'Old' ad valorem tax notices ire Sand Springs residents

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Several Sand Springs residents have recently reported receiving notification of delinquent and valorem taxes, some of which date back almost 20 years.

The tax notices, which are for years ranging from 1962 to 1976, include penalties and interest.

One of the residents, James Archer, is angry that his mother-in-law's property is just now being assessed taxes by the Howard County Water Control District for the years 1970 to 1976.

He said the taxes total $8.68 — including penalties and interest — and he has already paid them. "I am not disputing the tax," Archer said, "but rather the way the entire situation was handled."

Archer said he always makes "a conscious effort to check on taxes" and believes taxes were "overlooked by county employees in the past."

At the County Tax Collector's Office in the Howard County Courthouse, Sue Born said the county only began handling the taxes for the Howard County Water Control District in July of this year.

"The Water Control District was responsible for notices before July," Ms. Brown said. The county is only sending out notices of delinquent taxes according to records received from the Water Control District, she said.

L.E. Burks, who received notice of about $15 in delinquent taxes for the years 1962 to 1974, and Al Hill, who received delinquent taxes for 1962 to 1970, both say they had checked in the past about taxes on their property. Burks believes "Somebody's laying down on the job," while Hill believes he has already paid the taxes and is looking for receipts to prove it.

Oscar Cagle, president of the Howard County Water Control District Board, said tax notices are sent out every year, and he thinks people probably received the original notices and just misplaced them. Noting the District's records are in "huge books weighing 30 to 40 pounds," Cagle said "the changes in employees and the time it takes to check the old, bulky rolls" may be the reason for some delinquent taxes not being noticed until now.

Cagle said the Water Control District moved its records to the County Tax Collector's Office to improve efficiency and to save money. The Water Control District did not develop delinquent tax rolls until five or six years ago, Mr. Cagle said.

The Sand Springs residents also are unhappy with the use of Austin attorneys to collect county taxes.

Burks said, "They hire lawyers out of Austin to do their daggum dirty work."

Archer questions the methods of what he calls "bounty-hunting lawyers" who allow only 12 days to contest the delinquent notice and asks: "Why is county money sent 300-400 miles away with competent lawyers in town?" "People here should handle it," said Burks.

Ms. Born of the Tax Collector's Office, noting some delinquent taxes in the county went back to 1939, said all delinquent taxes over a year old were handled in the same manner. Ms. Born said the County Commissioners were responsible for the selectimn of an Austin firm to collect county delinquent taxes.

County Commissioner O.L. "Louis" Brown, reached about this question, said, "No one in the area wants the job of handling delinquent taxes." Commissioner Brown said area attorneys also had the problem of conflict of interest. Commissioner Brown said the Austin firm of McCreary, Huey — Veseika has been used by the county to collect delinquent taxes for years, adding it was very effective, probably the best in Texas in collecting delinquent accounts.

"Somebody is hunting a job to make some money," says Burks. Cagle said the Water Control District had lowered the tax rate by 31.25 percent in the past six years and plans to lower it more this year. The move of the District's records to the County's computer would save about $5,000 in addition to reducing the District Office's staff from two full-time employees to one-part time employee, Cagle said.

return flight to Washington. Reagan made two speeches during his four-hour visit to New Orleans.

Stenholm may trade votes for farm aid

By PHIL SWANN
States News Service

WASHINGTON — Several key Texas congressmen plan to seek promises from the White House for new farm benefits in exchange for their support for President Reagan's new $13 billion budget cut proposal, according to informed sources.

The group includes four Texas "boll weevils" who are considered swing votes on crucial budget fights: Reps. Charles Stenholm, D-Stanford, Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, Marvin Leath, D-Marlin and Phil Gramm, D-College Station.

"They're going to say to Reagan: 'If you want your $13 billion in cuts, you're going to have to listen to us,'" said one source.

The House farm bill, passed last June by its agriculture committee, is now nearly $3 billion over President Reagan's budget guidelines.

The House is expected to begin debate on the legislation sometime next week and administration officials have been lobbying hard to persuade leaders to bring the bill under the budget.

Gramm confirmed Monday the four Texas congressmen plan to meet this week "to discuss our strategy... and see what can be done under the budget restraints."

He added that if the group can reach a consensus, it will probably request a meeting with President Reagan to seek a compromise.

"The bill has to be on line with the budget," Gramm said. "But there are a range of possibilities (that would give more benefits to farmers)."

Gramm declined to elaborate but, according to sources, the congressmen are considering at least three alternatives:

—A minimum export price for U.S. farm goods sold to foreign markets. Prices are now negotiated by U.S. trade officials in consultation with the State Department, an action that has traditionally riled farmers.

—An expanded farm credit program.

—A higher commodity loan rate in return for scrapping the target price system.

Gramm said Monday the group still has several differences, particularly over the issue of raising the commodity loan rate which Reagan officials say would balloon the budget.

"Stenholm, for example, is for (a higher loan rate) while I'm against it... we still have to work things out," Gramm said.

But the College Station Democrat said he has made a "commitment to a number of people" that he will help seek a compromise on the farm bill.

Sources say that, once the group agrees on a strategy, they will ask the White House to make a deal.

Spokesmen for Stenholm and Leath said they had no knowledge of the group actions.

Sam White, an agriculture aide to Hance, confirmed that the group will probably meet later this week and "possibly" would seek an audience with President Reagan as early as Friday.

Insurance companies investigate fatal oil well explosion

By BILLELDER
Staff Writer

Investigations of a rig fire near Knott Sunday afternoon that left men three men dead are in the hands of insurance companies for the firms involved.

The men died when a drilling rig ruptured a 12-inch steel natural gas line just inside the Martin County line. A fourth worker is in Lubbock General Hospital as a result of the blast and he is listed in critical condition with second and third degree burns over nearby half his body. The Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates the oil and gas industries within the state, will not investigate the accident since the pipeline was an interstate pipeline, said RRC Safety Inspector M.Y. Hibler.

The Martin County Sheriff's Department said its investigation was complete after it accounted for all the men involved in the accident.

Bill Welch, part owner of Harris Rat Hole Service of Midland, which employed one of the dead men as well as the injured man, said this morning: "No one knows where the fault lies. Everybody is investigating it. The insurance companies are looking into this and at this time I'd rather not say anything."

Gene Britt of Britt Trucking and Construction Co. of Lamesa, for whom the other two victims worked, said his insurance company also was looking into the matter.

"I've lost two men and I'm more concerned about that," he added.

Bill Decker, an exploration manager for Jet Oil Co. of Oklahoma, which owned the oil lease for the site where the explosion took place, said he had a field representative at the site and was awaiting a report from him. He said the insurance companies would determine any liability resulting from the accident.

Decker added that the Santa Fe Pipeline Co., owner of the pipeline involved in the accident, was supposed to have posted signs describing where its pipelines are buried.

"That's the only way we know where they are," Decker said.

J.C. Garrett, regional superintendent for Santa Fe, said: "We have signs at all public roads and railroads that a pipeline crosses. Where they were drilling was in a cotton field. You can't put signs in a cultivated field."

He indicated that it was "less than a mile to a road" and a sign apparently was posted there saying the pipeline was buried nearby.

"While we do patrol our pipeline by air, we do not always know when somebody is going to come in and set down on top of (the pipelines) on a day-to-day basis," Garrett added.

"If we had been notified of any digging near one of our pipelines, we would have had an employee there to watch."

He said the pipeline had been repaired by Monday afternoon and was back in service. It would be a "few days" before Santa Fe had an estimate of the gas lost from the rupture, he said.

Senate confronting trillion-dollar debt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., today ended his marathon protest of a bill to raise the nation's debt limit over $1 trillion and at mid-morning yielded the Senate floor after 16 hours of virtually non-stop talking.

"At least I have made a record on what I think is a great watershed in our history," he said.

Proxmire, as he had promised he would, relinquished the floor at 10:27 a.m. EDT rather than delay consideration of the debt ceiling measure, which is needed to allow the government to pay its bills in the fiscal year that begins at 12:01 a.m. Thursday.

He said he would offer an amendment to hold the debt limit to $995 billion, requiring $60 billion to $70 billion in additional spending cuts or a tax increase.

Proxmire began his talkathon about 6:15 p.m. Monday, saying, "It is a clear responsibility that we go into painstaking detail" before pushing the debt limit over the trillion-dollar mark for the first time in history.

Through the night and into the morning, he railed to a near-empty chamber against the legislation sought by the Reagan administration.

But unlike filibusters in the past aimed at blocking or slowing action, Proxmire said he would not try to use the tactic to prevent an expected vote on the bill.

The debt limit bill, already approved by the House, must be sent to President Reagan's desk by Wednesday night to keep the government from losing its authority to borrow.

The new ceiling of $1,079 trillion would apply for the fiscal year that begins Thursday. The current debt limit is $985 billion.

Proxmire legislative assistant Ronald Tammen said Monday night that the senator wanted "to draw attention to the bill by discussing the economic consequences of going over a trillion dollars, without at the same time disrupting the federal government by holding up this bill."

Administration releases report on Soviet strength

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under pressure to make further cuts in military spending, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger today released a well illustrated, 99-page booklet on Soviet military strength.

The report, however, adds little to existing knowledge of the Soviet Union's might.

While its figures on the growing Soviet arsenal for the most part mirror earlier assessments, Weinberger said in an introduction that an understanding of the Soviet Union's strength "is essential to the shaping and maintenance of effective U.S. and allied armed forces."

The booklet's message of a growing Soviet threat, echoing earlier administration statements, comes amid new sentiment from some congressmen for cuts in military spending beyond the $13 billion President Reagan has called for in the fiscal 1982-1984 budgets.

Weinberger said last week that even those cuts hit "vitality needed areas" and that congressmen calling for greater decreases "were wrong and tragically wrong."

The Defense Department booklet does not contain a specific comparison of U.S.-Soviet military strength. It does contain a profusion of charts, photographs of Soviet weaponry, and even dramatic color paintings showing huge Tupolev jets swooping across the skies.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: What's slander?

Q. Under what grounds may a person sue another person for slander?
A. Don Richard, special assistant to the district attorney, advises that in order to be labeled slander, a statement must be an untruth communicated to the public or to a third party which results in damage to the reputation.

Slander deals with the spoken word, as opposed to libel, which deals with the printed word.

SIGN LANGUAGE

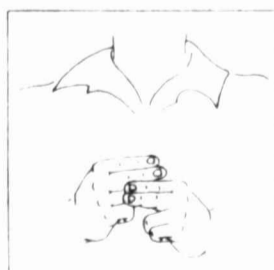

This column will feature a series of "survival signs" during the next few days. "Survival signs" are signs which are used often or which may come in handy for service signers.

Pictured today is the sign for name, as in "my name." To properly form the sign place the middle finger of the right "H" sign across the index finger of the left "h" sign as shown in the illustration.

"The Joy of Signing" by Lottie L. Riekehof explains that the sign for name originally reflected the crossing of the fingers to form an X, which represents the place where the name is to be signed.

It is important to remember that sign language is a very visible language, and a series of facial expressions or movements of the body are often used to further express the meaning of a word or phrase.

Several courses taught through the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf of the Howard County Junior College District deal extensively with the importance of facial expressions when signing. Having learned the sign for name, it is easy to use it to sign "my name." To do that, place the open palm on your chest, then sign name. You can then fingerspell the letters of your name.

To sign "Your name" face the palm out, and direct it forward. Combine the latter with a questioning expression to formulate a question about someone else's name.

Questions may also be formed by drawing an imaginary question mark in the air and attaching it to the end of your signed statement.

The sign here is reprinted with the permission of Gospel Publishing House.

Two more Haitians gain okay to return 'home'

By BILL ELDER

Staff Writer

Two more Haitians have been granted their request, federal officials said today.

The first of 100 Haitians were detained in the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp pending deportation hearings asked to be sent back to Haiti several days prior to the departure of the other two. He was "homesick," said camp Assistant Superintendent Jerry Edwards.

The other two, who left Big Spring Sept. 18, probably felt the same way, Edwards said.

The men have been frustrated in their search for jobs in America, as federal authorities rounded them up and sought to send them back to Haiti.

The deportation hearings and deportations have been stalled by a federal court order, adding to the uncertainty and frustration the Haitians feel, say officials who have talked with the Haitians.

The Haitians were flown, unaccompanied by immigration personnel, to New York. It's believed that the first Haitian traveled on to Haiti, while the other two were held up in New York because of the court order issued later in the month.

The Haitians have to go to New York to obtain "travel documents," said Greg Hession, public information officer for the Immigration and Naturalization Service's Dallas office.

"You have to have the permission of the country before you send them back. I think the Haitian consul in New York was where they were headed," Hession said.

The fates of the 97 Haitians remaining in Big Spring will be determined when the court order blocking the hearings is lifted. The Haitian Refugee Center in Miami filed a lawsuit claiming that some 800 Haitians currently in deportation hearings around the U.S. were not receiving adequate legal representation.

FIERY, DEADLY WELL EXPLOSION — The above photo vividly shows flames that raged out of control Sunday for more than an hour about five miles northwest of Knott. Three men were killed and one critically injured when the drilling unit they were working on struck an underground gas pipeline Sunday afternoon. The fire could be seen for about 25 miles with flames shooting up to 250 to 300 feet, witnesses said. The pipeline is repaired and in service today.

Police Beat Man with gun arrested in club

Police report that they received a call about 7:15 p.m. Monday that a man was inside the Americana Club off I-20 with a gun. An officer arriving on the scene said he heard a gunshot from within the club. Shortly thereafter an unidentified man approached the officer and said the gun wielder was in the club's restroom. The officer arrested Ronald D. Byrd after allegedly finding a gun in the suspect's right boot. Unlawful carrying of a weapon, public intoxication and disorderly conduct charges were filed.

Helen Eggleston complained to police that three men chased her son from Forsan to Big Spring at about 6:15 p.m. Monday. When the trio caught up with the youth in the 1300 block of South Main, they threw beer inside his new-model Pontiac and damaged the car with a "claw-type hammer," according to police reports.

Police Detective Avery Falkner said one of three suspects was apprehended in connection with the incident. Police were holding Gregory Kozdron this morning on an aggravated assault charge in connection with the incident.

Vivian Garcia, 19, called police at about 1 p.m.

Monday to complain that a neighbor had hit his dog with a pipe while the dog was in the yard of Garcia's 908 Aylford home.

Mary Garcia complained to police that someone pushed and struck her eight-year-old son while he was at the West Side Day Care Center at about 8:05 a.m. Monday.

Trisha Leffler, 16, complained to police Monday afternoon that she has been receiving harassing telephone calls at K-Mart, where she works, and at her 1209 Douglas home.

Andrew Diskant of 2600 Hunter complained to police

Monday morning that someone had poured black paint on his pickup truck while it was parked at his home.

An employee of the Seven-11 at 11th and Settles complained to police that at about 10:15 a.m. Monday a person entered the store, threw down a six-pack of beer and damaged merchandise on nearby shelves.

An employee of the Mid-Continent Inn off I-20 complained Monday to police that a person rented out a room over the weekend and left the inn without paying.

Lee's Rental Center at 1606 E. Marcy told Monday that sometime within the last week a Ford U-Haul truck was stolen from the premises of the company. It was locked and didn't have a key in it, according to police reports.

Robert Whitley of 110 E. 17th complained to police that at about 5:05 a.m. today a person tried to break down the door of his home and fled after Whitley switched on his house lights, police said.

Vehicles driven by Desmond Powell of Gail Route and Kathy Matthews of 1305 Mobile collided in the 300 block of Scurry at about 12:03 p.m. Monday, police said. Matthews was taken by ambulance to Cowper Hospital for examination of possible injuries, according to police reports.

Child rape victim is allowed abortion

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Oklahoma Supreme Court, holding that a 12-year-old pregnant gang rape victim's "life is endangered," has said she is entitled to the abortion she desires despite her mother's objections based on religion.

The mother, a member of the Church of the Holiness, had asked the court to uphold her contention that she is entitled to make the decision because her daughter is too young to make such decisions for herself.

The daughter, nearly three months pregnant and suffering from a venereal disease because three older youths raped her, won the ruling, however, because she is so young that doctors say it could endanger her life if she has the baby.

The court, in an order signed late Monday by Chief Justice Pat Irwin, upheld a lower court ruling that declared the girl a "deprived child" and ordered her made a ward of the state so her pregnancy could be terminated.

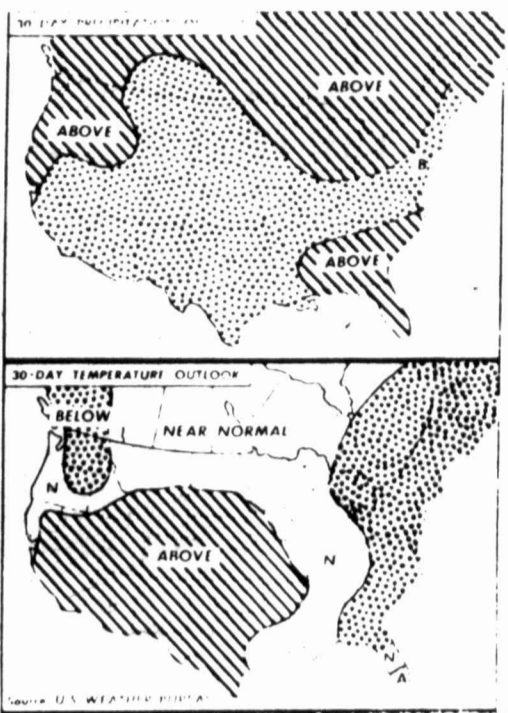

The three-paragraph order by the Supreme Court said it "finds the evidence undisputed in support of the trial court's finding that her life is endangered by the pregnancy, and that the termination of her pregnancy is hence necessary."

"The trial court's orders are not against the clear weight of the evidence and are affirmed," the high court ruling concluded.

That means the girl will be turned over to the state Human Services Department for an immediate abortion and any other medical attention she needs, under terms of an order issued last week by Special Judge Donald C. Manning of Oklahoma City.

Manning had ordered the girl's pregnancy terminated last week, but had stayed the effect of his order to give the Supreme Court time to rule on the landmark case.

Former Texas A&M president dies at 61

HOUSTON (AP) — Jack K. Williams, former president and chancellor of Texas A&M University, will be buried Wednesday on the campus of Clemson University in South Carolina, where his academic career began in 1947.

Williams died Monday in Houston following a brief illness. He had suffered two heart attacks and underwent open heart surgery in 1976. Hospital officials declined to reveal the cause of death, at the family's request.

Memorial services were scheduled today at St. Paul United Methodist Church in Houston. Wednesday's burial, at Cemetery Hill in Clemson, S.C., will be at 4 p.m.

Williams moved to Houston after unexpectedly leaving the A&M system in January 1980 to become an executive vice president and director of the Texas Medical Center.

He served as a teacher and administrator at Clemson for 19 years, before coming to Texas in 1966 to become the state's first commissioner of higher education. He was named president of Texas A&M in 1970 and became chancellor of the A&M system in 1977, supervising the university during its greatest growth.

"There have been two great periods of spectacular development of programs and facilities at Texas A&M University," said A&M Chancellor Frank Hubert upon learning of Williams' death.

"The first of these was through the work of the late Gen. Earl Rudder during the period of the 60s. The second era of great development was during Jack Williams' administration during the 70s.

Ropers over 40 shape up for Bandera event

A roping contest for "any ropers over 40-years-old" has been slated at Bandera Oct. 1-4, according to Donald Busbee.

Busbee was at the Howard County Fair all last week, operating Busbee's Bar-be-que booth. The Bandera man said he and several others from Bandera have been getting the word out about the roping contest, which has been held in Bandera about seven times.

"I'm trying to talk Toots Mansfield into coming," said Busbee Saturday. Busbee said he hoped to attract several former world's champions like Mansfield to the competition.

The event will be held in Mansfield Park in Bandera, a community of about 1,200. The winners will receive belt buckles.

"About three years ago, we had a flood in Bandera," Busbee said. "It liked to wash away the whole town. We've rebuilt Mansfield Park" and townspeople hope the competition will draw many ropers, he said.

Ropers interested in attending the contest should contact the resident manager of Mansfield Park, John Dexter.

Commissioners approve office supplies bid

The Howard County Commissioners' Court met Monday and accepted the bid of Big Spring Printing for $8,212.77 for new office supplies and new office furniture. Another bid from Hester's was for office supplies only and was not accepted.

D.D. Johnston's bid of $1,122 for renovation of the tax office was approved by commissioners. Justice Construction bid $2,179.

In other business, the commissioners approved the appointment of election judges for the next year. They also approved a salary of $4 an hour for election clerks, and for election judges to receive $25 for returning the election boxes. This action was in conjunction with House Bill 152.

A discussion with the Sheriff's Department about the purchase of new vehicles for the department concluded following examination of the current vehicle's repair records. The court decided to have the Sheriff's Department present the proposal again at the December meeting.

Other action taken by the Commissioners' Court included the approval of the use of paper ballots for the Nov. 3 tax record certificate for Dorothy Moore, of the Tax Collector's Office, as well as paying all necessary bills.

A conference with Judith Gray, librarian from the Howard County Library, concerning various topics ended with Gray planning a report for a later meeting. Commissioners were also the recipient of two boxing trophies. The trophies were presented to the Court by the Howard County Boxing Club.

The meeting was in the County Courthouse.

Crime Stoppers need your help

We read in the Police Beat every day of crimes in Big Spring.

Thieves are the most common offenders, as in every other town, but we also have our share of assaults, murders, rapes and arson.

Crime Stoppers, Inc., formed by concerned community members, is out to do something about crime in Big Spring.

When Crime Stoppers organized a couple of months ago, it had one main objective: curtail crime.

It planned to accomplish this objective in two ways: (1) offer rewards for information leading to the arrest or indictment of anyone in connection with crimes that take place in Howard County, and (2) offer tips on crime prevention to the community.

The police department already has been offering tips to owners of homes and businesses.

BUT NOW THE TIME has come to build up the reward fund.

The board of directors of Crime Stoppers includes 13 people, drawn from the Chamber of Commerce, the city council, the county commission, and the insurance industry. They hope to set up a fund that basically would operate as an endowment — reward money would come from the interest accrued from a general fund, if enough money can be collected.

The reward fund will make the difference in the effectiveness of Crime Stoppers.

We urge all businesses and interested individuals to support Crime Stoppers with tax-deductible contributions.

If enough money is raised now, the fund can become self-sufficient. And someday you may be the very one who would benefit the most by a reward fund that leads to the apprehension of a criminal. Stolen goods might be recovered, or the crook who was apprehended for robbing another business might thus be prevented from hitting your business the following week.

YOU CAN LOOK at your donation as an insurance policy, as a tax write off, or as just good ole community-mindedness — but whichever way, please send your check to Crime Stoppers Inc. Fund, care of Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 1391, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Your community will thank you.

Why Johnny can't eat

Art Buchwald

"The class will please come to order. Today, children, we will talk about American agriculture. The United States produces more meat, grain, corn, dairy products, vegetables and fruit than any country on earth. Thanks to our farmers, food is one of our largest exports and we are able to feed people all over the world.

"Now, Johnny, can you name a meat that comes from an American farm?"

"Tofu."

"No, Johnny. Tofu is not a meat. It looks like meat, but it is made from soybean curd."

"Lady in the cafeteria said it was meat."

"I'm sure she didn't say it was meat. What she must have said was that you are now entitled under Department of Agriculture regulations to have a delicious tofu instead of a hamburger."

"It tasted lousy."

"Now, Johnny, you must understand tofu is an acquired taste. Does anyone know what an acquired taste is?"

"Something that tastes lousy?"

"Now, I'll have no more of that kind of talk in this sixth-grade class. An acquired taste is something you have to get used to. When I was a little girl I didn't like spinach. But as I grew up I acquired a taste for it, and now I eat it once a week."

"You ever acquire a taste for tofu?"

"We didn't have tofu when I was a little girl."

"You're lucky. It really tastes lousy."

"Now let's talk about other things farmers raise. Edna, name something a farmer produces."

"Milk."

"Very good. Milk and other dairy products are some of the most important foods for young growing bodies because they contain calcium which your bones need to make you strong. How many glasses of milk should a young person drink a day?"

"A half a cup."

"No, Johnny. A half a cup is certainly not enough milk for someone your age."

"Lady in the cafeteria said that's all I could have."

"She was just following federal regulations concerning school lunches."

"What's federal regulations?"

"Those are the rules the President and his advisers decide the people must live by. He had to cut down on your milk allowance to save money for the country."

"What does he do with all the milk we ain't allowed to drink?"

"It's made into butter and cheese and stored in warehouses all over America, until it gets rotten and then they throw it away."

"You got to be kidding."

"No, Johnny. That's the only way we can encourage farmers to produce milk. By buying up their surplus they're guaranteed a profit on their milk. Shall we move on to vegetables? What kind of vegetables do our American farmers raise?"

"I know the answer to that one. Catsup."

"Catsup is not a vegetable, Johnny."

"Lady in the cafeteria said it was a vegetable. She said I was entitled to two vegetables, potatoes and catsup."

"Well, it's true the Department of Agriculture declared the other day that catsup was a vegetable, but farmers don't raise it. They raise tomatoes and afterwards they are squashed up and put into bottles as catsup. Then people like yourselves put the catsup on your hamburgers to make them taste better."

"Lady in the cafeteria wouldn't give me no hamburger."

"Well, then, you can put catsup on your tofu."

"I did, but it still tasted lousy."

"Johnny, you have disrupted this class enough today. You will stay after school and write 100 times on the blackboard, 'America produces more food than any country in the world today.'"

Around the rim Soap in the eyes

Richard Horn

THE COUCH — Sitting here eating my stale ham-and-cheese sandwich and watching "The Guiding Light," while the news that soap operas have become America's favorite programs runs through my head.

I would love to make some clever comment about The Current Shallowness of Our Times but I cannot. For I too have felt the Fierce Pull of Soap. I am sitting here watching the talentless cast of "The Guiding Light" go through their paces — which is what I do everytime I make a stale sandwich and lie on the couch at this time of day.

Mind you I don't like it. In fact I loathe it; that is precisely why I watch it. When I come home for lunch after a hard morning at work, I want to loathe something.

WHAT COULD BE better than "The Guiding Light"? Look, here comes Morgan Nelson, an ignorant little 18-year-old who is the show's catch-all. Everything happens to Morgan and it's all bad. She's been kidnapped by pimps and has learned all sorts of little nasties about her mother. And that was just two episodes.

She was in a car wreck about a month ago. The guy who was driving had been drinking (victimized again!!!). When they wheeled her into the emergency room there was a lot of blood and a big bandage around her head. The doctors were talking brain surgery and "probable paralysis." Really awful stuff. But I tuned in two days later and Morgan was up and about with out so much as a Band-Aid. They have good doctors on "The Guiding Light."

Morgan has a friend called Nola. Nola's about as much fun as brain surgery, only a lot cheaper. Morgan and Nola aren't friends any more because Nola tried to steal Morgan's boyfriend. She was also responsible for Morgan's escort being drunk that night a month ago.

NEXT TO THAT, Nola's favorite pastime is sleeping around. That's what I'm watching right now. Only they're not sleeping. I don't know about you, but I think sex as a spectator sport is vastly overrated.

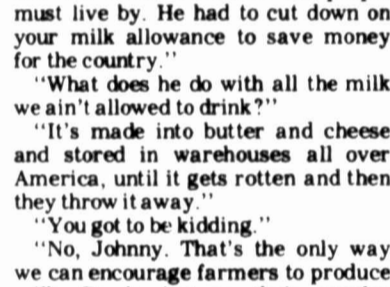

But back to the story. Now we see Morgan's mother, talking to a man who wants to see his wife Amanda, who is living in Morgan's mother's attic because she's losing her mind. Amanda was happily married and expecting a child when she found out that Morgan's mother was also her mother by a man she hates. Or something like that. Anyway Amanda's trying to get her head together.

Here's Allen Spalding, the show's big villain. Allen has a wife, Hope. Allen has been cheating on Hope since God made Man, but Hope is still telling her father that she's giving Allen "one more chance." Good for Hope. Better for Allen.

Hope's father by the way is a know-it-all lawyer named Mike (of course), who has his finger in everybody's business. He's quite a boring fellow, but up against the morons that populate this soap opera, he's the closest thing we have to hero. Good ol' Mike.

AND FINALLY the credit roll, accompanied by the mention of "The binding Light" being an Emmy award-winner. Emmy award-winner for what?! God only knows and He'd probably like to forget.

But I do have a clue as to why so many people make these video garbage-sacks a part of their day. After an hour of watching Morgan and her mother, Nola, Amanda, Allen, and Mike trying to stumble through an afternoon, I feel a whole lot better about going back to work.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have recently become a Christian, and I know that Christ has forgiven all my sins. But do I really need to bother with church? I always found church rather boring. — L.C.

DEAR L.C.: I suspect now that you have become a Christian your view of church may change. One reason for this is because you are now a child of God, and as such you will discover that you are part of a family. All who belong to Jesus Christ are now your brothers and sisters in Christ, and the church is the place where you are most likely to meet them.

Let me mention three reasons why you need to become part of a church where Christ is preached and where you have opportunities for Christian service. First, the Word of God demands it. The Bible makes it clear that Christians have a common bond with each other because they belong to Christ. The Bible declares, "Let us not give up meeting together, as some are in the habit of doing" (Hebrews 10:25).

Second, your spiritual growth demands it. As a new Christian, the highest priority you should have in life right now is to grow in your knowledge and love of Christ. It is important for you to read your Bible and pray, but it is also important for you to learn from other believers. God has expressly given the spiritual gift of teaching to some Christians, and your spiritual life will be undernourished if you do not take advantage of their help.

Also, in your fellowship with other believers, you will discover just how much their encouragement and wisdom can help you in your life as a Christian. "And let us consider how we may spur one another on toward love and good deeds" (Hebrews 10:24). You need the help of other believers — and they need your help also.

Finally, your witness demands it. You undoubtedly have many non-Christian friends who are watching to see if you are really sincere in your commitment to Christ. Let them know by your life — including your fellowship with God's people — that Christ is Lord of your life, and you want them to come to know him as well.

Ugandan planes used U.S. airport

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — At the lowest point in U.S. relations with Idi Amin, a Ugandan airliner made an unauthorized landing at a California airport and was permitted to leave with what was apparently an illegal shipment of high explosives. Amin is the homicidal maniac who ruled Uganda until his overthrow two years ago.

The incident was yet another chapter in the weird saga of Frank Terpil and Ed Wilson, the fugitive ex-CIA agents whose sordid exploits I have been reporting for the past year. The two renegades had made a lucrative career, supplying explosives and terrorist training to Amin and his Libyan buddy, Muammar Qaddafi.

THE AIRPORT INCIDENT occurred on Sept. 20, 1977, according to secret Justice Department reports examined by my associate Dale Van Atta. The United States had not had an embassy in Kampala since 1973; just seven months before the mysterious cargo pickup, President Carter had denounced Idi Amin as a ruler whose actions "have disgusted the entire civilized world."

The assistant manager of the Ontario (Calif.) International Airport told federal investigators he had initially directed the Ugandan airliner to Los Angeles. But the pilot refused, "stating there was cargo at Ontario to be picked up."

On landing, the plane was directed to a remote area of the field and sealed off. Several hours later, U.S. Customs agents boarded it and found an Egyptian captain, a Ugandan copilot, a Lebanese flight engineer and several Ugandan flight attendants.

An attorney for Jerome S. Brower, a well-known explosives dealer, arrived and said the cargo was waiting at the Aerojet Inc. hangar. Next came the terrible Terpil, who said he was "a representative of Ugandan Airlines" and would handle everything.

One of the Customs agents, having determined that the cargo was electronic equipment, OK'd it for shipment.

BUT THE CUSTOMS AGENT returned the next day, Sept. 21, because "the situation at the airport bothered him," according to one of the secret reports. Thistime he found a shipment of explosives waiting to be loaded.

"The liquid explosive, with a flash point of 110 degrees or 120 degrees, was sitting on the runway in cans," he told investigators. "As the day got hotter, the cans began to burst and the liquid was seeping out onto the runway and later onto the floor of the aircraft."

The explosives had come from Brower's company. The Customs agent also spotted some 55-gallon drums of an unknown substance nearby, but was told they weren't part of the shipment. He told investigators he didn't know if any of the mysterious drums had been loaded on earlier, but another Customs agent said he had seen some in the cargo hold.

But when the agents checked with the State Department in Washington, they were told there was no reason to prevent the export of the explosives. The plane was approved for departure, and flew out that day after filing a flight plan to Canada.

"All bills for food, fuel and airport services were paid in U.S. currency out of a suitcase held by the pilot," the reports said.

Brower pleaded guilty earlier this year to one count of illegally shipping explosives to Libya in 1976 through Terpil. The Aerojet Inc. facility chief at Ontario, Frank Dolinski, told investigators he had let Brower, who once worked for the company, use the hangar, and was shocked when he learned it had been used to load a Ugandan aircraft. Dolinski was reprimanded by Aerojet officials, according to one report, "for allowing Brower, known to do anything for money, to use their facility."

One thing is not clear: High explosives had been embargoed for shipment to Uganda. So why was a Ugandan airplane allowed to pick up explosives? One Customs agent at the airport said the load was not inspected because he "wouldn't know one explosive from another anyway."

Footnote: Indictments are expected soon in a similar case a month after the Ontario incident. It involves Wilson, Brower and the illegal shipment of 20 tons of C4 plastic explosives from Houston to Libya.

Artery obstruction: time for decision

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My doctor examined my neck, then sent me in for expensive laboratory tests. Results: Obstruction in the arteries. 90 percent on right side, 60 percent on the left side. He said I must be operated on or I will have a stroke. Is surgery the answer? What kind? — H.S.

Correct me if I am wrong. When the doctor examined your neck with his stethoscope, he most likely heard a noise (a bruit) over the large neck arteries. That's a sign of narrowing from fat deposits. These arteries (the carotids) bring blood to the brain. If the fat deposits grow, blood supply to the brain can be cut off. That's a stroke. Also a bit of the deposit (emboli) can break off and block the brain blood supply. Again, a stroke.

So the question is what to do about obstruction of the carotid arteries when you have no symptoms. That is not easy to answer. Some suggest that removing the fat deposits prevents the stroke. The details of such surgery vary, but such operations have been done for more than 25 years. Other doctors feel that use of drugs to prevent growth of deposits is acceptable treatment. Sometimes medicine as common as aspirin is used.

The decision is based in part on other factors — the general state of health, whether there have been episodes of numbness or weakness of an arm or leg, whether there have been speech lapses, and just where the obstruction is in the artery. What I would do next is go to a neuro or vascular surgeon for his opinion and be guided by that.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Could you write a little about surgery for high blood pressure? Never heard about it until recently. How important is it? —

F.V.O.

I hope you are referring to sympathectomy. I will have to assume that. Blood pressure rises when small arteries constrict. They constrict in part as a response to certain nerve action — the sympathetic nerves. If those nerves are severed, it would be logical to expect blood pressure to drop — and it does.

However, that kind of surgery is seldom used. There are drugs that can block those nerves and accomplish the same goal. Also, the dose of such drugs can be increased or decreased as necessary. With surgery it is an all-or-nothing proposition, and the effect is permanent.

There are other surgical procedures for other kinds of blood pressure. An adrenal gland tumor can make the blood pressure rise by leading to production of too much hormone involved in pressure. Removing that tumor brings the blood pressure back to normal. Various forms of high blood pressure and their treatment are discussed in the booklet "Controlling Your Blood Pressure." For a copy, write me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: When a woman (in her early 60s) hasn't had sex for several years (following widowhood) I understand it can be very difficult to resume relations without medical assistance. My question is, if this is so, what exactly is done? What does treatment consist of and is it a painful procedure? — F.K.

If the vagina has narrowed, then intercourse is difficult. The vagina can be enlarged with dilators. That is an office procedure. It may be a bit uncomfortable, but need not be extremely painful.

A Closer Look

Washington press finds evasive Clements

English, who you saw while you've been here, what you told them, and what they told you.

"Clements didn't do that," the AP reported, and he "differed with newsmen once over their recollection of a statement he made to another news conference three days earlier, and refused several times to answer other questions."

Another time, Clements told a reporter who asked a second question about an item, "You're really hung up on that, aren't you?"

And, the AP diligently reported, "the governor smirked, then finally answered."

Apparently the Washington reporters found Clements' performance to be either amusing or upsetting, or both.

But it contained few surprises for any Texas reporters, and probably for few Texans who have grown accustomed to watching their governor spar with the press.

A few days later, Texans could watch "The Governor's Report" on Public Service Television and hear Sam Kinch of The Dallas Morning News Austin Bureau tell Clements: "I know you're fond of pussy-footing around issues."

They could hear Clements come back a few minutes later with a comment about reporters always looking for something that wasn't there.

Capitol reporters in Austin meet with Clements for a news conference almost every week. And the governor usually can be pulled aside for some questions during regular public appearances.

Almost every occasion will involve a sparring between the governor and one or more reporters. Always willing to put on the gloves is Felton West, capitol bureau chief for The Houston Post.

West has all the subtlety of a wart hog, but it's his persistence rather than his manner that bugs the governor.

Clements is a self-made millionaire who likes to run things his own way. If he doesn't want to tell something, he isn't about to tell something. And he has several methods for getting his way on any subject.

As with any politician, Clements can talk at length around any subject. He can tell you a lot, but not what you want to know.

He can brush off a follow-up question with the claim that he had already answered that, when, in reality, he had not.

He can give a non-answer and then quickly signal that he's open to other questions.

Reporters, competitive and always with other questions, usually oblige.

Or, not infrequently, Clements simply will counterattack with the claim that the reporter is off base or has a faulty memory.

Reporters in Austin are accustomed to such antics. They complain that the governor is dodging questions and giving evasive answers, but they have to admit that at least Clements makes himself available to questions and makes the encounters interesting.

Those who remember Dolph Briscoe's administration are grateful for such small favors.

Briscoe loved being governor but gave the impression of hating and fearing the press, at least as a group. Rather than offensive, he was defensive.

To be questioned, he had to be tracked down at some public function and headed off before he could slip out an exit.

Now Briscoe is making like a candidate to retake the Governor's Mansion.

If he succeeds and resumes his keep-away style with the press, you'll hear reporters howling in irritation. "Remember the good ol' days," they'll tell one another, "when Clements would dodge questions and insult us."

Issues of AWACS obscured

The Administration's proposal to sell the Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS) aircraft to Saudi Arabia has generated much controversy on Capitol Hill and in the news. In fact, amid all this debate, the real issues involved sometimes have been obscured.

Let's look for a moment at the reason President Reagan has proposed selling this aircraft to Saudi Arabia.

Saudi Arabia has a legitimate requirement for an effective air defense capability to protect the Kingdom's oil fields and its territorial integrity. Since 1978, the security situation in the Persian Gulf region has seriously worsened. The revolution in Iran brought the fall of a pillar of Western security in the region. Iran is now unstable and unpredictable, and has developed a foreign policy hostile to both the U.S. and Saudi Arabia.

The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan has increased the potential of the Soviets to project military power into the Persian Gulf region. Soviet proxy states — South Yemen and Ethiopia — also represent a threat to Saudi Arabia.

In this threatening environment, the Saudis need the capability to have early warning of air attacks against the Kingdom, especially against the oil fields, which are extremely important to the entire industrialized world. Ground-based radars can provide only two to four minutes of warning of low-flying aircraft.

The AWACS aircraft, which is essentially a flying radar platform, can provide

It should also be noted that the AWACS aircraft is a defensive system.

If this is the case, why have so many in Congress already expressed opposition to the sale? Unfortunately, there has been substantial misunderstanding of the capabilities of the AWACS aircraft and the sensitivity of its technology. The Administration has just begun to present its reasons for wanting to make the sale.

Members of Congress who currently oppose the Administration's sale package are concerned about a potential threat to Israel and the risks of compromise of U.S. technology. These are issues that should concern Congress. However, I am convinced that when members have seen the facts fully presented, these misunderstandings will be corrected.

Further, I believe that the Congress will sustain the President's sale proposal once the facts have been fully presented. An objective evaluation of these facts shows that the proposed sales are clearly in U.S. national interests.

earlier detection of threatening aircraft. Given the fragility of the oil fields, it is essential that air attacks be intercepted prior to reaching these fields. The AWACS aircraft is being proposed for Saudi Arabia primarily to provide that vital early warning.

In my judgment, this sale would not pose a significant military threat to Israel. The sale to Saudi Arabia of both the AWACS and the enhancement items for Saudi F-15 aircraft will not alter the balance of power in the region. This balance of power is heavily in Israel's favor.

For the foreseeable future, Israel will be capable of defeating any combination of Arab military forces.

Some Democrats moving to GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although Rep. Bob Stump of Arizona is the most recent member of Congress to switch parties, he's joining a fairly sizable club of aisle-crossers.

After resisting invitations from Republicans for years, Democrat Stump announced last week that he'll run on the GOP ticket starting next year.

But he said he'd wait until June to make the switch official — to preserve his current committee assignments.

He joins Rep. Peter Peyser, D-N.Y., and Sens. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., Donald W. Riegle, D-Mich., Edward Zorinsky, D-Nebr., and Harry F. Byrd, I-Va. They, too, elected to switch.

Peyser was a Republican from 1971-77, was out of the House for two years after making an unsuccessful bid for the Senate and then came back in 1979 as a Democrat, reclaiming his old seat.

Thurmond bolted the Democratic Party in 1948 while governor of South Carolina to run for president as a third-party "States Rights" candidate but returned to the fold and won election to the Senate in 1954 as a Democrat. In 1964 he switched to Republican.

Riegle served in the House as a Republican from 1967-73 and then became a Democrat. He won another House term in 1974 — as a Democrat — and in 1976 was elected to the Senate, still as a Democrat.

Zorinsky had been a Republican all his life when, after a term as mayor of Omaha, he ran for the Senate in 1976 — as a Democrat. When Republicans gained control of the Senate in 1980, Zorinsky said he might switch back.

Nebraska Republicans were unenthusiastic. Saying "I'm not accustomed to going to parties I'm not invited to," Zorinsky decided to stay a Democrat.

Byrd, in the Senate since 1965, is the only political independent now in Congress, although he meets with the Democratic Caucus and votes most of the time with Republicans.

TWINS, TWINS, TWINS — Three sets of twins were in the Admiration Beauty Shop in Hobbs recently for a brush-up with their moms and grandmom. Dear Abby

Wife's New Curves Bend Husband Out of Shape

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "Flat in Front" was all wet. "Flat" wanted to surprise her husband and have her breasts surgically enlarged because he always ogled big-busted women. You said, "Don't surprise him. Ask him. He may like you just the way you are."

Abby, I went through this kind of surgery 10 years ago because, like "Flat," my husband ogled big-busted women. When we'd go to a party, he'd wander off, and I'd always find him next to a woman who was well-endowed.

Finally I went to a plastic surgeon to ask about silicone implants and was told it would cost $2,000 (this was in 1970). I asked my husband for the money. He refused, so I sold my car and paid for the operation myself, and it was the best investment I ever made.

I got a gorgeous figure out of it (37-26-38), but my husband couldn't take the whistles and compliments, and the confidence I had acquired. I realized then what a loser he was, and I divorced him.

Now I'm married to a real winner who loves me the way I am.

BUILT AND LOVING IT

DEAR BUILT: Hubby No. 1 was a loser for sure. But Hubby No. 2 is a winner only if he also would have loved you the way you were.

DEAR ABBY: My husband died a year ago. My neighbors were very considerate at the time of the funeral, bringing in food, etc. But after that, I never heard a word from any of them. (I'm not complaining. I'm a working woman and not the type to socialize a great deal with my neighbors.)

Three weeks ago I quietly married a fine gentleman I had known for years. I had intended to have a little wine-and-cheese party and invite my neighbors in to meet my husband, but I guess I wasn't quick enough, because I just got a call from a friend telling me I had better hurry and announce my marriage because my gossipy neighbors were talking. It seems they just found out I have a man living with me, and they think I've got a live-in boyfriend! I think it's rather funny.

What should I do?

LEGALLY HITCHED

DEAR HITCHED: Don't do anything. Let your gossipy neighbors find out you're married just like they found out you had a man living with you.

...

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a wonderful guy, but he is very unreasonable when someone is late. Abby, I don't mean really late like 45 minutes or an hour. I am talking five to 10 minutes.

Both our kids are married and they are responsible adults, but they sometimes run a little late.

Well, yesterday we were going out for dinner with our kids, and we had a 7 p.m. reservation at a place about a 10 minutes' drive from here. Our daughter and her husband weren't here at 6:30 like they were supposed to be, so my husband insisted that we leave at 6:45 on the dot! I begged him to wait another five minutes, but he wouldn't do it. My husband is the kind who has to be at the airport an hour early, and he has absolutely no patience with anyone who is even five minutes late for anything.

MR. PUNCTUALITY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Don't look for a cure where there's no disease. Mr. Punctuality will probably train his family before they "cure" him.

Honorary life membership awarded at fall workshop

Leslie Earnst, president of the Big Spring Council of the Parent-Teacher Association, was presented an honorary life membership in Texas PTA at the District 17 PTA fall workshop in Odessa last week.

The life membership had been awarded earlier to District 17 by Texas PTA for outstanding membership increases last year and was earmarked for presentation to an exceptional PTA worker.

"Our neighbors to the east were very instrumental," said Glenda Pruitt, of Midland, District president of the membership increases which won the life membership for District 17. Mrs. Pruitt praised Big Spring

PTAs for their "Join the Stars in PTA" campaign which helped District 17 win this honor.

Seven Big Spring PTA members attended the district conference at Odessa's Crescent Park Baptist Church. They were Mrs. Earnst; Nelda Reagan, Janet Murley and Neva Butler from Marcy PTA, and Barbara Claxton, Lynn Biel and Londa Henry from Moss PTA.

Mrs. Earnst and Shelene Roberts, two of the Big Spring PTA members serving on the District 17 Board, have been named to the nominating committee for new district officers. Local PTAs are asked to submit their nominations for district officers to Mrs. Earnst by Jan. 31, 1982. Mrs. Earnst may be contacted at 267-1736.

Reagan's crime-fighting tactics come under attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tactics President Reagan proposes to use in an attack on "an American epidemic" of violent crime are under challenge by civil libertarians, lawyers and some members of Congress.

The American Civil Liberties Union decried many of the president's major proposals Monday as a threat to constitutional rights and said independent studies show they have no chance of being effective.

The American Bar Association said it opposed some of the key planks in Reagan's anti-crime platform, including "preventive detention" by which judges could keep suspects in jail without bail if they appeared to be a danger to the community.

And Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said the administration was trying to fight crime "on the cheap" — without spending money to improve local law enforcement or build new prisons.

Addressing the International Association of Chiefs of Police in New Orleans, Reagan said: "It's time for honest talk, for plain talk. There has been a breakdown in the criminal justice system in America. It just plain isn't working."

"All too often, repeat offenders, habitual law-breakers, career criminals — call them what you will — are robbing, raping, and beating with impunity and...quite literally getting away with murder. The people are sickened and outraged. They demand that we put a stop to it."

He proposed a sweeping overhaul of federal criminal laws which the Senate Judiciary Committee coincidentally began to review Monday at about the same time Reagan was speaking.

Reform of the federal criminal code has been under consideration since 1966 but has been bottled up for years in Congress. The Senate passed a bill in 1978, but the House didn't. Senate and House leaders reportedly were close to reaching a compromise last year, but still nothing passed.

Griffin B. Bell, attorney general in the Carter administration, urged adoption of the code in testimony Monday before the Judiciary Committee but said it should not include a Reagan proposal to allow illegally obtained evidence to be used against suspects in some cases. Bell said he personally liked the idea but suggested it would jeopardize passage of a revised code because it is so controversial.

In attacking the so-called exclusionary rule, Reagan said he opposed throwing out a case — "no matter how guilty the defendant or how heinous the crime" — because of "technical...law enforcement error."

But John Shattuck, head of the ACLU office here, said a 1979 study by the General Accounting Office of Congress showed that evidence was excluded on grounds it violated constitutional rights of privacy in only 1.3 percent of 2,064 cases checked.

He said the exclusionary rule was the only sure-fire protection against police abuse and that its abolition would do practically nothing to make law enforcement more effective.

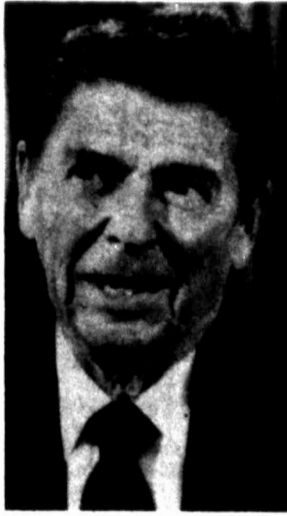

The American Bar Association said it opposed pretrial detention of suspects "based solely upon a defendant's past conduct or upon a general prediction of future dangerousness."

Denial of bail is now based on a judge's belief that a suspect will flee prosecution if freed pending trial.

Reagan, following his policy of austerity in federal spending on non-defense programs, made no mention of a proposal by his administration's bipartisan task force on crime that called for allocating $2 billion in federal grants to states to build new prisons.

Gov. James Thompson of Illinois, a Republican task force member, called that proposal "the lynchpin on which all our other recommendations are built."

Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, said "America will need more than a few inspiring words from the president's 'bully pulpit' to stop crime in our streets."

Three injured in ammonia spill

MERKEL, Texas (AP) — Three men were injured, two critically, when a pickup pulling a tank of anhydrous ammonia collided head-on with another pickup on State Highway 126 South and began leaking, authorities said.

Between 75 and 100 residents in a two-block area surrounding the accident site were evacuated Monday afternoon. They were allowed to return to their homes two hours later, Merkel Police Chief Jerry Cowin said.

Fertilize lawns now, county agent advises

Fertilizing lawns now will boost fall growth and get them in shape for next spring.

A fall application of fertilizer not only prolongs green color in lawns but also stimulates root growth, reduces winter injury and promotes early spring recovery, Don Richardson, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System said.

Fall fertilization also increases turf density and reduces weeds.

Warm fall days and cool nights provide conditions favorable for grass to accumulate carbohydrates that promote root growth and help the grass survive winter months. Leaf growth is also less during the shorter fall days, says Richardson.

He recommends applying a fertilizer high in nitrogen and potassium and low in phosphorus. Both nitrogen and potassium are important to leaf growth and color and root growth. Potassium is also important to winter survival, disease resistance and drought tolerance. While phosphorus is essential, it is required in much lesser amounts than the other nutrients.

Use fertilizer with a 15-0-5, 10, 12-4-8 or similar analysis for the fall application, suggests Richardson.

Base the rate of application on the nitrogen content, the first number in the fertilizer analysis. Apply 1 to 2 pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn. So, with a 12-4-8 fertilizer, use 10 to 15 pounds per 1,000 square feet, depending on when the last fertilizer application was made. If the lawn has not been fertilized for the past six weeks or longer use the higher rate.

"For the homeowner interested in an attractive lawn this fall and early recovery next spring, fall fertilization is a must," emphasized Richardson.

Special meeting of Coahoma city council booked tonight

COAHOMA — A special meeting of the city council will be open today at 7:30 p.m. at the Coahoma City Hall, according to City Secretary Cindy Bobo. This meeting was rescheduled from Sept. 24.

The following subjects will be discussed: Purchase of fireproof filing cabinets, repair of a maintainer, progress raises, and acceptance of the budget. Other items to be considered include the West Texas

Chamber of Commerce 1981 Century Club membership, the water and sewer for Spiller and Harding's new housing development and the changing of the regular City Council meeting nights.

Energas will also discuss its rate increase, and Orvel Knight will meet with the board about water lines in Sand Springs for the new housing development. The filling of a City Council vacancy will be considered as well.

The new tax law: Making it work for you

Incentives offered for retirement 'nest egg'

EDITOR'S NOTE — Tax-sheltered retirement plans will be within reach of just about every American. Here, in the second of a four-part series, is a report on how the program works.

The new tax law makes it easier for middle-income Americans to build a bigger nest egg for retirement.

Starting next year, any wage earner can invest up to $2,000 a year in a personal pension plan called an Individual Retirement Account.

The investment is deductible from your income; you pay no taxes on that money — or on the interest it earns — until you start withdrawals.

The purpose of an IRA is to defer the payment of taxes until you are in a lower bracket than you are now. There is a penalty if you make any withdrawals before you are 59½.

The sooner you act after Jan. 1, the more money you can contribute, and the dollars add up. The accounting and financial management firm of Touche Ross & Co. gave the following example:

A husband and wife, each 25 and each working, set up separate IRAs, earning 12 percent annual interest — a relatively conservative rate of return in today's economy. If they each contribute the maximum $2,000 a year, they will have $3.45 million when they're 65.

IRAs have been around since 1975. They are offered by banks and savings institutions, by brokerages, by mutual funds and by insurance companies.

Until now, however, you could not invest in an IRA if you were covered by a company-sponsored pension plan. Nor could you invest in an IRA if you were self-employed, although you were eligible for a similar retirement program called a Keogh plan. As of 1982, these restrictions have been eliminated.

The changes open new opportunities. You can participate in a company pension plan and an IRA. In a Keogh and an IRA. And, if you have a regular job plus some free-lance income, you might be able to qualify for all three.

The maximum allowable annual contribution to an IRA has been raised. It used to be 15 percent of income, up to $1,500. The new top contribution is $2,000; there is no ceiling on the percentage of your income you can set aside. If both spouses work, each can set up his or her own IRA and contribute the maximum. A married couple with only one working spouse will be able to invest up to $2,250 a year divided between two accounts. The present limit on the investment for a married couple with one worker is $1,750.

Contributions to Keogh plans also can be increased. The new maximum will be $15,000, up from the present $7,500. Contributions cannot exceed 15 percent of income, however.

You can contribute less than the maximum to an IRA if you want. You do not have to contribute the entire $2,000 in a lump sum; you can put aside a little bit of money each month. You do not even have to contribute every year.

Opening an IRA account is just like opening any other type of account — with a bank, broker, etc. The manager of your account will give you the forms you need. When you file your next tax return, you can deduct your IRA contribution. For someone in a 30 percent tax bracket, a deduction of $2,000 means a $600 cut in the tax bill. You do not have to itemize to take the IRA deduction; it is entered in the section for "adjustments to income" on the standard 1040 form.

You have to pay income tax on your original deposits and on the earnings when you withdraw the money from an IRA. If you make withdrawals early — before you are 59½ — you will pay a penalty equal to 10 percent of the amount you withdraw. You also must pay the full income tax due on the amount withdrawn.

The money you put in an IRA can be invested in a variety of things: in certificates of deposit, in stocks, in mutual funds or in money-market funds, for example. The new law prohibits IRA investments in what are known as "collectibles" — things like gold and silver or stamps. People who already have IRAs tied to collectibles can keep their investments, but they cannot add to them.

Beginning in January, you also can make contributions to a voluntary, company-sponsored pension plan — if your employer chooses to set one up — and get the same tax break you can with an IRA. This would be separate from whatever company pension plan you have now.

UP FOR GRABS — Los Angeles Rams receiver Preston Dennard battles Chicago Bears' Reuben Henderson in the end zone for Rams' quarterback Pat Haden's fourth quarter pass that fell incomplete Monday night in Chicago. Rams won, 24-7.

Rams trounce Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Even the towels thrown in the Chicago locker room fell short of their intended mark, strewn sloppily about the carpeting like a reminder of the soggy performance most of the Bears thought they'd left behind on the playing field.

"It looks like we can't do anything right," defensive tackle Alan Page said after the Los Angeles Rams had dismantled Chicago 24-7 before a national television audience Monday night. "I think everybody on this team has done enough soul-searching and trying to do things right — but we're just not getting it done."

How bad were the Bears?

So bad that the only thing that prevented Bob Parsons from punting following each of the Bears' first 12 possessions were a pair of fumbles by Chicago's Walter Payton and an interception by Los Angeles' Joe Harris.

So bad that three Chicago quarterbacks managed to complete just one pass to a wide receiver, and that one went to Brian Baschnagel for all of three yards.

"I really don't have a whole lot to say," said Bears Coach Neill Armstrong. "We got beat and we looked bad getting beat. Sometimes you can lose and play tough, but the Rams made us look bad tonight."

The Rams started the game by moving 71 yards in just five plays, capping the brief — 1:42 elapsed time — drive when Wendell Tyler powered over from the 2-yard line for the first of his two scores.

And Los Angeles quarterback Pat Haden, who finished 13 of 29 for 210 yards gave Chicago an idea of what the night would be like by completing his first three passes in the drive, the big play coming on a 44-yard hookup with Billy Waddy to the Chicago 2.

"That's the first chance I've had to get it together," said Haden, architect of the Rams' second victory in four outings. "It seems that in every game something happens. Yes, it was a big game for me."

The Rams' lead was extended to 10

Playoffs growing near

By The Associated Press

With just six days remaining in the baseball's second season, the four divisional races are wide open.

The four first-half division winners — the New York Yankees, Oakland A's, Philadelphia Phillies and Los Angeles Dodgers — have all qualified for the divisional playoffs. If any one of those teams finishes first in the second half of the season — the Dodgers will not — then the team that finishes second during that half will qualify to meet the repeat winner in the divisional playoffs.

The American League East has the biggest logjam at the top with five teams within four games of the first-place Milwaukee Brewers.

The Brewers hold a half-game advantage over the Detroit Tigers with the Boston Red Sox 1½ games back and a half-game ahead of the Baltimore Orioles.

New York and Cleveland are 3½ and four games behind the Brewers, respectively, but they would have to win all their remaining games just to have an outside chance at taking the second-half title. The Yankees have five road games left, the Indians seven home games.

Milwaukee, Detroit, Boston and Baltimore all have five games left.

The Brewers will have a home crowd behind them for all five games. They are scheduled to meet Boston tonight and Wednesday and conclude the season with a three-game weekend series with runnerup Detroit.

The Tigers finish their home season tonight and Wednesday with games against Baltimore, which returns home for a three-game weekend series with the Yankees.

The Kansas City Royals hold a 1½-game lead over the Oakland A's in the AL West with seven games remaining. The Minnesota Twins are 3½ games out and meet the Royals in two must-win games tonight and Wednesday. If the Royals sweep those games, they will qualify for the divisional playoffs because Minnesota cannot finish ahead of them in the standings for the second season.

The Royals must also play three games with Oakland and two with Cleveland. The Twins finish the season with three games at Chicago.

The Montreal Expos hold a half-game lead over St. Louis in the National League East with both teams having six games left.

The Expos and Cards will play each other just one more time — in St. Louis tonight. The Expos also have two games with Pittsburgh and three with the New York Mets, all on the road. The Cards will play two at Philadelphia and close with three games at Pittsburgh.

The Tigers and Philadelphia are 3½ games out, and any combination of three Expos wins and Philadelphia or Chicago losses will eliminate them. The Mets will be eliminated by one Expos victory or Mets loss.

The Houston Astros hold a 2½-game lead over the Cincinnati Reds in the NL West with the San Francisco Giants 3½ games out. All three clubs have six games left.

The Astros, who will play five of their final six on the road, will play 47 games in the second season — one more than both Cincinnati and San Francisco. Houston will have two games at Cincinnati and three at Los Angeles, while it meets San Diego at home tonight.

The Astros magic number to eliminate Cincinnati is four, and three with San Francisco.

USC's victory over Oklahoma keeps Trojans atop in AP poll

By The Associated Press

A stranger has joined the nation's college football powers.

Occupying the No. 18 spot in this week's Associated Press poll, released Monday, was the University of Iowa, which has gone without a winning season longer than any other major school in the country.

The top 20 appearance ends a 19-year drought for the Hawkeyes, 2-1, who vaulted into prominence this season with upsets of Nebraska and UCLA. The last time Iowa was ranked was October 1962 after the Hawkeyes beat Oregon State in their season opener. An Iowa team hasn't finished above .500 since 1961.

A much more familiar name, Southern California, remained the No. 1 team. The Trojans pulled out a last-second, 28-24 victory over Oklahoma to become the first team this season to hold the No. 1 ranking for more than one week.

Iowa earned its Top 20 berth with a 20-7 victory over UCLA, sixth last week. That came two weeks after the Hawkeyes jolted Nebraska 10-7 when the Cornhuskers were seventh.

"Super, that's great!" Iowa Coach Hayden Fry said when told of his team's ranking. "I guess it is anyway. I'm not sure how authoritative the polls are."

Fry added, "It's nice to get some recognition." He said he was pleased that Iowa State, No. 20, also was rated. It was the first time both schools had appeared together in the AP rankings.

"I was hoping both of the Iowa universities would be ranked," said Fry, whose team plays at winless Northwestern Saturday. "That's good for the state."

Iowa State, 3-0, is the only team that has beaten Iowa, 23-12, on Sept. 19. The Cyclones beat Kent State 28-19 last week.

Southern Cal received 57½ of 66 first-place votes and 1,311 of a possible 1,320 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Penn State moved to second from third after downing Nebraska 30-24. The Nittany Lions received 5½ first-place votes and 1,208 points. No. 3 Texas, No. 5 Oklahoma and No. 6 North Carolina each received one first-place vote.

Texas, a 14-7 winner over Miami of Florida, compiled 1,104 points in the balloting; No. 4 Pittsburgh, which was idle last week, had 1,027; Oklahoma received 1,022, and North Carolina 967.

Texas and Pittsburgh each climbed one spot, while Oklahoma tumbled from second. North Carolina moved up from ninth after pouncing Boston College 56-14.

Ohio State climbed from eighth to seventh after beating Stanford 24-19, Michigan slipped from seventh to eighth after beating Navy 21-16, Mississippi State's 28-7 whipping of Florida sent the Bulldogs from 12th to ninth and Brigham Young moved from 11th to 10th with a 41-20 victory over Colorado.

Alabama was 11th, followed by Washington, Georgia, Clemson, Southern Methodist, UCLA, Miami, Fla., Iowa, Arkansas and Iowa State.

The major casualties from last week's list were Notre Dame, which was 13th when it lost to Purdue 15-14, and Nebraska, which had been 15th. This is only the second time since the 1969 season that Nebraska has not appeared in the weekly rankings.

Landry wants championship level

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas linebacker Anthony Dickerson says Coach Tom Landry's game plan is to have the Doomsday Defense at championship form by mid-season.

"Coach Landry is shooting for the eighth game for the defense to be a championship level," said Dickerson. "Until then the offense is going to have to carry most of the load."

The unbeaten Cowboys have won four games with a patchwork secondary that has included a starting rookie free safety and a rookie cornerback who has played most of the time.

However, at times the rookies have played like veterans.

Free safety Mike Downs has two interceptions and cornerback Everson Walls has four aerial thefts.

The Cowboys, although they have yielded huge hunks of yardage, lead the National Football League with 13 interceptions.

"We've been getting the turnovers but you can't expect that to continue and that's when the offense has to pick up the slack until our defense jells," said Dickerson, captain of the specialty teams.

Dickerson said Landry has been breaking some defenses schemes out of mothballs to keep the opposition confused.

"We've got 70 or 80 different defensive variations and they are all coordinated," he said. "Tom just figures the offense has to carry the defense for awhile although Sunday was a big confidence builder for us."

Dallas allowed the New York Giants less than 100 yards rushing in an 18-10 victory which kept the Cowboys tied with the Philadelphia Eagles in the National Conference Eastern Division.

"I can see our rookies with that lost look in their eyes sometimes," said Dickerson. "That's the way I was last year. Now, I can concentrate on the other team and not worry about our defense."

Dickerson said the Dallas defense expects a long, hard day against the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday on the road.

"Jim Hart reads our flex defense better than any quarterback in the league," said Dickerson. "He has the ability to look at our defense and audible off to the correct play. He's tough."

Rangers easily defeat Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — When Jim Kern resumes his rehabilitation program in a few days, the Texas Ranger relief pitcher knows his performance in recent weeks will ease the tediousness of hours to be spent on exercise machines.

Retiring in an almost effortless manner the four Seattle Mariners he faced to preserve the Rangers' 6-5 victory Monday night "will help over the off season," Kern said.

After Bruce Bochte's walk loaded the bases with two outs in the eighth, Texas Manager Don Zimmerman called in the lanky right-hander who has battled elbow, back and shoulder problems for more than a year.

Kern muffed the Mariner threat, getting Lenny Randle on a ground ball. In the ninth, he retired Tom Paciorek on a liner, then struck out Richie Zisk and Jeff Burroughs.

"It's fun to have the gas (fastball) and challenge them," said Kern, who has a 1.96 earned-run average in only 23 innings. "I showed them the hook (curve) and the changeup and came back with the gas."

"Rick Honeycutt and Steve Comer use a lot of off-speed pitches, so their guys say that for seven or eight innings. I can blow the ball by them once through the lineup. They can't tune their dial up that quick."

Rarely do pitchers admit to liking the small Kingdome, but count Kern among that select group.

"This mound's very good for a hard thrower," he said. "There's no crown on the infield so you're 18 inches above the plate and you can really fall. It's my favorite place to pitch because I can really get on top of the ball."

"I can start my fastball below the knee and make it come up to the knee."

Left-hander Honeycutt, 11-6, formerly pitched for Seattle. He yielded a two-run homer to Dan Meyer and a three-run shot to Bochte, both lefties, before Comer and then Mike Mercer came on.

"I've had trouble with this ball park," Honeycutt said. "After three years here, I know what it's like."

The Rangers grabbed an early 3-0 lead on Mark Wagner's bases-loaded double in the second. After Seattle starter Glenn Abbott, 4-8, had thrown two balls to Wagner, Seattle Manager Rene Lachemann said he told the right-hander to keep the ball down.

"For two pitches, he looked like he listened to me, then he got it up," Lachemann said.

Meyer's two-run shot in the third closed the gap before the Rangers added one in the third on Buddy Bell's sacrifice fly and two in the fifth on RBI singles by Bell and Jim Sundberg.

Bochte delivered in the seventh.

"I might have been guilty of overmanaging by platooning Meyer and Bochte against left-handers," Lachemann said. Meyer and Bochte have seen limited action against left-handers. Bochte, in fact, replaced Julio Cruz in the second inning after the Seattle second baseman suffered leg cramps.

Horns have great night

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Miami-Texas football game had everything, in Texas Coach Fred Akers' view, to make it a "great night."

Not only did the unbeaten Longhorns defeat Miami 14-7 on Saturday, "We learned... quite a bit about ourselves," Akers told his weekly news conference Monday.

Apparently choosing to ignore a few boos as the Texas offense sputtered, Akers said, "It's been a long time since I've seen that kind of enthusiasm from the crowd. The crowd was into it the whole game."

"It was a rugged football game. You'd have to go back a long way to find a non-conference game played here that was as tough and

Astro show championship form

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston relief pitcher Joe Sambito looked at the relaxed atmosphere in the San Diego dugout and then felt the tension on the Astros bench.

Sambito says he'll take the tension every time.

"It's easier to play the role of the spoiler than to be a championship contender," Sambito said after the Astros showed championship form with a ninth-inning comeback for a 2-1 victory Monday night.

"In the ninth inning, I looked over at their dugout and they were all loosey-goosey," said Sambito, 5-5. "But there was real tension in our dugout and I'll tell you, I'd rather be in our situation."

Houston's "situation" is a 2½-game lead over the hot Cincinnati Reds, who lost to San Francisco 4-0 Monday night, allowing the Astros to pick up valuable ground in the tight National League West chase.

"This really helps but I won't feel comfortable until it's over," said third baseman Art Howe, whose check-swinging single with two out in the ninth provided Houston with the comeback victory.

Houston fell behind San Diego 1-0 in the seventh when Terry Kennedy pegged a solo home run off Houston starter Joe Niekro. Coupled with the announcement of the Cincinnati loss, Kennedy's homer seemed to ignite the Astros.

"After they got the lead we really tried to pick it up on the bench," Howe said. "We said we had a good pitching effort going and we needed to give Joe some help. It was a good team effort."

Phil Garner led off the Astros' seventh with a double to right field for only the second hit off Padres starter Juan Eichelberger, 8-8. Garner took third on Tony Scott's single and scored when Jose Cruz hit into a double play.

Cruz reached base on a fielder's choice grounder with two out in the ninth inning. Eichelberger then walked Alan Ashby and Cesar Cedeno to load the bases, bringing Howe to the plate.

Howe half-swung at the first pitch, sending the ball rolling into right field just out of the grasp of Padre second baseman Juan Bonilla.

"I'd been looking for a hole to hit to all night and I guess I finally found one," said Howe, who earlier took left fielder Gene Richards to the warning track for a long out.

Eichelberger deserved a better fate. He faced only one more than the minimum 18 batters through six innings. Niekro, who left for a pinch hitter in the eighth, faced only 20 batters through six.

"I feel like I've done my job this season and that is to keep my club in the game with a chance of win," Niekro said. "The win for the club is the thing. It doesn't matter who gets the pitching victory."

Cross-country team results corrected

It was incorrectly listed in the Herald yesterday that the Big Spring boy's varsity cross-country team finished eighth in a weekend meet held at Odessa High. Actually the varsity finished six places higher in second place due to fine performances by members of the team.

Carl Wolf placed second in the meet and ran a personal best of 15:30 which was also good enough to break a big spring High School record.

James Hodges was seventh in the running and his personal best of 15:41 also broke the school record.

Tim McNamara was 15th with a personal best of 16:14. Javier Calderon was 19th with a 16:37. Curtis Harrison was 21st with a personal best of 16:40.

Big Spring coaches said the boys are steadily improving and the team has a good attitude.

Houston-Baylor game shifted

HOUSTON (AP) — The University of Houston and Baylor University have agreed to play Saturday's Southwest Conference football game in a regionally televised game in conflict with a cross-town game between Rice and Tulane.

The UH-Baylor game was shifted from a 7:30 p.m. start to 11:30 a.m. to accommodate ABC-TV's telecast. Rice and Tulane will square off at 2 p.m. Ironically, Rice had earlier changed its starting time from 7:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. to avoid a conflict with UH.

"Normally we try to avoid conflicts in starting times but this was a special situation," UH Athletic Director Cedric Dempsey said. "We haven't been on television in quite awhile and neither has Baylor. We felt it was important for the conference as a whole for us to accept the starting time."

Dempsey said the television exposure plus the money made the change feasible.

"You're looking at about $500,000 for the conference so it's obvious that they (Rice) will benefit from our being on television too," Dempsey said.

Goliad wins handily

The Goliad girls volleyball teams clobbered Andrews yesterday for a two game victory.

Overall good teamwork enabled Goliad black to beat Andrews 11-15, 15-4, 15-4. Sherri Myrick led all scorers with 11 followed by Lisa Hale with 8 and Lanette Smith with 7.

Goliad white also won 15-5,

Biles puzzled

HOUSTON (AP) Houston Oiler Coach Ed Biles must have felt like a clay pigeon waiting to be launched into the air.

"We realize that this will be a great week for second-guessing, we are all embarrassed by the loss," Biles said Monday. "Not a lot of good comes from losing. Out of losing all you get is questions, second-guessing and loss of confidence."

The Oilers got all of that Sunday in a surprising 33-17 loss to the New York Jets and Biles didn't wait for the first salvo Monday before he started second-guessing himself. Biles said he'd have to take another look at the new offense and possibly cut some of it out.

"The smartest thing to do when you get into a situation like this is to take about half of your stuff out and concentrate on the other half," Biles said. "Then you see if you can execute and do a better job with the things you have been trying to do."

Biles junked the Oilers' bland but productive two-tight end offense from last season in favor of a more diversified attack built around quarterback Ken Stabler's talents and more versatility from Earl Campbell.

So far this season, Stabler has been sacked 18 times, 15 in the last two games, the Oilers have made only eight of 51 third down chances and Campbell has been slowed by a shoulder injury.

Still, Biles isn't admitting total loss of confidence in his offensive plans. "There is a fine line when you say you're going to make a bunch of changes," Biles said. "Making a bunch of changes only brings a lot of chaos for you. Just because you're not executing what you practice, who's to think that making a bunch of changes will be good."

The Oilers have basically failed to execute the new offense, Biles said.

"The loss, like any loss, can be wrapped up in interceptions, dropped passes, fumbles and missed assignments," Biles said. "It doesn't take too many of those in the NFL to lose a football game."

The Oilers must prepare for rejuvenated Cincinnati in the AstroDome Sunday in the first of a two-game home stand.

Ryan draws praise

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

It took Joe Garagiola to put the scene into proper perspective, and Joe refused to take credit for the nugget of wisdom.

"It was Roy Campanella who said it," the balding ex-catcher turned broadcaster told a nationwide TV audience. "To play this game, you have to be a man, but you've also got to have a lot of little boys in you."

Little boys — actually grown men in short pants — stole the postgame drama when Houston's fireballing Nolan Ryan pitched the fifth no-hit game of his career against the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday in the AstroDome.

In a weekend glut of highly charged sports tangles — Southern Cal's last gasp victory over Oklahoma, Matthew Saad Muhammad's tough defense of his light heavyweight ring title, gripping baseball pennant races and pro football upsets — Ryan's history-making feat stood above all the rest.

Millions must have savored it as it unfolded on the television screen, adroitly orchestrated by Garagiola, Tony Kubek & Friends of NBC.

Ballplayers are two different breeds, split personalities, as are most of us. Off the field, they may be capitalists involved in many enterprises. Once they don those high-stirrup hose and stretch pants, they become kids again.

It's an innate characteristic, imperishable. This wasn't just another no-hit game. This one was distinct. It was No. 5. No one — ever — had pitched five no-hit games in his career, not Christy Mathewson, not Walter Johnson, not Bob Feller. Sandy Koufax had four.

The AstroDome seeped with tension and pressure. Entering the final inning, Garagiola announced the batters coming up — Reggie Smith, Ken Landreaux and Dusty Baker — then discreetly shut his mouth, leaving the story to tell itself.

The entire Astros bench surged to the edge of the dugout, the big eye catching the anxiety on every face. Smith went down on three pitches. A loud roar. Landreaux grounded to first. The tumult swelled.

"Baker could be the toughest out in the lineup," Garagiola said, and again muted his microphone. Baker lashed a scorcher to Art Howe at third. That was it.

With an ear-splitting whoop and holler, the Astros were on the field, closing around their hero like the petals of a flower. Where did all those cold, unfeeling mercenaries go?

The scene could have been any Little League or grammar school field in America.

Ryan, 34, looked like an abashed schoolboy who had just been chosen to ring the class bell.

"At my age, I thought I wouldn't get it," he said modestly.

Meanwhile, the cameras ground on while viewers soaked up the drama — thanks to Garagiola's nearly five minutes of blessed silence.

Ainge wants to be a Boston Celtic

NEW YORK (AP) — The baseball career of Danny Ainge will come to an end Sunday. Whether his basketball career starts days later will be determined this week in court.

While lawyers for the Toronto Blue Jays and Boston Celtics bickered over procedural matters in the first day of their celebrated battle, Ainge, barely managing to keep his eyes open after an all-night flight, proclaimed he was through with baseball regardless of the outcome of the trial.

"I have no intention of going back there (Toronto)," Ainge told The Associated Press as the lawyers began their arguments. "I don't plan on returning to Toronto no matter the outcome. Toronto feels if it wins the case, I'll go home for the winter, change my mind and come back for spring training. But I'm through with baseball."

Ainge, 22, is just completing the first year of a three-year, $225,000 contract as a part-time third baseman with the Blue Jays. Because his batting average never did quite make it to .200 this year, Ainge, a 6-foot-5 All-American guard from Brigham Young, came to the conclusion that basketball was his best sport. The only problem, of course, is his contract, which includes a $300,000 addendum that restricts Ainge from playing in professional or recreational basketball.

That clause, which Ainge contends was waived verbally by Blue Jays President Peter Bavasi in June and confirmed two days later by Toronto vice president Pat Gillick, is the point of contention in the trial that got underway Monday in U.S. District Court.

The other key factor that the six-member jury in Judge Lee P. Gagliardi's courtroom must decide is whether a man is allowed to have a change of heart and switch careers. On Monday, the attorneys for each side presented their opening remarks to the jury. The case is recessed until Wednesday because of the Jewish High Holy Day Rosh Hashanah. Testimony from Ainge and members of the front offices of the Celtics and Blue Jays will be taken Wednesday.

While this was going on Monday, Ainge, who took the red-eye flight from Los Angeles Sunday night, was having a difficult time paying attention. He repeatedly slumped in his seat at the rear of the courtroom, his body begging for a little sleep. But he revealed he filed voluntary retirement papers with the Blue Jays last Thursday and considers his baseball career over on Sunday.

"Even if we lose the case, I'm not going back to baseball. I have some businesses in Utah and I have been offered an assistant coaching job at BYU," Ainge said. "I have a lot of alternatives."

'Boll Weevils' may be key to future Demo victories

By BILL GARLAND
States News Service

WASHINGTON — The rise to prominence of the so-called "boll weevils," that loose band of southern Democrats which provided the swing vote for President Reagan on his first batch of budget cuts, might have seemed to moderate and liberal Democrats comparable to the descent of Biblical locusts.

In the Northeast at least, because of what one observer calls a new "pragmatism," the hackles on the backs of House Democrats may finally be lowering. Some congressmen are willing not only to extend well-publicized amnesty to the boll weevils but are viewing them as a block that might bring sunnier days for Democrats.

"The table is sort of turned now, and here we have a president who is somewhat embattled. If we are good pragmatic politicians, they (the boll weevils) may be the key to our future (Democratic) victories," said Robert Pratt, executive director of the New England Congressional Caucus which includes all New England members of Congress.

Pratt explained that northerners who once viewed the boll weevils less than happily now see the group as unlikely to go along with Reagan on the more extensive budget cuts he announced Thursday.

"I think some of the boll weevils who supported Reagan the first time around will not support him the second time around," he said. "To come back a second time and really drill people again is not perceived as something they have to do."

Pratt is supported to some degree by boll weevils themselves. Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, who helped provide Reagan with his narrow margin on the first budget vote, is saying that Reagan may have to concentrate this time on his own party.

"He said that the Republicans are going to need to worry about their own congressmen, let alone worry about the boll weevil Democrats," said Wilson press aide Julie Ann Booty.

Not all conservative Democrats will suddenly spurn the president, of course. It's been said that conservatives like Rep. Sam Hall, D-Marshall, probably would not go against Reagan without divine intervention.

Also, some observers warned that doomsayers against Reagan were almost as negative before the vote on tax cuts. The televised Reagan speech then brought the fabled wave of phone calls, and it remains to be seen whether the current speech will meet similar success.

Wilson's view of the possible Republican plight is reflected by the northern-oriented counterpart to the boll weevils, a group of moderate Republicans known as the "gypsy moths."

The moderate northern Republicans generally are more liberal on many issues than conservative Democrats from the South.

Rep. James Jeffords, a Republican and the only congressman from the one-district state of Vermont, has been a mainstream gypsy moth since the group began to coalesce. "I think that the boll weevils have become nervous that the response on Wall Street may lead to a disenchantment with the Reagan program and they may have no place to root at home," said Jeffords, predicting Reagan probably should not expect a clear victory on the new cutbacks.

Jeffords' aide Steve Carlson echoed the pragmatism mentioned by Pratt. "Members of Congress fight for the views of their constituents, and if they can make power plays and get away with them, then that's the way the system works," he said.

"The answer is to have an effective coalition that can fight back. The northern Republicans seem to have recognized the need to take a firm position and stick with it, which wasn't nearly as firm as a policy as before," Carlson added.

There still remain the more liberal Democrats like Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., who would like especially to see Rep. Phil Gramm, D-College Station, formally switch parties. Gramm's outspoken leadership in support of the Reagan cuts, which extended to the lending of his name to the Republican bill, brought the loudest cries from Moffett.

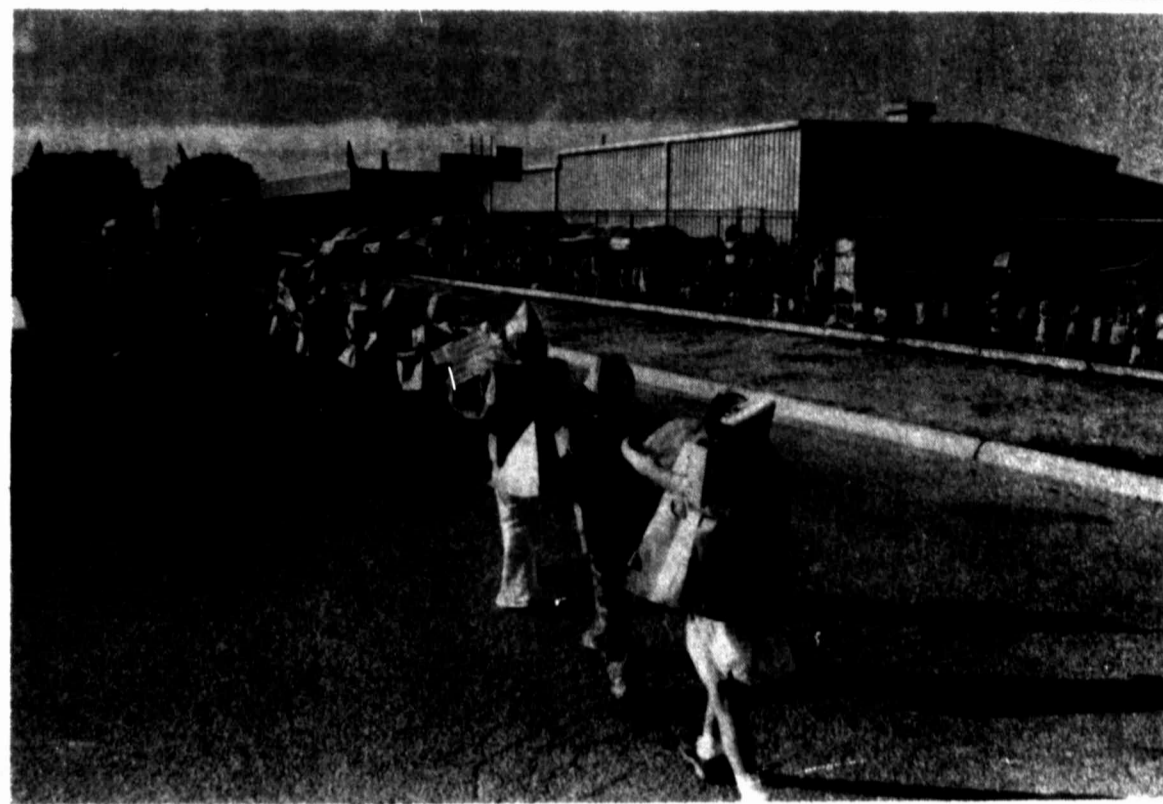

"He (Moffett) still favors punishing rather than rewarding," said Moffett aide Willie Blacklow. "There are Democrats who are Democrats in name only because that's the only way they can get elected in their district," he said.

The House Democratic Caucus earlier this month voted to consider the loyalty of party members in assigning committee positions, an action which already has driven one third-term boll weevil, Rep. Bob Stump, D-Ariz., to announce he will run as a Republican next year.

Pratt speculated on the status of the boll weevils from a northeastern view:

"It's not in the interest of New Englanders to pick fights with people from the Sunbelt these days," he said, noting the change of 34 House seats to the south with the current census and the resulting reapportionment.

"I think people (moderate Democrats) are really distressed they've gone the direction they have, but today's loss is tomorrow's victory. You can't lock yourself in. Increasingly, Democrats are feeling we're not buried yet and suddenly the boll weevils become a central strategy. Suddenly, members are saying 'Hum, how can I get them to vote with me today?'"

Court rules against oil producers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Oil producers must protect landowners against financial losses resulting from premature "watering out" of leases because of field-wide migration of oil and water, the Texas Supreme Court has ruled.

The precedent-making decision Monday could mean new financial liabilities on producers as well as an upsurge in well-spacing cases before the Texas Railroad Commission.

The high court's unanimous opinion held that Amoco Production Co. owes $1.8 million to John Alexander and others from whom it had executed drilling leases in the Hastings, West Field, of Brazoria County.

The Hastings, West Field, reservoir slants, with the Alexander leases on the low end and some other Amoco leases on the high end. The field contains both oil and water. Because oil is lighter, it migrates toward the high — or "updip" — end of the field and away from the low — or "downdip" — end.

Oil production in the updip end of a field accelerates the movement of water into the downdip side and hastens the day when wells at the lower end "water out."

The high court said oil producers have long been understood to have an "implied covenant" with landowners to protect the lease against drainage before its time.

Bally buys Six Flags

DALLAS (AP) — Six Flags Over Texas and five other amusement parks will be sold to Bally Manufacturing Corp. of Chicago for an estimated $140 million.

Six Flags Inc., a subsidiary of the Penn Central Corp. of New York, will be sold for about $75 million in cash and $65 million in a 16 percent, three-year note, a company spokesman said.

The sale still must be approved by both companies' boards of directors.

"We doubt if there will be any changes whatsoever," said Richard Tyler, Six Flags' public relations director in Los Angeles. "We are a profitable, successful company and don't expect changes from the new management."

In January, when the sale is expected to be completed, the value of Six Flags will be assessed and Bally will pay that price, Tyler said.

Penn Central officials said Six Flags was sold because it did not fit in with the company's telecommunications, energy and electronics concerns.

Bally is a leading manufacturer of electronic games and slot machines.

Besides the six theme parks, Six Flags has two wax museums and electronic game centers throughout the country.

Hanna Mining to acquire half of Midland company

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Hanna Mining Co. has announced agreement to purchase 50 percent of the outstanding stock of the Midland SouthWest Corp. for $20 a share, or $46.5 million in cash.
 Robert F. Anderson, Hanna president and chief executive, said in a news release distributed over the weekend that Hanna would continue its role as a raw materials supplier for the steel industry but would also branch into energy related industries such as Midland.
 Midland, of Midland, Texas, is engaged in contract drilling of oil and gas wells and in exploration and development of oil and gas reserves for its own account. The Texas company also is in the gas business in Texas and Oklahoma and owns investment land interests, primarily in Midland, Anderson said.
 Hanna said it will purchase its projected 50 percent interest from M.W. Branum, chairman of the board of the Tri-Service Drilling Co., a wholly owned Midland SouthWest Corp. subsidiary.
 Branum would continue as a Midland director and Chairman of Tri-Service, Hanna announced.
 The purchase agreement is scheduled to be completed before Dec. 31 and requires approvals by the Hanna board and government agencies as well as fulfillment of other unspecified conditions.
 Anderson said that Hanna "has no intention" of acquiring additional Midland stock at this time.

RECIPIENT OF AWARD — Judith Gildhouse, a student of the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, is the winner of the Deaf Smith Award for the 1981-82 school year. Charles Shoemaker, instructor of math at SWCID, assists her with a math problem.

Mayhem is good cure for boredom

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — For a man of medicine, dedicated to prolonging life, my friend Dr. Tom Durant likes to live dangerously. Mayhem seems to be his cure for boredom.

Tom is a gynecologist and assistant director of the prestigious Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

When first we met, he was public health officer for the war-ravaged city of Saigon, carrying on his own private war against disease, corruption, bureaucratic bungling and indiscriminate use of napalm. Doc's clinic backed up on the office of Saigon Mayor Van Van Cua, a moody, hard-drinking paratrooper who worked out his municipal frustrations by shooting lizards off the walls with his service revolver. His Honor's hobby caused the Doc to spend considerable time on the floor.

I hadn't seen Doc in almost 10 years. Then on a recent Saturday in a park in a rundown part of Hartford, I saw the Doc again. There was his mud-caked, balding Roman profile protruding from beneath a ton of rugged rugby players, exuding a grin that was part ecstasy and part swollen lips wrapped around a wax mouthguard.

"Rugby," enthused Tom, who has got to be in his 50s, "is a ruffians game played by gentlemen, while soccer is a gentlemen's game played by ruffians. You seldom see a fight in a rugby game. There's a camaraderie among opposing players that beats anything outside the Marine Corps. Watch how they help each other up."

Five minutes after expressing these noble sentiments on the sport, Doc, who plays for the Beacon Hill club, was delivering a jolting knuckle sandwich to the mandibles of a Hartford player who, during the last pile-up had done a Bo Jangles number on the spinal column of Joe Durant, the No. 2 son in this rugby-rabid family.

"Shouldn't have done that," confessed the healer who in Saigon was known as the Go-Go Gyno for his boundless verve and Le Mans-style of Jeep driving. "The protective parental instinct got the better of me for a second."

In between rushing out with his black bag to revive players he had helped rack up, Doc explained the fine points of the game. Fifteen men on a side, eight forwards and seven backs. Two 45-minute halves with a five-minute break in between and no timeouts, except brief interludes to cart off the wounded. Two substitutions for injury per game, "after that you play light."

Forwards make up the "pack," which when joined with the opposing pack becomes the "scrum" or scrumage, the writhing, grunting, pushing mass of sinew and gristle that resembles two enraged brontosauri battling over a leather egg. At the end of this tunnel of sweating torsos is the "hooker." Doc's position. Like the center in football, the hooker gets the ball in play.

NBC offers 'Sophisticated Gents'

NEW YORK (AP) — "Sophisticated Gents," the first miniseries of the new television season, is a compelling story of camaraderie and loyalty that explores the feelings of members of a neighborhood sports-social club at a 25-year reunion.

Taken from the book, "The Junior Bachelor Society" by John Williams, and a TV script by Melvin Van Peebles, "Sophisticated Gents" on NBC tonight, Wednesday and Thursday is rich in believable and spirited characters. They make "Gents" superior to the more lavish "Manions of America" that has a three-night run on ABC starting Wednesday.

"Sophisticated Gents" has been collecting dust on NBC's shelf, and an industry insider said the delay stemmed from trepidations that an all-black story would not sell today. NBC denies this, claiming that the networks have finished products in search of time slots all the time.

The plot centers on a reunion in the old neighborhood for a testimonial to the coach who steered the Gents right. Chappie Davis, a boozier, womanizer and numbers runner with a heart of gold, taught his boys to stick together, on and off the field, and cope with the outside world.

Eight of them learned their lessons well, but one (Moon, played by Peebles), is a pimp. Moon gets into serious trouble with the law. Whether he'll show for the reunion causes concern because the group knows a sleazy neighborhood cop named Swoop is looking to bust Moon and ruin their party.

The corrupt Swoop was rejected by the Gents 25 years earlier. "I measured everything by what you did," he tells the character played by former football player Bernie Casey.

Tonight's two hours — Wednesday and Thursday are an hour each — are the show's strength: how time treated the "Gents." They gained their greatest fame in football; if it had been basketball, the cast would have been more manageable. Since it's hard following nine characters, here's a scorecard:

— Bubbles (Paul Winfield) was the leader of the Gents. He stayed home and built a nice, warm family. Bubbles and Cudjo (Rosey Grier) are laborers. Shurley (Casey) also stayed in the community and manages the local bar.

— Snake (Thaimus Rasulala) moved to the suburbs and married a white woman. He's a city commissioner who tries to forget his roots. Dart (Raymond St. Jacques) is a bisexual singer. He works in Europe, exiled there by a powerful sponsor who caught Dart in bed with the wrong woman.

— Chops (Robert Hooks) looks the most troubled. He's under the thumb of his petty boss and anguished by an unfaithful wife. Clarie (Ron O'Neal) is light-skinned and guilty about blending into the white world. His wife looks down on the Gents.

— Ralph (Dick Anthony Williams) is a successful playwright, nervous about his show's opening and returning to his roots.
