Bell to file record rate hike request

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. announced today it will file a record $469.8 million rate hike request with the state Public Utility Commission.

The request, scheduled to be filed at 10 a.m. today, includes a monthly increase of $5.45 for basic residential service. Businesses would face an increase of up to $14.40 for basic business service.

Basic services would provide 87 percent of the proposed increase, officials said. No increase is requested for long-distance service, WATS line service, pay telephones or directory assistance calls.

Bell vice president Paul Roth, in a statement released this morning, said the rate hikes are needed because local telephone service is not paying its own way.

Bell is challenging a commission decision last year to grant only $114 million of a $325 million rate hike request. Company officials earlier said that decision was a contributing factor in Bell's decision to come back with another request for higher rates.

The Texas Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now (ACORN) fired off a news release shortly after Bell announced the rate hike request.

"They don't need it," said Alberta Powell, spokeswoman for the group that has fought Bell in the past. "AT&T makes over a billion dollars profit every three months."

Roth told a morning news conference that the increases in local rates are aimed at bringing the price closer to the costs of providing the service.

"Local service is priced well below cost. Rates for the service must cover more of the costs," he said. "The time is here for local service to begin standing on its own."

Long distance calls and other profitable services now help cover the cost of local service, he said.

CATFISH FOUND IN STREET — George Ventura displays a catfish he found left high and dry by receding floodwaters near Our Lady of the Lake University on the west side of San Antonio. Rushing waters left streets covered with debris in low-lying areas as cleanup began. The possibility of more rain Monday was listed at 40 percent.

Eight persons die in Texas flooding

Normally placid rivers and streams, filled to overflowing by record rains, rushed from their banks and claimed at least eight lives during the weekend, including two people killed in the swirling Pedernales River during an outing at a state park.

Two people remain missing and were presumed dead from the same mishap. Two other bodies, of a man and a woman who have not been identified, were recovered from the Pedernales this morning.

Three people died when their vehicles were overwhelmed by floodwaters.

The body of 13-year-old Mario Zamora was found about 9 a.m. today in Six Mile Creek in south San Antonio. The boy had been missing since 1 p.m. Sunday, when he slipped into the creek after he went to check on his brother's safety, police said.

The body of a 5-year-old girl also was found this morning in South Nolanville Creek near U.S. Highway 190, Bell County authorities said. The girl was in a car that washed off a bridge in Nolanville Sunday night, sheriff's deputies said. The girl's mother, who was driving the car, managed to escape. Deputies were withholding the child's name pending notification of relatives.

Normally placid rivers and streams, filled to overflowing by record rains, rushed from their banks and claimed five lives during the weekend, including two people killed in the swirling Pedernales River during an outing at a state park.

Two people remain missing and were presumed dead from the same mishap. Three people died when their vehicles were overwhelmed by floodwaters.

Heavy rains have produced widespread flooding in South and South Central Texas, with at least 21 dead and $35 million worth of property damage inflicted since Memorial Day.

Two men and two women were sightseeing at Pedernales Falls State Park at Johnson City, just west of Austin, Sunday when they were swept from a rocky ledge into the swift waters of the Pedernales River, according to witnesses.

The four ventured across the river, using exposed rocks in the stream bed for stepping-stones, before the waters began to rise.

"The rocks were still sticking out of the water when they went out but the water started rising pretty fast," witness Chris Boyle told The Austin American-Statesman.

"The water kept getting higher, lapping at their ankles, and then their knees, then you couldn't see the rocks any more and the water kept coming. It was pretty apparent when the water started hitting them around the waist what was going to happen."

They were washed downstream, Boyle said.

"We have recovered two bodies ... but we won't know anything about the others until later," said Pedernales Falls State Park Superintendent Wilbur Mengers, adding that the other two are presumed dead.

State and county law officers, Parks and Wildlife Department rangers and National Guardsmen took part in the futile search for those missing.

Most Central Texas rivers spilled from their banks Sunday, the result of continued heavy rains — often falling at the rate of four inches per hour.

Hundreds of people were evacuated again Saturday in Austin, San Marcos, San Antonio and surrounding Hill Country communities.

They began returning home Sunday but a Williamson County sheriff's deputy said they would "probably have to just turn right around and leave again," if the Lampasas, Pedernales, Guadalupe and Colorado rivers did not return to their banks.

Rain was still in the forecast for all of Central Texas today and another round of evacuations was possible.

Sunday's floods closed highways throughout the Hill Country. In San Antonio, rescuers dropped hoses to rescue motorists stranded on a flooded expressway.

An observer near Medina Lake reported 4½ inches of rain fell there in one hour Sunday.

The two motorists drowned in separate Saturday night mishaps were identified as Billy McFerrin, 45, of Houston and Antonia Flores Jimenez, 46, of Muldoon.

Court rules 'double-celling' not always unconstitutional

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is not automatically unconstitutional to house two prison inmates in a cell designed for one, the Supreme Court ruled today.

By an 8-1 vote, the court said the practice of "double-celling" does not always represent the cruel and unusual punishment outlawed by the Constitution's 8th Amendment.

The decision reversed a federal appeals court ruling that would have forced Ohio's only maximum security prison, in Lucasville, to end all "double-celling."

In an opinion for five of the court's nine members, Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. issued what amounts to a stern warning for all federal judges: do not be too ready to overturn the decisions of state legislatures and prison officials on prison administration.

"The Constitution does not mandate comfortable prisons, and prisons of (the Lucasville) type, which house persons convicted of serious crimes, cannot be free of discomfort," Powell wrote. "Thus, these considerations properly are weighed by the legislature and prison administration rather than a court."

He added: "Conditions that cannot be said to be cruel and unusual under contemporary standards are not unconstitutional. To the extent that such conditions are restrictive and even harsh, they are part of the penalty that criminal offenders pay for their offenses against society."

Powell's opinion was joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Potter Stewart, Byron R. White and William H. Rehnquist.

Justices William J. Brennan, Harry A. Blackmun and John Paul Stevens joined in the result, but wrote in a separate opinion that "today's decision in no way (should be) construed as a retreat from careful judicial scrutiny of prison conditions."

Nonetheless, Powell's opinion, which was supported by a majority of the court, appeared to suggest just that.

Justice Thurgood Marshall dissented. He called conditions at the Lucasville prison "overcrowded, unhealthful and dangerous."

Powell said that the practice of double celling in overcrowded prisons might at some point reach unconstitutional proportions, but he said: "There is no evidence that double celling under these circumstances either inflicts unnecessary or wanton pain or is grossly disproportionate to the severity of crimes warranting imprisonment."

He added: "Courts certainly have a responsibility to scrutinize claims of cruel and unusual confinement. ... In discharging this oversight responsibility, however, courts cannot assume that state legislatures and prison officials are insensitive to the requirements of the Constitution or to the perplexing sociological problems of how best to achieve the goals of the penal function in the criminal justice system."

Latest figures show that federal judges have ordered major prison reforms in 29 cases nationwide. Many of those involve overcrowded conditions that have led to double celling.

In the Ohio case, U.S. District Judge Timothy Hogan in 1977 ruled that double celling at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility in Lucasville cut down on counseling opportunities for inmates and hurt their educational and job-training opportunities.

His ruling was upheld by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on June 6, 1980.

Clements says court ruling will help Texas prison case

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas efforts to overturn a federal court ruling for widespread changes in the state prison system were helped Monday by a U.S. Supreme Court decision, Gov. Bill Clements said.

The high court said it is not automatically unconstitutional to house two prison inmates in a cell designed for one.

"The Supreme Court has stated that the constitution does not mandate single cells, and that maximum security prisons cannot be free of some discomfort," the governor said in a statement.

"The highest court has also, in effect, warned federal judges that administration of the prison systems is best left to legislatures and corrections officials rather than courts. This is exactly the view which Texas has advanced in current litigation involving its prison system."

Clements said the state was moving ahead as fast as it can to improve the prison system and the housing and rehabilitation of inmates.

Commissioner take action on Chaparral Road speeders

By CAROL HART

Howard County commissioners took action against speeders and vandals on Chaparral Road by setting the speed limit on the road at 40 mph during the commissioners meeting today.

Bob Madigan, Dr. Reg Cranford and Skipper Driver today told commissioners problems they face as residents on the road in the Silver Heels addition.

"Chaparral Road is like a roller coaster," Madigan said. "It's fun to drive over it at 60 mph. But people get bored, and they've started breaking into homes and destroying mailboxes."

Driver said he feared someone would be killed or seriously injured if speeding on the road continues. Madigan added there had already been several serious injuries.

Commissioners David Barr, Paul Allen and County Judge Bill Tune agreed to post speed limit signs along the road. County Engineer Bill Mims recommended 40 mile per hour limits be set. The county will also ask the sheriff's office and the highway patrol to increase their patrols of the road in the hopes of stopping speeders and ticketing them.

Commissioners Bill Crooker and Louis Brown were out of town today.

Commissioners approved a request from the state to increase the salary of the state and federal trapper, one of two trappers in the county. Howard County will increase its one-third share of the trapper's salary to $700 a month, an increase of $200. The increase will go into effect Oct. 1.

A request by Kenneth Tubb, county trapper, to remain on the county insurance plan during June, July and August was also approved today. Tubb does not work for the county June through August but will be allowed to remain on the health and dental plan.

Three students were hired to work this summer for the county in the Howard County library. Martha A. Ramirez was hired at $2.98 an hour, and Felice Logan and Donna Jackson will each earn $470.50 a month as children's librarians. All three are vocational education students from Big Spring High School.

Bids for a remodeling project in the 118th District Courtroom will be open as of July 13. Jackie Olson, county auditor, told commissioners District Judge Jim Gregg has requested the ceiling in the courtroom be lowered, and lighting improved. Mrs. Olson estimated the work would cost between $5,000 and $7,500.

Bids also will be accepted for a calculator for Judge Lewis Heflin's office.

Sheriff A.N. Standard told commissioners that he would like to hire part-time help in the sheriff's office. He explained that civil papers are piling up in the office and require much of the time of Sgt. Paul Silva. A part-time employee could alleviate some of the load and allow Sgt. Silva more time outside of the office, Sheriff Standard said.

Commissioners approved the hiring of part-time help at minimum wage. Sheriff Standard also discussed the problem his department faces when prisoners must be returned to the county. He said there is a prisoner in Hickory, N.C., now, who may need to be transported back to Big Spring. Standard said the trip, which requires two deputies, could cost as much as $800 to $1,000.

"I can handle it," Sheriff Standard explained, "but with more expenses."

Commissioners discussed a screening process, whereby some prisoners might not be returned to the county if their cases did not warrant the expense. No action was taken on the subject this morning.

Action/reaction: Parking space needed

With the addition of several new post offices boxes and the relocation of several offices, will the size of the Federal Building parking lot increase?

A. Postmaster Frank Hardesty said "I'm aware of the fact that the parking space here is not adequate." He added that "I keep pointing it out" to the regional office, located in Memphis, Tenn. Approval for an increase in the parking lot size would have to come from Memphis, Hardesty said. "I've requested more parking," he stressed, saying that he soon hoped to see "the light at the end of the tunnel" as far as funding for a new lot is concerned. But, as of now, no approval for a larger parking lot has been received.

WORDS OF FREEDOM

We are still striving to achieve for all men equally those freedoms bought for us by such a high price by men who shaped our institutions based on the assurance of equality for all.

From the beginning the dream of freedom and equal opportunity has been a beacon to oppressed peoples the world over. As someone has said, "America has dared to dream the impossible dream. Now we must dare to make it completely real."

The American people are bravely facing and desperately trying to solve almost insoluble social, moral and spiritual problems.

Youth is arraigned for firing at Queen

LONDON (AP) — Marcus Simon Sarjeant, an unemployed 17-year-old in a black sweatshirt and blue jeans, was ordered held without bail today on a charge of firing a blank pistol near Queen Elizabeth II.

In a one-minute arraignment hearing at the Bow Street Magistrates' Court, the tall, lean youth who qualified as a marksman in his school's Air Training Corps said nothing.

He stood in the dock with bowed head, flanked by two plainclothesmen, and did not acknowledge the presence in the courtroom of his mother, Shirley, or 18-year-old sister, Veronica.

Magistrate Evelyn Charles Russell ordered him held for another hearing on June 24, the usual procedure when the police investigation is still going on.

Sarjeant is charged under the 1842 Treason Act with "willfully discharging at the person of Her Majesty the Queen a blank cartridge pistol with intent to alarm her." He could get seven years in prison.

He was arrested Saturday after six blanks were fired as the queen rode horseback from Buckingham Palace along the crowd-lined Mall to a Trooping of the Color ceremony at the Horse Guards Parade.

The queen, who was taking part in her official birthday celebration, looked startled and her horse shied at the noise of the firing 10 feet away. Thousands of stunned spectators feared an assassination attempt. The queen was unharmed, calmed her horse and carried on with the parade as police grabbed Sarjeant.

The royal family carried on its public appearances as usual today despite the scare.

The queen, her husband Prince Philip, Prince Charles and Queen Mother Elizabeth were attending a service for the Knights of the Garter at Windsor Castle today, and the castle grounds were open to the public as usual. Officials at Windsor said thousands were expected to watch the royal party walk to St. George's Chapel.

Commencing Tuesday, the queen and other members of her family will be at Royal Ascot, one of the highlights of the British horse racing calendar.

"One of the delights of Royal Ascot is that the royal family are seen mingling with their subjects," said an official at the race course. "We don't anticipate any change in this."

Police arrangements there are known to include mobile command posts, radio and telephone links, guns, a helicopter, police dogs and ambulances.

Armed police and four bodyguards were in evidence around Prince Charles on Sunday when he walked among a crowd of several thousand for 90 minutes at a charity fete at Cirencester Park, in southwest England.

Afterward, Charles flew to Windsor where the queen, Prince Philip and the queen mother watched him play polo. Spectators only a few yards away cheered the queen, and after the game Charles and Philip joined hundreds of spectators on the polo field to stamp the turf back into place.

Charles flies to New York City Wednesday for a 24-hour visit, and authorities are preparing the kind of protection usually reserved for presidents.

Hundreds homeless following tornados

Hundreds of people were homeless today after storms mauled the nation's mid-section in a furious siege of tornados, flooding and lightning that left at least 19 people dead.

In Minnesota, three twisters raked across the Minneapolis-St. Paul area Sunday, tossing cars about, crushing buildings and uprooting trees. Sirens wailed across the Twin Cities as 84 people were rushed to a dozen hospitals, where 14 were admitted. One man who had been trying to clear his yard of debris died of a heart attack.

More than 600 residents of the Ohio towns of Ottawa and Findlay were forced from their homes by the surging Blanchard River, which was 6 feet above flood stage but receding today. Gov. James Rhodes put the two towns under a state of emergency after surveying the 50-square-block flood damage. The declaration means National Guardsmen may be called in.

Relentless rains poured over Texas at the rate of up to 4 1/2 inches an hour, causing widespread flooding that killed eight people. Two others were missing and presumed dead in the raging waters of the swollen Pedernales River.

In Glenwood, Ill., a suburb south of Chicago, the body of 11-year-old Dwight Perrotta was found Sunday, 18 hours after he was swept off his bike in a park submerged in parts by up to six feet of water.

A 33-year-old Chicago woman drowned in Belmont Harbor, Ill., when her boat capsized Saturday, and authorities reported hundreds of minor injuries across Illinois and northern Indiana as floodwaters lashed in basements and slogged into homes.

"We've got a mobile boat hospital, and they're taking people out to waiting ambulances on dry ground," said Lansing police Sgt. Keith Smith. "The Public Works Department is coordinating the effort—but their offices are in the flood," he said. "Those guys are answering the phones standing on their desks."

A Wisconsin man claimed a $15,000 bond, which was later posted by B&M Bonding Service.

inches of rain pounded Great Bend, Kan.

Residents in Cardington, Ohio, surveyed the holocaust left by a tornado that ravaged the tiny community Saturday, causing destruction that the governor said was proportionately the worst in state history.

About 171 homes and 29 businesses were heavily damaged by the storm, which left about 50 people homeless in the community of 2,000.

Killed were Donald W. Carson, a 9-month-old infant who died of storm-related injuries; Leo Bingman, described as being in his late 60s, who died of a heart attack; Theima Olsen, 62, who died Sunday after being pulled from wreckage, and Maxine Danner, 67, whose cause of death was not immediately available.

National Guard troops were called out to help keep order and prevent looting.

In Roseville, Minn., a twister plowed through a shopping center in the suburb just north of St. Paul Sunday, shattering windows and hurling twisted metal and building insulation across the parking lot. Several customers in a department store and grocery were cut by flying glass.

A few miles to the southwest, in southern Minneapolis, officials said another tornado, part of the same storm system, injured several others as it downed power lines and uprooted trees, sometimes flinging them into automobiles.

"It looked like a giant came through, chewed everything and spit it out," said Midge Docken of Minneapolis.

Arrest made at grocery

Annie Thomas Simpson, 32, of 207 NW 12th, was arrested at Quickie Grocery, 510 Lamesa Highway, Sunday, on charges of possessing a stolen check. Ms. Simpson was placed under a $15,000 bond, which was later posted by B&M Bonding Service.

Wood assassin paid well?

NEW YORK (AP) — Investigators have told Newsweek magazine that a convicted murderer on parole was paid "as much as $1 million" to kill U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., who was gunned down outside his San Antonio, Texas home May 29, 1979.

In its latest issue, Newsweek quotes U.S. Justice Department officials as saying convicted hit man Charles Harrelson was paid the money by Jamiel (Jimmy) Chagra, 36, a convicted drug smuggler currently serving a 30-year jail term.

Newsweek's report said the FBI got its information through informants such as Jerry Ray James, who befriended Chagra while both were doing time at the federal prison in Leavenworth, Kan.

James apparently was promised freedom if he would allow the FBI to secretly tape conversations between Chagra and him.

"Justice officials say Chagra told James the details of the Wood assassination plot," according to Newsweek.

Three rescued from ship

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Three people, whose 38-foot sloop was just inches from sinking, were rescued after three planes and three helicopters combed the Pacific Ocean for five hours looking for their vessel, authorities said.

The three, identified as William Perry, 37, of Crested Butte, Colo.; David Ranney, 36, of Gunnison, Colo.; and Michelle Pratt, 40, of Capitola, Calif., had just climbed into a life raft when aircraft dispatched by the Navy and Coast Guard located them 200 miles southwest of San Diego, said Coast Guard spokesman Lt. Scott Settimo.

Amateur radio operators alerted the Coast Guard here around 8 a.m. Sunday that the sailboat "Galaxy", bound from Costa Rica to Long Beach, was taking in water due to a cracked seam, Settimo said.

Arms sales to Taiwan is major subject of Haig-Chinese talks

PEKING (AP) — In a bid to revitalize Chinese-American relations, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. talked for nearly four hours today with Foreign Minister Huang Hua and apparently tackled the major issue — the sale of U.S. weapons to Taiwan. A State Department official told reporters Haig and Huang covered trade and technological cooperation subjects and there was "a great deal of agreement on global issues." But he refused to say whether the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan was discussed or whether there was any agreement on bilateral issues. Haig and Huang were smiling and shook hands as they emerged from the Great Hall of the People. U.S. officials said Haig canceled a visit to the Imperial City museum in Beijing.

Study of illegal alien education is expanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today expanded the scope of its study to determine whether states must provide free public education to illegal alien children. The justices, who on May 4 had agreed to use a case from the Tyler, Texas, school district to decide the issue, said today they also will use a second Texas case. The court's eventual decision, not expected until sometime next year, likely will establish whether illegal aliens in the United States are entitled to equal protection of the laws. The issue is an especially important political one for states bordering Mexico. The case accepted for review last month involves the Tyler district's policy of charging a $1,000 tuition fee for illegal alien children who attended its schools. The policy was struck down as unconstitutional. The case accepted for review today involves statewide litigation over a 1975 Texas law barring free education to illegal aliens. The law also was struck down by lower courts as unconstitutional. Texas Attorney General Mark White, who is '71 Class Reunion Saturday

Weather Storms continue on East Coast

Gloomy skies hung over much of the East today, with the forecast calling for scattered showers and thunderstorms as homeowners in several states dug through the rubble left by a weekend of tornadoes and flooding. Rainy weather was expected from the eastern Gulf Coast through the mid-Mississippi and Ohio Valleys into the Great Lakes and New England, and across the northern Plains and Upper Mississippi Valley. Severe storms killed at least 14 people over the weekend. Thunderstorms spawned a dozen tornadoes over the central Plains and Upper Mississippi Valley on Sunday, with several twisters touching down in Minnesota. Torrential rains flooded a widespread area of Texas. Heavy rains and thunderstorms pummeled Kansas, while strong thunderstorms also continued from upper Michigan over eastern Oklahoma. Scattered showers lingered over the west

Begin threatens new attack on Syrian arms

Prime Minister Menachem Begin made a new threat to attack the Syrian missiles in Lebanon, and Syria said U.S. envoy Philip Habib's efforts to resolve the Syrian-Israeli missile crisis were doomed by American support for Israel. Begin's press office quoted him as saying at a campaign rally Sunday that he will ask Habib at their meeting later this week: "Are you moving the missiles or not? If you're not moving them, then we will." Interviewed on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," Begin said he told the American mediator that Israel would not wait "an indefinite period" for him to get the Syrians to withdraw the Soviet-made SAM-6 anti-aircraft missiles. The Syrians moved the missiles into east-central Lebanon after Israel shot down two Syrian helicopters there. "We gave him all the time," Begin said. He indicated that he did not think war would result if the Israeli air force destroyed the missile batteries as it destroyed the Iraqi nuclear reactor outside Baghdad. "We don't want war with Syria," he said, "and Syria is afraid of making war against us, therefore there won't be any war."

Owner of land where boy died in well is arrested

ROME (AP) — Police today arrested the owner of the land near Frascati where 6-year-old Alfredo Rampi died in a deep, abandoned well and charged him with manslaughter, authorities said. Amedeo Pisegna was picked up by police at his home and taken to Rome's Regina Coeli (Queen of Heaven) prison to be questioned by magistrates, police said. Police sources said there could be other arrests, possibly of the contractors who built the well and an official who inspected it after construction. Pisegna owns the land jointly with his wife, Pierra, but police sources said the magistrates have no plans to bring charges against her. Alfredo, who fell into the well Wednesday, was declared dead Sunday by authorities after a television camera and microphone lowered into the well detected no signs of life. The boy's last cry, through a walkie-talkie lowered to him by rescuers, was heard early Saturday by millions. It could take a week to recover his body, firemen said today.

Our highways take a horrible toll

The Statistical Services of the Texas Department of Public Safety comes up with some rather startling figures, bringing into sharp focus the fact that American roadways are dangerous places to be.

From 1775 through 1980, a total of 1,186,654 Americans have died in all the wars involving the United States.

Of that number, 4,435 perished in the Revolutionary War, 2,260 in the War of 1812, 13,283 in the Mexican War, 529,332 in the Civil War, 2,446 in the Spanish American War, 116,563 in World War I, 407,828 in WW II, 54,246 in the Korean conflict and 56,261 in the Vietnam unpleasantness.

COMPARE THAT WITH the nation's traffic toll between 1900 and 1980. A total of 2,345,865 Americans have died in U.S. highways during that time.

The bill America has had to pay for the death of its citizens in traffic accidents staggers the imagination. Try this equation to realize the magnitude of the problem:

Say a football field (300 X 160 feet) were completely covered with one dollar bills (2½ inches X 6¼ inches), then a layer of two dollar bills, then a layer of five dollar bills, then a layer of $10 bills, then a layer of $20 bills, then a layer of $50 bills, then a layer of $100 bills, then a layer of $500 bills, then a layer of $1,000 bills. Then cover it again with three more layers of dollar bills, three more layers of $2 bills, three more layers of $5 bills, three more layers of $10 bills, three more layers of $20 bills, three more layers of $50 bills, three more layers of $100 bills, three more layers of $50 bills and three more layers of $1,000 bills. On top of that, place 12 more layers of $20 bills. The money on that football field would still not represent the economic loss suffers from traffic accidents in Texas for the year 1980.

THE $3,010,000,000 estimated loss for this one year would buy 10,000 homes at $80,000 each, 10 refrigerators at $700 each, 10,000 electric ranges at $600 each, 10,000 TV sets at $700 each, 10,000 dishwashers at $500 each, 10,000 automobiles at $10,000 each and 10,000 central air conditioning units at $2,500 each.

In addition, the money would furnish the head of each of the 10,000 households with a bank amount of $206,000.

Do you still grin when you're called "Leadfoot" by your friends? Are we in that much of an all-fired hurry to get where we're going? Slow down and enjoy life.

Can't be pushed

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The heroes in the drama of government are sometimes damned by the press and public along with the rascals. But the honorable men and women in public life deserve to be noticed.

Such a legislator is Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a feisty lawyer, a former construction worker, a card-holding member of the AFL-CIO and an erstwhile bishop in the Mormon Church.

Though an unabashed conservative in his political philosophy, his sense of personal rectitude has made him just as tough on Republicans as on Democrats when he suspects wrongdoing by government officials.

BUT APPARENTLY TWO Senate colleagues, Roger Jepsen and Charles Grassley, both Iowa Republicans, had the impression that Hatch belonged to the "go-along-to-get-along" crowd.

According to my sources, it took a stormy face-to-face confrontation in Hatch's office to instruct the two senators from Iowa that Hatch won't back off an investigation merely as a senatorial courtesy. Here's what happened:

As a power of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Hatch has been looking into the case of Jack Nard, a Pittsburgh contractor who was involved in a civil suit with Armour Co. A Judiciary Committee staff report concluded that a federal judge may have been pressured politically to rule against Nard, and that the contractor's complaint to the Justice Department was ignored.

Hatch received a staff recommendation that one of the witnesses at the Judiciary Committee hearing on the Nard complaint be investigated for possible perjury. The witness was Evan "Curly" Hultman, a former U.S. attorney from Iowa who directed the grand jury in the Nard case. Hultman is a political buddy of Jepsen and Grassley.

When they learned about the adverse staff recommendation, the two Iowa senators marched into Hatch's office to protest.

"ALL HELL BROKE loose," a source told my associates Jack Mitchell and Indy Badhwar.

"Those two thought they could shout Orrin into dropping the case," a Hatch staffer reported, adding, "Boy, were they loud!"

But Hatch refused to be moved by the angry entreaties of the two Iowans. He kept his temper, but informed Jepsen and Grassley firmly that his investigation into their pal Hultman would go forward.

Footnote: A spokesman for the lowa senators insisted they weren't trying to pressure Hatch into dropping the investigation of Hultman, but simply wanted to inform him that his staff had done some "sloppy homework." The spokesman said the Iowans believe Hultman is an honest man who is being unjustly pilloried without adequate opportunity to defend himself.

WHO'LL FIGHT DRUG PUSHERS?: One of the bitterest bureaucratic fights in Washington lately has been over the overlapping jurisdiction of agencies involved in the war against the drug smugglers. The Reagan administration so far has resisted suggestions that the trouble Drug Enforcement Administration be stripped of its duties.

As early as the transition period, Reagan intimates were being briefed on the failures of the anti-drug program. William Casey, now CIA director, was given a particularly gloomy appraisal of DEA in an eyes-only transition document.

"The Drug Enforcement Administration is generally recognized as a failure," the paper stated. "Its basic approach — to stop drugs at the source — has not worked and cannot work."

The analysts recommended instead a six-point program that would, they claimed, save the government $200 million a year — and be more effective against the narcotics traffickers. The suggestions included giving back to the Customs Service responsibility for anti-smuggling efforts employing the Internal Revenue Service to attack illicit drug profits through the tax laws and using diplomatic pressure on nations that produce drugs or are transit points in the international traffic.

Dozens of narcotics experts have reportedly been urging the administration to simply abolish the DEA and return its functions to the FBI, CIA, IRS and Customs. But high-level Justice Department officials inform me that there are no firm plans even to shake up the beleaguered drug agency.

Although DEA has had some spectacular successes in its covert operations and the seizure of millions of dollars' worth of narcotics, it has suffered recently from federal investigations, discrimination suits and poor morale.

WATCH ON WASTE: There are "cola" fanciers in Congress who are costing the taxpayers millions each year. This "cola" is not a soft drink, but COLA, an acronym for "cost-of-living allowance." To be fair to government employees stationed in such expensive locations as Alaska and Hawaii, Congress legislated cost-of-living allowances that supposedly bring their pay up to that of Washington, D.C.

Actors becoming a common sight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tourists expecting to find a touch of Hollywood at the White House may be at the wrong end of Pennsylvania Avenue. For a glimpse of entertainment figures, they should visit the Capitol.

Actors, musicians and television personalities are becoming almost as common a sight in congressional corridors as lobbyists.

Witnesses at congressional hearings in recent weeks have included Liv Ullman, Valerie Harper, Jennifer Jones, Linda Kelsey, James Earl Jones, Ossie Davis, Itzak Perlman, Leontyne Price, John Amos, Jack Klugman, Jean Stapleton, Patti LaPone, Jerome Robbins and Edward Albee.

He flung himself upon his horse and rode madly off in all directions.

— Stephen Leacock

Lefever right

Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON — Ernest Lefever rightly claimed to be "blameless of the charges and innuendoes against my integrity and my compassion." But he was also correct in asking the President to withdraw from consideration his nomination as Assistant Secretary of State for Human Rights.

For the nomination had become entangled in a vipers' nest of ideological conflict. A disentangling effort has to precede clear judgment as to the right person for the right job.

At the root of the confusion lies the distinction between Communist governments, which are said to be "totalitarian," and right-wing governments, which are said to be "authoritarian." Backers of Mr. Lefever insist the distinction is absolute.

"TOTALITARIAN" REGIMES, THEY claim, are beyond reform, and therefore deserve relentless attacks on transgressions against human rights. "Authoritarian" regimes, by contrast, are supposed to be subject to change. Hence a more sympathetic attitude can force their better behavior.

In practice, however, that neat dichotomy falls apart. A near totalitarian regime than that in China under Mao Tse-tung has rarely, if ever, existed. But sweeping change distinguishes China since the death of Mao. Poland provides another case of a "totalitarian" system yielding dramatic evolution toward more humane treatment of individual citizens.

Conversely, the picture is equally muddy. In Spain, Portugal and Greece, to be sure, "authoritarian" governments gave way to more liberal regimes. But how much has Paraguay changed recently? Or Guatemala?

The difference which counts lies between governments disposed to be friendly to the U.S. and those which tilt toward this country's prime rival, the Soviet Union. Obvious reasons tell Washington to be more lenient toward pro-American governments than toward hostile governments. These reasons are certainly not trivial. But neither are they moral, still less absolute.

Similarly with a supposed polarity in tactics. According to some, quiet diplomacy lies at one end of the spectrum and public disapproval at the other. Backers of Lefever insisted that he stood for "quiet diplomacy" and that that approach had already begun to yield dividends.

Opponents of Lefever asserted that "quiet diplomacy" was in fact an excuse for ducking the issue. Among those most impressive in making that charge was Jacobo Timerman, a newspaper editor who was exiled from Argentina after having been arrested, tortured and jailed for months. Mr. Timerman claims that quiet diplomacy as applied to Argentina was "surrender" to torture, mass murder and gross prejudice.

BUT TIMES CHANGE and circumstances alter cases. I met Timerman two years ago and was enormously impressed by his dignity and humanity. The personal attacks launched against him recently seem to be as shameful as those directed against Lefever. It has to be said, however, that at that time Timerman favored quiet diplomacy in dealing with Argentina.

My answer

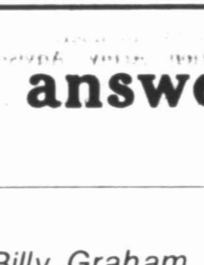

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think it is possible for a true Christian to have doubts from time to time? — R.D.

DEAR R.D.: Yes. But that does not mean it is God's will for us to have such times, nor should we be indifferent about times of doubt. The important thing is that we wrestle with those doubts and resolve them, rather than allowing them to grow and even destroy our faith.

Let me suggest several things about dealing with doubts. First, try to identify what they really are. Sometimes a person may be having doubts about the Bible, or about whether or not God answers prayer. Maybe a non-Christian friend is bringing up some problems you have never thought about very much.

But I want to point out something here. Often, I have discovered, people say they are having doubts but when I ask them to be specific they are unable to do so. Why? The reason is that their feeling of "doubt" is actually hiding or masking another problem — a problem which is basically spiritual in nature.

Many ways to administer drugs

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am supposed to be taking medication buccally. Would you please explain how this works, what the buccal pouch is, and where in the mouth the best place is for buccal administration of medicine? I find placing it under my tongue best for me. — R.C.E.

The buccal (BUCKLE) pouch is that crevice between the lower teeth next to the cheek membranes, where, for example, folks put their pinch of snuff. I guess the best way to answer your question is to review how medicines are given. There are, as you know, many routes. Most are familiar ones — by mouth with a glass of water, by vein or into muscles, applying it to the skin, or rectally.

A drug lying in the stomach does no good if it is intended to have its effects elsewhere. So the blood transports it to various parts of the body where it can affect various organs as intended. Drugs injected into muscles are absorbed by blood passing through those muscles. Drugs can also be absorbed through the membranes of the mouth, a common route. An example here is people using nitroglycerine preparations to control angina pectoris. They place the medicine under their tongues. That is called sublingual administration.

A long way around to your answer. If a drug is placed between the inner cheek and the teeth, that is buccal administration. It is absorbed a bit more slowly than if placed under the tongue. In all the various ways to administer drugs, the common goal is to get it into the blood so it can get to that part of the body where it is supposed to go as quickly as need be. The route chosen depends on convenience (swallowing is certainly easy), how much drug is needed, how quickly it must be transported and how efficiently or inefficiently it is absorbed from the stomach, mouth or wherever.

You don't say what drug you were told to take buccally, so I cannot comment specifically on whether you should continue using yours sublingually or not. You will have to check with your doctor for specific guidance.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I try to walk every day, about a mile, but every time I do, the muscles between my kneecaps up to my groin, in front of the leg, hurt like a toothache and stays sore for hours. What causes this? Is there something I am doing wrong? I am 59 years old. — G.W.

Something is not right, but it probably is not something you are doing incorrectly. It may be that the thigh muscles are not getting enough blood supply to support their activity. More often than not, pain from this is felt further down, in the calves, but it might be felt only in the thighs. Too, your pain can result from a nerve problem. That kind of pain is usually felt in one leg only, but not always.

Even conditions remote from the leg itself can be the source of such pain. I am thinking of a protruding backbone disc at the moment. The protruding disc can press on nerve roots as they emerge from the spinal cord, and that can cause pain in remote places in the leg (like sciatica). This does not exhaust possibilities.

I would put as a first guess impaired circulation. Don't overdo walking until you get this matter settled. If there is a portion of an artery in the legs narrowed, that section of the artery may have to be removed. Then normal blood supply can be re-established to the muscles that are the source of pain. I am only speculating. I do not know if your problem really is due to poor circulation. I mention it because it is a very common cause in a person your age, and your description certainly fits this:

Dear Dr. Donohue: Could you give me some information about cellulitis? I was hospitalized with it. They didn't seem to know the cause. I know I had extremely high fever. Since I've been home I have been on antibiotics. I should tell you that I am a partial paraplegic. The cellulitis started in my bad leg. — N.B.

Cellulitis is a spreading infection of the skin. The cause is most often either from the strep or staph germ. Even a tiny unnoticed prick in the skin can let the germ get into the skin cells, where it grows and spreads. Although cellulitis can happen to anyone, a person without any feeling in a leg, for instance, is more likely to get it.

Around the rim Exacting challenge

Andrea Cohen

I had to go buy a new purse last week and the whole experience turned into a nightmare. Even the stores with chintzy selections seem to have more than I can bargain for.

Since they come in all colors, sizes, and shapes I have my rules on what to buy and what not to buy.

COMPARTMENTS ARE good, especially for people like me who are forever losing keys. The only problem is if there are too many compartments, I can never remember which one I put the keys in in the first place.

I don't like zippers because it takes too long to get something out with them. That comes from lessons learned in newspaper photography when the lenses have to come out of the camera bag fast and there is no time to unzip anything. I don't like too many buttons or snaps for the same reason. Friends are forever zipping up my purse when they see it open. They don't understand I just don't keep anything valuable in it.

I don't like short straps on a purse. I like shoulder bags for everyday use. That also comes from lessons learned from working on a newspaper. I only have two hands and it's best to keep them free.

And even though I love them, I rarely buy large purses that could hold a small dog for two reasons. The first is that I can never find anything in them. The second reason is the most practical. If you walk into a store with it, they automatically start watching you to see if you're going to leave with their valuables.

BUYING A PURSE causes a problem when you're not buying it in black or white. If you buy a different color, chances are nine out of 10 that you'll never be able to find a pair of shoes to match, or vice versa. It usually ends up at the top of the closet to collect dust.

When I do find a purse, I'm always disappointed when I get it home. I always look in the compartments to see if there's a penny for good luck in it and there never is. I've never found a penny yet. I don't know why I keep looking.

Maybe that's why I have such bad luck finding the next purse.

Dear Abby

Wedding Ushers In The Green-Eyed Monster

DEAR ABBY: Johnny and I have gone together for a year and four months and we are very much in love. I'm 20 and Johnny is 21. My problem is that Johnny's brother is getting married next month, and Johnny is in the wedding party and I'm not. I am really upset to think that Johnny is going to escort another girl to the wedding, walk her down the aisle, and be her date for the whole time. (He's an usher.) I went to Johnny's brother and asked him to tell me every detail about what Johnny has to do with the bride and groom. He was assigned to — how long he has to be with her, etc. — and I was told not to worry. I'm invited to the wedding, but I don't even feel like going if I can't be with Johnny. My mother says I'm being foolish for making such a big deal out of it — that maybe Johnny's being in the wedding will make him want to get married.

JEALOUS HEART

Abby, I'm afraid I will bust out crying when I see Johnny with that other girl. Is it evil to be jealous? I can't help how I feel.

DEAR JEALOUS: Jealousy is a human emotion and we can't help how we feel, but we can help how we handle our feelings. Look at it this way: Johnny agreed to be an usher at his brother's wedding. The duty of an usher is to escort a bride-maid. Think of Johnny as an actor who is playing a role in a musical production. It's possible that the bride-maid assigned to Johnny has a boyfriend who is as jealous as you are. If so, perhaps you two can sit together and console each other.

DEAR ABBY: I work in a small three-woman office and one of the women talks constantly. Every morning she gives us a play-by-play account of everything she, her husband, her son, her neighbors, etc., have done since the accounting given the day before.

According to her, her son is the best-looking, smartest, best-behaved, most accomplished kid in the world. Frankly, I could not care less. I also have children who are pretty special, but I don't talk about them all the time. This is a small town and jobs are hard to come by, so I can't quit. Neither can I tell her to knock off the constant bragging without causing hard feelings. Please print this. Maybe she'll see it, and let up a little.

FED UP

DEAR FED UP: All right, here's your letter. And if she doesn't let up, send me her initials.

DEAR ABBY: I am 29 and a divorcee. I have a good figure and spend a lot of time at the beach in the summer. Last year I wore a bikini for the first time and got lots of compliments, but it also gave me a complex because several people asked me what was wrong with my navel.

I never paid much attention to navels before — mine or anybody else's, but now I am very self-conscious about mine. You see, it's not round like other people's, it's more square. And it doesn't go in like a dimple — it pops out! I keep a dime stuck in it to make it look "round" and to keep it from popping out.

Is there anything I can do about getting it fixed at my age? I'd like to have a navel I wouldn't have to be ashamed of.

DEAR FUNNY: Take the dime out of your navel, and call a plastic surgeon. He will round out a solution in no time.

CONFIDENTIAL TO NATHAN L. MALLISON: Thank you for "The Public Record" page — a publication that confused me with my twin sister. May I please know the name and address of this publication in order to set the record straight? And your address as well?

Arthritis cure not in climate says study

Don't count on curing arthritis by moving to a different climate. According to the current Family Circle magazine's "Here's News in Medicine" column, a recent medical study indicates that while factors such as season and climate may affect the comfort and activity of some rheumatoid arthritis patients, they do not affect the disease itself.

Are you Ivy League material?

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.
Copley News Service

Teens Do you dream about attending a prestigious Ivy League school? Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Brown, Cornell, Columbia, Dartmouth and the University of Pennsylvania are eight schools whose prestige is unmistakable. Along with them, are six top women's schools — Smith, Barnard, Bryn Mawr, Mount Holyoke, Vassar (now co-ed) and Wellesley — known as the Seven Sisters when the Ivies were for men only (The seventh, Radcliffe, merged with Harvard).

Clearly, going Ivy has advantages, says writer Nancy Josephson in Seventeen magazine. The schools are among the oldest, best-established academic institutions in the country. But with thousands of other good colleges to choose from, does the Ivy League really offer the best education? That, college advisers say, depends on your academic ability, emotional maturity, and what you want to get out of college.

First, you should ask yourself whether you're Ivy League material. Most Ivy admissions boards won't consider you unless you have at least a B average, mid-500 scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), and extracurricular activities.

Also, if you have a definite professional goal in mind, you might be better off at a school that is well-known in your chosen field. A superb violinist, who really wants to zero in on music, for example, may be disappointed with the curriculum at an Ivy League school, where the focus is on getting a liberal arts education.

To succeed at an Ivy League school, you also must be able to handle intense competition. A shy young woman may prefer a smaller private school, where she'll get more individual attention. Special equipment — such as computer equipment and video-display terminals — are more likely to be available at a large state school than at a private one — Ivy or not. That's something to think about if you plan to major in one of these areas.

Going to an Ivy League school is prestigious. But in the end, you'll have to stand on your own talent and intelligence, no matter what your credentials. If you're a serious student, you'll want to think carefully about your academic and social needs — as well as your career goals — to decide on the educational program that will be the best for you.

Personally speaking, the small liberal arts colleges rate highest, with Knox College in Galesburg, Ill., at the top. My alma mater provided the spark. My faithful teen readers lit the fire!

Rescuers killed trying to save trapped youth

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — A young boy had been trapped in a 12-foot-deep tank to try to rescue him, but no one was willing to risk his life. The boy, who had slipped into the 14-inch tank, was eventually rescued after a 32-hour work week for its members.

Ken Culton, a medic with the emergency crew at St. Joseph's Hospital, recalled the boy's father, John, is a doctor. Kevin Weatherlow, 22, was the second medic. Weatherlow and Ditlow went to high school together, they co-captained the wrestling team, hunted and fished together.

Air traffic controllers near threatened strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air traffic controllers seeking $10,000-a-year pay raises are a week away from a threatened strike that could paralyze the nation's airline service, and no new contract talks are scheduled.

Contract talks between the Federal Aviation Administration and the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization broke down here April 28 in a dispute over wages and working hours and have not resumed since.

In a telephone interview late last week, union president Robert Poli repeated his threat to call the nation's 15,000 controllers off the job beginning with the day shift June 22 if no contract settlement has been reached.

But Poli also said he stands ready to return to the bargaining table. "I have indicated I am willing to sit down," he said, "but the clock is running out." He accused the FAA of sending out "confusing signals."

FAA spokesman Dennis Feldman said the agency "remains willing to negotiate within the framework of the law." He said he was referring to PATCO's demands for $10,000-a-year pay raises and a 32-hour work week for its members, "which we don't have the statutory power to give them."

D.J. Yount, spokeswoman for the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said, "There are no meetings scheduled. We're exploring all the possibilities of getting the parties back to the table for talks."

Strikes by federal employees are illegal and the controllers have not taken a formal strike vote. But Poli told delegates to the union's convention in New Orleans last month that he felt the union members were angry enough to walk out anyway.

"We have briefed our people," he said last week. "They are very frustrated...and we are willing to face that challenge."

Feldman said the FAA has prepared a strike contingency plan which could maintain about one-fourth of the existing airline service through the use of supervisory personnel and members of PATCO who choose not to strike.

Poli countered that the union will "warn Americans that it is unsafe to fly" if supervisory personnel are brought in to handle traffic control.

The Air Transport Association of America, representing the nation's commercial air carriers, obtained an injunction from a U.S. District Court in New York a year and a half ago to end a strike then by PATCO.

Reagan sends calming letter to mad mayors

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — President Reagan told the nation's mayors today he sympathizes with their problems but is determined to press ahead with the block grants that city officials say would throw them on the mercy of unfriendly state governments.

Reagan, who had been facing the first head-on confrontation of his administration in the first two days of the U.S. Conference of Mayors' annual convention, sent a letter expressing his best wishes but saying he was standing firm in the face of their criticism.

"I am committed to decentralizing the power and authority in Washington and returning it to local and state governments where it belongs," Reagan said. "Enactment of our block grant proposals is one of the first steps that must be taken to reestablish a proper relationship among federal, state, and local governments."

The mayors, particularly the Democrats, have been complaining about the proposal to consolidate urban aid programs into block grants since the start of their meeting Saturday. They contend federal money that now flows directly to the cities would be routed through state governments with no guarantee that it would be passed on or spent on problems they think most important.

Even Republicans, who have generally defended Reagan, have been asking for safeguards that would guarantee them some voice in spending the money under the new program.

"Our overall goal is the same — we all want what is best for our cities," said Reagan in his letter. "I welcome your suggestions and participation and look forward to a continuing dialogue in the meaningful partnership with you."

LET'S TALK ABOUT THIS — Jockeys Sandy Hawley, right, aboard Eleven Stitches, and Darrel McHargue, aboard Caterman, glance in each other's direction Sunday after the finish of the $500,000 Hollywood Gold

Howerton Midland duo posts 136 covets new image

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. (AP) — Dirt biker Kent Howerton flies his motorcycle over double jumps, spins it around corners that send roostertails of dirt behind it and up hills that would make magnificent ski jumps — coming down.

But the two-time national motocross champ says one of the most difficult things of his 10-year professional motorcycle career is battling the "bad-boy" image of the sport.

Sitting in his trailer after winning his second national motocross 250 cc title Sunday, Howerton points to the cover of a slick, cycling magazine. It displays a scantily attired woman astride a gaudily painted bike with a legend underneath that reads: "Sun, Sex and Sand."

"That's the sort of thing you have to fight against," says the soft-spoken 26-year-old Texan. "You get magazines, TV sensationalizing that aspect... they like the whole Hells Angels thing, the leather jackets, the chains. I don't."

Most of the crowd at the track — and Sunday's race at the CDR Tech Track here attracted tens of thousands of spectators — tend to be young, in blue jeans and t-shirts. Still there are the self-styled tough guys in leather and chains, the beer fests freely and the announcer points out "the good-looking girls" who walk by.

The air is dusty and reeks of high-octane gas, the bikes roar off from the starting line like 747 jets and there is a lot of jostling for position on the course — some of it regarded as "dirty biking."

It's a long way from the grass courts of Wimbledon.

But Howerton and his wife, Jill, both from San Antonio, Texas, belie that image, signing autographs for the kids, chatting amiably with reporters. It's simply taken a while for the sport to come into its own, they say, with vast numbers of Americans still unaware of what motocross actually is.

Motocross, the art of taking a pared-down motorcycle at speeds up to 70 mph over a tortuous, joint dirt course, was imported from Europe during the 60s. It has blossomed in the last 12 years from a sport that didn't have any rules to an organized affair that offers more than $1 million in prize money and awards.

Howerton says a handful of top riders like himself make a few hundred thousand dollars each year, most of it from promotion for his Suzuki-sponsored team.

Sunday's 250 cc race, which was won by Howerton's rival Bob Hannah, of Carson City, Nev., offered a $1000 purse. Hannah, a three-time national champion, left the track with 47 points — two more than Howerton — he couldn't catch up to Howerton's season total of 389 points. Hannah finished second for the 250 cc season with 345 points, followed by rookie Donnie Hansen with 289 season points.

Also on Sunday here, was the fourth race of the 500 cc motocross series, captured by favorite Broc Glover, from El Cajon, Calif.

Swart, Whiteside win

The Midland tandem of Ernie Swart and Steve Whiteside shot a six-under par 136 to win the Scratch Division of the annual Big Spring Country Club Partnership Golf Tournament Sunday.

The two duplicated their first day score by fashioning a 68 Sunday.

Swart and Whiteside finished one stroke ahead of twosomes composed of Eldon Hopkins, Stanton, and Jody Scrivner, Fort Worth, and a Big Spring duo, Bruce Carroll and Gary Howell.

Whiteside waited a year to claim a championship that eluded him in a playoff in 1980. At that time, he teamed with another Midland player, Randy Geiselman. Champions last year were Leland Chiles and Vince Vines, Odessa.

The victory was worth $700 in merchandise awards for Swart and Whiteside. In all, $4,000 in awards were distributed among 14 teams, seven in each of two divisions.

The Big Spring team of Donnie Knight and Randy Crockett captured first place in the Handicap Division with an aggregate low-ball score of 127. That beat the score of Kirby Horton and Nelson Dohaho, both of Greenville, by a single shot.

A total of 79 teams took part in the two days of competition.

Travis Horton scored a hole-in-one on the 160-yard seventh hole, at which time he was using a wedge.

Playing with Hunter at the time were D.O. Gray, John Reed and Bill Harris. Finishing "in the money" were:

SCRATCH DIVISION
L. Ernie Swart and Steve Whiteside, 136; tied for second were teams consisting of Eldon Hopkins and Jody Scrivner, Bruce Carroll and Gary Howell, each with 137; 4. Don Osborne and Mike Weaver, 138; 5. Pat Weaver and Ronnie Broadrick, Grant Spencer and Robert Upham, Jackie Thomas and Dan Wilkins, each with 139.

HANDICAP DIVISION
1. Donnie Knight and Randy Crockett, 126; 2. Kirby Horton and Nelson Dohaho, 127; 3. Buck Drake and Ron Medley, 129; 4. Tie between Gene Hatcher and Bob Sevin, H. T. Donna Caponi wins by single stroke

MASON, Ohio (AP) — The best remedy possible, a fourth major championship and a $22,500 payday, eased the pain of Donna Caponi's old flaring rib injury.

"I swung in the rough at 17 and hurt my rib cage. It was killing me coming down 18. Fortunately, I didn't have any more holes after that," said the 36-year old veteran, who first suffered the injury in 1975.

Caponi made sure there would be no more holes in dramatic fashion. She sank a 15-foot birdie putt on the last green Sunday for her second Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship.

The putt gave her a one-shot victory and broke up a tense finish with her playing partners, Jeryln Britz and Pat Meyers. It gave Caponi a 1-over-par 73 for a 72-hole total of 280, 10-under for the Jack Nicklaus Sports Center's Grizzly course.

Britz missed her birdie attempt from 12-feet, muffing a playoff opportunity with Caponi. Instead, she matched par of 72 and Meyers' total of 281.

Meyers had eliminated herself from contention when she missed the green with her approach shot on the 470-yard par 5 closing hole. She scrambled for a par, dropping a four-foot putt.

Britz, the runnerup to Caponi in this major two years ago, and Meyers each earned checks of $12,600.

Debbie Massey closed with a 70 for fourth place at 283. JoAnn Carner, Nancy Lopez-Melton and Beth Daniel shared fifth at 284. Carner and Lopez-Melton shot 70s and Daniel 71.

Defending champion Sally Little, whose 68 was the best final round in the muggy 95-degree heat, was alone at 285. Sandra Post missed her chance at a $100,000 bonus for winning a second straight title. She finished with 73 — 290 — and settled for $1,773 instead.

Caponi, Britz and Meyer came to the 18th tee tied for the lead at 7-under, setting up the dramatic finish.

"It was like a playoff, like match play, the last few holes," said Caponi. "It was an unbelievable feeling."

Perhaps her background gave Caponi the edge over her opponents. She won 21 tournaments and more than $900,000 in 17 professional seasons. Britz and Meyers own a combined three-tournament victories in their 14 seasons.

SPOTS SCORECARD

NATIONAL LITTLE LEAGUE — The Devils defeated the Yankees, 12-6, in National Little League play Saturday night. Bobby Madigan was the winning pitcher while John Olson suffered the loss. Mike McElreath drove out a triple and a single for the winners. Lance Soles had a double and a single while other Devils who hit safely were Mike Averette, Mike Garrett, Todd Mackimmey and Randy Osom. Guade Weaver smashed a double and two singles for the Yankees. Joe Bingham contributed a two-base blow in the losing cause while Rocky Sharpnack came in for a single.

Zisk is all

for walkout

SEATTLE (AP) — Richie Zisk, veteran designated hitter of the Seattle Mariners, says he owes everything he has in his $290,000 contract to the Major League Players Association.

Zisk, 32, strongly endorsed the big league players' strike that began Friday.

"It would be hypocritical of me at this point to say, 'The hell with the association,'" Zisk said.

"I have as much to lose as anybody. I'm locked into a contract and when it runs out, realistically, I am not going to be playing ball anymore."

He referred to the 10-year contract worth an estimated $3 million he signed with the Texas Rangers three years ago. He will make $290,000 again next season and $250,000 for the last five years of the pact.

Zisk credited Marvin Miller with the economic progress of today's players under the free agent re-entry draft system.

"Everything Marvin told us was the thing to do has definitely worked out in our favor," he said.

Barlow, Simmons signed to rookie contracts

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers have signed Ricky Barlow and Nelson Simmons, their two top choices in the June free agent amateur draft, the American League baseball club has announced.

Barlow, 18, a right-handed pitcher out of Texas' Woodville High and Simmons, 17, a 6-foot 190-pound switch-hitting outfielder from Madison High in San Diego, are among 14 players already signed by the Tigers from last week's draft, said by Bill LaJoie, vice president of baseball. The Tigers selected 32 players in the regular phase. The 6-foot-1, 170-pound Barlow posted a 14-1 record in his last season. In 115 innings, he allowed 34 hits and 6 earned runs for a 0.47 earned run average. He struck out 217 and walked 74.

Barlow, Simmons and other players signed by the team will report to its Bristol farm club Wednesday for a second spring training. Bristol is Detroit's affiliate in the Appalachian League.

There's no one else to fight

Holmes must cool heels

DETROIT (AP) — Having destroyed challenger Leon Spinks quickly and efficiently to defend his World Boxing Council heavyweight championship, Larry Holmes now must cool his heels for a while.

There simply is no one else around for the 31-year-old champ to fight right now.

Two of the best young heavyweights available also scored impressive victories on the undercard of the Holmes-Spinks fight Friday night. Greg Page disposed of veteran Alfredo Evangelista in 40 seconds of the second round and Michael Dokes knocked out John L. Gardner, the British and European champion, at 1:54 of the fourth.

But Holmes has eliminated Dokes as a potential opponent because the youngster is managed by the son of Don King, who promotes the champion's fights. That kind of relationship would create too many suspicions for a sport which hardly needs them.

And Page, with just 16 professional fights under his belt, needs more experience. Both men, it seems, will have to wait until Holmes is through with the boxing business.

That leaves Gerry Cooney, whose devastating first round knockout of Ken Norton left him as the No. 1 challenger. King offered Cooney $5 million for a match with Holmes but the youngster reportedly is already committed to an October date with World Boxing Association champion Mike Weaver, though the WBA has not given its sanction to that bout.

Holmes knocked out Weaver once but a title unification bout is always a possibility. Still, King's keen promotional mind knows that there would be more money to be made from a Holmes-Cooney fight, especially with the public animosity the two men have displayed for each other.

"Let him come in here today and I'll punch him in the mouth for free," Holmes said moments after finishing off Spinks at 2:34 of the third round Friday night. "He's a white hope, that's all he is. He's hasn't fought anybody. If he was black, he'd be nowhere."

It sounded like the traditional fight hype but Holmes' dislike for Cooney seems genuine. That could be a serious problem for the youngster from New York's Long Island, because against Spinks, Holmes looked absolutely awesome.

Spinks came out stalking, trying to turn the bout into an alley fight. Holmes kept sticking the challenger with accurate lefts and rights, scoring repeatedly. In the second round, the two men slugged it out toe-to-toe on the ropes, each throwing roundhouse shots. In the third, Holmes took control, banging away on Spinks and sending him tumbling to the canvas for a nine-count before finishing the job.

Then, in a postfight interview, announcer Howard Cosell brought over Cooney, who was at ringside. Holmes angrily waved the young heavyweight away, accidentally slamming the microphone into the television camera and causing superficial damage.

Holmes craves public acceptance and the Spinks' knockout, his 28th in 38 professional victories, may have finally earned it for him.

Wins Westchester

Floyd eyes open trophy

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Ray Floyd let the hint of a smile play across his face as he considered the U.S. Open.

"Well," Floyd said in his typically low-key fashion, "I've won two tournaments back to back already. I'm just hoping this may be my year for back-to-backs."

The earlier consecutive victories were in Doral and the Tournament Players Championship in Florida.

The veteran Floyd scored his third triumph of the season Sunday with a two-shot edge in the $400,000 Manufacturers Hanover Westchester Classic, the last warmup for the 81st U.S. Open, to be played this week at the Merion Golf Club in Ardmore, Pa.

And Floyd is among the prime favorites for the American national championship.

"I'm not predicting I'll win it," he said after his closing round of 69 had produced a 275 total, nine shots under par on the Westchester Country Club course, "but I'm very pleased to be playing well. I'm very optimistic about the Open."

And well he should be. His credentials now rival those of anyone on the tour.

He joined Tom Watson and Bruce Lietzke as the only three-time winners this season. The $72,000 he collected pushed his season's earnings to a career-record $323,094, second only to Watson.

His level of consistency is unsurpassed in golf this year.

He has finished lower than 12th only once since January. He now has been 10th or better in 11 of 16 starts this year.

Talks due to resume Tuesday

Baseball fans are having to take cure

Not only was there no major league baseball over the weekend, there were no talks aimed at ending the inactivity caused by a players' strike.

Federal mediator Kenneth Moffett said it appeared that Tuesday morning seemed the best time to get the negotiators back to the bargaining table to seek a settlement of the free agent compensation issue that triggered the walkout.

"I have a conflict Monday afternoon, but I would be available Monday night," Moffett said. He added, however, he had not been able to contact Ray Grebey, director of the club owners' Player Relations Committee to set up a session for tonight.

"It looks like Tuesday morning," said Moffett.

Grebey, after spending the afternoon with family members at a movie was back home Sunday evening awaiting a call from Moffett. "We're available anytime Ken wants to call us," he said.

Don Fehr, counsel to the players association, said his group was available to resume talks tonight.

Whenever the talks resume, Marvin Miller, executive director of the union, again will not take part.

Commenting on criticism of his absence by one club owner and one other club official, Miller insists: "The importance of my being there is greatly exaggerated."

Miller, who bowed out of the talks last Friday as negotiators went through one last fruitless session before the 650 players went on strike, reaffirmed his position Sunday.

Miller, bristling at claims by some club owners that he was a roadblock to a settlement, said he wanted the owners' negotiators to see that how strongly the players felt about the compensation issue. Miller Sunday also responded to strong suggestions by owner George Steinbrenner of the New York Yankees and vice president Arthur "Red" Patterson of the California Angels that he attend negotiations. Both Steinbrenner and Patterson made the observations in television interviews Saturday.

But Miller turned those observations around, himself chastising the owners for their absenteeism from the talks.

"Mr. Steinbrenner, I have great respect for his ability," said Miller. "I feel he should be there. Here are these people who have never attended a single negotiating session — not one owner has ever attended a negotiating session."

However, one owner — Edward Bennett Williams of the Baltimore Orioles — said he would be in New York tonight and Tuesday to "see what's going on" in the bargaining talks.

"I want to talk to (Commissioner Bowie) Kuhn and (American League President Lee) MacPhail and find out what's happening," Williams said Sunday.

Williams declined to say publicly that he hoped to attend the next bargaining session, although the noted Washington lawyer has said he believes he could help settle the dispute if given the chance. So far, however, Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the clubs' owners, has kept Williams away from bargaining talks.

Earlier in the day, Williams suggested that President Reagan could help end the walkout by asking that the free-agent compensation issue be sent to an impartial arbitrator.

"I don't think I have the right to personally ask the President for such action or try to initiate the process myself," Williams said in the Baltimore News-

American. "But maybe the only way we are going to get this settled... is to have the issue go to binding arbitration."

Miller, the player union's executive director since 1966, removed himself from the picture because he said he wanted the players to make their own decisions in the event of a strike.

"I have been in touch with the mediator (Federal Mediator Kenneth Moffett)," said Miller, "and advised him to talk to the players."

The owners are bolstered by strike insurance totaling $50 million and a mutual-aid package totaling an estimated $11 million, but this only begins paying dividends after 152 games are missed. Then, each owner will receive $100,000 for each unplayed game. At that rate, the insurance could last until early August.

Club owners began buying the strike insurance last fall and winter as a panel of players and general managers looked for a compromise in the free-agent compensation dispute.

Baseball's first lost weekend proved costly for both players and owners alike.

Calvin Griffith, the Minnesota Twins' president, estimated losses in gross revenues of $600,000 from the three-game series with the New York Yankees in Bloomington, Minn., including ticket sales and concessions. The Philadelphia Phillies placed the loss from the canceled weekend home series with the Atlanta Braves at $750,000 in gate receipts.

The Detroit Tigers' weekend series against the Kansas City Royals had drawn "the biggest advance sale of the season," said General Manager Jim Campbell. The Tigers had been expecting 90,000-95,000 fans for the three games, so the cancellation meant a loss of some $450,000-$475,000.

Fans and players alike missed the game as baseball went through its dark weekend.

Typical of the reaction to the strike was Pat Lindia, a salesman and baseball fan from Fairfield, Va., who was forced to watch a baseball rebroadcast on television rather than the real thing.

"I find this whole thing really upsetting," said Lindia. "Here I am, sitting around with a few beers, ready to relax, and all there is to watch is a rerun of the 1975 World Series."

Yogi Berra, the New York Yankee coach, seemed to reflect those in baseball uniform with his remark that, "It feels funny being here now at home."

Berra has spent the past 35 years in the big leagues as a player, manager or coach. "I feel like I should be wearing a uniform somewhere," he said. "Sometimes I think I always have one on. It's the first weekend I've had off during the summertime in I don't know how many years... a long time."

Ernie Harwell, the veteran broadcaster who does the Tigers' games, spent the weekend working around his new house in the Detroit suburbs, "fixing up the place, watering the garden, things like that."

His reference to the "players" included Bob Boone of the Philadelphia Phillies and Steve Rogers of the Montreal Expos, representing the National League, and Doug DiCinces and Mark Belanger of the Baltimore Orioles, representing the American League.

They will meet either today or tomorrow with the owners' bargaining unit, headed by Ray Grebey, head of the Players Relations Committee, in an attempt to resolve the first mid-season strike in major league baseball history.

As of late Sunday night, no definite time was set to resume the negotiations. Donald Fehr, chief counsel to the Players Association, said he was waiting to hear from Moffett.

"It's fair to say we're working on it," he said Sunday. "We're hopeful of getting the two sides together tomorrow. (But) the federal mediator has not been able to make arrangement with both sides. We are still prepared to meet, but it probably wouldn't occur until sometime in the afternoon and given this late juncture, probably tomorrow night."

The players struck last Friday after last-ditch negotiations failed to resolve the issue of free agent compensation.

Basically at issue is the compensation awarded a team that loses a player who turns free agent. Owners want a so-called "quality" player in return for such a loss, and there is some discrepancy between the owners and players over the definition of such a player.

This controversial issue has been in a logjam for more than a year now.

The owners and players began looking for a compromise in the free-agent compensation dispute when they set up a panel in May 1980, when the two sides agreed to all other issues in a new Basic Agreement. When no compromise was reached, the agreement gave the owners the right to unilaterally implement their plan providing a major league player rather than just an amateur draft choice as compensation for losing a free agent.

The players in turn had the right to strike in response to the owners' plan anytime before June 1 of this year. They set a strike deadline of May 29, but a last-minute deal postponed any action while the National Labor Relations Board asked a judge to order the owners to rescind their compensation plan on the ground they had bargained in bad faith. U.S. District Judge Henry Werker last Wednesday denied the request, and the players went on strike two days later.

William Lubbers, the NLRB's general counsel in Washington, was expected to announce this week whether Werker's decision will be appealed. Principals in the strike declined to discuss the possible effects of an appeal, and Lubbers was unavailable for comment Sunday.

Meanwhile, the business end of baseball raised its economic head.

TAKES TROPHY — John McEnroe displays his trophy, after winning the Stella Artois Grand Court tennis tournament, for the third straight year at London's Queen Club Sunday. McEnroe, defeated Brian Gottfried 7-6, 7-5, to win the tournament and a prize of 20,000 dollars.

Famed club planning reunion

The Blue Bonnet Sunbeamer Softball Team (1948-49) will hold its reunion Saturday, June 27, at the Grand Motel, 21st at Avenue Q, Lubbock, at 1:00 p.m.

This team was formed from two softball teams, Blue Bonnet and Sunbeam Laundry teams of 1945-46-47. As a result of this combination of players, the Blue Bonnet Sunbeamers of 1948-49, became the best softball team to ever play in West Texas. Among their accomplishments in 1948 were:

(1) Won the Texas Softball League. This league played only on weekends and among the membership were Abilene, Stamford, Crane, Odessa, Monahans, McCamey, Big Spring, San Angelo and Lubbock. This league played a 32 game schedule and the Sunbeamers finished in first place, 10 full games ahead of the second place team.

(2) Won the South Plains League easily. This league played on Tuesday and Thursday nights.

(3) Went to International Softball League World Tournament in Oklahoma City and finished third.

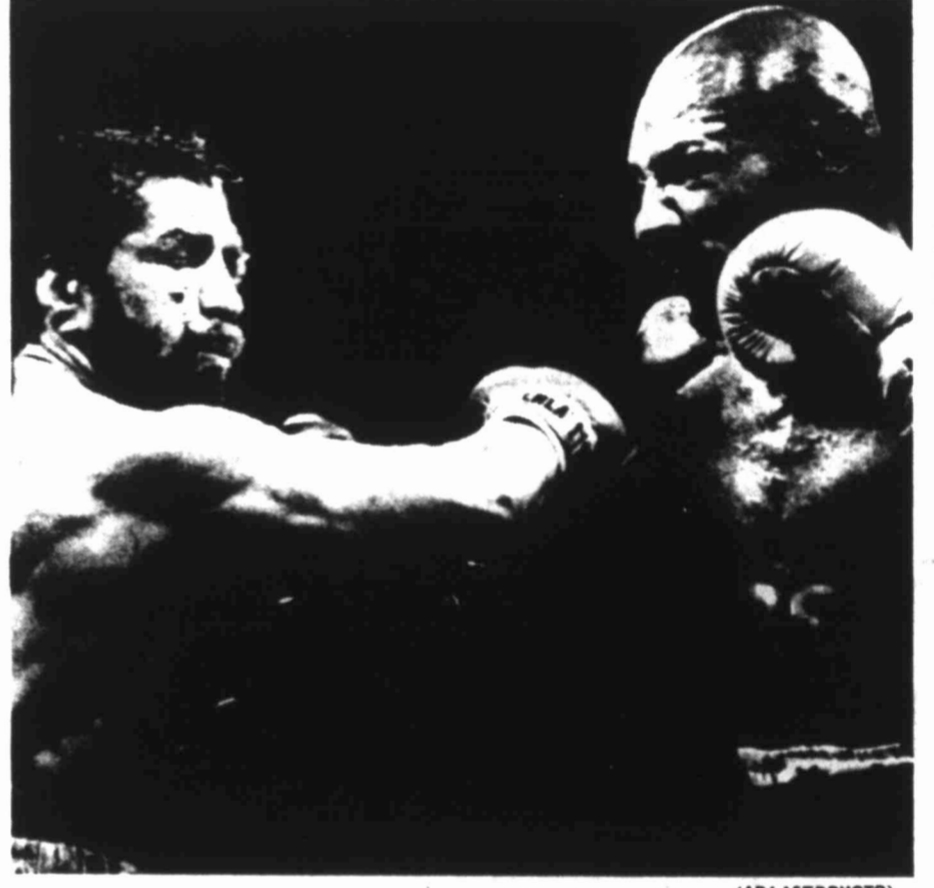

The Blue Bonnet Sunbeamers, managed by the fiery Blackie Hilliard, had an excellent array of young and talented athletes. Such outstanding softball pitchers, as Jackie Neel, G.W. Warden, Stringbean Pope and Kenny Scott, performed for the 1948-49 teams.

Jackie Neel was one of the great softball pitchers and one year while living in Harlingen, pitching for a team there, he hooked up in a duel with Gene Faulk of Lake Jackson and they went 33 innings before Lake Jackson finally won the game 1-0. This game appeared in Believe It Or Not.

Jackie Neel had the best pitching record in the Texas Softball League of 1948. He won 14 games while losing only 2. He had 3 no-hitters, 8 shutouts, struck 239 batters in sixteen games for an average of 15 strikeouts per game.

G.W. Warden had the second best record. He won 13 games and lost 3. He had 5 shutouts and one no-hitter to his credit. Warden played second base when not pitching and posted a batting average of .323, second only to his teammate, Ralph Earhart, who won the batting championship. Many observers believe Warden to be the best softball player ever developed in Lubbock.

Texas softball of 1948 was very competitive to the delight of the ardent fans. Many unusual and exciting events took place in the league that year.

Fight feud gets ugly

DETROIT (AP) — They are two mighty heavyweights on a collision course, and the resultant wreckage could be devastating.

It's been a long time — certainly not since the slambang three-match series of Muhammad Ali and Smokin' Joe Frazier — that boxing could contemplate such an interesting matchup as that between Larry Holmes and Gerry Cooney.

Too bad it has to get ugly. It already is ugly and uglier it'll get as the racial issue festers and grows until the two meet in bloody combat.

Holmes, normally a nice guy, has seen fit to bring the sensitive social problem to the fore while the country as a whole is seeking to cool it.

Nobody knows why Holmes dislikes Cooney so much. Yet the undefeated WBC champion never makes reference to his logical next challenger without bringing up the color of Cooney's skin.

"I just don't like the guy," Holmes has said repeatedly. "I feel that people are pushing him just because he is white."

The animosity between the two — and every indication is that it is genuine although everybody knows fight people often fabricate such rivalries to hype a gate — resurfaced last Friday night when Holmes battered Leon Spinks in less than three rounds in Detroit's Joe Louis Arena.

The tone of it was unsettling.

In his postfight exuberance, Holmes went to great lengths to cast aspersions on the good-looking New Yorker, his next logical challenger, while emphasizing racial differences.

He made snide references to Long Island's handsome and popular "White Hope." When he stuck in the verbal knife, he twisted the blade.

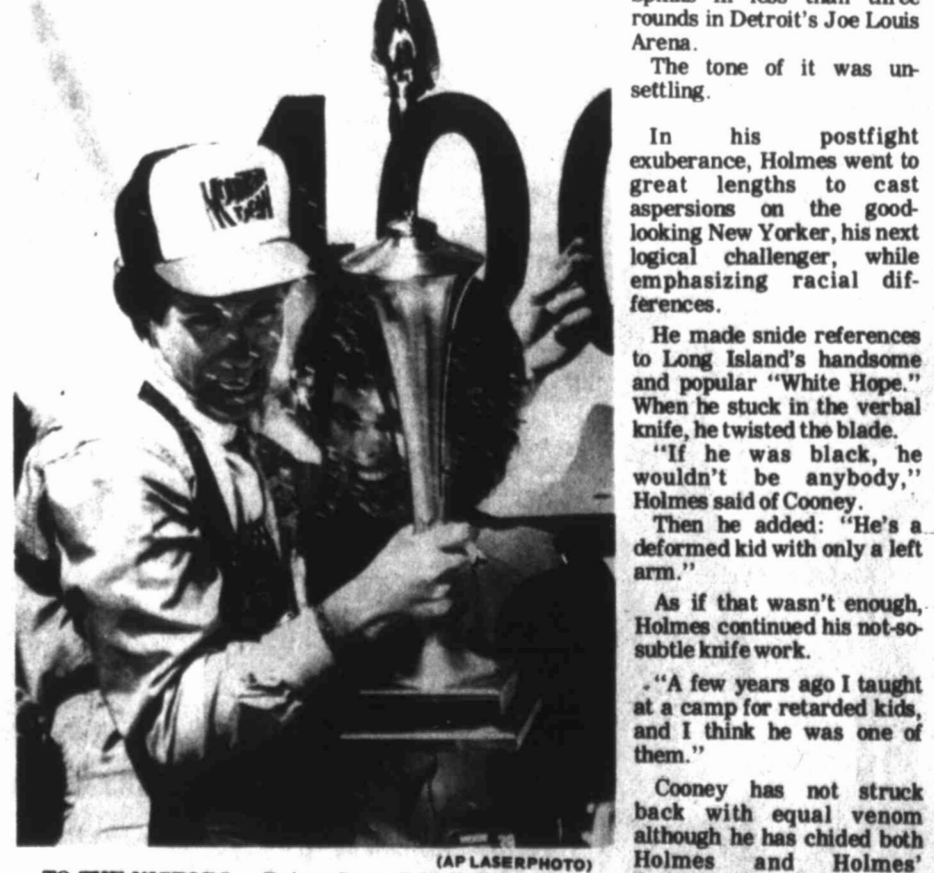

"If he was black, he wouldn't be anybody," Holmes said of Cooney.

Then he added: "He's a deformed kid with only a left arm."

As if that wasn't enough, Holmes continued his not-so-subtle knife work.

"A few years ago I taught at a camp for retarded kids, and I think he was one of them."

Cooney has not struck back with equal venom although he has chided both Holmes and Holmes' Svengali, promoter Don King, for continuing to insinuate that Cooney is purposely ducking the WBC champion.

TO THE VICTORS — Driver Darrell Waltrip reacts to champagne celebration Sunday after winning the Hodgdon NASCAR 400 in Riverside, Calif. Sharing in Waltrip's celebration is Mrs. Sharon Hodgdon, sponsor of the race.

Drag races are slated June 25-28

The AHRA Nationals will be conducted at Alamo Dragway, San Antonio, Texas June 25, 26, 27, and 28. This, the most prestigious drag race in the Grand American Series of Professional Drag Racing, will field the largest field of drag racing cars ever to race in the South.

Dee, Joe and John Martinez, owners of Alamo Dragway, have made many new improvements to the track. They have added 1,000 new bleacher seats for the comfort of the spectators.

Three new ticket booths have been added for speedier service. One booth has been added at the pitgate and two were placed at the spectator gate.

AHRA President Jim Rice has announced that the track will open early Thursday afternoon so that more track time will be available for timing and tuning the record number of entries.

Discount tickets are available at all area Sears stores and the Spurs box office in San Antonio. Discount prices are $10 for Saturday and $10 for Sunday.

For further information one can call: AHRA (913) 341-2266 or M-Co Auto (512) 927-6160.

Ickx triumphs at Le Mans

LE MANS, France (AP) — Belgian Jacky Ickx, who came out of retirement to compete, won the 49th Le Mans 24-hour auto racing classic Sunday for a record fifth time, sharing a works Porsche 956-81 speedster with his 1975 winning partner, Derek Bell of Britain.

The race started tragically Saturday with accidents that killed French driver Jean-Louis Lafosse, 41, a Le Mans veteran, and a track marshal, and injured four other marshals.

Baker finishes in top spot

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — Top-seeded Tom Baker finished the final match with eight consecutive strikes to defeat Mike Aubly 247-205 and win the $125,000 Pennzoil Open bowling tournament.

In the next-to-last match, No. 2 qualifier Aubly defeated Guppy Troup 255-246. Troup had defeated Bill Spigner 235-203, and Spigner had edged Wayne Webb 232-228 in a previous match.

Troup finished third, Spigner fourth and Webb fifth.

Chen Tze Chung is triumphant

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Chen Tze Chung, a second-year pro from Taiwan, won the $132,000 Zapporo Tokyo Open Golf Tournament Sunday by 3 strokes, closing with a 3-under-par 69.

Chen, who finished with a total of 279, earned $26,600 for his first pro victory.

Saturday's Puzzle Solved:

DENNIS THE MENACE

"LESSEE...WHERE DID I LEAVE OFF YESTERDAY?"

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Will you come here and blow my nose for me, Mommy?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 16, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are now able to exercise your skills in such a way to bring greater efficiency to your work. Be sure not to neglect important paper work that has been piling up.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Good day to discuss plans for the future with associates. Come to a quick decision regarding a puzzling situation.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make plans to be more successful in your career. Don't neglect to handle an important civic matter early in the day.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study new ventures that interest you and pick out those that are most suited to your talents. Take needed health treatments.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Figure out a better way to handle your most pressing duties. Show more enthusiasm for your work.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Although annoying, be sure to handle an important civic matter today. Be careful of one who is hypocritical. Think constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you do more than your share of the work, you find that you'll gain more benefits. Not a good day for pleasure.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Good day to make arrangements for amusements in the days ahead. Get together with congenials in spare time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take steps to get rid of a problem at home and establish more harmony with family members. A new outlet needs more study.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Become more efficient at your work and put new ideas in operation quickly. Be careful of one who opposes you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be as self-engrossed as you wish now and improve your personal life. Know exactly where you are headed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Ideal time to engage in monetary affairs that are important to your future. Avoid a tendency to exaggerate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Attend to those accumulated tasks without delay. A clever adviser can give fine ideas. Follow them and benefit.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those gregarious persons who should be encouraged to have as many friends as possible, but of the right kind. Teach to complete whatever has been started. The field of research is fine here.

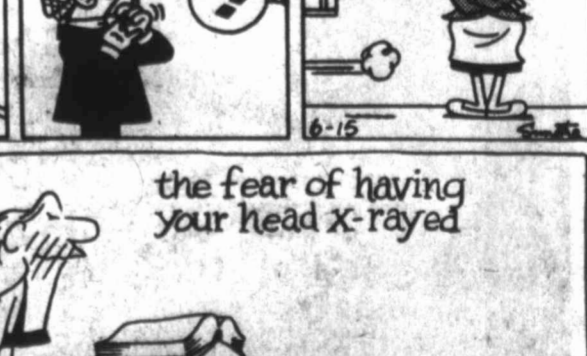

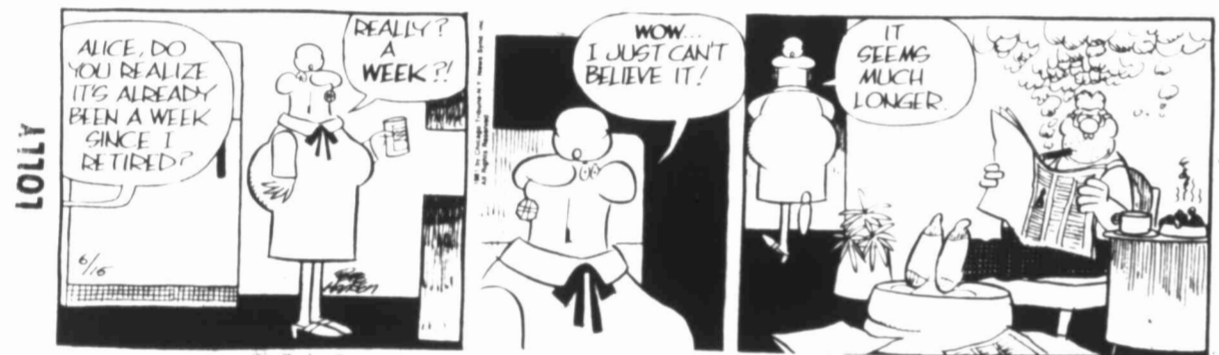

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
