Rescuers working to save sick boy trapped in well

FRASCATI, Italy (AP) — Rescuers were within inches today of freeing a 6-year-old boy with heart trouble trapped more than 40 hours in a narrow well 118 feet underground. "I want water," the boy, Alfredo Rampi, was quoted as telling a fireman who was digging the last few inches with his hands. "My arm is hurting... I want water," Alfredo said. "Alfredo is alert, he is ready to cooperate," Murzio Bonardi, the fireman, told his colleagues by radio. The boy's parents, Fernando and Franca, took turns talking to their son by walkie-talkie. Thousands of onlookers surrounded the site, near the boy's grandparents' house about 15 miles from Rome. Alfredo fell into the well about 7 p.m. — 1 p.m. EDT — Wednesday while playing. He was caught at a point where the well, 16 inches at the surface, narrowed to 10 inches. His head was up and his arms apparently were free. Italy's two major TV networks broadcast frequent live reports from the scene. The story of the boy's struggle was front-page news in all Italian newspapers, many carrying it under banner headlines. Alfredo was breathing 48 times a minute, up from the normal range of 16-18, said Dr. Evasio Fava, one of two physicians monitoring the boy's condition with listening devices earlier today. "It's a critical situation," he said. The boy "obviously is very, very tired and weak. His breathing is rough... but he appears to be in a good shape from a psychological viewpoint." Fava and other doctors sent the boy a mixture of milk and sugar through a tube and said he appeared to be drinking it. Fava said the warm weather — temperatures climbed into the 90s during the day — improved Alfredo's chances of survival. The rescue workers, drilling a parallel shaft about 10 feet from the well to rescue the boy, began digging a tunnel down toward Alfredo from a depth of 112 feet. Originally, they planned to drill the shaft deeper than 118 feet and dig a tunnel that would slope slightly upward so the boy could be pulled out with minimal risk of a cave-in. Another reason they decided to dig down toward the boy was because the drill hit another hard rock, said Giusto Fegiz, a geology professor at the University of Rome who is directing the drilling operation. Shortly after 10:30 a.m. — 4:30 a.m. EDT — drillers broke through a 6½ foot rock barrier and reached the 112 foot mark in the parallel tunnel, about nine feet from the well. Firemen had hoped the boy could be reached by Thursday night but the operation slowed when the drill hit 15 feet of solid rock. A volunteer was lowered on ropes head first into the well late Thursday in a futile attempt to get Alfredo out. Isidoro Marabella, 52, was chosen for the attempt because he was short and thin, but he was not able to squeeze far enough down into the narrow shaft to reach the boy.

FATHER TALKS TO TRAPPED BOY — Ferdinando Rampi kneels in front of the entrance of an artesian well where his son Alfredo, 6, has been lying for more than 36 hours and speaks to him through a bull-horn. The boy fell into the well Wednesday afternoon. The boy lies at the depth of 36 meters (100 feet) and his health conditions are worsening. (AP LASERPHOTO)

Clements says list of topics for legislature not complete

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says the July 13 special legislative session may not be as short as some had hoped. Clements told a news conference Thursday that the five subjects he listed in his call of the session did not mean that would be all he wanted out of the 30-day meeting. In a special session, the governor has full power to say when the Legislature will meet and what subjects it will discuss. "I strongly support the gasohol bill (for temporary exemption from the state motor fuel tax) but whether it gets into the special session is an open question," he told the news conference. "I haven't decided yet, but I have not changed my mind about supporting it." Clements said the three "must" issues of the special session are: — Abolishment of the state property tax. "That's my No. 1 priority," he said. — Congressional redistricting. — Passage of the Medical Practices Act. The Texas Medical Examiners Board, which licenses all Texas doctors and physicians, will go out of business Sept. 1 unless the act is continued. "The other two items are certainly needed," he said. Also on the agenda for the summer session are creation of a water-trust fund from any state surpluses and a "tune up" revision of the 1979 property tax revision act. He said the regular session of the 1981 Legislature passed 901 bills and he has not acted on 478 of them. The deadline for his signing or vetoing them is June 21. On other subjects, Clements said: — He was "terribly disappointed" that West Texas rancher Robert Anderson, also chairman of the board of ARCO, had backed out of a deal to trade a large bloc of land for a similar amount owned by the University of Texas. "I am absolutely convinced the state has lost a wonderful opportunity for the future generations of this state," he said of the proposed wilderness area near Big Bend National Park. He said he doubted if Anderson would consider any more negotiations because he and his family were "offended" by reports that Anderson would benefit from the deal. Clements said he would veto any bill calling for the state to buy the ranch. — He was confident the recent meeting of President Ronald Reagan and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo strengthened the lines of communication between Mexico and Texas. — He would veto a bill changing the dates of local elections in Houston. "The others I have not decided," he said about other pending bills.

House refuses amendment to block neutron weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is refusing to block development of the neutron warhead despite claims that the weapon could be a first step in bringing the world closer to nuclear destruction. The House, in a 293-88 vote Thursday, rejected an attempt by Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., to bar use of federal money for production of the neutron weapon or its components. The vote came after Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., attributed the controversy over neutron warheads to Soviet propaganda "convincing people that somehow this was somehow even a more horrendous form of weaponry than what they have. And they have done the job." Without the neutron weapon, Stratton said, NATO forces defending Europe would be forced to use conventional nuclear weapons to defeat an attacking Soviet tank force. The neutron warhead produces less blast and heat and more radiation than a conventional nuclear bomb, allowing enemy soldiers to be killed with a minimum amount of damage to land and buildings. Its supporters argue that because it causes less destruction, the neutron warhead is a better tactical weapon than ordinary nuclear devices to defend Europe against massive Soviet tank attacks. The tank crews would be killed by radiation with the minimum physical destruction of European cities and towns. But opponents argued vainly on the House floor that the very concept was dangerous because it makes it easier to fire the first nuclear weapon. Once such weapons are used, they warn, the conflict would be out of control because the Soviets would respond with a full-scale nuclear barrage. Weiss offered the amendment to a $5.1 billion 1982 authorization bill for the Energy Department's defense activities. Under federal law, the Energy Department, not the Pentagon, has jurisdiction over nuclear weapons programs. The overall bill was later approved by voice vote.

Reagan 'digs in heels' on tax cut compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, rejecting Democratic complaints that his tax-cut plan does too little for low-income Americans, is slamming the door on further compromise. "I've dug in my heels," he says. The statement, relayed by a press aide, apparently assured an all-out battle when a tax-cut bill reaches the full House later this year. "I can't retreat from the 25 percent, across-the-board" cut in personal tax rates, Reagan told a group of labor leaders Thursday at the White House. Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee, meanwhile, were telling one of the president's chief tax advisers that the across-the-board concept — meaning the same rate cuts for rich and poor — is not acceptable. Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., the committee chairman, led the charge. He told John E. Chapoton, assistant treasury secretary for tax policy, that the administration's bill is faulty because it does not increase the earned-income credit, which benefits working families with incomes less than $10,000, or the standard deduction, which helps mainly those making less than $30,000. As a result, Rostenkowski said, "people in those brackets will be paying more tax" even if Reagan's tax cut is approved. Rep. Donald J. Pease, D-Ohio, cited estimates by Treasury Department and congressional experts in an effort to prove that low-income families will lose under the president's plan.

If Reagan's bill is enacted, Pease said, inflation and higher Social Security taxes will force an average taxpayer earning between $5,000 and $10,000 to pay $42 more in federal taxes in 1982 than in 1981. A person at the $20,000 level would end up with a $103 tax cut; the $200,000-a-year person would get a $20,300 reduction. The plight of the under-$5,000 worker in that example is exaggerated somewhat by the fact that 3 million couples and individuals at that income level already pay no tax. Chapoton admitted Reagan's plan would not wipe out effects of inflation and rising Social Security taxes in 1982 and 1983. But when the program is fully effective in 1984, he said, most Americans at all income levels would get enough of a tax cut to offset those factors. "I wonder how in good conscience you can ask this committee to vote for... a tax cut" that so favors the wealthy, Pease said. Such a measure is necessary, Chapoton said, to increase saving and investment and put the economy onto a path of stable growth. While people earning more than $30,000 a year would get about 62 percent of the tax cuts under Reagan's program, Chapoton said, those people — who now pay 63 percent of the taxes — are most likely to invest their tax cut in ways that would benefit the economy. Several committee members asked if there is any room for a compromise that would focus more relief on low-income Americans.

U.S. expected to veto action

U.N. Security Council debate to consider Israeli sanctions

By the Associated Press High-ranking Arab envoys carrying a demand for international sanctions against Israel flew in to New York today to open a U.N. Security Council debate on the Israeli attack against Iraq's nuclear reactor. At a meeting Thursday in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad, the Arab League called for U.N. penalties against Israel. But the United States, as it has done previously, was expected to veto any resolution ordering sanctions against Israel. The Arab League delegation that arrived in New York was led by League Secretary-General Cheddi Klibi of Tunisia and included Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Sabah al Ahmed al Jaber, the League's U.N. observer mission reported. Iraqi Foreign Minister Saadoun Hammadi also arrived at U.N. headquarters to personally deliver his country's complaint to the 15-nation council when the debate opened later today. Israeli Ambassador Yehuda Z. Blum was to defend his government's action. Asked how Arab states would react to a U.S. veto, Hammadi said, "It's too early to speak of that." Foreign ministers or other representatives of the 21 Arab League members met in emergency session Thursday in the Iraqi capital. They adopted 11 resolutions charting a campaign of diplomatic pressure aimed at winning U.N. sanctions that would force a halt to U.S. military and political assistance to Israel. "What we are asking for is a complete stoppage of arms to Israel unless they abide by the rules and regulations of the United Nations," said Bahrain's Foreign Minister

Mohammed Bin Mubarak. In a preview of what the Arabs are expected to seek, one of the Arab League resolutions "calls upon the countries supporting the Zionist entity... to work seriously to put an end to Zionist aggression and to adopt practical and tangible steps to terminate this assistance." A Third World diplomat in Baghdad suggested Iraq was pressing for U.N. sanctions because "there is a limit to what they (the Iraqis) can do in the way of retaliation." President Reagan halted shipment of four F-16 jet fighters to Israel until Congress determines whether the use of American fighters in the Baghdad raid violated a 1952 agreement prohibiting the offensive use of American military hardware. But the president reassured Israeli Ambassador Ephraim Evron that the fundamental relationship between their countries would not change, a senior administration official said. Reagan also met with five Arab ambassadors and told them he was "shocked and disappointed" by the Israeli attack, one of the envoys reported. Begin said Thursday the secret facility was 40 meters — some 130 feet — underground. But today he corrected that to four meters — 13 feet. bolstered by setting up a mock ballot booth and asking each of the 1,217 Israelis polled to cast their vote. This lowered the undecided vote from 22.5 percent to 14.5 percent, it said. A separate poll by Public Opinion Research of Israel gave Likud a 43-37 lead over Labor. The poll of late May was the first in two years to give Begin the lead. At one point last year Likud was trailing so badly that polls predicted Labor would win the first outright majority in Parliament in Israel's 33-year history. The turnaround was attributed to lackluster campaigning by Labor, generous tax cuts by Likud and a burst of foreign policy combativeness on Begin's part.

Polls show Begin leading in Israeli election race

Guilty of manslaughter in death of W.R. Fuller

LAMESA — Edsel M. Sutphen, 65, of Lamesa, entered a plea of guilty to the charge of manslaughter Thursday morning, only hours before his case was to be heard by a Dawson County grand jury.

Sutphen was apparently the driver of a car which backed over W.R. Fuller here last May 14. Police said Fuller either fell or was lying behind the vehicle, which was parked on the victim's front yard.

Sutphen was arrested in the downtown area following the incident. Taken to Lubbock General Hospital, Fuller remained in critical condition until he died May 22.

Sutphen was sentenced to serve three years in the Texas Department of Corrections by 106th District Court Judge George H. Hansard. Sutphen has been held in the Dawson County Jail since the incident.

ECONOMIC ADVICE — President Ronald Reagan listens to George Shultz chairman of the Economic Policy Advisory Board, during a meeting at the White House Thursday. The president said Thursday he would not compromise further on his tax cut proposals.

Polish Cabinet shuffled

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski today dropped five cabinet ministers, including one criticized for hampering the investigation into the beating of three union members. He proposed a major cabinet reshuffle aimed at avoiding Poland's economic "ruin."

Jaruzelski, in a speech to the Sejm, or Parliament, also said he was ready to discuss with Poland's trade unions, including the independent union Solidarity, ways to increase production of coal.

Coal is Poland's chief hard currency earner but has been produced in smaller quantities since miners began working five-day weeks instead of six-day weeks several months ago.

Jaruzelski also said Poles must halt declining productivity and growing absenteeism, inefficiency and waste of raw materials and power if Poland is to survive its economic crisis.

Those dropped included Deputy Premier Henryk Kisiel and Justice Minister Jerzy Bafia. Kisiel, an economic official whose tenure in government predates the decade when Edward Gierek was party leader, was planning commerce chief and a former finance minister.

Jaruzelski said Kisiel was dropped for "health reasons." But a recent report on the economy prepared under his guidance was harshly criticized and rejected by both the Sejm and Jaruzelski.

He has also been criticized by the Polish news media in a period when many officials have come under fire or been ousted for their role in leading the nation into economic crisis.

The removal of Bafia appeared to be a concession to Solidarity, which criticized him for his role in investigating the beatings of three union members in northwestern Bydgoszcz March 19.

The beatings, which occurred when police cleared a government meeting hall, prompted a nationwide warning strike March 27 and nearly sparked another regional warning strike Thursday.

Abortions after rape?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sens. John East and Max Baucus engaged in a spirited discussion Friday of whether the proposed "human life" bill would permit abortions in cases of rape or incest.

East, a North Carolina Democrat, is a sponsor of the bill, which would define human life as beginning at conception. At a hearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on separation of powers, he said he believes the measure would permit states to decide that a pregnancy resulting from a rape or incest could be terminated.

Baucus, a Montana Democrat who opposes the measure, asked how — under the 14th Amendment protection of due process — a state could protect the taking of fetal life if the bill granted the fetus full status as a person.

"The bill gives the unborn the protection of due process," East replied, "but life, liberty and property under the 14th Amendment are not absolute."

He added, "The right to life can yield where a state finds a compelling reason to intervene, such as in the case of capital punishment."

The exchange took place as the senators questioned Utah Attorney General David Wilkinson, who testified in favor of the bill. Wilkinson said he believes the measure would permit states to pass laws saying that fetal life, in some circumstances, is different from non-fetal life.

Wilkinson said in his testimony, "The states could still permit abortions in many circumstances — it would simply be necessary to establish due-process standards which would take into account the personhood of the fetus."

He also told the panel, "I think there's a great difference between fetal life and non-fetal life."

"Then what's the purpose of this bill?" countered Baucus.

East said, "The state could weigh the relative values in terms of the uniqueness of a pregnancy arising out of a rape or incest and make the judgment ... they might say the nature of that pregnancy, the conception, was such a repulsive and revolting act, that the whole process is tainted, and they would allow an abortion."

He added, "I'm not necessarily endorsing that position."

Filly will be given away during Borden Junior Rodeo

GAIL — An American Quarter Horse Association red roan filly will be given away during the Saturday night performance of the annual Borden County Junior Rodeo scheduled to start at 8 p.m., Friday.

The horse was donated by Jack Phinzy and was sired by Bedford B Bar.

A western arts and crafts exhibition will be held in Gail coincidentally with the rodeo. Exhibits will be set up in the county barn, opening at 12 noon and continuing until rodeo time.

Streams, lakes brimful Springs in Howard County featured in Brune's book

A "must" for the literary collection of anyone interested in lore about Howard County and-or Texas is the recently published "Springs of Texas," written by Gunnar Brune of Arlington, Tex.

Brune apparently became hooked on the subject after spending 33 years with the Soil Conservation Service and seven years with the Water Development Board.

It was while conducting and reviewing a number of groundwater studies that Brune became aware of the sad fate which had overtaken most of the state's springs.

Brune's 566-page book is far and away the most exhaustive study ever published about the subject and should be a collector's item for many years.

The writer devotes the better portion of four pages to springs in Howard County, which once was regarded as an oasis on the edge of a great desert — a claim that was ultimately disputed by the findings of Capt. Randolph Marcy.

"The western part of Howard County is occupied by the Llano Estacado (the Stockaded or Palisaded Plains, not Staked Plains)," Brune writes. "Around the eastern edge of these plains, springs flow from Tertiary Ogallala sand, gravel and caliche. The eastern part of the county is underlain by lower Cretaceous Edwards limestone and Antlers sand, Triassic shales, and Quaternary sand, gravel, and caliche. Here springs are common in the lower Cretaceous limestone and sands and in the Quaternary deposits."

Brune says there is much evidence that early man camped at the county's springs. At the dawn of history in the area, the Apaches lived here, but around 1750 were driven out by the Comanches.

Picture, if you will, running streams and lakes that were brimful and swarming with fish and waterfowl. That was true in Howard County's case, Brune wrote.

Industrial and municipal pumpage have, of course, played havoc with the county's underground reservoirs. As Big Spring grew, it came to that sad time when it had to start buying surface water from outside its confines. Soil erosion has buried some of the springs. When the springs dried up, trees like the cottonwood and willows — which fringed the pools — and plants like water milfoil, water cress, marsh purslane, rushes, and cattails simply disappeared as did the animals which drank of the water.

Brune mentions Rattlesnake Springs, located two miles southwest of Vealmoor on Jerry Iden's ranch; German Springs, which are just west of Highway 669 near the Borden County line on Sonny Anderson's ranch; Wildhorse Springs, 11 kilometers east-northeast of Fairview on Kent Morgan's ranch; Wolf Springs; Day Springs; Powell Springs; Sand Springs; Barnett Springs; Four-Mile Spring; Kane Springs; Fox Springs and, of course, the original Big Spring and Moss Springs.

The remains of a mammoth were found near Wildhorse Springs, as were many Indian sites.

The C.C. Slaughter headquarters was located near German Springs in the late 19th Century. Two Englishmen who tried to swindle Slaughter out of his ranch are said to have disappeared near these springs.

The original Big Springs (four of them) were located in what is now Comanche Trail Park. They were favorite haunts of Comanches and the tribes which had preceded them. Their trails radiated from here in all directions. The springs were great watering places for buffalo, antelope and deer. Comanches and Pawnees were locked in battle there in the 1840s.

The detailed study covers three-fourths of the state of Texas. The remaining one-fourth, Brune promises, will be covered in Volume II. This volume, published by Branch-Smith Inc., Fort Worth 76101, sells for $35.

In a preface to the book, Brune quoted Sam Houston in a speech he made in the U.S. Senate in 1946. That day, Houston said: "As a race they have withered from the land. Their arrows are broken, and their springs are dried up; their cabins are in the dust. Their council fires have long since gone out on the shore and their war cry is fast drying out in the air."

Big Spring native honored for life insurance sales

Andy Gamboa of Fort Worth, a native of Big Spring, has been honored by Liberty Mutual Insurance Company as one of its outstanding life insurance salespeople for 1980, with his induction into the Company's Liberty Life Leaders Club for Personal Sales.

The Liberty Life Leaders Club is composed of the top percent of all eligible sales personnel throughout the United States and Canada. Membership in the club is based upon the achievement of specified sales goals for life insurance policies.

Gamboa attended Hardin-Simmons University, and joined Liberty Mutual in 1975. He represents the company at its Fort Worth office, and lives on Shallow Run Road with his wife, Lesvia, and their two children.

Police Beat Racial tension sparks assault?

Police said racial tension may have sparked an assault at the T-Club Number Two, 3704 W. Highway 80, 11:45 p.m. Thursday.

A local white couple decided to stop in at the club, which caters primarily to blacks, Thursday night. When the man and his girlfriend exited into the parking lot of the club, they were confronted by eight black men and four black women.

The group proceeded to toss bricks and bottles at the couple, and, according to police, a gun was displayed but not fired. The pair was stripped of purse and wallet, which had contained about $35 in cash, various identification papers and assorted personal items. Loss was estimated at $100.

Larson Lloyd, 2308 Roberts, victim of an assault, Wednesday night, supplied further information regarding the attack. According to reports, youths had pulled wires loose from the engine of Lloyd's car, and he had driven to the 1600 block of Virginia to question persons he suspected of doing the damage.

When he questioned one man, Lloyd was allegedly threatened with his life.

A vandal with a message damaged a car belonging to Buddy Smithie, 510 E. 1st, sometime Thursday. Police reported that someone had scratched "Don't do it again Clovis" on the side of the auto. Damage was estimated at $400.

Burglars broke into the Auto Supermarket, 905 W. 4th, sometime Wednesday night. Stolen were a variety of hand tools and a car radiator and starter. Loss was estimated at $253.

Thieves lifted an air-conditioner from Goliad School, sometime Wednesday night. The thieves tried to steal another, but were unable to loosen it from its perch. Loss was estimated at $350.

Two cases of vandalism occurred in the College Park Shopping Center, between 1 and 6 p.m. Wednesday. Vandals broke the hood ornament from a 1978 Ford Thunderbird belonging to Phyllis Guinn, 901 Runnels. Damage was estimated at $80.

Blue paint was sprayed on a 1976 Lincoln Continental belonging to Sara Rubio, 111 N. Nolan. Cost of the damage has not been estimated.

Alice May White, 1206 E. 16th, believes she knows who stole $40 cash and a check book from her while she was in a residence on the 1500 block of Main, Thursday night.

Two men in a pickup drove into the Seven-Eleven Store at Third and Owens, 12:42 a.m. today, stole $13.13 worth of regular gas, and drove off without paying.

Five mishaps were reported Thursday.

Vehicles driven by Donna Diliberto, 604 Circle, and Jana Foresyth, 801 Marcy, collided on the 1100 block of Birdwell, 8:57 a.m.

Vehicles driven by Monica Dyess, Forsan, and Cecil Rasberry, 300 E. 15th, collided at Third and Nolan, 1:05 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Elizabeth Flores, 1204 W. 6th, and Marvin M. Miller, 801 Marcy, collided at Third and Birdwell, 2:02 p.m.

Vehicles driven by George Leatham, 428 Edwards, and Norman Boggs, San Angelo, collided at Fourth and Benton, 4:51 p.m.

A vehicle belonging to Sonia Rodriguez, 403 N.W. 11th, was struck by a vehicle that left the scene at Third and Gregg, 10 p.m.

Sorrel stallion valued at $75,000 stolen in Lubbock

LUBBOCK — A sorrel stallion valued at $75,000 was stolen sometime before daylight Thursday. Police believe the thief is on the way to Canada with the horse.

The owner of the animal, Lee Alan Gable, says the man he believes took the horse owes him $15,000.

Comanche Peak plant meets NRC standards

The staff of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, in its recently issued Draft Environmental Statement on Comanche Peak, has concluded that the plant meets federal standards required for the issuance of operating licenses, Texas Electric Service Company spokesmen have reported.

The Draft Environmental Statement has been released to federal, state and local government agencies and the general public, inviting their comments. It represents, according to TESCO, a milestone in the licensing process of a nuclear power plant.

"No measurable radiological impact ... and no significant social or economic impacts on nearby communities are expected" as a result of routine plant operation, the NRC states in its summary of the report.

The NRC also concludes that Comanche Peak will mean increased electrical reliability, less expensive electricity than other alternatives, and reduced dependence on oil and gas, benefiting the region as well as the area the plant will serve.

"The increased electrical energy production at the Comanche Peak station will be less expensive than any other generating alternative, and will also reduce dependence on oil- and gas-fired generation and promote fuel diversification," the summary states.

Comments on the Draft Environmental Statement from the public, local, state and federal agencies will be considered by the NRC and incorporated into a Final Environmental Statement on the Comanche Peak plant.

The Final Environmental Statement and the Safety Evaluation Report (scheduled to be issued by the NRC in the near future) are submitted to the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board (ASLB) for its consideration at the public hearing on Comanche Peak's operating license application.

To date, the Comanche Peak plant is 77 percent complete overall.

Capsule mementoes deadline

No mementoes for the Big Spring-Howard County Centennial Celebration capsule will be accepted after 5 p.m., today.

The three-foot long capsule is now at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce office.

It will shortly be sealed by Cosden Oil and Chemical Company lab personnel and will be buried sometime next week under the lawn of the Howard County Courthouse.

Individuals who would like to bury items in the capsule should limit their size to no more than 8 1/2 X 11 inches. A 50 cent fee is charged for each item left in the repository.

Plans are to leave the capsule buried for 50 years. That means the capsule will be recovered May 28, 2031.

Gospel singing convention Saturday, Sunday in Stanton

The Cap Rock-Great Plains Gospel Singing Convention will meet Saturday and Sunday at the Cap Rock Electric Auditorium in Stanton for their annual meeting. Singing will begin at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. Sunday.

Scholarships galore

Big Spring Rodeo one of 45 Nестea events

The June 24-27 Big Spring Rodeo and Cowboy Reunion will be one of 45 Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association qualifying rodeos in Nестea Teenage Top Hand Challenge competition this year.

Some 117 scholarships totaling nearly $47,000 will be awarded to high school student-winners in the 1981 competition.

The three final winners in the Nестea national competition will earn the biggest share of the awards, with top scholarships totaling $5,000 each.

The scholarship funds — up from $32,000 in 1980 — are part of a grant to the PRCA from the Nestea Company, maker of Nestea.

A Nestea jar label redemption plan is again in effect in 1981 and can be used to offset the expenses of high school students competing in the Nestea Teenage Top Hand Challenge.

Redemption funds totaling $15,000 are available in the program. Each large Nestea jar label is good for a 25 cent return; small Nestea jar labels are worth 15 cents return.

Families and fans of youth in rodeo can help by collecting Nestea labels and turning them in to officials of their state's chapter of the National High School Rodeo Association, or to Gene Litton, Secretary-Treasurer, National High School Rodeo Association, P.O. Box 563, Wright, Wyo., 82732. Senders should clearly identify the state Nестea chapter for which the labels are intended.

Nестea Teenage Top Hand

Challenge 1981 contest events are bareback bronc riding, steer wrestling and barrel racing. A total of 468 student-contestants were invited to participate in the opening (qualifying) round of Nестea competition — beginning in May — in conjunction with the PRCA contests at 39 designated PRCA rodeos. Eligibility of student contestants for each rodeo will most often be determined by the Nестea state chapter's current point or final standings.

There will be four student-contestants in each of the three Nестea contest events at each of the 39 PRCA Qualifying Rodeos. The first-place winner in each Nестea event at each PRCA Qualifying rodeo will earn a PRCA scholarship — to be awarded from the Nестea fund grant — valued at $200, along with the eligibility to advance in competition.

The Qualifying rodeo winners (39 each in the three events) then go on to one of six area-designated PRCA Elimination rodeos. The number of student-contestants will vary — six or seven in each event at each of the six Elimination Rodeos.

The first-place winner in each Nестea event at each of the six PRCA Elimination rodeos will earn a PRCA scholarship — to be awarded from the Nестea fund grant — valued at $600, along with the eligibility to advance to Nестea Teenage Top Hand Challenge Finals competition in conjunction with the PRCA National Finals Rodeo in Oklahoma City, Okla., in December.

At the conclusion of six Nестea PRCA Elimination rodeos, all contestants who advance to Elimination rodeos, but do not win at Elimination rodeos (a total of 99 students), will retire from the 1981 Nестea competition with the $200 scholarships they won at Qualifying rodeos. The student-winner in each event at each Elimination rodeo will advance to the Finals with an accumulated total of $800 in scholarships.

The six student-contestants in each of the three events who earn their way to the Nестea Teenage Top Hand Challenge Finals will compete in two rounds of competition (one round during each of two performances) in conjunction with the PRCA National Finals Rodeo contests.

The final winner each in bareback bronc riding, steer wrestling and barrel racing at the conclusion of the 1981 Nестea Teenage Top Hand Challenge Finals will be awarded a PRCA scholarship in the amount of $5,000 from the Nестea fund grant. Contestants who compete at the Nестea Teen Finals, but do not win at the Finals, will be awarded PRCA-Nестea scholarships totalling $800 each.

The PRCA-Nестea scholarship awards require attendance at an accredited college or university in the United States which also offers a National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association program. The 45 PRCA rodeos where the special Nестea competition is held will share in a total of $63,000 in Nестea bonus added money in PRCA and Womens Professional Rodeo Association events during the regular season. Nестea will also add some $35,000 to the 1981 National Finals Rodeo PRCA and WPROA total purse.

The PRCA Elimination Rodeo in Area 6, of which Big Spring is a member, will be held in Mesquite, Tex., Sept. 25-26.

Weather Heavy rains cause flooding in Austin

Residents braced for more rain today in the soggy hills of Central Texas where rains of up to eight inches turned placid creeks into swirling floodwaters that drove 125 Austinites from their homes, officials said.

The National Weather Service said late Thursday night that conditions favored the development of more thunderstorms in South and Central Texas areas where the ground already is saturated.

Any additional rain would quickly run off, pouring more water into already swollen creeks and rivers, the weather service said.

Red Cross workers went door-to-door to make sure homes along the creek were empty.

Street flooding was reported in Galveston, La Marque, and Texas City.

No one was reported injured in Austin, where early morning floods killed 12 people on Memorial Day, but the Austin Fire Department evacuated creek-bank homes in the south part of the city as normally small Williamson Creek spread to a 350-foot wide flood.

Shoal Creek, the cause of much of the death and damage during the Memorial Day flood, rose quickly. At times the muddy water lapped near homes that have been abandoned since the earlier flood. Lawns in front of many houses along the creek in the northwest section of town still are strewn with debris from the Memorial Day tragedy.

Round up Tank names Murphy as sales rep in two states

James Thurston, president of Round Up Tank, has named Paul Murphy as sales representative for the firm in Texas and New Mexico.

Murphy will report directly to Jim Stotts, vice president of sales, whose offices are at the Hillsboro, Kan., facility.

Round Up manufactures steel and fiberglass oil storage tanks for a six-state area. Round Up established a plant in Big Spring late in 1980 and reached full production here earlier this year.

Before joining Round Up, Murphy was associated with radio station KBST as an advertising sales representative. He is a graduate of Eldorado, Ark., High School and attended Arkansas Tech at Russellville.

PAUL MURPHY Paul, his wife Ann, and their two children, Keri and Terry, reside at 900 Runnels Street in Big Spring.

Test results are studied by local school trustees

By CAROL HART Helen Gladden and Janice Rosson appeared before members of the Big Spring Independent School District's board of trustees Thursday to discuss the Texas Assessment of Basic Skills report, and the Texas Education Agency Accreditation Report.

Mrs. Gladden told board members that 369 third graders took the Texas Assessment of Basic Skills exam, concentrating on the areas of mathematics, reading and writing.

She told the board that it was the first time such a test was administered to third graders here, and that the test showed that local third graders were "scoring about where they should" on the exams.

Mrs. Gladden then discussed results in testing fifth graders, saying 336 were tested. Mathematics, reading and writing made up this test also, with students scoring where they were expected to.

Mrs. Rosson discussed results in the testing of ninth graders, with 367 students being tested. She explained that this level of testing was an "exit level," featuring objectives which students have three years to master.

The women told board members that the tests showed areas of weaknesses and strengths within the Big Spring Independent School District. Using this data, special programs or areas of concentration have been instigated.

In discussing the reports, the women told board members that committees associated with the Southern Association had commented on a high level of discipline within the district, and had complimented the district on the neatness and cleanliness of the students and buildings.

Mrs. Gladden also reported that local teachers told them that most students they receive from other districts are not on a par with Big Spring students.

Resignations and retirements were approved by the board. Educators leaving the Big Spring system include Mrs. Ann Bott, special education; Mrs. Virginia Chappell, Marcy;

Mrs. Joy Cowan, Washington; Mrs. Vicky Fitzhugh, high school; Mrs. Gypsy Gulley, College Heights and Alice Kinsey, Goliad.

Others are Mark Levin, Washington; Marsha McCoy, Goliad; Karen L. McKimney, Washington; Candace Middleton, speech therapist; Mrs. Ila Marie Nichols, high school and Mrs. Brenda Powell, Moss.

Also Harvey Rothell, high school; Mrs. Marguerite Schwarzenbach, Goliad Middle School; Johnny Schaffer, Runnels; Mrs. Wanda Spratt, Goliad; Maj. Stewart, high school; Mrs. Tracey Walker, Marcy; Mrs. Faye Welch, College Heights; Mrs. Gretchen Werrell, Kentwood; Mrs. Laura Whitley, Washington; Mrs. Marilyn J. Wilson, Runnels, and W.C. Wilson, Runnels.

Board members accepted a bid of $17,942.50 for paper supplies for the district. The bid was from Carpenter Paper Company, and was the lowest of 12 bids.

$19.2 million malpractice settlement one of largest

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — The award of up to $19.2 million to a 2½-year-old girl with brain damage is among the largest medical malpractice settlements ever, a national lawyers group says.

The settlement for Ricki Lynn Towe, of the northern San Joaquin Valley community of Oakdale, would be paid in full if the severely disabled child reaches the age of 75.

She will receive an initial payment of $1 million and annual payments starting at $45,000. Her parents will receive additional payments if the child dies before the age of 20.

According to the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, the terms of the agreement make it one of the largest malpractice settlements in U.S. legal history.

Turner top candidate for Odessa chief's job

ODESSA — No more applications for the Odessa police chief's job are being accepted by the city council.

A total of 31 persons have applied for the position, which pays $33,240 annually.

The job has been vacant since City Manager Kerry Sweatt forced 30-year veteran Jack Tomlin to resign March 4.

Among the latest applicants for the chief's job were Alan R. Stewart, Plainview police chief; Richard A. Turner, former police chief at Richland Hills; and C.E. (Chuck) Pratt, former police chief of Hollywood Park, Tex.

Turner was interviewed for the police chief's job in Big Spring last year before Elwood Hoherz was hired and was reportedly among the final applicants considered. He was police chief at Richland Hills from November 1977 to June 1, 1980. He is now a security consultant for ARMCO Inc., Fort Worth.

At one time, Turner was a patrol sergeant for the Huntsville Police Department, a sheriff's deputy in Madison County and a patrolman in Nacogdoches.

Saudis give us hope in oil situation

Let's hear it out there for Saudi Arabia, even though it won't be able to hold the line for long. The Saudis announced recently they would not opt for boosting their price for oil nor were they planning to cut back on production to relieve a temporary oil glut.

The other OPEC nations are steamed over the Saudis' stand but for now the price of oil will not be going up.

The other oil-producing nations said they will reduce production by 10 percent in order to firm up prices, which now range from $4 to $9 a barrel more than Saudi Arabia's $32 price.

FOR THE REMAINDER OF 1981, anyway, analysts expect that gasoline prices will remain about where they are now. After that, the sky may be the limit for OPEC countries.

The announcement out of the Middle East can only be helpful to the United States, a country that is seeking desperately to reduce its dependence on foreign oil. More drilling is taking place in this country now than at any time in history and the best scientific minds in the nation are at work trying to come up with a substitute for oil.

There was a time when Americans had been led to believe the world would be utterly without oil by 1985. That is no longer the case. The known reserves likely will last us well into the 21st Century. However, the fuel crisis will be with us from now on.

The American government should do everything it can to develop domestic energy resources and to deal realistically with the international oil cartel.

It's been eight years since the first great oil embargo was imposed, a period in history when Americans became acutely aware that we couldn't isolate ourselves from the problems of the rest of the world even if we tried.

NOT ONLY ARE we heavily dependent on Middle Eastern oil but on numerous minerals from countries with which we are not on the best of terms.

We backed the wrong fellow in Iran and wound up with egg on our face, as a result. The Saudis in general and Saudi Arabian leaders in particular have a benign regard for the United States and at the rate we are going we will need all the friends we can get.

The Saudis, of course, want to buy some advanced military aircraft from us.

Although this split within the OPEC ranks could be mended overnight, it does demonstrate that consuming nations can use diplomatic, political and economic weapons to sap the strength of the OPEC coalition.

The United States Congress could help the situation by ceasing to treat the oil industry in American as a villain and encourage it, instead, to give the country a greater degree of energy self-sufficiency.

It's still a world in which dealing from strength is the only way to win.

Friends protected

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Locked in Justice Department files is compelling evidence that ex-President Jimmy Carter's chief prosecutors thwarted a grand jury investigation of the Robert Vesco case. The only question is whether their tactics constituted obstruction of justice.

Senior officials used every stratagem from delay to deceit to keep the grand jury from indicting cronies of Carter. My associate Indy Badwar has had access to the suppressed records. These show that the officials were preoccupied with neutralizing the federal grand jury, which seemed equally intent on getting to the bottom of the scandal.

ONE PLAINTIVE MEMO from Thomas Henderson, then public integrity chief, reported anxiously: "The grand jury foreman and some other jurors do not trust us and believe we are somehow involved in a cover up."

Henderson seemed unduly concerned about "political damage" and bad publicity. Jack Anderson apparently communicates with several witnesses," he warned.

The witness who could have turned the case into a political scandal of Watergate dimensions was presidential assistant Richard Harden. An approach had been made to recruit him into a $10 million conspiracy to fix international swindler Robert Vesco's troubles with the law.

There is circumstantial evidence that Harden drew President Carter himself, perhaps unwittingly, into the plot. But Harden stonewalled when he was hauled before the grand jury. He testified on Dec. 20, 1978, that he had rejected the Vesco advances.

Yet in a memo intended for official eyes only, Philip Heymann, chief of the criminal division, acknowledges there was a "distinct possibility" that Harden's testimony was "perjurious." Justice Department attorneys even drafted an official petition to the court asking for a special prosecutor to investigate Harden.

Not only was the petition never presented, but the documents accusing Harden of perjury were withheld from the grand jury. For the next four months, the prosecutors canceled more than a dozen scheduled hearing dates before they finally got back to the Vesco case on April 6, 1979.

THEREAFTER, JURORS complained that the prosecutors seemed to be protecting White House witnesses. Some witnesses even appeared to be coached. When one witness forgot to hedge his answer with a parenthetical "to the best of my recollection," a government prosecutor did it for him.

The grand jury was also confronted with a succession of rapidly changing prosecutors, as if the Justice Department were shopping for someone who could dissuade the jurors from pursuing the evidence. One was a black government attorney, but he also failed to head off the predominantly black grand jury.

The prosecutors frequently brought White House witnesses back to clean up sloppy testimony. But the witnesses against the White House were put through relentless interrogation that seemed calculated to discredit them. Incriminating documents were also withheld from the grand jury. More than once, foreman Ralph Ulmer sought out documents on his own and offered them as evidence.

The Justice Department's tactics alienated the foreman who, in disgust, tried to resign. In a letter to the presiding judge, he accused the prosecutors of a whitewash to protect the Carter administration. The Justice Department then investigated itself and found the accusation to be "without merit." This determination was reached, incredibly, without ever interviewing the foreman who had made the charge.

The last in the parade of prosecutors, Harry Benner, finally told the grand jury that the Justice Department would refuse to prosecute any indictments. Instead, he tried to get the jurors to exonerate administration officials, including Harden. Harden had been accused of perjury in the Justice Department's own internal review.

The jurors, therefore, decided it would be futile to indict anyone, but they also refused to clear anyone — not even President Carter himself. Explained the foreman in a report to the judge: "The Justice Department told the grand jury there would be no indictments because they would sign none. Jury was asked only to clear those involved by writ of ignoramus. Jury neither indicted nor cleared anyone."

Indeed, one juror was so distrustful of the prosecutors that he marked the writ of ignoramus with a huge cross so the Justice Department couldn't fill in any names in the blank space.

UNDER THE DOME: Forget Abscam! Honesty is alive and well in the House of Representatives. One recent Friday afternoon, Rep. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., found himself short on cash at Washington National Airport. Did he look for an Arab sheik? Of course not. He borrowed a buck from a reporter who was interviewing him — and meticulously noted down the transaction in a spiral notebook. Three days later, the reporter received a check for $1.

The National Conservative Political Action Committee's media blitz against Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., has developed some backfire trouble. In newspaper ads across Maryland, NCPAC has provided preprinted coupons that readers can clip and send to Sarbanes, chastising him for his "dismal voting record." But about 200 fans of the senator have scratched out "dismal," substituted words like "fantastic," and accompanied their coupons with contributions.

Around the rim Tears do that

James Werrell

I came to Big Spring a wet-behind-the-ears Yankee from Ohio.

I will leave Big Spring a West Texas convert. I now own a pickup, a pair of cowboy boots and a ten-gallon hat. And I think I may even talk a little twangier than I did five and a half years ago.

I KNOW PEOPLE who have lived in communities in the East and Midwest for umpteen years and are still considered newcomers. It's as if their neighbors felt the need to stand back, be cautious, look them over before allowing them into the fold.

In Big Spring, right from the start, I felt as if I had been enveloped in a collective bear hug by the whole city. Maybe it's because we're in the Bible Belt that instead of being reserved and reticent, the people here like to get out and save the unenlightened.

"Look here," say the redeemers, "We have found a better place and a better way to live. We're not choosy; we want to cut you in on the deal. All you have to do is put up with a few dust storms, sort of funny tasting water, and a little heat, and we'll show you a great time."

I considered that deal, shook hands all around, and soon found that I had made out like a thief.

"Oh," said my new-found friends,

"Did we forget to mention that as a resident of West Texas you are entitled to go to rodeos, hunt dove and quail, eat barbecue, round up rattlesnakes, drink Coors beer, go to Country and Western dances, camp out at Big Bend, be in a movie, play softball, watch a ton of football, go to Mexico, get invited to wild parties, lounge around in the library, dip snuff, wear cowboy hats and boots, and drive a pickup?"

NO, THEY HADN'T mentioned that. Nor had they mentioned that I would meet some of the finest people on Earth in Big Spring.

A new job will carry me 100 miles to the east, ripped untimely from a safe and pleasant place, and cast into hostile new environs. To make it short, but ever so sweet, I would like to thank Jack and Edna Fay Smith, our first friends in Big Spring, and all the rest of the special people who came thereafter.

I have loved working at The Herald. And I have loved working with the people there and on my daily rounds while attempting to gather the news.

I had hoped not to make this Rim too saccharine, but sometimes it can't be helped. Blurred vision may prevent me from looking at Big Spring through my rearview mirror. Tears can do that, you know.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have fallen in love with a man who is married. It seems like it just happened, and we couldn't really help ourselves. Now I am torn up inside wondering what to do, because I want to marry him very much. — V.P.U.

DEAR V.P.U.: What you have done is wrong. It would be even more wrong if you became the means or instrument of breaking up this man's marriage. I hope that you will not think I am harsh when I say this — I know your feelings probably wish I would say otherwise.

There is only one course of action open to you if you really want to do what is right, and that is to break off this relationship and make sure that it has no opportunity to recur again.

You must realize that God takes the marriage vow very seriously — after all, he is the one who gave marriage to us. It is not God's will for a family to be broken up, nor could you expect that God would bless your relationship with this man if you were to marry him. He has a responsibility to be the best husband and father he possibly can, and you must not be a stumbling block to him.

Let me say two other things. First, I hope that this matter will be resolved in the right way. But more than that, I hope that you will realize the importance of putting God and his will first in your life. I suspect from your letter that you have seldom given much thought to God.

But God created you, and you will never know what true and lasting happiness is until you return to him and invite Christ into your life.

Chest wall pain mimics heart problem

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 21-year-old girl who has been having pain in my left chest, a very frightening experience. I have been to emergency rooms twice and have been treated like a fool. I thought heart attack. Later, tests were run — for blood gases, lungs, EKGs, X-rays, etc., and all were negative. I have been to a heart specialist and have been told I am not having heart problems, but they can't convince me nothing is seriously wrong. If you could clear up my doubts, I would appreciate it. — K.C.

I understand your fears. Pain on the left side of the chest usually raises fears of heart attack. However, a young female almost never has such heart pain problems, which stem from coronary artery disturbance. A woman of your age might have heart valve problems, for example, due to past rheumatic fever or birth defects. But you have had plenty of good test results, so you should put this fear out of your mind.

Chest wall pain can arise from many other conditions not related to the heart. The chest wall muscles can hurt, just as those in the arm or legs can from time to time. The cartilage joining the ribs to the breastbone can cause pain. Both cartilage and muscle pain can be annoying and linger on. But that is not serious. Simple pain-relieving medicine, like aspirin, ought to tide you over.

Are you breathing rapidly when this pain occurs? If you are, everything might be explained by hyperventilation. Rapid breathing can cause peculiar sensations in many places. The lips can feel numb. The chest wall may hurt. Anxiety brings on rapid breathing; the resulting pain adds to anxiety, and the situation worsens. Understanding this helps alleviate the problem.

You have plenty of reassurance that you have no serious condition. Your pain should eventually go away. Your job is to try as hard as possible not to dwell on it.

FOR MRS. M.O. — How difficult it is to control your mother's diabetes will determine how often she should have her blood sugar tested. When a diabetic's blood sugar is very high, it may have to be tested daily, even twice daily for some. As the blood sugar returns to normal it can be tested less often — weekly to monthly, even every other month or at longer intervals. Your mother will have to continue with her daily urine checks to see if she is spilling sugar into it. I wish I could be more exact about your mother's blood sugar tests. I am sure her doctor will not mind if you ask him about this. As I said, it depends on how difficult it has been to control up to now.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband isn't getting enough sleep at night. I heard there are some foods that can help a person sleep more. Can you tell me what they would be? — J.A.

There is a claim made that the amino acid tryptophan promotes more rapid onset of sleep. Tryptophan is found in many foods. Two examples are milk and Ovaltine. There may be something true about the idea of a warm glass of milk taken before bedtime. And, of course, any food that causes gastrointestinal distress in an individual has to be avoided.

Baptists blast birth control, ERA, 'religious right' groups

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Religious groups have no right to impose their ideas of Christianity on America through politics, but political activity by individual Christians is mandated by the Bible, a national convention of Southern Baptists says.

Baptist church-state experts are agreed on two major increasing tendencies today — that of the government to interfere in religious affairs and the growing movement of church leaders to dictate to government," said delegate W.W. Finlator of North Carolina, who introduced a resolution rejecting "the right of any group to ... seek through political means to impose this faith on the American people."

"My resolution has to do with encroachments by the church on the state," Finlator said as the nation's largest Protestant denomination ended its 124th national convention Thursday.

The Moral Majority, the best known of the new conservative religious groups to declare their right to engage in politics, was mentioned only once, by Keith Arledge of Mulvane, Kan.

In urging the convention to stress individual participation in its statement approving of political activity by Christians, he said, "I don't want to be associated with the Moral Majority, and I don't want people to misunderstand our resolution as being a kind of affirmation of that kind of activity in our nation."

After objections from several men, and support from women, the delegates adopted a resolution condemning the proposed Equal Rights Amendment and reaffirmed "the biblical role which stresses the equal worth, but not always the sameness of function of women."

Other resolutions at the conclusion of the four-day gathering condemned distribution of birth control devices and information by anyone but parents, affirmed that "religion flourishes best without government's interference or tax support," and criticized pornography, anti-Semitism and television's portrayal of "an unacceptable lifestyle."

Several women, including Joyce Rogers, of Memphis, Tenn., warned of "great inherent dangers in the ERA."

The resolution deploring anti-Semitism said that Baptists and Jews have "a common heritage of persecution and suffering for conscience sake."

Reagan aide pledges secret military fund is well used

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is acknowledging the existence of a secret military fund reportedly used for years to finance such things as swimming pools and movie theaters. But an aide to President Reagan pledges it won't be misused.

In a recent interview, Edward V. Hickey Jr., director of the White House military office, offered his assurance that "there will be no abuse of the fund and that it will remain secret."

Bill Gulley, former director of the military office, alleged in a book entitled, "Breaking Cover," that the multimillion-dollar fund was established in 1967 to build and maintain secret sites for the president to take cover and direct the U.S. military arsenal during an attack.

But Gulley said the fund, controlled by the military office, was used by several presidents to build such things as swimming pools and movie theaters at taxpayer expense.

Because the fund was classified, Gulley said, presidents could use it any way they wished and never be discovered.

For instance, he said, it was used during the administration of former President Ford to rent villas in Vail, Colo., and hotel rooms in New York and elsewhere so he could have staff members nearby.

Bob Barrett, a former military aide to Ford and now in private business at Vail, confirmed Thursday that "the funds were used. That is a correct statement."

But Barrett said "I assure you" Ford had no knowledge of it.

"There were a lot of reasons presidents abused the fund," Gulley said. "In some cases it was a simple matter of getting the military to do and pay for something a president wanted, like the work that was done at the LBJ ranch. In others it was also a way of keeping what was being done and the extravagance of it, secret from Congress and the people."

Miners losing minds

Connery in 'Outlands' offers viewers action

Somebody's up to no good on Io, one of Jupiter's moons, and it's up to Sean Connery to find out who.

"Outlands," which features the above story line, features Connery as McNeil, a federal marshal assigned to a futuristic mining colony Io. The colony is composed of miners, support personnel and their families.

The bleak planet offers most of the conveniences of home inside a protected environment, but miners must wear pressurized suits when they venture out on the moon to mine minerals which are abundant on Io.

The movie doesn't wait long before showing what the problem on Io is. Miners are losing their minds, and committing bizarre acts which end in their deaths.

Connery is told "Some people can't take it here after awhile," but the answer doesn't placate him. An investigation ensues, with Connery getting on the wrong side of the overseers of the colony.

Connery has problems other than those encountered on the job. His wife and son want to leave the bleak colony and return to the greener pastures of Earth. And a personality problem arises between Connery and Peter Boyle, who takes the role of general manager of the mining operation on Io.

"Outlands" offers viewers plenty of action and is not hard to follow, as many spacey movies have become. Connery handles the role of the honest marshal with expertise. Frances Sternhagen, in the role of a tough but compassionate doctor on Io, is excellent. "Outlands" is a futuristic "High Moon," with characters an audience can relate to.

The movie is showing at the Cinema, located in College Park Shopping Center.

AFTERNOON DELIGHT — Cornelious Bishop, 10, enjoys an afternoon dousing in Fort Worth in an attempt to escape high temperatures which have swept the state this week. Temperatures approaching 100 degrees have been recorded over much of the state.

Nixons buying $1 million home in New Jersey suburb

SADDLE RIVER, N.J. (AP) — After a year in bustling Manhattan, former President Richard M. Nixon and his wife are moving to the suburbs.

An aide says the Nixons are buying a $1 million house on a quiet cul-de-sac in this small Bergen County community, which has the highest per capita income in the state and only one welfare recipient.

And the new neighbors apparently are tickled about the prospect of living near the former president.

"He'll be most welcome in Saddle River," said Mayor Duncan H. Cameron, a retired stockbroker. "We've never had a Democrat serve as mayor or councilman since the beginning of time."

Nixon aide Nicholas Ruwe said Thursday the Nixons are moving to a sprawling seven-bedroom, contemporary house now owned by John Alford, also a retired stockbroker. The two-story, wood-trimmed house with a circular drive is near a peach orchard and surrounded by woodland.

Although Ruwe declined to give the purchase price, he said the house had been offered for $1.2 million.

Among its features are three built-in stereo systems, a 900-square-foot swimming pool, a tennis court and a 1,000-bottle wine cellar.

The closing of the sale is scheduled for late July, when Ruwe said he expects the Nixons to move from their $750,000 Manhattan townhouse. The townhouse where the Nixons have lived a little longer than a year probably will be sold, Ruwe added.

"The Nixons are not tired of New York, they loved that house," said Ruwe. "But a lot of their life right now is their grandchildren. Four acres in the country would be spectacular for the grandchildren."

"They loved the house and the pool is very important to him," he said.

When Nixon decided to sell the former Western White House, which was on a bluff overlooking the Pacific Ocean in San Clemente, Calif., he encountered a chilly reception from prospective neighbors at two cooperative apartments he considered buying in New York City.

But there was no outward sign of antagonism in this rural community, which is named for the trout stream that bisects it.

"I'd be very pleased to have him for a neighbor," said Mary McCaffrey, who lives nearby with her husband. The homes here are all on a minimum of two acres, however, so neighbors are spared the closeness dictated by city living.

Saddle River's per capita income of $18,404 is the highest in New Jersey. The community has a population of 2,762 and an unemployment rate of 3.2 percent. Republicans outnumber Democrats by about 4.5 to 1, according to The New York Times.

Disdain, controversy, lawsuits Alamo Heights residents object to high-rise condominium plans

ALAMO HEIGHTS, Texas (AP) — A complex of luxury condominiums whose selling prices start at $300,000 apiece might be considered an asset to many Texas communities.

But in Alamo Heights — an affluent San Antonio bedroom community where residents traditionally have objected to height — plans for such a posh high-rise condominium complex costing $45 million have been met with disdain, controversy and a lawsuit.

One attorney, who objects to the condominium plans, contends outcome of the lawsuit against the City of Alamo Heights may set a precedent on whether zoning ordinances are worth the paper they are written on.

Architect and developer Robert Callaway decided earlier this year that he wanted to build two high-rise buildings — one 12 and one 8 stories tall — on a thickly wooded 17-acre tract at the headwaters of the San Antonio River, about three blocks from the Alamo Heights business district.

But Callaway was confronted with single-family zoning and a longtime city ordinance forbidding any residential structure more than 2½ stories, or 40 feet, tall in this community of old homes and old money.

The taller of the two proposed high-rise buildings would rise 165 feet — about 125 feet taller than any other dwelling in this city of about 7,000 people. It would be located across the street from several homes nestled on finely landscaped and manicured estates.

Callaway convinced the city council in February to re-zone the 17 acres to allow multi-dwelling structures, by a 3-2 vote.

Then he won another 3-2 vote of the council in April granting him an exception to the height requirement despite objections by more than 1,000 people who signed a petition. Callaway agreed to lower the buildings to 10 and 6 stories before the council acted.

Attorney Doug Harlan, who lives in the area, contends that Callaway managed to thwart the zoning and height requirements by being a member of the "good old boy" clique that rules Alamo Heights.

Callaway disagrees. He contends the undeveloped 17 acres is a unique site in Alamo Heights, which is a city that has seen San Antonio grow around it and has few open spaces left for development.

The developer has countered a lawsuit filed by several individuals and members of the Old Alamo Heights Neighborhood Association with a suit of his own, claiming $9,000 a day in damages for a nine-day delay of the proposed project by a temporary restraining order issued by District Judge James Onion. Onion dissolved the order which prevented a vote of the city council, clearing it to approve the high-rise project on April 3.

Callaway contends he is transforming a jungle filled with old abandoned autos, tires and brush into a well landscaped condominium complex of which any community could be proud.

"We spent a lot of money just cleaning the debris, tires, old automobiles and trash people have thrown on it 20 or 30 years," Callaway said. "We have tremendous landscape budgets on our projects — sensitive to the environment, landscaping, the environment, everything else. We're talking about $300,000-up condominium homes."

But Harlan said throwing out the longtime residential height requirement could be the beginning of the end of what has made Alamo Heights an enviable place to live since it was established as an independent city in 1922.

"It is a way of life," Harlan said. "There are previous few places anywhere in the country anymore that really are little communities where you have a nice neighborhood, where you have single-family houses with a mix of small apartments and duplexes and churches and schools. Dogs can play in the street, people jog and neighbors know each other and they talk and they have block parties."

Kay Hays, president of the association, said it filed a lawsuit because it feels the city council acted illegally in granting the zoning change and height variance to Callaway. She said because no other residential unit had been more than 2½ stories tall, that Alamo Heights has no standards for any building taller than that.

"If we had a master plan, a comprehensive study of the city with designated areas in which high rises would be allowed, with standards attached, and this was done after a thoughtful study, then that would make it totally legal and acceptable," she said.

Harlan said the Alamo Heights Fire Department does not have equipment to fight fire in high-rise buildings and the city has no standards requiring such fire safety.

Mrs. Hays said her group, which flew a balloon adjacent to the high-rise site to show residents just how tall the high-rises would be, was discouraged that so many older homes in Alamo Heights were being torn down and replaced with apartment units and condominiums that are not required to meet any standards.

Callaway, however, said he expected the city would prevail in the lawsuit and he was going ahead with plans to build the condominiums.

Friend of target in Wood case indicted for murder

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston man who was subpoenaed as a witness in the grand jury investigation of the 1979 slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. in San Antonio has been indicted on a murder charge.

The June 4 indictment against Hampton Robinson III remained sealed until this week. It charges Robinson with the May 12 murder of a friend, William Scott Green, 36.

Investigators say Robinson is an alleged associate of Charles V. Harrelson, a convicted hit man who has said he is a target of the Wood investigation. Harrelson now is in the Harris County jail awaiting trial on state firearms, drug and gambling charges.

Robinson was first subpoenaed to appear before the San Antonio grand jury in 1979.

Investigators say Robinson had known Green since high school and was best man at Green's wedding.

Green's body was found at an abandoned motorcycle track in Missouri City. Don Stricklin, chief of the Harris County district attorney's special crimes unit, said Green had been shot twice in the head.

Stricklin said Thursday the indictment was unsealed Tuesday and that Robinson's bond was set at $25,000.

Robinson had not been arrested. Frank Briscoe, a former district attorney, said he had been asked by Robinson's family about representing him but that he had not talked with Robinson.

FRESH WATER FROM AN OLD WELL

Somebody knows when your heart aches,
And everything seems to go wrong,
Somebody knows when the shadows
Need chasing away with a song;
Somebody knows when you're lonely,
Tired, discouraged, and blue,
Somebody wants you to know Him,
And know that He dearly loves you.

Somebody knows when you're tempted,
And your mind grows dizzy and dim,
Somebody cares when you're weakest,
And farthest away from Him;

Somebody grieves when you've fallen,
You never are lost from His sight;
Somebody waits for your coming,
And He'll drive the gloom from the night.

Somebody loves you when you're weary,
Somebody loves you when you're strong,
Somebody's waiting to help you,
He watches you — one of the throng,
Needing His friendship so holy,
Needing His watchful care so true,
His Name? We call His Name "Jesus"
He loves everyone. He loves you!

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower

U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

In reading my mail, I detect a growing distrust among my constituents of the news media. Some of those who write me have even suggested various means of regulating the news gatherers.

Though the national media have brought much of this upon themselves, this urge to regulate is unfortunate — both for the vast majority of news outlets which exercise responsibility, and for our system, which is built on the premise of a free press.

Freedom of the press is guaranteed in the First Amendment. Our Founding Fathers knew that for democracy to work, the people must know what their leaders and their government are doing. Since it is impossible for any one individual to personally watch everyone at every governmental level, the press is the only means by which citizens can learn enough about the affairs of the nation to make informed decisions. And this press must be independent of government control if it is to be free to point out the flaws in the way the system works.

For instance, the people of Texas have the right to know what their senator is doing and what positions he is taking. Since, I can't speak to each of my constituents in person, I must rely on news outlets, such as this newspaper, to communicate with you.

It is unfortunate that some reporters and news outlets have used this freedom without exercising the responsibility that should go with it. But though I have on a number of occasions been angry at distortions or abuses by individual members of the press, that does not mean that the Founding Fathers were wrong.

First, let me emphasize that the vast majority of abuses of freedom of the press have been by the national media, which tends to be highly concentrated on the East Coast, is easily led into "park journalism."

The vast majority of reporters, publishers and broadcasters are conscientious and responsible — and serve their public well. This is particularly true of Texas media.

Secondly, even if the Constitution didn't prohibit it, I would not be inclined to inject the government into the news process through regulation. We have seen time and time again what happens when the federal government tried to end abuses of one sort or another in the private sector of instituting regulation. In far too many cases, the original problems aren't solved but the regulations become an intrusion on the legitimate rights of business or individuals. The Occupational Health and Safety Administration is a classic example of good intentions gone awry.

It would be disastrous to the American system if we allowed that to happen to the news media.

We have existing protections against libel and violations of national security, and these must be guarded.

But for protection against inaccuracy, distortion or malice, we must rely on pressure from within the journalism community, and on you the discriminating reader, viewer or listener.

When I'm feeling slighted by a particular news outlet, I take comfort from the fact that even Thomas Jefferson, one of the first and strongest advocates of a free press, occasionally had occasion to feel mis-used. He chafed at his treatment, but he never changed his basic belief in the necessity of maintaining the freedom of the press.

At least seven killed in Moscow subway fire

MOSCOW (AP) — At least seven people may have died in a smoky fire in a Moscow subway station Wednesday evening, Western sources said today.

Soviet officials refused comment, but the sources, quoting Western and Soviet witnesses, said authorities removed what appeared to be seven bodies from the station after crowds of onlookers left the scene early Thursday.

There were also unofficial reports of injuries and of many people overcome by smoke inhalation.

More than 20 pieces of firefighting apparatus converged on the Oktyabrskaya station in south-central Moscow at about 8:30 p.m. Wednesday and heavy smoke poured from one of the station's entrances. Two major subway lines serve the station.

Policemen at the scene told a Western reporter at the time that there had been no injuries.

The Oktyabrskaya station is at the corner of two major avenues and normally has heavy traffic in the evening hours.

The fire was the first major accident in the subway to become publicly known since a train derailed in August 1979 on a section of open track, sending four persons to the hospital and injuring several others.

In January 1977, an explosion ripped through a subway car in the northeastern section of Moscow.

Home business trend growing

Women working in their own home-based businesses "is the job wave of the 80's," according to a report in the current Family Circle magazine on this new trend.

Citing 1979 figures from the Bureau of Labor statistics, the magazine notes that one out of every four at-home U.S. workers is a woman (1.9 million of them in 1979) — a 43 percent rise since 1972!

Indicative of the trend, says FC, is the growth of the National Alliance of Home-based Businesswomen, whose goal is to project a positive image of the home-based businesswoman and to create a practical network for exchanging information. Thousands of women have joined, says the article, and local chapters have begun to form, providing mutual support on local levels.

Furthermore, as a response to the success of the non-profit Alliance, its founders have just published "Women Working at Home: The Homebased Business Guide and Directory," the first publication to explore the issues of women working from home and including a nationwide listing of women in over 100 different occupations. The Family Circle report includes an excerpt from this book.

The magazine report also offers case histories of women with successful at-home-businesses and gives tips on how to establish and run your own business.

The No. 1 problem of at-home workers seems to be getting others to take them seriously, says the article. The following strategies to combat the "hobbyist" image for the home-based professional are called from the article:

Create the appropriate image by using well-printed stationery and business cards. If possible, hire — or barter your services with — a local artist to design a logo or symbol for your business. Use the logo on all your stationery, cards and packaging.

Develop a set of house telephone rules. You don't want your children answering the phone and yelling, "Ma, it's a lady for you." Two solutions: a separate business phone to be answered only by you; a telephone-answering machine or service.

Join professional and civic associations, networks and clubs related to your work. Besides fighting the isolation of working all alone, it will enhance your image in the business community and provide access to valuable connections.

When clients are expected, dress like the well-groomed professional they would expect to meet in a business situation.

Don't try to hide the fact that you work at home. Point out that your at-home status keeps your overhead low and allows you to give a top-notch product or service at reasonable prices.

Family Circle suggests that women interested in the Alliance, or in being included in a future home-based business directory, contact: The National Alliance of Homebased Businesswomen, P.O. Box 95, Norwood, N.J. 07648.

Wine and cheese party honors Suzanne Smith

Suzanne Smith, bride-elect of Andrew Clark, Lubbock, was honored with a wine and cheese party Saturday in the home of Mrs. Walter Wheat, 901 Mountain Park Drive.

Other hostesses for the event were Mrs. John Key, Mrs. Bill Pollard, Mrs. Sonny Shroyer, Mrs. Nabar Martinez and Mrs. James Owens.

White wine was served from cut-glass decanters, along with assorted cheeses and fruits. The serving table was centered with a silver wine cooler filled with orchid Shasta daisies and purple heather. The wine cooler was presented to Miss Smith as a gift.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Roy Clark and Mrs. Roald Johnson, both of Lubbock.

Carla Chrane is feted with bridal shower Wednesday

Carla Chrane, bride-elect of David Bremmon, was feted with a rice-n-spice party Wednesday evening in the home of Mrs. Paula Chrane.

The bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. Bill Chrane and grandmother, Mrs. Betty Chrane, greeted the guests. Tina Teague served the guests finger sandwiches, shrimp dip and punch from a table decorated with white daisies centered around yellow candles.

Miss Chrane was presented with a corsage of yellow daisies and mums, and a set of flowered soup mugs.

Out-of-town guests included Tina McDaniel, Odessa; Lisa Long, Austin; and Mrs. Caren Clackum, Gastonia, N.C.

The couple plans to marry June 20 in the Odessa Lutheran Church of the Risen Lord, Odessa.

Dear Abby

Family Ties Tug and Pull

DEAR ABBY: Bill and I have been divorced for nine years and have three teen-aged children who live with me. Bill remarried five years ago, and he and his wife, Ella, live nearby with their 2-year-old daughter. (I am single.) I have remained friendly with Bill's family and am invited to all their family get-togethers. When Bill married Ella, she made it clear that she would not attend any family gathering that included me.

Naturally, Bill refused to attend those family affairs without Ella, so they both stayed away. Bill's parents are very unhappy because Bill and Ella no longer attend the family Christmas Eve celebration. I feel that if I'm invited, I must be wanted.

There was a death in Bill's family recently, and Bill called and asked me to please stay away from the funeral because he and Ella were going to be there and Ella would feel uncomfortable if I was there. I stayed away.

Do you think I should decline any further invitations from Bill's family in order to allow Ella to attend? I don't like feeling that it's my fault because Bill and Ella miss his family gatherings.

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: If you are invited, that means you are wanted, so go if you wish. If Ella stays away because your presence makes her uncomfortable, that's her problem, not yours.

DEAR ABBY: Now that football training has nearly begun, I would like to bring up something that has bothered me for a long time. The boys love the sport and they love to win, but year after year they are told to "hit hard." As one coach told his team of 8-year-olds, "You'll know you've hit hard enough when you leave the other guy bleeding!" (This is a guiding character?)

As a mother I want to speak out against this kind of mentality. My son's coach tells the boys that they have to mean to play good football. The "meanest" boys are praised, and the gentle ones are subjected to verbal degradation.

Many of the boys say they don't hit hard because they don't really want to hurt the other boy. Now maybe I've missed something somewhere along the line, but I think the child who doesn't want to hurt anybody seems to have the right idea.

Abby, isn't there enough meanness in this world without encouraging our young men to be meaner?

ONE LAD'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'd say you made a winning point.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old student who travels to and from the city every day. I always get a seat both to and from work. My question is whether I should give up my seat to an older person. I also put in a long day and would rather sit than stand. What do you suggest?

DAVID

DEAR DAVID: Everyone would rather sit than stand, but only one with a tender conscience would ask that question. When you are truly tired, defer only to the truly needy.

DEAR ABBY: While agreeing with your comment, "A good way to handle a compliment is to smile and say, 'Thank you,'" I am reminded of the following: "The difference between Northern girls and Southern girls is, when a Northern girl is complimented on her appearance, she is likely to say, 'Gee, thanks.' A Southern girl will say, 'How kind of you to notice.'" This was pointed out to me by a Southern gentleman who is also a writer of distinction.

D. CORUM

DEAR D: He may be a writer of distinction, but he's no gentleman.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Griffin, Lubbock, and paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lawlis, 2401 Brent. Great-grandparents are Floyd Jenkins, Lubbock; Fred Griffin, Montgomery, Ala., and Mr. and Mrs. E.A. Lawlis, Hamlin.

Presidential meal prepared by Texan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas chef was flown to Camp David to specially prepare a meal for President Reagan and Mexican President Jose Lopez-Portillo.

Reagan and Lopez-Portillo dined by candlelight Monday evening at the conclusion of their first day of talks.

On the two-tiered flagstone terrace, the two presidents dined on a menu of charcoal roast sirloin, tomato pie, corn on the cob, tossed salad and deep dish apple pie with homemade ice cream.

Both presidents returned to the buffet-style table for second helpings of the meal prepared by chef Cliff Teinert of New Albany.

Teinert paid his own way to Camp David, said Larry Speakes, deputy press secretary to the president.

President Reagan was dressed in a red checked western shirt worn outside his brown western pants and boots. Lopez-Portillo wore a brown turtle neck sweater with a tan button-up sweater and brown pants.

In a toast, Reagan paid special tribute to three recent American heroes of Mexican descent — Army Sgt. Roy Benavides of Texas, to whom Reagan earlier in the year awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor; Marine Sgt. James Lopez, who was honored for his action in defending U.S. personnel during the takeover of the U.S. embassy in Iran; and rookie pitcher Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Navy band "Country Current" played during the cocktail hour, and country music singer Jackie Fricke entertained at poolside after dinner.

Son's birth is announced by Horsleys

Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Horsley, Fort Worth, announce the birth of their first child, a son, Nathan Russell, May 22.

Nathan arrived at 2:55 a.m. weighing 7 pounds 15 ounces and measuring 20 inches long.

The infant's maternal grandparents Mr. and Mrs. E.J. Russell, 1700 Morrison, and his paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Honea, Rt. 2.

Gypsy moth infestation slippery mess in North

BOSTON (AP) — What's slippery enough to stop a freight train, slithery enough to short-circuit a radio station and nasty enough to make kids break out in a rash?

The answer — as almost any tree owner in the Northeast can attest — is the gypsy moth caterpillar. Or rather, billions of gypsy moth caterpillars.

Luckily for the health of defoliated trees and the sanity of people afraid of bugs, this year's crawling infestation is almost over in southern parts of the Northeast.

And none too soon, either. By the time the critters are done, federal officials estimate, they will have eaten the leaves of about 5 million acres of forest from Maryland to Maine.

In their march from tree to tree, the hairy, 2-inch-long caterpillars have taken a toll on scout camps, automobiles and golf courses, not to mention their favorite food — oaks, poplars, maples and fruit trees.

In Westminister, Mass., the bugs managed to stop two Boston & Maine Railroad freight trains. So many were squished under the trains' wheels that the trains could not climb the slippery rails. They had to wait for an extra locomotive to push them on their way.

Radio station WLKW-FM in Providence, R.I., was knocked off the air several times by the caterpillars. The insects caused tiny short circuits when they climbed the station's transmission towers.

When kids squeeze the bugs in their fingers, the insects ooze a toxic substance that can cause a rash. School nurse Hope Virostek in Burrillville, R.I., said her office ran out of calamine lotion to treat the irritation after an outbreak of skin rash.

The bugs are not fussy eaters. When police in Worcester, Mass., raided an apartment, they found caterpillars busy nibbling on six marijuana plants. Detective Sgt. William T. Quinn said he was worried the caterpillars would eat the evidence.

"The little fellas are sitting up and singing and waving their little tentacles at us," Quinn said. "All they need is a tambourine and a banjo."

When caterpillars decide to cross the road, passing cars turn them into a sticky mess.

"If you drive through them, they splatter worse than tar," said Carl Young, dispatcher at the state police barracks in Houlton, Maine. "You can't get it off. I've still got some of that stuff on my car from last year." At least one person has been seriously injured battling the caterpillars. Michael St. Ives, 31, was gored by a limb that he cut from an oak tree Tuesday in Billerica, a suburb of Boston. He was trying to rid a yard of the insects.

At the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Otis Methods

Development Center in Bourne, Mass., entomologist Vic Mastro said 1981 may be the worst year on record for gypsy moth caterpillars. No one knows why.

But in some places, he said, the bugs have probably reached the end of their natural cycle, and next year may not be so bad.

Jury convicts teen-ager of killing wealthy woman

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A jury has convicted Eduardo Robinson, 17, of first-degree murder in the stabbing-strangulation of a housewife in her home, and recommended life in prison rather than death.

The jury deliberated four hours Thursday before finding Robinson guilty, but took only 32 minutes to decide his punishment.

He was accused of killing Cynthia Schwartz, 30, who prosecutors said surprised a burglar in her home. Her body was found in her blood-spattered home Oct. 23.

Convictions for first-degree murder are automatically appealed to the state Supreme Court.

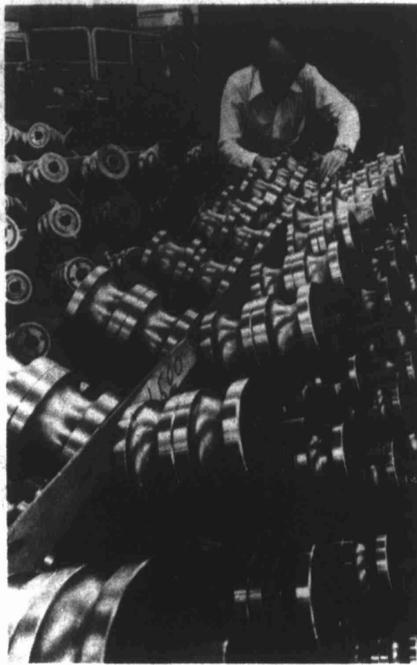

The state sought the death penalty for Robinson, who last week was convicted, in an unrelated case, of raping a 16-year-old girl two years ago.

Prosecution witnesses included two inmates who were serving time in the Columbus, Texas, jail while Robinson was being held there under another name on an auto theft charge.

Dorsey Eugene Williams testified that Robinson told him he was "wanted in Louisiana for murder, that he had stabbed someone. He said it was a woman who lived in a rich neighborhood and a big house."

The other inmate, Michael Pennington, said Robinson told him he was using a false name because he was wanted for murder in Louisiana.

Marriage between Carter, Democrats no love match

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — What Jimmy Carter said was that the Democratic presidential primaries and the national convention had become an "albatross" in his unsuccessful bid for re-election to the White House.

What he meant, according to the party chairman, was that the process "impacted in an unfavorable way on his ability to broaden his base."

The former president's remark and the translation offered by Democratic Chairman Charles T. Manatt are symptoms of the chill between Carter and the party he never could quite call his own.

Manatt went to Carter to ask for an explanation of the "albatross" statement.

Carter made the remark on March 18 during a private session with Princeton University students.

After a student quoted Carter as characterizing the party as an albatross, several members of the Democratic National Committee called the former president to ask for an explanation.

Manatt brought it up when he and Carter met in Atlanta about a week after the Princeton incident.

The Democratic chairman has enough problems without an open squabble with Carter and he described their conversation in his customary lawyer's manner: "Some of the processes and some of the convention requirements and some of the different delegate selection requirements and rules and regulations he felt definitely impacted in a negative way on his ability to broaden his base."

The former president's remark and the translation offered by Democratic Chairman Charles T. Manatt are symptoms of the chill between Carter and the party he never could quite call his own.

After a student quoted Carter as characterizing the party as an albatross, several members of the Democratic National Committee called the former president to ask for an explanation.

Manatt brought it up when he and Carter met in Atlanta about a week after the Princeton incident.

The chairman said Carter did not use the word "albatross" in their discussion.

Tom Donilon, a Carter aide who was at the Princeton meeting, said the "albatross remark was part of a long Carter commentary on the political process and party reform after he was asked about suggestions that presidents be elected for a single six-year term."

The aide quoted Carter as saying the convention and primaries "can be an albatross around a candidate's neck."

Corn receives ACU degree

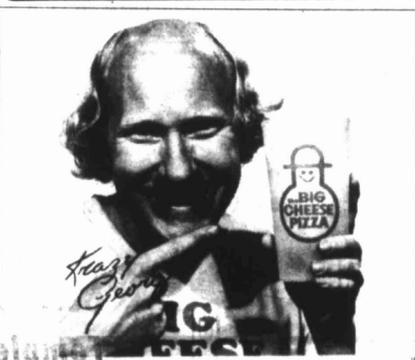

ABILENE — Jay B. Corn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Corn of 1705 Kentucky Way, Big Spring, was one of 683 students at Abilene Christian University who received degrees during the University's 75th annual commencement ceremony in May.

Corn was a candidate for the Bachelor of Business Administration degree in Accounting. He is a 1977 graduate of Weatherford High School, Weatherford.

The graduating class included 587 candidates for undergraduate degrees, 91 candidates for the master's degree and five candidates for associate degrees.

Abilene Christian University is a four-year, liberal arts institution with an enrollment of 4,560 students from 46 states and more than 10 foreign countries. Undergraduate degrees are offered in 22 departments and master's degrees in 10 departments.

Yes to conservation, no to gasohol

Energy, environment key issues of recent legislative session

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Energy and the environment were key issues of the recently adjourned Texas Legislature, in which lawmakers adopted a "model" law to regulate low-level nuclear waste but rejected a gasohol proposal that supporters claim could be an answer to future energy problems.

The recent Legislature also promoted solar energy and energy conservation, appropriated money to clean up hazardous chemical wastes and voted to require the state to prepare a plan for "energy emergencies."

It also voted to impose heavy penalties on anyone stealing oil or gas field equipment and refused once again to raise state severance taxes on crude oil and natural gas.

The radioactive waste bill authorizes the State Health Department to buy land for disposal sites and to regulate activities of firms it licenses to operate them. Operators would pay into a special fund to finance "perpetual care" of all abandoned sites.

Nuclear medicine accounts for almost two-thirds of the 2,163 cubic meters of nuclear waste generated in Texas each year, and some hospitals were storing radioactive waste in barrels in their hallways because out-of-state disposal sites were refusing to handle more Texas radioactive waste.

Violators of the new law could be fined up to $100,000 a day.

"This was our big effort, and the Sierra Club views the bill as model legislation, possibly the best of its kind in the nation for regulating low-level radioactive waste," said Rick Lowerre of the club's Lone Star Chapter.

Another proposal created a new state agency — the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority — to locate and operate a burial site or contract with a private company to run it.

"The club is not excited about this (bill), because it opens the way for a possible disposal site in Texas," said Lowerre. "But if there is a disposal site in Texas, it will be well regulated."

A third measure would strengthen the health department's regulation of wastes from uranium mines. It is estimated that a million tons of uranium mining wastes were produced in the state last year.

The threat of a filibuster on the final day of the session June 1 blocked a bill to exempt gasohol from the nickel-a-gallon motor fuels tax until 1987. Gov. Bill Clements was asked to allow legislators to consider the bill in the upcoming special session, but the governor said the July 13 session would be limited to five subjects and would not include gasohol.

Gasohol is a mixture of 90 percent unleaded gasoline and 10 percent ethanol alcohol.

"Right here, the energy leader of America, a leader in production of agricultural products with a large motor fuel market is ideally suited for a gasohol industry. Not to have passed this bill is unthinkable," said Guy Austin, chairman of High Plains Grain Products Cooperative of Muleshoe.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said "14 gasohol facilities are intended or already started, but I don't believe the industry will get off the ground unless it has an incentive."

"Gasohol would not only be good for farmers," said Brown. "We need to have it as a standby in the event of a national emergency."

Legislators did approve a bill that would authorize the agriculture department to regulate small-scale gasohol production.

Two bills promoting development of solar energy cleared the Legislature. They commit the state to paying up to 20 percent of the cost of constructing experimental "solar repowering" and solar heating facilities.

The state was instructed in planning new buildings to determine whether it would be feasible to use solar energy devices. If money is available, state buildings in the Capitol complex should be renovated to include "energy conservation measures," the Legislature said.

Legislators eliminated the $5 million ceiling on the Energy Development Fund. Under another bill, a person could be sentenced to up to 20 years in jail and fined $10,000 for stealing oil and gas field equipment.

Lawmakers appropriated $5.6 million, which will be added to nearly $50 million in federal funds, to clean up seven hazardous chemical waste sites.

Interstate pipeline OKed

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co. probably will appeal a federal agency's approval to build a natural gas pipeline from Oklahoma to Arkansas, Arkla president Sheffield Nelson says.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission approved Thursday the 285-mile gas pipeline from McAlester, Okla., to near Searcy.

The pipeline will carry as much as 170 million cubic feet of gas a day from the Oklahoma-Basin, along the Oklahoma-Arkansas border.

At Searcy, it will connect with a long-line transmission line that will carry gas to other areas.

Ozark Gas Pipeline Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of Texas Oil and Gas Corp., will own the pipeline, which is owned by Texas Oil and Gas and three other companies.

"We are very pleased with the ruling," said Charles Williams of Dallas, a vice president of Texas Oil and Gas Corp. He said the corporation has been trying to get approval of the pipeline for three years.

Arkla, which pumps gas from the field, opposes the Ozark pipeline on the grounds that there is no need for another east-west pipeline from the Arkhoma Basin, Nelson said.

Nelson said Arkla will evaluate Thursday's order, but he said he believes the company will pursue the matter in the courts.

Nelson said the federal agency's ruling seems inconsistent with the commission staff's recommendation on another pipeline from the Arkhoma Basin.

STRATEGIC METALS — THE FUTURISTIC INVESTMENT

We are presently recommending the outright purchase of Cobalt, Titanium, Mercury, Vanadium, Beryllium, and Silicone.

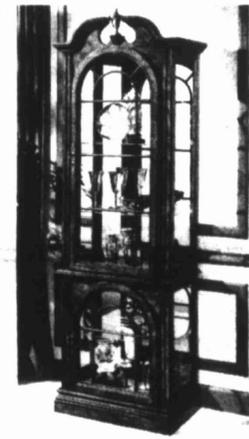

By the year 2000 our natural resources of these strategic metals may be totally depleted. The government is presently stockpiling these metals.

Holmes wants Spinks badly

DETROIT (AP) — Larry Holmes will be a man fighting in anger when he puts his World Boxing Council heavyweight boxing crown on the line tonight against unpredictable Leon Spinks.

"I owe him a whippin'," the normally mild-mannered undefeated titleholder says, calling attention to an incident in Las Vegas, Nev. a couple of years ago which he regarded as an insult to his wife.

But Holmes' dislike for the tough clubber from St. Louis' Pruitt-Igoe ghetto district runs deeper than a little cafe episode during which Spinks planted a kiss on Diane Holmes' outraged cheek.

He still seethes from the memory that Spinks and Muhammad Ali contrived to forbid him a shot at what could have been a fight for the undisputed world championship, thus applying some gloss to what has been largely an obscure image.

Despite his unbeaten record, Holmes never has been accepted as a bona fide world champion. Instead of a boxing "Who's Who," he's a perennial "Who's He?"

"I don't like Leon Spinks and I don't like Gerry Cooney," the WBC champion says, adding the name of the hard-punching Long Islander whom he realizes he must some day beat if he is to get the recognition he deserves.

There is some irony in the situation and certainly reason for Holmes to be bitter.

Most of the time while he was compiling a brilliant record of 37 pro victories, 27 of them knockouts, the boxing world was chanting

"All! All! All!"

After beating Ken Norton in June, 1978, for the WBC version of the heavyweight crown, Holmes sought a chance to solidify the title by meeting the WBA titleholder.

The championship had been split during one of Muhammad Ali's resignation spree and the WBA recognized Spinks after the former Olympic gold medalist had surprisingly beaten Ali in February, 1978, in Las Vegas.

Holmes' hopes rose. The natural match-up was Holmes-Spinks for the championship of the entire world and environs.

But Spinks chose to give Ali a return shot, which Ali won, after which followed a wild round robin in which Big John Tate won the WBA crown in South Africa only to lose it to journeyman Mike Weaver in Knoxville, Tenn., last year.

There was Holmes still helplessly holding a card for the next dance. Which dance?

Holmes is now 31-years-old, getting long in the tooth as fighters go. Lack of constant competition has undoubtedly dulled his skills. In Spinks he meets a man four years his junior with quicker hands and fired by desire.

How much longer must Holmes labor in virtual anonymity? How much longer can he give age and speed to younger men, such as Spinks and Cooney, and still survive.

Frustration and rage may be Holmes' strongest tools in the Joe Louis Memorial battle tonight.

CLEARING OUT — California Angels Rod Carew, right, aided by his son, carry some of his prize possessions from Anaheim Stadium Thursday night after the game with the Boston Red Sox. Carew along with other players, took some of their belongings after it was announced that the baseball players would go on strike Friday.

But settlement could be reached today
Baseball players strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, said early Friday morning that the first midseason strike in the sport's history is on.

Miller made the declaration at the end of another fruitless day of negotiations over the free agent compensation issue.

However, he said another negotiation session would be held starting at 10:15 a.m. EDT Friday, although he said he would not attend.

Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the club owners, said the strike deadline is 2 p.m., EDT, Friday.

Miller had said previously that the strike could be headed off until the first game Friday, a National League contest in Chicago between the San Diego Padres and the Cubs which is scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m. EDT.

"We made several efforts to try and resolve this and avoid the strike," said Grebey. "Unfortunately, the differences are very significant."

"We made some moves and they didn't work," he added.

"As you know, we have met most of the day and nothing has been accomplished," said Miller. "The strike is on."

Miller said the players made another proposal on the sticky compensation issue but that the owners said "they considered it and rejected it. We invited them to amend it or make a series of counter-proposals."

"We asked if they expected to have new proposals," Miller said. "If they did we would stay. But they said no."

Grebey said the Players Relations Committee, of which he is director, had no reluctance about meeting with the players and not with Miller.

He explained that there were two major areas of differences on which the sides were far apart, both of which concerned a pool of players from which teams which lost free agents could select.

"The Players Association said any settlement must include a pool of players that all teams must contribute to," he said. When asked if there was any way the owners could accept a pool where a team that did not select a free agent was contributing players to that pool, he emphatically said, "No."

When Grebey was told that Miller considered the players already on strike, he said: "We have a bargaining session at 10 in the morning. We don't take bargaining sessions lightly. If someone calls a strike before a bargaining session, I guess they're trying to tell us something."

"This issue can only be solved at the bargaining table, and we have two years invested in this. We will be here to continue negotiating even if there is a strike."

"A strike is not a pleasant experience to anyone but, unfortunately, the differences are very significant and the obstacles were too much to surmount."

The comments were made following a 4½-hour late-night meeting that ended about 12:30 a.m. EDT.

Hit not far, but good enough for Royals

By the Associated Press

It's the kind of situation that would have some players talking to themselves.

Jamie Quirk listened.

"Going up to the plate with the bases loaded and then getting a 3-2 count is a situation you just dream of," he said. "But when you're at the plate you've got to try and keep it all in perspective and say to yourself, 'Just hit the ball.'" club record.

That game — and all others — were played under the threat of the first mid-season strike in major league history. Elsewhere in the American League it was Milwaukee 6, Texas 3; Seattle 8, Baltimore 2; Chicago 3, New York 2; Detroit 7, Minnesota 2, and California 7, Boston 2.

Brewers 6, Rangers 3

Like Quirk, Roy Howell of Milwaukee was just trying to get the job done. Like Quirk, he did — but far more emphatically.

Howell pounded a hard slider by Texas' wily Ferguson Jenkins deep into the right-center field bullpen to break a 3-3 tie in the seventh inning and Milwaukee went on to snap a four-game losing streak.

The loss left the Rangers 1½ games behind idle, first-place Oakland in the West Division. Pete Vuckovich, winning his eighth in a row for Milwaukee, allowed three hits over seven innings and Rollie Fingers notched his 12th save.

Mariners 8, Orioles 2

Julio Cruz's 32nd consecutive stolen base, tied Willie Wilson's American League record (Davey Lopes of Los Angeles owns the major league record of 38) and opened the door to a four-run first inning which propelled the Mariners past

Baltimore.

White Sox 3, Yankees 2

Steve Trout has not had the best of luck against the Yanks. Last year they beat him 3-1. And barely a week ago they beat him again, 2-0.

"Every time I face them it's gone like that," he said.

For once, Doug Bird wasn't at his best. He lost his first major league game since Aug. 16, 1978. He'd won 12 in a row in that span.

AL Roundup

He did — barely 150 feet down the third base line.

But Quirk's eighth-inning pinch-double off Roy Lee Jackson went far enough to allow two runners to score, wiping out Toronto's 5-4 lead and starting the Kansas City Royals on their way to a 10-5 romp. It was the Blue Jays' 11th consecutive loss, tying a

Met fans show love for Seaver

By the Associated Press

It's been four years since Tom Seaver pitched for the New York Mets — but Shea Stadium fans still rolled out the red carpet for the Cincinnati pitcher.

"They pull for their own ballclub, as they should," said Seaver, "but it's nice to hear them welcome me back."

Many of the New York fans stood and chanted "Seaver, Seaver, Seaver," and gave him eyes more of an ovation when they felt the Mets' cause was lost Thursday night.

As it turned out, it was. They dropped a 5-3 decision before Seaver's masterful six-hitter.

"The fans realized the Mets were not going to win, so they cheered for the second best thing," Seaver said.

Seaver's victory was his sixth straight this year and gave him a 7-1 record, his only loss coming April 18 against St. Louis. He struck out seven, and with the victory passed Bob Gibson for 30th on the all-time victory list with his 252nd triumph.

Seaver was perhaps the Mets' most beloved player when traded to the Reds on June 15, 1977 in a multiple-player trade involving Pat Zachry, ironically the Mets' losing pitcher Thursday night.

In other National League action, St. Louis beat Los Angeles 2-1, Montreal blanked Atlanta 7-0 and Chicago tripped San Francisco 6-1.

George Foster provided the offensive punch for Cincinnati with a three-run homer in the sixth inning that snapped a 2-2 tie. The homer, his 14th, followed three strikeouts, and Foster joked afterward that AMERICAN LEAGUE (MINOR) — The Sid Smith Braves moved into first place in the AL Minor League race, taking a 12 1/2 win over the Cunningham Oil Lions.

The win moved the Braves to a record of 82, while the Lions fell to a mark of 72 1/2.

The winning pitcher was Danny Whitehead, with Jason Phillips the loser.

Jason Davis and Whitehead both had two hits to pace the Braves in the well played contest, with one of Davis' being a triple. Scott McClelland, Scott Gerritzin, Craig Ferguson, Shane Cline, Patrick Carr and Carey Walker all added singles.

Joe Downey had three hits for the Lions, with Eric Hillier adding two singles and Brad Roberts a triple and a single. Also hitting safely for the Lions with one single each were John Covington, Stewart Sinclair and Troy Maudin.

AMERICAN (MAJOR) — The Cain Electric Cougars bunched all of their runs in the first three innings en route to a 7-3 triumph over the Barber Glass Pirates in AL Major League action Thursday night.

Sammy Kerby was credited as the winning pitcher, with Aaron Allen getting the save by limiting the Pirates to one run in the final three innings. Scott Stone was the losing pitcher.

Pete Chavarria doubled for the big hit for the Cougars, while Sammy Kerby, Allen and Paul Berringer all hit safely.

The big hit for the Pirates was an opposite field triple by Abner Shelman.

UGSA (DIVISION IV) — Gary's Welding Blue Demons of Big Spring rolled to an 18-6 win over the Snyder Silver Strikers in a game played here Wednesday evening.

The win moved the Big Spring team's record to 7-2 for the year.

Cassie Abernig was the winning pitcher, with Lisa Rossas the loser.

Bea Magers had a triple and a pair of singles to pace the Big Spring team.

with Elise Wheat and Karl Robinson both contributing two hits each. Having one hit for the winners were Iona Crane, Sandy Puga and Cynthia Hernandez.

Teresa Smith, Rossa, Donna Halford and Colleen Craver all hit safely for the Snyder team.

SENIOR LEAGUE — The Gartman-Johnson Trojans used the two-hit pitching of Tommy Gartman combined with a 10-hit attack in taking a 9-3 win over the Cossden Oilers in Senior League action.

While Gartman was the winning pitcher for the Trojans, the loser was Doug Walker. Both teams now have records of 7-3.

Chris Lamb had a single, double and triple to pace the Trojan attack, with Gartman and David Moore both contributing a single and a double.

Mike Leuschner had a triple, with Mark Johnson and Mark Sanders both having singles.

Greg Miller and Walker hit safely for the Oilers.

UGSA (DIVISION II) — The Dynamites outscored the Roughnecks in UGSA Division II action Tuesday night.

Lori Gonzales was the winning pitcher, with Dana Hillbrunner the loser. The Dynamites now have a record of 12-2.

Leading Dynamite hitters included Missy Wilson with two singles and a double, Kristie Blevins with four singles, and a double, Lori Gonzales and Jayline Bullard both had two hits, with Kim Henry and Neida Williams adding one hit each.

Lisa Dominguez had three triples for the Roughnecks, with Libby Hernandez adding a triple and Bevin Yolanda Green had two singles, with Jenny Smoot, Dana Hillbrunner, Debra Pena and Karen Tubb all having one hit each.

Post going for more than LPGA title

MASON, Ohio (AP) — A sign of the inflationary times — Sandra Post can win $122,500 in four days at the Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship, more than any of the first 26 round of the LPGA Championship on Thursday was any indication.

The 33-year-old Canadian shot a 67, the same as 1979 U.S. Open winner Jerilyn Britz and one shot off the pace of leading Lynn Adams, a non-winner in four pro seasons.

"I don't feel any pressure," Post said of her 5-under-par round that included 13 pars and five birdies over the Jack Nicklaus Sports Center's Grizzly course.

"I just have to take every round as it comes," she said. "The greatest meaning of this is that the PGA had put it (bonus) up for the men. So for us, this is an equalizer."

"My primary thought is the LPGA Championship. We only have three majors. All of us get up a little for them."

Rose says strike more important than record

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pete Rose, who needs only one more hit to break Stan Musial's National League career hit record of 3,630, is continuing his positive thinking in the face of a possible baseball strike.

The 40-year-old Rose tied Musial's mark with a first-inning single Wednesday night against the Houston Astros. Then he struck out the next three times at bat.

The Major League Players Association and the major league club owners are embroiled in a labor dispute over compensation for the loss of a free agent.

The players actually went on strike early today, but the walkout was expected to have little effect until game time this afternoon. And, with more negotiations scheduled today, there was still a possibility of a settlement.

The Phillies were off Thursday, and were scheduled to open a three-game series tonight against the Atlanta Braves.

Although the strike threat caught him at a bad time, Rose makes it clear he's 100 percent behind the players association.

"I can't put myself ahead of 650 guys, including myself," he explained. "But I have to believe there will be baseball some time this summer."

Rose said that as far as the record is concerned, "I'm not on any timetable. I'll get one more hit, won't I?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGNER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 13, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An excellent day for you to accept an invitation to be with persons you feel comfortable with. You have much insight now so listen carefully to what they have to suggest.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A new acquaintance can be helpful to you now, so cultivate this relationship. Take better care of your health.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen to the voice of your intuition since it can be helpful in solving problems you may have. Relax at home tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Contact those with whom you want to reach a better accord and get the right results. Use your Gemini charm.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure of the motives behind any activities you engage in today. Make plans for improving your surroundings.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study new ways that could give you added income in the days ahead. Show increased devotion to family members.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good day to discuss mutual aims with close ties. Use more diplomacy and increase harmony at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Ideal day to visit persons who can give you ideas to become more successful. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to make long-range plans that could give you more abundance in the future. Follow the advice of an expert.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Good friends who can give you ideas on how to acquire more of the world's goods. And you can help them with their aims.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Analyze your present position and make sure you know how to progress in the future. Study details of a new venture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Being your own gregarious self is wise today. Attend a group meeting and have a delightful time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Show your talents to influential persons and gain their backing. Avoid one who is jealous of you and could do you harm.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a strong desire to get ahead from the earliest age, so be sure to provide with a good education. You could easily have a famous person here. Any bluntness should be curbed early. A fine person in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

TO SEE OR NOT TO SEE

If you had a crystal ball, would you use it? Would you really want to know what's ahead for tomorrow, next week, next month, next year?

Most of us wouldn't. In fact, very few of us could take total revelation. Life was meant to be lived a day at a time, without too much looking forward, without too much looking back.

And most of us need something — something bigger than we are — something we can trust — someplace where we can be in peace, for a time and know sanctuary.

Try your place of worship. It's the place where you can gather the courage today to face tomorrow.

THE CAST OF "BRIGHT NEW WINGS" — Members of the First United Methodist Church above will portray the Biblical characters in the New Testament, John, Martha, Lazarus, The Sinful Woman and The Leper with supporters in a Musical presentation at 7 Sunday evening.

'Bright New Wings' will be performed at First Methodist

The First United Methodist Church, 4th & Scurry streets, will present the Musical, "Bright New Wings" (By Cynthia Clawson and Ragan Courtney-arranged by Beryl Red) Sunday evening, at 7 p.m. in the Sanctuary. This presentation is under the direction of their Minister of Music, Charles B. Parham Jr.

The writers take five people from New Testament accounts, in a highly original and thoughtful manner, John, Martha, Lazarus, The Sinful Woman and The Leper, reinterprets their personalities within the context of the Old West, and show how their lives were transformed by Jesus as he gave them "bright new wings."

The mystery and vitality of Christian transformation is beautifully expressed in the words of the Leper: "To be changed from a caterpillar into a butterfly is amazing; but no more so than being changed from a leper to a child of God."

So, "come with us to another time and place," and experience the magic and reality of BRIGHT NEW WINGS.

The principals are: the Explainer, Tracy Brady; John, Jerry Holten; Martha, Pam Smith; Lazarus, William C. Johnson; the Sinful Woman, Carla Warrington; the Leper, Chris Showalter and Soloists, Bill Hart and Laurie Todd.

Other cast members include: Marcie Lykken, Patty Parham, Sally Page Stuck, Holly Parham, Jim Fisher and Paul Stuck.

The orchestra includes Harlen Thornton at the piano, Peggy Williams, key bass; Dale Pless, drums; Russell Fuquay, guitar and Mike Henry, keyboards.

Crew members include Charlie Ebarb, lights; Larry Fike, sound; Ben Parham, follow spot and William Moren, props. Kelly Draper is the Stage Director;

Charles Parham, the Music Director and Jim Moss, Technical Director

This is a fully staged, costumed Christian presentation which you will not want to miss. Everyone is welcome! A nursery will be provided.

Young, handicapped singer to perform at Sand Springs

Gary Dee Bradford, outstanding Gospel soloist and ventriloquist, will present a gospel concert Saturday at First Baptist Church, Sand Springs, at 7 p.m. Gary, at 17, has appeared on programs with the Blackwood Brothers, Stamps Quartet and Mercy River Boys among other professional groups in various auditoriums.

Gary is a twin whose brother passed away at 8 months. Doctors predicted when he was two that he'd never live beyond 4, and should he survive, his chances were 50 percent. Doctors are amazed at his recovery.

Gary is handicapped with no arms, but with hands growing directly from his shoulders. His legs and body are well developed. However, he has turned his handicap into a blessing, giving God the credit for his successes in school and in singing.

He is from Baytown and was named in 1980 Who's Who in the International Biographical Institute for Youth Achievements which recognized people who have many achievements early in their lives.

Gary sings Southern, Contemporary and Classical Gospel music with a very exciting and mature first tenor voice with a four octave range. Presently he uses orchestrated sound tracks with most of his songs. Gary's first L.P. album was released April, 1976, his second album, August, 1977 and his latest June, 1979. Bill Gaither is his favorite composer, but he sings some of Andre Crouch, Dottie Rambo, John Peterson and other fine composer's music. Gary is a member of a "special people" panel organized by Channel 11 staffer Robert Whitfield to present discussions. A number of handicapped persons participate in these "rap sessions" that are held for youth groups. The public is cordially invited to hear this outstanding young man and musician.

Emmanuel Baptists to dedicate building

The Rev. Lory Hildreth, director of Church Services Division of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, will be the featured speaker at the dedication service of the Emmanuel Baptist Church Sunday.

The Rev. David Womack is the host pastor of the 3 p.m. service to celebrate the purchase of the building at 2107 Lancaster from the Hillcrest Baptist congregation.

The Rev. Hildreth pastored three Texas churches, the Handley Baptist Church, Fort Worth; the Hyde Park Baptist Church, Austin and the First Baptist Church, Texarkana for 29½ years. He has been preaching since 1937, having been ordained in January 1938.

Hildreth has served in several offices of the Baptist General Convention of Texas from being a member of the Executive Board to Vice President. In addition, he has served on the Foreign Mission Board and Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Hildreth joined the Stewardship Division staff of the BGCT in October, 1976. He writes frequently for denominational periodicals in addition to Uniform Sunday School Lessons, and Stewardship lessons.

The Emmanuel Baptist Church was chartered Sept. 20, 1980 with 90 charter members, under the leadership of the Rev. Allen McHam. David Womack is the present pastor.

Sam Robertson, of Hillcrest Baptist Church, will perform the presentation of the building ceremony. The Rev. Bryan Ross, area missionary from San Angelo, will give the challenge to the church. Testimonies will be given by Don Yates and Foster Shirley.

Dear Parents,
Please accept this as our expression of appreciation to you for allowing your children to attend our Vacation Bible School this week.
We endeavored to instill in them principles of truth, knowing that these principles will help them in living for Christ now, and in future years.
Similar classes for their enjoyment and edification are offered during our Bible study sessions each Sunday and Wednesday.
We hope to have you and your children present.

Battle of ad jingles over; judge ponds
 DALLAS (AP) - The lyrics are cheerful, the music is bouncy, but the lawyers fighting the deadly serious battle of the ads argue copyright laws offer protection from "smiling assassins."
 The four-day copyright infringement trial ended Thursday with an attorney for Dr Pepper telling the federal judge that Sambo's Restaurants Inc. should be ordered not to use a commercial that parodies the Dallas-based soft drink company's ad.
 U.S. District Judge William Taylor, who has already issued a temporary injunction against Sambo's and its advertising agency, Bozell & Jacobs, said he would try to make a "prompt" decision in the case.
 Sambo's has been promoting a senior citizen's discount program with an ad that features elderly dancers singing a sprightly jingle that asks the musical question: "Don't you want to be a senior, too?"
 Dr Pepper sued the restaurant, claiming the commercial was "substantially similar" to the soft drink ad that queries, "Wouldn't you like to be a pepper, too?"
 Robert Jordan, attorney for Dr Pepper, argued that the Sambo's ad infringes on Dr Pepper's copyright. Witnesses for the restaurant and its advertising agency, Bozell & Jacobs, claimed the "dancing seniors" tune sounds like the Pepper music, but is different, and the lyrics are in good taste.
 "Copyright laws protect against smiling assassins just as much as they do against those who do it with a snarl or a growl," said Jordan.

UT construction project receives final approval

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The University of Texas System Board of Regents was to vote today on whether to give final approval to 24 construction projects tentatively endorsed Thursday.

The largest expenditure given preliminary approval was construction of a $28.8 million library at the University of Texas at El Paso.

The board also gave initial approval to the first $16 million phase of a planned $37 million outpatient clinic at the University of Texas Cancer Center in Houston.

The projects were among 25 considered by the regents, who sat as a building and grounds committee Thursday.

The UTEP library was the most-discussed issue of the meeting, drawing criticism from regents Tom B. Rhodes of Dallas and Beryl Milburn of Austin.

Rhodes said the five-story building would provide more space than UTEP would need in the future.

"That would be a pretty sizeable library as compared to the other libraries around the state," Rhodes said, listing square-foot figures for Texas Tech, Stephen F. Austin University and other schools. All were smaller than the proposed UTEP library would be.

UTEP president Haskell Monroe said a larger library was needed in El Paso because the city is more than 600 miles from Austin, where the main UT library is located.

CHIPMUNKS GO COUNTRY — The Chipmunks have recorded a country music album, "Urban Chipmunk," a spoofy spinoff of "Urban Cowboy." This is Ross Bagdasarian of Los Angeles and his wife, Janice Karman, the voices of the Chipmunks. Bagdasarian is the son of the late David Seville, who recorded the Christmas standard, "The Chipmunk Song."

Alvin...Alvin...ALVIN!! Chipmunks go country

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Alvin of the Chipmunks is still at it. The mischievous little fellow is back with his new album, "Urban Chipmunk," a spoofy spinoff of "Urban Cowboy." Alvin's latest mischief finds him playing his fiddle at 2 a.m. to the tune of "Thank God I'm a Country Boy." And if that's not enough, his version of "Mamma, Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up to be Cowboys" comes out of "Mamma, Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up to be Chipmunks." And Alvin turns Willie Nelson's "On the Road Again" to "Off the Road Again."

"Alvin is still the same mischievous, never-take-no-for-an-answer kid," laughs Ross Bagdasarian of Los Angeles, who with his wife, Janice Karman, are the voices of the Chipmunks.

Bagdasarian is the son of the late David Seville, who recorded "The Chipmunk Song" in 1958. Seville died of a heart attack at age 52 in 1972, and his son and daughter-in-law are carrying on the Chipmunk
