can find to use your hands painlessly. NOTE: Any physical therapy that places stress on the arthritic joints is best done at those times when pain is at a minimum.

Government too tame

Bullet-dodging Texas Ranger, age 86, dies

DALLAS (AP) — Rufus Van Zandt figured he had been lucky in his life, fortunate to have dodged most of the bullets fired his way — luckier than the desperados who crossed his path.

He had been a Texas Ranger, a federal prohibition agent, a hunter and a soldier in two different armies.

Van Zandt once said he had been the target of so many bullets during his 50-year career that he felt lonely when he wasn't being shot at.

They buried the legendary Ranger today, more than 86 years after he was born in Huntland, Tenn. He died of a heart ailment Monday at Sam Rayburn Veteran's Hospital in Bonham.

Van Zandt killed his first man in Sonora, Mexico, when working as a cattle guard he caught a Mexican soldier cutting a steer from the herd.

"I had two choices then. Join the Mexican army or be arrested and shot," he said in a January 1980 interview with The Dallas Morning News.

He joined, but during his first battle he deserted on the colonel's horse, riding for 32 nights and hiding for 32 days until he returned to the United States.

In the years that followed, he lost count of the men he had killed and the men who had tried to kill him.

"My brother got to figuring it once, and when he reached 15, I told him to quit," he said.

"I came so close to being killed, it's not funny. I missed several times when I wished I hadn't. I've been in some very tight places when I wished I'd never been born," Van Zandt once said.

"I've been very lucky. God has been good to me."

Van Zandt hired out as a horse breaker in Cheyenne, Wyo., and when World War I broke out, he enlisted.

He accompanied Gen. John J. Pershing in his 1916 expedition into Mexico in pursuit of Pancho Villa. In 1917, he was sent overseas, where he hit by shrapnel, shot by a machine gun and was gassed during the Champagne-Marne offensive in 1918.

When he returned to Texas he enlisted as one of 33 Texas Rangers. He patrolled a territory that covered 79 counties from San Antonio to El Paso.

Later he became a prohibition agent for the Justice Department, but said the government "had tamer ideas about shooting. We were told not to shoot unless shot at. I thought that was a little on the silly side."

During his stint as a federal agent, Van Zandt said, "I was getting shot at every day. If I was not getting shot at, I felt lonesome."

In March 1928, he began operating dude ranches that took big game hunting and fishing parties all over the world.

During World War II, he was a Special Services intelligence officer.

Van Zandt is survived by his wife, one brother, H.R. Van Zandt of Bonham, four nephews, one niece and four step-children.

'Test tube' calf born

KENNETT SQUARE, Pa. (AP) — The world's first "test tube" calf has been born at the School of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, the school announced.

"The pregnancy went 280 days and it's a very healthy, normal calf in every way," said Dr. Benjamin J. Brackett, a professor of animal reproduction who headed the research team.

Iran power struggle over; Bani-Sadr lost

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has finally decided the power struggle between Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and the Islamic clerical faction, and Bani-Sadr has lost.

Khomeini, the undisputed leader of the revolutionary regime, fired Bani-Sadr Wednesday as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, the official news agency Pars reported.

A spokesman for Khomeini said the 47-year-old economist would continue as president. But he will be a powerless figurehead since his conservative foes in the Islamic Republican Party control the Majlis, the Iranian parliament, and the government.

Lacking a strong political party of his own, Bani-Sadr had been trying to develop a power base in the armed forces to offset the clerics who control the IRP. But the Iranian Land Forces Command announced its "complete allegiance" to Khomeini "without support for any party," Tehran Radio reported. The joint staff command of the land, air and naval forces announced it would henceforth take orders from Khomeini.

Tanjug, the Yugoslav news agency, reported from Tehran that Bani-Sadr also handed in his resignation as president but Khomeini rejected it. A spokesman at the presidential office in Tehran, reached by telephone, denied this, saying Bani-Sadr's resignation as president "has been ready" since last year and Khomeini has not accepted it.

A spokeswoman at Bani-Sadr's office said he was in western Iran Wednesday inspecting the battlefield, and had no public comment on his dismissal.

Since the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was overthrown in February 1979, two principal factions — one liberal and secular, the other ultra-conservative and dominated by the Moslem clergy — have vied for control of the Iranian revolution and its course.

The liberals scored when Bani-Sadr, who spent 17 years in the West, won the presidency in January 1980. But the clerics and their party won overwhelming control of the Majlis in elections later in the year and took over the government.

Power failure hits Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A faulty valve and a malfunction in a backup generator knocked out electrical service, police and emergency communications, traffic signals and air conditions on a day when temperatures soared to 100 degrees, officials said.

The malfunctions at the city-owned electrical power plant created hardships and inconvenience but caused no injuries Wednesday afternoon, officials said.

Because Lubbock is served by two electric utility companies, the failure at the Lubbock Power & Light Co. plant knocked out power only to about half of the city.

City Manager Larry Cunningham said the blackout started when a valve on a boiler stuck allowing too much water into the boiler.

Governor nixes Shaw's request to place gasohol items on agenda

Rep. Larry Don Shaw asked Gov. Bill Clements on Wednesday to allow the special legislative session to consider two gasohol proposals, but Clements said the July 13 session would be restricted to five subjects.

The list of subjects does not include gasohol, but it does include a bill that would exempt gasohol from the nickel-a-gallon motor fuels tax for six years.

His second proposal would eliminate a restriction that prohibits companies which are less than 51 percent Texas-owned from producing raw alcohol in Texas for any purpose other than to make gasohol.

Shaw said this discourages plant investment by out-of-state companies, who fear that gasohol will become uneconomical as a fuel if the heavily subsidized federal synfuels development program is successful.

He said in a statement the "quirk in the law" has cost Texas at least one $25 million plant which would have created 45 new jobs.

City-owned hospital trying to collect $4.8 million

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Austin is trying to collect 22,000 unpaid hospital bills totaling $4.8 million, officials of city-owned Brackenridge Hospital said.

Last week an Austin law firm sent letters to the 22,000 giving them 10 days to settle the accounts or face seizure and sale of non-exempt property.

The law firm retained a computer expert to help track down the debtors through uses of city utility records and other computerized information.

The firm said the delinquent debtors did not include indigents who qualify for the city's Medical Assistant Program.

Reagan seeks union support for tax program

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, seeking to rally public support for his tax program, is wooing union leaders who already have signaled their willingness to give the administration's economic policies a chance.

Topping the list of a dozen labor leaders invited to the White House today was Roy Lee Williams, indicted president of the Teamsters union, who was elected overwhelmingly to a full five-year term last week in Las Vegas.

Reagan planned to thank Williams and the others for their support of administration budget cuts and to seek their backing of the president's proposed three-year, 25 percent cut in personal tax rates, White House officials said.

Williams is scheduled to be arraigned Friday in Chicago on a charge of conspiring with others to bribe Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., in connection with Teamster efforts to head off trucking deregulation legislation in 1979.

Williams says he is innocent. No charges were brought against Cannon.

The 2 million-member Teamsters, the nation's largest union, endorsed Reagan's presidential candidacy last year. Reagan prepared a videotaped message for the union's convention in Las Vegas, Nev., last week, thanking the Teamsters for that support.

Among the other union leaders expected to take part in the meeting are Thomas "Teddy" Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, and Capt. John J. O'Donnell, president of the Air Line Pilots Association.

Robert Bonitati, special White House assistant for liaison with labor unions, said Williams' indictment was not a consideration when the White House issued the invitations.

Abilene teen convicted of raping coed

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Jurors who took just 20 minutes to convict a 16-year-old Abilene boy of aggravated rape were ordered back to the courtroom today to begin considering the teen-ager's punishment.

Vincent Timothy Lee Evans, who was convicted of stand trial as an adult, could get from five years to life in prison for his conviction Wednesday in the Jan. 20 rape of a Hardin-Simmons University coed.

Evans was arrested in the woman's dormitory room after the coed said she persuaded him to let her go to the bathroom and instead went to tell a security guard a man was in her room.

"I was shaking all over inside and out," she testified. "All I could do was pray to God I could make it through this alive."

Defense attorney John Saringer raised the issue of consent during cross-examination of state witnesses, pointing out that the coed did not immediately report the rape.

However, the 21-year-old woman testified she didn't tell police at first "because I didn't feel I wanted to be disgraced any more."

She said reported the rape three hours later after discussing the assault with volunteers at the Rape Crisis Center and with her mother by telephone.

Baby's banging teaches skills

It took thousands of years for mankind to develop the skills and experience to make and use tools.

Almost every person repeats this basic process in early childhood by learning to "use" objects.

"Growing Child," the monthly child development newsletter, points out that the first step in learning to "use" an object is to lift it, then bring it down on a flat surface like the floor or table top.

This requires the ability to reach for and grasp an object. It requires coordination of the hand and the eye and will eventually lead to development of other manipulative skills.

Movements learned at this time, about six months old, include picking up and holding objects with the thumb and forefinger of one hand and turning the wrist back and forth to examine the bottom of something.

During this time of intense exploration, provide the six-month-old baby with plenty of objects to explore. Household items like plastic cups, spoons, jar tops, and pot lids will delight her.

A baby learns to grasp and hold an object quite some time before she learns to let go of it on purpose. Her hold on the object just gradually relaxes until she drops it. She will reach and grasp equally well with either hand and will need a lot of practice before she develops a preferred hand.

It is important, therefore, that you give the baby an equal opportunity to reach and grasp with either hand. You can help by always presenting her with a toy from directly in front so that she can reach for it easily with either hand.

As the ability to reach for and grasp becomes better developed, the baby will learn more about the nature of the objects themselves. One thing she will explore is the sound an object makes as it strikes something else. In fact, after a baby is able to sit alone, she will do a lot of banging on things — against the floor, against the high chair tray, or on whatever surface happens to be near.

You can give her an introduction to different kinds of sounds by providing items in pairs for her to bang. Blocks make wonderful sounds.

More information about this subject and about the physical and social development of children up to six years old can be gotten by writing to "Growing Child," 22 North Second Street, P.O. Box 620 N, Lafayette, Indiana, 47902. When writing, include child's birthdate.

Father's role is important to toddlers, says article

A father's role as a masculinity model is especially important for boys as well as girls when they're between 16 and 24 months of age, according to a current Family Circle magazine article, "Teaching Your Children About Sex."

At that age a child first becomes aware of which sex he or she is and of the difference between the sexes, explains Dr. Eleanor Galenson, clinical professor of psychiatry at Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York, in the magazine.

Dr. Galenson and her colleague, Dr. Herman Ropke, discovered that once children begin to differentiate between the sexes, in single parent homes where the father is absent, says the article, "kids should have an opportunity to spend time with an uncle or another man they like."

girls play at being grown up like their mothers, but also get closer to their fathers, acting coy and flirtatious with them. Boys at this time move somewhat away from their mothers and try to imitate their fathers.

The two doctors base their conclusions on their observations of 70 tots (35 girls, 35 boys) in a nursery setting from the time the children were about nine or ten months old until they were two years old.

Because a father's role is so important for boys and girls at this stage, say Drs. Ropke and Galenson in the article, it's critical for dads to be available and involved with their children as much as they can.

When writing, include child's birthdate.

Coahoma women cancel meetings

The Christian Women's Fellowship of Coahoma area has cancelled all monthly meetings for the summer months.

The next meeting will be held Sept. 12, when plans for the upcoming arts and crafts fair will be discussed. Those having questions concerning the fair may contact Ray Nell Best.

Dear Abby

Deaf Woman Dumbfounded By Con Man's Game

DEAR ABBY: Last September a man came to my door and asked me if I had anything that needed to be fixed, so I gave him my hearing aid. He said he would bring it back in three days in perfect condition if I would give him $25, so I gave him the cash. Well, I never saw him or my hearing aid after that, and my hearing aid cost me $398 new! I don't know what company he was with or what his name was, as I forgot to ask him. I know it was dumb of me, but he had the nicest smile.

I would like to get my hearing aid back. Answer soon because my husband is sick of yelling at me.

DEAF AS HELL IN INDIANA

DEAR DEAF: With no name, no company, no receipt and no clue as to who the man was, you are out of luck. But your experience might serve to remind other trusting souls to check out such characters before handing over anything of value.

DEAR ABBY: Five years ago, I met you and your husband at a dinner party in Tulsa. I was 47, weighed 205 and smoked two packs a day. When I asked if you objected if I smoked during dinner, you said, "You'll do us both a favor if you don't."

I want you to know that I have reformed, but it took some bad news to do it. Two and a half years ago, my doctor found some cancerous tissue on my tongue and he ordered me to quit smoking, lose weight and shape up. Today I'm down to 170, don't smoke and I'm in great shape. How did I do it? I took up running.

I've put together some suggestions for people who are considering running. You may want to pass them on to your readers.

1. Have a physical examination to see that everything is in tip-top shape.

2. Get a good pair of shoes. Otherwise, your feet will have to suffer a common malady among runners is a black toe, which is caused by a blister developing beneath a toenail that rubs against a poorly fitting shoe.

3. Don't let a pair of cheap socks come between you and your shoes. Buy athletic socks with cushioned soles.

4. Start slowly and work your way up to longer distances.

5. Don't hop in the car and drive home immediately after completing your run. It's as important to warm down as it is to warm up. Walk around a while and do some leg-stretching exercises.

Most of all, don't get discouraged. Your muscles won't always hurt. Warm regards,

LINDSAY ALEXANDER

DEAR FATHER: I don't think it would play in Peoria.

Anderson clinic receives donations

The Big Spring Business and Professional Women's Club met at K-Bob's, Tuesday at 7 p.m. for the last regular meeting of the year and for the installation of the 1981-82 officers. Louise Nuckolls, president, presided.

Lois Eitzen, district 8 chairman of the M.D. Anderson Cancer Clinic Fund, reported on the district and state participation in this project. She said the Big Spring club donated, through various ways, $353 in 1980. Clubs throughout the state donated a total of more than $10,000 which was used to purchase needed equipment. Also, the money is used for special training courses for nurses in various fields of cancer processes at Anderson's.

Mamie Roberts reported on the club's parade entry. She described some of the humorous things that happened, and said that it was the biggest parade and the biggest spectator event ever in Big Spring.

Following the meeting, Mary Newell installed the 1981-82 officers, with the admonition to continue upholding the goals and objectives of the founders of Business and Professional Women's Club: to elevate the standards for women in business; to promote the interest of business women; to bring about a spirit of cooperation among business and professional women of the United States and to extend the opportunity to business and professional women through education, along the lines of industrial, scientific and vocational activities.

She said these objectives remain vital and relevant. "We must commit ourselves," she said, "to recruiting new members and retaining present ones. We must continue to pursue our goal of improving conditions for working women. We must communicate that vital link for understanding."

Installed were: Mamie Roberts, president; Alpha Morrison, first vice president; Wilma Clark, second vice president; Marie Affleck, secretary; Rozelle Dohoney, corresponding secretary and Delphia Gordon, treasurer.

Incoming president, Mamie Roberts, pledged her best efforts to live up to the objectives set forth, and she presented outgoing president, Louise Nuckolls with a past president's pin. An informal meeting will be held at Alpha Morrison's house July 14, at 7 p.m.

Rebekahs plan installation of officers July 7

Plans were made for the July 7 installation of officers when the Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 284 met in regular session at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Freda Lanspery, vice grand, presided over the 16 members present, 14 of whom were past noble grands. Number of visits to the sick was reported as 27. The audit committee will audit the lodge books July 6. The time and place of the audit will be announced at a later date.

The next regular meeting of the lodge will take place Tuesday evening.

Beat the heat with cool snacks

Youngsters will enjoy Strawberry Ice Cream Sandwiches. Cut one pint brick-type strawberry ice cream into six slices. Spread one tablespoon strawberry preserves on one side of each of 12 Graham crackers. Place ice cream on preserve side of 6 crackers; top with remaining crackers, preserve facing ice cream. Freeze until firm. For use later, wrap individually in foil and store in freezer up to a month. (Yield: 6 sandwiches)

Country-western fever to invade Las Vegas

Country and western fever will hit Las Vegas this week as the Riviera Hotel sponsors the First Annual World Class Armadillo Races and Country Hoedown.

As part of a salute to Texas celebration held June 10-13, the armadillos will be flown in from New Braunfels to compete in the "Official Armadillo Olympics."

Armadillo race orientados will be held today, when guests will have the opportunity to select their personal animal for the race.

The "Alympics" are scheduled to begin Friday afternoon. The Houston Oilers cheerleaders will be on hand to give encouragement and support to the armadillos as they race down the track.

This celebration is designed to give everyone a chance to enjoy themselves

Peaches are "tops" for ice cream

If you like peaches, enjoy them in a sauce over ice cream. Crush four medium-sized peaches, peeled and cut in chunks. Place in a one-quart saucepan. Add one-half cup each sugar and orange juice. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly; reduce heat. Simmer, uncovered, about 15 minutes or until slightly thickened. Cool slightly. Stir in two teaspoons fresh lemon juice and one teaspoon vanilla extract. Serve warm or cold over ice cream. (Yield: 2 cups)

Phillips is installed as president of Lions

Jerry Phillips was installed Tuesday evening as the 54th president of the Downtown Lions.

JERRY PHILLIPS

Me and other officers, who will take office July 1, were installed at a Ladies Night dinner at Howard College by Paul Bozeman, past district governor from Midland. Earlier, Sonny Choate spoke to the gathering on the qualities of leadership and urged officers to not only plan specific targets, but to be visible in the effort to accomplish them.

W.F. (Dub) Martin, who turned over the gavel to Phillips, listed some of the activities highlights for the past year. These included a teletype communication for emergency purposes at SWCID, glasses for school children, hearing aids, $12 per capita in addition to regular support to the Texas Lions Crippled Children's camp, backing youth baseball teams, aiding in the cleanup drive, Centennial parade, etc. Funds came in part from sale of lightbulbs and collecting waste paper.

Joe Pond, past district governor, received his pin for 55 years as a Lion; Dan Conley 45 years; John Quickley and Jimmy Ray Smith 25 years, John F. Smith 20 years, Lynn Hise 15 years and C.R. Wiley 10. Martin also cited several members for special services.

Others installed were Jimmy Holmes, James Welch, and Dick Helms, vice presidents; Carl Smoot, secretary-treasurer; Royce Clay, Liontamer; Tom Arcand and Frank Wentz, tailtwisters; Frank Logback, Jim Lemons, Dr. James Cave and Bill Marlin, directors.

Merrick taken to county jail

Jackie Lee Merrick was transferred to county jail Wednesday following his arrest on charges of felony driving while intoxicated.

Merrick, 26, of 1400 Park, was placed under a $3,500 bond set by Judge Bobby West. The bond was posted by Robert Moore III.

Whitesell returned to Howard

Charles Edward Whitesell, 31, of Myles, was arrested in the San Angelo Sheriff's office and returned to Howard County on charges of revocation of probation. Whitesell is being held in the Howard County jail.

State-of-transportation hearing slated June 18

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Railroad Commissioners will listen June 18 to anyone who wants to discuss problems in the surface transportation industry in Texas.

Association convention in San Antonio. "This is an opportunity for the Railroad Commission to hear from the industry about their problems and to discuss possible solutions," said Commission Chairman Jim Nugent. "I invite shippers, receivers, and the public, as well as the transportation industry to attend this open public meeting."

The public hearing is set for 3 p.m. in the San Antonio Convention Center. The hearing will be in connection with the Texas Motor Transportation

- U.S. Banks have loaned foreign countries 100 Billion Dollars of which they will never again see.
- Poland is on the verge of bankruptcy.
- Time after time we read in the financial newspapers about Savings and Loan Companies going bankrupt.
- Interest rates are heading upwards of 22-25%.

The dollar is going down, down, down. . . . . Presently banks pay 8-12% interest. Inflation is 18%. The only investment you should have your money in during these times of confusion and disorder is gold coins. NO NEW RECORD TONIGHT — Phillies Pete Rose smashes his bat to the ground in frustration after being struck out the third time by Houston Astros Nolan Ryan to keep him from setting a new National League hitting record Wednesday night. Rose matched Stan Musial's 3,630 career record with a first-inning hit, but fanned the next three times at bat. Phillies won the game, 5-4.

Rose ties record, but Phillie rally steals show

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The 57,386 fans that jammed Veterans Stadium on Wednesday night came to see an event. Instead, they got a great ballgame. Phillies' outfielder Garry Maddox, meanwhile, came to the plate in the eighth inning to see a fastball.

His team had just scored twice to cut the Houston lead to 4-2, and with two outs and two on, he faced Astros' reliever Frank LaCorte. On Monday night, LaCorte had struck out Maddox with a fastball. The previous time they met was in Game 5 of last year's National League playoffs, when Maddox stroked a LaCorte fastball for a double that sent the Phillies into the World Series. "I had it in my head that he throws that pitch," said Maddox. Maddox rocketed a LaCorte fastball over the left field fence for a dramatic three-run homer that capped a two-out, five-run eighth as the Phillies downed the Astros 5-4, boosting their winning streak to five games. "I knew it was gone when I hit it," Maddox said of his third homer of the year. "I'm not a home-run hitter — I was just trying to make contact."

"I wanted LaCorte to pitch to Maddox," said Astros manager Bill Virdon after Houston's fourth straight loss. "It just didn't work out." Unfortunately, many of the fans didn't see the rally. They came wearing red roses to see Pete Rose's pursuit of the all-time National League hit record. Rose needed just two hits to break Stan Musial's record of 3,630.

After singling off Houston fire-baller Nolan Ryan in the first inning to tie the record, Rose struck out three straight times. Rose slammed his bat into the ground after his third strikeout, which was the second out of the eighth inning. At that point, Ryan had a one-hitter, eight strikeouts and a 4-0 lead. And after Rose fanned, many fans left, figuring he wouldn't get up again. But as they left, pinch-hitter George Vukovich singled. Virdon then brought in LaCorte. "Nolan just said he couldn't go any further,"

Ryan's heater stops Rose for now

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pete Rose tied Stan Musial for the all-time National League career hit record of 3,630, but if the major league baseball strike materializes it may be some time before he breaks the record.

A federal judge Wednesday dismissed a National Labor Relations Board charge of unfair labor practices against baseball's owners in negotiations with the Major League Players Association.

Unless the players and owners reach agreement on compensation for free agents, the players have indicated they'll strike by Friday.

Rose said he didn't want to get involved with the labor problems although he backed the players association.

"I'll be at the ball park at 8:05 Friday night hoping to get a hit off (Atlanta's) Gaylord Perry, or Saturday night against Phil Niekro," said the 40-year-old Rose, noting, "They're both older than me."

Rose singled in the first inning Thursday night during the Philadelphia Phillies' 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros for the record-tying hit, then he struck out three times against one of the game's best fastball pitchers, Nolan Ryan.

Rose was happy about his latest milestone and pleased with the Phillies' five-run eighth-inning rally that produced the victory.

He admitted, however, that he was disappointed with himself.

"I thought I would get two or three hits after that first one," Rose said. "But if Ryan threw every pitch like he did tonight, I'd be going for my 1,000th hit instead of 3,631."

Ryan said he was pitching at his best, adding, "If he had got a hit, I would have tipped my hat to him."

Rose said he saw the ball well on the three strikeouts, but some of the pitches he just heard.

A crowd of 57,386 stood and cheered with every pitch to Rose, who received a standing ovation after his leadoff hit in the first.

But Ryan was to see that it was Rose's last hurrah of the night.

Rose, who described Ryan's pitching as "good morning, good afternoon, see you later," said he felt he disappointed people who had come to see him break the record.

Holmes says Spinks lucky for title fight

DETROIT (AP) — The dishes on the menu at Larry Holmes' Four Corner Lounge in Easton, Pa., are named after fighters. The proprietor plans on adding an entree for Leon Spinks — whipped potatoes.

Holmes will defend the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship against Spinks Friday night at the 21,000-seat Joe Louis Arena, he predicts that "I'm going to stop Leon."

"He's definitely going to get knocked out. It don't matter. He's been knocked out before."

The 27-year-old Spinks was knocked out in the first round by Gerrie Coetzee June 6, 1979. But last year he knocked out Alfredo Evangelista, drew with Eddie "Animal" Lopez and knocked out Kevin Isaac and Bernardo Mercado to earn his second shot at the heavyweight title in only his 15th pro fight.

The 1976 Olympic light-heavyweight champion got his first title shot in his eighth fight, and he upset Muhammad Ali on a split decision Feb. 15, 1978. Stripped of title recognition by the WBC for his failure to fend against Ken Norton, Spinks then lost the World Boxing Association title to Ali Sept. 15, 1978.

"Leon has a lot going for him," said the 31-year-old Holmes, noting that while Spinks is getting his second championship bid in only 15 fights, he took him over five years and 27 fights before he got a title shot. He the WBC crown on a split decision over Norton June 9, 1978.

"I think he's been blessed by God," said Holmes, but he added, "I think Leon's had all the blessing he's supposed to receive."

Holmes and Spinks appeared with other principals at a press luncheon Wednesday.

Spinks, who is notorious for being late for engagements — he was about a half hour late for the weigh-in for the fight with Mercado — was on time for luncheon. Tuesday when he was on time for his workout after having been 1½ hours late the day before, Spinks told reporters, "give me a hand, I'm on time."

Both fighters appear to be in top physical condition for the scheduled 15-round bout, which will be worth about $2 million to Holmes and about $500,000 to Spinks. And both appear loose.

The first heavyweight title fight in Detroit since Joe Frazier knocked out Bob Foster in two rounds Nov. 18, 1970, is being billed as a tribute to the late Joe Louis.

Local basketball camp gaining numbers rapidly

Applications are being processed daily at a high rate for the ninth annual basketball Camp of Champs for boys to be held July 13-17, according to Harold Wilder, Director of the Camp of Champs and Athletic Director at Howard College.

Wilder reminds those interested in signing that they should do so quickly in order to insure themselves a room and bed at the camp.

At the Camp of Champs, the young player receives skilled instruction in individual offense, dribbling and ball handling, shooting, defensive positioning and team play, plus physical fitness and conditioning. There are chalk talks and league games at night in which the practical application of new skills under game conditions is stressed.

In addition, the camp includes tournaments in ping pong, checkers, chess and dominoes.

More information may be obtained by contacting Wilder at 267-5896.

Sugar Ray's next bout no easy task

HOUSTON (AP) — Few people have heard of the Ugandan fighter who will meet welterweight champ Sugar Ray Leonard at the Astrodome on June 25th. But Ayub Kalule plans to change all that.

Leonard and Kalule arrived in Houston Wednesday to prepare for the fight that Kalule hopes will prove he could have taken the gold medal from Leonard at the 1976 Olympics.

Kalule, the undefeated World Boxing Association junior middleweight champion, was favored over Leonard in Montreal. But Uganda joined the African boycott of the games and the question was never settled.

"That's why this fight is very important to me," Kalule said. "I need to beat him."

Although he is right-handed, Kalule fights as a south-paw because that's the way his brother taught him.

"Once I learned it, it seemed right to me," Kalule said. "I'm used to it now."

Kalule left Uganda five years ago and moved to Copenhagen where he turned pro. He won the WBA junior middleweight title in 1979 and has defended his title five times. Eighteen of Kalule's 36 victories have been on knockouts.

But Kalule apparently is taking no chances with Sugar Ray Leonard.

"We've been talking about this for years and years," Wilfong said. "We've been having deadlines and meetings and nothing's been accomplished. It's all been a big waste of time. We should have done it last year because here we are again."

The players had charged to the NLRB that the owners' refusal to release their clubs' financial records violated fair labor practice laws. But Werker, who held two days of hearings last week in Rochester, N.Y., ruled in favor of the club owners on every issue.

two representatives of "SMU athletic interests."

Shield said besides the disciplinary sanctions, the school also would modify its procedures for monitoring recruitment contacts and establish new guidelines for controlling the involvement of outsiders in the recruiting process.

The infractions committee said in considering the case it found violations of NCAA legislation related to an extra benefit to a student-athlete, improper recruiting inducements, local transportation and entertainment of prospects and recruiting contacts.

Baseball strike doesn't scare Chisox boss

By The Associated Press

"Play ball!" said U.S. District Judge Henry Werker.

But Werker's ruling, issued in New York, could cause the 1981 baseball season to end — or at least be disrupted — following tonight's games.

"Hopefully there might be some serious negotiations to avoid the strike," said Doug DeCinces, Baltimore Orioles third baseman and player representative for the American League. "There is always that possibility."

"Damn it all," said New York Yankee outfielder Lou Piniella. "This hurts us, not the owners. They got the money."

Negotiations between the Major League Players Association and the Player Relations Committee were scheduled to resume this morning in New York with the prospect of a shortened season in the balance.

"This is not unusual," said Chicago White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa. "Both sides talk tough and hang tough until the bitter end. Then they give in and come up with a settlement."

"The same thing happened last year, didn't it? It looked as bad last year as it does this year, and there was no strike."

"There is always a chance for a settlement. They'll come up with something."

Twice in the last 13 months, last-minute agreements have staved off a players' walkout. The National Labor Relations Board went to court last week, presenting its case for an unfair labor practice complaint and seeking an injunction.

In denying the injunction, which would have delayed a strike for a year, Werker said there was "no reasonable cause to believe an unfair labor practice has been committed" by the club owners. "The petition is therefore dismissed."

William Lubbers, general counsel to the NLRB, was expected to announce today whether he will recommend that the board appeal also may seek a stay pending appeal to delay the strike deadline.

"I hope we strike," said Minnesota Twins second baseman Rob Wilfong. "I want to get it over with, and if a strike is what it takes to get this all settled, then I'm for it."

Werker's decision. Lubbers said Wednesday that the decision "will have to be studied closely," before the board decides whether to appeal the decision to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second District in New York.

Lubbers said that if an appeal is taken, the board

The other 25 violations, which SMU President L. Donald Shields said were of "a technical nature," mostly involved contact procedures during recruiting.

But Shields said SMU "respectfully disagrees" with the ticket allegation leveled by the NCAA infraction committee.

Meyer called the scalping charges the result of "a total misunderstanding between prospective student athletes and what I said."

The university's inquiry substantiated the remaining 25 infractions cited by the NCAA, according to Shields, who emphasized the other cases did not involve any current players or include any academic misconduct.

Shields added the school will not appeal the penalties, which he estimated will cost SMU between $150,000 and $163,000 in Southwest Conference television royalties during the 1981 season.

However, SMU will be eligible to win the Southwest Conference title, Shields said.

The university president said SMU placed one assistant football coach on probation for a one-year period during which he will not be allowed to recruit off campus and also issued a three-year prohibition against recruiting efforts by

Buddy Bell: 'Hitting contagious'

MILWAUKEE (AP) — It used to be said that the Texas Rangers had abundant talent, but two conspicuous weaknesses — July and August.

But while it is barely mid-June, the Rangers give every indication that they will be in the American League West race to stay.

They surged to within one game of first place Oakland Wednesday night by whipping the Milwaukee Brewers 12-5. Buddy Bell led the Rangers with a three-run homer and two-run single, while Jim Sundberg knocked in three runs with a homer and triple and Leon Roberts hit a bases-empty homer and RBI single.

It was the Rangers' fifth victory in their last six games and 14th in their last 19.

The Brewers, who have lost four games in a row, broke a drought which had seen them held to one run in 29 innings. But they fell behind 5-0 and did little against winning pitcher Doc Medich, 5-3, until the game was all but out of reach.

"The game tonight didn't bother me as much as one we lost in Boston and two we lost in Detroit on our last road trip," Brewer Manager Buck Rodgers said. "When you get smoked 12-5 it's not like one or two plays cost you the game."

The Rangers' surge is no accident. They lead the league in team batting, hits, doubles, fielding average and shutouts pitched and are second in runs scored.

Hearing set in 'open meeting' flap

CARRIZO SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — A special judge has scheduled a July 1 pre-trial hearing on a complaint by a newspaper publisher that the Dimmit County commissioners court decisions allegedly made in secret. Sipes, who also owns a discount store, charged that during one six-month period "more than 50 percent of the meetings were done in executive session."

Selection of depositories has been the source of longstanding tumultuous political disputes in this South Texas County. Several years ago, a school board member marched into the office of Dimmit County Javelin editor George Willems and knocked him down for publishing criticism of selection of the school depository.

Speer alleged that Sipes and Reynolds, director of the Union State Bank, were behind rumors circulating the past three weeks that the county judge and four commissioners were arrested and jailed in connection with the complaint.

"I think a couple of guys responsible for the rumors are also responsible for the rumors," Speer said. "They were mad because we awarded the bid to the First National Bank. We voted in open session."

The Dimmit County Sheriff's Department, county attorney's office and Texas Ranger Capt. Jack Dean of San Antonio Wednesday all discounted the latest report that surfaced in Laredo Wednesday that the five officials had been jailed.

As a delight to the Open Meetings dispute, Dean assigned Texas Rangers Rudy Rodriguez and Stan Gujey in mid-May to investigate possible improprieties in Dimmit County, which Speer said were in no way related to the Open Meetings complaint. Dean said Dimmit County officials were not being investigated, "per se."

Tommy Williams. Sipes countered that the depository decision was just one in a long line of commissioners court decisions allegedly made in secret. Sipes, who also owns a discount store, charged that during one six-month period "more than 50 percent of the meetings were done in executive session."

requested by County Attorney Pablo Bustamante. Dean would not reveal the target of the investigation, other than to say it involved "some programs and some funds. We don't know where it will lead. It may end up with a lot or nothing. It could be a long, drawn-out thing." Dean said Dimmit County officials were not being investigated, "per se."

Apartment project clears hurdle

Water deposits policy debated

By JAMES WERRELL
Big Spring City Councilmen waited until the end of Tuesday night's regular meeting to comment on a complaint against the water department made by Gene Bryant.

Bryant was allowed to lodge his complaint before the council shortly after the meeting had begun. Bryant, for several weeks, had resisted paying the $30 deposit to the city in order to have his mother's water turned on, arguing that she was a senior citizen who owns her own home and has a good credit record.

City officials reported that the $30 deposit was required of every new customer, and that they could not make exceptions.

During his presentation to the council, Bryant proposed that exceptions should be made for elderly citizens with good credit ratings.

"I think exceptions should be made for people on Social Security or with a limited income. If they own their homes, they could have a relative or close friend sign a letter of guarantee, or submit a letter from their bank," said Bryant. "There has to be some alternative to cash on the barrelhead."

Bryant also complained that he believes deposits are not being returned to water customers.

"The city says that the money will be returned in a year. But some may have to wait a few years, and some never get their money back at all," he stated.

Following the speech, councilmen made no comment, and moved on to the next item of business on the agenda. Bryant left the council chambers shortly thereafter.

Near the end of the meeting, however, Councilman Russ McEwen commented that Bryant had come before the council "in good faith" to propose an alternative to the $30 deposits, and the council should discuss it.

The upshot of the discussion was that the three members present, McEwen, Robert Fuller and Mayor Clyde Angel, feel that the $30 deposit is legitimate, and that the system should remain as is. Bill Brown, assistant city manager, assured those present that the city has regularly returned the deposits, including a 6 percent interest, to customers within a year.

During his city manager's report, Don Davis announced that the city will adopt a new policy in seeking damage estimates for vehicles involved in accidents for which the city is liable. In a recent case, two estimates obtained by the victim were almost identical.

In order to make sure that estimates are reliable, the city will now require three estimates.

"In the future, anyone wishing to file a claim for damages resulting from an automobile accident will be required to obtain three estimates. Additionally, one of our (the city's) personnel must accompany the claimant at the time he is obtaining the bids," wrote Davis in a memorandum to the council.

Two of the body repair shops will be chosen by the claimant, while the third will be chosen by the city.

Dr. Cowper named in suit

Dr. Roscoe B. Cowper and Cowper Clinic and Hospital are named as the defendants in a suit filed today by Opal C. Kelley, Carlsbad, N.M.

A petition filed in the suit states that on June 8, 1979, the plaintiff, Mrs. Kelley, consulted Dr. Cowper concerning an internal infection. She was hospitalized for six days, and given the drug Lincomycin for the infection.

The petition charges negligence on the part of the defendants in administering the drug in excessive dosages.

The petition also says that Mrs. Kelley became ill with an antibiotic induced colitis following her original treatment.

Mrs. Kelley charges through the petition that she was permanently disabled, and has suffered physical and mental pain. She also states that she had incurred medical expenses of $1,608.50.

Representing her is Michael L. Fostel, Kermit.

The city will test the feasibility of a diesel-powered auto fleet with the purchase of a new car for Big Spring Fire Chief Jim Ryals. Ryals' previous auto was wrecked in an accident for which the other party was responsible, recently, and the council voted to replace it with a diesel car.

"The people I've talked to say that we could pay off the additional investment in three years or less with the low cost of fuel," said Councilman Fuller. The new car is expected to cost approximately $2,000 more than a gasoline-powered one.

Specifications for the car will be sent to area dealers for bids.

The council passed the first hurdle in approving a multi-story, 72-unit apartment complex to be located at 3500 Parkway. The project, owned by Sid Smith Enterprises, was approved on June 2 by the Planning and Zoning Board, and was relayed to the council for two public hearings.

In order to receive final approval, the council will be required to okay the site plan and designate the project Planned Development. It will be known as Comanche Trail Apartments, said Smith.

Councilmen also passed on first reading a resolution to lease the former Webb Air Force Base ammunition storage area to Strickland and Knight, Inc., a contracting firm. The area will be used for storage of building materials.

The city will publish notice of intention to lease city-owned property on the industrial park for oil and gas exploration and extraction. A survey of the property was conducted by John Coffee, local attorney, which revealed that the city owns 1,190.12 acres of mineral rights on the park.

Coffee was paid $3,000 for his work. The council voted to designate Birdwell Lane as a four-lane thoroughfare between 11th Place and Purdue.

"Essentially, people are now treating this strip as four-lane," said Davis. "It is just a quirk that it has never been designated. It's a technicality, but something we need to clean up," he added.

A review of four city maps revealed that they needed to be rescaled and updated. The firm of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper, Inc., a Lubbock engineering concern, proposed the improvement of maps of city streets, city subdivisions, the local water distribution system, and the sanitary sewer system.

Estimated cost for the revamping of all four maps ranges between $4,300 and $7,100.

In other business, councilmen:

— Approved the final reading of a resolution to lease the Northside Day Care Center to the Salvation Army.

— Approved the final reading of a resolution to lease Building 66 at the Industrial Park to Oilfield Industrial Lines, Inc.

— Passed on final reading a resolution to lease Building 46 at the Industrial Park to Rig Lighting Service, Inc.

— Appointed the firm of Lee, Wilson, Reynolds and Company, as official auditors for the city.

— Awarded a five-year service pin to Henry Ashford, employee of the City Sanitation Department.

— Awarded a bid to repair the roof on the Cotton Machinery Company building at the Industrial Park to Westex Roofing Company. Estimated cost is $4,999.

Howard County's cotton prospects looking good

Howard County's 1981 cotton crop prospects, at this stage, are among the best on record. All of the crop is in the ground, some of it is up.

Even though the outlook for cotton is tremendous, farmers are keeping their fingers crossed. An extended hot spell, like the Southwest experienced last year, would hurt the harvest. The hot dry winds could dry out the surface moisture and stunt the cotton.

To date, though rainfall has been above normal and very little of it has been damaging. Farmers in the Ackerly and Vealmoor areas were hardest hit by the hail and heavy thundershowers last week. For that reason, cotton had to be replanted in those fields.

Insect infestation has been light so far. Mostly, the trouble, what there has been of it, comes from leaf hoppers and thrips.

County Extension Agent Don Richardson said that his office will be holding training seminars which teaches enrollees how to recognize and control the insects. Dates for the seminars will be announced at a later date.

The exact number of acres devoted to cotton in Howard County likely will not be known before Aug. 4, when it must be certified with the ASCS office. However, it is extensive, perhaps similar to that devoted to the crop two years ago.

Centennial plans becoming reality

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Mitchell County Centennial activities continue to accelerate as plans are being taken off the drawing board and becoming reality.

Saturday, local citizenry will travel to Snyder, Roscoe and Sweetwater with a ragtime pianist, camp town singers, clowns, barbershop harmony, antique cars and a unicyclist, former Big Spring Laura Baum, who'll be in bad shape if her one tire goes flat.

Additional caravans are scheduled for Midland, Big Spring and Abilene.

Meanwhile, back at headquarters, Colorado Citizens are gearing for the local promenade as well as the "boom town review," for which casting will begin June 17.

FACES CHARGES — Donny Ray Biggs, far right, Slaton, who was driving a Dodge van, reportedly was involved in an accident with a Cadillac driven by Mack Roberts of Houston. Reports show Biggs left the scene and headed into Sterling County, where he allegedly hit a Volkswagen.

Mineral valuations skyrocket to $390 million

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Mitchell County commissioners received good news at Monday afternoon's meeting.

County tax collector-assessor Mike Burt reported mineral valuations for the next year will be $390 million. Those figures come from Pritchard and Abbott, the firm hired by the county to determine mineral values.

Last year's mineral valuations were $276 million. New production totals $34,400,000, which Burt estimates will add $80,000 to $90,000 in new tax dollars to the county's funds. Additionally, this will mean approximately $50,000 in new funds for the hospital district.

Additionally, Gladys Odom was named to replace Geneva Jones as assistant librarian, effective July 1. Ms. Jones is resigning as of July 1.

The county now is accepting applications for the position of first librarian.

County commissioners agreed to purchase new equipment for the volunteer fire department with the price to be determined through advertising for bids.

Other items discussed included employee insurance, advertising for bids for seal coating approximately eight miles of county road, approving the travel to Abilene for the annual seminar of clerks for the county and district clerks.

Gras gains promotion

E.H. Gras has been named manager of the expanding cryogenic services that Halliburton Services provides for oil and gas operators.

"This new operation reflects the growing role that gases such as nitrogen and carbon dioxide are playing in well stimulation, enhanced oil recovery technique and other applications," said Leonard Leon, president of Halliburton Services.

During his 34 years with Halliburton, Gras has worked as an engineer in field operations and mechanical research and, for the past 23 years, in hydraulic fracturing and chemical stimulation.

He has been involved in developing the use of nitrogen for stimulation and other downhole purposes since the early 1960s and has been Halliburton's technical coordinator for nitrogen services since 1977.

Halliburton Services and its foreign affiliates now maintain the world's largest network of nitrogen and carbon dioxide service locations.

Gras has a degree in mechanical engineering from Texas A&M University and is a member of SPE-AIME and a registered professional engineer. He will continue to be based at Duncan, Okla., where he reports to A.A. Baker, senior vice president for domestic operations of the Halliburton Company subsidiary.

Savings bonus selling slowly

Sales of Series EE & HH United States Savings Bonds in Howard County were reported today by County Bond Chairman Jimmy Taylor to be $27,555 in January. That represents five percent of the 1981 goal of $585,000.

Texas sales during the month amounted to $21,384,204, while sales for the first month of 1981 totaled $21,384,204 with 8 percent of the yearly sales goal of $252.3 million achieved.

Resident's son dies in fall

The son of a Big Spring man, Harley Craft, 19, of Abilene, was killed late Thursday night when he fell from an oil rig in Coleman County.

Mr. Craft was pronounced dead at Overall-Morris Memorial Hospital in Coleman. He apparently suffered extensive chest and internal injuries in the fall.

The victim, who had been working for Jones Drilling Co., only two days, was not wearing a safety belt when he fell.

Services were held at 2 p.m., Sunday at Mabene Allen Funeral Home Chapel in Coleman. Burial followed in the Hawley Cemetery.

Mr. Craft was the son of Lynn Craft, Big Spring. Other survivors include his mother, Mary Helen Knickerbocker, Tucson, Ariz.; and two sisters, Tribby Ann and Jenny Lynn Craft, both of Tucson.

Lybrand quits as councilman

LAMESA — Bennie Lybrand has resigned as a Lamesa city councilman to avoid any "possibility of conflict of interest" with the engineering firm he manages.

Lybrand's term of office would have ended in 1982.

"I feel I can more effectively serve the people and the City of Lamesa by making my engineering and surveying services available without any possibility of conflict of interest," Lybrand said, in announcing his decision to leave the council.

GOOD FOOD, FUN ATMOSPHERE ... at the Gold Mine in College Park

Escape the heat with Gold Mine ice cream

As the temperature rises, your appetite for good, cold ice cream becomes insatiable. Look to the Gold Mine restaurant in College Park to treat your taste buds to something cool and refreshing. The Gold Mine not only offers many flavors of ice cream (16) but several kinds of sandwiches and a pleasant atmosphere.

Owners Steve and Amy Lewis, who also own and operate the Rainbarrel Gift Shop in College Park wanted to provide Big Spring with an eating place that offered more than just good food. The Lewises have found a host of unusual furnishings and have given the Gold Mine an old fashioned-type atmosphere.

As far as food goes, The Gold Mine offers plenty of it, and at a price that will suit you. Sandwiches on the menu include hamburgers, cheeseburgers, roast beef (thin sliced for added tenderness), plus pastrami, corned beef, grilled cheese, hot dogs, barbeque sandwiches and steak sandwiches.

If an afternoon snack is what you're interested in, check out The Gold Mine for hand-dipped ice cream (16 flavors), banana splits, and a variety of soft drinks.

Whatever your tastes, The Gold Mine has something for you. They're open Monday thru Saturday from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m., and located in the College Park Shopping Center.

Free road map as rare as 30 cents gallon gas

By CHARLES PARKER "Back When Gas Was 30 Cents a Gallon" is not just a song title by Tom T. Hall. It suggests a period in time when complete service on a car was standard procedure.

Station customers could not only get their tires and batteries checked and their windshields washed, they could pick up a road map just for the asking.

Those days, for the most part, may be gone for ever. Now gasoline is $1.25 a gallon. Motorists clean their own windshields and personally check the vehicle's oil dip sticks. And road maps have practically disappeared from some stations. The cost of reproducing them has gone so high, a station no longer feels he can afford that kind of give-away.

Those stations which still carry the Atlases charge anywhere from 25 cents to $1.50 each for them.

Some stations still give away maps as part of their service but they're getting fewer all the time.

The decision to phase out road maps, of course, was made by the major oil companies. Their officials either did not want to worry about production of the maps or else felt that the public should pay for what it gets.

A cross-country motorist feels obligated to know the road, so he has a decision to make. Does he make use of old maps, which in 10 years' time may have been sadly outdated? Does he trust his ability to read road signs and start out with any kind of a map whatsoever? Or does he invest in a new map? After all, the expense of such an aid is infinitesimal, compared to the cost of the trip overall.

Most people apparently opt to invest in a new map. After all, it's better than getting lost and most automobile drivers come to the conclusion that those specializing in such a service should not be deprived of the chance to show a fair profit for the contributions they're making to modern driving.

Beautiful foods to honor the bride and groom

For the wedding at home

Today's bridal couple sees marriage as a very personal commitment, and the wedding is often shared only with their families and closest friends. To keep this intimate atmosphere, home weddings have become increasingly popular and elegant simplicity prevails.

The beautiful bridal buffet featured here captures the spirit of the occasion perfectly. Whole poached salmon from the icy waters of Alaska shimmers in aspic, and it's a subtle flavor contrast to the rice salad flavored with curry.

The Spiced Pear Wedding Cake is in the best tradition of "something old, and something new." Canned Bartlett pears, so familiar to all of us in salads, compotes and as partners with other foods, produce a wedding cake with a new flavor and a new look. The delicate, sweet flavor is a perfect complement to the festive champagne punch.

Bountiful enough to serve 20 guests, this menu can be prepared a day or so ahead. The bride may do it herself, if she wishes, as her very personal "Thank you!" to those sharing her day.

CURRIED RICE SALAD

- 2 tablespoons curry powder
- 1-3 cup butter
- 6 cups chicken broth
- 3 cups uncooked rice
- 1/4 cup each chopped green pepper and green onion
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 3 cups mayonnaise
- 3 tablespoons milk
- 1 cup frozen, thawed peas
- 3/4 cup toasted silvered almonds
- Parsley

Saute curry in butter several minutes. Stir in chicken broth; bring to boil. Add rice and green pepper; cover and simmer 20 minutes or until all liquid is absorbed. Stir in green onion and lemon juice. Chill thoroughly. Combine mayonnaise and milk; blend well. Stir into rice mixture along with peas and almonds. Garnish with parsley. Makes about 20 servings.

SPICED PEAR WEDDING CAKE

- 1 can (16 ounce) Bartlett pear halves or slices
- 2-1/2 cups flour
- 3/4 cup each sugar and packed brown sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1/4 cup each shortening and softened butter
- 1-1/2 teaspoons each baking soda and salt
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Grease and flour 10-cup tube or bundt pan. Bake at 350 degrees F 50 to 55 minutes or until wooden pick inserted near center of cake comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes; remove from pan and finish cooling on wire rack. Dust with powdered sugar. Decorate with fresh or silk flowers. Makes 16 to 20 servings.

PEAR-GRAPE JEWEL AMBROSIA

- 1 can (16 ounce) Bartlett pear halves
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- 3 eggs, separated
- 1/2 cup milk
- 3 packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese, softened
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Part of the excitement of a wedding is the bridal shower. The hostess knows that the fun of opening gifts (without breaking the ribbons!) will be hard to top. Ambrosia, the food of the gods, should keep the high spirits going. This Pear-Grape Jewel Ambrosia is a luscious version of everyone's favorite dessert — cheesecake.

CHAMPAGNE GRAPE PUNCH

- 3 cups green, red or blue-black grapes, halved and seeded if necessary
- 1/2 cup orange liqueur
- 3 fifths champagne, chilled
- In punch bowl, combine grapes and orange liqueur; let stand 30 minutes. Pour champagne over grapes and liqueur. To serve, ladle punch and a few grapes into each glass. Makes about 24 punch cup servings.

Recipe may be doubled or tripled.

For the bridal shower

Part of the excitement of a wedding is the bridal shower. The hostess knows that the fun of opening gifts (without breaking the ribbons!) will be hard to top. Ambrosia, the food of the gods, should keep the high spirits going. This Pear-Grape Jewel Ambrosia is a luscious version of everyone's favorite dessert — cheesecake.

Festooned with slices of canned Bartlett pears and succulent California table grapes, it's lovely enough to please the ladies and hearty enough to please the men, if the party adopts the new mode of including both sexes. The grapes add history as well as beauty. There were references to grapes as far back in time as 4000 B.C. though today's improved strains provide bigger, juicier varieties. Luscious in flavor, they continue the wedding tradition of something old.

PEAR-GRAPE JEWEL AMBROSIA

- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 6 tablespoons sugar
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- Coconut Crust
- 1/2 cup green, red or blue-black grapes, halved and seeded if necessary
- Glaze
- Grape clusters

Run warm knife around edge of cheesecake then remove sides of springform pan. Garnish with grape clusters. Makes 16 to 20 servings.

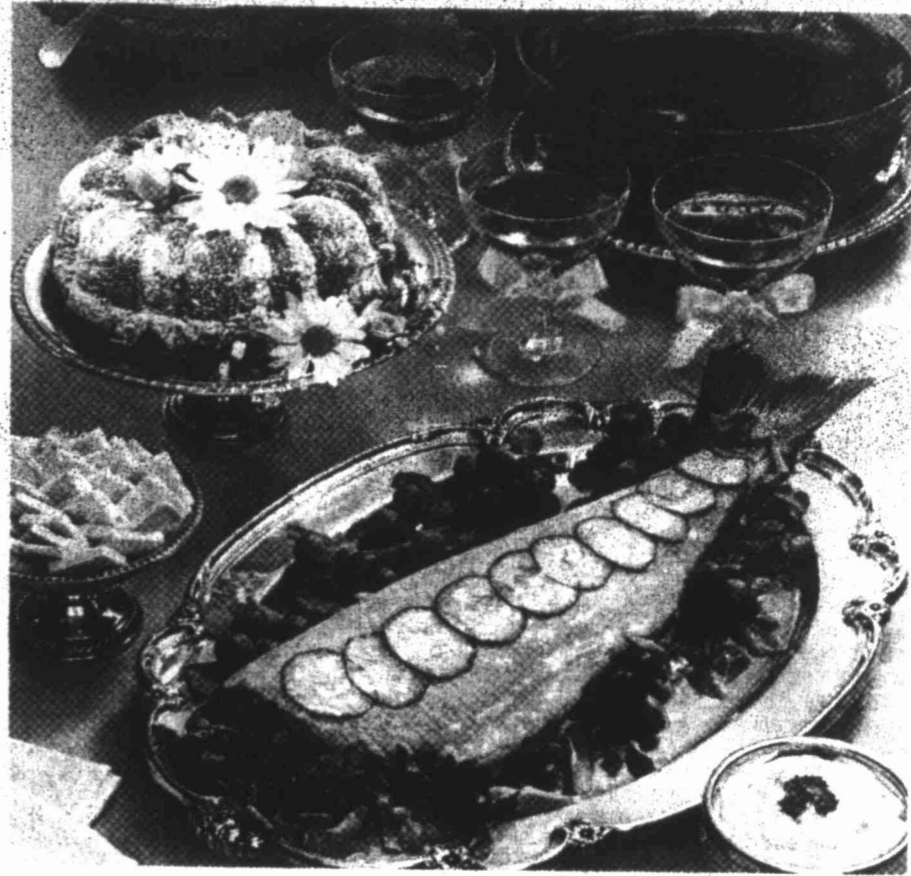

Coconut Crust: Combine 1-1/2 cups flaked coconut, 1/4 cup finely chopped almonds and 1/4 cup butter or margarine in 8-1/2 or 9-inch springform pan. Bake at 350 degrees F about 15 minutes or until golden; stir occasionally. Press over bottom of pan. Cool completely.

Glaze: Combine 2

firm. Run warm knife around edge of cheesecake then remove sides of springform pan. Garnish with grape clusters. Makes 16 to 20 servings.

and 1/4 cup butter or margarine in 8-1/2 or 9-inch springform pan. Bake at 350 degrees F about 15 minutes or until golden; stir occasionally. Press over bottom of pan. Cool completely.

teaspoons cornstarch and dash salt. Add water if necessary to remaining reserved pear syrup to equal 1/2 cup liquid; gradually stir into cornstarch mixture. Cook and stir until thickened and clear. Stir in 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Cool slightly.

FOODS FIT FOR A WEDDING — Champagne Grape Punch at top right, Spiced Pear Wedding Cake and Poached Salmon with Mustard Mayonnaise, accompanied by Curried Rice Salad make sumptuous wedding feast to honor newlyweds.

POACHED SALMON WITH MUSTARD MAYONNAISE

- 1 (4 to 6 pounds) whole fresh or frozen, thawed salmon
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1-3 cup each chopped onion, carrot, celery and green pepper
- 2-1/2 quarts water
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1 sprig parsley
- 5 peppercorns
- 1 bay leaf
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin

Scored cucumber, thinly sliced.

Garnishes: Watercress or parsley.

Small clusters fresh grapes.

Mustard Mayonnaise

Rinse salmon; remove head and tail, if desired. Melt butter; saute onion, celery, carrot and green pepper 5 minutes. Add water, lemon juice and seasonings; heat to boiling. Wrap salmon in cheesecloth leaving long ends on the cloth to serve as handles for removing from poaching liquid. Immerse salmon into boiling liquid; add additional boiling water, if necessary, to cover salmon. Cover, reduce heat and simmer gently. Allow 8 to 10 minutes per pound or 10 minutes per inch thickness of fish. Remove salmon from liquid; gently remove skin while still warm. Strain liquid; cool completely. Soften gelatin in 2 cups cooled liquid; heat to dissolve gelatin completely. Chill until mixture barely starts to thicken. Spoon gelatin mixture over salmon, using just enough to coat salmon completely. Chill. Decorate salmon with cucumber; spoon a thin layer of gelatin mixture over decorated salmon. Chill. Garnish platter as desired. Serve with Mustard Mayonnaise. Makes about 20 servings.

Mustard Mayonnaise: Combine 2 cups mayonnaise, 1/4 cup minced parsley, 2 tablespoons each minced onion and Dijon mustard and dash white pepper. Chill thoroughly. Makes about 2 cups.

When dinosaurs had wanderlust

By THOMAS HARNEY
Smithsonian News Service

If Nicholas Hotton were rewriting the lyrics of that famous song from "Showboat," they might be something like this:

"Fish gotta swim, birds gotta fly... and dinosaurs gotta migrate."

Dinosaurs gotta migrate? Yes, indeed, according to Hotton, who, as you might have guessed, is not a songwriter (that's a scientist who studies fossils) at the Smithsonian's Museum of Natural History in Washington, D.C.

He also is one of the leading advocates of the theory that dinosaurs made annual seasonal migrations, comparable to the long-distance treks undertaken today by birds and whales. The possibility of dinosaur migrations bears directly on the mysteries of migrations as well as on the question of what sort of animal a dinosaur was and how it lived and behaved. All of which is a matter that is still very controversial today.

But first, imagine this scene as painted by Hotton: a herd of enormous dinosaurs striding 2,000 miles from present-day Montana northward to well above the Arctic Circle.

The time is 70 million to 75 million years ago a period that scientists call the late Cretaceous Era. The herd is made up of two-footed, plant-eating hadrosaurs—a group of dinosaurs that flourished in North America in great numbers and many forms during this period.

Towering 10 to 20 feet above the ground and weighing as much as 6,000 pounds, the elephant-sized creatures stood erect, with duck-like beaks and bizarre, helmet-like crests covering the tops of their heads. (Small wonder they are also called "duckbill dinosaurs.")

With their beaks, the hadrosaurs browsed on needles, twigs, fruits and seeds of the conifers and other trees that covered vast areas of continental North America. As they foraged, they moved steadily northward, their powerful legs taking them 10 to 20 miles a day.

Now, before you accuse Hotton of having an overly vivid imagination, make no mistake. The latest fossil evidence firmly supports Hotton's contention, that these awesome journeys actually took place.

Indeed, scientists first were tipped off to the possibility of annual Arctic migrations about eight years ago, Hotton says, when fossil remains of hadrosaurs were discovered in the Yukon Territory almost as far north as 70 degrees latitude, well above the Arctic Circle. Plentiful remains of the same animals had been found earlier in western North America.

There is good reason to doubt that hadrosaurs could have lived near the Arctic Circle year-round, Hotton says. Scientists have reconstructed what the climate was like during the late Cretaceous Era, and while it was warm and temperate that far north in the spring, summer and fall, the winters were certainly dark and cold. Under such inhospitable conditions, it seems all the more likely that the many fossils unearthed in the far north, from 60 degrees to 70 degrees latitude, reflect summer occupancy only.

To Hotton, the likelihood of these vast migrations gets to the heart of the dinosaur controversy, which centers around the newly espoused popular theory that dinosaurs were warm-blooded animals, like mammals or birds living today. Hotton disagrees.

In a recent scientific publication, he argues that dinosaurs were unique. They not only had an exotically different appearance from today's mammals and birds, but they also had a completely different internal physiology, he says.

Hotton believes that dinosaurs, over a period of some 100 million years, evolved a distinctive way to control the temperature of their bodies. In his view, this thermal mechanism determined the unique character and history of these prehistoric beasts—including their eventual extinction.

"Unlike mammals, dinosaurs had no special mechanism for the internal production of heat," Hotton explains. "rather, they kept warm with heat generated by muscle movements within their great bodies. In this respect, they resembled birds, but they lacked an insulating coat of feathers or hair."

This was a physiology, according to Hotton, that was highly advantageous in the arid age during which dinosaurs originated. By attaining increasingly large size, dinosaurs found it easy to reduce heat transfer, maintain a high constant temperature and conserve water.

Dinosaurs were not torpid and slow as was once commonly believed. Their distinctive physiology dictated a lifestyle of great activity. But, Hotton maintains, dinosaurs definitely did not have a "mammal-like gait," as advocates of the warm-blooded dinosaur theory have suggested.

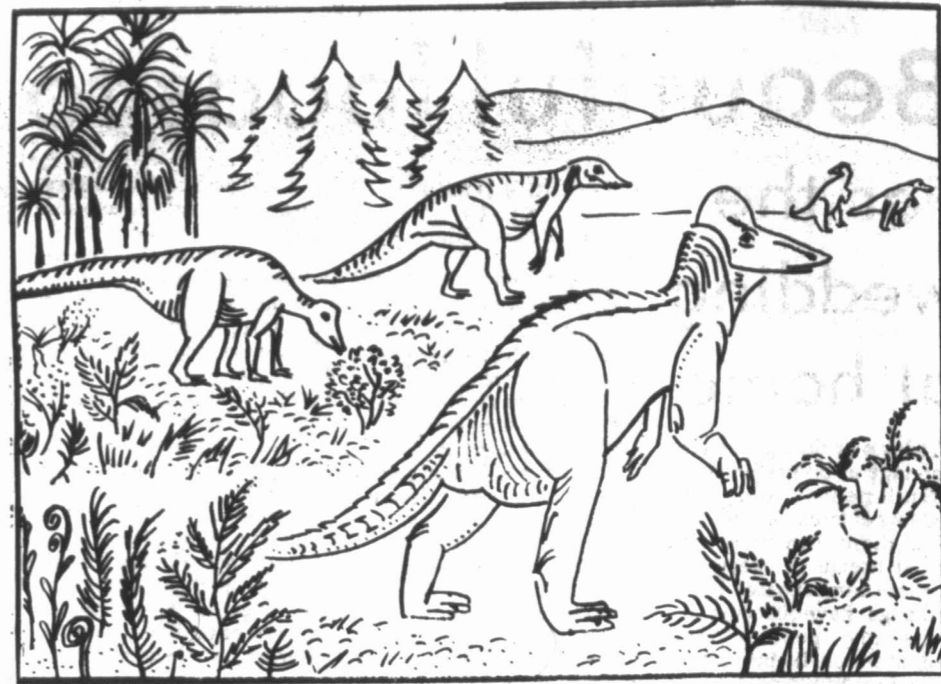

His studies of dinosaur bone structure show that the dinosaur hip bone did not have a ball-joint like a mammal's hip bone. Thus, dinosaurs were not agile-footed like mountain goats or fast runners like horses or camels, he says.

Instead, the hip joint and the configuration of the rest of the dinosaur's leg structure—along with its thermal physiology—fit a view that dinosaurs walked "slowly and steadily" over long distances, gathering the food they needed along the way to keep themselves going.

As Hotton envisions the scene, hadrosaurs and other migrating dinosaurs would have begun to drift northward in the spring as they became aware that rising temperatures, longer daylight hours and new plant growth were extending their foraging range.

Because of their physiology, dinosaurs were highly sensitive and dependent on stable environmental temperatures. Migrating would have made it possible for them to avoid temperature extremes. Hotton speculates that drastic changes in world seasonal temperatures about 65 million years ago may, in the end, have been responsible for their extinction, though they reigned supreme for more than 140 million years.

GO NORTH YOUNG DINO — A scientist at the Smithsonian's Museum of Natural History believes that dinosaurs made annual migrations. In this scene, an artist has re-created how a herd of duck-billed dinosaurs might have looked 70 million years ago as they drifted north from present-day Montana to the Arctic Circle.

BIG WALKERS — Dr. Nicholas Hotton of the Smithsonian's Museum of Natural History is a leading advocate of the theory that dinosaurs made annual seasonal migrations. The fossil evidence supports this view, he says. Here, Hotton displays a styrofoam cast of a dinosaur thighbone. The anatomical detail of this bone, he says, is evidence that dinosaurs were "competent walkers" and could easily have made the annual long-distance trips.

Colorado City school trustees eye results

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Highlighting a three-hour meeting of the Colorado City school trustees Monday night were the results of the Texas Assessment of Basic Skills recently compiled.

According to Supt. of Schools Charlie Useton "these tests were administered for the first time to our third grade students, as well as to previously tested fifth and ninth graders. Overall, we were quite proud of our students, even though we aren't satisfied with some of the scores; however, we are improving, and if we continue at the current testing rate, and maintain the level of improvement shown from previous testing, we will be in good shape with continued progress."

In additional board business, Supt. Useton announced no bids were received for the Building Trades Class housing project. Useton mentioned the current interest rate level is a contributing factor but the school district will open bids again in July with the hope some bids will be received prior to the project's needing to be begun.

A change in the grading system will be implemented this fall, with report cards a number grade rather than a letter grade. Useton reported a survey of school faculty had ascertained a desire for this change, with an explanation of each number grade as it relates to a letter grade on each report card.

Useton also noted drawings have been accepted and cost figures are being sought concerning remodeling of administration building space with the possibility of renting the remodeled facilities to the tax appraisal board, which is seeking office space.

Books for summer reading suggested CRMWD directors call meeting here June 18

By ROSE von HASSELL
Cataloger

The Howard County Library has been busy this week getting the "Children's Summer Reading Program" started. But we haven't forgotten about books for the adults, and have received some books that will be of interest to many of you.

Now that summer is here we all think of getting back into shape, and what better way to do it than by swimming. "Swimming for Total Fitness" by Jane Katz tells us how to do it. If you can't swim, or can but want to improve, this book can help you. It also has a progressive aerobic fitness program to get and keep you in shape. This program has workouts for the beginner, the intermediate, the advanced, and the super swimmer. There is also a chapter that answers many questions on the program, and swimming in general. Georges Simenon is the author of the very popular Inspector Maigret mystery series. Did you know that he also wrote about another detective, called the Little Doctor. He started his career in detecting quite by accident but soon became famous and was in great demand to solve many mysteries. His methods may seem somewhat unconventional, but they make amusing and witty stories, and a delight to read.

John Jay Osborn is the author of "The Paper Chase" which was made into an Academy Award-winning movie and then into a television series. He has just written another book titled "The Man Who Owned New York". Robert Fox is a junior partner in a very important law firm on Wall Street. He finds out that more than three million dollars is missing from the estate of one of his most important clients. In trying to find what has happened to the missing millions Fox's search leads him into many dangerous situations.

If you have enjoyed "All Things Wise and Wonderful" by James Herriot, you'll be happy to know he's written a sequel titled, "The Lord God Made Them All". It takes place in the 1950's and James and Helen have two growing children, and live at Skedale House on the edge of the Yorkshire dales. We are reintroduced to his dear old friends Siegfried and Tristan, who still have their great humor. We also meet some new friends when James travels behind the Iron Curtain. The experiences he relates are a marvelous experience and not to be missed. Have you ever been called for jury duty, and had no idea what to expect? "Beyond a Reasonable Doubt", by Melvyn Bernard Zerman takes a good hard look at the American jury system. In writing his book, he draws on research, intensive interviews, and his own experience as a juror to help unravel the complex jury system. He explains how juries are chosen, what is expected of them, and the structure and procedures of a typical criminal trial. This is an ideal guide for every prospective juror and everyone who seeks a better understanding of one of the cornerstones of American Democracy. I haven't listed all the new books, so why not come down to the library, and start your own summer reading program?

Directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District will meet at 10 a.m. June 18 at the district headquarters in Big Spring. Routine business and operational reports will comprise most of the agenda. Directors are expected to authorize the advertisements for bids on oil and gas leases in Coke County, probably for early in July. The district has all the minerals under 560 acres and half of the minerals under 160 other acres near Lake E.V. Spence. Ratification of expenditures for repairing pipelines and constructing facilities to prevent future washouts at Leatherwood Crossing north of Big Spring will be asked. O.H. Ivie, general manager, also will have reports on the oral arguments before the 3rd Court of Appeals today in Austin in the appeal of the district's permit to construct the Stacy reservoir. The court asked for a repeat of oral arguments, since there had been a change in personnel of the court.

Theft suspect freed on bond
Lonnell Banks, 43, of 507 NW 12th, was transferred to county jail Tuesday following his arrest on a felony warrant stemming from a theft charge. A $15,000 bond was set by Judge Lewis Hefflin. Banks posted the bond and was released.

Let's hear it for dear old dad!

By MADELEINE JACOBS
Smithsonian News Service
"It's a wise father that knows his own child." — William Shakespeare

FATHERS OF THE WORLD, UNITE!

Enough about motherly love! It's your turn to stand up and claim credit for all the hours you've devoted to the care and feeding of the little ones.

Not just the time and energy you've spent providing food and shelter, but all those hours invested in midnight bottle feedings, diaper changings, back-to-school nights, endless piano and dance recitals, refereeing at soccer games and providing unlimited chauffeur service.

It's enough to make you feel like a proud papa, especially when you stop and realize that fatherly love is rather rare in the animal kingdom, says Dr. Devra G. Kleiman, a zoologist at the Smithsonian's National Zoological Park in Washington, D.C.

More often than not, she says, the father shows almost no interest in his offspring, other than perhaps defending a territory against intruders. Even among paternal types, there is wide variation in how much fathers invest in their young, she notes, with male mammals investing less than birds and fishes, though more than reptiles and some amphibians.

Still, there are dedicated daddies throughout the animal kingdom — from the beaver to the bush dog, from the phalarope to the penguin. Here's a Father's Day salute to them.

Top honors for paternal provisioning must surely go to the Emperor Penguin, the largest of the penguins, which makes its home on the inhospitable shelf ice of Antarctica. While we in the Northern Hemisphere are enjoying summer, it is winter in Antarctica and perpetually dark. Even as you read this, each papa penguin is standing alone with a single egg in the dark, bitter cold, abandoned by his mate after a two-month whirlwind courtship.

During their late fall fling, the male and female, apparently occupied with better things to do, entirely forgo eating and engage instead in an elaborate series of displays which culminate in mating. The female lays one egg, then promptly vanishes off to sea to feast, leaving her hapless, hungry helpmate holding the egg.

The male penguin does not build a nest but holds the egg on his feet, covering it with a fold of his bellyskin throughout the entire incubation period. Since he does not dare abandon his potential offspring in order to eat, by the time the chick hatches some 60 days later, the male has lost 35 to 45 percent of his weight during his four-month fast.

If the vacationing momma has not returned by the time baby hatches, daddy also caters the first meal for the chick. The story has a happy ending, though, since mom eventually returns and both parents share the brooding and feeding responsibilities for the next five months.

While much is known about this extraordinary example of fatherhood, no one has carried out studies on marital bliss among the peripatetic penguin.

The usual parental roles are even more reversed in the red phalarope, a slim-necked shorebird that breeds on the Arctic tundra and winters at sea, south of the equator. The small, subdued-color males are ardently pursued by the larger, more gaily dressed females until the male succumbs to her charms and builds a nest, usually on a low bank covered with short grass. The female duly deposits as many as four eggs, then takes off for the open tundra, perhaps to flirt with other males, leaving the would-be father to incubate the eggs and raise the chicks on his own. Such unseemly maternal behavior led one naturalist to observe that the female red phalarope is a "poor mother at best."

Moving on from feathered fathers to the watery world of fishes, there are a number of species in which the male guards the eggs laid by the female, but only a few fish can compete with the curious case of the seahorse, a small, warm-water creature in which the male literally gives birth.

The female seahorse dumps her eggs in a specialized brood pouch located beneath the male's tail and swims away — forever. At birth, the male contorts his body and expels the young through the single opening in the pouch. It's a labor of love that keeps the seahorse sire quite busy — the dwarf seahorse, for example, breeds nine months of the year and is capable of giving birth every 10 days to a whole new batch of fish fry.

Sad to say, such fatherly devotion is rare among mammals, zoologist Kleiman points out, but to be perfectly fair, there are sound biological reasons which partly explain this fatherly neglect. After all, among mammals, only the female can "incubate" the egg since it is fertilized internally, and only the mother has the ability — and equipment — to nurse the young. This rules out two roles for male mammals that male birds and fishes can perform as well as their female mates.

But if you disregard these sex differences, Kleiman says, male mammals do have the same potential to care for the young as females. They can provide food, shelter, defense, cleaning, carrying and grooming. They can also socialize, play and babysit with the youngsters.

Yet, in an extensive survey carried out by Kleiman and a colleague, Dr. James R. Malcolm, on male paternal investment in mammals, only a few prize-winning poppas turned up.

One candidate for Father of the Year is the busy beaver. Not only does the male beaver build and maintain the lodge and stock the larder with food for the winter, but when the babies are born, he provides food for them, cleans and carries them, babysits and huddles with the tykes, all the while maintaining a constant vigil against predators.

Then there's the South American bush dog, a relative of the common household dog. In what is probably unique behavior among male mammals, the short, squat bush dog actively participates in raising the young from the moment of birth, according to biologist Ingrid Porton, a student of Kleiman's who is studying bush dog behavior at the Zoo's Conservation and Research Center in Front Royal, Va.

"The father's role is incredible," an admiring Porton says. "In one instance, we saw a male help pull the pup from the female during birth, and in each of the births we've witnessed, the male pulls out and consumes much of the afterbirth."

"As soon as the pups are born, the father aids the mother in licking the pups dry and from then on takes a nearly equal role in caring for the young. The mother nurses the infants for about 10 weeks, but during this time the father continues to clean them and sleeps with the pups, which help regulate their temperature and protects them. It's a very close-knit family."

Police Beat — Stolen goods recovered

Police have issued a warrant for the arrest of a local man suspected of burglarizing the Rockwell Brothers Company, 300 W. 2nd, sometime Sunday night.

The intruder broke into the store and stole five chain saws, a display case full of tape measures, six aluminum levels and a large variety of other tools and merchandise valued at over $1,250.

On Monday afternoon, however, Officer Mike Hillers and Sgt. Jimmy Hensley received a tip that some of the stolen merchandise might be located at a local home.

The officers entered a home on the 100 block of South Scurry, and found over $1,000 worth of the stolen goods, including hammers, saws, tape measures, carpenter squares and a lawn spreader. Much of the merchandise, including chainsaws, was not recovered. A warrant has been issued for the owner of the home, and an arrest is expected shortly, said Hillers, this morning.

Using a warrant for strong-arm robbery, detectives arrested a 43-year-old local man on suspicion of beating up Willie Calton, 70, Sunday night, and stealing $390 from him. Charged with the robbery is Lonell Banks, 43, 207 N.W. 12th.

Detective Bud Jones made the arrest, 11:18 a.m. Monday, on the 300 block of North Bell.

Burglars climbed over the fence surrounding the Chemical Service Company in the Industrial Park, and entered the building, sometime Sunday night. Stolen were a seven-inch angle sander, a 50-foot extension cord and a four-way plug. Loss was estimated at $262.

While David Murphy, 2505

Fisher, was on vacation last week, someone lifted his 1979 Honda motorcycle. The bike was valued at $1,600.

Someone forged a payroll check issued at Hall-Bennett Hospital, 411 E. 9th, sometime this month. The check totaled $292.97.

White Henry Resa, Artesia, N.M., was parked in the lot of Fina's Cafe, from 8 p.m. to midnight, Friday, someone broke the vent window of his pickup and stole $200 in cash and a $250 Social Security check. Police will investigate further.

A thief stole two cases of Coca-Cola from a company truck parked at the Giant Food Store, 10:45 a.m. Monday. The Cokes were valued at $16.48.

A vehicle driven by Marvin K. Britton, 2300 Marshall, struck a directional sign at FM 700 and East 11th, 6:24 a.m.

A time for harvesting and thought

REWARDS — Enjoyment, flavor and family togetherness — that's what gardening is all about.

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

The past four weeks I've talked a lot about the "whys" and "hows" of growing a successful vegetable garden in Howard County.

If you've been doing the right things at the right times such as planting the right varieties and fertilizing, watering, mulching and controlling pests properly, chances are you've begun to enjoy the "fruits of your labor."

Most inexperienced gardeners have a tendency to believe all that's left to do is to sit back and enjoy all those tasty, fresh vegetables. Believe me, that's wrong! If anything, you should pay even closer attention to your garden and what's going on out there. An outbreak of disease, an infestation of damaging insects, or even a short drought period can wreck your garden and make all previous efforts worthless.

Also, make it a point to harvest all your vegetables when they mature. To get the most from your garden, harvest your vegetables at their best stage for eating. This is also a must for canning and freezing. The final quality of your preserved vegetables is no better than the quality you began with. In other words, what you put in the jar is what you take out.

After all the effort you've put into growing your garden this year, make sure that you enjoy your vegetables at their peak of quality. It's important to remember that once a vegetable is removed from your garden, it has no further source of food nor can it replace loss of moisture. So, make the time between harvesting and eating or preserving as short as possible. Now it's time for a little philosophy. Gardening is a great activity — for everyone. Its rewards are many, but there's one that's overlooked by most and that's an appreciation of agriculture. You haven't been gardening; you've been "backyard farming."

If you have been successful this year, you owe a lot of the success to the advances brought about by modern science and research conducted by land grant universities and private industry. New varieties, improved cultural techniques, high efficiency fertilizers, and safe and effective pest control chemicals are all the result of a highly sophisticated agricultural system like no other anywhere in the world.

If your garden was a failure of just didn't live up to your expectations, try to figure out what went wrong. Vow to do better next time. And on your next trip to the local grocery store, be appreciative and thankful for the small number of farmers doing a great job to feed

America. I hope you've enjoyed the information I've provided you these past several weeks. Its purpose was to

Willie Nelson Concert nabs first for Jaycees

The Big Spring Camp Jaycees are still accepting tudes for the success of the Willie Nelson Concert, staged in Memorial Stadium in 1980.

It was one of seven first places captured by the Big Spring Camp Jaycees at the convention. Others included: Jaycee President of the Year Award (highest ranking honor in the Jaycees) — Charley Johnson; Outstanding State Project competition in the recent state convention, which was attended by seven members of the Big Spring club.

membership; doubling their membership in one year; and retention of their original members.

The local Jaycees also won second place awards in mental health and mental retardation work (Don Kluck, chairman); and promotion of health and safety (diabetic bike-athon).

Third places were won by the local unit in youth assistance (YMCA run); and health and safety.

The Big Spring Camp Jaycees made a contribution exceeding $50,000 to the Texas Jaycee Campus for the Handicapped, proceeds realized above expenses for the Willie Nelson Concert. That was the highest amount of money contributed to the Jaycee Campus for the Handicapped from a single Jaycee organization.

Charley Johnson has been nominated for the National President Award, winner of which will be determined at the national convention this month.

The success of the Willie Nelson Concert will also be considered as the National Project of the Year by the National Association.

Good old days were really hot

If you thought Tuesday was hot and that it's even hotter today, that ain't nothing compared to the temperatures of yesteryear. On this date in 1958 it was 108 blistering degrees, on yesterday's date it was 107 degrees in 1958. For Thursday, June 11, the record is another scorching 108 degrees set in 1917.

The complaints are growing steadily concerning the little heatwave, but it is nothing compared to those temperatures of the years of 1958 and 1917 respectively. In those years most of our records are still being held with little competition.

Outpost set in county

A wildcat and an outpost have been scheduled in Howard County. Hinkle Exploration Ltd., Midland, will drill the No. 1 Simpson, a 7,900-foot wildcat in Howard County, 3/4-mile south of a recent 7,814-foot failure, separated by the depleted one-well Central-Vealmoore (Canyon reef) field and 17 miles north-northeast of Big Spring. Location is 990 feet from the south and 1,980 feet from the west lines of 45-31-38-T&P.

The failure, Foy Boyd Management Corp. No. 1 Smith, was abandoned Feb. 4. The Central-Vealmoore opener, Stanolind Oil & Gas Co. No. 1 Minnie Smith, drilled to 7,856 feet, was finished Feb. 9, 1953 for 166 barrels of 40 gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 782-1, through a 20-64-inch choke and perforations at 7,773-96 feet. Turner Properties, Big Spring will drill the No. 1 Turner Properties-S.F. Buchanan, as a 1/2-mile east outpost to Fuseselman production in the Big Spring (Fuseselman oil and Pennsylvania gas) field of Howard County, eight miles northeast of Big Spring. Location is 680 feet from the north and west lines of 29-31-1n-T&P. Contract depth is 9,800 feet.

Chief to attend police seminar

Big Spring Police Chief Elwood Hoehrz will leave today for Irving to attend the 82nd annual Texas Police Association Conference and Seminar. The affair will begin Thursday morning and end, noon Sunday. The organization is made up primarily of administrators from police departments across the state, and new police procedures and legislation affecting police will be discussed during the seminar.

Horse training not easily mastered, performer says

Dianne Olds, one of the featured performers in the 1981 Big Spring Rodeo and Cowboy Reunion, can't remember when she wasn't enchanted by horses. Most little girls go through a period when they're 'horse crazy.' They beg their parents to buy one for them. If that ploy fails, they want to go to a corral just to be near one.

Dianne is now one of the few women horse trainers and performers in the country.

"I could probably go just about any place in the world and earn a living," she says now. "I could just fit in any place."

Horse training is not a talent easily mastered, Mrs. Olds says. You either have it or you don't.

"It takes a very dedicated person, very naturally gifted in timing and psychology with the animal," she explains, adding that the trainer communicates with a horse through the use of his hands, legs and feet.

There is no price tag she could put on him. The horses are born and raised on Mrs. Olds' breeding farm in Oregon, where she spends part of her time.

Much of the year, however, is spent on the road with her husband and three show horses. It's a hard life, with many overnight jumps from one town to the next.

"I have to do a lot of the driving myself, and even when you stop, there's no rest. The horses have to be fed, watered and groomed. We travel with a mobile home, truck and horse van, and it's expensive. It costs $70 to fuel up, and that'll take us 200 miles on flat road, unless it's uphill."

The horses must be washed and the tack cleaned every day, Mrs. Olds says, and she's very particular about that — so particular that she's gone through three grooms in six months. They start out thinking it'll be a fun job, but find it's very hard work.

She has good reason for requiring such exacting care for the horses.

There are only 250 Andalusians, the kind she works with, in the United States, which accounts for their value. But Mrs. Olds says they are special in every way.

"They are very high strung, but very kind animals," she says, smiling at the thought of them. "They look like they're ready to explode, and they are. Sometimes, they're so smart that they'll outsmart you. Although I point them terribly, I do let them know who's boss."

Although Mrs. Olds says there is money to be made in breeding Andalusian horses and there is an equal amount of sacrifice. But the best reward she says, is just being able to do what she loves.

"A lot of it is self-rewarding. I'm doing what I want to do and what I love to do. I get to travel all over the world, and I have the feeling of being accomplished and respected."

It makes her feel terrific, she says, when a member of the audience, after seeing her horses perform, can only say "Gee, wasn't that beautiful?"

Insect clinic booked Friday

COLORADO CITY (SC) — A plant disease and insect clinic will be held from 9:30 a.m., until noon Friday in the C.C. Thompson Meeting Room, according to County Extension Agent Bob Benson.

Dr. Harold Kauffman, plant pathologist from Fort Stockton, Dr. Tom Fuchs, area entomologist from San Angelo, Bill Jany, extension entomologist, and CEA Benson will be on hand to answer questions.

The clinic is free of charge.

It all started, she says, when she was just a child.

"I went to a girls' school that had lots of horses around, and that's what kept me there," she recalls. "After that, I went to college for a year and a half, but it was a waste of money and time, because I just kept going back to horses."

She spent 13 years working with three of the five top-notch horse trainers in the country learning to work with quarterhorses, Arabians, Lipizzans, saddle horses and thoroughbreds.

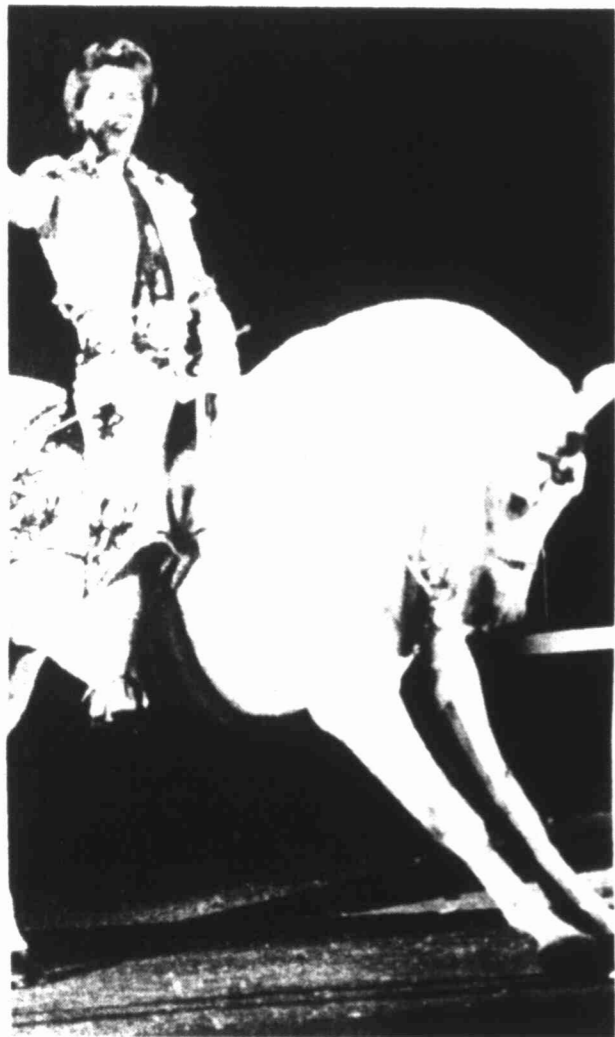

Although her roots are in Pico Rivera, she's been all over the world as she worked to perfect her craft. She held as many as three jobs at one time to enable herself to apprentice with the best.

It is not easy, she says, to get these high-strung and very intelligent animals to do what you want under conditions that are abnormal, as in a show.

One of the keys to successful training, she says, is to know what a particular horse's good points are.

"Every horse has a talent for something, and you have to try and develop that horse for that talent. He will show you what he's best at during the training time." It takes three years to thoroughly train a horse.

Mrs. Olds owns over 20 horses, $20,000 being the value of the least expensive of the lot. Once a horse is trained,

DIANNE OLDS, STILL 'HORSE CRAZY' Will perform at Big Spring Rodeo and Cowboy Reunion

Four-way stops top discussion

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The intersections of Sixth and Walnut and Sixth and Chestnut streets were the main topic of discussion at Tuesday night's Colorado City council meeting.

Prior thought had been given to making the intersection four-way stops. However, since the north-south, east-west traffic is not equal, the idea was discarded.

Council members spent some time discussing attorneys' fees for a case held recently in county court. Police Sgt. Billy Ray Williamson was acquitted on charges of cruelty to an animal. The sergeant retained counselor Frank Ginzel to defend him, in addition to city attorney Pete McKinney.

Additional council business included the council's accepting the bid of Tom's Paint and Body Shop to repair a police car which was damaged extensively during a chase in a rain storm. The cost will be $2,753.48.

Ginzel's bill to Williamson was $1,500, which the city discussed paying as a show of support for the police officer. McKinney's bill of $500 to the city for his extra work on the case will be paid by the city, but a decision on the statement from Ginzel will be forthcoming at the next council meeting.

Woman sues food store

A petition filed in 118th District Court today by Virginia King, is seeking damages from Giant Discount Food Store.

The suit filed is charging negligence on the part of Giant Discount Food Store, in allowing the water to remain on the floor.

The petition states "while walking through the store, (Mrs. King) slipped and fell on some water that had leaked from the machine located near the vegetables."

The petition says that Mrs. King suffered severe pain, loss of earnings and hospital bills in the amount of $35,000, the sum she is seeking in the suit.

Plaintiff's attorney is Edward T. Garza, Midland.

Three start prison terms

Three men were taken to the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville Tuesday, following their convictions of various crimes.

City, pleaded guilty to charges of burglary of a vehicle Tuesday. He was given a three year sentence.

James Earl White, 901 NW 5th, pleaded guilty in 118th District Court Tuesday on charges of aggravated robbery. The 18-year-old was given a six year sentence.

Ray Stewart Marion, 25, of Midland, had his probation revoked during a hearing Tuesday. He was given a three year sentence.

Members of the Howard County Sheriff's department transported the men.
