Reagan to talk at 7 p.m. on TV

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, in a preview of tonight's speech to the nation, today defended the compromise he accepted on his tax-cut program and derided a rival Democratic proposal as "rigged."

Addressing a group of trade association lobbyists and leaders, Reagan declared, "The bottom line is simply this: Ours is a permanent commitment. Theirs is not."

While Reagan's proposal calls for a three-year tax cut and indexing to offset inflation, the Democratic plan would not provide third-year reductions unless the economy meets certain targets the administration has set.

"Their tax bill is so rigged that by the end of the second year the deficit will be $7 billion or more bigger than it would be under our program — which will automatically insure that they will never pull that trigger that would bring about the third year's tax cut," the president said.

Referring to changes made in his program last week, Reagan said, "It proved that more cooks were better than just one." However, he said, "When the details of the debate are cleared away, let everyone remember this: The concepts of our first tax proposal... remain intact today."

In a last-minute addition to today's schedule, the president also held several meetings with congressmen to pitch for their support in advance of Wednesday's crucial House tax cut vote. White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the president planned to do more of the same Tuesday.

"We have a good feeling of momentum in the vote-counting up there," Speakes said, expressing confidence that the White House had won over some Democrats.

However, he added, "We're certainly not prepared to say it's anything but a tough fight. We know it will go down to the wire."

White House chief of staff James A. Baker III said the president will stress in his speech that his version of a tax-cut bill is an essential ingredient of the administration's economic recovery blueprint. Aides said Reagan would be armed with charts and graphs.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said the president will "talk about his tax proposal and what it means to the country and why it's desirable that it be his tax proposal rather than the other (Democrats') tax proposal" that wins congressional approval.

CBS, NBC and ABC television networks said they would carry the address live at 7 p.m.

Democrats will start taking shots at Reagan's speech immediately afterward on ABC, which said it is giving them free time to respond. NBC said it will put them on at 10:30 p.m., and CBS said it is setting aside time Tuesday night for their rebuttal.

The House is scheduled to choose Wednesday between Reagan's proposal for a 25 percent tax cut spread over three years or a Democratic alternate providing a 15 percent reduction over two years.

With the end of the battle in sight, both sides were lobbying heavily for votes.

Reagan sent a helicopter back to Washington to ferry 14 Democratic congressmen to Camp David for a Sunday barbecue. The guest list actually numbered 15 since one congressman — Rep. Beverly Byron of Maryland — drove instead of flying.

The menu featured hot dogs and hamburgers and a relish of soft-sell from the president and his treasury secretary. After making his pitch, the president answered questions from his guests.

"I think everytime you meet and eat you try to persuade, but I think it was low key and on a high level," said Rep. Richard Shelby, D-Ala., who declared he would support Reagan.

Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, a supporter of the president's program, said Reagan did not ask anyone to commit himself but merely to give his version careful consideration.

Commissioners study Knott fire request

By CAROL HART

County commissioners today discussed the possible addition of another firefighting unit in the Knott area.

O.L. "Louis" Brown, commissioner, Precinct 1, said that several people in the Knott area had approached him about purchasing a 500-gallon fiberglass tank to use to fight fires. Brown said he thought the purchase of such equipment would be a good idea, because Precinct 1 only has one fire-fighting unit.

David Barr, commissioner, Precinct 4, said he doesn't think the purchase of the tank is necessary because the area already has the proper firefighting equipment ready for use.

"They already have something that will do the job," said Barr. "It's a waste of money."

Commissioners decided to study further the costs of adding such a unit. Clifford Hart of the road and bridge department met with commissioners in place of County Engineer Bill Mims, who is on vacation. Hart told commissioners he would check on a radio unit in the Jonesboro Volunteer Fire Station. Arly Knight monitors the fire station and requested that the radio be repaired and that a radio be installed in his car.

C.W. Parks sent a request to the commissioners via County Judge Bill Tune. Tune told commissioners that Parks wants to lease or buy the property behind the county library.

He wants to purchase the 10-foot alleyway which goes behind the Gulf Station and the library. The alley has been closed by the city, and Parks wants to re-open the alley and build a retaining wall.

In other business, Bonnie Franklin, county treasurer, told commissioners the county got back $1,108 in workman's compensation payments because the county had maintained a good safety record.

"By keeping our accidents back" the county saved $1,108, said Mrs. Franklin.

Four new employees were approved by commissioners. They include Debra Ann Thompson, a part-time clerk in the sheriff's department. Mrs. Thompson was hired at $3.35 an hour.

Margaret Jane Overman was hired as the county attorney's secretary. Ms. Overman will be paid $929 a month.

Hank A. Willemsma was hired as assistant county agent and approved by commissioners today. He will make $464 a month and will be furnished with a pick-up. Willemsma also receives a salary from the state.

Ralph R. Matteson was hired as a vacation jailer, to take the place of vacationing personnel. He will be paid $604.50 for two weeks work as a jailer July 14-28.

Junior rodeo begins here on Wednesday

One of the oldest continuous junior rodeos in Texas will kick off Wednesday evening in Big Spring and continue through Saturday night.

The annual event, sponsored by the adult leaders of Howard County 4-H clubs, is always one of the largest American Junior Rodeo Association-approved rodeos in the Southwest.

Youngsters from throughout West Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma travel to Big Spring each year for this event to accumulate points toward championships in their respective categories.

Local adult leaders and friends of 4-H contribute almost all the labor involved in the four-night rodeo.

Each club is sponsoring a queen contestant who will be selected on pre-show ticket sales.

This year's show is being dedicated to two longtime supporters of the rodeo and 4-H program, Donald Lay and Lawrence Davis, who both passed away earlier this year.

Furnishing stock for the show will be Mack Altizer of Del Rio, Texas. The show announced will be Marve Pierce of Carlsbad, N.M., sponsored by K-Bob's Steak Houses.

Rodeo secretaries this year are Mrs. Leslie McFadding of Rankin and Sherry Altizer.

The rodeo is served by an advisory committee composed of 4-H leaders and local rodeo supporters. This committee is responsible for the procurement of a stock contractor, selection of events, selection of rodeo officials and judges and many other duties. Committee members are Jimmy Taylor, Skipper Driver, Repps Guitart, Paul Allen, Charles Phillips, Sammy Buchannon, O.F. Carper with County Extension agents, Don Richardson and Hank Willemsma serving in an ex-officio capacity.

A board of junior directors handle many other duties and these local 4-H club members are Scott Robinson, Reagan Brooks, Rory Buchanan, Austin Hale, Blair Richardson, Kevin Hamlin, Ron Brooks, Stan Parker, Greg Miller, Danny Peugh, Tammy Peugh, Leigh Ann Billingsly, Robin Ethridge, Lori Roman.

Final arguments expected today in oil theft trial

By BILL ELDER

STANTON — Closing arguments were expected to be heard today in the case of The State of Texas vs. John Theford Sims and D.C. (Butch) Wheeler.

Sims and Wheeler are accused of theft over $10,000 from Cosden Oil & Chemical in an alleged oil swindle that occurred late last year and early this year on a lease operated by the Jaco Oil Co., which Wheeler owns and Sims works for as a pumper.

Formal criminal charges were being prepared this morning by Howard County District Attorney Rick Hamby and Assistant District Attorney Don Richard in conjunction with Odessa attorney John Green, who was representing Sims and Wheeler.

After the charges are read to the court, closing arguments by both sides will be heard, and the Howard County jury of eight men and four women will be instructed by District Judge Jim Gregg to begin deliberations on the verdict.

If a guilty verdict is rendered today, the jury is likely to reconvene tomorrow to begin deliberations on sentencing.

If found guilty, Sims and Wheeler could each receive up to 10 years in prison and/or a $5,000 fine.

The pair are expected to face similar charges in a civil suit brought by Cosden after the conclusion after the criminal trial.

Action/reaction: Why pure-breds?

Q. What is the advantage of owning a pure-bred dog? The Heinz 57 variety seems more lovable.

A. If you own a pure breed, you know pretty well what the animal will look like when fully grown, how big it will get and what the breed's basic personality is — that is, if you know the dog's parents. Just because a dog has a pedigree, it does not mean that it comes with a guarantee of quality.

Man holds police at bay after shooting wife

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who shot his wife after an argument, then fired on an ambulance when it came to pick her up, held police at bay outside his northeast Houston home for several hours Sunday afternoon, police officials said.

A police spokesman said the man held the couple's four children in the house for two hours, but released them unharmed after a police department psychiatrist talked with him.

The spokesman said the man's wife was taken to Ben Taub hospital. Officials there said she was listed in fair condition with a gunshot wound to the head.

Police said the man was charged with attempted murder in his wife's shooting.

Hunger strike in 67th day

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Kieran Doherty today began his 67th day without food, setting a record for the Irish nationalist death fast at Maze Prison, but he was not given much longer to live.

The Irish Republican Army guerrilla was the first of the Maze strikers to survive 66 days without food, surpassing Bobby Sands, who launched the current protest March 1 and died soon after midnight on May 5 at the start of his 66th day of fasting.

The longest IRA fast this century was by IRA leader Terence McSwiney who died after 74 days without food in London's Brixton Prison on Oct. 25, 1920.

Sinn Fein, political front of the outlawed IRA's Provisional wing, said Doherty, 25, was losing his sight and hearing and was in extreme pain.

Kevin Lynch, also 25 and one day behind Doherty on the fast, also was in critical condition in the prison's hospital wing, a Sinn Fein spokesman said.

Tanker catches fire

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A railroad car loaded with a toxic chemical caught fire early today near Newark International Airport, forcing the evacuations of thousands of people from Port Newark, an airport terminal and motel, officials said.

In addition, seven nearby businesses and a number of highways were cleared of personnel as a precaution. No injuries were reported, but firefighters worried that the burning ethylene oxide, which is releasing toxic fumes, could explode.

There are no homes in the area, on the southern outskirts of this city of 300,000 people.

The chemical, which is used in the manufacture of other chemicals, is "highly toxic," said fire department spokesman Lonnie Tucker.

About 24,000 gallons of the chemical were in a 55,000-gallon tank car sitting on tracks owned by Conrail at a yard, Tucker said.

The fire broke out as rail workers were hooking trains together, said Fire Chief Thomas Boyle.

Flames shot 50 feet into the air from the punctured car, and the chemical was leaking at the rate of 5-10 gallons per minute, he said.

"We're just going to let it burn, because when that thing stops burning, we've got trouble," said Boyle. He said if the flames went out, the chemical could mix with air and explode.

McAllen mayor files suit

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — McAllen Mayor Othal Brand has filed a $2.5 million libel and slander suit against the Edinburg Independent, a hard-fought mayoral election.

Brand alleged that Dr. Ramiro Casso, a McAllen physician, recklessly and negligently said and published false statements from Feb. 20 to the May 9 runoff election.

Brand contends in the suit filed in state district court that Casso has accused him of criminal actions and says the statements have humiliated and embarrassed him.

The mayor also blames Casso's statements for adversely affecting his nomination to the state prison board. Gov. Bill Clements appointed the mayor to the post but the nomination was blocked by Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville.

TI earnings down

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Instruments, Inc. reported steep declines Monday in earnings and net income for the second quarter of 1981, in part because of a 3 percent workforce cutback and abandonment of several "growth opportunities."

TI chairman Mark Shepherd Jr. said net income for the quarter fell 81 percent to $10.5 million compared with $55.1 million one year ago. Earnings per common share dropped from $4.60 to $1.91.

Shepherd said the workforce cutback, announced in May, and the company's withdrawal from several consumer product activities "caused significant write-offs and charges that are reflected in the second quarter results."

Net sales billed for the three months ended June 30 increased 5 percent, to $1.056 billion, he said. Increases in distributed computing, government electronics, geophysical exploration, electrical controls and metallurgical materials more than offset declines in semiconductors and consumer electronics, the company reported.

Profit from operations as a percentage of net sales was 6.2 percent during the quarter, compared with 10.8 percent one year ago.

The company's backlog of unfilled orders increased to $2.136 billion, up from $2.098 billion last year, Shepherd said.

Shepherd said the demand for consumer electronic products, declines in which led to the May layoffs, remained soft through the end of the quarter. Shipments and operating results remain substantially below last year's levels, he said.

Midland sheriff's deputies recapture third escapee

MIDLAND — The third escapee from the Midland County Jail was recaptured Saturday night in Midland, according to Capt. Robert Settles of the sheriff's Criminal Investigation Division.

Willie Bustillos Jr., who had escaped from the jail July 5, was arrested at the corner of Bankhead and Midkiff in Midland at about 11:40 p.m. Saturday by Midland sheriff's deputies, accompanied by DPS trooper and a Texas ranger.

Bustillos had been observed by officers as a passenger in a vehicle, Settles said. The vehicle was placed under surveillance while additional officers were summoned.

The vehicle subsequently was stopped and Bustillos was arrested. "He was not armed at the time of the arrest and offered no resistance to arresting officers," Settles said. "The driver of the vehicle and other passengers were detained by deputies. It was determined after investigation that they were not involved with Bustillos and they were released."

Bustillos had been indicted by a grand jury for aggravated robbery and escape charges.

Wallace Lee Sims and Frank Sidney Smith, who had escaped with Bustillos, were recaptured five days after the escape.

Man with donor heart in stable condition

By JAMES R. KING Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A donor human heart was "beating strongly" today, more than 30 hours after it replaced an artificial heart that had kept a 36-year-old Dutchman alive about 54 hours, hospital officials said.

A Texas Heart Institute spokeswoman said doctors continue to be "guardedly optimistic" while emphasizing the next 48 to 72 hours will be critical for Willebrordus A. Meuffels.

"The patient's condition is virtually unchanged. The heart is still beating strongly, the patient has a good blood pressure," said Hazel Haby.

The previous longest surviving cardiac patient kept alive with an artificial heart lived for 65 hours on the plastic device and another 36 hours after it was replaced with a human heart in 1969. That operation and the current one were performed by heart transplant pioneer Dr. Denton A. Cooley.

Ms. Haby said Meuffels' blood coagulation problems have continued since the human heart transplant was completed early Sunday but she said it was a common problem normally associated with heart transplants.

HOUSTON (AP) — An 18-year-old Houston student came home from a Moscow language competition with a bronze medal and the assurance that he made a lasting impression on his Russian hosts.

J. Sterling Mullins said one Russian journalist described him as "a real Texan who took off his cowboy hat only when he entered the testing room."

Mullins was on a six-member team of American students competing with 350 contestants from 41 nations in the Fourth International Russian Language Olympiad in Moscow earlier this month.

Russian language teachers judge the competition, which is held every three years.

"They could all tell that I was an American," Mullins said. "Between the cowboy hat and boots, they couldn't help but know."

Mullins, who graduated from Bellaire High School in May, earned his place on the team after winning a six-state regional competition in April.

"Our team did a fantastic job for America," he said. "We all won medals. We came back with two gold, two silver and two bronze medals."

Mullins says he plans to attend the University of Texas in September as a Russian language major. But he says he also studies German, Chinese, Spanish, French, Hebrew and Welsh.

New controversy threatens Casey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Embattled CIA Director William J. Casey, stepping up his fight to keep his job, now faces a new controversy over a CIA covert action plan that sources say he approved in an effort to topple Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafy.

One Republican source said Sunday night that Casey recently presented the House Intelligence Committee with a proposal that the CIA try to undermine the radical Arab leader.

Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., a member of the committee, said Chairman Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., and others on the panel had sent a letter to President Reagan protesting a proposed covert action that Casey had approved.

Zablocki declined to identify the target of the proposed covert action, but the Republican source, who asked not to be identified, said it was Libya.

Also on Sunday, Casey asked the Senate Intelligence Committee to allow him to appear at a committee hearing as soon as possible to try to dispel questions about his past business dealings, his management of the agency and calls for his resignation by three key Senate Republicans.

Casey sent each member of the Senate Intelligence Committee a 20-inch stack of written material Sunday afternoon, one day earlier than he had initially promised.

These responses were in answer to four pages of questions the committee sent Casey last week regarding his role as a director of a failed New Orleans farming venture called Multiponics Inc. and his appointment of Max Hugel, a businessman inexperienced in intelligence, to head the CIA's worldwide spy network, CIA spokesman Dale Peterson said.

Casey apparently speeded up his response when the committee staff indicated it would finish writing a preliminary report on its inquiry into Casey today for presentation to a closed committee meeting Tuesday morning. Casey had said Friday that his responses would lay the entire controversy to rest.

Newsweek magazine reported the covert operation was designed to overthrow Khadafy through a "disinformation" campaign to embarrass him, creation of a counter government to challenge his leadership and a paramilitary campaign.

The magazine said the CIA's goal was Khadafy's "ultimate" removal and that House committee members read this as code for assassinating him. The magazine said the committee members mistrusted Casey's denial of any intent to kill Khadafy, described by Reagan as a premier supporter of international terrorism.

Weather

Storms possible across Texas

By the Associated Press

Scattered showers and thunderstorms from the remnants of a tropical depression were reported early today in South Texas.

And forecasts called for scattered showers and thunderstorms statewide today. The shower activity was expected to be mostly during the afternoon and early evening hours.

Forecasters warned that some of the thunderstorms in the Panhandle, lower Pecos Valley and in the mountains of Southwest Texas might be heavy.

The tropical depression moved from the Gulf of Mexico into Mexico about 60 miles south of Brownsville early Sunday.

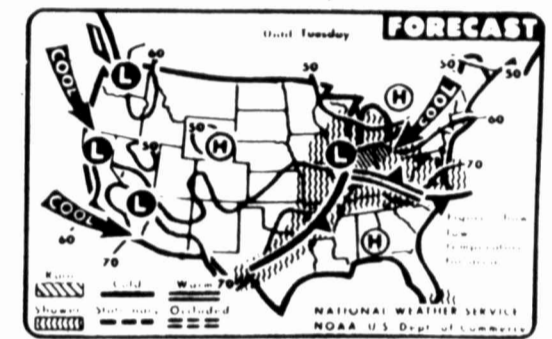

The shower activity in South Texas diminished during the night, prompting the National Weather Service to cancel a flash flood watch issued for South Texas.

Highs today were to be mostly in the low to middle 90s, ranging from the 80s in the Panhandle to near 100 in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas.

In addition to the showers and thunderstorms reported before dawn in South Texas, shower activity was also being reported north of Amarillo in the Panhandle.

WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy with widely scattered thunderstorms. Little temperature change. Lows near 40 extreme north to mid 70s extreme south. Highs mid 80s Panhandle to upper 90s in the south.

EXTENDED FORECAST WEST TEXAS — Scattered showers and thunderstorms more numerous afternoon and night through Tuesday. Possible a few heavy thunderstorms Panhandle and extreme south. Not so warm Tuesday. Highs upper 80s Panhandle to near 100 Big Bend. Lows low 40s Panhandle and mountains to upper 70s south. Highs Tuesday mid 80s Panhandle to mid 90s Rio Grande except 40 mountains.

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool weather is expected in the forecast period, today until Tuesday morning, for the Pacific coast and the Great Lakes. Warm weather is expected for most southern areas. Showers are forecast from Texas into the Midwest, Great Lakes and mid-Atlantic states.

2 lead plants posing health hazard in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Tests conducted earlier this year by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency showed lead concentrations in a 25-mile area around three Dallas smelters were 10 times higher than levels generally recognized as dangerous to humans, a newspaper reported.

The Dallas Morning News, in a copyright article in Sunday's editions, said an independent toxicologist reported lead residues in soil near the three smelters have caused serious illness and brain damage among smelter workers and area residents.

A lawsuit filed in federal court here blames the deaths of three smelter workers on lead poisoning from the alleged contamination, and the Texas Industrial Accident Board ruled last month that lead poisoning contributed to the death of one worker.

The board awarded full benefits under the Workmen's Compensation Act to the widow of 53-year-old Elmer Hancock, who died in September of 1974, the newspaper said.

The two other deaths are under investigation by the board to determine if they were caused by exposure to lead, a spokesman for the board said.

Dallas health officials, however, told the News they conducted 12,000 tests since 1977 without discovering any lead-related health problems.

And officials at the National Lead Industries, Dixie Metals and RSR Corp. smelters deny their plants have produced dangerous levels of lead contamination.

The company officials did say they have told the EPA they will conduct studies to determine the exact lead level in the vicinity of their smelters, the newspaper reported.

The News said at least 110 employees in lead smelters in East Oak Cliff and West Dallas say they have suffered illnesses and disabilities caused by exposure to highly toxic lead dust.

Tests by Dr. Thomas Kurt, a Dallas toxicologist retained by a former smelter worker in his suit against his former employer, show that four children who live in the Cadillac Addition of South Dallas have been contaminated with lead, the newspaper said.

Kurt said they have absorbed enough lead through the air and soil to cause long-term physical problems, including headaches, cramps and impaired vision. He said one of the children has suffered delayed mental development.

One yard in the East Oak Cliff neighborhood of south Dallas had a lead content of 25,503 parts per million when tested by the EPA last month. Three hundred parts per million is generally recognized as a threat to public health, medical authorities told the newspaper. The soil in the yard was tested to a depth of three inches.

Reports say nuclear regulations work

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industry officials say the fact that U.S. nuclear power plants reported 3,804 incidents of equipment problems, design flaws and human error in 1980 does not mean such plants are unsafe.

They say the reporting of even tiny problems shows that a complex regulatory system is working well to insure the public's protection.

For the second year, Critical Mass, an anti-nuclear group associated with Ralph Nader, has compiled a scorecard for each of the country's 69 licensed reactors based on reports power companies are required to file with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The study said incidents ranged from "the relatively minor — such as improperly calibrated monitoring devices, to the very serious — such as leaks of thousands of gallons of radioactive coolant."

The total is a 20 percent increase over 1979. The study pictures a system "fraught with frequent cases of human error, chronic defects in essential safety equipment, unresolved design problems and countless equipment failures." It said 57 percent of the incidents were caused by equipment failures, 20 percent by human error, 16 percent by design flaws and 7 percent by other causes.

The Tennessee Valley Authority's Sequoyah plant had the highest number of incidents at 238 even though the plant only operated for 11 percent of the year. Georgia Power's Hatch II was second with 157 incidents, followed by Toledo Edison's Davis Besse reactor with 121.

The industry attacked the report as a meaningless numbers game, saying that since the NRC requires a wide variety of reports, simply adding up totals is not a proper indication of how safe any plant is.

But Richard Udell, author of the study, said: "There is no such thing as an insignificant mishap involving nuclear technology. The stuck valve that precipitated the accident at Three Mile Island was originally diagnosed as a minor event."

Are riots cries for help?

In these troubled times, who can argue with the claim that man hasn't strayed very far from the jungle?

Riots are just as apt to break out in Los Angeles or Houston or New York City as they are in Belfast, Tehran or Liverpool. The professional baseball players set a good example for those bent on dissent. Meanwhile, they're back pumping gasoline, digging graves and tilling the soil.

PEACEFUL DEMONSTRATIONS are one thing. Promoting the idea of genocide is quite another. When centers of great cities are turned into shambles by restless groups, it is time that rational human beings cement their efforts to see that order is restored and miscreants punished.

The so-called 'civil disturbances' now going on in Britain have proceeded beyond that definition. The mobs' mentality is such that looting has become an accepted part of the protest. Many participating in the trouble-making do it for the sheer fun in it. They've never worked, yet they protest they cannot find employment. Their skills are highly localized. Outside of being able to make a fire bomb, there is little some of the rioters can do.

The troubles in Northern Ireland are eternal. The fathers bent on the total destruction of the enemy are teaching their small children to hate, to maim and to kill.

Does rioting grant them a license to help themselves to another man's merchandise? From Watts to Miami to Liverpool, apparently it does. How long can civilization endure where business establishments are pillaged by gangs who reason television sets and stereos are their's for the asking?

APOLOGISTS FOR the lawless breed say the riots are a "cry for help." Perhaps, but one might examine the evidence. A recent news report emanating from Britain stated "As the officers fell back, looters followed, including women with shopping bags and children as young as eight. Some stood calmly in line waiting for their turn to steal food, television sets, suits and dresses. Housewives hurried away with baby carriages piled with loot."

Similar incidents had earlier occurred in several American cities.

Our own nation was borne of dissent but those who dared to disagree with the mother country were generally men of principle. There is a vast difference between protesting and plundering. No where is it written into man's bill of rights that he can avail himself of another man's property if he disagrees with him.

Role is reasserted

Joseph Kraft

OTTAWA — The U.S. has reasserted its role as peacemaker of the world economy, and the leaders of the other major industrial countries, despite some misgivings, have crossed their fingers and gone along with Ronald Reagan. That's mainly what has been happening at the economic summit meeting here in Ottawa.

Previous summit sessions throw into stark relief the nature of the present meeting. The first economic summit, back in Rambouillet in 1975, was a price exacted by the French for acceptance of an American idea for reform of the international monetary system. At the next session in Puerto Rico, Gerald Ford was certified by his peers, just before the electoral campaign, as a true leader in foreign policy.

JIMMY CARTER, an honest-to-God believer in partnership and interdependence, solicited favors at four successive summits. At London in 1977 and in Bonn the following year, he sought Japanese and German cooperation for government policies that expanded economic activity. At Tokyo in 1979 he asked for help against a run-up of oil prices by competitive bidding on the spot market. At Venice in 1980 he tried to keep the others in line with the embargo placed on Russia after the invasion of Afghanistan. A little assistance was forthcoming, but it was grudging and there was not a wet eye in any of the summit capitals when Carter was voted out last November.

The Reagan Administration has concentrated on the American economy with hardly a glance over the shoulder at other industrialized countries. It has tightened monetary policy considerably, and tried to cut back on social expenditures while pushing for private economic growth through tax relief. Inflation has eased — in part because of good luck on oil and food prices, but interest rates have hit record highs.

The impact on other advanced countries has been distinctly adverse. In order to prevent a catastrophic flow of funds from their own currencies to the dollar, West Germany, Italy, France, the Netherlands and Belgium have all had to maintain their interest rates at high levels. As a result, these countries have experienced an extraordinarily slow recovery from the recession induced by the oil price rise of 1979-1980.

This economic growth in the U.S. will exceed two percent this year, and the jobless rate will grow by less than 10 percent. But the four major European countries (Germany, France, Britain and Italy) are suffering a drop in growth and a rise in unemployment of more than 25 percent.

Inevitably there has been squawking, particularly from the newly elected French government of Francois Mitterrand, who has ambitious social schemes in mind. But President Reagan was able to turn aside all the complaints by holding out the hope that rates would go down later in the year. Even M. Mitterrand, who made a strong pitch on the issue in his private talk with Mr. Reagan Sunday night, gave the U.S. till the end of the year to get rates down.

acceptance of the American lead by the other advanced countries finds many special political explanations. Margaret Thatcher of Britain agrees, in principle, with the Reagan policies. Helmut Schmidt of West Germany is torn between his own Socialist Party, which favors lower rates and a more expansive economy, and his partners in the governing coalition the Free Democrats, who, along with the German Central Bank, support the American position.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau of Canada does not want a fight over interest rates to foul his hopes for a bigger commitment from the industrialized countries of the North to the developing nations of the South. The Italian Prime Minister, Giovanni Spadolini, represents a splinter party so narrowly based he cannot afford to make any waves. Zenko Suzuki wants only to get through the meeting without new threats of barriers against Japanese exports to Europe and North America. At one point, when Trudeau and Reagan were gossiping about how many leaders spoke French and how many English, there spread over the face of Mr. Suzuki, who speaks neither, a beatific smile.

A larger consideration, however, takes precedence over all the special, political reasons. When the U.S. is on the defensive, when Washington does not know its own mind, and looks outside for cues, and chops and changes policies, then all other countries have to back and fill. When the U.S. makes its own policies with its eyes fixed on American conditions other countries can adjust accordingly. Then, if things turn sour, or somebody gets hurt, changes can be effected and compensations quickly made. In other words, the world is healthier economically when the U.S. acts as Number One.

Reaganism at summit

Evans, Novak

OTTAWA — In his first meeting at the Western economic summit, President Reagan displayed drastic change in Washington by warning West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt it would be risky for Bonn to buy natural gas shipped through the Soviet Union's new Siberian pipeline.

Neither Gerald Ford nor Jimmy Carter would have so directly confronted the imperious dean of Western summiters. Nor was that the original intention of foreign policy bureaucrats preparing Reagan's strategy here. But on the Siberian pipeline as on other key issues, politically-appointed Reagan administration officials beat the bureaucrats.

The result was Reaganism at the summit. "The only thing we wanted to accomplish here," one senior presidential aide told us, "was showing that Ronald Reagan stood for something." They succeeded. If Reagan at home is accused of formulating no foreign policy, Reagan at Ottawa left no doubt where he stands.

Officials of the other industrialized democracies, who often complained Carter did not stand for anything, grumbled here that Reagan stands for too much. At Ottawa, they learned as have congressional Democrats, that behind his warm personality and pleasant chatter, Reagan is rigidly ideological as no other American president has been.

The Ottawa summit came at an unpropitious time for Reagan, quite apart from interfering with his tax bill fight and coinciding with the newest Mideast crisis. His lone natural ally here, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, is in political extremis. The accession of Socialist Francois Mitterrand to the French presidency pushes leftward the ideological balance of the industrialized democracies.

Under these conditions, the diplomatic bureaucracy in Washington advised Reagan to sweet-talk his way to leadership at Ottawa. Thus, early position papers for the summit urged accommodation toward the wish-lists of Bonn, Paris and Ottawa — including the Siberian pipeline.

But the defense department intervened to insist that was not Ronald Reagan's policy. When Reagan arrived here, he immediately warned Schmidt of dependence on Soviet energy. The chancellor responded that the pipeline would supply only 5 to 10 percent of German energy needs. Reagan persisted, suggesting U.S. help in providing alternative energy sources — coal and nuclear — in place of Soviet gas.

This U.S. hard line in Ottawa came only after internal battling in Washington, and the same was true of Reagan's position on so-called North-South issues. State Department positions on aid to the underdeveloped Southern Hemisphere read suspiciously like Carter administration doctrine — possible because they were drafted mainly by Assistant Secretary of State Robert Hormats, who was a senior official in the Carter administration.

Non-Reaganist Hormats encountered implacable opposition from Reaganists in the Treasury and Office of Management and Budget. They switched the administration's position to opposition against a World Bank scheme for substantial U.S. financing of Third World energy development.

Another backstage battle was fought over the approach to the new French president. A first-draft briefing paper, prepared for Reagan by foreign policy bureaucrats, described Mitterrand as "a man of vision" whose views demand respect. The Reaganists removed the offending language, and the paper's final version advised a courteous but arm's length approach to Mitterrand.

At issue was not the French president's personal merit but the danger of Reagan being trapped by Mitterrand and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau in government projects to transfer resources from the developed North to the underdeveloped South. In his stiffly-formal first meeting with Mitterrand, Reagan made clear his preference for the private sector in Southern development.

Thus, Reagan did more at Ottawa than answer complaints about U.S. interest rates and react to the Mideast. Reagan's positions actually set the boundaries of this summit, dooming inclusion in the final communique of Trudeau's grandiose scheme for "global negotiations" to redistribute world wealth.

Other national leaders here did not like Reagan's intransigence any more than Carter's indecisiveness. "Reagan should remember what Harry Truman said: You can tell a man to go to hell, but you can't make him go," one European diplomat told us. "We have other options than blindly following the Americans."

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have a friend who has become involved in health foods and exercise. He says I could get rid of a lot of my nervousness if I would get involved in these things also. Do you think God could use things like this to help me? — MA.

DEAR M.A.: The Bible points out that God created us, including our bodies, and wants us to take care of them. He has made it possible for us to get food from the ground. We also need to be sure we discipline our bodies with wholesome exercise.

The Bible also warns us against gluttony, and one reason for this is undoubtedly because of the connection between good health and proper diet. Many of the laws of the Old Testament had to do with diet; modern science has demonstrated just how sound and correct these laws were for people who had (for example) no means of refrigeration.

At the same time, the Bible also warns us against putting our priorities in the wrong place, or seeking to find answers to our problems in the wrong way. The Bible says, "Train yourself to be godly. For physical training is of some value, but godliness has value for all things, holding promise for both the present life and the life to come" (1 Timothy 4:7-8).

In other words, while we need to pay attention to our legitimate physical needs, we need to give priority to that which is more important — our relationship to God.

Your letter suggests to me that you have never committed your life to Jesus Christ. Above all, I urge you to do this. Fad diets or rigorous programs of physical exercise will not solve your greatest need.

In fact, they may be harmful — not only because some of the might actually harm you physically, but because they may keep you from facing your deepest need, which is your need of Christ.

Therefore I ask you to turn your life over to Jesus Christ. Trust him as your Savior and Lord. By faith invite him to come into your life and take control of every area. I am convinced that if you do this you will find God will help you begin to deal with the problems you face.

The Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

I would like to strongly urge the people of Big Spring, the people of Texas, and the people of the United States, to flood the President, Senators, and Congressmen with letters and telegrams demanding them to get all refugees, not only out of Big Spring, but completely out of our country.

We cannot even take care of our own, and I think that is where our first obligation lies. We will never balance the budget by taking in and taking care of every Tom, Dick, and Harry that comes to shore in a row boat.

John Allman seemed to be boasting that the government was going to pay $25 per head, per day, that would be pumped back into Big Spring's economy. Well, Mr. Allman, part of that money is mine and that certainly isn't the way I want it spent.

Let's get them out of here!

Daryle Coates
Rt. 1, Box 421-B

Dear Editor:
I am supporting our City Council for the stand they have taken on the Haitian Refugee issue. I feel when we voted for these men, they have a right to express their feelings and ours on an issue such as this.

Does it effect our community, our children, our life style? Yes, it does effect us in Big Spring. Will we feel safe with our children on the streets after dark? Can we leave our homes and not be afraid what might happen to it? Think about it.

Charlene Wooldridge

Around the rim None like British

Andrea Cohen

Let's face it. Nobody can do it like the British. Who else can get away with all the fuss, pageantry and publicity besides the British Royal Family?

Tomorrow night, the networks will begin to indulge us with coverage of the event. One wedding will get the same coverage that the first moon walk got on.

THE POMP AND circumstance that the British bestow upon the world is amazing. The queen will take so many steps out of her carriage on a red carpet so many feet long at a certain time. Everything is planned down to the second.

But it's the publicity I'm amazed at. Lady Diana "underwent a discreet gynecological exam to confirm she can have children" according to one news story.

Directions on how to obtain the Lady Diana haircut have been published. We've learned that six wedding gowns have been made just in case a cigarette burns one and the nervous bride spills coffee on another. They just think of everything, don't they?

One British "expert" spoke on a news show that the children of the couple will be tall and good looking since Charles and his soon to be wife are both "tall and good looking." It sounds like a best of breed contest.

I DON'T QUESTION whether a useless monarchy should be in existence or not. It's just the fact that it is there and everyone seems to love it so much, including the foreign press, who are willing to spend so much money covering it.

And this is just the kind of thing to make Richard Nixon jealous. He would have given anything to have the same pomp and coverage of Tricia's wedding that Charles is getting.

Are you going to get up at 5 a.m. to watch this shindig? I probably will, because I'll probably never get to see the likes of this again in my lifetime.

I'm going to get a pillow, throw it on my living room floor and enjoy it in my jammies.

And I will enjoy it. I'll be relieved that she's the one going through all this and not me.

Don't tinker with lefties

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is right- or left-handedness taught or is it an in-born trait? Our nine-month-old has favored both hands at different stages. At present he uses his left hand to grasp things. I'm left-handed, so I know the difficulties he will encounter as a lefty. I'm hoping he will switch back. At what age will we know for certain that he will use his left hand for writing? — Mrs. U.

Neurologist friends tell me you cannot be sure which hand a child will eventually choose until he is between two and three years old. They tell me that it is not good practice to switch a child from left to right. If he is more comfortable using his left hand, let him. Switching may make him an awkward rightie.

Why some people choose one hand over the other is still controversial. There is evidence that heredity is involved. Learning is another strong factor. Slight dominance may be another. Whichever eye is used for sighting, as in aiming a gun, for example, may determine which hand is dominant also. In right-handed people, the left side of the brain is dominant. But it is not always true that left-handed people are right side brain-dominant. So brain side dominance, once a convenient explanation for left-handedness, is not the whole story.

Between 90 and 95 percent of us are right-handed. I have great admiration for the left-handers, who go through a right-handed world uncomplaining.

When I was in high school, I heard about a baseball player who could use both hands equally well. I was determined to imitate him. I tried eating all meals with just my left hand (I'm right-handed). After a week of split milk, dropped sugar bowls and other awkwardnesses, my dad noticed what I was doing. He terminated my grand experiment and blighted a brilliant baseball career.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters.

Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Once Her Jeans Are On, Girl Should Stay in Them

DEAR ABBY: I have been told by friends that it is possible to get pregnant through your jeans. I can't believe this!

I am a virgin, just turned 15, and know I am going to be more involved with guys now that I'm dating. If this is possible, I am scared to death to get very close to any guy. I need to know as soon as possible.

I hope you won't think this is a dumb question.

WORRIED IN EL PASO

DEAR WORRIED: It is not a dumb question. It's a very intelligent one. A lot of kids get aroused by just lying close to each other while kissing. Then they just naturally proceed to the next step, which is petting. It's not possible to get pregnant through one's jeans, but sometimes kids remove some of their clothing because it's "in the way," or they burrow underneath it to explore each other's bodies with their hands. This is known as heavy petting, or "doing everything else but."

The technical (and legal) definition of sexual intercourse is "penetration." (The male's sex organ must penetrate the female's.) However, as impossible as it may sound, in the medical literature can be found cases where there has been no penetration — the girl remained a virgin, but after engaging in heavy petting, she found herself pregnant.

Pickling problems cited

Problems with pickle making can be perturbing. Some common problems are shriveled, hollow, soft, slippery and dark pickles.

Shriveled pickles may result from using too strong a vinegar, sugar or salt solution at the start of the pickling process. In making very sweet or very sour pickles, it is best to start with a dilute solution and increase gradually to the desired strength. Overcooking or overprocessing may also cause shrinkage.

Hollow pickles may result from one of several causes. Poorly developed pickles may become hollow. Holding cucumbers too long before pickling is another cause. Hollowness may also result from too rapid fermentation or too weak a brine during fermentation.

Soft or slippery pickles usually result from microbial action which causes spoilage. Once a pickle becomes soft it cannot be made firm. Microbial activity may be caused by too little salt or acid; cucumbers not covered with brine during fermentation; scum scattered throughout the brine during fermentation; insufficient heat treatment; a seal that is not airtight; or moldy garlic or spices. Blossoms, if not entirely removed from the cucumbers before fermentation, may contain fungi or yeast responsible for enzymatic softening of pickles.

Dark pickles may be caused by ground spice; too much spice; idiosyncratic over cooking; or minerals in water, especially iron contents.

For best results with pickles use only quality cucumbers or other vegetables or fruits and follow tested recipes.

Luther woman wins governor's annual Outstanding Volunteer Services Award

The Annual Governor's Award for Outstanding Volunteer Service has been presented to Mrs. Cromwell (Lois) Rhoton of Luther.

LOIS RHOTON

County Extension Agent, Nina Mahon, nominated Mrs. Rhoton in the category of "the volunteer who has excelled in length, quality, and spirit of service to others" due to the fact that Mrs. Rhoton exhibits all of these qualities.

Mrs. Rhoton serves as a volunteer leader in the Extension program in Howard County. She has served as an organizational leader, a project leader, and an activity leader in many of the various 4-H project areas and programs for over 11 years.

She has served as a leader in the Gayhill 4-H club in all home economics projects and has represented her club by serving on the 4-H finance committee, 4-H Junior Rodeo committee, 4-H Arts and Craft Show committee, and has served in the 4-H adult leader association.

Approximately 40 to 250 4-H club members over an annual period of 4-H projects and various Extension programs offered to the communities in this county.

As a result of her dedication to these programs, she received the County 4-H Leader Award in 1974 and the Texas 4-H Foundation Recognition Award in 1978.

Mrs. Rhoton not only exhibits leadership abilities in the Extension program, but serves as a leader in civic, youth, public, church and school activities. She has assisted with band activities by serving as a band parent and as a Junior Class sponsor at Gail High School. She assists every year with the Women's Division of the Howard County Fair and actively supports community activities by participating in fund drives and has assisted with school trips and fund raisings. She is also an active member in the community church.

Mrs. Rhoton trains 4-H'ers to be leaders in their club, community, and school. Thus, they readily accept responsibilities and are inclined to do things on their own by exhibiting these leadership skills. She makes it a point to stay informed about the latest 4-H information-county, district and statewide, and other leaders and 4-H'ers depend on her for this knowledge. The 4-H members have developed a sense of fairness and good sportsmanship as well as gained knowledge and skills from the project areas Mrs. Rhoton has supervised.

Although the Rhotons have only one son, Lois shares her talents, interests, and knowledge with all youth and adults. She is definitely an inspiration to young people. She became an adult leader in the Gayhill 4-H Club at a time when member interest was low. With her help and the help of others, rolls have increased and Gayhill has become a very active club.

Probably Mrs. Rhoton's greatest contribution to the Extension program is her ability to recruit other leaders, and assist in training them, in addition to exhibiting these leadership skills in her own lifestyle from day to day.

Mrs. Rhoton is an exceptionally fine person. It is someone like she, dedicated to a cause, who contributes time and energy unselfishly to individuals and is always willing to volunteer her services to the 4-H program in Howard County.

Tricycle teaches child valuable lessons in coordination and concepts of time and space

Consider the tricycle — a marvelous machine that teaches concepts of time and space. A child should be ready for a first tricycle and the lessons it teaches, at about the end of the second year.

Growing Child, a monthly child development newsletter, reports that learning to ride a tricycle helps children get their eyes matched up with what their bodies are doing. The first thing they learn is to push first with one foot and then with the other, to shift from left to right. Doing this, they learn about having two different sides.

The concept of difference of sides is important in learning to read. If a child has no concept of the left-right difference, she may read "b" as "d" or "was" as "saw". Reversals like these are really reversals in space: the only difference between "b" and "d" is the difference between left and right.

In order to organize directions in space outside her body, the child must first feel the difference between left and right, up and down, within her own body. Once she feels those differences inside herself, she has a starting point for organizing the space outside herself.

Pushing the pedals first with the right foot and then with the left helps a child learn that right and left, inside and outside, are different.

A tricycle also teaches about time. To make any progress at all, the child must shift from side to side, from left to right, at the proper time. She cannot shift at any old time: she must be precise.

Time is very important in school learning. To spell correctly, for example, a child must learn to get the letters in the proper time order. A child who has not learned about time might spell "girl" as "gril" or "frist" as "frist". These errors are examples of general problems in organizing time. Riding a trike smoothly, efficiently, and rhythmically helps the child organize movements in time.

An old fashioned tricycle is probably best to buy, one where the child sits straight up instead of leaning back. This gives clear and unobstructed vision.

A child will feel more comfortable if her feet reach the pedals without adding blocks of wood. A good general guide is that if a child's inside leg measurement is between 17" and 20" her tricycle front wheel should have a diameter of 12" or 13". A shorter child may need a 10" front wheel.

Choose a tricycle with a squat look, that is, a wide wheel base in proportion to the height. A wider wheel base will make tipping over on tight turns less likely.

As for how to teach a child to ride, probably the best method is just to put her on it, put her feet on the pedals, and let her go.

You can get more information on this subject and on the physical and social development of children up to six years old by writing to Growing Child, 22 North Second Street, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, Indiana 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

Mahaffey in elite pro links group

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — John Mahaffey shrugged off his newly acquired status as a golfing millionaire.

"It doesn't mean a thing," Mahaffey said after a front-running, 2-stroke triumph in the Anheuser-Busch Classic Sunday. The victory was his sixth on the PGA Tour title, and the $54,000 check made him the 31st man to go past $1 million in career earnings.

"Look at those great players of the past, Hogan and Nelson and Snead. If they'd played for the kind of purses we have now, they'd be billionaires."

"Besides, you can't keep it."

"And besides that, my ex-wife has most of it."

Mahaffey, who started the hot, humid final round in a three-way tie for the top with hometown favorite Curtis Strange and Howard Twitty, quickly took command. By the time he'd played two holes, he had a 2-stroke lead.

At the start of the round, 25 players were within four strokes of the lead. By the time Mahaffey had played seven holes, no one was within four strokes.

He simply cruised in from there, finishing with a 276 total, eight shots under par on the hilly, 6,822-yard Kingsmill Golf Club course.

"With the great start John got, everybody was just playing for second," said Andy North, who eventually got that spot. North, with his best performance since winning the 1978 U.S. Open, was seven strokes back with five holes to play, but birdied four of them for a 68 that made the final result look closer than it really was. He had a 278 total.

"You can kind of tell, when a guy starts making all those putts, when he's hitting everything so crisp," Strange said. "He shot 67 and it could have been 65 or 66 if he'd been pressed. John's such a great player, you just wonder why he hasn't won a couple of more majors than he has."

His only major came in the 1978 PGA national championship. He's won at least once in every season since, but his 10-year career has been threatened and interrupted by a series of injuries.

Tied for third at 281 were Greg Powers, Tom Purtzer and Mike Sullivan. Powers birdied the last four holes for a 67, Purtzer shot 68 and Sullivan 71.

Strange, with a disappointing 73, was another shot back at 282. Bill Rogers, recent winner of the British Open, was 74-288. Ben Crenshaw, who won this title last year when the tournament was played in Napa, Calif., shot 72-285.

Tulasne tries Anders Jarry

BAASTAD, Sweden (AP) — Thierry Tulasne and Anders Jarry scored easy victories in the semifinals of the $100,000 Swedish Open tennis tournament to reach the first Grand Prix final in their careers.

Tulasne, an 18-year-old Frenchman, toppled Joakim Nystrom of Sweden, 6-2, 7-6. Jarry, a 20-year-old Swedish Davis Cupper, defeated Fernando Luna of Spain, 6-4, 6-4.

Snipes lusting for title

VALHALLA, N.Y. (AP) — The barbed wire fences tell you that this is no ordinary fighter's training facility. That's all right, because Renaldo Snipes is no ordinary fighter.

Mr. Snipes — that's his nickname, Mister — spent some time (no pun intended) at the Westchester County Penitentiary, training for his televised (NBC) Aug. 9 heavyweight bout with South African Gerry Coetzee. The ring was set up in the courtyard and about 200 prisoners watched as Snipes pounded away for six rounds at sparring partners Jeff Sims and Basheer Wadud.

There was a delay before the workout began and one inmate's voice sang out, "Hurry up!"

"Why?" wondered a member of the boxing entourage. "Are these guys going somewhere?"

It's unlikely, but Mr. Snipes hopes he's going somewhere. He plans on being the heavyweight champion of the world, and his timetable calls for that to happen this year.

Now there is the little matter of Gerrie Cooney fighting Larry Holmes for the World Boxing Council crown this fall and James "Quick" Tillis bidding for Mike Weaver's World Boxing Association crown around the same time. Greg Page and Michael Dokes are also making title noises.

Not to worry. Those are mere details and they don't disturb Snipes, who is 21-0. After Coetzee, he wants Holmes, and he wants him before the calendar turns into 1982.

"Outside of Cooney (and Holmes), I have the best record in the heavyweight division," Snipes said. "Those other guys, they're just contenders. I don't want to be a contender. I want to be the champ-eeen."

Snipes has been largely ignored in the rankings. He's rated 10th by the WBC and doesn't show in the WBA top 10.

"Page was ranked after his 10th fight, Tillis was ranked after his 11th. I'm 21-0 and I fought some animals... Larry Alexander, Eugene Green... I knocked him down four or five times... Bigfoot Johnson, he's 6-8, 250 and he hasn't won a fight since I beat him. I'm 21-0 against every style of fighter. I'm the best prospect in the world today."

Included in Snipes' list of victims is Eddie Mustafa Muhammad. That's the same Mustafa Muhammad who lost the WBA light heavyweight championship to Michael Spinks last Saturday.

"Spinks ought to give me half his paycheck," Snipes said. "I took Eddie's confidence out of him when I beat him. He wasn't mentally prepared for Michael. Not after I beat him. I embarrassed him on national TV."

The victory over Mustafa Muhammad positioned Snipes for the bout against Coetzee, ranked No. 5 by the WBA. It's also a television network showdown because former welterweight champion Roberto Duran faces Nino Gonzalez in Cleveland on CBS at the same time that NBC is showing Snipes and Coetzee from Tarrytown, N.Y.

Birth proof to be needed

Candidates for positions in the Little League will need to bring their birth certificates when they register for play in the foyer of the Big Spring High School Gymnasium this evening. Hours are from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Eddie Akins will be in charge of the registration. The basics of the league's operation will be explained at the meeting, which will be open to the public.

Present plans call for the league to open competition Sept. 19. The league will likely be made up of five or six teams.

Play will continue each Saturday through Nov. 21. The playing field immediately north of the American Little League Park will be used for the games.

Each player must pay a $5 entry fee before becoming qualified to compete.

New offer called 'smokescreen'

The executive board of the striking Major League Players Association met in Chicago today to discuss the owners' latest proposal. But it was unlikely they would find much of that proposal to their liking.

"It's just a smokescreen on the old proposal," said Detroit Tigers player representative Milt Wilcox about the owners' latest offer. That offer would require professional player compensation for ranking free agents in the upper 20 percent of the performance criteria on a two-year average, rather than 25 percent, as previously proposed by the owners. The players walked out June 12 solely over the issue of free agent compensation.

"It's just a bunch of propaganda and the owners don't state what the long-term effects of it might be," added Wilcox, a pitcher.

One of the owners, Texas Rangers boss Eddie Chiles, was thinking about the long-term effects of the strike, which is in its 46th day, with 552 games lost.

"The future of baseball is on the line, to a certain extent," said Chiles. "How we handle this is going to determine if we come out of it and continue to get better... or get worse. A phony, fictitious settlement really wouldn't do anybody any good. It would be a step in a downhill plunge."

"If we don't address the real problems, then sooner or later we're going to have to say adios to baseball."

"We have two major forces here, the owners and the players, and we have to learn to live together because we're dependent on each other. We're all in the same boat. You can't sink half a boat and expect the other half to float on ahead. Right now we're both going down together."

The player reps of the 26 teams got together to be briefed on the owners' latest proposal by Marvin Miller, executive director of the union. Though a few players have voiced dissatisfaction with the situation, support for Miller is very solid among the players.

And Miller has said the executive board won't recommend acceptance of the newest offer.

"I think it's a showdown right now," said Braves pitcher Phil Niekro, who was to be in Chicago for the meeting. "We are going to have to come up with something pretty exciting to get fans back in the ball park."

While the players stand behind Miller, the owners haven't broken ranks either and are backing their Player Relations Committee and its head and chief negotiator, Ray Grebey.

"We're behind Ray Grebey and the PRC 100 percent," said Detroit General Manager Jim Campbell. "I think the offer proves that the owners have tried to get something on the table that is palatable to both sides. There undoubtedly are things in it that they (the players) don't like and there are things in it we don't like."

"But I think it's a real honest effort to get something on the table that both sides could accept."

As the impasse continues — no further negotiations have been scheduled — the possibility that the season will not resume looms larger.

Winning team in BSGA event registers 59

It took a low ball score of 58 to win the Louisiana Draw Golf Tournament, staged under the auspices of the Big Spring Golf Association Sunday at Comanche Trail Golf Course. Par is 71.

The winning team was composed of Royce Cox, Don Belew, Gary Wiggins and Gene Fletcher.

Two teams deadlocked for second place, each with a 60. One consisted of Joe Sharpnack, Travis Hunter, W.I. Graham and Beetle Bailey. The other included Jerry Barron, Omar Decker, Bruce Dansby and Tom Lucas.

The last of the regular season BSGA tournaments, this one another Louisiana Draw event, will be staged at Comanche Trail's course Aug. 26.

A total of 46 BSGA players have already qualified for the Grand Tournament scheduled during the early fall. Upwards to 30 more can become eligible by playing in the last Louisiana Draw event next month.

Nehemiah-Foster race lived up to promise

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A gusty wind blew away any chance for a world record, but that didn't stop Renaldo Nehemiah and Greg Foster from putting on a world class show Sunday at the National Sports Festival.

The classic confrontation in the 110-meter hurdles stole the spotlight during the rain-punctuated third of six days of action at the Festival, a non-Olympic year forum for American athletes in 33 winter and summer Olympic sports.

Foster, who badly beat his archrival on May 10 at the UCLA-Pepsi Invitational at Los Angeles, refuses to talk to either Nehemiah or the media. But Nehemiah wasn't holding anything back after tying his own world record of 13.00 seconds.

The wind reading for the dramatic meeting, run on the rain-softened track at Sunnycrest Park, was 3.41 meters per second. The allowable wind speed for a possible record must not exceed 2.00 meters per second.

In another top performance Sunday, Pete Pfitzinger of Ithaca, N.Y., took the marathon in a course record 2:15:20. That also was the personal best for Pfitzinger.

Since he did not represent one of the four regional teams in the Festival, second-place finisher Gary Tuttle of Ventura, Calif., received the gold medal for his 2:16:00 clocking.

Laura DeWald of Arlington, Va., was 14th overall in the 42-runner field and the top woman finisher, at 2:47:06, in the first official marathon for women under the auspices of the U.S. Olympic Committee. The women's marathon will be included in the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles.

In the women's 800 meters, Madeline Manning-Mims, the 1968 Olympic champion, beat 17-year-old prep sensation Kim Gallagher of Upper Darby, Pa., in 2:01.99. Gallagher came home second at 2:02.99.

The unheralded East team clinched the Festival water polo championship with a 6-6 tie against the favored West.

Sylvia Hanika gains crown

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — West German Sylvia Hanika won the $150,000 women's Monaco Tennis Tournament when Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia retired in the third set of the final.

The Czechoslovakian woman had won the first set 6-2, lost the second 3-6 and was down 5-6 when she walked off the court to the boos of the spectators.

The match had been interrupted for an hour and 20 minutes by rain. Mandlikova told officials she had to get to Nice to fly to Paris and connect with a flight to Santiago, Chile.

"I've learned how to give a guy a shoulder, how to give a leg and take it away and maybe put a stiff arm on them," he said.

He's also learned to shut out some off-the-field comments about his attempts earlier this year to renegotiate his contract that pays him, including bonuses, $500,000 annually.

"I've learned that you can't satisfy everybody, so I don't spend a lot of time trying," he said.

Campbell offered the same advice to Nielsen.

"Gifford Nielsen is going to learn about Monday-morning quarterbacks too," Campbell said.

Waltrip edges way by Petty

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip survived a battle with Richard Petty and a post-race controversy to win the Mountain Dew 500 stock car race at Pocono International Raceway.

Waltrip, 34, led 118 of the 200 laps, and collected $23,640, although he was not the first car across the finish line.

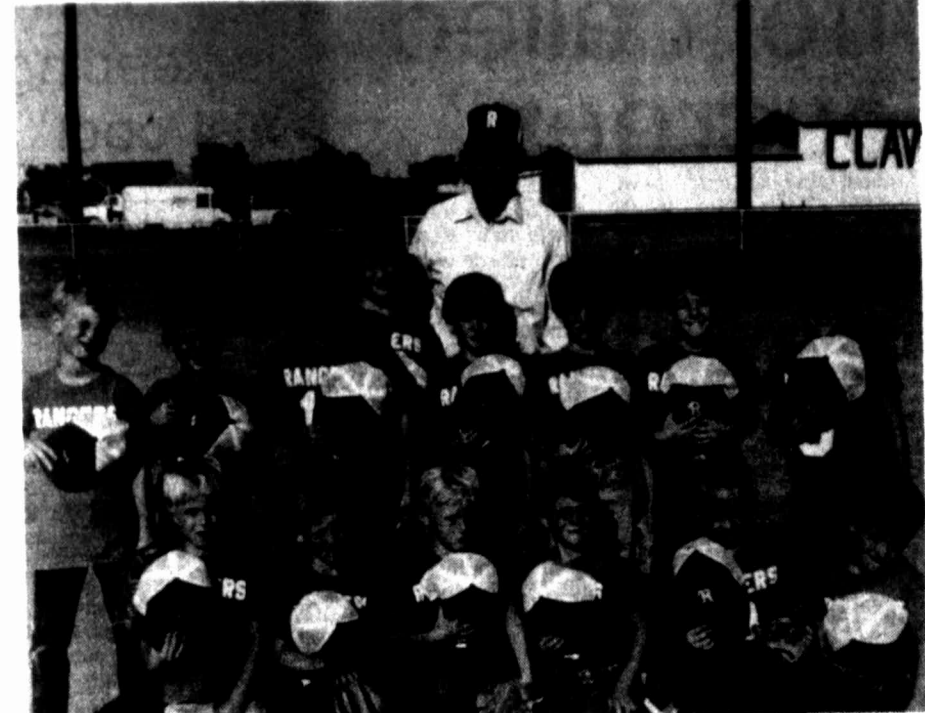

Cale Yarborough appeared to cross the finish line first, but NASCAR Grand National officials reviewed scoring cards and determined that Yarborough was nearly a lap behind when he got the checkered flag.

Waltrip was then declared the winner by race officials, who dropped Yarborough to fifth and credited him with 199 laps completed.

Odesa teams claim three girls' titles

Odesa supplied three of the four champions in the West Texas Girls Softball All-Star Tournament held in the Roy Anderson Sports Complex here the past weekend.

Only the Division IV crown eluded Odesa and the Ector County seat didn't field a team in that classification. Division IV was for girls in the 17-19 year age bracket.

Midland won the Division IV championship, beating out Big Spring. Snyder wound up third. The Snyder club was also awarded the Sportsmanship Trophy.

Odesa, Midland, Snyder and Big Spring finished in that order in Division III. Snyder also won the Sportsmanship award in that classification. Division III was for girls 14-16 years of age.

In Division II, for girls 11-13, the Odesa Red team defeated the Odesa Blue team for the championship. Snyder wound up third, Midland Red fourth, Big Spring fifth and Midland Gold sixth.

The Sportsmanship award in that division went to Snyder.

Boyer's foursome is winner here

A foursome consisting of Bob Boyer, Jerry Johnson, Doyce Haney and Mike Tredaway pieced together a 61 to win team honors in the Big Spring Country Club's Member Pro Golf Tournament held last Thursday.

The low pro in the one-day event was Allan Pursley of Andrews who finished with a 72, four strokes ahead of Price Courter, Snyder, and Terry Wilks, Midland. All alone in fourth place was Gidd Faircloth of Odesa, who had a 77.

Three teams tied for second place, each with a 62. Members of one were Bill Wilson, Pecos, Ronnie Cox, H.F. Schwarzenbach and D.O. Gray. Another consisted of S.A. Smith, Andrews, Jerry McWilliams, Earl Cota and Travis Hunter.

The third included Faircloth, Ron Jumper, Jimmy Welch and Brad Small.

A total of 40 players competed in the event. The rules allowed each of the visiting pros to bring a player with him and avail himself of two local players. In all, nine out-of-town pros competed here.

The first round of the Country Club's Matched Play championship tournament is nearing an end. Forty players are contending for that title. The meet extends over one month.

The 41-year-old Whitworth failed for the 23rd time to win the U.S. Women's Open, as two comparative youngsters, Bradley and Beth Daniel, put on one of the most torrid battles in the tournament's history.

Bradley, 30, breezed over the La Grange Country Club course Sunday with a closing 6-under-par 66 — the lowest score ever shot by a woman on the 6,204-yard layout — and shattered the women's open 72-hole scoring record with 9-under-par 279.

Daniel, 24, took second place with birdies on the last two holes for a 68 and a 280 that matched the former women's open record set last year in Nashville, Tenn., by Amy Alcott.

Whitworth, who had three sub-par rounds in a dedicated attempt to capture the only title to elude her throughout her career, began wiling with successive bogeys on the No. 3 and No. 4 holes. Finally, when her chances already had drained away, she hit the water on the 155-yard 17th for a double bogey-5.

She finished third with a 74 for a 284, good for $9,500, which boosted her career earnings to $1,008,468.

Bradley's $22,000 first prize put her first on the 1981 money-winning list with $154,182. She replaces Nancy Lopez-Mellon, who did not start the final round because of a painful right shoulder problem.

Whitworth entered the final Sunday with a 1-stroke lead over Bonnie Lauer, who shot a 76 for 287 to share fourth with Cynthia Hill, who finished with 72.

Tying for sixth with 290s were Marlene Floyd, JoAnne Carner, Donna Caponi and Patty Sheehan.

Bradley broke into tears as she left the 18th green as champion, saying, "It is the greatest moment of my life."

She chipped into the hole from six feet for a birdie on the 13th, and sank a 70-foot birdie putt on the 15th.

Holding a 1-stroke edge over Daniel going to the par-5 18th, Bradley pitched her third shot within 2½ feet of the cup. Daniel, in the rough, pitched six inches from the cup.

The two approaches were typical of the golf that the pair shot in their bid for the crown.

All-star games need new ideas

DALLAS (AP) — Mysterious is a way to describe the handling of the Texas High School Coaches Association's annual All-Star games. Very, very mysterious.

For example: Why would an organization which is losing money steadily on its All-Star attractions not change the format?

Why would such an outfit hold a North-South All-Star football game in Dallas and have only four Metroplex players on the squad? The game, by the way, drew just over 11,000, the lowest total since the 1950s.

Why would its selection committee not award the host city this year a single representative on the basketball squads when such classy players as Reginald Pink, Spud Webb or Billy Wright were available? The game drew only 5,000 fans.

Puzzling. Very, very puzzling.

For no charge to the THSCA, here are some suggested changes that might get the games back to the glory years such as 1964, when 39,000 fans showed up in Fort Worth to watch the heralded running back Warren McVea in action.

First of all, why not let college coaches tutor the two teams with top schoolboy coaches as assistants?

Remember back in 1956 when the Abe Martin-coached North whipped the Paul (Bear) Bryant-coached South 32-13 in Lubbock behind the passing of Dandy Don Meredith of Mount Vernon?

Big names can help draw big crowds.

What would be wrong with say Baylor's Grant Teaff and Houston's Bill Yeoman, for example, lending their names and talent to the game?

Also, under the current format all classes MUST be represented and a school can have only ONE player present.

This means a lot of talent is left at home.

How can the basketball and football games be a showcase when the good players aren't in the game because you have to have X numbers from Class B and Class A?

How can you justify leaving Port Arthur Jefferson receiving sensation Brent Duhon home because he happens to play on the same team with quarterback Todd Dodge?

Wouldn't it have been an attraction for the fans to see them in an All-Star game together?

Jill Sterkel wins 3rd gold medal in games

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Jill Sterkel picked up some more gold, the United States and Soviet Union moved closer to another showdown and Canada cried foul at the World University Games.

Sterkel captured her third gold medal and set her third meet record at the student competition Sunday, winning the women's 200-meter freestyle in 2 minutes 3.90 seconds. The Hacienda Heights, Calif., swimmer also set records in the 100-meter butterfly and 100-meter freestyle earlier this week.

It was a rematch for which the Soviets nearly did not qualify. They had to beat Canada by more than three points in Sunday's game, and they pulled out all the stops to do it, including some that Canadian Coach Jack Donohue did not like.

Donohue was particularly angry over a play in which he alleged that Ivan Iovaisa of the Soviet team elbowed Canadian Howard Kelsey. Kelsey wound up with a bloody lip and was called for a foul.

"I don't believe anything is going to happen with the protest because it's total incompetency in the administrative level, but there is a protest there," said Donohue.

John Pinone of Villanova paced the American victory with 18 points. The United States, which edged the Soviet Union 113-107 in double overtime on Satur-

Indiana ace badly hurt

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indiana University basketball coach Bobby Knight was "speechless" when he learned that IU star forward Landon Turner remained in serious condition after a weekend auto accident.

Knight, who led IU to an NCAA title this year, called the family Sunday morning from Idaho, where he is vacationing, according to Turner's mother, Rita Turner.

"Of course he was just speechless," she said. "He offered everything he possibly can, even to fly in today. But we told him that wasn't necessary because there isn't anything he could do."

Officials at Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis said Turner was semi-conscious and has some paralysis in his extremities after an accident Saturday.

"He is not in a life-threatening situation," said hospital spokesman Fred Price, adding Turner was in traction because of a fractured spine and other injuries. Price said the 6-foot-10, 240-pound forward had suffered a break in the sixth vertebra.

Turner was injured when the car he was driving went out of control on a two-lane highway and flipped over about 50 miles southeast of Indianapolis. Three other persons in the car were injured. One was hospitalized.

A neurosurgeon who examined Turner was uncertain whether the 21-year-old player would suffer permanent paralysis, said Price.

Turner, of Indianapolis, who was a starter for the 1981 NCAA champion Indiana basketball team, also suffered a concussion, said Price who added that it was "too early to determine" how the head injury would affect him.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can advance more readily if you consult higher-ups for the information you need. Accept an invitation and have fun.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A good time to contact an influential person which could be profitable. Be sure to handle money problems wisely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be certain to keep promises made to others. Come to a better accord with the one you love. Relax tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show a more cooperative spirit with associates and listen to what they have to suggest before stating your own views.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to coordinate your efforts more intelligently with co-workers and get excellent results. Improve your health.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show your talents to the right people. Engage in amusement activities during your spare time and relieve tensions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Adopt a different attitude at home and establish more harmony there. Don't neglect important business matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can now make progress in your line of endeavor today by being more active and more sure of yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may have to make some changes if you want to improve your monetary standing. Use common sense.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) One who does not agree with you in a business matter has to be won over before you get the results you want.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan what you should do to make your environment more charming. A new project you have in mind needs to be studied.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will need special guidance and much education to be successful. There's a strong need for the company of others in order to express self fully. Teach to listen to what others have to say before taking any action.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

WEDDING STRESS - Lady Diana Spencer looks tired as she and her future sister-in-law Princess Anne watch Prince Charles play during the Imperial International polo match between England and Spain at the Guards Polo Club in Windsor Sunday.

British confounded by nod from Nancy

LONDON (AP) - Nancy Reagan reaffirmed America's independence with a handshake for Queen Elizabeth II instead of a curtsy but confounded the British press with a nod.

"Mystery of Phantom Curtsy," read the headline in the Daily Mail. The Daily Express said Mrs. Reagan "made as if to bow then changed her mind."

The American first lady and the British queen met without benefit of press photographers Sunday before Mrs. Reagan joined the royal family to watch Prince Charles play polo at Windsor. It was the first meeting of the two women since Mrs. Reagan arrived as the official U.S. representative to the wedding Wednesday of the prince and Lady Diana Spencer.

Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, Sheila Tate, said the president's wife "shook hands with the queen and inclined her head slightly as you would when you meet someone. It was definitely not a curtsy."

Whether Mrs. Reagan would bend her knee to the descendant of King George III became an issue in the British press because of the flap in the United States when her friend Leonore Annenberg curtsied to Prince Charles on his arrival in Washington earlier this year.

Mrs. Annenberg got in practice when her husband, Walter, was U.S. ambassador to Britain. But she is now the State Department's chief of protocol and was welcoming Charles on behalf of President Reagan and the U.S. government.

Critics contended it was improper for an official American representative to bow to pay such obeisance to the royal institution since the United States had fought a war to get out from under the British crown.

Mrs. Reagan's decision to shake hands rather than curtsy was announced Friday and caused a furor in the British press. Buckingham Palace said, "Normally there is a bow or curtsy, but if Mrs. Reagan wants to shake hands that'll be fine."

PIN CUSHION TROPHY — Glasscock County Judge J.W. Parker is shown presenting Elaine Schwartz with a pin cushion trophy for winning the Senior Miss Division at the District VI 4-H Fashion Review.

Garden City 4-H'ers earn clothing honors

Rainbows of color lined the stage in Garden City last Thursday as 1981 4-H'ers competed for clothing honors. Elaine Schwartz of Garden City took home top honors in the Senior Miss Division. Her ensemble was a purple wool jacket with coordinating plaid skirt. Miss Schwartz will go on to State competition in September. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Schwartz.

Berta Saldibar won a red ribbon in the Mini Miss division. A red ribbon was also presented to Kelly Strube for her Junior Miss entry. LeAnn Seidenberger won a blue ribbon in the Young Miss division. The Pre-Teen Miss, Michele Pechacek, won a blue ribbon. Finally, the Miss Teen participant, Carol Hoelcher won a red ribbon.

The Glasscock County 4-H'ers and Extension Homemakers hosted the District event at the Garden City schools.

The stage was decorated with a rainbow and a forest of artificial Christmas trees. Old logs placed among the trees gave a feeling of real authenticity.

The St. Lawrence Extension Homemakers prepared a home cooked meal for the 228 guests. The Garden City Gals Extension Homemakers provided morning coffee and snacks for those who traveled so far.

While the 4-H'ers were being judged, their parents enjoyed a program from the Cotton Board and the Mohair Council.

In conjunction with the Fashion Review, District 6 has a Textile Show. 4-H'ers exhibited needle point, weaving, crewel embroidery, and a variety of other things. There were also a few exhibits from leaders.

The day was filled with excitement, new friends and tense moments.

Water-reaching water plan goes to Senate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Perhaps the most far-reaching water proposal ever to come before the Legislature — Speaker Bill Clayton's water fund — was on the Senate agenda today.

A Senate vote also was pending on a compromise bill that continues state regulation of physicians and, for the first time, puts non-doctors on the Texas Board of Medical Examiners. It was approved by the House on Friday, 142-0, and sent back to the Senate for action on amendments.

Senate approval of the amendments could be the sign Gov. Bill Clements is waiting for to open the 30-day special legislative session to other topics. He originally submitted five issues to the session, which began July 13 and is now half over.

Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texas, served notice he would ask his colleagues to consider Clayton's proposal, which would set aside half of all future state treasury surpluses for water projects.

The measure cleared the House easily on a 113-19 vote, but opposition surfaced in the Senate Finance Committee before a proposed constitutional amendment was approved 9-3.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, said dedicating so much money to water would lead to what Texans have feared for years — a state income tax.

Also set for today was a Senate Natural Resources Committee hearing on a plan to encourage the development of the gasohol industry in Texas through tax breaks.

The House was in adjournment until Tuesday, but a committee scheduled a hearing today to work on congressional redistricting. Members claim they have enough votes to send to the floor a congressional remap that safeguards Democrats and denies major gains to Republicans.

How they voted:

Harle Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Legislature returned to three of their special session basics this past week — redistricting, doctors and taxes.

The record votes in the House were few and far between, but not so in the Senate where tax revision and congressional redistricting prompted a number of amendments.

Here are a few key roll-call votes by your local or area legislators:

HOUSE

— On deleting a committee amendment to the Medical Practice Act requiring any disciplinary action against a doctor to be reported to the Board of Medical Examiners.

The motion to delete the requirement prevailed 98-40.

For: Larry Don Shaw of Big Spring, Walter Grubbs of Abilene.

— On suspending the rules to consider tentative approval of a new state Medical Practice Act that would allow optometrists to use diagnostic drugs of given written permission by a physician.

The motion prevailed 129-10. Tentative approval was unanimous.

For: Shaw, Grubbs.

SENATE

— On final approval of a conservative plan for congressional redistricting.

The motion prevailed 19-12.

Against: Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls.

— On tabling, and thus defeating, an amendment that would have made the congressional redistricting plan less-conservative and more advantageous Democratic congressmen.

The motion prevailed 16-15. A vote against the less-conservative plan.

Against: Farabee.

— On an amendment to a property tax revision bill that would require members of the new county appraisal boards to be elected officials.

The motion prevailed 20-8.

Texas Demos practice fancy footwork

WASHINGTON (AP) — The popularity of President Reagan exists not only in Republican districts, but in Democratic districts as well — particularly in Texas.

Which makes for a difficult situation for some Democratic congressmen who are thinking about voting against his tax bill.

Like, for example, Jack Hightower of Vernon, Ralph Hall of Rockwall or Richard White of El Paso.

Hightower, 54-year-old lawyer and Democratic congressman from Vernon, came out of the Navy and served six years as a district attorney and 12 years as a member of the Texas Legislature before winning election to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1974.

Hightower won re-election to his fourth term of Congress last year, but had just over 50 percent of the vote in doing so. His district includes the heavily Republican area in and around Amarillo, and his constituents voted heavily for Reagan last November.

If Hightower votes "against" the president, as he feels he must on the tax bill, how will that affect his reelection hopes next time around?

Hightower and eight other Texas Democratic ranks incurred the wrath of party leaders to support the Gramm-Latta budget bill endorsed by the president.

But unhappy though the party hierarchy might be, the people back home were happy with Hightower's stand.

Virtually every newspaper of consequence in West Texas — even the traditional Democratic ones — came out with editorials praising the "boll weevils" for their support of the president.

Though liberals and Democratic loyalists continue to cry for punishment for those who have voted for the president's programs instead of the Democratic leadership, the conservatives know their actions were popular back home.

And now comes the tax bill, the second half of the "Armageddon" on Capitol Hill.

As Reagan's tax bill and the Democratic alternative being drawn up in the House Ways and Means Committee approached their final stages last week, chances for the president's bill passing were considered only slight.

At this point, despite "sweeteners" being added by both sides, neither had added any significant tax relief for the oil industry.

Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, co-sponsor of the president's bill, conceded earlier in the week that chances for his bill were "less than 50-50" and that even if the Ways and Means bill passed, it was a victory for the president since it contained "85 to 90 percent" of what Reagan wanted.

About the only thing not in either bill that was of great popularity with the Texas delegation was relief from the windfall profits tax.

So Hightower and several other southern Democrats — including Ralph Hall of Rockwall and Richard White of El Paso — went to Ways and Means chairman Danny Rostenkowski and told him they'd support his bill if he'd include the desired tax concessions to the oil industry.

Rostenkowski agreed early Wednesday morning to the final rewrite of his bill. The votes of the Texas and Louisiana Democrats interested in the oil tax relief would just about assure victory for him.

To try to win back the votes of Democrats in oil states, the White House then emerged Friday with a revision that gave oilmen in Texas and other states about twice as much tax relief as the Ways and Means bill.

Hightower, Hall and White said again Friday, after the administration came up with its new package of "sweeteners," that they plan to honor their commitment to support the Ways and Means bill.

Pilot injured in copter crash

HOUSTON (AP) — A helicopter crashed in southwest Houston today, injuring the pilot.

Investigators said the pilot apparently was the only occupant of the craft that crashed as it was taking off near the Southwest Freeway. Part of the wreckage was said to have crashed onto an unoccupied pickup truck.
