3 men break out of Midland jail

By BILLELDER

Midland County law enforcement officers were searching for three men who broke out of the Midland County jail about 11:30 Sunday night, a Midland County sheriff's investigator said this morning.

The trio overpowered two jailers, injuring one of them on the head, and escaped by breaking a southside window on the first floor of the Midland courthouse, according to Capt. Robert Settles of the Midland sheriff's Criminal Investigation Division.

The escapees have been identified as:

- Willie Bustillos Jr., a 38-year-old Mexican male described as being five feet, seven inches tall and weighing 140 pounds. He was being held on a theft charge.

- Wallace Lee Sims, a 33-year-old black male described as being six feet, one inch in height and weighing 150 pounds with a heart-shaped tattoo on his right cheek. He was being held on credit card abuse and burglary charges.

- Frank Sidney Smith, a 21-year-old white male described as being five feet, seven inches in height and weighing 170 pounds. He had been sentenced to 10 years in prison on a robbery conviction and was being held on a felony escape charge.

Smith attempted an escape about a month ago, investigators said, when he was emptying trash at the courthouse. He was found several hours later.

Investigators are uncertain which direction the escapees might have headed, and were interviewing other jail prisoners this morning to uncover leads.

Authorities believe the men pried the lock off a vent in a dayroom and crawled over the cell block, dropping into the walkaround area. They overpowered the first jailer, who was identified as Gary Morgan, by hiding around a corner and taking him by surprise. Morgan apparently was on his rounds making a security check when he was accosted by the escapees; he was tied and gagged with strips of towels and left out of sight, according to Settles.

When Morgan failed to return from the security check, a second jailer, Ted Macklin, went to investigate and was attacked by the escapees. He was struck on the head with an unknown weapon, possibly a pipe, and locked in the bullpen area of the jail along with three trusty Settles said. He was later treated for a head wound and released from Midland Memorial Hospital.

Macklin, in resisting his attackers, hit Smith and caused bleeding which may require medical attention, Settles said.

The jail break was noticed by a third jailer who came to work about 11:30 p.m. and discovered there were no other jailers in sight. When he saw blood on the floor he called the sheriff's dispatcher to report a possible jailbreak in progress. The dispatcher then alerted sheriff's deputies, Midland police and DPS troopers, who sealed off the courthouse.

A search of the fifth-floor jail found three inmates missing.

The escapees apparently used keys taken from one of the jailers to get out of the jail area, using one of the regular courthouse stairwells to get down to the first floor, Settles said.

Anyone who has any information that might help break the case is urged to call the Midland County Sheriff's Office at 682-9774. Another number, 685-1190, is available for persons wishing to contribute anonymous tips as part of the sheriff's "silent witness" program.

New city councilman to be named tomorrow

Big Spring should get its new city councilman Tuesday morning when the city council emerges from an executive session to choose a replacement for Hal Boyd, who vacated his council seat when he became manager of the Big Spring Industrial Park today.

The council has called a special meeting for 9 a.m. Tuesday, and the executive session will follow the consideration of the purchase of an automobile, the only other item on the special session's agenda.

Boyd's tenure on the council was short, he was elected in a celebrated runoff in April, 1980 — running against no one but himself.

The unopposed election occurred after Boyd's scheduled opponent, Jack Watkins, dropped out of the race because he felt he'd be outvoted too often if elected to the council. City Attorney Elliott Mitchell determined that the city charter called for the election, so the runoff went on as scheduled, with Boyd netting 129 votes — 128 more than he needed.

Boyd's replacement will serve at the minimum, until the next municipal election, which will be held in April.

Sheriff says officials have few clues in girl's disappearance

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Authorities say they have few leads in their search for an 11-year-old girl who disappeared during an apparent burglary of her parents' Smith County home early Saturday.

"We're at ground zero," said Smith County Sheriff J.B. Smith after 65 officers from two counties searched portions of Smith and Van Zandt counties Sunday without finding the youngster.

The parents of Trisha McCoy awoke

Saturday morning to discover their daughter missing from a living room sofa where she had been sleeping. A front door screen had been cut and the interior door had been forced open, they told authorities.

Smith said deputies with bloodhounds picked up a trail along the Neches River not far from the McRoy residence but were unable to follow it. He said the girl and her adoptors may have gotten into a car at the trail's end.

Governor assassinated; gunfighting, executions

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Two gunmen on motorcycles assassinated the governor general of Iran's Caspian Sea province of Gilan today as he drove to his office in the city of Resht, Iran's official news agency Pars reported.

The governor, identified only as Engineer Ansari, was pronounced dead at a hospital shortly after the shooting, Pars said. His undersecretary for development affairs, Engineer Nurani, was badly wounded, the report said.

Witnesses said the assassins fired Uzi submachine guns into the governor's car.

There was no indication of the killers' identity. But motorcycle assassination is a specialty of Forghan, an underground Moslem group opposed to political activity by the Islamic clergy, which dominates the revolutionary regime.

Iran's official media also reported another gun battle between the leftists and the revolutionary guards and more executions.

Pars said three guerrillas of the Mujahedeen Khalq were killed and one revolutionary guardsman was wounded in a six-hour battle Sunday when the guards stormed a leftist hideout in Tehran in which eight guerrillas were captured and three escaped.

The news agency reported firing squads in six cities executed 13 more people over the weekend, bringing to 102 the number reported put to death since the fundamentalist Islamic clerics controlling the government engineered the dismissal of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr on June 22.

The 13 included two men and two women accused of "armed uprising against the Islamic Republic," six people accused of heroin smuggling and two Mujahedeen Khalq members charged with "beating Moslem people" and using deadly weapons, official media reported.

A third Mujahedeen Khalq was shot and killed while fleeing from revolutionary guards, Tehran Radio said.

Pars said Bani-Sadr, who has not been seen publicly since June 12, was promoting revolt from a hideaway in northwest Iran near the Turkish border, where Kurdish tribesmen have been fighting for autonomy ever since Khomeini's revolution against the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in February 1979.

Observers in Tehran said 1,200 revolutionary guards were searching villages in the area.

The observers said usually reliable Kurdish sources in the northwest reported the clandestine Kurdish radio broadcast a message by Bani-Sadr July 2 urging Iran's 36 million people to "resist tyranny."

The Majlis, Iran's parliament, approved the appointment of Hussein Musavi, the editor of the ruling Islamic Republican Party's newspaper, to be foreign minister. He was nominated by Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai, whose nominees for the post had been blocked by Bani-Sadr.

Musavi, 35, said fabrics in the Tehran bazaar had raised funds for Khomeini's revolution.

Jury selection begins today in strongman's murder trial

By CAROL HART

Jury selection in the case of the State of Texas vs. Edwardo Maidique began today in 118th District Court.

Maidique is accused of murder in the shooting death of Linda Garcia on March 23. Maidique was arrested shortly after the incident and has been held in Howard County Jail under a $100,000 bond for the alleged murder.

Maidique is also accused of aggravated assault in connection with injuries to Ms. Garcia's sister, Martha Esquibel, who suffered a broken neck the night her sister was killed. A $75,000 bond was set in that case.

The defendant was indicted by Howard County grand jury May 1 on the murder and assault charges.

Maidique was brought to the courtroom from county jail and was escorted by sheriff's deputies. He was met in the courtroom by his twin brother, Alberto. He was met in the courtroom by his twin brother, Alberto. The two men are Cuban nationals and came to this country during the widely-publicized Cuban immigration movement. They said at that time they were weightlifters and hoped to compete in the 1984 Olympics for the United States.

The Maidique brothers sat at the front of the courtroom with Edwardo's attorney, Wayne Basden. Also seated at the defendant's table was Mike Medrano, an interpreter for Maidique. It was explained to the prospective jurors that Maidique is not proficient in English and that the interpreter was hired to help him during the trial.

Attorneys for the state, Howard County District Attorney Rick Hamby and his assistant Don Richard addressed prospective jurors, explaining to them what was expected of them and quizzing them to see if they had any knowledge of the case or any prejudices in the case.

After several people were excused due to exemptions such as age or family conditions, 41 people remained in the courtroom as prospective jurors. Those in the courtroom suffered with the heat, as District Judge Jim Gregg told everyone that a broken compressor on the courthouse air conditioning unit had been replaced over the weekend, and that the unit had not been turned on this morning. Promises were made that the repair would be completed by this afternoon.

In the meantime, those in the courtroom used pieces of paper as makeshift fans, and windows were opened, letting in fresh air and outside noises, making it at times difficult to hear what was said.

Action/reaction: Trains tracked

Q. Why is Southern Pacific detouring its train over the Mo-Pac tracks?

A. They aren't, according to E.R. Craven, trainmaster. Railway companies use each other's tracks for run through movements. "Instead of stopping," he said, "railroads enter into agreements to use each other's facilities." In other words, the Mo-Pac crew will work a train traveling from Fort Worth to El Paso. At El Paso, the Southern Pacific crew will work the train to its west coast destination.

Accident toll hits 537

At least 537 persons died in traffic accidents on the nation's highways over the Independence Day weekend, more than last year but within the range forecast by the National Safety Council.

The number of reported deaths stood at 537 at midnight on the Pacific coast.

The National Safety Council estimated prior to the start of the Fourth of July holiday weekend that 450 to 550 people might be killed between 6 p.m. Thursday and midnight Sunday.

Council statisticians said 470 deaths could be expected during a similar non-holiday period at this time of year.

Last year, 461 people died during the three-day weekend marking Independence Day.

Gas bills could jump

WASHINGTON (AP) — Removing price controls on natural gas in 1982, three years ahead of schedule, could cost consumers up to $127 billion and raise the average homeowner's bill as much as 54 percent, an Energy Department analysis says. But the report argues that the benefits would be substantial.

Full decontrol of the country's second most popular fuel in 1982 is one option being studied by the administration, and while the Energy Department report made no recommendation, it said President Reagan "should act soon" if he decides to seek the change.

Sagging cable halts traffic

NEW YORK (AP) — A sagging cable on the 98-year-old Brooklyn Bridge halted traffic for an hour, just one week after two cables broke, critically injuring a pedestrian.

But officials said there was no break in the cable this time and no danger to traffic or pedestrians on the bridge which crosses the East River and links the borough of Brooklyn on Long Island with Manhattan Island.

Youth may need rabies shots if cat not found

An 11-year-old Big Spring boy who was bitten by a nameless cat Friday afternoon may have to undergo a series of rabies shots if the cat is not found soon.

Morris Rhodes, 809 W. 14th, said his son Jeff was bitten on the left wrist by a cat between 6 and 7 p.m. Friday in front of the Rhodes home.

"We need to locate the cat to observe it for rabies," Rhodes said, adding that his son "will have to start the shots if the cat is not found."

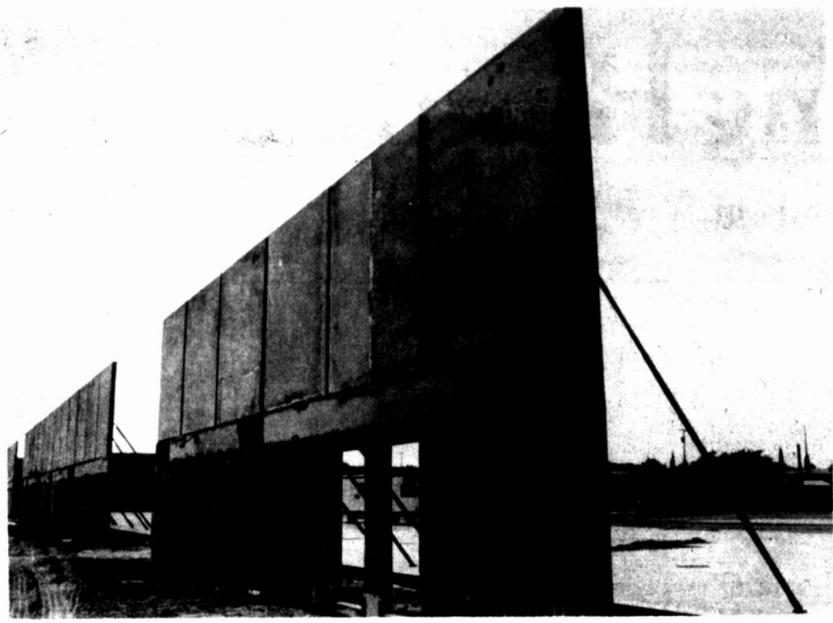

Anyone with information about such a cat or whose cat may have been involved is asked to notify Rhodes at 263-2753.

Teen assaulted by 10 men

Police said Chris Clark, 18, complained to them that he was assaulted by 10 men on the Fourth of July in the parking lot of the Kwikie Drive-in grocery store on Lamesa Highway.

The incident occurred around 6:30 p.m. when the men attempted to steal Clark's necklace, according to police reports. One of the men brandished a knife, police said.

Clark said he was able to break away and flee the men on foot. The suspects reportedly fled the scene in a rust-colored, older-model vehicle.

Jewelry and a TV set worth $1,400 were reported stolen by Joe Deanda around 11:45 p.m. Sunday. Police reports noted that entry was made through a bedroom window of the victim's home.

An attempted burglary was reported between 9:30 and 11:15 p.m. Sunday by Gary Green, who told police someone tried to twist off a lock to his back door in order to gain entry to his house.

Elizabeth Rijan told police she got up to dance at Cactus Jack's club around 12:30 this morning and when she returned to her table she found her purse missing. Keys, a wallet and other personal possessions worth more than $300 were inside the purse, according to police reports.

Mark Reaves, 27, complained to police that someone pushed over his Honda motorcycle and caused $263 worth of damage to the bike's handlebars and brake lever. The incident was reported only 11:15 p.m. Sunday and occurred at 1600 A Virginia, according to reports.

Marie Sullivan, 23, told police she was threatened with death and assaulted about 5:30 p.m. Sunday at 2630 Hunter. She was struck in the eyes by her assailant's fists, according to reports.

Police officers say they observed a motor vehicle fail to stop before entering a highway around 9:40 p.m. Sunday. They stopped the car and arrested the driver, Joseph Hubbard, 21, charging him with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and credit card abuse. A computer check later revealed that the car was listed as stolen from Glendale, Ariz.

Albert Pitman told police he had a visitor between noon Saturday and 10 a.m. Sunday. After the visitor left Pitman's 409 N.W. 9th residence, Pitman discovered his lawnmower

Big Spring native named to N.M. arts division post

Richard L. Cook, a native of Big Spring and a graduate of Big Spring High School, has been appointed assistant director of the New Mexico Arts Division, it was announced recently by Bernard B. Lopez, director.

Cook, who has been with the division 2½ years as director of ESAA Multicultural Arts project and coordinator of the NMAD Artists-in-School program, received his BA and MA degrees from the University of New Mexico, where he studied sculpture with Charles Maddox and Ronald Grow.

For six years, Cook was chairman of the Art Department at Nicholls State University, Thibodaux, La., and is past chairman of the art section of the Louisiana Conference of Colleges and Universities. He has served as president of the Southern University of Sculptors and was editor of the "Sculpture Quarterly." He is a three-time recipient of the "Outstanding Educators of America" award. Prior to joining the Arts Division, Cook was director of Hill's Gallery, Sante Fe.

Cook's neon sculptures have been shown in more than 50 solo, group and invitational exhibitions, including the Museum of Fine Arts, Museum of New Mexico Biennial, the Mexico Biennial, the Museum of Fine Arts of the "Survey of Contemporary New Mexican Sculpture," and also the second annual Armory Show and an invitational exhibit.

Traffic toll stands at 46

Forty-six people had died in July Fourth traffic accidents in Texas with four hours to go before the death counted ended at midnight Sunday.

The 46th victim was Odus Edward Turner, 52, of Austin, who was killed when the car he was driving ran off the road into a creek along FM 485 about 4 a.m. Sunday in Milam County.

The Texas Department of Public Safety had predicted that 44 would be killed in traffic accidents between 6 p.m. Thursday and midnight Sunday. DPS spokesman Larry Todd said bad weather could contribute to a much higher toll.

"We have rain, fog and some poor visibility in some areas of the state and this can add significantly to the increasing number of accidents," Todd said Sunday.

"The worst could be tonight when the holiday travelers begin the trip back home."

Born Jan. 21, 1918, in Santa Monica, Calif., she married Jack Tingle in 1943 in Ephrata, Wash. They moved to Big Spring in 1945. She had been a nurse working in nursing homes here until retiring several years ago. She was an Episcopalian.

Palbearers will be Fred Mogannah, Lewis Hargrove, Danny Stone, Bill Marion, Red McMahan, Darvis Chanault.

Lee Allredge Lee Allredge, 61, a former Big Spring pharmacist, died Thursday, June 25, in Midland following a heart attack. Allredge moved to Midland from Big Spring in 1954.

Funeral services were held in Midland Saturday and burial took place there.

Survivors include his wife, Alice, of the home; two sons, Larry and Allen Allredge, both of Midland; a daughter, Marsha Schatzman, Dallas; his father, L.E. Allredge, Long Beach, Calif., and a sister, Avalae Keach, Newport Beach, Calif.

At one time, Mr. Allredge was a member of the board at the First Christian Church in Big Spring.

Family of sailors enjoy boat with quite a history

By CAROL HART
Wee V, a boat owned by the Chesley Wilson family, 2807 Rebecca, has quite a history behind it.
The Small Boat Journal, which tests various boats, described the make of the Wee V as "a trailerable production 26-footer that is ideal for shoal-draft coastal cruising, but a vessel that is also capable of ocean crossings and one that has weathered a hurricane."
The Wilsons own the 221st boat off the production line. Wilson said he bought the boat last July in Kemah, near Houston, from Alden Yachts.

The boat had been sold to the Yacht firm from a previous owner.
The boat "is put together about as good as any little boat," Wilson said. He learned about the boat from reading about it in a trailer boat magazine.
Since purchasing the boat, the Wilsons have put it through some tests of their own. "Last summer, we were hit by a bad storm," said Mrs. Wilson. "Our oldest girl, Stacey, was taking the sail down. She gave her daddy a black eye with her elbow," Mrs. Wilson recalled.
That day, the family was hit with five to six foot waves as well as heavy rains. "We locked up the boat, and waited it out," said Wilson. The family remembers, "we were scared."

But, "it's a good sailboat," said Wilson. "It rides in the best direction in rough water. We've never had a knock-down (where the boat tips over)."
In other words, Wilson said the sailboat takes care of itself, and its passengers.
In a boat just like the Wilsons, Bob Lengyel sailed to England. He went through two hurricanes in 30-foot seas, said Wilson.

A boat like the Wee V "was the first trailerable sailboat to enter and complete the Ostar race from England to Rhode Island," said the Wilsons.
Wee V and its counterparts are built by Parker-Dawson Yachts. Dawson Engineering Firm originally began making the boats, out of Las Vegas, Nev. They were bought out by Henry Parker, who moved the operation to South Freeport, Maine.
The Wilsons have become a family of sailors since purchasing the boat. "We just like the water," said Wilson. "We learned to sail down at Lake Spence. It's not that hard to learn."

The Wilson's children, Stacey, 17, Steve, 15, and Joan, 11, are also boat enthusiasts. The family is learning "proper seamanship" now, in preparation for jaunts outside of Lake Spence.
"We want to go on coastal cruises," said Mrs. Wilson. But, now, "we don't know enough about it. It's too dangerous."
The family plans to take some instruction in navigation, they said.
The boat is built for comfort, and has a cockpit in the center. The Wilsons said they have slept eight adults in the boat, although it is ideally built for five.

Wilson works with the Soil Conservation Service in Big Spring, and Mrs. Wilson is a teacher at Gail Stacey is a student at Texas Tech University, and has joined a sailing club there. Steve and Joan are enrolled in Big Spring schools.
Of sailing, the family agrees, "if you've never done it, it's neat. You can sail when there's a full moon, and there's no noise."
Mrs. Wilson added that she views it as a sport. "We love it."

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The leader of a local move to legalize bingo was jailed on a felony gambling charge in a raid by police on a game purportedly benefiting the United Cerebral Palsy Association of San Antonio.
Robert Mazer, 70, was arrested in the Sunday night raid of the Cerebral Palsy Association's bingo hall on Fredericksburg Road.
Also charged was Tom Parr, 66, listed as an usher at the bingo game.
Both men were released on personal recognizance bonds of $3,500 set by Night

Magistrate Tony Jimenez. The gambling charge is a third-degree felony.
Police said a male and female undercover team visited the game and were told by an usher they would have to pay $2.50 for each bingo card to play.
The undercover agents left and minutes later 10 detectives raided the game, confiscating $5,780 in cash along with alleged gambling paraphernalia.
Mazer has been at the forefront of the local attempt to legalize bingo gambling for charitable organizations. He testified before legislative committees and has sent numerous letters to newspapers in an effort to build support for the measure.
Under state law, bingo is considered an illegal lottery even when it is promoted by charitable groups.
Texas voters overwhelmingly approved a referendum on a constitutional amendment to legalize bingo, but the Legislature failed to pass a local option bill so the game still is illegal, officers said.
Despite efforts by Mazer and others, the bingo bill has not been formally placed on the agenda for the special session of the Legislature.

Borrowing from yourself good deal

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Millions of Americans have found a way to borrow money at low interest by taking advantage of the cash value of their life insurance. But the bargain basement rates may be on their way out for future policyholders.
The insurance industry has begun to campaign in state legislatures to win passage of measures allowing higher interest rates on loans against new policies. So far, according to Robert Waldron of the American Council of Life Insurance, 10 states have okayed some type of boost in rates. Holders of existing policies are not affected.
"Whole life" insurance policies — also known as a "straight life" policies — build up cash value through the years. These policies traditionally have included provisions allowing the holder to borrow against that cash value. Interest rates, set years ago and usually limited by law, are low — generally ranging from 6 percent to 8 percent, but running as little as 4 percent in some cases.
As interest rates for other loans increased, consumers turned to their insurance policies when they wanted to borrow money. They also discovered that they could borrow against their policies and reinvest the money — in high yield certificates of deposit, for example.

In April 1979, Waldron said, policyholders borrowed $600 million. The total amount of outstanding loans against life insurance policies was about $31.5 billion.
In April 1980, when credit controls were in effect and loans were hard to get, policyholders borrowed almost $1.7 billion — about triple what they had borrowed a year earlier. Outstanding loans totaled $38.2 billion.
The borrowing has tapered off, Waldron said, but it still topped $40 billion this April. The total now outstanding against insurance policies is $43.8 billion — about 9 percent of industry assets.
Waldron said the industry is not trying to discourage or prevent people from borrowing against their policies. "It's a contract right," he said. "There's nothing the insurance industry can do to a customer who wants to borrow except say, 'Yes, sir.'" He said, however, that the situation is "causing some re-evaluation of product and marketing."

One result of the re-evaluation is the campaign to allow increased interest rates on new policies. In general, the industry is seeking legislation that allows insurance companies to set rates either at 8 percent or at an adjustable level tied to the monthly average of the yield on corporate bonds as published by Moody's Investors Service Inc. Under the adjustable alternative, the allowable interest rate as of last December would have been 14.4 percent.
There are several factors to consider if you are thinking of borrowing against your policy. You must find out how much cash value you have accumulated. Different policies build up value at different rates. You also should remember that you lose some protection when you borrow. If the insured person dies, the amount of the loan must be repaid from the death benefit.

A nation bent on destruction

A nation which seems intent on destroying itself is Iran. If ever a country existed which could use its tremendous wealth to promote the awareness and the well being of its people, that nation is Iran, yet it is hypnotized by a madman who can do nothing more than promise admission to those Elysian Fields we all seek for he who would deliver his enemies to him. What sort of Olympian fiend does he think he is in league with?

The Middle East has always been a geopolitical contradiction. Were it resolved to promote its interests collectively, it could be one of the most powerful conglomerates on earth. Instead, its nations deal in deadly intrigue. Only in the poorer nations has there been some manifestation of sanity.

THE IRANIAN LEADERS are still enraged that they cannot kill the Shah a thousand times over. It wasn't enough that nature itself promoted an early death upon the proud but misguided King of Persia, who himself felt somewhat venomous toward the United States because of slights he felt he suffered in his younger years.

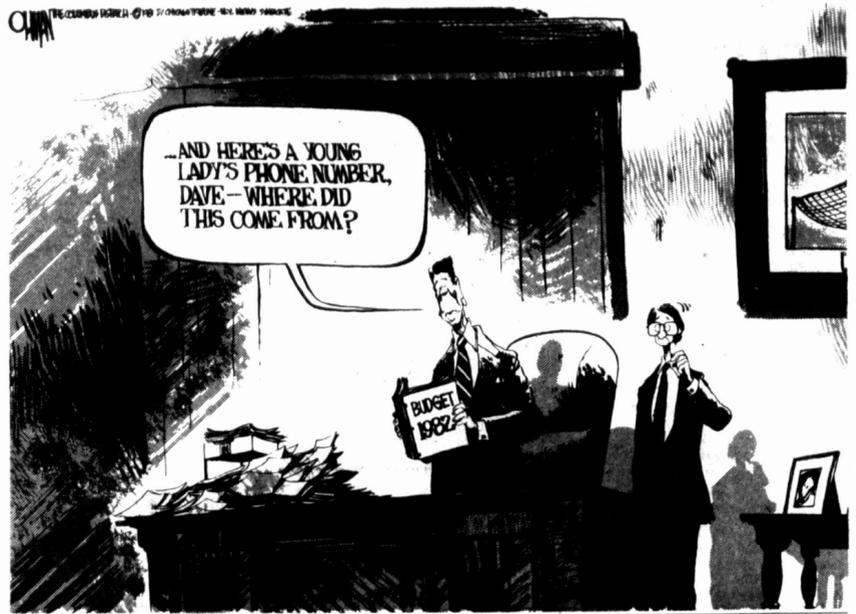

Now the beginning of the end may be under way in Iran; if not that then the start of another violent upheaval for the Islamic nation.

The young bloods in the country seem content to concentrate in front of the TV cameras, raise their fists in defiance and shout obscenities at America. There are, however, people with more deadly intent at work, as witness the recent bombing of the Islamic Party headquarters in Tehran in which more than 70 were killed. One of those was the Ayatollah Mohammad Behesti, No. 2 man behind Khomeini.

THE IRANIAN LEADERS, those rational enough to make occasional sense when they talk, naturally blame the United States for the mischief. One wonders, however, if most of the country's problems haven't originated from within, with its handling of the Bani-Sadr ouster and the manner in which it is dealing with its economy and its military effort against Iraq.

The sounds in Iran are not in harmony. Its people can't rally much of a punch against Iraq but its firing squads are busy. Anyone who may have smiled upon Bani-Sadr might have difficulty answering roll call after the slaughter.

Things have now reached the point in Iran where Khomeini is going to have to prove that he is a worker of miracles, that he can promote peace out of chaos and calamity. His job doesn't look easy.

GSA overspent a bundle

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — At the General Services Administration, waste and incompetence are routine. But when an emergency arises, the GSA spend-thrifts really outdo themselves.

Last year, Jimmy Carter pledged that the United States would "provide an open heart and open arms" to "thousands of Cuban refugees fleeing Fidel Castro's little Gulag Archipelago. To this the GSA bureaucrats added "an open pocketbook."

THE FIRST OF several internal audits on the refugee program discloses widespread extravagance in GSA's handling of nearly 15,000 Cubans housed temporarily at Fort McCoy, Wis. "The justification for many items and quantities procured for the Cuban refugee emergency was questionable," the auditors reported, with massive understatement.

GSA records show the following questionable purchases:

- 10,000 checkers games and domino sets — one for nearly each man, woman and child in the camp — at a cost of $30,000.
- $4,500 worth of Frisbees; $62,576 for other toys.
- $1,400 for Ping-Pong tables.
- $55,252 for Bibles, missals, communion hosts and religious services.
- 172 two-way radios at a cost of $402,000.
- $17,837 for baseball caps and equipment, basketball backboards and other sports gear.
- Air freight charges of more than $4,000 to rush Spanish-English dictionaries to Fort McCoy — where they then sat in storage for several days.
- Three videotape machines, costing $2,685, used for recording network news programs.
- $20,000 for a public address system, even though the Army and other government experts on emergency procedures suggested renting the equipment.

In the matter of necessities, the auditors did a little comparison shopping and found that GSA could have saved the taxpayers thousands of dollars.

For example, the auditors report that if GSA had solicited ambulance services "on a sounder basis than using the Yellow Pages," they could have saved $63,000. The GSA paid $1,200 a day for ambulances, while the Army paid $960 a day.

Furthermore, the audit notes, "GSA personnel did not adequately monitor ambulance services contracts, therefore GSA has no assurance that services were performed." Instead of checking the ambulance bills by examining ambulance log books, GSA contract officers simply "verified" the claimed services verbally.

Other GSA records indicate that the contract officers could have saved the government $6,270 on its purchase of ranger and $8,552.50 on folding chairs.

GSA's regional administrator in charge of Fort McCoy told his associate Tony Capaccio that the auditors' report "failed to recognize the unique nature of the resettlement operation."

GSA procurement officers "don't question the items that the emergency experts ask for," he said.

Marxism, Polish-style

Evans, Novak

GDANSK, Poland — The method of selecting the managing director at a small yacht-building shipyard in this cradle of Poland's democratic revolution is intended to start an economic reform no more tolerable to the Soviet Union than the free political expression now pervading the country.

In replacing the shipyard's ailing superintendent, the selection was made by workers and managers collaborating with the Solidarity union. The man chosen by the ruling Communist Party, who came to the shipyard acting as though he already had the job, was turned down flat.

That small incident reflects determination by Solidarity's economic reformers to solve Poland's economic crisis by decentralized self-management, unchained from central planning. The result might be stretched to still be called Marxism, but it surely violates Leninism's supremacy of party rule.

THEREIN LIES THE true ideological confrontation between communist doctrine and Solidarity. Despite all the bellowing from Moscow and Polish communist hardliners, no serious Solidarity leader disputes that the Soviet-Polish alliance is a geopolitical necessity. The real issue is the Communist Party's dominant role here, especially in setting economic policy.

Since settlement of the Gdansk strike last September, Poland's economy has descended further toward chaos and stagnation. In every city we visited, Poles stood in endless lines seeking consumer goods from empty stores. Since chances to buy anything rise dramatically if the purchaser has dollars, Poles desperate for hard currency drive down the zloty's value in black market exchanges. Meanwhile, declining production of coal, Poland's key export, aggravates a severe trade imbalance.

The Polish communist apparatus attributes this crisis to higher wages and lower hours negotiated by Solidarity, a view shared by Western diplomats here and West German bankers terrified of Polish default on massive loans. Their remedy for the economy is more work and a lower living standard for ordinary Poles — in short, austerity.

Such is the habitual remedy of government, East or West, for misery inflicted on the people by government. Some Solidarity leaders blame the deteriorating economy on Soviet tampering ("premeditated sabotage," one told us) to turn workers against the union. All agree that government policies created the mess.

But since the Gdansk labor agreement nine months ago, not one step has been taken by the government toward its promised economic reform. The situation was summarized for us by Dr. Rafal Krawczyk of the Polish Economic Society's national board: "The old system doesn't work. The new system doesn't exist."

To devise a new system, economist Krawczyk in Warsaw is meeting with managers of Polish enterprises and workers representatives. And what about the Communist Party? "You overestimate the role of the party in economic reform," Krawczyk told us, without blinking an eye. In Gdansk, Solidarity leader Wojciech Gruszewski echoed the need to act independently of the party. "It is the only way out of our predicament," he added.

This reflects pessimism among Solidarity's leaders about internal party liberalization. Their analysis of secret-ballot election of delegates to the forthcoming party congress, a process arousing fear in the Kremlin: Although most delegates are new faces, they look much like the old faces. Solidarity's leadership also believes that the survival, under Soviet attack, of party chief Stanislaw Kania at the recent Central Committee meeting actually strengthened the party's center, reinforced standard policies and may have been what Moscow wanted all along.

BUT IF ECONOMIC reform is devised without party guidance, what shall it be? Certainly more than decentralized management while continuing central planning under party direction as practiced in Hungary and now advocated by the Polish regime. Although there is talk about copying Yugoslavia's worker self-management, eyes of Solidarity leaders brighten when they talk of Swedish social democracy. Lech Walesa in public speeches expresses affection for "free enterprise" and "the Japanese model."

Specifically Dr. Krawczyk in discussions with management and labor not only opposes all state-owned enterprises but wants to use the free market to allocate resources and set prices. He is a Communist Party member, an avowed atheist and a button-wearing member of Solidarity. Is he also a Marxist? "One year ago, I would have said yes," he replied. He clings to Marxism by contending that wealth generated by his free market model must be distributed evenly.

That surely is not orthodox enough for Kremlin ideologists. Polish economic reformers are saying the failure here has not been mere incompetence and certainly not worker indolence, as the government contends, but inherent inability of Marxist-Leninist methods to run a productive economy. From Moscow's viewpoint, there is no greater heresy in Poland's democratic revolution.

Around the rim The real world

Andrea Cohen

As we all know, Richard Nixon bought a house in New Jersey recently.

When he moved from California to New York, it scared me a little because, let's face it, New York is closer to Washington. His recent move just proves my point. He's slowly, but surely, inching his way back to the capitol city.

BUT IF HE wants to live in a New Jersey suburb, all power to him. Nobody in his right mind would move to any New Jersey suburb. I never did think Nixon was in his right mind anyway.

Can you picture Richard Nixon in the suburbs, shoveling snow off his sidewalk or playing poker with the boys?

Our former president was having a problem over the weekend and I was told by my Yankee cohorts who still live up north what happened. Nixon was just standing there, staring at a funny looking machine. His neighbor, curious as to why Nixon was so perplexed, came over to give him some help.

NEIGHBOR: Hey Dick! What's up?
NIXON: (Hand on chin) I found this in the garage when I moved in and I'm trying to figure out what it is.

NEIGHBOR: It's a lawn mower.
NIXON: A what?

NEIGHBOR: A lawn mower. It mows the grass.

NIXON: Hmmm. I've never seen one before. You mean if you use one of these, your lawn will get mowed?

NEIGHBOR: Sure. How do you think the lawn stayed so nice at the White House?

NIXON: I never thought about it. I never paid much attention to the little people who worked at the White House.

NEIGHBOR: We know that. But there were other things growing in Washington in the early '70s besides your troubles and your bank account.

NIXON: How do you use this?

NEIGHBOR: Well, first you pour some gasoline in...

NIXON: GASOLINE? I thought that became obsolete during my administration.

NEIGHBOR: It did. It's taken three administrations to fix up that mess you put us in.

NIXON: Well, they're ahead of schedule. I thought it would take at least four.

NEIGHBOR: After the gasoline is poured in, you just turn it on and start pushing. But it's a lot easier to get a kid in the neighborhood to do it. They're always looking for a way to make money.

NIXON: What do they charge?

NEIGHBOR: For the size of your lawn, about $15 plus the kill because we're in an affluent suburb. Probably about $25.

NIXON: Twenty five dollars?? Talk about inflation.

NEIGHBOR: That's all you ever did about it when you were in office. Why change?

NIXON: I didn't know. The government always had people to do things like this for me. And the only lawn we ever had in Manhattan was the few blades of grass that came up through the sidewalk.

NEIGHBOR: Now you're in the real world of New Jersey.

NIXON: The kids are sure making a killing, aren't they?

NEIGHBOR: Yeah, but at least they're doing it legally. Mr. Former President?

NIXON: Yes?

NEIGHBOR: Welcome to the real world.

NIXON: You call living in New Jersey the real world? You're crazier than I am.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I recently became a Christian. I have a deep hunger to find out more about God's Word. I have become involved in Bible study as a result, but all they seem to talk about is the gifts of the Holy Spirit (or some of the more spectacular gifts, at least). Do you think I should stay in this Bible study? — Mrs. R.L.O.

DEAR MRS. R.L.O.: There are probably many things you need to consider in making a decision about this, and only you can make that decision (as you prayerfully seek God's will). I am thankful that you are interested in studying the Bible, because it is essential for your spiritual growth.

There is much to be gained by group Bible study. However, if a particular study group is not really studying the Bible and is neglecting its major teachings, then it may be best for you to find another group.

One of the signs of spiritual revival in our time is the growth in small-group Bible studies, in which six or eight people (more or less) look together into the Word of God and seek to discover its meaning for their lives.

Spiritual renewal — in an individual and in a nation — has always been based on a rediscovery of the Word of God. I mention this because even if you decide this particular group is not meeting your own spiritual needs, you should seek another group that will help you.

A group which takes a book of the Bible and moves through it passage by passage will usually avoid the danger of concentrating only on one aspect or topic of Christian truth.

Let me remind you also that it is important for you to read and study the Bible on your own. Group studies are profitable. But it is also important for you to read the Bible and meditate upon it alone.

That way you are not rushed — its personal application to your life can become clearer as you have time to think and pray about it. You also have an opportunity to memorize some portion of the Scripture, which I believe is very important as well.

The Bible says of the righteous person: "His delight is in the law of the Lord, and on his law he meditates day and night" (Psalm 1:2). Let this be your experience as you study God's Word and apply it to your life.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor: You laid out the facts in your June 22 editorial, "How big is too big, Texas?" but your follow through didn't go far enough.

"It's not enough to consider, as you suggest, whether the growth rate can be slowed in Texas. It probably can't."

Worldwide for every two persons in 1975, there will be three in 2000. And, Texas will get more than its fair share.

We don't have the disruptions and stresses of all-out growth in Texas at present and we can keep that wolf away from our door.

It will take a keener awareness of current trends and a willingness to take charge of public policy to meet the future.

We should worry about how big we're going to get but how we are going to proper manage that growth to the best interests of our state and all its citizens.

I hope you take the lead in your community to see that this discussion and planning is carried out.

Strawberry marks usually subside

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please comment on hemangiomas in infants. Specifically, I am concerned about a raised dark red and blue growth on my three-months-old daughter's head. In the back. It appeared when she was a month old and is about a quarter to a half inch high, about the size of a quarter. My questions are: What is the cause and how serious is this? I was told by the pediatrician that it "should" disappear by the time she is nine months old, and if not it could be "treated." I cannot help but be concerned and worried. — Mrs. M.K.

There are three or four different kinds of hemangiomas. I'll talk about one, the strawberry hemangioma, and hope this is the one you want to hear about. It sounds as though it might be.

A hemangioma (heh-MAN-gee-OH-muh) is a localized abnormal growth of skin blood vessels present at birth or shortly after birth. The strawberry hemangioma is a raised, red to bluish-red, soft mass. It may enlarge a little after its appearance, but almost always goes completely away on its own. The chief aspect of treatment then, is a little patience.

The disappearing act may occur as soon as nine months or as late as four or five years. You can tell when that starts happening when patches of gray lines appear in the middle of the mass.

The kind of hemangioma needs treatment only if it continues to enlarge or if it is going to interfere with some function. If one were on an eyelid and impaired vision because of its size, then it might have to be removed before the normal time for its disappearance. This kind of hemangioma is generally not serious at all. The cause is not known. If I have not discussed the right hemangioma, please write me again. "You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Donohue's booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is and what can be done about it. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

SIGHTS, SOUNDS — For the six blind climbers among the Project Relion party, a rest along the way is a chance to breathe in the scents and sounds of the icy, majestic slopes they cannot see. Management is required in lawn care

From time to time the suggestion is made that we spend too much time and energy on the upkeep of lawns. Better to direct this energy to more necessary tasks, and make do with whatever vegetation volunteers for the yard.

As well-meaning as that suggestion is, it is generally not thought through. Actually, the world has been so disturbed that it is all but impossible to achieve any reasonable self-regulating system akin to "natural" balance.

Thus, home grounds are going to have to be managed, one way or another, as a hodge-podge of unattractive growth.

Doesn't it make better sense to utilize the fine lawngrasses bred in recent years, keeping them handsome with products and equipment perfected for convenient care?

Natural Parents vs. Nurturing Parents

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for printing the letter signed MOTHER OF TWO PLUS ONE, suggesting that the adoptive mother keep her child's birth mother informed about the child's progress once a year through a letter. What a marvelous idea!

I am a mother of four plus one, and after I gave up my firstborn on Christmas Day, 1956, it was as though he had died! I have no idea where he is, or even if he is still living. Of course I would never look for him because I don't want to intrude on his life, but I pray that one day he will find me.

LOVES ALL MY CHILDREN

DEAR MOTHER: My mail has been running 10 to 1 against the annual progress report suggested by MOTHER OF TWO PLUS ONE. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: MOTHER OF TWO PLUS ONE, who had given up her child for adoption 10 years ago, suggested that all adoptive mothers send the birth mother an annual progress report, disclosing the interests, growth and development of the child — including pictures so the child's "real" mother will know what "her" child looks like and how he's developing.

My husband and I adopted four children when they were less than 1 week old. The mothers in all cases knew what their rights were when they signed the adoption papers. No way will we write an annual progress report to keep their "real" mothers informed. We are their real parents, and they are our children.

Conceiving a child takes only a few minutes. Carrying it for nine months is the easiest part of motherhood, but raising it requires time, patience, money, sacrifices, tears and love. And that responsibility lasts a lifetime.

NO PROGRESS REPORTS

DEAR NO REPORTS: Now let's hear it from an adopted child:

DEAR ABBY: I agree completely with MOTHER OF TWO PLUS ONE. I'm sure the parents who gave up their child for adoption wonder what happened to that child. I'm also sure that children who have been adopted wonder about their natural parents.

I am 13 and adopted. I love my mother who adopted me, but on Mother's Day I wonder if my natural mother has anyone giving her a card or flowers, or perhaps a present. I also wonder if I have any brothers or sisters, and if I have, where they are and what they look like.

I wonder why my parents gave me up. Someday I would like to meet them. But in the meantime, I would like to know something about them.

I'm sure many children and adults who have been adopted wonder as I do. Sign me ...

View of handicapped is distorted, damaging

COLLEGE STATION — Handicapped Americans are the targets of social oppression that is possibly more damaging to their lives than their physical disabilities, a family life education specialist says.

"Unfortunately, a typical view of the handicapped person is 'someone who is ill or a perpetual patient' — a view that defines the person primarily in terms of the physical condition," Diane Welch explains.

"That view holds in spite of well-meaning and humane intentions that include most people saying they are sensitive to persons with disabilities," the specialist continues.

Mrs. Welch is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, which as part of its special "Thrust for the 80's" Program, has defined "Social Conditions" as one of the six major concerns of Texans for this decade.

Promotion of positive attitudes toward the handicapped by society is among the chief recommendations from the 1980 White House Conference on Families, Mrs. Welch says.

That conference also recommended integrating people with handicaps into the mainstream of society as fully as possible, she adds.

Techniques for accomplishing those goals could be the use of media, education, training, counseling and self-help groups, conference participants suggested.

Roughly, one of every 10 children — and one of every five adults — in the United States are handicapped. Furthermore, at least one-half of all able-bodied adults have a disabled spouse, child, parent or close friend, Mrs. Welch notes.

Along with the White House Conference on Families recommendations, the Carnegie Council on Children has prepared a national report calling for a and the redesigning of industries to accommodate large numbers of handicapped persons.

According to that report, possible directions could include:

- 1) research on the development of handicapped children.
- 2) political commitment to the needs of handicapped people.
- 3) a more active role for parents in controlling services provided for handicapped children.
- 4) more preventive medicine to forestall handicaps.
- 5) awareness — and removal where possible — of structural barriers in homes, the market place, educational institutions and places of leisure.
- 6) research to show what handicapped workers can do

She suggests these steps are appropriate for immediate action.

Remember that everyone has a handicap — they show more on some people than they do on others.

Learn to appreciate what people with disabilities CAN DO.

Fiori shakes off pressure to win

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Ed Fiori felt the pressure mounting Sunday, but the relatively unknown touring pro shook it off to capture the top prize of $54,000 with a record shattering performance in the 78th Western Open.

"The pressure was there and it usually scares me to death, but I handled it well," said Fiori.

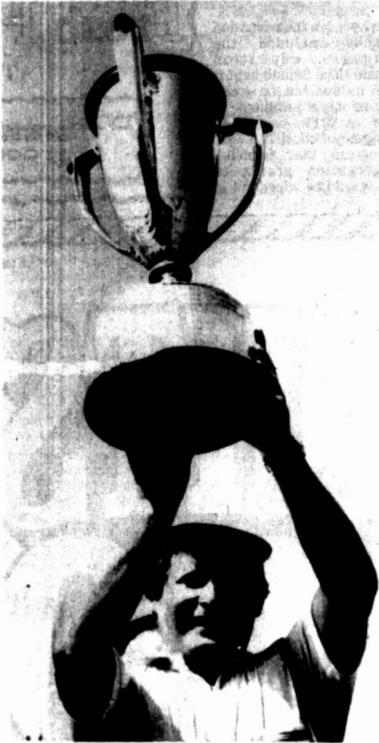

Fiori fired a final round 67 over the hazardous 7,097 yard Butler National layout and finished with a total of 277, 11 strokes under par, and four shots better than the previous Western at Butler record of 281 posted by Scott Simpson last year.

"I've been working on my game, I've been working on my swing and I've played well," said the chunky Fiori when asked how he conquered such a tough course while beating out a strong field which boasted the likes of Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Tom Watson.

But it wasn't Nicklaus, Trevino or Watson who Fiori had to defeat. He finished four shots ahead of Jim Simons, Greg Powers and Jim Colbert, who tied for second at 281, while Bill Rogers, who had the lead going into the final round, finished fifth at 282.

Fiori, who lives in Sugarland, Texas, and claims he must lose 20 pounds to get down to the 175 listed for him in the Tour Guide, had things going so well that even when he played safe and would have been satisfied with a bogey 5 on No. 18, he sank an 80 foot putt to save par.

Rogers held a two stroke lead over Fiori as the final round started, but that quickly went by the boards as Rogers, who had birdied the first two holes in each of the previous three rounds, opened with a bogey while Fiori birdied to climb into a tie.

HAPPY WINNER OF WESTERN OPEN

Although Fiori did not have a single bogey in the round, he fell behind Simons, who birdied four of the first five holes to take a one shot lead.

Fiori birdied No. 6 to gain a tie with Simons and went ahead to stay when Simons took a bogey on No. 7. Fiori finished the front nine with a 3 under par 33 and tacked on birdies at the 12th and 15th holes.

It was Fiori's second tour victory, the other coming in the 1979 Southern Open when he defeated Tom Weiskopf in a playoff.

McEnroe Great road show likely penalty delayed

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The troubled story of the Wimbledon tennis tournament will drag on for two months before John McEnroe, the new champion, knows what ultimate penalty is in store for him.

The International Tennis Council is due to meet during the U.S. Open Championships in September to study reports from the All-England Club on the court behavior of the rebel champion.

If the club's recommendations are approved McEnroe will be fined a total of $14,500 and will be liable to suspension for up to a year.

The Council is not expected to take such extreme action as that. And McEnroe will certainly not miss the U.S. Open, which he has won for the last two years, because the unit will not meet before then.

McEnroe, 22, made history by beating Bjorn Borg 4-6, 7-6, 6-4 in Saturday's final and ending the Swedish star's five-year reign. But on the way to the final he did a few other things that caused members of the highly respectable All-England Club to splutter into their teacups.

In three matches, two singles and a doubles, he was reported for arguing over line calls and abusing officials.

He stormed out of a press conference after being asked a question about his girl friend Stacy Margolin and it sparked off a fight between two reporters.

McEnroe was on his best behavior in the final and defeated Borg on merit. He served more consistently than the defending champion and played the big points more securely.

But McEnroe's rebellious behavior went on. That night he dodged out of the Champions' Dinner, at which all Wimbledon champions are expected to wear dress and respond to a toast.

Jacksboro champion

Kimberlin Well Service of Jacksboro won the Big Spring Evening Lions' Club Fast Pitch Softball Tournament here Sunday, defeating Cotton's Chippers of Big Spring in the finals, 3-1.

The action took place in the Johnny Stone Park.

Eleven teams participated in the meet, among them squads from Tahoka, Lamesa, Hobbs, N.M., Artesia, N.M., Jacksboro, Vincent, Levelland and three from Big Spring.

Named to the Class A All-Tournament squad were Ed Poehls, Big Three, Coahoma; Henry McMurry, Cotton's Chippers; Fred Kountz, Big Three, Coahoma; George Green, Kimberlin, Jacksboro; Doug Pennington, Kimberlin, Jacksboro; Paul Spence, Chippers; Phillip Escabel, Jacksboro; Sam Kerby, Chippers; Jack Gonze, Jacksboro. Most Valuable Player was Billy Atwood, Jacksboro.

Class B trophies went to Scotty Wright, Hobbs, N.M.; Tom Anderson, Lamesa; Johnny Body, Hobbs; Gene Everhart, Lamesa; Kile White, Lamesa; Jabo Clancy, Tahoka; Bill Jarrett, Hobbs; Bill Dyer, Hobbs; Mike Adams, Lamesa and Kent Bartlett, Lamesa. Most Valuable Player was E.C. Shipman, Hobbs.

Hobbs and Lamesa were declared co-champions of that division after rain had delayed play.

By WILL GRIMSLEY

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The red Indian headband that holds John McEnroe's corkscrew curls in place is a symbol of anger and courage. Bjorn Borg's golden locks are restrained by a white band, denoting purity of behavior and purpose.

Tennis is in for a great traveling road show — the two best players in the world, so close that a point or two can swing the pendulum either way — crossing oceans to battle each other like restless gladiators.

McEnroe, fiery and feisty, has broken the stolid Swede's grip on the prestigious Wimbledon crown, wrecking Bjorn's aura of invincibility here with a 4-6, 7-6, 7-6, 6-4 victory Saturday on the Center

Court's chopped up grass. Five straight Wimbledon crowns, 41 match victories without a loss covering half a decade has been broken on the taut gut strings of McEnroe's wooden racket.

Now the two move to McEnroe's home grounds — the U.S. Open at Flushing Meadow — on a hard, fast artificial surface where the American has won the last two years and the young Swede, with six French crowns and five Wimbledon titles, has never prevailed.

It should provide an exciting head to head series between the sport's impeccable and imperturbable Borg and the volatile, always ready to explode McEnroe.

It is the quiet "Shane" against the snarling man in black in a saloon shootout. It is a tennis version of those wild wrestling matches — always the good guy, like Gorgeous George, against the villain, the Mad Strangler.

It's hard to recall when tennis has produced two rivals so opposite in personality and style yet so closely matched.

Since they began whaling away at each other with 100 mph services and chalk raising placements in 1978, they have met in 3 tournaments and been involved in 40 sets.

Borg holds a slight edge in victories, 7-6, but McEnroe has won the last two. In the 40 sets they have played, the score is a standoff 20-20.

Meeting slated on Thursday

The Third and Fourth Grade Little Football League will have an organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m., Thursday in the Coor's Hospitality Room.

The league is open to anyone who will be entering the third or fourth grade in September. Students in any Howard County school system is eligible.

The meeting is open to any parent with children eligible for play or to any person who would like to help in the league.

Practice will get under way in the league in September, after teams have been formed.

Hope keeps minors' ump on the road

ALBANY, Ore. (AP) — Randy Knuths could have stayed home in Shedd, Ore., after graduating from Central Linn High School, but instead he chose the $500-a-month life of a Texas League umpire.

Whatever glory might come along with being an umpire also brings moonlighting to make ends meet, living out of a suitcase and being called a swabskull by the fans while sweltering under the sun. He still likes his job in the Class AA league.

"No, I've never considered quitting," he says. "It's a good life; it's a lot easier here than farming."

The Texas League's eight cities — Midland, San Antonio, El Paso, Amarillo, Little Rock, Shreveport, Tulsa and Jackson — stretch along 1,000 miles.

Knuths, 29, is in his second season in the minor league. Like many of the players, he hopes for the break that would send him to the big time.

"I've got as good a shot as anybody," he says, "and I'm going to get a shot at the majors. It's just a matter of time."

The catch: major league openings are rare and the competition is keen.

"There are a lot of guys out there. The competition's pretty good, but I've moved up fast and I think I'll continue to do so."

He thought he was going to get a boost this season. Knuths was one of two Texas League umpires drafted last winter by the Class AAA Pacific Coast League.

But the major league strike kept him down on the double-A farm.

Some major league umpires on option from the PCL came back during the strike. Knuths says

OFF TO DADDY — Jan Stephenson of Palm Springs, Calif., runs across the eighteenth green after sinking a birdie putt to win the Peter Jackson Classic golf tournament Sunday in Dorion, Quebec. Stephenson was running towards her father who is also her caddie.

Wish comes true for Stephenson

DORION, Quebec (AP) — Winning the $200,000 Peter Jackson Classic, one of the top events on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, was more than wishful thinking for Australian born Jan Stephenson.

"My friend Debbie Meisterlin recently gave me a book, and if I remember the quote, it said: 'Whatever you wish, if you wish it, it will probably come true,'" said Stephenson.

Helped by Stephenson's skill with a putter, the wish became reality Sunday as she rolled in a 15 foot birdie putt on the 18th hole in the 6,287 yard, par 72 Summerlea Golf Club and recorded a one stroke victory over Nancy Lopez Melton and Pat Bradley.

The dramatic putt gave the 29 year old Stephenson a 1 over par 73 for the day and a 72 hole total of 278, 10 over par for the tournament. The

Santillon star 4-3 victory

A triple by Popeye Santillon highlighted the Oldtimers' baseball victory over a younger squad of veterans at Steer Park Sunday. Final score was 4-3. The holiday doubleheader, which featured a clash between two local sandlot teams, the Angels and Red Sox.

Horace Yanez was the winning pitcher for the Oldtimers. He fanned four. Robert Beal appeared in the game as a pitcher, going one inning.

The Angeles used Orlando Olague's ninth inning home run to topple the Red Sox in the other contest. Olague appeared at the plate after two batters had been retired.

Olague was also the winning pitcher. He allowed four hits, fanned five and walked two.

Jesse Olague had a double for the Red Sox.

The Angeles loaded the bases on four occasions but left 14 runners stranded.

Lewis Rodriguez and David Cruz pitched for the Sox. The latter was charged with the defeat.

U.S. women win regatta

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP) — The United States Olympic rowing team did not get a chance at the gold medals in Moscow last year because of the American boycott of the Games. The women's coxed fours made up for it at the Henley Royal Regatta this weekend.

Calling themselves the 1980 Rowing Club, the U.S.

Olympic crew won the invitation event, easily beating Adana, the Canadian national squad, in the coxed fours to become the first victorious women's crew at Henley. This was the first year women were allowed to compete here.

Holly Hatton, the 32-year-old cox from Melbourne, Fla., said, "We got one or two catcalls and cries of get off the water, it's for men only ... but most people we've met really encouraged us.

Adana won the Women's Invitation Double Sculls when Janice Mason and Lisa Roy of St. Catherine's, Ontario, beat Julia and Charlotte Geer, sisters from Vermont who represented the Dartmouth Rowing Club.

Foul play alleged by folks in Lucas

LUCAS, Texas (AP) — Residents of this North Texas town say a proposal to build a sewage treatment plant on the edge of their community stinks.

The $50 million plant would treat 32 million gallons of sewage a day from the Dallas suburbs of Richardson, Plano, Allen and McKinney.

But although the plant would be located within Lucas' city limits, the plant would be off limits to sewage from the town's 1,500 residents.

Through "Lucas United Citizens Against Sewage," the residents contend the North Texas Municipal Water District violated federal environmental regulations by failing to give the residents enough say in deciding where the plant would be built.

LUCAS attorney John Tresnicky says he has asked the Environmental Protection Agency to review the matter. He charges that the water district's actions constituted "governmental misconduct" — not to mention a "railroad job."

But Carl Reihn, the utility's executive director, claims the district has "done nothing illegal or immoral."

Because the water district is asking for 75 percent government financing for the plant, it must follow federal guidelines requiring that a citizens' committee of potential customers and people who would be affected by the plant help choose the site.

Million students may be denied loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — A million college-age Americans may be turned down for government-backed student loans this fall, front-line victory of President Reagan's drive to slash billions of dollars in virtually every federal education program.

Both the House and the Senate have approved cuts, in slightly different form, in programs ranging from remedial education for the poor to bilingual and handicapped education.

But the retrenchment in the Guaranteed Student Loan program may hit home first.

The final plan that emerges from a House-Senate conference committee is almost certain to eliminate the current law that allows anyone, regardless of wealth, to borrow up to $2,500 a year.

The Senate would require students with family incomes above $25,000 to demonstrate need for the loan; the House would require all students to fill out needs forms.

Charles Saunders, vice president of the American Council on Education, estimated the changes would knock one-third of the current 3 million borrowers out of the loan program altogether.

Still, Saunders said, it could be worse.

"We won on our top priority: avoiding a total wipe-out of the in-school interest subsidy."

The Reagan administration wanted students to pay 9 percent interest from the start on the loans, which now are interest-free until nine months after they finish college.

Instead, students would be assessed loan origination fees — 5 percent in the Senate bill, 4 percent in the House bill. Banks would deduct the fees from the amount sent to a student's college.

Both the House and Senate versions also would put a cap on Pell Grants, formally called Basic Educational Opportunity Grants, which now cost $2.6 billion.

The Senate ceiling would be $2.8 billion in fiscal 1982 and $3.3 billion by 1984. The House would pare these grants to $2.46 billion in fiscal 1982 and less than $2 billion by fiscal 1984.

As translated by Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., "for every $100 million saved, 100,000 students will be denied a grant."

The Reagan administration lost some other battles on the way to winning the budgetary war. Its block grants, which were to have turned over $4 billion in school programs to state control, were stripped of every major program and left with 30 minor ones costing $584 million.

Both the House and the Senate also refused to go along with Reagan's request for a two-thirds cut in impact aid, a $727 million program that compensates school districts for the cost of educating children whose parents work or live on untaxed federal property. But impact aid in fiscal 1982 would be pared to $500 million in the Senate budget and $401 million in the House plan.

Greg Humphreys, lobbyist for the American Federation of Teachers, said cuts in education programs will average 12 percent to 14 percent, compared with the 25 percent, across-the-board reductions initially sought by Reagan.

But that is not definite. The House and Senate bills lowered the authorizations, or spending ceilings, for programs. Congress now must live within those ceilings.

The losers in the education cutbacks included the bilingual education program. The Senate kept it at $157 million, but the House provided only $85 million.

The $115 million Emergency School Aid Act, a program that funneled desegregation grants to cities, would be wiped out in both versions.

School lunch and child nutrition programs would absorb a $1.4 billion cut, which August Steinhilber, associate executive director of the National School Boards Association, said could add up to $1 to the daily cost of middle-income students' lunches.

Jerold Roschwalb of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, expressed concern about cuts in social science research funded by the National Science Founation. The hard sciences emerged fairly well from the budget battle, he said, "but in the social sciences it seems to be well in excess of 50 percent. That's tragic."

"The ricochet effect of these cuts is sometimes much more important than the immediate visible effect," added Roschwalb, who represents 140 schools with 3.7 million students.

"Some of the things that are going to hurt universities most are not university programs."

Two killed in knife attacks

NEW YORK (AP) — A slasher roaming the streets of Manhattan cut the throats of six men during the night, killing two, and police said he fit the description of a man who slashed nine drifters a week ago.

"We have the same type situation and the same type of victims as last weekend," said Sgt. Thomas Fahey.

A police source said a man carrying a bloody straight razor was taken into custody for questioning in the case. The man, himself a vagrant, also had a bloodstain on his pants and was taken into custody about 45 minutes after the last attack, said the high police source, who asked not to be identified.

The latest attacks were in two separate areas late Sunday and early today. Fahey said the first group occurred within six blocks of each other in lower Manhattan. Three other men had their throats slashed around 2 a.m. within four blocks of each other in the Herald Square area, across the street from Macy's department store.

The first attack was outside of Sara Roosevelt Park in the Bowery area of Manhattan. A 25-year-old Brooklyn man, Ray Miley, was talking to a man who suddenly, for no apparent reason, pulled out a knife and cut Miley's throat, Fahey said. Miley was taken to Bellevue Hospital where he was in serious condition.

Early today, Michael Fiorentino, 40, was found dead on a bench in the same park, also with his throat slashed.

before 2 a.m., where Harold Wilson had his throat cut. He was taken to Bellevue, where he died a short time later.

Two other men, were slashed minutes later about three blocks from where Wilson was attacked. William Hurbert, 54, was rushed to Bellevue and Robert Packingham, 39, was taken to St. Claire's Hospital. Both men received gashes on their necks and were listed in serious condition.

Several of the victims were able to give a description of their attacker to police. He was described as a black man, 5 feet 7, with a stocky build and about 30 years old.

The description matched the one given to police by several of the men attacked last week, said Fahey.

Nine men, mostly described by police as drifters, were knifed last week in various parks in lower Manhattan and near Madison Square Garden.

Du Pont buying Conoco

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Du Pont Co., the nation's largest chemical company, said today it signed an agreement to acquire Conoco Inc. in a transaction valued at $7.3 billion.

Conoco, the ninth-largest U.S. oil company, has been fighting an unsolicited takeover bid from a subsidiary of Seagram Co. Ltd. of Montreal.

Edward G. Jefferson, chairman of Du Pont, said its agreement called for Du Pont to acquire 100 percent of Conoco's stock for Du Pont common stock and cash. The price tag of $7.3 billion is based on the closing price of Du Pont stock Thursday.

OPEC investors eye Texas oil refineries

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Arab and Venezuelan investors will soon own at least four Texas oil refineries and half interest in a fifth refinery in Hawaii, a Beaumont newspaper says.

But government and oil industry observers told the Beaumont Enterprise Journal it's too early to say whether the foreign investments represent an effort to gain control of the oil processing market.

Since April, four refineries along the Texas Gulf Coast have been sold to firms headquartered in OPEC nations, or have announced intended sales to companies associated with the oil exporting group, the newspaper said.

Pacific Resources, Inc. of Hawaii also says it plans to sell a 50 percent interest in its island refinery to Kuwait, officials of the firm told the newspaper.

Ray Bragg, executive director of the American Petroleum Refiners' Association, said OPEC nations are not moving into the U.S. industry in large numbers.

"We don't see that much in total control," Bragg said. He said only five refinery purchases and intended sales have been shown to involve OPEC investors.

There are more than 300 refineries in the United States involving 200 separate companies, he said.

"But OPEC purchases of refineries is something to watch and something to be concerned about," he added.

Michael Goodwin, an economist with the U.S. Department of Commerce, told the newspaper that the Middle Eastern nation of Kuwait is involved in several oil refinery deals in Texas. He said Saudi Arabian investors also may be involved in the purchase of three Texas refineries.

All three refineries were bought by Peter de Savary, a British citizen who conducts financial transactions through Artoc Bank and Trust of the Bahamas, England and Kuwait.

de Savary has purchased the Uni Refining Inc. plant in Corpus Christi and refineries in Port Neches and Winnie.

de Savary has will not identify who is backing his ventures other than to say they are Arab "friends."

The American Petrofina, Inc. plant in Port Arthur, a 110,000 barrel per day refinery, is in the process of being sold to a financial institution in Venezuela — an OPEC member — and a Swiss energy company, spokesman for those companies say.

Mom, two sons perish in Longview blaze

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — Faulty wiring triggered a blaze that killed a mother and her two young sons early this morning as it swept through a two-story wooden rent house on the city's south side, authorities said.

Longview police spokesman Tom Kennedy said the bodies were found on a bed in a second-floor bedroom three feet from a door that led outside. He said all three were dressed and a bedside telephone was off the hook.

Kennedy said a Longview fire dispatcher said he thought the caller who reported the fire said, "My house is on fire." But Kennedy said authorities can only speculate on why the woman may have had enough presence of mind to call and give the location of the fire and still be unable to escape through the nearby exit.

"Fire destroyed the entire lower level and began inching up the stairwell," said Kennedy. "It forced thick smoke and intense heat into the second-story bedroom."

He said firefighters had to use an ax to cut through the second-floor door in an unsuccessful bid to rescue the woman and children.

The dead were identified as Sharon Ruth Skinner, 25, and her sons Donald Benjamin Skinner, 2, and James Kyle Skinner, 5. They were declared dead at the scene

AARP chapter meets Tuesday

Howard County AARP Chapter 1645 will meet 10 a.m. Tuesday at Kentwood Activity Center, 2805 Lynn Drive, for a monthly business meeting, program, and covered dish luncheon.

Members are reminded to bring a guest as a prospective member.

Members and their guests will be entertained by a quartet by Dan Conley, Joe Gawes, Don Green and Lynn Hise.

Free medical screening available at shop center

Free medical screening services will be provided in Big Spring from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday at the Highland South Shopping Center utilizing the Community Services Mobile Medical-Dental Clinic.

Tests that will be given are Blood Pressure, Blood Sugar (Diabetes), general vision.

Acute findings will be referred to the individual's personal doctor. Sponsoring the services in Big Spring will be the Seventh-day Adventist Church in conjunction with the Highland South Shopping Center. Carolyn Sheldon and Rex Frost will serve as medical secretary and host during operation. This is a public service of the Big Spring Seventh-day Adventist Church.

The Community Services Mobile Medical-Dental Clinic is a 38-foot semi-trailer consisting of five rooms: Receptionist room, two dental rooms, a medical examination room and a small kitchenette.

The Clinic is completely air-conditioned. It holds 130 gallons of water, a disposal system, and a 30,000 watt electrical power plant.

The dental unit is well furnished with equipment purchased from the Weber Manufacturing Company. The Clinic is heated and air-conditioned for use in various climates.

The purpose of the Clinic is to help other agencies in bringing health, healing, and happiness to those of disadvantaged and low income areas in the cities of the Southwestern States including Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Doctors will be available for consultation after 4:30 p.m. daily. Nurses will be present to take blood pressure and screening.

ATTENTION

The loyalty of friends and the unwavering support of customers leave me trying new ways to say 'thanks.' I deeply am touched by the many cards and calls I have received, and am inspired anew by your continuing business.

Though I am now at the VA Hospital in Dallas, where I am undergoing treatment for lung cancer, I am still associated with Lance Inc.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 7, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning is the best time for going to a trusted person and getting the advice you need. You would be wise to relax more and conserve your strength for the days ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contact an influential person now and plan how to become more successful. Rest and relax at home tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Ideal day for talks with higher-ups which could pave the way to greater success. Engage in social activity in the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Go to new sites with interesting persons who can help you get ahead in the future. Sidestep one who likes to argue.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A day to listen to suggestions of financial experts so that you can put your business affairs in better order.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Obtain the data you need from associates so you can operate in a more efficient manner. An outsider can be helpful to you now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Use modern appliances so that you can do your work more efficiently. Be more fair-minded with co-workers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Making plans for putting your creative ideas to work is wise at this time. Strive for increased happiness and it is yours.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Meet with family members and make long-range plans for the future. Study a new venture that could be profitable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) An expert can help you improve your daily routines so that you can save time and make more money. Be logical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A financial expert can give you the advice you need so that you can solve a money problem. Use care in travel.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handling personal affairs early in the day is wise. Accept a social invitation; tonight and have a good time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan time for studying new ventures that could be profitable in the future. Make plans to engage in favorite hobby.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be modern-minded and should be sent to the finest schools where such thinking could pave the way to an interesting and successful future. There is much sociability in this chart. Don't neglect ethical training.

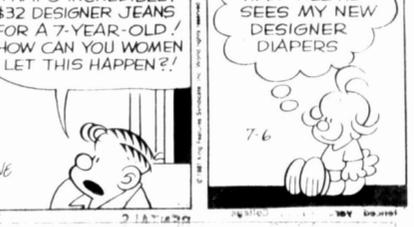

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Former HEW secretary raps Stockman

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Former HEW Secretary Wilbur Cohen says presidential budget director David Stockman has ice water in his veins and has created immense anxiety in old people about their Social Security.

Cohen, in an interview on the "Capital Eye" radio and television program, predicted Social Security would be a big issue in the 1982 congressional elections. Cohen is secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in 1968 and is regarded as one of the architects of Social Security in the Roosevelt administration.

He assed that President Ragan listens only to Stockman, director of the president's Office of Management and Budget, on fiscal matters. Stockman, Cohen said, is "almost a genius" but "ice water flows in his veins. He has no compassion, misunderstanding of human dignity and the psychological aspects that impel many people."

He does not give one tinker's arm about the anxieties older people have about their future security, Cohen added.

The former HEW secretary said he had spoken to six major groups of elderly people in Oklahoma and Michigan in the past two weeks.

"The anxiety level those senior citizens runs so high that they believe that their Social Security is going to be cut next week, next month, next year they are in a state of anxiety such as I have never seen before in this country," Cohen said.

He said he was confident that Congress never would let Social Security go bankrupt.

He also predicted the Reagan administration's attempted cuts in the Social Security program would backfire.

"I think many older people are going to vote their self-interest on Social Security in the congressional elections of 1982," Cohen said.

Couple arrested in torture slaying

EL PASO (AP) - A man and a woman who were arrested in El Paso last weekend were to appear before a U.S. Magistrate today in connection with the torture and slaying of a 16 year old New York girl whose nude body was found a month ago near Lake Charles, La.

The couple was arrested at a Northeast El Paso motel Friday, said Ronald Hoverson, FBI special agent in charge in El Paso. New Orleans FBI spokesman Cliff Anderson said another, unidentified woman still is being sought in the case.

The couple remained in El Paso County Jail Sunday on charges of interstate transportation in aid of racketeering and prostitution - bringing the murdered girl's body from Texas to Louisiana. Louisiana state police said they suspected the girl was killed in Houston.

Hoverson said the two would appear today before U.S. Magistrate Janet Ruesch of El Paso. The two eventually will be taken to Lake Charles on the charges, he said.

The arrests followed four weeks of intensive investigation by the FBI with the Louisiana state police and authorities in Cameron Parish, La., Houston and Austin, Anderson said.

The FBI announced a week ago that Lorelei Marie Wickers, 16, from Sayville, N.Y., was killed for some unexplained reason by a Texas procurer and two prostitutes from Houston.

Miss Wickers' nude body, weighted with barbells, was found by a fisherman June 6 in the Sabine National Wildlife Refuge near the southwestern Louisiana town of Hackberry in Cameron Parish.

The FBI was involved because the body was found on federally owned swampland.

Lake Charles pathologist Dr. Lerhue Stevens said Miss Wickers was brutally beaten and burned by cigarettes before she was shot at least once in the head.
