Pipeline supervisor testifies

Meter count refuted Jaco claim

By BILLELDER
STANTON — A Cosden pipeline supervisor testified today that a meter installed to measure the oil flow from a Jaco Oil company tank to a Cosden pipeline registered only two-tenths of a difference between the installation of the meter Dec. 17, 1980, and a reading on Jan. 5, 1981.
Jim Long, testified that the meter read 86441.7 on Dec. 17, and 86441.9 on Jan. 5.
Testimony Wednesday by Texas Ranger Eddie Almond, who investigated Jaco, revealed that at least one run ticket for oil delivery to Cosden had been issued by Jaco between those dates. The Jaco tanks are located on the Currie lease in Howard County.

Wayne McClaun, a former detective for the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates oil production, testified yesterday that he checked Jaco's 250 barrel tank on several dates between Dec. 16 and Jan. 5 and found the tank nearly full each time.
He added, however, that he didn't think the lease was capable of producing the amount of oil Jaco was claiming it produced on a daily basis.
McClaun also testified he could not tell by gauging the tank whether the same oil was inside the tank between Dec. 17 and Jan. 5.
Today's testimony attempted to provide more conclusive evidence as to whether or not the alleged oil scam took place.

D.C. "Butch" Wheeler, owner of Jaco, and John Theford Sims, a company pumper, are accused of delivering less oil to Cosden than they said they did. They are charged with attempted theft over $10,000, and are being represented by former Ector County District Attorney John Green.
Howard County district attorney, Rick Hamby, and his assistant, Don Richard, are representing the state in the trial, which heard its third day of testimony today.
Under questioning by Richard, Lloyd Thomas, a meter-proving technician for Cosden, said he installed a drop meter on Dec. 17 to calibrate the amount of oil flow from the Jaco tank to a Cosden pipeline. He said it was calibrated to be off no more than .9999, meaning it would give a reading that would be off no more than 10 barrels for every 10,000.

Thomas also said that at some point a seal on the meter was found to be broken and the meter appeared to be unreliable.
Long testified that he was present both when the meter was installed and when it was taken off, and said the meter had been slightly damaged, perhaps by transportation in a truck. He said it could still calibrate oil flow.

It was not established when the meter was damaged, but under testimony under Green, long did say that a meter with the seal broken on it would be recognized by law enforcement officials as being unreliable. Thomas testified that the seal had been broken and might be off, "30 or 40 barrels" per 1,000.
A Howard County jury of eight men and four women was excluded from the courtroom during the initial part of this morning's proceedings as attorney's attempted to determine whether the evidence on placement and reading of the meter was admissible. District Judge Jim Gregg ruled that it was, and Thomas and Long repeated their testimony before the jury.

At one point, Green attempted to have Cosden engineering technician Don Weeks, who is advising Hamby and Richard, excluded from the courtroom on the grounds that he was one of Green's potential witnesses.
Judge Gregg ruled that Weeks had been in the courtroom prior to today's testimony, and Weeks was allowed to remain seated at the prosecution's table.
Testimony was set to continue this afternoon in the Martin County Court-house. The trial is being held here because the air conditioning is out in the Howard County courthouse.

Big Spring won't house refugees

The Department of Justice has notified Sen. John Tower of an agreement between the Attorney General of the United States and the governor of Puerto Rico that will provide for the acceptance of approximately 800 Haitian refugees in facilities located in Puerto Rico.
As a result, there will be no additional transfer of refugees at the Krome refugee center in Florida to Big Spring.
The Texas Republican said that after he registered a strong protest, Justice Department officials assured him that neither Big Spring nor the Port Isabel training center at Los Fresnos fit into future plans for relocating Cuban or Haitian refugees.
Haitians already transferred to Big Spring will be detained there only temporarily. The Attorney General does not yet know how long the temporary stay will be, but it is presently the Justice Department's intention to process and remove from Big Spring as many Haitian personnel as possible within the next 30 days.
The senator also said that the government is no longer considering relocating about 1,000 Cuban refugees now being housed at Fort Chaffe, Ark. at the Port Isabel facility.
"I have been assured by the attorney general's office that it is extremely unlikely that any further consideration will be given to the use of Port Isabel as a Cuban refugee center," he said.

GRIMM WITH GRAPHIC — Abilene oilman Jack Grimm holds up a photo taken of the ocean floor in the North Atlantic during a nine-day expedition in search of the luxury-liner Titanic. Grimm, appearing after a news conference in Boston Thursday, claims he has spent nearly 2 million in his search for the lost ocean liner.

Local youth is killed in mishap
Robert Wayne Kinman, 17, Big Spring, was killed about 7:15 a.m., today in an oil field accident in the south part of Mitchell County.
Reports on the fatality are fragmentary but Sheriff Wendall Bryant said young Kinman apparently stepped between coupling equipment in a truck-trailer rig as it was being connected.
The body was taken to Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home, where rites are pending.

Begin rebukes American criticism

Israeli warplanes stage major attacks in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes swept into southern Lebanon again today and the PLO and Lebanon's radio said the fighter-bombers blasted a key bridge in the foothills of Mount Hermon.

The Tel Aviv command said the planes scored accurate strikes at a 130mm cannon near Hasbaya, northeast of the Israeli border town of Metulla, and that all the jets returned safely. The Israelis made no mention of attacking a bridge.
The PLO and Lebanese radio broadcasts said the planes struck at the road bridge that links guerrilla bases in southeastern Lebanon with the eastern Bekaa Valley and the Syrian border at 2 p.m.

The bridge spans the Hasbani River near Hasbaya, which is the forwardmost guerrilla position in the foothills of Mount Hermon about seven miles north of the Israeli border.

There was no immediate report of casualties. Since the latest cycle of violence erupted two weeks ago, five people have been killed by guerrilla rockets in northern Israeli settlements and more than 400 have died in Israeli reprisal strikes in Lebanon.

The PLO reported Israeli missile boats shelled the Rashidieh Palestinian refugee camp south of the port of Tyre by night and then pounded the camp with long-range artillery from the border by day.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Exposure

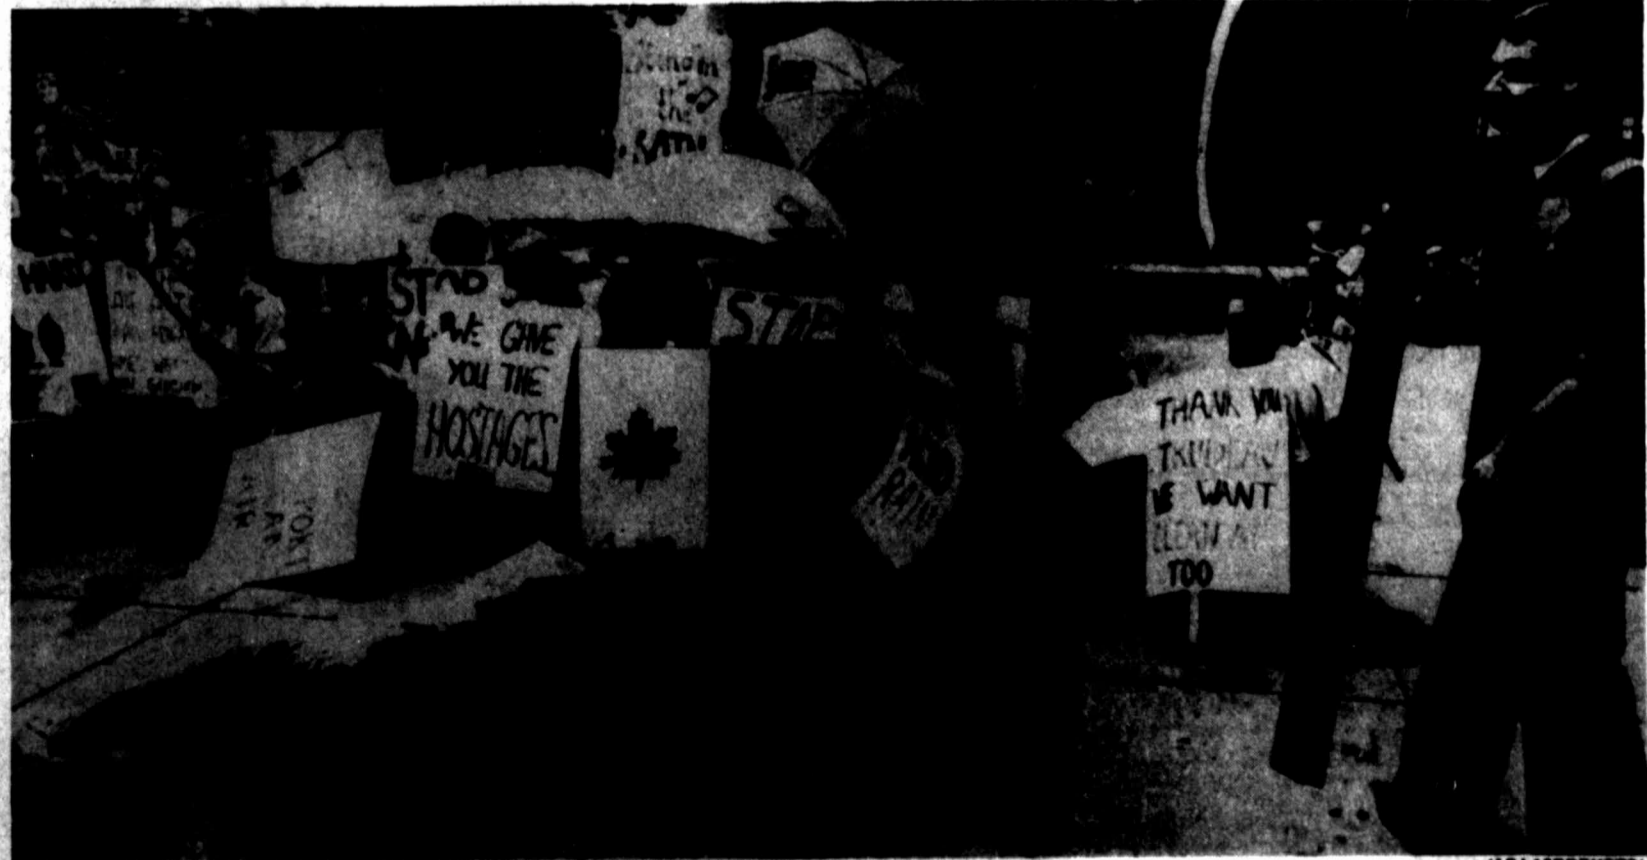

Q. What jobs have the greatest exposure to asbestos?
A. Mechanics who install and replace brake linings, construction workers, miners and shipbuilders are most likely to come into contact with asbestos. Occupational asbestos exposure has been modified since research has pointed up its health hazards. Present workers have available to them many safety measures and safety equipment for protection against such hazards, thus greatly reducing the risk.

Record high military construction bill OKed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee today approved a record-high $6.9 billion military construction spending bill, but withheld all money intended for the MX mobile missile project because of uncertainty over how the nuclear weapon will be based.

Before the unanimous voice vote, Rep. Bo Ginn, D-Ga., chairman of the military construction subcommittee, told the full panel that the $522.3 million the Reagan administration sought for the MX should be deferred.

Leftists imprisoned

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — The Turkish Communist Party says at least 50 men imprisoned for alleged left-wing terrorism and subversion are in the third week of a hunger strike to protest torture in Ankara's Mamek prison.

The government denied the prisoners are refusing to eat. "No matter what you hear don't believe a word," said Col. Yalcin Karakoc, spokesman for the Ankara martial law command. "There is no hunger strike."

A leaflet distributed by the outlawed Communist Party said guards tried to force-feed the hunger strikers and banned family visits to prevent word of the protest from leaking out. The leaflet alleged the inmates, who can be jailed without formal charges under martial law, were subject to sexual abuse, beatings and electric shocks.

Pakistan goes nuclear?

LONDON (AP) — The British weekly magazine New Scientist reported today that Pakistan will have its first nuclear bomb this summer and could test it in China by the end of the year.

The magazine said Pakistani President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq is already negotiating with Peking for a possible nuclear test site.

New type of eye surgery enables local man to see

"I know how the blind man in the Bible felt when he said 'I was blind and now I see.'" This is how Paul Hopper, Howard County native, explained his reaction to a relatively new eye surgery technique. "The verdict is still out on the procedure," he added, "and I don't know that it would work for everyone who has my type of problem. But so far, I now can see and before I couldn't."

He said eye specialists described it as radial keratotomy, which means that a series of radial slices through a couple of layers of the cornea allow the pupil to stretch and the cornea therefore to tend to lie flat. On one of his eyes he has returned for a second series of incisions. No one yet knows if the condition will improve, will stabilize or be permanent, or what the will be the prognosis of scar tissue on the eye. At the moment, however, each day presents a new wide, wonderful world for him.

Hopper quipped that his sight was so bad that he not only was past legally blind but "they had to test my eyes with earphones." Now vision is near normal, but with some side effects at night due to the spoke effect of the cuts.

Hopper supported that suddenly seeing for the first time in years was "almost like a religious experience. It convinced me that God is still in the healing business." Hopper, an area farmer, was presented to the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday by Dick Helms, program chairman.

LARGE CAST — Most of the cast members from "Sweeney Todd, Demon Barber of the Barbary Coast" rehearse one of the scenes from the play, which opens tonight at 8 p.m. in the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheatre. 'Sweeney Todd', old fashioned melodrama, provides thrills, fun

By TINA MILLER
With a cast of the most villainous of villains and the most distressed of damsels, "Sweeney Todd, Demon Barber of the Barbary Coast", is a melodrama the entire family will enjoy.

Presented by Spring City Theatre in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce Starlight Specials, the play is two hours of romance, drama and laughter. The story, set in 19th century San Francisco, centers around Todd, a wicked barber, who buys all the debts of the once wealthy Widow Fairrock. Todd demands payment, knowing she has no money, in order to force her daughter, Lily, to marry him. Lily is, of course, in love with another and refuses to marry the fiend. She weakens, however, when Todd has the Widow thrown in jail, and it is Lily's true love, Sailor Tom, who comes to the rescue at the crucial moment.

Audience participation is encouraged, and any of the following lines are welcome at the appropriate moments: "Boo", "Hiss", "Yes", "The dirty rat", or similar expressions of displeasure or approval. The three-act play is adapted by Tim Kelly from a stage Melodrama by George Pitt, and the novel, "The String of Pearls" by Thomas Prent.

The cast has been rehearsing "Sweeney Todd" since mid-June, and the results of their work are well worth seeing. The play opens at the Amphitheater in Comanche Trail Park at 8 p.m. today and continues through Saturday. Dinner on the rocks (hot dogs and all the trimmings) will be served beginning at 7 p.m., and cokes and popcorn will be available during the two ten minute intermissions. Cost of the play is $3 for adults and $2 for children.

Power firm to operate park at Squaw Creek

Texas Utilities Generating Co. has signed an agreement for operation of a park that is planned to be opened to the public later this year on Squaw Creek Reservoir, the reservoir built to provide cooling water for the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant under construction near Glen Rose.

The recreational facility, to be known as Squaw Creek Park, will consist of approximately 470 acres on the east shore of the reservoir. Much of the reservoir will be opened for fishing, boating and other water sports. The park will be operated by a privately-owned corporation, Squaw Creek Park Inc. The joint owners of Comanche Peak will retain ownership of the park property.

Construction on park roads and a boat ramp will begin this month, with completion expected by the end of 1981. Fees for the use of all park facilities will be $7 per person with a maximum of $8 per car. Those under 16 will be admitted free when accompanied by an adult.

Initially, the park will operate only during daylight hours. The official opening of the park and other details of its operation will be announced as soon as a firm date can be established. No access will be permitted to the park area or reservoir prior to the opening. When the park is opened it will be the only public access to Squaw Creek Reservoir.

Additional facilities to be added to the park will include picnic areas, restrooms and a small pier. Food service, fuel and fishing supplies will also be available. Plans for the long-range development of the park have not yet been finalized.

"Our immediate objective," said J.D. Kuykendall, TUGCO's manager of operations for Comanche Peak, "is to have the park opened to the public as soon as possible. TUGCO is committed to working closely with the operator to assure a recreational facility that will best serve the needs of the public."

TUGCO will operate Comanche Peak for its joint owners - Texas Electric, Dallas Power & Light, Texas Power & Light, the Texas Municipal Power Agency, Brazos Electric Power Cooperative Inc. and Tex-La Electric Cooperative of Texas Inc.

Chrysler still hurts despite being out of intensive care

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp., which reported its first quarterly profit in more than two years, may be "out of intensive care," but industry experts and the automaker's chairman agree the patient could suffer a relapse of red ink in coming months.

Chrysler announced a $11.6 million profit Wednesday for the April-through-June period, amounting to 6 cents a share of common stock.

The report was a sharp turnaround from last year's second quarter, when the company lost $536.1 million, or $8.13 a share.

But analysts and Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca said the automaker needs an improved economic climate with lower interest rates to avert a return to losses for the third quarter.

The second-quarter profit was based on net sales of $3.1 billion, against $2.1 billion during the same 1980 quarter, an increase of 46 percent.

David Eisenberg, senior research analyst for Sanford C. Bernstein & Co., a New York-based investment research and management firm, said the second-quarter results means Chrysler is "out of intensive care...they're in the outpatient clinic now."

"I'm impressed, and I'm delighted," he said.

Police Beat — Tools are stolen

Area burglars continued outfitting their tool boxes Wednesday.

Raul Rodriguez, 311 N.W. 10th reported his kitchen window was broken and his tool box and several tools were stolen, including a number of sockets and an impact wrench. The theft occurred sometime Wednesday. Loss is estimated at $1,000.

Patricia Lewis, 3101 W. Hwy. 80 reports that shots were fired through a window of her home Wednesday afternoon.

John Stalcup, 3507 W. Hwy. 80 says a Kodak Instamatic camera and an unknown amount of beer was taken from his home between 2 and 7:30 a.m. Wednesday. The camera is valued at $60.

Robert Black, 907 E. 16th reports a window was broken and a screen cut at his home Wednesday afternoon. Damage is estimated at $50.

Gale Pittman, 1604 E. 4th says a 13" black and white television set was stolen from her home between 5:15 and 8:30 p.m.

Sharon Watson, 1503 E. 3rd reports that a screen was cut and a window was removed at her home. Someone apparently entered the house, but nothing has been reported stolen.

Low income families can get aid on cooling costs

Low income Texas households with senior citizens can apply during August for financial aid to help pay summer cooling costs.

Under the Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP), income eligible households consisting of at least one person age 65 or older may qualify for a one-time payment of up to $85.

The federal program is designed to help poverty-level households offset increased energy costs for heating and cooling their homes. HEAP is funded through the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and is administered in Texas by the Texas Department of Human Resources. Funding for the program was earmarked by Congress from the Windfall Profits Energy Tax.

The summer phase of HEAP is based on the premise that the health and well-being of the elderly poor can be severely impacted if they are exposed to sweltering summertime temperatures without cooled air in their homes.

This past winter, HEAP provided a one-time payment to aid the poor in paying their heating bills.

To determine eligibility, applicants must be interviewed and are required to verify their identity, the identity of senior citizens in the household, income and, if questionable, their citizenship.

Eligibility is based on household size and income. For a two-person household, gross income cannot exceed $446. For four persons, maximum allowable income is $756 per month.

Household resources cannot exceed $1,800 for one person or $3,000 for more than one person. The value of a homesteaded car, personal and household belongings are not considered in determining resources.

HEAP payments range from $68 to $85 depending on income levels set by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. The bureau's Lower Living Standard Income Levels are used in computing benefit amounts.

Households with senior citizens receiving welfare such as food stamps, Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) were paid HEAP benefits in July after answering a questionnaire attesting to their eligibility.

All other households can apply for HEAP assistance Aug. 3-31 at offices of the Texas Department of Human Resources. Eligible households should receive their payment within 20 to 30 days after making application.

To apply for HEAP or for more information, call 779-5450 in El Paso; 683-5411 in Midland; and 337-7391 in Odessa. For other towns and cities in West Texas, contact the nearest DHR office.

Washington Star will close because of financial losses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Star will cease publication Aug. 7, its parent company, Time Inc., announced today.

Time President Richard Munro cited the paper's mounting financial losses and said, "This is a sad day for all those connected with The Star — its readers; its talented, loyal staff any many of us at Time Inc. who tried our utmost to turn it into a profitable enterprise."

He said the newspaper's employees were being told of the closing at an early morning meeting.

"Despite our substantial investment, the newspaper continues to lose money and shows no prospect of financial improvement. Regrettably, we have no choice but to close it," Munro said.

Time Inc. bought the Star in March 1978 from Texas financier Joe L. Allbritton for $20 million. Time said then that it would invest $60 million over five years in an attempt to make the newspaper profitable.

Munro's statement said the paper has been losing money at the rate of about $20 million a year.

It had once been Washington's premier newspaper, but in recent years had only a fraction of the the rival Post's circulation and advertising.

The Post circulation, as of Sept. 30, 1980, was 584,500 daily and 820,000 on Sundays.

But the Star's circulation, Munro said in his announcement, had fallen to 323,000 daily and 294,000 on Sundays.

And he noted that "the 25 percent share of the Washington-area advertising market the newspaper had when we took it over has remained virtually the same.

"The dominance of the Post in the Washington market, the tough economics of publishing an afternoon daily and a weakening economy over the last 18 months in Washington that hit the Star especially hard vitiated whatever small gains we made."

The chairman of the Star's board, James R. Shepley, said the paper had begun talks with Post Chairman Katharine Graham about a possible joint publishing arrangement, under which the newspapers would have retained separate news operations but combined some commercial functions. But the talks, Shepley said, did not produce an agreement both newspapers would accept.

He said Time Inc. was pursuing the possibility of selling the newspaper and that discussions have been held with several prospective buyers.

The Washington Star was founded as The Evening Star in 1852, selling for a penny a copy with a circulation of about 1,000.

In 1867, a Star reporter, Crosby Stuart Noyes, and four friends, including Samuel H. Kauffmann, raised $100,000 to buy the paper. By the end of the century, the paper was prospering. The Noyes and Kauffmann families continued complete ownership of the paper until 1974, when Allbritton bought a minority interest in The Star's parent company, Washington Star Communications, thus gaining control of the operations.

U.S. refuses disaster payments for California Medfly problems

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — As officials moved to meet the demands of Southern states by watching for Mediterranean fruit flies throughout California, the federal government refused to declare fly-infested counties a disaster area.

"We pay more taxes than any other state, and controlling the medfly is a matter for the whole country," an unhappy Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. said Wednesday after the Reagan administration rejected his request for a disaster declaration in three California counties.

A declaration would have made farmers eligible for low-interest loans. The federal government already has offered to help pay for aerial pesticide spraying, expected to cost $6 million.

Meanwhile, the second round of airborne attacks on the crop-ravaging pest began today. Three helicopters took off just after midnight to spray sticky bait laced with the pesticide malathion over parts of Palo Alto, Mountain View, Los Altos and Los Altos Hills before dawn.

At least six aerial applications were planned over the 227-square-mile "core" infestation zone, project director Jerry Scribner said. The first round of spraying ended Monday.

Medfly larvae have been found in 158 places in the spray zone, but the flies haven't invaded any of the state's large commercial farms outside the three counties. A sharp drop in the number of flies found in traps was reported after the initial spraying, officials said.

California officials plan to increase monitoring of the pest by setting five fly traps per square mile throughout California by Friday, said Gordon Snow, special assistant to state Food and Agriculture Director Richard Rominger.

The increased monitoring would meet a key demand of five Southern states attempting to impose a quarantine broader than that ordered by the federal government on 200 fruits and vegetables that can act as hosts to the medfly.

The federal government's quarantine forbids shipment of unfumigated host fruits and vegetables from the quarantined area.

The Southern states — Texas, Florida, South Carolina, Mississippi and Alabama — also want California to certify that crops come from areas where the traps were in place for 30 days.

That could doom much of the crop, which is at the height of harvest season, Snow said. Only about 1 percent of potential medfly host crops in the state are in the infestation zone.

A problem grows and grows

Texas agriculture is faced with a water supply problem that can't wait much longer, according to Herb Grubb, Director of Planning and Development, Texas Department of Water Resources.

Texas' farming industry has no choice but to reduce its thirst for water, says Grubb. In short, producers must "grow more crops with fewer drops." Grubb, in a challenge laid down to agricultural researchers attending the recent Texas Agricultural Experiment Station Conference, said scientists are going to have to take a long hard look at water resources in the state and the competition for water in the years ahead.

IRRIGATION SYSTEMS in the future must be developed more efficiently. The crops going into the ground must be less thirsty, according to Grubb. The speaker cited four reasons why Texas agricultural producers must improve the water efficiency of their methods and their crops:

- (1) Limited water supplies;
- (2) an increasing demand for water;
- (3) the worldwide market for Texas products;
- (4) Water inefficiency of present production methods.

"Even with maximum surface water development and the most efficient management and uses of all sources of water supply," Grubb said, "the state's future economic opportunities may be limited from lack of sufficient quantities of water. The state must learn to live within its available water resources for many years to come, however, because there are many obstacles — institutional, political and economic — to bringing water from outside the state."

Three-fourths of all the water used in Texas goes into irrigation. Cities lap up 11 percent; industries, 9 percent; and energy production, 2 percent.

Just how big a job are we facing? Grubb says that even though the present demand for irrigation water exceeds 13 million acre-feet, there will be less than 8 million acre-feet available for agriculture by the year 2000. The groundwater is being depleted at an alarming rate. The state's growth in population and its industrial expansion increase the competition for water.

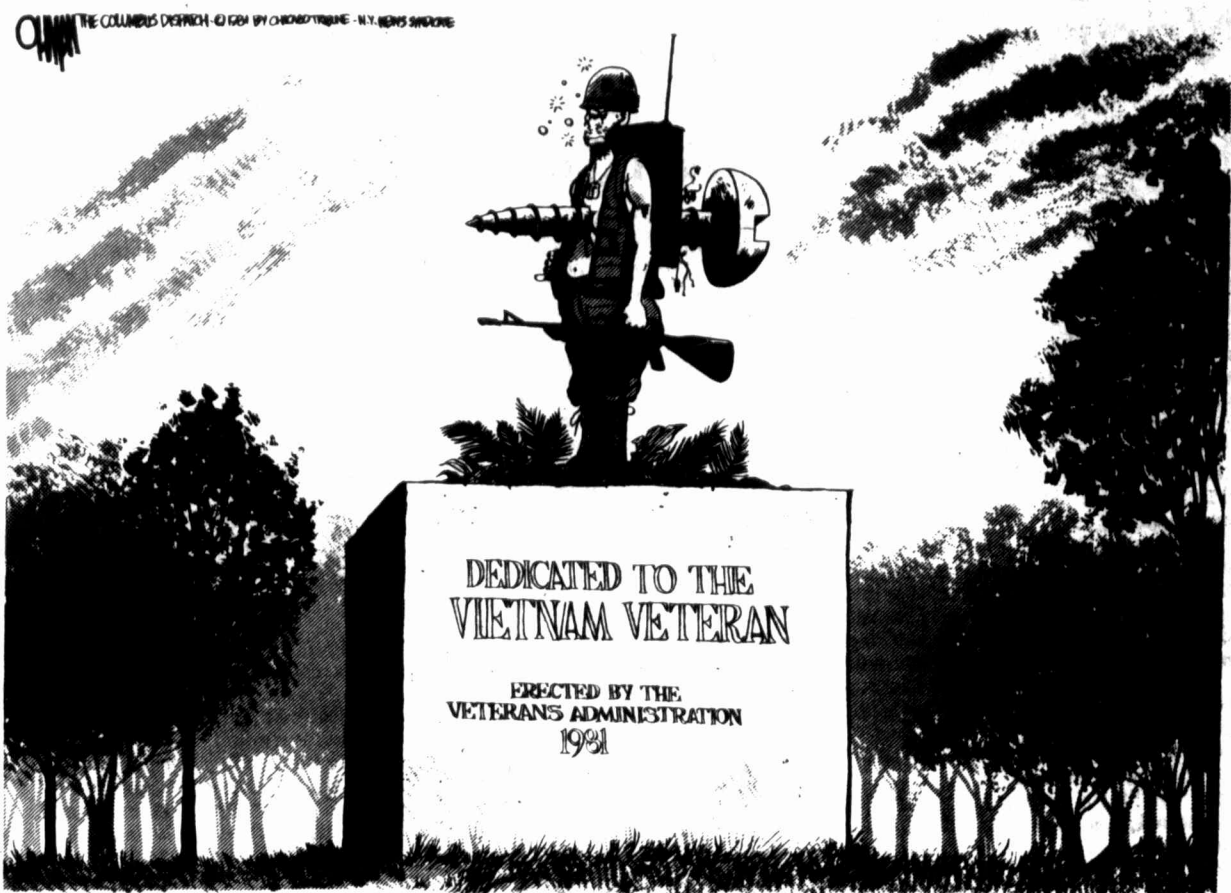

TEXANS ARE PUMPING 7.1 million acre-feet of water more than nature replaces each year. The most critical groundwater depletion areas include the High Plains north of Big Spring, the Winter Garden area and the Gulf Coast region where the population growth is phenomenal.

Although only one third of all cropland in Texas is irrigated, 100 percent of all Texas citrus and 87 percent of all vegetables produced in Texas come from irrigated lands.

Present agricultural production methods, in general, were produced when water was cheap and abundant. Farmers, no doubt, will pay dearly for it from now on.

When the gasoline shortage was at its worst here a few years ago, conservationists were saying, "it will pale in comparison to the problems created by a water shortage, and the problem isn't far away."

Grubb warns that drought tolerant plants are not only going to have to be bred, but they must be sold by seed companies. Too, individual farmers must be convinced of the need to conserve irrigation water. And government agencies must do all they can to encourage and assist farmers to increase water efficiency.

Nuclear fuel sent abroad

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Top-secret CIA reports claim, astonishingly, that Red China has been shipping weapons-grade uranium to South Africa. The agency also reports that China is selling weapons-grade uranium to a Latin American country, probably Argentina.

Last year I reported that Israel, South Africa and Taiwan were secretly cooperating on the development of a nuclear bomb. That the Communist Chinese would be dealing with South Africa in the same way as Taiwan is surprising enough; that it would do so in secret, while regularly criticizing the United States for nuclear proliferation and ties to Taiwan, is incredible.

DIPLOMATIC SOURCES say that Secretary of State Alexander Haig was concerned about the CIA reports before his trip to China, and that the issue was raised with the Peking leadership.

The reason for Red China's uranium trade with South Africa, intelligence analysts have concluded, is mutual benefit. The South Africans have plenty of uranium ore; the Chinese have the enrichment plants to turn the raw product into weapons-grade uranium, which South Africa doesn't have.

Red China's meteoric rise as a nuclear power is chronicled in top-secret CIA reports shown to my associate Dale Van Atta. According to one of the intelligence estimates, China has spent more than $4.5 billion on nuclear weapons development since the mid-1950s.

"Slightly more than half the total expenditures have gone into the production of nuclear materials," one CIA report stated. "Basic nuclear research, development, fabrication and testing account for the remainder."

China's nuclear progress made its greatest advances between 1964 and 1970, according to the CIA.

"China progressed from its first fission test in 1964 to the successful detonation of a thermonuclear device in December 1966," one report says, adding: "The U.S.S.R. took four years and France more than eight years to make a similar progression."

What makes the Chinese advances in nuclear weapons development particularly noteworthy is that the work was unaffected by the political unrest that reduced the country's economy to near-chaos.

"The Chinese nuclear program has moved forward in spite of internal political upheavals, like the Great Leap Forward from 1958 to 1960 and the Cultural Revolution from 1966 to 1969," the CIA reports. "The nuclear program has had the highest priority, and China's rapid progress reflects the fact that it was protected from political turmoil."

ANOTHER CIA REPORT states that "China's nuclear program has absorbed a large portion of the country's best manpower, machinery and materials." It adds that although the program takes only about one-fourth of 1 percent of China's gross national product, "it constitutes a substantial cost in foregone opportunities for industrial and technical advances in other fields."

China's two most secret nuclear plants went into full operation in 1964, the CIA reports. These are a uranium ore concentration plant at Hong-yang and an enrichment plant at Lan-chou.

So far, the CIA reports, there is no evidence that the Chinese are shipping superior, weapons-grade plutonium to either South Africa or the Latin American country.

Footnote: A spokesman for the Chinese Embassy here vehemently denied the reports of nuclear trade with South Africa. "We have no relations with them," he said. "We have no business with them. This is pure fabrication."

TANKS FOR NOTHING: The Army is about to get rid of the only tank in the U.S. arsenal that has the capability needed by the Rapid Deployment Force. It plans to sell 1,000 Sheridan light reconnaissance tanks to South Korea at giveaway prices — $10,000 apiece, though their current value is $283,000 each according to the Pentagon's own estimate.

The proposed sale has drawn mixed reaction on Capitol Hill. One critic complained that "you could sell it for scrap metal and get more than that."

An aide to Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., however, said the Sheridan had a terrible record in Vietnam. Often when its gun was fired, he said, the recoil shock would knock out the tank's electrical system.

But the Sheridan's defenders include Lt. Col. R.W. Haubrich, commander in the 82nd Airborne Division, the only Army unit still using Sheridans. "It runs good enough for me," he told my reporter Ben Lay. "It shoots well and gives us some punch. We're quite happy with it."

What the paratroopers like about the Sheridan is that it can be dropped by parachute — the only U.S. tank that can. This feature, of course, would make it ideal for the Rapid Deployment Force. Paul Hoven, a military equipment consultant, has said the Army could save millions by simply correcting the Sheridan's deficiencies instead of building a new tank for the RDF.

WATCH ON WASTE: The Nuclear Regulatory Commission spent more than $22 million for an automated storage and retrieval system for its paperwork. It had been estimated that up to 30 percent of the staff's time was spent looking up documents.

Weinberger's big surprise

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — The stunning decision by Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger to put the MX missile in a futuristic 1990 airplane, scrapping Jimmy Carter's land-based system, will solve President Reagan's political problems with Western senators but raises disturbing questions about Pentagon decision-making.

Although the report to Weinberger by his own committee of experts, headed by Dr. Charles Townes, was deeply divided, it gave Weinberger's airborne choice short shrift. The principal reason: high cost. Weinberger privately claims that the long-endurance aircraft — capable of flying two days without refueling and a week with it — will actually save money in the end.

MOTIVATED PARTLY BY political considerations — admittedly very tough ones — Weinberger and Deputy Secretary Frank Carlucci have hinged the most important strategic decision of the Reagan administration on fear of an environmentalist outcry and the personal feelings of senators. Nevada's Paul Laxalt, President Reagan's closest friend in the Senate, and Utah's Jake Garn have led the campaign against Jimmy Carter's land-based system, planned for Nevada and Utah.

"Cap is mainly interested in the politics of the MX basing problem," one insider told us. "That and the budget." When Weinberger, Carlucci and Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, briefed Reagan in the White House last month on the MX and other new strategic weapons, Jones was not asked a single question. Consequently, he said nothing.

Similarly, in one significant MX session with outside experts, Weinberger and Carlucci had no Air Force officers present. Under Secretary of Defense Fred Ikle, considered by many the most experienced strategist in the Pentagon, was also absent.

Critics both inside and out of the Pentagon admire Weinberger's own intellectual capacity and his dedication to long hours of hard work, but they insist his lack of experience in the strategic arts could not be overcome in a brief six months as defense chief. Weinberger came to the Pentagon leaning strongly to a submarine-based system to make the MX invulnerable to a surprise Soviet nuclear attack against U.S. missiles. When that proved unworkable, he began moving toward an airborne system.

There are also dangerous political problems with NATO in any American decision to safeguard the MX in airplanes (to be fired by remote control after being dropped into the air). The U.S. has been pressuring its European allies hard to move ahead rapidly with a new force of land-based nuclear missiles targeted on the Soviet Union. An airborne option in the U.S. is certain to intensify the public clamor against a new generation of land-based missiles for NATO. That could tighten the political squeeze on West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and other European leaders.

The decision to base the MX in the air with a plane not yet built or fully designed shocked the Pentagon brass. Word leaked soon after a top Air Force officer was told on Tuesday (July 14) that Weinberger had "made his decision."

Around the rim Park is spectacular

Tommy Hart

Newcomers to Texas (and some people who have lived in the state all their lives) have been prone to repeat the old saying, "in Texas you can see farther and see less than anywhere else in the world."

It's obvious those people have never visited in the Big Bend National Park, which encompasses some of the most spectacular scenery in the world.

BECAUSE IT IS so remote to most Texans and most Americans, and because there are no overnight facilities within easy driving distance of the park, it remains largely untrampled and unspoiled. People who live in this area, however, have no excuse for not visiting the park. Local and area residents can drive to Alpine to spend the night and explore the primitive area the following day. Park headquarters are a little more than 110 miles from Alpine.

There are accommodations to be had in the park itself, but one would be wise to book a motel room in advance because there are so few of them. The Chisos Mountains Lodge rooms rent for $30 a night for two people and restaurant facilities are nearby. The lodge is in a scenic setting 5,400 feet above sea level. Each of the 30 rooms has a tile bath. There is also a service station and a post office conveniently close.

The Big Bend, of course, is located along the Rio Grande River, which means you can look to the south and see Mexico.

There's something about the Rio Grande, at least in the Big Bend, that smacks of the old frontier. The Sierra del Carmen and Fronteriza ranges dominate the landscape in Old Mexico. If you are lucky enough to get a room at the lodge you will sleep in a cottage higher above sea level than is Denver, Colo.

There are trail rides for those who can stay aboard a horse — some venture as far as the South Rim on an all-day guided trip. (Sack lunches are available at the lodge.)

The hikers invariably have a field day in Big Bend. One can heel-and-toe it along the Lost Mine Trail or along South Rim trails for impressive vistas of the desert, plains and distance mountain ranges.

The park has 25 trailer sites with electrical, water and sewer connections near the Rio Grande Village Camp Store and seven sites at Panther Junction Service Junction, which is not far from Park Headquarters. Campgrounds administered by the National Park Service are located in the Chisos Mountains, Rio Grande Village, and at Cottonwood near Castolon.

SANTA ELENA AND Bosquillas Canyon offer breathless views that one finds difficult to associate with Texas. Not everyone is enchanted by the River Road (Highway 79) which leaves the park and makes it way to Presidio but the true nature lover will be taken with the variety in scenery. Some say it will one day be "discovered" by the tourist guides and will forever after be overrun with the curious. There is one view in particular where travelers catch a sight of the Rio Grande from high above the river through a break in the mountains.

A word of caution: Don't try the park in the heat of summer, although it will be cool enough in the Chisos Mountains. Nearby Presidio, for instance, consistently reports the hottest temperatures in the nation when Needles, Cal., or Bythe, Cal., isn't doing it. The ideal time to start such a trip is late, late fall or in the early spring.

About convulsions

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My granddaughter, age six, occasionally, like once or twice a year, has a convulsion. It only happens when she is sick and running a temperature, but does not occur every time. I had the experience of having to take care of her during one of these convulsions. She was in a semi-unconscious state and tried to swallow her tongue. Her eyes were rolled back and she had no control. After this subsided I could call her name and she would open her eyes and look at me, but immediately closed them and was kind of in an unconscious state and would whimper. She was completely drained physically.

I put her in a tub of cool water to get her temp down. I was given phenobarbital for her. My question is, shouldn't there be some sort of test run on this child to see what is causing this? — Mrs. G.C.B.

First, about convulsions in general. It's always difficult to know what to do for a child who has had one convulsion with a high fever. This happens mostly between six months and three years. After eight years, such febrile (fever-related) convulsions are rare. If a child has had one such convulsion, there's about a 65 percent chance it will not have others.

Now, to your granddaughter. She has had many such seizures. She should be examined carefully, and that examination should include an EEG (brain wave test) to find out if there is some detectable reason why this happens so frequently. Her case is quite different from the child who has had only one febrile convulsion. She needs a thorough examination by a pediatrician.

You did the correct thing. At the first sign, you ought to begin temperature-lowering measures — aspirin, sponging with tepid water and giving phenobarbital to prevent a seizure. Some doctors would keep her on phenobarbital for two to four years. This matter should be settled also.

However, she does need a thorough examination now.

FOR MRS. B.B.C. — The daily requirement of Vitamin A is 5,000 units. You are taking 50,000 which is wrong. You should not take such high doses of Vitamin A for long periods unless you are specifically requested to do so by your doctor. There are many possible causes for such itching (as you describe) and you should be examined to find out which may be involved. See my booklet on vitamins, which discusses needs. For a copy, write me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Change in estate tax law virtually assured

WASHINGTON — They say only two things in life are certain, death and taxes. The absolute certainty of those two are never more apparent than to family survivors faced with liquidation of an inheritance due to inequitable estate taxes.

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm

Congressional Comment

Hardest hit by past estate laws are owners of family farms and ranches and small businesses. Land values, in particular, have been swept to such levels that few young farmers can ever hope to own a farm or ranch unless they inherit it and estate taxes on the inflated value of that land make inheritance doubtful for many others. For the past two or three years, land values have increased 12 to 14 percent, pushing estate taxes right along with them.

$600,000 in both proposals. The House Committee version (tentatively approved July 16, but open to change at the last minute) would cut from 70 percent to 50 percent the maximum tax on estates of more than $600,000.

Under current law, estates of more than $175,000 are taxed at rates that rise as high as 70 percent. To pay that estate tax, many owners of small farms and businesses may be faced with the prospect of selling out — often to larger firms or wealthy individuals.

Both proposals would allow a person to leave an estate of any size tax-free to the surviving spouse. Currently, the marital exemption is generally limited to half of the estate.

Proposals included in both the Ways and Means Committee version and the Reagan tax package would bring needed changes to estate tax laws.

The bills would also increase to $10,000 the limit on tax-free gifts to one person. For instance, a couple could transfer $20,000 each year to each child without being forced to pay any gift tax.

The exemption on taxable inheritance would be increased from $175,000 to “Family Enterprise Estate and Gift Tax Equity and Reduction Act” which would allow family farms, ranches and businesses to pass intact from one generation to another. This bill included a provision which has not, as yet, appeared in either Ways and Means Committee or the Administration’s proposal.

Earlier in the year I had co-sponsored H.R. 3882, the Rising housing costs boost inflation rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing costs, boosted by record home-loan rates, sent the nation’s inflation up at an annual rate of 8.8 percent in June, the government reported today.

June’s 0.7 percent inflation increase marked the fourth consecutive month of what economists have been calling “single-digit territory” — below 10 percent on an annualized basis. If prices rose at the June rate for 12 straight months, the annual inflation rate would be 8.8 percent.

The improvement from last year’s 12.4 percent annual rate has been due largely to lower-than-expected energy and food prices, and both increased only moderately again in June.

But a big increase in housing costs, which had begun showing up in May, came on strong in June, according to the Department of Labor’s Consumer Price Index.

The housing component of the index rose 1.1 percent in June, accounting for about three-fourths of the overall inflation increase, the Labor Department report said.

Home-ownership costs rose even more — about 1.5 percent — but that increase was softened in the overall housing figure by a slim 0.4 percent rise in rental costs, the smallest in more than a year.

All the figures are adjusted for normal seasonal variations in prices.

The CPI is the most widely publicized inflation index, but it has been criticized for the heavy weight it gives to housing costs, particularly mortgage costs. Although mortgage rates have clearly risen rapidly in recent months, reaching an average of 16.75 percent in early June, critics point out that relatively few Americans are buying houses in any one month.

Therefore, they say, housing costs should not be allowed to produce as big a swing in the CPI as they did in June.

Prices for fuels and other utilities rose 0.9 percent in June, giving homeowners further problems as charges for electricity and water and sewage services rose substantially, the report said.

“The food and beverage component increased 0.2 percent in June, continuing the moderating trend evident throughout the year,” the report added. Energy prices rose 0.7 percent.

Senior citizens take tour

A group of 32 senior citizens, members of RSVP-Nutrition Program, accompanied by Joy Decker, RSVP Director and Carolyn McCarty Nutrition Program Site Manager took a two day tour in the Texas Panhandle.

The group met at the Spring City Senior Center at 9 a.m. Thursday morning where we loaded our luggage into the bus which was recently donated to the senior center by the Forsan School District. We left the center at 10:15 and arrived at the McKensie State Park in Lubbock for a picnic lunch and rest time. After the lunch we proceeded to Canyon where we checked into the motel for a time of rest before going to the canyon at 5 p.m. At the Palo Duro Canyon, the group enjoyed a tour of the canyon on the Sad Monkey Railroad, then gathered for a barbeque supper before going into the amphitheater for the TEXAS Pageant. Friday morning the group gathered at the bus and went for breakfast then toured the West Texas State University Museum, before leaving for the Cal Farley’s Boys Ranch. We arrived at the Ranch at noon and had lunch with the boys then had a tour of the Boys Ranch with a Boy Rancher serving as guide. After the tour we started the trip home. By the time we arrived in Lubbock, we decided we needed to get off the bus for a while, so we enjoyed our evening meal at a Furr’s cafeteria, then resumed the trip to Big Spring. The tired, happy group arrived in Big Spring about 9:30 p.m. For many of the Senior Citizens this was a first trip to the pageant and the Boy’s Ranch.

The donation of the bus to the Center makes trips such as this possible, also, there were three anonymous donors who helped sponsor the trip for a few who would not have been able to go otherwise. We hope to make a trip every three or four months, if anyone would like to sponsor someone who would otherwise be unable to go, please contact Joy Decker, 267-2589 or Carolyn McCarty 267-1628.

Driver of the bus was Carolyn McCarty, the Rev. Elra Phillips served as tour guide and advisor. Joy Decker was coordinator of the trip.

Late uncle of Prince Charles claims miracle produced heir

LONDON (AP) — The late Earl Mountbatten of Burma, great-uncle and great favorite of Britain's Prince Charles, once said it wasn't luck that had produced such an accomplished heir to the throne — "it's a bloody miracle."

A quick wit, he said after eating snake meat during a survival course in Australia: "Ah, the things I do for England."

Although he loathes the tag "action man," Charles has led the world's press a merry chase for more than a decade, well earning the description "the world's most eligible bachelor."

Many commoners in this constitutional monarchy agree with Mountbatten's assessment of the 32-year-old prince who will marry Lady Diana Spencer, 12½ years his junior, in a majestic ceremony at St. Paul's Cathedral on July 29. Charles Philip Arthur George Mountbatten-Windsor was just three years old when his mother became queen and he became heir to a throne dating back 1,000 years. His life has coincided with the decline of British power and the rise of a strong socialist movement to dismantle class privileges.

When rioting erupted in Britain's inner cities this month, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher talked of "law and order" but Charles came forward with help from his personal charity, the Prince's Trust. Black youth clubs and Sikh temples figure highly in his 1,000 official engagements a year.

He once said that "about 30" was the right age to marry, but then rejected such hopefuls as the Duke of Wellington's daughter and Princess Marie-Astrid of Luxembourg to become the oldest unmarried Prince of Wales since James Stuart in 1718.

According to opinion polls, only the queen herself and the Queen Mother, his 80-year-old grandmother, are more popular.

Despite efforts to meet the people, Charles can never be "ordinary" and has come to terms with it. He believes it's right for the royal family to stay out of politics.

He now has to comb over a bald spot on the crown of his head.

A look at the record tells why Of the 21 English heirs who have held the title Prince of Wales since 1301, Charles is the first to have gone to school with other children outside the palace, first to obtain a university degree (in history at Cambridge) and first to learn the Welsh language.

Entombed in protocol, his personal staff includes an equerry, private secretaries, grooms and valets although he sometimes shakes them loose and for anonymity's fertile southwest England and an annual income of about $585,000, plus a right to an annual tithe of 300 puffins and any whales or porpoises washed up on the Cornish beaches.

Lady Diana's one public complaint about him so far is that he can't sit still. He even writes all his own speeches — in longhand.

The couple will live in nine-bedroom Highgrove House, Gloucestershire, which he bought last year for a million pounds ($1.9 million), while their London quarters will be at Kensington Palace, shared with Princess Margaret, the queen's divorced sister.

Their intention is to raise a family, for Charles may have a long wait before ascending the throne. "I don't think the queen has any intention of retiring — it's not in the tradition of the royal family," said palace press secretary Michael Shea.

Charles will be 42 when his mother turns 65, a decade from now Queen Victoria lived to be 81.

What may happen, said Shea, is that the queen will hand over more of her duties to her son, who often steps in for her on state occasions.

Charles is upset at speculation he needs work. "I have a job. Being Prince of Wales is a job in itself," he says.

But the palace says he would welcome an invitation from Australia to take over as governor-general in the near future.

Dear Abby

Pastor Isn't Ministering; He's Too Busy Meddling

DEAR ABBY: My brother-in-law killed himself four months ago. He put a gun to his head and blew his brains out. When the police found his body, they also found five individual notes written to his wife, daughter, son, mother and mother-in-law.

A very good friend of the wife was on the scene with the police, and she took all the notes and gave them to her minister! He never gave them to anyone. Four months later there is still no mention of these notes. Only a few of us know that notes had been left, but no one wants to say anything about them. I think those notes should be given to the people they were addressed to, regardless of what they contain, don't you?

The children are 18 and 20, and they're having a difficult time adjusting to their father's death. What should be done? NO NAMES, PLEASE minister may be trying to spare the survivors pain, but they have no right to act as censors.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-year-old woman with a problem I've been wrestling with for the last three years. I have been seriously involved with a man my age for seven years, which brings me to my question. When is this man going to marry me?

We went together all through college and both have good jobs. There's no reason why we can't get married. He says he loves me, but whenever I bring up marriage he says he's not ready.

I've asked my friends and even my family what to do, and they all say, "If he's not ready now, he never will be." Abby, how can I get this man "ready" enough to marry me?

DEAR NO NAMES: Confront the minister and demand that he deliver the notes to the parties for whom they were intended at once! The friend had no business picking up the notes and giving them to the minister. And he had no right to withhold them from the family. I realize that both the friend and the

'Vial of Life' promoted by HC Council on Ageing and Texas Agricultural Extension Service

Howard County Council on Aging and Texas Agricultural Extension Service are promoting a new Medical Alert Program. They are endeavoring to establish procedures that are being used in other towns and cities throughout the United States.

The program is called the "Vial of Life." It provides information for those who may find themselves in an emergency situation at home. The information is for use by a rescue squad team if their services were needed. Local Emergency Medical Technicians are supporting this venture.

A committee consisting of Zarah Bednar, chairman, Mattie Wren and Agnes Currie have been responsible for organizing and implementing the program. Professional Pharmacy also supports the program by providing the labels used in the packets.

The Vial of Life packet contains information regarding the resident's name, address, phone, age, physician's name, relatives or neighbors name, past medical history and current medication. The vial is stored in the refrigerator, strapped under the upper right-hand shelf. The refrigerator is relatively fireproof and purses or wallets aren't easily located in every household.

Vial of Life packets are being distributed at the senior citizen center during monthly blood pressure screening. You may also request a packet when you are at the center.

For information or packets contact Mrs. Zarah Bednar, Chris Freeman 263-4016 or Janet Rogers 267-8469.

All educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Potter's Field: End of the line for nameless of New York

NEW YORK (AP) — With calm assurance, the captain pilots the aging ferry to Hart Island through the treacherous waters of Long Island Sound. Just as assuredly, he knows he'll never wander past the island's shore.

More than 25 years in New York have done little to blunt Brendan Herity's uneasy feeling about the place where he delivers his cargo: corpses and limbs.

"No, ma'am," he confides in a rich Irish brogue when asked if he's tempted to see the potter's field on the island. "What you don't see now won't bother you later, you know."

"No, ma'am." It's an answer you come to hear often about trips to Hart Island, a 101-acre jumble of swamp grass and weeds, the end of the line for 700,000 souls who have died without money or mourners.

The story of the pauper's graveyard that few want to visit is the story of New York's nameless nobodies, of the poor and the homeless and what happens to them when they die.

But it is also the story of the people who guide them to their graves. For those whose lives create barely a ripple, death is a crowded affair.

It touches people like Terrence Gallagher, who copies burial permit numbers on endless forms at Bellevue Hospital, and morgue worker Percy Williams, who wraps the dead in shroud paper for the ferry trip to the island.

There's the Rev. John Logan, who asks God to grant them eternal peace because "people who have no one have to be thought about, too," and the Rikers Island inmates who bury them in long, sandy graves.

There's also Corrections Commissioner Benjamin Ward, who toured the island one sweltering July morning, cursing the rutted dirt roads from the confines of his car.

"This no more looks like a cemetery than a dump does," Ward grumbled, glaring out at the layers of underbrush that form a tangled, green coverlet over the dead.

Ward wants to use inmate labor to transform Potter's field into something that looks like a graveyard. Under cloudless blue skies with the cheeriest sunshine, it seems like a near-hopeless task.

It's a third of a mile from the Bronx to Hart Island. At first, distant glance it looks like a sumptuous resort, dotted with graceful brick buildings that resemble those of a New England college.

Sweet sea breezes buffet the ferry as it roars toward the island. But the journey that promised such luxury delivers only eerie mirage.

What loomed as lush greenery becomes monstrous weeds. The buildings that had seemed so stately turn into shells, Hollywood sets for a horror film.

Up close, gaping doors groan on hinges, and clusters of Queen Anne's lace weave lazily through broken windows. A park bench keeps company with a blind lamppost on a desolate stretch of white sand.

Not far from these buildings, which have housed cholera victims, drug addicts and lawbreakers, is the final resting place of stillborn babies, severed limbs and the unwanted dead.

Here, barechested prisoners earn 35 cents an hour pushing wheelbarrows, welding shovels and operating the payloader that

Discovery finalized

A discovery has been finalized in Howard County. McCann Corp., Big Spring, No. 1-36 East Slope, Howard County Clearfork oil discovery, 2 1/4 miles east of Fusselman production in the Coahoma North (Fusselman and Clearfork) field and six miles northeast of Coahoma, was finalized to pump two barrels of 30 gravity oil, plus 50 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 1,000-1.

Productions was through perforations of 5,019-79 feet, which had been acidized with 4,000 gallons.

The following tops were picked on ground elevation of 2,244 feet: Clearfork, 3,030 feet; Waincamp, 5,700 feet; Canyon, 6,880 feet; Mississippi, 8,314 feet; and Woodford, 8,482 feet.

Drilled to 3,860 feet, 4 1/2 inch casing was set at 5,328, the plugged back depth.

Location is 800 feet from the north and 1,000 feet from the west lines of 36-30-1N-T&P.

digs 40-foot-long common graves. It is one group of societal outcasts ministering to another.

The pine boxes that cost the city $28.70 each are stacked in these trenches three deep, two across. The names of the occupants are rouged into the wood with a router, in case they are someday claimed. Sometimes inmates must reopen a grave. A relative was located, a friend has come forward. The remains finally will be afforded the dignity of a paid funeral.

More often there's no need for names. Often they can't be found. "Unknown white male, unknown black male, unknown female."

Gallagher writes on his lists. "Unknown bones."

The city bought Hart Island more than 100 years ago. It has served as a dumping ground ever since. The first tenants were yellow fever victims, followed by sick old men, narcotics addicts, convicts.

The northern tip of the island was designated a potter's field in 1869. Louisa Van Slyke, an orphan who died in Charity Hospital at 24, was the first buried there. More than 700,000 others have joined her.

Afternoons, when the inmates board buses for the trip back to Rikers, the island is left to the pheasants and sea birds that are its only living residents.

But later, at night, the rowboats arrive, bearing teen-agers looking for something to steal. Often, their search is in vain; most everything worth taking was stolen a long time ago.

The first "vandals" were city employees, who removed valuable equipment for safekeeping. "We took the best of the stuff," Ward said.

Then came the curious, the thieves. They toppled the altar and took the bell from the chapel; they tore railings from rickety stairs.

The one structure on the island that has not been vandalized was erected by prisoners in 1948. It is a 30-foot whitewashed monolith. On one side is a simple white cross, on the other, a single word: Peace.

Except for the single, shared cross, there are no monuments to the dead on Hart Island, no greenhouse flowers, no marble headstones.

There is only the thud of loose dirt as it falls on new graves, a sound swept out by sea by the wind.

Rape victim 'refuses to be scared forever'

EDITOR'S NOTE: Joan is not her real name. She agreed to tell a reporter of her ordeal provided her identity was concealed. Her story has been confirmed by police.

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — It was, she would recall, both "weird and creepy," a feeling of being watched. Maybe hunted. It began in the early spring and persisted for weeks. She could not pinpoint the source.

"There was no single incident. Nothing specific," she would say later. She told her friends and family of her uneasiness, and mentioned it to her co-workers. She also discussed it with her fiancé. One day, when it was too late, she would tell police.

"I felt... singled out," she said. But, at 29, she was a professional woman of beauty and intelligence, with little time and no inclination to dwell on the strange sensation. She had seldom felt fear. That would come later. After she met the gunman in the dark hood.

He would invade her fashionable split-level apartment. He would rape her and rob her and subject her to a chilling and macabre game of cat and mouse.

It was then that she learned the meaning of "absolute terror."

On the evening of May 26, a Tuesday, Joan joined her parents for dinner at home of friends. They talked of many things, including a ski mask rapist.

"There's been an ungodly number of rapes here, including three over the Memorial Day weekend," Joan said. "Almost a daily occurrence," observed a friend.

Later, Joan visited briefly with relatives, then, after dark, drove on to her apartment. It was not yet 10 p.m.

A neighbor arrived at the same time. They spoke briefly, and he helped her carry her luggage from a Memorial Day trip.

At the door, fumbling in the darkness with her key, she said to herself: "Wouldn't it be a hell of a note to get raped right before you get married?"

Once inside, she undressed and crawled into bed, still drowsy from medication linked to an abdominal disorder. A 22 pistol lay on a bedside table.

Although normally a light sleeper, Joan heard nothing until sometime after 5 a.m.

She awoke with a hand over her mouth, a gun at her head and the sound of a man's voice whispering in her ear.

"What are you going to do?" she asked. But she knew. "I'm going to f... you," he replied.

He stripped away the covers and, almost simultaneously, moved the bedside pistol out of reach. "I would not have hesitated to use it," Joan would tell a reporter later. "Unfortunately, I didn't have a chance."

As the man shined his flashlight up and down her nude body, she silently debated whether to cry, beg, resist or submit. "Keep your mouth shut or I'll blow your... head off," he commanded, his voice curt and cold.

"Yes, sir," she responded, her decision made. "I guess I went for passiveness," she explained. "I decided he probably craved respect. I would address him only as sir. I would do whatever he wanted."

When someone questioned that decision later, she said: "I had to make a snap analysis. I did not have my contacts or my glasses. The guy is nuts and he's got a gun and he's got his eyesight and he's in my house... and he's very much in control."

"The gun didn't scare me. The nut behind it did." As the hooded intruder moved easily through the darkened apartment, Joan was struck by a dreadful thought: "He has been in my house before!"

After searching the apartment, the man returned to the bed. Again he examined her body with the flashlight, this time at length. He ordered her into the bathroom "to wash" and then removed and neatly folded his pants.

"Folding his pants was so weird," Joan thought. "He must be a creature of habit... well trained by his wife."

He did not remove the hood, his dark cotton gloves or a long-sleeved shirt, which he kept buttoned to the collar and cuffs. He demanded foreplay, and she submitted.

Then he raped her. Joan would tell police later the rapist was 25 to 30, 5-foot-10 and athletically slender with muscular arms and shoulders.

During the attack, she realized his mid-section was flat and hard, and that the man was probably an athlete. She ran her hands over his knees in the darkness, searching for scar tissue.

There was none. "He lost control only once," she remembered. He went into a "frenzy," fondling and then mauling one of her breasts.

"He was like a shark feeding. He was out of control and I thought I was going to die. But I turned my head and he quit."

Despite the viciousness of the rape, Joan said she "feigned total disinterest," and he suddenly stopped. "He did not ejaculate. It was like he got bored and quit."

Police Lt. Jack Dieken would speculate later that "she turned him off by not being totally intimidated by him. I think the 'yes, sir' and 'no, sir' and 'what next, sir' got to him."

"I think it turned him off." After the assault, the man ordered her to bathe. Investigators were astounded to learn that she kept her legs together to preserve any possible evidence.

"She's unique... a very special lady," Dieken would say later. "I did nothing to provoke him," Joan said.

While bathing, however, she did slip in her contacts so that she might better identify him.

"What now, sir?" she asked as she emerged from the tub. "Just sit down," he commanded. "I'm going to look through the rest of the house."

And then it began. As Joan sat naked on the bathroom floor, the intruder opened the door only inches. Wordlessly, he pointed the pistol at her. She could see one eye peering at her.

Then the door closed. Moments later, a second door opened. He repeated the gesture, one eye visible behind the gun and the hood.

And again, through still a third cracked door. "Obviously this guy gets off on terror and not sex," Joan concluded. "I think it was kind of fun for him."

Later, she would describe the episode as: "Terror. Absolute terror. I don't know a better word for it in the English language. The terror was worse than the sex."

Joan could hear the rapist moving through the house, opening and shutting doors and windows. And then it became quiet. "I made several false starts to open the bathroom door," she recalled. "I was holding my breath. I was afraid he was so off balance he would blow me away when I opened the door."

But the man was gone. He took $20,000 in jewelry and vanished as silently and mysteriously as he arrived.

"I don't think to this day they really know how he entered," Joan said. It was daybreak when she emerged from the bathroom, grabbed some

Howard College orientation set August 3-4

Prospective freshmen students and their parents are expected to be on the Howard College campus Aug. 3-4 for an orientation program for the 1981-1982 school year, announced Mary Dudley, District Dean of Admissions.

Incoming students will have an opportunity to become familiar with the courses of study which are available at Howard College, with the physical layout of the campus, with available student activities, with dormitory facilities and procedures, and with other student services.

Faculty members and counselors will be available to advise students about majors and schedules of classes. "Each student will complete a degree plan, prepare a fall schedule of classes, and complete most of the registration process," said Dudley. "Participation in this program will also complete one-third of the requirements for the required freshman orientation course entitled Psychology 1101."

Because parents are also concerned about college opportunities and procedures, we have arranged a simultaneous parents' orientation program," said Dudley. "Parents will attend sessions about student life, financial aid and college regulations and services."

Cost for the Summer Orientation is $17.50 per person. The fee covers the cost of lodging in an air-conditioned dormitory Monday night, and breakfast and lunch on Tuesday in the college cafeteria.

All prospective freshmen wanting registration information should contact Mary Dudley at 915-267-6311, ext. 51. July 27 is the registration deadline.

clothes and fled to apartment. She ran next door and found the man she'd seen just hours earlier.

"I've been raped," she said simply.

"She's a remarkable lady," said Lt. Jack Dieken. "She's very candid and very open and she's offered to help us in any way possible to catch this guy."

"She's willing to go before civic groups and describe her experience in the hope that it might help someone else."

She even cooperated in a televised reenactment of the ordeal as part of a local "Crime Stoppers" program.

"It takes a very special lady to have undergone what she did and then do that," said Dieken.

"She'll make a fantastic witness if we ever go to court. I don't think anyone can intimidate her."

Dieken, a 15-year veteran, said he is almost certain the assailant is the ski mask rapist who committed a widely publicized series of assaults last year.

The assailant, called "The Traveling Rapist," is believed to have struck at least 15 times in Abilene, Lubbock, Amarillo, Wichita Falls and Fort Worth.

The attacks occurred over an eight-month span, ending a year ago this month.

"No one can say for certain this guy's the ski mask rapist," Dieken said. "But he either is or he's a damn good copy cat. He's one of the slickest I've seen."

The "Traveling Rapist," who is physically identical to the man Joan described, distinguished himself in part by destroying or removing any potential evidence.

He showered or shaved or combed his victims, among other things.

"And he's observed his victims so thoroughly he doesn't have to watch his back," Dieken said. "He's not worried about anybody coming in on him."

Dieken called him "cunning and calculating," a "criminal enigma," and probably "a classic sociopath."

He said police apparently are no closer now than a year ago to identifying the rapist, let alone catching him.

"There's just not a whole lot we can do," said Dieken. "We don't know when or where he will strike next."

Poking over her food in a stylish Abilene restaurant last week, Joan said:

"I'm just glad to be alive...I'm surprised he hasn't killed. He's so cold, and he'll stop at nothing."

She said she still has nightmares, awakening in a cold sweat, all but convinced, she smiled, "that the night noises are going to get me."

Worse still, she said, "I can see where he could take some sweet young thing and really mess up her life forever."

Joan said she momentarily considered not reporting the attack, which is hardly surprising. The FBI estimates that two out of three rape victims don't.

"But a few seconds later, I couldn't even believe I considered that," she said. "I was not going to let anybody get by with this."

She said family and friends, and particularly her fiancé, have been supportive.

"I'm very lucky. I could not have had a more wonderful man. But rape still has a social stigma to it, I don't care what they say."

Some people simply could not handle the trauma or the terror, she said.

"I can see how someone 10 years older or 10 years younger would have a lot more trouble than I...You really have to temper your feelings and emotions with logic."

"I refuse to be scared forever."

Titanic expedition comes up empty-handed

BOSTON (AP) — A researcher who was aboard the vessel that scanned the ocean floor for the Titanic says the sunken luxury liner's location remains a mystery and the expedition came up empty-handed.

"We didn't discover a whole ship sitting on the bottom," Mark Olsson said after the 174-foot research vessel Gyre arrived in Boston this morning. "We found tantalizing clues...we now know where it's not."

The research vessel Gyre spent about nine days in the North Atlantic searching for the liner that smashed into an iceberg on its maiden voyage April 15, 1912, and plunged to the bottom in 12,000 feet of water, killing more than 1,500 people. The liner was reportedly carrying up to $300 million in diamonds and other valuables.

Researchers said today that the next step in the search — which began with an unsuccessful mission a year ago — is a third trip to sea that would last at least a month.

The Gyre searched 60 square miles of ocean floor, including a massive canyon into which the Titanic may have fallen. If the ship's last reported position was in error, another expedition probably would have to cover hundreds of additional miles.

The scientists and adventurers displayed a variety of black and white photographs purporting to show some small man-made objects on the ocean floor, but no one could say whether they were from the Titanic, and earlier reports of a huge metal object proved premature.

"I think the whole ship is in one piece," Olsson said. "If you find a piece, you find the whole thing."

Other experts, however, believe the ship is broken into pieces.

The search was led by Michael Harris, head of the Tampa, Fla.-based International Expeditions, and was financed by Jack Grimm, a Texas oilman.

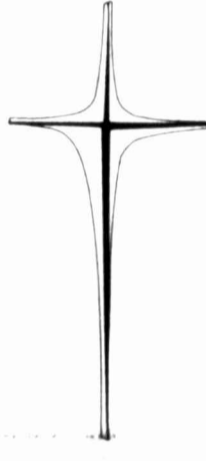

During their voyage, researchers had said that TV cameras aboard the Gyre swept the ocean bottom about 370 miles at sea and a magnetometer had detected a massive metallic object weighing several hundred tons.

They had speculated the object might be connected with the Titanic but had refused to say more via marine telephone during their trip.

Texas League in District III driver's seat

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

The Big Spring Texas League All-Stars continued to be an exciting crew of giant killers last night in the District III Little League Tournament, taking a wild and crazy 9-8 win over the Midland Eastern All-Stars in the final round of the winners bracket.

That win boosts the Texas Leaguers into the championship game of the District III affair against the winner of tonight's battle between Midland and Eastern. That contest tonight will be played in the National League Park.

In last night's other game, the Mid-City All-Stars scored in the final four innings to take a 6-2 win over Midland North Central in the finals of the losers bracket.

The Texas League put themselves into the driver's seat in District III, but as is their norm, it was not easy.

With their three top pitchers not eligible due to pitching in the TL's win over North Central, Manager Vito Garcia was forced to go with Kenneth Banks and Sammy Rodriguez. And they proved to be good enough to win, although there were trying times.

The Texas League jumped out to an early 2-0 lead in the first inning on a two-run homer off the bat of Sidney Parker, and increased that to 3-0 in the second frame.

Banks retired Eastern, the defeating District III champ, in both of the first two innings. But after walking the first two hitters in the third, Rodriguez was brought to the mound.

The Eastern team pushed across runs in both the third and fourth innings to move within one at 8-2, setting the stage for a wild fifth inning.

In their half of the fifth, the Texas Leaguers used but two hits, a single by Felix Rodriguez and a double by Ramon Ontiveros, to push across six runs and move their advantage to 9-2.

But Eastern came right back in the half of the fifth. After the first batter was retired, five straight men scored for Eastern, and all came as results of home runs. The first was a two-run shot by Carlos Lozano, and the second a three-run blast by Tommy Yorkman. That cut the TL lead to 9-7.

After holding the Texas League in the sixth, the Eastern club put two runners on base in the bottom of the sixth. They managed to plate one run, but that was the extent, and the TL crew escaped with the big win.

The triumph allows the Texas League the luxury of having to win only one of their possibly final two games in order to claim the District III title. A win by the TL bunch on Friday night would end the tournament, while a loss would send the tourney into a final decisive game on Saturday.

QB Hogeboom shines in Cowboy scrimmage

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — Jerry Hogeboom completed eight of 10 passes for 113 yards to highlight the Dallas Cowboys' efforts Wednesday in a scoreless rookie scrimmage against the San Diego Chargers at the University of California-Irvine.

Hogeboom, a second-year veteran from Central Michigan who saw no action at quarterback last year, directed the Cowboys rookies on their longest drive of the day, 64 yards to the San Diego 5, before the march stalled.

Terry Elston, the former quarterback who is making a bid as a free agent tight end, led the Cowboys receivers with three receptions for 50 yards.

Another tight end prospect, free agent Wilbur Montgomery of Stetson, caught two passes for 40 yards.

Topping the Dallas rushing attack were free agents Sam Platt of Florida State with 18 yards on eight carries and free agent Ken Lovely of Fresno State with 18 yards on six carries.

The Chargers' deepest offensive penetration was to the 1-yard line.

Free agent safety Mike Downs of Rice had Dallas' only interception, a diving end zone pickoff of a pass by San Diego's Ed Luther.

First year defensive end Don Smerek of Nevada-Reno and free agent defensive end Ron Spears of San Diego State each had quarterback sacks.

Luther, a second-year man from San Jose State, completed 12 of 21 passes for 132 yards.

The Chargers No. 1 draft pick, James Brooks of Auburn, rushed for 30 yards on four carries.

Cooney vs. Holmes?

NEW YORK (AP) — After losing out on a shot at one heavyweight title, top contender Gerry Cooney is headed for a chance at the other crown.

At least that's what World Boxing Council heavyweight champion Larry Holmes contends, according to a published report.

New York Daily News columnist Dick Young said in the paper's late Thursday editions that the fight between the two unbeaten boxers is set, although the site and date have not yet been determined.

"Cooney has agreed to fight me," Young quoted Holmes as saying. "Now we can close the book on a lot of nonsense. It will be interesting. It will be one of the biggest fights in history."

Cooney was to meet World Boxing Association champion Mike Weaver in the fall. But Weaver was ordered by the WBA to fight No. 3 contender James (Quick) Tillis before meeting Cooney and will do so on Oct. 3 in Rosemont, Ill.

That left Cooney, who knocked out Ken Norton in his last fight, on the outside. Now, Holmes says, Cooney will be getting his shot.

"I hope it's late October or early November," said Holmes. "I don't think either of us needs a tuneup bout. I don't think we should take a chance on a head butt or cuts or anything like that."

Mike Jones, Cooney's co-manager, reportedly wants his fighter to have a tuneup before going after the title.

Little Football League sign-up nears

The third and fourth grade Little Football League will have registration July 27 and 28 at the Big Spring High School Steer gym. The registration table will be in the foyer, which is on the south side of the building. There will be someone there from 5:30 to 7:30 both days.

There will also be another registration Aug. 27, 28, 29, 31 and Sept. 1. These dates will be at the same place and at the same time except Saturday the 29th, when the time will be from 9 until 2.

The first registration dates are to get an idea of the number of teams needed. The League has already increased from four to five teams this year with a possibility of a sixth team becoming necessary.

The teams will be assigned by school for five teams. The sixth team will be made up of boys who register after the other five teams have 25 players.

After registration ends Sept. 1, the managers will contact their teams and practice will start Sept. 3. The games will be played at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. on Saturdays.

The first game will be Saturday afternoon, Sept. 19. The final game of the season will be Nov. 21. All games are scheduled to be played at the Little Football League field across from the American Little League baseball park.

There are still openings for managers and coaches for the Marcy team and for the sixth team, if formed. If anyone is interested, please come by the registration. Any help or donation will be appreciated as the League is non-profit.

Preparations are already underway on the field. If you would like to help in anyway from managing to working on the field, please call Eddie Akin at 263-8638 or Ken Winchester at 263-4914, or send your name and phone number to the Little Football League at 1306 Colby, Big Spring.

Optimism in strike talks reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The general manager of the Baltimore Orioles said today the Major League Players Association has made a new offer that a source close to the owners said he "thinks they can accept."

The offer apparently was made during a late Wednesday night session, then formally wired to the 26 owners.

Hank Peters, the Orioles' general manager, confirmed the owners had received a message from the players association "outlining the proposal they had given in (negotiations) the day before."

"It looks like they've come up with a proposal I think they (the owners) can accept," said the source close to the owners. No details of the proposal were disclosed.

The source said representatives of owners met with the players association "well into the night."

"There might be cause for optimism," he said. "There never has been as much optimism."

The source added caution, however.

"We expect something important to happen today, but things have backfired before."

The players were planning a noon news conference, the first since the negotiations moved to Washington earlier this week and a news blackout was imposed on talks in the 42-day old strike.

It was not known whether any new proposal would be discussed at the news conference.

Negotiations resumed at 9:30 a.m. EDT today at the headquarters of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan was back for a fourth day at the talks, although his involvement may have been nearing an end.

Asked to comment on reports of a new proposal, Donovan answered: "I understand a message was sent to the clubs, but I did not send it. I really can't add anything."

Saints' Rogers wants work

Running back George Rogers and tight end Hobie Brenner won't be in the New Orleans lineup today when the Saints and Miami Dolphins conduct a controlled scrimmage — but Coach Bum Phillips is delighted to have them around, champing at the bit.

Rogers, the National Football League's No. 1 draft pick, is being held out of the scrimmage, and all other contact workouts — to his displeasure — because of a slightly pulled muscle in his left thigh.

Brenner, the No. 3 draft pick by the Saints, isn't likely to show up at their camp until after the scrimmage, having finally come to contract terms Wednesday.

That leaves only No. 2 selection, defensive back Russell Gary, as the Saints' only unsigned draft pick — "and I'm looking forward to hat one, too," said Phillips, as he watched Rogers and the rest of his charges work out.

Rogers was limited to jogging along the sidelines. "Sure wish I could play," he shouted as he passed the tower from which Phillips watched workouts.

There was no response from above.

"Hey, up there! Sure wish I could play!" Rogers shouted again.

"How do you feel?" Phillips shouted.

"Like I could play."

But he won't.

Also signing NFL contracts Wednesday were veteran tackle Joe Devlin of Buffalo, who has been working out with the Bills during negotiations; defensive end Ross Browner of Cincinnati, who is to report to the Bengals' camp today, along with the rest of the veterans; tackle Brian Holloway, the New England Patriots' No. 1 draft choice

Prestigious Women's Open has no favorite

LA GRANGE, Ill. (AP) — Donna Caponi, who won the U.S. Women's Open in 1969, her first year as a pro, and repeated in 1970, says she has a game plan that could bring her the title again this week.

The 1981 LPGA champion, fresh from a victory Sunday in the WUI Classic in Jericho, N.Y., her fourth tournament victory of the season, says she was confident as the field of 150 players today began the first round of the 29th USGA Women's Open.

Caponi, one of a dozen favorites, contends that everyone has a game plan when she tackles the course.

"I think the whole field is my stiffest competition," she said.

NFL Roundup

"I think my chances are very good. I like the course and have the capability of winning here."

Caponi thinks that high-ball hitters like Daniel and Carner may have the advantage here.

"I'm playing well and have a lot of confidence," Caponi said. "But in the U.S. Open you have to establish a game plan and stick to it, especially on a course like this. I have mine ready, but

Georgetown coach moves out Festival press

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — and some who one day may be big, officially opens tonight already touched by controversy.

Even before tonight's opening ceremonies at the modernistic Carrier Dome on the Syracuse University campus, a flap arose over the closed-practice policy of the coaches of the eight basketball teams.

John Thompson, head coach at Georgetown, D.C., and of the East team at the Festival, was the prime mover behind the policy, which was adopted after two photographers and radio personnel were denied admission to a Sunday night practice.

"I requested that my practices be closed," he said Wednesday. "You're dealing with some people (players) who are new to you (coaches) and it's kind of hard to accustom them to you with people standing around."

He also said each team only had two 90-minute practice sessions daily and all that time was needed to prepare for the games, which begin Saturday.

The policy officially was adopted Monday night for the coaches of the four men's teams. It provides that only the first 15 minutes of practice at the university's Manley Fieldhouse be open and that none of the practices at local high schools be open.

Local rider second in exciting but dangerous Cheyenne Rodeo

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — The second go-round of the Cheyenne Frontier Days Rodeo included a lot of small disasters that made the day exciting for the crowd of nearly 11,000 but troublesome for the cowboys and other performers.

Wednesday's disasters included a sky diver whose parachute failed to open properly, a cowboy who had to ride three horses to get a score, a steer wrestler who wound up in the hospital and a bullfighter who got a free ride.

A team of U.S. Air Force Academy sky divers were dropped over the rodeo arena during the opening ceremonies but one sky diver's parachute failed to open completely. Fortunately he was able to jettison the chute and open his reserve canopy.

That mishap may have been an omen for five-time National Finals Rodeo cowboy Tom Miller of Faith, S.D. Miller's first mount in the saddle bronc event leaped out of the chute and promptly fell, briefly pinning the rider.

The judges gave Miller a re-ride but his second mount refused to buck after clearing the chute. The judges then gave him a third ride and Miller finally got on the scoreboard although he placed out of the money.

An Edna, Texas cowboy had even worse luck than Miller. When steer wrestler Zed Zetka landed on his steer the animal dropped his nose into the dirt, flipping both head-over-heels. The steer got up but Zetka lay motionless on the arena floor and was taken away in an ambulance.

A spokeswoman at a Cheyenne hospital said the injured cowboy was still being treated three hours later for possible head and neck injuries.

On the lighter side, bullfighting clown Wick Peth was a little too successful at luring a bull away from a thrown rider in Wednesday's rodeo. The bull left the rider for Peth and caught him as he sprinted toward a fence.

Instead of hooking the clown with his horns, the bull butted Peth on the posterior and lofted him into the air where he landed uninjured atop a bucking chute to the delighted cheers of the crowd.

BC-Frontier Days Rodeo Stats, 140 CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Here are the results of Wednesday's performance of the 140,000 Frontier Days Rodeo. Included are the results of the first go-round in bareback bronc riding, completed Wednesday, and the first day of the second go-round. Bull riding has only one go-round.

BULL RIDING — 1, Glen Younger, Grand Junction, Colo., 80 points; 2, Rusty O'Donnell, Big Spring, Texas, and Dennis Humphrey, Cheyenne, both 77.

SADDLE BRONC — 1, (Tie) Jim Sevier, Seneca, Neb., and Steeter Humble, Phoenix, Ariz., both 74 points; 2, Cody Lambert, El Paso, Texas, 73.

BAREBACK (First Go-Round Results) — 1, Steve Dunham, Turner Valley, Alberta, 78 points — $2,452; 2, Lewis Field, Peas, Utah, 74 — $2,009; 3, (Tie) Bruce Ford, Kersey, Colo., and Jimmy Cleveland, Durant, Okla., both 73 — both $1,477.

BAREBACK — 1, Dar Haskins, Mayville, Colo., 76 points; 2, Frank Ward Jr., Stephenville, Texas, 74; 3, Doug Decker, Sedalia, Colo., 71.

ROOKIE BRONC (Total) — 1, Marty Forster, McCoy, Colo., 139; 2, Brad Churchill, Avondale, Colo., 128; 3, Ed Leckwood, Vohbor, Mont., 124.

STEER ROPING — 1, Gary Good, Elida, N.M., 18.8 seconds; 2, Frank Braden, Ponca City, Okla., 20.2; 3, Olin Young, Jena, La., 21.7.

CALF ROPING — 1, Steve Thorn-ton, Rockdale, Texas, 14.4 seconds; 2, (Tie) Barry Burk, Duncan, Okla., and Jim Warren, San Juan Bautista, Calif., both 15.1.

STEER WRESTLING — 1, Stan Williamson, Kelseyville, Okla., 11.1 seconds; 2, (Tie) Bob Aky, Pratt, Kan., and Len Barnhart, Camp Creek, S.D., both 11.1.

END AROUND END — This steer was probably wondering which way was up when it was twirled around by a rope wielded by Ponca City, Okla. cowboy Frank Braden Wednesday at the 85th annual Frontier Days Rodeo. Braden roped and tied the steer in 20.2 seconds, good enough for second place behind Gary Good of Elida, N.M. who tied his score.

YMCA soccer competitive, but won't stress winning

Soccer, America's fastest growing youth sport will be offered at the Big Spring YMCA, Executive Director Bob Cappel announced today.

Sign-ups are scheduled for July 27 to Aug. 15 at the YMCA. Registration will be limited to boys-girls, aged six to 13.

"Participation will be the name of the YMCA soccer game," Cappel said. "There will be no tryouts in YMCA soccer. Each youngster who signs up will have an opportunity to play in every game."

Another aspect of the YMCA soccer program which sets it apart from many youth sports leagues is its build-in values component. "In YMCA soccer we will seek to de-emphasize the win-at-all cost philosophy," Cappel said. "Of course, youngsters will play to win, but in a variety of ways throughout the season, leaders will seek to put winning and losing into perspective. The emphasis instead will be on the fun of playing as well as on fair play and good sportsmanship."

YMCA youth soccer programs have expanded rapidly across America in the past few years. Just five years ago, only 50 Y's across the country reported soccer programs. In 1980, 701 Y's are expected to be involved, with some 200,000 youngsters between the ages of six and 17 participating.

For more information on the Y's new soccer programs call 267-8234 or stop by 801 Owens.

Sherman picked No. 1 by writers

DALLAS (AP) — The Sherman Bearcats have been picked by the Texas Sportswriters Association as the team most likely to capture the Texas schoolboy Class 5A football title this fall.

The writers voted that Sherman and San Antonio Holmes would meet.

In Class 4A, Georgetown was named as the likely champion after beating Lubbock Estacado in the title matchup in December.

AP made mistake on Raider story

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Associated Press reported erroneously Tuesday that a witness at a federal court antitrust trial said that the Oakland Raiders made a net of $12 million from their National Football League games in 1979.

The actual testimony at the Raiders-NFL trial on Tuesday by John R. Schoemer, an accounting firm partner, was that the Raiders had gross revenues of $12 million in 1979, more than the average revenue of $11.3 million for the 27 other NFL teams.

A report prepared by Schoemer's New York firm, Arthur Andersen & Co., introduced as evidence by the NFL, showed that the average team had about $5.1 million in player-related expenses and an average profit after taxes of about $836,000.

Gross revenues are income before taxes and expenses.

Hundreds of fans — some waiting as long as 45 minutes for Campbell to show up — turned out Tuesday to get the autograph of the former Texas Longhorn star, who made a promotional stop at a local automobile dealership.

NOTHING FISHY — Randy Acker of Grand Rapids, Mich. in his first fishing trip on Lake Michigan, broke the Michigan record for brown trout with this 32 pound catch.

CBS has four of five top-rated programs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For the ninth consecutive week, CBS topped ABC and NBC in overall viewership, according to the A.C. Nielsen ratings of network performance.

CBS had four of the five top-rated shows for the week ending last Sunday, Nielsen announced Tuesday. "The Jeffersons," in sixth place the previous week, moved to the top of the list with a 22.8 rating.

The networks say that means 18.2 million households — 22.8 percent of the nation's 79.9 million television-equipped homes — saw at least part of the sitcom.

"Trapper John, M.D.," moved up to second place from third with a 21.1 rating, while "Alice," hopped to third from 13th with a 20.5 rating and "60 Minutes" climbed to fourth from ninth at 20.2.

ABC's "Hart to Hart" rounded out the top five with a 20.2 rating. Although "Hart to Hart" and "60 Minutes" had the same rating, "60 Minutes" was ranked higher because it had a larger share of the television audience, meaning that the 16.1 million households tuned to the program represented a larger proportion of the audience slot with a 17.6 rating.

CBS' overall rating for the week was 14.2, meaning that during an average prime-time minute 14.2 percent of all households with television were tuned to a CBS show. ABC was second with 13.1 and NBC followed with 12.0.

It was not a good week for first-run specials, three of which were among the five lowest-rated programs. ABC's "Omnibus" thudded to the bottom of the list at No. 67 with a 4.5 rating, and NBC's "Comedy Theater: Dear Teacher" was next-to-last with a 7.8 rating. Another ABC original special, "Best of Times," was No. 63 with an 8.6 rating.

Rounding out the bottom five were a pair of NBC reruns, "Games People Play" and "BJ & the Bear," which occupied the 63rd and 64th slots with ratings of 8.3 and 7.8 respectively.

The top 10, their ratings and viewership:
 1. "The Jeffersons," CBS, 22.8, 18.2 million; 2. "Trapper John, M.D.," CBS, 21.1, 16.6 million; 3. "Alice," CBS, 20.5, 16.4 million; 4. "60 Minutes," CBS, 20.2, 16.1 million; 5. "Hart to Hart," ABC, 20.2, 16.1 million; 6. "Too Close for Comfort," ABC, 19.7, 15.7 million; 7. "Three's Company," ABC, 18.5, 14.8 million; 8. "The Facts of Life," NBC, 18.5, 14.8 million; 9. "M-A-S-H," CBS, 17.6, 14.1 million; 10. "Different Strokes," NBC, 17.5, 14.0 million.

The second 10:
 11. "The Dukes of Hazzard," CBS, 12. "Barney Miller," ABC, 13. "20/20," ABC, 14. "Taxi," ABC, 15. "House Calls," CBS, 16. "Quincy, M.E.," NBC, 17. "Monday Night Football: The Death of Jeannine Park," ABC, 18. "Dallas," CBS, 19. "Laverne & Shirley," ABC, 20. "Magnum, P.I.," CBS.

Sunbathers beware

Dermatologists says tanned skin is damaged skin

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sun-bronzed skin might be the ideal fostered by Madison Avenue and Hollywood, but an Austin dermatologist says tanned skin is damaged skin.

In a handful of cases, says Dr. Eugene P. Schoch Jr., melanomas — an often fatal form of skin cancer — can result from repeated exposure to the sun.

He warned against suntanning booths and offered guidance to people who insist on going out in the sun.

Schoch said most of the rays emitted by suntanning bulbs are Ultraviolet B (UVB), the rays that burn. A tan obtained from UVB bulbs in a tanning salon is more damaging to the skin than one obtained outdoors, he said, and the damage to skin cells "could be twice as great as the noonday sun."

"There is no standardization, and you don't know what you are going to get when you go into a suntan booth," Schoch said.

Schoch published his views in Texas Medicine, the journal of the Texas Medical Association, and elaborated on them in an interview.

"Many sunbathers — mostly youths but also many athletically-minded adults — equate dark-bronze tanned skin with health. As far as cutaneous (skin) health is concerned, nothing could be more incorrect. Suntanned skin is damaged skin," Schoch wrote.

He said that besides sunburn, there are other damaging effects of the sun's ultraviolet rays on the skin.

"Chronic long-term sun exposure produces aging of the skin. Dryness, thinning and variegated pigmentation eventually lead to development of precancerous actinic keratoses and cutaneous (skin) malignancies," Schoch said.

"Excessive sun exposure increases the incidence of malignant melanomas of the skin."

While the melanoma connection is difficult to document, Schoch said dermatologists are convinced it is there, with the highest risk among people with lots of freckles or moles.

"Certain types of mole can be pushed over the brink and become malignant," he said.

Schoch said he has observed an increase in skin cancers, including melanomas, over the life of his 30-year practice, which coincides with the growth of what he calls the "fetish for sunbathing."

Schoch explained in an interview that not all sun-worshippers or persons forced by their occupations to work in the sun will get skin cancers, but many will.

Virtually everybody with "Type I" skin, which always burns and never tans, will develop precancerous conditions and skin cancer if exposed continually to the sun, he said.

Schoch suggested that risks of sun damage can be reduced by sunscreens and by engaging in outdoor recreation before 10 a.m. and after 4 p.m.

Ten more Haitians arrive City utilities director quits

By BILL ELDER
Ten more Haitian refugees, their departure from a Miami, Fla., holding facility delayed because of lack of space on a plane flight, were scheduled to arrive at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp this afternoon.

The refugees were originally scheduled to arrive with the 90 men who were transferred to the camp Saturday night by U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service order. A plane chartered out of Miami at federal expense did not have enough space to accommodate the full number of 100 refugees destined for temporary holding in Big Spring.

The arrival of the 10 — booked aboard a Texas International plane to Midland and set to be bused here — was confirmed to The Herald by camp Assistant Superintendent Jerry Edwards.

Edwards also said INS personnel, who have not accompanied any refugees to Big Spring, would be in town Thursday.

Details on INS proceedings were not available, but Edwards said the INS would begin a screening process which will decide whether the Haitians — who fled their island home to find jobs in the U.S. — are accepted as resident aliens or deported.

INS officials reportedly would hold hearings before judges in the employ of the immigration service in order to determine the fate of the refugees. It's not known how long the hearings might take.

Yesterday, the Big Spring City Council voted to protest the refugees' arrival to Gov. Bill Clements and the state's Congressional representatives. The vote was three to two, with Councilmen Robert Fuller and Russ McEwen voting to abstain from the protest (The Herald incorrectly reported the vote in yesterday's edition as four to one). The vote was intended as a complaint against the swift transfer of the Haitians into Big Spring, as well as a protest against any more refugees being detained here, explained Councilman Jack Y. Smith, who made the motion calling for the vote.

"We have enough problems in the state as it is," Smith said.

Edwards said this morning that with the arrival of the last ten refugees, scheduled for about 2:15 p.m., the camp's capacity for refugees would be reached.

"One hundred is all we can feed and care for," he said.

The refugees are being kept on the second and third floors of the Sunset dorm, where they are separated from the other prisoners and given 24-hour surveillance.

Yesterday was their first day to get outside and exercise, which they did by playing soccer — a popular sport on Haiti.

Camp Superintendent John Allman said the Haitians told him they thought they were being flown out of Miami in order to be given jobs. They have to be told (through interpreters, since most speak French and few English) that they were being held here with no assurance they would be allowed to stay in America.

Edwards described their mood as one of fright.

"They're scared," he said. "I felt sorry for them the other night." The first batch of refugees was met Saturday night by a battery of TV camera lights and perhaps half a dozen reporters.

Edwards said some of the men complained of the apparently confusing news media attention, and today's arrival of the refugees would be closed off to the press.

FIRST DAY OUTSIDE — The Haitian refugees who were brought Saturday night to the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp got a chance to soak up some above-100-degree Texas sunshine yesterday, which they did while engaging in a bit of soccer, said to be popular on Haiti.

In a move that may mean a reorganization of the city's utilities department, Bill Brown resigned Monday as director of that department.

Brown cited "personal reasons" for the resignation, effective Oct. 1, 1981, and declined to offer detailed reasons for leaving his post.

He and City Manager Don Davis said the departure was being made on a friendly note, with Brown describing his 13 years with the city as years during which he maintained a "good working relationship" with Davis's office.

Davis announced the resignation in a 9 a.m. press conference today, and took the opportunity to indicate some structural reorganization would be made in the utilities department.

"Obviously, we're going to have to do some reorganization when you lose a person of this capacity," said Davis.

Davis said he had no plans for immediately replacing Brown and conceded he might even split Brown's post into a two-man position.

"I don't want to cast anything in stone yet," he cautioned.

He said he had authority under the city charter to hire a replacement and make any other departmental changes.

Brown said he will stay in Big Spring and has not yet sought another job.

"I hope to be working some place," he said with a grin. Brown joined the city right out of the Army in 1968, assuming the post of superintendent of sewage services and working his way up to the top job in the utilities department.

BILL BROWN

Local post office expects no problems

By ANDREA COHEN
Contingency plans have been made at the Big Spring Post Office in case a nationwide strike should occur, according to Postmaster Frank Hardesty.

Leaders of the nation's two largest postal unions announced tentative agreement early today with the Postal Service to avert a nationwide mail strike, but two hours later said the deal was off. They said the last management offer contained "a serious inconsistency" with what they had understood.

"They thought they had an agreement verbally and when it was written, it didn't come out the same way," Hardesty said. "I'm hoping it was a typing mistake. I hope they get it on paper the way it was agreed to verbally."

"Everything's okay as far as the workers are concerned," he continued. "Everybody came to work."

H.C. McPherson, president of the American Postal Workers of Postal Clerks, Local No. 1694 and Wade

Bledsoe, president of the Local No. 1891 chapter of the National Association of Letter Carriers, had previously told The Herald they did not intend to strike.

McPherson reconfirmed that position this morning. "I don't think everyone else will either," he said. "It's a violation of the law. If we were a regular union, we could."

According to McPherson, the effects of the walkout will not be known until it is known how many employees, nationwide, will strike.

According to Hardesty, contingency plans were made months ago in the event of a walkout.

"If it's not a lot, it won't have much of an effect. If it's a large amount, the mail will slow down."

"We don't anticipate anyone walking out so the mail should be delivered normally," he said. "There may be a delay but we will get it out. If workers in a large city walk out, we won't get the volume. But they've made contingency plans also."

Coahoma's tax rate to drop for 3rd consecutive year

COAHOMA — For the third year in a row, the tax rate in the Coahoma School District has been lowered by the board of trustees.

The trustees met Monday to approve a plan to reduce the rate from 81 to 72 cents per $100 valuation. That figures out to 12 percent.

Increased oil play in the school district enabled the board to take such action and still meet all its obligations on the $6 million bond issue voted earlier this year.

The oil industry pays 94 percent of the taxes in the district, another 2.7 percent comes from residential property, 1.8 percent from farm and ranch property and 1.5 percent from personal property.

The Coahoma bonds, approved by the electorate by a 460-150 margin, were sold for 7.87 percent interest. K.A. Sparks of Hamilton won the contract on a bid of $5,140,500. Work began on the new construction May 1 and will likely continue for two years.

The construction will include a new kindergarten through fifth grade elementary school building, gymnasium and central cafeteria.

The bond rating is considered excellent in view of today's interest rates.

Such items as $213,530 worth of improvements to the football stadium, new press boxes in the amount of $25,815, stage band instruments in the amount of $4,350, a $12,000 school van, a $3,000 20X20 building for the band and $2,800 for baseball equipment have already been paid for.

In other action, the trustees voted to appeal the decision handed down by 118th District Court Judge Jim Gregg ordering a new trustee election, which would pit Clovis Phinney against Ken Cobb.

The appeal will be heard by the Court of Civil Appeals in Eastland. Cobb had sued to have results of the election thrown out, claiming irregularities in the vote count.

Search warrant not needed

By CAROL HART
STANTON — Texas Ranger Eddie Almond testified today that he did not possess or need a search warrant when he undertook surveillance of two men accused of delivering less oil to Cosden Oil and Chemical than they said they had delivered.

Almond took the witness stand all morning in the Stanton County Court-house as the second day of testimony unfolded in the oil scam case. The two men accused of selling less oil to Cosden than they actually delivered are John Theford Sims and D.C. Wheeler, owner of Jaco Oil Co.

Former Odessa District Attorney John Green, attorney for Sims and he said the surveillance was carried out on January 1 and January 5, 1981. He identified Wheeler and Sims, a pumper for Jaco, as being on the lease on those two days.

Almond said he was about 175 yards south of the Duncan-Currie Lease, on the Continental Lease, and was too far to observe exactly what Sims and Wheeler were doing. The Duncan-Currie Lease, where the scam is alleged to have happened is about 12 miles south of Big Spring.

Photographs taken by Forshee with a telephoto lens allegedly show an oil-flow indicator registering less oil being pumped into Cosden pipelines than Cosden paid for.

Green attempted to stop Forshee's photos from being admitted as evidence on the grounds that Almond didn't have a search warrant, but District Judge Jim Gregg ruled against the motion and allowed the photos to be admitted.

Tuesday afternoon, Archie Farr, district director for the Railroad Commission, was called to testify about how the investigation began.

During four hours of testimony, Farr explained the complexity of oil lease regulations. He said Cosden had not requested the Texas Rangers to investigate Jaco and that it was his own suspicion in October of 1980 that led to his asking the Texas Rangers to step in.

"This investigation was started on your own opinion?" Green asked Farr.

Farr replied that he had no evidence that the scam had occurred and that it was "just my observation" based on information he had about the lease.

WAITING FOR APPROVAL — Three members of the Big Spring United Way Executive Council discuss with the Big Spring United Way board of trustees the goal for the 1981-82 campaign. The trustees approved a $200,000 budget for

UW has $200,000 goal 'Realistic' budget adopted

After a week of extensive study, the Big Spring United Way board of trustees approved a $200,000 budget Tuesday for the 1981-82 United Way campaign, according to Russ McEwen, campaign chairman for the United Way.

The United Way Budget Committee, which consists of Ron Medley, chairman, Russ McEwen, Drew Mouton, Joanne Poyner, Dana Moore, Dr. Charles Hays and Sid Clark, held budget hearings recently and asked that each agency provide them a realistic budget of their agency within which they could operate and would not have to carry on any additional campaigns outside of the United Way.

After the agencies provided the Budget Committee with their request the committee studied their requested budget and granted each agency what they felt was a figure that the United Way could meet for each agency. The budget committee then presented the budget to the trustees for their approval.

Last year the United Way raised more money than had ever previously been raised. The campaign drive netted $162,000, which was $40,000 more than the previous year and $20,000 more than any year of the campaign.

"We feel that this goal is a realistic and reachable goal," said McEwen. "We raised $160,000 last year, which was the most we have ever raised, and we feel that with aggressive campaigning we can exceed that mark and reach the $200,000 goal. I can assure you that we will not be able to obtain this without a lot of dedicated people and hard work. The executive Board, the Campaign Committees and myself are dedicated to reach this goal. We feel that by October, our campaign month, we will be well organized, well planned and enthusiastically prepared to accomplish this task."

Ron Medley, president of the Big Spring United Way, told the trustees, "This is a realistic goal and can be reached if the people of Big Spring all pull together and support these agencies that help so many of our citizenry. I feel that we can achieve this goal. We need to get together and help support those less fortunate than us. Inflation and recession affect us all, but it affects those less fortunate than us more," said Medley.

The agencies supported by United Way and what each agency was granted are: American Red Cross — $10,000; West Side Community Center — $5,000; Girl Scouts — $10,000; Dora Roberts — $20,000; YMCA — $20,000; YMCA Lakeview — $2,500; Salvation Army — $37,000; Big Spring Boy's Club — $31,500; Boy Scouts — $19,000; and the Day Care Center — $14,500.

Midland teams take District III wins

A pair of Midland teams stayed alive in the District III Little League Tournament here Tuesday night, scoring wins over the squads from Big Spring and Lamesa.

The losses to the Big Spring National All-Stars and Lamesa All-Stars knocked them out of the tournament, which sends the winner to bi-district.

Midland North Central jumped out to a 4-0 second inning lead over the National team, the withstand a slight rally and another attempted uprising before tumbling off their toes.

Leading 4-0 in the bottom of the fourth, the National League used a single by Deeg Young to plate two runs and move back within two.

The NL looked primed to even things up in the fifth by loading the bases with only one out. But North Central hurler Jason Logi fanned the next hitter and picked up a bunt attempt with his bare hands off the bat of Lance Soles, and simply walked to home plate to put out the NL fire.

North Central added three insurance runs in the top of the sixth to win going away.

Logi was the winning pitcher, while the NL's John Olson was the loser.

Boyt had two doubles to pace North Central, with L. Wood contributing a pair of singles. Adding one hit each were Werner, Eldridge, McGaha and Connally.

Cary Fraser led all hitters in the game, cracking three hits of the National League. But only Young and Donnie Peacock managed hits other than Fraser for the NL.

The other contest was a thriller to the end, as Midland Mid-City used a wild pitch in the bottom of the eighth to score the winning run in an exciting 3-2 triumph over Lamesa.

The contest was a prime pitchers duel, as Mid-City's Curtis Tipton and Lamesa's Carl Pennington were excellent.

The winning run for Mid-City came off the arm of Lamesa's Mark Aldridge, who pitched to the final three hitters.

Only four teams remain alive in the District III affair, and they will all be in action tonight.

In the finals of the losers bracket, North Central and Mid-City will tangle, with the winner staying alive in the tourney. That contest will be played in the American League Park.

The finals of the winners bracket will be held at the National League Park. It will match the Big Spring Texas League All-Stars against defending tourney champ Midland Eastern. Both of these teams are undefeated.

All games begin at 8 p.m. The winner of tonight's Mid-City vs. North Central game will play the loser of the Texas vs. Eastern contest tomorrow night. The survivor of the Thursday game must then beat the Texas vs. Eastern winner two straight games on Friday and Saturday to claim the title.

Coahoma All-Stars honored

The Coahoma Little League All-Stars capped their season by being honored at the Hickory House by Travis Mauldin.

Comprising the Coahoma All-Stars were Ronnie Ruitz, Buddy Cunningham, James Seals, Gordon Daniels, Anthony Hernandez, Willie Gutierrez, Todd Coker, Rene Ruiz, Luis Salazar, Lane Reid and Dee Jon Douglass.

Coaches for the Coahoma group were Bob Barnett, Juan Ruiz and Robert Turner.

The Coahoma All-Stars played one game, taking the regular season champion Lions Club. They won that game 9-3.

Tax rate will remain same

Trustees of the Howard County Junior College District voted to keep the district's tax rate at 14 cents per $100 valuation at their noon meeting Tuesday at Howard College.

The tax revenue within the district will increase 7.7 percent, principally because of the increased oil activity within the county. Only those property owners who added to the value of their property will be paying higher taxes, it was emphasized.

A public hearing on the district's proposed budget will start at 5:15 p.m., Aug. 12 in the Student Union Building.

Sister of BS woman killed

Mrs. F. Maubaules, sister of M.H. "Jack" Spivey, 4014 Parkway, was killed instantly this morning at 4 a.m. A sand truck, 18 wheelers, hit a horse and ran through her bedroom killing her instantly. Funeral services are pending at Kelly Hixon funeral home in Beaumont.

Domino artists await tourney

Competition in the annual Big Spring World Championship Texas Style Domino Tournament will get under way Thursday morning in the Garrett Coliseum and continue through Saturday. Entry fee is $100 per two-man team. No more than 72 teams will be accepted for competition. Most of those are assured of playing on through Saturday.

Harold Hall is tournament director. Each member of the winning team will likely earn in excess of $1,000. Trophies will also go to the winning tandems.

Maidique is sentenced

Edwardo Maidique, the Cuban national convicted last week by a Howard County jury of involuntary manslaughter in the death of Linda Garcia, was formally sentenced to 13 years in the Texas Department of Corrections by District Judge Jim Gregg Tuesday.

Present during the sentencing were Maidique's attorney, Wayne Basden, and his brother, Alberto. Sheriff's deputy Paul Silva acted as interpreter for Maidique.

Dieting is easy with cool, summer dishes

Those who diet frequently say that the hardest part about dieting is not taking pounds off, but keeping them off. Dieting experts tell us that the key to successful maintenance includes setting realistic weight loss goals and changing established eating habits over an extended period of time.

Several dieting techniques are helpful to keep in mind when trying to lose weight or keep off unwanted pounds.

First, cut down on portions of favorite foods instead of eliminating them, to avoid eating binges. Don't skip snacks if they're part of a daily routine, but be sure they are worth the calories, like juice, a piece of fruit, or raw vegetables.

Other weight-conscious measures include using food products that contain fewer calories. There are a number of products on the market today that have good quality and flavor and less calories.

Many can be substituted for similar but higher calorie ingredients in most recipes. Many are identified as "light" or "lite" on the labels.

Lite-line pasteurized process cheese product slices for example, used in two of the following recipes, contains only half the calories of regular American process cheese. Apple Blossom Salad and Open-Face Salad Sandwich both use Lite-line slices with fresh fruits and vegetables. Other refreshing summer diet choices, to help maintain a weight loss, are Chilled Zucchini Soup and Banana Frappe. The soup starts with chicken-flavor instant bouillon, fresh zucchini, yogurt and mustard. Banana Frappe, a tangy blend of reconstituted lemon juice, nonfat dry milk, bananas and sweetener, satisfies the urge for a thick shake, without all the calories.

APPLE BLOSSOM SALAD
(Makes 2 servings)
4 slices Borden Lite-line Pasteurized Process Cheese Product
2 small apples, cored
1/2 cup lowfat cottage cheese
1 (8-ounce) can pineapple chunks in pineapple juice, drained
1 medium orange, peeled and cut into bite-size pieces
Lettuce leaves
Cut 2 Lite-line slices into small pieces; cut each remaining Lite-line slice into 4 triangles. Chop 1 apple; cut remaining apple into wedges. In medium bowl, combine cottage cheese, pineapple, orange, Lite-line pieces and chopped apple. Arrange on apple wedges and lettuce. Top with Lite-line triangles. Serve immediately. Refrigerate leftovers.

Per Serving: 278 calories

OPEN-FACE SALAD SANDWICH
(Makes 2 servings)
2 slices thin sliced whole wheat bread
Fresh spinach or leaf lettuce
6 thin slices cucumber
4 slices Borden Lite-line Pasteurized Process Cheese Product
4 slices tomato
1 hard-cooked egg, sliced
Low calorie salad dressing, optional
On each bread slice, layer spinach, cucumber, 2 slices Lite-line, tomato and egg. Top each with 1 tablespoon any flavor low calorie salad dressing if desired. Refrigerate leftovers.

Per Serving (with dressing): 186 calories
Per Serving (without dressing): 170 calories

Tractor maintenance course set

A Tractor Maintenance Short Course for adult farmers and all others interested will be held August 17-20 under the sponsorship of the Coahoma High School Vocational Agriculture Department, according to Richard Souter, Superintendent, and Stanley Blackwell, Teacher of Vocational Agriculture.

Mr. Richard Pivonka, Tractor Maintenance Specialist with the Agricultural Education Adult Specialist Program and the Department of Agricultural Engineering at Texas A&M University, will do the instructing.

Mr. Pivonka received his B.S. degree in Mechanized Agriculture from Texas A&M University in 1975. From June 1975 to April 1977, he worked for the Rio Grande Valley Sugar Growers, Inc. as a Mechanical Equipment Foreman. He was responsible for the maintenance of a wide variety of shop and field equipment.

The short course at Coahoma is scheduled to begin Aug. 17 at 7:30 in the Coahoma School Bus Barn. During the dates the short course is in progress, Mr. Pivonka will be available to assist participants with individual tractor problems and to provide "on-the-farm" instruction.

All those interested in attending the short course should write or call the Teacher of Vocational Agriculture, Stanley Blackwell, 394-4863, 394-4542, and 394-4535. Tractor Maintenance Short Course Certificates will be presented to each individual who attends all four of the training sessions.

Mr. Pivonka states that the key to longer tractor life comes from a full knowledge of the fundamentals of an engine and the application of the proper maintenance skills involving lubrication, fuels, carburetion, air cleaners, cooling systems, valves and ignition. Mr. Pivonka will cover the proper adjustments and maintenance of the above with emphasis on the importance of each in obtaining a longer tractor life and improved performance. Throughout the short course, emphasis will be placed on "learning to do by doing" through the use of several demonstration tractors. All enrollees will have the opportunity to perform actual adjustments and maintenance on their own tractors. Safety and operating techniques will also be stressed.

Short courses in tractor maintenance, as well as other subjects, are available to farmers throughout the state under this cooperative program between the Texas Education Agency and Texas A&M University.

Ground school course offered for pilots

Aircraft pilots in this area are invited to participate in pilot ground school courses in preparation for taking Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) written examinations and to increase their aviation knowledge. The courses are offered by the AOPA Air Safety Foundation of Washington, D.C., as part of their nationwide program to enhance air safety.

The program will offer the Private-Commercial Pilot, and Instrument Rating-Instrument Flight Instructor written examination courses, according to Richard D. Kessel, director of the Foundation's Special Courses Department.

The classes will begin Friday, July 31, and continue through Sunday, Aug. 2, at the Inn of the Golden West, 4th & Lincoln Streets, Odessa. FAA written examinations will be given Monday, Aug. 3, at the same location.

Gene Kimble to return home

Gene Kimble, long-time employee of The Herald, is scheduled to return home from Lubbock General Hospital Wednesday, where he has spent the last several weeks.

Kimble underwent hip surgery to improve his mobility. His return to Big Spring was delayed by the fact that he broke a bone in his leg as he sought to ease his discomfort while in traction.

Kimble plans on being back at his desk in The Herald Monday.

Camp Jaycees honor International LL

The Big Spring International Little League made tremendous progress during the past year, and much of this upward movement was due to the work of the Big Spring Camp Jaycees. 100 members of the Jaycees capped the season by honoring members of the first place Royals, which they sponsored, at a recent banquet.

At the banquet, the Camp Jaycees honored the parents and players on the Royals, giving each team member a personally monogrammed Royals jersey, along with personal honors going to the parents for their participation and cooperation.

International League President Ed Lawson, who has done an excellent job in organizing the help of both parents and Camp Jaycees to improve the playing conditions, as well as help budget for new uniforms for each team, was also present at the banquet.

A specially monogrammed Royals jersey and baseball cap was presented to Mr. John Allman, Superintendent of the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp for his support of this pilot program in allowing the Big Spring Camp Jaycees to sponsor, coach and manage the Royals baseball team.

J.D. Gregory, staff member and sponsor of the Big Spring Camp Jaycees also received a specially monogrammed Royals jersey and baseball cap for his unselfish and exemplary interest in this pilot program.

Camp residents Ken Exell, Bo Boydston, and Alex Trevino, received the same for their invaluable assistance in coaching and managing the Royals baseball team.

Another camp jaycee, Charley Johnson, the Chairman of this project received a special commendation for his efforts in coordinating all the functions of the Big Spring Camp Jaycees with the International Little League. He was also cited for being Player Agent of the entire league in establishing and maintaining the eligibility of some 135 players and coordinating the draft, as well as maintaining accurate and complete player records. He also handled all trades and replacements eligible along with team registers and scheduling of games.

Lawson, who gave great credit to the Camp Jaycees, stated, "The Big Spring Camp Jaycees are the reason for this 1981 season being such a success. They maintained and completely kept the baseball field manicured during the year, painted some 27 advertiser billboard signs which were hung on the outfield fence, were the official announcers and score keepers for the ball games, umpired all the games in the latter part of the season, including all play off games, and completely built an announcers booth on top of the concession stand. It is now used for managers meetings and storage of equipment. All this does not include a considerable amount of money donated by the Camp Jaycees to the League when it was in a real need."

Lawson also stated that a careful account contributed during the season was in excess of 3000 man hours worked over a six month period. "Those fellows in the Camp Jaycees are genuinely interested in the welfare of the children as well as a proficiently run league. The International Little League cannot express enough appreciation for what the Big Spring Camp Jaycees have contributed to the league, and mainly to the children," said Lawson.
