Gerri Atwell retiring as museum's curator

By TINA MILLER
Gerri Atwell, who has been curator of the Heritage Museum for the past 10 years, has announced her retirement effective July 31. When the museum opened on April 18, 1971, only a few artifacts and several pictures — all on loan — were on display. Now, all items displayed are owned by the museum, and permanent exhibits depict the early history of Howard County.

GERRI ATWELL

"I have enjoyed every minute of my work in the museum," she added, "and I have mixed emotions about retiring."

"I had volunteered to work in the museum before it opened," she said. "At first, I didn't want the job of curator, but I agreed to fill the position until a replacement could be found."

Since the museum had no permanent exhibits, special exhibits and art shows from all over the country were displayed until 1975, when a core (permanent) exhibit was set up. Later, in 1977, the interior of the building was remodeled.

"I have served under 11 board presidents," stated Mrs. Atwell. "Their help, as well as the help of board members and the good Lord, has made the museum what it is today. Also, the financial support by the Dora Roberts Foundation, Howard County, the City of Big Spring, memberships and memorials has been excellent, and the museum has grown as a result of that support."

Her future plans include resting and continuing with her studies in genealogy. "I'm not going anywhere," she emphasized. "Big Spring is my home, and I plan to stay."

Mrs. Atwell asks that anyone interested in assuming the position of curator for the Heritage Museum should call the museum at 267-8255.

More may go topless in Big Spring

Beauty queens, take note. You may soon get to ride in a parade in a spanking new, U.S.-made convertible. Early next year, Chrysler will produce the first factory-built convertible since Cadillac discontinued making them in 1976. "People haven't done without convertibles," said Jack Lewis, owner of a local Cadillac and Buick dealership. "It's always had a place and they always will have a place. We never have stopped selling them. Jeeps without a top have been a natural."

"and the convertible has air leaks." Brock said. "There isn't a big market for them here because of the wind and the sand," Lewis added. "And the sun is extra hot."

"We don't really trade for that many," Brock said. "But they sell real fast. Last January I sold a '68 Mustang for $3,900, the same as it probably sold new in '68."

proximately $8,000 and a 1974 El Dorado for $6,500. "I haven't seen a justification for the price of the new ones," Lewis. "The new El Dorado convertible will sell for approximately $39,500."

No one shows for revenue sharing hearing

By CAROL HART
No one but the county commissioners and courthouse personnel were present at a proposed revenue sharing hearing during the commissioners' meeting today. The hearing had been scheduled to discuss ways for possible revenue funds which may be received by the county. According to Jackie Olson, county auditor, the county received $125,000 in revenue sharing funds last year.

A low bid of $6,222 from James and D.D. Johnston was accepted by the commissioners for the work. Lone Star Electric also made a bid of $10,966. Commissioners accepted a low bid of $115 for a calculator for the courthouse from Marlin's Business Machines. Other bids were received from L&H Office Center, Thomas Office Supply, and Gordon's Business Machines.

Commissioners approved the hiring of Gilbert Paredes as computer operator for the county. Paredes will make $850 a month working for the county. Bonnie Franklin, county treasurer, told commissioners that she closed out the airport sinking fund recently, and that the county was now free of debt concerning the airport.

Commissioner O.L. (Louis) Brown, Precinct 1, told his fellow commissioners that he needs to build one road in his precinct, needs to build up two others, and would need road crews and their equipment for more than his allotted three weeks time. "I'll need two extra weeks," Brown said.

Action/reaction: Auto inspection

Q. Did the state pass a law saying Texans didn't have to get an annual automobile safety inspection?
A. Yes, but the state legislature also voted down the new bill soon after it was passed, so you still have to get the annual inspection, according to DPS spokesman. You still have 30 days to get the inspection done when your month is up, and most service stations will do the inspection for a small fee.

State District Judge Harley Clark ruled Saturday that the 1981 Legislature did not do everything possible to guarantee Texans would be represented in the House by someone from their home county. The Texas Constitution includes a provision against crossing county lines, unless unavoidable.

Three Mexican-American legislators challenged the plan because it included 34 "county cuts." Clark ruled that districts in 12 counties crossed county lines.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Hunger striker Martin Hurson died suddenly at the Maze Prison outside Belfast early this morning, the British government's Northern Ireland Office reported.

Hurson, 27, was the sixth Irish nationalist prisoner to die in the Maze convicts' campaign for political prisoner status.

He had gone 45 days without food. Sinn Fein, political wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, reported a sudden deterioration in Hurson's health Sunday. The spokesman said Hurson had been unable to hold down water since Saturday and Sunday became incoherent and started hallucinating.

Prison authorities had summoned Hurson's family to his bedside in the prison hospital wing, the Sinn Fein spokesman said. Hurson was jailed for 20 years in November 1977 for bombings and conspiracy to kill members of the security forces.

Sinn Fein also said the condition of Kieran Doherty, 25, who has been on hunger strike for 52 days, was "extremely weak." He has been on the fast longest and had been expected to be the next man to face death until the unexpected deterioration in Hurson's condition.

Sinn Fein said Doherty, who was elected a member of the Dublin Parliament June 11, was now "dangerously weak." Britain's Northern Ireland office said his condition continued to deteriorate.

Judge's redistricting ruling appealed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State officials are appealing a judge's ruling that struck down the Legislature's redistricting plan for the House because it set up districts that cut across county lines.

State District Judge Harley Clark ruled Saturday that the 1981 Legislature did not do everything possible to guarantee Texans would be represented in the House by someone from their home county. The Texas Constitution includes a provision against crossing county lines, unless unavoidable.

Three Mexican-American legislators challenged the plan because it included 34 "county cuts." Clark ruled that districts in 12 counties crossed county lines.

The judge tried to find a way to salvage part of the plan, saying, "The House committee (on redistricting) made a genuine good effort... and I'm willing to go with leaving some of it knocked down and some of it standing up."

However, lawyers in the case — including Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving — agreed it would be difficult to redraw lines for some counties and not others. "I'm going to strike the whole thing down and give a chance for somebody to redo the whole thing," said Clark.

That "somebody" would be the Legislative Redistricting Board, unless the Texas Supreme Court overturns Clark's ruling.

Assistant Texas Attorney General Richard Gray said the appeal would go directly to the state's highest court because the case involves a constitutional question.

During the five-day trial, Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, said 34 "county cuts" were needed to leave each of the 150 districts with a population as close as possible to the ideal of 94,856.

Clark said the "excess" population moved into neighboring counties should have been "rippled" back into its home county if possible, even if it meant further deviation from the ideal.

The plaintiffs brought in a list of "easy changes" they said would keep more counties intact.

Don Gladden, a former legislator who represented an Azle city official during the trial, said it would be unfair to have Texans represented in the House by someone from outside their home county.

"The people in Azle have always been in Tarrant County. Under the House plan, they would find that their representatives in Tarrant County would not be responsive to them because they don't get to vote for them," he said after the trial.

Rep. Robert Valles, D-El Paso and one of the plaintiffs, said the decision gives Hispanics a "fresh shot" at the representation they deserve.

These are the counties involved in the unnecessary cuts, according to Clark: El Paso, Tarrant, Potter, Webb, Gregg, Bexar, Dallas, Harris, Nueces, Cooke, Coryell and Erath.

Sixth Irish hunger striker dies in prison

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Hunger striker Martin Hurson died suddenly at the Maze Prison outside Belfast early this morning, the British government's Northern Ireland Office reported.

Hurson, 27, was the sixth Irish nationalist prisoner to die in the Maze convicts' campaign for political prisoner status.

He had gone 45 days without food. Sinn Fein, political wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, reported a sudden deterioration in Hurson's health Sunday. The spokesman said Hurson had been unable to hold down water since Saturday and Sunday became incoherent and started hallucinating.

Prison authorities had summoned Hurson's family to his bedside in the prison hospital wing, the Sinn Fein spokesman said. Hurson was jailed for 20 years in November 1977 for bombings and conspiracy to kill members of the security forces.

Sinn Fein also said the condition of Kieran Doherty, 25, who has been on hunger strike for 52 days, was "extremely weak." He has been on the fast longest and had been expected to be the next man to face death until the unexpected deterioration in Hurson's condition.

Sinn Fein said Doherty, who was elected a member of the Dublin Parliament June 11, was now "dangerously weak." Britain's Northern Ireland office said his condition continued to deteriorate.

Hurson's death came five days after the death Wednesday of fellow hunger striker Joe McDonnell. McDonnell's death spurred for straight days of rioting in Catholic strongholds in Northern Ireland.

On Sunday, fresh rioting occurred in Belfast, village 40 miles to the West and Londonderry, and police uncovered an Irish Republican army bomb factory near the center of the provincial capital, security authorities said.

No casualties were reported among security forces, but a Royal Ulster Constabulary spokesman said two young Catholics were hospitalized with gunshot wounds in Belfast. It was not clear whether they had been shot by security forces or snipers who had been firing on the police and troops.

Police also said a 28-year-old man was found stabbed to death in Catholic West Belfast, but it was not known whether the slaying was linked to the street violence.

In Londonderry, police fired plastic bullets at IRA supporters hurling gasoline bombs. Six shops and a youth center were gutted, but no injuries were reported. Rioting also flared in the mainly Catholic village of Pomeroy, 40 miles west of Belfast, after police tore the Irish Republican tricolor flag off lampposts.

The atmosphere heightened tensions on the eve of province-wide Protestant marches and rallies marking the 291st anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne. More than 100,000 Protestants were expected to turn out in Belfast and 17 other towns Monday to mark William of Orange's 1690 victory over the Catholic forces of James II.

Police said the IRA bomb factory was discovered in a garage 150 yards from the route the Protestants were to take through Belfast. They declined to speculate whether the guerrillas had targeted the marchers.

A police spokesman said that a patrol found several hundred pounds of homemade explosives in bags and beer kegs, along with detonators, timers and other materials, and that three men had been arrested after a rooftop chase.

"It was one of the biggest hauls of explosives we've made in Belfast for a long time," said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified.

The seizure was the latest in a string of reverses for the IRA's militant Provisional wing over the last few days.

Two suspected bombers were captured south of Belfast early Saturday and six IRA activists were arrested by troops in Belfast Friday after a gunfight during McDonnell's funeral.

Police Sunday identified a gunman wounded in the funeral shootout as Patrick Adams, 30, brother of Gerry Adams, vice president of Sinn Fein, the IRA's political front.

Oilman, wife shot dead; teen-age son questioned

DALLAS (AP) — Late Sunday morning, oil company president William A. Keeler, his wife and his 14-year-old son attended services together at Schreiber Memorial United Methodist Church. It was their turn to pass the collection plate.

Thirty minutes after church was over, Keeler and his wife, Anita, were lying in pools of blood on the floor of their spacious North Dallas home, shot several times each with blasts from a shotgun.

Keeler, 53, president of ARCO Oil and Gas Co., was dead. Mrs. Keeler, 49, died three hours later at a hospital.

Police said the Keelers' daughter, Barbara, made the grim discovery when she went to her parents' house about 12:30 p.m. Sunday for a routine visit.

She said she heard moans when she entered the house and found her mother lying on the floor. She told police her father, already dead, was lying a few feet down the hall.

She told police Mrs. Keeler, barely conscious, gasped out, "David, David, David did it."

Within minutes of the incident the Keelers' teen-age son had reported the shootings and was turned over to Dallas officers for questioning, said Dallas police investigator James Shivers.

The boy, whose name has not been released, had ridden his bicycle to a suburb of Addison, about three miles from his home, stopped a police patrol car and told of the shootings, which Shivers said followed a family argument.

"It was a family situation from the start," Shivers said. "I'm not certain exactly what did take place. It's an ongoing deal (the argument) and this is the culmination of it, really."

McAllen chief subpoenaed

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The McAllen police chief and at least two officers have been subpoenaed to appear this week before a federal grand jury investigating alleged criminal misconduct within the department.

Two lawyers from the U.S. Justice Department in Washington arrived for the panel's sessions today and Tuesday, a Justice Department spokesman said.

"This is very normal, standard procedure. Criminal civil rights cases are always supervised out of Washington," Wilson said.

The Washington lawyers will join Lupe Salinas, an assistant U.S. attorney in Houston, in presenting the case to the grand jury.

The McAllen department has been embroiled in allegations of widespread police brutality for over two years.

Violence hits Scotland

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher paid a surprise visit to this north-west English port today for a first-hand look at one of the cities hardest hit during a nearly two-week-old rash of urban violence.

Mrs. Thatcher arrived here after mobs and young blacks and whites took to the streets overnight in London and six provincial cities and, for the first time in the current wave of urban violence, rioting spread to Scotland.

Police at Dundee, on the east coast of Scotland, reported two flare-ups late Sunday in low-income districts of the city, which — unlike most of the troubled English centers — has virtually no non-white immigrant population.

In Dundee's Menzieshill District, three miles west of the city center, a gang of youths hurled three "incendiary devices," at a passing car and smashed several shop windows, police said. Sixteen youths, believed all to be whites, were arrested two miles northeast of the city center, when a police car was overturned after police were summoned to disperse a gang of youths outside a discotheque, police said.

Mobil wants Conoco, too

NEW YORK (AP) — The multi-billion dollar bidding war for Conoco Inc. is intensifying, with Seagram Co. Ltd. raising its bid and Mobil Corp. saying it also is interested in acquiring Conoco.

Seagram's new offer of $3.8 billion in cash for 51 percent of the nation's ninth-largest oil company threatened to break up an agreement struck last week between Du Pont Co. and Conoco that would result in the largest corporate merger in U.S. history.

Seagram, the big Canadian liquor distiller, offered Sunday to pay stockholders $85 a share — or a total of $3.8 billion in cash — for 44.4 million Conoco shares.

Mobil, the second-largest oil company, said today it was arranging bank loans and had retained an investment banker "in connection with recent developments relating to the acquisition of Conoco."

"We know Conoco and the businesses it operates. Conoco is a great company with fine resources and excellent management and personnel," said Mobil Chairman Rawleigh Warner Jr. "Barring any governmental restraints, it now appears that Conoco will be sold."

Farmers have till Aug. 3 to certify

Howard County farmers have until Aug. 3 to certify their spring seeded crops with the ASCS office.

There is no waiting for the certification at the present time but the longer a producer waits, the longer the line is going to become when the deadline nears.

Stay on top by going underground

Are you tired of paying high home energy bills? Come and learn how to stay on top of energy costs by building your house underground. The Howard County Extension Office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is sponsoring an educational program on earth integrated housing called "Staying On Top By Going Underground" on Tuesday, July 14, at 7 p.m. It will be held at the Flame Room, according to Janet Rogers, County Extension Agent.

Earth integrated housing has many names. You may be more familiar with the terms of underground or earth sheltered homes. But whatever you may call it, this type shelter has been with us in some form since prehistoric times. Interest was revived in the late 1960s and '70s and now most counties in Texas have at least one underground house.

The most common reason given for building an earth-integrated home is energy conservation, since home energy bills are cut 50 to 75 percent.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, or national origin.

Newborn girl abandoned at church in Richardson

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) — The congregation of Canyon Creek Presbyterian Church received an unexpected gift Sunday — an hours-old baby girl.

Police said today they had no clues as to the identity of the 9-pound, 15-ounce girl, found in the parking lot after the service concluded about 12:15 p.m.

"I thought maybe someone had left some peaches or vegetables, for heaven sakes, not a baby," said Ralph Graves, who found the girl lying on the hot asphalt as he approached his car after church.

"She didn't even whimper until I tore open a part of the newspaper she was wrapped in and the sun hit her tiny face," he said.

Weather Clear skies, hot temps to remain

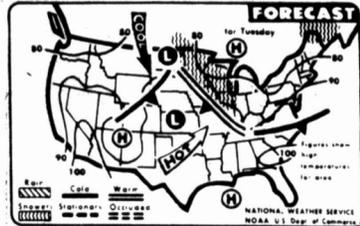

By the Associated Press

Clear skies were reported over most of Texas today as a high pressure system that has produced sizzling temperatures lingered over most of the state.

Temperatures climbed well into the 90s at almost every reporting station in Texas on Sunday beneath clear to partly cloudy skies.

At 4 a.m. today, temperatures ranged from 71 degrees at San Angelo to 77 degrees at Longview.

The forecast called for continued hot afternoon temperatures and mostly fair skies with a chance of scattered thundershowers in parts of South and East Texas.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather forecasts showers Tuesday for parts of North Dakota, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois, Iowa and Maine.

Tax fight shifts to high gear

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the budget battle winding down, the Reagan administration plans to shift into "high gear" in its drive to bring public pressure on Congress as the tax-cut fight begins in earnest this week.

And while Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan concedes a "bruising fight on the floor of the House" is unavoidable, budget director David A. Stockman flatly predicts that President Reagan also will win on taxes.

"I think we will move into high gear, in terms of calling the attention of the American public to what's at stake here and the point that if they are to get a tax reduction this year, which they expect, then we must have a tax bill ... signed by the president before Congress leaves for its month-long August recess," Stockman said Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

"I think it is that knowledge — and it is that sort of short time fuse — which will expedite things in the House and Senate and get us a tax bill by early August," he added.

SALUTING RETURN — President Reagan returns the salute of the Marine One helicopter, followed by Mrs. Reagan Sunday as they stepped off the helicopter on the White House South Lawn. The Reagans spent the weekend at the Presidential retreat at Camp David, Md.

Two 'wives' and two 'adopted sons' Four more Hughes 'heirs' given their day in court

HOUSTON (AP) — A probate judge ruled swiftly today that a California man and a Nevada woman, both claiming to be unacknowledged children of Howard Hughes, were not entitled to any money from the estate of the wealthy recluse.

Harris County Probate Judge Pat Gregory granted motions for summary judgment by attorneys representing the known heirs and denied claims filed by Donald E. McDonald of Los Angeles and Clare Benedict

McDonald, who said his real name was Richard Robard Hughes, had maintained he was adopted by Hughes and Ms. Hudenberg contended she was Hughes' illegitimate child. Neither McDonald or Ms. Hudenberg were in the courtroom today.

Wayne Fisher, an attorney for 22 known heirs, said McDonald and Ms. Hudenberg had failed to produce a "shred of credible evidence, such as a birth certificate or adoption papers, to prove that Hughes adopted McDonald or was the biological father of Ms. Hudenberg.

Gregory also was considering the claims of a New Jersey woman and a Houston resident who claimed they were married to Hughes and were entitled to a share of the estate estimated at between $180 million and $2 billion.

Alyce Hovsepian, of Atlantic City, N.J., says she married Hughes in civil and religious ceremonies in New York on June 6, 1946.

Alma Cruise Hughes contends she married Hughes in the operating room at Baylor Hospital in Dallas in 1973. The Houston woman also says she was artificially inseminated and gave birth "eight or nine years ago" to Howard Robard Hughes III.

Fisher disputed the claims, saying, "There is a common thread throughout these claims by people whose minds are controlled by delusions and fantasies."

If Gregory denies the claims of the two women, he then would determine the maternal and paternal heirs to the Hughes estate, an effort that some attorneys said could make the proceeding last until November.

BSSH laundry construction gains approval

The Texas Health Facilities Commission approved construction of a laundry addition at Big Spring State Hospital.

This addition will include the erection of a new 35' X 25' building to house a 1,000 gallon hot water boiler and heat reclamation process-machines, according to Elma Martinez, information officer at Big Spring State Hospital.

The reasons for such additions are to help with energy conservation, operating efficiency, and to expand safety factors for personnel, said Mrs. Martinez.

The new boiler will keep the water temperature more constant resulting in less energy use, Mrs. Martinez explained. As a result, personnel will not have to wait for the right water temperature. This will help pick up on operating efficiency.

Construction and replacement will begin as soon as a bid is accepted.

Death sentence an 'illusion'

Juries, made up of people who are saddened and sickened by the incidence of murder, keep decreeing death sentences for those adjudged guilty of such atrocities. With monotonous regularity, as if they didn't grasp the significance of such dictates, members of the judiciary keep refusing to let such sentences be carried out.

NINE YEARS AGO, the death penalty was outlawed by a Supreme Court ruling. Since that time, capital punishment statutes worded to meet the court's interpretation of constitutional requirements have been reenacted by 35 states—Texas included.

Only recently, the Senate Judiciary Committee voted, 13-5, to recommend the death penalty for federal crimes such as presidential assassinations, treason and espionage.

Across the land, there are nearly 780 convicted murderers on Death Row. Attorneys have succeeded in preventing all but four executions. In at least two of those four cases, defendants have expressed a desire to forfeit their lives and instructed their lawyers not to further interfere in the state's efforts to carry out the dictates of the law.

Last year alone, juries in America returned 150 death sentences but in each case the juries' verdicts have been slowed, if not negated, by appeals courts.

The death sentence in this country is looked upon as "virtually an illusion" by no less a personage as Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist, who finds it not easy to justify the actions of the appeals courts in view of the fact that the majority of people support the idea of capital punishment.

Organization like the American Civil Liberties Union are almost without exception successful in getting the original sentence in capital cases changed.

REHNQUIST RECENTLY scolded his colleagues for providing capital defendants numerous legal technicalities, which he referred to as "procedural protections," and called for an end to "endlessly drawn-out proceedings."

Death sentences have been visited upon slayers by clusters of their peers since long before Jesus Christ walked the earth. Only in recent times have critics of the system been able to convince pillars within the brotherhood of man that such decrees are "barbaric," that there are better ways to punish such individuals. Mankind, however, has yet to agree upon an alternate plan that works to the advantage of society.

Taking the life of someone guilty of homicide, even its advocates admit, may not deter crime. This much members of the human alliance know, however: Those who forfeit their lives for such outrages have no chance to be released and kill again.

ABSCAM senator

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Sen. Harrison "Pete" Williams, D-N.J., who liked to call himself "the voice of the voiceless" because of the dozens of social welfare bills he sponsored, sometimes loses his own voice when he tries to talk about ABSCAM.

He was the only member of the Senate to be trapped in the FBI's "sting" operation, and he insists he got a raw deal. He now faces expulsion from the Senate because of his ABSCAM conviction, his hearing before the Senate Ethics Committee begins soon.

"They've put me in an impossible situation," he said in an exclusive interview, referring to the committee. Williams had wanted more time to prepare for the hearing. He had also wanted former Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., as his attorney before the committee.

But Williams lost on both counts. MY ASSOCIATE INDY Badwar happened to be interviewing Williams in his office when the ethics committee blow fell. Also present was Eugene Boyce, Morgan's law partner, who was going to represent Williams at the committee hearing. Morgan himself had been ruled out by the ethics committee because he had been a member of it until he left the Senate this year.

A secretary came in and handed Williams a sealed envelope. The senator's hands trembled as he opened it. He stared at the letter and his face dropped. His eyes moved across the page again and again.

Nobody spoke. Then, in a low voice, choking back his emotion, Williams said: "They won't postpone." The letter was from ethics committee counsel Robert Bennett.

"I can't get ready for the ethics committee proceeding in three weeks," Williams murmured to no one in particular. Just the day before, a judge in New York had begun to hear arguments from the senator's attorney charging that the FBI had entrapped Williams and otherwise violated his rights to due process.

"The committee could at least have waited until the end of my due process hearing," said Williams. "One day, just one day after my due process hearings begin, I get this letter."

THERE WAS MORE to come. Boyce told Williams he couldn't defend him before the ethics committee. Like the aging, arthritic deputy in "High Noon," the lawyer evidently felt he would be more of a hindrance than a help to his client.

"I can't do it," he told Williams. "I did want to help you. But if I said I could represent you, it would be wrong on my part. It would be unethical. I could not prepare for it."

Williams, a lawyer and 22-year Senate veteran, explained that an ethics committee proceeding is quite different from a court trial. "It's an adjudicatory, fact-finding hearing," he said. "It needs a special kind of lawyer."

That was why he had wanted Morgan to defend him. But the committee expressed "serious concerns" over the choice of the former senator because he had been present at executive sessions where the Williams case had been discussed.

Morgan reluctantly dropped out, but not without sending the ethics committee a blistering note, in which he said Williams, "like any other citizen, should be allowed counsel of his choice without being subjected to unfounded and groundless irrelevancies in the form of a specter of attack on his lawyer's ethical standards."

What Williams wanted to do was make the ethics committee hearing "the most profound examination" of ABSCAM, he said. The senator maintains that the jury at his trial was not given all the evidence, and he had hoped the committee hearing would bring it all out.

For instance, the prosecution had charged that Williams had contacted the New Jersey Casino Control Commission on behalf of the Ritz Casino Hotel in Atlantic City—even though a Justice Department document shows that investigators had concluded there was no evidence that Williams had acted improperly. Yet the prosecution repeatedly brought up the matter before the jury.

"They planted the seed. The idea is that since we spent so much time on it there must be something to it," Williams said.

"We still have got no documents about the geographical and individual selection of ABSCAM targets," Williams said. He suspects the fact that he was a known backer of Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., for president may have targeted him under the Carter administration. Material on how the ABSCAM targets were selected is in unreleased Justice Department files, which the Ethics committee could subpoena, if it so chooses.

Despite his feeling that he has been treated unfairly by the FBI, the Justice Department and now the ethics committee, Williams still retains a wry sense of humor. Asked how it felt to be the first member of the Senate to face expulsion because of an undercover FBI operation, he said: "Well, I've been on the pioneering side of this. This whole thing is a first." Then he added, dead seriously: "It's also a first in that the executive (branch) went in to frame the legislature."

Footnote: At press time, Williams was still seeking a postponement of the Senate hearing.

WATCH ON WASTE: Ever hopeful of pay raises, the federal bureaucrats have more than a dozen costly surveys done each year comparing government pay scales with those in private industry. One, the Professional, Administrative, Technical and Clerical Survey—called PATC, or "Patsy"—costs $2.3 million a year. Two separate studies of the pay comparability system have suggested that surveys might better be made every two or three years, especially since Congress tends to ignore the surveys' findings.

WASHINGTON — An earful of the European complaints against the Reagan Administration came this way last week during a trip to Paris and Berlin. But the transatlantic rumbles, when taken point by point and subjected to analysis, seem more full of sound than substance. With a modicum of skill, the Administration can disarm its European critics—especially if the President moves with dispatch to formulate an agreed position on dealing with Russia.

Economic policy represents the most serious point of transatlantic discord. In the past year the Europeans have suffered what the French Finance Minister, Jacques Delors, calls a "third oil shock." Unemployment, which grew by only 8.6 percent in the U.S., rose by 22 percent in France, 44 percent in West Germany and 69 percent in Britain. Except for West Germany, the major European countries also suffered higher rates of inflation than the U.S.

CURRENCY DEPRECIATION explains much of the difference. In the past year the French franc went down against the dollar by more than 35 percent, the German mark by more than 30 percent and the Italian lira by more than 40 percent. Oil imports, which have to be paid for in dollars, cost the Europeans that much more dearly. To hold down balance-of-payments deficits and to stay competitive with the U.S. in attracting investment, the Europeans all kept interest rates high—which reduced business activity and increased unemployment.

Francois Mitterrand, the new President of France, and Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany have both blamed the "third oil shock" on high American interest rates. But French and German financial authorities admit that for years they pushed Washington to raise interest rates the better to fight inflation. So while delighted to gripe, the Europeans are not going to go to the mat on economic policy for a while.

North-South issues represent a second big item of disagreement. The Europeans constantly attack the Reagan Administration for the application of military means to social problems. They insist the way to deal with unrest in Asia, Africa and Latin America is through social reform, financed by economic concessions from the industrialized countries of the North to the developing countries of the South.

A solid commercial motive lies behind the European emphasis on a North-South dialogue. Far more than in the U.S., European prosperity depends on trade with the underdeveloped world. But while talking up a North-South dialogue, the Europeans are very reluctant to make important concessions. They feature words over deeds. The U.S. can square itself with the Europeans simply by more generous rhetoric on North-South matters.

RELATIONS WITH THE Soviet Union compose a third big bone of contention. The Germans, in particular, fear that the tough anti-Soviet diplomatic line embraced by the Administration and the American military buildup will provoke the Russians to strike—perhaps in Poland, perhaps elsewhere—in ways that would cut economic and cultural ties and maybe even make Europe the battleground in a nuclear war.

So the Europeans are constantly engaging the Russians in dialogue. Former Chancellor Willy Brandt has just returned to Bonn after talks on Poland and arms control with President Leonid Brezhnev in Moscow. Lord Carrington, the British Foreign Secretary, went to Russia Monday with a proposal supported by all the main European governments for a settlement on Afghanistan.

The U.S., under prodding from the Europeans, has agreed to begin talking about limiting nuclear missiles in Europe—Theater Nuclear Forces or TNF—when Secretary of State Alexander Haig meets with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in the United Nations in fall. But there is disagreement inside the Administration as to what these talks about talks should cover. While Haig is prepared to move quickly from discussion of missiles in Europe to talk about all strategic weapons, the Pentagon seems prepared to talk about TNF almost forever.

Soviet behavior does not look—at least to me—particularly scary at this time. The attitude shown toward Poland and the keenness to talk with Europeans suggest that Moscow is playing a waiting game. Certainly the U.S. ought not to rush into arms control talks with the Russians before settling on an agreed position.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have heard it said that we are not supposed to be materialistic, but what does that really mean? And after all, we all have certain basic material needs.—D.E.

DEAR D.E.: Yes, we do have certain material needs, and God knows that. In fact, one of the characteristics of a true Christian is that he knows everything he has in the way of material things has come from God, and he thanks God for them.

He knows also that he is to be a steward of them—he is to consider them "on loan" to him from God, and he is to be faithful in using them for God's glory and not for selfish indulgence. King David declared in thankfulness to God, "Wealth and honor come from you; and you are the ruler of all things. ... Everything comes from you" (1 Chronicles 29: 12, 14).

To be materialistic, therefore, does not mean that we necessarily have great numbers of material goods—we may be poor and still be materialistic. To be materialistic is to have our lives centered mainly in material values and things. It means to be absorbed with material possessions, to the exclusion of spiritual reality.

The Bible warns us against being too absorbed in material things. Jesus told his disciples, "Do not worry about your life, what you will eat or drink; or about your body, what you will wear. Is not life more important than food, and the body more important than clothes?" (Matthew 6: 25).

There are several reasons the Bible warns us about becoming materialistic in our outlook. For example, if we become absorbed with the drive for material things we are inevitably going to think they are the most important thing in life, instead of God.

Also, when we become attached to material things we tend to trust in them and try to find our security in them, rather than in God. In addition, we forget that some day all of our material possessions will be left behind and will perish.

In our materialistic age Christians need to remember again the command of the Bible: "Since, then, you have been raised with Christ, set your hearts on things above, where Christ is ... not on earthly things" (Colossians 3: 1-2).

Around the rim Chop chop

Andrea Cohen

Chop chop, crack, crash! Sounds of defrosting my freezer. It's not something I enjoy. In fact, I hate it. But I plunge ahead anyway.

The freezer that refuses to keep ice cream frozen is the same one that looks like a glacier every six weeks.

Splash goes the water as I try to balance the freezer tray for the third time.

IT'S NOT SO bad really, I think. Burning my hands from the hot water. And the waiting. I have to catch up on my reading anyway. The water all over my floor, well, it won't hurt the floor to give it an extra mopping. My right arm will become uneven from its partner on the left side when it develops a muscle from all the chopping.

Chop, chop. Oh, there goes another chunk of ice, crashing to the floor.

There's some food wrapped in foil I never knew I had. They were buried under the ice. I thought I cooked it four weeks ago.

So I have to stay in four hours on-end waiting for it to defrost. So I have to wash four or five extra pots and pans.

It doesn't matter that all my ice cubes have melted. It was no big deal. I'll just run up to the store and get myself a cold Coke.

Chop, clink, crash. Again.

WHEN WILL THIS ever stop? Why didn't either of my parents just know to buy me a frost-free refrigerator and ship it down to me last week for my birthday?

Why do I keep checking it every 10 minutes to see if it's finished?

This is ridiculous. I'm going out. When I get back in an hour, it should be just about finished defrosting. There has to be a better way.

I think I'll go get a frost-free refrigerator.

Childhood diarrhea is vexing problem

Dear Dr. Donohue: My six-year-old son has had a diarrhea problem off and on for the last two months. A bug was identified. Tea and toast diet seems to correct the diarrhea, but it returns. Prior to this, he usually had normal movements. A year earlier, however, he had another similar experience. Is there any way we can determine the reason why a six-year-old child would have such an intestinal problem?—L.D.

Persistent diarrhea in a child is vexing. At times it follows an intestinal infection. Bacteria that live in the intestine and assist digestion are lost and different, troublesome kinds take over. That leads to diarrhea, which persists until normal bacteria get back in command. Perhaps this is what has caused your son's problems. That's only a guess.

The important consideration is how he is thriving. Is he growing normally? Is he gaining expected weight? If he is, then the loose movements are not so worrisome and a wait-and-see attitude is possible. If he is not thriving, then there is greater urgency about matters.

Tracking down a cause can be difficult. I'll mention a few possibilities: childhood sprue, where the intestines do not absorb food well; certain disorders of the endocrine glands (thyroid, adrenal); sensitivity to cow's milk.

The tipoff to any of these problems is that the child looks and acts ill. That's not true 100 percent of the time, but failure to thrive in the presence of diarrhea is a serious problem that has to be watched for and investigated promptly. When there is no identifiable cause, and when the diarrhea persists for weeks or months, then it is called "idiopathic." That word has a ring of scholarship, but means "I don't know." The "I-don't-know" type diarrhea most often clears up on its own in time.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have had my uterus removed. What I would like to know is whether or not a person can still get pregnant without a uterus.—S.K.

You cannot get pregnant after the uterus has been removed. You are not the first woman to ask me this question. It occurs to me that what some may be referring to is a possibility of tubal pregnancy, where tubes remain after surgery such as yours. Even though the woman has an ovary and tubes, tubal pregnancies would not happen. The tubes have been stitched closed and the sperm cannot get past the opening where the uterus was. Conception is virtually impossible.

Acne is a terrible problem for anyone growing up. If you are afflicted with it, or have children who are, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "Controlling Acne, Blackheads and Pimples." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Take vitamins with caution

COLLEGE STATION — Are you one of the 35 million Americans taking unprescribed vitamin supplements? Do you take them because a friend told you about these or just as an "insurance policy?"

You could be poisoning yourself.

There are times when vitamin supplements may be necessary, says Mary K. Sweeten, a foods and nutrition specialist. These involve cases in which there is a sub-normal intake of food.

For example, a physician may prescribe vitamin supplements for some patients more than 65 years of age or for some expectant mothers or for some mothers breastfeeding their infants. Other instances include malabsorption or an acute illness which decreases the appetite.

Before taking unprescribed vitamin supplements, however, check with your physician, the specialist advises.

Mrs. Sweeten is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Massive doses of vitamins and minerals reach beyond the realm of nutritional therapy, the foods and nutrition specialist says. This practice, then, becomes drug therapy, and it requires the supervision of a physician for safety, she stresses.

Excessive amounts of the fat-soluble vitamins (A, D, C and K) can be toxic (poisonous), because these vitamins are stored in the body, Mrs. Sweeten cautions.

The term "megavitamin therapy" refers to treating the person with doses of vitamins a thousand times greater than the requirement for those vitamins as set forth by the Recommended Dietary Allowances of the national Food and Nutrition Board, Mrs. Sweeten continues. Again, this massive-dose therapy requires a physician's supervision for safety.

So why take vitamin supplements without a physician's advice?

There are not any known advantages to taking excess amounts of any nutrient, except in cases such as those described above in which the body is not getting enough food, Mrs. Sweeten says.

Vitamins and minerals are not substitutes for food, she stresses.

On the other hand, the best way to obtain vitamins and minerals the body needs is by eating a variety of foods selected from the Daily Food Guide every day.

Eating habits based on moderation and variety can help keep good health, and they may even improve health, especially if ideal weight is achieved.

Son's Wife Ruins His Mother's Day

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor told me that this past Mother's Day she didn't get a card or even a telephone call from her married son. She felt so hurt and neglected she cried all day. She said two days later her son called and told her that the reason he ignored her was because she had not given him his wife anything for Mother's Day. (The son and daughter-in-law have a baby boy who's nearly a year old.) The son told her he really wanted to call and wish her a happy Mother's Day, but his wife wouldn't let him!

Abby, I've always been under the impression that mothers were remembered by their children on Mother's Day. May I have your opinion on this? And what do you think of a son like my neighbor's?

How to avoid a crepey neck

It's your neck. And according to the current Family Circle magazine, unless you take some preventive measures, chances are it will start to sag and get "crepey" before your face shows signs of aging. (The reason for this is the neck has very few oil glands.) To keep your neck young looking try these tips from the magazine: Use an oil-based moisturizer on it each night and, if possible, in the morning too. Don't use detergent soaps — they dry the skin. When you apply moisturizer, jut the chin forward to tighten the neck muscles. Also, don't wear clothes or jewelry that pull against the skin of your neck, or clothes around your neck that absorb the oil body needed in that area.

The plan baseball owners rejected

NEW YORK (AP) — The gap between the players and owners in the major league baseball strike widened considerably over the weekend when Ray Grebey said Marvin Miller was Kenneth Moffett's ghost-writer and Miller said Grebey was a liar.

The three are the principal players in the strike which entered its second month today. Grebey is the chief negotiator for the owners, Miller is the head of the players' union and Moffett is the harried federal mediator trying to bring both sides together.

Thursday, Moffett gave both sides a plan designed to settle the sole issue — for now — of free-agent compensation which has wiped out 392 regular-season games and put off the All-Star game, scheduled for Tuesday night in Cleveland.

Moffett's plan was accepted by the players. But the owners rejected it.

Under the plan offered by Moffett:

—An eligible player in the top 20 percent at his position, based on a statistical formula covering the most recent two seasons, would be classified a "premier" player.

—Players 35 and over, those with more than 12 seasons in the majors, and those who have previously gone through the free-agency system would be excluded from the "premier" label.

—Premier players would be excluded from the re-entry draft and permitted to negotiate with any number of clubs. All other players would go through the current re-entry draft and be limited to negotiating with 13 teams.

—Compensation in the form of a professional player would be limited to the top 12 ranking free agents. Compensation for any other ranking free agents would be a special amateur draft choice. Compensation for nonranking players would be a regular amateur draft choice.

—The degree of compensation for the top 12 premier players would be based in part on the team's overall standing in the previous two seasons, with the league divided into three groups — the top nine, middle eight and bottom nine clubs.

U.S. scores Davis Cup quarterfinals win

Johnny Mac's back — better behaved, as winning as ever

NEW YORK (AP) — For the next two weeks, John McEnroe would like to be John Doe. "I'm taking a vacation. Maybe people will forget who I am for awhile," said McEnroe, who capped three weeks of tennis history and histrionics by overpowering Tomas Smid 6-3, 6-1, 6-4 in the clinching match Sunday as the United States defeated defending champion Czechoslovakia 4-1 in the Davis Cup quarterfinals.

Jimmy Connors completed the best-of-five Davis Cup series before a crowd of 16,008 (11,718 paid) by beating Czechoslovakian ace Ivan Lendl 7-5, 6-4 in a match shortened to best-of-three sets because it did not have any impact on the team competition.

The United States will next face Australia in the semifinals in Portland, Ore., Oct. 2-4.

While McEnroe's two-week charge to the Wimbledon title was marred by temper tantrums, disputes with officials and the British press and a final snub by the All-England Club, which broke with tradition by not making him an honorary member despite his victory over Bjorn Borg in the finals, he behaved much better this weekend in his hometown.

But that doesn't mean he's changed his mind about the quality of tennis officials. He was clearly displeased by several line calls in his lopsided victory over Smid, as well as his opening loss to Lendl on Friday.

With McEnroe leading Smid 4-2 in the third set and the score tied 30-30 in the seventh game, the Czechoslovakian player hit a serve that appeared to be good. The linesmen called it good, but were overruled by the umpire who called a fault.

The Czechoslovakians complained, but to no avail — so McEnroe took matters into his own hands. He signalled to Smid to hit his second serve, and rather than trying to return it he simply waved at it, giving away the point.

The crowd loved it, treating McEnroe to the loudest ovation of the day.

"I don't like to get bad calls myself and I don't like to see other players get hurt by bad calls," explained McEnroe. "The ball was good by a foot. There was no way the umpire could see it clearly enough to overrule the linesmen."

As for the cheer from the crowd at the National Tennis Center, where McEnroe has frequently been booed, he joked, "Let's hope I hear more of it at the Open."

Defending his title at the U.S. Open in late August and early September is McEnroe's next big tennis goal. After his hiatus, he'll play tournaments in Montreal and Cincinnati as tuneups for the Open.

"It felt good to be able to contribute to the team victory," said McEnroe. "But Stan Smith and Bob Lutz had taken the pressure off by winning the doubles (9-7, team to Davis Cup semifinals action this fall in Australia.

6-4, 6-2 over Lendl and Smid on Saturday to give the U.S. a 2-1 lead.)

Australia, meanwhile, won its matches with Sweden Sunday as Paul McNamee outlasted 16-year-old Swedish rookie Mats Wilander 2-6, 6-4, 6-0, 6-4. McNamee's victory in Baastad, Sweden, gave the Aussies an unbeatable 3-1 lead in their best-of-five non-zonal quarterfinal series.

The last singles match between Peter McNamara and Per Hjertquist was cancelled at 6-6 in the opening set because of rain, making the final score 3-1 for Australia.

Teen-agers Anders Jarryd and Hans Simonsson had kept Sweden's slim hopes alive by stunning McNamara and McNamee, the world's second-ranked doubles team, in a five-set doubles match Saturday.

McNamee came from 0-2 to take a 5-4 lead in the fourth set. Play was halted 15 minutes because of rain, and then McNamee broke through again to close out the set and match.

In Bucharest, Romania, Guillermo Vilas defeated Florin Segarceanu as Argentina edged Romania 3-2 to advance to a semifinal meeting with Great Britain.

The British breezed to the next level by winning four of five games from New Zealand in Auckland. Russell Simpson stopped Jonathan Smith 4-6, 11-9, 6-2, Sunday to give New Zealand its only victory over Britain in their quarterfinal meeting. Earlier in the day, Britain's Richard Lewis beat New Zealand's No. 1 player, Chris Lewis, 6-2, 6-2, in 38 minutes. The matches were reduced to best-of-three sets after Britain took an insurmountable 3-0 Saturday. The Davis Cup semifinals will be held the first week of October and then the championships will take place in December.

In Davis Cup play for qualification in next year's competition, the Soviet Union defeated Austria 4-0 Sunday in Klagenfurt, Austria, in European Group B and will meet in the finals against the Dutch team, which beat Finland over the weekend. Russia's Konstantin Pugaev defeated Austria's Ingo Wimmer 6-4, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3 in the third single match, which was interrupted by rain for more than three hours.

Spain completed a 5-0 sweep of Monaco and moved to the final of the European Zone A tourney.

Stewart, Cox win Small golf tourney

A two-stroke lead Howard Stewart and Royce Cox built up on the opening round of play Saturday at Comanche Trail Park Golf Course stood them in good stead on the last day of the Carl Small Partnership Golf Tournament Sunday.

Stewart and Cox finished with a 36-hole low-ball score of 129 to beat out the red-hot tandem of Jerry Barron and Jimmy Roger by a stroke.

Stewart and Cox each received for $150 in merchandise awards as a result of their victory. Barron and Roger fashioned a 65 Sunday, which gave them a two-day total of 130. Each player earned $100 in merchandise.

Third in the championship flight were Chris Atkins and Ronnie Fletcher, who put together rounds of 66 and 66 for a two-day total of 132. Third place paid $75 in merchandise for each player. Fourth place, good for $25 in merchandise for each player, went to Bernard Rains and Dan Wilkins. They sizzled with a 65 Sunday after finishing with a 68 Saturday. At 133, they beat out Bruce Carroll and Tom Spillman by a stroke.

Fred Marples and Ralph Harris beat out Ben Garcia and Johnny Hernandez in a sudden death playoff in the First Flight. Jay Day and John Craine won the Second Flight in a playoff with Jackie Touchstone and Lynn Walling.

A two-way tie for Third Flight honors also occurred. Burl Dennis and Jack White prevailed in a playoff with Tano Chaverria and Luevan Flores.

Charley Burdette and R.C. Reed won the fourth flight.

A total of 62 teams took part in the competition. Players were treated to a barbecue Saturday night by sponsor Carl Small.

Stewart and Cox won a spot in the 1982 tournament without having to post entry fees or qualify, one of the stipulations of the tournament.

After bogeying the first hole Saturday, Stewart and Cox had nine birdies and eight pars. On Sunday, they settled for five birdies and 13 pars.

Par for the 18-hole course is 71.

Cowboy rookies report for training camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — First-round draft choice Howard Richards of Missouri led a group of 98 rookies and four second-year players who reported Sunday to the Dallas Cowboys training camp, team officials said.

Richards, a 6-foot-6, 262-pound offensive lineman, only agreed to terms Saturday night, according to player personnel director Gil Brandt.

Four rookies remained unsigned as the Cowboys opened camp on the California Lutheran College campus, he said. They were Doug Donley, Ohio State wide receiver, a second-round draft choice; third-round pick Glen Titensor, an offensive lineman from Brigham Young; linebacker Derrie Nelson, the team's fourth-round pick from Nebraska and defensive tackle Pat Graham of California, a 10th-round pick.

Four young veterans reported with the rookies to get extra work before the rest of the team arrives, said Cowboys publicity director Doug Todd. They were quarterback Gary Hogeboom, guard Kurt Peterson, offensive lineman Norm Wells and defensive lineman Donald Smeres.

Todd said the Sunday arrivals will go through physical examinations Monday and begin twice-a-day workouts Tuesday.

Veteran quarterbacks, receivers, running backs and centers are due in Sunday and the rest of the squad is to be in camp by July 23, he said.

The Cowboys open preseason play in Dallas on Saturday, Aug. 8, against Green Bay.

NEW MISS TEXAS — Miss Sheri Lynn Ryman celebrates her first day as Miss Texas 1981 with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Darwin J. Ryman (right), of Texas City, Texas. Among topics for discussion were newspaper accounts of Saturday night's finals in the 1981 Miss Texas Pageant.

Controlling animals is problem

By WACKWELL
 Many pet owners are not always as responsible as a friend. Mike Rineda and Jessie Baker, animal control officers in Big Spring, know that as anybody.
 "The problem in Big Spring is not reached epidemic proportions, but it is bad," according to Rineda. "People don't keep them from getting too large. Rineda says that pets castrated or spayed is a step in the right direction. This keeps more unwanted animals from being born and later roaming the streets as strays.

 Often pet owners don't realize the responsibilities of owning an animal. Pets need to be protected from infestation of ticks, fleas, and worms, Rineda said. Yards and the animals themselves need to be sprayed and a worming program should be carried out.

Rineda or Baker sometimes will be called to pick up a pet that is no longer wanted. Rineda said sometimes these animals will be taken by other families but often the animals will be put to sleep. The animals that are picked up are well taken care of while they are at the shelter, the only problem being a lack of facilities, Rineda said.
 The animal control department is in need of about two more wardens, two more trucks, and a new kennel, Rineda said. "We also need some kind of a dipping vat," he said. When we bring in an animal that is infested with ticks and fleas all the animals get them.

Many California residents fleeing pesticide spraying

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Emergency shelters were readied as some residents of lush San Francisco suburbs prepared to flee before helicopters begin spraying pesticide to wipe out destructive Mediterranean fruit flies.

Attorneys for several cities planned a last-ditch appeal today to Judge Bruce Allen of Santa Clara County Superior Court for an injunction against the spraying. The request is similar to one denied Friday by U.S. District Judge William A. Ingram.

State and federal authorities said the malathion poses no health dangers. But some local officials and a doctor urged the 500,000 residents in the target area — particularly pregnant women and nursing mothers — to leave home before the 117-square-mile area is blanketed with malathion spray to eradicate the Mediterranean fruit fly. The first helicopter is set to take off at 2 a.m. Tuesday.

Zoe Lofgren, a Santa Clara County supervisor, was one of those who urged people to leave. "I don't know where I'll go, but I intend to leave," she said.
 Red Cross officials said Sunday that they didn't know how many refugees to expect at their four shelters — located in nearby towns outside the spraying area. The largest of the shelters would accommodate 1,000.
 "This is the first time this kind of situation has occurred," said Mary McClellan, director of family services for the Santa Clara Valley Chapter of the American Red Cross. "We don't know whether to expect 10 people or 10,000."
 "I doubt it would be 10, since we've been receiving a large number of calls from individuals who are concerned about the spray. But it's difficult to pinpoint the number."
 Project spokeswoman Gene Cone said the spraying would go ahead despite Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's decision Sunday to deny the use of nearby Moffett Naval Air Station to U.S. Department of Agriculture helicopters. Weinberger said he made the decision because non-military facilities were available.
 Aerial spraying was ordered by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. on Friday after the U.S. Department of Agriculture threatened to ban shipment outside the state of all California fruit and vegetables to prevent the pest from spreading. Brown said the Reagan administration "put a gun to my head."

Brown at first rejected aerial spraying, favoring a ground assault on the fly, which officials say threatens the $14 billion California farming industry. The pest burrows under the skin of fruit and vegetables.

State officials thought they had conquered the pest without spraying through a massive tree-stripping effort.

'Captain Kangaroo' hospitalized

NEW YORK (AP) — Production on a revamped "Captain Kangaroo" television show will be delayed until August while longtime host Bob Keeshan recovers from a heart attack, according to spokesman Sam Hill.

Keeshan, 54, who has been "Captain Kangaroo" to millions of children over the past 26 years, remained in St. Vincent's Hospital today at Etobicoke General Hospital in Toronto.
 Keeshan was stricken minutes after his arrival at Toronto International Airport. He had come to accept an award for his service to children.
