Gas firm asks hike in rates

Energas Company today notified the 63 cities on its West Texas Plant System, including Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan, that the company is filing for new rates for natural gas service to residential and certain business customers, effective Sept. 4.

For the average residential customer on the system, the proposed new rate would increase the cost of a thousand cubic feet of gas by 63 cents from $3.40 to $4.03.

The proposed new rates apply to domestic and commercial type, small industrial, and large air conditioning customers on the West Texas City Plant System of Energas. About 180,000 customers are affected, in an area extending from Pampa to Odessa.

Energas officials said the decision to file for new rates was made after a study by an independent consulting firm revealed that revenues from the West Texas City Plant System in 1980 were $22.4 million less than the cost of service. The new rates are expected to increase Energas revenues about $18.5 million, they said.

"It has been three years since the last rate increase was requested in West Texas City Plant System rates," Charles Vaughan, Energas president, said. "During that time, the consumer price index has increased about 40 percent and our costs for material, labor and taxes have increased proportionally. These increases coupled with certain inadequacies in our purchased gas adjustment clause have produced a serious deficiency in earnings from the system."

Vaughan said that, while the new rates cannot change the imbalance between revenues and costs that occurred in recent years, they can restore the balance somewhat for the future.

"To provide the service our customers expect, Energas must be able to make commitments for gas supplies well into the future. To do that, the company obviously must have revenues that approximate its present costs," he said.

To the West Texas system customers affected by the change, the new rates will mean an average increase of about 18.5 percent. For an average residential customer on the system, using 107 thousand cubic feet per year, the typical monthly bill would increase $5.61, from $30.32 to $35.93.

After receiving notification of the rate change, the governing bodies of the 63 cities and towns on the system may take no action at all, in which case the rate change becomes effective Sept. 4. If the cities decide to act on the request, they are required by law to study the filing made by the Company and set rates accordingly.

Friendship grows

Hardships in Japanese prison camp recalled

By CAROL HART

A friendship which began almost 40 years ago in a Japanese prison camp was renewed recently, when Richard Brindley made his way from England to visit Thornton Hamby of Big Spring.

Both men were held prisoner by the Japanese in Ominimachi, a camp in Southern Honshu, Japan. At that time, Brindley was a member of the British Royal Army, and Hamby was with the United States Marines.

"The last time I saw Richard was Sept. 15, 1945, in Japan," said Hamby recently, as he, his friend and their wives sat talking over the past. They met again July 20, when Mr. and Mrs. Brindley came, at Hamby's invitation, to the national convention of the American Ex-POWs Association, in Fort Worth.

Hamby got a message to Brindley through an Englishman he met at one of the Ex-POW meetings. "I wanted to contact him," Hamby recalled. The Englishman got the message through, and "they came over for the convention." Since the rendezvous at the convention, the Hambys and the Brindleys have been touring Texas, finally stopping at the Hamby home here in Big Spring.

Brindley's wife, Mary, said she has learned more about her husband's time in the prison camp on this visit than she ever has before. The men agreed that there is a special comradeship between people who have been detained in prison camps, and who share the same experiences.

Brindley explained "I was captured March 8, 1942, in Java." Hamby was captured May 6, 1942, when Corregidor fell, in the Philippines.

Both were later sent to the Ominimachi camp.

The camp "was not terribly big," Brindley recalled. "There were about 300 men there. Two hundred of them were Americans, and about 100 of them were British."

When contained in a camp, "you get to know everybody," said Hamby. A special comradeship existed in the camp, he said.

Hamby recalled that he was told to work in the coal mines there 12 to 14 hours a day. He also had his ribs broken with a pick handle.

Both men also underwent big weight losses. "We were allowed 250 grams of food a day," said Hamby. When released, Hamby weighed 90 pounds, and was 5 feet, 10 inches tall. Brindley weighed 96 pounds, and was almost 6 feet tall.

But, despite their hardships, the men agreed "the camp was better than others," Brindley said his time in Java was "much tougher."

In the camp "you found particular friends" recalled the men. "We went through so much together. We have so much in common."

Hamby recalls the day he and other prisoners were set free. Hamby was a radio operator in the camp, and heard a message Sept. 15, 1945, that meant everyone could go free.

Officers were told to get the men out of the camp by train. "We were about the last camp liberated," Hamby recalled.

That day, Brindley got on a hospital ship bound for Britain. Hamby was placed on a U.S. destroyer.

When the men were recently reunited, "it was as though they had known each other through the years," said Mrs. Hamby.

The Brindleys have enjoyed their stay in the states, and especially with the Hambys. "We get along like a household," said Mrs. Brindley, adding that she had never met either Hamby or his wife.

People in the United States "are lovely, smashing people," said the Brindleys. Texas was a surprise to the Brindleys, who really didn't expect it to be as western-oriented as it is.

"I never realized people really wore hats and boots" said Mrs. Brindley. "We didn't know there was this much open country in the world," she added.

Mr. and Mrs. Brindley are both retired school teachers. They plan to return to England Aug. 10.

Hamby is with the Department of Defense, and headquarters out of Big Spring.

Strike deadline

Air controllers talks deadlocked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prospect of a nationwide air traffic controllers strike increased Saturday as talks deadlocked and the Reagan administration called the union's demands "nothing short of outrageous."

The two sides broke off their talks after meeting only about 30 minutes but were to resume negotiations Sunday.

"We're still miles apart and there hasn't been much bargaining," federal mediator Kenneth Moffett told reporters. "I'm not very hopeful right now."

White House spokesman David R. Gergen said President Reagan, who was monitoring the developments while at Camp David, Md., "very much wants to avoid a strike."

"We want to do everything possible to avoid a strike, within the context of a fair settlement," said Gergen, the president's assistant for communications. "We'll be fair, but we'll also be firm."

"We are hopeful the controllers will fulfill their obligations," he said. "A strike would be illegal. The government has contingency plans in the event of a strike. If there is a strike, the emphasis of this administration will be on safety."

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis called the union's demands "excessive" and said the union package would cost the government $681 million a year and amount to nearly $39,000 in wages and benefits for each controller.

"These demands ... are nothing short of outrageous," Lewis declared. "We cannot yield to, or even entertain, such demands." He called the union proposal "an affront to the American public."

The government's wage offer amounts to $40 million a year and Lewis said he was not budging from that figure. He said military controllers and supervisory workers were prepared to direct the nation's air traffic if the controllers walk off their jobs.

A strike by the controllers could ground half of the nation's air traffic, particularly flights of less than 500 miles, play havoc with air travelers and cost the economy tens of millions of dollars a day.

Some travelers were booking flights during the weekend in attempts to get where they want to go before a strike. Car rental agencies, bus lines, and Amtrak were preparing for a rush of business if air traffic is interrupted.

Robert E. Poli, president of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, said he was still awaiting a counter proposal from the government, but he also was doubtful a strike will be avoided.

35th Bible Fund Drive sparked by ministerial unit

The Howard County Ministerial Association has launched its 35th annual Bible Fund Drive. Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor of the First Baptist Church, is secretary-treasurer of the alliance. As such, he coordinates the drive.

Money raised in the campaign is used to underwrite expenses in the Bible teaching course, which will be offered in Big Spring High School and Forsan High School this fall. A similar course may be taught at Coahoma in the spring.

Last year, $12,280 was raised through free will offerings. Members of the alliance say they hope to exceed that figure with a concentrated drive through August this year.

Patrick is mailing appeals to each of last year's donors, enclosing self-addressed envelopes in each letter.

The Bible courses, which cannot be subsidized through the use of tax funds, will be offered through the first three periods daily at Big Spring High School and during the fourth period at Forsan.

Those interested in taking the courses can contact the high school principals at Big Spring and Forsan anytime during August. Mrs. J.O. (Elizabeth) Johansen will again teach the course in Big Spring High School.

Over the years, money into six figures has been donated to the fund by friends of the schools. The courses has inspired more than one to study for the ministry and choose careers in church-related work.

Donations can be mailed in either to Patrick, care of the First Baptist Church, or to The Herald.

Open house at Detox Center

The Howard County Detox Center, Inc., and the Howard County Personal Care Home will be open to the public from 4-6 p.m. today, according to Dr. Lanier Dunn, medical director for the Center.

The Detox Center is located at the old golf course clubhouse at the Big Spring Industrial Park, south of Oilfield Industrial Lines, Inc. It shares a building with the Hyperbaric Oxygen Center.

The Howard County Personal Care

Home is located at 2906 E. 13th St., between Airport road and the county fairgrounds.

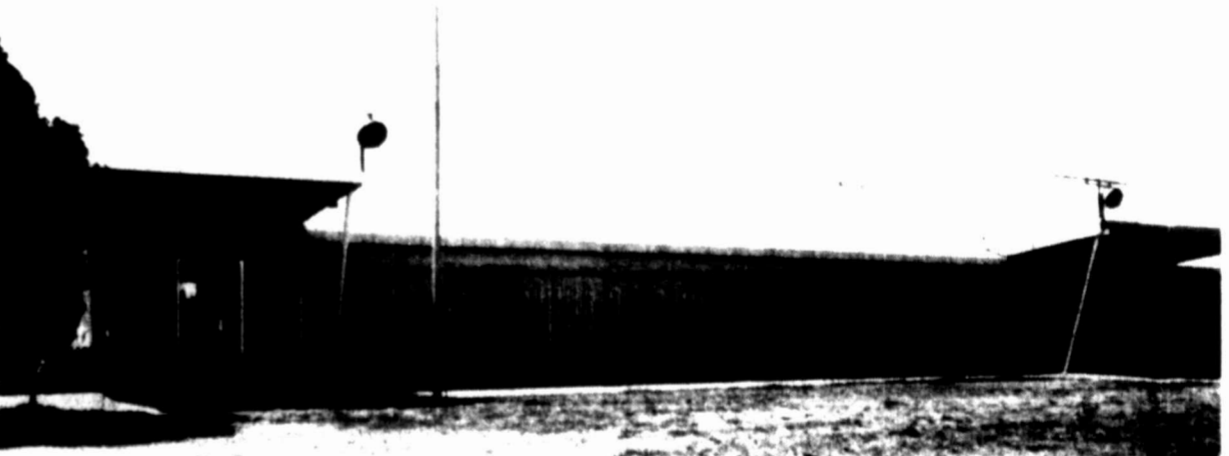

The Detox Center was only recently re-opened after a funding shortage caused its shutdown last year. Dr. Dunn said that he and several others who serve on the Center's board of directors came upon an idea to operate two facilities, one, the Personal Care Home, which would generate funds to help operate both.

The Personal Care Home is designed to care for up to 15 patients on a semi-permanent basis, said Dr. Dunn. The Personal Care Home is designed for people who "don't need full-time hospitalization, but need supervision," explained Dr. Dunn. The Personal Care Home has been authorized by the State Health Department, and the Department of Human Resources.

Money will be generated by the Personal Care Home from funds received for the patients' care. Money, said Dr. Dunn, will be generated from social security payments, and funds from the Veterans Administration Medical Center and the Big Spring State Hospital.

The Detox Center will be operated and manned on a 24-hour a day basis. (See "Acutely" page 2A, col. 1)

OPEN HOUSE — The public is invited to attend open house festivities at the Howard County Detox Center, located at the former golf course clubhouse at the Big Spring Industrial Park, and the Personnel Care Center, located at 2906 E. 13th St., from 4-6 p.m. today. Refreshments will be served. (PHOTO BY ANDREA COHEN)

Grades one through eight

New and returning students must register in Big Spring

New and returning students in grades one through eight in Big Spring must register at the school they attend, according to Helen Gladden of the Big Spring Independent School District administration.

Mrs. Gladden said students in grades one through five will register Aug. 12-14, 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., and 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

All parents of students attending Goliad Middle School, grades 6-7, should report to the school to sign registration cards between Aug. 10 and Aug. 21. Office hours at Goliad are 8:30 a.m. to noon, and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

All sixth and seventh grade students new to this school district must come to the Goliad office as soon as possible in order to choose elective courses, provide health records, and present report cards from previous schools.

Parents of students in eight grade at Runnels Junior High should sign enrollment cards between now and Aug. 21 from 8:30 a.m. to noon, and 1:30 p.m.

New students, especially 8th graders new to this district, need to register immediately in order for classes to be selected, said Mrs. Gladden, prior to the first day of school.

Children who attended the Head Start and kindergarten spring round-up are already registered for this school term, said Mrs. Gladden. If Head Start and kindergarten age children did not attend the spring round-up, phone 357-7453, or Kentwood Elementary, 357-5336, as soon as possible, to make arrangements for immediate registration.

These parents must bring birth certificates and immunization records when they register.

Mrs. Gladden said that parents of first grade students not attending a Texas Public School kindergarten should not that these children must present a birth certificate and immunization record when registering.

Mrs. Gladden advised that teachers inservice will begin Aug. 17 this year. First day of school is Aug. 24.

AWAITING VERDICT — Reputed Mafia godfather Carlos Marcello leaves federal court in New Orleans Friday evening where he is awaiting a verdict in his Brilab trial. Marcello and three others are charged with bribery, racketeering and wire and mail fraud.

Deliberations continue

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — One verdict already out of the way, jurors deliberated again Saturday in the Brilab trial of reputed Mafia boss Carlos Marcello and three other people. The sealed verdict was sent to U.S. District Judge Morey Sear on Friday night, after the jury of five women and seven men had met for three hours. On Saturday, Sear returned the verdict to the jury, but after hearing a defense protest and a motion that he retrieve the envelope and hold it, Sear sent a marshal to the jury room and got it back. The judge did not say why he sent the envelope back to jurors. The defendants were charged with conspiracy to bribe, racketeering and fraud stemming from a 1979 undercover FBI investigation. Prosecutors accused them of conspiring to win a group life insurance contract on 80,000 state employees and split an $87,000-a-month commission. In addition to the 71-year-old Marcello, the defendants were former state Administration Commissioner Charles Roemer, 58; Irving Davidson, 59, a Washington lobbyist; and New Orleans lawyer Vincent Marinello, 43. For Marcello and Davidson, charged on all 12 counts, maximum punishment could range up to 90 years in prison and $50,000 in fines. A fifth defendant, Aubrey Young, was granted a judgment of acquittal midway through the trial. Brilab was the FBI code name for a year-long undercover operation undertaken to check reports of bribery in big insurance deals.

Couple marries in hospital

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — When the newlyweds asked their wedding guests to come back for a first anniversary celebration, the invitation had a special poignancy. Mary Malchow, the 26-year-old bride, is a terminal cancer patient at Miami Valley Hospital here. She married John Hempling, 29, in a traditional ceremony Friday two weeks after doctors told her there was nothing more they could do. "She is such an inspiration," said Carol Mattar, spokeswoman for the hospital. "The emphasis here is on a meaningful life, not approaching death." The couple, who said they are praying for Mrs. Hempling's recovery, had a formal wedding in the hospital's chapel with about 150 guests and a three-tiered cake. "I've been to a lot of weddings, but never one like this," said Cecil Malchow, a tearful father of the bride — the last of his seven children to marry. Mrs. Hempling has been bedridden with abdominal cancer for months. But Friday, Ms. Mattar said, "She had the nurses remove all the tubes and stood through the whole wedding and reception." The Hemplings invited their guests to celebrate their first anniversary at the Greenmont Oak Park Church, and hospital president L.R. Jordan, whose wife donated the candelabra for the wedding, gave them a bottle of champagne to open on that occasion. "We at Miami Valley give you our best wishes for happiness," he said. The couple met while both were students at a technical school and Hempling has stayed by his wife's side during the years of treatment, Mrs. Tobias said. "When they were told there was nothing more we could do they decided to get married," she said.

Rich-poor summit shapes

CANCUN, Mexico (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and 21 other foreign ministers opened a two-day meeting Saturday to plan the first summit conference of developing and industrialized nations to tackle the problem of reducing poverty in the world. "The time has come, finally, to launch a great crusade to defeat fear and death, hunger and injustice, and to establish a reign of equity and hope," Jorge Castaneda, Mexico's representatives, told his colleagues in a welcoming speech. The conference in this Caribbean resort marks the Reagan administration's debut in the long-running North-South discussion with Third World leaders who want a "new international economic order" that would redistribute the world's wealth. Representatives of eight industrialized and 14 developing nations are attending the closed-door planning sessions for the summit Oct. 22 and 23, also in Cancun. President Reagan and 21 other presidents and prime ministers have agreed to participate.

Acutely ill alcoholics helped

(Continued from page 1) said Dr. Dunn. He described the Center by saying "It will be a place where acutely ill alcoholics will be able to go to receive medical attention." The Center will be a place where they are not allowed to drink, and where there will be personnel to help them through withdrawal systems suffered by alcoholics. The Detox Center also receives funds budgeted through the county. "I hope they will be able to continue the assistance," said Dr. Dunn. "We hope to operate the best independent detox center in the United States." Dr. Dunn stressed the importance of operating a detox center locally. "The former detox center was put on the shelf in October of 1980 because of a shortage of funding to operate it. It was hoped at that time that the need for treating acutely ill

Plane crash in jungle kills Panama's leader

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Gen. Omar Torrijos, Panama's spirited leader and driving force in getting national sovereignty over the Canal Zone, was killed in a plane crash in a remote jungle area near the Atlantic coast, a national guard spokesman said Saturday. Five others were killed in the crash. A television announcement by Maj. Domingo O'Calagan said Torrijos' plane, missing since it took off on a brief flight Friday between the cities of Pemonome and Coclesito, was found by a search plane early Saturday 60 miles west of the capital. The national guard said Torrijos, Panama's leader for the last 13 years, was making a routine check of guard outposts around the country in his flight Friday. He maintained a residence in the peasant community of Coclesito. A helicopter crew was

Forsan Band rehearsals begin Aug. 10

Rehearsals for the Forsan High School Buffalo Band will begin Aug. 10 at 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., according to John B. Harris, new director. Rehearsals will continue each night from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. through Aug. 15. This will include band students from the eighth grade through the 12th grade. The flag camp will meet on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m., and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. A bus will run from Big Spring to Forsan on Aug. 10 through the 15, twice daily, to carry students to the school. Runs will be made at 7:15 a.m. and again at 4:15 p.m. The bus will travel on to Debra Lane, through to the cemetery and on to Forsan. Harris can be reached at the school for any further information.

Weather Mercury skyrockets to 100 in Abilene

By the Associated Press The 4 p.m. temperature extremes were 100 at Abilene and 80 at Dalhart, with winds generally from the south at 10 to 20 miles per hour. The forecast called for a few scattered showers through Monday. Otherwise, more hot and dry weather is expected.

Clap happy ovation wasn't guru vy enough

NEW YORK (AP) — Ashrita Furman took to the noisy streets of the Big Apple in his latest attempt to pay homage to his religious guru, but ended up as just another face in the crowd. Furman, 26, a stationery store manager, gave up Thursday after clapping for more than 15 hours. He hoped to break the 50-hour standing ovation record listed by the Guinness Book of World Records. But any would-be record-setter must clap 140 times a minute — better than twice a second — and each clap must be audible 100 yards away. Furman made his attempt in the plaza at Lincoln Center, but he may as well have been at Grand Central Station. "I couldn't be heard at 100 yards in that setting, so it was useless to go on," he said.

"Monster Madness" is at an end. The 1981 Summer Reading Program Club closed with a party on July 30. Those 80 to 90 children who attended received their certificates and awards for reading achievements.

Five thousand five hundred eighty-three books were read and reported on during the nine weeks of the program by the 408 members. The three top readers were Kim Godfrey, 2nd grader at Elbow, with a total of 328 books; Shawnte Bryant, 3rd grader from Coahoma, with 321 books; and Gena Britt Grizzard, 2nd grader from College Heights, with 194 books. Kim received a gift from McDonald's as the top reader. Shawnte and Gena received autographed books as their awards.

TOP READERS — Standing is Gena Britt Grizzard, College Heights 2nd grader, who read 194 books this summer. Shawnte Bryant, seated left, is a Coahoma 3rd grader, who read 321 books. Top reader is Kim Godfrey, 2nd grader at Elbow School, who read a total of 328 books having fun in the Monster Madness Reading program that was sponsored by the Howard County Public Library.

A total of 163 earned their certificates by reading and reporting on ten books. Space does not permit us to list the remaining 103 boys and girls names. The names will be posted in the library. If you were not able to be at the party, please come in and pick up your certificates.

The party also featured a monster costume and/or make-up contest and parade. The judges included Kay Burns, Polly Mays, and William Slagle. The "Smallest Monster" ribbon went to Cadet Bryant. The "Most Original Monster" went to Pam Ferguson. The "Scariest Monster" ribbon was given to Doug Abbott (who came as the Salt-Water Mummy). The "Funniest Monster" went to the Hobo Monster (Name unavailable). The "Biggest Monster" ribbon went to Spacey Casey alias Joey Jabor. The "Alien Monster" ribbon was awarded to George and Nicky Lawrence who were Men from Mars. The "Ugliest Monster" went to Shawnte Bryant (with witch warts).

Freedom rings Intern in Stenholm's office in Artesia

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — President Anders Steinsvik of the Peoples Republic of Artesia heads a dream ticket all his own.

He's also secretary of state and chief justice, has written the nation's constitution and official travel brochure, and even a national anthem of sorts.

Steinsvik made the appointments himself. He is an inmate at the Washington State Penitentiary here, and Artesia is a mythical nation, created to serve the whim of the head of state.

"This whole big castle is just a dream factory," he said of the prison he has been in and out of since 1971. "So if you are going to have dreams, you might as well have nice dreams."

Steinsvik, 40, based the nation on the mythical Artesians who inhabit the beer commercials of the Olympia Brewing Co., which touts the artesian water in its products.

Nationhood began two weeks ago, and Steinsvik even has a deed of trust to the country's land — a plot he says he owns in Kitsap County.

He wants to create government departments unlike those of the United States — such as the Department of Happiness.

His patriotic song is entitled "What Made Artesia Famous Has Made an Inmate Out of Me," but the lyrics may not hold up. He said he expects to be released from his term for grand theft "any day."

Suspended Smith county sheriff free on bond

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Suspended Smith County Sheriff J.B. Smith, who lost his job following indictment on charges of official misconduct and attempted arson, remained free on bond after his arrest for allegedly threatening a district attorney's investigator.

State District Judge Galloway Calhoun issued the warrant Friday after a grand jury indicted Smith for allegedly threatening Charles Carver, now a private investigator, who had investigated Smith while he was with the district attorney's office.

Smith posted a $2,000 bond on the third-degree felony charge when a Texas Ranger served him with the warrant, Calhoun said.

The suspended sheriff allegedly threatened Carver on Feb. 4, 1980, after he learned Carver had been investigating him.

Earlier this month, Smith was indicted by a Smith County grand jury on charges of attempted arson and official misconduct — both third-degree felonies.

'Opportunity of lifetime,' says Big Spring teacher

Special to The Herald

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Tom Adams, a social studies teacher from Big Spring, is presently working as a Lyndon Baines Johnson intern in the Washington office of Rep. Charles W. Stenholm, D-Stamford.

Adams is working during the month of July with Curtis Henderson from Jackboro. Two other interns served during the month of June.

Adams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Bowden of Cross Plains and is married to the former Karen Walker, also a teacher in Big Spring. They have three children: Shawna, Shay and Matt. He graduated from Tarleton State University in 1965 and received his M. Ed. from Sul Ross University in 1978.

"The purpose of these internships is to bring the recipients to Washington and provide them with the experiences that one can only have when working directly with the governing process in Washington," Stenholm explained.

"I think I will be able to return home and share this information with the students at Big Spring High and create a better understanding with them on how our government operates," Adams said. "This has been an opportunity of a lifetime; to come to Washington and work with a man of the stature of Charlie Stenholm, who at this time is in the center of the most important legislative work to take place in many years..."

Impressed with the efficiency and professionalism with which the Congress-

office operates, Adams said much of what one hears about how things in Washington operate is basically untrue.

The interns Congressional day starts rather early in the morning, since they have been arriving at the office by 7:30 a.m. to open and sort the mail, helping out a secretary with a broken leg. By the time this is done and they get to the cafeteria to eat breakfast, it is close to nine o'clock and things are beginning to operate at full swing. The interns have been very busy trying to help the regular staff catch up on the large volume of mail generated by the Reconciliation Act and the upcoming tax cuts, Adams pointed out.

Besides answering mail, the interns have attended many committee meetings. "I have especially enjoyed listening to the Ways and Means Committee hammer out the specifics of the tax cuts," Adams said. "It is interesting to hear each member stand up for their constituencies," he said, "even if their point of view might be far from my own."

The two have also accompanied Stenholm to meetings of the Agriculture Committee, of which Stenholm is a member.

"An interesting project has been the writing of a bill to be introduced during this session to try and obtain some Federal funding for the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf," Adams continued. "This has required communicating with the Legislative Counsel and others directly involved in the writing of a new bill."

"Because of my background in education, I am also working on a issue briefing for constituents, Education Update, which has required extensive use of the research facilities available and study of the proposed budget bills from both the House and the Senate. I never appreciated the complexity of the budget until I had to read through 500-plus pages of it."

"The city of Washington has been exciting," Adams continued. "It is hard to imagine a town or an area with so many things to do and see. It is doubtful that one could spend a year here and see it all. The old buildings are beautiful and interesting, the monuments are impressive and the Smithsonian Institute goes on forever. Everyone should try this, because it truly is the experience of a lifetime."

Elections may be delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislative elections scheduled for September in Virginia may be delayed because of a Justice Department objection to the redistricting plan for the state House of Delegates.

"I am unable to conclude, as I must under the Voting Rights Act, that the submitted plan for the reapportionment of the House of Delegates is free of any racially discriminatory purpose or effect in the described area," William Bradford Reynolds, the assistant attorney general in charge of civil rights, said in a letter to the Virginia attorney general's office released on Friday.

Reynolds said six of the 100 House districts in question "dilute and fragment black voting strength unnecessarily."

"We are aware that there is a severe time problem if the commonwealth is to hold timely elections for the General Assembly," Reynolds wrote in his letter to the Virginia attorney general's office.

He said the department was ready to work with the state in clearing up the objections.

Rabid bat found in parking garage

HOUSTON (AP) — City health officials have confirmed a dead bat found in a downtown Houston parking garage by two construction workers was rabid.

Seven other rabid bats have been discovered in Harris County this year, more than doubling the number found in the area in all of 1980, said Shirlene Bridgewater of the Houston Health Department.

Laboratory tests on Friday showed the bat was carrying the dreaded disease, Ms. Bridgewater said.

PLAN FOR REDUCED TAXES

It appears as though Congress is going to pass some form of tax cut for individuals. The percentage of cut and the technique to be used have not yet been decided. You will save tax dollars by reducing your income for 1981 in favor of having it taxed at a lower rate in 1982. This will be true again as 1982 relates to 1983, assuming Reagan's proposed three-year plan is carried out.

For the sake of illustration, let's assume a flat 10 percent reduction in the personal income tax between 1981 and 1982.

If a married couple filing a joint return has $70,000 of taxable income for each of the years 1981 and 1982, their aggregate tax bill for the two years, after allowing for a 1982 10 percent reduction, will be $47,648. If expenses are accelerated from 1982 into 1981 or if income is deferred to allow us to change the taxable income so that $60,000 is taxed in 1981 and $80,000 is taxed in 1982, the aggregate tax would be $47,108 for a savings of $540. The 1981 taxes will be reduced by $540 and the 1982 taxes increased by $4860. You will have the interest-free use of $5400 for one year. If you have an after-tax return on your investment of 10 percent you'll have an additional $540 for total benefits of $1080.

Planning must be properly thought out for the years involved to optimize the tax brackets in the two years. If you shift too much income into 1982 you may cause it to be taxed at a higher bracket thereby reducing or eliminating your benefits.

Plans for deferring income or accelerating expenses should not be left until the very last of the tax year. Review the various techniques you plan to use well before year end with the idea of implementing each at the appropriate time.

Tourism keeps on growing

Las Vegas elaborated on an idea and prospered. Atlantic City let its grand plan fall into neglect and then refurbished its image with some new money and with the help of new leadership. For a long time, Miami seemed to have patented the idea but a combination of factors worked such hardships on it that its erosion may be hard to reverse. Other communities around the world have suddenly decided that they are capable of competing with a little effort.

THE COMMON DENOMINATOR with such cities is the tourist dollar. In these uncertain times, when an economic slump started as a highly localized condition can spread through a succession of industries, tourism is an industry that, like Topsy, just grows and grows.

In this country, it has mushroomed to such an extent that its annual slice of the economy is approaching $150 billion. No matter how many ways that kind of money is sliced, it comes out to a hefty figure.

The figure gets more impressive still when attention is focused on the fact that $12 billion of that sum is being spent by people who live in places other than the United States.

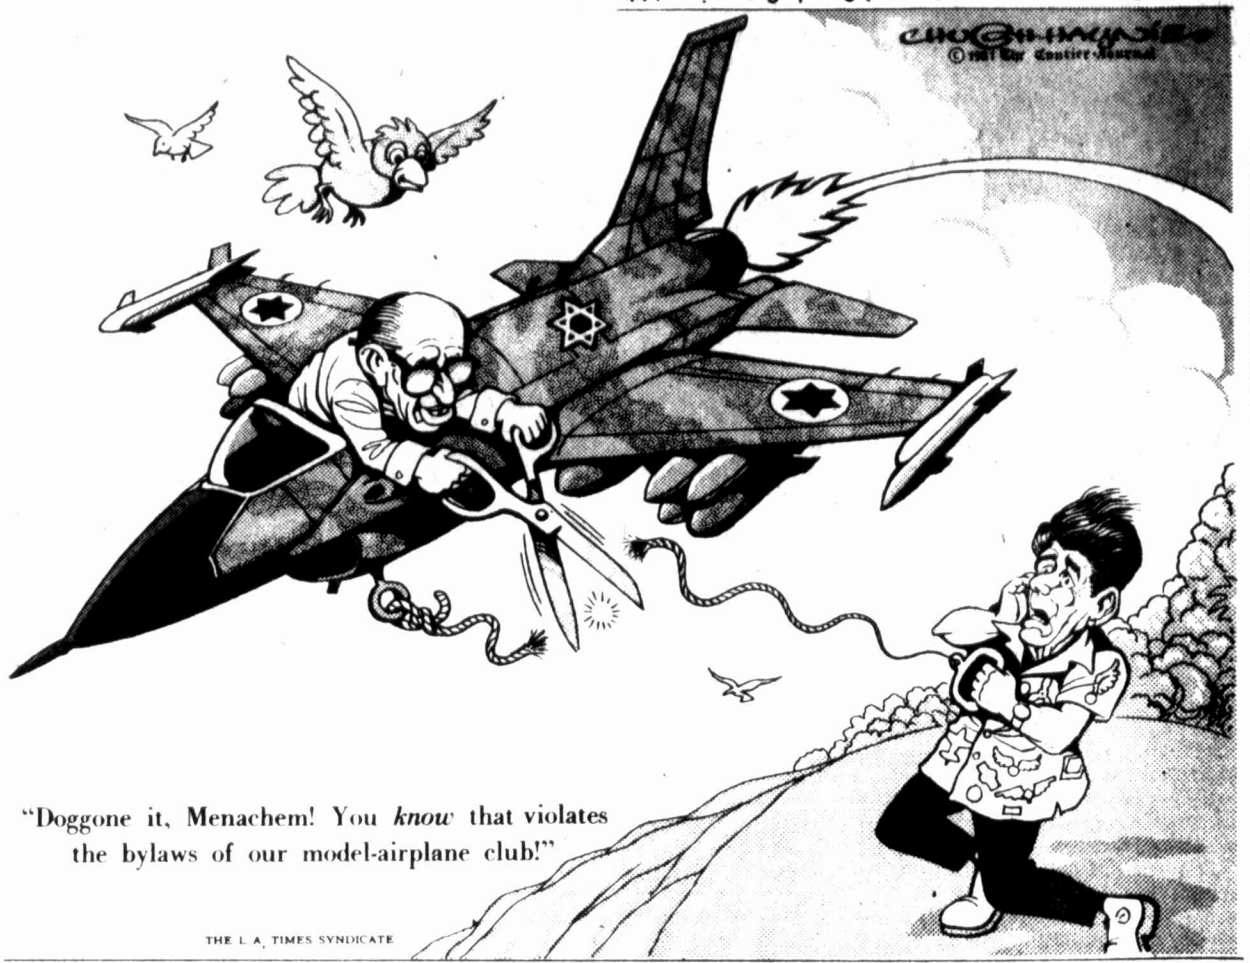

It was believed by a great many people at one time that Texas had little to offer in the way of natural attractions. They were there all the time — it was just that some of them were in out-of-the way places. Improved highways and construction of tourist facilities near such attractions has brought the curious by the thousands to the state.

SOME TEXANS WERE smart enough to build their own tourist attractions. Nothing in the state lures the customers like Six Flags over Texas, an Arlington amusement park, but magnets like Astroworld, the Aquarena in San Marcos and other man-made wonders are making millions for their investors, too.

The Lords of major football, basketball and baseball finally started mining the Texas lode and came away richly rewarded. The Houston Astros were able to draw in excess of two million fans at home. The Texas Rangers weren't far behind. The San Antonio Spurs and the Houston Rockets of the NBA bring out the fans in droves. The Dallas Cowboys of the NFL are pro football's best sell, although Houston's "Luz You, Blue" Oilers are gaining new fans all the time. The mere presence of those teams in Texas increases the enthusiasm of out-of-staters to visit here.

There is no doubt that tourism, both in Texas and nationwide, will continue to grow. According to Herman Kahn, travel and tourism will become the world's largest industry inside 20 years. If that be true, who's going to stay home and run the store?

One of the most important functions a writer has is to provide blurbs for other writers' books. The blurb business is one of the biggest in the country, and it is now estimated that 30,500,226 book blurbs are produced every year in the United States alone.

about to be published, the author is asked by the publisher's publicity department to provide a list of friends, preferably well-known, who will say something nice about the work before publication.

I explained the reason I didn't give a blurb was that the publisher had sent me the typewritten manuscript, which was 900 pages, and I had dropped it on the floor. I could never get the pages back together in any kind of order.

FOR THE PUBLIC unfamiliar with how book blurbs come about, I think I can be of service. When a book is WASHINGTON — Those automobile chase scenes that are featured nightly on television might be hard for the FBI to duplicate in real life. If an agent should get involved in a high-speed chase, he might wind up calling for a tow truck.

EVERY BEGINNING driver learns that he should get an oil change every few thousand miles. The auditors checked 160 FBI cars at random; 18 had been driven between 15,000 and 30,000 miles without an oil change; another 66 had gone 9,000 miles without fresh oil.

had averaged 28 months of hard driving without a tuneup. The investigation also uncovered "a high rate of duplicate or repetitive repairs" yet in "only a few instances" had the FBI "received the corrective repairs at no additional charges."

Expert painter-farmer, R.L. Baker, insists many people nearing retirement, who saved for a rainy day, are finding their tax shelters have developed leaks.

A sales manager was approached by several small girls selling Girl Scout cookies. They offered no sales pitch so he began questioning them to see if they could develop one.

THEY WERE ALSO skeptical of the improved gas efficiency claimed by field offices in New York City, Mobile, Ala., Knoxville, Tenn., and New Orleans, La. The New York office, for example, claimed its agents drove 1.8 million more miles, yet used 118,000 less gallons of gas in 1979 than the previous year. That would have been a 61 percent improvement in fuel efficiency.

DEAR EDITOR: Looking at the paper last night (6-29-81) makes one wonder why these "Old Socialist Democrats" can't get it through their heads that the people of this country are not buying their same old "song and dance!" They have been trying to pit the "rich man" against the "poor man" and the poor against the rich since 1922. If they want to redistribute (steal) the money made by the working people and give it to those who won't work, so as to make us "equal or on the same economic level," why don't they move to Russia?

understand that we as individual free men are sick of the Democrats trying to change "our constitution." Except for a few, almost every law or program the Democrats have passed in the last 45 years have been constitutional. The EPA (Osha), ICC, FTC, FDA, CPA, and the Energy Commission are all Democratic bills and unconstitutional.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: While it is interesting to read about such a thing, it is important to remember that our faith in the reality of Christ's resurrection does not hinge on the discovery of something like this.

WE ARE ALL individuals and very different; we choose different professions, religions, lifestyles, and some of us work harder than others.

Watch out Mr. Brazel. We are not buying anymore of that "Old Democratic Socialism" you people better get you another "song and dance."

DEAR D.L.S.: What makes it unique is that it contains a faint image of a man on it who bears the marks of crucifixion. Some have suggested that the image was formed by a burst of energy when Jesus rose from the dead.

IF ONE, THINK Charles Stenholm is the first Democrat that has some common-sense. He can see where this country is headed and you know he is a smart man because he doesn't let D.A. Brazel or the Democratic Party influence his thinking.

Rotator cuff: Swimmer's nemesis

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a swimmer. I recently suffered severe shoulder pain, and was told it was a shoulder cuff injury. Can you explain this? Should I be able to continue my swimming? — F.J.

THE ROTATOR CUFF. An additional problem is that these tendons pass between two bones. When swelling occurs, they naturally begin to stick between those bones.

WHEN PAIN subsides you can begin exercises, emphasizing muscle stretching. You can use a broomstick for one helpful exercise. Hold it behind you with your thumbs pointed in toward your body with palms pointed backward. Let the stick touch the backs of your legs. Then raise your arms gradually, letting your hands slip toward the ends of the stick

Farabee attacks measure

Senate approves water trust fund amendment

By DANA PALMER
Marie-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Senate Thursday gave its final blessing to a proposed constitutional amendment that proponents say will help quench the state's thirst for more water.

Approval came despite attacks by Sens. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls, Carlos Truan of Corpus Christi, Carl Parker of Port Arthur and Lloyd Doggett of Austin on what some critics of the proposal are saying is more a water "trust me" fund than a water trust fund.

The final vote was 23-7, even more overwhelming than Tuesday's 21-8 vote for tentative approval of House Speaker Bill Clayton's proposal to set aside up to half the state's surplus revenues for future water development water quality and flood control projects.

Among the seven senators voting against the plan were Farabee, Truan and Kent Caperton of Bryan. Sen. Peyton McKnight of Tyler, who opposed the proposal on second reading, was absent.

Supporters included the sponsor, Sen. Ed Howard of Texarkana, as well as Sens. Bob Glasgow of Stephenville, Grant Jones of Abilene and W.E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland.

The proposed constitutional amendment already has passed the House, but because of some minor changes in the Senate, it will have to go back for another approval.

Parker charged that those senators who voted for the plan were moving in the direction of fiscal irresponsibility.

"It's like going on a spending binge with a credit card that we'll not be around to answer for," he said.

Calling it a patchwork plan that is so complicated and based on so many unknowns that few legislators really understand its impact, Doggett complained, "You say, 'Trust me. Trust me. It'll work out.' But that would be like the people who trusted Gov. (Bill) Clements to bring them the tax relief he promised and they got this monstrosity."

Clements in the past has said he would like to see some of the state's revenue surpluses returned to the taxpayers, but he now supports the water fund as tax relief of the future — saving today's revenue surpluses as a hedge against the need for future tax increases.

"This is a pay now and plan later approach," Doggett said. Proponents can't show how much water will be needed or even how much money it will take to insure a future water supply for the state, he added. "They're simply asking for a blank check."

Truan was upset by a provision that calls for half of the state's surplus to be transferred automatically into Clayton's water assistance fund at the end of each biennium.

Unfortunately, he said, the practice in each legislative session has been to use that surplus in many cases to meet the needs of teachers, state employees and the mentally retarded.

"How can we adequately respond to the needs of the people of Texas ... if we're not going to be able to get the money we got in the past?" he asked Howard.

A simple majority vote of the legislature, Howard noted, can divert funds not already committed for water projects to any purpose deemed necessary.

"That will be a lot easier than voting for a tax bill," he said, adding that despite charges by critics of the water proposal, "this is not the first step toward a tax bill."

President's own church differs with Reagan's economic policies

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan has been missing from the pews for years, but the Disciples of Christ church still counts him as a member of its flock and is taking him to task for his plans at home and abroad.

"The economic theories that are presently being advanced ought not to be tested at the expense of the poor," Kenneth Teegarden, the church leader, said Friday. "In doing so, our nation is in danger of losing its moral integrity."

Teegarden delivered his blasts against Reagan in an interview Friday as the denomination — formally known as the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) — embarked on its six-day biennial convention. Many of the 7,000 delegates are expected to go on record against Reagan's policies.

Teegarden said world hunger and peace also would be convention issues in which the church would align against Reagan.

"The church has always said Jesus is the Prince of Peace, and we're committed to peace," he said. "But the circumstances of the world today mean the church is going to need to establish concrete actions by which peace becomes possible, by opposing escalation of the arms race and giving support to arms reduction, arms control and the like."

Agenda items include resolutions supporting conscientious objectors to the military, calling on the United States to stop sending arms to El Salvador, seeking a freeze on development of nuclear weapons by the United States and the Soviet Union and urging the ratification of the nuclear arms treaty.

Second 'test tube' baby on way, doctors reveal

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — America now has two "test-tube" babies on the way, doctors at the country's first in vitro fertilization clinic announced today.

The clinic at Norfolk General Hospital said its doctors have achieved a second pregnancy through laboratory fertilization during its 17 months of operation.

"The in vitro fertilization and embryo transfer program at Eastern Virginia Medical School (EVMS) and Norfolk General Hospital can confirm a second pregnancy," hospital spokesman Vern Jones said.

The first pregnancy was announced May 11, and Jones said it "seems to be progressing normally."

No information or expected birth dates were given out for either woman. Since its opening in March, the clinic, housed at Norfolk

General and operated by EVMS, has tried to shield its patients, saying stress could upset the delicate hormonal balance crucial to achieving and maintaining pregnancy.

If the babies are born, they will be the first ones so conceived in this country. Babies conceived through in vitro fertilization have been born in England and Australia.

In in vitro fertilization, doctors surgically remove a fertile egg from a woman's ovary, fertilize it in the laboratory with her husband's sperm and transfer the developing embryo to the woman's uterus. Successful implantation in the uterus is up to nature.

Both pregnancies were achieved after doctors began giving fertility drugs to the patients, a method used successfully in Australia.

Britain faces harsh reality after wedding celebration

LONDON (AP) — After the fairy-tale wedding of Prince Charles and Princess Diana, Britain returned to the harsh reality of its decaying cities, antiquated economy and hatred-torn province of Northern Ireland.

As the honeymooners flew to Gibraltar to embark on a honeymoon cruise, the pomp and circumstance of Wednesday's ceremony watched by millions worldwide receded further into memory.

The Financial Times commented Saturday: "It will be to a Britain stripped bare of bunting that the Prince and Princess of Wales return from their honeymoon in gentler climes."

The Times of London said Britain now must face "all those harsher realities of national life."

Among those realities are: — Riots in Liverpool, London and other cities where joblessness, decrepit housing, alleged police harassment and racial discrimination led to unprecedented scenes of looting and burning earlier this month. The first fatality in the riots came in Liverpool's Toxteth district the day before the wedding. Hundreds have been injured and substantial damage taken place.

— The crisis in Northern Ireland, where the outlawed Irish Republican Army is fighting to end British rule and 12 years of sectarian strife have claimed at least 2,124 lives. The IRA is focusing its campaign on the Maze prison's hunger strike to the death in which jailed guerrillas are seeking reforms amounting to political-prisoner status.

— Unemployment at its highest levels since the Great Depression. More than one in nine people — 2.85 million people — are out of work, a rate of 11.8 percent.

Last Monday the government set aside almost $1 billion for job training, early retirement schemes and employers' subsidies, a package that opposition Labor Party leader Michael Foot dismissed as "derisive."

— A sinking pound sterling, which Friday hit a three-year low of $1.84. The pound was worth $2.43 six months ago but has been hurt by high U.S. interest rates and falling world oil prices, blunting the effect of Britain's virtual self-sufficiency in North Sea oil.

— An annual inflation rate of 11.3 percent, down 10 percent from a year ago but still above Conservative Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's single-figure target.

A piece of good news for Mrs. Thatcher was Thursday's victory for the government in the 21-week pay dispute with civil servants that produced a series of sporadic strikes by 530,000 white-collar employees in nine unions. They had sought a 15 percent raise but settled for 7½ percent, after an original government offer of 6 percent.

The settlement came 24 hours after the wedding, when this class-divided country seemed to have its confidence and purpose restored.

Washington Star appears doomed to close Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — An effort in Congress to keep the Washington Star alive by giving a big tax break to a new owner has collapsed, and the paper appears doomed to close next Friday.

Time Inc., the owner of the Star, said there were no "substantive offers" for the paper, although it was reported today that the owner of Atlantic Monthly magazine was considering buying the Star.

Sens. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., and John Warner, R-Va., said they explored the possibility of introducing a tax amendment to let a new owner recover up to 96 percent of its business losses for the next three years, instead of the 46 percent recovery available under existing law.

But the senators said time ran out on the opportunity to tack such a plan to President Reagan's tax bill.

"This particular lifeline is not going to work," Mathias said.

Herbert J. Sugel, chairman of Chris-Craft Industries, Inc. of New York, had said his firm would be interested in buying the Star if such a cushioning tax arrangement could be approved.

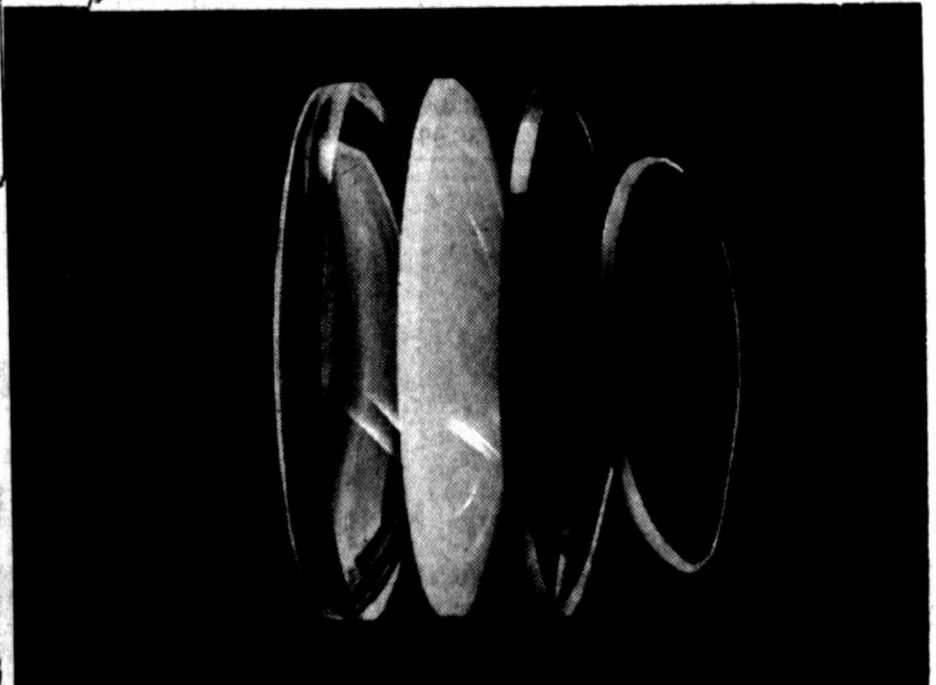

When the senators gave up, Siegel indicated he, too, was dropping consideration of a last-ditch effort to rescue the paper, which has been operating at a daily loss of $55,000.

World cotton producers have one-upped the U.S.A. by bringing in an estimated 65.5 million bales for the 1980-81 period, 300,000 bales over the most recent U.S.A. estimate. U.S. production remained at its previous of 11.1 million bales. The significant increase in the world and foreign figure is due, in large part, to Chinese production of 12.4 million bales, well over the U.S.A.'s original estimate. Total foreign production is now figured at 54.3 million bales — an all-time high. China also claims credit for the cotton consumption figures, also revised upward to record levels of an estimated 66.2 million bales, slightly over the 65.6 million bales consumed during 1979-80. Total foreign consumption is pegged at 60.4 million bales, of which China is responsible for 15.5 million with the U.S. credited with consuming 6 million bales plus.

Farabee not optimistic

Lobbying for college funds

By JACKIE CALMES
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — To legislators anxious to bring the hot summer's special session to a successful close, a recent letter must have carried a welcome message.

The chairmen of the boards of regents of all the state-supported universities are in unanimous agreement, Leonard Rauch, chairman of the University of Houston System's board of regents, wrote to the 181 lawmakers.

Rauch went on to outline an agreement, which he said was endorsed by Gov. Bill Clements, House Speaker Bill Clayton and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, calling for:

- Repeal of the constitutionally dedicated state ad valorem (property) tax that formerly benefitted the 17 colleges and universities not privy to the Permanent University Fund, or PUF.

The 1979 Legislature effectively repealed the tax by reducing it to an insignificant figure. But Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls sues, saying the lawmakers illegally skirted the voters' right to decide on constitutional changes.

- A new constitutional fund that would use general revenues, with a first-year infusion of $80 million, for construction and repairs at the 17 schools.

- Expansion of the Permanent University Fund, a $1.4 billion oil-inflated trust to which only the University of Texas and Texas A&M University have keys, to include system schools that currently share the names but not the wealth of those two schools.

Rauch's letter signalled, it seemed, a long-awaited consensus among the schools and, as a result, a solution to the politically charged question of higher-education funding.

In fact, his letter only reignited debate among the State's educators. About the same time it was being distributed to Capitol offices, a regent for four of the 17 ad valorem-tax schools told a Senate subcommittee that he could not support a fund that depends on general revenues.

Robert Baldwin III of Austin, chairman of the board of regents for the Texas State Universities System — which includes Angelo State University in San Angelo, Sul Ross at Alpine, Sam Houston State at Huntsville and Southwest Texas State at San Marcos — said $80 million annually is not sufficient. But, he added, even that drain on general revenues would make a new tax necessary eventually.

Instead, Baldwin endorsed Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson's plan to reduce the ad valorem tax from 10 cents to 3 cents per $100 property valuation, and to repeal the tax in about a decade after the endowment has reached a certain level, possibly $1 billion.

Last week, hearing of Rauch's letter, Baldwin dashed off one of his own to refute the earlier announcement of unanimity.

Speaking for his four schools' officers, Baldwin wrote: "It is our judgment that funding from general revenue is irresponsible and only delays the inevitable necessity of a tax increase, possibly a state income tax, to replenish general revenue."

He said Snelson's plan is the simplest answer because it works with an existing tax but provides ultimately — as legislators and the governor desire — for the tax's repeal.

What Baldwin's letter does not tell is his anger at the earlier announcement of an agreement. He said he was not invited to a June 23 meeting in Austin at which, according to Rauch's letter, the governor and higher-education officials forged their $80-million agreement.

"You're damn right we were mad," Baldwin said of his and Cargile's reaction. One university representative asked to be named.

Rauch is accommodating Clements not only so that some fund finally will be established but, also because his appointment to the UH board expires the end of August. The governor appoints all regents.

Rauch is in Europe and unavailable for comment.

Legislators differ as to whether the regents' involvement is necessary at all to resolving the funding issues.

One key legislator, Rep. Bob McFarland of Arlington, publicly chastised higher-education officials for their "dearth of involvement."

But Snelson said, "I don't think it's their job (to lobby for a solution)."

Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls, home of Midwestern State, agrees that schools should not have to push a particular point, "and they in fact are not doing so." But he added, "It's interesting that the other schools have not joined Midwestern in the suit, and I'm surprised that they have not been more vocal about sharing in PUF."

Farabee favors what Snelson and others refer to as "busting PUF" — opening its coffers to all higher-education institutions. Thanks to inflated oil prices and a federal exemption from the windfall profits tax, estimates of the PUF's worth by decade's end reach $4 billion.

Farabee, recognizing the futility of that politically unpopular option, is not pushing it. He is not optimistic about other solutions' chances in the special session — with Clements favoring use of general revenues. The Senate Finance Committee unanimously against it and educators still divided.

Also pessimistic is former Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz of Galveston, loser in past legislative fights to create a new constitutional fund.

For all the differences of opinion, the do-something club is the prospect of Midwestern winning its court battle and thus dropping a $1 billion bill for back taxes in Texans' laps.

Private sentenced to 40 years

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — An Army private from Waco, Texas, who said he joined the Army to better himself, has been sentenced to 40 years in prison for murdering another soldier.

Pvt. Joe Sanchez, 18, was convicted Thursday at Fort Jackson on unpremeditated murder in the stabbing death of Pvt. Clayton Olson, 22. Maximum sentence for the crime is life in prison.

A nine-member military jury imposed the sentence after deliberating 30 minutes.

The prosecution had sought a conviction of premeditated murder, a more serious crime that carries the same maximum life sentence.

Sanchez's attorney Capt. David Sumner said he hoped for a verdict of involuntary manslaughter. Maximum sentence for that crime is three years in prison.

Sanchez, a native of Waco, Texas, told the court he left home at the age of 12 to escape his abusive father. He married at age 16.

"I came to the Army to better my life and also to help me and my wife out," he said. Testimony during the trial showed Sanchez and Olson fought outside a nightclub on post May 9. Olson was not armed during the battle.

Pvt. David Pless pleaded guilty last week to involuntary manslaughter in the slaying. Testimony showed Pless handed Sanchez a knife just before the fight began. He was sentenced to three years in prison.

Both Sanchez and Pless received dishonorable discharges.

Funding, regulations posing problems for junior colleges

LEVELLAND — The struggle for funding and creeping state and federal regulations are two major problems facing Texas junior and community colleges today, says the new president of a statewide organization for junior college leaders.

"Inflation is running about 14 percent ahead of state funding for two-year colleges, which depend on both state and local sources for revenue," explained Dr. Marvin Baker, newly-elected president of the Texas Public Community-Junior College Association. He is in his 20th year as president of South Plains College.

"And the paperwork alone resulting from new federal and state laws on education costs colleges thousands of dollars each year," he estimated. By the end of his first year in office, Dr. Baker plans to publish and distribute to his fellow colleagues in TPCJCA a manual listing the regulations.

MARVIN BAKER, EX-TPCJCA EXEC. Paperwork problems pointed out

As president of TPCJCA, Dr. Baker heads an organization representing 47 college districts and 60 campuses within the state, whose major function is to monitor the state legislature and work closely with various state agencies involved in education.

Last year as the organization's president-elect and legislative committee chairman, Dr. Baker worked to help get the majority of a seven-part legislative program adopted this past session by the 67th state legislature.

He considered it a near victory when community colleges were awarded only 3 percent below the long sought-after full formula funding (arrived at by determining median college costs and applying an inflation factor). The legislature also adopted three other TPCJCA proposals — a halt to required tuition increases for colleges and universities, a simplification of the process to enlarge community college districts, and a removal of the age limit for CO-OP students.

"From our point of view," noted Dr. Baker, "it was the best legislative session we've had in years."

During his two-year tenure as president, Dr. Baker will preside at annual TPCJCA workshops at Waco and Texarkana and a mid-winter conference in January, where he plans to invite college board members and trustees to get involved in the legislative process; he also will prepare two cost studies of community college costs statewide for the next biennium of the legislature, and continue to work closely with such agencies as the Texas Education Agency, Legislative Budget Board and Coordinating Board.

He also has appointed colleagues to head two standing committees — Gene Richardson, president-elect of TPCJCA and president of Del Mar College at Corpus Christi, to chair the legislative committee; and C.A. Robinson, vice chancellor of Tarrant County Junior College, to chair the finance committee.

Before assuming the presidency of South Plains College, Dr. Baker was assistant to the president at Howard College. At the time, Dr. W.A. Hunt was the Howard College president.

Officer killed, charges pending

DALLAS (AP) — Involuntary manslaughter charges were pending against a 46-year-old man after a Dallas police officer was struck and killed by a pickup truck while trying to divert traffic from a pedestrian fatality, authorities said.

Charles J. Maltese Jr. had set about dozen flares in the southbound lane of Stemmons Freeway late Friday when he turned to face traffic and was hit by the pickup. He was thrown 147 feet and landed on the median, authorities said.

Maltese died at 10:30 p.m. at Parkland Memorial Hospital, where his fiancée, Kay Scott, was working as a nurse for the emergency room, according to friends of the dead officer.

The driver was arrested and police said he would be charged with involuntary manslaughter, a third-degree felony.

The pedestrian, identified as 23-year-old Juan Garcia of Dallas, was killed after being struck by a car as he attempted to cross the freeway, police said.

Big Spring native joins stock brokerage firm

Hilton Sherrod, managing vice president of Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., Austin, has announced the association of Larry D. Horn with the stock brokerage firm.

Horn, a native of Big Spring, graduated from Big Spring High School in 1969 and Howard College in 1971. He later graduated from North Texas State University in Denton with a bachelor's degree in Marketing.

For the past four years,

Horn has lived in Houston where he was an investment broker before working for Dean Witter Reynolds in Austin.

His duties will include handling investments for individuals from the selection of stocks and bonds, setting up I.R.A. and Keogh plans, tax-free municipal bonds and other tax-advantaged investments. Larry will headquarter in Austin.

Carpenter is charged in five more murders

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Marin County authorities charged ex-convict David J. Carpenter in five more slayings today, bringing to seven the number of murder counts against the San Francisco printer who is the prime suspect in a series of trailside slayings in northern California.

Carpenter could receive the death penalty if convicted of any of the charges.

Marin County District Attorney Jerry Herman said he filed a total of eight criminal charges in Marin County Municipal Court against Carpenter, 51, in connection with a series of rapes and murders along scenic trails in the San Francisco Bay area.

Five counts of murder, two of forcible rape and one of attempted rape were added to two charges of murder and one of attempted murder that Carpenter faces in Santa Cruz County, 100 miles to the south.

"In addition, we have alleged 13 counts of special circumstances, any one of which could result in the death penalty," Herman said.

Carpenter had pleaded innocent in the Santa Cruz County slayings.

HUNGER STRIKERS — Hunger striker Kevin Lynch, left, died in the Maze Prison in Belfast, Northern Ireland, Saturday, the seventh Irish nationalist prisoner to fast to death since the strike began five months ago. Britain's Northern Ireland Office reported Lynch was 25. The conditions of two other hunger strikers in the Maze had worsened dramatically Friday, and the family of one of them, Paddy Quinn, center, 29, authorized doctors to intervene to save his life. Quinn is a member of the Irish Republican Army. Kieran Doherty, right, 25, also an IRA member, was hallucinating and "dangerously weak" as he entered the 72nd day of fasting Saturday.

22 more executions announced Tehran government resigns

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran's government went through the formality of resigning Saturday to pave the way for a new cabinet, authorities announced 22 more executions and ex-President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr moved from one Paris suburb to another to avoid assassins.

His supporters in Iran, meanwhile, shot and killed two revolutionary guards in a patrol car in the Caspian Sea town of Amol, and set off a bomb that killed three fundamentalist Islamic politicians in the central city of Shiraz, the official Pars news agency said.

Tehran Radio said Mohammad Ali Rajai, Iran's prime minister and president-elect, accepted the resignations of all cabinet ministers and asked them to remain until a new prime minister is chosen. Rajai was elected a week ago to replace Bani-Sadr.

Education Minister Hojatolislam Mohammad Javad Bahonar is considered front-runner for prime minister. He is secretary general of the dominant Islamic Republican Party that masterminded the year-long campaign of Iran's fundamentalist Moslem clergy to oust Bani-Sadr, a Western-educated moderate. Pars said 19 executions were carried out Friday night in the northern city of Tabriz and three early Saturday in the northwestern city of Ardabil. The agency said nine people were convicted of spying for Israel, 12 were convicted of being leftist counter-revolutionaries and one was found guilty of murder.

Pars said the leftists belonged to the Marxist-Leninist Peykar underground faction aligned with the Islamic-Marxist Mujahedeen Khalq. The groups have waged urban guerrilla war against the regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini since Bani-Sadr's ouster six weeks ago. Authorities have executed more than 200 accused leftists to crush opposition.

Iran's regime announced Wednesday that nine Iranians were executed in Tabriz on charges of spying for and sending money to Israel. The next day, officials of the Bahai faith in New York said all nine were Bahais and that 73 members

Rocket engine test delayed until Tuesday

MATAGORDA ISLAND, Texas (AP) — The president of a commercial space flight company says his investors will pay "whatever it takes" to get their 55-foot rocket into space, despite a series of technical and bureaucratic roadblocks.

Plagued by a series of minor, nagging problems, engineers have pushed back a critical engine test on the 55-foot rocket Percheron until at least Tuesday.

A five-second engine burn was canceled Friday after a kerosene fuel leak saturated the black-powder rocket fuse, according to officials of Space Services Inc. of Houston.

"We got as close to ignition as you can get," said technical director Eric Laursen.

"We don't have to correct the leak," said chief scientist Dr. David J. Ross. "We simply have to protect the igniter."

Company president Dale Hannah said he and eight other investors have spent $1.2 million on the project, but Friday's setback did not bother him or the backers.

He said the investors will pay "whatever it takes" to see the project through to an orbital flight.

The Percheron is private industry's first direct competition with the U.S. government in the satellite-launching business.

 Q. We are considering purchasing a house in which the seller has agreed to include items such as curtains and rods, a free standing fireplace and refrigerator, stove, etc. Should any contract provision for these items be made at closing?
 A. Yes. The agreement of sale should state, item by item and in detail, each piece of personal property which the seller has agreed to include in the transaction for the house. This may even include such items as light fixtures, mirrors attached to walls, fuel oil, carpets etc. In the contract, the seller should warrant he has good title to the items listed, and should execute a bill of sale for the personal property at closing which you, the buyer, should retain with the agreement of sale, deed and other important documents.

Final arguments loom Monday in murder trial

HOUSTON (AP) — Defense lawyers for investor Markham Duff-Smith, whose case took a battering when a key defense witness switched sides, face closing arguments Monday after scuttling plans to put their client on the witness stand.

Duff-Smith is being tried on charges of plotting the 1975 strangulation of his adoptive mother, Gertrude Zabolo. He also is accused of arranging the 1979 shooting deaths of his sister, Diana Wanstrath, her husband John and their 14-month-old son, Kevin.

Prosecutors say Duff-Smith plotted the deaths so he could inherit his family's money. The defense claims Duff-Smith was framed and that prosecution witnesses committed perjury.

Defense attorneys decided not to put Duff-Smith on the stand after their key witness surprised the courtroom Friday when he switched sides and became a witness for the prosecution.

Jerry Saul Eikenhorst, a convicted thief brought here from the state prison, reduced defense lawyers to near panic and at one point to arguing among themselves as the unexpected drama unfolded.

Eikenhorst, a jailmate of Duff-Smith, was called to the stand by defense attorney Candelario Elizondo, supposed to tell jurors that he had heard a major prosecution witness say he intended to lie in court.

The defense lawyers said Paul MacDonald, a confessed "middleman" in the Zabolo hired killing, had never met Duff-Smith and lied on the witness stand when he told jurors that he had. Eikenhorst's testimony was supposed to back that up.

But during Elizondo's questioning of his own witness, the answers began to go awry.

Eikenhorst said "yes," that MacDonald had told him in the jail that he had met Duff-Smith.

But when Elizondo asked the key question — did

MacDonald ever change his story and confess that he really never met Duff-Smith — Eikenhorst's answer of "No" elicited gasps from the packed courtroom.

At that point lead defense lawyer Blaine tried to halt the questioning, saying, "Judge, this is a complete surprise. We'd like to impeach this witness."

But Elizondo continued, in a desperate attempt to salvage the defense's case. He produced a letter Eikenhorst had written him outlining MacDonald's admitted "lies."

Eikenhorst said he wrote the letter because he'd "been offered some help if I testified."

"Who offered you the help?" Elizondo asked.

"Markham Duff-Smith," Eikenhorst said.

Visibly shaken, Elizondo muttered, "Pass the witness, Your Honor," as he slumped into his chair.

Duff-Smith leaned over and talked animatedly with his obviously shocked attorneys, but otherwise showed no response to the damaging revelation.

In the hallway after Friday's session, Blaine just shook his head when asked if the day's testimony had changed his final argument strategy.

Little change in heart transplant patient

HOUSTON (AP) — The prognosis for a Dutch heart transplant patient who lived 54 hours on an artificial heart remained "guarded" Saturday as the use of the controversial plastic organ received the backing of a watchdog committee.

Willebrordus A. Meuffels, a 36-year-old native of The Netherlands, remained in critical, but stable condition, according to a spokesman at the Texas Heart Institute here.

Brewery's closing 'end of Milwaukee tradition'

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Schlitz, long advertised as "the beer that made Milwaukee famous," is closing its brewing operation here after 132 years.

The Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co. announced the shutdown Friday, stunning the city and 720 brewery workers who have been on strike since June 1.

Mayor Henry W. Maier called it "the end of this Milwaukee tradition." "It was like Pearl Harbor all over again," said Leroy Mattmiller, 39, a 17-year veteran, as he walked a picket line. "Management was sitting there negotiating and then they hit us."

Schlitz, formed in Milwaukee in 1849, joined with such competitors as Pabst, Miller and Blatz to earn Wisconsin's largest city the reputation of the beer capital of the world.

A week ago, Schlitz announced plans to merge with the G. Heileman Brewing Co. of La Crosse, maker of Old Style, Carling Black Label and Special Export.

Heileman officials said they were not involved in the decision to close the 101-year-old brewery, located on the city's northeast side.

The shutdown on Sept. 30 will leave Milwaukee with two major breweries, Pabst and Miller. Schlitz will keep its headquarters here and a canning operation in suburban Oak Creek.

The company said 700 employees would be affected by the closing. Some of the strikers have opted for early retirement.

"It is not a happy moment for our city when a part of our history comes to an end," Maier said. "I am also aware of the role of the company in the growth and development of Milwaukee's reputation as the brewery capital of the world."

Milwaukee will not be the same without Schlitz, said Gus Mader, whose German restaurant is almost as much of a landmark as the brewery.

Schlitz helped Mader's open in 1902, and owned the establishment for years. Schlitz also has been a patron of city entertainment, sponsoring fireworks, circus parades and concerts.

"We always thought the Schlitz brewery was a part of old Milwaukee," Mader said. "We believed their slogan, 'The beer that made Milwaukee famous.'"

The slogan is said to have come about indirectly because of the great Chicago fire of 1871, which created a water shortage there. Schlitz shipped its beer south to help, and Chicagoans reportedly were impressed by the gesture, the beer and the city it came from.

Schlitz capitalized on the attention and penned its slogan before the turn of the century, replacing it only recently.

The brewery has been shut down since the strike, reportedly over wages and plans to turn distribution over to a private company. Brewery Workers Local 9 Secretary John O'Shea said picketing would continue until Sept. 30.

Schlitz has breweries in five other states, mainly in the Sun Belt. Heileman, which in 1969 acquired and relocated Milwaukee's Blatz operation, has plants in nine states.

RESPONDS TO PETTING — This West Texas visitor is petting a Texas Horned Toad (Phrynosoma Cornutum), the most common of three types of horned lizards found in the state. This little fellow can be found just about anywhere in Texas and can grow to a maximum size of 4½ inches. He eats mostly ants and other insects, which makes him a friend of man. These critters are protected by law from being bought or sold, but they do respond to petting.

Jonnie Gunnels named interim curator of Heritage Museum

According to Jack Cook, museum president, at a meeting of the board of trustees, July 29, Mrs. Clyde (Jonnie) Gunnels, daughter of Gerri Atwell, was named interim curator of Heritage Museum until a full time curator is employed. Cook added that the museum would continue to remain open weekdays from 9 to 5 and would be closed Saturdays and Sundays, beginning Aug. 1, until further notice.

Included in Mrs. Atwell's second quarterly activities report at the meeting were: 1) A gain of 30 new members during the quarter, bringing the total membership to 471, of which 109 are new. 2) Guests registered during the quarter numbered 2,980, bringing the total registration through June of 7,378.

The Missouri Pacific Railroad has presented a lovely 11" x 14" bronze plaque "To The Citizens of Howard County," which now hangs in Heritage Museum. The public is invited to come by and see it.

Heritage Museum has been honored the past two weeks with some very interesting visitors as well as relatives and friends they are visiting.

To those who have not purchased their H.W. Caylor Art Book, the museum has them for sale. These books are a treasure house of early Caylor paintings! 52 of his best in vivid colors, each with appropriate caption written by Joe Pickle. Pickle also wrote an excellent introduction to the book.

Cook also said that there are still a few of the first printing of "Gettin' Started" the early history of Howard County by Mr. Pickle, available at the museum.

Hangin' Out With Nathan Poss

Press day a big cut for one Oiler

It was press day at the Houston Oilers training camp in San Angelo, and the media followed the bigger names around. Meanwhile, the rest of the players sauntered back to the dorm on the ASU campus.

I had arrived at the end of the picture taking session for the Oilers last Saturday morning, anyway, sleeping rather than getting up when I realized that my 40-hour work allotment had been used for that week.

Still, I did want to visit the Oilers training camp, but more for a personal reason. An old college roommate of mine, Ernie Rogers, was in the Oiler training camp as an offensive tackle.

Rogers, at 24 years old, is a 6'6", 270-pound specimen. He has always had enormous physical ability, good enough to get him to the final cut with the Dallas Cowboys two years ago. But with only five players between Rogers and a spot on the Cowboys roster, he was cut.

He then went to Canada for a short stint in the CFL, before returning to Houston and signing on with the Oilers last spring.

Rogers was a versatile athlete, and still is. As a schoolboy, he led his Cleveland High basketball team to the Class AA state championship game, but it was in football that he was highly recruited. At Rice he was a novelty in earning more than one varsity letter in both football and basketball. At a Southwest Conference school, it is nearly impossible to get the okay to do both, but when you are as big and as agile as the "Big E", it doesn't matter.

But still, many felt he had not reached his potential, whether it be in high school, college or the pros. Many felt it was his love for women, his intense search for a new conquest.

But the story was out from friends in Houston. The Big E was serious about football this year. He was working out hard on the weights every day, and running sprints like Donna Summers and Bo Derek were waiting for him in the end zone.

Moving into the dorm where the Oilers stayed, I saw the chart listing the players room numbers. Ernie Rogers, Room 625. I started toward the elevator, leaving my wife in the lounge with a few of the players, much to her delight.

Getting off the elevator and surrounded by a group of giants, I moved toward 625, where the soul music was blaring. It had to be the Big E's room.

Ernie stood in the hallway, looking somewhat depressed, surrounded by three other players.

"Ernie," I greeted, having not seen him in two years.

"Nathan Poss, you crazy (obscene phrase deleted)," Ernie shot back his ebony face breaking into a grin.

"What the hell are you doing here?"

"Thought I'd come see what was happening," I related.

"You're too late, man, I'm leaving. Gettin' the hell outta here," Ernie said, laughing and showing signs of frustration at the same time.

"Cut," he added, short and decisively.

"You're getting ripped off, Ernie, another player said," his voice rising. "You're getting ripped off. Man, I'd raise hell about that for of yours. They got to put you on injured reserve."

Ernie moved into his room, and the group followed.

"Hey, judge, that's just life," the Big E stated to the "rip off" question. "I got other things I can do with my life. Hey, I'm flying to Dallas. I got a woman I think I'll go see for a while. She'll take care of me."

Oiler players drifted in and out in the next few minutes, expressing sympathy to Ernie for his "cut" state of affairs. Most seemed genuinely concerned, although undoubtedly happy it wasn't them.

For Ernie, it was probably the end of a chance at pro football. He tried to stay unaffected, and even joked about things.

A group of three players stood in the hallway as

Pecos ends Texas League season in bi-district

PECOS — The Big Spring Texas Little League All-Stars had their hopes of a trip to the state tournament nixed here Saturday evening, as the Pecos All-Stars rolled to a 5-0 lead and held off a late sixth inning rally to emerge with a 5-2 triumph.

The win moves the Pecos All-Stars, winners of District IV, into the state Little League affair in Waco. That event begins Aug. 10. The loss for the Texas League crew ends their season. They had won four straight games to capture the District III crown.

The Pecos team outthit the Texas Leaguers by only six to five, but used three passed balls and a pair of timely hits to win.

Pecos pitcher Jamie Mata did his part, too, shutting out the Big Spring team until two were out in the bottom of the sixth.

At that point, the Texas League's Jay Fryar singled to plate Gary Rodriguez. Pinch-hitter Kenneth Banks then drilled a double to the left field fence to score Fryar and put a scare into the previously comfortable Pecos team. But Mata retired Jerry Morales to end the game and clinch the state berth.

Pecos plated single runs in both the second and third innings off starter David Rodriguez, and were quieted by reliever Sammy Rodriguez until the fifth. But at that time, Pecos' two, three walks and a pair of passed balls before Fryar came in to halt the uprising.

The Texas League stranded only four runners in the game, as three men were put out trying to advance

Players Association ratifies accord

CHICAGO (AP) — The executive committee of the Major League Players Association voted unanimously Saturday to ratify the agreement that ended baseball's 50-day strike.

Player representatives from all 26 major league clubs attended the three-hour meeting, which was conducted by Marvin Miller, executive director of the union.

"The vote by the executive board was unanimous, and we recommended adoption of the agreement," said Miller.

The player representatives now will return to their individual clubs for a vote by rank-and-file members of the association.

While the meeting went on, teams held their first formal workouts since the settlement was reached early Friday morning.

Linda Magers volleyball signee for U of Houston

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

When the University of Houston volleyball team lost a Magers recently to LSU, there was one solution. Get another Magers.

That they did, inking Big Spring High School's stellar graduate, Linda Magers, to a letter-of-intent with the UH Cougars.

She will take her spot on the UH team that sister Rose is leaving. Rose, an All-American volleyball performer for the Cougars the past two years, recently announced that she will transfer to LSU.

Linda had originally planned to end her competitive volleyball career, unlike sister Rose, who recently performed for the United States team in the World University Games in Romania.

The attractive Linda was set on going to beauty school in either Fresno or Los Angeles, Calif., in order to pursue her goal of being a beautician and operating her own beauty shop. But she was then selected to appear in the Texas Women's High School Coaches Association All-Star volleyball game in early July.

Accepting the opportunity to exhibit her skills with the best in the state, Magers accepted. Following the game, newly hired

University of Houston Coach Dave Albright asked Linda to come try out for a scholarship.

Linda did, and following the tryout, was offered the scholarship to the university that her older sister had just left.

"It was a chance to continue playing volleyball, but more importantly, a scholarship to further my education," explained Linda. "I'm going to major in Business Administration and also study some Accounting and I felt that this would be a great way to learn and prepare for running a business myself."

City golf championship set for next weekend

The Big Spring City Golf Championship will be held next weekend in two rounds of action. All golfing action will take place at the Comanche Trail Golf Course.

The two-day tournament will be fought by handicap before action starts. Tee off time is at the golfer's discretion on Saturday, but assigned times will be posted for Sunday's final round.

Any person living in Howard County is eligible to participate. The entry fee is 20 dollars.

Defending city champion is Howard Stewart.

Jabbar to be traded?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers will meet with Jerry Buss, owner of the National Basketball Association team, on Monday amid speculation that the six-time NBA most valuable player wants to be traded.

A story in Saturday's Orange County Register quoted a source close to the situation as saying: "The issue is not money and it's not length of contract, it's respect. Buss went and singled out someone else (presumably, Earvin "Magic" Johnson) to teach the business to."

The source said that Abdul-Jabbar would be like to be traded to either the New York Knicks or the New Jersey Nets. The veteran center grew up in New York, and his parents still live there.

Johnson signed a 25-year, $25 million contract with the Lakers earlier this summer.

Best shape ever jinxed

Ernie, another player and myself carried his bags to the door. A horrible odor appeared, and everybody acknowledged it.

"Somebody died," a player mentioned, holding his nose.

"Man, was that you. That had to be you," Ernie said, turning to a short player in the group. Everybody eyed him as the guilty culprit.

"Not me. I didn't do it," he said, backing toward the elevator.

"Man, you come to tell me you're sorry about me getting cut, and that's all you can do," Ernie said, frowning facetiously. "You been doing that all camp, it's got to be you."

"I'm getting outta here," the accused said. "I never did nothing."

The players, except for one, left. We picked up the bags, and Ernie turned to me, grinning. "Was that you, Scooter," he inquired.

I just grinned in guilt.

Moments later, Ernie was in my small Toyota wity Judy and me, heading toward a store to cash his final check. The reality of the situation seemed to be sinking in.

"I get a knock on my door before breakfast," he explained. "This guy tells me to come to the coaches office downstairs, but he doesn't tell me to bring my playbook. When I got cut by the Cowboys, I had to bring my playbook, so I knew what was coming 'down then."

"I get down there," Ernie continued, "and the GM (Ladd Herzog) tells me he's got some bad news for me. He's holding a piece of paper, and I just said, 'Hey, I don't want to hear it. Just let me sign and get the hell outta here. Just don't say a word."

The word of being cut on that Saturday morning was also given to George Woodard, the former Texas Aggie All-SWC fullback.

Arriving at a small convenience store in San Angelo, Ernie explained his surprise at being cut, at least this early.

"Man, I had really worked out hard for this, harder than I ever have in my life. With the Cowboys, I wasn't in near as good a shape as this, and I nearly made it," Ernie said in the tightly packed car. "I was running second team behind big Angelo (Fields, the 300-pounder from Michigan State) because Leon (Gray) was still not in camp. I thought I was doing okay. But judge, you just never know."

Ernie bought a peach cola in the store, and cashed the check. He had been there before.

"Hey, Ernie, you guys doing alright over there. You getting adjusted to the heat here yet," the cashier asked.

"Yeah, adjusted," Ernie said as we left, managing to fake a smile as he walked out.

Back at the lounge area of the dorm, Ernie, Judy and I picked up his luggage and moved toward the door. Head Coach Ed Biles and Defensive Coordinator Dick Nolan passed by, but avoided Ernie to his back, as if they didn't want to speak to him. Or would just rather not.

By the car in which an Oiler office staffer would take Ernie to the airport, a local girl awaited him. Ernie walked away and talked to her for a few minutes, and returned.

He looked at me out of the corner of his eye.

"Haven't changed bit, have ya," big E. It's still love 'em and leave 'em," I ribbed.

Ernie laughed, then turned serious. "Yeah, but I didn't want to leave this fast."

He was undoubtedly referring to both training camp and the girl.

Ernie turned to the driver of the car. "Hey judge, I've only got 20 minutes. Can you get me to the airport?"

"Probably," the staffer said. "It takes about 15 minutes."

"Ain't no probably to it judge," Ernie said, intimidating the much smaller person. "I got to get out of here! Quickly!"

Cited during Hall of Fame inductions

Blanda Mr. Clutch in NFL history

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Al Davis called George Blanda the greatest clutch player in the history of the game Saturday when the Oakland Raiders' ageless wonder was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

"Blanda inspired a whole nation. He had a God-given killer instinct to make it happen when everything was on the line," said the Raiders' manager general partner who presented Blanda for induction.

Also joining Blanda in the 1981 class were two members of the great Green Bay Packer teams of the 1960s, defense end Willie Davis and center Jim Ringo, and Morris "Red" Badgro, who, at 78, became the oldest member of the sport's shrine.

Following the ceremony, the Cleveland Browns and the Atlanta Falcons met in adjoining Fawcett Stadium in the first exhibition game of this season.

Davis ticked off the remarkable heroics of Blanda in 1970, when his throwing or kicking helped Oakland rally for six straight victories in the closing moments.

Blanda, who became a hero of the geriatric set by playing well past his 48th birthday, received a standing ovation from the crowd surrounding the steps of the Hall of Fame.

"I'm not nervous," Blanda told the crowd. "I'm waiting for the clock to run down to two seconds so I can score again."

He ranks as professional football's all-time scorer with 2,002 points and completed more than 4,000 passes in his 26-year career. He holds 21 championship game records and played with the Chicago Bears and the Houston Oilers of the old American Football League before Davis picked him off the scrap heap as a 39-year-old.

"Without Davis, the Raiders and their winning spirit, I wouldn't be here today. There is one word how I feel — pride," he said.

Grambling College Coach Eddie Robinson, in presenting Willie Davis, said the Packers' great was the complete defensive end.

"For 10 years, Willie was the standard of excellence by which defensive ends were judged," Robinson said of the first Grambling product to reach the shrine that now numbers 110 players.

"Today, I'm very gratified and very proud of this momentous occasion," said Davis.

Ringo, now an assistant coach with the New England Patriots, played in 182 straight regular season games with the Packers and the Philadelphia Eagles despite a string of injuries and illnesses including mononucleosis.

"I feel I was created," he said. "I wasn't a very good athlete. Without my teachers of the past, I would not be here today."

Badgro, who had to wait an unprecedented 45 years to be enshrined, said: "This is absolutely the greatest thrill in my life. There is no way I can express my feelings."

Arlington Stadium on Thursday night. The Astros then meet the Rangers in the Astrodome on Friday night.

Richard has not hurled his fiery fastball competitively since July 30, 1980, when he suffered a life-threatening stroke during a workout. And some team officials say they still aren't sure Richard has progressed enough to return to the major leagues.

"There are a lot of people who are surprised I can throw, period," Richard said. "I'm not saying I'm totally ready yet. It took me 30 years to build what I had. You've got to give me some time to get it back."

Richard said his vision, endurance and strength have improved since spring training when fielding and catching balls proved difficult because of his weakened left side.

"Now, I'm really coming along. I've been pushing a lot of weights, some 200 to 300 pounds," he said. "No heavier than that. I don't want to kill myself."

Richard pitched 36 minutes in the Astros' first workout Saturday afternoon and afterwards said he believes he can make a comeback.

"I feel pretty good," he said.

Both leagues are studying a proposal to declare the games through June 11 — the start of the strike — as the first half of the season. The standings would start from scratch when post-strike play begins on Aug. 10.

The owners meet Tuesday in Chicago to decide whether to split the season. Texas officials plan to voice opposition to the plan, according to Eddie Robinson, the club's executive vice president.

"We certainly don't (favor the plan), and I plan to let my feelings known on the subject," Robinson said.

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — Mark Hayes lost the lead when he was ambushed by a double bogey on the final hole and Leonard Thompson emerged with a one-stroke advantage Saturday in the third round of the $425,000 Canadian Open Golf Championship.

Thompson, who had taken a four-shot lead with a spectacular, 9-under-par 62 in Friday's second round, went 11 shots higher to a 73. But, when Hayes' watery McDonald, a left-hander from Southern California, passed 29 and 37 yards to Feacher to lead Cleveland to its first victory in 12 years in the annual Hall of Fame game.

Crazy AJ Foyt won't retire despite injury

HOUSTON (AP) — Four-time Indianapolis 500 champion A.J. Foyt says he won't retire from racing, despite an elbow injury doctors say probably will make it impossible for him to straighten his arm.

Foyt told a news conference Friday he will try for his fifth Indianapolis title next year.

"We're a game-and-a-half out of first, why I would like to do something like that?"

Zimmer admits he might feel differently if Ranger fortunes had been different.

"If we were seven or eight games out, it'd be different. But this wouldn't be fair to us, or the (Chicago) White Sox, or other teams that busted their butts and got away to a good start."

EXPLANATION OF TAX INCREASE

The notice in the block titled "Notice of Tax Increase" immediately following this explanation is required by law. However, the Board of Trustees of the Howard County Junior College District wants the taxpayers to know that this does not represent a change in the tax rate. The Howard County Junior College District tax rate for 1980 was $0.140 per $100.00 of value and will remain the same for 1981.

If your property did not increase in value (all property owners who had increases were mailed notices of that increase during the last part of May or early part of June), then you will have a $0.00 per $100.00 or 0 change in taxes owed to the Howard County Junior College District for 1981.

Will fans return?

By the Associated Press

The nation's major league baseball fans now get their chance to return to the bleachers for beer and boos or take a swat at the national pastime by refusing to leave home.

The first strike ever to hit the summer game in the middle of summer lasted 50 days and players and owners wonder if the kids — young and old alike — who pay their way through the turnstiles of Comiskey Park and the Astrodome will come back in large numbers.

There are no pinch-hitters for the paying public. "We'll do everything we can to restore fan confidence," said Ray Grebey, the lawyer who was the chief negotiator for the owners of the 26 American and National League teams during the players' strike. Grebey said the accord was "a victory for nobody and it's a loss for nobody."

That appraisal was not shared by John Proscio, an accountant from Ridgefield, Conn., who said "fans were hurt, vendors and related businessmen."

"I have been a baseball fan all my life, but I'm not any more. The strike was ridiculous. ... I'm for boycotting the remainder of the season."

The contract accord that ended the walkout calls for games to resume Aug. 10, one day after the All-Star game in Cleveland, which was supposed to have been played July 14. That will leave 711 games unplayed, more than one-third of the season.

"I think the fans should go on strike for the rest of the year," said St. Paul, Minn. taxidriver Jim Rychlicki. "We've got football now — who needs 'em?"

Apologies for what commentators were prepared to call the year without a summer came from both sides of the bargaining table.

"We've got a lot of work to do to win back our credibility with the fans," said Bob Lurie, owner of the San Francisco Giants. Lenny Randle, who will resume playing third base for the Seattle Mariners, said of the fans: "I think we owe them an apology."

The crack of the bat will be heard this afternoon in many parks as the players return for workouts. The strike issues, which seemed at times to get more tangled than most industrial labor disputes, baffled many fans. The scheduling for the remainder of the season may be no easier to decipher.

Each league has two divisions. The club owners met Tuesday to decide whether to declare the clubs leading those divisions at the start of the strike June 12 the winners of the season's first half. The remaining games would comprise the second half, and winners of the halves would meet in playoffs. League winners would meet in the World Series, as usual.

That would make the New York Yankees and Oakland A's first-half winners in the American League and the defending World Series champion Philadelphia Phillies and Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League.

The settlement was announced early Friday in New York. The biggest issue was compensation for teams who lose a free agent — players who put themselves on the auction block to the highest bidder after their contracts run out. The arrangement has pushed salaries for many players into the millions of dollars.

Under the accord, teams losing a top free agent can look around the leagues and pick a player from another team to replace him. However, each team would be allowed to protect 24 to 26 players and only those left over would be fair game.

More than All-Star game in Cleveland next weekend

CLEVELAND (AP) — Some are grumbling that this All-Star Game, thrown together in about a week, won't have the luster of past baseball classics. But officials of the host city and the Cleveland Indians argue that an impromptu All-Star Game is better than none at all.

"It's a privilege to have the greatest players in the game playing in Cleveland," Indians President Gabe Paul said after baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Friday the game would take place Aug. 9 as a precursor to resumption of the strike-interrupted season.

Reduction of the contest to a one-day event, rather than the traditional three-day break that had been scheduled around July 14, is likely to cost Cleveland's struggling economy several million dollars, officials said.

A three-day affair could bring the city anywhere from $4 million to $8 million, while the Aug. 9 game "will mean more like $2 million," said Indians spokesman Bob DiBasso.

Other benefits, though, will make up for the lost dollars, according to Mayor George Voinovich.

"It may not be as well organized," Voinovich said, quickly adding that the mere fact the game is being played in Cleveland will bring the city "millions of dollars of free advertising."

Adding to the contest's glamor will be a pair of other major sporting events that will make the weekend one of the most star-studded in Cleveland sports history.

On Saturday, Aug. 8, the Pittsburgh Steelers invade for a National Football League exhibition game against the Cleveland Browns.

The next afternoon, former welterweight boxing champion Roberto Duran makes his ring comeback against Nino Gonzalez at Public Hall, a few blocks from Municipal Stadium.

The All-Star game follows on Sunday night.

"We're filling in the sandwich. We're the delicacy," said Murray Goodman, a spokesman for fight promoter Don King.

Players appear bitter

By the Associated Press

Not even the air of optimism prevailing among baseball people after the tentative settlement of the players' strike can erase the fact that bitterness over the 50-day walkout remains.

"This was the most insane, insane, assinine strike I've ever seen," said Jerry Reinsdorf, chairman of the Chicago White Sox. "I don't think we got anything aside from a one-year extension of the contract. Another year of peace."

"In my view, we lost," said Barry Foote, a catcher-first baseman with the New York Yankees. "We gave up something we had (free agency without professional player compensation) and lost money."

"Purely from the way it was handled, it was obvious they (the owners) formulated a strategy and stuck with it, no matter the cost."

"I don't know why it couldn't have been settled in one day," added Yankees reliever Rich Gossage. "Somebody — I won't say who — wasn't willing to work at it."

If it had been up to San Francisco Giants outfielder Bill North, both sides would have worked up an agreement before the strike began.

"I would have told them to sit down and not get up until they settled it," said North. "If they had, we might have been back to work 49 days ago."

"There certainly will be some hard feelings," added Buddy LeRoux, co-owner of the Boston Red Sox. "One of the sad things is that management and player personnel have been drifting apart for years."

But their negotiators finally drifted close enough to work out a deal and, on Aug. 10, the season will resume. Whether it will pick up where it ended on June 12, when the strike began, or whether the season will be split into two parts, with winners of each section advancing to postseason action, hasn't been determined.

"I like the idea (of a split season)," said Toronto Manager Bobby Mattick, whose Blue Jays were in last place in the American League East, 19 games behind the Yankees. "It gives us a fresh start and the Blue Jays are suddenly in a pennant fight."

Yankees second baseman Willie Randolph wasn't thrilled with the proposal of two seasons, broken up by the strike, even though his club already would have qualified for the playoffs by virtue of finishing first in the AL East prior to the walkout.

"Under the circumstances, I guess it's the best system, but it doesn't make me too happy," he said.

To end strike through arbitration ruling

AL owners were ready before

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Less than 48 hours before the major league baseball strike was settled, chief executives from eight American League teams met secretly in New York to devise a way to end the impasse, a Fort Worth newspaper reported today.

During the meeting, the club officials decided they would be willing to abandon the negotiating process and seek binding arbitration if it became necessary to end the strike, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram said in a copyright story.

Texas Rangers owner Eddie Chiles confirmed the Wednesday meeting during a conversation with Jim Reeves, baseball writer for the Star-Telegram. An agreement to settle the strike, which began June 12, was reached after an all-night bargaining session Thursday and was announced early Friday.

Chiles, Baltimore's Edward Bennett Williams and New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner lobbied for a quick settlement throughout the 50-day strike.

Others at the secret meeting were Seattle's George Argyros, Eddie Einhorn and Jerry Reinsdorf of the Chicago White Sox, Ray Eisenhart and Walter Haas of Oakland, Cleveland's Gabe Paul and California's Emil "Buzzy" Bavasi, the newspaper said.

"Ed Williams spoke first in our private meeting," Chiles said. "We had a factual discussion of where we were, where we wanted to go and what we had to do to get there. In order to get the season in all 10 of us agreed, as a last resort, to try to get the others to submit the whole thing to binding arbitration."

The group took its idea from the secret meeting, held in Steinbrenner's apartment, into a formal gathering of all American League owners but was not submitted for a vote at the insistence of league president Lee MacPhail, Chiles said.

However, Chiles did repeat to the other owners his previously stated belief that the central area of dispute — compensation for lost free agents — was not worth ending the baseball season.

"I said I didn't think we should sacrifice everything for compensation," Chiles told the newspaper. "I told them I hadn't been all that excited about compensation as being meaningful from the beginning."

"I told them I thought it should be an internal thing — we should be able to police ourselves instead of asking the union (Players Association) to make us be good boys."

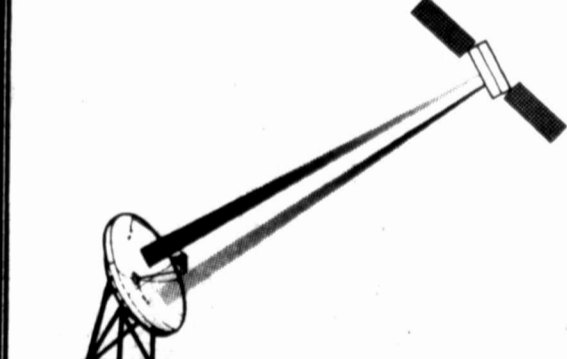

Then, when the American League meeting ended and owners of all 26 major league teams convened, Chiles said he felt growing support for his position.

"I could feel a sense of urgency for the first time. ... There must have been about 50 men in the room and everybody began to realize that time was running out."

Chiles — a frequent critic of baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn — said he came away from the secret meeting and the two subsequent formal meetings with renewed conviction that major league baseball needs reworking at the highest levels.

"I want to see us get back to playing and get things settled down, but down the line, I will start advocating and suggesting changes. We can't ever let this happen again."

DENNIS THE MENACE

"OH, NO... THIS TIME LET'S SEE YOUR MONEY FIRST."

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Can we see your virus, Mommy?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TODAY, AUG. 2, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can look into whatever is of interest to you today and come up with some excellent ideas under which to operate better in the future. An excellent time for planning.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): A good time to make right decisions where personal matters are concerned. Come to a better understanding with loved one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Take some time for analyzing your goals, so you know how far you have progressed and how to proceed in the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Getting together with congenials and planning how to be mutually helpful is wise today. Make a practical budget.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Fine day for meeting with friends and discussing future plans. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): You can get so many inspiring ideas that it would be well to put them down on paper so that you won't forget them later on.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Your hunches are particularly accurate now, so be sure to use them. Later be with persons you like at social events.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You get fine, inspiring ideas that could prove beneficial later. Strive for more harmony with family members.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Put those new ideas to work that will make your responsibilities easier and more profitable. Take health treatments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Make appointments with friends for the amusements you desire. Showing more devotion to loved one is wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Try to organize your home affairs more intelligently and increase harmony there. Strive for happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Attend the services of your choice that will help to renew your mind and elevate your thoughts. Happiness can be yours.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): A fine idea will make it possible for you to add to present abundance. Consult a loyal friend for advice you need.

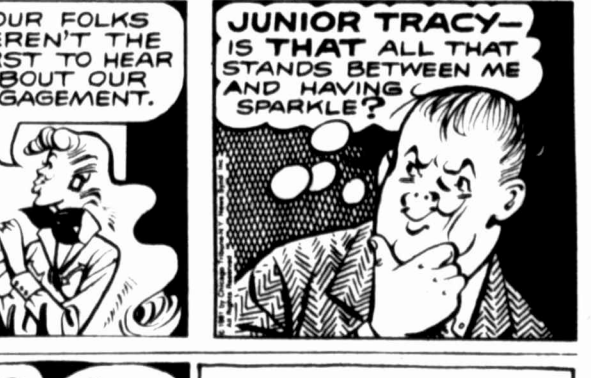

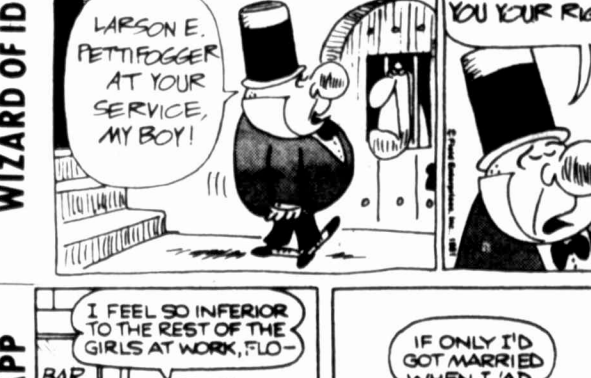

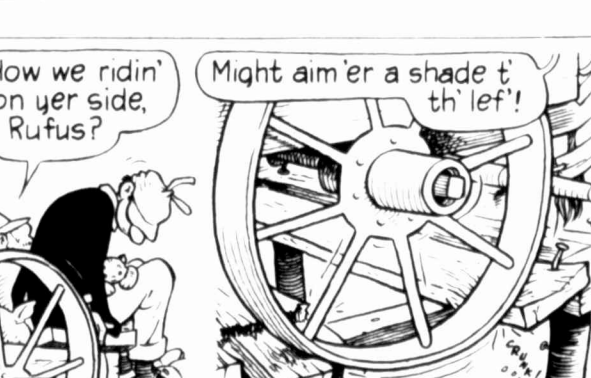

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have taken the keen mentality of a leader and would do very well as the head of a large organization. Teach to complete whatever has once been started. Be sure to give religious and technical training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

GI Bill check list provided

For those veterans planning to enroll in or return to school this fall under the GI Bill, the Veterans Administration has a useful check list to help keep those VA education benefits coming regularly:

- Double check your choice of courses to be certain they will count toward your educational objective.
- Register early. VA and your school need time to process your registration so that GI Bill checks can be started your way promptly.
- Avoid dropping classes after registration.
- File for your GI Bill benefits as early as possible.
- If you have to interrupt your education, notify VA promptly and advise the date you expect to return to classes.
- If you change addresses, notify VA promptly. Of course, you'll want to notify the school and the post office, also.
- Submit transcripts to the college admissions and records office immediately after application is made. This will speed up the school's certification to the Veterans Administration.
- Those with questions about the GI Bill or eligibility for it, should contact the nearest VA regional office, veterans county service officer, or a service officer from one of the national veterans organizations.

Teens charged with burglary

Alvin Phillip Allen, 203 Goliad, was transferred to county jail and booked under a burglary charge at 9:20 a.m. today.

The 17-year-old was placed under a $5,000 bond set by Judge Lewis Heflin. Bond was posted by Wayne Basden.

Richard Del Cantwell, P.O. Box 735, was placed in the county jail today and charged with theft over $10,000, and burglary of a habitation.

The 18-year-old was given no bond, under the authority of Judge Heflin.

Sammy Ben Johnson, 2107 Runnels, 17, was also transferred to county jail, and charged with theft over $10,000, and theft over $5. A $20,000 bond was set on the theft over $10,000 charge, and a $200 bond on the theft over $5.

Johnson and Cantwell are still in county jail.

ANYONE HOME? — Claws poised, a giant anteater investigates a termite mound. By flicking its sticky tongue in and out up to 160 times a minute, the animal can catch thousands of ants and termites a day. It measures up to 7 feet long.

Anteater slurps more than ants.. termites and dirt, for instance

By SUSAN LOTH
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — The giant anteater has no teeth, a tube-like mouth, and a schnoz that would put Jimmy Durante to shame. It sees poorly, walks on the sides of its feet, and swallows dirt with its meals of ants and termites.

Yes this cousin of sloths and armadillos, found in forests and grasslands from southern Mexico to Argentina, has at least one fan — Kent Redford. For the past year Redford has traded life at Harvard University's Museum of Comparative Zoology for a chance to observe the big insect-eating mammal in central Brazil.

Besides studying captive animals, he has followed anteaters from termite mound to termite mound at Emas National Park. The trick is to stay downwind, he says. "The one thing the giant anteater does have is a keen sense of smell."

- ANTEATER IN BRIEF
- LENGTH OF HEAD AND BODY: 6 to 49 inches; tail, 7 to 35 inches
 - WEIGHT: 6 ounces to 89 pounds
 - HABITAT AND RANGE: Tropical forests and grasslands from southern Mexico through northern Argentina
 - FOOD: Mostly ants and termites
 - LIFE SPAN: 3 to 14 years in captivity, depending on species
 - REPRODUCTION: Usually 1 young after pregnancy of about 5 to 6 months
 - ORDER: Edentates

"If one approaches a termite mound, it will walk around sniffing at very particular places, moving the tip of the nose up and down," Redford said. "If it likes what it smells, the anteater will scratch a hole in the mound with the long, curved claws on its front legs. Then out darts the sticky tongue and in go the insects."

The giant anteater, Myrmecophaga tridactyla, can measure 7 feet long, or nearly 9 when its tongue is extended. Some say the anteater's long snout acts as the muzzle of a rifle does in aiming. It also lets the anteater probe deeper after its prey, says Redford. His research is partly supported by the National Geographic Society.

While an anteater can devour thousands of insects a day, it rarely stays long at one mound. Redford calls the behavior "snacking," and says there's a reason: An anteater that loiters gives the insects time to fight back.

"Termites have workers and soldiers," he said. "The workers do all of the work, the soldiers do nothing but defend the colony, and they're fed by the workers."

Some soldiers have mandibles that can bite and draw blood. Some mix that bite with a stinging chemical, he continued. "Then you've got some termite soldiers which just spray chemicals — like an aerosol can. And these are the ones which are least liked by giant anteaters, and which seem to be the most effective in deterring predation."

Once enough soldier ants have failed to the defense, Redford believes, the anteater figures it's time to quit. If it only had teeth, you might say it didn't want to bite off more than it could chew.

Redford says part of the anteater's stomach has strong muscles that may do some of the grinding of food. And something else may help.

"They ingest an enormous amount of non-digestible material — a lot of sand, leaves, gravel, sticks, stones — because when they lay 22 inches of tongue out on the ground you're not only getting ants and termites but anything else that's going to stick to the tongue."

This indigestible material may work like the crop of a bird to break up food in the stomach, Redford said.

Except for insects, the giant anteater won't attack much of anything. If threatened, however, it can be a fierce defender, balancing on its hind legs and tail, with its sharp front claws raised. It will try to grab and rip apart anything within reach.

"There are travelers' accounts about people being caught and disemboweled, and everybody you talk to will tell you the story about a cousin's son who got it from an anteater. I would imagine most of these are apocryphal stories," the zoologist said.

"A warm greeting in Brazil, when you really give your best friend a hug after not having seen him for weeks, is called abraço de tamanduá — an anteater's hug."

To date, more anteaters have probably been killed by men than vice versa. Habitat destruction may be the biggest threat today, said Redford, "because a lot of the area that's good anteater country is also good cattle-grazing country."

Fina's net income for second quarter hits $15,251,000

DALLAS — American Petrofina, Inc., today announced that net income for the second quarter of 1981 amounted to $15,251,000, or $1.41 per share, compared to $25,123,000, or $2.33 per share, in the same period last year.

In the first six months of 1981, earnings were $35,501,000, or $3.29 per share, compared to $66,533,000, or $5.25 per share, in the first half of 1980.

Gross revenue for the quarter ended June 30, 1981, was $713,724,000, and for the six months was $1,380,198,000, compared to $494,147,000 and $1,071,521,000, respectively, in the corresponding periods last year. Cash income from operations amounted to $64,729,000 this year as compared to $96,687,000 in the first half of 1980.

Commenting on the results of the second quarter, Richard I. Galland, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, said that operating income from production and exploration activities increased by 37 percent from the same period last year. The quantity of natural gas sold was up 11 percent and that of crude oil and condensate remained constant.

He added that results of the Company's expanded exploration and development program were reflected in an increase, net of production, in its natural gas reserves of approximately 11 percent and in reserves of crude oil and condensate of approximately 3 percent over the reserves credited at the end of 1980.

Cosden Oil and Chemical Co., which maintains a refinery in Big Spring, is a wholly owned subsidiary of American Petrofina.

Certification of pesticide applicators are under way

AUSTIN — The more than 11,400 Texans currently certified as private pesticide applicators in the Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) Vernon and Odessa districts will be receiving recertification forms soon, Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has reported.

The forms will help TDA update department files on licensed applicators.

The TDA Vernon district includes the following counties: Hardeman, Wilbarger, Clay, Montague, Jack, Wise, Parker, Palo Pinto, Wichita, Stephens, Young, Archer, Baylor, Throckmorton, Shackelford, Haskell, Know and Foard.

The TDA Odessa district includes the following counties: Andrews, Martin, Howard, Mitchell, Nolan, Taylor, Runnels, Concho, Menard, Sutton, Schleicher, Tom Green, Coke, Sterling, Irion, Crockett, Reagan, Glasscock, Midland, Upton, Crane, Ector, Winkler, Ward, Loving, Reeves, Culberson, Hudspeth, El Paso, Jeff Davis, Presidio, Brewster, Pecos and Terrell.

The recertification program will continue through the summer, and all 116,000 private applicators in the state will be recertified, Brown said.

"TDA has been certifying applicators for five years," noted Brown. "We're sending renewal notices to applicators to update files with current addresses, and delete persons that are inactive, deceased or no longer farming. In addition, the current list will enable us to send these applicators timely information and keep them up to date on current laws."

The recertification program resulted in part from Senate Bill 602, introduced by Senator Bill Sarpalius of Hereford. The bill amends the Texas Pest Control Act, which sets procedures for certifying pesticide applicators.

The 10-week recertification schedule is on a county by county basis and it may be that applicators in some adjoining counties may not receive their renewals at the same time, Brown said. "In addition," Brown noted, "although many of the applicators have moved and may not have received their forms, they are not relieved of their responsibility to get recertified."

"If they read about the program or hear about it through a neighbor, they should contact the nearest TDA district office or their local county agent for the appropriate forms," Brown said.

"Only private applicators currently certified by TDA are involved in the program," Brown emphasized. "Commercial and non-commercial applicators are not included, as they are required by law to have their licenses renewed annually."

Applicators do not have to be retrained or attend meetings, and there is no fee involved, Brown continued. Even new applicators who have recently received their pink certificates need to fill out the application.

Each year in the U.S. there are 45-8 million deaths from lung cancer. This figure represents health care costs of $1.5 billion. Since the 1964 Surgeon General's report on hazardous to your health anti-smoking pamphlets, selected public places have passed prohibitions. Latest Lung Ass. indicates that approximately 10 percent of the American population currently smokes, a decrease since 1966 when 15 percent of women smokers is however, and studies number of teenage women have surpassed the number of men. Terry Dobson, Director of the Southwest College for the Deaf, quit smoking April 11, 1979. "I had since 1962," he states. "I had three or four packs a day. That day, I had one pack. I decided and I did."

Dobson started a particular reason. "I was in the military. He once quit months, but started more than ever. I wasn't easy," he says. "I better, I can breathe, I wake up coughing every day. I feel better all the time," he said, "and I again."

Commenting on number of teenaged women, Mary Lou Johnson, Executive Director of the Women's Bureau, said:

Cigarette smoking is on the decrease

Big Springers are glad they kicked the habit

By TINA MILLER

Each year in the United States, between $5-8 million dollars goes up in smoke. This figure, according to the American Lung Association, represents health care expenses that are a direct result of smoking.

Since the 1964 warning by the surgeon general that smoking may be hazardous to your health, Americans have been virtually bombarded by anti-smoking pamphlets and commercials. Recently, legislation has been passed prohibiting smoking in selected public places.

Latest Lung Association figures indicate that approximately 33 percent of the American population is currently smoking, which represents a decrease since 1965. The number of women smokers is not decreasing, however, and studies indicate that the number of teenage girls who smoke has surpassed the number of boys.

With the increased health risks and the growing sympathy toward the rights of non-smokers, many Americans are deciding that smoking simply isn't worth it. Many Big Springers have joined this nation-wide trend and kicked the habit.

Terry Dobson, Dean of Students at the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, quit smoking at 10 a.m., April 11, 1979. "I had been smoking since 1962," he stated, "and I want to be 'tough' to be a man. I tell my girls to be whoever they want to be, not who they are pressured to be."

"I quit smoking because I wanted to sing," Mrs. Johnson revealed, "and my voice wasn't what I felt it should be. I was sewing at 1 a.m. one morning, and I suddenly began coughing. I told the Lord that if he wanted me to quit he would have to take away the desire for a cigarette."

"At 6:30 the next morning, my husband got up and lit a cigarette just as he always did. I became very sick from the smell of the smoke, and I never smoked again."

She hasn't smoked for eight years, and Mrs. Johnson has a good feeling about herself as a result of abandoning her habit. "And I don't have that nasty taste in my mouth in the morning," she concluded.

A non-smoker for about three weeks, Cliff Clements started smoking in college because it was the "in" thing to do. Clements is the advertising director at the Herald.

"I quit smoking once before," he stated, "but I started again because it was relaxing and it gave me something to do with my hands. Also, it's difficult not to smoke when you're around those who do smoke all day."

"I knew smoking was bad for me," Clements continued. "Two of my uncles died of lung cancer so I should have known better. I started thinking about quitting again a while back. Then a few of us at the Herald decided to quit together. To make it more interesting, we agreed that anyone of us who smokes within 90 days has to put $50 in the 'kitty.' At the end of the 90 days, the money will be divided among those who didn't smoke during that time."

Though Clements feels better since he quit smoking, he hasn't saved any money. In place of cigarettes, he chews gum, eats mints, sunflower seeds and Butter Rum Lifesavers. "Cold turkey is the only way to quit," he stated, "and it's very hard to quit."

"I guess I'm a little proud of myself. But it was dumb to start smoking in the first place, so I don't think I've done anything great."

"All night long, I would cough with every breath I took," said Pat Porter, owner of Sunshine Unlimited. "The next morning I couldn't breathe when I tried to light my cigarette, so I decided to wait until noon. By noon, I still couldn't breathe, so I decided to wait till the next day. Finally, I figured out that I would have to give it up."

Earth stations

Two local businessmen selling TV satellite dishes like hotcakes

Two Big Spring businessmen are riding in on the TV satellite wave that is sweeping the country.

Gary Moore and C.L. Carlile, co-owners of the Radio Shack franchise here, have formed a new partnership, Star-Com Satellite Systems, to sell TV satellite earth stations to dealers across the state.

They also sell directly to people in this area. "Our first six satellites sold immediately" to local residents, Moore said. Twenty-four more units are on the way.

Carlile has resigned his job as principal of Washington Elementary School and will devote full time to the new company and several other interests, including real estate.

A native of Oklahoma, he came here 21 years ago and has been principal at Washington, Airport and Kentwood Elementary and Runnels Junior High.

Ten years ago Carlile and a partner started the Background Music Company and hired managers to run it. "From that involvement, we put in an electronics store. We began to sell stock to the manager. Each manager has selected to sell his portion of stock to the next. Gary bought out the stock of the previous manager."

Moore, who was born in Big Spring and went to school at Foran and Howard College, has been studying the satellite industry for about a year.

"I got interested when I started having requests for satellite systems," Moore said. "It got me curious."

He said the thing he didn't like was the price of an earth station — about $8,500. "I thought it was too much. My main objective was to find a complete system under $5,000. Fortunately we've been able to accomplish this." The price of the basic parabolic satellite the company offers is $4,395.

"Primarily volume" is the reason they were able to lower the price, Moore said. "We buy them by the truckload. Since we primarily sell to dealers, we set ourselves up as a dealer also, so we can serve our customers better." They represent National Microtech, "the largest supplier of this equipment in the U.S.," Moore said. Presently there are 60 channels of 11 different satellites available, Moore said. This includes all the major movie channels, sports, news, entertainment, education, and religious channels, he said. "The picture quality is unsurpassed. It's like sitting in a studio and watching the monitor."

Approximately 25,000 homes in the country now have earth stations. "We predict that figure will be 100,000 homes by the end of this year," Moore said. He said industry experts predict there will be 200 channels within a short time. "And the only people who'll be able to access them will be earth-receiving stations."

Carlile and Moore attended the Consumer Electronics Show in Chicago where they compared the companies that make satellite systems.

"Last year when Gary and I attended there was just one company there," Carlile said. "This year there were 15. We were the only retailer in electronics from this area there — which gives us a lot of advantage."

After comparing the different companies and prices, "We selected the people we wanted to represent and then sold ourselves to them as the best representatives" in this area, Carlile said.

Carlile added, "We have placed ads in all major newspapers in West Texas. Our next step will be to set up dealers in each major city west of Dallas." He said their territory extends west of Dallas to El Paso, down toward San Antonio and up to Oklahoma.

"What about the legalities involved?" "Owning an earth station is legal," Moore said. "All it is is a receiving station. It's like a large radio."

"The legalities appear when you intend to redistribute the material that you have access to for profit. That includes recording programs and selling tapes. That includes setting up a miniature cable company and charging people a fee to watch without paying for a license. And that includes retransmitting or rebroadcasting the material."

"I expressly denounce any of those three without proper channels being pursued," he said.

As for programs like Showtime and HBO, which have issued warnings against accessing their channels, Moore said, "First they would have to prove you were watching it, which would be hard to do. Furthermore, some people have tried to pay them and they wouldn't accept the money."

The satellite dishes need little maintenance because they are solid state units, Moore said. "A lot of engineering and development went into this. Thanks to mass production we are able to keep the price down and still have high quality," he said.

Carlile says he will miss the education field. "I've never been out of school since I entered school when I was six years old," he said.

A graduate of the University of Houston, Carlile spent one year with the Sands Independent School District at Ackerly before joining the Big Spring school district 20 years ago.

He will miss most "the excitement of the children and their eagerness and enthusiasm for life. I feel that education determines our country today and our future. I've been able to participate in that and that's the part where I'll have a void in my life," he said.

"Making money is fun, of course," he said. "But except for the service you can give people, there's not as much inner pleasure from that as from sharing knowledge."

"I've enjoyed my association with quality people in the education field," Carlile said. "I've worked with many fine educators in Big Spring."

He and his wife Thelma, a former schoolteacher, have four children: Cindy, who is studying to be a teacher at Texas Wesleyan in Fort Worth; Beverly, who is married and living in Odessa; Deanna, who just graduated from high school and will attend Howard College on a scholarship this fall; and Joey, a freshman at Big Spring High School.

Moore is 22, single and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Moore of Big Spring. His father has been an electrician at Osdan for more than 30 years. His sister, Gayle Murphy, is manager of Places and Pleasures Travel Agency.

Moore studied advertising sales in the Dallas area for about a year, working with Pyle Communications.

PARTNERS — Gary Moore, left, and C.L. Carlile have formed a new company to sell TV satellite earth stations. Carlile has resigned as principal of Washington Elementary and will devote full time to the new business and other interests.

"Basically I was selling advertising which I like very much. I got good experience but I wanted to move back home. Then I had an opportunity to become a partner in this electronic store, and I've been doing this ever since." His career goal is simple. "I intend to continue to watch this business grow," he said.

Men have tougher time surviving death of a spouse

NEW YORK (AP) — Men are the weaker sex when it comes to surviving the death of a spouse but their chances of living improve if they remarry, says a new Johns Hopkins University study.

Earlier studies have concluded that the death of a spouse leads to psychological distress that might contribute to earlier illness and death. But the researchers said their survey indicated for the first time that the impact appears to be more devastating to men.

The 12-year survey of 4,032 widowed people, published in the August issue of the American Journal of Public Health, did not show significant changes in the death rates of women whose husbands die.

But widowers "die at a younger age," said Dr. Knud Heihsing of the university's School of Public Health.

It showed men between the ages of 55 and 74 who had lost their wives had a 60 percent higher chance of dying sooner than men in the same age group who were still married.

Heihsing, who led fellow Johns Hopkins scientists Moyses Szklo and George Comstock, said he did not know why women's death rates did not show the same changes as men's.

He speculated that women "may be genetically superior at coping with stresses of many kinds."

"Or it may be the result of the way our society operates — males may be exposed to more hazards," he said.

"Woman simply may be more adaptable. They may have more of a sense of survivability."

The findings on longevity among men who remarried were especially startling, the researchers said.

"Mortality rates among widowed males who remarried were as low or lower than males who had never been widowed," according to Heihsing.

Kimberly-Phinney rite 50th anniversary celebrated officiated by Patrick

MRS. MITCHELL BRAD TUNNEL

Lenorah couple is united in Stanton

The wedding vows of Ginger Gale Madison to Mitchell Brad Tunnell were solemnized Saturday in a ceremony in the First Baptist Church, Stanton.

The rite was performed before an archway of greenery flanked by arrangements of pink flowers and candles and a unity candle by the Rev. Bill Shockley, minister of Grace Baptist Church, Lubbock.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Dick Madison, Lenorah and Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Tunnell also of Lenorah.

Traditional wedding music was performed by Jean Koonce, Stanton, at the piano and Shelly Tunnell, sister of the groom, vocalist.

The bride chose to wear a formal length white gown of sheer organza and chiffon with a natural waistline covered with re-embroidered lace and bead pearls. A sheer yoke was banded by a high lace collar. The Bishop sleeves ended in wide lace cuffs with beaded pearls. The A-line skirt featured a wide lace ruffle beginning at the back of the waist and flowing gracefully into a chapel length train. A nosegay of pink and blue carnations and white daisies with baby's breath completed the bridal attire.

Faye Madison, Lenorah, served her sister-in-law as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Wendy Creech, Stanton, sister of the groom; Tammy Nelson, Tarzan and Tracey Chandler, Lenorah.

J.C. Tunnell served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Tim Tate and Roy Maddison, brother of the bride, and Larry Creech, Stanton, brother-in-law of the groom.

Bob Burnes, Lenorah and Gregg Tunnell, Houston, cousin of the groom, seated the guests.

Casey Robertson, Tarzan, served as flower girl. Irvin Welch, Stanton, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer.

Mr. and Mrs. Tunnell were honored with a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church immediately following the rite. The bride's table, laid with a white lace cloth and centered with pink and blue flowers, featured a square three-tiered white cake, decorated with pink flowers and adorned with wedding bells.

The groom's table featured a brass cotton stalk, and a brass candelabrum with blue tapers and a two-tiered round German chocolate cake. Judith Yates, Tarzan, registered the guests. Serving at the bride's table were Brenda Hughes, Abilene, sister of the bride and Kristi Turner, Stanton. Serving at the groom's table were Melinda Tunnell, sister-in-law of the groom and Dana Percy, Odessa, cousin of the groom.

Candlelighters were Brad Holland, Stanton, nephew of the bride and Jo Gay Tunnell, Lenorah, sister of the groom.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of Grady High School, Tarzan. The groom is a 1980 graduate of Grady High School engaged in farming and oil field work.

Following a wedding trip to San Angelo, the couple will be at home in the Lenorah Community, Martin County.

A rehearsal dinner, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Tunnell was held in Cap Rock Auditorium Friday at 7:30 p.m. with approximately 70 guests attending. The event was a catered barbecue.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Lane Phinney are on a trip to Puerta Vallarta, Mexico, following their wedding Friday evening in the chapel of the First Baptist Church.

The couple exchanged vows before an arch covered in spring flowers and greenery flanked by baskets of spring flowers with four candelabra, two on each side. Live green plants completed the altar scene. The 7:30 p.m. rite was officiated by Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor.

Parents of the bride, the former Kimberly Ann Preston, are Mr. and Mrs. John E. Preston, 2602 Carol. Mr. and Mrs. R.H. Phinney, Sand Springs, are the groom's parents.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Jackie Downey at the organ and Vanessa Cooper at the piano. Vocalists were Tammy Worthan and the groom.

The bride, accompanied down the aisle by her father, wore a formal-length white gown of chiffon knit and Wedgewood lace. It was fashioned with a fitted bodice and sheer yoke outlined with a wide Wedgewood lace ruffle, with a high collar. The Bishop sleeves ended in matching lace cuffs. The A-line skirt featured a bustle effect of lace in the back. A fingertip, lace edged mantilla completed the bridal attire. A cascading bouquet of pink sweetheart roses, lavender astors, yellow daisies, blue carnations and baby's breath was carried by the bride.

Kelley Sweetman served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kelli Preston, sister of the bride, Mrs. Kate Chaney, Midland, and Lori Phinney, sister of the groom.

Jimmy Campbell was best man. Groomsmen were Jay Shaw, Grey Henry and Steve Spears, Dallas.

Jennifer Leatherwood, Jacksonville, Ark., was flower girl and Brodie Bruner, ringbearer.

A reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Phinney followed the ceremony in the church parlor. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth overlaying light blue. The table was centered with an arrangement of spring flowers, and a three-layer wedding cake was served. The groom's table, covered with an apricot cloth, featured brass appointments and a double ring chocolate cake. Guests were registered by Patty Pegan. Serving the guests were Wendi Lane, Shelly Griffen, Toni Morrow and Debbie Dallefeld.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and is employed by Texas Electric Service Company.

The groom is a graduate of Coahoma High School and is employed by Family Medical Rental.

Following their wedding trip, the Phinneys will be at home in Big Spring.

The Second Wedding

At the ACCENT SHOPPE we have many questions concerning proper etiquette for the second wedding. We feel it's most important for the people involved to be happy and confident with their decisions. Many of the past rules of etiquette have been relaxed, making it possible for today's second time bride to have virtually any type of wedding she would like.

We encourage brides marrying again to register their pattern or giftware preferences with our Bridal Registry. This makes it simple for friends and relatives to select gifts which they know will please you, and will also help to avoid duplication of items you may previously have acquired.

Ultra formal or plain and simple — the important thing is to be comfortable with your plans!

Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Thomas, 600 N.W. 8th, will celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary today with a reception in their home. The event, hosted by their children, a granddaughter and friends, will be from 3-6 p.m.

Hosts and hostesses include Mrs. Essie L. Person, coordinator, Mrs. Clemmie Johnson, Mrs. Marie Wrightsil, Mrs. Lottie Morgan, Dr. E.S. Morgan and Paul Thomas Jr., San Bernardino, Calif.

Paul Thomas was born near Mt. Pleasant in the Sand Ridge Community, Titus County. Corine Collins was born in an adjoining community, Blondus Creek. The two first met at an elementary school play in Blondus Creek, where they attended the same school and church. The couple married Aug. 1, 1931 in Mt. Pleasant at the Titus County Court House where Dr. Ballet, Justice of the Peace, performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas lived in Mt. Pleasant nine years.

Five of the Thomas' nine children were born with the aid of midwives in the home. Six children are now living. These include Paul L. Thomas Jr., and Mrs. Hughline (Tiny) Campbell, San Bernardino, Calif.; Mrs. Pauline Chatman, Rialto, Calif.; Mrs. Rena Gene Traylor, Dallas; Mrs. Shirley Ann Easley and Mrs. Birdie Lee Ford, both of Big Spring. In addition, the Thomas' raised one grandson, Ricky Thomas who is in the United States Air Force in Topeka, Kas. The couple has 13 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas moved to Topeka, Kas., where they lived from 1941-1943, returning to Titus County to live on the John D. Stephen's ranch. Six months later they moved to Big Spring where Paul worked for the Texas and Pacific Railroad unloading cargo and merchandise. Corine worked at the Big Spring Nursing Inn as kitchen supervisor, the Wagon Wheel Restaurant, Settles Hotel and Ramada Inn. She retired in April 1979 from a nursing position caring for Dr. Otto Wolf.

After a year with the railroad, Paul worked at Clark Motor Company, the Plymouth and Dodge dealer. Thomas retired last year from the R.W. Smith Oil Company.

Paul and Corine are members of the Bethel Baptist Church where she has served as co-chairman of the kitchen committee and is treasurer of the Women's Missionary Society. Mrs. Thomas is also a member of the Ada Belle Dement Club.

O'Connor nomination reviewed by Forum

Eagle Forum met July 22 in the Bonanza meeting room at noon. Nelda Reagan, president, requested that everyone study Judge Sandra O'Connor's recommendations for the supreme court appointment. Mrs. Reagan stated that in 1970, O'Connor co-sponsored Sen. John Roeder's bill providing abortion on demand in Arizona and in 1972 she introduced and was the main sponsor of the bill to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment. Mrs. Reagan also stated that in 1973, after ERA failed to pass the Senate Judiciary committee, she sponsored a bill providing for a statewide referendum on ratification. Mrs. O'Connor also voted against raising the legal drinking age above 18 in Arizona. Mrs. Reagan stressed that now was the time to let the judiciary committee know how we feel on this appointment. Eagle Forum will meet Aug. 27 at 7:30 p.m. Dr. Paul Stuck, who is on the staff at Big Spring State Hospital, will speak on: "Is the March of Dimes doing all that should be done to insure the Birth of Healthy Children?"

MRS. VAN GASKINS

Afternoon ceremony joins Scott-Gaskins

Brenda Scott became the bride of Van Gaskins Saturday afternoon in the Midway Baptist Church. The Rev. Guy White, pastor of the East Fourth Street Baptist Church performed the 4 p.m. ceremony beneath a brass arch adorned with coral and white carnations, woben abby roses, English Ivy and topped with two hite doves. Nine branch candelabra accented with coral spider mums flanked the arch. A memory candle with spiral tapers completed the altar scene.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Larry Nix, Rt. 3, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mac Gaskins, Knott.

Wedding selections were performed by Shelly Wood, vocalist, accompanied by Mrs. Everett Bedell, pianist, and Mrs. Jarrell Barbee, organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose to wear a formal-length gown of Alencon lace over chiffon. The gown featured a natural waist bodice with a Queen Anne neckline, highlighted with iridescent sequins and seed pearls. The Bishop sleeves were accented in lace and the A-Line skirt fell to a triple chiffon flounce. A two-tiered, fingertip-length veil, edged in Alencon lace, was attached to a lace covered bandeau sprinkled with seed pearls.

The bridal bouquet was a cascade of white carnations, woben abby roses and baby's breath tied with satin ribbon, resting on a white lace and pearl covered Bible.

Mrs. Gene Froman served the bride as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Debbie Reid, Lisa Furlong, and Mrs. Mike Gressett, all of Coahoma.

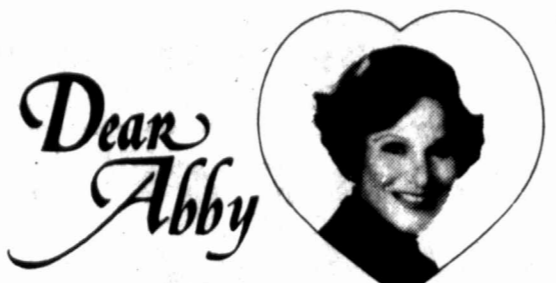

Jim Coates, Weatherford, Okla. was best man. Tommy Scott, brother of the bride, Scott Buie, Bryan and John Caldwell, Albany, were groomsmen.

Guests were seated by James Nix, brother of the bride, Kelly Gaskins, Knott, brother of the groom, Tom McDonnell, Abilene, brother-in-law of the groom, and Jamey Collingsworth, Albany. Dustin Gaskins, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer.

Following the ceremony, the couple was feted with a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's table featured a three tiered cake accented with satin bells containing stephanotis, Nuts, mints, and punch were also served from the table, which was dressed with a floor-length apricot cloth and white lace overlay.

The groom's table was draped with brown broadcloth and overlaid with white lace. It featured a horseshoe-shaped chocolate cake, centered on a sheath cake, with apricot roses. A silver coffee service and silver appointments were used. The centerpiece for the table was a bronzed western hat belonging to the groom.

The hors d'oeuvre table was draped with an ecru colored cloth and centered with an apricot floral arrangement. Serving at the reception, were Leisa Reid,

Dear Abby

Hot Weather Brings Out The Beast in People

DEAR ABBY: Unless I get this off to you now, I may forget my anger and frustration. This afternoon when I pulled into the parking lot of a grocery-deli, I found myself alongside a compact car with a cute little white dog inside. I did my shopping. When I returned 15 minutes later, the car and dog were still there. It was sweltering hot and the windows were up, so I looked around for the owner, waited a few minutes, then tried to get into the car to crack a window so that poor dog could get some air. The doors were locked, so I went back into the store and asked who owned the car and dog. A man in a T-shirt, cool and comfy, claimed ownership and said he had not been in the store 2 minutes. Untrue, of course.

Abby, please tell your readers that when a dog is left in a car, there is no need to lock the doors for protection against thieves — the dog is the threat. And please say something about the cruelty of leaving a pet in the car with no ventilation on hot summer days.

DOG LOVER

DEAR DOG LOVER: Thanks for the opportunity to share some important, timely facts: When the temperature is 85 degrees outside, the temperature inside a parked car (even with the windows slightly open) will reach 102 degrees within 10 minutes. And in 30 minutes, it will reach 120 degrees!

The normal body temperature of a dog is approximately 102 degrees; it can withstand approximately 108 degrees for a very short time before suffering irreparable brain damage or death. Never leave a child or a pet in a parked car in the sun — even with the windows open.

As the song goes: "Bless the beasts and children, for in this world they have no choice, they have no voice."

You're never too young or too old to learn how to make people like you. Get Abby's new booklet of practical advice. Send $1 and a stamped (35 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

MRS. LARRY VIC BLOSKAS

Church of Christ ceremony joins couple Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Vic Bloiskas are on a wedding trip to Red River, N.M. following their marriage Saturday evening in the West Highway 80 Church of Christ. B.W. Briggs, minister of the church, performed the six o'clock ceremony.

The bride, formerly Kristina Dee Tarbet, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Tarbet, Sterling City Rt. The groom's parents are Bill Bloiskas, Pasadena, and Sandy Bloiskas, Odessa.

The couple exchanged vows before an altar decorated by two heart-shaped candelabra, flanked by large arrangements of a fresh flowers. Vocal selections were performed by B.W. and Mandy Briggs, Terry and Jeff Stovall, Cheryle Cockrell and Brenda Bedell.

The bride chose to wear a formal-length, Victorian styled gown featuring a fitted bodice trimmed with Venice lace and seed pearls. The tiered skirt in matching lace was trimmed with rachele lace ruffles, and fell gracefully to a cathedral-length veil, edged in rachele lace, fell from a Cameo cap trimmed with seed pearls.

According to tradition, the bride wore a Cameo ring, passed down in her family since 1805, as something old. Her wedding gown was new, she borrowed a Cameo pin to match her ring, and her garter was blue.

A cascading bouquet of white carnations, yellow roses, blue daisies and baby's breath, tied with satin streamers and lace, completed the bridal ensemble.

Ellen Williams attended the bride as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Wylene Payte, Kelley Anderson, Coahoma, and Neva Kolinek, Kenedy.

Breene Cantwell, Kenedy, was best man. Groomsmen were Davey and Ted Tarbet, brothers of the bride, and Bruce Carroll, Bruce Dennis and Tim Plew were ushers.

Coates-Phillips are married in Saturday afternoon rite

Mona Geneva Coates became the bride of Rusty Phillips in a ceremony held Saturday afternoon in Hillcrest Baptist Church with the Rev. Phillip McClendon, pastor, officiating.

The couple spoke their vows before an archway covered with white gypsophelia accented with pastel carnations. Baskets of gladiolas and dahlias flanked the archway as did two seven-branch candelabra entwined with white gypsophelia.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Coates, North Birdwell Ln.; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Davidson, 1905 S. Monticello and Bill Phillips, Lake Buchanan.

Susan Joslin, pianist, performed wedding music and accompanied Randy Anderson, vocalist.

The bride chose to wear a white satin bridal gown fashioned with a Venice lace Empire bodice enhanced by seed pearls and an embroidered Queen Anne neckline. The lace Bishop sleeves ended in deep lace cuffs. Lace trimmed the flounced skirt and flowed into the chapel length train. The fingertip length veil of bridal illusion, was held by a lace cap trimmed with seed pearls.

A cascade of white carnations and blue rosebuds with baby's breath entwined with lace and satin streamers completed the bride's ensemble.

Christy Clanton was maid of honor. Roy Moore, Odessa, brother of the bride and Johnny Henson seated the guests.

A reception was held honoring the couple in the Fellowship Hall of the church following the rite. The bride's table, covered with a lace cloth and blue underlay, was centered with a candelabrum and a two-tiered wedding cake.

The groom's table featured a chocolate cake shaped like a house. Serving the guests were Lee Ann and Debra Moore, sisters-in-law of the bride and Vicki Phillips, sister of the groom.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and is admissions clerk at the Veterans Administration Medical Center.

The groom also graduated from Big Spring High School and is a house mover employed by Charles Hood House Moving Company.

Following a wedding trip to San Antonio and Austin, the Phillips will be at home in Big Spring.

MRS. DEAN ALAN HARVEY

Couple is united in Methodist ceremony

Cynthia Fierro became the bride of Dean Alan Harvey Saturday evening in a candlelight ceremony in the First United Methodist Church at 7:30. The rite was officiated by Keith Wiseman, pastor.

The couple exchanged vows and rings before a 27 branch candelabrum enhanced by Southern smilex, flanked by Grecian pedestals with baskets of South smilex. Two swirl candelabra and two candle trees holding floral arrangements in glistening whites also flanked the central candelabrum. Aisles were marked with triple candles, greenery and white satin bows.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Agustin Fierro, 106 E. 24 and Col. and Mrs. A.C. Harvey, Xenia, Ohio.

Traditional wedding music was performed at the organ by Beth Boecker and Harlen Thornton at the piano. Bobby Bradshaw performed the vocal selections.

The bride was accompanied down the aisle by her father wearing a white organza over taffeta gown featuring an Empire bodice enhanced by Alencon lace with a Victorian neckline and point d'esprit net yoke. Sheer point d'esprit sleeves ended in lace bridal points closed by self covered buttons and loops. The semi-full skirt fell from the waistline to a border of Alencon lace encircling the chapel length train. The bridal hat, trimmed in white flowers and covered by illusion, completed the bridal attire.

The bride carried a trailing cascade of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Honor attendants were Martha Fierro, sister of the bride and Deborah Phillips, Arlington. Bridesmaids were Melody Harvey, sister of the groom, Xenia, Ohio; Lyn Garner and Kathy Page, Marshall. Candlelighters were Mrs.

Casey Wilder, Rockdale and Mrs. Bob Manis, Arlington.

Richard Kelley, Austin, served the groom as best man. Groomsmen were Aron Harvey, Xenia, brother of the groom; Russ Richker, Dallas, Gus Fierro, brother of the bride, Felix Martinez, cousin of the bride, Mark Goering, Dallas and Vince Williams, Austin.

A reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Harvey was held in Garrett Hall at the church immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table, covered with a white eyelet cloth and draped with white organza, was centered with an arrangement of white gladiolas, carnations, Fuji crysanthemums and agapathes.

The three-tiered wedding cake, with four small ones, was decorated with blue flowers, and topped with a fresh bouquet.

Cheri Sparks, Chris, Terri and Lori Martinez, cousins of the bride; Patsy Conway, Layne Froman and Jill Spannaus served the guests.

The groom's table, covered with a blue cloth overlaid with a plaid one, featured a chocolate cake in the form of a long-horned steer. It was centered with a floral arrangement like the one at the bride's table. A silver coffee service and wine cooler were used.

A rehearsal dinner, hosted by parents of the groom was held Friday evening at the Brandin' Iron Inn.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and the University of Texas. Mrs. Harvey is employed by the Rouse Company of Columbia, Md. and is the Community Relations-Special Events Director for the Perimeter Mall in Atlanta, Ga.

The groom is a graduate of the University of Texas and is manager of Webster Men's Wear in Atlanta, Ga.

Following a wedding trip to Paradise Island and Nassau in the Bahamas, the Harvey's will be at home in Atlanta.

College Baptist Church is setting for wedding

College Baptist Church was the scene of the Saturday evening wedding of Brenda Kay Lewis and Anthony B. Claxton. Byron D. Corn, minister of the Birdwell Lane Church of Christ, performed the 7 o'clock ceremony before an archway entwined with boxwood greenery and accented with white gypsophila and doves. A unity candle and two spiral candelabra completed the altar decorations.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. S.N. Lewis, 1402 Birdwell, and Mrs. and Mr. Lloyd T. Claxton, 2400 Marcy Dr.

Russell Fuquay and Denise Smith performed vocal selections, accompanied by Tammy Spears on the piano and Fuqua on the guitar. Mindy and Shana Claxton, sisters of the groom, lit candles for the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Raymond Lewis, Lubbock, chose to wear a formal-length gown of white peau de soie. The gown featured a Queen Anne neckline and empire waist, edged with scalloped lace, and the bodice was overlaid with organza and appliqued with lace and seed pearls. The bishop sleeves of organza and deep pointed cuffs were accented with appliqued and scalloped lace and seed pearls.

The full skirt was also enhanced by lace and seed pearls and ended in a chapel-length train, edged with scalloped lace. The fingertip length veil of illusion, decorated and edged in matching lace, fell from a Juliet cap featuring lace appliques and pearls.

Following tradition, the bride wore a ring belonging to her great-grandmother as something old, and borrowed a diamond necklace and earrings from a cousin and aunt. Her garter was blue, and she wore a six pence in her shoe.

She carried a nosegay of peach and white roses, carnations, rosebuds, daisies and baby's breath. The bridal ensemble was fashioned by the bride and her mother.

Mrs. Jack Nixon was matron of honor. Denise Smith and Tammy Lewis, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids.

Lloyd Claxton, father of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Glen Carrigan and Mike Brashears. Seating the guests were Mike Wilson, Sterling City, and David Wilson, Colorado City, cousins of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, the couple was honored with a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's table featured a three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with peach flowers and accented by white hearts and doves. The cake was made by the bride's mother. The table, covered by a peach cloth and white skirt, was centered by the bride's bouquet and crystal candelabra.

The groom's table was

covered with an ecru cloth and brown overlay edged in lace. A German chocolate cake was served from the table, which was centered by peach tapers in silver candlesticks.

Serving at the reception were Mrs. Byron Smith, Mrs. Tom Arcand, Mrs. Kenneth Wilson, Mrs. Roy Wilson, Mrs. Sherrill Carroll, Mrs. Harold Hicks and Mrs. Jimmy Darling. Dena Bomar registered the guests.

Out-of-town guests attended from El Paso, Abilene, Colorado City, Sterling City, Lubbock, Vealmoor, Westbrook and Fort Sumner, N.M.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Big Spring High School and a 1981 graduate of Howard College. She plans to attend the University of Texas at the Permian Basin this fall.

The groom is a 1978 graduate of BSHS and a 1980 graduate of Howard College. He is currently employed by the college as assistant director of the computer center.

After a wedding trip to New Mexico, the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

TO WED — Mr. and Mrs. Jim Minchew, 3212 Drexel, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Danita, to Chris Burnett, son of Dr. Jack H. Burnett and Sue Burnett, Dallas. The couple plans to marry Sept. 26 in St. Mary's Episcopal Church. The Rev. David Bristow, pastor, will perform the ceremony.

Vows are exchanged in afternoon Catholic mass at San Angelo

MRS. CHARLES MICHAEL WARREN

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Calhoun are on a wedding trip to an undisclosed location following their Saturday afternoon wedding Mass at St. Mary's Catholic Church in San Angelo. The Rev. Joseph Uecker, pastor of the church officiated the 1 p.m. ceremony.

The bride, the former Michelle Couvillon, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Couvillon, 1901 Nolan, and the groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Millard Calhoun, San Angelo.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose to wear a floor-length ivory gown, fashioned in an A-line design. The skirt was enhanced with schifflic lace, and cluny lace trimmed the bateau neckline, split Bishop sleeves and hemline.

The bride carried an array of silk roses in her chosen colors of peach and ivory.

The wedding prelude was performed by organist Gilbert Garcia of San Angelo. A multi-parish folk choir sang selected hymns for the mass. The choir was accompanied by guitarists Frank Galindo, Jesse Rodriguez and Pete Castro, all of San Angelo.

Janene Couvillon, San Angelo, attended her sister as maid of honor and Wanda Calhoun, sister of the groom, Dallas, was bridesmaid.

The best man and groomsmen were Kirt Calhoun and Chris Calhoun, respectively, brothers of the groom.

Andre Couvillon, brother of the bride and Don Meadow, San Angelo were ushers.

Following the Mass, the couple was honored with a reception at the Consolidated Open Mess at Goodfellow Air Force Base. Guests were registered by Michell and Angela Calhoun, sisters of the groom.

Each table was adorned with fresh mixed flower arrangements highlighting the center table was a three tiered wedding cake. The cake featured pink roses and doves and was topped with a silver wedding cross, entwined wedding rings and a silver heart.

MRS. DANIEL CALHOUN

There was also a champagne fountain.

Out-of-town guests attended from San Rafael, Calif.; Haring, Del. and Greenwood, Del.

The Friday night rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents in their back garden. Specially grown fresh flowers and candles highlighted the tables. Thirty-five guests attended.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Big Spring High School. She attended Angelo State University and will graduate from Texas Tech University in August with a Bachelor of Science degree in Home Economics, specializing in food and nutrition.

The groom graduated from San Angelo Central High School, served four years in the Navy and attended Angelo State University. He graduated from the Vogue School of Hair Design and is currently employed as a cosmetologist at the Crazyhorse Hair Salon in San Angelo.

Following the wedding trip, the couple will make their home in San Angelo.

MR. AND MRS. JACK R. DRAKE

Jack Drakes celebrate 50th wedding anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Drake, 800 Creighton, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary July 26 with a barbecue in the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Drake.

Drake married the former Lois Clay in Lovington, N.M. July 27, 1931. The couple has lived in Big Spring for the past 50 years.

Drake was a truck driver for C&R Transport, Eagles Trucking and Allen's Construction until his retirement in 1973. He was awarded the "Knights of the Road Award" in 1955 for his safe driving record. Mrs. Drake has been a homemaker.

The event was attended by the couple's four children, Mrs. W.D. (Mary Jack) O'Donnell, Alvarado; James B. Drake, 1515 Stadium; Don Drake, Amarillo; and Sue Washburn, San Angelo. Three of the couple's five grandchildren were present.

They were Cody Drake, Amarillo, and Craig and Steve Drake, Big Spring. The Drake's also have two great-grandchildren.

Cloudfcroft trip planned

The Danny Wrights and the Milton Browns hosted the Western Drifters chapter of the Good Sams Club at Colorado City State Park, July 17-19. Guests were: Rick and Janice Montealeon, Larry and Nancy Simmons, and Terry and Nancy Marshall of Big Spring. As the 10 rigs pulled into campsites, they were met by the hosts serving home made ice cream. Swimming, fishing, games, and hand-work entertained the group.

At their monthly pot-luck supper and business meeting Tuesday, it was reported a number of members had gone to Fir Camp in Cloudfcroft, N.M. While in Cloudfcroft, the group surprised Marie Nichols with a retirement party. Another trip is planned by many of the members to Cloudfcroft this month.

Reservations must be made for future trips and members are urged to call officers of the club if they plan to take any of the scheduled trips.

Colorado City is site of Kimmel-Warren rite

Jane Kimmel became the bride of Charles Michael Warren in a ceremony Saturday evening in the First Baptist Church, Colorado City, with the Rev. Glenn Roemfeldt, pastor, officiating.

The couple exchanged vows and rings before an arch entwined with greenery. The choir rails were enhanced by greenery with baskets of Boston fern featured at the base of an arch of white candles. Greenery and candles illuminated the stained glass windows of the sanctuary. The brides were marked by the bride and Brittany and Bridget Bridgford lit the candles.

Dr. Warren served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Mark Warren, Russell Harry, cousin of the groom from Fort Worth; Mark Kimmel, Fort Worth, brother of the bride; J Wray Warren and Kent Rice, cousin of the groom. Matt Warren, brother of the groom and Stephen Kimmel, Lubbock, brother of the bride, seated the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren were feted with a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's table was graced by a three tiered white wedding cake hand decorated with lilac roses and sweet peas, the tiers separated by tall filigree pillars and topped with bells and doves. The bride's bouquet, entwined in a silver candlestick with lilac candles, centered the table, which was covered with a white cloth.

The groom's table featured a three tiered chocolate cake separated by pillars on an off-white cloth. The bride is a graduate of Colorado City High School and attended Baylor University and Wheat College. Mrs. Warren will be attending the dental branch of the University of Texas in Houston this year.

The groom is a graduate of Big Spring High School and Baylor University. Presently he is teaching and coaching in the Aldine School District of Houston.

Out of town guests attended the rite from Amarillo, Mesquite, Dallas, Richardson, Tyler, Waco, Big Spring, Maricopa, Ariz., Houston and Port Neches.

Following a wedding trip to Red River, N.M., the Warrens will be at home in Houston.

Besides carrying the Bible for the traditional something old, the bride wore pearls borrowed from Mrs. Michael Rice, Dallas, a cousin; the wedding dress was new and she wore a blue garter.

Bethany Bridgford served as flower girl and Anne-Margaret Kimmel, sister of How to have beautiful nails.

Straight from the horses mouth.

It's a fascinating story involving million-dollar thoroughbreds and their grooms. Starting with the fact that many of the grooms in charge of the most valuable race horses are attractive young women.

Being accustomed to applying our special preparation daily to their horses' hooves, naturally the grooms got some on their own nails. Over a period of time their nails then became noticeably stronger. The preparation helped splitting, peeling and breaking nails.

When we heard that dozens of female grooms were using our special hoof preparation on their horses, and getting great results on their nails, we were intrigued.

Knowing that both hooves and fingernails are made of the same basic protein, we began to reformulate and refine the original formula, until after months of research, Barielle Nail Strengthener Cream was created.

And now that we've created Barielle, here's how you can create beautiful nails.

Because Barielle is a strengthening cream, not an enamel hardener, it penetrates and moisturizes your nails. It helps prevent splitting, peeling and breaking while leaving a protective film on your nail surface.

You can even apply Barielle over your own nail enamel. Once in the morning and once in the evening. And because Barielle contains no formaldehyde, not only is it perfectly safe for your nails, it also keeps your cuticles well groomed.

It takes just 3-4 weeks for luxurious nails to appear.

Then apply Barielle regularly to keep up appearances.
