'The folks at City Hall'

Elliott Mitchell moved from lions to law

This is the third installment in a daily Herald series entitled, "The folks at City Hall." The series is about the people who run Big Spring; who they are, where they came from, their function within the city government. Profiles so far have covered City Manager Don Davis, Assistant City Manager Paul Feazelle, and (today), City Attorney Elliott Mitchell. Tomorrow we'll take a look at Housing and Community Development Director Bill Hall.

Staff Writer

"You are Extraordinary," reads the title of a paperback resting on City Attorney Elliott Mitchell's desk. As an attorney, Mitchell is indeed extraordinary; his resume, for example, lists classical Greek civilization, tour motorcycling and raising and training African lions as his interests.

But more on that later. What you should know right from the start is that an interview with 28-year-old Mitchell is a slow, methodical cat-and-mouse game in which the attorney will not allow himself to be cornered. Ask a question and Mitchell lapses into several seconds of deep thought before answering. Maybe he'll jot the answer down on his yellow legal pad to see how it sounds in his head before he speaks it.

His conversation is peppered with lots of phrases like "back up" and "let me rephrase that" and an occasional "you're not really gonna print that, are you?"

A shrewd and cautious legal eagle like this is definitely the sort of ace you want on your side, whether you're John Doe with a little civil matter to settle or a city of 25,000 people with a collective will to be carried out.

"I'm the city's legal department," Mitchell says as he starts to describe his City Hall function. "I advise the city (department) directors and members of the council — no, let's back up. As directed by the city manager and city council, I will from time to time render advice."

"In addition to that, I do the day-to-day drafting of all legal documents — for oil and gas leases, easements, contracts with other government agencies such as the county, and so on.

"I also prosecute cases in municipal court each week. Every Wednesday at 1:30 is when all the traffic cases and municipal ordinance violations are heard," he finishes.

A vital but humdrum job? Perhaps — but it does have its extraordinary moments.

"One of the more exciting moments was when we were negotiating with the Houston law firm representing Western Container for a lease out at the Industrial Park (in 1980). It was exciting because we were working against a deadline. It was also exciting because I was working with a high-quality Houston law firm," Mitchell recalls.

Was it sort of like stepping up to bat in the major leagues? Well yes. Mitchell came to Big Spring fresh from passing his Texas bar exams and earning his law degree from St. Mary's in San Antonio. As he daily guides the city through its intricate path of indemnity, he gains valuable experience.

What was it about the legal world that attracted Mitchell to its ranks?

"You have to look at the alternatives. Very few occupations give you the opportunity — let me rephrase that. I knew I wanted to be in a profession that would always challenge me, that would keep me from stagnating as a person."

He found such a profession when he became an attorney. But how about this business of training African lions — there's no challenge in that? Mitchell hedges on discussing the matter. He listed that on his resume when he was just out of college and looking for a job. Lion taming and classical Greek and tour motorcycling aren't his interests anymore, he claims.

Another thing in Elliott's past that got crowded out as the legal profession became more time-consuming was a brief filing with politics. In between law school and gaining employment at Big Spring City Hall, Mitchell worked as an aide for a state representative in Austin. Was it possible that he might have put aside his legal ambitions for a desk in the smoke-filled back rooms of the state capitol, where the laws are not interpreted but made?

"I suppose it was a good thing," he says of his stint in the legislature. "But it was a little dull. My primary function was to collect all the bills that were introduced to assess their impact on our district. I had to reduce each bill to a three or four-paragraph synopsis. I had to do this with every bill that was introduced that session."

Lucky for Mitchell he heard from Big Spring before too many bills crossed his desk; in a legislature known for introducing as many as 900 bills per session, he could have been buried under a Texas-sized blizzard of paperwork.

By now, Mitchell has warmed to the interview and no longer asks the visitor to "back up" so the attorney can phrase his responses in the exacting, persuasive fashion which attorneys are known for. The quotes are pouring out as rich and fast as molasses. Asked if he finds himself in a profession which is on the cutting edge of society, guiding society into its changes, he replies: "A legal system is kind of like the lubricant for a society. The success of our society depends on having a well-organized and competent legal force."

Is there too much litigation in American society? "That's like asking is there too much war. Any amount is too much, but it's inevitable. Society needs to evolve and the best way to accomplish that is through our legal system."

Would he like to someday handle a case that develops into one of those landmark court issues which help society change? He indicates he is satisfied handling the "rank-and-file" cases "that have their own impact."

"A landmark decision may be front-wheel drive compared to rear-wheel drive, but the object is to get down the road," he says. And what lies down the road for Mitchell himself?

CITY ATTORNEY ELLIOTT MITCHELL

"I'd like to be a trial attorney," he says. "Some day I intend to establish a private practice."

In Austin?

"Austin's saturated with lawyers, so it's not a very good market."

Somewhere where there might be an occasional African lion to whip into shape? Hey, did he really once upon a time raise and train African lions, as his resume says he did?

"I raised one," he says shyly. Case closed.

BIG SPRING VISITORS — Mary and Robert O'Neill are visiting Big Spring this month. The couple live in Antrim, Ireland, and made the trip to the states on Saturday.

While in Big Spring, the pair will stay with Mrs. O'Neill's cousin, Father James Delaney of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

No trouble in home town

West Texas sun one of reasons Irish couple visits Big Spring

The West Texas sun and West Texas hospitality are two reasons Robert and Mary O'Neill of Antrim, Ireland, like to visit Big Spring.

The couple is here now, staying with Mrs. O'Neill's cousin, Father James Delaney of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church. The O'Neills have been in Big Spring four times, and say they love to make the trip here from their native Ireland.

Antrim, located in northern Ireland, is "17 miles from Belfast," explained O'Neill. Violence has rocked Belfast frequently during the past several years, but "Antrim is very peaceful. There is no trouble at all in the community. Community relations are very good," O'Neill said.

"I don't have to tell you that this doesn't apply all over Northern Ireland," he added.

Certain sections of the cities of Belfast and Derry, and areas around the border of the Republic of Ireland have been subject to violence between Protestant and Catholic paramilitarists, said O'Neill, that it is "a 50-50 situation" in terms of instigating the violence.

"It is a political problem" more than a religious one, O'Neill said. "The Catholics want to see a united Ireland, and the protestants want to see a rule from Britain."

But, even though the couple lives only 17 miles from Belfast, "we don't feel the tension," said O'Neill. "If I traveled to Belfast, I would be apprehensive, depending on the area of town" traveled in, he explained. Belfast is a city of about 200,000 people.

In Antrim, the nearby violence "doesn't interfere with our daily routine." Catholics and protestants there, "I have a very good relationship."

O'Neill has his own opinions on why violence occurs in the nearby city, but not in his town. People in the city, he reasoned, "are more deprived."

The O'Neills turned their attention away from Northern Ireland and explained why they like to visit Texas.

"I feel very relaxed here," said O'Neill. "The people are very friendly." Mrs. O'Neill said the couple, who arrived Saturday, plan to stay here for one month before returning home.

Father Delaney, whom the couple is visiting, has been in Big Spring since 1969, said Mrs. O'Neill. She explained that her father and Father Delaney's mother were brother and sister, and that the cousins "practically grew up together" in Ireland.

Father Delaney "has spent most of his pastoral life in Texas," added Mrs. O'Neill.

While in Texas, Mrs. O'Neill said "I want to get a suntan. You don't get a suntan in Ireland." O'Neill explained "we've had a very, very bad summer, with lots of rain."

But, things in their homeland "are very green," he added. "You can't have everything."

Council picks student leaders for new council

Winston Wrinkle, president of the board of directors for the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, has announced the names of students who will serve on the Big Spring Area Student Involvement Council this year.

The council, sponsored by the chamber, is made up of outstanding leaders in the junior and senior class of Big Spring, Forsan, Coahoma, and Sands high schools, he said. Based on size of the school, each high school is allotted a number of student representatives.

The students will serve on various working committees for the Chamber, local governments, and other community action groups. "They will contribute their talents, ideas, and abilities in the further development and improvement of the community," Wrinkle said. "Thus, while the high school students are becoming aware through their community involvement, the business and professional leadership can develop greater lines of communication with the young people."

Chosen to serve this year are:

Big Spring High Seniors:

- Joe Arispe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Arispe
- Joni Avery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Avery
- Patrick Connelly, son of Mrs. Jean Connelly

- Johnny Hatch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Duncan

- Glenda Kohl, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Carroll Kohl

- Kathryn Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Martin

- Brenda Salazar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Salazar

- Michelle Torres, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Torres

- Keith Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Walker

Big Spring High Juniors

- Teresa Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Alexander

- Melissa Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Brown

- Bret Crenweige, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Crenweige

- Kim Grant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Grant

- Patricia Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Jones

- Jamie Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Phillips

- Amy Ragan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ragan

- Alan Trevino, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Trevino, Jr.

- Keat Wilkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Wilkins

Coahoma High Seniors

- Robin Ethridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rob Ethridge

- Brad Grandon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Grandon

Coahoma High Juniors

- Kathi Wallis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wallis

- Mark Woolverton, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Woolverton

Forsan High Seniors

- Bruce Dennis, smn of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dennis

- Randall McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale McDonald

Forsan High Juniors

- Tiffany Donaghe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morrison Donaghe

- Phillip Harrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rayford Harrison

Sands High School Senior

- Brandon Iden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Iden

An organizational meeting of the group was held Monday evening at which time, according to the by-laws, two officers were chosen by the group to serve for the coming year to coordinate all the BASIC activities and involvements. Chosen were Joni Avery of Big Spring High and Randall McDonald of Forsan High.

The chamber urges all Community Action groups to call 263-1451 or 263-1753 to get information about having these students serve on other community committees or having one of these students speak to an organization.

Fed judge blocks paraphernalia law

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A federal judge today blocked enforcement of a new state law against sales of drug paraphernalia — at least in Dallas and Tarrant counties.

U.S. District Judge David O. Belew Jr. still was hearing arguments late this morning before deciding whether the temporary restraining order would apply to the entire state.

The law was scheduled to go into effect today. Both police and "head shop" owners have said the statute is vague and difficult to enforce.

Unruly Haitians back at prison

The five unruly Haitians who were being kept in the Midland City Jail for causing a disturbance at the Big Spring Federal Prison were returned to the prison Monday, said John Allman, superintendent.

"We observed them at their hearing and they were quite calm, and I think they realized they were better off here than at Midland," said Allman.

The Haitians spent 12 days in the Midland jail while prison officials debated the situation. Allman said he believes the Haitians acted up because of the slow pace the exclusion hearings.

"The Haitians now realize that it isn't the prison's fault" that the hearings take so long, and they have decided they were wrong to do what they did," said Allman.

The five Haitians were separated from the rest of the inmates for running off from a scheduled recreation period and shoving a guard.

Action/reaction: Who's watching?

Q. There was a half-hour show about dancing girls on around the same time "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley" are on. Scott Baio was in it and was always chasing girls. Can you tell me the name of the show? It was a wretched thing titled "Who's Watching the Kids?" and NBC had it for several weeks in the fall of 1980.

Tops on TV: 'The Family Man'

At 8 p.m. on NBC a rerun of "The Eagle Has Landed" is being shown. The World War II drama concerns a German attempt to kidnap Sir Winston Churchill and force the allies into a peace treaty. The star-studded show has Michael Caine, Robert Duvall, Donald Sutherland. For those who not interested in Germans or World War II, CBS is presenting "The Family Man" starring Ed Asner as a happily married man who falls in love with a lovely young woman. Meredith Baxter Birney also stars. The movie starts at 8 p.m.

Court decides redistricting proposal unconstitutional

Ruling may remove pairing of Shaw, Heatly in same district

By DANA PALMER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Supreme Court Monday doubled the work load of the State Redistricting Board by declaring unanimously that the Texas House of Representatives reapportionment plan is inconsistent and unconstitutional.

In its written opinion, the court said the House proposal unnecessarily splits county lines across the state, including those in Erath, El Paso and 10 other counties.

The job of redrawing the House districts now goes to the State Redistricting Board made up of House Speaker Bill Clayton, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Attorney General Mark White, Comptroller Bob Bullock and state Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong.

Board members already had planned to meet Thursday afternoon to begin revamping a Senate redistricting plan vetoed by Gov. Bill Clements.

Clayton called the ruling "unfortunate" and referred to the invalidated plan as a "good-faith effort of the House membership to create a reasonable, equitable plan in accordance with the one man-one vote principle and the Texas Constitution."

He added in a written statement that as a member of the redistricting board, he believes the final plan will closely resemble the one declared unconstitutional, though it will use the Supreme Court decision "as a guideline."

In finding fault with the plan, the court noted that it doesn't treat all the counties the same.

The decision did not directly apply to the immediate Abilene area, but a rippling effect from Erath, El Paso, Potter and Tarrant counties might knock out the delicate balance of population districts in the area.

In particular, the ruling easily could cause a shift that would remove the pairing of Larry Don Shaw of Big Spring and Bill Heatly of Paducah in the same district.

Shaw is a freshman and Heatly is dean of the House.

Monday's 9-0 opinion, in effect, upholds a July ruling by Austin District Judge Harley Clark and reaffirms a Texas Supreme Court decision that struck down a 1971 House redistricting plan for "wholesale cutting" of county lines.

Austin attorney David Richards, who represented a small group of state representatives and citizens objecting to the House plan, noted that the Supreme Court said in essence that "if you're going to do a (redistricting) job at least be consistent."

The court reiterated Richards' argument that "for example, El Paso County's surplus population of 5,619 and Tarrant County's surplus population of 7,716 are removed, while Galveston's surplus population of 6,228 is retained within the county lines."

The ideal population of a House district is 94,856. Any amount remaining after an ideal district is created in a county is considered surplus population.

Such county-line splits, the court said, were not justified since the population deviations from the ideal district were less than the 9.9 percent variation limit set by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1971.

Allowing the population to go above that point, the court said, would cause under-representation. To go below, it added, would cause over-representation in the state legislature.

The state argued that in the case of Erath County, one of three counties with less than sufficient population for a separate district, it still had to split the county in order to comply with the equal representation requirements.

However, the court noted that several plans were presented to the court "which kept the counties intact and resulted in population variances well under 9.9 percent."

In Tarrant County where one district goes outside the county lines, Richards noted, the deviation from an ideal district was less than .84 percent.

Cutting a county line in that case, he said, is totally unnecessary.

"The purpose of the Texas Constitution is to at least put some ground rules out there, and they just didn't follow them," Richards said.

A "disappointed" Richard Gray, the assistant attorney general arguing for the House plan, said the task of meeting the court ruling will be difficult.

"It means that whenever districts are drawn in the future, you're going to have to be darn certain that you draw it in some way that does not cut that county line," Gray said.

That means the redistricting board and future legislatures are going to have to be "exceedingly careful."

No request for a rehearing will be made.

Chief Justice Joe Greenhill noted in a brief comment from the bench Monday afternoon that "in view of the (redistricting board's) time problems ... no motion for rehearing will be entertained."

Board members must complete their work within the next two months.

As promised by Greenhill, the decision came down less than a week after oral arguments were made to the Supreme Court, even though the court usually takes a vacation in August.

Steve Bickerstaff, another attorney representing the state and the House redistricting committee, said although he believes the legislature made a good-faith effort, the redistricting board will have to do an even better job, keeping in mind that any plan it arrives at might also be challenged in court.

"They really did not address the meaning of the constitution to any greater extent than previously existed," he said.

The only point clarified, Bickerstaff said, is that the state should not cut county lines unless absolutely necessary.

How and when it can be done was not answered, he said.

Soviets were killed in Angola fighting

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Soviet soldiers were killed and captured during South Africa's raid on black guerrillas in Angola last week, Defense Minister Magnus Malan announced today.

He said the South African troops took a Soviet warrant officer prisoner, and that Soviet officers were among those killed.

South Africa launched a four-pronged attack into Angola last week in pursuit of guerrillas fighting for independence of South-West Africa, a South African-administered territory that lies between Marxist-ruled Angola and South Africa.

Malan said the South African forces had "come across Russian officers at SWAPO (the guerrilla group) headquarters. During the recent operations some of these Russian officers working together with SWAPO came into contact with us."

Prime Minister P. W. Botha had previously said the South African forces had clashed with the Angolan army. The government has also said Soviet soldiers were staying at SWAPO camps, but fled in advance of the South African forces.

SWAPO, or the South-West African Peoples Organization, has been fighting a low-level bush war for South-West African independence for 15 years from bases in Angola and elsewhere.

Hinckley bail denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Hinckley Jr., awaiting trial on charges of trying to kill President Reagan, was denied his request for bail today by federal district judge Barrington D. Parker.

Federal prosecutors had argued that Hinckley's life could be in danger if he were released on bail.

Stanton council due to award asphalt bids

Members of the Stanton City Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. today to receive, open and consider awarding bids for patching and asphalt surfacing of certain streets.

In other business, the city council will consider the awarding of a bid for garbage pick-up services, and will consider raising the speed limit on West School street.

PTA membership chairmen will meet to plan campaign

PTA membership chairmen will meet Wednesday to begin planning the local PTA membership campaign, according to Shelene Roberts, PTA Council vice president and coordinator of the campaign.

The meeting will be at 1:30 p.m. at Mrs. Roberts' home, 2104 Merrill.

Newly named membership chairmen for Big Spring's PTA units are Debbie Ward, Kentwood; Janet Murley, Marcy; Londa Bradley, Moss and Sandy Griffin, Washington.

The future of PTA at College Heights Elementary is uncertain. With no PTA president, the city's oldest PTA is not yet under way for the current school year.

Persons willing to serve as PTA president, membership chairman, or in other capacities for College Heights PTA should call the school office.

Local firm sues Midland firm

In a petition filed in the suit, the local firm accused the Midland firm of not paying for goods and services rendered. The sum of money being sued for is the amount owed, according to the petition.

Jack Cathey Construction Co. of Big Spring has filed a district court suit against Startex Drilling Co. Inc. of Midland for the sum of $30,479.97, according to court records.

Annual Dawson County Farm Tour scheduled

Flooding kills three in South Texas

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes, heavy rains and flooding claimed three lives as a slow-dying tropical depression saturated a broad swath of South Texas and chased hundreds of rain-soaked residents from their homes.

The storm system, which dumped up to 18 inches of rain across some parts of the low-lying Coastal Plains, continued its east-northeast drift Monday night, spawning at least four tornadoes in the Galveston area and heavy flooding as far east as Houston.

After 16 inches of rain fell on the Coastal Plains town of Shiner, Rocky Creek spilled over its banks, sweeping away a trailer house and killing three brothers trapped inside, officials said.

"I've heard some say the floodwater was higher in 1940 and others say this is worse," said Lavaca County Judge Wibert Roznosky. "I don't give a damn — it's high enough for me."

Officials said Glenn Hights, 17, Johnny Hights, 13, and Bradford Hights, 12, drowned when they were swept out of their mobile home after rescuers tried in vain to reach them before the trailer house broke apart in rushing waters, a LaVaca County deputy said.

"They were yelling for help and we were trying to get across when it began breaking up," said the deputy, who asked not to be identified.

Another brother, Craig Hights, was rescued from a tree, he said.

"We had water here that people who've lived here 75 years said they had never seen it that high," said Justice of the Peace Daniel Peters.

Department of Public Safety officials said two people were reported missing in Hallettsville after flooding chased dozens of residents, including the entire Lavaca County Sheriff's Department, to higher ground when the Lavaca River spilled over its banks.

The National Weather Service reported up to 11 inches of rain in Galveston, where winds were clocked at 77 mph and at least four tornadoes touched down, one ripping away the roof of a downtown movie theatre.

Widespread flooding prompted the evacuation of several people in a downtown district after officials discovered electrical problems and a possible natural gas leak.

But Galveston County sheriff's officials said no major injuries were reported.

A power company official said most telephone service was knocked out because of the severe weather.

A freight ship docked at a Galveston pier broke loose during high winds, tearing away a portion of the dock, said Coast Guard duty officer John Deck.

Earlier Monday, severe flooding was reported in Karnes County where Kenedy Police Chief Johnny Salinas said 600 people were evacuated as water rose in Escondido Creek.

Salinas estimated 250 families lost their belongings. Most were uninsured, he said.

"Everybody we evacuated lost everything they had in their houses. There were three to four feet of water in the homes," Salinas said. "We don't have any flood insurance because we're in a low area. Everybody we talked to has no flood insurance."

Gonzales County Sheriff's dispatcher Tracy Roberts said 200 people were moved from their homes and 200 others rescued from their vehicles Monday after a deluge dropped 16 inches of rain on the area. A dozen families were evacuated in Sequim, where Geronimo Creek charged out of its banks.

Cheapside, a rural Coastal Plains town, reported 18 inches of rain Monday afternoon.

In Houston, where nine inches of rain made city streets impassable, a firefighter delivered a baby girl Monday night after the high water prevented an ambulance from getting to the home in time to take the mother to a hospital.

Diana Roberts, 20, said John C. Musacha, 28, who arrived in a rescue vehicle, helped with the final stages of the birth and cut the umbilical cord.

"I was just glad when they got there," Mrs. Roberts said. "They looked out for the baby. We didn't know what to do."

Mrs. Roberts says her 7-pound-11-ounce infant daughter will be named Shyla Nikisa.

Several guests at an exclusive hotel in west Houston awoke Monday to find an overflowing bayou had trapped their cars in a parking garage. A hotel employee said several expensive cars were completely covered by water.

"Some people were swimming around, trying to get to their cars," said Todd Marshall, an employee at Inn on the Park. "Some were crying, others just stood there laughing."

Further west, several families fled their flooded homes and some boarded boats to navigate waterlogged residential streets.

FLIGHTWORTHY... Cartoonist Woody Wilkins (Michael Crawford) adopts the identity of his winged creation, Condorman, to help Russian spy Natalia Rambova (Barbara Carrera) defeat in "Condorman." Also starring in the comic-adventure from Walt Disney Productions are Oliver Reed and James Hampton. In Panavision and color by Technicolor, the film was directed by Charles Jarrott from a script by Marc Sturdivant for executive producer Ron Miller and producer Jan Williams. Buena Vista releases.

'Condorman' excellent movie for children

Walt Disney's latest creation, "Condorman" combines the gadgetry of "Batman" and the bungling of "The Greatest American Hero" to produce a romantic comedy filled with intrigue.

The story centers around Woody Wilkins, the author of "Condorman" comic books, who will not let his comic hero do anything that he has not done himself. This includes an attempt to fly over the Seine River in Paris using only a pair of Condorman wings. His attempt fails and he is pulled from the river by his friend, Harry Oslo, who is a CIA agent.

When the CIA needs a civilian to deliver diplomatic papers to a Russian agent in Turkey, Woody agrees to the mission. While in Turkey, he meets Natalia, a beautiful Russian spy. Though he bungles the meeting in royal fashion and passes himself off as a top agent, he manages to deliver the papers and save Natalia from a group of Turkish thugs.

After returning to Russia, Natalia decides to defect on the condition that Woody, whom she knows as Condorman, is the agent who helps her. Because he has become obsessed by her, Woody agrees and spends the rest of the movie dodging the evil Russians who try to prevent the defection.

The chase begins in Yugoslavia and continues through Italy, the Swiss Alps and Monte Carlo. Using gadgets provided by the CIA including a walking cane that doubles as a machine gun, a gypsy-mobile that turns into a race car and boat, "Condorman" risks life and limb to save the woman of his dreams.

The movie follows the Disney tradition of old-fashioned romance, good over evil and happy ever after. The language is as pure as the driven snow, but there are quite a few explosions and shoot-outs. Overall, it is an excellent movie for children. Adults might find it a little corny, but enjoyable nonetheless.

Condorman is now showing at the Ritz Theater and is rated "PG." The movie stars Michael Crawford, Oliver Reed, Barbara Carrera, James Hampton and Jean-Pierre Kalfon.

Liberals mobilizing cash against conservative tide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liberals are mobilizing the pocketbooks of politicians against the conservative tide that swept Ronald Reagan into the White House and ended 25 years of Democratic dominance in the Senate.

At least seven new liberal political action groups, several of them linked to present or defeated Democratic lawmakers and staffed by their aides, have sprung up in Washington since November.

And many, along with established groups, are using direct-mail firms to solicit contributions with a harder pitch aimed at fighting the conservatives, instead of saving the liberals.

Russell D. Hemenway, national director of the 33-year-old National Committee for an Effective Congress, said that group quit handling its own mailings and changed its approach after contributions fell off when House Democrats failed to stand fast against Reagan's budget and tax cuts.

Now the committee uses fund-raising appeals attacking Republican proposals on such issues as abortion and voting rights, and contributions are running about 30 percent over the same time two years ago, Hemenway said.

Americans for Democratic Action, another long-established group, reports it has picked up 2,000 new members and its latest mail solicitation, a hard-hitting attack on Reagan budget cuts, brought a 10 percent increase in contributions.

"Any organization that was appealing for funds to save the Democratic majority in the House of Representatives had to be hurt," said Roger Craver, head of a direct-mail firm which raises funds for Hemenway's committee and other liberal political action groups.

"There was a dip in mail returns and I would ascribe a fair proportion of it to the fact the liberal giving community did not see much point in saving a House of Representatives that wasn't very interested in saving what these people believed in," he said.

First West Texas Horse Symposium booked in Odessa

Special to The Herald
ODESSA — Horses will be the subject when owners, trainers and breeders meet here for an October symposium.

The first West Texas Horse Symposium, says Dr. Nelson J. Adams, will begin at 8 a.m. on Oct. 3 with a general assembly in Ector County Coliseum.

Nelson, coordinator of the event, is livestock specialist for the Far West District of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The day-long program will be in the coliseum, where specialists will talk on such subjects as consumer trends in marketing horses, horse health and horse nutrition.

The registration fee of $5 includes a noon barbecue and sessions in the afternoon for producers as well as users of horses.

Speakers after lunch will talk on the operation of a horse breeding farm, reproductive performance in broodmares and the training of horses with various bits and other techniques.

Water bill should be passed

Texas voters should carefully consider the Water Trust Fund amendment which will be placed before them during the Nov. 3 general election.

If passed, a portion of any state surplus tax dollars would be placed into a special fund for water resource development, conservation projects, flood control, quality upgrading, sewage, and distribution projects.

The amendment also would allow the state to increase the interest ceiling on sale of state bonds for water projects from the present 6 percent to 12 percent, which would allow the sale of state bonds for water projects that have been authorized but currently are held up by the high price of money.

The bill also will guarantee bond issues allowing some cities to obtain a better bond rating.

THE AMENDMENT IS the pet project of House Speaker Bill Clayton, who said recently in Colorado City: "Right now Texas has enough water, but down the road in the next century, which is only 19 years away, we will face a serious shortage of water resources unless we act now. The water shortage we possibly could be facing will overshadow any of the troubles we have experienced with fuel."

His arguments for the proposal include:

- a perpetual supply of water is absolutely essential to the well-being and growth of Texas.
- to provide water needed in 10, 15, 20, or 30 years from now, dam and reservoir projects need to be moved from the dream phase to the construction phase now, not later when people, farmers and industry begin to grow thirsty for more.

OPPONENTS OF THE measure have argued that use of surplus tax dollars would reduce any chances for a reduction in taxes. Some say it would ultimately lead to a state income tax.

Others say eventually, the state under Clayton's proposal would try to move water from East Texas and other points outside, the state to West Texas, something a majority of voters opposed in previous elections.

Other arguments have included: (1) setting aside state surpluses for water development would provide water lobbyists the motivation to oppose any future tax cuts or use of the funds for other pressing needs; and, (2) the extra fund to guarantee local water project bond sales is not needed because a similar state fund already exists, that should be utilized instead.

WE THINK THESE opponents' arguments are weak compared to the dire need for water that Texans — especially West Texans — will face in coming years.

If Texans want to provide water for future generations, for future farmers and future industries, we must take a leadership stance today. Passage of the Water Trust Fund amendment is the logical thing to do.

A mockery of fairness

WASHINGTON — In a mockery of fairness, the Senate Ethics Committee has recommended the expulsion of Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J. But the full Senate will delay its vote until his judicial appeal runs its course.

All he really did, the court records show, was offer to help the mine owner, who also happened to be a friend and constituent. This is the sort of political favor that, if it should be held to be a crime, would open every senator to criminal prosecution.

speed things up. This means a 1981 special election campaign could begin at any time.

A week before the committee met to discuss the Williams case, meanwhile, Republican senators were already plotting behind the scenes to replace him. One prominent member of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee even sent out fundraising letters predicting his imminent ouster and seeking support for a conservative GOP candidate to fill the vacancy.

As I have reported, strong evidence exists of government misconduct in the Williams case. In fact, there is reason to suspect that Williams — a strong supporter of Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., for president — was a political target of the Carter administration.

The conviction of Senator Williams in the ABSCAM trial may force a special election," he wrote. "This election could be held as soon as 45 days after his resignation. With a movement toward expelling Williams mounting in the Senate, no one knows how quickly this could happen."

The unfortunate Williams was caught in the ABSCAM net and convicted of bribery. Yet he was shown on the FBI's tapes rejecting the bribe offer with an emphatic "No, no, no, no."

Yet the senators who assembled to hear the Williams case on August 24 put on a show of propriety. Before the closed-door session began, Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., warded off reporters' questions. "No comment," he said when asked whether expulsion was being considered. His tone implied that it would be improper to discuss the deliberations of the Senate Ethics Committee.

Jepson's only worry, apparently, was that the Ethics Committee and the full Senate might drum Williams out too quickly. He urged the Republican donors to raise $325,000 within three weeks.

He was accused instead of promising to obtain government contracts for a titanium mine, in which he allegedly held a hidden interest. Yet he actually sought no government contracts. He also declared clearly on the ABSCAM tapes that he was merely "interested" in the mine, not that he owned an interest in it.

Yet six days earlier, a fundraising letter signed by Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, of the GOP campaign committee, had already offered this inside information on the committee's intentions:

Jepson viewed Williams' impending downfall as an opportunity for the Republicans to "strengthen our very narrow control in the Senate" and to give President Reagan a boost at the same time. The GOP senatorial candidate Jepsen had in mind to replace Williams, the letter confided, was Jeff Bell.

From there it would be just a matter of time before we told each other our life's stories. She would reveal her father was the chairman of the New York Central Railroad (don't laugh — it was a big deal in those days), and I would tell her my family was in textiles (my father made draperies and slipcovers, so I really wasn't making things up.)

The Senate Ethics Committee has decided to meet in special session to decide Williams' fate. They want to

Remembering the Biltmore

Art Buchwald

Well, they went and tore down the Biltmore Hotel lobby in New York the other day — clock and all. For you young whippersnappers, the Biltmore was the most preppie place in the whole wide world, and this was when it REALLY counted to be a preppie.

I used to sit in the lobby of the Biltmore and pretend I was, which was the next best thing. What happened was that all those gorgeous young Barbie dolls used to come in from Smith and Vassar, and Mount Holyoke and heaven knows where and meet their dates under the clock. The co-eds wore fuzzy angora sweaters, and tartan skirts and silk stockings and high heels and pearls around their necks. A guy could just die in the lobby of the Biltmore staring at them and dreaming a Barbie doll's date would not show up, and that she would break into tears right there under the clock.

Around the rim Dylan dally

Richard Horn

When Bob Dylan converted to Christianity in 1978, it was understandably an event. The person who has been dubbed "the conscience of a generation" who mixed folk with rock and roll and first used popular music to express genuine feelings, angers, and fears, had become a Christian and was using his most ardent disciples as targets of his "new rage."

Most unusual song is a dirge-like ballad called "Lenny Bruce," seemingly a tribute to the late comedian. Dylan often said he was a fan of Bruce, and a song honoring him wouldn't be out of place, but at the end Dylan sings, "Lenny Bruce was bad — He was the brother that you never had." In the context of this album, "Lenny Bruce" is an enigma.

My plan was quite simple. I would get out of my chair and saunter over to the sobbing lady and offer her a clean handkerchief. "First," I would say, "you need this, and then I believe you need a drink."

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband and I have been married for over 20 years. Shortly after our marriage I realized I did not really love him. Now I wonder if I should do something about it. Do you think this is reason enough for a divorce? — Mrs. F.V.D.

DEAR MRS. F.V.D.: No, it is not. I am sorry your marriage has not been as happy as you had expected it to be, but this does not give you the right to end it by divorce. It should instead be a challenge to you to try to make your marriage happier and develop a love for your husband. I know this may sound difficult for you, but with God's help I believe you can accomplish it.

Bell already has a campaign organization in motion and had collected $247,000 by midyear. He has the support of several conservative luminaries and organizations, including the National Conservative Political Action Committee.

Obviously, in my fantasy when she heard I was about to go off to a war, all reason would leave her and we would both remember the Biltmore Hotel (Room 345) for the rest of our lives.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I just had a hysterectomy. My doctor told me no douches or intercourse for four weeks, which started me thinking. If the uterus has been removed, does such liquid go into the abdominal cavity? — J.W.

But the delay will give the Republicans time to raise more cash for their candidate to take advantage of Williams' misfortune.

As I said before, nothing like this ever happened, but the fantasy did manage to get me through some hot days and cold nights in the years that followed.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I just had a hysterectomy. My doctor told me no douches or intercourse for four weeks, which started me thinking. If the uterus has been removed, does such liquid go into the abdominal cavity? — J.W.

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Of our five children, we have two that get poison ivy every year. Are they coming into contact with the weed or are these two just getting it each year because of their systems? Can you catch it from a person? If it leaks and runs on your skin does that part break out? Last, but not least, how can I ease the pain for these children? — R.M.

allergic contact dermatitis — the familiar poison ivy rash. If the oil is on a person's hand and you touch his hand you can get it. You get it only from such contact. You do not get it (nor does it spread) from the blister fluid. Not everyone who contacts the oily material gets the rash. It does have something to do with the systems of those affected. They are allergic to the oil, but so are 25 to 60 percent of all of us. All your children may be contacting the weed, but some may not be sensitive. Early action is important when you suspect contact with the plants. Hands should be washed carefully with soap to avoid spread of the oils. Drying lotions containing alcohol are used when the blisters are intact and if raw skin is not visible. After blisters have broken, you should use moist compresses. Steroid creams may be necessary, and in severe cases steroids by mouth are sometimes used. Dear Dr. Donohue: I just had a hysterectomy. My doctor told me no douches or intercourse for four weeks, which started me thinking. If the uterus has been removed, does such liquid go into the abdominal cavity? — J.W. After a hysterectomy, the upper part of the vaginal cavity is sewed shut. There is no opening into the abdominal cavity. Liquids don't get there. The restrictions your doctor imposed were to avoid any irritation during the healing stage of the hysterectomy incisions. Vaginitis can strike any woman at any time in her life. You can read about the causes — and cures — for this troublesome complaint in the booklet, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment." To get a copy, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents. Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

New student loan guidelines reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — A public college student whose family earns more than $33,875 a year will be denied guaranteed federal loans, for the most part, under new curbs which take effect Oct. 1.

The income cutoff for loans for students attending the average four-year private college is $46,375, according to figures obtained Monday from the Education Department.

In both cases, the figures assume the student comes from a family of four and is the only child in college. If more than one child is in college or the family is larger, the income eligibility limits for the loans are much higher.

The College Board on Sunday reported that the average cost this fall of tuition, fees, room, board and other expenses will be $6,885 at private four-year colleges and $3,873 at public four-year colleges.

Since 1978, students have been able to borrow up to $2,500 under the Guaranteed Student Loan program regardless of family income or college cost. Congress recently reimposed an income limit to hold down the spiraling costs of the program.

Starting Oct. 1, students whose adjusted gross family income is $30,000 or more — including the students' and parents' salary, interest and dividends — will have to pass a needs test to be able to get one of the subsidized loans.

The Guaranteed Student Loan policy office in the education department gave the following examples. All apply to a family of four:

—At the public college costing $3,873, with one child in college, the maximum loan for a student with family income of $30,000 is $1,373; those from families below the $30,000 ceiling can borrow $2,500. The minimum loan of $1,000 is limited to those with income between $30,000 and $33,875. Families earning more than that figure are ineligible for the program.

—If both children attend that public college, each can borrow the maximum $2,500 if the family income is no more than $31,375; each can borrow the minimum $1,000 if the family income is no more than $47,625.

Two Americans stable after German bombing

RAMSTEIN AIR BASE, West Germany (AP) — Two American officers remained hospitalized in stable condition today while authorities probed the bomb blast that injured them and 18 others outside joint U.S.-NATO air command headquarters.

Meanwhile, eight privately owned cars were torched in an American housing area in Wiesbaden but no injuries were reported, the U.S. Army's V Corps said today.

The violence came at a time of swelling opposition to U.S. defense policies. Two weeks ago an American military facility in Berlin was bombed, but there were no injuries.

Authorities believed the explosion that injured the 18 other Americans and two West Germans at 7:20 a.m. Monday to be the work of leftist terrorists, although no group claimed responsibility.

U.S. officials stepped up security at other installations in West Germany, where some 260,000 U.S. troops are stationed.

West German sources said the blast apparently came from a bomb placed in a Volkswagen sedan parked in a lot outside the headquarters buildings of the U.S. Air Force Europe (USAFE) and the NATO air command.

Passers-by were flung to the ground by the force of the blast, which shattered windows and interior walls up to 100 yards away and scattered other cars across the parking lot in flames, witnesses said. Police said a car engine was found on the roof of a five-story building.

The only victims requiring hospitalization were Brig. Gen. Joseph D. Moore, USAFE assistant deputy chief of staff for operations, and Lt. Col. Douglas R. Young, an operations officer with the USAFE command.

Both were flown by helicopter to the U.S. Army hospital in nearby Landstuhl. Moore is from Myrtle Beach, S.C., and Young from Glendale, Ariz., the Air Force said in Washington.

Plans to station a new generation of U.S. missiles in Western Europe and President Reagan's decision to build neutron warheads have fueled anti-American feelings in West Germany.

West Germans have staged numerous anti-war marches and rallies, some of them around U.S. military garrisons. Signs on walls in several cities read, "No more war, Americans out."

Iranian students take over embassy in Italy

ROME (AP) — A group of Iranian students occupied a consular office for three hours today in Iran's embassy to the Vatican and demanded to meet with the Italian press to protest conditions in their homeland, police reported.

Police surrounded the building in the Parioli section of Rome before the students surrendered and walked out of the building in a single file with their hands in the air, police reported.

They were loaded into trucks and taken to a nearby police station, authorities said. Reporters at the scene counted 21 youths.

During the sit-in, two members of the group talked to an Italian reporter through the gate and explained, "We decided on this action to let the Italian people and all free nations know of the horrible massacre of people's militants taking place in Iran."

A man identifying himself as one of the students had called The Associated Press earlier to announce "a peaceful occupation" to protest what he called the execution of political prisoners in Iran.

The caller, identifying himself only as "Ata," said the occupation would last until they were allowed to hold a press conference or "the police force us out."

Police said two embassy employees suffered injuries during the brief siege. A 35-year-old blind embassy switchboard operator told reporters he was punched and kicked repeatedly. A male receptionist was taken to a hospital after being kicked unconscious, police said.

Italian police had feared the group was armed but it was not immediately known if they carried any weapons.

Delta Airlines offering its patrons canned wines

ATLANTA (AP) — Delta Air Lines will begin offering its patrons canned wine today.

The passengers will be able to select from Taylor California Cellars chablis or burgundy during the 30-day test on flights from Atlanta to Houston, Boston, Washington and New York.

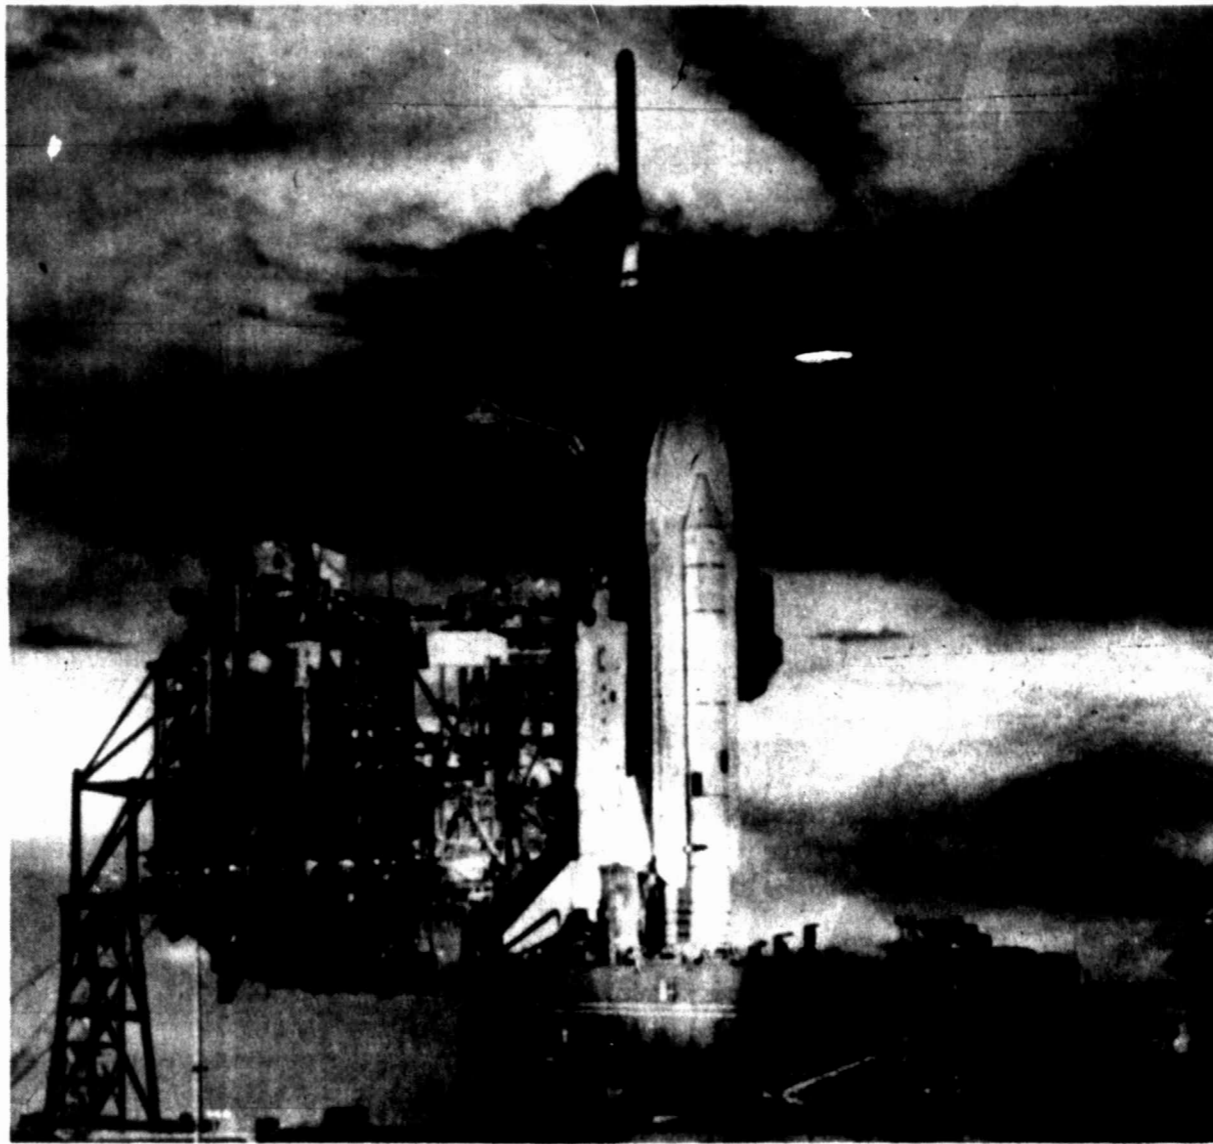

If wine drinkers accept the cans, Delta will expand their use to other flights, according to airline spokesman Bill Berry.

Delta will give each wine drinker a card explaining that the cans are lighter and more easily chilled than bottles and don't break.

Berry and Margaret Stern, vice president of the Wine Spectrum, the unit of the Coca-Cola Co. which produces Taylor California Cellars, said they expect the same negative reaction that came when soft drinks, then beer, were first sold in cans.

But now, they said, far more Coca-Cola and beer are sold in cans than in bottles. Eventually, Ms. Stern said, the wine may be offered in cans at retail. Only one U.S. winery, Geysler Peak Winery in California, sells wine in cans at retail.

U.S. vetoes motion against South Africa

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Thirteen members of the Security Council voted to condemn South Africa's invasion of Angola, but the United States vetoed the resolution because it did not blame the Cubans and Soviets also.

Ambassador Charles M. Lichenstein, the deputy American representative at the United Nations, told the council the United States could not support a resolution that places "blame solely on South Africa for the escalation of violence."

The presence of Soviet advisers and 20,000 Cuban troops in Angola and the supply of Soviet arms to the black guerrillas fighting South African troops in South West Africa "fuel the explosive atmosphere of confrontation and violence which daily plagues the people of Angola, Namibia and indeed the entire region," he declared.

Soviet Ambassador Richard Ovninnikov accused the Reagan administration of following a "new strategy of pandering to the regime of apartheid," South Africa's policy of racial segregation.

Angolan Ambassador Elisio de Figueiredo said the U.S. veto was "nothing short of support of South African racism."

The resolution accused South Africa of an "unprovoked" invasion of Angola on Aug. 24, condemned it and called on it to pay damages to Angola. It also condemned South Africa's use of South West Africa as a "springboard for armed invasions and destabilization of Angola and its use of 'mercenaries' against the Marxist-ruled country."

In an attempt to ward off the U.S. veto, the sponsors deleted a provision calling for mandatory economic sanctions against South Africa.

Britain, which as a permanent member of the council also has veto power, avoided using it and abstained on the vote. British Ambassador Sir Anthony Parsons said he could support only parts of the resolution and objected to its "highly colored rhetoric."

The three other permanent members — France, China, and the Soviet Union — voted for the resolution along with all the other council members: Ireland, Japan, Spain, East Germany and the resolution's Third World sponsors, Niger, Tunisia, Uganda, Mexico, Panama and the Philippines.

Bell bills customers for ads, contributions

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell, a benefactor of hundreds of Texas charities, bills its customers for about a third of the $22 million it gives away and spends on ads each year.

The donations — about $1.9 million last year — are part of being a good "corporate citizen," says Paul Roth, Bell vice president for revenues in Texas.

The ads — about $19.3 million — are "essential," he said.

It adds up to about 11 or 12 cents per month on Texans' phone bills.

"The best way to be a good corporate citizen would be not to gouge the customers," says Texas Consumer Association President Jim Hightower.

Bell included 25 pages of contributions with the company's request for a $469 million rate hike. Under Public Utility Commission rules, the company can pass some of the costs of donations and ads on to customers, but no more than 0.3 percent of the company's revenues.

The phone company made about $2.5 billion in Texas last year. That means $7.4 million of the contributions and ads can be passed on to ratepayers.

The contributions go to assorted charities, Little League organizations, service clubs and universities. For example, the Tarrant County United Way got about $70,000 from the phone company last year. The Little Dribblers Basketball Association of Huntsville got $100.

Some of the money was doled out to business-related organizations. The Foundation for Business, Politics and Economics in Houston got $18,750 to help pay for a building. Bell spokesman Bob Hutchinson said the foundation is "dedicated to increasing productivity."

"They sponsor seminars in productivity for companies that can't provide that kind of seminar for themselves," he said.

Another $500 went to something called the University for Young Americans in Houston. It's not a university. It's a nonprofit group that sponsors seminars that bring business leaders in touch with high school students.

Hutchinson said they talk about "significant issues of the day."

Bell sent $5,000 to the Preservation Trust Fund for Texas, which wants to "conserve, preserve and restore historic monuments in Texas," according to Hutchinson.

The Palmer Drug Abuse Program, which in the past has drawn criticism for its methods, got $6,500.

Perhaps the biggest chunk of phone money went to colleges. Southern Methodist University got donations of more than $44,000.

Roth said many of the charities "just simply would not survive" without corporate donations.

Martin query continues

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Travis County grand jury went back to work on the Rep. Mike Martin case today, talking with witnesses who might be able to add information about the bizarre shooting.

"They may have specific knowledge about the incident," said Assistant District Attorney Allen Hill of the witnesses.

Martin, R-Longview, was wounded here July 31 when a shotgun fired grazed his arm. The freshman legislator told investigators he didn't know who shot him. He later changed his story and blamed the shooting on the "Guardian Angels of the Underworld," a satanic cult only Martin seems to know about.

Charles Goff, Martin's cousin, has said he was the gunman and he was hired by Martin for a "controlled hit" aimed at gaining publicity.

Hill said no indictments are anticipated Tuesday.

Goff and Martin testified here last week. Today's witness list includes Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Martin, the legislator's brother and sister-in-law. Hill said they might know something that could help grand jurors unravel the mystery.

Also subpoenaed are Susan McNew, Martin's secretary, and James Grant, Goff's half-brother.

Ms. McNew, like the rest of Martin's staff, will go without paychecks for a while because Martin overspent his House allowance by $11,000. The House Administration Committee has suspended Martin's $4,500-a-month allowance.

The four witnesses will be the last to appear before the grand jury. Hill said. However, more of Martin's financial records might be subpoenaed, he added.

Redfish ban begins today

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Redfish and speckled trout swam free of commercial fishermen's lines today as a two-year ban on professional harvesting of the two species began.

Commercial anglers along the Texas coast waited in vain Monday for last minute court action that would have blocked the ban.

A group of fishermen and seafood dealers had asked U.S. District Judge James DeAnda for a temporary restraining order against enforcement of the state ban.

DeAnda instead set a Sept. 14 hearing on a preliminary injunction and said at 5:15 p.m. through his law clerk that the law would take effect on Monday.

The Texas Legislature passed the redfish and trout moratorium after sportmen and state wildlife officials argued the two species were being overharvested by commercial fishermen.

Game wardens blamed commercial use of illegal gill nets with decimating redfish, which do not reproduce until after 5 years of age.

After two years, marine biologists will study the fish populations and decide whether to recommend an end to the moratorium.

Instead of fishing up to the deadline, many commercial anglers said they waited anxiously by their phones for word of a last minute court order.

"None of my crews have gone out. They're just waiting," said commercial fisherman Dan Coley of Arroyo City.

Woman struck by airplane

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A 23-year-old newspaper photographer remained in serious condition today with multiple injuries suffered when she was hit by an airplane taking off from a freeway.

J.B. Hazlett of The San Antonio Express-News was photographing the plane shortly after midnight Saturday on Interstate 37, where it had made an emergency landing earlier Friday night, police said.

She was struck by the tip of one of the plane's wings. The plane wavered from one side of the freeway to the other after hitting Ms. Hazlett, but managed to take off safely, witnesses said.

Ms. Hazlett remained in the intensive care unit of Southeast Baptist Hospital Sunday after surgery to remove her spleen and part of her liver, hospital officials said.

"The doctors say her condition is pretty shaky."

GOOD FOOD, PLEASANT ATMOSPHERE at the Gold Mine in College Park Center

Escape the heat with Gold Mine ice cream

The higher the temperature, the greater your appetite for a cool delicious ice cream cone. If that appetite hits you, look to the Gold Mine Restaurant in College Park Center to offer your taste buds something cool and refreshing.

The Gold Mine not only offers many flavors of ice cream (16 to be exact), but several kinds of sandwiches — all in a pleasant atmosphere.

Owners Steve and Amy Lewis, who also own the Rainbarrel Gifts and Candies Shop in College Park, wanted to provide Big Spring with an eating place that offered more than just good food. The Lewises have found a host of unusual furnishings and have given the Gold Mine an old fashioned-type atmosphere.

As far as food goes, The Gold Mine offers plenty of it, and at a price that will suit you. Sandwiches on the menu include hamburgers, cheeseburgers, roast beef, plus pastrami, corned beef, grilled cheese, hot dogs, barbecue, and mouth-watering reubens. The Gold Mine also has a well supplied salad bar to add to your meal.

If an afternoon snack is what you're interested in, check out the Gold Mine for hand-dipped ice cream, banana splits, and a variety of soft drinks.

Whatever your tastes, The Gold Mine has something for you. They're open Monday thru Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and are located in the College Park Shopping Center.

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — General Host Corp. announced Monday that it had completed sale of the fresh and processed meat divisions of its subsidiary Cudahy Co.

The divestment included shutdown last Friday of four Cudahy processing plants and 13 distribution centers around the nation and the resulting layoff of more than 1,100 employees, the corporation said.

The parent corporation is retaining the dry sausage and canned ham operations of Cudahy, according to General Host corporate relations director Adam Friedman.

General Host also announced that a newly formed company, Bar-S Foods Co. of Phoenix, Ariz. purchased Cudahy's interests in its Denver and Seattle processing plants, as well as nine distribution centers.

Bar-S was formed by former executives of Cudahy.

Cudahy also leased its Atlanta and Phoenix processing plants to Bar-S for use as distribution centers on an interim basis, General Host said.

The corporation reported that Bar-S paid about $12 million in cash, a $6 million secured promissory note and $10 million of Bar-S cumulative non-voting preferred stock for the Cudahy assets.

Bar-S was organized by Morris Y. Kinne, a former vice president of General Host, and other former members of Cudahy management, the corporation said.

General Host decided to scale down its Cudahy operations because the division was losing money, Friedman said. In 1980, Cudahy lost about $2.5 million on total sales of $408 million.

CHECKING THE SCHEDULE — La Vona Wikkes, left, and Krista Keelon, nurses at Baylor Medical Center in Dallas go over the weekly work schedule. Baylor has a plan where nurses have the option of working two 12-hour weekend shifts and getting paid as if they had worked a full 40-hour week.

New scheduling could ease nursing shortage

DALLAS (AP) — Hospital administrators battling a nationwide nursing shortage are keeping an eye on one Texas hospital where nurses are waiting in line to participate in a plan developed at an Ohio tire manufacturing plant.

Baylor Medical Center's "Two-days Alternative" scheduling plan, put into effect about nine months ago, "has come of age," said Christy Rossett, director of the hospital's nurse recruitment office.

Under the plan, nurses have the option of working two 12-hour weekend shifts and getting paid as if they had worked a full 40-hour week, she said. Nurses who work during the week are on the job Monday through Friday with every weekend off.

"We are delighted with it," Mrs. Rossett said. "It's such a simple plan, but it has been so very successful."

The weekend program — dubbed the Baylor plan by hospitals across the country where it has been adopted — was the brainchild of a Baylor administrator who read a magazine article about a similar plan developed at an Akron, Ohio tire manufacturing plant.

"He thought it would work just as well for a hospital and it has," Mrs. Rossett said. "Now, we have a long list of nurses waiting to work weekend evenings (a higher paying time period) and only one or two openings on days."

One of the biggest complaints from nurses concerns inflexible hospital scheduling, she said. "This plan allows nurses a more flexible lifestyle."

Months after the program was put into effect, "our (registered nurse) vacancy rate has dropped from 15 percent to less than 5 percent," Mrs. Rossett said.

The weekend plan seems to attract nurses who are going back to school and those with small children, she said. The nurses who work during the week "usually have a more active social life and enjoy having the weekends off."

Many experts view the Baylor plan as a viable way of fighting what has become a critical shortage of nurses across the country, said Nancy Perrin, spokeswoman for the American Nurses Association.

"Nationally, there are about 100,000 vacancies for RNs, and that figure is a year old," she said.

Nurses today are better educated and more demanding than they were years ago, Ms. Perrin added. "Many institutions — like Baylor — are coming up with inventive ideas for making the profession more attractive."

In Texas, there are openings for 11,000 to 12,000 registered nurses, said Clair Jordan, spokeswoman for the Texas Nurses Association.

"The biggest boon (in dealing with the shortage) seems to be flexible scheduling," she said.

A study done by the Baylor Medical Center, a non-profit, private 1,275-bed hospital, showed that 42 percent of the nurses originally signing up for the weekend program were previously unemployed, Ms. Rossett said. Another 8 percent were working for nursing agencies and 50 percent transferred from other hospitals.

"One of our goals was to draw more nurses (who were not working) back into nursing," she said. "It seems we have accomplished that."

The Baylor plan has attracted the attention of hospital administrators, nurses associations, medical journals and other experts looking for ways to deal with the current shortage of nurses, she said.

"When we first implemented the program I was getting at least 20 calls a day about it," she said. "I still get a lot of calls daily about the program."

Several hospitals across the country that have adopted the Baylor plan include: Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago; Washington Hospital Center in Washington D.C.; Hollywood Medical Center in Hollywood, Fla.; and Kettering Medical Center in Kettering, Ohio.

But Baylor officials are quick to warn hospitals to view the two-days alternative "as THE answer to the nursing shortage," Ms. Rossett said.

Even Baylor, which its successful weekend program, is developing other methods aimed at attracting and retaining nurses.

"We are in the process of developing a clinical ladder (as a promotion tool)," she said.

Altrusans hear BSSH employee

The Altrusa Club of Big Spring met Thursday in the Patio Room of the Holiday Inn. Illnesses among members were reported. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Pat Highley, recording secretary.

Mamie Roberts, International Relations committee chairman, introduced the speaker, Shirin Chinoy. Born in India, Miss Chinoy attended schools there while working toward a master's degree in Social Work. After receiving her master's degree she worked in India six years. Upon coming to the United States in Aug. 1971, Miss Chinoy completed her graduate work at Kalamazoo, Mich. She has served as a Superintendent of Social Services in Grand Rapids, Mich., in a nursing home in Cincinnati, Ohio, and, following her move to Texas, a medical social worker. Miss Chinoy is now employed as Superintendent of Social Services at the Big Spring State Hospital on the Admissions unit.

Miss Chinoy stated that she had very supportive parents and grandparents, and that her father believed that a good education was essential. Before coming to America, Miss Chinoy helped send her brothers and sisters to school, so that they would also be able to receive a good education.

The meeting was closed with the Altrusa Benediction. The next meeting will be Sept. 10.

Colsen-Stanton rite performed Saturday

Vivian Colson became the bride of Paul T. Stanton Saturday on the flight line of Oilfield Industrial Lines. The Rev. D. Terry Wilson, pastor of the Evangel Temple Assembly of God, performed the 7 p.m. rite.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Dean, Chattanooga, Tenn., and Mrs. Victoria Stanton, Union City, N.J.

The bride chose to wear street-length two-piece dress trimmed in blue. She carried a bouquet of white and blue silk carnations and roses.

Chris Bruneau was matron of honor and Knack Cox was best man.

Following the ceremony, the couple was feted with a reception in the home of the matron of honor.

The bride is a graduate of the School of Radiologic Technology Medical College of Georgia. She is presently employed in as officer supervisor at O.I.L.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Alphonus College, Woodcliff Lake, N.J. He is employed in the drafting department of O.I.L.

The couple is making their home in Big Spring.

Dear Abby

Child's 'Whole Story' Missing a Chapter

DEAR ABBY: Should a child be told that he is adopted? When my husband (I'll call him Jim) married his first wife, he adopted her 3-month-old illegitimate son who had been fathered by a man who didn't want to marry her. (Jim was aware of all the facts.)

That marriage ended in divorce three years later and Jim married me. The little boy (I'll call him Billy) lives with his mother, but we have him every summer. Billy is now 7, and he thinks Jim is his real father. There are a few people in town who know the whole story — including who Billy's real father is. (He's a respected citizen, now married with children.)

I think Billy should be told that he is adopted. And if he becomes curious about who his real father is, he should be told that, too. His mother refuses to tell him. Jim says he doesn't want to tell him, and I am certainly not going to. Should we just keep our mouths shut and hope that Billy never finds out?

HAVING DOUBTS IN N.C.

DEAR ABBY: No. Billy should be told the truth when he's sufficiently mature to handle it. His mother should tell him. If she refuses, Jim should. Billy should not hear about it from outsiders, and he surely will since "a few people in town know the whole story."

DEAR ABBY: In all my 63 years, I've never written to an editor, nor have I ever written to an advice column, but I recently read an item in the newspaper that I think deserves national publicity, and I can think of no better way to get it than through your column. I hope you print it.

RICHARD P., EAST PALATKA, FLA.

DEAR RICHARD: I, too, found the item very inspiring, and here is my edited version:

"Officials at Forest Hills High School in Ocala, Fla., said they had never seen anything like it. Miss Houg Le, 18-year-old valedictorian of her graduating class, drew tears and a standing ovation from her audience when she said:

"My family and I fled Southeast Asia six years ago because we were pro-U.S.A., and had we remained, we would have been executed."

"I owe my very presence on this stage tonight to you and this wonderful country. When we could no longer prevail against our enemies, you accepted over 100,000 of us to your shores, gave us freedom, a new start and a new nation."

"There are some things worth dying for. The freedom you have here is one of those things. I have come to appreciate the United States as the greatest nation on earth. She is worthy of your fullest loyalty and greatest sacrifice."

"Treasure her. Love her. Defend her!"

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby: 12080 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Don't write off that mail order policy

How do you judge the health insurance offers your family receives through the mail?

Here are some tips from the Health Insurance Institute:

A key point to understand is that direct mail insurance is usually aimed at "filling in the gaps" of your present insurance by paying a specified dollar amount for each day of hospitalization.

It's not a substitute for a major medical policy, for example, and it does not offer comprehensive coverage, but it can usually provide you extra coverage at a relatively low price.

To help you know what you are buying, the Institute suggests you find the answers to these questions before buying:

What happens if you have any "pre-existing" health conditions?

How much will your policy pay per day?

When do your benefit payments begin? Is it the first day of hospitalization? Third day? Eighth day?

What circumstances must exist before you collect?

How much are your premiums?

The Institute points out that although a physical examination is not necessary, many policies have limitations on benefits for a medical condition you may have had within a certain period. This is called a "pre-existing" condition, and many policies have a two-year waiting period before you can be reimbursed for medical treatment of these illnesses.

It is also important not to let yourself be rushed into purchasing a plan because of a "limited enrollment period." Generally, these enrollment periods occur often enough to allow you time to understand what you are buying.

Again, remember, most mail order policies will pay you incur while in the hospital only for health care expenses.

Dwarf apple trees from Israel's desert thrive in Southwest Texas

HONDO, Texas (AP) — A successful experiment with a dozen dwarf apple trees from Israel's Negev Desert has prompted optimism that the low chill plants could thrive throughout warm South Texas. "They've done so well that I decided to put in another 400. Some of them will be ready to harvest next year," beams Medina County cattle and chicken rancher Tony Zerr, who recently finished harvesting 12 trees heavy with the fruit. Zerr planted the first dozen dwarf trees three years ago on recommendation of County Extension Agent

Eddie Holland and Dr. Loy Shreve, Texas Agricultural Extension Service horticulturist in Uvalde. "I'm amazed at this apple crop," Zerr said. "I really didn't expect them to produce very well here, especially so soon, but I'll try anything once. I think this orchard will raise some eyebrows in the area when it reaches productive potential." Zerr's miniature trees now measure just under six feet in height and have their branches tied to stakes to hold up apple-laden limbs. He said the small size of the trees have two advantages — a person can stand flat-footed and pick the apples to hold harvest costs down, and more trees can be planted in a small area. "You put them on a trellis like a grape vine. I plan on letting people who want to buy them harvest them," Zerr said. Zerr runs 200 head of cattle and has 20,000 laying hens. He uses chicken manure to fertilize the trees, which are watered mostly by drip irrigation although bountiful rains this year eliminated that need. Shreve personally selected low chill apple trees that were developed in the Negev Desert of Israel and are adaptable to the mild South Texas climate. The horticulturist said Hondo, located 40 miles southwest of San Antonio, was about the northernmost area the trees should be grown because they could be placed in jeopardy by late freezes that sometimes occur in the Texas Hill Country to the immediate north. "Ordinary apples require 800 to 1,000 hours of chilling, which is the accumulated time when temperatures are 45 degrees Fahrenheit or less," Shreve said. "Yet, by comparison, these Israeli varieties require only about 300 hours of chill, and maintain a certain amount of disease-insect resistance." The short Israeli trees can easily be covered to prevent freezing and are noted for early production, often in the second or third year, Shreve said. Varieties he recommends for this climate include Anna and Ein Shemer from Israel, and Dorsett Gold, a variety originating in the Bahama Islands. Other newer Israeli varieties are Elah, Adia 17, Ben Dagen, Michael and Maayamand Slor, but they are not yet available, Shreve said.

However, the fruit specialist warned that more work must be done to ensure the trees will thrive throughout the region. "There's definitely a future for low chill-requiring apples in South Texas, but that means more experimental work is necessary," Shreve said. "Producers in the Hill Country may be flirting with trouble by growing these varieties exclusively, because a late freeze will wipe them out. Israeli varieties are adapted to South Texas which has a climate similar to Israel."

As NFL teams reduce to 45 for regular season openers

Cockroft, Pastorini among cuts

Don Cockroft and Dan Pastorini saw the "you're expendable" writing on the wall early. So did Fred Dryer, but a funny thing happened to Dryer's message. Someone erased it.

Cockroft, who holds many of the Cleveland Browns kicking records, and Pastorini, the Oakland Raiders veteran reserve quarterback, were two of the more notable players who received their walking papers Monday as the National Football League's 28 teams cut their rosters to the opening day 45-man limit.

Dryer was a little luckier. The 35-year-old defensive end had said last week he had been told by Los Angeles Rams Coach Ray Malavasi that he would be cut. He wasn't.

Cockroft was one of three players waived by Cleveland. Sam Rutigliano termed it, "One of the hardest things I've had to do since I became head coach."

But the move didn't surprise Cockroft, who missed 3-of-6 extra points and 3-of-4 field goal attempts during this preseason and was made expendable by the fine kicking of free agent Dave Jacobs.

Cockroft missed a crucial field goal attempt in the second-round playoff game against Oakland last season and the Browns elected to go for a touchdown late in the fourth quarter instead of letting Cockroft kick a potential game-winning three pointer. The Raiders eventually won the game played in bitter cold weather 14-12.

The Browns also released fourth-year running back Terry Miller, who gained over 1,000 yards one of those seasons with Buffalo.

Pastorini, who was acquired by the Raiders last season in a straight deal for Kenny Stabler, played just five games with Oakland last year before breaking a leg. Jim Plunkett then took over and led the Raiders to the Super Bowl title.

That made Pastorini, in his 11th season, expendable.

"I guess I'll just wait and see if somebody picks me up," said Pastorini, told of the move by Raiders Coach Tom Flores Monday.

The Raiders also released veteran wide receiver Rich Martini and linebacker Greg Bracelin.

In Anaheim, Calif., where Dryer will remain for the time being, the Rams released former No. 1 draft pick Elvis Peacock, the Oklahoma running back, and three other players.

But Dryer, who was told he was staying on Sunday, was the story.

"Why would they order me back to a team that has openly and blatantly stated they don't want me here. These people are insensitive and inhuman to allow this to happen in the first place," said Dryer.

While Dryer was blowing off some steam, trade winds were filtering through other parts of the country.

The New Orleans Saints shipped fullback Tony Galbreath to the Minnesota Vikings, the San Francisco 49ers sent veteran signal caller Steve DeBerg to the Denver Broncos and the Miami Dolphins traded punter George Roberts to the San Diego Chargers — all for future draft choices.

Galbreath, for all practical purposes, lost his job when the Saints drafted Heisman Trophy winner George Rogers No. 1.

The Broncos got DeBerg to be a backup for Craig Morton and released second-year reserve quarterback Jeff Knapple. DeBerg, who started for the 49ers in 1979 and most of last season, set an NFL records of 578 pass attempts with 347 completions in 1979.

Roberts, who was fourth among NFL punters last season, was traded because he took one too many steps for the Dolphins purposes. They kept two-step punter Tom Orosz of Ohio State instead.

The Dolphins also placed linebacker Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson, the former Dallas Cowboys showoff, on the injured reserve list. He suffered a neck injury in Miami's last preseason game.

Tim Mazzetti, the former bartender who became a "standout placekicker" for Atlanta, was one of four players cut by the Falcons, who elected to let rookie Mick Luckhurst handle the placekicking.

Dallas traded third-year cornerback Aaron Mitchell to the Bucs for an undisclosed draft choice and placed veteran center John Fitzgerald on injured reserve.

Detroit cut third-year fullback Bo Robinson and four others, including offensive lineman Burton Lawless. The Lions also put linebacker Steve Towle on injured reserve.

Lady Steers in home opener tonight

The Big Spring Lady Steers girls volleyball team, fresh from claiming the consolation trophy in the 16-team Snyder Tournament, host Bronte tonight in the BSHS Gymnasium. It will be the home opener for Coach Patty Purser's Lady Steers.

The Big Spring girls, after losing their season opener to Bronte and their Snyder Tourney opener to El Paso Burges, rolled back for three straight triumphs.

The first victim was Sweetwater, as the Lady Steers won by 15-9 and 15-1. The BSHS crew then toppled Cleburne 15-7 and 15-3, and then spiked Seminole 15-11 and 15-9 to win the consolation trophy.

Leading servers in the three consecutive wins were Janie Phillips with 19 points, Sissy Doss with 17, Paula Spears with 15 and Pam Caudill with 14. Others that scored points with their serves included Elise Wheat, Sylvia Randle, Lisa Majors and Leslie Overman.

San Angelo went on to win the Snyder Tourney, topping the host school in the championship. Claiming third place was Plains, which beat Burges in that contest.

The Lady Steers, now 3-2 on the year, are hoping for a better performance in this game against Bronte, a powerful smaller school. Purser indicated that her girls suffered from first game jitters in their previous loss, but still must improve in order to win tonight.

The varsity units of the two schools meet at 7 p.m. There is a JV contest between the schools at 6 p.m. at the same site.

Local Sports Notes

Final football sign-up tonight for youngsters

Final registration for the 3rd and 4th grade Little Football League is tonight from 5:30 to seven o'clock at the BSHS Gym.

Any boy in the 3rd and 4th grades who will not be 11 until after October 1st is eligible to play. All his parents need to do is bring him in tonight to be weighed and his age verified on his birth certificate. There will be a five dollar registration fee.

The managers will contact teams tomorrow as to time, place of practice, and which team each youngster will play on. Practices may start at any time after tomorrow.

Coaches beware: New deadline

The Big Spring Herald deadline has been moved up one hour, with the press time now being set at 12:30 p.m.

This means that all coaches calling in their football and volleyball games during the coming season, and also into basketball and the spring sports, must do so between 7:15 a.m. and 9:00 a.m. on Monday through Friday. If later than that time, the games will not be reported in that day's edition of the Herald.

Barbecue supper before game

The Big Spring Evening Lions Club will be having a barbecue supper Sept. 4 at the Big Spring High School cafeteria from 5 to 7:30 p.m. Price is $4 per ticket. Proceeds from this fund raiser will go to the special projects fund, Crippled Childrens Camp and for eye glasses. There will be plates to go. Donations will be accepted by the Evenings Lions Club for those not wishing to eat the meal.

Booster Club meeting tonight

The Big Spring Athletic Booster Club will meet tonight in the high school cafeteria at 6:30 p.m. No details of the meeting were given.

Oilers stand by Stabler

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers officials are continuing to rally to support controversial quarterback Ken Stabler, who is under investigation by the National Football League's security staff for possible associations with gamblers.

"As I read the story, it implicitly says all investigations into the matter proved inconclusive," Oiler General Manager Ladd Herzog said Monday. "Thousands of innocent people are investigated all the time by various agencies. Unfortunately, Kenny makes national headlines because he's a famous football player."

Herzog referred to a Sunday report by the New York Times that linked Stabler with convicted bookmaker

Oiler head coach Ed Biles said he supported Stabler fully and added it was time for "someone to put up or shut up."

NFL Executive Director Don Weiss confirmed the NFL was investigating Stabler's acquaintances and also that the Oiler quarterback had been watched while he was with the Oakland Raiders.

The Times said the investigations proved inconclusive.

"As far as the Oilers are concerned we were aware of an investigation, but we also knew that it turned up no evidence of impropriety on anyone's part," Herzog said. "I'm afraid Kenny's a victim of his own stardom."

Stabler, 35, made headlines in mid-July when he announced his retirement after an illustrious 11-year career. Stabler just as dramatically came out of retirement last Wednesday by signing a two-year contract that will pay him a reported $750,000.

Herzog said the timing of the story "absolutely stinks" and implied it might be an offshoot of Oakland Managing Partner Al Davis' dispute with the NFL. Davis made a significant contribution to the Times story.

"I think it's very unusual that it follows very shortly after that hung jury in Los Angeles," Herzog said.

STARTING SUNDAY in the season opener between the Los Angeles Rams and Houston Oilers will be Pat Haden (left) and Kenny Stabler (right).

Steinbrenner's show has Yankees upset

They're picking up the debris from the latest fallout in the Bronx Zoo, Yankee Stadium branch, and the postmortems are intriguing.

"The whole thing's a ploy," charges one TV sportscaster. "George Steinbrenner was sore because the Mets were getting the headlines, so he created some waves to get back in the news — slick deal."

"George told (Manager) Gene 'Stick' Michael to come out with that 'Fire-mew' blast to take the heat off Reggie's slump," says another.

"Reggie is finished," reasons a columnist in a full-page newspaper spread. "He is through as a Yankee." Mr. October, at 35, is drained of his fire and skills and no longer packs any gate appeal, the man says. Good-bye, Reggie.

"Reggie through? Baloney," snaps a TV defender. "A guy doesn't hit 300, blast 41 homers and knock in 111 runs, then suddenly go into a tailspin. Decay is more gradual than that."

"George does it again," says a newspaper commentator, insisting that the boss saw his minions getting too complacent so he pulled this whole charade to shake them up — a psychological homer.

"I found out one thing," says Phil Rizzuto, one time star Yankee shortstop and now a broadcaster for the team. "It's George, not Reggie, who is the stick that stirs the drink."

Whatever the reasons, Steinbrenner, heavy-handed millionaire principal owner of the Yankees, can take little comfort in the whirlwind of events, whether or not of his making. The public is bored with his stuck needle rendition of boss-manager confrontations. They had it up to their Adam's apple a couple of years ago when George was alternately firing and rehiring the pugilistic Billy Martin and shifting sides in the notorious Martin-Jackson feuds.

Furthermore, the clubhouse is seething with resentment. Almost unanimously, players have rallied behind Michael in his gutsy standup to the boss, a move none of the previous six skippers — not even Billy, the saloon fighter — had the gumption to do. They are outraged at Steinbrenner's latest threat to make an eighth managerial change in nine years. While they're playing their hearts out, the club house remains in turmoil.

This is not what George Steinbrenner III, successful ship builder, hard-nosed business executive, former college coach and baseball buff, had in mind when he bought the controlling interest in the Yankees in 1973 and began barreling out millions of dollars to rebuild the fading Yankee tradition.

Steinbrenner's expressed aim was to make the Yankees the kings of the game, worthy to play in the clear marks of the Babe Ruths, Joe DiMaggios and Mickey Mantles. He succeeded.

But his ego, fierce competitiveness and pride overruled his better judgment. Instead of establishing himself as the man who restored the dignity of Yankee pinstripes, he is in danger of going down in history as the tyrannical keeper of the "Bronx Zoo," a name tacked on the embroiled Yankees by a disenchanted reliever, Sparky Lyle.

Betty Stove highlights progress on women's tour

From one dollar to one million in decade

NEW YORK (AP) — Betty Stove of the Netherlands will reach a milestone at the U.S. Open, which began its two-week run today. She will become the eighth woman and the third this year to win $1 million on the tennis courts.

Wendy Turnbull of Australia became the sixth millionaire on the women's tour earlier this year and was soon followed by veteran Rosie Casals. Leading in career winnings are Chris Evert Lloyd, with $3 million, Martina Navratilova, Billie Jean King, Virginia Wade of Britain and Australia's Evonne Goolagong.

"I was one of the original nine who signed with Gladys Heldman (in 1970)," said Casals, who along with King dominated the women's tour in the early years. "The others were Valerie Ziegenfuss, Billie Jean, Nancy Richey, Peaches Bartkowicz, Judy Dalton, Kerry Melville Reid, Kristy Pigeon and Julie Heldman. We signed for $1.

"I think it (reaching the $1 million level) is a big deal. Especially when you start out with $1 and a chance."

The total prize money that first year was $10,000. The first tournament, held in Houston, had a total purse of $7,000 with the winner getting $1,500.

In contrast, International Playtex Inc. announced Monday that it would award $1 million to the player who can win four major tournaments on four different court surfaces in the course of a tournament year. The tournaments comprising The Playtex Challenge are the U.S. Women's Indoor Championships at Minneapolis Sept. 28-Oct. 4, which is played on carpet; the Family Circle Cup at Hilton Head, S.C., April 5-11 on clay; the 1982 Wimbledon championships on grass and the 1982 U.S. Open at Flushing Meadow on concrete.

Austin, 18, turned pro in 1977 and became the youngest athlete — male or female — to earn $1 million when she passed the mark in August, 1980.

Jaeger, 16, turned pro when she was 14 years, eight months old — the youngest until this year when Kathy Rinaldi started playing for money at the age of 14 years, four months.

Casals, who will turn 33 later this month, was ranked in the top five in the United States when she was 16 and was ranked second behind King in 1970 and 1971.

Turnbull, 28, passed the $1 million mark at the Avon Championships of Oakland in February.

Stove, 35, who won the mixed doubles at Wimbledon this year with South Africa's Frew McMillan, needs only a few hundred dollars to join the exclusive club. Like Casals, she remembers the beginning when the women broke away from the men's tour and began their own circuit.

Jackie Robinson story moves to Broadway show

"It's the celebration of an event"

It was eight years and 10 months ago — almost to the day — that the great Jackie Robinson was laid to rest in the Cypress Hills Cemetery in New York's borough of Brooklyn.

The cortege moved past the site of old Ebbets Field, which had been leveled and turned into an apartment complex.

The Dodgers had gone also, 14 years earlier — from Brooklyn to Los Angeles.

"When Jackie went and the Dodgers went, Brooklyn died, too," said Joel Siegel as he watched the first rehearsal in a fourth floor studio for a Broadway musical aimed at reviving the spirit and social impact of a great man and his era.

"He belongs to the ages," the Rev. Dr. Jesse Jackson had said of Robinson in his moving eulogy that bleak day Oct. 27, 1972.

Now, thanks to Siegel and some of the theatre's most gifted talents, the spirit of Jackie Robinson — what he lived and stood for — will be rekindled in Broadway lights.

The name of the show is simply "The First."

The cast was assembled and introduced Wednesday. The opening is set for Nov. 12 at the Martin Beck Theatre.

"It isn't a light fantasy — it is a musical depiction of the times," said Rachel Robinson, the widow, a gentle, sensitive woman with flecks of gray in her hair.

She was on hand for the occasion. So was Red Barber, the "Voice of the Dodgers," whose microphone magic will be resurrected for the stage. Costume sketches festooning one wall were reflections of the producers' determination to adhere to the slightest detail.

There, too, was the famed Dodger Sym-Phony (musical quartet) in baggy pants, top hats and spittails, which will be reenacted. A note on the late Branch Rickey sketch reminded: "Heavy frames on glasses. Cigar. Note crooked part in his hair."

"I don't consider it a baseball show," added Rachel Robinson. "It's a celebration of an event. It covers only two years of Jackie's life — 1946 and 1947, the struggle against racial injustice. Our personal problems. The pain that went into it.

"The show will carry the message that where there's opportunity there's hope. There is so much misery — even today — among the blacks and the poor."

Rachel is serving as creative consultant. Siegel, a theatre and movie critic for ABC, has written the script.

The producer is Zev Bufman, producer of "The Little Foxes" with Elizabeth Taylor. The lyricist is Martin Charnin, who directed and wrote the lyrics for the highly successful "Annie."

A 25-year-old Detroit native out of the University of Michigan, David Alan Grier, was chosen for the Jackie Robinson role. Another Detroit native, willowy Lonette McKee, was given the part of Rachel.

Darrin McGavin, long one of Hollywood's leading actors, was surprised when he got the part of crusty Branch Rickey, who gave Jackie the chance to play at Brooklyn.

Mariners become comedians as streak ends

The Seattle Mariners are on a winning streak — one in a row. "I got the game ball," said Manager Rene Lachemann after Monday night's 4-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles. "We're going to autograph it and send it to Cooperstown."

play, to get on base and let the animals hit the ball out."

In other AL action Monday night, it was Milwaukee 5, Kansas City 1; Boston 4, California 1; New York 7, Minnesota 0; Oakland 5, Cleveland 3; Toronto 3, Texas 0 and Detroit 3, Chicago 1.

Randle connected on a 1-0 delivery from Sammy Stewart, 3-5. It was Randle's third hit of the game and his third RBI.

"It was a fastball that didn't have a lot on it," said Stewart, who allowed only the three hits in 7-13 innings of otherwise strong relief pitching. "I got two quick outs and I went 1-0 on him. I wanted to hit the plate so I wouldn't go 2-0 and give in to Paciorek (Tom Paciorek, the next batter). I thought, 'Let him hit the ball,' and Lenny did."

The winner was Larry Andersen, 2-3, who replaced Seattle starter Ken Clay after Ken Singleton drew a walk to open the eighth. Andersen fanned Eddie Murray and then got John Lorenstein to ground into a double play. A two-run homer by John Lowenstein, who had snapped an 0-15 streak in his previous at-bat, pulled the Orioles into a 3-3 tie in the sixth.

Brewers 5, Royals 1
Ben Oglivie hit a two-run homer and Mike Caldwell gained his 100th career victory as Milwaukee beat Kansas City and spoiled Dick Howser's debut as the Royals' manager. Oglivie's first-inning homer was his eighth of the season and his third straight extra base hit off Royals starter Dennis Leonard, 7-8.

Caldwell, 9-7, scattered six hits and walked three before giving way to Reggie Cleveland in the seventh inning. Rollie Fingers, pitched the final 2-13 innings to record his 20th save of the season, tops in the AL.

Howser was managing his first game for the Royals in the wake of Jim Frey's firing earlier Monday.

Red Sox 4, Angels 1
Carl Yastrzemski triggered two run-scoring innings with hits and Dennis Eckersley scattered seven hits in leading Boston over California. Yastrzemski singled and eventually scored the tying run on a groundout by Dave Stapleton in the second.

After walking in the fourth, he doubled in the sixth but had to leave the game for pinch-runner Reid Nichols because of a pulled left hamstring. Nichols promptly scored Boston's third run as Carney Lansford singled.

Eckersley, 7-5, allowed a run in the second on a triple by Don Baylor and a single by Dan Ford. California starter Dave Frost, 1-4, took the loss.

Yankees 7, Twins 0
Oscar Gamble hit his 10th homer of the year and Barry Foote keyed a four-run sixth inning with a two-run single as New York routed Minnesota.

Gamble's towering homer in the third inning gave New York a 2-0 lead and the Yankees broke the game open against loser Al Williams, 3-7, with four runs in the sixth.

Dave Righetti, 4-2, stopped the Twins on three hits in eight innings to win his first game of the second season. Rich Gossage pitched the ninth for the Yankees.

A's 5, Indians 3
Wayne Murphy drove in four runs, three with a homer in the fifth inning, and Tom Underwood hurled 22-3 innings of hitless relief to pace Oakland over Cleveland. Murphy's homer off Bert Blyleven, 9-8, highlighted a four-run fifth that gave the A's a 4-1 lead. Murphy also singled home a run in the ninth.

Underwood gained his first save of the season in support of starter and winner Rick Langford, 8-8. Langford allowed nine Cleveland hits over the first 6-13 innings and combined with Underwood to snap a five-game Cleveland winning streak.

"This year I've been hitting in a lot of clutch situations," said Murphy. "It seems that I'm always getting those chances. I feel comfortable in those situations."

Tigers 3, White Sox 1
Steve Kemp lashed a two-run triple and Kirk Gibson extended his hitting streak to 10 games with a pair of singles and scored on a single by Al Cowens to lead Detroit over Chicago.

Milt Wilcox, 9-5, was the winner and turned in his fifth complete game with a five-hitter. Ross Baumgarten, 6-7, was the loser despite being backed by a triple play in the second inning.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"The rain stopped, sun's out! Isn't anybody interested in going to the beach?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 2, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you need to use tact and diplomacy in dealing with others since there is unusual sensitivity in the air. As the day progresses you'll find conditions improving.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Attend to those duties ahead of you without delay and don't ask others for help. Not a good day to ask for advice.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't take advantage of the rights of others today or you could meet with stiff opposition. Maintain your poise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Anything of a civic nature needs to be handled carefully at this time. Be sure you handle credit matters wisely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You may feel you want to delve into new projects that appear inviting, but it's better to wait for a better day.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't overlook obligations you must meet today. Loved one may be moody, but don't antagonize. Cooperate more with others.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Pay close attention to the wishes of others today, particularly where your associates are concerned. Strive for success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take extra time to engage in duties that could add to your income. Rely more on yourself than others at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be cheerful, even though those around you may be morose, for some reason. Don't spend too lavishly on amusements now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) An outside affair should await a better time before going ahead with it. Establish more harmony with family members.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Recheck a routine matter today and avoid a costly mistake. Being critical of an associate is unwise at this time.

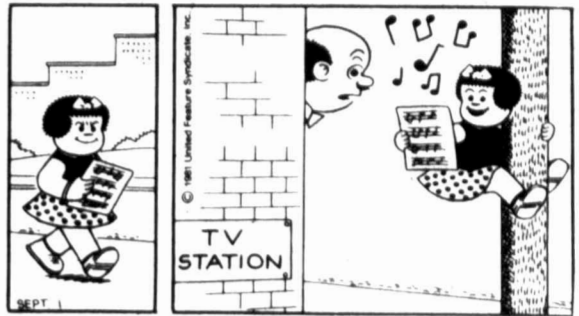

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Not a good day for delving into money matters since your judgment is not up to par. Be more helpful to others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be positive in any business dealings today for best results. Avoid a group affair. Follow your hunches which are accurate now.

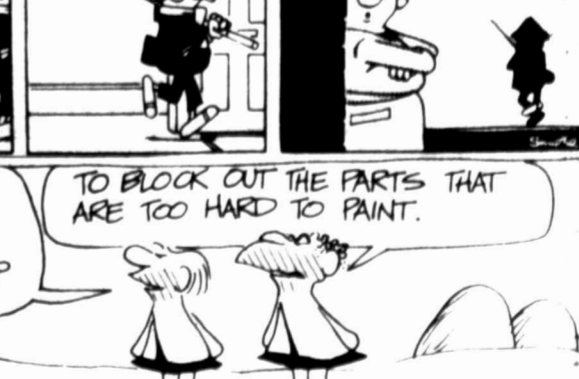

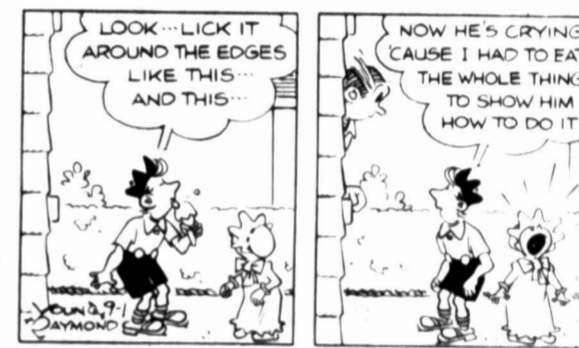

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have a knack for getting into trouble, so teach ways to solve problems instead of creating them, and then this becomes a successful chart. There is musical talent here. Don't neglect ethical training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Mary Paredes awarded renewal of child care credential

Mary Paredes of Big Spring Headstart has been awarded a renewal of her Child Development Associate Credential in recognition of outstanding work with pre-school children in a group setting. The credential renewal was awarded with pre-school children in a group setting. The credential renewal was awarded by the CDA Credentialing Commission, which is working to improve the quality of care provided for youngsters in child care centers. The Commission represents the early childhood profession through its member national organizations. Every candidate for the CDA Credential is assessed by a team of four persons including three from the local community. The team members observe the candidate working with children and evaluate the caregiver's competence in six areas. These range from establishing and maintaining a safe and healthy learning environment to advancing the child's physical and intellectual growth.

In an age when both parents of an increasing number of children are working outside the home, finding an environment in which children will receive more than basic maintenance has grown in importance. CDA assures parents that the credentialed caregiver is capable of providing competent and nurturing care.

Parents and caregivers interested in the CDA program should write: CDA National Credentialing Program, 1341 G Street, NW, Suite 802, Washington, DC 20005. Or phone toll free: (800)-424-4310.

DPS predicts 48 Labor Day deaths

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — As many as 48 persons may die in traffic accidents during the Labor Day weekend, the Department of Public Safety said Monday.

DPS Director Jim Adams made a special appeal to Texas drivers and passengers to wear seatbelts.

A total of 60 persons were killed on Texas highways and streets during the July 4th weekend, 16 more than the DPS had estimated.

None of the drivers or passengers killed during the July 4th period were wearing seatbelts, Adams said. Thirty-five of the fatalities resulted from persons being thrown from their vehicles. Adams urged all motorists to wear their seatbelts to minimize the hazard posed by careless drivers. He said safety belts should be used during city driving as well as long distance trips. Last year in Texas, about 1200 lives would have been saved if all occupants of passenger vehicles had used safety belts, he said.

Texas' traffic death count will be in effect from 6 p.m. Friday Sept. 4 through midnight Monday Sept. 7.

Huge crops forcing prices to sag

WASHINGTON (AP) — With huge crops hanging over their markets, farmers are seeing prices sag below year-ago levels for some key items, including feed grain, cattle and cotton, the Agriculture Department says.

The department's price index for August dropped 2.1 percent from July and for the first time in 14 months averaged below year-earlier levels, officials said Monday.

Lower prices for corn, cattle, soybeans, dry edible beans and cotton led the decline in the price index from July.

However, higher prices for apples, oranges, lemons, milk, tobacco and calves offset part of the decline for the other commodities, the department's Crop Reporting Board said.

According to department records, the last time the monthly farm price index dropped below a year earlier was in June 1980. Scott Steele, a staff economist in the department, said the bumper crops — including a record wheat yield mostly harvested already and an outlook for a huge corn crop this fall — are the most important factor right now in the price situation.

Also, he said, "It depends a lot on some of these foreign market purchases" and how those develop in the next few months as to what farm prices will do the remainder of the season.

On a month-to-month basis, farm prices rose slightly last January and since have held steady in three months and declined in four.

Meanwhile, the prices farmers pay to meet expenses rose 0.7 percent from July and averaged 7.9 percent above a year ago. Higher prices for replacement livestock and family living items more than made up for declines for many feed products and replacement cattle and hogs.

According to the preliminary August figures — which are based mostly on mid-month averages — prices of meat animals as a group declined 1.3 percent from July. The index was 6.1 percent below a year earlier.

The August index for feed grains and hay declined 8.2 percent from July and averaged 4.3 percent below its August 1980 level. Vegetable prices at the farm dropped 3 percent from July but were 16 percent below a year earlier. Lower prices for lettuce, cantaloupes and onions contributed most to the decrease from a month earlier. Higher prices were reported for tomatoes and carrots.

Fruit prices collectively jumped 20 percent from July and averaged 8.3 percent above a year ago. That included higher prices for apples, oranges, lemons, strawberries and pears. Lower prices were reported for peaches.

Department economists predict retail food prices will go up an average of about 8.6 percent this year, matching last year's gain, which was the smallest since 1977.

The August parity ratio was 61 percent, down from 62 percent in July. A year ago, the ratio was 67 percent.

Boll Weevil battle may be put on hold

WASHINGTON (AP) — A National Research Council committee has advised the Agriculture Department to postpone indefinitely its plan for a single, national program to eradicate the cotton boll weevil.

The committee's report, which was distributed here Monday, said the department's two trial programs initiated in 1978 to eradicate the boll weevil from test areas in Virginia, North Carolina and Mississippi have not provided adequate evidence to support an expansion.

"Control efforts over the next several years instead should be focused on continuing the development of integrated pest management practices that combine insecticides, short-season and insect-resistant strains of cotton, and natural insect predators to combat cotton pests," the report said.

In recent years, it said, "there has been a push, primarily from cotton growers, to establish a federally administered, belt-wide program to eliminate the boll weevil."

The committee said an acceptable eradication program over the entire Cotton Belt "would have to allow cotton growers to produce efficiently with only minimum harm to the environment" from chemicals and other anti-weevil practices.

"The biological consequences, environmental effects and economic costs of an eradication program cannot be accurately predicted at this time," the report said.
