

Oil scam trial jury being picked

Jury selection began today in 118th District Court for the criminal trial of the State of Texas vs. John Thedford Sims and D. C. Wheeler.

The men are accused in an alleged oil scam against Cosden Oil and Chemical Company. Sims and Wheeler are accused of a scam whereby they are alleged to have sold the same barrel of oil over and over again to Cosden.

Charge in the case is attempted theft over $10,000, a third degree felony. If convicted, punishment for the men could range from two to ten years in the Texas Department of Corrections.

John Green, former district attorney from Odessa, is representing Sims and Wheeler. Rick Hamby is representing the state, assisted by Don Richard.

Green has filed a change of venue motion in the case. No action on the filing had taken place as of this morning. District Judge Jim Gregg was awaiting the outcome of the questioning of prospective jurors before making a ruling in the request.

Air conditioning in the courtroom is again out, as was the case in a criminal trial which began two weeks ago. Hamby told prospective jurors that repairs should be made by Tuesday.

ALL SMILES — A Haitian refugee soaks up the sun during an exercise period at the Federal Prison Camp in Big Spring this morning. He is under the impression that work will be found for him.

Council protests arrival of refugees

By BILL ELDER

The Big Spring City Council voted to lodge a formal complaint with the federal government today as a protest against the weekend arrival of 90 Haitian refugees in the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp.

Councilman Jack Y. Smith, citing the number of protests from Big Spring residents he had received, made the motion to lodge the complaint "with those who represent us," referring to the governor of the state as well as federal legislators from Texas.

The council approved the complaint by a four-to-one vote, with Robert Fuller voting against.

Prior to the vote, in the noon special council session, council members questioned camp Superintendent John Allman about the suddenness of the transfer of the Haitians from a Miami, Fla., camp to Big Spring.

Allman told the council that he hadn't been asked by the federal government to take the 90 refugees, who arrived at 8 p.m. Saturday, until 11:30 a.m. Friday.

"This was not shoved down my throat," Allman told the council, explaining that as superintendent he decides whether he can handle any influx of new prisoners.

The council asked Allman what assurance he had that more refugees would not be sent to Big Spring by the federal Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Allman could not assure them that no more refugees would be sent, but said, "If I say I can't handle them safely, they will not ship them."

Allman said INS officials told him they expect to arrive in Big Spring Wednesday and after meeting with them he would have a better idea how long the Haitians will be here. He said he had been told they were being sent here only temporarily and his guess was that they might be gone in a week.

SOCCER — Outdoor exercise was on the agenda for Haitian refugees at the Federal Prison Camp here this morning.

The Haitians have fled their Caribbean island homeland in search of jobs in the U.S. and unless they have relatives or sponsors in the country they are likely to be deported, Allman said.

Councilmen complained that they hadn't been told of the refugees arrival in enough time for local residents to raise a protest. Councilman Larry Miller said the community was concerned that "we'll wind up being a refugee camp."

Local officials weren't the only ones bothered by the sudden transfer of the refugees, who swelled the camp's population to about 330 inmates (it holds at maximum 500 inmates, according to Allman). An aide to Texas Congressman Charles Stenholm told The Herald today that the congressman was "upset" by not being a part of the transfer decision. Stenholm staffer Becca Fice said the decision to ship the refugees out of an overcrowded camp in Miami and bring them to Big Spring was made by the Task Force of Immigration and Refugee Policy, a White House agency. Normally, she said, Stenholm would be advised of what was happening when an event such as the refugees' arrival occurs in his district.

She said the transfer was part of the removal of 286 Haitians from the Krome North camp in Miami, with the refugees split into three groups and the largest group of 90 refugees sent to Big Spring.

Meanwhile, as the furor continues, the Haitians are relaxing in the Sunset dorm of the camp, where they are housed by themselves on two floors of the building.

One refugee, Claude Delage, 41, said Saturday night that his Caribbean island homeland is plagued by unemployment. A reporter for the Miami Herald, covering the arrival of the refugees in Big Spring, said about 200 refugees a day arrive in the U.S. through Florida, looking for jobs.

Assistant Superintendent Jerome Edwards said the men were given complete physical examinations, which lasted until 6 a.m. Sunday. Then the refugees — all men — slept for several hours, passing the rest of the day playing games such as checkers and dominoes. Their schedule for today includes outdoor exercise, including soccer, he said.

The men were under the impression that when they were flown out of Miami to Midland, they were being sent somewhere to work, Allman said.

As of this morning, the men apparently were still under the impression that they were here to work.

"They're still looking for a paycheck," said Edwards.

Evangelist tells C-City crowd why he gave up Hollywood

By CAROL HART

COLORADO CITY — Near a gentle river flowing under tall shade trees on a Mitchell County ranch, "Little" George Havens told a crowd Sunday why he gave up a Hollywood career to become a traveling evangelist 31 years ago.

Havens was the featured speaker during religious heritage day at the Mitchell County Centennial celebration, under way now. Bobby Lemons, chairman of the centennial, said he estimated 1,000 to 1,500 people were at the ranch, which is about 25 miles from Colorado City, for religious day activities.

Havens, in an interview with the Herald before his talk with the Mitchell County crowd, said he was born in Santa Anna, but left Texas at 19 for Hollywood.

In Hollywood, he became a stunt man. "I was in more than 100 movies," Havens recalled. He often found work as a stunt man for children, since he was barely over four feet tall when he began his career.

Havens was the double for "Tadpole" in a series with Gene Autry. He also worked with Roy Rogers, Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney and Ronald Reagan. "I was with Reagan when he learned to ride a horse," Havens recalled.

"I was really distressed when he (Reagan) was shot," said Havens. "In the movies, we used blanks in our guns. In politics, it's a different

Havens then signed up to work with Pee Wee King, who had worked with Gene Autry on "Gold Mine in the Sky." Havens said he traveled as a singer with King across the nation, and it was at this period in his life that he began drinking heavily.

After a year on the road with King, he returned to Hollywood. He had been away from Texas for 10 years.

Through the help of some friends of his, he began changing his life, and began changing his goals. He said he turned to the Lord because "I was happy to be saved from a drunkard's grave."

Although Havens changed directions, he still kept busy traveling on the road, a road, he said which was made easier because of his faith. His job, now, he said, "is to get these sinners saved."

"I'm on the road most of the year," said Havens. "I've been a full-time evangelist for 31 years."

Working as an evangelist has taken Havens to Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Jamaica, Europe, North Africa, and the shores of the Sea of Galilee. He has also criss-crossed the United States many times.

His wife, Lucy Lee, is a former missionary to Mexico. The couple goes to Mexico at least once a year, where they conduct revivals.

In 1966, the couple began the Cowboy Camp meeting, a large religious meeting held each year since that time on Havens' ranch between Coleman and Santa Anna. On that site, Havens is working on a pioneer preacher museum.

Today is "Young at Heart Day" at the Mitchell County Centennial. The first edition of the "Boom Town Revue" is set for 9 p.m. tonight, with a show set each night through Saturday, in Wolf Stadium. A fireworks finale is scheduled.

BRAKES FAILED — Police said the brakes of a pickup truck driven by Larry Don Hass of Route 1 failed as he was pulling into the parking lot of the 7-11 store at S. Gregg about 8:30 this morning. The vehicle crashed through the glass front of the store but stopped before hitting the sales counter, according to a clerk who witnessed the accident. There were no injuries reported and no damage estimate had been set.

Godfather's Pizza held up

Two men are being sought by police in connection with the holdup of Godfather's Pizza in College Park shopping center Sunday night.

Restaurant manager Thomas Green told police two black males entered the restaurant about 11 p.m.

and asked to see him. When he approached them, one of the men pulled out a gun, police said.

Green and the restaurant employees were then locked in a walk-in vault while the pair took an unknown amount of money from the vault and cash register, police said. There were no customers in the store at the time, according to police.

Detectives say they have no suspects in the case and are hampered by being supplied with a vague description of the pair.

Action/reaction: Cholesterol okay?

Q. After years of hearing that cholesterol is bad for you, didn't the government finally say that it was okay?

A. Last summer the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council issued a report saying it found no evidence that healthy persons should reduce intake of cholesterol. In the past decade, according to the World Almanac, 18 organizations involved with health and nutrition had advised a reduction in consumption of cholesterol as a means of lessening the risk of heart disease. The report, however, emphasized the need to maintain proper weight and to control salt intake as a means of reducing the chances of high blood pressure and heart disease.

Reagan letter raps Demos

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, in a letter to Congress released today, blasted House Democrats' efforts to save the $122 million monthly Social Security benefit and said he would ask for television time "to tell the American people the facts."

The president also called for "prompt bipartisan action" for the entire Social Security system. The letter was sent to Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn.

Reagan deplored the Democratic efforts as "opportunistic political maneuvering, cynically designed to play on the fears of many Americans, that some in the Congress are initiating at this time."

Budget-cutting measures passed by the House and Senate would eliminate the benefit, but a resolution sponsored by House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, and due to be considered by the House on Tuesday urges that "the necessary steps be taken to insure that Social Security benefits are not reduced for those currently receiving them."

The president, asking for television time, said he wanted to let people "know that I shall fight to preserve the Social Security system and protect their benefits."

But Baker told reporters he has "no indication whatever" of any change in the administration's attitude toward the minimum benefit, which goes to retirees who, for most of their working lives, held jobs with pay so low that they qualify only for a smaller pension.

On Sunday, the presidential Office of Management and Budget called the minimum benefit an "undeserved windfall" for most recipients.

In a "fact sheet" sent to reporters and members of Congress over the weekend, the OMB argued that the number of people actually affected by eliminating the benefit would be about 300,000 of the 3 million getting it.

Power, but no pickles

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York Gov. Hugh Carey says at least part of the reason he doesn't want to run for president of the United States is the lack of certain epicurean pleasures in the nation's capital.

During a news conference Friday, Carey was asked why he has been telling reporters recently that he doesn't want to run for president.

"I spent 14 years in Washington (as a congressman) and had to leave because there were no delis and no good bread," he said. "Things haven't changed."

Domino tourney deadline Tuesday

The fourth annual National "Texas Style" Partnership Domino Tournament is slated to get under way Thursday in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The three-day tournament, which has received entries from many states in the Southwest, will feature top prize money for championship teams.

The top prize money for the fourth annual tournament will be determined by the total number of teams entering the 1981 competition. In past years, the top four teams will receive cash prizes. In addition, those teams reaching the quarterfinals will receive their $100 entry fee back and a cash award and small trophy.

Competition for the large tournament will be divided by groups of 12 teams each. Winners of these groups will play winners of other groups of teams. The winning teams will be determined by a computer and the top six teams of each group will advance to the Championship Bracket. The remaining six teams of the group will advance to the Second Chance Bracket. Winners of these groups will then advance one step closer to the quarterfinals.

Individuals interested in competing in the local tournament are reminded that the deadline is noon Tuesday. Forms and rules are available at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce office.

Ex-governor out of prison

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Marvin Mandel was back in his old booth at Chic & Ruth's Dilly in Annapolis after spending more than a year at a federal prison in Florida.

The former governor returned to Maryland Saturday on a five-day furlough from the prison at Elgin Air Force Base near Pensacola, Fla., where he is serving a three-year term for mail fraud and racketeering.

A prison official said the furlough — Mandel's first since he began his sentence in May of last year — was routine.

Mandel, his wife Jeanne and stepson Paul paid a breakfast visit Sunday to Chic & Ruth's, where a booth Mandel used to frequent is known as the "Governor's Office."

"It was like he was never gone," said Ted Levitt, who helps run the delicatessen.

Michael Aun, a spokesman for the Bureau of Prisons, said Mandel must return to the lockup by Wednesday night.

Man reports rifle taken

Pete Salazar, 39, told police he was at the 7-11 store on Willa about 2 a.m. Sunday when a man he knows approached him, displayed a pistol and robbed Salazar of a 22-caliber rifle he kept in his car.

Pedro E. Vasquez was arrested by police at 11:15 p.m. Saturday on suspicion of driving while under the influence of alcohol. The arrest was made at an Exxon station at the intersection of Interstate 20 and Highway 80, and while police officers made an inventory of the car's contents they found a pool cue "modified for the purpose of inflicting serious bodily injury," according to police reports. Vasquez was also arrested for unlawful carrying of a weapon, police said.

Marylou Hairston, 44, complained to police that she was verbally assaulted by a man known to her at the Pizza Inn, 1702 S. Gregg, about 10 p.m. Sunday.

The La Vedera Club off Interstate 20 reported that between 2:15 a.m. and 9:20 a.m. Sunday it was broken into through a door. Six cases of beer were stolen and damage was done to a cash register, cigarette machine, record player and pool table, according to police reports. An unknown amount of cash was taken, police said.

Tot Sullivan complained that after she checked the locks on a house she rented at 605 S. Johnson because tenants there failed to pay "four or five months" rent, the tenants then came back Sunday and broke into the house, causing $5,000 worth of damage.

Requiems for victims; probes begin

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — As funerals began, engineers poked through tons of concrete and twisted metal for clues in the collapse of two suspended walkways at the Hyatt Regency Hotel, The death toll stood at 118, with 186 injured.

The first funerals following Friday's tragedy were scheduled today in Topeka, Kan. for four young members of the Mariachi Estrella Band who were at the Hyatt to entertain a Fuller Brush Co. convention.

Meanwhile, the owner of the luxurious hotel said it might be reopened within two weeks, and the sky bridges might be replaced.

There was still no official explanation for the collapse, although investigators were looking into the possibility that it might have been caused by people dancing or swaying on the spans.

The six young women in the mariachi band were heading across the crowded Hyatt lobby to a room to change into their costumes Friday night, when the second- and fourth-floor walkways above them collapsed, crushing people in the debris. Four of the band members perished, and Rachel Galvan and Theresa Cuevas were hospitalized.

Miss Galvan was in critical condition at St. Mary's Hospital in Kansas City on Sunday, but Mrs. Cuevas had been released.

A joint funeral was being held today for Connie Alcala, Dolores Carmona, Linda Louis Schurlock and Dolores Galvan, sister of Rachel Galvan.

Of the injured, 90 remained hospitalized Sunday, 23 reportedly in critical condition or in intensive care units. Two of the injured died Sunday, boosting the death toll to 113.

The first investigators — hired by the hotel's architects from Failure Analysis Associates of Palo Alto, Calif. — were on the scene Sunday. Four other investigations also were announced — by the hotel owners, the hotel managers, the contractor and the city.

"We are at work to find the most qualified team," said Donald Hall, president of Hallmark Cards Inc. "It will be a very thorough investigation." Hall said the company was contacting engineering firms across the country to put together a team of investigators.

Hallmark is the parent of Crown Center Redevelopment Co., which owns the hotel. The hotel is managed by Hyatt Corp.

Among the engineers contacted by Crown Center was James Stratta of Menlo Park, Calif., who was hired by Kansas City to learn the cause of the collapse of the Kemper Arena roof here in 1979.

"The first thing you have to do is determine, did something let go or did something break?" Stratta said. He said it must also be determined whether people dancing or swaying contributed to the collapse.

Crown Center President James McClune said the WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of two large postal unions declared today that there will be a nationwide strike at midnight if Postal Service refuses "change its attitude" about new three-year contract covering a half-million workers.

"If the postmaster persists in instructing surrogates (at the gaining table) to cor this course of action have set, there is no clusion anyone can reach that there will be a work stoppage," said cent Sombrotto, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers.

Moe Biller, head of American Postal Workers Union, said the 500,000 members "are committed to uphold the dignity of workers" despite the sequences.

A strike by postal workers is illegal, and Postmaster General William F. E. has warned that any participating in such a walkout would be immediately.

local western band, will be playing for the reunion dance, beginning at 8:30 p.m., at the Old Settlers Pavilion. Radio station KBYG will be broadcasting the highlights of the reunion.

McCann is again serving as reunion president, a job he held from 1973 until 1978.

For the past two years, Bill Henkle served in that capacity.

Donations are still needed to ensure the success of the reunion and are being accepted by KBYG, the Howard County Insurance Agency and by McCann himself. Additional information about the reunion can be obtained by calling 267-6476.

The Howard-Glasscock Reunion was founded in 1924, at which time it was held on the J.L. McKinney farm northeast of Big Spring. It has been held continuously since that time.

IRS exam deadline is Aug. 17

Applicants who wish to take the 1981 Internal Revenue Service Special Enrollment Examination must have their applications postmarked, no later than Aug. 17, the IRS said. No extensions of time to file for the examination will be granted.

The examination is scheduled to take two days: Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 5 and 6. It is given annually in each IRS district to qualify persons other than attorneys or certified public accountants to represent clients before the IRS.

The application fee has been increased to $50 for those taking all four parts of the examination, and $40 for prior year examinees taking fewer than four parts.

Those interested in taking the examination should request a free IRS Special Enrollment Examination application packet.

Allies urge U.S. to begin arms talks with Russians

MONTEBELLO, Quebec (AP) — America's principal allies are urging President Reagan to begin arms control talks with the Soviets and to lower U.S. interest rates before they trigger "profound impact" around the globe.

But Reagan, in his first major venture in international summitry, is standing firm on his present policy, challenging the allies to limit their trade ties with the Soviet bloc and saying he hopes to begin arms talks in November or December.

Meeting with leaders of the world's six other richest democracies at a heavily protected forest retreat here, the president defended his foreign and economic policies while expressing optimism that near-record interest rates in the United States might come down soon.

Today, aides said, Reagan planned to tell his counterparts from France, West Germany, Great Britain, Japan, Italy and host Canada that his administration "will be firm and steady in its own economic course" for fighting inflation.

Mounting concern abroad over when U.S. interest rates would recede became a major point of contention Sunday as the seven leaders gathered for a three-day summit at a giant resort constructed of logs in this village, 40 miles east of Ottawa.

Reagan arrived at his first major summit conference on the eve of his six-month anniversary in office. His first two meetings were with his two sternest critics on economic policy — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, who has met Reagan once before, and Socialist President Francois Mitterrand of France, who met with the conservative U.S. leader the first time.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., who sat in on the sessions, said both Schmidt and Mitterrand complained that high U.S. interest rates threatened economies in Europe and possibly around the world.

Reagan was to start today with breakfast with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher who is most supportive of U.S. economic policy among the Europeans because she is pursuing a similar course of credit and budget restraint.

Postal strike threatened anew

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of two large postal unions declared today there will be a nationwide mail strike at midnight if the Postal Service refuses to "change its attitude" about a new three-year contract covering a half-million workers.

"If the postmaster general persists in instructing his surrogates (at the bargaining table) to continue this course of action they have set, there is no conclusion anyone can reach but that there will be a national work stoppage," said Vincent Sombrotto, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers.

Moe Biller, head of the American Postal Workers Union, said the 500,000 union members "are committed to uphold the dignity of postal workers" despite the consequences.

A strike by postal workers is illegal, and Postmaster General William F. Bolger has warned that any people participating in such a walkout would be fired immediately.

The three-year contract between the Postal Service and its unions expires at 12:01 a.m. EDT Tuesday.

Both Biller and Sombrotto reiterated that they would be willing to continue discussions past the deadline — but only if the Postal Service backs away from its demand that workers accept a freeze on general wage increases over the next three years.

The Postal Service is asking to settle for retention of the existing cost-of-living formula, which would give workers approximately $3,000 over the next three years if the current rate of inflation held steady.

The new strike threat came as federal mediators brought representatives of both sides back to the bargaining table following a weekend of negotiations at a hotel here that produced conflicting accounts by the two sides of whether progress was made.

"We will go beyond 12 o'clock only if we are in a negotiating mode that we ascertain will allow us to negotiate an effective contract," Sombrotto said.

"We have not at this late minute ... agreed to one single item," he said. "Last evening we were still discussing whether letter carriers could wear baseball caps, and we didn't even resolve that."

Sombrotto said that "if they don't give us a new pay package," there is no sense in continuing negotiations.

Assessing the weekend talks, however, Assistant Postmaster General Walter E. Duka insisted on Sunday, "We are making progress. ... We believe we can have a contract."

Biller and Sombrotto, whose unions represent 500,000 of the 600,000 unionized postal workers, said Bolger will be responsible for any nationwide walkout.

"The postmaster general will have called the first nationwide strike," Sombrotto declared. The union leaders said they sent a letter to the Justice Department complaining that Bolger was trying to provoke a strike.

"We are light years away," Sombrotto said. "There has to be a change in attitude."

Postal Service officials had no immediate comment on the threat of a strike, but said one would be forthcoming.

Bolger, who has expressed confidence there will be no strike, has said the public should continue to use the U.S. Mail.

Nevertheless, contingency plans have been made for a strike. These include using the military to sort and deliver mail and allowing private companies to deliver letters, which normally is illegal. How soon anything approaching normal mail service could be restored would depend on how widespread any walkout is.

The Postal Service says demands by the two major unions would drive the cost of a first-class stamp to 45 cents by 1984. The unions have maintained that mail rates would go up no faster than inflation under their package.

Attempted murder charge changed to capital murder

HOUSTON (AP) — A 22-year-old man has been named on a capital murder charge alleging he suffocated a 5-year-old girl by pushing her face into dirt.

James John Munoz earlier had been charged with attempted murder in the Friday disappearance of Monica Alvarez whose body was found Sunday in Greens Bayou.

Munoz is being held in the Harris County jail without bond.

More than 100 persons, including divers and deputies on horseback, had participated in the search after the Alvarez family reported a man had broken into their home early Friday and abducted the girl.

Sheriff's Capt. J.D. Mullens said the wind from the propeller of a low-flying helicopter probably freed the child's body from bushes and trees along the bayou shortly before the Sunday discovery.

Two Big Spring students named to NTSU honor roll which includes those students whose grade average was midway between an "A" and a "B."

Big Spring students named to the 3.5 honor roll were: Paul Alan Collier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack H. Collier, 3224 Cornell and Diane Elaine Pereira, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Pereira, 1425 East Sixth Street.

Changes now would be easier

Enjoy the 'break' you're getting at the gasoline pump these days. The market is glutted, with the results that most business outlets selling gasoline have cut their prices a few cents. Those considered experts on the subject say we are now experiencing a season of relative stability and it likely will continue to for a few months.

For a lot of Americans, the cheaper gas comes at the right time. It is the height of the tourist season and many families are on the road.

AMERICANS ARE paying less for gasoline because the OPEC nations, for all their expertise, haven't yet learned how to regulate the supply of fuel. They've created an oil glut, even though there has been a move among some OPEC nations to cut back on the amount of oil being made available to the Western powers.

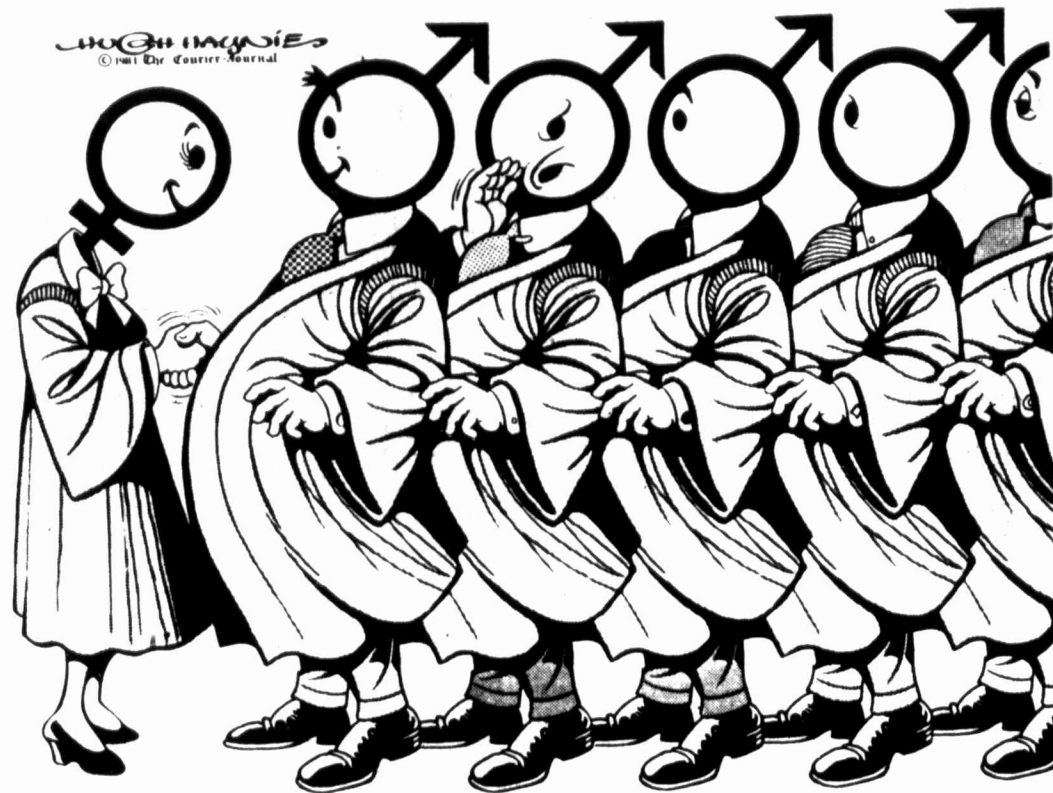

Residents of the United States may be grinning over the abundance of oil but there remains the potential for problems that could become insurmountable. The problems in the Middle East are bad enough but they could get worse, much worse. Should the supply of oil from the Middle East be cut off, it could precipitate a crisis that would severely restrict the driving habits of every motorist in America. There is another bad aspect to the oil glut. It might have dampened our enthusiasm to decrease our reliance on oil as a fuel and slowed experiments with other sources of energy. Sooner or later, we are going to have to go to other methods to fire our industrial machines, heat our homes and turn the wheels of our vehicles.

THERE ARE NOW over 3,800 rotary rigs turning in the United States. That is amazing, considering the fact that the Congress has done nothing to bring about changes in the Windfall Profits Tax, outside of easing the tax burden on the 'little' royalty owner for one year.

Much attention has been given to the claim that "big oil" is reaping obscene profits on oil but the critics prefer not to mention that the oil tycoons are also strapped with a huge tax burden and, in most instances, are realizing a return on their investment that is considered modest, if not low.

The time to bring changes in oil tax legislation is when the supply of fuel is plentiful, not when the producers have their backs to the wall. The time to act is now.

"Well, brethren... there goes the neighborhood!"

The Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:
Over the weekend I have read in the newspaper and heard radio and television reports of the concern, expressed by various civic leaders of the Big Spring community, in regards to the transfer of Haitian refugees to the Federal Prison Camp. Well it seriously concerns me, when not too long ago, that these same civic leaders were actively seeking and encouraging any such Federal government agency or large corporation to relocate at the old Webb AFB. It is my opinion, that this expressed concern, is the epitome of hypocrisy.

It appears to me that any intelligent and well intentioned civic leader, who actively promotes a community, should be aware of the potential benefits and drawbacks of successful industrial or community growth. If such a civic leader is so naive as to understand the basic principles of community development and support, then he no longer deserves the responsibility or status of community spokesperson. If such civic leaders and organizations cannot wholeheartedly support and be responsible for these programs, then they do not have the best interests of Big Spring at heart.

I would hope that any community leader, who cannot stand behind and support the commitments to which he is or was party, should remove himself or be asked to resign as a civic leader and spokesperson. It is disgraceful for a community to experience or demonstrate the wailing and gnashing of teeth over the first sign of rough water. Our community should calmly appraise the situation at the Federal Prison Camp, while offering our complete cooperation and help, throughout this period of concern.

The actions and conduct of this community, as expressed through our civic leaders, will be reflected by the degree of success in the attraction and recruitment of future community and industrial growth. I, as a business man, would avoid dealing with or relocating in a community which does not honor or support its commitments.

Dear Editor:
We were passing through your town July 4 weekend on our way to El Paso and happened to stop by a nice big Mobil station on the South Pass (FM 700).

There we found this very friendly couple who told us of your lovely friendly city camping facilities. They also pointed out the 'big spring'. Its name was in the vicinity so we took advantage of your hospitality and found everyone so friendly and helpful in every business we shopped. We are from a large town back east and are sorry to say it is not as warm and casual, living like you do here.

No wonder so many people are coming to the Southwest. There are still open spaces, a clear, blue sky and cool breezes. We will be by this way again, you can be sure.

Trying to dodge taxes

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The National Conservative Political Action Committee, the notorious NCPAC of the past election campaign, bombarded liberal candidates with ugly contentions and controversies. Now it has allegedly been transformed from a campaign force to a lobbying operation that has become intimidating to policymaking Washington.

Its outspoken young chairman, John T. Dolan, has been invested by nature and circumstances with a unique gift for passive incitement. His views are stridently partisan; he would be the last person you would expect to find straddling a political fence.

Yet he has suddenly become a champion of the "straddle." That's the "commodities straddle," a slick but legal tax dodge used by wealthy individuals to reduce their income taxes.

A BILL PUSHED by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., would close this loophole, which costs the Treasury about $1.3 billion a year in lost revenue. He was the full weight of the Reagan administration behind him. But Dolan has thrown his weight against the legislation. In recent letters to senators, NCPAC called for preserving the straddle loophole. "I am shocked," Dolan wrote, "at the lack of understanding in the Congress of the full ramifications of the proposed legislation."

Some of those ramifications happen to have been spelled out in a study prepared by the staff of the Congressional Joint Committee on Taxation — and Dolan notwithstanding, it's clear what kind of tax-sheltering the legislation would put a stop to.

Straddling in some tricky sleight-of-hand that is hard for the public to follow. It involves simultaneous contracts for future sale and purchase of commodities — soybeans, silver or Treasury bills.

By playing the fluctuations in the market, a shrewd straddler can take a tax-deductible short-term loss from ordinary income in one year, then recoup the following year with a profit taxed as long-term capital gain.

billion a year. One recipient of Dolan's letter to senators thought it smacked of lobbying. Since NCPAC has not registered as a lobbyist with the Clerk of the House, the apparent violation has been referred to the Justice Department for review.

Footnote: Dolan refused to talk to my associate Tony Capaccio, because I would not agree to stop calling his ultra-conservative organization ultra-conservative.

WATT LOSES ONE: Interior Secretary James Watt's Puritanical zeal and acerbic style have rubbed the less fanatical members of Congress the wrong way on occasion. One such occasion was his order closing down a little-known but highly effective project called the Office of Aircraft Services.

Set up in 1973 to prevent the increasing number of aircraft accidents in and around wilderness areas, the centralized safety office won rare praise from General Accounting Office watchdogs in a recent confidential report.

"Air safety could be jeopardized" if the office were abolished, the GAO report concluded. It cited savings of as much as 10 times the office's $2 million budget, and said:

"Interior cannot justify its decision to abolish OAS... (which) has saved over $20 during the past seven years of operation." A return to the previous decentralized system could bring "high accident rates, obsolete equipment and improper financial management," the GAO auditors warned. They recommended that Watt rescind his order to abolish the office.

The secretary ignored the protests of individual congressmen. So they took action he couldn't ignore: They slapped a rider protecting the safety office onto an Interior appropriations bill.

UNLOADING PISTOLS: Over the next 10 years, the Army will be replacing its standard 45-caliber automatic pistols with 9-millimeter handguns. This will create something of a disposal problem.

Some of the Colt .45s may be loaned to gun clubs enrolled in the Civilian Marksmanship Program. But a spokesman for the director of civilian marksmanship said it's unlikely that any of the phased-out pistols will be sold to individuals, as the old M-1 rifles were. If any are, he said, prospective buyers would have to be U.S. citizens, over 18 and affiliated with a registered gun club.

Around the rim Double standard

Andrea Cohen

When Arizona Judge Sandra O'Connor was nominated to the Supreme Court, I was astonished at the comments I was told about the ERA when I was getting local reaction to the nomination.

Getting local reaction for a news story because a woman was nominated was annoying. I felt I wasn't asking the opinion on Judge O'Connor, but on the fact that a woman was being nominated. If a man had been nominated, I would have gotten comments on the man himself, not the fact that he was a man.

SOME WOMEN DIDN'T want to talk for the story. "I'm not an ERA person," I was told by a few.

"If you worked side by side with a man doing the same job for the same amount of years, would you want the same pay and pension he gets," I asked.

"Well, of course," I was told.

"Then you're ERA," I replied. "But," the conversation would continue, "I don't like the other parts of it where the man doesn't open a door for me and things like that."

"That's not ERA," I replied. "That's manners."

Thinking to everything we have, it's hard to believe how far we've come and how much women didn't have 15 or 20 years ago. We've come so far, so fast, it's hard to believe what happened a few years ago.

If a woman who worked as a reporter on a network was promoted to the anchor spot with an eight million dollar contract as Dan Rather was last year, nobody would blink an eye. But think back to just four or five years ago when a fuss was made over Barbara Walter's $5 million dollar contract with ABC.

It's not that she's a woman, articles said, but that network news has become showbusiness-like. Nothing was said about the $8 million Rather received.

The ERA, or the women's rights movement, whichever you would like to call it, has become more a call for human right than anything else.

Things that are second nature now were never heard of not too many years ago. It wasn't many years ago that women weren't allowed to run in the Boston Marathon.

It wasn't many years ago that women automatically got custody of the children in a divorce suit. Now men are getting custody on the merits of their parenting ability and sometimes receive child support from the mother. Many companies are giving paternity leave.

It wasn't many years ago that newsrooms were predominately male. The women reporters who were lucky enough to work in communications were usually assigned "women's" stories at white glove affairs for substantially lower pay.

IT WASN'T MANY years ago that a woman couldn't get a mortgage without her husband signing with her. If she was single, she had to get another male to co-sign the loan. There was also a time, when both the husband and wife worked, that the bank couldn't count her income because she might get pregnant or decide she might want to work anymore. It's also hard to believe that it wasn't more than 25 years ago that many husbands didn't want their wives working because people might think they couldn't support their families.

It wasn't many years ago that schools of medicine, law and engineering were predominately male. Flight attendants on airlines were called stewardesses. It was hard to find a female sports writer.

If we go back a little further, women didn't vote and it was rare that they went to college. If we really go back, there was a time girls weren't required to attend school at all, at any time during their lives.

I think everyone would be appalled if these things that we now take for granted were suddenly taken away from us.

A woman doesn't have to burn bra or go childless or work an outside job to be an ERA advocate. The ERA movement has given us all, including men, choices.

I can't wait until the second woman gets nominated to the Supreme Court. I bet a fuss won't be made, and I can ask people their opinions on her. I won't have to ask them how they feel about it because the nominee is a woman.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: All my life I have always tried to do everything thoroughly and perfectly. Suddenly I am encountering problems that I can't seem to solve, and it depresses me greatly. How can God help me? — D.S.

DEAR D.S.: You are, I suppose, what some people would call a perfectionist. You probably give a lot of attention to details, and want everything to be neat and complete. This can be an asset in many ways — the world needs people who do things right.

But you are discovering the dangers. I gather, because when things go wrong (as they almost certainly will from time to time) you tend to get upset far beyond what the situation warrants.

God can help you in several ways. In the first place, he can help you become a more flexible person so that you do not get as upset when things go wrong. He can show you, for example, that he is ultimately in control of the world, and that nothing happens without his permission.

That means you can relax when things happen over which you have no control, since you can commit them to God and thank him that he is still at work. Look at the Apostle Paul as he started on his second missionary journey. They had planned to preach in a certain area, but they were "kept by the Holy Spirit from preaching the word in the province of Asia." When they came to the border of Mysia, they tried to enter Bithynia, but the Spirit of Jesus would not allow them to (Acts 16:6-7). Did Paul get angry or frustrated? No, he remained open to God's leading and as a result came to the continent of Europe for the first time.

Then God can help you by leading you into tasks where your strengths are especially useful. If you have committed your life to Christ, ask him to show you some specific tasks you can do for Christ.

Perhaps there is a job you can do in your church which demands the kind of careful attention you give to a job. And, most of all, learn to commit each day to Christ, then rejoice in whatever he has in store for you that day.

Menopause: Everyone's different

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please answer for me and many other post-menopausal women. Most doctors tell us: "Everyone is different," and that is the end of it for them, but not for us. My menstrual cycles ended at age 53. For two years I took estrogen for severe hot flashes and sweats. After publicity, about hormones and cancer, I stopped taking them.

I am now 60 and the flushes and sweats continue. They are not night sweats, because they occur day and night. How many years will this continue? Not only me, but thousands of others have this problem. I have a complete physical each year. I have perfect blood pressure, no heart problems or kidney problems, etc. I take no medicines, only vitamins. — E.K.

More than half of all menopausal women experience hot flashes. Their frequency, duration and severity vary considerably. They may occur as frequently as 20 times a day and they may continue for as long as six years or more.

As you know, the hormonal changes that occur at the time of menopause are thought to cause them, so they are often prevented by giving estrogen. But the doctor has to strike a balance between providing temporary comfort and making heroic efforts to end these inevitable age-related changes in the body.

If hormones were totally harmless, then the solution would be easy — just give the hormones. But they are not totally harmless. There is an increased risk of uterine cancer with the prolonged use of estrogens after the menopause. That is why your doctor took you off them after two years. However, if the flushes are unbearable, the doctor might decide to give lower doses of the hormone. After hormone, medroxy progesterone, is also used.

If you can tolerate the flushes, then in time their severity and frequency should abate. This should not be much longer for you. Yes, your doctor said it: "Everyone is different," which is why women vary not only in the severity of post-menopausal symptoms but in the individualized treatment of them.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am at my wit's end for a solution to my foot problem. I am 70 years old and in good health. I have a corn on top of the second toe, which is a hammer toe. I don't know what to do or where to go. I have used every household medication I can think of. Any suggestions would be so gratefully received. — Mrs. C.J.S.

A corn forms in much the same way as a callus. It is nature's way of telling you that there is too much pressure on the skin at a particular location.

That's especially true if you have a hammer toe. Your shoe is pressing there. For protection, the skin forms a corn.

So first and foremost, your shoe has to be carefully fitted so that there are no pressure points. Pad the area around the corn. Make sure your stockings are not wrinkled over the toe. You can soften the corn with lanolin. If it does not go away after you have done these things, then you should have your doctor judiciously trim the corn.

Never take a chance on diabetes! For a better understanding of this disease, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "Diabetes — The Sneaky Disease." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Senior citizens are fulfilling their dreams of sports oriented travel

WASHINGTON, D.C. — From the lush fairways of Florida's Doral Country Club to the windswept canyons of California's Torrey Pines, a growing number of older Americans are fulfilling their dreams of sports-oriented travel, at prices they can afford.

Watching them closely are travel agents, resort owners and sports entrepreneurs who are well aware that more and more older Americans not only have the desire to improve their physical and mental health through sports, but also have greater financial resources than ever before with which to do it.

In a special supplement last year entitled "Over-50's: Boom Market of the Decade?", the influential U.S. News Washington Letter predicted a marked increase in products and services designed for those age 50 and more. "A surprising number of older folks remain independent, reach retirement age with their health intact and with dollars to spend," the newsletter reported.

And helping them spend their recreational funds wisely is the National Senior Sports Association, a non-profit organization that has attracted more than 15,000 members in less than two years with a wide range of sports activities and benefits.

Thanks to off-peak package rates, NSSA members are able to play golf and tennis at some of the nation's most popular and prestigious facilities.

For instance, the 1981 NSSA golf "tour" includes stops at such challenging layouts as the "Blue Monster" at Miami's Doral; Torrey Pines (site of the Andy Williams San Diego Open pro tournament); Callaway Gardens in Georgia; French Lick Resort in Indiana; and Bay Tree Plantation in Myrtle Beach, S.C.; as well as courses in Mexico, Hawaii and Bermuda.

Tennis players have similar opportunities. NSSA's first tournament was held at the World of Tennis Resort near Austin, Texas, playing headquarters for World Championship Tennis and site of the Grand Masters and CBS Tennis Classic tournaments. Other NSSA racquet events have been held at Colony Beach and Tennis Resort in Florida (home of the U.S. Professional Tennis Association), John Newcombe's "Tennis Ranch" in Texas, and Mexico's Cuernavaca Racquet Club.

There are also NSSA programs for skiers and fishermen. The association is working with the Ski Touring Council, the U.S. Ski Association, the National Ski Patrol System and other groups to develop a senior ski-touring (cross-country skiing) program, which will include both pre-season workshops and on-snow clinics. And NSSA has held fishing events in the waters of Maryland's Chesapeake Bay.

In addition the organization offers a discount program for golf and tennis equipment and apparel as well as car rentals.

But perhaps the most valuable benefit offered by NSSA, according to its president, Lloyd Wright, is "the opportunity for members to maintain and improve their physical and mental health and well-being and to broaden their circle of friendships through sports participation."

As an example, he cites a letter from a member who participated in an NSSA tennis tournament at Grossinger's Resort in New York last year. "My husband died about a year and a half ago, and I've been rather isolated since. My daughter has been trying to get me out and involved again, but I've found it difficult. I would never come to a resort like this on my own, although I've always wanted to since I enjoy tennis so much. But you've given me a 'shelter' that makes me feel so at ease and comfortable. And I'm having the time of my life."

(Membership dues in NSSA are $15 for one year, $40 for three years. For an enrollment form and information about upcoming events, write: NSSA, 1900 M Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.)

JOHNNY AND ROSE — Johnny the blue jay has found him- or herself a home and it's in Worcester, Mass. with Mrs. Rose Kinostian. The bird, whose gender is yet to be determined, apparently fell from its nest as a fledgling and for the last 3 months, Mrs. Kinostian has been caring for Johnny by feeding and sheltering it and even taking it for walks. Once in the woods Johnny flies off to hobnob with the wild jays but 2 or 3 hours later, it's back home for hamburger, vegetables and berries.

New drug tests reveal potential prevention of common kinds of heart attacks and strokes

TORONTO — TFT, a new drug tested in five species of animals, has shown potential for preventing common kinds of heart attacks and strokes.

Limited testing in humans is planned for this year, scientists from The Upjohn Company told members of the Eighth International Congress of Thrombosis and Hemostasis today.

Upjohn's Edward R. Nishizawa, Ph.D. reported that TFT prevents abnormal clumping of blood particles called platelets. These discshaped particles normally help form blood clots to repair injured blood vessels.

Abnormal platelet clumping has been associated with many heart attacks and strokes. In such cases, clumps grow large enough to block blood flow to important parts of the heart or brain.

"TFT effectively prevented abnormal platelet clumping without causing stomach or intestinal ulcers, which can occur when aspirin is prescribed to control abnormal platelet clumping in men at high risk for stroke," Dr. Nishizawa said. (No benefit has been proven for aspirin in men at risk for heart attack or in women at risk for either heart attack or stroke.)

Interestingly, TFT shows anti-inflammatory activity similar to aspirin's, although its ability to prevent abnormal platelet clumping is 10,000 times that of aspirin.

"Moreover, TFT does not interfere with normal blood clotting or the body's ability to stop bleeding after injury," said Dr. Nishizawa. "If this drug is as safe and effective in people as it has been in the animals we've studied, it eventually may be possible to administer it even to patients undergoing surgery."

Dr. Nishizawa indicated that the drug is not intended for heart attacks that result from a spasm of the heart muscle or strokes that are caused by problems other

Graduation Presents Require A Diplomatic Acceptance

DEAR ABBY: Please help settle a disagreement we are having in our family. My grandson sent out his high school graduation announcements before he knew that he didn't have enough credits to graduate.

He received many lovely graduation gifts, including some nice checks from relatives. I say all the gifts (and of course the checks) should be returned because he didn't really graduate. His mother (my daughter) insists that he is entitled to keep the gifts because he completed 12 years of schooling.

Do you think my daughter is right, and I should butt out?

policy. Allen told me he made Anna Marie his beneficiary. I was very hurt. I told him that after they are married, Anna Marie should be the beneficiary, but until then, if God forbid, something should happen to him, I should be the beneficiary of his policy.

He said no, that if something should happen to him tomorrow, he'd want his girlfriend to collect on his policy. What is your opinion?

ALLEN'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'm with you. Until Allen and Anna Marie are married (unless, God forbid, she's pregnant), Allen's beneficiary should be his mother.

DEAR GRANNY: Your grandson should keep the gifts and send thank-you notes explaining that he did not graduate with his class, but he plans to make up the deficient credits and earn his diploma eventually — if indeed he intends to do so. Otherwise, he should return the gifts.

DEAR ABBY: I cried when I read about the poor 11 year old kid who still wets the bed, so his parents made him wear a diaper and put him out in the front yard where all his friends could see him.

Instead of writing to you about it, that neighbor should have called the proper authorities and had those parents arrested for child abuse!

They may not know it now, but they have lost their son. He will never forgive them to his dying day.

SICK AT HEART AND MOTHER OF FOUR

DEAR ABBY: My son, Allen, who is 18, has been going with Anna Marie for three years. She's also 18. They have been engaged since last Christmas, but no wedding date has been set. Allen lives at home and just started working at a bank. Anna Marie works there too. This bank has a great benefit package, which includes a $50,000 life insurance

Reading is cheaper during summer months when bookstores stock up on bargains

Summer is one of the best times of the year to look for bargains in the nation's bookstores, according to Pam Orig, bargain book buyer for the 700-store Waldenbooks chain.

Booksellers make an extra sales effort to combat what might otherwise be a slow sales period by piling tables high with attractively priced books, she said.

Just what are "bargain books?" Ms. Orig said there are many sources for bargain books:

Remaindered books account for the greatest number of books on the tables. These are hardcover books and larger, more expensive paperbacks known as trade paperbacks. Very often, these books are by best-selling authors. For one reason or another, like the appearance of a paperback version that sharply reduces hardcover sales, the publisher needs to offer the balance of the inventory at a much lower price. That's why the books are available on bargain book tables for as much as 80 percent off the original price.

Reduced price books are books that an individual bookstore has overstocked, and then reduces the price.

Imported books are often heavily illustrated in lavish color and produced abroad, where production costs are less. They are printed in enormous quantities for worldwide distribution, which enables them to be sold at special values.

Reprinted books are specially produced versions of popular titles that use less expensive paper and bindings. However, the content is the same as the original and they offer good value.

Hurt books are just that:

books that have a torn dust jacket, are show worn, or were damaged in shipment.

These many types of reduced-price books mean tables loaded with fiction, art, history and other non-fiction categories for summer reading, or to be bought now and put away for later holiday giving, says Waldenbooks' Pam Orig.

WINS BRITISH OPEN — Caddie Cris Frame has a laugh as Bill Rogers throws his ball into the crowd on the 18th green after he won the British Open Golf Championship at Sandwich, England Sunday.

Survives scare in final round Rogers wins British Open SANDWICH, England (AP) — Bill Rogers, the 110th British Open golf champion, strode up the 18th fairway of the Royal St. George's course with 10,000 fans pressing forward and cheering.

"Coming up that fairway I have ever had," said the 29-year-old Texan after he had won one of the world's most famous tournaments Sunday with a score of 72-66-67-71 for a 4-under-par total of 276.

For the first time in the four-day tournament the crowd got out of control at the 18th green, and Rogers had to push his way through. Rogers won by four strokes from Bernhard Langer of Germany, a surprise runner-up. Raymond Floyd and Britain's Mark James were another three strokes behind in third place.

Rogers began the final round five strokes ahead of Langer and James, and eight strokes ahead of Floyd.

He stayed ahead all day but at one point Langer crept to within a stroke. This was after Rogers had bogeyed the fifth and double-bogeyed the 529-yard seventh.

Rogers shook off any threat by making birdies at the ninth and 10th, then kept steady with par golf all the way to the finish.

He won $50,000. Langer, the first German ever to make an impact on international golf, won a second prize of $35,000. Floyd and James each picked up $23,500.

Rogers was rated a 25-1 longshot by British bookies before the tournament, and at one stage considered not coming over to play.

The course, notorious for its hilly fairways, blind holes and the treacherous winds that blow in from Pegwell Bay, defeated some of the world's greatest players.

Jack Nicklaus, three-time British Open champion, shot a nightmare 83 on the first day and never had a chance of winning. He ended up in a tie for 23rd place with a 10-over-par 290.

Tom Watson, another three-time champion, was never in touch with the leaders and finished tied with Nicklaus at 290.

Lee Trevino, who has won the title twice, could manage only a tie for 11th place at 287.

Langer was the surprise of the tournament. He kept going with rounds of 73, 67, 70 and 70. He was the man Rogers watched as he played the home nine Saturday.

Langer, 23, is the son of a

Munich bricklayer. He said he hoped his success would do something to help golf in Germany, which has only two public courses, at Duesseldorf and Hamburg.

British golfers had their best Open in decades. Britain had James tied for third place, Sam Torrance fifth and Nick Faldo, Sandy Lyle, Brian Barnes and Nick Job all well placed.

Three British players — Torrance, Gordon Brand and Roger Chapman — each had a hole-in-one at the 165-yard 16th during the tournament. Such a thing had never happened before since the event was started in 1860.

Even vet drivers can learn in loss

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Even a veteran auto race driver like Joe Ruttman encounters reminders to be prepared before setting out for a drive.

"Racing is good planning," he said. "We will have to regroup and have more tires next time."

Ruttman, 37, made the remark Sunday after tire trouble caused him to be overtaken by Rusty Wallace, who eventually won the U.S. Auto Club's Miller 200-mile stock car race.

Ruttman had captured the pole position Saturday for a sixth consecutive time at the State Fairgrounds mile oval track.

He and Wallace exchanged the lead eight times before Wallace, 26, took the lead for good at the 181st lap. He finished 5.6 seconds ahead of Ruttman, averaging 92.535 miles an hour.

Bobby Allison led twice in a Malibu, then finished third to the Wallace and Ruttman Pontiacs.

Don White, making his USAC-record 300th start, was fourth. Bay Darnell was fifth, blowing his engine on the 199th lap.

Ruttman's right rear tire went flat with what he says may have been a puncture picked up from debris from a six-car wreck at the 44th lap. He said he pitted for a softer tire and discovered he lacked a complete set.

"That set up vibration," and it was shaking so bad my mirror broke," he said.

So he changed again at lap 156. Wallace also pitted, but took on fuel only and saved enough time to take the lead from Ruttman.

"I didn't want to waste time changing tires," Wallace said. "I've had a lot of bad tires earlier this year, but after I changed from a harder compound on the first yellow (at lap 36), the car was handling pretty well and I decided to go with them as long as I could."

Ruttman regained the lead on his harder tires, but was eventually outdone by Wallace's softer tires.

"Every time I thought I had him, something happened to my tires," Ruttman sighed. "It was a case of him having the right tires and the right frame of mind, which I didn't have today."

Fans have no sympathy for either side Baseball strike hurts rep perhaps beyond redemption. The angry howl: "a plague on both your houses."

The commissioner has been bared as a tissue paper regent — a clerkish functionary without power to deal with severe crises, such as the current strike. The players got out from under his umbrella years ago. Bowie Kuhn's clout was further demeaned when owners stood up in court and said, "The commissioner doesn't speak for us."

Reputations have been sullied. Marvin Miller, director of the Players Association, and Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the owners, have been pictured as tough bargainers with massive egos, more intent on scoring a personal victory than getting the game back on track. Grebey, because of a tough stance dictated by his employers, has been publicly vilified as a "liar" and a "snake."

Owners, publicly professing solidarity have been at each other's throats behind the scenes, a mad mixture of militants, moderates and liberals. It is hard to visualize that they could ever get together well enough to mind a store.

—Newspaper critics themselves have formed feuding rival camps, the hard hats insisting that the affluent players should fold "for the good of the game" while the other side attacks the owners as greedy men anxious to return players to the slavish conditions of the reserve clause.

The strike is now going into its 40th day. We count the days and the games as we once reported another national crisis — the Iranian hostage situation.

But these games can never be restored. Neither can baseball's lost credibility.

The issues should never have been allowed to reach this state.

The players hung tough. Contrary to public opinion, money wasn't a factor. It was a question of the right given virtually every other American, as a free soul, to work for whom and for whatever he pleased.

Vindictiveness surfaced among the owners. They declined to plead financial hardship. Instead they virtually said their aim was to get back some of the power they had owned under the old restrictive reserve clause.

Our prediction is that the owners will break ranks, compromise and make poor Ray Grebey their scapegoat.

For week of learning and parties Texas coaches convene DALLAS (AP) — High school coaches converge on Dallas this week for football and basketball schoolboy all star games that culminate the nation's largest coaching school.

Between 7,000 and 8,000 coaches are expected to attend the clinics and lectures on football, basketball, track and volleyball this week that precede Saturday night's 47th schoolboy North-South all-star football game at Texas Stadium.

The 26th all-star basketball game will be played Friday night in the Convention Center arena.

Odessa Permian coach John Wilkins, whose team won the Class 5A championship last season, will head the north all-star football team. Baytown Lee's Ron Kramer will direct the South team.

The basketball coaches are Plano's Mike Bridges for the North and Longview's Leroy Romines for the South.

The score of the last three football games has been 7-6, and the South has won the last two. The North leads the series, however, 25-16-4.

The North won last year's basketball game, 89-87, to increase its lead in the series to 19-17.

The Texas High School Coaches Association has lost money on the games the last two years in Fort Worth and Houston, but THSCA executive vice president L.W. McConachie says the organization is expecting a better turnout this year.

"The pros have hurt us to an extent," he said. "People only have so much money to spend in a week and it's logical they spend it to see the best. But at the moment, with the baseball strike, we're the best game in town. So we're expecting good crowds."

The 49th annual coaching school will mark McConachie's retirement after 35 years as head of the THSCA. He will be succeeded as executive vice president by current assistant Donald Jay. Former Wharton coach Eddie Joseph will fill Jay's spot.

The downtown Hilton Hotel, headquarters for registration, is bracing for the onslaught of coaches.

"We usually don't have this big a group registering at the same time," said John Powers, director of food and beverages at the Hilton. "So we're going to set up two auxiliary bars outside of the registration room and also have some food tables set up to handle the crowd."

Pearcy will miss All-Star grid tilt

DALLAS (AP) — Andrews schoolboy football standout Van Percy has withdrawn from next weekend's high school all-star game because of an aggravated knee injury, a spokesman for the Texas High School Coaches Association said.

Percy, who signed a letter of intent with Notre Dame, injured his knee during the long jump competition at the class 4A state track meet and apparently aggravated the injury last week.

He will be replaced on the roster by Rusty Roark, a 6-2, 180-pound quarterback and safety from Monahans. Roark has accepted a scholarship to play football at Texas Tech.

The spokesman said there also are two changes in the all-star basketball roster.

Dwight Phillips, a 6-foot-9, center from Levelland has been named to replace Canyon's Ken Walling, who withdrew for personal reasons. Phillips averaged 18.1 points a game and 17.4 rebounds for Levelland. He will attend Texas Tech.

Stefon Johnson of Longview has been named to replace Kelly Blaine of Austin, who did not graduate in time to qualify for the game. Johnson, a 6-foot-8 center, averaged 18 points and 15 rebounds a game at Longview. He will attend Louisiana State.

The other two teams alive in District III have one loss and will play the losers of tonight's games. Meeting the Lamesa-Eastern loser will be Midland Mid-City, while the BS National All-Stars will face the loser of the North Central-Texas bout.

All games begin at eight o'clock.

Little League action resumes with winners

The four teams that are still unbeaten in the District III Little League Tournament square off tonight in two parks as action continues toward determining a champion this weekend.

In the semifinals of the winners bracket tonight, Midland Eastern faces the Lamesa All-Stars at the National League Park, while the Big Spring Texas League All-Stars square off against Midland North Central in the American League Park.

All four of those teams have had top play only one game to advance to the semifinals. The Texas League defeated Midland Tower 8-4, Midland North Central topped Midland Mid-City 2-1, Lamesa stopped Midland Western 11-

1, and Midland Eastern edged Big Spring National 2-1.

8th hole gives sudden death win

COAL VALLEY, III. (AP) — Canadian Dave Barr parred the eighth sudden-death hole to beat Woody Blackburn in an historic five-man playoff for the Quad Cities Open golf title.

Barr, 28, shot a 4-under par 66 to earn a spot in the playoff with Blackburn, who shot a 67 over the 18 regulation holes.

In slaughter of England in Wightman Cup Young US team impressive

CHICAGO (AP) — If the British thought the numbers looked bad going into the 53rd Wightman Cup championship series, they looked even worse coming out.

Boasting the top three women's tennis players in the world — and fielding its youngest team ever — the United States Sunday completed its sweep of all seven matches without yielding a single set and allowed the British side just two service breaks over the duration.

Talk about numbers. Top-ranked Chris Evert Lloyd won two singles matches to stretch her Wightman Cup record to 20 wins without a loss.

Tracy Austin, at 18 the world's No. 2-ranked player, also captured a pair of singles victories and said after trouncing 36-year-old British captain Virginia Wade on Sunday: "I hope I'm in that great shape when I reach that age."

And No. 3 Andrea Jaeger, playing like a hardened veteran at age 16, got a measure of vengeance for a 1980 Wightman Cup loss to Sue Barker by adding a singles and doubles victory to her record. The doubles victory, in which she teamed with 19-year-old Pam Shriver — ranked seventh in the world — to beat Anne Hobbs and Jo Durie, had clinched the series Saturday night.

The doubles team of Lloyd and Rosie Casals beat Wade and Glynnis Coles 6-3, 6-3 to put the finishing touches on the victory Sunday. Earlier in singles play, Lloyd downed Barker 6-3, 6-0 and Austin overwhelmed Wade 6-3, 6-1.

At Jericho LPGA

Caponi good enough for win

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) — Donna Caponi, the winningest golfer on this year's LPGA tour as a result of her victory in $125,000 Western Union International Classic Sunday, heads for the next stop — the U.S. Women's Open — with a special twinkle in her eyes.

It was in the 1969 Open that Caponi scored her first victory as a pro, and the following year she became only the second player to score successive victories in the event.

U.S. Golf Association is tricky in setting up its courses. They are tough. When you've won, you've played a great tournament.

"Right now I'm thinking better, but I don't know if I'm playing better. Winning the U.S. Open in 1970 was my greatest thrill, but winning this time would be the best because I know a lot more now."

Despite Sunday's double bogey on the No. 14, Caponi explained, "Call it confidence, or a gut feeling, or experience, I thought I was OK. There's a time to be aggressive and there's a time to be passive. Julie was aggressive at the wrong time."

Kathy Martin closed out with a 77 after setting a course record with a 66 Saturday and settled for fourth place at 286. Hollis Stacy, a two-time U.S. Open champ, matched Martin's record Sunday to tie Betsy King, who wound up with a 69, at 287 for fifth place.

Since then, however, the 35-year-old Caponi, a 17-year veteran of the women's tour, has not won that cherished title. She will be going into the 1981 edition, starting Thursday in LaGrange, Ill., with her fourth victory of the year, No. 23 of her career. Her 72-hole total of 282 in the WUI Classic was 6 under par, good for a two-stroke victory over unknown Julie Stanger.

Each closed out the four-

All-Comers' record and moved into third place in this year's world hammer throw rankings as the Soviet Union men scored a 116-105 victory over Britain in an international track and field meet.

Spinks wants both titles

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Shortly after polishing off Eddie Mustafa Muhammad to become the World Boxing Association light-heavyweight champion, Michael Spinks cast his eyes toward a hoped-for bout to unify the title.

Spinks, who scored a unanimous decision over Mustafa Muhammad, said he'd like his next fight to be with Matthew Saad Muhammad, the World Boxing Council's light-heavyweight champion, "if he'll sign."

Saad Muhammad was on hand Saturday as Spinks battered Mustafa Muhammad, closing one eye of the former champion in the 10th round and knocking him down in the 12th.

"I believe very truly that Eddie Mustafa Muhammad won the fight," Saad Muhammad said as he invaded Spinks' postfight news conference.

But, he said, turning to Spinks: "I'll call you champ, champ."

Spinks, in only his 17th professional fight, stepped out of the shadow of his brother, heavyweight Leon, with the victory to become half of what is believed to be the only pair of brothers to have held world boxing titles.

"It feels so good," said the champion, who will turn 25 this week. "This is what I've always wanted."

Leon Spinks, the former undisputed heavyweight champion, was at ringside at the Imperial Palace on the Strip.

"I hugged him and we shed tears," Michael said. "We both wanted this."

Leon, meanwhile, said he felt he was too light for the heavyweight division and would instead fight in the 190-pound cruiserweight class.

"I'm trying to get a title back, for one," Leon said. "I also want to be the best fighter in the cruiserweight division."

LLOYD IN VICTORY ... Chris Evert Lloyd serves to Britain's Virginia Wade during their Wightman Cup match in Chicago Saturday. Lloyd and her teammates won every match to claim the title for the U.S.

Hinault wins Tour de France

PARIS (AP) — Bernard Hinault of France won the 68th Tour de France, the world's most prestigious bicycle competition, for the third time, leading the 121 finishers of the classic race by nearly a quarter of an hour after 23 days of racing.

Freddy Maertens of Belgium won the 24th and final leg of the tour, 115.5 miles from Fontenay-Sous-Bois ending with six circuits up and down the wide Champs-Elysees Avenue.

Michael used a three-punch combination — two lefts and a right — to send Muhammad to the canvas midway through the 12th round, then put him on the ropes and unleashed a barrage of punches as Muhammad covered up.

"The right had him hurt bad. I saw it in his face," Spinks said.

Muhammad complained that Spinks fouled him.

Ministers' trust fund investigated

DALLAS (AP) — Ministers and church employees who paid into a retirement trust fund that has become "hopelessly insolvent" could be stuck with more than $300,000 in unpaid medical claims, state officials say.

State Board of Insurance officials told The Dallas Morning News that the board is investigating claims that as many as 400 to 500 clergymen nationwide lost money through the Ministers Benefit Trust program established in 1978 by a "born again" businessman Robert Browning.

Browning has participated in million dollar, church related real estate deals since 1961. The financial base of his Browning Corporation International was built primarily around insurance for missionaries serving overseas.

The Hurst businessman administered the trust that was designed to provide comprehensive health insurance for clergymen ranging from country ministers to evangelist Jerry Falwell, their families and church employees.

But the trust ran into financial difficulty and officials said so far more than 250 ministers have presented the insurance commission with unpaid medical claims totaling about $350,000. The officials also predicted 150 to 200 more clergymen will complain before the claims deadline at the end of the year.

Problems first surfaced when the U.S. Labor Department ruled in July of 1980 that it was not legal under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

A few months later, the State Insurance Board told an Austin District court judge that the trust had become financially insolvent and a "hazard to the public."

The judge suspended the trust from doing business in Texas and ordered it into receivership last fall.

The Rev. A. Alvis Edmonson, an Arlington Baptist minister who chaired the trust's benefits committee, said the problems stem from a $25,000 liability assumed from a previous private trust.

Edmonson said unexpected delinquent claims pushed the assumed debt to more than $250,000 within six months.

"Instead of bankrupting the old group, the new trust went along and paid those claims," said Edmonson.

"In my judgment, one of the reasons it eventually went under was because individual churches failed to pay their premiums," Edmonson added.

Browning estimated the non-payment rate among the trust's 1,200 ministers and churches averaged 15 percent.

He said the trust nearly died in 1978 when about 500 Methodist ministers withdrew. But Falwell and about 500 employees enrolled in the trust in July 1979 under an agreement that stipulated the employees would not suffer because of the assumed debt.

Browning said although the Lynchburg, Va., minister's group paid only a fraction of its premiums in the first four months it was enrolled, its claims were paid ahead of others because of the stipulation.

"What was happening was we were paying claims for Falwell's employees but we were not collecting premiums," said Browning.

DeWitt Braud, chief executive officer and chairman of the board of Falwell's "Old Time Gospel Hour," said if there was any delay in premium payments, it was because his accounting department "didn't have the information" it needed.

But Browning said because of his experience, he has recently stopped contributing to the Falwell mission.

"I don't think God's getting his money's worth," Browning said.

Brooklyn man dies after dive into empty pool

NEW YORK (AP) — A 39-year-old Brooklyn man, attempting to cool off from the night's heat, was killed after he dove into two inches of water in a closed city swimming pool that had been emptied for cleaning, police said.

Just after midnight Sunday, police said James Hopkins, of the East New York section, scaled the fence surrounding the pool in Baisley Park in Jamaica, Queens.

Police said that Hopkins, a regular at the pool, apparently was unaware that 20-by-40 foot above ground pool had been drained when he dove into it.

He was pronounced dead at the scene. Ambulance attendants said Hopkins, who was clad only in his bathing suit, had broken his neck upon impact.

Egg producers must get new licenses by Aug. 31

AUSTIN — Egg producers who do business in Texas must renew their annual operating licenses with the Texas Department of Agriculture by Aug. 31, reminds Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

Renewal forms have been mailed to all current license holders, Brown said, and it is important that these be filled out and returned to the Texas Department of Agriculture's Egg Law

Section by the Aug. 31 deadline.

"All producers who market eggs in Texas must be licensed, and we are required to stop the sale of eggs packed in cartons bearing expired license numbers," said Brown. He added that since license fees are based on the volume of eggs handled, all producers should carefully determine their volume of business to avoid overpaying.

Armored truck overturns killing 11 children inside

BULAWAYO, Zimbabwe (AP) — A military armored truck carrying schoolchildren home from a sports outing overturned, killing 11 children and injuring 61 others, the Zimbabwe Inter-African News Agency reported today.

Authorities said there was no indication what caused Saturday's accident, but sources noted the truck was packed and possibly top-heavy as it traveled on a gravel road.

The pupils, ages 15 to 18, were from the Singwango School near the town of Filabus, about 60 miles southeast of Bulawayo in southern Zimbabwe. The school's headmaster, Andrew Nkomo, and the vehicle's driver also were hurt, the news agency said.

Sources said it was not unusual in this transport-short country for military vehicles to be used to carry civilians. In this case the vehicle was a Puma, a truck fitted with armor, the agency said.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"IF I EVER GET MARRIED, WILL YOU COME AND COOK FOR ME?"

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Billy digs the peanuts out and leaves potholes in the brittle."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 21, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The day starts with much discontent in the minds of persons around you. Later improved conditions make it easier to raise the level of your moods and activities. Be calm.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) The situation at home could prove to be tense until later in the day and then all smooths out to your satisfaction. Strive for happiness.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take no risks in motion today. Be sure to take care of important communications at this time. Relax at home tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are now able to gain the help you need from business persons who have the know-how. Engage in favorite hobby tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You make little progress early in the day but by afternoon you can go about your business matters wisely.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get busy at the work ahead of you and then make plans for a brighter future. Be sure to avoid an argument with loved one.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take the time to assist a friend who is in trouble. Make plans to have more abundance in the future. Think constructively.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be certain to take care of career affairs in such a way that you meet with the approval of higher-ups. Use good judgment now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show that you appreciate the help given you by associates. You can easily obtain the information you need at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle responsible duties early in the day so you'll have time for recreation later. Don't neglect a credit matter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find out what associates expect of you and come to a fine agreement with them. Ideal day for expansion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take time to make plans that could result in more income in the future. Engage in favorite hobby later in the day.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Exercise care in whatever you do in the morning for danger lurks. Spend within your means. Control your temper tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will need more than average affection in order to properly stabilize this sensitive nature and delicate body. Direct the education along such lines as merchandising and business management and success is assured.

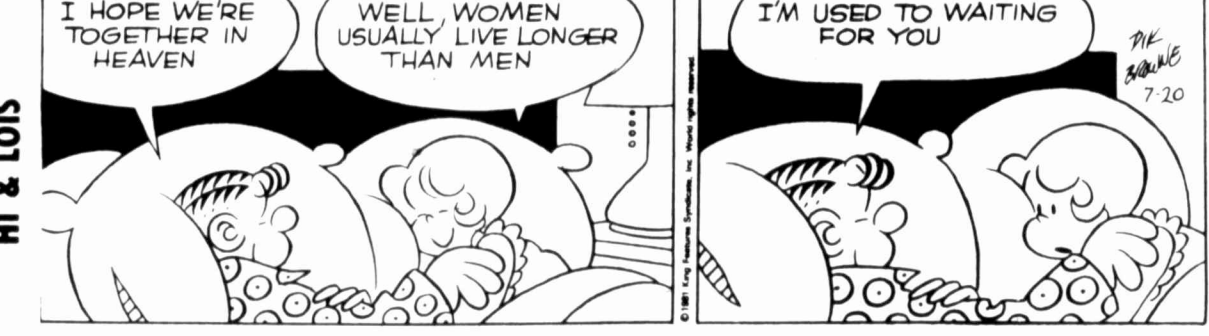

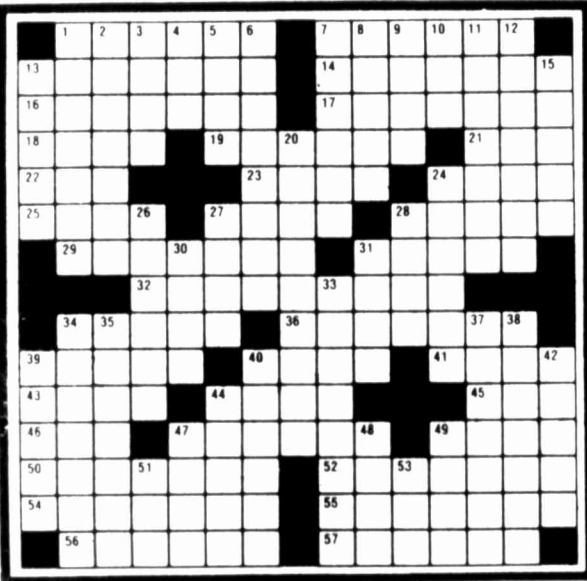

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Rio Grande is curse
Aliens brave dangers in quest for freedom

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Authorities say they don't know what killed the man whose bloated and decaying body lay sprawled on the muddy bank of the Rio Grande for three weeks.
 Officials assumed he was another of the many illegal aliens who, although unable to swim, gamble their lives and lose in the swirling currents of the river that winds 1,885 miles from the San Juan Mountains in Colorado to the Gulf of Mexico.

Immigration officials consider the river a blessing, saying it serves as a natural boundary that keeps the job of patrolling the border within the realm of the possible.
 But the Rio Grande is a curse for hundreds of Mexicans who roll up their pants legs and try to wade across the muddy water.
 In the 50-mile stretch that snakes from Rancho Viejo to Boca Chica, the river has claimed 20 victims this year. Nine of them have been recovered by authorities in Brownsville and the rest have been dragged out by Mexican authorities.
 For the funeral homes, drowning victims are a profitable business. Area funeral homes take turns at bagging the bloated corpses from the river banks. Each "floater" - as drowning victims are called - brings in a $300 purse from the city.

 They are buried in City Cemetery, without benefit of a ceremony or anyone to mourn, in an unmarked grave.
 And even though most deaths on the Rio Bravo - as it is named in Mexico - are called accidental, some of the bodies have been riddled with bullets, beaten, or stabbed before they are dumped in the brown waters.
 Authorities say that most drownings take place between the two international bridges in Brownsville.
