Ten more Haitians to arrive

By BILL ELDER

Ten more Haitian refugees, their departure from a Miami, Fla., holding facility delayed because of lack of space on a plane flight, were scheduled to arrive at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp this afternoon.

The refugees were originally scheduled to arrive with the 90 men who were transferred to the camp Saturday night by U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service order. A plane chartered out of Miami at federal expense did not have enough space to accommodate the full number of 100 refugees destined for temporary holding in Big Spring.

The arrival of the 10 — booked aboard a Texas International plane to Midland and set to be bused here — was confirmed to The Herald by camp Assistant Superintendent Jerry Edwards.

Edwards also said INS personnel, who have not accompanied any refugees to Big Spring, would be in town Thursday.

Details on INS proceedings were not available, but Edwards said the INS would begin a screening process which will decide whether the Haitians — who fled their island home to find jobs in the U.S. — are accepted as resident aliens or deported.

INS officials reportedly would hold hearings before judges in the employ of the immigration service in order to determine the fate of the refugees. It's not known how long the hearings might take.

Yesterday, the Big Spring City Council voted to protest the refugees' arrival to Gov. Bill Clements and the state's Congressional representatives. The vote was three to two, with Councilmen Robert Fuller and Russ McEwen voting to abstain from the protest (The Herald incorrectly reported the vote in yesterday's edition as four to one).

The vote was intended as a complaint against the swift transfer of the Haitians into Big Spring, as well as a protest against any more refugees being detained here, explained Councilman Jack Y. Smith, who made the motion calling for the vote.

"We have enough problems in the state as it is," Smith said.

Edwards said this morning that with the arrival of the last ten refugees, scheduled for about 2:15 p.m., the camp's capacity for refugees would be reached.

"One hundred is all we can feed and care for," he said.

The refugees are being kept on the second and third floors of the Sunset dorm, where they are separated from the other prisoners and given 24-hour surveillance.

Yesterday was their first day to get outside and exercise, which they did by playing soccer — a popular sport on Haiti.

Camp Superintendent John Allman said the Haitians told him they thought they were being flown out of Miami in order to be given jobs. They have to be told (through interpreters, since most speak French and few English) that they were being held here with no assurance they would be allowed to stay in America.

Edwards described their mood as one of fright.

"They're scared," he said. "I felt sorry for them the other night." The first batch of refugees was met Saturday night by a battery of TV camera lights and perhaps half a dozen reporters.

Edwards said some of the men complained of the apparently confusing news media attention, and today's arrival of the refugees would be closed off to the press.

Local post office expects no problems

By ANDREA COHEN

Contingency plans have been made at the Big Spring Post Office in case a nationwide strike should occur, according to Postmaster Frank Hardesty.

Leaders of the nation's two largest postal unions announced tentative agreement early today with the Postal Service to avert a nationwide mail strike, but two hours later said the deal was off. They said the last management offer contained "a serious inconsistency" with what they had understood.

"They thought they had an agreement verbally and when it was written, it didn't come out the same way," Hardesty said. "I'm hoping it was a typing mistake. I hope they get it on paper the way it was agreed to verbally."

"Everything's okay as far as the workers are concerned," he continued. "Everybody came to work."

H.C. McPherson, president of the American Postal Workers of Postal Clerks, Local No. 1694 and Wade

Bledsoe, president of the Local No. 1891 chapter of the National Association of Letter Carriers, had previously told The Herald they did not intend to strike.

McPherson reconfirmed that position this morning. "I don't think everyone else will either," he said. "It's a violation of the law. If we were a regular union, we could."

According to McPherson, the effects of the walkout will not be known until it is known how many employees, nationwide, will strike.

"If it's not a lot, it won't have much of an effect. If it's a large amount, the mail will slow down."

According to Hardesty, contingency plans were made months ago in the event of a walkout.

"We don't anticipate anyone walking out so the mail should be delivered normally," he said. "There may be a delay but we will get it out. If workers in a large city walk out, we won't get the volume. But they've made contingency plans also."

Edwards also said INS personnel, who have not accompanied any refugees to Big Spring, would be in town Thursday.

Details on INS proceedings were not available, but Edwards said the INS would begin a screening process which will decide whether the Haitians — who fled their island home to find jobs in the U.S. — are accepted as resident aliens or deported.

City utilities director quits

By BILL ELDER

In a move that may mean a reorganization of the city's utilities department, Bill Brown resigned Monday as director of that department.

Brown cited "personal reasons" for the resignation, effective Oct. 1, 1981, and declined to offer detailed reasons for leaving his post.

He and City Manager Don Davis said the departure was being made on a friendly note, with Brown describing his 13 years with the city as years during which he maintained a "good working relationship" with Davis's office.

Davis announced the resignation in a 9 a.m. press conference today, and took the opportunity to indicate some structural reorganization would be made in the utilities department.

"Obviously, we're going to have to do some reorganization when you lose a person of this capacity," said Davis.

Davis said he had no plans for immediately replacing Brown and conceded he might even split Brown's post into a two-man position.

"I don't want to cast anything in stone yet," he cautioned.

He said he had authority under the city charter to hire a replacement and make any other departmental changes.

Brown said he will stay in Big Spring and has not yet sought another job.

"I hope to be working some place,"

Oil theft trial is moved to Stanton

By CAROL HART

STANTON — Due to a faulty air conditioning system in the 118th District Court Room, the criminal case of the State of Texas vs. John Theoford Sims and D.C. Wheeler was moved to the Martin County Courthouse today.

Sims and Wheeler are charged with attempted theft in an alleged oil scam against Cosden Oil and Chemical Company. They are accused of selling the same oil to Cosden over and over.

John Green, former Ector County District Attorney, is representing Sims and Wheeler. Rick Hamby, the Howard County District Attorney, is representing the state, assisted by Don Richard.

Testimony in the case was to begin at 10 a.m., today in Martin County's courthouse. The start of the trial was delayed until later today, however, due to the illness of Hamby.

Howard County jurors selected to hear the case were Iris McGlothlin, Robert Kimzey, Berlin Kanady Jr., Lupe Gonzales, Troy Gray, Shirley Brumley, Ruby M. Dittmore, Lewis Hall, Donald Cunningham, Glen Wilkins, Matthew Harris and John H. Best.

Although a change of venue motion was filed Monday in the case by Green, it was denied by District Judge Jim Gregg, who will preside at the trial.

Jurors were brought to Martin County by a sheriff's deputy in a county van.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: New Zealand zeal

Q. I'm soon to be married and my bride-to-be wants to go to New Zealand for our honeymoon. I say we go somewhere closer to Texas. For one thing, it costs too much to get to New Zealand, and for another thing, it's a Communist country. She says it isn't communist — so who's right?

A. According to the 1981 World Almanac, a labor tradition in New Zealand politics dates back to the 19th century. Private ownership is basic to the economy, but state ownership or regulation affects many industries. Transportation, broadcasting, mining and forestry are largely state-owned. In other words, New Zealand is socialistic, but hardly Communist.

Polish plane hijacked

BERLIN (AP) — A Polish national airlines plane with 50 passengers aboard was hijacked to West Berlin on Tuesday and a suspect was taken from the plane by U.S. military authorities for questioning, a U.S. military spokesman said.

The Polish news agency PAP said the hijacked flight had been headed from Katowice in southern Poland to Gdansk.

The official agency said a "terrorist" brandishing a weapon ordered the LOT airlines two-engine propeller Antonov 24 to West Berlin and that it had landed there.

It did not give any further details.

Major Larry Seals said 49 adults and one child were aboard the plane when it landed at Tempelhof airport just west of the Berlin wall at 1500 GMT (11 a.m. EDT).

"One man left the plane and is currently being questioned at the airfield," Seals said. "No one was reported injured."

"What appeared to be a hand grenade and a handgun were reported to have been carried off the aircraft by the suspected hijacker," Seals said.

Postal workers on job

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tentative agreement to avert a nationwide mail strike collapsed today after union leaders said the final Postal Service wage offer contained "a serious inconsistency" with what they had accepted two hours earlier. Postal workers remained on the job, however.

As the negotiations resumed, leaders of the two largest postal unions said there were no immediate plans for a strike by their half-million members.

The unions had threatened to pull their workers off the job at midnight Monday, when the old contract expired.

Moe Biller, president of the American Postal Workers Union, told his members today "to hang in there."

Postmaster General William F. Bolger told reporters at mid-morning. "We had a misunderstanding; I don't want to go into details."

"The mail is being delivered; people are working, and isn't that good news," he added.

Billier and Vincent Sombrotto of the National Association of Letter Carriers said they thought they had reached agreement about 2 a.m. EDT on a tentative three-year contract.

Integration plan opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has decided to oppose an integration plan drawn up by the Chicago school board as inadequate and unconstitutional, department sources said today.

"We will have a strong statement that the board's plan does not meet the constitutional requirements," said one source, who asked not to be identified.

The sources said the department's opposition would almost certainly prompt U.S. District Judge Milton I. Shadur in Chicago to order the board to redraft the plan it submitted April 29 for integrating the nation's third-largest school system.

That plan, which would delay any mandatory busing until September 1983, was approved hours before Shadur's deadline on a 6-5 vote by the school board. Three whites and three Hispanics outvoted five blacks who argued that the courts would not accept it.

The case has been closely watched by civil rights lawyers as a measure of whether the Reagan administration's expressed aversion to mandatory busing would be reflected in a more strict enforcement of the Supreme Court's limited existing court rulings on school integration.

Begin considers U.S. call

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli and Palestinian gunners exchanged fire across the Lebanese-Israeli border today, and Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Cabinet met to consider an American call for a cease-fire to halt the escalating attacks.

The Israeli military command said gunners returned fire into Lebanon after Palestinian rockets and artillery shells struck Nahariya on the Mediterranean coast and points in the Galilee panhandle 20 miles inland. Several people were wounded in the Galilee, Israel Radio said.

The Palestinian news agency Wafa said Israeli artillery fire hit Beaufort Castle, a major guerrilla base in southern Lebanon four miles north of the border, and the guerrilla-controlled village of Aychieh.

The latest exchange broke a brief respite from overnight artillery and rocket barrages.

The U.S. government decided Monday to extend the delay in shipping 10 F-16 jet fighters to Israel because of "the escalating cycle of violence," Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. announced at the seven-nation summit conference in Montebello, Quebec.

In Jerusalem, Begin was to confer with U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib, who is trying to bring an end to the current round of fighting and to find a peaceful solution to Lebanon's other conflicts.

Rape victim suicide

DALLAS (AP) — A man accused of raping an 18-year-old woman will not be prosecuted because the victim killed herself, police say.

"We will not be filing a case," said police Sgt. William Stanley. "We had it ready to file, but without the witness we don't have a case."

He said that Sheryl Brown, who with her mother moved to Dallas only a few weeks ago, was the only witness to the weekend attack. She died Saturday at about 10:15 p.m. of a gunshot wound to the head.

The man accused of attacking her was released on $2,500 bond Sunday.

He was arrested about 1:30 a.m. Saturday after police were told someone was screaming in a park. Miss Brown was taken to Parkland Memorial Hospital, where she was examined and treated for cuts and bruises. She talked with a rape crisis counselor for about an hour and a half.

The counselor later reported that Miss Brown was upset, but there were no signs that she was in any worse condition than other rape victims.

The girl's uncle, Walter DuVall, said Sunday the girl was "very upset" about the incident and had planned to get more counseling on Monday.

How could Congress be so cruel as to cut minimum SS benefits?

WASHINGTON (AP) — How could Congress be so cruel as to cut minimum Social Security benefits to 3 million senior citizens who are struggling to survive from day to day?

Rep. Phil Gramm, D-College Station, was blasted a few days ago by a colleague, Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Houston, for blocking an attempt by House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth to reinstate the benefits, which both the House and Senate whacked off in their budget bills.

Gramm admits readily that benefits are being cut, but he insists that the only ones hurt are a bunch of freeloaders.

Talking about cuts in Social Security benefits is "an easy issue to demagogue, but they don't have a leg to stand on," Gramm said.

The cuts need to be made and will cut almost $3 billion in abuse from the Social Security program over the next three years, Gramm said. That money will be funneled back to those who really need and deserve it, he added.

The cut was recommended by President Reagan, by the General Accounting Office and by the Social Security Advisory Council, a group appointed by President Carter, Gramm pointed out.

Wright sought unanimous approval from the House to introduce a "sense of the House" resolution urging House conferees on a budget bill to try to put the minimum benefits back in.

Leland said Gramm's objection locked Wright's "compassionate" effort to correct this cruel action against some 3 million people currently on the Social Security rolls.

Leland described the victims of the cut as "mostly senior citizens on very low, fixed income" and "senior citizens who are struggling to survive from day to day."

Wright said the truly needy, including 80 year old widows, would lose their benefits.

"The truly needy?" Gramm asked in amazement. "Of the 3 million people drawing so called minimum benefits — actually unearned benefits — 74 percent are drawing pensions of more than $900 a month from other sources."

Who are the 3 million people who will be affected by the cuts in minimum benefits? Here's Gramm's view.

"Let's start with some background," he says. "In 1939, we created minimum benefits of $10 a month, so that anybody who paid anything into Social Security, as little as $3 in their entire lifetime, got back at least $10 a month. In 1974 we brought in SSI Supplemental Security Income, which eliminated the reason for minimum benefits, but it was never taken out."

"As far as anyone needy losing their benefits, that's just not so. Anyone needy automatically qualifies for SSI and gets $255 a month. But under the current law, even if you're not needy, if you've paid as much as $3 into Social Security, you can draw $3,065 a year in minimum benefits. And that's not right."

A lot of those who will lose minimum benefits, Gramm said, are people whose jobs didn't require them to pay into Social Security — people like federal government retirees, railroad retirees, and people who worked abroad.

"It's important to remember that any needy person over 65 — or anybody blind or disabled person — automatically qualifies for SSI and a minimum of $255 a month. They aren't affected by this at all. So let's look at the 3 million who are affected," Gramm said.

"A million of them will receive no reduction because it's just a technicality. Take a widow getting half of her husband's benefit, which is a minimum of $122 plus supplement. This would not change how much she would get. It just means the minimum would be lower and the supplement higher."

There is no significant information on the remaining 500,000 people, Gramm said.

Senate kills Demo plan to preserve SS benefit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-controlled Senate today killed a Democratic attempt to preserve the minimum monthly Social Security benefit.

By a vote of 52-46, the Senate tabled, and in effect killed, an amendment by Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., to the pending tax bill that would restore the benefit.

The Senate voted 53-45 to end the minimum benefit on June 23.

Today's Senate action came after President Reagan, accusing Democrats of playing "on the fears of many Americans" to keep the minimum Social Security benefit, said he would go on national television to set the record straight.

Meanwhile, the House was considering a resolution today by Democratic Leader Jim Wright of Texas to preserve the $122 minimum benefit. Under the parliamentary move used to bring the resolution to the floor, a two-thirds vote was required for passage.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said he wasn't sure Democrats in the House had the votes to pass the resolution. But, he added, "We're putting their (Republicans') feet to the fire. We're going to keep on the issue of Social Security."

Elks lodge wins 2 national awards

Big Spring Elks Lodge 1388 won two national awards at the Grand Lodge convention this week. The meeting was in Las Vegas.

Bit Spring won second nationally in public image and was a third place winner for overall youth activities. This is the first time that the local lodge has placed nationally. Judging is done from scrapbooks maintained by the lodge.

Attending from Big Spring were Rick Scott, exalted ruler; Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Cofer and Mr. and Mrs. W.D. Berry. Cofer was reappointed to a second term of the Grand Lodge Public Relations committee, Berry is the outgoing district deputy from this area.

More than 25,000 attended the convention with about 5,000 voting delegates present. They heard reports that the Elks spent nearly $20 million last year on charitable programs and donated almost 4 million hours of volunteer service. The Elks have 2300 lodges and a total membership of 1.8 million. Texas has 72 lodges with a membership of 27,500. The local lodge has 203 members.

'Boom Town Revue' opens in C-City

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Mitchell County's Centennial "Boom Town Revue" opened Monday night with Mrs. Lonnie Williams of Lorraine being crowned the county's First Lady by Bobby Lemons, Centennial chairman, and her court recognized before an almost "full house" at Wolf Stadium.

Also recognized was J.B. Harris of Westbrook, winner of the domino tournament. Then came the revue's beginning followed by Indians, horses, covered wagons, settlers, a succession of participants, doughboys and plenty of "cats meows," all interspersed with music and a historical narrative of Mitchell County itself.

Centennial productions will be held at 9 p.m., nightly through Saturday, with a spectacular fireworks display concluding each performance.

Model railroad group to meet

The Permian Basin Model Railroad Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 3, on the third floor of the new Ector County Library in Odessa.

A film, "The Magic of Model Railroading," will be shown. Anyone interested in model railroading can attend.

Medfly crisis not over'

Judge lifts Texas' quarantine on fruit

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge ordered Texas agricultural authorities to end their quarantine of California produce on the same day that inspectors established the blockades at four locations along the state's western border.

U.S. District Judge Patrick E. Higginbotham, acting on a request by a group of California growers, signed a temporary restraining order Monday night that lifted the state quarantine on produce not certified free of infestation by the destructive Mediterranean fruit fly.

Higginbotham scheduled a Saturday hearing on a preliminary injunction. Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said late Monday night that the state would abide by Higginbotham's order.

"We removed the roadblocks ... I have absolutely done everything I can to protect Texas interests — now it is out of my hands," said Brown.

"This crisis is not over... the very food supply of this nation is in danger from this insidious insect, every precaution should be taken," Brown said in a telephone interview from his home in Austin.

Texas was one of five states that began quarantining California produce Monday. Higginbotham's order does not affect quarantines in Florida, South Carolina, Mississippi and Alabama. The Texas quarantine, which included 53 different varieties of fruits, vegetable and nuts, went into effect at noon Monday when inspectors set up checkpoints at four points along the state's western border.

Brown said no truckloads of California produce were turned back, but three truckloads had to be fumigated before they were allowed to continue.

Higginbotham's ruling came at the request of lawyers for the California Grape and Tree Fruit League.

The growers' attorneys argued the quarantine was illegal because it attempted to supersede a July 13 agreement between California and the U.S. Department of Agriculture that mapped a strategy for containing the medfly infestation.

Daryl Arnold, president of the Western Growers Association, estimated that a 30-day quarantine by Texas could cost California growers as much as $2 billion in lost revenues. And Richard Harrington, a lawyer for the growers, said California Grape and Tree Fruit League members would suffer another $17 million in lost sales.

After the ruling, Brown said Southern states were contemplating legal action of their own.

German educator of deaf visits Big Spring

By CAROL HART

The Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf is drawing the interest of educators from all over the world.

Guenter Maisch, who is a teacher at the Hamburg School for the Deaf in Germany, was in Big Spring recently, studying various aspects of SWCID, and in particular, talking with SWCID personnel about the interpreter-training program.

"I am an interpreter (for the deaf) by accident," said Maisch. "In Germany, there are only interpreters by accident."

"We want to start an interpreter training program in Germany," Maisch said. Professional interpreters are not used in his homeland now, and he and other colleagues have recently begun a drive in Germany to start such a program.

Maisch said the oral method of educating the deaf was widely used. As he began his career in deaf education several years ago, he began seeing the problems of using only the oral method, where lip-reading is stressed.

"During my training, I saw only the oral method of education being used. I saw the problems the deaf children had with this. They tried to sign to me. I didn't understand. They didn't have the words to tell me what they wanted."

At that point in his life, Maisch said he became convinced that a method of signing and lip reading, called "total communication" would be a much better way of educating the deaf.

Maisch became proficient in sign language during studies in 1971-1975. He learned German sign language, which differs somewhat from American Sign Language, but also has similarities.

"I wrote the first German sign language book," said Maisch. It is used widely in Germany now by parents and educators for the deaf.

Since Maisch became interested in sign language, he and his colleagues who share his interest "have started a little revolution" in Germany, he said.

Last year, the World Conference for Deaf Education was held in Hamburg, and Maisch and his colleagues intensified their study of interpreting for the deaf. A partnership for the study was formed between the Hamburg Association for the Deaf and Gallaudet University in Washington, D.C.

Maisch came to the United States to tour the Washington, D.C. facility, and while there, met Sam Hill, a member of the SWCID staff. Hill talked Maisch into coming to the Big Spring-based school.

"SWCID is wonderful," said Maisch. "All the teachers and staff can fluently sign (use sign language)." He also said he was glad to see programs such as health education being offered.

"We haven't such programs in Germany," he said.

"The needs of the deaf are the most important," said Maisch. "Here, this is so."

He also said he was glad to see deaf Americans taking on much responsibility. In Germany, he said many deaf people were not given the independence they need.

"Here, they are responsible. That is very good."

GERMAN SIGNS — Guenter Maisch, left an educator for the deaf from the Hamburg School for the Deaf, was in Big Spring recently, touring the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf. Here, he shows Sam Hill the German version of signing the months of the year. Hill is with SWCID.

"In my school in Hamburg, there is one deaf person employed, as a social worker. Here, the odds are much better."

"I dream of the day when deaf people will be actively employed in the education of the deaf in Germany," said Maisch.

VOLUNTEER SERVICES — Mrs. Allen B. Gilbert, sales manager of American Airlines, presents Mrs. Dorothy Hull with airline tickets to Hawaii. The drawing was held during the BSSH Volunteer Services Luncheon held recently. Looking on is Rose Thomas, representative of Skipper Travel Agency.

Over 100 attend BSSH Volunteer Service Luncheon

The Big Spring State Hospital Volunteer Services Luncheon held last Thursday on the hospital grounds lured a large crowd. More than 100 people attended the affair which featured a Hawaiian motif. The Hawaiian theme was tastefully carried out by volunteers and staff dressed in proper attire, the delightfully Polynesian food prepared by the hospital's food service employees, and the decorations setting a seashore scenario.

Guest speakers were two American Airline representatives, Jack McAdams, Jr., General Manager, and Allen B. Gilbert, Sales Manager. They briefed the audience on services provided to Hawaii by American Airlines. They also awarded door prizes. The highlight of the luncheon came when Mr. Gilbert announced that a trip for two to Hawaii was being provided compliments of American Airlines. Big Spring resident, and long time volunteer, Dorothy Hull, was the lucky recipient of these tickets.

Jack Y. Smith presiding over the meeting, presented Michele Mahaffey, Chief of Food Service, with a certificate of appreciation for her endless efforts and contributions to the Volunteer Luncheon and the Volunteer Services Department. Thursday was Ms. Mahaffey's last day as she is transferring to Terrell State Hospital. The Hula Contest led by Rose Thomas, Representative of Skipper Travel provided entertainment. Those competing in the contest, who were selected from the audience included two employees John Keller, Jo Ann Forrest, and two volunteers Muriene Williams and Bob Cappel. John Keller was the winner and was awarded a flight bag courtesy of American Airlines.

According to Elma Martinez, Coordinator of Volunteer Services, "this has been the best luncheon. We hope to continue providing luncheons which will be both fun and entertaining."

Reagan agrees to 'developing nations' talks

MONTEBELLO, Quebec (AP) — President Reagan, in an apparent concession to American economic partners, agreed today to preparations for "global negotiations" to help poorer nations in development and trade, knowledgeable summit meeting sources reported.

Until now, the Reagan administration had refused to commit itself to global negotiations on the ground that the concept was too vague.

The final communique of the seven-nation summit of major industrial democracies concluding today indicates that "mutually acceptable circumstances" will have to be found for worldwide talks.

But Canadian sources at the summit said the qualified U.S. commitment nevertheless represented a significant breakthrough in the stalled dialogue between wealthy and poor nations. Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau is a leading advocate of global talks on the rich-poor issue.

One U.S. official who requested anonymity said the United States was satisfied with this agreement and said, "We're willing to talk about talking."

He said the standard for engaging in such talks would be "a reasonable expectation of success."

The section of the communique on "North-South dialogue" says, "We are ready to participate in preparations for a process of global negotiations in mutually acceptable circumstances offering the prospect of meaningful progress."

Third World nations have been demanding just such a broad-based forum for improving economic cooperation and aid programs between the wealthier countries of the north and the underdeveloped south around the world.

The summit sources, who spoke to reporters on the condition that they not be identified, said negotiations on the North-South language were completed Monday night, and the wording was accepted by Reagan and the other heads of government at this morning's formal summit session.

Reagan met over breakfast today with Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, the last of the six heads of government with whom the president has conferred individually. White House aides said Suzuki spent much time urging expanded technological and other aid for developing countries in Asia.

Aides to Reagan said Monday that the other government leaders concurred with a U.S. request for a meeting of major industrial countries later this year to consider new restrictions on the export of goods and technology that might be of strategic benefit to the Soviet Union and its allies.

Reagan has been pressing for such a meeting as a first step toward limiting East-West trade for political purposes. U.S. allies in Europe have resisted the idea because Soviet trade is more important to their economies than it is to the United States.

A particularly contentious issue is U.S. concern that West Germany's plans to buy Soviet natural gas would create too dependent a relationship between the two countries. Germany is Europe's biggest trader with the Soviet bloc, largely due to trade with East Germany.

Reagan and his counterparts from Japan, Great Britain, France, West Germany, Italy and host Canada, planned to discuss East-West trade in greater detail today before concluding the conference and releasing a joint communique.

Reagan also was to confer privately today with Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki. He met privately Monday with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Italian Prime Minister Giovanni Spadolini.

In agreeing to review trade with the Soviets, the European leaders made no specific commitments. U.S. officials said, however, that all they had expected from the summit was arranging a high-level meeting of NATO allies and Japan to consider additional trade restrictions.

When Reagan arrived for his first major summit Sunday just six months in office, he was seemingly on the defensive because of European unhappiness over the harsh effects that near-record U.S. interest rates are having on their economies.

While interest rates remained a popular — and sore — point on Monday, several of the participating leaders made conciliatory gestures that helped defuse any rancor over economic policy.

—Reagan, although pledging to stay on his current economic course, agreed to set up a new procedure for consulting with allies about economic action that might affect other countries, such as anti-inflation policies that produce high interest rates.

—Japan, the target of U.S. and European criticism for restricting foreign goods from its home market, agreed in principle to the concept of free trade as the seven nations proposed a review of trade barriers and ways to remove them.

The allies reflected Reagan administration language in decrying a Soviet military buildup and defending the need for a strong Western defense. But they also stressed the need for disarmament talks, an objective sought more strongly by the allies than by the United States.

Reagan's White House counselor, Edwin Meese III, said Monday's two formal sessions of economic discussions were marked by "a general spirit of harmony and unity."

'Showtime' offers closed-captioning programs for the hearing impaired

LOS ANGELES — Showtime will be the first pay television service to offer closed captioned films for the hearing impaired, it has been announced by Mike Weinblatt, president, Showtime Entertainment, and Tony Lynn, vice president and general manager, Columbia Pictures Pay Television. The initial titles to be telecast are "Chapter Two," "Close Encounters of the Third Kind - Special Edition" and "The China Syndrome," all Columbia releases.

"We are extremely proud to be the first pay service to provide closed-captioned films for hearing impaired viewers," Mr. Weinblatt said. "This is another step forward in Showtime's commitment to offer our subscribers the best possible service." he added.

Showtime's program guide and on-air promotion will designate the showing of all closed-captioned films with the official captioning symbol.

"We are proud to be able to make Columbia's titles available to the millions of Americans who experience some form of hearing loss," said Mr. Lynn. "Eventually, we hope to caption all of our titles."

The National Captioning Institute (NCI), a non-profit organization based in Virginia, encodes the captions which are only visible to viewers with special decoders that reveal the caption on screen. These decoders are available from Sears-Roebuck & Co. under the brand name, "Telecaption." The captions appear on the bottom of the viewer's television screen much like subtitles in a foreign language film.

High interest rates to continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker told Congress today the fight against U.S. inflation is so important that the board will further tighten its rein on the nation's credit and money supply, even though that means near-record interest rates will probably continue.

Volcker, Federal Reserve chairman and top Reagan administration official, believe that a rapidly expanding money supply would fuel new inflation. And they see that as an even worse danger than that posed by the high interest rates which have stifled economic activity in the United States, especially in the housing and auto industries, and brought protests from European nations.

U.S. interest rates, which have greatly strengthened the dollar at the expense of many foreign currencies, have been a prime topic at this week's economic summit in Canada. Volcker said the Federal Reserve Board still aims to hold the growth of the money supply known as M1B — cash plus checking accounts — to between 3.5 percent and 6 percent this year, the same range he announced in February. But he said today that the board will pursue policies aimed at keeping M1B growth to the lower edge of that range rather than the middle.

A problem that won't go away

From time to time in this country, people in the private sector get scolded in print and through official reprimands for smuggling guns out of the country.

The practice has mushroomed to the extent that the Irish Republican Army has been able to mount a lot of firepower down through the years, maiming the British and terrorizing their own kith and kin.

AN AMAZING NUMBER of ambitious provocateurs in banana republics all the way to Tierra del Fuego have expanded their deadly intrigue by using weapons they been able to buy surreptitiously on the American market.

As grubby as the work might be, however, the pot can hardly afford to call the kettle black. America itself is in the business of selling arms and ammunition to countries around the world, some to further causes we hold dear but others which are entirely capable of turning those very guns on us, if the mood strikes them.

A lot of the metal Japan threw at us in WW II came from American junkyards. Our government sanctioned such sales. Today we sell military hardware to both the Arabs and the Jews.

Recently, the Reagan Administration announced a decision to sell Pakistan $3 billion worth of modern military equipment. That may, on the surface, seem like an excellent way to generate more jobs in this country and will certainly help our balance of payments. But, wait. The government of Pakistan may today be friendly toward the United States. Tomorrow, because of the closeness of Russian troops in neighboring Afghanistan it might turn cold toward America. That could easily happen if Russia starts putting pressure on the government and inspires a coup that brings about a change in government.

A FEW YEARS AGO, we regarded Red China with great suspicion, mainly because they had ousted one of our great friends, Chiang Kai Chek. As it turned out, Chiang headed a corrupt regime that deserved just what it got. Today, Red China is regarded as a great and noble friend, drawn closer to us because of a mutual suspicion of the Soviets.

This is a violent society in which we live. It might just become less sanguinary if the government outlawed all sales of weaponry to foreign powers, thereby setting an example for its people to follow.

Breeder reactor is fiasco

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Government boondoggles are always good for evanescent headlines. But if they are really to stick in the public craw, two considerations are usually necessary: The fiasco must occur under high auspices, and the story must have a certain oomph capable of kindling public interest.

By all the oomph indicators, the Clinch River breeder reactor at Oak Ridge, Tenn., may not register high. It is an unheralded project, with an awkward name, well off the beaten path. But it is a multimillion-dollar fiasco born of fraud and mismanagement.

The plant, darling of the nuclear power industry, is supposed to produce more nuclear fuel than it uses, which sounds like a bargain. But it has been no bargain for the taxpayers who are unwittingly paying for it.

ORIGINALLY, IT WAS to be in operation by December 1979, at a cost of $668 million. But it has already cost $1 billion, and the latest estimate is that it won't be operational until February 1990. By that time, the bill will be at least $3.2 billion.

How could this happen? It's easy, when the government officials who are supposed to keep track of the project's contractors shirk their responsibilities.

According to a spokeswoman for the Clinch River project, about 80 percent of the cost increase was due to circumstances beyond official control. In other words, the bureaucrats were responsible for "only" $500 million of the estimated $2.5 billion overrun. That's had enough.

But it's actually worse than that. Investigators for Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., told my associates Tony Capaccio and Howard Rosenberg that at least three-fourths of Clinch River's prime contracts are open ended, that is with no firmly set costs or completion dates.

The investigators warned that even the staggering $3.2 billion estimate may be optimistic. It fails to take into account the possibility that the entire Clinch River facility might have to be relocated for safety reasons.

A 1978 Nuclear Regulatory Commission report listed nearly 100 safety problems. A Clinch River official said many of the problems had been addressed even before the NRC report, but the commission had not yet checked to see if the needed corrections were actually made.

FRAUD HAS ALSO plagued the project. One internal Department of Energy memorandum told how an employee of Atomics International, a subcontractor, received a $1,000 interest-free loan in return for advance information on contracts, and another $5,000 in cold cash for bid price information.

The FBI found that two purchasing officials invented bogus companies, from which they claimed to have solicited bids for items needed at Clinch River. This resulted in overcharges running as high as 800 percent.

MX solution

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger has tentatively picked a controversial air-based mobile MX missile system for this nation's ultimate protection against Soviet nuclear attack, despite the consensus of his special committee of experts for a land-based system.

The tentative Weinberger decision, based on a futuristic, diesel-powered plane that would look like the U-2, is already under fire from the few Air Force officials aware of it. Moreover, if the decision holds and is accepted by President Reagan it is likely to create problems in the NATO alliance.

The U.S. is pressing its European allies hard to move ahead on the planned modernization of NATO's land-based nuclear force targeted against Warsaw Pact nations. If the U.S. decides to place its ultimate guarantor against surprise Soviet attack in the air, NATO states plagued by political opposition to new nuclear weapons on the ground in Europe will be handed potent ammunition.

BUT WEINBERGER'S PLAN to base the 10-warhead MX missile in an exotic, yet-to-be developed airplane that would fly perhaps two full days without refueling and up to a week with refueling (thus radically reducing the huge cost of keeping the planes on alert), would resolve myriad political problems for Reagan at home. The land-based MX mobile system adopted by former President Carter is under heavy political fire from such leading pro-defense senators as Nevada's Paul Laxalt, Reagan's closest friend in the Senate, and Utah's Jake Garn. The Carter system was to be based in those two states.

Putting the MX in the air would also end environmental opposition known to be particularly disturbing to Weinberger. But he has yet to solve what is called "the interim question": how to fill the time gap before the long-endurance airplanes are ready to fly, perhaps by 1990.

One solution currently favored by Weinberger and under urgent Pentagon study is to reopen the assembly line for the giant C-5 cargo plane, which can accommodate the MX missile and launch it from the air. Weinberger has been told that 100 new C-5s could be ready to carry 100 MX missiles by 1985.

But lacking long-duration flying time without touching ground would expose the C-5 to roughly the same vulnerability to sudden-surprise attack that threatens B-52 bombers, only a small portion of which is constantly in the air. Air Force strategists fear that using the C-5 to fill the "interim" gap would fail to solve the problem: a survivable basing system for the MX by 1985.

The committee of experts, headed by Dr. Charles Townes, that Weinberger appointed to recommend a basing system for the MX missile has completed a split-decision report that Weinberger has tentatively rejected. Insiders say the report steers clear of precise take-it-or-leave-it solutions. However, its consensus clearly favors some kind of land-based system — although not the Carter proposal. Townes also recommended thorough study of a future airborne system, partly to give the administration running room if it decided to take that route. Townes was careful to avoid foreclosing any possible choice that President Reagan might decide on.

THUS, WEINBERGER may yet decide to proceed with a scaled-down land-based system to solve the problem of the gap between 1986 and 1990, then switch to his first-choice airborne system when the long-duration airplanes are ready to fly.

This is the solution being lobbied hard by Pentagon critics of the C-5 interim solution. Air Force specialists, with some strong support within the White House, want an interim land-based system — probably some variation of the Carter plan — to solve the problem of vulnerability until the new aircraft are ready. They claim that a mobile land system for 100 MX missiles, half the number Carter planned, could be completed by 1985 or 1986.

With Weinberger all but committed to an airborne solution, the fight now is how to fill the gap, and it looks to be bitter both inside the Pentagon and out.

Around the rim Watt's the matter?

Richard Horn

Have you heard the latest James Watt joke?

Q. What is James Watt's idea of a wilderness area?

A. A parking lot without yellow stripes!
Yuk, yuk, yuk, yuk, yuk.

James Watt, our much-hated much-loved Secretary of the Interior, has inspired more discussion and comment than his position probably deserves. He is appreciated and supported by those who feel his view of the environment is well-balanced, and just short of despised by environmentalists who fear he doesn't give a hoot about the land and wildlife.

WHAT'S INTERESTING about this is that Mr. Watt obviously loves it. He has seemed to go out of his way to make himself look ugly in the eyes of his opponents, and he told Reagan immediately after his appointment that he planned to be so controversial the president may have to fire him.

There are those who believe his wish may soon come true.

To be sure, placing a dedicated conservation-fighter like James Watt in charge of the environment is a little like placing John McEnroe in charge of British protocol, but the reality of what Watt intends, and is allowed, to do is not so horrible. He wants to:

- 1) Develop a long-range plan for careful development of America's natural resources.
- 2) Use the department's money to improve existing parks before purchasing new ones.
- 3) Ease the federal government's hold on land in the western U.S. and in Alaska.
- 4) Give private concessionaires more of a say in how the National Parks are run.

Those goals are controversial, and their success depends on Watt's pledge to develop natural resources with the care of a surgeon. But trying to develop slowly instead of going about in the panic of an energy crisis is wise. If that is what he intends to do.

Overall, however, there is not much indication that Watt wants to put a steel mill in Yosemite, or sell the Grand Canyon to Texaco. The Department of the Interior is not a park ranger service, it is a land management office.

BUT WHAT HAS so many people up in arms and calling for Watt's head is the way the man goes about things. He takes great pride in the fact that he was so bored with rafting through the Grand Canyon that he had himself helicoptered out after three days. That would boil the blood of any land-loving backpacker.

He has said on numerous occasions that he wants to use the Reagan administration's budget-cutting process to change the policies of the Department of Interior. He has said that we need not worry about saving endangered species since we can't even get rid of the cockroach. And last but not least, he testified that protecting the environment is not that important since the Lord is coming back soon anyway.

There's a man that knows how to get people to dislike him.

It would be fine if it all had some purpose. But Watt seems to go into these debates with no other purpose in mind than to watch environmentalists squirm.

I'M SURE THERE are a lot of people that enjoy watching them squirm, too, but unfortunately Watt is only hurting his cause. Membership in various conservation groups has increased markedly since his appointment, and most of the people say they are joining specifically to fight Watt's policies. On top of that many Republican congressmen are calling for his resignation because they know he will soon be a political liability.

If Watt goes, there will probably be those who will try to make him into a martyr. Unfortunately he has not been in office long enough to attain that status. If Watt goes, it will probably be suicide.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How can I be sure that I am ready for heaven? I have committed my life to Christ but wonder if that is enough. — R.D.

DEAR R.D.: The Bible tells us there is only one requirement for going to heaven, and that is a personal trust in Jesus Christ as our Lord and Savior.

"For God did not send his Son into the world to condemn the world, but to save the world through him. Whoever believes in him is not condemned, but whoever does not believe stands condemned already because he has not believed in the name of God's one and only Son" (John 3:17-18).

I want to be clear on this because I am afraid there are many people who misunderstand God's plan of salvation. Many people, for example, believe that the only requirement for getting into heaven is being good enough. Perhaps (they suggest) if your good deeds are more numerous than your bad deeds, then God will reward you by letting you into heaven.

But this is not what the Bible teaches. The Bible instead tells us that God is holy and perfect, and will not allow anyone into heaven who has even the least stain of sin. "Nothing impure will ever enter it, nor will anyone who does what is shameful or deceitful, but only those whose names are written in the Lamb's book of life" (Revelation 21:27).

Since none of us can ever be good enough, does that mean there is no hope for eternal life in heaven? No! There is hope, because Jesus Christ has opened up a different way for us. He has done for us what we could never do for ourselves.

He has fulfilled God's law perfectly, and through his death on the cross he has made sacrifice for our sins. He offers us forgiveness and salvation, and it is possible by trusting him and turning to him as Savior and Lord. "For it is by grace you have been saved, through faith... not by works, so that no one can boast" (Ephesians 2:8-9).

Are you ready for heaven? Have you taken that step of personal commitment to Jesus Christ, and invited him into your life to be your Lord and Savior? If not, make that commitment right now.

Murphy's Law works in medicine

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am expecting a baby. I was planning on having a dermabrasion done. Is this still possible with me being pregnant? Also could you tell me a little about what to expect with dermabrasion? — M.L.

Your question is far from areas in which I can claim any effective knowledge. So I submitted it to my panel of dermatologists and gynecologists. As always, when you ask more than one expert anything you get at least a couple of opinions. The consensus is that it is safe for you to have a dermabrasion.

However, since ANY procedure MAY have complications (infection, for example), and since complications MAY require treatment with drugs, why not delay the dermabrasion until after your pregnancy? Murphy's Law can even work in medicine.

Dermabrasion (please excuse this coarse comparison) is somewhat like sanding the outer surface of a scratched desk top. An electric drill peels away the outer, acne-scarred layers of skin. New skin grows back. During the period of regrowth the face is quite red and sensitive for about a month. It should be protected against the sun.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My mother-in-law was put on aspirin after she suffered a stroke four years ago. Now her doctor says that she doesn't need it because aspirin for stroke prevention works only for men, and not for women. Is this so? It sounds funny to me. — Mrs. H.C.

Aspirin is an anti-platelet (anti-clotting) drug. The reasoning behind its use is to prevent clots from forming in the arteries, where, as you know, one might travel and block blood flow to the brain.

Your doctor is correct; one large investigation on the usefulness of aspirin to prevent this kind of stroke indicated it was effective only for men. The reason for this is unclear, but I am sure the reason behind such a statistical finding is being pursued.

As you know, all medical investigation is closely scrutinized and restudied before conclusions are drawn. That is what is happening in the aspirin story. Meanwhile, the uncertainties about such reports pose frustrations for both doctors and patients. I do know neurologists treating post-stroke female patients, and who give them aspirin as an anti-stroke measure.

I cannot, as much as I would like to be able to, comment on how effective this treatment is. We should have more reliable answers soon. For your other questions, see the discussion of stroke and its causes in the booklet "Stroke Recovery — Hope and Help." CREDIT WHERE CREDIT IS DUE — Credit card authorization tie ups at the cash register will soon be a thing of the past for stores using GTE Telenet's new Micro Fone credit authorization terminal. Seen here being inspected by QC technician Edna Melevin at the company's Mt. Laurel, N.J., facility, the microprocessor-based device "reads" a card's magnetic stripe, automatically calls for an okay, and visually reports the result of its inquiry in as little as 20-seconds. The unit, which can also be used as a conventional phone, has been selected by Visa for a national evaluation study.

Increasing your deductible helps lower insurance costs

Inflationary pressures have hit the car owner, the homeowner and insurance industry alike.

It costs more to repair cars. It costs more to rebuild homes. And, because of the same inflationary pressures, the costs of insurance, which helps pay for car repairs and home rebuilding, have also gone up.

Despite these pressures, however, policyholders are not as helpless as they may think.

"One way you can keep your insurance costs down is by increasing the deductible on your insurance policy," a spokesperson for Allstate Insurance Company says.

The deductible is the amount of money specified in your insurance contract that you are responsible for before an insurance company reimburses you for your loss.

"We support the concept of insureds assuming higher deductibles on their policies and reward it with lower premiums. They insure against the more costly losses and assume the smaller losses which they can sustain easier."

Before increasing the deductible limits on all your policies, there are several considerations to take into account. Examine the different insurance discounts being offered. Also, look at income tax deductions and their limitations for losses you may suffer — and the odds of having a loss and what the loss may cost you.

Most insurance companies will have a set limit on the amount of deductible a policyholder may assume. For instance, in most states, Allstate will allow deductibles as high as $500 on its homeowners policies, $500 on its auto collision coverage and $250 on its auto comprehensive coverage.

What about losses? How often will they occur? The odds of having a loss are greater for the auto policyholder than the homeowner policyholder, the Allstate spokesperson says.

Therefore, you may want to assume a lower deductible on your auto policy. The higher auto premium may be offset if you decide to increase the deductible on your homeowners policy.

With personal property there is more to consider.

Personal property that would be covered to certain limits under your homeowners policy — such as jewelry, watches and furs — may be claimed as an income tax deduction if they are not insured and a loss occurs. These losses, however, qualify for Uncle Sam's subtraction table only after $100 of the loss of each item is assumed by the owner. For example, an $800 fur coat that is stolen qualifies for a $700 deduction on your federal income tax.

If the property is insured and the insurance company reimburses you for only $600 — based on depreciation — then your tax deduction is limited to the amount not covered by the insurance company.

And still, laws may limit your recovery to the item's original purchase price or its fair market value immediately before the loss. Or the loss may not be allowed at all if you do not have the original bill of sale.

For full protection of items that may appreciate in value over the years, it is a good idea to insure them to their full market value.

The purchase of a homeowners policy endorsement like Allstate's "Coverage J" — insurance for jewelry, watches and furs — will increase the recoverable limit on your homeowners policy. For instance, if your homeowners policy has a $500 limit on jewelry, watches and furs, the company's endorsement will allow you to increase the coverage to $4,000.

Or an endorsement to your homeowners policy that will schedule, by listing in the contract the property and the insured value you specify, will serve that purpose.

The extra cost to your homeowners policy for those coverages could be offset when you increase the deductible on the policy.

Consider all factors before repairing old air conditioner

Several factors need to be considered when deciding about replacing or repairing an air conditioning system, says an agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Don't just compare costs for parts and labor with the price tag for a new air conditioner.

Systems five or more years old generally are less energy efficient than new systems, so it's important to determine the potential savings of a new system. Also consider a system that can be used for both heating and cooling, and think about adding insulation and other energy saving features that might reduce the size of air conditioner needed.

Dear Abby

Photographer Presses All Kinds of Buttons

DEAR ABBY: FUNNY NAVEL wrote to say that she was embarrassed to wear her bikini to the beach because she had a funny-looking navel. She said, "It's not round like a normal belly button, it's square, and I keep a dime stuck in it to keep it from popping out."

You told her to take the dime out of her navel and call a plastic surgeon. Shame on you, Abby, for suggesting that she change its natural shape!

I hope I'm not too late because I'd like to get in touch with this lady. I'm a singer, composer and writer with a special interest in navels, which I consider the most erotic part of the human anatomy.

Unique navels have always fascinated me. In fact I am writing a book on the subject, and have a collection of photographs of unusual navels from all over the world. I would like to photograph your correspondent's navel for my book. Will you please send me her name and address?

BELLY BUTTON BUFF

DEAR BUFF: Alas, FUNNY NAVEL requested anonymity. However, you possess a rare kind of navel intelligence. Good luck with your book. I hope you get the no-belly prize.

DEAR ABBY: IN THE MIDDLE asked if she should decline invitations from her ex-husband's family to attend their family gatherings. It seems that her "ex" has remarried and his new wife is uncomfortable at family gatherings with Wife No. 1 present, so consequently Wife No. 2 stays away — and so does her husband.

Abby, you told the "ex" wife that if she was invited, it meant she was wanted, and she should go if she wished. If Wife No. 2 was "uncomfortable" and stayed away, that was her problem.

While your answer sounds reasonable, let's face it, Abby, that's not being fair to the new wife. I know.

My husband was married before, and I know how difficult it is to become accepted by John's family. They loved John's first wife, Marge, was part of their family for 10 years, and the fact that John and Marge have children makes it even harder for me to compete.

The ex-wife should let go of those old family ties and give the new wife a chance to become part of her husband's family. If there is real affection between Wife No. 1 and her ex-husband's family, they can invite her on occasions other than family gatherings. Her "ex" and his new wife belong there — she doesn't. And if Wife No. 1 is invited, knowing if she accepts Wife No. 2 will stay away, she should have the good sense to decline.

IN THE MIDDLE TOO

DEAR IN: You make a good point. But this sticky situation could be avoided if the family would refrain from inviting former members, unless they know for sure everyone will be comfortable.

DEAR ABBY: Please referee. Situation: Man makes luncheon date with woman — a new acquaintance. Half an hour before meeting time, woman telephones man and cancels lunch date in haste, offering no explanation. She says she will call him later in the afternoon. Man goes to lunch. As man is walking toward cashier, in walks broken lunch date with man No. 2. Man No. 1 does not know man No. 2. Man No. 1 greets woman with, "Why, hello there" or something. Woman smiles and says, "Hello" or something. Man No. 1 pays cashier and leaves.

Later that afternoon woman calls man No. 1 and accuses him of being rude and inconsiderate for not stopping to chat a moment, at least long enough to be introduced to man No. 2. Man No. 1 says "Nuts!" Who's right?

JUST CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Man No. 1. The woman is clever. She knows that the best defense is a good offense.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby: 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Economical party tips are given

Just because you're counting pennies doesn't mean you have to scrimp when giving a party, says "Entertaining at Home," a magazine in the 1981 Family Circle Great Ideas series of themed specials. To cut costs without sacrificing the quality of your menu, try these novel party ideas:

Give a sausage and mustard tasting party. Choose from sweet and hot Italian sausage, Polish kielbasa, German knockwurst and the all-American frankfurter. Serve complimentary mustards, a baked bean casserole and lots of beer. Invite guests for a dessert smorgasbord. Balance one or two elaborate cakes — like Sacher Torte, Black Forest Cake, Gateau St. Honore — with tiny butter cookies and a bowl of chilled fresh fruit sprinkled with wine and confectioner's sugar.

Make a breakfast party, even if it's noon. Traditional early morning fare, such as pancakes, eggs and muffins, is good anytime.

Make homemade pickles with brine

By JANET ROGERS
County Extension Agent

Have you ever wondered how you could make pickles at home? One way is to put such vegetables as cucumbers, cabbage, or green tomatoes in a brine made of a mixture of salt and water and let them set about three weeks. They go through a fermentation and are called brined pickles. The brined cabbage is what we generally call sauerkraut.

Another way is to brine such vegetables as cross cut cucumber slices, sweet gherkins or green beans a few hours or overnight, drain them and pack them with boiling hot vinegar, spices and other seasonings. These are quick to prepare and are known as fresh-pack pickles.

Fruit pickles are usually prepared from whole fruits and simmered in a spicy sweet-sour syrup. Pears, peaches and watermelon rinds are often pickled.

Relishes are prepared from fruits or vegetables and are chopped, seasoned, and then cooked to a desired consistency. Relishes include picalilli, pepper — onion, tomato-apple chutney, tomato-pear chutney, horse-radish and corn relish.

Whether you make brined, fresh pack, fruit pickles or relishes, your family will enjoy eating pickles made using any of the old time favorites you may choose to make.

Texas Leaguers rally for big All-Star win

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

The Big Spring Texas League All-Stars rallied from an 8-2 deficit to take an exciting 10-9 win over the Midland North Central team and remain as only one of two unbeaten teams in the District III Little League Tournament here last night.

The win moves the Texas League team into the finals of the winners bracket against Midland Eastern, which dumped the Lamesa All-Stars 9-0. That contest will take place tomorrow night in the National League Park. Both teams are undefeated.

Four teams remain alive in the District III affair with one loss each, but that field will be reduced in half tonight when these teams meet each other. At the National League field, the Lamesa team will face Midland Mid-City, while the American League diamond will feature the Big Spring National League against North Central.

The survivors of tonight's contests will meet in the finals of the losers bracket tomorrow night at the AL Park.

The Texas League win was a wild one from the start.

TUESDAY

BIG SPRING, TEXAS JULY 21, 1981

SECTION B

SECTION B

It looked like a pitchers duel in the first inning, but gradually changed, with the North Central team building up an 8-2 advantage entering the bottom of the fourth.

But the Texas League took advantage of some North

Central miscues to plate six runs in that frame without the benefit of a hit, and move back into a tie.

From that point, the Texas Leaguers moved on for the big win.

Jay Fryar had an early RBI double for the Texas League, with Samuel Rodriguez, Phillip Matthews, and Ramon Ontiveros all adding singles.

North Central collected nine hits in the contest, but it was all in vain. Leading the charge was Jeff Connally with three singles. Jason Logi had a triple, Kim Werner a double, and a single with Joe Eldridge, Lance Wood and Drue Reeves all chipping in with singles.

In the other contest, there would be no comeback, thanks mainly to the pitching of Carlos Lozano of Midland Eastern. Lozano limited the Lamesa All-Stars to only three hits en route to hit team's 9-0 rout.

Those hits were singles by Wes Shook, Tim Berry and Tim Demerson.

Pacing the Eastern charge were Rocky Sanchez and Frederick Dawson, both having extra base hits.

Eastern, the defending champion of District III, has allowed only one run in 13 innings.

Tonight's games should be pitchers' duels, if past performances mean anything.

The National League is expected to send John Olson to the mound against North Central's Logi. Olson hurled a one-hitter in defeating Stanton 2-1 last week, while Logi allowed three hits in hurling North Central to a 2-1 triumph over Midland Mid-City.

Carl Pennington will be on the mound for Lamesa. He allowed only two hits in an 11-1 triumph over Midland Western, while his mound foe will be Mid-City's Curtis Tipton, who allowed but four hits and struck out 10 in a 2-1 loss to North Central.

May be good news for baseball

Blackout imposed on strike talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mouthpieces have been gagged in the baseball talks — once they leave the negotiating table. Whether that means stadiums will soon ring with the cry of "Play ball!" remains to be seen.

The two sides in the 40-day-old strike were to resume negotiations over the issue of free-agent compensation at 9:30 a.m. EDT today, with a news blackout imposed at the suggestion of Labor

Secretary Raymond Donovan.

Donovan was due back at today's talks after spending some four hours with the two sides Monday, the first session in Washington after more than two months in New York.

"We've had face-to-face talks all afternoon. There's a press blackout," said Kenneth Moffett, acting head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service and the mediator for almost two year's in baseball's war over free-agent compensation.

Moffett refused to discuss what went on at the session in the federal agency's downtown headquarters, but later told the Associated Press that negotiators "had never been further apart."

Generally, news blackouts are viewed as protection for negotiations reaching a critical stage or close to settlement. Moffett declined to characterize the blackout imposed Monday that way, but reiterated that he felt the intensive media coverage of the talks while in New York had hindered progress.

"The main reason for the blackout is the same reason we came to Washington," he said. "The two sides should be allowed to talk back and forth without having to come down here (to the press room) like it's a tennis match."

Members of the two negotiating teams declined comment as they left the building.

"Hope you guys have a nice evening," Raymond Grebey, director of the owners' Player Relations Committee, said to reporters as he departed.

Marvin Miller, the usually talkative executive director of the Major League Players Association, would only smile and nod as reporters approached him.

Donovan also declined comment.

Donovan met with each side separately for about 45 minutes Monday, then attended a joint negotiating

Press hasn't hindered baseball talks in NY

Moving to Washington a cop out

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Now that we've reached the 40th day and 40th night without baseball, the parties in this flying circus called strike negotiations have marched off to Washington, two-by-two probably, in a sort of modern-day Noah's Ark operated by Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan.

The reason for the change in venue, as explained by federal mediator Kenneth Moffett, an otherwise level-headed guy, was to get the talks out of the glare of the media. At last, we have found a suitable villain for this summer without baseball.

If you buy that explanation, then Ray Grebey (who will be played in the film version of this epic by George C. Scott) and Marvin Miller (Douglas Fairbanks Jr. in the movie) are innocent of any guilt in this baseball-less merry-go-round. The cause of all the problems says Moffett (David Hartman gets this role) are those nosy folks with pads and pencils or microphones and cameras.

Baloney. The negotiators were well-insulated from the media during talks in New York City. Fifteen floors of a Manhattan hotel separated the bargaining table from the press room and no newsmen went upstairs to force the two sides to come down. Miller and Grebey visited the press room if, and when, they were good and ready to do so.

For the most part, the media was well-behaved. On the one occasion that demeanor broke down, Donovan himself was the person responsible. Instead of agreeing to go to the press room, step in front of the microphones and make a statement in an orderly fashion, Donovan chose to carry on a running news conference in the lobby of the hotel. The media had to scramble that day, which must have been the way Donovan wanted it. But to his credit, the labor secretary did stop and help one cameraman who was knocked down and nearly trampled in the stampede.

If Moffett and Donovan didn't want the media coverage, there was a simple way to avoid it. Instead of announcing where and when the negotiations will be held each day, they could have simply plucked the talks out of the public arena. There are plenty of private federal offices in New York City where the negotiations could have been held without the media being able to nail them down.

But there was no effort to hide the negotiations and, because baseball happens to be a rather high-visibility industry, the talks attracted widespread coverage. It should not have come as any surprise to those involved.

The negotiators for both sides in this tug of war are labor professionals, accustomed to the glare of the spotlight. They know how to handle it and, in fact, often tried to use the media to their advantage.

Bosox boss

OKs union

BOSTON (AP) — Haywood Sullivan, co-owner and general manager of the Boston Red Sox, says that if the 40-day-old baseball strike heads into September he favors wiping out the remainder of the 1981 major league season.

"One thing I don't want to see happen is to have a World Series, or playoffs, called a sham," Sullivan said Monday. "I'd rather not have a season than see that happen."

"If we start heading into September (with the strike), you know how I'd vote on picking up the season."

"Starting with a month to go would be like selling five pounds of potatoes when you advertise 10 on the bag."

Despite the strike, Sullivan said the lack of a players' union would create chaos in major league baseball.

Sullivan, breaking a self-imposed silence on the strike after an amateur all-star game at Fenway Park, strongly denied that club owners want to break the Players' Association.

"I honestly can say that I have not heard one of the 26 owners say they have to get rid of or break the union," he told an impromptu news conference. In his opinion, that's the last thing we would want to see happen.

"It would cause chaos. I would rather have the association to deal with because it helps to keep rules and order."

Asked if "other forces" might be trying to get control of major league baseball, Sullivan replied, "You said it, I didn't."

Then, he added: "Can you imagine what it would be like trying to get an agreement with 150 agents rather than one association?"

As for the prolonged strike, Sullivan said "it will take a while for all this to blow over and heal the wounds." He said there also will have to be "one helluva public relations program to bring things back to where they were."

But, he added, "the game is going to outlive us all" because it is "too simple yet too complex to let anyone control it."

Attendance up in every league

Minor leagues booming with major league strike

Montana, land of cattle and copper, is also red-hot baseball country these days.

"It's amazing," says Lew Morris, president of the Billings Mustangs of the rookie Pioneer League, "we're drawing like mad for a team with a losing record." Despite dropping eight of their first 11 home games, the Mustangs attracted 32,943 fans, a 75 per cent leap in attendance over last year and 8,000 more than they drew during their entire 34-game schedule in 1977.

Why baseball is such a hit in Billings is an easy question for Morris to answer. "The baseball strike has definitely had a bearing on it," he says. "The fans don't have major league baseball to watch here on TV anymore. Minor league baseball has become an alternative."

Billings is not alone. Several other areas show attendance benefits apparently as a result of the strike by major league players, now in its sixth week. And just about everyone in the minors is benefitting from the sudden attention.

"The main impact has been from radio, television and cable companies," says John H. Johnson, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues. "I have never seen this much interest in the minor leagues. The exposure we're getting will show that we have a good quality game and will help us in the long run. Publicity-wise, we've done very well."

Shock waves are being felt from Portland to Pawtucket

"We're a Page One item now," notes Dave Hersh, general manager of the Portland Beavers of the Pacific Coast League.

"Space in the papers has usually been used for major league baseball — but now it's on the minors. Our attendance has doubled since the strike. A terrific winning streak and some fine weather has helped. But we've never been treated this well before in the press.

For too many years, recently, college baseball has been treated with glamour, but the minors haven't. The strike is creating a new appreciation for minor league baseball."

US looking tough in World University games

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Host nation Romania won two gold medals, the defending champion United States basketball team got off to a fast start and International Olympic Committee

President Juan Antonio Samaranch warned of possible troubles ahead on the first day of the World University Games Monday. Romanian gymnast Kurt Seidler, a crowd favorite said to be the boyfriend of former Olympic gymnastics champion Nadia Comaneci, had to share his individual gold medal with Yuri Korolev of the Soviet Union after the Soviets protested an apparent scoring error.

Officials had flashed Seidler's winning score of 57.59 points onto the scoreboard and gave Korolev 57.90. But minutes later the standings were changed showing both gymnasts with the identical higher score. A Romanian official said the change was due to a mathematical error.

Soviet Artur Akopjan took the men's individual bronze medal.

Romania took the men's team gold medal with a score of 173.50, ahead of the Soviet Union and China.

Gymnastics was the only sport in which medals were awarded Monday. The Games, which have attracted more than 5,000 athletes from 80 nations, continue through the next 10 days.

The U.S. men's basketball team completely outclassed Senegal 91-35 in its opening group match, but Coach Tom Davis of Boston College warned the squad about the dangers of overconfidence after its walkover against the Africans.

"I told them I didn't know if they were good enough to win here," he said. "The gap has been closing every year between the U.S. and the international competition. This year there may not be a gap."

The muscular, fast-moving, American team next takes on South Korea, which beat Greece 91-72. If the U.S. squad advances to the semifinals, it figures to face Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union.

The American women beat Finland 68-49 in a preliminary basketball match.

Track and field competition began Tuesday with Willie Banks of UCLA favored in the triple jump and Michael Carter of Southern Methodist the leading contender for the shot put title.

The pole vault promised tough competition between world record holder Vladimir Polyakov of the Soviet Union and Thierry Vigneron of France, the only two men ever to clear 19 feet.

Mel Lattany of the University of Georgia topped the field in the 100 meters, with Cliff Wiley of Kansas facing 1980 Olympic champion Viktor Markin of the Soviet Union in the 400.

As competition got underway Monday, IOC President Samaranch said he was concerned that a U.S. three-game tour by the South African Springboks rugby team could lead to a boycott of the Los Angeles Olympics in 1984.

Kush's style criticized by CFL players

HAMILTON, Ontario (AP) — Frank Kush travels with trouble. That's generally the way his bosses like it.

Long before Kush arrived in the Canadian Football League with his taskmaster theories, his rigid training methods were known throughout the American college scene.

There was never a doubt his ways proved successful at the collegiate level. Kush, in 22 years at Arizona State, amassed a record of 173 victories, 52 losses and a tie — second among active U.S. college coaches to Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama.

However, issuing similar demands on professionals — specifically the Hamilton Tiger Cats — seems to have had a negative reaction. There have been grumblings among Hamilton players that Kush's sessions are too rigid, his ways too strict.

Those who take exception or question his methods have been ignored for the most part or, in some cases, traded.

The latest controversy arose after a 36-4 loss Friday to the Calgary Stampeders. The subject was spitting, the practice of players taping their shoes to their feet and ankles.

Kush claims it's a potentially dangerous practice and outlawed it as "a precautionary measure." He says a player he coached in college injured his ankle and the injury was compounded before the training staff was able to cut the tape.

Kush's players, however, don't agree that one incident is reason enough for them to jeopardize their careers by not providing additional support for their own limbs — a practice some have maintained since their high school days.

"I've been spitting for seven years as a pro, four years in college and four years in high school," said all-pro cornerback Dave Shaw, an outspoken critic of Kush who doesn't hide the fact he wants to be traded, preferably to Toronto Argonauts. "My shoes roll off my feet when I cut and the tape restricted that."

"I don't like playing without it."

Nor does running back David Green, who had a spat with Kush about spitting prior to the Calgary game and eventually went over the head coach — to the team doctor — to get approval to tape his ankle for the Stampeders game.

Green, the outstanding player in the CFL in 1979, was benched in the fourth quarter and several Ticats players said it was Kush's response to the player's insistence that his injured ankle be taped. Kush, however, denied that was the reason and Green was reluctant to comment.

"This game is a business and I have to worry about David Green," Green offered when asked about the incident. "If I get my ankle injured, he (Kush) will just get another running back."

Michael no more other brother

By the Associated Press

A picture comes to mind: Michael Spinks hugging brother Leon in a Las Vegas hotel-casino complex.

Leon had just upset Muhammad Ali to become the heavyweight champion of the world and make Michael a camp follower, his own promising light heavyweight career put on hold.

"I just had to take a layoff," said Michael. "There wasn't any reason for both of us to be fighting. I wouldn't have been comfortable."

It was tough for Michael Spinks, watching Leon being pushed and pulled by people and the pressure of the heavyweight title. It was tough to the point that he once said, "I don't think I could have taken it if he would have won the rematch with Ali."

Then in December 1978, 11 months after Leon became champion and three months after he became ex-champion, Michael Spinks became a fighter again. And last Saturday, there he was once more, embracing Leon in a ring in another Las Vegas gambling hall.

"I hugged him and we shed tears," said Michael. "We both wanted this."

Four days shy of his 25th birthday, Michael Spinks had become the World Boxing Association light heavyweight champion, scoring a unanimous 15-round decision over Eddie Mustafa Muhammad.

"This is what I've always wanted," added the man who, in the mind of the general public, has been the other Spinks since the night he and Leon won Olympic gold medals at Montreal in 1976.

The victory over Muhammad made Spinks the last of the five U.S. gold medalists to fight for a world professional championship, and the fourth to win one.

Leon Spinks was the first of the golden boys to win a title. Then Sugar Ray Leonard, the goldiest of the golden boys — he's earned about $25 million in the ring — won the World Boxing Council welterweight title, lost it, regained it and won the World Boxing Association junior middleweight title. Leo Randolph won the WBC super bantamweight title, lost it and retired. The only one to fail has been Howard Davis, who lost on points to Jim Watt in a bid for the WBC lightweight title.

NFL shows Raiders one of more profitables

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The antitrust trial of the Oakland Raiders and the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission's suit against the National Football League appears to be nearing an end.

As the 11th week of the trial in U.S. District Court began Monday, Judge Harry Pregerson told jurors he expected this would be the final week of testimony and that deliberations may begin by the middle of next week.

The Raiders and the L.A. Coliseum Commission are suing the NFL over the league's refusal to allow the team to move to Los Angeles.

According to an NFL exhibit introduced Monday at the trial, the league had $326 million in total income in 1979.

16-18 yr. All-Stars named

The All-Stars for the Big League have been announced, and they will begin their preparation for the upcoming District Tournament in Abilene, which will be held the last weekend in July.

Making the Big Spring All-Star team for this age group (16-18) were Russell Stukel, Blake Rosson, Tommy Olague, Tommy Rodriguez, Adam Rodriguez, James Walker, Oscar Limon, David Anguiano, Mark Warren, Mark Shaver, Bobby Brasel, Rusty Hayworth, Jinx Valenzuela, Kevin Watson and Waine Shipman. Manager for the All-Stars will be John Velasquez.

Biles excited about Mo Towns

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — New head coach Ed Biles was delighted when fifth year offensive tackle Mo Towns reported to the Houston Oilers training camp Sunday weighing 256, a far cry from the flabby physique he's sported some previous years.

"He looks super," Biles said. "It's a tribute to his off season workout program." The Oilers were expecting Towns to report at 275.

Angelo Fields survived Sunday's single workout, after the heat forced him to drop out of one Saturday.

"I think Angelo has learned his lesson," Biles said. "In future years I bet he'll lose his weight a little sooner."

Cuts, signees galore as NFL camps open

By the Associated Press

National Football League teams cut rookies, signed draft choices and prepared to welcome old hands to training camp with less than two weeks remaining today before the start of preseason.

The Hall of Fame Game between the Cleveland Browns and Atlanta Falcons on Saturday, Aug. 1 at Canton, Ohio marks the start of the 1981-82 preseason. Most of the 28 NFL teams, however, must wait until Saturday, Aug. 8 to begin the exhibition season.

In preparation for their season opener, the Falcons cut three free agents — including Texas A&M running back Michael Wright — and welcomed a full contingent of veteran players to camp

Monday night. The veterans were not scheduled to begin workouts until Wednesday, but, like many other "old-timers" feeling the pressure from below, Atlanta wide receiver Alfred Jackson started training a week early.

"Every year I try to set different goals for myself," said Jackson, who reported to camp last week in an effort to crack the starting lineup this season.

so I'm ready," says the 27-year-old Bushak, who hasn't played football since the 1976 Coaches All-America Game.

Alan Page of the Chicago Bears and Jon Keyworth of the Denver Broncos also had a long time to think about their careers, and they have come to slightly different conclusions.

Page, an All-Pro or All-NFC defensive tackle for the past nine years, is entering his 15th NFL season, and he says it will be his last.

"You usually can't say for certain that you will never do something again in your life," Page said, "but I'm fairly confident that this will be my last year playing football."

Keyworth announced his retirement Monday after seven seasons with the Broncos. Last season, he carried the ball only 38 times for 127 yards.

Still another veteran, defensive end Claude Humphrey, arrived at the Philadelphia Eagles camp as a free agent and signed a one-year contract. Humphrey, with 13 NFL years under his belt, had been with Philadelphia the past two seasons.

Elsewhere, the Houston Oilers cut 12 rookies and welcomed veteran running back Ronnie Coleman to camp two days early; free agent offensive lineman Steve Gettel walked out of the Tampa Bay training camp with a foot injury; the Bears signed veteran cornerback Wentford Gaines, a free agent from Cincinnati; tackle-center Justin Cross of Western State College and wide receiver Mike Mosley of Texas A&M signed with Buffalo, and San Diego signed wide receiver Bobby Duckworth of Arkansas and tight end Pete Holohan of Notre Dame.

Oilers make first cuts

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — The Houston Oilers today cut second year offensive guard Darryl Payne and 11 rookies, trimming the roster to 89 players. Payne was on injured reserve his first year.

The rookies placed on waivers were Rick Beasley of Apalachen State, James Copeland of Texas El Paso, Michael Durgin of Harvard, Scott Gallas of Southern Colorado, Tommy Harper of North Texas State, James Holden of Southern Colorado, Jeffery Holmes of Southwestern Louisiana, David Horning of North Carolina State, David Knowles of Angelo State, Kelly Monk of Southwest Texas State and Rodney Smith of Nebraska.

Among those who fit the traditional role of neither rookie nor oldtimer was the Browns' Andy Bushak, a linebacker. Bushak turned down three scholarship offers when he graduated from Valley Forge High School in Ohio and is trying to make the team after five years in the Navy.

"I had a long time to think about this, to prepare for it,

As both sides helped improve league during season

Camp Jaycees honor International LL

The Big Spring International Little League made tremendous progress during the past year, and much of this upward movement was due to the work of the Big Spring Camp Jaycees. 100 members of the Jaycees capped the season by honoring members of the first place Royals, which they sponsored, at a recent banquet.

At the banquet, the Camp Jaycees honored the parents and players on the Royals, giving each team member a personally monogrammed Royals jersey, along with personal honors going to the parents for their participation and cooperation.

International League President Ed Lawson, who has done an excellent job in organizing the help of both of parents and Camp Jaycees to improve the playing conditions, as well as help budget for new uniforms for each team, was also present at the banquet.

A specially monogrammed Royals jersey and baseball cap was presented to Mr. John Allman, Superintendent of the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp for his support of this pilot program in allowing the Big Spring Camp Jaycees to sponsor, coach and manage the Royals baseball team.

J.D. Gregory, staff member and sponsor of the Big Spring Camp Jaycees also received a specially monogrammed Royals jersey and baseball cap for his unselfish and exemplary interest in this pilot program.

Camp residents Ken Exell, Bo Boydston, and Alex Trevino, received the same for their invaluable assistance in coaching and managing the Royals baseball team.

Another camp jaycee, Charley Johnson, the Chairman of this project received a special commendation for his efforts in coordinating all the functions of the Big Spring Camp Jaycees with the International Little League.

He was also cited for being Player Agent of the entire league in establishing and maintaining the eligibility of some 135 players and coordinating the draft, as well as maintaining accurate and complete player records. He also handled all trades and replacements eligible along with team registers and scheduling of games.

Lawson, who gave great credit to the Camp Jaycees, stated, "The Big Spring Camp Jaycees are the reason for this 1981 season being such a success. They maintained and completely kept the baseball field manicured during the year, painted some 27 advertiser billboard signs which were hung on the outfield fence, were the official announcers and score keepers for the ball games, umpired all the games in the latter part of the season, including all play off games, and completely built an announcers booth on top of the concession stand. It is now used for managers meetings and storage of equipment. All this does not include a considerable amount of money donated by the Camp Jaycees to the League when it was in a real need."

Lawson also stated that a careful account contributed during the season was in excess of 3000 man hours worked over a six month period. "Those fellows in the Camp Jaycees are genuinely interested in the welfare of the children as well as a proficiently run league. The International Little League cannot express enough appreciation for what the Big Spring Camp Jaycees have contributed to the league, and mainly to the children," said Lawson.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JULY 25, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You now have a good opportunity to make positive plans that could make your future brighter. Take time to improve your environment. Be more thoughtful of family members.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A close tie has good ideas where your work is concerned, so be sure to listen and take advantage of the suggestions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Consult an adviser you can trust and gain the information you need. Stop feeling sorry for yourself and be more confident.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Discuss monetary and property matters with a close family tie and get excellent results. Make your home more functional.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good day to buy the appliances that can make home life more comfortable. Engage in favorite hobby.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you consult a trusted adviser, you can make your life more successful in the near future. Show that you have ability.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Sitting down with an older friend and getting advice can bring fine results now. You can now make your life more prosperous.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Gain the backing you need for an important project you have in mind. Show increased devotion to loved one. Be logical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good friend can be most inspiring at a time when you could be feeling at a low ebb. Steer clear of a troublemaker.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Discuss your business obligations with an expert who can help you discharge them efficiently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A new idea should be brought to the attention of a long-time friend to gain mutual benefits therefrom.

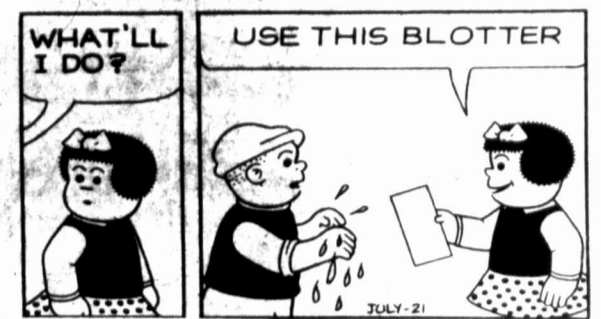

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use your intuition in discharging regular duties, since it is most accurate now. Express your true personality.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you enjoy amusements at a new site with congenials, you can gain unexpected benefits. Try to be more cooperative.

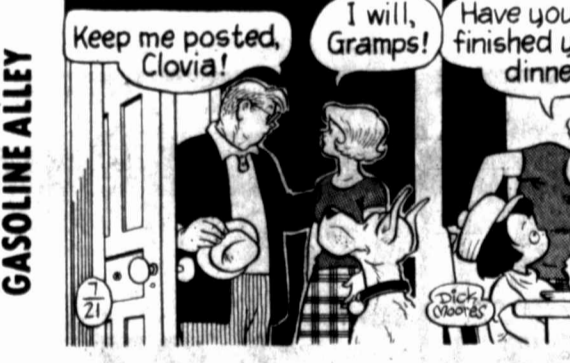

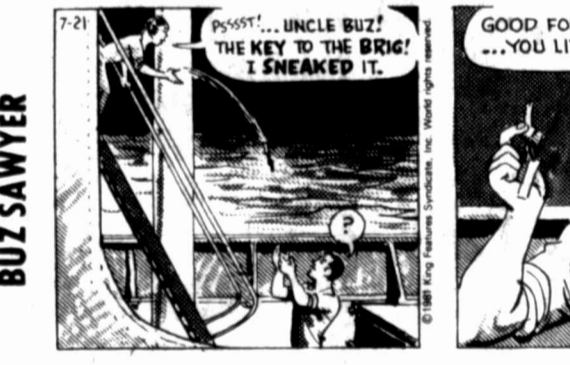

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will require as much education as possible early in life since your progeny will not mature fully until later in life. The chart is excellent for the researcher, particularly in governmental work. Sports are good here.

Rep. Wright to bring home more goodies as speaker?

By JIM DAVIS

North-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — Think ahead to a time in the early 1980s. The place is the National Capitol in Washington, D.C. The issue: election of the next speaker of the U.S. House.

U.S. Rep. Jim Wright of Fort Worth probably will be there, despite a 1982 fight against both would-be successors and a negative publicity attack by a super-conservative committee.

But all congressional redistricting plans so far give Wright a tailor-made district that he should be able to win.

Fort Worth voters know how nice it can be to live in the district of the House majority leader. They've come to expect that their local-boy-made-good will someday become the powerful House speaker, and thus be able to bring home more goodies, such as federal contracts for local industries.

So, let's say that Wright is in the House in our make-believe scene as the speaker is elected by the majority party. What we must try to imagine is whether he is smiling while being sworn in as speaker or sitting with a frown among the other representatives.

Imagine that scene either way, and you can better understand the importance of the congressional redistricting struggle that has been going on in Austin this year.

Wright's political future may be riding on how a few lines are drawn between congressional districts in Texas, and he doesn't have much reason for smiling these days.

Two events are necessary for the congressman to achieve the position he badly wants: The Democrats must retain control of the House, and a majority of those Democrats must support him when Speaker Tip O'Neill of Massachusetts retires.

Democrats these days are reeling under the awesome popularity of President Reagan. They are confused and disheartened, either swinging with pillows at an agile giant or just sitting and waiting for things to improve.

Republicans surprised themselves last year by capturing a majority of the 100 Senate seats. In the 435-member House, they are only 26 seats short of control, and if the Reagan bandwagon keeps rolling through the 1982 elections, they may make it.

The way the boundaries are drawn for congressional districts in Dallas County could determine whether Republicans pick up an extra seat there. They're already expected to win two of the three new seats Texas earned by growing faster than the rest of the country in the 1970s.

It's possible that new Republican representatives from Texas could help give their party a majority and make a Republican the speaker of the House.

Even if the Democrats maintain control of the House, the expected Republican gains could prevent Wright from becoming speaker. His supporters say he can win the speakership easily. But there are Democratic representatives who don't like the idea of a Texan becoming their leader.

They would be happy to support someone else, and if their number gains in the 1982 elections while the GOP is taking Texas seats from Democrats, they might deny Wright his goal. Remember that Wright won his majority leader position in 1976 by only one vote.

Denial of the speakership to Wright would be another victory for Gov. Bill Clements, who is getting more than his share lately.

Two years ago everyone wondered how effective a Republican governor could be in a state government dominated by Democrats. Today the answer is clear: darn effective.

Clements chalked up an impressive record for getting his pet legislation passed in last spring's regular legislative session.

Now, in the special session, he's giving the image of a man in control. Thanks to a political working arrangement with Speaker Bill Clayton, he's pretty much had his way on major legislation in the House. That's particularly true on redistricting.

Then, last week, the Senate gave up the fight and approved basically the congressional redistricting plan Clements wants.

Significantly, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby led the cratering. That left only a few frustrated Democrats muttering in disbelief at Clements' power.

It also adds to Hobby's image — acknowledged even by some of his closest supporters — that he is a nice-type with administrative skills but without the will to play hardball with the governor.

Many Democrats must be wondering when the dark cloud will move away from them. Wright certainly is hoping the move will come before that fateful day when the speakership ballots are cast.

Venezuelan student new Miss Universe

NEW YORK (AP) — Irene Saez Conde had watched the Miss Universe pageant since she was a child, and she had always dreamed of being named the most beautiful woman in the world.

Miss Conde's dream came true Monday night when, as Miss Venezuela, she was crowned Miss Universe 1981.

The 19-year-old civil-engineering student from Caracas said the first thing she did when she learned she had won the pageant was to thank God. Miss Conde won more than $100,000 in cash and prizes along with her title, including a Mazda RX-7 automobile, a sport boat, jewelry, a mink, a wardrobe and $20,000 cash.

Miss Venezuela was among 76 contestants. There had been 77, but Miss Mauritius got homesick and went home Sunday, according to Steve Solomon, a spokesman for the pageant.

The five runners-up were, in order, Miss Canada, Dominique Dufour, 22, of Toronto; Miss Sweden, Eva Lundren, 19, of Pitea; Miss Brazil Adriana Oliveira, 20, of Rio de Janeiro; and Miss Belgium Dominique Van Eeckhout, 20, of Brussels.

The 12 judges for the contest, including Brazilian soccer star Pele, fashion photographer Francesco Scavullo and actor Lee Majors, judged the beauties throughout the week in three ways — swimsuit competition, evening gown competition and personal interviews.

Early in the evening they narrowed the field to 12 semifinalists. Besides the five finalists, they included contestants from Holland, Ecuador, New Zealand, Norway, Germany, Tahiti and the United States. Miss U.S.A. is Kim Seelbrede, a 20-year-old model from Germantown, Ohio.

The Venezuelan ambassador to the United States, Alberto Martini Urdaneta, who came on stage after Miss Venezuela won her title, said, "It is a very happy day for all the country and for all the people. All of Venezuela is with her." He noted that it was the second Miss Venezuela to be chosen Miss Universe in three years.

'Sweeney Todd' tickets on sale

Tickets for Spring City Theatre's summer melodrama, set Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheatre, are available at various locations throughout town.

Tickets may be purchased at Big Spring Athletics, Faye's Flowers, Unique Boutique, Citizen's Federal Credit Union, the Rainbarrel, Brown Shoe Fit, and Margaret's. Director for the production is Cecelia McKenzie. Assistant director is Crystal Deas. Kelly Brockman is technical director. There are 20 speaking roles in the melodrama.

melodrama. It is based on the hit Broadway musical "Sweeney Todd," and poses villainy, heroism and heroinism. The summer melodramas are held in conjunction with the Starlight Specials.

This year, SCT is planning "dinner on the rocks" prior to the show. Hot dogs and all the fixings will be available, as will pop corn and soft drinks.

Texas man killed by lightning

RUIDOSO, N.M. (AP) — A bolt of lightning killed a Texas man camping with a companion at the 10,000-foot level of Sierra Blanca, a mountain in south central New Mexico, state police reported.

Killed by the lightning which struck in the midst of a storm that hit the area early Monday was Edward Grady Taylor, 23, of Lubbock.

Taylor's companion, James Hartman Jr., 24, also of Lubbock, survived and walked out of the area after daybreak Monday to notify authorities.

State police said they believed Hartman survived because his sleeping bag was lying on a foam pad that acted as an insulator. Taylor's sleeping bag was lying directly on the wet ground, state police said.

Authorities said the two men were asleep in a pup tent northeast of the Sierra Blanca summit when the storm struck. Their campsite was well above 10,000 feet, according to a U.S. Forest Service official.

About 2 a.m. Monday, a lightning bolt struck a knoll about 20 feet above the pup tent, Hartman told an officer. The campers were knocked awake, Hartman said, and Taylor was gasping for air and grasping his chest.

Hartman told officers he started heart massage and later tried mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, but it was not enough to save his friend.

Taylor's parents were attending a convention at the Inn of the Mountain Gods near Ruidoso, officials said.

Tractor maintenance course set

A Tractor Maintenance Short Course for adult farmers and all others interested will be held August 17-20 under the sponsorship of the Coahoma High School Vocational Agriculture Department, according to Richard Souther, Superintendent, and Stanley Blackwell, Teacher of Vocational Agriculture.

Mr. Richard Pivonka, Tractor Maintenance Specialist with the Agricultural Education Adult Specialist Program and the Department of Agricultural Engineering at Texas A&M University, will do the instruction.

Mr. Pivonka received his B.S. degree in Mechanized Agriculture from Texas A&M University in 1975. From June 1975 to April 1977, he worked for the Rio Grande Valley Sugar Growers, Inc. as a Mechanical Equipment Foreman. He was responsible for the maintenance of a wide variety of shop and field equipment.

The short course at Coahoma is scheduled to begin Aug. 17 at 7:30 in the Coahoma School Bus Barn. During the dates the short course is in progress, Mr. Pivonka will be available to assist participants with individual tractor problems and to provide "on-the-farm" instruction.

All those interested in attending the short course should write or call the Teacher of Vocational Agriculture, Stanley Blackwell, 394 4863, 394-4542, and 394-4535. Tractor Maintenance Short Course Certificates will be presented to each individual who attends all four of the training sessions.

Mr. Pivonka states that the key to longer tractor life comes from a full knowledge of the fundamentals of an engine and the application of the proper maintenance skills involving lubrication, fuels, carburetion, air cleaners, cooling systems, valves and ignition. Mr. Pivonka will cover the proper adjustments and maintenance of the above with emphasis on the importance of each in obtaining a longer tractor life and improved performance. Throughout the short course, emphasis will be placed on "learning to do by doing" through the use of several demonstration tractors. All enrollees will have the opportunity to perform actual adjustments and maintenance on their own tractors. Safety and operating techniques will also be stressed.

Short courses in tractor maintenance, as well as other subjects, are available to farmers throughout the state under this cooperative program between the Texas Education Agency and Texas A&M University.

Ground school course offered for pilots

Aircraft pilots in this area are invited to participate in pilot ground school courses in preparation for taking Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) written examinations and to increase their aviation knowledge. The courses are offered by the AOPA Air Safety Foundation of Washington, D.C., as part of their nationwide program to enhance air safety.

The program will offer the Private-Commercial Pilot, and Instrument Rating-Instrument Flight Instructor written examination courses, according to Richard D. Kessel, director of the Foundation's Special Courses Department.

The classes will begin Friday, July 31, and continue through Sunday, Aug. 2, at the Inn of the Golden West, 4th & Lincoln Streets, Odessa. FAA written examinations will be given Monday, Aug. 3, at the same location.

Gene Kimble to return home

Gene Kimble, long-time employee of The Herald, is scheduled to return home from Lubbock General Hospital Wednesday, where he has spent the last several weeks.

Kimble underwent hip surgery to improve his mobility. His return to Big Spring was delayed by the fact that he broke a bone in his leg as he sought to ease his discomfort while in traction.

Kimble plans on being back at his desk in The Herald Monday.
