ALL REVVED UP WITH NOWHERE TO GO — So a lot of kids wind up cruising Gregg Street on summer nights. Businesses complain that the kids leave beer bottles and other trash in their parking lots, but the kids say they have no place else to go.

Gregg Street: For kids with wheels on warm summer nights, it's the 'only place to go'

By BILLELDER
Staff Writer

Gregg Street, 11:15. Friday night. This is it — the Strip.

Nearly every city has one. A street that never seems to come alive until after dark.

In big cities, the honk of traffic and flash of neon carries on all night, spilling over into block after block of nightclubs, restaurants and theaters.

In smaller cities, it may be one wide avenue crawling lazily through the center of town, a street that for a few hours on a few nights becomes not just a main drag — it's the ONLY drag.

That's Gregg. No Roxy. No Palladium. No Playboy Club.

It wouldn't be Big Spring if such places existed here.

So it's Taco Villa. Super Save Drive-in Grocery. Baskin-Robbins.

And the Sonic.

The Sonic drive-in is the hub, the heart, the center of gravity for those who would put themselves in the night-time orbit of Gregg Street.

In a ritual enacted all across the country on hot summer nights, the kids cruise in and out of the drive-ins, in the mood to party — party as a verb, party as ACTION. Party NOW.

They cruise in Firebirds, Trans Ams, Z-28s. Cars with voracious appetites for gasoline, cars built to get you where you're going much faster than you need to get there. Where do they go? They circle through the Gibson's parking lot and roll south to the Sonic. They circle around the Sonic and cruise north to Gibson's. They circle through Gibson's...

Maybe half a mile from one terminus to the other. Occasionally they pull into the darkened lot of a shut-down business for some stand-still partying.

Someone cranks up a quadrasonic sound system and a chorus of squealing thrashing guitars will surface over the wave-like hiss of traffic.

Beer bottles are produced — no cans, no cans, these are young adults and they party with style, if you please.

A little pot goes around, the sparking orange coal of the joint like a tell-tale flare to those in the know.

They flirt, if there are girls. They talk out their loud, boisterous fantasies, if there aren't. They argue, they laugh, they get high and hop back into their sleek fast cars and cruise on.

This is, they say, the best they can hope for on a summer night in Big Spring.

Gregg Street, 11:15. Friday night.

Jay, Alan, Terry and Fred are leaning against their cars around the corner from the Super Save. A sign in the window of the insurance company whose lot they occupy warns them against trespassing between 6 p.m. and 8 a.m.

"Where else is there to go?" Jay is asking. The question has been asked before. And answered the same way.

"There is no other place to go." "There must be some place, it is suggested." "Sure," Jay says, "but every time we find a place to go, they close it down. We used to race out at the air base until they stopped us."

Jay and Alan are slender and long-haired; if the word wasn't out of coinage, you could call them "hippies." Along with Fred, who's bulkier, they grew up in Big Spring. Fred and Terry, who's from "all over — you name it," are roughnecks, rig workers, oil men.

They're all over 18 and they can get into any of the clubs. But the clubs aren't good enough.

"You need a place that opens up earlier so you can go home and get to bed earlier," says Terry, who makes a 40-mile commute to an oil field near Sterling City in the morning.

"They should clear out some of the empty lots — it don't have to be paved or nothing," offers newcomer David, clearly not a club man. "They could put some trash cans in and then we'd have a place to stop and talk without trespassin' or leavin' a mess."

Terry likes the idea. He'd been cited by the police for criminal trespass once and had to go to court to pay a $30 fine.

"If we're gonna pay them that much, why can't they use the money to fix a place for us?" he asks.

"I ain't got no place to meet nobody. But out here, I'm meeting people. I really am," he adds.

Two people Terry met on this night were Gerald Ferguson, 25, and Lynn McCormick, 16, members of the Lion's Den, a religious fellowship. They were passing out invitations to see a film entitled "Image

Reagan okays neutron bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, reversing a controversial Carter administration decision, has decided to go ahead with the production and stockpiling of neutron warheads, the White House said Saturday.

The warheads for the Lance battlefield missile and an eight-inch howitzer shell will be stockpiled in the United States and will not be deployed outside this country.

The State Department, in response to questions about the decision, stressed that "production of these weapons is an internal U.S. government matter" and noted that "deployment outside U.S. territory is not involved." The statement said there were no plans "at this time" to deploy the weapons outside the United States.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes confirmed that Reagan had made the go-ahead decision Thursday. He refused publicly to provide additional details about the decision.

Administration leaders are now in the process of telling U.S. allies in Western Europe about the decision, said the State Department. Western European leaders have generally opposed U.S. deployment of the weapons in their countries.

President Carter first supported the weapon and approved its manufacture and stockpile. Then, in 1978, he decided not to produce it, but instead permitted the weapon's key components to be built.

The neutron warhead is a high radiation weapon designed to kill people without inflicting intolerable damage to surrounding structures. It carries twice the radiation but less than one-tenth the explosive power of a conventional nuclear weapon.

The intended purpose of the weapon, according to U.S. defense planners, would be to halt a Soviet tank attack in Central Europe, where the Russians now have an estimated 3-to-1 advantage in armor over NATO armies.

Reagan's decision within the past several days to produce the weapon came after a lengthy review of the entire neutron warhead question, a study coordinated by the National Security Council and including representatives of the Pentagon, State Department, and Energy Department.

One of the key administration figures supporting production was Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

Under Reagan's order, the warheads and launchers will be built and stored separately, a customary practice with smaller nuclear weapons.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, was told about the production decision early Saturday and he said he applauded Reagan's stand.

THE WILD ONE — A man who identified himself as John Malone was photographed Saturday on Gregg Street as he demonstrated the old "Look Ma, no hands" trick. Malone said he was a truck driver visiting Big Spring, but one has to wonder: does he sit on top of the cab when he drives his truck? Some people just can't be conventional, can they?

McCann best spitter at Reunion

About 1,200 West Texans showed up at Comanche Trail Park Friday for an old-fashioned, day-long reunion that recalled the origins of Howard and Glasscock counties, according to reunion secretary Gertrude McCann.

"The weather was great, the food excellent and the spirits high," said McCann of the 57th annual Howard-Glasscock County Old Settlers Reunion, held at the Old Settlers Pavilion.

There was barbecue, and music from Ben Nix and the Boys, and about a dozen special events, the winners of which follow:

Tobacco spit — Coy Joe McCann went the distance with a "chaw" that landed 23 feet, 3 1/4 inches away. Tommy Burgess came in second with an eight foot, one inch try.

Horseshoe pitching — Out of 33

Poli says time has come to end strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the striking air traffic controllers union said Saturday it is time to negotiate an end to the nearly week-old strike because neither the union nor the government can win "a clean-cut victory."

Robert E. Poli, president of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization (PATCO) said the controllers remained firm in their resolve Saturday, the sixth day of their strike, despite the Reagan administration's position that since the strikers had been fired there was no longer a strike.

Poli said he has never said PATCO "will have a clean-cut win here, that we know that will happen. The administration also is acting like it has a clean-cut win — 'We've blown them away. They (the union) don't exist.'" "We know better than that," he continued.

Woman steals infant

ATLANTA (AP) — The woman who stole a 12-hour-old infant from Grady Memorial Hospital can call a special telephone "hotline" to learn about the baby's medical needs, a hospital spokesman said Saturday.

"We feel she took the baby because, for whatever reason, she could not have a baby herself. We're working on the assumption that she intends to take good care of the baby," spokesman Mike Yelton said.

The hotline, (404) 588-3772, was connected Friday, Yelton said.

The missing baby, the daughter of Sandra and Bobby Alexander, had not yet been named when she was abducted from her mother's hospital room Tuesday morning.

Yelton discussed the infant's medical needs Friday over a simultaneous telephone hookup with doctors and administrators at 70 Georgia hospitals. The baby had not yet undergone routine blood testing for jaundice and other diseases when she was abducted.

Erie crossing abandoned

CLEVELAND (AP) — High winds, angry waves and lightning have dashed the hopes of five young swimmers who had planned to conquer the 53.8-mile width of Lake Erie.

John Muenzer, a 19-year-old University of Toledo varsity swimmer, passed the 22-mile mark late Friday night before giving up the challenge.

On Saturday, 28-year-old Bill Cassidy started the trip but quickly abandoned the attempt because of rough waters, a U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said.

Earlier Friday, three Case Western Reserve University varsity swimmers called off their efforts when an afternoon storm whipped up 8-foot waves and 35-knot winds.

Before giving up, Jay Watson, Didi Gravenstein and Don Hanigan — all 21 — had been 5 1/2 hours and 13 miles into their trip. Both Hanigan and Gravenstein tried and failed to cross the lake last year.

Geri Richey, the communications officer for the Muenzer-Erie Swim Team, said Muenzer had been struggling in 40-mile-an-hour winds and 8-foot seas before he climbed into a trailing charter boat at about 11:20 p.m.

Mexia honors victims

MEXIA, Texas (AP) — Singing "We Shall Overcome," about 1,000 people attended a two-hour rally Saturday near this Central Texas city to commemorate three black men who drowned after they were arrested at a Juneteenth celebration.

Dallas NAACP leader Richard Dockery told the crowd he still is not satisfied with the investigation into the deaths of Steve Booker, 19, of Dallas, and Anthony Freeman, 18, and Carl Baker, 19, both of Mexia.

The trio drowned in Lake Mexia June 19 when a boat they were riding in capsized as they were being taken across the lake to a command post after they had been arrested on drug charges.

A Limestone County deputy and two other officers managed to swim to safety.

Witnesses contended the trio was handcuffed when the boat tipped over, but authorities dispute the claim.

A Limestone County grand jury began investigating the incident Wednesday.

Five transferred to county jail

Five men were transferred from the custody of the police to the county jail on Friday and Saturday, sheriff's deputies said.

Ronald Terrence Hall was transferred Friday afternoon and charged with possession of a controlled substance. A $10,000 bond was set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin. Hall was released after bond was made by John R. Hall and Randall Patterson.

John Robert Mishler of Odessa was transferred Saturday morning and charged with driving while intoxicated. A $1,000 bond was set by Justice of the Peace Bobby West and made by Jack Thompson. Mishler was arrested about 9:30 p.m. Friday by police officers.

Juan Herrera, 27, of 808 W. 7th, was transferred to the county jail Saturday morning and charged with enticement of a child. A $3,000 bond was made by B & M Bail Bond Service. Herrera was arrested Friday night by police officers.

Coy Truitt Cox of Snyder was transferred to the county jail Saturday and charged with driving while intoxicated. A $1,000 bond was set by Justice of the Peace Bobby West and made by Basden. Juarez was arrested by police officers after he allegedly struck a parked car in the 100 block of N. Grezz Friday night.

FISHING FOR THE BIGGEST — Local kids 16 and younger got a chance to fish for prizes in Comanche Trail Lake Saturday in the Big Spring Bass Club-KBYG fishing tournament. Rocky King, 5, reeled in the biggest fish of the day — a 7 1/2-ounce catfish.

Rocky King outfishes everyone at tourney

Five-year-old Rocky King reeled in the biggest fish of the day in the Big Spring Bass Club-KBYG fishing tournament held Saturday at Comanche Trail Lake.

King pulled in a 7 1/2-ounce catfish, which brought him a trophy and the admiration of his peers in the tourney, which was held for kids 16 and younger.

About 140 kids — most of them from Big Spring — showed up to try their luck at the contest, according to tournament director Mike Murphy.

Murphy released the following results:

Biggest bass — Robby Brewer, with a 3 1/2-ounce catch, followed by Jess Baylong with a bass of the same weight (the first-place title was settled by a coin toss).

Pan fish — Clint Moore won with a three-and-three-quarter ounce catch, followed by Derren Greenfield with a fish of the same weight (Moore won because he caught two fish).

Catfish — Rocky King, followed by Jerry Green with a seven-ounce bass.

Murphy said the large turnout may lead the Bass Club to turn the tournament into an annual affair.

"We figured if we got maybe 50 kids, it'd be a success," said Murphy. He added that about 80 fish were caught altogether, and most of them were tossed back in the lake after they were weighed.

Besides trophies for the first-place winners, other prizes handed out included rod-and-reel sets, tackle boxes, belt buckles "and a few lures here and there," Murphy said.

Police Beat Vandals decorate pickup

Shirley Atwell, 26, of 1000 Baylor, complained to police that between 6 a.m. Friday and 6 a.m. Saturday someone sprayed black paint on her pickup truck while it was parked in her driveway.

Dale Walker, 19, of 2406 Morris, complained to police that someone took a sharp instrument and damaged the side of his Datsun automobile between midnight and 7 a.m. Saturday.

Two women reportedly ran into the Kut & Kurl Beauty Salon at 1211 Scurry about 2:15 p.m. Saturday, claiming that a man who had beaten them was chasing them and trying to get inside the store. Police officers arriving on the scene arrested Michael Lee Jones, 23, on suspicion of assault and operating a motor vehicle with an expired registration.

Jimmy Anderson complained to police that between 6:30 p.m. Friday and 8:30 a.m. Saturday someone fired two bullets into a window at Professional Pharmacy, 1000 Main, causing $200 damage according to police reports.

Mills Optical, 606 S. Gregg, complained to police that between 5:30 p.m. Friday and 7 a.m. Saturday someone broke a window in the front of the store with an unknown object.

Deweese Exxon station on Highway 80 complained to police that at 3:35 a.m. Saturday someone drove up, pumped out 17 gallons of regular gas and left without paying.

Frank Taylor, 616 State, was the victim of a near-burglary at about 4 p.m. Friday when a heavy-set Mexican male tried to break down the front door of Taylor's home, said police reports.

The New Life Chapel on Air Base Road complained to police that a sign worth $400 was stolen from the church while the pastor, M. Mullins, was on vacation last week.

James R. Bates, 25, of Midland, was arrested Friday on suspicion of theft of service after the manager of the Mid-Continent Inn complained that Bates left the motel without paying for staying there one night. Police officers caught up with Bates as he was heading west on Interstate 20 and he said by police to have admitted to leaving without paying the $25 he owed the motel.

of the Beast" the following Sunday.

Terry seemed to listen more attentively than anyone else.

"We're here to tell people that there's something else to do besides sitting out on Gregg Street and wasting their lives," said Lynn.

Their success rate wasn't very high, Gerald and Lynn admitted.

"If they realized what they're turning down, people would change their minds real fast," said Gerald.

"They may be having fun, but it's only temporary," added Lynn.

"Come on down and meet people," they invited Terry as the others drifted off in their cars. "We're down on Third Street."

Terry smiled.

"You never know," he said, "you just might find something that lasts."

***

The sort of problems that result from kids hanging out on Gregg — the problems that bring in the police — are mostly misdemeanors. Police say a lot of warnings are issued before officers pull out their notebooks and begin handing out citations and making arrests. In the summer, though, when kids get seven nights a week to cruise instead of just two, the problems, or at least the complaints, increase.

That's when police start talking tough.

"We're not giving out any more warnings," says one officer. "They'll be issued non-traffic citations for trespassing, or arrested."

Depending on whom you talk to, the extent of the problem is either severe or something only slightly worse than the normal headaches for which adolescents are responsible. To the police, who bear the brunt of community criticism if the kids start getting out of hand, the problem tends toward severity.

"We've been getting a lot of complaints from business people," says Officer Frank Smith. "We're not picking on the kids. We're just trying to protect property."

To do that, Smith says, the department will crack down as it has done periodically in the past. Such stepped-up enforcement seems to work — for a while.

"The only thing I can see to do is step up and enforce the criminal trespass law," agrees Councilman Larry Miller. "It stopped it before, or slowed it down."

Criminal trespass and drunk driving are the two most commonly reported offenses among young adults on Gregg Street, says Capt. Sherrill Farmer, who adds that the police department is prepared to put officers on overtime if that's necessary to deal with the problems.

But even hauling the kids in before the law may not be enough of a deterrent. A juvenile, for example, can't be arrested for drunk driving; he can only be brought in to the police station and released to his parents.

In the case of criminal trespass, when it's committed on a non-residential property it's a Class C misdemeanor — the lowest class. Kids cited for criminal trespass are often issued a citation similar to a traffic ticket, which calls for them to post a $30 to $50 fine (depending on whether it's a first or subsequent offense).

Liberal drinking laws are blamed by some as one of the roots of the problem. Texas allows its residents to drink while they drive — a provision many states don't have. Drinking in public places other than drinking establishments also is permitted — so young adults, critics of the laws say, are virtually encouraged to get into trouble with alcohol.

And the fact that the legal drinking age in Texas is set to be raised from 18 to 19 on Sept. 1 may further aggravate the adolescent desire to experiment with alcohol.

"Then we'll have 18-year-olds to pick up for minor possession (of alcoholic beverages). That's two years they'll be adults without being able to buy alcoholic beverages," notes county probation officer Ed Cherry.

And the owners of the businesses on Gregg, who close up and go home and return the next morning to find there's been a party in their parking lot — how do they feel about the problem?

"It's a natural thing for young folks to gather like that," says County Commissioner Bill Crooker, who owns a store — Mr. G's — with a large parking lot surrounding it. Crooker's acceptance of the problem may arise from knowing that his lot has fallen into apparent disfavor with the kids. The problem was bad for him a year ago, he said, but these nights they're parking somewhere else.

They're still parking at the Sonic, of course, but franchise owner Dewayne Wagner finds it difficult to get upset about the heavy activity in the Sonic lot on summer nights.

"I'd rather have them here than not there. Ninety-nine percent of them are good kids," says Wagner. With cars lined up seven and eight deep in the northbound lane in order to turn into his lot, business is brisk. The good kids spend good money at Wagner's place. And the bad?

"I've had a few come in here drunk, and I'm sure I've had some pot on the lot — but no more than anywhere else. "If you treat them like human beings, you won't have many problems."

***

If you talk to enough people, you begin to perceive an us-versus-them split over the issue.

"There's two elements in town," as Councilman Jack Y. Smith describes it. "One of them likes to drink in public. If they'd just be a little cleaner about it, then the other element wouldn't complain so much."

Meanwhile, as the rhetoric of both sides volleys back and forth, there are those who see alternatives to cracking down or opening up new places to go.

"If I ever get a chance — if I can get a job in another town, I'll move," vows one 18-year-old.

Meanwhile, the movable party on Gregg continues to roll. A cluster of kids sits on the hoods of their fast cars in the lot of an insurance agency, well in view of signs warning them they are trespassing. It's nearly midnight and a car slows down for a red light.

"Hey, let's paaaarty!" shouts a youth from the car. And on the edge of the gathering in the darkened lot, a quiet youth sits on his motorcycle. When the cry goes out, he kicks on his bike and pulls abruptly into the traffic, a big crazy grin spreading over his face.

Clayton makes headway in redistricting debate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton won two early decisions Saturday night in an often emotional debate on realigning Texas' congressional districts for the next 10 years.

The House tabled, 78-69, a plan drawn by Democratic Party loyalists and approved by the House redistricting committee. It would have denied Texas Republicans more than the five congressional seats they now have.

Representatives also tabled, 75-70, a compromise plan offered by Rep. Lanny Hall, D-Fort Worth.

Clayton laid out his own plan, which he said would avoid a veto by the governor and finish the work of the special legislative session without the need for another one.

Rep. Larry Don Shaw of Big Spring said the Speaker's congressional redistricting plan in actuality creates only 18 or 19 Democratic districts and eight or nine Republican districts. He was among the legislators calling themselves "Democratic loyalists" who unsuccessfully fought to defeat or amend the Clayton plan.

"This is not a Bill Clements plan, this is a conservative Democrat plan," Clayton told House members, many of whom booed and hissed.

Clayton said his plan would create 20 safe Democratic districts, six that probably would elect Republicans and one "loss-up" — the 8th in Houston, which is represented by GOP Congressman Jack Fields.

But opponents contended it would hand the Republicans as many as eight districts, including those now served by Congressman Bill Patman of Ganado and Ralph Hall of Rockwall.

Gov. Bill Clements has promised to veto the loyalists' bill if it is sent to him.

The governor originally asked only for a bill that would cut a district in Dallas County where a black could be elected to Congress.

He later objected, however, to the loyalists' bill, which provided a minority district, because it put parts of Dallas County, his home, into five different districts.

Another consideration the governor raised last week was keeping the 6th District of U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, D-College Station, in virtually its present configuration.

Gramm helped amass Democrat support in Congress for President Reagan's budget-cutting plan and has discussed publicly the possibility of turning Republican.

European controllers support U.S. strikers

PARIS (AP) — Striking air traffic controllers in the United States began to pick up strong support abroad Saturday. A major French union decided to block U.S.-bound flights and New Zealand controllers voted to refuse clearance to all American planes.

In the first major action in support of the U.S. controllers who have been on strike since Monday, the National Union of Air Traffic Controllers, which represents 45 percent of France's controllers, called on members to deny takeoff authority to all U.S.-bound planes.

Union spokesman Jacques Fournier also said the French controllers would refuse permission for U.S.-bound aircraft from other points to enter French airspace.

Fournier said although the action was taken in solidarity with the striking American controllers, the measures decided upon by the union leadership were primarily for reasons of security.

Fournier said the union believed present conditions in U.S. air space were very dangerous. He said the situation was very similar to that in France during a controllers strike in 1973 when the French government instituted the same sort of contingency plan using supervisory personnel and military replacements.

In March 1973, two Spanish jetliners collided over the Atlantic coast city of Nantes, killing 68 people.

Government moves to rebuild decimated controllers corps

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is moving swiftly to rebuild its decimated air controller corps, but no one really knows how long it will take, whether the shortcuts will compromise safety, or what effect long-term cuts in air traffic will have on the economy.

The government considers the controller strike over. It is trying to replace the 12,000 strikers, nearly two-thirds of the workforce. Before the year's end traffic will be 85 to 90 percent of normal, officials hope.

But government and industry representatives as well as former Federal Aviation Administration officials familiar with the system say privately the firings will leave a clear mark for years to come.

The government with time will replace the fired controllers and might even improve the system with tighter management "and less fat," one former FAA official said. But industry representatives predict the process is "going to mean a period of readjustment that will be costly" and could lead to layoffs in the airline industry.

But this official, asking anonymity, said the airlines will grudgingly accept the situation.

Generally, the airlines support President Reagan's hard-line response to the strike.

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis says he expects the strike to have less of an impact on the economy than had been expected.

The administration's recovery plan essentially has two phases: First, plug the holes left by striking controllers; then, speed up and expand training to restore the system to peak levels.

The plugging of the holes began immediately as 2,500 supervisors returned to directing aircraft and steps were taken to move what soon will be about 2,000 military controllers to civilian towers and centers. They joined about 5,000 controllers that stayed on the job or returned during the strike.

Controllers also began shifting around the system to beef up areas sharply hit by the strike. Seventeen towers at small airports were closed and the number will reach 58 by the end of the week — a move that may provide 1,000 controllers for the rest of the system.

Lewis says it will take a year or two to get the system operating at full strength, although he claims the strike has shown the controller corps was bloated with perhaps 4,000 more controllers than needed.

The striking controllers are banking that the reduced staff cannot handle even reduced traffic, and Robert E. Poli, president of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, says the crunch will come when working controllers become fatigued.

FAA Administrator J. Lynn Helms dismisses the claim as rhetoric. Beginning this week the controllers will work a maximum 48 hours a week to "err on the side of safety," Helms said. He acknowledged some controllers were working 10-hour shifts and up to 58 hours a week during the first 72 hours of the strike.

At least for the next seven months the FAA plans will restrict traffic. Helms says that before January he hopes to have overall traffic of commercial carriers at 85 to 90 percent of normal.

Bus firms see hefty hike in passengers

By RENEE BLACKWELL
Staff Writer
An increase in the number of passengers riding buses has been noted by both Continental Trailways and Greyhound.

Continental Trailways central office in Dallas reported a 30% to 40% percent increase nation and statewide. Greyhound locally reports a 10 percent increase.

The passenger increases are attributed to the air controllers' strike, say bus line officials.

"Anytime you have a crisis like this, business will increase," said Jan Gifford, public relations coordinator for the central office of Trailways in Dallas.

"We can tell a little increase," said Jim Owens, manager for the Greyhound terminal in Big Spring.

When asked about the destinations of the buses going through Big Spring, Owens said that the city gets buses going to and from Denver, San Antonio, Houston, Austin, and El Paso, just to name a few. He added that Big Spring gets a lot of traffic from Los Angeles, San Francisco, and New York because of Interstate 20.

Owens and Ms. Gifford both said they feel that business will probably decrease after the air controllers' strike ends, but added they hope that many customers will realize that there are many advantages to using buses and will, as a result, continue to use them in the future.

Alaska still on top in U.S. income figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil-rich Alaska is still on top and Mississippi is still on the bottom in the government's newly revised figures on per capita income in the 50 states.

The new Commerce Department report released Saturday parallels one the department published three months ago. However, most of the averages in the new version are a bit higher.

For example, 1980 per capita personal income in Alaska is now estimated at $12,790 rather than the $12,406 reported in May. And for second-place Connecticut, the figure is now estimated at $11,720 instead of $11,445.

In the District of Columbia — which is not a state though its officials would like it to be — per capita income last year was set at $12,039 rather than the $11,883 reported earlier, still trailing Alaska.

Last-place Mississippi had per capita income of $6,580 last year rather than $6,508, the report said.

The national average for every man, woman and child last year is now put at $9,521 rather than the $9,458 reported earlier. The national average was $8,637 in 1979, the new report said.

"Most of the 11 states with high per capita personal income — at least 7 percent or $665 above the U.S. average — were in the urbanized Northeastern and Western parts of the nation," the report said.

"Most of the 39 states with low per capita personal income — at least 7 percent or $665 below the U.S. average — were in the Southeast and Rocky Mountain regions."

Here are the latest 1980 averages by region:
NEW ENGLAND: Connecticut $11,720, Massachusetts $10,125, Rhode Island $9,444, New Hampshire $9,131, Maine $7,925, Vermont $7,827.

MIDEAST: District of Columbia $12,039, New Jersey $10,924, Maryland $10,460, Delaware $10,339, New York $10,260, Pennsylvania $9,434.

GREAT LAKES: Illinois $10,521, Michigan $9,950, Ohio $9,462, Wisconsin $9,348, Indiana $8,936.

Parents are up in arms over high school hazing

MONT BELVIEU, Texas (AP) — Parents have threatened to "shoot some kids," but seniors at Barbers Hill High School continue to shave the heads of incoming ninth-grade boys in keeping with a 40-year hazing tradition.

"I've had 50 or 60 phone calls this week from parents complaining about the hazing rituals," said C.E. "Chuck" Morris, sheriff of Chambers County, southeast of Houston.

"But the hazing is still spreading like wildfire," Morris said. "Most parents want it stopped, but nobody will file charges, so there isn't a thing I can do."

Saudi Arabia offers Mideast compromise

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — In an interview published Saturday, Saudi Arabia's Crown Prince Fahd proposed a new Mideast peace plan, saying Arab states would recognize Israel's right to "live in peace" if Israel allows the creation of a Palestinian state. Israeli reaction was mixed.

Fahd, in charge of daily affairs in King Khalid's monarchy, also called for a new United Nations resolution for a comprehensive peace settlement.

He laid out his eight-point blueprint in an interview with the official Saudi press agency that was published in Beirut newspapers.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman Herzl Inbar said, "We don't have the Saudi proposals. We have only what we get from the media, and those are unacceptable proposals to us."

But Inbar said his was a "first reaction," and Israel would wait for more details. A spokesman for Prime Minister Menachem Begin said he was vacationing and could not be reached.

Israeli television quoted members of Begin's Cabinet as saying the plan was "a turning point." The unidentified ministers said Fahd's statement was the first time the Saudis have said they were willing to recognize the Jewish state. One minister was quoted as saying, "Indeed, the conditions are the most radical and are totally unacceptable to Israel. But the readiness to recognize Israel must be viewed as a fundamental change in the Saudi position."

Western diplomats who specialize in Saudi affairs said the crown prince's package appeared to be designed as an alternative to the stalled U.S.-sponsored Palestinian autonomy talks between Egypt and Israel. The diplomats requested anonymity.

Shuttle to meet with fuel tank

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The space shuttle Columbia is to be towed from its hangar to the cavernous Vehicle Assembly Building early Monday to be fitted with its towering fuel tank and twin booster rockets.

The rollout had been planned for Sunday afternoon, but NASA spokesman Dick Young said Saturday that minor delays in various work schedules pushed the time back to midnight Sunday at the earliest.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials and shuttle contractors will try to fix a firm rollout time Sunday during their daily meeting, he said.

Technicians at Kennedy Space Center plan a three-week preparation schedule for the shuttle system in the building before moving the shuttle to a pad for the Sept. 30 launch of the second test mission.

Columbia returned here atop a Boeing 747 jetliner two weeks after its pinpoint landing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., following its historic first trip into space in April.

The crew for the second flight, Joe Engle and Richard Truly, helped run Columbia through a series of tests in the Orbiter Processing Facility while it had about 1,200 of its more than 30,000 heat-protection tiles replaced or modified.

It's a pity San Angelo can't be magnanimous

It would be nice if San Angelo had been magnanimous enough to accept the traditional 5-AAAAA football schedule.

Under the old schedule, high schools in Midland, Odessa and Abilene ended their seasons with high-pitched, emotion-packed crosstown finales.

Now, because San Angelo is sick of ending its football season against Big Spring, it is forcing the district either to agree to a changed schedule or submit to a draw. San Angelo's new-found clout is the result of a University Interscholastic League rule change which says that all the schools must unanimously agree on a schedule or submit to a draw.

FOR A SCHOOL which had an 0-10 record last season, San Angelo certainly seems to have no conscience about the disruptive effect its action is having on the rest of the district. San Angelo is acting rather like a spoiled child — "Do it my way or else."

Under the old schedule, teams alternated home games with out-of-town games. Now, if forced into a draw, some teams might have to play three or four consecutive games on the road.

Two teams in the same city might have home games the same week. With only one field to share, that would force Thursday or Saturday games. And of course, the crosstown finales would for the most part go down the drain. Satisfied, San Angelo?

WOULDN'T IT BE IRONIC if it does go to a draw, and the last game pits San Angelo vs. Big Spring?

Abilene and Midland and Odessa have every right to feel bitter. Big Spring, having beaten San Angelo 21-20 in their last conflict, has a right to feel insulted.

But there's no reason to become passionately vindictive, or to sink to spiteful namecalling. Far better to remain cool and dignified. We must accept the fact that there will always be somebody or something that puts its own selfish interests against the best interests of the whole. Gallantry is gone.

What will be will be.

A death in the family

Art Buchwald

It is not easy to write an obituary for a newspaper. The death of a newspaper in any country is a tragedy. The passing of a very good newspaper is doubly so.

The "Washington Star" was a very good newspaper. It had some of the best writers in the business. It was lively, it was informative and it was honest. Because it was printed in the capital, it had a much greater impact on the nation than any paper of its size and circulation.

With its death many important voices have been stifled, voices that should be heard by those who make our laws and decide our destinies.

A newspaper is a very human thing. It has a heart, a soul, and a mind of its own. When you first hear the news of the death of a paper you think of the people who worked for on it, loved it and brought it to life every day.

Their loss is incalculable. To many it is not just their livelihood that has been snuffed out — but a part of themselves. It's hard for someone who has not worked on a newspaper to understand how personal it becomes. To the employees the newspaper they work for is family. To some their newspaper is the only family they have.

And so the death is a wrenching experience, the loss is greater than they imagine and a part of it remains with them for the rest of their lives.

The reader, though not as emotionally involved, also experiences a disquieting sense of loss. Something has gone out of his life too. The mourning period may be much shorter for the reader, but he or she knows instinctively that when a paper dies everyone is poorer.

There are no villains in the death of the "Washington Star." It died from natural economic causes.

For those of us who worked for the competition there is no joy in the "Star's" demise. The joy was picking up the "Star" every day and seeing what it was doing that was better, and forcing us to be better because they were so good at what they were doing. Without a second newspaper, Washington will be a much quieter town — much too quiet for comfort.

When President Kennedy was assassinated Mary McGory, one of the paper's great writers, said to Pat Moynihan: "We'll never laugh again," and Moynihan said "We'll laugh again, Mary, but we'll never be young again."

It seems a fitting epitaph for the death of the Washington Star.

No end to FDR Commission

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — For more years than they like to remember, Republicans ground their teeth in frustration over Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who rode roughshod, with irritating good humor, over the GOP.

Now, of course, the shoe is on the other foot. Ronald Reagan, an erstwhile New Dealer, is tromping the remnants of FDR's liberal coalition underfoot with a coalition of conservatives from North, South and West. When he's in difficulty with Congress, Reagan stages the modern equivalent of FDR's radio "fireside chats" and appeals directly to the people. His delivery is every bit as persuasive as FDR's — and members of Congress know it.

So perhaps it's not surprising that one of the hoariest boondoggles to survive the onslaught of President Reagan's budget cutters is the FDR Memorial Commission. For more than a quarter of a century, the commission has been squandering the taxpayers' money in a bootless attempt to achieve a suitable memorial to the only president who ever was — and thanks to the Twenty-Second Amendment ever will be — elected more than twice.

The commission has accomplished nothing since it was founded in 1955. It has demonstrated little likelihood of accomplishing anything in the years to come. In fact, its whole reason for existence was obliterated years ago, when private donors erected a modest memorial to FDR in downtown Washington — a marble block on Pennsylvania Avenue outside the Archives Building, the size and location of which were selected by Roosevelt himself.

But when two members of Congress, Reps. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., and Bill Dannemeyer, R-Calif., recently tried to save the government a little money by abolishing the FDR commission, they were astonished to learn that Roosevelt's ghost still carries weight on Capitol Hill.

The feckless bipartisan duo thought they had persuasive evidence that the FDR commission was a waste of money. Their evidence included the fact that more than $500,000 had been spent in the 26 years of the commission's existence with literally nothing to show for it. Another several hundred thousand dollars has been spent on various projects.

Glickman, who was in three-cornered pants when FDR died, even brandished a photograph of the existing FDR memorial on the floor of the House, and read aloud an excerpt from a plaque beside the monument: "If any memorial is erected to me... I should like it to consist of a block of stone about the size of this (Oval Office) desk, and placed in the center of that green plot in front of the Archives Building."

It was all to no avail. The Glickman amendment to kill the FDR commission was defeated, 201-216. The vote had an eerie touch of it: The House's electronic voting system whispered to Glickman, "The ghost of FDR has returned."

What astonished Glickman was not just the economy-minded colleagues who voted to keep the commission's $30,000 budget intact — like Reps. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Jim Jones, D-Okla. — but the way some of his fellow Democrats chided him as a traitor to his party who was "playing into the hands of the Republicans."

The House showdown over the FDR memorial followed by a few days an Investigator magazine article on the commission. The author, Lucette Lagnado, called it "a classic example of the truism that a government agency, once created, never dies; it just keeps on growing."

Footnote: Congressional supporters of the FDR Memorial Commission observe that building a monument to FDR would be one way to assure the end of the FDR commission. The Investigator magazine, I should add, was started by me as an outlet for other investigative reporters.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM. I know you are a very busy man. Do you personally write all the speeches you give and also this daily newspaper column? — J.E.

DEAR J.E.: The writer of Ecclesiastes in the Old Testament once said, "There is nothing new under the sun" (Ecclesiastes 1:9). I have often thought of that as I have spoken or written, because I know that what I say may have been expressed many times before by other people.

Through the years God has given me some wonderful people at various stages of my ministry to help me in research for my sermons and writings. There have been times, however, when I have had no one to help in these areas, and I have almost broken physically under the strain of trying to get everything done.

Members of my team, conscious of my need for new and fresh material, are constantly handing me items they have gathered from the Scriptures or from the press or other sources that they feel would be helpful. Others may also help from time to time with comments or suggestions.

My greatest help through the years has been my wife, Ruth, who has merged her amazing capabilities into my own ministry. She also helps me on a regular basis with this column, as does one of my staff who does research and editorial work. Each column, however, represents my own answer to the question asked.

I hope you and other Christian people everywhere will pray that God will give us the wisdom we need as we seek to serve him in the many opportunities we have to proclaim the Gospel. Pray that all of us engaged in this ministry will be faithful to God's Word, because we have the promise of God himself that his word "will not return to me empty, but will accomplish what I desire and achieve the purpose for which I sent it" (Isaiah 55:11).

Accident victims say thanks

Dear Editor:

We would like to use the Herald as a means of publicly expressing our appreciation for the many fine people who have helped us tremendously during and after our recent boating accident. We are deeply grateful to the following:

Al Mendoza and Billy Forbes with the Mitchell County Ambulance Service.

Susan Griffin, Shelley and Dr. Dorn, Clark Farrar and numerous other unidentified witnesses who helped us.

The men in both boats who came to our rescue in the water. (We do not know their names, but plan to find out and thank them personally.)

Dr. William Jones, and the Emergency Room personnel at Root Memorial, especially nurse Melody Stubblefield, who cared for our daughter, Dellamy.

The entire nursing staff, office workers, and all hospital personnel at Root Memorial. We couldn't have been cared for any better than we were at Root and we highly commend their hospital facilities and personnel.

Jeff Boyd and the youth group, and the elders of the Coahoma Church of Christ for providing the weekend retreat which kept Donette, our older daughter, safely away from the accident.

Numerous friends and loved ones, especially our families, who helped us and are continuing to care for us. These people are too great in number to name, but we want to thank each of them individually.

Most of all, we would like to thank our God in heaven. We believe in giving credit where credit is due and we feel that He was the one protecting us. Although eyewitnesses quoted that the electrical power was so enormous that it looked like God was running a 25-foot welder, no disrespect to the Heavenly Father was intended. Rather, we know that He was in complete control and saved our lives.

Once again, thanks to all our loved ones, Linda Adams and the Herald for the accurate reports, and especially Root Memorial Hospital for all the care, love, and concern during and after our time of near-tragedy.

Sincerely,
Steve, Linda, Donette and Dellamy Dick

Weightlifting for girls: Why not?

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: As parents, we have always encouraged athletics for our youngsters, male and female. Up to now, our girls have taken part in what you'd call the conventional sports — like softball, basketball, running. But our 16-year-old girl, now in high school, has gotten into other track sports, including discus throwing, which I never heard of girls doing. What bothers us is that she claims she needs to do weightlifting to develop muscles in this sport. I don't want to discourage her, but I don't want her to become an incredible hulk. She's also a sprinter. What about females and weightlifting? We need an answer — Mrs. R.K.

European female athletes have made great advances in international competition, including discus throwing, attributed in large part to strength training. Even in sprinting, weight training benefits the female as well as the male athlete. Girls do not develop bulging muscles. That kind of muscular development depends on having testosterone, the male hormone, which females possess in only very limited amounts.

Your daughter will attain strength and power required in discus throwing from a modest weight program that involves her entire musculature. Sure, I would encourage her to lift weights and take part in any sport she desires. She should take the time to learn how to lift properly and begin with poundage that will not injure her. She won't become an incredible hulk.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My coach has started using one of those electric stimulators to relieve muscle pain, and it seems to work. I get muscle strains, and it is used for that. How exactly does the electricity cut the pain? — N.N.

You are referring to the TNS (transcutaneous nerve stimulation) device. It is a small box about the size of a transistor radio, with wires that attach to the skin over the pain area. It has been used to treat tendonitis, sprains, strains and contusions. It gives off a low-intensity current that produces a tingling in the skin.

We are not sure why it works. One explanation is that it blocks pain signals in the nerves from reaching the brain from the injured area, much the way Navocaine does. Another explanation is that it triggers the release of body substances called endorphins, which act like pain killers.

TNS is not used in sports medicine only. It is being brought into use in broader areas of medicine where temporary pain relief is desired. The danger is that the athlete might unwisely resume use of an inflamed joint, which feels OK because of such pain-killing techniques. Caution is advised.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received lately, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Refugee artist expresses love of life in paintings

DALLAS (AP) — The communists chased Tung Tsy Hung from his native China and then from war-ravaged Cambodia. Through it all, he managed to maintain his love of life and freedom, a love he expresses through his paintings.

Once inside the confines of a Thai refugee camp, with his valuables stolen, Eung salvaged scraps of construction paper and a few watercolor paints to resume a career that twice had been interrupted by the communist invasions.

In the United States since July 7, Eung still must paint on scraps of paper. And he's searching desperately for a way to use his art to support the 10 relatives and family members who fled with him.

The Eungs, with children ranging in age from 12 to 27, are among hundreds of refugees sent here each year under the sponsorship of Catholic Charities of Dallas. Don Cassidy, head of the refugee service, and Vincent Lu, who directs the Southeast Asian resettlement program, put the Eungs in a church-owned halfway house until they could find a two-bedroom apartment of their own.

Lu is showing the family how to balance their budget and clean their apartment and has found factory jobs for the two eldest sons — one of whom as two infants of his own.

Eung, who learned to paint in his village school in China, says he worked for a Cambodian printing company and painted headlines — "big words" — for newspapers there.

But to Eung, true art is synonymous with philosophy, and many of his paintings are accompanied by pithy sayings that speak of nature and the nature of man.

As chairman of the Chinese Association at the Thai refugee camp, Eung helped raise morale by painting signs and put together a book about life at the camp entitled: "I Am a Civilized Human Being at the Line of Life and Death."

In one snapshot, he holds a sign on which he painted one of his favorite sayings: "Life is very valuable. Love is even more valuable. But for freedom, both life and love can be discarded."

Eung and his family have risked both life and love for freedom — three times.

Natives of mainland China, the Eungs fled to Cambodia in 1946 after the communist revolution.

In 1979, after the Khmer Rouge fell to Vietnam, they again were driven out by communist rule when it became apparent they "had to leave to save the family's life," Eung said through interpreter Lu.

The first time, they were turned back at the border, but their second escape try — in May 1979 — was successful. The Eungs arrived at the Thai camp in June.

The long, narrow strips of thin paper he brought to the United States from Thailand reflect the manic-depressive mood of the refugee camp, where the Eungs spent two years.

Brightly colored birds perching on blossom-covered branches represent the coming of spring, Eung says through interpreter Lu. Smiling fish are accompanied by the message, in impeccable Mandarin lettering, that "people who have a good character will enjoy a long life."

His other paintings, however, reflect Eung's grim recollections of the escape from Cambodia. The bright colors are replaced by muted grays and browns, splattered with abundant blood, that portray torture and death at the Thai border.

The horror stories the refugees tell of their escape are not of the communists, but of the Thai guards, who Eung says brutalized the masses of refugees clamoring for entrance into the country.

One painting, among those Eung exhibited in the refugee camp, shows the horrors of a land mine exploding below fleeing refugees; onlookers cover their faces at the sight of piles of bloody bodies.

Eung recalled the "hundreds of dead bodies" at the border mine fields, planted by various factions in the battle-scarred area.

"The smell was awful ... To avoid the mines you had to walk around their dead bodies because you knew the mines already blew up," he said.

Another shows the cruelty of knife-wielding border guards, with young women hung nude by their wrists and men handcuffed near a pile of skulls.

"The Thais provide buses for all Cambodian refugees, but they were controlled by soldiers," Eung explained. "There were beatings and robberies" and many refugees were turned away, as he was on his first attempt to cross the border.

"At the border, if you had valuables, you had to swallow the jewelry because every Thai soldier is a robber," added his eldest son, Eung Khee Tong. "I once saw a man attempt to swallow a diamond, and the soldier cut the man's throat and took the diamond out ... You threw away the valuables, but if you didn't have any, they might kill you."

In addition, Tong said, the soldiers "kidnapped all the young women that are beautiful and you never hear from them again."

The violence was not stopped because the "officials are too corrupted," he said.

His father says one of his dreams is to tell, through pictures and words, the story of his family's "horrible experience" and subsequent journey to freedom. Eung says he also would like to have his work translated into English.

In the meantime, he hopes his pictures will speak to Americans in the universal language of art.

"I think I want to have an exhibition first," he says of his entrance into the American art world.

Eung's first priority, though, is finding the Americans who will help him pick up the pieces of his career once again.

CAREER RESUMES — Cambodian refugee artist Eung Hung Tsy, left, displays some of his watercolors painted while he was in a refugee camp in Thailand. In the United States since July 7, Eung still paints on scraps of paper, and he's searching for a way to use his painting talents to support his family. At right is his son, Eung Khee Tong. Grandson Eung Shu Kheang is in the center.

Trade boycotts need examining, executive says

DALLAS (AP) — John V. James, tentatively appointed to President Reagan's Export Council, says government should rethink trade boycotts of countries with poor human rights records because the policy is bad for U.S. business, a Dallas newspaper reported Saturday.

"We are turning business over to other countries because of some half-baked opinions," said James, who is the chairman and chief executive officer of Dallas-based Dresser Industries.

Dresser specializes in the manufacture and sale of energy exploration equipment. It does business in 168 international markets, and is the second-largest U.S. firm in South Africa, according to The Dallas Morning News.

South Africa's apartheid racial policy has made it the target of strategic boycotts and international protest.

"I think what we have to do is make sure that we don't throw away jobs for U.S. employees and their companies because of some half-baked opinion that isn't thought out and doesn't take into consideration the competition we have throughout the world," James said.

Citing the ban on sales of mining technology to South Africa and a similar proposed boycott of Brazil, James said human rights should be balanced against the realities of international trade.

"We aren't the only people who have technology," James said. "That's the mistaken notion of a bunch of half-baked politicians. There's an abysmal lack of knowledge on the Washington scene about international trade."

Speaker Clayton's loss of control in the House was somewhat overdue

By JIM DAVIS
Harris-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Bill Clayton finally lost control of the Texas House last week. He was overdue for a fall.
Until the House revolted and — against Clayton's strong wishes — sent a congressional redistricting plan back to committee by a 78-66 vote, the speaker had done rather well for himself.

By the time you read this, he may have regained control but even a temporary slip is noteworthy.
The surprise is not that the speaker took a slap on a key vote but that it was so long in coming.
Special sessions present special dangers to presiding officers of the Texas Legislature, particularly lame ducks such as Clayton.
That's particularly true in special sessions with only a few issues, such as the current one.

Presiding officers in the Texas Legislature wield significant power.
The speaker in the House and the lieutenant governor in the Senate have the power to appoint committee members and chairmen, to assign bills to committees and to control the flow of bills from committees to the floor.

Since committee seats and chairmanships are coveted and control of the flow of legislation can pass or kill a bill, most members try to stay on the good side of the presiding officer.
But committee appointments are made for two years, so that carrot isn't available to a presiding officer in a special session.
And when a session is limited to a few pieces of legislation, as is the present one, only a few members have any bills to worry about. So, there goes the club.

Another factor is that most legislators don't want to be in Austin this summer and most of them are bored. Except for members who serve on one of the committees handling the few bills being considered, legislators have little to do between the scattered sessions of the House and Senate. As with children, bored legislators are more susceptible to trouble than businesmen.

Stir all these factors together and you come up with an atmosphere ripe for revolt.
Clayton came up against a similar situation a few years ago when a group that became known as "the Filthy Fifty" held anti-Clayton meetings during a special session.

Houston detective hailed as hero for solving mysterious 'suicides'

HOUSTON (AP) — Johnny Bonds was the son of a farmer; Markham Duff-Smith was raised in a fashionable neighborhood. Their lives became entwined in murder.
Now one is a hero and the other has been sentenced to death.

It all began two years ago because Bonds, a police detective, was haunted by the slaying of a baby boy found dead in his crib.

Bonds' digging overturned two mistaken rulings of suicide and solved the slayings of four people. Duff-Smith, a 34-year-old investor, was accused of arranging to kill the four so he could inherit his family's money.

On July 6, 1979, Bonds, 33, was sent to investigate the discovery of three bodies — of Diana Wanstrath, 36, her 35-year-old husband, John, and their 14-month-old son, Kevin — in a home in the fashionable Memorial area of Houston. Each victim had been shot in the head. Wanstrath was slumped in his chair; his wife lay in front of the fireplace. Kevin was face-down in his crib.

The Harris County medical examiner ruled that Mrs. Wanstrath shot her husband and infant son, then hers. But not troubled because there was no gun at the scene.

Despite the ruling he continued to investigate. Because the Wanstraths left a sizable estate, he said, he considered all heirs possible suspects.

The one who got the lion's share of the money was Diana's adopted brother, Markham Duff-Smith. Bonds was suspicious when he met the brother the night after the bodies were discovered.

"He didn't show any emotion at all — very businesslike," Bonds said. "As soon as he left, we thought, 'There's something wrong. This guy doesn't react right.'"

Q. I understand when one purchases a house he must pay a fee to have the deed recorded. Why?

A. Not only is the recording of the deed important, but so is the timely recording of the deed. Recording is a matter of making a public notice to the effect that you, the purchaser, now own a specific piece of land, and that title has been transferred from one person (the seller) to you. Prompt recording of the deed serves to protect you, the purchaser, against another mortgage or judgment entered into by a, perhaps, less than honest seller. If, in other words, you fail to record your deed for a month, and a judgment is made against the seller, placing a lien against his property — which is still recorded as his — you will assume that lien when you do record the deed.

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Former president Richard Nixon was offered the deed to one of this city's oldest — and smallest — taverns if he showed up for a party celebrating the fourth anniversary of his resignation.

"He was nice enough to resign for us, so when I die, I'd like to give him the bar," said Gary Kimsey, owner of the Town Pump, a landmark that measures but 18 by 30 feet.

Kimsey said that each year since 1978 he has invited Nixon to his celebration marking the day the former president stepped down.

Indicators show economy weakening

NEW YORK (AP) — With the exception of an unexpected decline in the nation's unemployment rate, economic reports released this past week point to a weakening economy, while long-term borrowing costs soared to new highs.

Some economists view the latest figures with alarm, saying the production buildup indicated by rising employment by manufacturers in July could mean more layoffs and a prolonged recession if the economy fails to recover from its slump later this year.

Analysts also said the decline in the unemployment rate to 7 percent, its lowest level since April 1980, may convince the Federal Reserve Board there is little need to relax a tight-money stance that has contributed to persistently high interest rates. And Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said there will be a severe recession unless the Federal Reserve Board allows the nation's money supply to grow at a faster rate.

Whatever happens, interest rates are not expected to decline sharply. The prime lending rate has remained at 20.5 percent for five weeks, just one percentage point below its December 1980 record high of 21.5 percent.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported that interest rates on loans for the purchase of new homes reached a record average of 16.95 percent in July, the fifth consecutive monthly increase.

And the Commerce Department said spending for new construction fell 1.5 percent in June, with most of the decline in the troubled housing industry. It was the fifth straight monthly drop.

The Treasury completed its August refinancing, selling $2 billion in 29½-year bonds at a record-high average annual yield of 14.06 percent, $2.25 billion in 10-year notes at a record average annual yield of 14.98 percent, and $4.255 billion in 3½-year notes at a record average annual yield of 15.96 percent.

In other business developments: —A strike by air traffic controllers disrupted air travel and freight shipments, costing beleaguered airlines millions of dollars a day. The Reagan administration's decision to fire striking air traffic controllers and train replacements could force airline flight cutbacks over the next two years.

—Du Pont Co., the nation's leading chemical business, won a bidding war against Mobil Corp. and Seagram Co. Ltd.

and gained control of Conoco Inc., the nation's ninth-largest oil company. The $7.7 billion cash and stock deal was the most expensive corporate acquisition ever.

—Directors of Clark Oil & Refining Corp. approved a $635 million acquisition of the independent oil marketer and refiner by Apex Oil Co., a privately held business with petroleum interests.

—The Commerce Department reported that the nation's merchandise trade deficit widened to $6.99 billion in the second quarter of this year.

—The United States and Soviet Union agreed to extend their grain sales pact for a year. The agreement was to have ended Sept. 30.

South African rugby team 'not welcome'

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Edward Koch has yanked away the welcome mat for South Africa's Springboks rugby team on the advice of the police commissioner who says that even with 2,000 extra cops he cannot guarantee the Afrikaners' safety.

Koch announced last July 20 that although he opposed South Africa's racist policies, he would permit use of a city stadium for a game between the Springboks and an American all-star team.

Koch said the game could be played in Downing Stadium on Randall's Island because the federal government had given the South Africans permission to enter the country and it would be improper to restrict the use of city facilities for political reasons.

But on Friday Koch announced that he had changed his mind after reading a letter from Police Commissioner Robert McGuire saying there was "a strong likelihood" that demonstrations against the South Africans would turn violent.

Governors planning cuts of their own

States won't compensate for budget losses

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — President Reagan's budget cuts are going to be passed straight through to the public with little effort by the states to pick up the losses, a survey of governors says.

The governors were reluctant to say just where their spending programs would be cut to pass along the Reagan cuts. "The cuts will come in the programs the Reagan administration has cut, and that's virtually all of them," said Democrat James Hunt of North Carolina.

But governors' choice of cuts over taxes means that cuts in federally assisted programs — from nutrition for the poor to college tuition loans for the middle class — will begin to be felt almost immediately when the new federal budget goes into effect on Oct. 1.

A score of governors responding to the nationwide Associated Press survey said flatly they would react to the cuts in federal assistance with cuts of their own rather than raise taxes at the state level.

And, while other governors were less emphatic, none of them endorsed state and local taxes to keep up programs that will get less federal money under the fiscal 1982 Budget.

Democratic governors generally viewed the losses with more alarm, while Republicans tended to take the cuts as necessary for the good of the economy. But governors in all but the most prosperous states said sacrifices are inevitable.

The National Governors' Association, which opens its annual convention here on Sunday, has supported for years Reagan's basic economic approach of ending categorical federal grants to state and local governments and replacing them with more flexible bloc grants.

The governors contended they could save as much as 10 percent through more efficient delivery of the funds if given this kind of discretion. The budget finally passed last week, however, contains cuts in state aid which the Congressional Budget office suggests may be as deep as 35 percent with inflation is considered.

How to cope with the extra loss in federal funds will be a key topic of the conference, along with discussion of how to assume state management of the programs that were consolidated under the bloc grants.

"I don't know that any state is going to be able to 'cope' with the reductions," said

Gov. George Ariyoshi of Hawaii, a Democrat. "Even though savings will be realized through flexibility of bloc grants these savings cannot, and will not, match the reductions."

Gov. John Spellman of Washington presented the more philosophical Republican view when he said his state has been anticipating the cutbacks and is prepared to live with them.

"It's necessary, bitter medicine for the present economy," Spellman said.

Some states, particularly those rich in energy resources, are better prepared for the cuts. Alaska, for example, has set aside $5 million as a contingency fund to help ease any blow from Washington. Georgia has a $100 million surplus to cushion the blow.

$35,000 in gold found in suspect's back yard

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — While digging through a junk-laden yard at the home where George Dailey allegedly imprisoned a 12-year-old girl, authorities found $35,000 worth of gold in a shed, city officials say.

The high-quality gold flakes in 24 vials were uncovered Friday, and officials of Signetics, a Sunnyvale computer firm, said the gold was stolen from the company in 1979 while Dailey was moonlighting there as a process technician.

Dailey, a 36-year-old city sewage worker, has been charged with kidnapping and sexually molesting Jeana Rodriguez, who said she was held captive for five months following her abduction in February.

He is being held on $1 million bail pending a preliminary hearing Tuesday. Police on Friday widened their investigation after identifying six children in sexually explicit poses from photographs found at his house.

The crew searching Dailey's yard was looking for jackhammers and other tools he reportedly used while Dailey was employed by the city's Department of Neighborhood Maintenance.

"We didn't find the jackhammers, but we did find this," said Frank Garcia, superintendent of the department, referring to the gold.

Officials of Signetics said Dailey was not prosecuted in connection with the missing gold.

Lt. Tom Seck said the six children in the photographs were located and interviewed after numerous pictures of nude and partially clad boys and girls were found in the house.

"These are apparently pictures taken, we believe, by the suspect, Dailey," Seck said. "Some of them showed sexual acts taking place."

Thirteen other children in the pictures covers a wider area than the neighborhood, Seck said, adding that missing-persons files also were being checked.

He said the pictures opened a "whole new aspect of the case" not specifically related to Jeana's case.

Seck also said a neighbor of Dailey, Richard Thacker, was arrested Thursday in a case not directly related to JJ, O-A.

But Seck said the arrest was linked to evidence found in Dailey's house, adding, "We believe he (Thacker) was involved with some of the photographs."

Thacker, 36, was arrested in Modesto and held in the Santa Clara County Jail where he was booked for investigation of child molestation and a parole violation. Thacker was on parole from a 1977 child molestation case.

Dailey has been charged with 12 counts, including kidnapping, sodomy and various instances of sexual assault in the case.

Gay church approves neuter God

HOUSTON (AP) — The nation's largest homosexual church Friday approved a motion proposing to refer to God in male and female terms but deleted a section of the report suggesting use of "The Breasted One" and "Mother Hen."

The report approved by the 1,000 delegates to a convention of the Universal Fellowship of Metropolitan Community Churches called for a commission to be formed to seek a version of the scriptures that used "nongendered" language in referring to God.

Among the female images contained in the deleted section were "Nurturer, the Breasted One, Mother, Midwife, Mother Eagle or Hen."

"We understand it's going to take some churches longer than others" to implement the changes in rites, said Dr. Troy D. Perry, who founded the church in 1968 after being excommunicated from the Church of God of Prophecy.

"The importance of inclusive language is that it liberates everyone," said the report, written by a task force headed by the Rev. Brent Hawkes of Toronto.

Dallas water is tainted by algae

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas' hot dry summers are not to many residents' taste, but they do give the drinking water more flavor — a touch of algae.

City officials say the tiny plants make the water taste like it's been strained through pine needles.

Blue-green algae grows lushly in Dallas-area lakes during the summer, aided by warmer water and the rays of the sun that beam to the floor of area lakes, said John Stacha, the city's assistant water director.

Long-time Dallasites are used to the peculiar seasoning, but many newcomers have called the Water Department to complain, Stacha said.

State grants encourage heritage preservation

AUSTIN — Lawmakers of the 67th Texas Legislature turned their attention to the past as well as the future of the Lone Star State, and passed a bill creating a $250,000 state fund to aid qualified historic preservation projects.

This is the first time state funds have been allocated for a preservation grants program.

The Texas program authorizes the Texas Historical Commission to make matching grants to nonprofit and local governmental entities for the preservation of significant historic sites and structures.

Detailed grant guidelines have been formulated to assure that state monies will be distributed to the most feasible preservation projects in Texas. Key elements of the guidelines are that every state dollar granted must be matched by two dollars cash from other sources; that applications and expenditures of fund awards conform to a prescribed timetable; and that project properties meet specific criteria to determine historical significance.

To be eligible for grant assistance a property must: 1) be included in the National Register of Historic Places; or 2) be designated as a Recorded Texas Historic Landmark; or 3) be determined by the THC to be eligible for inclusion in the Register or for Landmark designation. In addition, certain properties in none of these categories may be specifically designated by the THC to be worthy of preservation funding, such as structures recorded as State Archeological Landmarks.

Preservation grants shall be made only to nonprofit organizations and local political subdivisions of the state. Deadline for 1981 grant applications is Sept. 15. Grants will be awarded in October, and recipients must spend their funds by July, 1982. All grant allocations will be at least $2,500 but not more than $50,000.

Detailed grant guidelines and application forms are available from the Texas Historical Commission, P.O. Box 12276, Austin, TX 78711.

Who Will help You Clean Out Your Closet?

FLORAL GREETING — Ronald and Nancy Reagan express surprise as they are presented with a bouquet of flowers by Navy Petty Officer Clay Townsend, right, as they arrive at Point Mugu Naval Air Station Thursday.

Townsend presented bouquet on behalf of himself and fellow jet maintenance personnel at the base. Capt. Ray Crater is second right. The Reagans were enroute to their Santa Barbara, Calif., ranch.

Bubonic plague near Reagan ranch?

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — County health officials have advised the White House that bubonic plague may exist near the mountaintop ranch where President Reagan is vacationing.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Saturday that President Reagan, his wife, Nancy, and others at Reagan's ranch were taking "routine precautions" recommended by the county health department.

The bubonic plague was found last month in a wood rat less than a mile from the ranch, which in the Santa Ynez mountains 30 miles north of Santa Barbara.

However, no plague has been found nearby since. Nevertheless, Speakes said the precautions that were being taken included stuffing pantlegs into boots and not handling any wildlife. Asked whether Reagan was in any danger, Speakes replied, "If you disregard precautions there's a possibility."

But Speakes said Reagan was taking "the normal precautions that his neighbors are taking."

Meanwhile, a group of striking air traffic controllers planned to picket the gate leading to Reagan's ranch Saturday. The gate is four or five miles from his ranch.

Asked whether Reagan would be told, Speakes replied, "Somebody may mention it, but it won't be any major briefing."

Reagan and his wife ate breakfast together this morning and prepared to go horseback riding

Lewis retiring after 42 years of slicing Big Spring's steaks

After 42 years in Big Spring and 43 years in the trade, O.C. Lewis has sliced his last steak and has taken his retirement from Safeway at 1300 Gregg.

"I always said I was going to take off a summer," he said, "and that's exactly what I'm going to do." He originally was scheduled to retire in September.

Lewis has a host of customers and other friends, plus memories and three hernia operations to show for a career in meat marketing that started as a lad in Coleman. He had been reared in his childhood days on a farm on the Clear Fork of the Brazos between Breckenridge and Gaham, but when the family moved to Coleman, he took an after-school job "to learn the trade."

The pay was 50 cents a day, provided he also put in a full day Saturday. He learned meat cutting the hard way — lifting half carcasses, breaking them down, then cutting the quarters down into roasts, steaks and ground meat.

The tools were butcher knives ("you sharpened your own knives on stones and steel"), meat hand saws, and cleavers. It took a lot of practice to master the skill of slicing a steak from a rolling piece of fresh pork round of even beef round steak. Within three years he was made market manager at $12.50 a week!

Except for a brief interval when he sold used cars, he has been in the meat business. His unbroken tenure began in 1938 when Safeway opened a store in Coleman, where he also helped in the grocery end. The Safeway store in Midland offered him an exclusive meat assignment, and after a few months he took a similar job here under C.J. (Widge) Staples, store manager.

"For some reason, the store (at 209 Rannels) had run through seven market managers in a couple of years, so I told my wife 'Better not unpack all the things from the car.'" Forty-two years later he was still at the job, not that he didn't have opportunities to become store managers, meat consultant or meat market analysts with Safeway. "I guess I just liked Big Spring, and so did my wife."

Market concepts and modes have changed vastly over those two score years. As mentioned, there was very little pre-cutting in the early days — a few samples in platters in the meat counter. Most steaks, roasts, etc. were cut to specifications of the customer, and size of cuts ran larger generally than now. "I guess most families were larger, and a lot of them in the country only came to town once a week."

He made all his sausage and ground meats, and rendered out excess pork into lard. He moved a lot of lamb for a time, "but it eventually got to where you could sell a few chops and legs, and 75 percent went to waste."

Lewis was one of the first customers of Pete Gooch, later Gooch Packing Co., "for Pete would pile a couple of carcasses in the back of his old Plymouth and bring them to our shop." There was a time when part of the meat was bought locally, but now orders are punched in tape which is transmitted to the regional headquarters in Dallas. Next morning the meat comes down broken into rounds, loins, shoulders, T-bones, ribs, etc. Sausage is all prepackaged. At one time, before technical equipment came along, the department carried four meat cutters and seven wrappers. Now equipment weighs, labels, prices and wraps meat in one operation.

Lewis was in the Texas state Guard Company when it organized here in 1946 and although he had two children, he was drafted in 1945 into the Navy. After boot camp at San Diego, he went to Pearl Harbor when WW II ended. "I figured with a wife and two kids, I'd be coming home, but danged if they didn't bounce me to Tsingtao, China, and I nearly froze to death. When he did get back home, he replaced John Northington, an old-timer who had been filling in, and listened to the advice of B.M. Keese, Howard College registrar, and earned his GED. He was in the American Business Club, the Jaycees and Knights of Pythias. He is a member of First Christian Church.

Not long after they came to Big Spring, the Lewises acquired five acres at the edge of town, but sold and acquired a house on W. 18th where they lived 26 years. They had four children: Sharon Lewis Waechter, Sacramento, Calif., Shelly Lewis Rudeseal, Los Angeles, Calif., David Lewis, Dallas, and Steve Lewis, Big Spring. There are four grandchildren, two of them in Big Spring, O.C.'s pride and joy. A lot of that "summer vacation" is being devoted to them.

Justices would welcome O'Connor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell said Saturday that Sandra O'Connor, nominated to become the first woman on the high court, "would be welcomed warmly."

The Senate Judiciary Committee will begin confirmation hearings Sept. 8.

Reagan drops nominee to ambassador post

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is dropping his plan to nominate William E. Buckley Jr. as ambassador to Ireland because of an alleged association with a State Department official.

McCann has denied any wrongdoing, saying he did not know of the alleged criminal connection. The State Department official said the nomination was dropped only because publicity surrounding the affair would make Senate confirmation too difficult.

McCann had been supported for the ambassadorship by CIA Director William J. Casey, who just two weeks ago survived calls for removal because of allegations surrounding Casey's past business dealings.

Peter Murphy, who was a chief Reagan fundraiser in Oregon, is expected to be nominated instead, said the State Department official, who did not want to be identified.

Murphy said Friday that he had been asked to serve, but had not decided whether to accept.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was told by the State Department on Friday afternoon of the decision on McCann, a Percy aide said.

The aide said Percy was not notified that Murphy would be the nominee instead.

President Reagan had publicly announced he intended to nominate McCann as his ambassador to Ireland but the nomination was never sent to the Senate.

McCann heads the Foundation Life Insurance Co. of Chatham, N.J., which court and Senate records say sold $150 million to $200 million worth of insurance through a company associated with Louis C. Ostrer, a convicted felon.

Murphy, the man who may replace McCann as Reagan's ambassador to Ireland, is a member of the Republican National Committee and was a key Reagan fund-raiser in the Northwest.

In an interview from his home, Murphy said officials at the State Department and White House "suggested I could have the position if I wanted it."

Murphy said he would decide whether to accept the post within 72 hours. Among his considerations — who would run his businesses and other related questions.

Literary footnotes from Howard County Library

By ROSE VON HASSELL

Have you read any good books lately? If you haven't, why not come to the Howard County Library and look over our selection of new books?

For you mystery fans we've gotten "The Miser" by Elizabeth Linington, who writes under the pseudonym of Lesley Egan. An elderly couple is found murdered in their modest home, and the finger of guilt points to their daughter, who is the sole heir. Jesse Falkenstein, counselor-at-law does some preliminary investigating into the murdered man's business affairs, and finds the supposedly impoverished dead man has left a sizable estate. The source of the old man's wealth is quite alarming and this suddenly brings any number of suspects and motives. To find out more come in and check out "The Miser."

Sara Woods has written another Antony Maitland mystery titled "Cry Guilty." This time he is the prosecutor, an unusual role for Maitland. A young man is accused of receiving a stolen Ruben painting, and since it was found in his apartment it seems like an open and shut case, but is it? Maitland becomes more intrigued by the many art thefts that have taken place and the violence and murder that goes along with it. This new whodunit in a series has been billed as "the best of barrister dramas" by Booklist. Come in and read "Cry Guilty" to find out why.

Patrick McManus has written a book with the intriguing title "They Shoot Canoes, Don't They?" Mr. McManus tells us about some of the joys, pitfalls, adventures, and opportunities for disaster in the recreations of camping, hunting, and fishing. Whether you enjoy these sports or not, I think you would appreciate the humorous tales in this book. One chapter "And now stay tuned for 'The Camp Chef'" tells of Patrick McManus's short lived career in television as an outdoor cooking expert. Other tales in this book are equally funny.

On a more serious note, James Gollin has written "The Star Spangled Retirement Dream." Since retirement planning and our Social Security funds have become a national issue, this book should be of interest to just about everyone. Mr. Gollin answers the following questions: Must we lose our pension rights when we change jobs? How much higher can Social Security taxes go? What do we really know about the Social Security System? Mr. Gollin answers these questions and many more in language that is easy to understand. He also helps us to analyze our own needs and figure out retirement plans that will work for us as individuals.

Roger Pierpont has written "At The White House." He has been White House correspondent for over 20 years. He tells us what a reporter's life was like under the presidencies of Dwight Eisenhower, John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter. He also has a chapter on the First Ladies, and how important it is to get to know the presidents' wives. One of the tips he offers new reporters, is to go on as many trips with the presidents and their wives as possible, no matter how boring they are. This book combines history of the development of the White House press corps, and many warm human memories of the years Roger Pierpont spent as a White House correspondent.

I hope you will come into the Howard County Library and check out some of these books or one of the many others we have to offer our patrons.

Packers beat back Dallas rally

Green Bay outlasts Cowboys

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Lynn Dickey threw two first half touchdown passes and the Green Bay Packers beat back a Dallas rally Saturday night to earn a 21-17 National Football League preseason victory over the Cowboys.

Dickey completed 13 of 18 passes for 196 yards in the first half as the Packers built a 21-7 lead. It was Green Bay's first preseason victory in two years.

Dickey began picking on the Dallas secondary late in the first quarter. Finding James Lofton far behind cornerback Steve Wilson, Dickey completed a 49-yard pass to the Packer wide receiver to the Cowboys' 4-yard line.

On the next play, Dickey found running back Steve Atkins all alone for an easy touchdown pass.

The red-hot Dickey completed eight passes in a row during one stage of the second quarter as the Packers charged up and down the field against Dallas starters and substitutes alike.

A 25-yard pass to Fred Nixon and Nixon's 13-yard run on a reverse setup Eddie Lee Ivery's 2-yard scoring run to give the Packers a 14-0 lead with 3:37 to play in the half.

Cornerback Mark Lee intercepted a Glenn Carano pass and returned it 19 yards to the Dallas 35 to put the Packers in position for their third touchdown.

Dickey passed 27 yards to Lofton then flipped a 5-yard scoring pass to wide receiver Audra Thompson for a touchdown with 1:12 to go.

Carano took the Cowboys 70 yards in 7 plays to finally get them on the board.

Passes of 22 yards to Butch Johnson and 18 yards to Drew Pearson put the Cowboys on the Packer 12 where tight end Doug Cosbie roamed free to take the scoring pass from Carano with seven seconds to play in the half.

Dallas' second half points came on a blocked punt return for a touchdown by Everson Walls, a rookie from Grambling, and Steve Steinke's 49-yard field goal.

A last minute Dallas threat died when Johnnie Gray recovered Drew Pearson's fumble at the Packer 20.

Oilers waive veterans Young, Jefferson

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — The Houston Oilers have waived veterans Bob Young and Charles Jefferson and extended the contract of five-year veteran middle guard Ken Kennard, club officials announced Saturday.

Head Coach Ed Biles said Young was listed on the waived-failed physical list while Jefferson received an outright release. Young has not participated in any Oilers drills since the beginning of training camp due to problems with his lower back.

Baseball to be welcomed back with hurry-up All-Star Game

CLEVELAND (AP) — Baseball's fragmented 1981 season resumes Sunday night with the All-Star Game, a hurry-up affair arranged as part of the settlement which ended a 50-day players strike, the longest walkout in professional sports history.

Instead of the usual three-day, mid-season festival, the 52nd All-Star Game will mark a welcome back for baseball, absent from the sports scene since June 12, when the players went on strike.

By the time regular season play resumes Monday, 714 games will have been lost to the strike. Baseball hopes some of the bad taste can be washed down by the contest between the best players in the two leagues, traditionally one of the sport's major showpieces since its introduction in 1933.

Originally scheduled for July 14, the game will be played in cavernous Cleveland Stadium, site of two of the largest crowds in this game's history. This is also the same stadium where the American League's long, puzzling All-Star slump began in 1963.

The Americans, who once led the All-Star series 12-4, now trail 32-18 with one tie. The AL has lost nine straight and 17 of the last 18, a streak which dates back to a 5-3 loss to the Nationals in the 1963 game at Cleveland.

That was the third time that the big ball park on the shores of Lake Erie has hosted the All-Star show. The other two visits of the game's best players generated huge crowds.

In 1935, a record 69,831 turned out to see the American League defeat the Nationals 4-1 behind the pitching of Mel Harder and Lefty Gomez. The Stars returned to Cleveland in 1964 and three Indians, Bobby Avila, Larry Doby and Al Rosen, led an 11-9 AL triumph. Rosen, playing with a broken finger, hit two home runs and drove in five runs, tying an All-Star record.

Sunday night's contest gives Cleveland Stadium the distinction of being the first ball park to host the All-Stars four times.

Vice President George Bush is scheduled to throw out the ceremonial first pitch before the 8:35 p.m. EDT start. The game will be televised nationally by NBC with CBS handling the radio broadcast.

Will fans forgive and forget strike?

Major league baseball resumes its regular season Monday with radically altered championship races and hopes that the fans will forgive and forget after a seven-week strike.

The New York Mets and the Chicago Cubs, who had the National League's worst records when the players' walkout began June 12, open the "second season" with an afternoon game at Wrigley Field, ending 59 days and 714 games without regular-season competition.

Monday night, the other 24 teams join the race for a spot in the expanded playoff system spawned by the strike, the longest in baseball's history.

Pittsburgh is at Montreal, St. Louis at Philadelphia, Cincinnati at Los Angeles, Atlanta at San Diego and Houston at San Francisco in the other NL openers.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox are at Boston, Kansas City is at Baltimore, Milwaukee at Cleveland, Toronto at Detroit, Oakland at Minnesota, California at Seattle and Texas meets the Yankees at New York.

Fans whetted their appetites for the resumption of the regular season in exhibition games over the weekend, and they get a chance to see the sport's best in action Sunday night when the All-Star Game, originally set for July 14, is played at Cleveland.

When the strike interrupted the season, four tight pennant races were in progress. Philadelphia led the NL East by 1 1/2 games over St. Louis; Los Angeles had a half-game edge over Cincinnati in the NL West; the Yankees led Baltimore by two games in the AL East, and Oakland was atop the AL West by 1 1/2 games over Texas.

But when the season resumes, all teams will start from 0-0. With almost two months cut out of the heart of the summer game, the owners voted last week to split the season, declaring the teams in first place when the strike began as first-half winners and starting the second half Monday.

READY FOR RECORD — Joe Luisi, a glass-blowing instructor at Salem Community College, displays a hand blown white glass statue of Pete Rose. Luisi made the sculpture in anticipation of Rose possibly getting one more official hit on Monday to make it 3,631 to break Stan Musial's National League record. The statue took about 80 hours to complete.

Registration set for 5th, 6th grade youth football

The Big Spring Youth (tackle football) League sign up will begin Thursday afternoon Aug. 20, at the Howard College Student Union Building Foyer on the East side, commencing at 5 p.m. and last until 8 p.m.

This football program is for all 5th and 6th grade boys in the Big Spring, Coahoma, Foran, Knott, Ackerly, Stanton, and surrounding areas. Each participant must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian, and must bring a copy of his birth certificate.

The registration will continue Friday, Aug. 21, 5 p.m. until 8 p.m. and Saturday, Aug. 22 from 9 a.m. until 12 noon. The following week, registration will be held on Tuesday, Aug. 25, 5 p.m. until 8 p.m., also at the Howard College Student Union Building. Participants may sign-up after Tuesday, Aug. 25, but are urged to attend one of the prior registration periods in order to know what team they will play for and not be late in getting started practicing. Practice will begin for most teams on Wednesday, Aug. 26.

The organization, former (Big Spring Pee Wee Football League), will have at least six teams during the 1981 season. The team names are the Cosden Cowboys, defending league champions, the Tomco Packers, the Optimists Dolphins, the BPO Elks Lodge Vikings, Harding Well Bulldogs and the Buffaloes.

The regular season is planned to be under way on Sept. 12, and will end approximately Oct. 31 with the annual Super Bowl "All Star" game between the National and American All Stars to be played that day. All games will more than likely be played at Blankenship Field just east of the Big Spring High School Complex, commencing at approximately 1 p.m. each Saturday until completion.

Participants are reminded that they must bring a copy of their birth certificate and have a parent or legal guardian accompany them to the registration.

Nelson gains lead in Saturday PGA

DULUTH, Ga. (AP) — Larry Nelson, a quiet man from nearby Acworth, Ga., reeled off three consecutive birdies on the way to a 4-under-par 66 and surged into 4-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the 63rd PGA national championship.

Nelson's exploits — performed before a huge, delighted gallery of friends and relatives — and Jack Nicklaus' inability to generate anything resembling a move at the leaders seriously damaged any hopes the "Golden Bear" may have had of making a successful title defense in this, the last of the year's major tournaments.

Nicklaus, seeking a record sixth PGA crown and 18th major professional title, could do no better than a 71 that left him at 210, even par and 8 shots off the pace going into Sunday's finale.

The 41-year-old Nicklaus was very much aware of the difficulties facing him in the quest for his first victory in 12 months.

"I'll have to shoot in the mid-60s tomorrow to have a chance," he said. "Whatever Nelson does is the dictating factor to the rest of the field."

Nelson, once an illustrator at an aircraft factory in the Atlanta suburbs, put together a 202 total, 8 strokes under par on the Atlanta Athletic Club course, a difficult layout that plays much longer than its listed 7,070 yards.

His 54 hole total tied the record for PGA championship play, set by Ray Floyd in 1969.

Nelson, 33, winner of four tournaments over the last 2½ seasons and gunning for the first major title in an unusual career, took command with a 20-foot putt on the 11th hole, the first of three consecutive birdies.

And just as he began to move to joyous shouts and yells of his gallery, the other contenders began to fade and left the tournament in his hands.

In the end, only free spirit Fuzzy Zoeller, the easy-going former Masters champion, could keep him in sight. Zoeller, winner of the Colonial National Invitation earlier this season, birdied the 17th hole for a 68 that left him at 206.

Tom Kite, golf's steadiest, most consistent performer this season with finishes of seventh or better in 10 of his last 11 starts, and Andy North, the big guy who has finished second in his last two starts, were another stroke back at 207.

Howe overlooked for All-Star game

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros third baseman Art Howe, not chosen for Sunday's major league All-Star Game in Cleveland although his .344 batting average leads the National League, figures getting even beats getting mad.

"Let's put it this way," Howe said Saturday when asked if he bore hard feelings toward Philadelphia manager Dallas Green, who will manage the National League team. "I'm looking forward to playing Philadelphia."

Howe led the league consistently before the 50-day strike began July 12. He was the National League's player of the month in May on the strength of a 23 game hitting streak and a .432 batting average for the month.

The balding infielder was actually snubbed twice. He was left off the computerized ballot used by the fans who vote on starters for the game because that list is made up months in advance.

Then Green failed to name him to the list of reserves.

"Green called me this morning and apologized," Howe said. "He said he'd made a mistake."

"But I don't think there's any excuse for that," Green also called Astros manager Bill Virdon Friday.

"Green told me, 'I just messed up,'" Virdon said. "He said, 'I can't justify leaving Howe off the team. He deserved it. I can blame a lot of people, but it's my fault. I was probably making too many choices in too big a hurry.'"

Virdon quoted Green as saying he would pick Howe if there was any way he could change his roster. "But that's not possible now," Virdon said.

None of which comforts the 34-year-old Howe. "One thing that bothers me is, if I don't make it this year, how can I ever expect to make it?" Howe said he had no doubt the method of selecting all-star teams needs to be changed.

"I think everybody realizes that," he said. Among players fans named to start the game are the Los Angeles Dodgers' Dave Lopes, who is batting .169, and the New York Yankees' Reggie Jackson, hitting .199.

Baseball has not been very, very good to Howe. After a back injury ended his college football career, he programmed computers for Westinghouse and played sandlot ball.

Holman opens 168 pin lead in Aqua Fest Open

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — With a 290 in his first game and a 251 average for the round, Marshall Holman opened up a 168 pin lead after six games of bowling Saturday in the $10,000 Aqua Fest-Mr. Gatti's Open.

Holman, of Medford, Ore., defied the modest scoring pace set by the rest of the field by starting the tournament with a spare and 11 straight strikes.

He flirted with perfection in his last game, tossing eight consecutive strikes before spares in the 9th and 10th frames gave the 26-year-old righthander a 266.

In between, Holman bowled 229, 253, 258 and 210 to total 1506 overall.

Marvin Leon Cross Jr., of Burleson, Texas, who bowled on the same lanes as Holman, is a distant second with 1338.

Frank Ellenburg of Mesa, Ariz., is third with 1325. Joe Hutchinson of Scranton, Pa., and David Ozio of Vidor, Texas, are tied for fourth with 1317.

Two rounds of qualifying remain before the top 24 bowlers — out of the 160-man field advance to match play at Highland Lanes.

Holman, who is second on the 1981 Professional Bowler's Association money standings list with $111,685, is shooting for his third Texas title of the year.

Stacy fires second straight sub-par round in LPGA Classic

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Hollis Stacy, overcoming a possibly disastrous 18th hole, fired her second straight sub-par round with a 70 Saturday for a two-shot lead over Kathy Postlewait after two rounds of the $125,000 West Virginia LPGA Classic.

At one point during the second round, Stacy — with birdie putts of 10 feet apiece on the ninth and 10th holes — held a seven-shot lead over Postlewait. But on the final eight holes, Stacy lost two shots to par while Postlewait birdied three of the final eight holes.

Stacy was at 138 while Postlewait fired a 71 for a 140 total. Stacy held a three-shot lead over Postlewait going into the 18th hole, a dangerous 475-yard par 5 that was playing particularly tough because of a difficult pin setting on the front edge of the undulating green.

Putting from 20 feet for a birdie, Stacy's putt meandered down the green, rolled past the hole and wound up on the fringe of the green about 25 feet away from the cup. Stacy then played it safe, placing her par putt attempt to within two feet of the hole, then tapped home for a bogey.

"I thought I'd be putting all night," said Stacy, a runner-up here in 1977. She called her 18th hole bogey "a good bogey. It's not too difficult a hole when you get below the hole ... but I got below it twice."

Postlewait, who shot a 1-under 71 Saturday, missed a birdie putt from five feet that would have sliced Stacy's lead to one shot.

Tied at 2-under-par 142 — four shots out of the lead and two shots behind Postlewait — are Kathy Hite, the tour's second leading money winner, Pat Bradley, and Cathy Sherk. Hite and Pat Meyers, who was at four-over 148, tied for the best round of the day Saturday with identical 69s.

Former fastest runner hopes to update success

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — He's a 34-year-old city worker looking for his gold-medal past, a past he hopes to relive in the future.

"I truly consider myself the greatest sprinter ever," said Jim Hines.

The quiet brag is backed by the record book. Hines won the 100-meter dash in 9.9 seconds at the 1968 Mexico City Olympics. It was — and is — the fastest time ever for the race. He also brought home a gold medal by anchoring the United States' winning 400-meter relay team.

Now, after an unspectacular pro football career and a stint with the doomed International Track Association, the balding Hines again is thinking Olympics. The road to Los Angeles in 1984 started three years ago when he began the paperwork necessary to regain his amateur status.

Thanks to a reprieve from the Athletics Congress, Hines — despite a $150,000 football bonus — is an amateur sprinter again.

Last year, while working out with college sprinters, the former fastest man felt the winning form coming back.

"Those sprinters were 13 and 14 years younger than me, but I was beating them out of the blocks and for the first 30 yards," said Hines, who has stayed in shape, gaining only seven pounds since his Olympic triumphs.

He's running about four miles a day, sometimes on the University of Texas track and sometimes on the high school track in Giddings, about 50 miles east of here, where he lives with his wife and two children.

"No serious sprinting," he said of his workouts. The "serious" work will come in the final weeks before a January indoor meet at the San Francisco Cow Palace, where he plans to begin his comeback.

Hines has not run a "competitive" race since the 1968 Olympics. He said the pro track circuit, where he spent three years, "wasn't serious. It was more of a show deal."

His NFL years also did not satisfy his competitive urge. He was a sixth-round draft pick of the Miami Dolphins in 1968. He started at a disadvantage because he did not play football at Texas Southern University.

"Maybe I didn't read the scholarship right. I intended to play football and run track," Hines said. "The four years I missed in college ball were important years."

Dolphin coaches put Hines on a "time table," a schedule Hines thought was too slow.

"There was a little confusion between (Dolphin Coach Don) Shula and me," he said.

Hines' gold-medal speed made comparisons with Bob Hayes inevitable. Hayes, who played college football at Florida A&M, flashed to stardom with the Dallas Cowboys.

Hines languished with the Dolphins for three years.

FORCES HAMBLETONIAN RAGE OFF — Super Juan with driver Howard Beissinger crosses the finish line of the Hambletonian ahead of Shiaway St. Pat (2) driven by Ray Remmen and Charter Party (6) driven by Thomas Haughton to force the race into a three-horse race-off. Olaf and Shiaway St. Pat had won the two earlier divisions.

Shiaway St. Pat takes Hambletonian

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP)

Shiaway St. Pat rallied in the stretch to score a neck victory over Super Juan in the fourth and final heat — a three-horse race-off — Saturday to win the $338,000 Hambletonian Trot, which made its debut at the Meadowslands after 24 years in DuQuoin, Ill.

Driven by Ray Remmen, who also is his trainer, Shiaway St. Pat emerged from a record field of 24 to capture the 56th Hambletonian and $419,000 first prize for winning harness racing's most prestigious event.

Shiaway St. Pat, a gelded son of Tarpot Devlin-Patricia Sue and owned by the Shiawassee Farm of Durand, Mich., overtook Super Juan to complete the mile over a sloppy track in 2:021-5. He paid $4.40 to win. There was no place and show betting.

Olaf, who had won the first division, broke his stride and finished 10th in the third heat, and was third in the final. Driven by Carl Allen, he also broke stride at the start but gamely fought back and was in the lead with a quarter-mile to go before fading.

Shiaway St. Pat's victory ruined Howard Beissinger's attempt for his fourth Hambletonian victory. Beissinger, who drove Super Juan, had won the race in 1969 with Lindy's Pride, 1971 with Speedy Crown and 1978 with Speedy Somoli.

It was the seventh Hambletonian that was decided by a fourth heat, the last was in 1976, when Steve Lobell won.

After Olaf, who finished 12 lengths behind second-place Super Juan in the last heat, scored a three-quarter length victory over Arnie's Aim in 2:034-5 in the first heat, Shiaway St. Pat took the second heat with a time of 2:023-5 for the mile. Shiaway St. Pat edged Banker Barker by 1 1/4 lengths.

Then the field was narrowed to 10, with the third heat race-off pitting the top five in each division.

Shiaway St. Pat seemed to have the Hambletonian sewed up in the third heat before he was caught by the late-charging Super Juan, who beat him by a head in 2:011-5.

Duran ready for comeback

CLEVELAND (AP) — "He's the little guy in the white hat," the barmaid said, seeing Roberto Duran through a window.

There he was, a snow white hat covering some of the mop of coal-black hair — Roberto Duran, the fighter whose image color was always villain black until that night in New Orleans.

The 5-foot-7 1/2 Duran, with the blazing eyes and the attacking style, was Hands of Stone, El Animal. Then last Nov. 25 in the Superdome he quit in the eighth round and lost the World Boxing Council welterweight championship to Sugar Ray Leonard.

He said he was sick to his stomach. He said he would never fight again.

Sunday, Duran fights again in a scheduled 10-round junior middleweight bout with 22-year-old Nino Gonzalez. His purse — $75,000 tax free and more than 100 times smaller than his paycheck in New Orleans. His purpose — to obtain a rematch with Leonard, something Leonard has said will never happen.

The 30-year-old Panamanian's comeback will be televised live by CBS from the 9,000-seat Public Auditorium between 4:30 p.m. - 4:45 p.m. EDT, about four hours before the major league baseball All-Star Game at Cleveland Stadium.

"I didn't lose any respect for him as a fighter," the 22-year-old Gonzalez, of Bayonne, N.J., said of Duran's quitting in New Orleans. "Maybe he had a reason. Maybe he did have cramps."

But by his actions, Gonzalez has illustrated the change in Duran's image.

He turned down a $40,000 title bid against Wilfred Benitez, the WBC super welterweight champion, to fight Duran for $50,000. That is a show of confidence against a man who was once one of the most feared fighters in the game; a show of confidence by a young fighter who admitted he was nervous when he sparred three rounds with Duran last year.

Duran says he doesn't feel he has to prove himself, but in a display of temper, Gonzalez hit ahty q that almost certainly has haunted Duran into a comeback.

At a news conference earlier in the week, Duran made slurs about Puerto Ricans to Gonzalez, who is of Puerto Rican descent.

Gonzalez snapped back at Duran in Spanish: "A Puerto Rican may go down, but he doesn't quit."

Duran says he has learned to live with the shadow that has been cast on his brilliant 72-2 career, which includes 55 knockouts, wins in all 13 lightweight title bouts and the welterweight title victory over Leonard in Montreal June 20, 1980.

But he's now in a weight class, which, a Duran aide says, hopefully will lead to another fight with Leonard.

A victory over Gonzalez, who has a 24-1 record, with 13 knockouts, could lead to a title fight against Benitez for Duran. Promoter Don King has already offered Benitez $1 million for such a fight, and Duran said, "If that opportunity comes I'll take it."

The WBA half of the 154-pound class title is held by Leonard.

Jaeger trounces Ruzici for U.S. Clay Court win

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Teen-ager Andrea Jaeger, playing a steady and patient game from the baseline, trounced Romania's Virginia Ruzici 6-1, 6-0 Saturday for the U.S. Open Clay Court women's championship, her first major victory as a tennis professional.

The 16-year-old Jaeger, ranked third in the world and seeded No. 1 here, was runner-up to Chris Evert Lloyd last year. It was another frustrating loss for the second-seeded Ruzici, who has been beaten in the finals of seven tournaments the past two years and has not won a major tourney since the 1978 French Open.

The 26-year-old Ruzici, ranked ninth in the world, was broken on her own service all four times in the first set and all three times in the second set of the nationally televised match.

A volley of 70 hits on one point in the first game set the tone of the match. Jaeger, of Lincolnshire, Ill., finally won that point and the next point to break Ruzici's serve.

Jaeger also won a 101-hit volley in the next game to force a deuce and captured the next six points for another break and a 3-0 lead.

Jaeger, earning the first prize of $27,500 from a purse of $380,000, held service and broke Ruzici again for a commanding 5-0 advantage. Ruzici managed to win the next game, but Jaeger broke her service for the fourth time, winning on a double-fault, to win the first set.

Another volley of 135 hits started the second set, which Jaeger again dominated. She broke Ruzici on the second, fourth and sixth games of that set.

Ruzici, who was to play with Joanne Russell in the doubles championship Saturday night against Sue Barker and Paula Smith, earned $14,000 for her singles' runner-up finish.

CHAMPIONSHIP FORM — Teen-ager Andrea Jaeger scrambles to her feet after falling to make a return against Romania's Virginia Ruzici in the finals of the U.S. Open Clay Court tennis championships in Indianapolis Saturday. Jaeger, of Lincolnshire, Ill., won 6-1, 6-0 for her first major victory as a professional. The 16-year-old earned $27,500 from the $350,000 purse.

Texas whips Oklahoma 27-3 in Oil Bowl charity game

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Highland Park's Rob Moerschell threw touchdown passes of 14 and 48 yards to Dallas White's Dirk Davis to lead Texas to a 27-3 victory over Oklahoma Friday night in the 44th annual Oil Bowl charity football game.

Moerschell, who rushed for 117 yards on 19 carries and threw for 124 yards, was named the outstanding offensive player of the game. North Garland's Bill Heathcock was named the top defensive player.

After Moerschell's first touchdown pass gave Texas a 7-0 first quarter lead, Oklahoma tallied its only points on a 26-yard field goal by Jallisaw's Craig Benson just minutes before the first half ended.

Texas broke it open with three touchdowns in the final period.

Greenville's Robert Lewis scored on a 3-yard run, Moerschell connected with Davis for their second touchdown and Paris' Ricky

Dirks ended the scoring on a 3-yard run with 15 seconds left in the game. McKinney's Mike Sessoms kicked three extra points for Texas. Leading defensive players for Texas were Heathcock and Plano's Kenneth Shead. Oklahoma's defense was led by Putnam City West's Phil Wilson and Muskogee's Jeff Lee.

Texas now leads the all-star classic 28-7.

The proceeds from the annual charity event benefit crippled children in a two-state area.

Hitters out of shape

By the Associated Press

Tony LaRussa, manager of the Chicago White Sox, figured at first that the hitters would be ahead of the pitchers when major league baseball resumed following the strike. Then he saw what the hitters looked like.

"I changed my mind the first day the players came back," said LaRussa, whose team played a scoreless tie against the Chicago Cubs Friday night in a game called after nine innings by mutual agreement.

"I realized then that the pitchers had a better chance to stay in shape than the players," said LaRussa. "Notice I said players, not hitters. Pitchers have only one skill to maintain, while players have to hit, run and throw."

A total of 11 pitchers on the two Chicago teams showed they had maintained their one skill well enough during the seven-week strike. Five White Sox pitchers combined on a seven-hit shutout, while the Cubs' six pitchers allowed six hits.

"The pitchers got their breaking balls over and that surprised me," said Cubs Manager Joe Amalfitano. "There was some good contact out there but there were also a lot of good plays. If this is any measure of things, you sure can cut down on spring training in the future."

The first game between Chicago's two teams since 1972 attracted a crowd of 27,048 to Comiskey Park. The Cubs' pitchers were Ken Kravec, Willie Hernandez, Dick Tidrow, Mike Krukow, Lee Smith and Doug Capilla, while the White Sox's hurlers were Rich Dotson, Lamarr Hoyt, Britt Burns, Ed Farmer and Kevin Hickey.

Astros triumph over Rangers again, 5-1

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros recorded their second straight triumph over the Texas Rangers Friday as they slipped past their intrastate rivals, 5-1.

Both teams displayed more offense than in the Astros 2-1 win Thursday in Arlington.

"Our timing is better, hitting-wise," Houston Astros Manager Bill Virdon said. "When we'll get it all back depends on how good the pitching is. It's hard to say."

Despite allowing 12 hits, the Astros were able to hold Texas to one run, thanks to sparkling defensive plays. "I thought we threw strikes well," Virdon said. "I was more concerned with that than with anything else."

Jose Cruz drew a walk off loser Doc Medich with two outs in the fourth inning, and scored quickly when Cesar Cedeno ripped a triple down the right-field line to make it 1-0. Gary Woods' RBI single in the sixth scored Tony Scott to make it 2-0.

After Texas cut the Astros' advantage to 2-1, Houston exploded for three runs off Steve Comer to ice the game in the eighth. Harry Spilman's double to right-center highlighted the inning by bringing in two runs.

Texas Stadium still SMU home

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University has signed a new contract and will continue to play its home games at Texas Stadium for the next three seasons, university officials said.

The Mustangs moved from the Cotton Bowl in 1979 and, at the end of the three-year contract, SMU will have the option of continuing to use Texas Stadium as its home base.

SMU has attracted 499,431 fans for 11 home games in its two years at the stadium, averaging 45,202 people per game.

The Mustangs' record at Texas Stadium is 14 wins to five losses.

Who Will?

FARM FORUM

By RONNIE WOOD

A more consumer-oriented beef grading system? That's what the USDA is now considering because of a petition from the National Cattlemen's Association. The NCA is asking for improvement in and modernization of USDA's beef grading standards. Part of the report's recommendation comes primarily in response to consumer demand for leaner beef, according to the Association. The NCA also believes the changes should improve production efficiency over the long term. Production of beef with less trimmable fat, while maintaining desirable eating quality, is one of the main thrusts of the cattlemen. Quality, they believe, includes tenderness, juiciness and flavor. The NCA maintains that their proposal would discourage overfeeding in an attempt to get more cattle into the choice grade and would encourage production of beef with a higher lean-to-fat ratio.

"If the pitchers are in shape, they should have the advantage for a while," said Dotson. "I heard during the strike that people were saying the hitters would be ahead but that doesn't make any sense. If the pitchers kept throwing during the strike they wouldn't have much trouble staying in some kind of groove."

Two teams whose hitters had no trouble getting back in the groove were the Boston Red Sox and Pittsburgh Pirates. The Red Sox had 20 hits in a 13-3 rout of the Montreal Expos, while the Pirates collected 18 hits in a 10-3 romp over the Cleveland Indians.

In other exhibitions, the New York Yankees lost to their Bradenton, Fla. farm team 2-0, the California Angels blanked the Cincinnati Reds 5-0, the Philadelphia Phillies edged the Baltimore Orioles 2-1 in seven innings, the Toronto Blue Jays beat the New York Mets 7-3, the Houston Astros defeated the Texas Rangers 5-1, the St. Louis Cardinals clobbered the Kansas City Royals 10-3 and the Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the Atlanta Braves 4-1.

Red Sox 13, Expos 3
Carl Yastrzemski and Glenn Hoffman collected three hits apiece and Jim Rice and Joe Rudi belted towering home runs as the Red Sox delighted a crowd of 1,395 at Fenway Park, as well as Manager Ralph Houk.

"When you win everything looks good," said Houk. "We hit the ball, we got good pitching and we got good defense. I hope this will carry over when we start playing for real again next week."

Pirates 10, Indians 3
Dave Parker's two-run homer highlighted the Pittsburgh attack before a festive crowd of 7,613 at Three Rivers Stadium. Mike Easler, Phil Garner and Bill Madlock had three hits each for the Pirates.

"The strike's history. We're back to the business of playing baseball now," said Garner, who took the time to sign an autograph as he trotted off the field in the third inning.

Bradenton 2, Yankees 0
Bill Castro and George Frazier scattered five hits over the first seven innings as Bradenton, a rookie team from the Gulf Coast League that was bolstered by players from other Yankee farm teams, blanked the parent club before 10,200 at Yankee Stadium.

"Our guys were facing pitchers who have been pitching good baseball for a month or more," said Yankees owner George Steinbrenner. "It was great to see those kids playing their hearts out against us."

Angels 5, Reds 0
Bobby Grich, who suffered a broken finger a week before the strike began, drove in two runs with a solo homer and an RBI single. Six California pitchers — Geoff Zahn, Ken Forsch, Mike Witt, Steve Renko, Andy Hassler and Don Aase — combined on a two-hitter before a crowd of 11,489 at Anaheim Stadium.

ARNER-IZED — Cleveland Indians' Duane Kuiper loses the ball in a collision at second base with Pirates Phil Garner during Friday night's exhibition game in Pittsburgh. Garner was taking second after hitting a second inning single to center that scored two runs and tied the game at 2-2.

Umpires now enter labor dispute

By the Associated Press

Baseball, having finally settled a 50-day player strike and trying to fly around the country despite the air traffic controllers' strike, now faces another labor dispute.

Umpires and the American and National league officials are "light years apart" from a new agreement, according to Richie Phillips, counsel for the Major League Umpires Association.

Phillips, however, discounted earlier reports that the umpires might boycott Sunday's All-Star Game in Cleveland. He said he will meet with the umpires today and that he expects them to be on the field Sunday.

A new agreement between baseball and the umpires was necessitated by the owners adding a new tier of playoffs with the split-season concept.

According to Phillips, the league presidents want four-man umpiring crews to work the mini-playoffs for $4,000 per man.

Phillips wants six umpires assigned, the same as league championships and World Series crews, and he wants them paid $6,500 plus 10 percent of the gross revenues from the first three games of each series.

Globe sets production of 'Candida' Oct. 16

Bernard Shaw's warm and witty comedy, "Candida" has been slated for production at Odessa's Globe of the Great Southwest October 16, 17, 18, 23, and 24 under the direction of Donna Lee Crabtree.

"Candida," one of Shaw's most popular plays, tells the story of a woman who must choose between her husband, Rev. Morell, an adoring, "liberal" minded minister, and March Banks, a young poet infatuated by older women. Candida's surprise choice, to bestow her love on the "weaker" man, astonished both suitors and made theatre history.

Written and first produced in 1894 in London, the surprise ending of "Candida" has been discussed and debated through 85 years of stage history. It ranks with Nora's shocking door-slaming exit at the end of Henrik Ibsen's "A Doll's House" in terms of the controversy it created among playgoers of the period.

While both "A Doll's House" and "Candida" deal with strong-willed women making difficult choices, Shaw's play addresses the subject using a light comic approach filled with Shaw's sparkling wit and perplexing paradoxes. "Candida" is a warm and highly humorous play which will surprise audiences with unusual twists and turns in action while calling into question some basic assumptions about love and marriage.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF CONCURRENCE

The Public Utility Commission requires that members notified of the Cooperative's concurrence with certain rates which might be approved by the PUC for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. These rates are covered by contracts with Bell, and should the PUC grant rate increases requested by Bell charges would automatically increase to members with those services.

Due to a recent request by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. for rate increases and the fact that WEST-TEX TELEPHONE COOPERATIVE, INC., of Stanton, Texas, concurs in Southwestern Bell's tariffs for private-line, X-Type, WATS, and long distance, there exists a possibility that the Public Utility Commission may change those rates. Southwestern Bell has requested a change in private-line rates, but has not requested a change in long distance or WATS rates. The Public Utility Commission though may decide to change them. This notice is circulated by our company so that you, our customers, may be aware of the possibility that the rates may be changed. This notice is given in accordance with the Staff Policy of the Texas Public Utility Commission. 0629 August 9, 16, 23 & 30, 1981

Comanche Peak's operating license bid date set by NRC

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) has set Dec. 2, 1981 for the start of the first public hearing on Comanche Peak's operating license application. The time and location of the hearing will be announced at a later date. It is expected to be held in the Dallas-Fort Worth area or in the vicinity of the plant, being built near Glen Rose.

An NRC-appointed Atomic Safety and Licensing Board will conduct the hearing. Issues scheduled for consideration by the board include radiation, emergency planning, cost-benefit and quality assurance.

In another matter, the NRC, in a recent inspection of the Comanche Peak nuclear plant, found work to be satisfactory in the activities inspected.

The inspection took place during May and June and involved 154 inspector-hours by one NRC inspector.

Work was found to be satisfactory in the following areas:

- Overall construction progress and activities.
- Protection of major installed equipment.
- Safety-related piping installation and welding.
- Electrical and instrument installations.

The inspection report also includes follow-up reports on actions taken to resolve problems or questions arising out of previous inspections. The inspector indicated he is satisfied with:

- Work done to identify pipes that might have thinner walls than allowable and to repair those that are found.
- Work done to redesign the heating, ventilating and air conditioning (HVAC) system which serves the AC converters and DC battery charger rooms to ensure the system keeps those areas properly cooled under all circumstances.
- Steps taken to determine whether all concrete anchor bolts used to secure HVAC structures to buildings are of proper length and replacement of any found to be inadequate.
- Inspections of linkage rods in the emergency diesel generator engines and a subsequent determination that the linkage system is acceptable.

A determination that Comanche Peak's design includes sufficient backup systems to prevent a potential problem of pump damage reported by Westinghouse as being possible under certain circumstances.

New Hughes will is called a hoax

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Martha Graves says she "couldn't believe it" when she found a will purported to be that of the late Howard Hughes, and lawyers involved in litigation of the reclusive billionaire's estate say they don't believe it either.

Ms. Graves, who said she found the will among the belongings of her late boss, Los Angeles attorney Earl Hightower, presented the document Friday at a hearing before Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Ronald Swearingin. Hightower died 18 months before Hughes.

"I couldn't believe it was valid and I didn't know what to do," she said, adding that she "felt I had a hot potato." Unfortunately, Ms. Graves told the court, the carbon copy she found was lost when the briefcase in which she was carrying it accidentally was checked on a flight to Dallas and lost en route. All she had was a Xerox copy.

Ms. Graves said she came upon the will July 17 when she dug into a storage box left in her care when Hightower's office closed in 1975. She had been a secretary in his firm.

Wealthy rancher formally charged in 3-year smuggling investigation

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — A three-year federal investigation into the "Cowboy Mafia" — a group that allegedly planned to smuggle more than 100 tons of marijuana into the United States — has resulted in the indictment of millionaire rancher Rex Cauble.

Cauble, 67, of Denton, was indicted Friday on 3 counts of racketeering and seven counts of bank fraud and embezzlement by a federal grand jury in Tyler.

The former Texas Aeronautics Commission member, flanked by his attorneys, Roy Minton of Austin and G. Brockett Irwin of Longview, was released after posting the $250,000 bond set by U.S. Magistrate Roger Sanders.

"I am innocent and I will be vindicated in court," Cauble told reporters as he left the federal courthouse Shevan. He and his attorneys declined further comment on the indictment.

The federal panel returned the indictments about 11 a.m. Friday after Thursday hearing testimony from two associates of Cauble and a review of the evidence into drug smuggling along the Texas Gulf Coast by U.S. Attorney David Baugh.

Three counts of the indictment accuse Cauble of racketeering. Each carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $25,000 fine. The seven other counts, which include charges of bank fraud and embezzlement, are punishable by prison terms of five years and fines of $10,000.

The first count alleges that Cauble and his company, Cauble Enterprise

Inc., conspired to carry out racketeering activity affecting interstate and foreign trade.

He is accused of conspiring to smuggle 212,000 pound of high-grade marijuana from Colombia to the Texas cities of High Island, Port Arthur and Orange.

The 40-page indictment also alleges that Cauble embezzled more than $147,000 from the Western State Bank of Denton and the South Main Bank of Houston.

Cauble owns controlling interest in those banks and in Dallas International Bank.

In the early 1970s, Cauble's wealth was estimated at $75 million. He has several ranches, including a 14,000-acre operation he owns jointly with State District Judge Byron Matthews of Fort Worth.

A&M administrators criticize publicity

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A state district judge is expected to decide on Monday whether Texas A&M University must furnish names of candidates for college president to a newspaper.

College officials testified Friday that surrendering the list would jeopardize applicants' present jobs and an institution's search for a top administrator.

"You just don't find unemployed college presidents," said Kenneth Ashworth, state commissioner of higher education.

The Bryan Eagle has filed suit against Texas A&M to force the college to divulge the list of nominees and applicants it is using in its search for a new president. Attorney General Mark White has ruled the complete initial list must be disclosed to the newspaper, but A&M officials have refused to comply.

Ashworth, A&M System Chancellor Frank Hubert and Duane Leach, chancellor of the University System of South Texas, all testified before Judge Jerry Dellana that the selection process must remain secret.

Of 400 names submitted to the A&M search committee, it forwarded 35 names to university regents. The panel spent $96,000 in the selection process.

"There would be numerous highly qualified candidates for the position who, if their names were divulged, would immediately withdraw," said Hubert.

The withdrawals would be caused by fears of causing an uncomfortable situation at the university where the applicant is employed, he said.

The situation could be worse if the applicant does not get the job, he said.

"If you come home a loser from a presidential search, it puts you in jeopardy," he said.

Leach said, "It raises a question of loyalty and dedication."

Attorney Jim George, representing the Bryan Eagle, said an Austin newspaper printed stories about the final candidates for the presidency of the University of Texas at Austin. George asked Ashworth if those stories caused any problems.

The place to see.

BIG SPRING, TEXAS AUGUST 9, 1981

Carol Morehead vies for title

BY TINA MILLER

A Big Spring girl will be among the 101 contestants from across the state who will compete in the 1982 Miss Texas USA Pageant Monday evening. The pageant will air live from the El Paso Civic Center Theater at 8 p.m. on CBS.

Among the contestants who will compete for cash and prizes worth more than $50,000 is Carol Morehead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Morehead, 704 Highland. Carol won the opportunity to compete in the state pageant by winning the Miss Howard College pageant in October, 1980.

"I attended Howard College because I wasn't quite ready to go away to college," she said. "It's a great place to go. The teachers are good and they care. I think it's helped me prepare for a four-year college."

Carol travelled to El Paso, accompanied by her mother and sister, Aug. 2, to participate in a week of preliminary activities and competition. "We will be busy during the week rehearsing the opening number for the pageant, being fitted for costumes and taking part in tours and other activities." Among the week's activities are a restaurant tour, a tour of an Indian Reservation, playing volleyball for charity and attending an outdoor play. The schedule is hectic, particularly the day of the pageant. "I thought we would get to sleep late and rest for the pageant," Carol said. "But we have to be at rehearsal at 9 a.m. and don't get to eat till 1 p.m. We eat again at 4:30, and have to be back to the Civic Center at 6 p.m. to warmup and get ready for the pageant at 8 p.m."

Pageants aren't new to the petite redhead. She was named Little Miss Big Spring in 1972 and Miss Diamondback in 1979. "I like being on stage, because it's fun," she said. "But I don't 'live' for pageant competition like some of the girls do." Though Carol admits that pageants are not for everyone, she believes that they are helpful in many ways. "I believe that pageants can help you learn to present yourself the way you want to be known," she stated, "and they can build your confidence."

She disagrees with those who are against beauty pageants because they exploit women. "The pageants aren't based only on beauty," she stated. "You have to be intelligent, aware of current events and have a good personality."

Carol has gained confidence and believes she has a good chance of winning. "I think I'm a little too short," she said, "but my red hair is an advantage because it stands out, and I also talk easily with people." Excitement best describes her emotions toward the pageant. "I look forward to meeting new people and wearing all those beautiful clothes," she said, "and I also look forward to the interview with the judges. The questions the judges asked us at the HCPageant were hard, so I've really been trying to keep up with world events."

Pageants aren't all glamour, however, and there is a great deal of work and preparation involved. Carol has been preparing for the event all summer by shopping, sewing, exercising, dieting and getting a good suntan. "I didn't realize how much work would be involved in getting ready for the pageant," she remarked. "My family has really helped me with their moral support."

Carol's hobbies are swimming, sewing, golfing, talking and stained glass. Her future plans include attending Texas Tech University this fall and majoring in Business Management. She also plans to return to the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, where she has been a note taker. "The deaf students can't watch the teacher and take notes at the same time," she explained, "so they need people to take notes for them. I enjoy sign language, and I might become an interpreter or a teacher for the deaf."

While in El Paso, the contestants will stay in the dorms on the campus of the University of Texas at El Paso. Each girl will share a room with another contestant and will only be allowed to see family members and friends at specified times. "We will each be assigned a sponsor," Carol said. "My mother and sister will go with me, but I won't get to see them much." In addition to her mother and sister, Carol's father and grandmother will lend their moral support by attending both the preliminary show, which was held Saturday night, and the pageant itself.

At Saturday's preliminaries, the judges selected the 15 semi-finalists, but will not announce their names until after the parade of cities at Monday's pageant. Also selected Saturday were Miss Photogenic, Miss Amity and the Swimsuit Winner. These winners will also be announced Monday evening. Monday's competition includes swimsuit, evening gown and personality interview. There is no talent competition in the Miss Texas USA, Miss USA or Miss Universe Pageants.

Special guests at the pageant will include Irene Saez Conde, the newly crowned Miss Universe from Venezuela; Kim Seelbrede, the reigning Miss USA; Diana Durnford, Miss Texas USA; and Cindy Kerbey, Miss California USA.

Even though Carol thinks she has a chance at winning the Miss Texas USA title, she realizes that there are 100 other girls who also have a chance. And what will she do if she wins? "I'm afraid I'll just faint."

ELEGANCE — This is the dress Carol will wear in the evening gown competition Monday evening. The dress is blue, accented by rhinestones.

Genealogical Society lends help to searchers

By MICKIE DICKSON

Sparked by the TV spectacular "Roots" in 1978, interest in family origins has escalated into a national pastime.

Help in tracing ancestry is available locally from members of the Genealogical Society of Big Spring, Inc. The purpose of the society is to help searchers untie knots and encourage them in tracing family histories. The fun is in doing the research yourself.

A data work sheet, an ancestor chart, books and other helps are available through the society in the genealogical room of the Howard County Library, where the society meets the second Thursday of each month at 7:15 p.m.

Officers of the society are Mamie Roberts, president; Christine Horn, first vice-president; Mark Terry, second vice-president; Stella Arnold, secretary; Margaret Barnett, treasurer; Beth Kay, historian and reporter; and Nadine Hodnett, chairman of the telephone committee. The society will have a membership drive in September. The annual dues of $4 are used to purchase books for the genealogical section of the library.

Margaret Barnett, 1801 State, treasurer, said, "Finding family connections is generally 50 percent luck. I have had a lot of good luck tracing mine, and I have been able to go back to Thomas Gould, born about 1455. The name changed through the years from Gowlie to Goolie to Gould.

Mrs. Barnett said there are many ways to trace an ancestor. The first step is to prove the parents, then the grandparents. Each grandparent provides another set of grandparents, doubling with each generation and providing material for a lifetime of research.

"If the grandparent is not known, write relatives or friends who might provide a lead. Check church records, census records, newspapers, cemeteries, court records and follow every thread of evidence, as no two trails are alike," said Mrs. Barnett. "Wear high boots when checking old cemeteries as protection from stickers and chiggers," she said.

Many genealogical publications are helpful for research and direction, some are in the public library. Larger newspapers have regular genealogy columns. For instance, a "Handy Book for Genealogists" which contains every county in the United States, tells what information is available from each county clerk, usually for a $2 fee. Books in the genealogy collection cannot be checked out, but are available for public use at the library. "Midland and Odessa have excellent genealogical libraries," said Mrs. Barnett.

"Searchers gain information by joining genealogical societies and receiving their bulletins or quarterlies in counties they are interested in," said Marie Hale, 2309 Lynn Dr. She sometimes writes 100 letters a month in tracing her family history.

"Signal Peak" was the newsletter published by the local society monthly until a year ago. Plans are to begin publishing it again on a quarterly basis beginning this fall.

Another source of information is the Genealogy Society Library of the World at Salt Lake City. Latter Day Saints of Jesus Christ, because of their doctrine of being baptized for the dead, are intensely interested in genealogy. High in the Rocky Mountains of Western North America, LDS have constructed a storage facility out of a solid granite mountain in which to store microfilms of court records from around the world. The church is engaged in one of the most active and comprehensive genealogical programs ever known, according to Christine Horn.

The library has 100 years of the London Times alone stored in two drawers.

Items are loaned to the local LDS churches, where any searcher who wishes can view them. There are numerous branch genealogy libraries and stake libraries. The LDS churches are called wards, stakes or branches according to the church census in each area. The stake library at Odessa was broken into Tuesday evening and set afire. The nearest LDS library is now at Lubbock.

Most genealogical research by members of the Big Spring society is done by mail. However, some travel to cemeteries, sites of family residences and to relatives homes. Bill Steagold, 905 E. 16th, has made a number of trips to Tennessee, for instance.

Each year the society shares a booth at the Howard County Fair with the Daughters of the American Revolution, another organization interested in genealogy.

The next meeting of the society will be Thursday at 7:15 p.m. Judith Gray, librarian, will speak on the services available at the library. The public is invited.

LDS LIBRARY STORAGE MOUNTAIN — Millions of pages of the world's vital court records, newspapers, histories, biographies and other genealogical records are stored in this granite mountain in the Rocky Mountains. The records are first microfilmed, a photographic reproduction process, then stored in this vault. Nearly 300 feet of solid granite is above the vault's laboratory and office area and 700 feet above the six huge vault storage rooms. Extremely heavy bank vault doors weighing 9 tons and 14 tons each, guard the three access tunnels to the vaults.

MRS. LARRY C. ASHLOCK

Vows are exchanged on Baylor campus

Miller Chapel at Baylor University, Waco, was the setting for the Saturday evening wedding of Shawna Raye Henry and Larry C. Ashlock.

Vows were exchanged before an altar arrangement of peach and white summer flowers flanked by candleabra garlanded with jade foliage. Dr. Presnal H. Wood, editor of the Baptist Standard, officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Henry, 1707 Purdie and Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Ashlock, Houston.

Larry Wheat, Fort Worth, performed traditional wedding selections at the organ. Mrs. Terry Newman, Midland, accompanied Ken Huggins, Dallas, vocalist, at the piano. Milton Cunningham, Dallas, also sang and played the guitar.

The bride, accompanied down the aisle by her father, was attired in her mother's wedding gown. The gown was a floor-length creation of candlelight peau de soie, fashioned with a fitted yoke of re-embroidered Alencon lace. Simple lines of the full skirt were enhanced by hand-applied panels of Alencon lace, featuring a bustle back which fell to a chapel-length train.

The sleeves, which were full at the shoulders, tapered to points over the wrists. The lace bandeau with seed pearls, held the candlelight chapel-length veil of illusion accented with Alencon lace.

The cascading, crescent-shaped bridal bouquet of white orchids, stephanotis and baby's breath, completed the bridal attire.

Tradition was observed by the bride wearing the wedding dress worn by her mother as something old, the new veil, pearls borrowed from her mother and a blue garter. The bride also wore a sixpense in her shoe.

Lyn Garner, Lubbock, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Leslie Sherman, Houston; Carolyn Martin, Waco; Suzanne Johnson, Midland; and Mrs. Jay Jeffry, Waco. Junior

Episcopal candlelight ceremony unites couple

Saint Mary's Episcopal Church was the setting for the Saturday evening wedding of Ann Marie Clark and John Robert Senter. The eight o'clock rite was performed by the Rev. David Bristow, pastor.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fryar, Sterling City Rt., and Mr. and Mrs. J.P. Senter, Lamesa.

The couple exchanged vows before an altar decorated by vases of Sonja roses, pink gladiolus, baby's breath and smilax. Brass candleabra flanked the altar setting. Wedding music was performed by Bobby Bradshaw, vocalist, accompanied by Gene Adkins, organist.

The bride chose to wear a formal-length gown of white silk organza, veiled over peau de soie. The gown featured Venice lace encrusted with pearls, a scalloped portrait neckline and long, tapered sleeves. Lace enhanced the empire bodice and pyramid skirt, and bordered the hem of the gown. The unpressed pleats of the skirt swept into a cathedral-length train, and she wore a cathedral-length matilla of English net edged in lace.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of mystery gardenias, stephanotis and small Sonja roses. Baby's breath and maidenhair fern completed the bouquet.

Dr. Woodwin, Del Rio, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Tommy Green, Midland; Mrs. Mark Stiff, Lubbock; Mrs. Mitch Butler, Ruidoso, N.M.; Paige Grisham and Mrs. Kenny Bearden. Kelly Koger, Lamesa, cousin of the groom, was flower girl.

Chuck Senter, Lamesa, brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Gid Ware, Blackwell, Johnny Todd, Lamesa, John Banker, Needville, Mike Edwards, Monahans and Phil Davis, Seagraves. Billy Richard Weaver, Lafayette, La., nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Seating the guests were Bob Clark, Midland, and Lanny Fryar, brothers of the bride, Phillip Koger,

MRS. JOHN ROBERT SENTER

Lamesa, cousin of the groom, and Mike Rowland, Midland, cousin of the bride. Candles for the ceremony were lighted by Kimberly Koger, Lamesa, cousin of the groom.

Following the ceremony, the couple was honored with a reception at the Big Spring Country Club. The bride's table, covered with a white chiffon cloth, was centered by gold candleabra adorned with flowers. The table featured an Italian Creme cake in four separated tiers. The cake as decorated by fresh flowers and greenery, and the base was lighted. Brass appointments were used.

The groom's table was covered by a nectarine-colored chiffon cloth and centered by a brass wine cooler holding an arrangement of green grapes and rust orchid lilies. A brass tray held a chocolate cake, decorated with grapes and greenery. Coffee was served from an antique brass service.

Punch and champagne tables were covered with nectarine-colored cloths and decorated with garlands of smilax and roses. Brass appointments were used. A dance followed the reception.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and attended Howard College. She is currently attending Sul Ross State University, Alpine.

The groom is a graduate of Lamesa High School and is also attending Sul Ross University. He is also engaged in farming. Following a wedding trip to Colorado, the couple will make their home in Alpine.

Insurance is more for over 65 in spite of driving performance

Persons over age 65 frequently must buy auto insurance through the assigned risk pool, which is a costlier alternative than regular rates, a Texas State Board of Insurance study has found. However, studies have shown better driving performance by drivers over age 65 than by those between the ages of 25 and 64, according to Nancy Granovsky, a family resource management specialist. Mrs. Granovsky is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Baptist rite unites couple in Odessa

Rebecca Marie Fleming and Danny James Chapman exchanged wedding vows in an evening ceremony June 13 at Northside Baptist Church, Odessa.

The 8 p.m. rite was performed before spiral candelabra enhanced with greenery and a large basket of gladiolas. Rev. W.I. Lee, pastor, officiated.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Patricia Fleming and Robert Fleming, Odessa. Mr. and Mrs. Clydel Chapman, Odessa, are the groom's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Arvin Hart, 500 Aylford and W.B. Chapman, Eubanks Rd., are grandparents of the bridegroom.

Charles Fleming performed wedding selections accompanied by Margie McLell at the piano, and Clydel Chapman was accompanied on the organ by Margaret Spradley.

The bride, accompanied down the aisle by her grandfather, Q.E. Simpson, Odessa, chose to wear a traditional bouffant style gown of candlelight Chantilly lace and silk tulle over ivory satin. The sheer yoke and wedding ring neckline were framed with lace motifs and highlighted with bridal pearls. The long, fitted lace sleeves had petite point cuffs. The skirt was overlaid with an apron of Chantilly lace, draping into a bustle in the back which flowed into a cathedral-length train of silk tulle. The fingertip veil of Brussels lace, which was her grandmother's, fell from a Juliet cap.

The bridal bouquet of peach and white silk roses completed the ensemble.

Displaying Gifts of Money

Brides who plan to display their wedding gifts often ask how they should treat gifts of money. Here at the ACCENT SHOPPE, we advise you to write the amount of each check on a separate, plain white card, without the name of the donor. The cards may then be included with the display of other wedding gifts. Occasionally the checks themselves are laid out, one above the other, so that the signatures show but the amount does not. Both of these methods are tactful ways of showing those who gave you money that their gifts are not being neglected.

Better Business Bureau warns against phony discount schemes

When is a discount not a discount? All too often, warns the Better Business Bureau, noting the increase of complaints over "phony discount cards". Becoming aware of how they work may help many avoid getting caught by this scheme.

Most discounts and discount card plans are honest and legitimate, such as the Midland Gold Service Discount Program. They are a valid marketing tool for the merchant and an opportunity for the customer to save. But some unscrupulous businessmen have taken advantage of the goodwill created by these discount systems and twisted them into schemes.

Usually, the scheme begins with a letter to consumers, informing them that they have been specially selected and, therefore, eligible to receive certain merchandise at a huge discount. The amount of the discount is frequently in the form of a "check," a certificate or a special card. In fact, the person receiving the letter could be one of millions who were mailed the offer.

Other versions that have gained results, unfortunately, are letters to high school seniors, college graduates, and newlyweds. The offer may suggest that they were selected because of their excellent school records or their "standing in the community." Students and newlyweds are targeted because they are less experienced shoppers and less likely to see through the scheme.

However "selected," the prospective customer would then be offered to test and keep or simply to buy merchandise at a huge discount. In documented instances of this scheme, sewing machines and stainless steel cookware have been among the items offered at so-called reduced prices.

The "discounts" are so high that most shoppers would be skeptical if they encountered such an "opportunity" in a store. That's why the idea of being specially selected is used. It tends to dispel doubts, so more people take advantage of a one-time-only chance.

But who is taking advantage of whom? In cases examined by the BBB, no basis was found for the prices that the letters claim the merchandise is worth.

perceived item somewhere else and had it immediately at a lower price, without a discount. Not all offers that arrive in the mail or by telephone are fraudulent. But be sure to take steps to check out any such "special" offer before spending any money. Find out the reliability record of any company before buying, advises the Better Business Bureau. And shop around to verify that the offer is truly a good deal. Remember, the most effective means of consumer protection from deception is information, education and awareness.

While misleading savings are the main problem with this scheme, it also has a history of consumer complaints for late delivery or non-delivery. The person who has already paid in full may wait many weeks for the merchandise to arrive by mail. All too often, he or she could have bought a
