Carpenters' strike slows mall, school construction

By BILLELDER
Two local construction projects have been hit by a carpenters' strike, which went into effect yesterday.

Picket lines went up at the mall under construction near K-Mart's on east F.M. 700 and reportedly at the site of an elementary school project for the Coahoma school district.

The carpenters have gone on strike over the refusal of contractors to give them a two-year pact increasing pay by $3.40 an hour over the two-year period. Members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters Local 1428 also have asked for health and pension benefits as part of their pact.

About 88 percent of the 17-county local voted Monday night to strike when their current contract expired, a union representative said. Talks with contractors, the latest of which were held in Midland yesterday, have proved fruitless.

"There's no way we can afford that kind of increase," the Herald was told this morning by J.W. Cooper, owner of the Cooper Construction Co. in Odessa and a representative to the Associated General Contractors of America.

Cooper said the best AGCA, which is being struck as well as several independent contractors, was sticking by its offer of $2.80 an hour over two years. He said the union's demand for health insurance and a pension plan had been dropped, although Charles Morris, business representative for the union, said the benefits were still part of the pact the carpenters seek.

"We don't have any benefits," he complained.

Both sides said no talks had been scheduled for today.

Morris said Local 1428 was being paid about $2 an hour less than other carpenter locals around the state.

Top pay for a journeyman carpenter with four years' apprenticeship is $11.55 an hour, he said.

No figures were available on how many union members at work in Big Spring were on strike. Strikers at the mall site this morning said there were six union carpenters working on that particular project and all were in favor of the strike.

About 15 general laborers were at work there this morning, raising a wall for a future J.C. Penney's department store.

"Without the carpenters," said one of the strikers, "they won't have much to do for very long."

Terry McGough, job superintendent for the mall project, had no comment on the strike and when asked if the strike would delay the mall, he said, "Not if I can help it."

The Shankle Construction Co. of Santa Ana, Calif., is building the mall and could not be reached for comment.

A spokesperson for the Coahoma Independent School District was not available for a comment this morning, either.

Morris said about 20 contractors in the union's 17-county membership area were the objects of the strike. Most of the construction projects halted were commercial, he said, with a few residence projects also affected.

CARPENTERS' STRIKE — Terry Purcell, left, and his brother Jim manned the picket line at the mall construction site on east F.M. 700 this morning. Striking carpenters are asking for a two-year pact giving them a $3.40 an hour pay increase. The mall project reportedly was one of two major projects in Big Spring hit by the strike.

Madame Mainguet tours wind erosion lab in Big Spring

By CAROL HART
Madame Monique Mainguet travels across the world, seeking solutions to the problems of wind erosion. She also is a professor at the University of Reims, and is wife and mother to a family in France.

Wind erosion is a problem that West Texas shares with many other countries. Madame Mainguet was in Big Spring Tuesday to view operations at the Big Spring Experiment Station, where research on wind erosion is being conducted by Dr. Bill Fryrear and his staff.

"I met Dr. Fryrear at a United Nations meeting in Italy," Madame Mainguet recalled. "I heard that his laboratory is one of the best in the world."

She added that "the work done by Americans on wind erosion is the best in the world presently."

Big Spring is one of several stops in the United States for Madame Mainguet, who is a geomorphologist with an impressive background in geology and soil sciences.

"This is my first time in Texas," she said. "I came to lecture at Texas Tech on wind action in north Africa." Madame Mainguet was accompanied to Big Spring by Dr. Harold Dregne, director of the International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies at Texas Tech.

Dr. Dregne said that Madame Mainguet "has tremendous experience" in dealing with wind erosion studies. She has spent parts of the last several years in Africa, more specifically the Sahara, and has written books on sand and sand storms.

Madame Mainguet said "Dr. Fryrear showed us air photos of wind erosion in Texas. I was terrified by the high degree of wind erosion. I did not know that the United States had such a high level of wind erosion."

She added that the erosion she has viewed here is of the same levels as "in certain parts of Africa around the Sahara."

Dr. Fryrear added that "West Texas is in the heart of the wind erosion area" in the United States. "Thirty-five to 40 percent of the wind damaged area in the United States is concentrated in West Texas.

Madame Mainguet is from the east of France, and said she studied in Stransbourg.

"For 25 years, I have worked often in African countries. I also worked in South America. My main activity is now in Africa."

In Africa, she studies wind damage in the Congo, Central African Republic, Chad, Nigeria, Upper Volta, Mali, Algeria and Morocco.

In France, Madame Mainguet is responsible for a laboratory instigated in 1973 at the University of Reims, which specializes in the study of wind action.

She added that there is a problem in France with wind erosion along the Champagne Valley.

Madame Mainguet's husband is a doctor of biology, who is head of a laboratory in France. The couple has two children, a daughter, 17, and a son, 10, who "are very sad when I go away," said Madame Mainguet.

"This is a problem all women in the world know, what part of time to give to family life, and what part of time to give to professional activities. This is very difficult for a woman."

Last year, Madame Mainguet said she spent "more than half the year in the field." When in France, she is a lecturer at the University, which also takes much of her time.

Female professors in France "are rare," said Madame Mainguet. "It's not so often seen. There are mainly men in the universities."

Before Madame Mainguet will return to France, she plans to travel to Flagstaff, Ariz., and will work with the U.S. Geological Survey on a new classification of dunes, which will be based on the dynamic evolution of the system's ability to fight against dangerous wind action.

She will also travel to Tempe, Ariz., and will work with other scientists on a research program dealing with dunes on the planet Mars. "We will try to understand the similarities and differences" between dunes on Mars, and sand dunes on Earth.

"Then, I am invited to Washington, D.C.," said Madame Mainguet. She will work with Dr. Farouk El Baz of the Smithsonian Institution on the problems of the protection of an oasis in Egypt.

While in Big Spring, Madame Mainguet and Dr. Dregne toured the Big Spring Experiment Station with Dr. Fryrear, and viewed the wind tunnel, a device used to study wind erosion and its effects on plant life and soil. Madame Mainguet and Dr. Dregne returned to Lubbock Tuesday afternoon.

Local postal workers do not plan to strike

By ANDREA COHEN
Local postal workers will probably not walk off the job if their national parent organizations call for a work stoppage.

Four unions' contracts with the U.S. Postal Service expire July 20.

"I haven't received any specific information," said H.C. McPherson, president, American Postal Workers of Postal Clerks, Local No. 1694. "But as far as I'm concerned, there will be no strike here. It's against the law and I intend to uphold the law. We don't intend to strike."

McPherson said a meeting has not been called to discuss the strike.

"I wouldn't call any strike," he continued. "The last time there was a walkout, those who went on strike lost their jobs."

Wade Bledsoe, president of the 29-member Local No. 1891 chapter of the National Association of Letter Carriers also said he does not intend to strike.

"We don't expect it to happen," Bledsoe said. "I doubt we would strike, but I'm not sure. I doubt this office is going to strike. We would probably stay on the job."

"But whatever we do won't mean a thing because nothing would be coming in to deliver."

The two local union officials declined to talk about details of the wage and benefit packages being sought by national unions in current negotiations because they have not received the proposals.

"I'm not sure of the details," McPherson said. "They're still kicking it around."

The Postal Service contends a work stoppage is the same as a strike and strikes by government workers are illegal.

Entries being accepted for domino tournament

Entries for the fourth annual National "Texas-Style" Partnership Domino Tournament, which will be held in Big Spring at the Garrett Coliseum July 23, 24, and 25, are currently being accepted by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

The Big Spring-based tournament is expected to attract upwards of 100 partners, who will be competing for trophies and top prize money, with the total prize money being determined by the number of entries received in the competition.

The annual Tournament is the only one of its type in the nation and invariably receives regional, state and national coverage. During the three-day event, teams who pay $100 to enter, will play an estimated 20 hours against other teams to reach the semi-finals. Trophies will also be awarded to the top 12 teams, and top prize money will be awarded to the winning team, with lesser amounts going to other top teams.

"Texas Style Dominos" differs from similar names in that entries draw seven dominoes and use only the first double played as a "spinner." Only the spinner can be abutted on all four sides.

The national tournament was conceived in 1978 by world traveling domino expert and historian, George McAlister, while writing the book "Dominos Texas Style", which he co-authored with his playing partner, Lloyd McLeod.

Individuals interested in entering the fourth annual tournament should contact the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 1391, Big Spring 79720. All entries for this year's tournament must be received by noon on July 22.

VICTIM SAVED — Two Fort Wayne, Ind. youths and their mothers react with tears of relief to the news that firemen had found their friend unharmed after he was sucked down a sewer. The three had been swimming in the streets following a massive thunderstorm in Fort Wayne Tuesday night.

Digest

Begin falls behind

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The opposition Labor Party took a one-seat edge over Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Likud Bloc today in partial returns from the Israeli election, but Begin claimed victory and planned negotiations with smaller parties to form a governing coalition.

Computer projections announced by Israel Radio, based on sample polls and at least 25 percent of the returns, gave Shimon Peres' Labor Party a 49-48 lead over Begin's conservative Likud in the 120-member Parliament.

Official results were slow coming in as the laborious task of counting paper ballots continued today and the National Elections Commission said it would have no official returns until late today. The Interior Ministry said near-complete results may not be in until Friday.

"God willing, I will form the next government for the next 4 1/2 years," Begin, 67, told cheering supporters at Likud headquarters. "We have an absolute majority in the Knesset."

But Peres, a 58-year-old former defense minister, told the crowd at his campaign headquarters three hours earlier. "The task of forming a government will probably be given to Labor."

Death sentence overturned

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today upheld the capital murder conviction of ex-soldier David Leon Wallace in the slaying of El Paso lawyer Lee Chagra but changed Wallace's punishment from death to life imprisonment.

Chagra, known for his courtroom successes in defending persons accused of narcotics violations, was shot to death in his office on Dec. 23, 1978.

Wallace, then 20 and stationed at Fort Bliss, admitted entering the office with another GI but said his accomplice, Don White, was the one who shot Chagra. The appeals court said the state proved White fired the fatal bullet.

Political ads protected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today stripped broadcasters of much of their power to reject paid political advertisements.

By a 6-3 vote, the justices ruled that during political campaigns, candidates for federal offices have a new "right of access" to buy time on television and radio.

In addition, federal regulators can overturn the networks' decisions to reject ads from congressional or presidential candidates, the high court ruled.

The dispute stemmed from an attempt by the Carter-Mondale presidential re-election committee to purchase half-hour, prime-time television segments on the three television networks in December 1979, 11 months before the general election.

ABC and NBC refused to sell the committee any time in December, while CBS offered the committee one five-minute segment in prime time and one outside prime time.

Two teen inmates rob woman jailer, seized

LAMESA — Two teenage inmates of the Dawson County Jail were taken back into custody here early Tuesday morning after they had threatened and robbed a woman jailer while escaping.

The trustees, Johnny and Joe Annalla, 19 and 18 years of age respectively, were waiting for Mrs. Elsie Simmons, the jailer, when she brought in the evening meal.

One of the youths grabbed a butcher knife and with it forced Mrs. Simmons back to her apartment in another part of the courthouse, where they waited until dark.

They took Mrs. Simmons' keys and about $10 before fleeing on foot. They succeeded in eluding police officers until about 1 a.m., when they were rearrested behind a building at North Seventh and Lynn Avenue some seven blocks from the jail.

The two are being held on burglary charges stemming from a December 1980 burglary at Suburban Marine.

Additional charges of aggravated kidnapping and escape have now been lodged against the two. Bond was set at $100,000 for each youth. Johnny Annalla was also charged with aggravated robbery after being recaptured. Bond was also set at $100,000 on that count.

Sheriff Bill Horton said Mrs. Simmons was not physically injured in the incident but was "scared to death."

Buy walk-in freezer HC trustees accept $27,500 bid for construction work

In a relatively short meeting Tuesday, trustees of the Howard County Junior College District agreed to accept a bid of $27,500 from the J.W. Little Company of Big Spring for construction of a concrete foundation for a Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf dormitory.

The building will be located immediately north of the main building now being occupied by SWCID. It formerly was the Webb AFB Hospital.

The dormitory, which must be separated into three pieces before it is moved and then reassembled on site is now on Federal Prison Camp property. It is one of four dormitories which eventually will be moved to Howard County Junior College District property.

One of the structures will find use as an adjunct to the women's dorm at Howard College, after which it will be made to conform in looks and style to the two dormitories now being used on campus.

Trustees also let three bids for air conditioning systems planned on both campus. CHE Inc., Lubbock was recipients of two of the contracts extended by the college board — one for $41,684 and the other for $12,604. The second one will not be executed into the other dorms are moved to college property.

The third contract went to Thermo-Mec Sales Co., in the amount of $18,755.

The board also authorized the purchase of a walk-in freezer from Meador Sales and Service for use in the Howard College Cafeteria. The cost will be $9,776. The unit will be almost twice as large as the freezer now in use at the cafeteria. The old one will be moved to Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf for use in the kitchen.

Before adjourning, the trustees also authorize the payment of $4,227.34 to Quality Glass and Mirror Company of Big Spring for aluminum and glass doors for the east administrative wing of Howard College.

Next meeting of the trustees will take place July 14.

Diana Kirkland, 22, told police she was parked at 1205 College for about 30 minutes Saturday afternoon when somebody reached into her unlocked car and took her purse. Contents were valued at $165.

Filomeno Franco Jr. and his daughter Luanna told police they were assaulted by three men known to them about 12:20 this morning. According to reports, the incident took place at the Franco residence, 410 N.W. 11th.

Suspects reportedly brandished knives at the pair and threatened to kill them.

Virginia Paradez of 3215 Auburn was injured in the incident and taken to Malone Hogan Hospital, where she was treated for multiple facial lacerations and released, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

Shirley Hollinger, 29, of 409 Owens, told police she was choked during an argument at about 12:40 p.m. Tuesday.

Tom Greene complained to police that the cord to a pinball machine at the Godfather Pizza Parlor, 513 De Beers, was cut about 10:20 p.m. Tuesday, causing $25 damage. Doyle Farrow, 31, and Roy Thornton, 26, both of Big Spring, were arrested and charged with criminal mischief in connection with the incident.

Russell DeVore of DeVore's Exxon, intersection of Interstate 20 and Highway 87, complained to police that at about 1:30 this morning two men drove into the station in a Lincoln Continental, filled up with $47.86 worth of gas, then said the pumps had registered the amount of gas improperly and paid only $22 before they drove west on I-20.

Stacy Lynn Anderson, 7, is a bit miffed with the culprit who took her bicycle while she was on vacation. The bikes, valued at $50 and was parked under a carport while the girl was gone, according to a report her mother filed with police.

Coahoma school vote testimony continues

Testimony began today in a lawsuit filed by Ken Cobb against Clovis Phinney Jr.

The lawsuit was filed after Cobb charged that ballots in an April 4 Coahoma School Board election were improperly tallied. Cobb reportedly lost the election to Phinney by one vote.

District Judge Jim Gregg is hearing the testimony in 118th District Court. Cobb is being represented by Lanny Hamby. Phinney's lawyer is Jim Edwards.

Superintendent of Schools Richard Souter was the first person called to testify today. Souter explained election night action, and was asked how the ballots were handled.

Cobb is charging that persons other than election judges were allowed access to the ballot boxes and the contents inside.

Souter was asked if the number of ballots on his desk April 6 was the same as that counted Saturday, April 4. Souter said "Yes, nothing was missing," when ballots were placed in his office.

Souter was also questioned whether election judges had certified the ballots on Saturday.

"Yes, it was all over Saturday," said Souter.

Testimony was continuing as of press time today.

Divorced military wives may not share pensions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lawyer who won a historic court case last week that assures a service man his military pension will always be his — and his alone — says ex-wives won't be able to win part of it even with new legislation in Congress.

"Now that the court has ruled that these guys are entitled to regard their retirement pay as their personal entitlement and not subject to any division of property in a divorce case, you're not going to find that Congress is going to be able to take it away from them," said Mattaniah Eytan of San Francisco.

In a ruling that has thrown thousands of American divorcees up in arms, the Supreme Court ruled Friday by a split 6-3 vote that under the congressional plan, a divorced woman has no right to share their ex-husbands' military retirement pay.

For years, wives in every state have been receiving a percentage of the military retirement checks upon divorce as a part of the couple's community property.

Women's rights organizations expressed dismay Tuesday about the court's ruling.

Phyllis Segal of New York City, legal director for the National Organization for Women legal defense and education fund, said she hasn't analyzed the court's ruling yet, but feels the ultimate solution is for Congress to pass legislation making clear that a woman is entitled to part of her husband's military retirement pay.

"Until such time, it's going to be total chaos," she said.

"Uh-uh, you're opening up a whole new can of worms," Eytan protested when he was told of the prospect.

"Imagine a guy who's spent 20 years in the service and always being told the military retirement is his — and now being told it's going to be taken away from him. Uh-uh, that won't wash. Those women that just lost their share of it are not going to be able to get it back," Eytan added.

"The ones who benefit if Congress does change the law and they'll find that's not going to be easy — are going to be the new wives on down the road.

Because of the grandfather clause, no one in the military now could lose the benefits that have already been assured him."

Friday's Supreme Court decision overturned a California appeals court that had upheld the right of Patricia McCarty, who was divorced in 1976 from her husband, Army cardiologist Dr. Richard J. McCarty, to almost half of the $1,507 monthly retirement check he began receiving after he retired two years later. They had been married for 19 years.

Community property laws, applicable in California and seven other states, give both spouses equal shares of whatever property they've built up through their own work during the marriage. Other states have adopted similar principles in dividing a married couple's property upon divorce.

Eytan, who represented McCarty in the suit, said a former military man now paying his ex-wife part of his retirement check "will have to go back to court and get their divorce settlement modified, and he will be able to do that."

If the man tried to go a step farther and force his ex-wife to repay money she'd collected in the past, that would fail, Eytan predicted.

A Corpus Christi woman had been granted a hearing before the Texas Supreme Court on her suit to force her ex-husband to pay more than a third on his $1,500-a-month military retirement check to her.

But Friday's ruling makes her suit moot.

"Other military wives were excited when the Supreme Court of Texas decided to hear my case. Nobody's been able to get that far before. Now this puts me at ground zero," said Sue Cameron, 42, director of career placement at Del Mar College in Corpus Christi.

"I have no legal recourse at all except to contact as many congressmen as I can and get them to pass a bill and change the law," she added.

Equally dismayed is Vivian Filemyr, 60, of Austin, Texas, the director of a national organization of 100,000 divorcees who have been trying to collect money that courts have awarded them as part of their ex-husbands' military retirement benefit.

Mrs. Filemyr said her phone has been ringing since the Supreme Court decision came down.

"We've got members in 48 states, and we've had 15 new members since this ruling was announced Friday," Mrs. Filemyr said after being contacted by telephone.

"Their ex-husbands have called them and said, 'You can find somebody else to make your mortgage payment, because I'm canceling my check.' Some of these women are going to be in dire circumstances."

"Our organization had thousands of women who were awarded it, and this just wipes them out. The ruling just destroyed the American family. What woman today is going to be comfortable following her husband around the world in the military, knowing her husband may discard her, like my husband discarded me and others have been discarded?"

Already pending in Congress are two bills, one by Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Ore., and one by Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas.

The Schroeder bill would mandate that an ex-wife get up to half of the military retirement check, depending on how long they were married while her husband was in the service.

Hance's bill would allow a woman awarded a portion of the military retirement check by a judge to have the secretary of the Army send it directly to her each month.

Hance's approach was taken because of complaints by many women that their husbands refused to pay after being ordered to — sometimes by moving to another state and out of the court's jurisdiction.

Justice Department may drop suit against AT&T

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is about to rest its antitrust effort to break up the nation's largest corporation, American Telephone & Telegraph Co., confident it can win in court if only allowed by the White House to do so.

"It is a sound case and I intend to litigate it to the eyeballs," Assistant Attorney General William F. Baxter said in April. He might not get the chance, though, if President Reagan decides otherwise.

The trial is half over now, and prosecutors are worried Reagan will do just that.

There is a debate within the administration about whether the prudent step order his prosecutors to drop the seven-year-old case.

This course has been recommended by the staff of a Cabinet-level task force, which argues that the suit has produced so much uncertainty for the telephone industry that it is harming the economy and the industry's efforts to remain competitive abroad.

U.S. District Judge Harold H. Greene says he is unconcerned about "speculation or consideration outside the judicial arena" that could moot the government's case and his own deliberations. There is no jury.

So when the government rests its case today, Greene will be left to study a trial 11,400 pages.

AT&T's rebuttal is scheduled to begin in August. Here is a summary of key elements of the government's case against AT&T:

—A former employee alleged that an AT&T division created to encourage Bell System operating companies to buy equipment made by non-Bell companies was "a cosmetic charade." The operating companies are so tied to AT&T's manufacturing unit — Western Electric Co. — "that nothing less than complete divestiture would have the slightest impact on Bell's buying practices," said William Browne.

—A host of corporate officials say their companies' efforts to crack the terminal equipment market were hampered by an unnecessary AT&T requirement that their switchboards and other devices be connected to the phone network with a "protective coupler" leased from AT&T. Pier Abetti, an official of General Electric, also testified that "scare and delay tactics" of Bell salesmen, and poor installation and repair service from AT&T contributed to GE's decision to quit the market.

—AT&T allegedly has refused, consistently and deliberately, to provide the type of interconnections with its network that long-distance competitors need for phone-call quality. William G. McGowan, chairman of the MCI Communications Corp., said he believes that the only answer to this problem was a breakup of the Bell System. Common ownership of the local Bell companies and AT&T's Long Lines Division "precludes the fairness and parity we need to compete fairly," McGowan said.

Memo warns against cuts of minimum SS payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The entire Social Security system could be plagued with unpaid benefits, incorrect checks and poor service for a year or more if mandated minimum payments for 3 million retirees are eliminated, an internal agency document says.

President Reagan has targeted the minimum benefit for extinction and both the Senate and House have voted to kill it.

But the move, aimed at saving $1 billion in fiscal 1982, is not easy to carry out. Without manually sifting through millions of files, Social Security has no ready way to tell which of its 36 million beneficiaries are getting the minimum benefit and how much their checks will be cut.

Top Social Security officials acknowledged in interviews Tuesday that it will take them 9,000 worker-years and cost $170 million to find and recompute the minimum benefits.

The Reagan plan not only would end the minimum payment for future beneficiaries, but would affect 3 million people now on the rolls, mostly elderly women in their early 70s. About 90,000 are over 90.

Last week, Rep. J. Pickle, D-Texas, chairman of the House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security, entered into the Congressional Record a contingency plan written last March by Social Security's Office of Central Operations that warned of near-chaos if the agency sought to make a minimum benefit change in two months.

July SS checks contain 11.2 percent increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 38 million Americans who get Social Security and Supplemental Security Income will receive an 11.2 percent benefit increase in the checks delivered today and Thursday.

The 4 million elderly, blind or disabled persons on SSI, a welfare program, were scheduled to get their monthly checks in the mail today. Half also receive Social Security.

The 36 million Social Security beneficiaries were to get their monthly checks Thursday, a day ahead of normal because Friday has been designated for observance of the 4th of July holiday.

The benefit increase will cost the ailing Social Security trust funds $15.4 billion in the year ahead. The SSI increase will cost the general Treasury $600 million.

Social Security checks have gone up automatically each July since 1975. This is the second largest increase in that span. Last year's 14.3 percent boost was the largest.

The benefit increase is intended to cushion retired and disabled workers and their families against inflation. It mirrors the 11.2 percent that the Consumer Price Index rose from the first quarter of 1980 through the first quarter of 1981.

Rev. Lloyd looking back on fifty years of life in the ministry

By TOMMY HART

Although he was the only child among six to undertake a study of Theology, the odds were always considerably better than 5-1 that R. Gage Lloyd would turn to the ministry. His father before him, ordained in 1885, devoted his life to preaching and continued to occupy the pulpit until he was in his 71st year.

R. GAGE LLOYD

Gage, who had an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree delivered upon him by Austin College, Sunday celebrates his 50th year as an accredited preacher. He was formally ordained July 5, 1931, while serving as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Calvert, Tex.

One of the participants in the ritual performed under the aegis of the Brazos Commission of Presbytery was Lloyd's long-time friend, the Rev. Mr. S.C. Guthrie, then pastor of the Navasota Presbyterian Church and now a resident of Big Spring.

Born halfway between Pecos and Fort Stockton in Reeves County, Gage started his public schooling in Haskell in 1913. Later, he attended classes in Pecos and Balmorhea before graduating from high school with honors in Fort Stockton in 1924. His senior class that year included eight girls and four boys.

Lloyd enrolled at Austin College in Sherman the following year and earned a Bachelor's Degree in Education in 1927. On Aug. 31, 1927, Gage married a Sherman girl, Irene Wilson, he had met at Austin College.

He taught a year at Saragosa (near Balmorhea) before enrolling in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary in Austin, Tex. He began preaching at Calvert while still in seminary, ultimately earned his master's degree in 1931.

He doubled as pastor at Calvert and in nearby Hempstead from 1931 until 1935, when he accepted an invitation to become pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Crockett. He remained there for 11 years before the membership of the First Presbyterian Church in Big Spring beckoned him to fill a ministerial vacancy. That was in September 1946.

Lloyd well recalls his first impression of Big Spring — which he got while in the waiting room of the T & P Railway passenger station here at the age of 12. Then a resident of Fort Stockton, Gage had gone to Midland to compete in a school declamation contest. He climbed aboard the wrong train on his return trip home and wound up in Big Spring rather than Pecos. Consequently, he had to wait several hours in the local station before a passenger train could spirit him westward toward a reunion with his parents. It wouldn't have been so bad, he recalls, if he hadn't been trying to fight off the flu at the time.

Two children, a girl and a boy, were born to the Lloyd-Wilson union. Rebekah, the older child, is now a resident of Morristown, Tenn., where her husband, Walter W. Harrell Jr., is in the insurance business. A one-time teacher in the Forsan (Tex.) school system, Rebekah took her master's degree at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville and is now a counselor in the Morristown public schools.

Robert Gage Lloyd Jr., the younger child, died in 1963 at the age of 18. Gage says that Rebekah was, in fact, named for his wife. Although Mrs. Lloyd's given name actually was Irene, he often would address her, using Biblical names that were familiar to both of them. One of those was Rebekah.

He and Mrs. Lloyd were occasioned to visit Europe and the Middle East in 1952, a trip made possible by members of the local Presbyterian church. They went first to Palermo, Sicily, then to Cairo and Beirut. They took a car to Damascus, then Amman before crossing the Jordan River into Jerusalem. They visited Nazareth and Bethlehem before flying out of Tel Aviv to Athens and Rome. A kind deed Gage did for two Catholic nuns in the Holy Land earned for them an audience with Pope Pius in Vatican City.

Gage remembers saying to the Pope, "I am a Presbyterian minister from Texas" and hearing Pius reply, "Yes, we get many visitors from Texas." The Pope gifted him with a medallion he still has.

Lloyd's impression of the Holy Land was almost exactly as he had pictured it in his mind. The Bible had painted a brilliant mosaic for him with its ageless, accurate prose.

What impressed him most about the Middle East? The abject poverty, which was especially bad in Damascus and in the desert camps of the wandering people.

In Egypt, he was privileged to ride a camel a considerable distance, an invitation his wife declined with thanks.

Gage retired as First Presbyterian minister here July 5, 1970, but even now received more invitations to preach than he feels he can accept. He still resides in the same house here he and the Lloyd family once occupied as a manse.

A double tragedy befell Lloyd in May, 1979. His sister, Adele Jackson, died at the age of 81 May 18 in Cuero. A week later, his beloved Irene succumbed to a long, debilitating illness. They had been man and wife for 52 years. She lies buried beside her son in Trinity Memorial Park.

Gage has no idea how many weddings he has performed over the years — maybe 500. He recalls being rewarded with a silver dollar after officiating at the marriage of a couple who were standing beside their car parked in front of the church. Another man gave him 30 cents to unite two people — and apparently had to dig deep for that. Others have walked away from marriage ceremonies in which he played a part without so much as saying "thanks."

Gage has kept careful count of the number of times he has delivered funeral eulogies since his retirement — 107, in all.

What Gage regards as a signal honor came his way in 1967, when he was named moderator of the Presbyterian Synod of Texas. Elected in Fort Worth for the succeeding meeting, Lloyd presided at a synod held in Houston.

Dr. Lloyd taught Bible at Howard College for 20 years. He played no small role in the recent Big Spring-Howard County Centennial Celebration, having made the arrangements for a religious service staged in the Garrett Coliseum, which featured Dr. Andy Edington as its chief speaker.

Gage may have inspired several people to take up his profession. One who has often given him credit for turning him to the ministry is the Rev. Dan Baker, now pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Houston. Baker grew up in Crockett.

Gage has long since concluded that life is a sort of roller coaster, offering its share of ups and downs. One of his favorite passages in the Bible can be found in Romans which, in essence, offers the reassuring message, "No matter what happens, I am with you."

Chinese Communists celebrate 60th year with 'show of unity'

PEKING (AP) — China's Communist Party celebrated its 60th anniversary today with a gala show of unity and heard newly elected Chairman Hu Yaobang tell aging comrades to make way for young blood to modernize the country.

About 10,000 guests were invited to the Great Hall of the People for a celebration staged beneath a glittering red chandelier.

"It is now a pressing strategic task," Hu said, "to build up a large continent of revolutionary well educated, professionally competent and younger cadres."

China's old leaders, he said, would commit an "unforgivable historical error" if they did not groom a younger leadership.

Many of China's Communist rulers are in their 60s and 70s, having begun their careers in the fledgling days of the political organization that grew from 60 members in 1921 to 38 million who lead a nation of 1 billion people in 1981.

Hu is 67. Deng Xiaoping, senior-ranking vice chairman and in effect China's ruler, is 76 and has often said he will retire soon.

Hu replaced Hua Guofen a political rival who was the chosen successor of the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung. Hua resigned this week and was demoted to vice chairman by the party Central Committee for blindly following Mao's ideas.

A live television broadcast showed Hu facing a monolithic hammer and sickle on a stage flanked by red banners and the dates "1921-1981." A glum-faced Hua sat on the sidelines.

He said criticism between party leaders should be well-reasoned, and retaliation and vindictiveness are not allowed.

"Our main mistake in the past was to engage in excessive struggle," he said.

In a major party document issued Tuesday, China's leaders are calling for a peaceful revolution "more profound and arduous than any previous revolution" fought with guns, purges and polemics.

They call for prosperity, not divisive politics, for greater democracy, the rule of laws not men, for more private enterprise, for spiritual civilization, cultural advancement and religious freedom.

The Central Committee manifesto came on the eve of the Communist Party's anniversary today, marking 60 years of a political organization that grew from 60 members in 1921 to 38 million who lead a nation of 1 billion people in 1981.

The blueprint for the future is the work of men who have won and lost in China's struggles — such as Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping, who was purged in the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution, and Hu Yaobang, also a purge victim, who supplanted Mao's chosen successor, Hua Guofeng, as party chairman this week.

'Baggy' fashions not new to Hugh

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
BOSTON (AP) — Once again undercover agents from the world of haute couture are hot on my trail, trying to steal a look at the next new trend in fashions.

I am sure I saw someone with a sketch pad skulking about in the bushes the other morning as I made my way across the Boston Common to a favorite lobster house.

The style sleuths from the rag trade recognize me as a pace setter in the industry. They know I was into baggy trousers and safari jackets long before Oscar de la Renta, Yves Saint Laurent and the other celebrated cloth snippers unveiled them at the big spring showings.

In fact on the same day that "baggies" made headlines in Women's Wear Daily, my wife said to me at breakfast, "Can I give those balloon seated corduroy slacks of yours to the Salvation Army? You look like a retired burlesque comedian."

Now camouflage cloth is all the rage. Everyone who is anybody sashays around garbed like an Israeli tank or a British barracks in Northern Ireland.

The triple canopy jungle look is so "with it" in all the right places that Kalman Rottenstein, vice president for fashion direction at Bloomingdale's, has warned of overkill. "If you are going to wear camouflage prints," Rottenstein cautioned the high camp crowd in the New York Times the other day, "mix them with khaki. For evening, a camouflage print chiffon scarf on a silk outfit is a nice touch. But head to toe, no."

Well, the senior vice president for fashion direction at Hardscribble House has news for Rottenstein and all the other senior seamstitchers and sleeve hangers in the Garment District.

Journalist George McArthur and I pioneered camouflage chic at least a decade ago in Saigon, once called the Paris of the East, now yclept Ho Chi Minh City. George was then The Associated Press bureau chief in Saigon. One day we went to the Chinese quarter and haggled for a bolt of camouflage cloth.

Then we called on Honorable Minh, the tailor who had created the twin laped safari jacket known as the "TV Suit" for Dan Rather and other correspondents.

The outfits that came forth from Minh's cutting room were as practical as they were style provoking: waterproof, wrinkle free, stain resistant. What's more, when the check came at dinner you could always disappear into the luxuriant foliage so popular these days in restaurant decor. At a party, you could safely overmedicate and collapse among the sheltering potted palms without making a scene or alarming the hostess.

This fall I intend to resurrect my old golfing knickerbockers. By the time I reach the back nine, if those style sleuths have got the scent, I except to see a similarly attired Bill Blass or Emilio Pucci asking to play through.

Brenda Kay Lewis honored with evening bridal shower

Brenda Kay Lewis, bride-elect of Anthony B. Claxton, was honored with a personal bridal shower June 19. The home of Mrs. Robert Bomar was the scene of the 7:30 p.m. event.

Co-hostesses were Dena Bomar, Denise Smith and Karen Spears. Honored guests were Mrs. S. N. Lewis, 1402 Birdwell Ln., and Mrs. Lloyd T. Claxton, 2400 Marcy, mothers of the bride-elect and prospective groom.

The refreshment table was covered with an ecru cloth trimmed with scalloped lace and centered with a peach colored rose floral arrangement, using the bride-elect's chosen colors. Silver and crystal appointments were used. The room decor was in peach and white.

Guests made rice bags and tied the wedding scrolls.

The couple will be married Aug. 1 in College Baptist Church.

For the record

In Sunday's engagement announcement of Tammy Lee Pettitt to James "Bo" Strickland, the rite was inadvertently printed as a Baptist ceremony. The couple will exchange vows at the Bentwood Country Club in San Angelo, with Justice of the Peace Charlie Long officiating.

The Herald regrets the error and any embarrassment it may have caused.

Dear Abby

Meeting Other End of Line Finished the Connection

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the women who fell in love with a voice on the telephone. A few years ago a gentleman called me from 3,000 miles away to discuss my late husband's book. I loved his voice. We had a wonderful, long conversation and had so much to say to each other that we continued to exchange phone calls every day for weeks — then months! With every conversation we fell more deeply in love with each other.

After eight months we arranged to meet in Chicago at the home of a mutual friend. I was 70, a little overweight, no great beauty, but not too bad. He was 68, "Mr 5 X 5," diabetic and smoked five packs of cigarettes and drank a fifth of Scotch a day. End of affair.

But oh, what a heavenly eight months I experienced on the other end of a telephone with this fascinating conversationalist!

L. IN SUN CITY, CALIF.

DEAR L.: Read on for a similar story — with a different ending:

DEAR ABBY: A reader asked if it was possible to fall in love with a voice on the phone. I know it is, because I did. I was a telephone operator in a small town in Ohio in 1931. A traveling salesman — just passing through — got me on the line, and I fell in love with the sound of his voice. Then I did something that was against the rules. I made a date with him. And from love at first sound, it was love at first sight!

This September we will celebrate our 50th wedding anniversary.

SMALL-TOWN OPERATOR

DEAR ABBY: We have an uncle who made a strange request some time ago. He asked us (his nieces) to be his pallbearers when he dies.

He is very sick now and he repeated that request. My father disapproves because he never heard of female pallbearers. I for one would like to be a pallbearer at my uncle's funeral because he is my favorite uncle. My cousins also would like to serve as pallbearers. Have you ever heard of such a thing? And even if you haven't, do you see anything wrong with it?

LOUISVILLE, KY.

DEAR LOUISVILLE: I have indeed heard of it, and there's no reason why your uncle's wishes should not be carried out when he is.

Home canning begins with good jars, lids

Have you had problems of spoilage of home canned foods? they may be used again. However the lid may be used only once.

Take a look at the jars and lids you have been using. Do the jars have chips or nicks at the top? If they do this can cause a poor seal — thus spoilage. Do not use these jars for canning.

Do you tighten the two piece lid as tight as you can get it before and after processing? If you do, this can cause the sealing material to be broken — and again spoilage.

What can you do? Run your finger around the tops of jars and inspect them visibly to make sure they are smooth and free from nicks and cracks. If two-piece, self-seal lids are used, follow the manufacturer's instructions in adjusting the lid and tightening the metal ring. After processing, when the canned product is thoroughly cool, take off the metal ring, if possible without forcing. If the ring sticks, cover it with a hot, damp cloth for a minute or two to loosen. Then wash them to prevent rust and

For the record

In Sunday's engagement announcement of Rhonda Johnston to Chris Simson, the caption was in error in stating the wedding date as July 1. The couple will marry August 1 in the First Presbyterian Church, Winnfield.

The Herald regrets the error and any inconvenience it may have caused.

MISS TEXAS T.E.E.N. SPEAKS TO REPRESENTATIVES — Felicia Ford spoke to the Texas House of Representatives in May, meeting Gov. Bill Clements, (left), and Robert Crippen and John Young, the astronauts, Larry Don Shaw and Bill Clayton, Speaker of the House, awarded her a Certificate of Achievement for her accomplishments at Miss Texas T.E.E.N. Miss Ford gave the representatives a short biographical sketch plus her experiences as Miss TEEN, expressing her appreciation to the people of Texas and to our representative, Larry Don Shaw and his secretary for the Austin trip.

Eskimos find profit under musk ox locks

By REBECCA KIRTLAND
National Geographic News Service
WASHINGTON — The musk ox, a shaggy ice age relic, is helping to relieve the desperate poverty of Alaskan arctic villages.

An expanding industry of raising musk oxen and knitting their wool now provides a substantial part of the livelihood for 24 villages in the tundra-coastal region and the Aleutian Islands.

The guiding force behind the industry is John J. Teal Jr., who has been credited with domesticating the first hoofed mammal in 5,000 years. The musk ox, known to the Eskimos as Oomingmak (the bearded one), has proved to be an intelligent and easily managed farm animal.

With its humped shoulders and dark brown hair nearly reaching the ground, the musk ox (Ovibus moschatus) looks like small, white-stocking bison in need of a haircut.

Its silky underwool,

"qiviut" to the Eskimos, is the thermal underwear that insulates the animal from the minus 60-degree F arctic temperatures. It is one of the finest animal fibers in the world. Remarkably light, warm, and strong, seven pounds of the wool — the amount shed by some bull each year — can be made into 100 scarves.

Qiviut is harvested in the spring when it works its way out past the shaggy guard hairs in long blanket-like strips. Teal says that during shedding a musk ox "appears to be carrying a sheep around on its back."

When the United States gave two musk oxen, named Matilda and Milton, to the Chinese people in 1972 in exchange for the famous pandas, the Chinese thought the oxen had a rare skin disease and refused to exhibit them until the shedding season ended.

What they were shedding may be the most expensive fiber in the world. "One cone of yarn, about 1½ pounds, produces a cash value in knitted items of $4,300," Teal said. And the musk ox farm in Unalakleet, Alaska, with 175 animals is producing 600-700 pounds of qiviut each year.

"Our biggest problem now is producing enough wool to meet market demand," he said. "Christmas orders nearly cleaned out our entire stock this year."

Qiviut is knitted into caps, scarves, tunics, and traditional Eskimo shawls known as "nachaq" ranging in price from $50 to $400.

Each item bears the name of the individual knitter and the unique design of the village based on its archeological artifacts. The knitting patterns have been translated into symbols so those natives who do not read are able to create the designs.

The Musk Ox Producers Cooperative, run by the herdsman and knitters, manages the arm, markets the products, and trains other Eskimos, Aleuts, and Indians in musk ox husbandry and knitting.

Its parent organization, the Institute of Northern Agricultural Research, was set up by Teal in 1954 "to use the natural resources of impoverished regions to provide cash income and employment to native peoples."

Teal said the cooperative is ready to embark on a major expansion. This year he expects to announce the location of two new musk ox farms in selected villages and in the next few years he hopes to provide herds of domesticated musk oxen to other villages that have requested them.

A former Harvard fullback, Teal has made a life's work of musk oxen. He studied them in the wild from 1947 to 1954, then captured some of the animals in northern Canada and took them to his 600-acre farm in Vermont for domestication. In 1964 he set up a breeding station in College, Alaska, and by 1975 had enough animals to establish the successful farm in Unalakleet.

Domestication has led to the production of up to one-third more wool per animal, earlier maturity for breeding, and the ability to bear offspring every year.

Teal also provided musk ox herds for breeding stations for the Inuit at Old Fort Chimo, Quebec, in 1967, and for the Laplanders in Bardu, Norway, in 1969. He now plans to establish a musk ox station on land in southwest Greenland that was Eric the Red's farm in the 10th century.

Hunted to extinction in Alaska in the mid-1800s, wild musk oxen were reintroduced to the Bering Sea island of Nunivak — where they thrive — by the U.S. Department of the Interior in the 1930s. Prehistorically, they ranged across North America and Eurasia, but their natural habitat is now limited to northern Canada and Greenland.

Teal insists that taming these wild, ferocious-looking beasts was easy. "They quickly develop trust in man and become docile, playful, affectionate, and fiendishly clever," he said.

"They respond to their own names when called, and they love to unlatch gates, play pushball, and ride on sleds. One can develop special friendships with individual musk oxen just as with dogs."

On the Unalakleet farm, musk oxen would push open the sliding barn door and go in to play at night, exposing the pipes to freezing temperatures.

Eskimos in northwest Greenland believe man descended from the musk ox.

Goodfellow AFB rededication set Saturday

SAN ANGELO — Goodfellow AFB will be rededicated during ceremonies set for 10 a.m. Saturday in front of the Wing Headquarters building. The base was officially opened 40 years ago during an Independence Day ceremony in the same location.

The base will be open to the public from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the Fourth with various activities scheduled throughout the day.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., and U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Tex., will be the principal speakers during the rededication ceremony. Many of the former wing commanders from Goodfellow will also be on hand for the event.

The formal observance will follow a military parade on the base flightline at 9 a.m. Reflecting the joint-service nature of Goodfellow's mission, the parade will feature marching units from all four services.

A flyover of World War II aircraft representing the various planes that have been assigned to Goodfellow over the 40-year period will climax the rededication ceremony.

SILKY UNDERWOOL — Man's new allies, musk oxen, live comfortably without shelter in arctic regions because they are insulated by silky underwool and the absence of sweat glands — except in their hind feet. The underwool, apparent on the bull at right, is shed naturally in the spring when it works its way past shaggy guard hairs and can be harvested as fine fiber.

Prince Charles the guy?

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles likely will be appointed governor-general of Australia soon, according to an author who wrote a widely praised biography of the prince.

Anthony Holden, who wrote the biography two years ago, confidently makes the claim in "Their Royal Highnesses," published this week to mark the prince's impending marriage to Lady Diana Spencer.

Charles-watchers long have speculated the prince might welcome the Australian assignment, and the topic came up again in April on Charles' latest visit down under. But a poll published at the "me in the Sydney Sun Herald said 51 percent of those interviewed were against Charles' becoming governor-general, who is the queen's representative in Australia.

Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser's scenario has him winning re-election in 1983 and the prince taking over "almost immediately" when the present governor-general, Sir Zelman Cowen, retires, according to Holden.

Cleveland loves Cosell

CLEVELAND (AP) — Howard Cosell is being honored with a key to the city, and the only reason appears to be that he once spoke highly of Cleveland on national television.

That's the response of Mayor George V. Voinovich's press office when asked why the ABC sportscaster was to be honored today with a Cleveland-wide Howard Cosell Day.

"When he was in for Monday night baseball, he did a commentary dealing mainly with Cleveland being an upgraded city — that Cleveland's sports teams are alive and well," said a Voinovich aide.

At a special ceremony, Cosell, 61, will receive the city's gold-colored brass key.

Evangelist ill with ulcers

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Evangelist Stanley Rader of the Worldwide Church of God is improving after being hospitalized for two bleeding ulcers, according to his representatives.

Rader, second in charge of the wealthy church founded in 1935 by Herbert W. Armstrong, was rushed to Huntington Memorial Hospital Monday, according to the Mahoney-Wasserman and Associates public relations firm.

Rader had been ailing for months, but because of a heavy schedule of travel in the Orient "he chose to ignore the pains that preliminary tests revealed to be two stomach ulcers," the news release said.

The 51-year-old Rader, who is Armstrong's right-hand man, was not scheduled for surgery, but doctors have not said when he could be discharged.

Singer ruptures stomach

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Jerry Lee Lewis was in critical but stable condition at a Memphis hospital recovering from emergency surgery for a ruptured stomach, according to his manager.

After he began spitting up blood at his ranch in Nesbit, Miss., Tuesday, Lewis was rushed by ambulance to Methodist Hospital South for four hours of surgery, manager J.W. Whitten said.

Whitten said Lewis, who is 45, was expected to remain in the intensive care unit for at least a week, and all concert appearances have been canceled for at least a month.

Tattoos put 'in weirdest places'

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — When "Harpoon" Barry Welch sees a woman's back, he says he tries not to think of it as skin.

"I think of it as my canvass," said the 33-year-old tattoo artist who says more women than ever are coming into his parlor to have colorful decorations permanently emblazoned on various parts of their bodies.

"It's not all just sailors and foreign people. Nowadays your everyday person is walking into a tattoo parlor — your middle aged housewife, your secretary," Welch says.

"I even had a 65-year-old retired schoolteacher. She said the only reason she wanted a tattoo was for conversation at her bridge party," said Welch, who has a wooden leg and could pass as a pirate in a movie about swashbucklers.

The walls of his parlor on 20th Street are plastered with hundreds of patterns waiting to be placed by a special ink needle on arms, chests, hips, breasts, thighs, fingers, toes and other places on the human body.

"Some people want them in the weirdest places," Welch said. "One guy wanted a bird on his ankle."

He said young girls often get small tattoos on their buttocks so their parents won't know they have them.

The old standby — a heart with "mother" or a girl's name printed in the middle — is still a popular tattoo, Welch said.

"My girlfriend has "mother" on her right arm," Welch said. "I put it there myself."

But a rose or a rosebud is the most asked for tattoo for women customers at Harpoon Barry's Tattoo Parlor, he said.

"Usually they want it on their back or on a breast," he said. "I had four girls come in one day and each one wanted it someplace different."

Men usually want birds, especially eagles, he said.

He said the state of the art has become much safer with the use of sterile ink and a sterile needle, which is attached to a machine that works like a jackhammer, repeatedly puncturing the skin and depositing small amounts of color.

"You have to forget about it being someone's skin you are working on," Welch said. "I try to think of it as my canvass."

His customers relax in a coin studded barber chair while Welch, a former seaman who learned tattooing from a veteran artist in Houston, puts permanent images on their skin.

"When they ask us if we can remove them, we tell them no," Welch said. "But we'll try to camouflage them."

Welch fits the image of a seaport tattoo artist with his peg leg and the images of dragons, parrots and eagles covering his own body. He even used to work on the high seas, as a crewman on a cargo ship.

But he did not lose his leg to battling pirates for buried treasure. It was the result of a traffic accident on a Galveston street.

Robbers force accidents to set up their victims

HOUSTON (AP) — Police say they have five suspects in custody in a "bump and snatch" robbery scheme to cause traffic accidents and take money from people driving away from banks.

Detectives said Tuesday they arrested five men during the weekend who they say purposely ran into the unsuspecting victims' cars, then took cash at gunpoint and fled.

"They see somebody getting money at a bank, tap in the back of their car, start an argument about getting in an accident, pull a gun and snatch the money," said Detective W.W. Holt.

Patrolman Gary W. Bailey, who helped arrest the latest five suspects, including four in one car after a high-speed chase, said there is really little the average citizen can do to prevent such crimes.

"Just be careful. Be on the lookout," he said. "The thing that scares me most of all is that it's so easy to do. They sometimes come up from behind. Bam! Bam! And they're gone."

Bailey said the victims are usually so startled that they cannot give police good descriptions of the robber.

"In one case we had a DPS (state police) officer get robbed of $2,300 after he was rear-ended and then struck on the head from behind and knocked out. When he came to, we had to tell him he had been robbed — he didn't know what had happened," Bailey said.

He said the forced traffic accident gimmick is the latest twist in what he said was a growing crime problem in Houston — robberies of bank customers who have just made cash withdrawals.

The five weekend arrests brought to 23 the number of arrests of people suspected of such robberies in the past two months, he said. He said all 23 suspects were in jail on various charges. Police believe most of the arrests are not connected, although the five jailed during the weekend were believed part of a loosely organized ring.

He said "bump-and-snatch" robbers have also started boldly stealing cars from self-service gasoline stations.

"You've just bought some gas and you're paying the cashier when you see someone else drive your car away," Bailey said. "All they look for is one person in a car, and they like to steal the newer cars."

Holt said a motorist involved in a minor accident who becomes suspicious that he is about to be robbed should drive away and report the incident to police, but if you're scared and think you're about to be shot, I'd say taking care of No. 1 is most important."

FROM WHITE HOUSE TO T.V. — Steve Ford, right, son of former President and Mrs. Gerald Ford, is pictured in Los Angeles Tuesday with actress Melody Thomas. The younger Ford will begin appearing in the CBS television series "The Young and the Restless," portraying the role of Andy, a bartender.

Government tries to block Mandrell concert

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Contending that a July 10 outdoor concert featuring Barbara Mandrell and other country stars would violate restrictions on use of Indian land, the federal government has filed a federal court suit to block the concert.

The government's petition, filed Tuesday in U.S. District Judge Fred Daugherty's court, asks the court to enjoin Oceanside Oklahoma from conducting a concert on Indian land and from "introducing, attempting to introduce or possessing any intoxicating liquors, including beer, in Indian country."

Kathleen Flanagan, assistant U.S. attorney, said "The 1981 Music Explosion" is to be held 14 miles east of Norman on land the government holds in trust for Indians.

Norman lawyer Lee Cate, representing concert promoters, said the problems can be solved and the concert will go on as planned.

He said his clients had not been served with copies of the petitions.

Cate said promoters of the concert are planning to buy the property held in trust for a Kiowa Indian named Elliott Gallagher as soon as restrictions can be lifted through action of the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

The government contends a lease agreement executed with Indians for restricted land isn't valid unless the Interior Department approves it.

Ms. Flanagan said such approval has not been obtained for the property where the concert is to be staged, although "Oceanside Oklahoma," a corporation promoting the concert, has obtained a proper lease for nearby land to be used for a water-oriented amusement park it plans to open next year.

The lawsuit also contends it would be a violation of federal law to sell alcoholic beverages on Indian land. Concert promoters said earlier they planned to order 1,000 kegs of beer for a crowd they hope will reach 50,000 during the day-long show.

The government also expressed fear the 200 security guards promoters planned to hire could not control the crowd and that damage could occur to the graves of several tribal chiefs buried in the area.

Bad news for Georgia foes; Walker, Belue back to repeat

NEW YORK (AP) — That huge sigh of relief emanating from Athens, Ga., means that All-American tailback Herschel Walker and All-Southeastern Conference quarterback Buck Belue will be back this fall to help the Georgia Bulldogs defend their national college football championship.

There was some doubt about that during the spring when Walker, a sophomore, was being wooed by the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League and Belue, a senior, was batting 348 for the Georgia baseball team with an eye on the major league draft.

"I listened to them," Walker, who rushed for 1,616 yards last fall, a national record for a freshman, said of the Montreal offer. "But I figured I was born in America and I lived here all my life and I had the opportunity to continue playing in America no matter what the classification."

Even turning down big bucks wasn't a problem. "I don't need any money," Walker said. "Money won't keep you happy all your life. It takes more than money — it takes friends and family."

Belue, an outfielder who was drafted out of high school by the Chicago White Sox, wasn't selected in last month's baseball draft. That made it an easy decision to return to Georgia.

"A lot of baseball people wanted me to make a commitment before the draft," he said. "When it came down to it, I didn't really want to pass up my senior year. I've got a chance to be drafted again next year. The variables would have had to be 100 percent right for me not to be back at Georgia, and it didn't turn out like that. Also, your senior year in college is really special."

Belue, who worked at a couple of football camps this month, will be back in Athens in 10 days or so to start preparing for the 1981 season. Walker, meanwhile, is heading for Europe and a track tour — he's a world-class sprinter — and won't return to Georgia much before the start of fall practice in mid-August.

When Georgia, which beat Notre Dame in the Sugar

Bowl, opens its season on Sept. 5, Walker undoubtedly will be a marked man.

"I've heard people say that, but I never think about it," he said. "I just go out and play and whatever happens I'll try to live with it."

Both players know that Georgia, overlooked for the most part at the start of the 1980 season, will not sneak up on anyone this year.

"At the start of 1980, I don't think anyone really expected us to win the national championship," said Belue. "It will definitely be tougher the second time around. A lot of teams will be gunning for us. But when you've been at the top, you always want to return. The only way to top last year is to

As baseball mess continues

Players file default suit against owners for non-pay

By the Associated Press

Bargaining resumed today for the first time in four days in the major league baseball strike which has almost certainly claimed the July 4th holiday weekend among its casualties and now is threatening the July 14 All-Star Game.

Unless a settlement can be reached by this weekend, it is unlikely that the players could return in time for the All-Star contest, scheduled for Cleveland Stadium. The players have said they would require 2 1/2 days of work time for each week of the strike, now in its 20th day.

An All-Star Game cancellation would cost the city about $4 million in revenue, according to Cleveland civic leaders.

Fifteen games were wiped out Tuesday, pushing the walkout's toll to 236 since June 12.

On Tuesday night, Texas Rangers owner Eddie Chiles expressed displeasure once again with the efforts of the owners' chief negotiator, Ray Grebey.

Grebey had said last Saturday that Chiles and Edward Bennett Williams, owner of the Baltimore Orioles, were the only dissidents among the 26 owners. But Chiles replied: "Things have been so bad that maybe Mr. Grebey should take another poll and check to see if the owners really were backing him."

Chiles admitted, though, that he has not been in contact with other owners, didn't know how many might agree with him and would not say whether Grebey should be replaced.

In a strike-related matter, the Major League Baseball Players Association has filed default notices on behalf of eight players who contend they should be getting paid during the strike. Once such a notice has been filed, the club has 10 days to remedy the default or the player becomes a free agent.

The eight are Joel Youngblood of the New York Mets, David Palmer and Steve Rogers of Montreal, Bill Madlock of Pittsburgh, Larry Hise of Milwaukee, John Montefusco of Atlanta, Bert Blyleven of Cleveland and Bruce Robinson of the New York Yankees.

In the cases of Rogers and Blyleven, both players' salaries are paid over more than the six months of the season. The Expos paid Rogers and the Indians paid Blyleven under protest. Hise, Madlock and Montefusco say they have guaranteed contracts with no specific language indicating they would not be paid during a strike. Youngblood, Palmer and Robinson are on the disabled list (as is Hise) and say they should be getting paid.

The only positive sign in the strike Tuesday came when federal mediator Kenneth Moffett announced a resumption of talks at New York City's Doral Inn for 2 p.m. Moffett refused to comment on today's session or whether there had been any indication of movement from either management or the union which might have caused him to schedule the session, the first since last Friday when talks broke off.

But it was learned that the full Player Relations Committee had met with Grebey Tuesday, an indication that perhaps the owners were prepared to make a new proposal.

Last week the two sides met three times. On Wednesday, the owners revised certain criteria for defining ranking free agents who would qualify for professional player compensation. They reduced their guidelines, saying that instead of 50 and 33 percent of all free agents requiring compensation, they would accept 40 and 25 percent. But Donald Fehr, general counsel of the players association, termed the change "minimal and not anything that would lead to a settlement."

On Thursday, the players answered the owners' modifying their pool proposal to allow teams to protect 36 players from their entire system instead of only from the 40-man roster. The players also accepted an owner concept that if a team did not participate in the re-entry draft, it would not be required to supply any players for the compensation pool.

On Friday, the two sides met again with no discernable progress and no talks have been held since then.

After the final meeting last week, Rogers of the Expos said the players would not return to the bargaining table until the owners had something new to offer.

But on Tuesday, Fehr appeared to back off that position somewhat, saying, "If we come up with something new and different, we're not holding it back."

Shortly after that, Moffett announced the new talks.

The renewed negotiations come one day after the players missed their first paychecks. The strike began June 12 but players were paid on June 15 for the games played over the first 11 days of the month. The average major league salary is $180,000, about $1,000 daily. That means Tuesday's missed checks averaged about $15,000. They were more than that for the superstars and considerably less for the players earning the major league minimum of $32,500.

Star pork and rice in July 4 patio picnic

Feasting on the Fourth with friends and family

FOR A SPECIAL MEAL — Serve Pork Loin Roast, prepared in the versatile Weber Barbecue Kettle, with Summer Garden Rice Salad. Celebrate July 4 with traditional recipes.

Picnics are as much a part of America's Independence Day celebration as local parades. The Fourth of July is a day when families, friends and neighbors gather round the outdoor grill to enjoy the weather and share summer's bounty while awaiting dusk and dazzling fireworks displays.

For an exciting change of cookout menu, serve popular pork with a spectacular rice accompaniment. Pork supplies are high this year, which means that pork cuts suitable for outdoor cooking — roasts, ribs, hams, steaks, chops and cubes for kabobs — are especially kind to your food budget. Rice is another food dollar stretcher. Uncle Ben's Converted Brand Rice yields more servings per cup of uncooked rice than other products. It remains in separate, plump grains, even when chilled or frozen and reheated.

Count the compliments when you serve an elegant Peach Glazed Pork Loin Roast, cooked to perfection in the Weber kettle. Be sure to allow for second servings.

If your group numbers more than 5 or 6, you'll need two roasts. The sweet-sour glaze compliments the pork flavor.

Summer Garden Rice Salad adds color and crunch with its unusual combination of vegetables. The rice is cooked ahead, then chilled, so at serving time a quick toss with vegetables and nuts is all that's required.

A menu sure to please those gathered 'round the picnic table includes Summertime Pork Kabobs with Celebration Rice. Economical cubes of pork, cut from the boneless shoulder, marinated overnight in a flavorful pineapple juice mixture, share the skewers with nectarines and red peppers. These tender, juicy broiled kabobs are the perfect partner for the onion-tomato-olive flecked rice.

To please a crowd with a bit of showmanship, serve Crowd Pleasin' Pork Fried Rice prepared in a large Wok, an accessory to the Weber barbecue kettle.

Prepare recipe ingredients in advance so that after the Wok has been heated over the coals, a few minutes of cooking time will provide a one-dish meal that will satisfy the heartiest appetites.

PEACH GLAZED PORK LOIN ROAST

- 4 to 6 pound pork loin roast
- 1/2 cup peach preserves
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 1/4 cup catsup
- 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard

1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
When coals are ready, set drip pan in place between them on the lower grill directly under where the roast will be placed. Insert roast meat thermometer so bulb is centered in the thickest part. Make certain bulb does not rest in fat or on bone. Center roast, fat side up, on outdoor grill over drip pan after coals are ash covered. Partially close bottom dampers, if necessary to control heat.

Cover kettle (leaving top damper open) and cook roast until meat thermometer registers 365 degrees F., allowing 17 to 19 minutes per pound. Combine peach be removed easily by running the carving knife along the edge of the roast before the meat is placed on the platter to be carved. For 2 roasts, double ingredients for glaze.

Note: The roast can be cooked by indirect method (low heat) in a gas kettle. Conventional Directions Place roast, fat side up, on rack in open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so bulb is centered in the thickest part. Make certain bulb does not rest in fat or on bone. Do not add water; do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) until the thermometer registers 165 degrees F.; allow 30 to 35 minutes per pound. Brush glaze on roast during the last 20 minutes of cooking time.

SUMMER GARDEN RICE SALAD

- 1 cup Uncle Ben's Converted Brand Rice
- 1/2 cup Italian dressing
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- 2 cups firmly packed fresh spinach leaves, cut in thin strips
- 1 cup sliced radishes
- 1 medium zucchini, cut in thin strips
- 3/4 cup sliced celery
- 1/4 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

Cook rice according to package directions. Transfer to bowl. Combine dressing, soy sauce and sugar; stir into hot cooked rice. Cover and chill thoroughly. Before serving, add vegetables and nuts; toss lightly. Serve on salad greens. 8 to 10 servings.

SUMMERTIME PORK KABOBS

- 2 pounds boneless pork shoulder, cut in 1 to 1-1/4-inch cubes
- 1 cup pineapple juice
- 1-3 cup oil
- 3 tablespoons brown sugar
- 6 whole allspice, crushed

Have the meat retailer loosen the chine (back) bone by sawing across the rib bones. When roasting is finished, the back bone can

- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 3 nectarines, each cut in 8 pieces
- 2 medium red peppers, each cut in 12 pieces

Combine pineapple juice, oil, brown sugar, allspice, garlic and salt in small saucepan; cook slowly 10 minutes. Cool. Place pork cubes in utility dish or plastic bag; add marinade, turning cubes to coat. Cover dish or tie bag securely and marinate in refrigerator 4 to 6 hours (or overnight), turning at least once. Pour off and reserve marinade. Thread pork on six 12-inch skewers, leaving space between cubes. Arrange ash-covered coals in a sparse layer, allowing space between them. Place kabobs on the grill, cover and cook 25 to 35 minutes or until done, turning and brushing with reserved marinade occasionally. Push cubes together; thread nectarines and red pepper pieces on skewers during last 10 minutes of cooking time. 6 servings.

CELEBRATION RICE

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2-3 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup Uncle Ben's Converted Brand Rice
- 2 cups water
- 1/2 cup dry white wine
- 1-1/2 teaspoons garlic salt
- 1 teaspoon basil
- 1 medium tomato, chopped
- 1/2 cup sliced ripe olives

Melt butter in large saucepan; add onion and cook until tender, but not brown. Add rice, water, wine and seasonings; stir. Bring to a boil. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes. Stir in tomato and olives. Remove from heat. Let stand, covered, until all liquid is absorbed, about 5 minutes. 6 servings.

CROWD PLEASIN' PORK FRIED RICE

- 3 cups Uncle Ben's Converted Brand Rice
- 6 pork blade steaks, cut 3/4 inch thick (4 to 4-1/2 pounds)
- 1/2 pound bacon, cut in 1-inch pieces
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1/2 cup soy sauce
- 1 package (10 ounces)

frozen peas, defrosted 8 green onions, cut in 2-inch diagonal pieces

Cook rice according to package directions; chill. Remove bones from pork steaks and cut meat into strips 1/4 to 1/2 inch wide and 2 inches long. Cook bacon in Wok over high heat; remove and drain on absorbent paper. Remove all but approximately 1-3 cup bacon drippings. Stir-fry pork strips and garlic in Wok (1-3 at a time) until well done, pushing cooked meat to one side; stir in soy sauce. Add rice, peas and green onions and stir-fry 5 minutes or until heated through. Add bacon, tossing lightly to combine. Serve immediately. 10 to 12 servings.

Vietnamese cadet 'General Hung' at West Point

NEW YORK (AP) — A 17-year-old who checks into the military academy on the banks of the Hudson River Wednesday was 5 1/2 years ago a refugee from America's most unpopular war—and unable to say even "yes" and "no" in English. Hung Vu is one of the first two Southeast Asian refugees to be accepted into the ranks of this country's military elite as a citizen—a brand new citizen as of June 1.

For the quiet, personable youth, joining "the long, gray line" is the crowning achievement of what he called "the most difficult years" of his life, starting Oct. 9, 1975, when he arrived here with his family, confused, homeless and depressed.

For his father, Tu Vu—a 10-year Vietnam Air Force veteran, three-time refugee and "stateless person" for five years—it caps the dream he has had for his family since war forced them to move from North Vietnam to South Vietnam in 1954, to neighboring Laos in 1968 and to France in May 1975, days before South Vietnam fell to the communists.

Aided by the Catholic Relief Services, for whom Tu Vu has worked both in Laos and Manhattan, the family reached the United States five months later.

Life was not easy. Tu Vu worked a second job as a United Nations security guard to support his wife and two children. He helped his wife shop until she learned English through a night course. Hung "didn't even know how to say 'yes' or 'no' when he arrived," the Rev. Robert Charlebois, Tu Vu's employer, said.

"At first it was so frustrating," Hung said. "For my first (school) report I had to look up almost every word from the dictionary, and I couldn't understand the questions on the tests."

But within six months of his arrival, Hung had decided one thing—he wanted a military career.

"My friends think I'm crazy and joke that I'm ultra-conservative, but they still respect me," said the honors graduate of Newtown High School in Queens.

Perhaps because of the war he survived, national defense is one of Hung's deep interests. His convictions, expressed in a mature, three-page statement on why he wanted to attend West Point, were what impressed the admissions board "right off the bat," said Capt. Blanche Mazur, his admissions officer.

He wrote about freedom and the fear of losing it. He also expressed fear that the citizens of his new country may not care.

"Most young men no longer feel responsible for fighting for this nation's freedom, the freedom that has made America what it is today—the greatest nation on Earth," he wrote.

Perhaps, he said, America is in this "confused" state because they are not being offered leadership. "I am willing to be a part of that leadership," he wrote.

"We don't get that many thought-provoking letters," Ms. Mazur said. "Oh, we get some applicants talking about patriotism, but you could tell his was genuine and you knew where it came from. Plus, there was no extra credit he had to be given. He earned everything himself."

His long list of achievement includes a four-year grade-point average of 90.97, a state Regents scholarship, Scholastic Aptitude Test marks of 520 in English and 620 in math out of a perfect 800, and membership in the Civil Air Patrol, the National Honor Society and student government.

All this is in addition to working four days a week, four hours a day at his neighborhood pharmacy.

Hung was accepted into the largest-ever class of plebes, 1,550 men and women chosen from among 11,000 applicants. With him will be another Vietnamese refugee—turned citizen, Jean Nguyen from Milton, Pa.

"Her father and I were in the same unit in Vietnam and I can hardly wait to meet her," Maj. Mack Brooks of the admissions office said, adding that Miss Nguyen is "superiorly motivated."

In his easy-going way, Hung will tell a visitor the same about himself. He wants to work as a Pentagon weapons analyst. His major interests are politics and civil and aerospace engineering—both of which he intends to major in at West Point. Someday he wants to work for the CIA.

"I have a lot of ambitions," he said with a small smile.

He will tell you how American he feels. His friends will tell you how American he acts.

In a yearbook filled with scribbled farewell notes over class pictures is a longer than usual message from Hung's good friend, John Strugaru:

"General Hung," it begins. "A misleading name. You would think Hung belongs somewhere in the Orient, right? Wrong! Hung belongs in the inner depths of America's tradition."

"As a congressman," Strugaru adds grandly, "I'll propose a bill to add you to the motto: 'French fries, apple pie, Chevrolet' and now 'Hung.'"

Retiring World Bank Leader warns of foreign aid cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara retires today as president of the World Bank with a warning that slashing foreign aid would endanger not only help for the poorest nations but the United States' own vital interests.

McNamara is completing 13 years at the head of the 139-nation bank. He is working to the end to convince a skeptical Congress and American public that foreign aid is not a budget item to be tossed out in times of austerity, but a crucial investment in the economic, political and strategic well-being of the United States.

In an interview Monday, McNamara said the House created serious problems last week when it approved a 1982 federal budget that would more than halve U.S. payments to the International Development Association. The IDA is a bank affiliate that provides subsidized loans to the world's poorest nations.

"For all practical purposes it leaves IDA totally bankrupt and the outlook would be very bad, indeed," McNamara said.

Since IDA contributions made by 23 other nations are computed on the size of the U.S. share, which is fixed at 27 percent, "it would require a complete renegotiation of the agreement under which the other governments are committed to provide funds," he said.

McNamara resigned as defense secretary in 1968 — at the height of the Vietnam War — to assume the bank presidency. On Monday, he said there would be strategic repercussions if the United States continues reducing its aid to poor nations, a trend that has been going on for two decades.

"If they (poor countries) fail to produce the food and energy they are capable of, the pressure on scarce supplies of food and energy will raise prices; it will stimulate inflation in our country," he said.

"If they have economic disorder, it translates into political disorder, and political disorder in various parts of the world overflows and affects us strategically."

Two years ago, the United States promised to contribute $3.24 billion to the IDA over a three-year period, beginning in 1981. The House, however, voted to limit the contribution to $1.34 billion.

New type of mortgage will help young homebuyers

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Buying that first home is harder than ever, but a new type of mortgage can help young families over the early hurdles.

The graduated payment mortgage, also known as the GPM, is designed for people who do not earn enough right now to qualify for a regular mortgage, but whose income is expected to rise sharply over the next few years.

In exchange for lower monthly payments during the early years of the GPM, the buyer pays a higher total price over the long run than he or she would with a traditional loan.

High interest rates and high prices have pinched young buyers in particular because they do not have the profit from the sale of an existing home to reinvest in a new house.

A survey by the U.S. League of Savings Association showed that in 1979 first-time homebuyers made up less than one-fifth of the market. In 1977, more than one-third of the homebuyers were purchasing their first house.

Those buyers who did manage a first home in 1979 generally earned more than the average. Almost 45 percent of them had a median income of over $25,000, while median family income for the country as a whole was just under $20,000. Almost two-thirds of the first-time homebuyers had two incomes in the family.

The graduated payment mortgage was developed by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The program was introduced in 1977, but originally applied only to those mortgages which were insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

Late in 1978, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board authorized federally chartered savings and loan associations to offer GPMs and the concept spread.

There are no figures available on the number of graduated payment mortgages outstanding. But Tom Bacon of the Department of Housing and Urban Development said that the FHA had insured 271,670 of the mortgages since 1977, including almost 100,000 in 1980 alone.

With a graduated payment mortgage you are, in effect, borrowing more money during the early years of the loan in order to reduce those payments. That money is added to the outstanding principal and is paid off in the later years through the higher monthly payments.

There are five types of graduated payment plans. The monthly payment can increase to its maximum over a period of anywhere from 5 to 10 years and it can rise by anywhere from 2½ percent to 7½ percent annually.

The most frequently used plan provides for 7½ percent increases for five years. Here is an example from Bacon of how it would work:

Suppose you borrow $67,000 — the maximum allowed — for 30 years at 16 percent interest. With a conventional mortgage, your monthly payment would be $907.71. Your payments over 360 months would total just about $326,776.

Here is what your monthly payments would be with a graduated payment mortgage:

- First year: $715.
- Second year: $769.
- Third year: $826.
- Fourth year: $888.
- Fifth year: $955.

Sixth through 30th years: $1,026.

Over the 30-year period, you would pay $357,636 — almost $31,000 more than you would with a conventional mortgage. In exchange, however, during the first five years of the GPM you would pay just under $50,000, compared to the approximately $54,500 you would need for a conventional mortgage.

You also would need a much smaller annual income to qualify for the loan — about $35,000 based on a monthly payment of $715 versus more than $43,000 based on a monthly payment of $907.71.

The GPM, like conventional mortgages, has gotten much more expensive in recent years. Only two years ago, the example used by the Department of Housing and Urban Development to explain the graduated payment plan involved a $50,000, 30-year mortgage at 9 percent. The monthly payment for the first year of the loan was just under $304, less than half the monthly payment in the current example.

A growing number of lenders are combining the graduated payment mortgage with the flexible rate feature of other types of loans, offering a sort of hybrid called the GPAM.

As with the GPM, the monthly payments for the GPAM are lower than they would be with a conventional mortgage. But the interest rate, instead of remaining fixed, is allowed to fluctuate according to a fixed schedule, usually every three or four or five years. There is also generally a ceiling on the amount by which the monthly payment can increase in any given year.

Demos using losers' language in laments over budget defeat

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — In their laments over President Reagan's budget victory, House Democratic leaders have accused him of distorting the legislative process and reviving an imperial presidency.

That's the language of losers.

And the rhetoric skirts one simple, central fact: Reagan lined up a majority to beat the Democrats on their own territory. In the House, the majority rules, even though if the majority party loses.

So with solid Republican support and the votes of 29 Democrats on the key test of strength, Reagan preserved his budget-cutting package, then got it passed.

"Because a man who does not understand or know our process sends it over, are we to take it in bulk?" asked House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr.

The answer is yes, if the man has the votes. And he had them.

Reagan and his lieutenants showed that they do, too, know the process, perhaps too well for the Democrats to handle. The administration lobbied, bargained, made maximum use of the president's own persuasive powers and lined up narrow margins for victory in a House nominally controlled by Democrats.

All the Democratic leaders could do was protest, which they did in volume.

The administration victory was magnified for the fact that it was fashioned around a procedural question, that being whether to handle the Reagan budget cuts as a package or in a half-dozen separate votes on specific spending reductions. Reagan almost surely would have lost some in item-by-item votes.

There was a time when an administration that tried to write procedures for the House would have been courting trouble; an earlier congressional generation used to guard against intrusions into that province by administrations of either party.

No president, no president in the history of the United States — not Franklin Roosevelt, not Lyndon Johnson, not George Washington or Thomas Jefferson — ever demanding of the Congress that we lie down submissively and give him every last detail just as his minions ordain it," said House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas. "Has the Congress of the United States — the last repository of the people's will — come to the point that we are willing to let an appointed official in the Office of Management and Budget dictate every last scintilla, every last phrase of the law, to tell us what precise provisions we may and may not pass in carrying out his mandate to reduce by $36 billion the cost of government?"

But it was the elected president, not the appointed OMB Director David A. Stockman, who demanded the budget package be approved intact. Reagan made it stick with the help of nine of Wright's Democratic colleagues from Texas, who voted with the Republican administration.

Directors OK contract offer, avoiding strike

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Film and television writers, whose strike against major producers still threatens the start of the fall TV season, were isolated by a sister union when directors voted overwhelmingly to accept a new contract and avert a midnight walkout that would have crippled the industry.

The vote by the Directors Guild of America came shortly before 11 p.m. Tuesday during an overflow meeting at the Hollywood Palladium. Most of the three-hour meeting was devoted to an explanation of the new contract with movie studios, independent producers and three television networks.

Ms. Nigro-Chacon said the best aspect of the agreement from her committee's viewpoint was a non-discrimination article — the first ever in a guild contract — that calls for an arbitration procedure for grievances from women and minorities. She called that provision a "tremendous victory."

Hollywood's happy summer for real

NEW YORK (AP) — Superman stole the show, and James Bond got a nice welcome. But there wasn't too much left for The Muppets during Hollywood's biggest weekend ever at the box office.

Americans spent $56,101,095 at the movies last weekend, the trade publication Variety reported today, making it the biggest single weekend in box office history.

But like some moviegoers, a few new movies found they'll have to wait in line to enjoy the public's renewed interest in film. Action adventures like "Superman II" and "Raiders of the Lost Ark," which both opened in mid-June, continue to draw the biggest crowds — and the most money.

Later releases, like Universal's "The Great Muppet Caper" and Paramount's "Dragonslayer," which opened Friday, didn't find expected audiences, movie company executives say.

"The Great Muppet Caper," a sequel to "The Muppet Movie," grossed $2.8 million during the weekend, while "Dragonslayer" pulled in $2.5 million. Both were aimed at the youth market.

"We're disappointed," said Gordon Armstrong, vice president of advertising for Universal. "We thought we'd open like gangbusters."

The original Muppet movie grossed $32 million.

"There are so many top films in the market place, films like the 'Muppet Caper' are getting the small portion of the pie," Armstrong added. "Looking back with hindsight, we probably should have waited a month to get out of competition with these powerhouse films."

Not all of the weekend's new entries were disappointments. Columbia Pictures' "Stripes," starring former "Saturday Night Live" comic Bill Murray, took in $6.1 million. The new James Bond film from United Artists, "For Your Eyes Only," grossed $6.9 million.

While respectable, "Stripes" and the latest Bond adventure didn't approach the $14 million that "Superman II" made in its opening weekend. "Superman II" continues to be the summer's biggest moneymaker. The man of steel has grossed $36,389,529 in 11 days.

Directors of CRMWD to open bids

Directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District will open bids Tuesday for oil and gas leases on two tracts in Coke County.

The district has all the minerals under a 560-acre tract and half those under a nearby 160-acre parcel.

Other business will include the appointment of members of the Employees Pension Trust Committee, execution of right of way easements, reports from the manager and legal counsel.

Washington mayor OK after not being shot

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mayor Marion Barry was "as surprised as anybody" to hear the news bulletin that he had been shot. It was a hoax, and a television anchorman admitted to his viewers: "We've been had, folks."

James Taylor, said he was phoning from the mayor's command post and left a return number that later turned out to be a public telephone booth. When a reporter for the station immediately called the number, Van Messel said, a man answered as the mayor's command post and said Barry was being taken to the hospital at Andrews Air Force Base. "In our case, a number was stuck under somebody's nose," Van Messel said. "He asked some questions and when we got some answers, the question was whether to go with the story."

Barry heard the bulletin at the home of his legal adviser, Herbert Reed. "I was as surprised as anybody else," the mayor said later at a news conference in front of his southeast Washington home. "I think it's a horrible way to play a joke."

WRC went on the air with a news bulletin, moments before stations WJLA and WDVM. Van Messel said his station's reporters then found another number for the command center and called it. "The cops knew nothing, the hospital knew nothing. All of a sudden things started to fall apart," he said. Mrs. Barry said she was numb from the experience. "I think that this is probably one of the worst tricks you can play on anybody," she said. "It's possible, it's real that we have crazy people in this world."

There was, in fact, a shooting Monday night about a block from the mayor's home. Acting Police Chief Maurice Turner said an off-duty police sergeant shot himself in the side when a .22-caliber gun in his hip pocket discharged accidentally earlier in the evening. It is not known, however, if that incident prompted the hoax telephone call. James Van Messel, executive news producer at NBC-owned WRC-TV, said someone called the network desk there about 9:45 p.m. EDT to say the mayor had been shot and police had two suspects in custody. The caller, who identified himself as

Farm commodity price index dropping

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite some improvement in the livestock market, the government's overall price index for farm commodities dropped last month, largely because of lower prices for grain and soybeans. The Agriculture Department said Tuesday that the price index declined 0.7 percent in June but still averaged 11 percent higher than a year ago. Officials said lower prices for wheat, soybeans, corn, hay and lettuce led the decline. However, higher prices for hogs, tomatoes, potatoes, broilers and turkeys helped offset the decline for the other commodities, the department's Crop Reporting Board said. Meanwhile, the prices farmers pay to meet expenses rose 0.7 percent from May and averaged 10 percent above a year ago. Higher prices for farm equipment and family living items contributed most to the increase during the month, while lower prices were reported for feed and fuel, the report said.

Vegetable prices at the farm dropped 10 percent from a month earlier, with lower prices for lettuce, celery and onions accounting for most of it, the report said. Higher prices for tomatoes partially offset the decline. Compared with a year ago, the overall index was up 4 percent. Department economists predict retail food prices will go up an average of about 10 percent this year, compared with an 8.6 percent increase in 1980, the smallest one-year gain since 1977. After sagging earlier this year, livestock prices are expected to move up gradually and help boost overall food prices in the second half of 1981, compared with their relatively slow gains in the first half. Farm prices in June averaged 141 percent of a 1977 base price average now used for comparison, according to the preliminary figures. The June parity ratio was 62 percent, down one point from May but the same as a year ago. At 100 percent, the indicator would mean, theoretically, that farmers have the same buying power they had in 1910-14. For example, the average actual price of wheat in June, according to the preliminary figures, was $3.67 a bushel. That was 52 percent of the June parity price for wheat of $7.11 a bushel. The report also said: —Cattle averaged $59.10 per 100 pounds of live weight nationally, compared with $49.90 in May and $61.10 in June 1980. Those are averages for all types of cattle sold as beef. —Hogs averaged $47.20 per 100 pounds, compared with $40.90 in May and $3.10 a year ago. —Corn, at $3.16 a bushel, compared with $3.24 in May and $2.49 a year ago. —Wheat prices at the farm, according to the preliminary figures, averaged $3.67 a bushel, compared with $3.95 in May and $3.69 a year ago. —Rice averaged $12.70 per 100 pounds, compared with $13.30 in May and $10.20 in June 1980. —Soybeans were $6.99 a bushel against $7.42 in May and $5.91 a year ago. —Upland cotton was 72.9 cents a pound on a national average, compared with 72.3 in May and 62.8 a year ago. —Eggs were 57.1 cents a dozen, compared with 56.3 in May and 48.9 a year ago. —Broiler chickens, at 29.2 cents a pound, compared with 28.2 in May and 25.1 cents a year ago.

Soviets looking on as China mends southern India fence

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Soviet Union was an interested but absent party as its ally India and its adversary China agreed Sunday to improve relations and negotiate an end to their 20-year border dispute. The opening to China, long discussed and long awaited, was a momentous step for India. Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and her associates were obviously concerned about disturbing Moscow, a major military and industrial supplier. In advance of the weekend visit by Huang Hua, the Chinese vice premier and foreign minister, Mrs. Gandhi's government declared that revival of friendship with China would not be at the expense of any other country. Diplomatic sources said she stressed this privately to the Soviet Union. Recent reports from Peking said the Chinese government realizes it cannot woo India away from the Soviet Union because it cannot replace Soviet aid and expertise. But the opening to China is expected to provide Mrs. Gandhi with more room for maneuver in her relationship with Moscow, a relationship that thus far has restrained her from publicly condemning the Soviets by name for intervention in Afghanistan. It is also expected to raise India's stock in the non-aligned movement. This has been damaged by India's recognition of the Heng Samrin government in Cambodia, which the Soviet Union and Vietnam support; most non-aligned countries follow China's lead in recognizing the Pol Pot government which the Vietnamese ousted. Analysts here said China wants to strengthen ties with India because of its conflict with the Soviet Union and its concern over Soviet expansion in South Asia. Huang's visit to New Delhi was part of a major diplomatic effort to strengthen Chinese relations throughout South Asia. After a visit today to the Taj Mahal, he was going to Sri Lanka and the Maldives, two island republics in the Indian Ocean. Earlier Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang visited three neighbors of India — Pakistan, Bangladesh and Nepal.

Church bond agreement discussed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State officials and attorneys for a Wichita Falls church continue to put finishing touches on an agreement that would possibly prohibit the church from selling bonds cited as potentially fraudulent. A State Securities Board official wants to block the sale of $300,000 in bonds issued by the Northwest Christian Center of the Assemblies of God. Lee Polson, the board's director of enforcement, alleges that the bonds would be fraudulent because the church is in "precarious financial condition."
