Prison camp superintendent stays cool

By BILL ELDER

John Allman looked pretty calm for a man who, only a day and a half earlier, had been told to prepare for a large influx of new prisoners in his minimum-security detention camp.

The news that the prisoners were coming from another country, spoke little English and were to stay in the detention camp for an unknown length of time might have given another prison official ulcers.

But not the 47-year-old superintendent of the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp. Allman, a 20-year veteran of the federal prison system, began formulating a plan to deal with the 90 arriving Haitian refugees as soon as he got the word from his bosses just before noon Friday.

"The first thing we're going to do is figure out the language barriers, get a chain of communication going," he decided.

To do that, he had the help of three interpreters, who would translate the French and Spanish many of the refugees were said to speak.

"Let's find out what they think they're doing here," was one thing Allman wanted to find out early on. As the refugees — all men — filed off the three chartered Trans Texas Coaches buses and milled about the camp gym, it became apparent what they thought was going to happen in Big Spring.

"They were told they were being sent here to work," Allman told the Herald after an hour of talking to some of the refugees.

So the challenge he'd been thinking about Friday and Saturday as he awaited his new batch of prisoners became even more of a challenge. He would have to tell them that, no, they weren't being given jobs right away — that they would be detained in Big Spring for an unknown amount of time.

Allman wanted to be able to tell the men how long they would be here, but Immigration and Naturalization Service officials who accompanied the refugees on their Ozark Air Lines flight from Miami dropped the refugees off in Midland and flew back.

"They're all mine," said Allman. He went through the facilities at his disposal: 63 acres, two floors of a dormitory to exclusively house the Haitians, plenty of recreational facilities, 93 staffers and five additional guards from other prisons.

"This is no big deal," Allman said confidently. Nothing like the time he had to deal with 400 reporters as associate warden at a federal prison in Pleasanton, Calif., on the day Patricia Hearst was paroled.

"Now that was a challenge," he said. And as for this assignment?

"I anticipate they'll be located throughout the United States and that's the last we'll hear of it."

What if more Haitians, reported to be entering Florida at the rate of 200 a day (federal estimates say 47,000 have entered the country in the last two years), are shipped by his bosses to Big Spring? The camp holds 500 inmates and has swelled, with the refugees, to nearly 850 inmates.

"I can bring in more inmates — but as far as refugees, this is my capacity."

90 Haitians arrive here

By CAROL HART

Ninety Haitian refugees, who have been held in crowded detention camps in Miami, Fla., were brought to the Big Spring Federal Camp Saturday.

The Big Spring camp was one of several prisons across the nation to take a share of the Haitian refugees, who have been arriving in this country in large numbers during the last two years.

John Allman, superintendent of the local camp, said he was notified at 11 a.m. Friday by the Federal Bureau of Prisons that the Haitians would be sent to Big Spring from Miami. The Big Spring facility was one of several chosen because the local facility had room for 250 additional men. The facility in Miami, the Krome Avenue detention camp, where the men had been held, was condemned due to the poor housing conditions available for the overflow of refugees.

Tim Chapman, a photographer for the Miami-Herald, who was in Big Spring covering the story, said that as many as 200 Haitian refugees were arriving daily in Miami, most in make-shift boats. The Haitians are leaving their country because of poverty conditions and starvation, said Allman.

The Haitians were flown to Midland from Miami, and were accompanied by Immigration and Naturalization Service personnel. The INS personnel did not make the trip to Big Spring. Allman said the INS will be in town Monday and will begin screening processes.

Upon arrival in Midland, the Haitians were placed on three Trans-Texas buses and brought to Big Spring. They were accompanied on Refugee seeks job in America, 'will wait' in Big Spring

By BILL ELDER

For Claude Delage, a 41-year-old Haitian refugee, the problem was simple.

His Caribbean homeland has a "problem economy." "No work," he said with a shake of his head.

So Claude and a boat full of his countrymen, unable to find or maintain jobs in their homeland, made the journey to Miami — a journey short in miles but long on fears, uncertainties and hopes.

Claude was one of the 90 Haitian nationals who fled to Miami and were relocated late Saturday to Big Spring Federal Prison Camp. He stood in the group of the camp last night and talked, in the "little English" he knew, about the flight from his island homeland and his expectations in America.

He said he'd been a welder in Port-au-Prince, the capital of Haiti. He left behind a wife, Lillian, and two children, ages 7 and 10.

He left behind everything but the shirt on his back — and a head full of hopes that here, in this land of opportunity he had heard about, he would become a welder again, make good money and send some of that money back home to his family.

The boat trip, he said, had not been rough; there was some rain and that appeared to be the worst trouble they had.

The trip lasted 13 days, he explained, and they arrived in Florida July 3. They spent 15 days in Miami in a detention facility, and came to Texas with the expectation that they would find jobs.

Instead, they found a small band of reporters with dozens of confusing questions, the white-hot lights of TV cameras, fingerprinting, the filling out of strange forms, more pictures, and then medical examinations.

Where were the jobs? Claude shrugged. "We will wait," he said.

Five chefs scheduled to roast Tommy Hart are revealed

Five chefs have taken on the task of roasting Herald editor Tommy Hart to a turn at a community-wide dinner Thursday night at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Of course, the roasters may have to take their turns on the spit when Hart gets a chance to reply.

The five roasters are Frank Hardesty, Big Spring postmaster; Jim Baum, former general manager of KBYG; Joe Pickle, former Herald editor who was Hart's boss for many years; Mac McKinnon news director for KMGD-TV in Midland; and Al Valdes, a member of the Big Spring School Board and a professional baseball player here during the time Hart was sports editor.

The dinner will mark Hart's 65th birthday and his retirement after being employed at the Herald since 1933. The dinner will begin at 7 p.m. All friends of Tommy Hart are urged to attend.

Special guests at the dinner will be top officials of Harte-Hanks Communications, Inc., parent company of the Big Spring Herald. They are Houston H. Harte, chairman of the board; Robert G. Marbut, president; Larry Franklin, executive vice president; Richard Schlosberg, president of newspaper operations, and Arthur J. Keeney, Southwest Group president.

Monday is the deadline for purchasing tickets which are $6 per person. Tickets are available at The Herald office, Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, Big Spring Athletics, Comanche Trail golf shop and Big Spring Country Club golf shop.

Tickets will not be available at the door.

TIRE MOMENT — And the journey's not over yet. The 90 Haitian nationals in the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp hope to be released somewhere in the U.S. to find jobs.

Postmaster was at Hyatt hotel just seven days ago

A local resident who followed the news of the collapse of the "sky bridges" in the Hyatt-Regency Hotel in Kansas City, Mo., Friday night with consuming interest was Postmaster Frank Hardesty.

Seven days prior to the tragedy, Hardesty was a guest in the same hotel. He was attending the National Council of YMCA at the time, one of 600 delegates registered from around the world.

Latest count by rescuers placed the death toll at more than 100. Many were revelers, attracted to the hotel by a free dance.

Hardesty recalls studying the architectural twist of the walkways, which rise to the fourth floor of the 733-room hotel, and telling himself that there was no way he would venture onto them when they were crowded with people.

See wire story, page 2A

Hardesty had a room on the seventh floor of the hotel, well above the troubled area. The 40-floor hotel was opened about a year ago. It is located in Crown Center in a downtown area that has been completely refurbished. The hotel boasts 21 meeting rooms and five restaurants.

The highest walkway to fall in the hotel was three stories high. When the top walkway fell, it caused the others to collapse.

THE COMMON LANGUAGE — There was no language barrier when refugee Claude Delage broke into a smile at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp last night. Delage and two fellow refugees were being questioned in Spanish by camp chaplain Jerry Kelly, whose back is to the camera. Few of the refugees speak English.

hand. The men filed quietly into the gym and were seated on bleachers. Haitians speak Creole, which is a mixture of French and Spanish. On hand as the Haitians departed the buses were several people from the prison staff and the community who speak French and Spanish. Two of the Haitians also spoke broken English. Together, the group worked together to explain to the 90 men what was going on.

One of the Haitians said he thought the men had been transported to Texas to find jobs. Allman and his interpreters began explaining that the men were to be held at the Big Spring camp until the screening process was over, and until sponsors could be found for the men from throughout the United States.

"These people are not eligible for release into the (Big Spring) community under any circumstances," said Allman. "They will not be allowed to leave. They will also be separated from other residents at the camp."

Allman explained that the men would be held under maximum security, which means that all of their movements will be monitored. They will eat separately from the other camp residents and will have separate recreational periods.

The men will be housed during their stay in Big Spring in the Sunset Dorm, which has enough bed space for the men on the second and third floors. Allman did not know how long they will have to stay in Big Spring.

Allman was told that the Haitians had undergone medical tests while in Miami. When he was informed that the Haitians were coming here Friday, plans were made for medical screenings upon their arrival. He was told by his personnel that the screenings had already been done shortly prior to their arrival.

"I want to allay the fears of the public," Allman said in a press conference here Friday. "These are not dangerous people. They are not known for violence in their backgrounds."

Allman said his first concern was the Big Spring community. "I'll never bring anything into this community that poses a danger. My kids live here," he said.

"I think this will be an economic boost for the community," he continued. "Food for the men will be bought locally," as will a number of other items for the men. He estimated each man will generate a $25 expenditure into the community a day, which will be paid for by the Federal Government.

The refugees brought their own clothing to the Big Spring camp. The personnel had been ready to issue them clothing if necessary. Allman said that each man would be given personal toiletry items, and had been given prison numbers when they got off the plane in Midland.

Reaction: Resignation, frustration

By BILL ELDER
Local reaction to the news that 100 Haitian refugees would be relocated from a Miami processing center to the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp was swift and firm.

The news broke late Friday afternoon when prison officials held a press conference announcing the Saturday arrival of the refugees, and a Herald on-the-street survey Saturday morning found most persons interviewed had heard of the refugees' scheduled arrival.

Much of the sentiment among interviewees reflected a resignation to the news as well as frustration over the lack of local say in the matter.

"There isn't anything we can do. The federal government set this up," said an employee of the Chamber of Commerce, who asked not to be identified. She said the chamber had been "flooded with calls" Friday afternoon and most of the callers were "violently opposed" to the arrival of the refugees.

"I think the announcement was inappropriate," said former councilman Jack Watkins. "The timing made it impossible for local concerned officials to voice an opinion on this thing."

Prison Superintendent John Allman told the press conference crowd he hadn't been notified by the Bureau of Federal Prisons of the refugees' Saturday arrival until 11 a.m. Friday. The suddenness of the relocation apparently was caused by a lawsuit filed Friday by the state of Florida against the federal government over crowded conditions at the Miami processing camp. Federal officials reportedly agreed to move 100 refugees a day from the camp, although it wasn't clear if this was a response to the lawsuit.

Those who claimed they were opposed to the move said they thought the Haitians would put a strain on the prison's facilities.

Others weren't so sure that the strain would be severe.

"I don't see how it's worse than any of the illegal aliens already out there," said Mayor Clyde Angel.

"We can live with it," said Postmaster Frank Hardesty.

"If they are kept out there like Mr. Allman said they would be, then I don't see any problems," said George Weeks, owner of Gibbs & Weeks Mens Store. "He made a statement on the radio that they wouldn't be at liberty to leave and that it would only be temporary."

Some people voiced relief that, if the U.S. has to take refugees, at least they are kept detained in camps for an initial period of time.

"They haven't been here long enough. They don't know anything about the U.S.," said Thomas Carrasco, who was asked for his opinion while shopping for a shirt at Anthony's.

Some suggested that any period of time is too long for refugees to stay — in Big Spring or anywhere else in the country.

"Let them stay in their country. We have people out of work here, too," said Kenneth Hart.

Allman said the Haitians had fled their island homeland in the Caribbean because of poverty and starvation.

"I think it's a disgrace," said one local realtor, who asked not to be identified. "The prisoners just live it up and my tax dollars feed them. This is really gonna finish us up. A lot of people won't come to Big Spring now."

Councilman Jack Y. Smith said he and City Manager Don Davis met with Allman at the superintendent's home Saturday morning and, speaking personally rather than officially, "I told him we've got to be assured this is not going to be a re-occurring thing. He said it wouldn't be — but if he's told to get ready for another shipment of refugees, what else can he do?"

NORMA DUCKWORTH

Domino Tournament kicks off Thursday

At least 72 two-man teams are expected to show up for the annual National Championship Texas-Style Domino Tournament, which starts Thursday in the Garrett Coliseum and continues through Saturday.

The event, only one of its kind in the country, is sponsored by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce. Harold Hall is director of the meet.

Teams will be competing for trophies and prize money.

Defending champions in the tournament are Wade Carter, Slaton, and Larry Moses, Ralls, each of whom won $1,075 last year.

The second place tandem consisted of J.E. Jones and Sammie Judd, Hallettsville. Third place was captured by F.E. Studer and Ralph Foster, Mesquite; fourth place by Bill Chris and Tom Tisdale, Midland; and fifth place by Cecil Johnson and Bob Murray, Miles, Com.

The trophies for the winning team were designed by artist Roland Rose of Andrews. One trophy will be awarded to each partner of the winning team.

The trophies consist of four hand-carved domino players, each about eight inches high, seated around a table. The dominoes on the table of the trophy will be set up to represent the winning team's hand.

Entry fee is $50 per player. Entries are being accepted at the Chamber office, 215 W. 3rd St.

111 die in KC disaster

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The two giant walkways that plunged to the floor of the Hyatt Regency Hotel killed 111 people — more Americans than any single disaster since the nation's worst aviation crash. Officials said the reason for the collapse was not known, but dozens of people reportedly fell with the spans.

Officials said they had no estimate of the number of people on the fourth-floor walkway when it plunged to the floor Friday night, felling a second span.

But a major league baseball player who was tending bar in the lobby said dozens of people fell with the walkways. And Jim White, a city building administrator, said the walkways should have been capable of handling normal traffic, "but maybe not all the people standing there and dancing."

Hotel officials refused to say how many people the walkways were designed to support. Corporate president Pat Foley said he had been assured the walkways could handle large crowds.

"We do not know the cause of the tragedy," Jim Howard, a hotel vice president, said in a letter to Gov. Christopher Bond. "However, as managers of the property, we do know that the structural integrity and safety of the building had been assured by the architects, the building contractor and his subcontractor and in subsequent building inspections."

Mayor Richard Berkley called a City Council meeting. He and hotel officials promised a thorough investigation.

The hotel was bathed in light all night as some 1,000 volunteers, firefighters and medics used jackhammers, blowtorches, three huge cranes and their bare hands to unsnarl the tangled wreckage.

Above them was a third walkway — a span that cracked when the others fell. Jerry Jette, an aide to Berkley, said rescuers were "working under dangerous conditions" and had "not ruled out the possibility that it could fall."

Kristi Franklin, Coahoma, executed well in a modern ballet routine to win the blue ribbon in the senior high school division. Second place was captured by Stephen Pearce, a singer, while third was won by Tym Brooks and Andy Burns, who wore costumes that demanded precision movements on the part of both girls because their eyes were shielded. Miss Franklin will be the hostess for the 1982 Starlight Special Talent Show.

Felicia Ford of Big Spring, Miss Teen-Age Texas 1981, appeared in a special number and received a standing ovation. She later was gifted with a certificate and a bouquet of roses by Frank Wentz, courtesy of the sponsoring organization, the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

Master of Ceremonies Gary Tibbs sang a number and played the piano as a lead-in to the show.

Providing interval music were Art Castetter at the piano and Archie Patton, who played the saxophone.

WINS AWARD — John Steward, sitting, administrator of the VAMC presents the Director's Commendation to Don F. Arroyo, operating room nursing assistant. Arroyo won the award for his contribution to the medical center Equal Employment Opportunity Program. He has been employed with the VAMC since 1961 and has been in his present position since 1976. He has been the AFGE Local 1934 president since 1977. The award is the highest that can be received at the VAMC without higher approval.

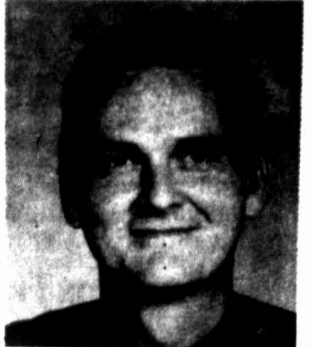

Deputy Chief Sweet native of Big Spring

Leslie Reid Sweet, newly elevated to the position of Deputy Chief of the Dallas Police Department, was one of the three youngest men ever to be promoted to the ranks of sergeant, lieutenant and captain on the force.

Sweet, a native of Big Spring, is a former newspaper carrier for the Big Spring Herald and is a graduate of Big Spring High School.

He and his wife, Jayne, have two children. The older one, Keith Lee Sweet, graduated from Duncanville High School the past May 26. The younger one, Kelly Dawn, will enter the sixth grade this fall.

Reid has an older brother, R.G., who is comptroller at Children's Hospital in Dallas. Currently a resident of Irving, R.G. graduated from Howard College in the late 1950s.

LESLIE REID SWEET

Deputy Chief Sweet was among the top five students in his class at the Dallas Police Academy. He worked for Texas Instruments before joining the Dallas Police Department.

Reid and R.G. are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. H.M. (Mack) Underwood, Big Spring.

Doolin completes patient administration course

Pvt. Tommie R. Doolin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Doolin Sr. of Route 3, Big Spring, recently completed a patient administration specialist course at the Academy of Health Sciences of the U.S. Army, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Students were trained in preparing and maintaining Army medical records and reports. Instruction included basic administration, an introduction to medical science, social dynamics, and dental terminology.

Hall to study for degree

First Lt. Normal D. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Graham D. Hall of 2258 Benito Drive, Camarillo, Calif., has entered the Air Force Institute of Technology to study for a master's degree.

His wife, Ruth, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Bullock of Route 2, Snyder, Tex.

Located at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, the Air Force Institute of Technology provides selected Air Force members with resident education in scientific, engineering, and other fields.

Dawn Cole graduates

Air Force Airman Dawn M. Cole, daughter of retired Air Force Tech. Sgt. and Mrs. Robert M. Cole of 2801 37th St., Snyder, Tex., has graduated from the U.S. Air Force course for inventory management specialist at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo.

Graduates of the course learned how to inventory supplies using electronic data processing machines, and earned credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

Cole will now serve at Carswell Air Force Base, Tex.

Medal goes to Moran

Sgt. Jerry E. Moran, son of retired Air Force Senior Master Sgt. and Mrs. James A. Moran of 217 S.B. Livingston, Mont., has been decorated with the U.S. Air Force Commendation Medal at San Vito Del Normanni Air Station, Italy.

The Air Force Commendation Medal is awarded to those individuals who demonstrate outstanding achievement of meritorious service in the performance of their duties on behalf of the Air Force.

Moran is a Morse systems operator with the 6917th Electronic Security Group.

His wife, Janet, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Buck of Big Spring.

Davis quints celebrate

DALLAS (AP) — Texas' first quintuplets turned six Saturday, but they celebrated a day early with cake, balloons and family friends.

The quintuplets weighed a total of 13 pounds and were given survival odds of less than 50-50 when they were born July 18, 1975, to Debbie and Jerry Davis.

Now Casey, Chanda, Charla, Chelsea and Christa are preparing to enter public school in Lewisville, just north of Dallas.

They celebrated their latest birthday Friday with a party at the University of Texas Health Science Center where Dr. Jack Pritchard, who led the 10-man team who delivered the quintuplets, is on the faculty.

Minister finds Big Spring bank bags in Dallas

One of three bank bags found on a Dallas street earlier this month by Pastor Sam Nix belonged to a Big Spring bank. The bags contained everything from hand-written checks to cashier checks, money orders, American Traveler's checks to payroll checks. Altogether, they were valued $6.2 million.

The Rev. Mr. Nix, pastor of the Lighthouse Gospel Center in Dallas, came across the bags after he had completed church services on a Tuesday night. He had taped the services and decided to take them by a Dallas radio station instead of going straight home, as is his usual habit.

On his way back home, Nix was driving down St. Paul street near Harry Hinds Boulevard, when he spotted what he thought was a dead cat in the middle of the road. Looking again through his rear view mirror, the object looked more like a purse. When he stopped his vehicle, he quickly came to the conclusion that what he had found was a bank bag. A few feet down the road, he discovered two other bags.

Nix didn't open the bags until he got home. Inside he discovered a lot of account transfers from member banks to parent banks. One deposit was for nearly half a million dollars. The smallest was for about a quarter of a million dollars, he recalls.

Lots of things then crossed the minister's mind, he said later. A police car wasn't far behind Nix when he had stopped to check out the bags. Had there been a robbery and would he be suspected of collusion in such a holdup? He was tempted to throw his find into a river or to burn it. Though there was no cash in the bags, some of the checks could easily have been converted into cash.

Keister arrives at Langley AFB

Staff Sgt. Robert M. Keister, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark T. Keister of Rural Route 3, Williamsport, Pa., has arrived for duty at Langley Air Force Base, Va.

Keister, an aircraft maintenance technician with the Headquarters Tactical Air Command, was previously assigned at Peterson Air Force Base, Colo.

His wife, Patricia, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Marks of 707 Settles St., Big Spring.

Union outraged at Postal pay freeze demand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of two large unions expressed outrage Saturday over a Postal Service demand that workers accept a three-year pay freeze, saying the agency "is bringing the nation to the brink of disaster" by heightening the chances of a strike.

Moe Biller, president of the American Postal Workers Union, and Vincent Sombrotto, head of the National Association of Letter Carriers, said the unions and the Postal Service precedent in collective bargaining and raises questions of whether the unions really want to negotiate a contract," he said.

Billers and Sombrotto refused to commit themselves to calling a nationwide strike if no settlement is obtained by 12:01 a.m. EDT Tuesday when the current contract expires. The unions have a "no contract, no work" policy, but the labor leaders have expressed a willingness to talk past the deadline if progress is being made.

Both Biller and Sombrotto charged at a joint news conference that Postmaster General William F. Bolger is refusing to negotiate in good faith and is thus trying to provoke a strike, which would be illegal.

"He (Bolger) is bringing the nation to the brink of disaster as he chooses to bring postal workers to their knees," Biller declared. "There is still time for serious negotiations... This is a very serious moment for postal workers."

A friend needs some help

The plight of the so-called small farmer is getting bleaker. Their 'down and out' situation has reached the point where they are rallying some support among people who can do something improving their lot.

One of those who has expressed a desire to help is State Sen. Kent Caperton of Bryan, who told specialists and administrators of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in College Station recently:

"Small farmers are a dying breed. We must give the family farmer a 'fighting chance.' We must be concerned with his livelihood."

CAPERTON FOCUSED attention on several areas in which the state legislature is working to help family farming operations and also noted some areas where more thrust is needed.

"We need to make more credit available to farmers and to allow credit incentives," Caperton told his listeners. "One thing that will help is the fact that we repealed the state inheritance tax for most farmers during the last legislative session."

"We also need to keep an eye on foreign investment of land in our state that has started to edge out some farmers," he added. "And we need to strengthen the rights of farmers who are losing land (through the right of eminent domain) to urban expansion. We passed the Right to Farm Act during the past session that allows farmers to keep and maintain their farms and to protect them from urban encroachment," the senator stated.

CAPERTON NOTED that the taxation of farm land according to its productive value has also been settled and that an amendment will be offered in the November general election to exempt livestock and poultry from property taxes.

Caperton also called for continued efforts to deal with the energy crisis and emphasized the need to exempt gasohol from taxation. He praised the research now being done on gasohol at A&M and emphasized that such efforts must continue.

A lot of small farmers would probably have gone under already had they not benefitted from oil royalty sales, that and oil production. It is a shame that farming has become a luxury with a lot of them. They perform a critical service that will become even more important as times goes on.

Findings not encouraging

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Members of Congress revealed last month that traces of narcotics were discovered in the bodies of some of the sailors killed in the landing accident aboard the aircraft carrier Nimitz. The Navy claimed that drug abuse had nothing to do with the tragedy, however.

Alarmed by the possibility that our service personnel are functioning under the influence of drugs, congressional investigators traveled recently to Germany and Italy to look into the situation. The investigators' findings were not encouraging. Marijuana smoking and hashish usage are common among 60 or 70 percent of American military personnel in Western Europe, an informed source told my associate Jack Mitchell.

WHAT MAKES THIS particularly disturbing is that the congressional investigators found that soldiers and sailors admitted getting high on drugs as readily while they were on duty as off-duty. Not only that, the congressional sleuths uncovered evidence that suggests widespread use of the U.S. mails to transport narcotics aboard ships at sea.

The administration has now agreed to let military investigators help civilian authorities track down narcotics violators. It's not a bad idea: At least 130,000 members of the armed services are estimated to be hooked on either alcohol or illegal drugs, and almost one in five junior personnel have reported that they have been "high while working."

Despite the apparent possibility that many of our soldiers, sailors and Marines are zonked-out on duty, the Postal Service has ruled out the use of mail openings and drug-sniffing dogs on military packages unless postal inspectors are present — an obvious impossibility on the high seas.

The situation is so bad that military authorities fear foreign customs officials may start intercepting mail deliveries to U.S. service personnel in hopes of cutting off the smuggling of illicit drugs into their countries.

ONE CONGRESSIONAL expert, while acknowledging that there is a "high recreational use of drugs, even on duty."

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: When I first became a Christian several years ago I was very excited about it. I still love Christ, but why don't I feel as excited now as I once did? — M.L.

DEAR M.L.: People react to Jesus Christ in many different ways when they first come to him and enter into a personal relationship with him. When I came to Christ I had no particularly emotional feelings, and yet I knew something decisive had taken place in my life. Other people have a great sense of joy or emotional release when they first come to Christ.

But the important thing for you to realize is that you belong to Jesus Christ. You are his — he has adopted you into his family — you have truly trusted him as your personal Lord and Savior. That is a fact and nothing will ever change that fact. "How great is the love the Father has lavished on us, that we should be called children of God! And that is what we are!" (1 John 3:1).

Now notice something very important: that fact does not change,

Choice casts a shadow

Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON — No Supreme Court Justice named in the past half century even begins to rival in importance the President who made the appointment. So put aside as momentary overexcitement the spate of recent comment asserting that presidents chiefly make history by their selections for the court.

Even in that perspective, however, President Reagan's choice of Sandra Day O'Connor casts a long shadow. Not only does the President break a pattern of sex discrimination, he also delivers on a campaign promise in a way that fosters faith in the system. Finally, he shores up the court — or at least works against deterioration — by naming a judge with affinities to its shifting center as against its two extremes.

THE HONORIFIC status of the court, whatever else may be in question, does not admit doubt. The Supreme Court is the most dignified of our institutions, the holy of holies in the American system, the "ark of the national covenant." Groups accustomed to view themselves as outsiders inevitably attach high importance to being included in the nomination of Louis Brandeis was a milestone for American Jews, as was the designation of Thurgood Marshall for blacks. The just claim of women for a more equal role thus finds a fit cause for satisfaction in the nomination of Judge O'Connor to the highest tribunal in the land.

President Reagan, of course, did not exactly promise that he would name a woman to the court. But he did commit himself in the campaign to fill "one of the first Supreme Court vacancies" by "the most qualified woman I can possibly find." Designation of a man at this time, however meritorious, would have looked like the first installment on a breach of trust.

But trust is perhaps the single most important bond between the leader and the led in modern society. The complexity of affairs has made it well nigh impossible for most of us to make confident judgments about the working of government. The best we can hope to achieve is a sense of rapport with an individual leader.

So when a leader goes back on what is perceived to be a pledge, the system as a whole suffers. When it is possible to deliver, as Reagan did deliver in naming Mrs. O'Connor, we all benefit.

As to the court itself, it has recently been marked by vacillation, narrow decisions, tie votes and a record number of plurality decisions without any majority view. The dominant pattern of the past two years, largely unarticulated, has consisted of a ceding of authority once claimed by the court to the President, the Congress and the states.

BEHIND THE UNCERTAINTY and effacement lies a divided court. Two justices — William Brennan and Marshall — are liberals of the old school, partial to the rights of individuals and minorities, and determined to assert the claims of the federal government against such bodies as the states, law-enforcement agencies and the big corporations. Two others — Chief Justice Warren Burger and Justice William Rehnquist — are illiberals, coming down on the other side of those issues most of the time.

The floating center includes Justices Byron White, Harry Blackmun, Lewis Powell and John Paul Stevens. Potter Stewart, whose resignation opened the door to Judge O'Connor's nomination, was a central member of the center. But the center, though a majority, backed and filled and chopped and changed, and set down no clear guidelines. A typical example is Justice Stewart's famous — and to my mind wrongly praised — remark about pornography that "I know it when I see it."

Nobody can assess how new justices will interact with a sitting court. But everything known about Judge O'Connor tilts her toward the center.

She is not identified with any ideological grouping. She has moved on the margin in such matters as abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment. Though a Republican, she was appointed to the Arizona Appeals Court by a Democratic governor, Bruce Babbitt. Earlier she had experience in the building of majorities and the art of compromise as a leader in the Arizona Senate.

Whether Judge O'Connor will be able to galvanize the center of the court, find a rationale for what often seems arbitrary and a tongue for ideas that remain mute is very much in doubt. She lacks experience in the federal system. "Bright" and "crisp" are the words used about her by her friends — not "deep" or "thoughtful."

The Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor: Supplemental Security Income (ordinarily known as SSI) is a Federal income maintenance program which provides monthly payments to aged, blind and disabled people who have little or no income. The Federal Government administers the program through the Social Security Administration. An individual is eligible for SSI if he/she has income of less than $264 a month.

Under section 8 of Supplemental Security Income payments, an individual may own property worth up to $1,500 including cash or savings without it affecting his right to payments. The sting is in the last part of section 7, which says: "any money you save during a quarter (and interest thereon) is counted as an asset at the beginning of the next quarter and counts towards the $1,500 limit described in section 8. In other words, a person is prohibited from investing in some profitable institution and earning interest in these hard days. In my opinion, the rule setting the figure at $1,500 should be deleted — failing which the amount should be raised to above the poverty line (now set at just over $4,275 for an individual)."

Muscle weight a must

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Here's this young baseball jock (me) whose coach says he is too fat. He wants me to lose weight. I try, and feel terrible. I don't think I'm fat. I am 5 feet, 10 inches, and weigh 170. I don't run faster at lower weights, and, in fact, I think I'm slower. Get this coach off my back. — F.C.

Here's this famous baseball player who is negotiating for a raise. The club owners tell him they'll give him the raise if he agrees to lose 25 pounds. He says he can't, and, in fact, cites your argument — that he has less energy when he is at a lower weight.

That is an actual case. The dispute was settled by determining the player's body composition. This revealed that even though the weight-height tables showed him overweight, only about 5 percent of his total weight was in fat. That's considered very lean. His agent argued that if he were to lose 25 pounds, a significant amount of that would be in muscle weight. He was right.

The player got his raise and got to keep his weight. You may have a similar argument to make. Now, the best way to test this is underwater weighing, which is probably out of your reach. The next best way is to measure skin folds, and your doctor can do that for you if you think it is worth having done. It might be worth it for your own information. At least it might get this guy off your back. The last thing you want to do is lose muscle weight.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I'm on my high school girls tennis team. I have been playing for two years, and my instructor says I should be able to see the ball as it strikes and comes off the racquet when I hit it. Is there something wrong with me? My vision is good. — J.G.

Frankly, Janet, I don't think you are alone. Most tennis players, if they are totally honest about it, will admit they can't focus on that glorious instant of contact. This instruction you got is given in any sport where there is a ball that has to be hit by some object — tennis, baseball, racquetball, whatever.

I don't have to tell you that the interval of actual impact is very short — in tennis less than four-thousandths of a second. I don't know many eagles who can see everything that happens in that brief a period.

Many tennis experts say that you actually lose sight of the ball before it strikes the racquet anyway. Now, I don't want to lead you astray and have you gazing nonchalantly at the neighboring courts during play. It's still good advice to keep your eye on the ball as much as possible. Even if you don't see it, it doesn't make you keep your head down. If you raise your head before you hit the ball, you automatically raise your hitting shoulder, and then you hit the ball off center — off the sweet spot of the racquet.

But don't worry about not seeing the ball hit the racquet. Only a slow-motion camera can catch that instant. Keep trying to do it. It's a good way to keep your head down. I'm still working on seeing the ball when it strikes my opponent's racquet.

Former Forsan coach

James Blake is Sands school superintendent

JAMES BLAKE

ACKERLY — James Blake has returned to the Sands school district as its superintendent. He previously was a well-known athletic coach there.

For the past two years, Blake has served as school superintendent at New Home, near Lubbock. At Sands, he succeeds Dave Smith as superintendent. Smith stepped down to accept an appointment as the Sands High School principal, a position he formerly held. Dan Schaeffer, who served as high school principal at Sands last year, quit to become the high school principal at Grandfalls.

Blake is a native of Brownwood and a 1950 graduate of Brownwood High School. He later accepted a basketball scholarship at Daniel Baker College in Brownwood and stayed there for two years before entering the U.S. Army for three years. He spent 16 months in Korea.

After his discharge from the military, he enrolled at Howard Payne and graduated from that school in 1957 with a major in education and a minor in PE.

He was Howard Payne's first freshman coach, at which time he served under the late Glen Whitis.

Blake joined the Forsan school system for the 1957-58 school year and remained there nine years. His girls' basketball team went to the regional finals nine times and to the state tournament his final year there. His boys' team won four district crowns. At Forsan, he coached all sports.

Blake left Forsan to accept a coaching job at Sands and remained there five years. While at Sands, he worked with Arlen White for one year. His teams went to state twice. Among his players were Steve Herm, now a member of the Sands school board, Johnny Peugh, Bobby Beall, Felix Robles and Ronnie Oaks.

He then moved to Seminole High School. He took a boys' basketball team that had won three games the previous season and led it to 14 wins. The following year, the Indians won 18, the third year 19, at which time Seminole captured the Zone title. His team that year was beaten by Andrews and Andrews went on to the state tournament.

In all, he spent six years at Seminole, his last two years as high school counselor. His coaching career embraced 18 years.

He then went to New Home as high school principal under Russell Howle and has been the superintendent the past two years.

He will be starting his 25th year as an educator this fall.

He is married to the former Patsy Gunn of Blanket. She is a teacher's aide. They have two children, James Scott Blake, now 24, and a graduate of Texas Tech; and Mitzy, 19, a sophomore at Lubbock Christian who is attending summer school at Howard College. James Scott is personnel manager for Taco Villa Inc., headquartered at Midland Air Terminal.

Foreign affairs one of Reagan's weak spots

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans don't think Ronald Reagan has clearly set out his foreign policy goals in the first six months of the new administration, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

In part because of this perception, foreign affairs is now one of the president's weaker areas with the public, even as Reagan's overall standing with Americans has declined as well in recent weeks.

The public's ratings of Reagan's work in office are now about equal to the public's opinions of Jimmy Carter's efforts at a similar point in his administration. For the opening months of his presidency, Reagan has concentrated on the nation's economic problems, particularly on slashing federal spending and taxes. Foreign policy has not been one of the major themes of these early months and that strategy is beginning to show up in public opinion.

Fifty-one percent of those questioned agreed that Reagan "has failed to make clear just what his foreign policies are." Thirty-two percent disagreed and 17 percent of the 1,599 adults interviewed by telephone July 13 and 14 across the nation were not sure.

The perception of no clearly enunciated foreign policy shows up in the rating of Reagan's work in the area as well. Forty percent of those questioned said his foreign policy work has been good or excellent, the lowest rating of any of three specific areas measured. Thirty-seven percent said he has done an "only fair" job and 14 percent said he has done a poor job. Nine percent were not sure.

Americans' overall rating of Reagan's performance is down a bit from May, but it is significantly higher than his foreign policy mark.

Fifty-five percent rated Reagan's work overall good or excellent, compared to 62 percent in the May AP-NBC News poll. Thirty-one percent said his work has been only fair and 11 percent gave him poor marks. Three percent were not sure.

Despite his efforts to deal with the economy, Reagan's job rating in that area has also slipped.

Forty-five percent gave his handling of economic problems a good or excellent rating, with 34 percent marking his efforts only fair. Fifteen percent said his work had been poor and the rest were not sure.

Reagan got his best rating for his dealings with Congress, which has been giving him pretty much what he wants on the budget.

Sixty-two percent said his work with Congress has been excellent or good, 25 percent said only fair and 9 percent poor.

In a number of these areas, Reagan's marks are similar to Carter's during 1977.

For example, 55 percent of the public rated Carter's work good or excellent in an NBC News poll in August 1977 — the same as Reagan's current standing.

Thirty-seven percent rated Carter's foreign policy work highly in that month, not far from Reagan's 40 percent mark now.

On the economy, Reagan gets a bit higher marks than Carter did. Thirty-six percent gave Carter top marks in August 1977 for his handling of the economy, compared to 45 percent now for Reagan.

Despite the slippage in Reagan's job ratings, he remains personally popular with Americans.

Seventy percent said they have a favorable opinion of Reagan, with 21 percent voicing an unfavorable view. Nine percent were not sure.

That favorable rating is down seven percentage points from the peak shown in the April AP-NBC News poll, but it is 12 points higher than the mark given in the January AP-NBC News survey.

Fifty-nine percent of those interviewed said they trust Reagan to do what is right at least most of the time. Thirty-eight percent said they trust him some of the time or less. Three percent were not sure.

In January, 61 percent expressed high trust of Reagan, while 68 percent did in the April poll.

As with all sample surveys, the results of the AP-NBC News polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,600 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of such chance variations. That is, if one could have talked this week to all Americans with telephones.

Traffic deaths Bodies of missing lowans among wreckage

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Department of Public Safety said Friday 2,202 persons have died in Texas traffic accidents this year, an increase of 120 — or 6 percent — from a year ago.

The department said there have been 1,948 fatal traffic accidents in the state this year, an increase of 136 — or 8 percent — from last year at this time.

EAGLETOWN, Okla. (AP) — The wreckage of a single-engine plane missing for five weeks has been discovered by a lumber company employee marking trees near this far southeastern Oklahoma town.

Civil Air Patrol spokesman Charles Oliver said Paul Strand and Ray Haugen, both 50, of Decorah, Iowa, apparently died upon impact when the small airplane took a nosedive into the rugged terrain.

The plane had taken off from an airport at Paris, Texas, en route to Decorah on June 6. Heavy thunderstorms moved through the area later that night.

Oliver said an unidentified employee of Weyerhaeuser Co. was marking trees just before nightfall Friday when he came upon the charred wreckage.

The heavily forested area in which the aircraft crashed prevented its sighting from the air, the CAP spokesman said.

Officials from the National Transportation and Safety Board were en route Saturday to the crash site.

On Monday, a farm hand near Green Forest, Ark., had spotted what he believed to be the plane's wreckage, but searchers were unsuccessful in locating the missing aircraft.

Earlier this month, a Little Rock teen-ager reported he had located the plane's wreckage and he led authorities on a four-day search in Polk County.

Man dies in high speed chase; cash confiscated

CORSICANA, Texas (AP) — Dallas pathologists Saturday were trying to determine whether a gunshot wound to the left temple of an armed robbery victim was inflicted by his gun or that of an officer.

A ruling "is pending further information from Corsicana" authorities, a spokesman for the Dallas County medical examiner's office said.

The man was found in the passenger seat of a car that led officers on an early morning chase up Interstate 45 that reached speeds of 80 to 100 mph, said Corsicana Police Chief Verne Ellis.

He died at 7:30 p.m. in a Dallas hospital.

A second suspect, who was driving the car, was apprehended and would be transferred to Navarro County Jail, Ellis said.

The police chief said officers had traced the getaway car and a handgun to Jacksonville, Fla., but that neither suspect had been identified.

Police from three other towns joined the chase after the suspects began firing at a Corsicana officer who pursued the car, Ellis said. The chase ended in Dallas County after Hutchins officers blocked the highway with 18-wheelers.

About $300 confiscated from the suspects' car was believed to have been taken earlier in the day from the Travelers' Inn in Corsicana. Employees were trying to determine exactly how much money two men took from the motel, Ellis said.

Phone exec announces retirement

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — E.L. "Buddy" Langley will take over the reins of General Telephone Co. of the Southwest Aug. 1, when the current president retires.

The company's board elected Langley at its regular meeting in Dallas Friday after Rolland W. Britt announced his retirement.

Langley now is president of General Telephone Co. of the Southeast in Durham, N.C.

Britt, who has served 32 years with General Telephone and was named president of the Southwest division Sept. 1, 1978, said he is taking advantage of the company's early retirement program.

The 59-year-old San Angelo resident said late Friday that he has no immediate plans, only to be "taking it easy."

"I feel the future of GenTel is going to be great," Britt added. "I think there will be some important changes in the next few years, such as deregulation."

Rex Bailey, vice president of marketing and customer service, said the company will miss Britt.

"All of us are extremely disappointed he decided to take early retirement," Bailey said. "We are going to miss him, but we are fortunate to have Mr. Langley to replace him."

Britt's retirement culminates a career in the telephone business during which he served 18 years as a top executive of telephone companies headquartered in Illinois, Pennsylvania and Texas.

Britt came to San Angelo from Erie, Pa., where for 10 years he was president of General Telephone of Pennsylvania.

Pop singer buys mansion

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bee Gee Barry Gibb paid $1.4 million cash for a 12-bedroom Miami Beach mansion he plans to renovate and resell, according to documents filed in Dade County court.

Gibb and his wife, Linda, like to buy old houses and fix them up, his manager, Dick Ashby, said Friday. The pop singer now has three Miami Beach homes worth more than $2.5 million.

"Barry likes to get in at the bottom end, fix up and then sell them," said Ashby.

He plans to spend about $200,000 on the latest purchase, a 45-year-old house that has no pool or tennis courts, the manager said. It does, however, include three vacant lots where such amenities might be added.

LULAC urges plan adoption

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Oscar Moran, state director of the League of United Latin American Citizens, urged the Senatesaturday to adopt Sen. John Wilson's congressional redistricting plan.

Final Senate action on the congressional redistricting plan sponsored by the LaGrange Democrat is set for Monday afternoon.

The bill was before the Senate Friday but at the urging of U.S. House Majority Leader Jim Wright, Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, and others got it postponed until Monday in an effort to gather more votes against it. McKnight calls Wilson's measure "the governor's bill" because it apparently favors Republicans in Dallas County.

Moran said he favored Wilson's bill because it creates a new congressional district with large Mexican-American populations in Nueces and San Patricio counties and additional areas in South Texas.

Houston still plagued by cable TV deals

HOUSTON (AP) — Most Texans have had access to cable television for so many years that they probably take for granted the commercial-free movies, 24-hour news services, all-sports channels and other entertainment features.

But not in Houston. The nation's fifth largest city still is substantially without cable service, despite trying to get it since 1973. Critics, including some city officials, say back-room deals among cronies resulted in cable TV service that — when finally installed — will be inferior and too expensive.

The city's handling of the franchises is now in the hands of a federal grand jury, and officials say there is a chance viewers here could be limited to no more than the existing five local stations for years to come.

In the first cable TV skirmish, Houston voters rejected a 1973 referendum to award a city-wide cable TV franchise to a company owned by an associate of then-Mayor Louie Welch.

Stung by charges of a back-room deal and a 2-1 referendum defeat, the City Council did not even approach the subject again until five years later.

In 1979 the city was carved into five sections, and franchises were awarded to five companies — one per sector.

But again, charges of favoritism arose.

"The problem was the same in 1973 and 1978," said Kathy Whitmire, a staunch critic of McConn and candidate hoping to unseat him in the November city election.

She accused McConn of manipulating four of the five franchises into the hands of political supporters.

McConn won't argue that he has connections with some of the cable TV businessmen — some contributed to his campaign — but he insists he acted in the best interest of the city in awarding the franchises to local people.

"I don't think cronyism exists," he said.

"There was an effort made, at least by me ... to award the franchises to Houston people," the mayor added. "We didn't go out on a search committee. We didn't advertise in journals and that type of thing, but we didn't think we had to."

"The Council was basically lied to," Macey said. "We were told the major cities in the United States had been surveyed and that the rates being charged Houstonians were the best rates for the major cities for basic services — which was not true."

"We set no standards for qualifications, we didn't investigate the companies, we didn't do an audit."

Two of the local companies that won franchises sold each of their stocks to national companies. A third made a tentative deal to do so, but the plan was scrapped when an audit revealed an audit trail.

In the first cable TV skirmish, Houston voters rejected a 1973 referendum to award a city-wide cable TV franchise to a company owned by an associate of then-Mayor Louie Welch.

Stung by charges of a back-room deal and a 2-1 referendum defeat, the City Council did not even approach the subject again until five years later.

In 1979 the city was carved into five sections, and franchises were awarded to five companies — one per sector.

But again, charges of favoritism arose.

"The problem was the same in 1973 and 1978," said Kathy Whitmire, a staunch critic of McConn and candidate hoping to unseat him in the November city election.

She accused McConn of manipulating four of the five franchises into the hands of political supporters.

McConn won't argue that he has connections with some of the cable TV businessmen — some contributed to his campaign — but he insists he acted in the best interest of the city in awarding the franchises to local people.

"I don't think cronyism exists," he said.

"There was an effort made, at least by me ... to award the franchises to Houston people," the mayor added. "We didn't go out on a search committee. We didn't advertise in journals and that type of thing, but we didn't think we had to."

"The Council was basically lied to," Macey said. "We were told the major cities in the United States had been surveyed and that the rates being charged Houstonians were the best rates for the major cities for basic services — which was not true."

"We set no standards for qualifications, we didn't investigate the companies, we didn't do an audit."

The nation's fifth largest city still is substantially without cable service, despite trying to get it since 1973. Critics, including some city officials, say back-room deals among cronies resulted in cable TV service that — when finally installed — will be inferior and too expensive.

The city's handling of the franchises is now in the hands of a federal grand jury, and officials say there is a chance viewers here could be limited to no more than the existing five local stations for years to come.

Official reiterates stand in dispute with Navy

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — Calling Saturday's commissioning of the USS Dallas — the third fast-attack submarine to be turned over to the Navy in nine weeks — an unprecedented accomplishment, Electric Boat General Manager P. Takis Veliotis sounded a warning for the Navy.

"Contracts must be awarded in a timely manner," Veliotis said, referring to the government's recent withholding of work from EB.

The Navy and the shipyard have had a long-running dispute over cost overruns and delays in the construction of nuclear-powered submarines. In March, Navy Secretary John Lehman awarded contracts for three 688-class submarines like the Dallas to EB's only competitor. EB has subsequently laid off 1,000 workers.

"We are committed and determined to providing six fast-attack submarines by the end of the year," Veliotis told the 500 people attending the ceremony in the bright sunshine at the Navy's submarine base here.

"We are making equally good progress on the additional fourteen 688s currently under construction," he said.

The EB official added that the nation's first ballistic missile-firing Trident submarine, the USS Ohio, has returned from its second sea trials that he called "totally successful." Veliotis said EB would turn the Ohio over to the Navy this fall.

But if EB is to maintain the production schedule it wants to, "it is imperative that its work force be fully utilized" through the regular awarding of Navy contracts.

"Our problems of the past should be put where they belong — in the past," Veliotis said.

The commissioning ceremony featured an address by Texas Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican and a former deputy secretary of defense.

The governor drew a laugh from the crowd when he said he was pleased to see the "U.S.-Texas Navy" growing.

The Navy has named two other submarines after cities in the state, the Houston and the Corpus Christi.

"I only hope the Navy will have good judgment and add the San Antonio, El Paso and Fort Worth," the governor said.

Clements stressed that national security is "the most important issue before us in America" and said he is confident the Reagan administration will maintain that as its top priority.

The Dallas, which is the 13th of its class to join the fleet, was nearly five years in the making at the Electric Boat shipyard.

The keel of the 360-foot-long submarine was laid Oct. 9, 1976 with its launching nearly three years later, April 28, 1980. Displacing 6,900 tons, the Dallas carries a crew of 127 officers and enlisted men. Commanded by Capt. Donald R. Ferrier of Taunton, Mass., the submarine will have Groton as its homeport.

It is the second naval warship to bear the name of the Texas city. The first USS Dallas was a destroyer that served during both world wars.

Launched in 1919, it cruised the East Coast until taken out of service in 1922. The ship was recommissioned in 1925, but removed from service in March 1939 — albeit briefly. The outbreak of World War II in Europe six months later saw the destroyer recommissioned and assigned to the Atlantic Fleet.

Its name was changed to Alexander Dallas in March 1945 to avoid confusion with the cruiser Dallas that was then under construction. That construction was cancelled the next year, while the destroyer was decommissioned for a third time and sold for scrap in 1945.

The Los Angeles-class submarines are primarily anti-submarine weapons. Their armament consists of four torpedo tubes capable of launching submarine rockets and Mark 48 torpedoes for use against surface ships and other submarines.

Quints bankruptcy

Unemployment checks help

LIBERTY CORNER, N.J. (AP) — The parents of 11-year-old quintuplets, Bill and Peggy Jo Kienast, say the bonds they built rearing seven children will pull them through their latest financial crisis.

After a series of money woes, including bankruptcy, the family almost lost their Somerset County farmhouse at a sheriff's sale earlier this month. The sale was averted and now, Mrs. Kienast says, "We can see the light at the end of the tunnel."

When the fraternal quintts — Amy, Sara, Abigail, Gordon and Ted — were born on Feb. 24, 1970, their parents were approached with offers to do commercials, endorsements and public appearances. But with the increased use of fertility drugs, quintuplets became more commonplace and the offers disappeared.

Two years ago, Bill Kienast's business went bankrupt, leaving him with $74,000 in mortgages, no source of income and seven children in school.

At one point, the only money coming in was his unemployment check, and the family had to scrape to make the weekly $200 food bill, Mrs. Kienast said.

"It's been tight. It's been very tight," said Mrs. Kienast, who gave birth to the quintts after taking fertility drugs and an experimental drug to lessen the chance of multiple births.

After Kienast's company, Plex, which manufactured plastics for eyeglasses, and Kienast both filed for bankruptcy in October 1979, First National State Bank of West Jersey — holder of the $21,381 second lien on the farmhouse — demanded payment that the family could not make, Mrs. Kienast said.

The seven-bedroom house, expanded with donated labor and materials after the quintts were born, went on the auction block.

"It was ludicrous that they would put nine people out on the street. It would have been the worst possible public relations scheme ever conceived by anybody," said Mrs. Kienast. "I would have been out there with a shotgun if anyone thought they were going to come in here and take this place."

At the last minute, the Kienasts reached an agreement with the bank, she said.

"If you don't have to worry about paying the bills, everything else is easy," Mrs. Kienast said.

"Raising the five of them brought us together. If anything, we knew we had to work harder at this thing. I do not feel that the Kienasts have failed. Plex died, but the Kienasts are going strong."

Kienast this month started a new business matching sellers of chemical commodities with buyers. Mrs. Kienast is breaking into the real estate business. Their oldest daughter, Meg, 15, baby-sits, while their older son, John, 13, says he invests in old comic books.

Firemen's Association names Harness president

Tom Harness was named president of the Big Spring Firemen's Association, members of which met Friday morning to elect officers and define goals of the group.

Larry Ringener was chosen vice president while Burr Settles will serve as secretary and Rodney Phillips treasurer. Other members of the board will be John Branham, Colton Wright, Harry Money and Danny Burden.

Jim Ryals and Carl Dors-ton will serve as members of the advisory council.

Announced aims of the association include better serving the community in general and the residents of Big Spring in particular.

A major goal is to offer assistance to victims of fires. A Firemen's Disaster Fund has been created to help victims overcome their losses.

The firemen will work to provide food, shelter and clothing for fire victims.

The firemen have been working off-duty to raise money for the Disaster Fund, with the results that collections now total about $3,000. The association hopes to raise another $7,000 during the next few months in hopes of keeping a healthy reserve on hand. All the money raised will be used toward that purpose.

Officials of the association say it is hoped the organization, having seen the need, is working toward a closer relationship with the people of Big Spring and hopes to be an asset to the community that supports it not only in the sense of providing protection against fires but as a united organization working hand in hand with civic groups and civic-minded individuals.

Houston truck driver charged in girl's disappearance

HOUSTON (AP) — A truck driver for the City of Houston was charged with attempted murder Saturday in the disappearance of Monica Alvarez, 5, who investigators believe was kidnapped and drowned in a bayou.

It is expected that the charges will be changed to murder if the girl's body is found.

James John Munoz, 22, was held in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Sheriff's deputies on horseback, divers and a Houston Police Department helicopter were called in Saturday as the search continued.

Monica's mother reported her missing about 7 a.m.

Friday morning. The girl's sister, Angela, 3, said she saw "Jimmy" take Monica away.

Deputies found some of the 5-year-old's clothing near Greens Bayou Friday.

Sheriff's Lt. Tommy Cleboski said Munoz had grown up with Monica's father, Ted Alvarez, 25.

"He'd been living there off and on for years," Cleboski said. "He had a key (to the house) until a few weeks ago. They took it away from him."

Cleboski said Munoz was questioned for the majority of the day Friday and eventually gave officials a statement.

Palestinian rockets wound for Israelis

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Guerrilla rockets wounded four more civilians in northern Israel Saturday in retaliation for what the Palestinians called Israel's "air massacre" in Lebanon that left more than 1,000 reported casualties.

A U.N. spokesman in Beirut, Samir Sanbar, said Israeli border gunners replied to the Palestinian rockets by shelling guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon and the Rashidiyah refugee camp near the port of Tyre. There was no report of casualties.

Lebanon's state radio also reported that Israeli jets destroyed a bridge in southern Lebanon, but the Israeli military command denied that its planes were in action over Lebanon. Both the Palestine Liberation Organization and Israel denied other radio reports of Israeli air strikes Saturday against guerrilla positions south of Beirut.

The shelling erupted as U.S. special envoy Philip C. Habib arrived in Tel Aviv with orders from President Reagan to try to end the latest bout of Israeli-Palestinian fighting.

Deputy Defense Minister Mordechai Zippori told Israel Radio that Jerusalem welcomed Habib's mediation, but if it failed "Israel will continue to protect its citizens also when good friends of ours in the area."

Order to address lawyers as 'doctor' is faulted

HOUSTON (AP) — State District Judge Jerry McAfee was reprimanded by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct Friday for requiring lawyers to address each other as "doctor" in his court.

McAfee, 59, said he instituted the rule in January for reasons of prestige. He said most law schools grant doctor of jurisprudence degrees.

"A guy gets introduced, as an attorney, a lot of people are down on lawyers nowadays, on the profession," McAfee said.

"As soon as you hear the word 'doctor' in a group of people, that person, for some reason, is singled out as being a little above someone else," he said.

A letter signed by Maurice S. Pipkin, executive director of the commission, told McAfee his conduct was such that "it cast public discredit upon the judiciary and warranted issuance of a public reprimand."

Pipkin added that as a district judge, McAfee "should refrain from embarking unilaterally upon the seas of judicial reform."

He blamed commission members and older lawyers who did not have doctor of jurisprudence degrees for stirring up a controversy.

American Bill Rogers leading British Open

SANDWICH, England (AP) — Gritty Bill Rogers avoided the general American collapse with a 3-under-par 67 and stretched his lead to a commanding 5 strokes after three rounds of the 110th British Open golf championship.

Rogers, whose deadly accuracy brought him a runner-up finish in the U.S. Open last month, put together a 54-hole total of 205, 5 shots under par on the 6,829 yards of knee-deep hay and rolling dunes that make up the Royal St. George's Golf Club links.

But he was one of the few Americans able to survive the gusty breezes that raked the course situated in a sandspit jutting into the English Channel.

Defending champion Tom Watson all but took himself out of it with a scramble 75.

Distraught Ben Crenshaw, a single stroke back when the day's play started, spent most of a nightmare afternoon thrashing around in the deep, deep rough and finished with a 76.

And Jack Nicklaus, though he managed a 71, failed to get the superior effort he needed to sustain any dim hopes he may have had of acquiring a fourth title in the oldest of the world's golf tournaments.

He was at 220, 10 strokes over par and 15 behind Rogers.

He had opened the tournament with the worst round of his spectacular career, an 83, then rebounded with a 66. "I said Friday I'd need to shoot two more 66s to have any chance," Nicklaus observed. "Now, after a 71, I guess I'll have to shoot 61."

Nicklaus, the holder of 17 major professional titles, paused, grinned wryly and added: "And even that might not be enough."

With most of the American stars backing off, laconic Mark James of England and young Bernhard Langer of West Germany moved into second place at even-par 210.

James, 27, a former British Ryder Cup player who was fined for misbehavior in the 1979 matches in West Virginia, had a solid, no-bogey, 2-under-par 68. "That's about as well as I've ever played," said James, winner of four European tour events in a seven-year career.

Langer, 23, son of a Munich bricklayer and winner of only one European title, spiced a round of par 70 with an eagle-3 on the 14th hole.

Langer and James were the only men in the field within 8 shots of Rogers and, realistically, the only ones with any hope of overtaking him.

Three shots behind them was Ray Floyd, winner of three U.S. titles this season, and Isao Aoki of Japan, tied at 213. The two veterans each shot a third-round 69.

At 214 were Lee Trevino, twice a winner of this title, and three British players — Nick Job (75), Sam Torrance (73) and Nick Faldo (69).

Crenshaw, who so longingly seeks a major title and has been so close so often, was another shot back at 215. U.S. Open champ David Graham of Australia was another stroke off the pace after a 74.

And Watson, the current Masters champ and outstanding player in the game for the past five seasons, was 12 strokes behind Rogers at 217 after a double bogey-bogey finish.

Some other American scores were Bruce Lietzke's 71-216, Jerry Pate's 69-215, Ron Streck's 72-220, Arnold Palmer's 73-219 and Hubert Green's 74-221.

Rogers was dubbed "Buck" by his fellow pros on the American tour but, due to his lean build and constant, restless pacing, was called "The Panther" by his college roommate, Lietzke.

And "The Panther" stalked away from the field this day. It is now his tournament to win or lose in Sunday's final round.

"They'll be coming at me," he said. "But I don't intend to back off. They'll have to come and get me."

BIG SPRING NATIONAL LEAGUE'S MITCH GRIFFIN FOLLOWS THROUGH AFTER GROUNDING A BALL TO THE SHORTSTOP DURING FIFTH INNING ACTION IN HIS TEAM'S WIN OVER MIDLAND WESTERN LAST NIGHT.

Big Spring falls in finals

ABILENE — The Abilene All-Stars held off a furious seventh inning rally by the Big Spring All-Stars to escape with an 8-7 win and the championship in the District 14-15 year-old Senior League Tournament.

Abilene led 8-3 entering the seventh, but Big Spring plated four runs to make things interesting. But the Abilene team, behind reliever Nathan Jones, managed to come away with the win and the title.

As in the earlier contests that Big Spring was involved in, the Spring City team used home runs. Jay Pirkle and Danny Arista both had round trippers in the contest.

Mike Hood was the winning pitcher, with Pirkle the loser.

The Abilene All-Stars now play in the Sectional Tournament here on July 27. Their foes in the first round of that tourney will be San Angelo.

The Big Spring team had stayed alive on Friday night in dramatic fashion, taking a come from behind 8-6 win over Abilene Northeastern.

Trailing 5-3 entering the top of the seventh, lead-off hitter Tommy Gartman was safe on an error. Carey Burchett then singled, and Jay Pirkle's single plated Gartman to narrow the Northeastern lead to 5-4.

But Northeastern retired the next two hitters, and was one out away from eliminating the Big Springers and keeping themselves alive in the tournament.

But Chris Lamb stepped to the plate and blasted a three-run homer to give the Big Spring team an 7-5 lead, with Pete Crabtree following with another homer to boost the Big Spring advantage to 8-5.

All except one of Big Spring's runs in the Friday game came as a result of a home run. Darren Sorley opened the scoring with a two-run homer in the second, and Pirkle homered with nobody on in the fifth.

CHICAGO (AP) — Chris Evert-Lloyd overpowered Virginia Wade 6-1, 6-3 Saturday night to extend the United States lead over Great Britain to 3-0 in the 53rd Wightman Cup championship series.

Lloyd, the top ranked woman tennis player in the world, hit winners from all over the court. She passed Wade with an array of shots from the baseline and came in when her 25th-ranked opponent chose to float the

After the first of the two-week District III Little League All-Star Tournament, the field has been narrowed to six teams, with two Big Spring teams still in the running for the championship.

Two Big Spring teams were in action Saturday night, with the Big Spring National League All-Stars staying alive with a well pitched 4-2 triumph over Midland Western, while the International League was succumbing to Midland Mid-City by a score of 19-4.

That win by the National League puts Coach Butch Fraser's team in the Tuesday night contest against the loser of Monday night's contest between the Big Spring Texas League All-Stars and Midland North Central.

The Mid-City team will also play on Tuesday night, facing the loser of Monday night's contest between Midland Eastern and Lamesa.

The losses to the International League and Midland Western eliminated those squads.

The National League scored all of their runs in the opening inning on their only hit of the contest.

With one out, Michael Sparks and Mitch Griffin walked, with Gary Fraser singling for the lone NL hit of the night. Two more walks and a fielder's choice helped produce the four runs, which proved to be all the NL team would need.

It had to be, too, as Western reliever Roland Alsobrook, who came in after pitched Larry Neatherland pitched to three hitters, did not allow a hit in the five and two-thirds innings he worked.

But the NL had Fraser, who was sparkling in hurling the win. Fraser allowed only one hit, a double by Jon Waldrop that plated both Western runs, in the third inning.

Fraser struck out 14 Western hitters in the process, including the final 10 outs when the most the potential batsmen could manage were harmless foul balls.

Mid-City plated three runs in the first inning, and then clinched their contest with five run outbursts in both the second and third frames.

Mid-City managed 10 hits in the contest, and used International walks and errors to score the remainder of their runs. Tommy Perello had a double for the International All-Stars, while John Rodriguez, and Eric Kinman both chipped in with singles.

The Midland Western team had stayed alive on Friday night in one of the more exciting games of the tournament, nosing out the scrappy Big Spring American League by a 6-5 score in seven innings.

Western nicked American hurler Eric Thompson for three runs in the first three innings, with their own pitcher, Jon Waldrop, stifling the American League for three innings.

The AL fought back for single runs in the top of the fourth and fifth innings to narrow the Western lead to 3-2. But the Western team counted two runs in the bottom of the fifth and seemed to have the game under control with two outs in the sixth and a 5-2 lead.

But Michael Guzman rapped a two-run triple to right-center, and the speedy Thompson connected on a single to center to plate Guzman and knot the game at 5-5. But the rally ended at that point as the next hitter was out.

Thompson then whiffed the first two Western hitters on only six pitches in the bottom of the sixth, and the next man grounded out, sending the game into extra innings.

Waldrop retired the Americans in order in the top of the seventh, and the Western team went to work for the win in their half of the frame.

Loading the bases with only one out, Doug Howell sent a weak drive that dropped in rightfield for the winning run, thereby eliminating the American League from the tournament.

In the other Friday night contest, the International League scored a big win over Midland Tower by a 6-4 margin.

The International Leagueurs held a 5-1 lead in the fifth, only to see Tower rally within one at 5-4. But that was as close as the IL would allow with Marcus Ramos on the mound.

Perello led the IL attack in their Friday night win with a pair of singles, with Chance Harrison, David Henson, Heath Roethy and John Rodriguez adding singles.

Kentuckian repeats as Public Links champ

HOUSTON (AP) — Kentuckian Jodie Mudd won his second straight U.S. Public Links Golf championship at Bear Creek Golf Course Saturday, defeating University of Houston-bound Billy Tuten over 34 holes 3 and 2 in the 30-hole final.

The two were survivors from a 150-player field that started the 56th national championship Monday. Mudd, a senior at Georgia Southern University and an all-America collegiate golfer, won the 1980 championship at Lake Tahoe, Nev. He is the first repeater since R.H. Sikes captured titles in 1961 and 1962.

In sizzling mid-90s weather, Mudd played 153 holes of golf en route to the championship.

The only golfer who played more was Tuten, who carded 156. Mudd was never down Saturday. He was 3-up through the first 18 holes Saturday morning, and the Louisville native had a 5-up lead on Tuten, the 19-year-old Floridian, through 28 holes.

Tuten won two holes in a row to get back in the match, but not for long.

Although Mudd had a double bogey and a triple bogey in his second round Saturday, he said he played good match play golf.

"I'm satisfied with the way I played, especially this morning," he said. "I still played a lot better golf in 1980. This year, I'll have to admit I was lucky."

Michael Spinks wins WBA light-heavyweight on unanimous decision

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Michael Spinks scored a unanimous decision over Eddie Mustafa Muhammad to win the World Boxing Association light-heavyweight championship Saturday.

Spinks, relying almost exclusively on his left hand, pummeled Muhammad throughout the fight despite a slow start in the first three rounds.

Judge Duane Ford scored it 146-138, Lou Tabat had it 144-140, while Judge Chuck Minker had it 145-139 for Spinks.

The Associated Press had it 142-142.

Spinks sent Muhammad to the canvas in the 12th round with a snapping combination of two left hands followed by a thundering right to the jaw. Muhammad lay on one shoulder for the eight-count and as he got up, Spinks drove him to the ropes and threw nearly two dozen punches before Muhammad replied with a single punch.

Muhammad, who won the title from Marvin Johnson in an 11th-round knockout on March 31, 1980, appeared quite confident in the first three rounds which seemed almost as if they were in slow motion. Both fighters took care in selecting their punches and threw slow, deliberate shots.

Muhammad appeared to hurt Spinks in the third round with a bruising right to the jaw just as the bell rang.

In the fourth, however, Spinks made his move, peppering Muhammad with a sharp, snapping series of hooks, intermingled with right hands to the body.

A well-chosen jab in the ninth round closed Muhammad's right eye and Spinks continued to batter the bruised eye with a series of jabs. The eye remained closed for the rest of the fight, forcing Muhammad to nearly cover his face with upraised gloves at times.

Both fighters stood flat-footed for much of the fight and rarely strayed from the center of the ring.

The victory raised Spinks, who will be 25 in four more days, to a 17-0 record with 11 knockouts. From Philadelphia, Spinks weighed in at 173 3/4 pounds. He received $125,000 for the fight, which was televised by ABC.

Muhammad, 29, of New York, weighed in at 175 and earned $350,000. His record went to 39-6-1 with 32 knockouts.

The fight was Muhammad's third defense of the 175-pound title.

Spinks remains the only undefeated professional fighter who won a gold medal in the 1976 Olympics at Montreal.

About 1,000 people crowded into the showroom at a Strip resort for the fight.

The new champion's controversial brother, former undisputed heavyweight champion Leon Spinks, was at ringside and told The Associated Press he was having trouble keeping his weight and planned to campaign in the cruiserweight division. Spinks said he was working on a fight later this year, possibly in September, but said nothing had been signed.

War tough on golfers

After three days at the British Open, only one man has been able to break par. Reports indicate that the windy conditions and seaside course, along with some obstructions on it, make it too rugged for even the pro golfers.

But the British Open has always been a unique one, especially back in the days of World War II. But when the golfers criticize the prestigious tournament this week, they might consider the following golfing rules written by Major G.L. Edsell, secretary of St. Mellon's Golf and Country Club, and adopted from 1939-45.

1. Players are asked to collect bomb and shell splinters from the fairways to save these from causing damage to the mowers.

2. In competition, during gunfire or while bombs are falling, players may take cover without penalty for ceasing play.

3. The positions of known delayed-action bombs are marked by red and white flags placed at reasonably, but not guaranteed, safe distances from the bombs.

4. A player whose stroke is affected by the simultaneous explosion of a bomb or shell, or by machine-gun fire, may play another ball from the same place. Penalty, one stroke....

LOU GEHRIG, the great New York Yankee who once played in 2136 games, is in no trouble of losing that record. The closest to Gehrig among active major leaguers is STEVE GARVEY of the LA Dodgers, who has a streak of just under 900 games.

For Garvey to catch the Hall of Famer, he would have to play in every game through the 1980 season, at which time Garvey would be 39. Garvey says there is no way.

"Incomprehensible," Garvey said recently about approaching Gehrig's consecutive game playing record. "When I think of what I've gone through just to get this far (23 stress fractures, dislocated shoulder, pneumonia, countless muscle pulls) ... Well, he was just a phenomenal man."

(Have you ever wondered about the sparring partners of big-time boxers? And do they try to kazo their bosses?)

Heavyweight champion LARRY HOLMES pays his top men $1,000 a week, and he has a standing offer of $10,000 for any who can knock him down. Says sparring mate LEROY DIGGS, about going for the $10,000: "Sure, you think about that some, but then he comes with the left jab and you say, 'Well, maybe tomorrow.'"

POSSHOTS.... The baseball strike is hurting more than PETE ROSE in going for the NL hit record he currently is tied with STAN MUSIAL for, and for chasing the all-time mark held by TY COBB. But Pete's not the only player that was going for a record that will be halted. Some others will have to wait for another year for single season records. Such as—

TIM RAINES (Expos rookie) stole 50 bases in 55 games, and looked like he would break LOU BROCK's major league record of 118.

GOOSE GOSSAGE (Yankee reliever) had 17 saves, and had a good shot at JOHN HILLER's single season mark of 38....

Kentucky Governor JOHN Y. BROWN, who is married to Phyllis George, has been putting pressure lately on University of Kentucky President Ots Singletary of fire football mentor FRAN CURCI, and then hire GEORGE ALLEN. Says Brown on Singletary: "Singletary could use a good spanking for opposing me on hiring George Allen." Curci's Kentucky teams have won more than they've lost in the rugged Southeastern Conference, but can't beat Alabama, Georgia and LSU in the same year. But who can???

Bookies have already established SUGAR RAY LEONARD as an 8-5 favorite to beat THOMAS HEARNES, and they rate the LARRY HOLMES-GERRIE COONEY bout even money....

Quotables

PETE ROSE, on why he doesn't like to miss any games during the season, unlike many other players in their late 30s and early 40s: "When you start taking two days off when you're 39, you suddenly start playing like an old man. I don't want any days off."

Foxboro's R. LAWRENCE O'DONNELL, who voted to keep Monday Night Football out of Foxboro Stadium: "At Monday night games, you don't take a date, you take a bodyguard."

Arizona Football Coach TONY MASON, blasting the Arizona Star for reports that led to his 15-count indictment on fraud, theft and conspiracy, which was nixed when the grid mentor was pronounced not guilty Friday: "They made Mt. Everest out of a pimple. If I had been Joe Doe, I wouldn't have been on trial."

Former tennis great JACK KRAMER, reviewing John McEnroe's antics at Wimbledon: "I'm only disappointed that the man who was called an idiot didn't say, 'Game!' And if Mac said anything else, just say, 'You're defaulted' and walk off the court, if he acted that bad."

Added MASON: "Let's start arresting the real crooks, and quit wasting the taxpayers time on coaches."

DYNAMIC DUO — Linda Jonsson, background, and Hilary Cosell, foreground, are part of the reason why NBC-TV is closing the gap on ABC-TV for the nation's weekend sports audience. Hilary is the daughter of ABC sportscaster Howard Cosell, she hosts a segment on the Saturday show called "Sports Journal." Miss Jonsson is the coordinating producer of NBC's new three-hour Saturday feature, "The Summer Season," which was hurriedly conceived to fill the void left by "Saturday Baseball," a victim of the baseball strike.

Cosell's daughter showing up her old man

As if one Cosell is not enough for the airwaves, now we've got two, and show us any red-blooded American male who's going to complain about the other one.

The other Cosell talks in honeyed tones, not the trace of a rasp in her voice, is pleasant to look at, is anything but abrasive, yet, true to her heritage, is exceedingly bright and "tells it like it is."

She is Hilary (one "I," please — "I hate it when they spell my name with two I's") Cosell — Howard's daughter, and one of two reasons that NBC is closing the gap on her dad's rival network, ABC, for the nation's weekend sports audience.

The other reason is Linda Jonsson, Hilary's boss and the coordinating producer of NBC's new three-hour Saturday feature, "The Summer Season," hurriedly conceived to fill the void left by "Saturday Baseball," a victim of the current strike.

They are a potent pair, these statuesque blonde beauties, who have usurped a part of the man's world and made a success of it.

Jonsson, 31, born of Swedish parents, worked her way up from secretarial duties to become coordinating producer of NBC's Sunday "Sports World" and later undertake similar responsibility with the Summer Season when big league baseball came to an abrupt halt.

Cosell, 29, after attending Sarah Lawrence, New York University and Northwestern where she got her Master's Degree, is assistant coordinating producer and does a segment on the Saturday show called "Sports Journal." She scrapes the crust off issues and personalities and presents them with the same impact characteristic of her dad.

She does the research and the writing, but doesn't appear on camera, more's the pity.

Among her subjects have been Paul Newman, the actor-auto racer, and Hollywood Henderson, with his drug problems, the latter a TV first.

Jonsson, a New Englander who studied law at the University of Colorado and skied to her heart's content, toured Europe for six months after graduation and then came home to take a secretarial job in the spory department of NBC.

Fans split over baseball strike

NEW YORK (AP) — The major league baseball strike has tarnished many Americans' image of the national pastime, the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

The poll also said the death of baseball has left many fans spending more time with family and friends, reading and working around the house.

The poll of 1,599 American adults, contacted by telephone Monday and Tuesday, said 31 percent supported the owners, 30 percent the players and 29 percent were not sure which side to support.

Ten percent said they had not heard or read of the 5-week-old strike.

Nearly half the respondents who had heard of the strike said it had not changed their opinion of baseball. But 46 percent said the strike had lowered their "opinion of major league baseball and the people involved in it."

Only 3 percent said they had a higher opinion of baseball because of the strike.

The fans who said they follow baseball most closely were also the most likely to say the strike had lowered their opinion of major league baseball and the people involved in it.

The strike was called by the 650-member players association after failure to reach agreement with the owners of the 26 major league teams on the issue of free agent compensation.

The negotiations, shifted from New York to Washington when Labor Secretary Raymond J. Donovan became involved this week, center on how teams should be compensated — in cash, other players or some combination of players and cash — when their players whose contracts have expired sign new contracts with other teams.

The poll said that Republicans, men, higher-income earners and professionals were more likely to support the owners, while Democrats, women, students, lower-income workers and minority group members were more likely to support the players.

Union members, who made up about one in every five respondents, were only slightly more likely to support the players than the owners.

Republicans, men, the better-educated, higher-income earners and whites — groups more strongly supporting the owners — were more likely to say the strike had lowered their opinion of baseball.

Asked to pick from a brief list, one of every four poll respondents who had heard or read about the strike reported spending more time working around the house now. One-fourth also said they are spending more time with family and friends, and 23 percent said they are reading more.

Fourteen percent said they are going out more often, 12 percent said they are following other sports and 12 percent said they are exercising or playing a sport themselves more often.

As with all sample surveys, the results of the AP-NBC polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,600 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percent.

Talks resume Monday

Strike talks in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations to end the five-week-old baseball strike have struck out in New York and are being moved to the nation's capital, a city still embittered by the loss of its major league franchise a decade ago.

The Reagan administration's stance is that last-chance bargaining to salvage the remainder of the baseball season may be more successful here, where representatives of the players and club owners will be under the close supervision of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, following a jawboning session Friday with Marvin Miller of the players association and Ray Grebey, chief bargainer for the 26 club owners, said the two sides had agreed "in principle" to "renew negotiations in Washington on Monday."

While maintaining he still supports the collective bargaining process, Donovan told reporters "I will be available" if needed in the new series of talks. He had said earlier that the continuing strike "was a kick in the teeth to the American people."

The strike, which began June 12 and which has forced cancellation of one-fifth of the season so far, is in its 37th day. The issue concerns the question of compensating baseball teams which lose star players via the free agent route.

The nation's capital lost its baseball team — the Washington Senators — when then-owner Robert Short moved the franchise to Arlington, Texas. Short's team had replaced an earlier Senators franchise that moved to Minnesota.

Donovan said he has asked federal mediator Kenneth E.

Moffett to invite representatives of labor and management to resume negotiations here Monday under the auspices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, of which Moffett is acting head.

Asked whether Miller and Grebey indicated a willingness to move the talks from New York to Washington, Donovan replied, "In principle, yes."

Donovan suggested that a news blackout will be imposed when the talks resume here at 2 p.m. EDT Monday.

Asked whether President Reagan has been expressing concern about the strike, Donovan said, "No, he has not," but he added that the White House has been informed of each development.

Before his meetings with Miller and Grebey, Donovan called the sessions "a last effort" to end the strike and save the remaining games, playoffs and World Series.

The players association said Thursday it would accept binding arbitration to end the walkout, but the owners' Player Relations Committee rejected the idea.

The players went on strike after the owners imposed a system under which a team that lost a free agent would be permitted to take one player from the team signing the free agent.

In subsequent negotiations, levels of compensation have been altered and various formulas offered. Management's last proposal Thursday set a limit of eight on the number of free agents who would require professional player compensation in 1981 — with that number rising to 10 in 1982 and a maximum of 14 in 1983 — and increased the numbers of players who could be protected from being claimed as possible compensation.

Bucs Ricky Bell says "trade me"

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Complaining about criticism from management, running back Ricky Bell has asked the Tampa Bay Buccaneers to trade him, preferably to an NFL team closer to his California home.

Bell, who played for Bucs coach John McKay at Southern California, was Tampa's controversial No. 1 draft pick in 1977. McKay picked him over Dallas Cowboys star running back Tony Dorsett.

Bell, who doesn't have to report to training camp in Florida until next week, acknowledged the decision by telephone from Los Angeles.

"I think when you put total effort into it and are totally criticized, not by the fans, but by the organization itself, you are not achieving anything. If I can't contribute to the team, the best way to contribute is not to be part of it."

"They said they'd try to trade me and felt they couldn't get what I was worth. I don't know what they asked. You can ask so much — nobody will touch it. I believe I have the ability to play in this league."

McKay confirmed that the Bucs tried to trade Bell but were unable to "get what we felt Ricky is worth. And what we asked was not exorbitant," he said without revealing an asking price.

McKay added: "If I had my druthers, I'd like to see Ricky Bell a Buccaneer and playing once more as he did in 1979."

Bell struggled behind the offensive line of the young expansion team in 1977 and 1978, but in 1979 he gained 1,283 yards in 283 carries, caught 25 passes for 248 yards and scored 11 touchdowns as the Bucs went on to capture the National Football League Central Division championship.

Last year the Bucs slipped to 5-10-1 and Bell's yardage slipped to 599 rushing and 292 yards passing.

Former Redskin burns Oiler turf

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Danny Buggs, a former Washington Redskin who played in the Canadian Football League, was the star of the 40-yard dash session at the first workout of the Houston Oilers training camp Friday.

Buggs ran a 4.48, best among the rookies and free agents who reported to camp Thursday. Draft choices Michael Holston, Larry Jones and Willie Tullis all ran 4.5 and Bill Kay turned in a 4.53.

None of the rookies and free agents reported noticeably overweight.

Second-year lineman Angelo Fields, reporting to camp a week before the rest of the veterans, was down 16 pounds (to 324) from two weeks ago.

Fields faces a daily fine if he weighs more than 310 by Thursday.

"The fact that he's here working tells me what his intentions are," said his head coach Ed Biles. "I'm not worried about him."

The only casualty of the first workout was Angelo State product Guy Sellers, who failed to pass his physical and was waived.

"He just started working this afternoon so it is too early to tell," Brandt said. "He had a history of success at Nebraska because of his aggressive play and outstanding athletic ability. He is a just a pretty solid football player."

"We are very pleased to have him in here in camp practicing with us," Brandt said. "He could help us a lot in our special teams."

Female coaches prove worth at Camp of Champs

By NATHAN POSS

The Ninth Annual Howard College Basketball Camp of Champs was once again a success, as 125 boys stayed on the local campus the past week, learning and refining their skills on the court. One reason for the popularity and continued success of the camp that is organized and directed by HC's Harold Wilder is the quality of his coaching staff.

That was evident again, as such basketball tutors as Spring Klein's David Middleton, Big Spring's Mike Randle, Forsan's Ron Taylor and Midland College's Jerry Stone were on hand, among others. But a noticeable pair of coaches at the boys camp were also in the form of females Susan Martin and Melissa Luna.

Martin was an outstanding player at Sands High School before distinguishing herself at Howard College, where she helped pace the Hawk Queens to a Western Conference championship and a spot in the Region V finals. She played on the Angelo State University Rambelle team last fall, and will compete this fall in her final collegiate campaign. Luna just completed her freshmen year at Howard College, where she improved throughout the year, gaining a starting role and helping the Hawk Queens go to the Region V finals.

In the world of basketball, it is quite common to see men coaching women's basketball, but not too often does one see a woman coaching a men's team. But that doesn't mean that they aren't capable, as both Luna and Martin proved the past week.

Both girls coached in the girls and boys weeks in the Camp of Champs, but Martin admitted that she enjoyed working with the young boys the most.

"I really enjoyed working with the boys camp this year," said the poised Martin. "I worked at the girls camp only a couple of years ago, but I enjoyed working both of them this year. But looking at both groups, I guess I would say I enjoyed the boys camp more."

Martin did admit that there were differences in handling the opposite sexes on the basketball arena.

"The boys were harder for me to handle," reflected Martin, "but they listened much better. In that respect it was better."

Martin is majoring in elementary education and hopes to pursue coaching as a career, while Luna is a business major.

The campers ranged from age eight through 14, and Martin did say that some were easier for her to handle than others. "I liked coaching the little boys better than the big ones. They listened to me better, and I found I could coach them better."

But that is understandable, as Martin's major at Angelo State is geared toward teaching that age group when she graduates.

Either way, the presence of Luna and Martin at the Camp of Champs once again marked the increasing number of women moving up in the world of basketball, as the sport properly flows with the times.

Caponi in sole possession at Jericho

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) — Donna Caponi, who started the day in a three-way deadlock for first place in the Western Union International Golf Classic, took over sole possession of the top spot Saturday with a 3-under-par 69 for a 54-hole total of 209.

Kathy Martin, who has not won a title in 10 years on the tour, shot a course record 66 over the par-72, 6,347-yard layout at the Meadow Brook

Club to move into a tie with Judy Stanger for second at 211.

The 35-year-old Martin had posted a 68 on Friday, lowest score of the second round, after opening with a 77.

Stanger, another non-winner on the circuit, and Vivian Brownlee were in a three-way tie with Caponi at the start of Saturday's play at 140.

However, the 23-year-old Stanger had three straight bogeys — 12th, 13th and 14th holes — en route to a 71, to fall behind Caponi, who has 22 titles to her credit in 17 years as a pro.

The 33-year-old fell out of the lead with a 2-over 74 as she bogeyed the second and fifth holes and fell into fourth, fifth with a 214.

Sally Little, the defending champion from South Africa who shared first place after the initial round, shot a 74 to virtually drop out of contention with a 217.

The 29-year-old Little, who has won 10 titles overall, three of them this year, has yet to successfully defend any of them.

Kathy Whitworth, driving to become the first member of the LPGA to earn $1 million on the tour, shot a 2-under 70, her first subpar round in the $125,000 four-day Classic. She has a three-round total of 218.

However, the 23-year veteran of the tour must finish at least fourth to reach the coveted goal. At present, she is $5,031 short.

Martin, who missed only one green, the 17th, said, "I always start out shaky."

Louisiana Downs in chaos over steroids

BOSSIER CITY, La. (AP) — Findings that 13 horses that ran at Louisiana Downs in the last three weeks had been given steroids have caused chaos in track operations, the man who runs it said Saturday.

Trainers and five veterinarians were fined $200 each Friday afternoon because laboratory tests showed the horses had been given the drug prednisone, track stewards said.

"We've had scratches because of it; trainers and owners are going to sue, the veterinarians are appealing," said Vince Bartimo, president and general manager of the north Louisiana track.

Not to mention the fact that an estimated $100,000 in purses had to be redistributed after the stewards dropped the allegedly drugged winners back to last place.

Bartimo blamed it all on the political war between Gov. David Treen and the Louisiana State Racing Commission, which was appointed by former governor Edwin Edwards.

"This is an analgesic which has not been tested for in 50 years in this industry," he said. "It's not tested for in Kentucky, Maryland, New York, Florida — in practically every state where there's racing."

Louisiana racing commissioners could not be reached for comment.

And, Bartimo said, not only were the tests made without letting veterinarians know horses would be checked for the pain-killer, but results for some races were withheld for weeks.

The most recent race affected was five years ago, he said.

"That's ludicrous on its face. They're supposed to notify them within 72 hours. We kept getting complaints, and we kept asking, 'What's the problem?'"

He wouldn't guess at who might have suggested testing for prednisone, but said it was almost certainly somebody who wanted to make the present commission look bad.

"It was a political situation to create havoc in the industry," he said.

"I consider the entire episode a farce. I consider it a situation in which a lot of innocent people were adversely affected strictly because of a political confrontation."

Texas Attorney General to look at Astros fraud

HOUSTON (AP) — An investigation will begin this week into possible deceptive trade practices by the Houston Astros toward 10,000 season ticket holders, officials of the Texas Attorney General's office say.

The investigation is a result of a complaint filed Friday by a season ticket holder who was denied an immediate refund, said John Chase, assistant attorney general assigned to the Houston regional office.

The unidentified complainant, who held a number of season tickets, sought a refund of more than $3,000 because of the 38-day-old major league baseball strike, Chase said.

Ben Gillespie, Houston Sports Association vice president in charge of public relations, said all season ticket holders were notified by mail three weeks ago that they will receive refunds only when the strike is settled.

Immediate refunds would be too costly, inefficient and would lead to bookkeeping errors, Gillespie said.

Full season tickets for Astros games cost between $276.50 and $613.50, Gillespie said. Mini-season tickets cost from $50 to $88, he said.

McCutcheon falls

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Veteran of Mexico's back Lawrence McCutcheon failed his physical because of problems with his left knee, Houston Oilers coach Ed Bielecki announced Saturday.

Bielecki also announced that Bill Pace, an offensive tackle from Ohio State, would be placed on waivers. He was with the Oilers last summer, but a knee injury forced him to miss much of training camp and he was placed on the injured reserve list.

McCutcheon, a nine-year National Football League veteran, had signed a free-agent contract with the Oilers July 11. He left Saturday for Los Angeles, where he was a star with the Rams from 1972 through '79.

McCutcheon also played for the Denver Broncos and Seattle Seahawks before becoming a free agent at the end of the 1980 season. He rushed a total of 6,440 yards and he still hopes to win a spot for the 1981 season.

Northeastern eliminates Big Spring

ABILENE — The Big Spring All-Stars lost a 10-9 decision in the finals of the Senior League 13-year-old tournament here Friday night to Abilene Northeastern, thus eliminating themselves from the tourney.

Northeastern scored twice in the first, only to be answered with four runs from the Big Spring bats paced by Tony Rodriguez, Randy Hayworth and Mike Leuschner.

But Northeastern went ahead to stay in the second on six runs on only two hits for an 8-4 advantage. The Big Springers scored twice in the second to narrow the Northeastern lead to 8-6, but that was as close as they would get.

Troy Bolan was the winning pitcher, with Leuschner the loser.

Baden wins Jr. stop

Big Spring High School's All-District golfer, John Baden, carded a 74 Friday to win the local stop on the West Texas PGA Junior Tournament, which was held at the Big Spring Country Club.

Baden's three-over-par round was four strokes better than second place Britt Gardner of Midland in the 16-18 age group division, who had a 78. Rob Marburger of Midland was third with an 80.

A trio of Abileneans dominated the 14-15 age group. Ricky East won it with a round of 75, with Ryan Heller having a 79 and Mike Shaw an 80.

Sweetwater's Jack Poe was red hot in the 12-13 age group, shooting a round of 75 to win by 10 strokes over second place Ken Livingston of Seminole, who had an 85. Bud Alldredge of Sweetwater had an 88.

Inflation worries Wall Streeters

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — For months Wall Street waited for cheery news on inflation. Now that it's here, the financial community seems to think it's too good to be true.

Inflation, as measured by the government's Consumer Price Index, has been under an annual rate of 10 percent for the past several months, and the Reagan administration is painting an even rosier picture for the remainder of the year.

But that has not made a believer of Wall Street.

"There's no real strong conviction that inflation is slowing," said Monte Gordon, director of research at Dreyfus Corp. "The Street is still concerned about the inflation potential."

Gordon is not alone. John McAuley, a vice president in Chemical Bank's economics department, says the recent slowdown in inflation is due partly to "lucky breaks," which he is not counting on to repeat in the months ahead.

"We believe inflation in the second quarter fell about as low as it is likely to get through 1982," McAuley says.

He predicts consumer price inflation will jump to an 8.6 percent annual rate in the current quarter and 8.7 percent in the final quarter, compared with an estimated 7.3 percent last quarter.

The White House is even more optimistic. In its mid-year economic review, the administration estimated that inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, would be 6.2 percent next year — less than half last year's rate.

A lot of Wall Street analysts, however, think the Federal Reserve Board's success in curbing inflation is also pushing the economy into a recession. The Fed has used high interest rates as its main weapon against inflation.

In the past week, the Dow

Jones average of 30 industrials gained 3.23 points, to 958.90, with the blue-chip index rising in each of the last three trading sessions.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index added .81, to 75.96, during the week. The American Stock Exchange market-value index was up 6.58, at 370.02.

Analysts said they saw little chance of a broad rally in the market until the Federal Reserve gave clearer signs that it would allow interest rates to fall.

The apprehension among investors was underscored by the slump in trading volume on the NYSE this past week.

David R. Morrison, vice president and chief financial officer for First Federal Savings and Loan of Big Spring, has been named president of Big Spring Savings and Loan Association.

Morrison succeeds Ray Don Williams, who died unexpectedly earlier this year. Jerry Foresyth, who has been serving as acting president of the firm since Williams' death, has been promoted to the office of vice president.

Toots Mansfield, Guilford Jones III and Clyde Hollingsworth have been added to the BSSLA board of directors. Other directors include Joe Pond, E.P. Driver, Dwain Leonard, Ernest Welch, Fred Phillips and Morrison.

Mansfield recently was voted into the National Cowboy Hall of Fame. Toots is married to the former Mary Nell Edwards. He was the first president the Rodeo Cowboys Association ever had.

Morrison joined First Federal Savings and Loan in April 1975. He is a Certified Public Accountant. He also served the firm as corporate secretary-treasurer.

After earning his Master's degree in Business Administration from Texas Tech University in 1972, he was a staff accountant with the Arthur Anderson and Company.

From 1966 until 1970, he was with the U.S. Air Force stationed at Webb AFB in Big Spring. He was a training administrator, planning and coordinating various training courses within the military.

Prior to joining the Air Force, he was a farm planner for the Soil Conservation Service, stationed in Grayson, Ky.

He earned his Bachelor of Science degree at Western Kentucky University in 1966, majoring in Agriculture. He became a CPA in 1973.

Now 37 years of age, Morrison was born in Hardin County, Ky. He is married. The Morrises have a son, Kevin, age 11. Mrs. Morrison's given name is Ella.

By profession of faith, he is a Baptist. He is a member of the YMCA, having served as its treasurer in 1976-77, its vice president in 1978 and its president last year. He currently is on the Y board. He was president of the local chapter of the American Cancer Society in 1978 and was its crusade chairman in 1976 and 1977.

He was a trustee and a solicitor for the Howard County United Way and is active in the Lions Club, an organization which he has served in various capacities.

Foresyth, born and raised in Big Spring, is a former Big Spring assistant city manager and has been employed by Big Spring Savings and Loan since 1978. He is a member of the Big Spring school board, is president of the Big Spring A & M Club, is on the Ambassadors Club, is a member of both the Rotary Club and the American Business Club. He is a Methodist. He and his wife, Jan, have two children.

Pond, in the insurance business here, is the chairman of the board of directors. He moved to Big Spring from Colorado City in 1937. He served as a director of the Chamber of Commerce for 15 years.

Pond was active in the State Association of Insurance Agents. He has served on the BSSLA board since the firm was organized.

Hollingsworth is a certified public accountant and has been practicing in Big Spring since January 1966. He is a member of the American Institute of CPAs and the Texas Society of CPAs. He is a past president of the Kiwanis Club. He served as treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce for 15 years, during which time he received three distinguished service awards.

For 12 years, he was treasurer of the First Christian Church. He was a founding member of the Big Spring Industrial Foundation, the Big Spring Industrial Fund and the City's Tourism and Development Committee. He is a former member of the Century Club.

Leonard, a pharmacist, grew up in Bronte and attended the University of Texas at Austin. He moved to Big Spring in 1940 and opened his first drug store a couple of years later. He now owns three stores and has farm and ranch properties and has been active in the oil drilling business.

Welch, owner of Nalley-Pickle and River-Welch Funeral Homes here, came to Big Spring in 1953. He served as a pilot in WWII. An active worker in his church, he once served as president of the Kiwanis Club and has worked with the YMCA, the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, the Boy Scouts and the Chamber of Commerce.

Jones was reared in Big Spring. He holds a BBA (Accounting) from the University of Texas and gained a Doctor of Jurisprudence degree at the University of Texas School of Law in 1973. He is a CPA, is a member of the American Institute of CPAs, the American Bar Association and Texas Bar Association. He was with the Arthur Anderson firm in Houston about two years and spent two years in the practice of law in Austin.

Phillips, born in Howard County, holds a degree in business from West Texas State University. He has farm holdings in the Knott area, says Howard County is one of the best places for dryland farming in West Texas.

E.P. Driver's West Texas roots are deep. Born near Garden City, he attended public schools in Big Spring. During WW II, he was stationed at Pyote, Tex. Although he spent many years as a cowboy, he is now in the insurance business. Calf-roping was his specialty. For over 30 years, he has worked toward the promotion of the Big Spring Rodeo and Cowboy Reunion. He served the BSSLA board as its secretary-treasurer.

E.P. is also a charter member of the board of the Big Spring Savings and Loan Association. His hobby is his ranch, located in Glasscock and Howard counties.

Representative Larry Don Shaw Reports from Austin

Starting over on house districts

To the surprise of few people, a state district court in Austin has thrown out the House redistricting plan passed by the Legislature in the regular session which adjourned on June 1.

Assuming the Texas Supreme Court upholds District Judge Harley Clark's ruling, the new districts will be drawn from scratch by the Redistricting Board, composed of Speaker Billy Clayton, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Attorney General Mark White, State Comptroller Bob Bullock, and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong.

As you know, the plan passed by the Legislature placed me in a narrow, 300-mile long district extending from Dawson County to Wilbarger County on the Red River.

Rep. W.S. "Bill" Healy (D-Paducah), the Dean of the House, was also placed in that district, and that meant that if Rep. Healy and I both wished to be reelected to the House, we would have to oppose each other in next year's Democratic primary.

In addition, the new district contained only three of the six counties I currently represent; Scurry, Sterling and Coke Counties would have been placed in adjoining districts.

If I had my druthers, of course, I would like to (1) keep all six counties in my current district, (2) add one or two nearby counties to reach the 95,000 population target for each district, and (3) avoid being "paired" with any other incumbents.

I have reason to believe that this is possible, but it certainly wouldn't hurt if District 63 residents who agree with me would make their feelings known to any or all of the five members of the Redistricting Board. You can write to any of them at: Capitol Station, Austin TX 78711.

Officer fired

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas police reserve officer, placed on indefinite suspension after a cameraman filmed him abusing a handcuffed prisoner, was fired Friday, police said.

Richard A. Jones, 45, was fired as internal affairs investigators continued to gather reports from officers present at the July 10 disturbance outside a nightclub, said Lt. Billy Grammer, who supervises police reserve officers.

Jones is accused of beating Gerry Lewis, who later was charged with aggravated assault in connection with a shooting outside the club.

The videotape, taken by Roy Hernandez of KXAS, a Fort Worth television station, showed Jones kicking Lewis while he was lying face down on the ground with his hands cuffed behind his back. The tape also shows Jones placing his knee on Lewis' throat when he was lying on his back uncuffed.

SEIZED — James "T-Bone" Taylor the man suspected of shooting two Waterloo, Iowa police officers is led from a bean field after his capture Friday afternoon northeast of La Porte City, Iowa. Leading Taylor out are Waterloo Officers Tom Shimp, left and Larry Coffin. Following is State Trooper Marvin Messerschmidt who first spotted Taylor in the field and told him to stand up with his hands in the air.

Bandit bolts in the buff

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tampa police are looking for a bandit who shouldn't be hard to spot. He does his work in the buff.

Twice this week, there were reports of a nude man traipsing around an intersection near the Pink Palace beauty salon.

On Thursday morning, proprietor Leonora Brady said her purse containing $160 was snatched by an early-morning visitor who came to the shop au naturel, then streaked away ignoring her pleas to leave her car keys.

"This guy was standing there, and he was completely nude. I was so frightened I couldn't say anything," she told police.

When the man grabbed her purse off a counter and departed, she chased him about 35 feet down an alley asking for her keys and driver's license back, she told police. But he ran away.

One, two,.... touch those toes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — How do you spot a pregnant pachyderm?

Columbus Zoo Director Jack Hanna said Bamba, an Asian elephant, looks fat enough to be pregnant. But then again she's been eating an awful lot of hay and may be just overweight.

"A lot of people are going to laugh at me if she doesn't have anything," Hanna said. "But the way she protrudes, I'll go on record that there is something in there, and it's got to come out."

Only one Asian elephant has been born in a zoo in the United States, Hanna said. Gestation is 22 to 26 months.

To help solve the puzzle of possible pregnancy, animal cardiologist Robert Hamlin and zoo veterinarian Harrison Gardner Jr. were called in to give Bamba an electrocardiogram. The graph showed two heartbeats.

Hanna is hopeful but not doubt-free. "I hope watermelons don't have heartbeats," he said.

Mexico bans suggestive stories

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A decree this week by President Jose Lopez Portillo modified the law governing newspapers, magazines and books, forbidding publication of "suggestive" stories that "could damage the morals of youngsters." Unclad women can no longer appear on magazine covers or on the outside of newspapers.

The decree provides a 38-hour jail sentence or $4,000 fine for offenders and possible suspension for one year of publication rights.

Up to now, topless women appeared occasionally on the back or front page of some newspapers and frequently inside. Now such photos on the outside are banned, and mens' magazines, considered mild by U.S. standards, must be sold in sealed wrappers to prevent their perusal at the newsstands.

The law is administered by a special five member Interior Ministry commission, and the changes, in addition to changes in photo policy, are aimed at controlling sexually oriented themes in novels and cartoons, the government said.

...only the rarest kind of best in anything can be good enough for the young."

Tax & financial planning

Tax Return Preparers

Have you ever wondered why the person preparing your tax return is not more cooperative in helping you "beat the government?" On some occasions you may even think the accountant is working for the government.

There is specific legislation which governs certain activities of individuals who prepare tax returns for compensation. A preparer is subject to dollar penalties as follows: $25 for each tax return on which he fails to furnish his identifying number; $50 for failing to retain a copy of each tax return he prepares or a list of taxpayers for whom he prepared returns; and $100 for the failure to maintain and make available to the IRS, upon request, a list of preparers in his employ. A preparer is also subject to a $500 penalty for negotiating his client's refund checks.

If, due to negligence, the preparer has caused your tax liability to be understated, he is subject to a $100 penalty. If the understatement of taxes is due to "willful" acts by the preparer, he is subject to a $500 penalty.

The tax regulations require that tax preparers make "appropriate inquiries for specific documentation" for certain types of claimed deductions.

Compliance with the various regulations contributes to the time and cost of preparing your tax return. Such compliance may also lead you to think that the account is working for the government.

To preserve the confidentiality of the information you provide to your accountant, there is a criminal penalty for the use of such information for any purpose other than the preparation of your return.

Most accountants represent several hundred taxpayers. By complying with the preparer regulations, they not only reduce the possibilities of penalties but establish credibility with the Internal Revenue Service and therefore provide a better service to their clientele as a whole.

Oil town attracting filmmakers

HOUSTON (AP) — unless you had previous Hollywood probably has little to worry about, but this steaming boomtown of factories and oil refineries has added a new industry to its list of mushrooming million-dollar enterprises — motion pictures.

A tourist official said Friday the boom began here with the 1979 success of "Urban Cowboy," which brought movie crews from the West Coast to Houston's blue collar suburb, Pasadena, home of Gilley's, the western nightclub with the mechanical bull.

The star of that film, John Travolta, returned to this sprawling seaport Thursday to promote a new movie, "Blowout," and was greeted by hundreds of screaming women. Mayor Jim McConn gave him the key to the city and declared him an honorary Houstonian.

The year after he starred in the movie shot in Houston, film projects pumped over $4 million into the hands of Houstonians, said Steve Moore, director of Visitor and Film Development for the city's tourist bureau. He said the movie business promises to play an even bigger role in the city's economy in the future.

"The interest in Texas obviously permeates the shooting here. And you wouldn't get into Texas unless you had previous films to attract your attention, such as 'Urban Cowboy,'" Moore says. "But it goes back to 'Brewster McCloud.' The only reason the screenplay was set here was because of obvious locations, like the Astrodome."

"Brewster McCloud," chronicled a young man's attempts to fly. The movie culminated in his successful bird-like circling into the upper reaches of the huge, covered stadium, before being shot down by impressed but unamused authorities.

Moore said in recent years Texas has become filmdom's "third coast," behind Los Angeles and New York. Houston is attracting movie companies because costs are low, there are no union problems, and Houston just has some unique sites, he said.

But Houston was unable to host the movie "Superman," although Moore said producers did come to town and look around.

"One of the reasons we didn't get it is because if you suspend Superman up in the air and fly him, you run out of skyline. That doesn't happen in Manhattan," he said.

Moore said exterior scenes of the 1979 film "Middle-Aged Crazy" starring Bruce Dern and Ann-Margaret were filmed here, but the Canadian production company decided to do the interior shots in Toronto.

Moore said he signed on with the company as a kind of "Texana" consultant to make sure the takes filmed in Canada maintained a "Texas flair."

"I would play tape recordings of country-western radio stations up there on the sets, especially including Houston commercials and Houston traffic reports," he says.

"Everything from the K-blank-blank weather report calls for 90-degree temperatures and high humidity to a commercial for 'Don's Western Wear,' located on Katy Freeway and other locations in the Houston area."

"You'd see a gaffer stand up and lock up in the air, and he'd have to remind himself that he was in Toronto and not Houston, Texas," Moore said.

Moore said film crews spent 39 weeks in Houston in 1980 filming two feature films, three TV movies, two television pilots and one soap opera.

He says one feature film, "Student Bodies" — a satire on the recent wave of teen-horror movies — has been completed in Houston so far in 1981. A film version of the Larry McMurtry novel "Terms of Endearment" is scheduled to be filmed here later this year, he said.

Judge's order spares bear

VIENNA, Ill. (AP) — The lawyer for the family of an 11-year-old boy bitten by a bear has filed a court appeal seeking to have the animal killed so it can be examined for rabies.

Belleville attorney Thomas Keeffe Jr. on Friday filed an emergency review with the 5th District Appellate Court in Mount Vernon. The review asks for reversal of an order earlier Friday that barred execution of the aging brown bear.

Circuit Judge Donald Lowrey signed the restraining order that gave the bear, dubbed Tommy, at least 10 more days to live pending a hearing July 27 on a permanent injunction.

Lowrey's order superseded a St. Clair County judge's order Thursday that the bear be killed.

Scott Burrelsman of Fairview Heights was bitten July 7 as he petted the bear at feeding time at Camp Ondessonk near the southern Illinois town of Ozard in the Shawnee National Forest.

Keeffe said Friday that the Burrelsman family is "being persecuted" by telephone callers concerned about the welfare of the bear. The camp director, the Rev. Robert Vonnahen, has received calls from as far as London inquiring about Tommy.

Scott already has taken the first in a series of six rabies shots. He faces a second shot Monday.

The boy's father, John Burrelsman, said earlier that Scott will get the shots because he refuses "to gamble" with his son's life.

"What if there's that one-in-a-million chance that the bear is rabid?" he asked.

The bear has lived at the Roman Catholic Diocese camp for 17 of its 22 years. About 500 children formed a human chain around the bear's pen Thursday and vowed to resist efforts to kill their mascot. The protest was put down and the children sent to bed, said camp personnel director John Winklemolen.

Dr. Donald Buser of Belleville wanted the animal killed so its brain could be examined to see if his young patient could have contracted rabies.

The restraining order was sought by Dr. Harold James, the rabies-control officer for the county. One of his associates, Dr. Ray Hill of Centralia, said federal rabies experts told him "bears are poor hosts to rabies, even when given above-lethal doses of rabies."

James and another associate said they would testify at the hearing that other methods of finding rabies could be employed.

"After 10 to 14 days, if the bear is normal, I see no reason why the kid would have to take rabies shots," said the associate, Dr. Gary McKibben.

"If he (the bear) was rabid, he'd be dead by now," Hill said.

Flattering bio passed out

OTTAWA (AP) — A flattering biography of Prime Minister Elliott Trudeau, describing him as a self-sacrificing man of "keen, biting intellect," is being distributed here to hundreds of journalists by organizers of a seven-country economic summit.

Progressive Conservatives are incensed that taxpayers' money is being used to sweeten Trudeau's image during the three-day summit that begins Sunday.

A copy of the biography is included in a press kit. The kit contains a background story on Trudeau's attempts to bring the Canadian Constitution home from Britain, where it is kept, but it does not mention the fact that eight provinces opposed Trudeau and launched court challenges to stop him.

Ex-lawmaker files suit

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Former Congressman John Jenrette of South Carolina has sued his estranged wife, Rita, and her parents over a dispute involving ownership of an Austin bowling alley.

Jenrette contends in the suit that C.H. and Reba Carpenter and his estranged wife are conspiring to deny him his interest in the Brunswick Capitol Bowling Center.

Campaign to discipline Rep. Gramm evaporating

WASHINGTON — The campaign to discipline Rep. Phil Gramm, D-College Station, for his unabashed endorsement of President Reagan's economic policies appears to be evaporating into Washington's hot summer air.

House liberals have urged Gramm's ouster from the party — at least — the important Budget Committee. But developments late this week proved again that actions speak louder than words.

An aide to House Speaker Tip O'Neill, D-Mass., said Friday the party leader did not support disciplinary action against Democrats. Chris Matthews, press aide to O'Neill, said "the Speaker feels it would set a dangerous precedent."

O'Neill said Thursday he will call a Democratic caucus in September to deal with requesting for disciplinary action against Gramm. "We've never had disciplining in our party. We've never had punishment in our party," O'Neill said.

In response, an aide to Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., said Friday morning the liberal congressman is now uncertain if he will introduce a much publicized resolution before the party caucus that would urge punishment of Gramm and other Democrats who gave Reagan his slim victory in the House. Moffett aide Neil Minnich cited a "lack of support" for the proposal.

In a State News Service poll this week of House Budget Committee Democrats, only one person said Gramm should be bumped from the committee.

Gramm seemed to have escaped what had become a daily public persecution — masterminded by the outspoken Moffett and new National Democratic Party Chairman Charles Manatt.

Moments after key votes on the House floor last month, liberals dashed to the television cameras to attack Gramm and other party rebels.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright said the 29 Democrats who bolted the party should be welcomed back, "but we shouldn't make them deacons in the church" — an obvious reference to Gramm's powerful seat on the House Budget Committee.

But now the need has changed. And Gramm, who said he followed the wishes of his constituents, thinks he knows why.

"It was a threat to change my votes," Gramm said Friday morning. "It didn't work although I don't know anybody who thought they could change my mind. I never took it personally. I viewed it as a play."

O'Neill's remarks Thursday appear to be a signal that he feels the liberal campaign to get Gramm is counterproductive and futile.

"There is a feeling that cracking down on someone because he voted the interests of his constituents sets a dangerous precedent," explained Matthews, O'Neill's aide.

Democratic leaders have attacked all 25 Democrats who supported Reagan's plan. But it was Gramm who bore the brunt of the criticism. Members felt the College Station Democrat was only interested in "scoring points" with the Reagan administration.

"He used his position as a Democrat to spy on our strategy sessions and then he ran to tell (OMP Director David) Steekman about them," lamented one budget committee member, who asked not to be named.

Committee member Rep. Adam Benjamin, D-Indiana, said Gramm was "directed by a higher power in OMB. He worked with Stockman after he told us he was willing to cooperate. He was simply less than candid."

But Benjamin and nearly all of his colleagues felt Gramm should not be kicked off the panel.

"It's a very serious penalty and dangerous exercise," Benjamin said.

The lone Democrat who supported Gramm's ouster, who asked not to be named, said, "I respect them (the 25 Democrats who belted the

Divorce record broken

DALLAS (AP) — An attorney who proclaims himself the divorce mill of Dallas has broken his own record by guiding 40 uncontested divorces to completion in 15 minutes.

Averill Sweitzer set a city record in March when he piloted 26 couples out of their marriages in about the same amount of time.

Sweitzer handles only uncontested divorces, most of them involving people married a short time who have no children and little property. Speed is his specialty, and his fees ranging from $65 to $115 often are advertised in television newspaper supplements.

Mortician killed

DALLAS (AP) — A 24-year-old mortician from Kansas City, Mo., was shot to death in a motel room Friday, police said.

Lowell D. Jones and another man paid to use a room in the OBI Motel in south Dallas for two hours early Friday, police said.

Shortly after 3 a.m., a motel employee went to the room to tell the men their time was almost up and found Jones face down at the foot of the bed, officers said. He had been shot in the head.

Jones' pockets had been turned inside out and his wallet was empty. His 1977 black Cadillac was missing, police said.

Sales tax dip reported

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Colorado City's receipt of sales taxes for the 30-day period ending July 9 show a dip from the same period a year ago.

The decline is less than $300. For the year-to-date, however, receipts continue well ahead of 1980.

The payment to the city for the just-completed period is $11,630, which brings the total for the year to $100,546.

A year ago, year-to-date payments totaled $85,000, which means sales tax rebates to Colorado City are continuing at an 18 percent increase.

1,500 marriage licenses unclaimed in Mitchell

In the spring, a young man's fancy turns to ... marriage?

Maybe not in Mitchell County.

According to Mitchell County Clerk Jo Ann Beach, there are about 1,500 marriage licenses in the courthouse files which never were claimed.

These licenses go back, in the case of a Mr. Wiley and Nancy Ellen Curry, to 1882; in the case of Lon Waldon and Becky Briscoe, and W.A. Reagan and Mrs. E.E. Talbot, to 1883; and in the case of T.J. Roberson and Katy Hern, to 1884.

Beach reports that, for unknown reasons, no one has claimed these nor any of the other 1,500 licenses.

Persons are welcome to claim their family marriage licenses, and adds Beach: "Centennial time just seems like a good time for Mitchell Countians to tie up loose ends by claiming the knots that bind."

Tommy Hart

Retiring editor has chronicled joys and tragedies of life

By LINDA ADAMS
Managing Editor

Tommy Hart leans back in his editor's chair and contorts his face. "If I had it all to do over again," he says slowly, contemplatively, "I'd be a troubadour." Then the grin begins and widens until he breaks into laughter.

Hart will soon retire from the Big Spring Herald after a 49-year career here. He spent a recent afternoon reminiscing about his career.

"I had decided I was going to be a newspaper man when I decided that I couldn't hit a curve ball. I wanted to play quarterback in football and they put me at tackle, and I concluded that I was too scared to steal," he said. "No," he says, "I don't think I ever wanted to be anything else."

As a child, Hart had a newspaper route. In 1933, he was hired to work in the circulation mailroom, and from there he became a stereotyper for 7 or 8 months. "It was a job that wasn't exactly suited to my talents because it required too much muscle," he said. "We were in hot metal at that time, lifting those heavy plates and dealing with hot metal ... I didn't find it very appealing." After seven or eight months he wrangled a job up front writing sports, later spent five years in the military, came back and covered the courthouse beat for a while, and then became sports editor, a job he held until 11 years ago when he was promoted to managing editor.

Although sports was his favorite beat, he never regretted leaving it. "There was the fact that I was older than some of the coaches at the time ... There's a time to leave the arena. And another thing that changed my attitude toward sports — sports itself changed ... It's cold economics now."

And what about Big Spring High School's football record? "It's a lot easier to write about a victory than it is about a defeat. You deal with prejudices when you are forced to write about defeat and Lord knows we had plenty of them down through the years. We had difficulty in winning. Although Big Spring had its great years, they didn't come in abundance. "I have always maintained that gose came through tradition. Abilene started on a winning note and pride in performance. Odessa came along later, same way with Midland in later years. San Angelo had a great tradition."

"That kind of momentum carries you along ... We had a defeatist complex for a long time and it hurt. It really hurt, because they never truly — in a lot of instances — they never truly believed in themselves. "And it takes that. Winning is about 90 percent emotion. And it just snowballs."

"In order to defeat the opposition you've got to make fewer mistakes than they do. It's as simple as that. It's not the great plays you make, it's the fewest mistakes."

As a cub reporter, Hart recalls making his own share of mistakes. "I never will forget about the first year after I came back from the military and was working the courthouse beat. I learned one of the most profound lessons in the newspaper industry. "We had a murder down here, a husband killed a wife over a domestic problem down in Glasscock County, and I came back and wrote my story and had him tried, convicted and hung in the first paragraph. It took me a while to live that down. Because the first person that saw it was the DA and he thought that blew his case. Because I had already tried him in the paper. And I realized then that I'd better let the law enforcement agencies and the courts take care of their matters and then I would just report the result of their efforts. "But it takes humiliation sometime to teach you a lesson."

His most embarrassing moment

TOMMY HART
Retiring July 31

REMEMBERING WHEN
Milkshakes were 9 cents

EMBARRASSING MOMENT
A lesson he learned well

LOVE FOR NATIVE CITY
Uniqueness kept him here

AND NOW WHAT?
"I won't get up early" came after a caller tipped him that the county judge at that time had been involved in a fight. Hart said he raced down to the courthouse, ran into the county clerk's office, walked up to the clerk and asked, "Have you heard anything about a fight that went on down here this morning?" The county clerk turned around and said "Yes, I was in it."

Hart recalls, "I looked at his face and he had a scratch all the way across where the judge had swung on him and hit him right in the nose. And he was still red-faced." But Hart got the story.

picture was being snapped.

Hart says he was frankly disappointed not in Jimmy Carter — "he's a very decent man and truly believes in his human rights stand." — but on the team that he had surrounded himself with. "I spent two whole days with members of that team, and he just seemed like he carefully picked people from the rank and file that were not really ill-prepared for what they were doing. And I thought at the time, if people like that are making decisions for the administration, for the country, where they came out with recommendations that he approved, don't, and if you make one concession, then the next time you're prone to make two. And although you may seem hard-hearted and cold, like a physician does, you just can't afford to be any other way."

The one thing that is most obvious about Tommy Hart is his love for his native city. "Geographically, we're unique in West Texas cities. The monotony of the West Texas plains is recognized all over the world. But what you have in this particular area is the beginning of the caprock which in turn is actually the beginning of the rocky mountains. And you have hills, which we call mountains, leading south of town which break up the monotony of the landscape, and which attracted man to this area in the first place.

"I don't know if you develop a mountain mentality or not. But it's so different from any other place in West Texas.

"I've been asked from time to time down through the years why I never left here. And sometimes I've wondered about that myself," Hart said. "I'm not working with the same people. So many of them are dead. So many of them have moved. Others have moved in. Big Spring has changed. But it remains uniquely Big Spring. And maybe that's what has kept me more than anything else."

Tommy Hart was born July 23, 1916, at 403 1/2 Bell in the second floor of an overhead apartment. "It's still standing — I noticed they haven't put a marker on it yet," he says. His father was Gus Hart, a railroad man, and his mother was the former Minnie Westernman.

He remembers when he was 5 or 6 years old, sitting on the fence post of his house and watching the last cattle drive that ever came through. He and his older brother O.C. swept out rooms in the high school each evening "for the princely sum of $2 apiece a week." But the money went a long way, because "you could buy a milkshake for 9 cents."

"I was thinking the other day how many of the real old, genuine early day people that I knew when I was a kid and it's surprising. On this very spot, was the home of L.S. McDowell, who was president of the First National Bank down here and owned a huge ranch down here in Glasscock County, and I used to throw papers to him all the time.

"And Mrs. Dora Roberts, she had a house where the museum is now ... the paper was going for $4.95 a year then.

"And I walked up one time to collect off her and she came to the door and handed me a $5 bill." Hart didn't have change so he got to keep a 5 cent tip.

"Newspaper — it's the only industry that I know about that starts completely over each morning. You operate a store, in essence you pick up where you left off last night. You're a teacher, you take up where you left the day before.

"But here you never know what to expect when you come in and well into the morning you don't know what to expect. You don't know how your paper's going to look. It's a miracle that it falls together.

"For that reason it's a fascinating business. Truly fascinating. You feel

"I came back and wrote my story and had him tried, convicted and hung in the first paragraph"

How have newspapers changed over the years?

"I don't think the basic philosophy of newspapers has changed over the years," he said.

"It's an industry that attracts a lot of people for the pure romance in it. But by the same token it attracts a lot of kooks. It harbors more oddball characters I guess than any industry in the world.

"But it's a very essential business because it's the only thing between us and anarchy. If it weren't for the ability of newspapers to turn a spotlight on politicians, the malfesaunce in office would be ten-fold, 100-fold," he said.

During his career as editor he has met four presidents — Gerald Ford, Ronald Reagan (before he was in office), Jimmy Carter and Lyndon Johnson.

He says he was most impressed with Ford. "Course, I didn't always agree with his politics, but he's a man's man." After meeting with newsmen, Ford took Hart aside and said "Would you like to meet Betty?" Hart recalls, Hart said he jumped at the chance and didn't even realize his then they are sadly out of touch with what the true needs in this country are."

Working at a newspaper gives one a sense of power, Hart says, "because there's a recognition factor in any community in which you're associated with. With that sense of power — associating with kings, presidents, senators, nobility, actors, athletes and so forth, you think by inheritance, by right, I belong here. But you take away that crutch and you're nothing again....

"They wonder why newspaper people get cynical. A lot of them come to realize that that is what makes them equal — their ability to put on paper and show the world their impression of anything that happens.

"But with that sense of power should come a sense of responsibility, and obviously, reporting the facts right, keeping a level head, and keeping everything in the proper perspective."

How does he feel when someone has begged him to keep a certain story out of the newspaper?

"I've grown more cynical over the years. I've commiserated with them, I put myself in their shoes. But you either report all things fairly or you

St. Paul Lutheran is site of McCrea-Budke wedding

Glenda Dolline McCrea became the bride of David Roy Budke in an afternoon ceremony Saturday in the St. Paul Lutheran Church. The Rev. Carroll C. Kohl, pastor of the church, officiated the 2 o'clock rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edsel W. McCrea, 2707 Carol, and Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Budke, 3621 Dixon, are the bridegroom's parents.

Angela Kohl provided traditional wedding selections on the piano. The couple exchanged vows before an archway entwined with greenery, white stephanotis and apricot silk carnations.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a formal-length gown of polyester organza over acetate taffeta. The gown featured a wedding band neckline and Empire bodice trimmed in ruffled lace. The Bishop sleeves of illusion were trimmed in lace, and a chapel-length train fell from the full skirt. She wore a headpiece of polyester organza, trimmed in lace and seed pearls, which held the chapel length veil.

The bride carried a bouquet of apricot roses to complete her ensemble.

Ann Budke, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, and Leroy Budke, father of the groom, was best man. Alan McCrea, brother of the bride, seated the guests.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Budke were honored with a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's table was covered by a white cloth and featured a two-tiered wedding cake. The cake was decorated by apricot flowers and topped by a whimsical bride and groom.

Serving at the reception were Angela Peoples, sister of the bride, and Ann Budke, sister of the bridegroom.

Out-of-town guests attended from Knott, Midland and San Angelo.

The bride is a graduate of Franklin High School, Franklin, La., and West Texas State University, Canyon. She is currently teaching algebra at Big Spring High School.

The bridegroom is a graduate of BSHS and West Texas State University. He is teaching industrial arts and woodworking at BSHS.

Following a wedding trip to Carlisle, N.M., the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Home bridal luncheon honors Miss Roberts

The home of Mrs. James Coates, R-Bar Community, was the scene of a bridal luncheon July 11 honoring Maureen Roberts, bride-elect of Kirk "Nub" Morris. Mrs. Daryle Coates was the assisting hostess.

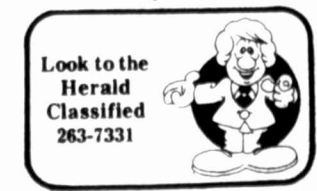

Miss Roberts is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Roberts, Indianapolis, Ind. The prospective groom is the son of Preston Morris, Colorado City.

The dining tables were covered with white linen cloths, embroidered with blue, and centered with blue candle arrangements. Blue and white place cards were used. Guests registered at a desk accented by white candles.

Mrs. Edd Strain, grandmother of the prospective groom, was special guest. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Rick Evans and Lisa Furlong, both of Midland, and Mrs. Tommy Morris, Colorado City.

The hostesses presented Miss Roberts with a ceramic canister set and a set of brown towels.

The couple will exchange vows Friday evening at the First Methodist Church, Colorado City.

MRS. DAVID ROY BUDKE

TwEEN 12 and 20

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I really need your help so please print this so my mother can read it. I'm almost 13 and Mom treats me like a baby.

I can't go to a movie unless it's rated "G." I already know everything there is to know about sex so why does she treat me like this?

It really upsets me when she forbids me to do things I want to do. She makes me so self-conscious that it causes me to get bad grades.

Please help! I've got at least 65 years of my life to live and I don't want it messed up more than it is. — Sherry, Kingman, Ariz.

Sherry: You sound like a very determined young lady. I'm sure you are very intelligent but there are a few things in your life that can only be learned through experience. You are trying to grow up too fast.

I know mothers can sometimes treat kids like babies but sometimes kids act like babies. I hope you do have 65 more beautiful years ahead.

Don't try to push too hard. Take them one year at a time.

Dr. Wallace: Yesterday I stopped at the post office to buy some stamps but when I parked my car, I didn't have enough change to put in the parking meter.

I put a note on my window saying that I was in the post office getting change for the meter. The line in the post office was long (as usual) and it took me a little longer than I expected.

When I returned to my car, I had a ticket on my windshield and to add insult to injury, the officer wrote "sorry" on my note. My dad said I should take the ticket and the note to the police department and issue a protest. What do you think? — Debbie, Wheeling, W.Va.

Debbie: Pay the fine. You were in violation of the parking laws.

Actually, it was nice that the ticket-issuing officer was polite. In Beirut, Lebanon, when a policeman sees an illegally parked car, he simply lets the air out of one of the tires!

Dr. Wallace, I am 13 and I have a problem that I'm afraid to discuss with anyone. Mother and Dad are both young (dad is 30 and mom is 29) and do things that I am ashamed of.

I know they love me (I'm an only child), but many times they say things to me in vulgar language. I've told them it bothers me to hear these words but it doesn't do any good.

If I have friends over, they still use vulgar language — if not to me, then among themselves.

I love my parents, but would like to help them improve their vocabulary. What can I do? — Gina, DuBois, Pa.

Gina: The best thing you can do is to set an example for your parents. Whenever they use improper language in your presence, say, "Please don't use those words." Maybe, if they hear the word "please" enough times, mom and dad will heed your advice.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 35-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

Society donates memorial books

Mamie Roberts, president of the local Genealogical Society, presided over the meeting on July 9. Thirteen members and one visitor, Jim L. Abreo, were present. Stella Arnold read the minutes and Margaret Barnett gave the treasurer's report.

A discussion was held about the Howard County Fair to be held in the fall. The organization voted to join with the Daughters of the American Revolution in maintaining a booth. Plans will be formulated later in the season.

The society voted to give the Genealogical Society of Big Spring a book as a memorial for Albert J. Watkins Jr. of Duncanville.

Watkins passed away just recently. He was president of the Big Spring Society in 1980 and taught school in Big Spring until his retirement.

Another memorial book was given to the genealogical library by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary 2013. Mr. and Mrs. John Hale gave a memorial in memory of Sion Carstensen.

The second part of an informal talk on the search for the family history of William Gulley was given by Jack Gulley. William Gulley is great, great, great, great-grandfather to Jack. Asked how he came to start his family research in 1977, Jack replied that he had his grandfather's Bible and after looking into this Bible he decided he wanted to know more about him. Having relatives in Panola, Jack started his family search there. Jack has researched records as far back as 1648, and has made contact with 96 people. There will be a Gulley Reunion in Kentucky in October.

Jack told about Land Patents dated as far back as 1833 and that he had stencilled out two old cemeteries, one in Snow Hill Cemetery in South Carolina. There have also been two books written about the Gulleys and Chisolms.

The next speaker will be Judy Gray, local librarian. The group will meet in the Conference Room Aug. 12 at the Howard County Library at 7:15 p.m.

MRS. KEVY CLAY ALLRED

Candlelight ceremony joins Jones-Allred

The First Christian Church at McCamey was the setting for the wedding of Nancy Lee Jones and Keyv Clay Allred of San Angelo Saturday evening.

The couple exchanged vows at 8 p.m. before an altar featuring two heart-shaped candelabra entwined with greenery, flanked by spiral candelabra adorned with dark lavender carnations and white gladioli. A unity candle completed the altar scene. Pews were marked by single candelabra entwined with ivy and baby's breath. The Rev. Jerry Jones, Burkburnet, officiated the rite.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Riley J. Jones, McCamey and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Ray Allred, Stanton.

Lisa Treusdell provided wedding selections at the piano while Joann Darby rendered the wedding march on the accordion.

The bride was accompanied down the aisle wearing a formal-length gown of white Qiana knit enhanced by Venice lace. The fitted bodice featured a Victorian neckline of lace and seed pearls with a sheer V-yoke edged in a wide chiffon ruffle. The chiffon Bishop sleeves ended in wide cuffs of silk Venice lace. The pleated skirt fell gracefully from a natural waistline, enhanced by a wide satin bow at the back, featuring a wide lace ruffle edged with silk Venice lace, flowing into a chapel-length train. A chapel-length mantilla edged with silk Venice lace completed the bridal attire.

A cascade of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath centered by a lavender Cateleya orchid and small white lace fan was carried by the bride.

Lynn Jones, McCamey, served her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Lisa Jones, San Angelo, sister of the bride and Katie Dickie, Woodson, cousin of the bride.

Bimbo Allred, Stanton, served his brother as best man. Groomsman were Randy Conner, Big Lake and Terry Smith, Stanton. Todd Smith, brother-in-law of the groom and Rusty Allred, cousin of the groom, both of Stanton, seated the guests and lit the candles.

Mary Stephens, McCamey and Vickie Jones, McCamey, cousin of the bride, were flower girls. Leann Ferguson was the attendant at the Bride's Book.

A reception honoring the newly married couple was held in the church's fellowship hall immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table, covered with a white organza cloth with a deep ruffle, was centered with a brass candelabrum adorned with white roses and

Ladon Grantham weds Ricky Patterson in Episcopal rite

The wedding vows of Ladon Grantham and Ricky Wayne Patterson were solemnized Saturday at 8 p.m., in St. Mary's Episcopal Church. The Rev. David Bristow, rector of the church, officiated. Andrea Burns was acolyte.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lee Grantham, 1602 Osage. Mr. and Mrs. E.W. Patterson, Colorado City, are parents of the bridegroom.

The double door entrance to the church was flanked with two white columns encircled with green and white caladiums and Boston fern. Dana Haney registered guests.

Charles Parham was organist. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Carr was harpist.

Brass altar vases held arrangements of pink anthuriums and ti foliage. Bree McDaniel, Wichita Falls, cousin of the bride, and Christi Walker, niece of the groom, were candlelighters.

The bridal aisle was marked with votive candles and sprays of pink anthuriums and ti leaves.

Shane Walker, nephew of the groom, signaled the entrance of the bride with the ringing of the church bell, and Jana Haney was flower girl.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a designer gown by the House of Bianchi. Alencon lace appliques graced the Victorian molded bodice, which featured a Queen Anne neckline. The full, chiffon skirt fell from a drop waist into a chapel-length train. Long, full sleeves were accented with lace cuffs.

The veil was created by Priscilla of Boston, and the Juliet cap held the cathedral-length veil of imported illusion, accented with pearls and appliques of matching Alencon lace.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white sweetheart roses, gardenias, stephanotis and English ivy on an ecru beaded lace covered Bible, which was borrowed from Mrs. Tom McDonnell, Abilene.

Mrs. Terry McDaniel, Wichita Falls, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Randal Gee, and Mrs. Ronnie Walker and Roland Beal Jr., sisters of the groom. Megan McDaniel, Wichita Falls, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

Gary Posey was best man. Groomsman were Lyle Grantham, brother of the bride, Ronnie Walker and Roland Beal Jr., brothers-in-law of the groom.

Ushers were Dean Swinney, Odessa and Dennis Armstrong, Ackerly.

Following the ceremony, the couple was honored with a reception in the Parish Hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a floor-length white linen cloth, appliqued with Belgium lace. The wedding cake, featuring three separated tiers and frosted with white rolled fondant, was the table's centerpiece. Flowers in shades of white and pink encircled the lower edge of the cake. Crystal and silver appointments were used. Serving at the bride's table were Mrs. John Bagnall, Dallas; Mrs. Carey Billingsley, Midland and

Watermelon recipe contest is announced

Fresh watermelon salad and fresh watermelon dessert are the two categories for the 1981 National Watermelon Recipe Contest, sponsored by the National Watermelon Association. Deadline for entries is Aug. 31, with a first prize of $100 and second prize of $50 to be awarded in each category.

The winning recipes will be featured in the next printed National Watermelon Association Recipe Booklet with winners recognized. All recipes not in the dessert category will be judged as a salad entry. The purpose of the contest is to find new recipes using the delicious, nutritious watermelon fruit. Judging will take place in September, 1981, and winners will be notified no later than January, 1982, with the prize money sent at that time. Decision of the judges will be final and in the case of a tie, the earliest postmarked entry will be the winner.

Melissa Gilbert likes challenges

NEW YORK, N.Y. — "I can't play weak people," says Melissa Gilbert, the 16-year-old who stars as Laura Ingalls in "Little House on the Prairie." "No matter what the conditions, the people have to be strong," she says in a recent issue of Seventeen. "I feel I should stare fear in the face and say 'Scare me!' The roles I've played are all strong people. Laura, Helen Keller, Ann Frank — they're pretty much the same. I go for challenges — my goal is to play Scarlett O'Hara in 'Gone With The Wind.'"

Food alters body's reaction to drugs

The kind of food you eat can alter how your body reacts to a drug. So, when your doctor prescribes a drug, let him know what your diet is, suggests the "Here's News in Medicine" column in recent Family Circle magazine. According to the magazine, researchers at the Rockefeller University Hospital in New York City found that when they ate a half-protein diet, a group of normal volunteers needed less time to metabolize the drugs tested (antipyrine and theophylline) than when they ate a high-carbohydrate or high-fat diet.

Altrusa Club receives invitation to convention

Members of the Altrusa Club received an invitation to the International Convention at their meeting July 9 in the Patio Room of the Holiday Inn. Frances Hendrick, corresponding secretary, read the invitation to the convention to be held Aug. 21 in Vancouver, Canada.

Gertrude McCann, president, presided at the meeting. Debbie Mitchem led the Altrusa Blessing, and Neva Green led the Pledge of Allegiance.

Members voted to continue meeting at the Holiday Inn during the coming year on the second and fourth Thursdays in the month. The Board of Directors will meet the first Tuesday each month. The annual luncheon and book review will be the projects for the year.

Theme for the year will be "Seek New Heights" in accordance with the international theme. The make-up meeting will be a dinner at 7 p.m. July 31, with the location to be announced at a later date.

Audrey Wilson was named special collector of the club's pig (a scholarship fund). Linda Adams and Vera Gross were guests at the meeting.

The meeting closed with the Altrusa benediction. The next meeting will be July 23.

Grand Assembly reports given at meeting

Holly Parham, worthy advisor, presided over Tuesday's business meeting of Big Spring Assembly No. 60, Order of the Rainbow for Girls. The meeting took place in the Masonic Temple.

Holly reported on the Grand Assembly, which was held in Dallas. Eighteen of the members of the local assembly travelled to Dallas June 28 and returned July 2.

Ronda Beene, grand religion, of the local assembly, filled this office at the meetings of Grand Assembly.

Holly also reported the Mark Sexson Birthday observance July 9 when the Assembly went to Wild River Canyon, a Midland amusement park. Sexson was the founder of Rainbow for Girls.

Grand officers will tour the area Monday through Thursday. Big Spring Assembly will hold a joint meeting with the Norman Reed and Midland assemblies in Midland Monday evening. Another joint meeting and salad supper with the Friendship Assembly in Odessa will be held Tuesday evening.

The next regular meeting of this assembly will be July 28.

CATHOLIC RITE — Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin C. Garcia, 514 NE 11th, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Sandra, to Raul Vela, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Vela, 708 N. Scurry. The couple will exchange vows Aug. 29 in the Sacred Heart Catholic Church. The Rev. J.P. Delaney, pastor of the church, will officiate.

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Draper, 2105 Alabama, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Cheryl Lynn, to Gregory Wayne Githens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl P. Githens, 1618 17th. The couple plans to marry June 17, 1982 at a place to be announced at a later date.

Thanks To Our Listeners . . . that's where we're going to stay! Of course, we are pleased that Arbitron has again confirmed what we already knew — KBST is Howard County's Number One Radio Station; but, frankly we are even happier that our listeners prove it everyday. Don't take our word for it, or Arbitron's word for it or anybody else's word for it. Just ask any of the successful business people who advertise on KBST.

Local couple celebrates 25th wedding anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Raford Dunagan, 1606 E. 17, will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary Sunday afternoon with a reception at Hillcrest Baptist Church Annex, 2:30-4:30.

Dunagan was born in Elbow community and married Jeneva Taylor July 20, 1956. Rev. Maple Avery performed the ceremony in East Fourth Baptist Church. The couple honeymooned in Denver and Colorado Springs, Colo. Jeneva was born in Clyde.

The couple has one daughter, Mrs. Bob (Dianne) Webb of Fort Worth.

The Dunagans met playing the "Guess Who" game. Raford put his hands over Jeneva's eyes saying "Guess who" before realizing that he didn't know her. Following a long apology and a week or so, he called her for a date.

Raford and Jeneva are active members of Hillcrest Baptist Church, he being a past music director, and presently teacher of the men's Sunday School class and deacon. Jeneva teaches a class of Junior High girls.

Dunagan is a ham radio operator with call letters WD5 EFJ and Jeneva oil paints and does hand work. Dunagan is employed by Cosden Oil and Chemical Company having worked there the past 29 years. Jeneva is a household executive.

Concealer makeup do's and don'ts are outlined

If you don't use a concealer makeup correctly, it can actually reveal flaws! These do's and don'ts on how to use concealer to your best advantage are culled from the current Family Circle magazine article "Goof-Proof Makeup."

- Do apply concealer just below, rather than directly on, under-eye circles, and blend up into the dark area. Smooth on a light line from the outer edge of your eye to the center, a second line from the inner edge of the eye to the center; then blend up into the dark area.

- Don't use a concealer to hide bags under the eyes. You want bags to recede, and a light concealer will cause bags to come forward visually, and thus look worse.

- Do use two light applications of concealer rather than one heavy application.

- Don't try to lighten circles drastically. Slight shadowing looks more natural.

Families cope by cooperating

By JANET ROGERS
County Extension Agent

Families of yesteryear can teach today's families how to cope successfully with today's economy. Their lessons focus on cooperation, positive attitude and a bright look to the future.

History tells us that when the economic conditions of a given population begin to deteriorate, family behavior changes to meet economic needs.

Many families return to the "extended family system" because it becomes more difficult for individual family members to maintain separate households. This means other family members come to live with "Mom and Dad and the kids."

Aunt Suzy may come to share housekeeping and child-care responsibilities in return for lodging, Cousin Bill may join the family while he attends the local university, or a grandparent may come to stay during the winter months to avoid the high cost of heating a separate dwelling.

Not only do family members tend to "pull together" during times of economic hardship, so, too, do friends and communities. In fact, it's not unusual for non-family members to become part of one's family.

During the depression era, single individuals would "hire on" to a family. They would help with the field work, gardening and other household tasks in return for room and board and sometimes a nominal wage.

Because these individuals lived with the family, they often become unofficial "adopted" family members. In addition to the creation of "extended families," hard times often create "extended communities."

As resources become scarce, it becomes more difficult to employ individuals who can provide services needed by the community. So community members form their own committees, task forces and work teams to do the work — road repairs, traffic control for special events, roadside mowing, maintenance of community buildings and local child care, for example.

Examples given today's families by yesteryear families who managed well in times of economic decline should give us faith and confidence in ourselves and our families. The heritage of our earlier families has already proven that a poor economy need not be our downfall.

A positive attitude and a bright look to the future — the coping tools of yesteryear families — are still the most valid tools for coping with hard times today.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TODAY, JULY 19, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to consider what new plan of action you can put into motion in which you and friends will benefit. You can gain the goodwill of others now by being more cooperative.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Talk with family members and find out what is expected of you, and thereby reinforce mutual agreements. Be happy.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Study your surroundings and make positive plans for improvement. Make right preparations for the new week.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Make good use of this day by exchanging ideas with good friends. More affection for loved one brings excellent response.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): An ideal day for establishing more harmony at home. Discuss upcoming projects with the proper persons.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Good day for studying philosophical matters that can help make your life more satisfying. Engage in hobby with congenials.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): Fine day to meditate and to make plans to have more abundance in the future. Avoid one who is too talkative.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22): You are highly magnetic today and fine benefits can come your way. Plan the right way to handle new responsibilities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Study whatever is puzzling to you and come up with the right answers. The romantic side of life is in your favor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Know what your true desire is and make plans to attain it. You have many good friends — contact them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Gain the favor of one who has your interests at heart. Become more dynamic and gain added prestige.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Put those good ideas to work which can help you to advance in your line of endeavor. Making new contacts now is wise.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Your hunches are particularly good now and should be followed to make life easier and happier for you in the future.

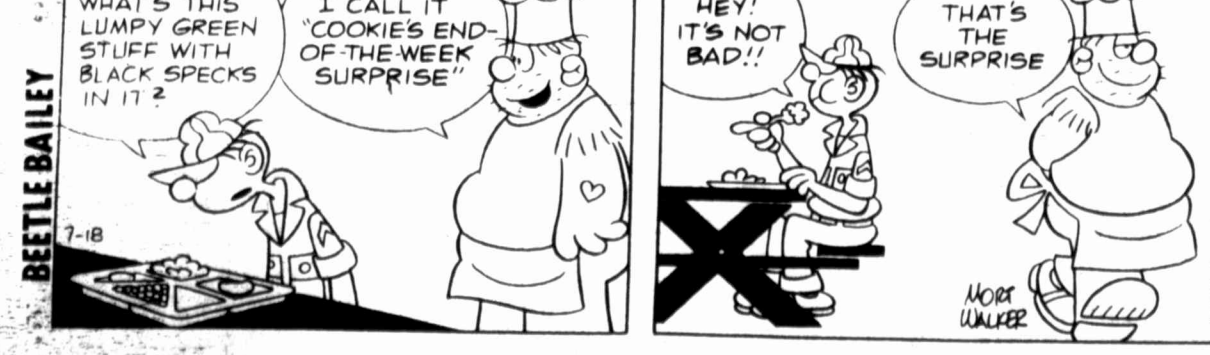

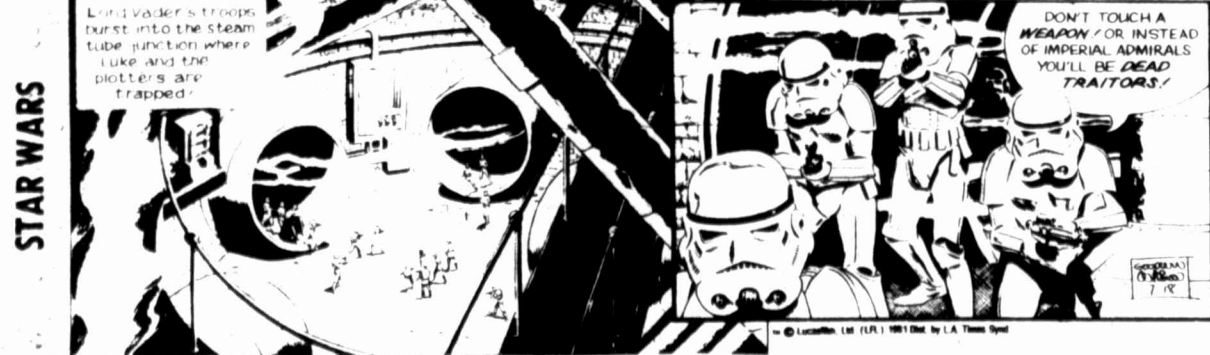

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to accomplish a great deal in life because of the ability and willingness to work hard and without complaint. Sports are a must here. There is a musical talent in this child that should be trained.

"The Stars (impel) they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to you!"

OFFICIAL RULES (SERIES 82-12)

1. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. Get a free TEXAS BINGO ticket and collector card on request at participating Safeway Stores - one ticket per adult (18 years or older) per store per day. All collector cards are identical.

2. EASY TO PLAY. Using edge of coin, gently scratch off all silver boxes on the face of the card.

3. RETRAIT WIN. A key 2-digits code appears in a straight row, either horizontally, vertically or diagonally. You win the amount indicated. After verification for example, three $100 amounts on a 100-ounce $100.

4. COLLECT & WIN. Each ticket has two perforated bingo number pieces. Separate the pieces and place them in the matching large number spaces on other side of the collector card using the space with the card to hold the piece. Collect bingo numbers to properly complete any straight row of 4 boxes, either horizontally, vertically or diagonally. This is needed to assure proper game registration of the number of rows completed. No pieces needed in spaces marked FREE. FREE spaces are not transferable.

5. PRIZE CLAIM. Submit hole or collector card with completed row to Store Manager or authorized personnel for verification. All submitted game boards and collector cards pieces should be retained in the presence of store personnel. Prizes of $100 and over will be paid by check from the sponsor's office.

6. Only members of Series 82-12 may be used for this promotion and only when legitimately obtained from authorized personnel at participating stores.

7. The sponsor reserves the right to reject and void any promotion materials containing printing or other errors.

8. Promotion members will be void if duplicate, altered, mutilated, forged, tampered with in any way, not obtained legitimately, or when prohibited by law.

9. All materials submitted for verification become the property of the sponsor. The liability on prizes is the responsibility of the prize winners.

10. This promotion is available at 157 Safeway Stores located in North, Central and Northeast Texas, Shreveport and Bossier City, Louisiana. Employees of Safeway Stores, Inc. their advertising agencies, game suppliers and members of their immediate household are ineligible to play.

11. The promotion is scheduled to end on October 1, 1981. A full official and financial report will be distributed at which time a complete announcement of promotion termination will be made. All prizes must be claimed within 7 days after announcement of prize and forfeited if prizes are not claimed in the time specified.

12. The promotion may be repeated when the sponsor deems it appropriate.

MRS. GENE FROMAN

Pope-Froman wed in Trinity Baptist

Robbie Pope became the bride of Gene Froman Saturday evening in a candlelight ceremony at Trinity Baptist Church.

Vows were exchanged at 7 p.m. before a heart-shaped archway entwined with greenery and flanked by heart-shaped candelabra and two 15-branch candelabra. The Rev. Claude N. Craven, pastor, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Guy White of East Fourth Street Baptist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Pope, Rt. 1 and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Froman, Pats Rd.

Wedding selections were performed by Tim Yeats at the piano and Lila Adkins at the organ with Yeats and Sheila Long vocalizing.

The bride was accompanied down the aisle wearing an A-line gown of silk organza fashioned with a fitted bodice overlaid with Chantilly lace. The bodice was highlighted with Venice lace edging the Brussels embroidered yoke sprinkled with seed pearls and contoured high neckline. Split sheer Bishop sleeves enhanced with lace and bridal pearls were gathered to deep lace cuffs. The A-line skirt, highlighted with lace appliques and a deep scalloped lace flounce, flowed gracefully into a cathedral-length train. Lace traced the scallops and hemline. A waltz length mantilla veil edged in matching lace completed the bridal attire.

The bridal bouquet was a cascading arrangement of white carnations and lime green rosebuds sprinkled with baby's breath.

Tammie Procter served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Debbie Reid, Coahoma, T. Lee Aberegg, Abilene and Brenda Scott, Staci Rogers, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

Sam Froman served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Ken Froman, brother of the groom and Jim Harper and Verdean Kirby, grandfathers of the groom. Jeremy Pope, nephew of the bride, was junior groomsman.

Byron Pope, brother of the groom; Bill Evers, Englewood, Colo. and Paul Harper, Odessa, uncles of the groom and M.L. Petty, seated the guests.

Elizabeth Froman, niece of the groom and Cynthia Pope, niece of the bride, were flower girls. Gene Ray Rogers, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

A reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Froman was held in the Fellowship Hall immediately following the rite. The bride's table, covered with a floor-length lace cloth, featured a three-tiered heart-shaped cake topped with traditional bride and groom figurines, decorated with white roses and lime green leaves. Crystal and silver appointments were used. Layne Froman, sister-in-law of the groom, and Elizabeth Pope, Viena, sisters-in-law of the bride, served the guests.

The groom's table featured a double-ring chocolate cake centering a beige and brown cloth covered table. China and silver appointments were used. Serving were Leisa and Teresa Reid. Karen Procter registered the guests.

The bride is a graduate of Coahoma High School and a secretary at Pollard Chevrolet.

The groom is a Big Spring High School graduate employed at Coden Pipeline Company.

Following a wedding trip to an undisclosed location, the couple will be at home in Big Spring.

Dear Abby

Man's Derriere Causes Him Despair

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old male who needs your help with an embarrassing problem. It's my behind. It is enormous! I'm 5-foot-8 and weigh 180.

I work out three times a week at a health club and am in pretty good shape except for the abovementioned. I've tried every conceivable exercise and diet I've come across, but can't seem to lose any of the flab back there.

It's just plain fat, Abby, and no amount of exercise can firm it up.

Someone told me that it can be removed by surgery. Is that so? I don't care if the operation is painful and leaves a scar. Anything would be better than hauling around this outsized caboose all my life. I'm not exaggerating — I look practically deformed. It's so bad I hate to go to the beach. If this kind of operation can be done, who would do it?

A YARD OF LARD

DEAR YARD: A plastic surgeon. (But try to find one who doesn't mind getting a little behind in his business.)

DEAR ABBY: You have stated many times in your column that the unwed mother who gave up her child for adoption showed the ultimate in unselfishness. Well, it's time you heard from one of the "selfish" mothers who kept her child over the objections of her parents and many well-meaning friends.

It took more than unselfishness for me to keep my baby. It took courage, determination, confidence and a lot of guts. I was 17 at the time and had to drop out of school in my senior year. I had my baby, went to work, borrowed money and paid it back. I finished my education and didn't go on welfare, either. I made a choice that was right for me and I never regretted it.

I am now married to a fine man and we have two other children. I thank God that I kept my firstborn. I will never have to wonder how she is, what she looks like, what her interests are or how she will turn out.

"SELFISH" IN WISCONSIN

DEAR SELFISH: Your case is very rare, and I commend you. The most recent statistics show that last year in this country there were 1.1 million pregnancies among teen-agers, and that 96 percent of those girls kept their babies. About two-thirds of this number will go on welfare, resulting in the cost of about $8.3 billion a year to taxpayers. (P.S. More than 90 percent of the teen-aged boys who fathered these children took no responsibility for the baby or the teen-aged mother.)

Orange to host annual meeting

Some 400 county Extension agents who are members of the Texas County Agricultural Agents Association will gather for their annual meeting at the Ramada Inn in Orange on Aug. 2-5. Discussions will center on professional improvement and more effective dissemination of information to meet the needs of Texans. Highlights include a host of keynote speakers, including Mississippi humorist and inspirationalist Jerry Clower.

Couple exchanges vows in double-ring ceremony

Wedding vows were solemnized July 11 in Fort Worth between Theresa L. West and Michael K. Pinson.

The bride is the daughter of Dolores West, 3706 Hamilton, and W.L. West, Orla. The groom's parents are Evelyn Pinson, Grapevine and John Pinson, Justin.

The 7 p.m., double ring ceremony was officiated by Melvin Vaughn, pastor of the Lake Camp Church of Christ, in the home of the groom.

The bride was attired in a white, floor-length dress with an overlay of ruffled lace on the fitted bodice. She carried a nosegay of blue and white carnations sprinkled with baby's breath.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Pinson were honored with a reception in the groom's home.

The refreshment table covered with white lace over a dark blue cloth, featured a tiered wedding cake trimmed with blue roses. Punch was served from a crystal punch service. The setting was enhanced with blue candles, white daisies and shades of blue flowers.

Following a wedding trip to Louisiana, the couple is residing in Fort Worth.

Bride-elect is honored at bridesmaid luncheon

A bridesmaid luncheon honoring Ladon Grantham, bride-elect of Ricky Patterson, was held July 11 at noon, at the Big Spring Country Club. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. R. Clyde Hollingsworth and Mrs. Wade Choate.

Japanese yew, and ti leaves. The 18 guests were greeted by the honoree, her mother, Mrs. Don Grantham, and the prospective groom's mother, Mrs. Bill Patterson, Colorado City.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Terry McDaniel, Megan and Bree of Wichita Falls, and Mrs. Fayne Coffman, Deming, N.M.

The luncheon tables were covered with white cloths, and the head table was centered with an arrangement of anthurium,

Responsibilities of a Bridesmaid
You've been asked to be a maid of honor in your friend's wedding. You'd love to — but just what does that entail? Technically, your responsibilities are as follows: accept or decline the invitation right away; assume financial responsibility for your bridesmaid outfit and any traveling expenses; entertain the bride at a shower; give the couple a wedding present; and of course, attend the bridesmaids luncheon, rehearsal, rehearsal dinner, ceremony and reception. Sounds like fun! We here at THE ACCENT SHOPPE suggest you accept with pleasure — and enjoy yourself!
