

Haitians balk; prison calls in extra security

By CAROL HART
Staff Writer

Units from the Big Spring Police Department, Howard County Sheriff's office and the Department of Public Safety from Midland surrounded the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp this morning as an estimated 75 Haitians refused to return to their prison quarters and clustered together on the prison grounds.

Law enforcement officers, many of them dressed in full riot gear, had been called to the scene by prison officials because the Haitians "weren't obeying the rules," police said.

However, by 12:20 p.m. Chief of Police Elwood Hoherz told The Herald that the Haitians had been brought under control and were in confinement in the prison dorm.

The story began to unfold at 6 p.m. Sunday when about 75 Haitians told their supervisors they were "tired of being locked up and wanted to go home" a press release issued by the prison said.

The release described the Sunday incident as follows: "On Oct. 4 at 6 p.m., 75 Haitians told their supervisors they were tired of being locked up and wanted to go home. They sat and talked peacefully on the lawn adjacent to their units (Sunset dorm) the rest of the evening. Their leaders said they would not cause any trouble. The Haitians leaders said they just wanted to get the INS's (Immigration & Naturalization Service) attention."

An inmate, who declined to give his name, told The Herald the men stood out all night in the rain and stood with their bags as if ready to leave the camp.

He said it looked like most of the Haitians were joining the protest and added that he hadn't seen or heard of any scuffles between the men and camp officials.

Officials reportedly were waiting for buses to arrive at the scene this morning. According to reports heard over the police radio, the buses were coming to transport the men to an undisclosed location.

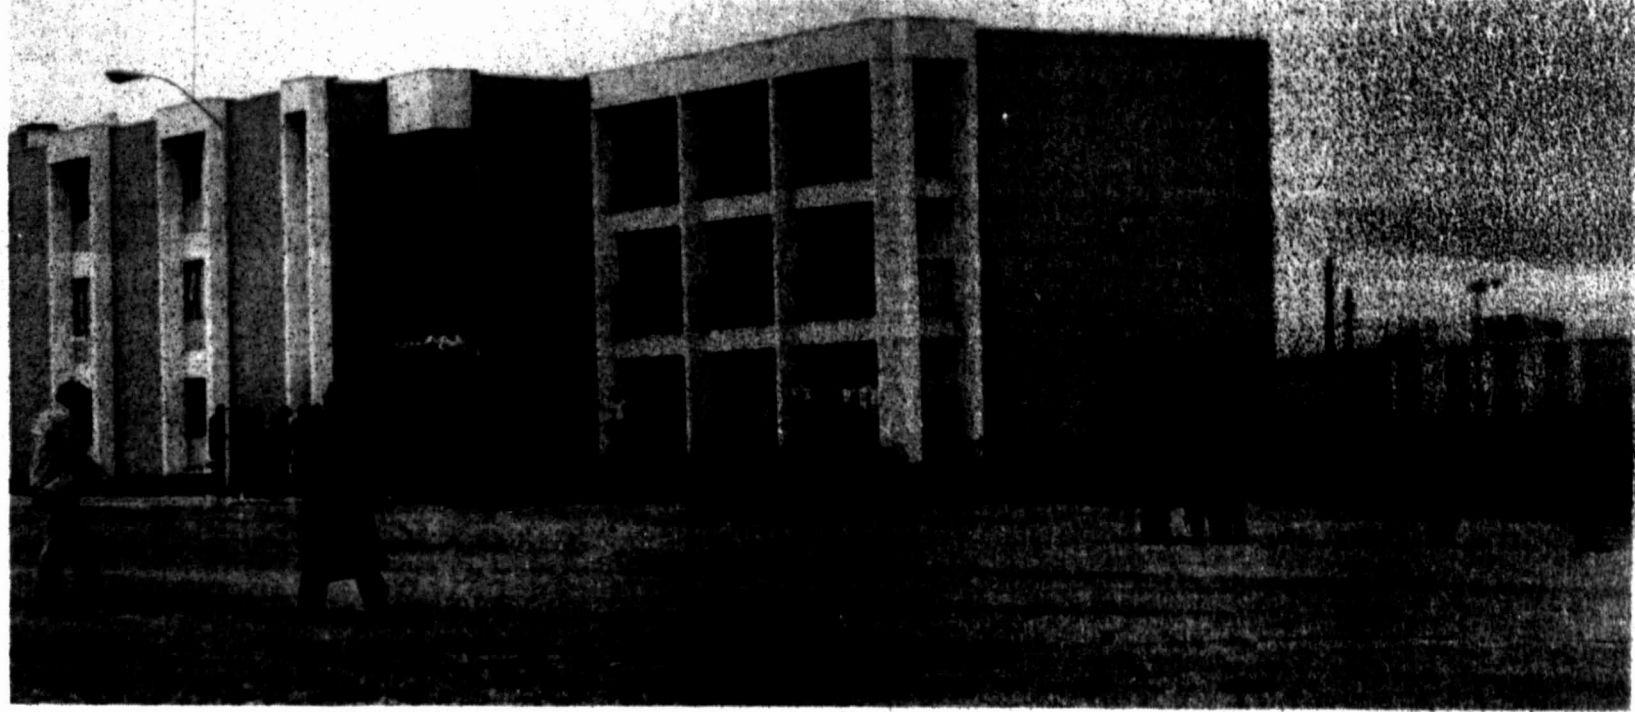

On the scene earlier today, the Haitians huddled under the stairs of their detention cells at the camp to avoid a steady rain. About 20 prison guards surrounded the men but made no move toward them.

The guards, dressed in blue raincoats, watched the Haitians as members of area law enforcement agencies began arriving on the scene.

Police Detective Avery Falkner and Captain Arvin Henry, two of an estimated 15 BSPD officers on the scene, parked their car on Warehouse Road in full view of the scene at the prison camp. The men said they were there "to maintain the peace. We're here to see the employees don't get hurt."

Officer Henry added that the Haitians refusing to obey the rules at the camp was "an area of concern for the warden," and said that's why security was being tightened in the area.

Prison officials had little to say to the news media today.

Big Spring Federal Prison Camp guards converged on the camp this morning as 75 Haitians, shown near building, refused to return to their dorms.

Speculation's over

It's Oswald's body in Fort Worth grave

DALLAS (AP) — Two decades of theories about at least one aspect of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy apparently have been disproved with a finding "beyond any doubt" that Lee Harvey Oswald was buried in the grave marked with his name.

"There is no reason to ever disturb that body again. Ever," said Dr. Linda Norton, the head of a pathology team that announced Sunday that the exhumed body was indeed Oswald, identified by the Warren Commission as the man who killed Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963.

"We both individually and as a team have concluded beyond any doubt, and I mean beyond any doubt, that the individual buried under the name Lee Harvey Oswald in Rose Hill cemetery is Lee Harvey Oswald," she said.

British author and assassination theorist Michael Eddowes, who agreed to pay for the exhumation, had contended the body in Oswald's grave was that of a Russian impostor who replaced Oswald when he defected to the Soviet Union in 1959.

Eddowes, who wrote "The Oswald Files," said Sunday he was "surprised, but in no way disappointed" at the findings.

Oswald's widow, Marina Oswald Porter, said she was relieved and "pleased with the results of the autopsy."

Mrs. Porter, who stayed at a discreet distance as the body was exhumed at Fort Worth's Rose Hill Burial Park Sunday morning, said she was "glad the issues have been resolved."

She said she hoped to resume a "normal life" as Marina Porter.

Oswald was shot to death two days after the Kennedy shooting by nightclub owner Jack Ruby. Since then there have been several books propounding the idea that more than one person was involved in the assassination and several theories about Oswald, including Eddowes'.

"We hope this puts the matter to rest," said Ms. Norton, a former Dallas County medical examiner who now practices in Birmingham, Ala. "We hope the Porters can go about living a normal life without any more speculation."

Years of court battles and bitter family quarrels ended Sunday morning at 7 a.m., as gravediggers worked quickly to exchange Oswald's body at Mrs. Porter's insistence.

The final hurdle was removed when Oswald's brother, Robert, removed his legal opposition to the exhumation. A temporary restraining order issued by a federal judge at Robert Oswald's request expired at midnight Saturday, prompting negotiations between attorneys for Mrs. Porter and her brother-in-law.

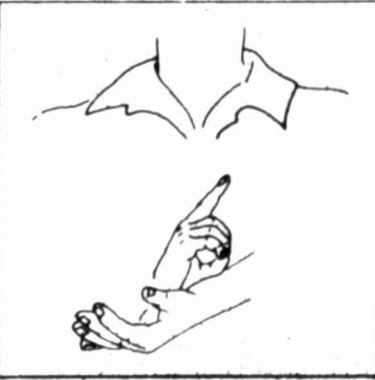

As a ring of security guards and several attorneys looked on, the concrete vault containing Oswald's casket was lifted from the grave.

Officials said moisture had deteriorated the coffin, which partially collapsed onto the body as the vault was opened.

Jurors picked

Jury selection began this morning for the trials of Carroll Wayne James, charged with rape of a child, and Langford Wood, charged with theft. The district attorney's office said juror selection should be completed sometime today.

SIGN LANGUAGE

DOCTOR

By CAROL HART
Staff Writer

Pictured here is the sign for "doctor," or "physician." To form the sign, place the right "D" sign on the inside of the left wrist.

"The Joy of Signing," by Lottie L. Riekehof, explains that this sign originally pictured a doctor taking a pulse. Another sign which also means doctor, or medical, is the right "M" on the left wrist.

To sign the word psychiatrist, place the right "P" on the inside of the left wrist. And to sign the word "psychiatrist," add the "person" ending.

The word "nurse" may be signed by placing the right "N" on the left wrist. If you want to sign the word "dentist," place the "D" sign to the teeth.

This week, this column will feature some of the differences of manually coded English and American Sign Language.

American Sign Language, ASL, is not a written language, and has no written form. To write about ASL, we need, at present, to use English.

Many textbooks and teachers of ASL point out that although English is used in the explanation of ASL, English and ASL are very different.

ASL is a visual-gestural language, created by deaf people. The text "American Sign Language" by Dennis Cokely and Charlotte Baker, shows that the language is used by between 250,000 and 500,000 Americans today.

Tomorrow, we'll outline some of the characteristics of ASL, plus feature more signs to add to your vocabulary.

The sign pictured here is reprinted courtesy of Gospel Publishing House. The sign is featured in "The Joy of Signing" by Lottie Riekehof.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: It rains fish

Q. Please settle a bet. I told a girl the way some of these fish ponds are stocked is when it rains fish. She didn't believe it, but isn't that the way some of these fish ponds are stocked?

A. We hope this doesn't undermine our credibility too much, but yes — raining fish would explain how a farm pond out in the middle of nowhere gets stocked with fish.

In Texas, tornadoes often form over lakes and create "water spouts." If any fish are feeding near the water's surface, they become passengers of the thunderhead that spawned the tornado. Updrafts and wind currents within the cloud can keep them aloft for hours before dropping them miles from the lake.

Probably 99 percent of them are dropped over solid ground where they die. The other one percent might be dropped over lakes or farm ponds or streams where the fish could survive.

Hundreds of farm ponds are probably stocked with fish this way every year. Thousands are stocked by farm boys.

Calendar: Ministers map meeting

TODAY

Area ministers will discuss sponsoring the 97 Haitians imprisoned in Big Spring during a meeting starting at 7 p.m. in the East Fourth Street Baptist Church.

Overeaters' Anonymous will meet at Foursquare Church at 7 p.m. Monday. OA also meets at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at First United Methodist Church.

Noon until 6 p.m.: Malone Hogan Hospital's bimonthly blood drive, sponsored by "The Quiet Ones," a group of gallon donors in the hospital, will be conducted in the classroom of the hospital. Anyone who wants to give blood is encouraged to come by. Fifty-eight people at the hospital and clinic already have signed up, the hospital says.

The Organic Garden Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the Spencer Wolfe residence, 2604 Cactus. A lecture by Lunette McHamey will deal with "Hydro-Culture for Indoor Plants."

Cadet Girl Scout Troop 156 meets at the Texas Electric Service downtown office at 7 p.m. Mrs. Joyce Phillips from Merle Norman Cosmetics will present the program. For more information, call 263-3704.

Tops on TV: 'Sidney Shorr'

On channel 2 at 8 p.m. the premiere of "Sidney Shorr" is being shown. Tony Randall stars as a lonely, middle-aged New Yorker sharing a non-romantic but loving relationship with a young woman and her daughter. Also at 8 p.m. on channel 7 is another premiere movie, "The Miracle of Kathy Miller," which is a true story of an Arizona teen-ager's effort to return to a normal life after a near-fatal accident. Sharon Gless and Frank Converse star.

'Hot' checks: How the county tracks them down

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

A year passes, and nearly 3,000 "hot" checks are passed in the Big Spring area. Instead of being "burned" by these bad checks merchants can seek help from the Hot Check Department of the County Attorney's Office. The department traces down the writers of these hot checks and either gets payment or prosecutes.

The individual responsible for tracing down all of the hot checks in the area is Melba Soles. Helping her are Mike Barton, who also works for County Judge Bill Tume and Jane Overman, secretary to Robert Miller, the county attorney. It is Soles, however, who concentrates on tracing bad checks. Her persistence is evident when one considers the $83,613.31 collected in checks and fees since the hot check division began collecting in October, 1980.

Evidence that the Hot Check Department is persistent comes from one bad check recently collected by Mrs. Soles that was dated from 1976. The woman even had changed her name twice through two marriages and moved out of the area, but she was traced and prosecuted.

"It takes some time, but someone somewhere will usually know where a person is," says Soles.

The majority of hot checks are processed through the offices of the justices of the peace. Next, the sheriff's office will issue warrants for arrests.

"Without the cooperation of the justices and the sheriff's office, we would not have been as successful against hot checks," Soles claims.

Approximately 60 percent of the bad checks passed in Howard County have been collected by the department since it was created in August, 1980 (prior to that, the sheriff's office did the investigating. The search for the other 40 percent continues. Constant attempts are made to trace individuals through phone calls to neighbors, employers and friends.

"Once an individual is in the computer, his bad checks can catch up to him," warns Soles.

"Him" is not exactly correct as the average hot check writer in the Big Spring area seems to be female, ranging in age from 25 to 45. Juveniles are also a problem area, says Soles.

"Parents should be aware they are responsible for the hot checks of their children," she explains.

"Arresting someone is the best way to get their attention about a hot check," as County Attorney Miller says. While most of the checks are processed through a justice of the peace, checks over $200 could be prosecuted through Miller's office as a felony. Penalties range from a $2,000 fine and one year in prison to a $10,000 fine and two to 20 years in prison.

Even a misdemeanor — a check for less than $200 — can result in an arrest, the need to post bond, and a trial. As Miller notes: "A check is hard evidence in court." An individual probably would be fined up to $1,000 in a misdemeanor case and have to pay court costs as well, says Miller.

Additionally, the department charges a fee for the collection of a hot check, and it is the writer of the check who has to pay. A hot check up to $10 has a fee of $5 while checks up to $100 cost a $10 fee. $100 to $300 costs $30; up to $500 is $50; and over $500 is a $75 fee. Several hot checks could run into a great deal of money.

The best thing about the Hot Check Department, other than the obvious benefit to merchants in getting their money, is it pays for itself. Pointing around her courthouse office, Soles said: "The desks, typewriters, calculators, carpeting and my salary are examples of what the fees charged by the department have paid for."

"All the money from the fees goes back to the County Attorney's office," says Miller.

Soles, for whom it is not unusual to receive 50 to 75 bad checks a day, has three suggestions for merchants concerning hot checks:

Copy the individual's driver's license number from the driver's license itself.

Get the person's birthdate on the check — this can be traced as well.

Keep a list of hot check writers and have your employees check the list for every check passed. "Some merchants continue to accept hot checks from the same people," says Miller.

The collection of bad checks by the Hot Check Department benefits the ordinary consumer in that the merchant does not have to raise his prices in order to cover losses from hot checks. Citizens can even use the Hot Check Department for their own protection if they receive bad checks. Officials say hot checks are one of the most uncontrolled crimes today, and everyone should be aware of how to avoid being victimized and what to do if you are "burned" by a hot check.

Reagan is fighting for Saudi arms deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan stepped up his fight today for congressional approval of his planned $8.5 billion Saudi arms deal, but with sentiment running against the proposal the Republican-controlled Senate Foreign Relations Committee delayed a preliminary vote.

While Reagan tried to drum up support at a White House luncheon, the committee decided not to vote before Congress starts a week-long recess on Wednesday, meaning that a vote could not come before Oct. 14 at the earliest.

The arms package, which includes five AWACS radar planes, faces near-certain rejection by the committee unless terms of the sale are modified.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. was recalled for more testimony and Reagan called all Senate Republicans to the White House on Tuesday to launch a personal push to save the deal.

"The next step will be the president's personal intervention," Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., told reporters. "I think the president can and will make a special appeal. I still have some hope."

Reagan, accusing opponents of the deal of waging a propaganda campaign, said Sunday he had not "really gone to bat yet." He said he does not intend to share ownership of the radar planes with Saudi Arabia.

He called leading foreign policy figures from previous administrations to the White House for a luncheon and Rose Garden reception today to demonstrate, he said Sunday, "how many people of varying political backgrounds and views are in wholehearted support of the AWACS sale."

The guest list included four former defense secretaries — Harold Brown, Elliott Richardson, Melvin Laird and Robert McNamara — five former White House national security advisers — Gordon Gray, Walt Rostow, McGeorge Bundy, Henry Kissinger and Zbigniew Brzezinski — as well as three former chairmen of the Joint Chiefs of Staff — Adm. Thomas Moorer, Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer and Gen. Maxwell Taylor.

Asked Sunday on his return to the White House from a weekend at the Camp David, Md., presidential retreat if he were worried, Reagan replied, "I'm always worried until you can count the votes."

Challenge rebuffed in Texas prayer case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme court today buffed a challenge by famed atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair to the Austin, Texas, City Council's practice of opening its meetings with a prayer.

The justices, without comment, left intact rulings that the practice does not violate constitutionally required separation of church and state.

Ms. O'Hair's appeal also challenged the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals' practice of opening its sessions with the invocation, "God save our nation and this honorable court."

The Supreme Court traditionally opens its sessions with a similar invocation: "God save the United States and this honorable court."

Ms. O'Hair filed suit against Austin City Council members in 1977, seeking an end to the prayers.

U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts dismissed the suit last year.

He ruled that the city council's invocations served the non-religious purpose of establishing a solemn and serious tone for its meetings.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld Roberts' ruling, but not before Ms. O'Hair challenged the appeals court's use of its invocational prayer. She lost that challenge also.

Ms. O'Hair still faces charges growing out of her removal from one city council meeting.

Religious leader seeks lost Ark of Covenant

FRANKSTON, Texas (AP) — Religious leader Tom Crotser may not look like Indiana Jones of the smash hit movie "Raiders of the Lost Ark," but his mission to find sacred religious documents is the same.

Crotser, founder of the Holy Ground Mission in backwoods East Texas, said last week that he knows the exact location of the sacred Ark of the Covenant and will leave Oct. 20 on a quest to the Middle East to recover it.

The former Disciples of Christ minister said he will undertake the archaeological work to prepare for Jesus' return to Earth in 1988.

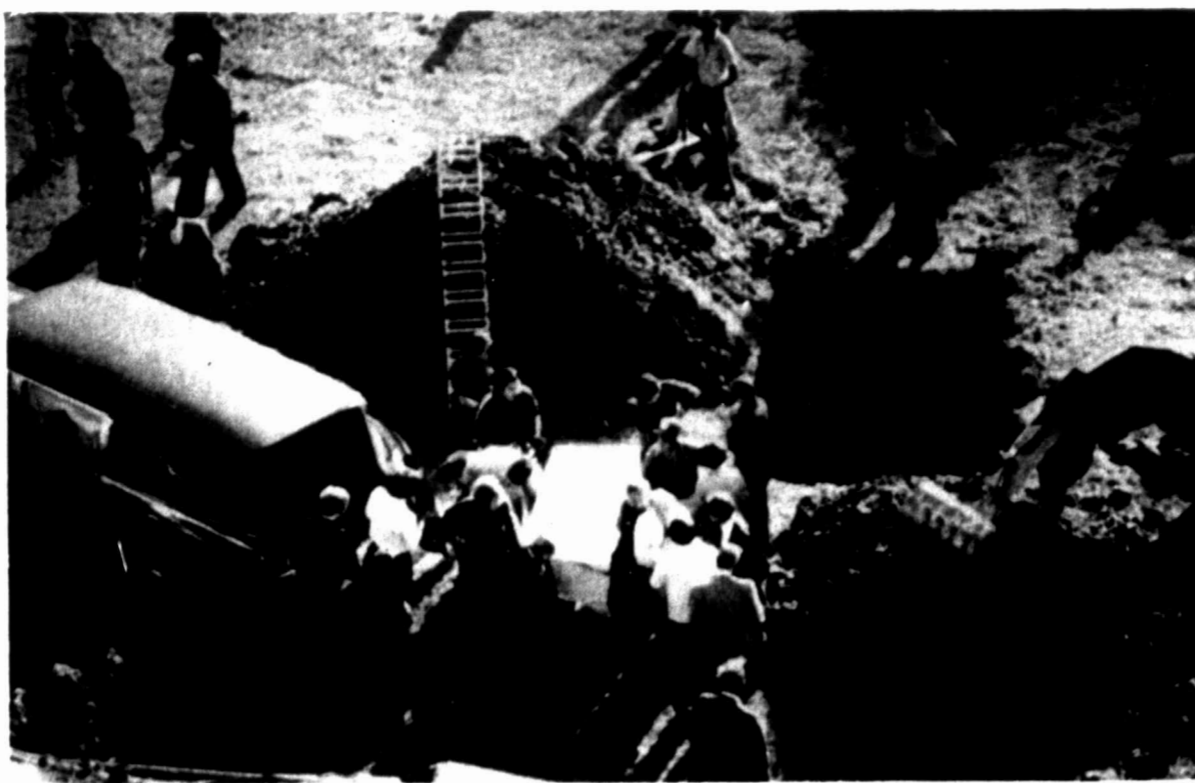

"I just happen to be in God's plan and God's time, the man who knows where the buckling expedition as a pattern for his proposed journey. Instead, God chose him to restore biblical artifacts to prepare for the second coming of Christ, he said.

Crotser, who heads up a 50-member community in Frankston and missions in three other sites, said he will not remove the ark from the cave, but will bring back some artifact to prove that he found it.

The case acted on today was a part of an earlier suit filed by heirs and survivors of Ms. Silkwood, who died in a car crash on the way to a meeting with a labor leader and a New York Times reporter.

She reportedly was trying to deliver evidence of missing plutonium and

Senate opening MX hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Facing stiff questioning in Congress, the Reagan administration says its plan to deploy MX missiles in stronger silos and build a new bomber is essential to counter a "considerable danger" of nuclear attack in the next few years.

The Senate Armed Services Committee was opening hearings today on President Reagan's proposal to deploy 100 MX missiles, reinforce vacant Titan silos for at least 36 of them and build 100 B-1 bombers while working on a plane with "stealth" equipment to foil Soviet radar.

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., chairman of the subcommittee on nuclear forces and a former Navy secretary, said he would press Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger to justify the use of fixed silos and explain "whether we can afford two new bomber programs at the same time."

In interviews Sunday, Weinberger called the plan a "vast strengthening" of U.S. military might, while his predecessor at the Pentagon, Harold Brown, dismissed it as "better than nothing."

"Because of the failure to keep strategic forces modernized and because of the length of time it takes to bring new systems on, there will be a period in the middle of this decade when we will be vulnerable and will have a period of considerable danger," Weinberger said on CBS "Face the Nation."

"That is why it is absolutely essential to start now with the modernization and strengthening of these strategic forces," he said.

Brown, interviewed on the ABC program "Issues and Answers," said, "It's better than nothing. It will produce a greater symmetry between the United States and the Soviets. That doesn't make me very comfortable. I don't worry about a U.S. first strike, because it isn't going to happen. I do worry about a Soviet first strike."

Former President Carter had scrapped plans for the B-1 and advocated shutting 200 MX missiles among 2,400 shelters in the West to conceal their whereabouts, a "shell game" system intended to force the Soviets to saturate the area with 4,000 nuclear warheads to wipe out all the MXs.

Sen. John Tower, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, appearing on the NBC program "Meet the Press," derided Reagan's MX plan Sunday as "silo stuffing." The Texas Republican said it faces an "uncertain" fate in Congress.

Weinberger said the Reagan plan "isn't a weakening, it's a vast strengthening."

He said the Titan silos would be reinforced to withstand up to 5,000 pounds per square inch of blast pressure, almost 10 times what Carter proposed for new shelters in Nevada and Utah.

Brown argued that the Soviets will have nuclear warheads by 1984 or 1985 accurate enough to blast a cavity all around the site and added, "You can't harden a shelter enough so that it will survive being in the crater from a nuclear explosion."

Weinberger conceded there is no way to permanently guarantee that missiles in a known silo could be protected from Soviet nuclear attack but said, "We are proposing to make them invulnerable for a number of years."

"Some say that is just a stop-gap," the defense secretary said. "All right, but it's an awfully big gap and it's very vital to stop it."

The debate over strategic weapons begins as the battle builds over Reagan's proposed sale of AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia. Both the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs committees are likely to vote against the deal this week.

Officer Frank Smith of the Big Spring Police Department was injured Saturday when a subject rammed the marked police unit that the officer was riding in.

Police reports show that Julian Ramirez, 31, was arrested at 104 N.W. Fourth following the incident, in which Ramirez allegedly hit the police car intentionally with his vehicle.

Jo Ann Jones, manager of the T-Club No. 2 on Highway 80, told police that someone broke into the club sometime Saturday night and took five cases of beer — and money from the pool tables, and cigarette machines. Entry was gained by cutting through a screen on the west side of the building, police said.

A case of criminal mischief was reported by Terry Watkins, 1708 Owens, Saturday evening. Watkins told police someone destroyed the front windows and frames of his home. Damage was estimated at $300.

Verlin Knous, 1305 Dixie, reported that a Dilly brand motorcycle trailer was taken from 101 Goliad Sunday evening. The trailer was valued at $400.

Carla Chavarria, 1105 Mesa, told police someone broke into her home prior to 8:25 p.m. Sunday and took $40 in change from a pink plastic cash bank, and also the bank. Entry to the home was gained by a bedroom window, police said.

Glenn Wherley, a clerk at the Seven-11 Store at 11th and Johnson, told police that someone tried to pry off a dead-bolt lock at the store early this morning. Entry was not gained to the store, police said.

Ray Alaniz, 404 Price, complained of criminal mischief and terrorist threats Saturday night. Alaniz said someone he knows shot at his 1965 Chevrolet truck and caused $450 in damages, and also shot at his residence. The same person also threatened Alaniz, police said.

Mrs. Grady Wilbanks, P.O. Box 13, told police today that someone took a CB radio from her vehicle while it was parked at Malone Hogan Hospital Saturday afternoon.

The burglary of a sewing machine from Phillips Grain Elevator, 403 E. First, was reported to police today by R.G. Jimenez.

Two men and a woman were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct at the Americana Club at 2:22 a.m. Saturday, police said. The three were arrested following a fight at the club, police said.

An alleged hit-and-run accident was cleared when police arrested two men Saturday night. The accident at 1500 Avion was cleared when Guadalupe Garcia, 207 N.W. Second was arrested in the 100 Block of South Gregg and charged with public intoxication, resisting arrest and leaving the scene of an accident, according to police reports.

Eleno Chavez, 605 N.W. Ninth, also was arrested at the scene, and charged with unlawfully carrying a weapon and public intoxication, police said.

A minor accident was reported at 8:58 a.m. Sunday between vehicles driven by Maria Dolores Leos, 1002 N. Main, and Geneva Aguilar Martinez, Route 2. The accident occurred at 1002 N. Main, police said.

Another minor mishap was reported at 2600 Gregg between a 1975 Honda owned by Betty Busses, 1514 Wood, and a 1979 International Eagle driven by Dallas Goad of Arkansas. The incident occurred at 4:41 p.m. Sunday, police said.

At the intersection of I-20 and U.S. 87, an accident was reported at 7:04 p.m. Saturday between vehicles driven by George Lawrence, 2716 Central, and William Pace of Arizona. There were no injuries, police said.

At 7:23 p.m. Saturday, a minor accident was reported between vehicle driven by Russell Johnson, 1700 W. 17th, and a parked vehicle. The accident occurred at 700 E. 17th. There were no injuries, police said.

At 8:55 p.m. Saturday, an accident occurred between vehicles driven by Louis Meek, 2507 March, and Robert Whitley, 1810 S. Monticello. The accident occurred at F.M. 700 near the Bonanza restaurant. No injuries were reported.

Sammy Ben Johnston, 17, and Levern Hardin Jr., 18, were transferred Friday to the Texas Department of Corrections from the sheriff's department. Johnston, of 2107 Runnels, was sentenced to seven years for violation of probation. Hardin of San Angelo, was sentenced to five years for aggravated robbery in Tom Green County. Hardin is being held in Howard County on a charge of aggravated robbery resulting from the July hold-up of Grady Harland's service station.

Daniel Morales Martinez Jr., 24, was transferred from the police department to the sheriff's custody Friday on charges of burglary and aggravated assault on a police officer. Bonds of $25,000 for assault and $10,000 for burglary were set by Judge Bobby West.

Martinez, of 610 N.W. Eighth, was released later on Friday on bail posted by Basden and Conway.

Reagan's pep talks flop Wall Street just can't seem to score

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street seems to have been caught at an old habit, that of talking a better game than it plays, and Coach Reagan is upset. His pep talks don't seem to work. Wall Street just can't seem to score.

Oh, it talks about scoring. Any day of the week you can interview an analyst who expects his favorite dozens stocks to soar, and you can even find a few who are talking about a 2,000-point Dow Jones average.

People on Wall Street even send letters of support to the president, telling him how he has saved capitalism from disaster. And some have publicly advertised their undying support. But money's another thing.

Why has the investment community failed to risk money on rebuilding America? Why have the stock market averages failed to rise along with the rhetoric? How can there be such a split between words and action?

Some possibilities present themselves. Investors really don't believe. They approve of spending cuts and the return of power to the private sector, but they question whether it is possible without severe financial and social upheavals first.

Carrisalez remained in critical condition Sunday at Valley Baptist Medical Center in Harlingen, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Court won't revive Silkwood cover-up charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to revive charges that the FBI and the Kerr-McGee Corp. undercut Karen Silkwood's nuclear plant union-organizing drive.

The justices, without comment, let stand a ruling dismissing the conspiracy and cover-up allegations filed after Ms. Silkwood's death in 1974.

The case acted on today was a part of an earlier suit filed by heirs and survivors of Ms. Silkwood, who died in a car crash on the way to a meeting with a labor leader and a New York Times reporter.

She reportedly was trying to deliver evidence of missing plutonium and falsification of safety tests at the Kerr-McGee nuclear facility in Cimarron, Okla.

At the time of her death on Nov. 13, 1974, Ms. Silkwood was 28 years old and a local leader in the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union.

One part of the suit, alleging that Kerr-McGee was responsible for injuries due to Ms. Silkwood's exposure to radiation, resulted in a $10.5 million judgment for her estate. That award, issued against the company in 1979, is now pending before the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The suit also claimed that, beginning in 1972, Ms. Silkwood and other Kerr-McGee employees were blocked by the company in their efforts to organize a labor union.

The activities allegedly included wiretapping, surveillance and harassment.

The suit said that after Ms. Silkwood's death, several FBI agents joined the conspiracy to help cover up the company's past activities.

That second part of the case, which also seeks money damages, never went to trial.

A federal trial judge in 1978 threw out charges that Kerr-McGee and some of its officials conspired against the union activities. Those charges were filed under a fairly limited section of the the Civil Rights Act of 1871.

A growing number of Americans are trying to fix their own cars and appliances instead of taking them to a repair shop. The trend is expected to continue as more people become do-it-yourselfers.

Fix-it-yourself trend growing

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
A growing number of Americans are trying to save time and money by doing their own repairs around the house, and a major appliance manufacturer hopes to cash in on the trend.

The company, General Electric, has decided to sell repair manuals and 94 common replacement parts along with its products, providing detailed advice on how to fix problems with five major appliances.

The appliance industry in general offers help for people who want repair service and can't get it.

Several years ago, the industry established the Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel to resolve disputes. For information, write: MACAP, 20 N. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60606.

Bruce R. Albertson, the man in charge of the program for GE, said the introduction of the repair plan is not a sign of deteriorating product quality. Nor, he said, does it mean that you can't get service if you want it.

Albertson said the company simply recognizes that appliances, like any other mechanical item, are subject to trouble, sooner or later. "A refrigerator operates 24 hours a day for 15 years or better," he said. "No matter how good it is, it's going to break down."

At the same time, he said, the company has found that an estimated 40 percent of all appliance repairs are being done by owners and those people need help. Albertson said GE is not trying to encourage consumers to make their own repairs; it is, however, trying to persuade dedicated do-it-yourselfers to buy GE products rather than another brand.

Studies have shown that the public is dissatisfied not only with product quality, but also with the type of service provided.

The GE program — dubbed the "Quick Fix System" — covers washers, dryers, refrigerators, dishwashers and ranges.

71-year-old woman slain

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A body found Friday night near an unimproved road in Northwest Travis County has been identified as that of a 71-year-old Austin woman who was a receptionist for a job-placement center for handicapped people.

Police said Christine Gilman had been raped and stabbed to death.

Her car was found burning along a road in downtown Austin, six blocks from her apartment.

"Whoever murdered her brought the car back into town and set it on fire," said Curtis Weeks, sheriff's public information officer. "I guess they were trying to destroy evidence."

Under the leadership of the Coalition of Provincial Organizations of the Handicapped (COPH), a steering committee developed a constitution and also planned the first World Congress of Disabled Peoples' International conference to be held in Singapore, Nov. 30 — Dec. 4, said Dr. Doug Burke, vice president of SWCID.

"This is a real honor for me and I am really thrilled," said Ms. Byers. "I attended high school in Okinawa, where I lived for four years and while living there I traveled to all the islands. I believe they asked me to be an interpreter because of my experience in the orient."

TO ATTEND CONFERENCE — Robin Byers, an interpreter at the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, has been asked to be an interpreter for the First World Congress of Disabled Peoples' International conference in Singapore, Nov. 30-Dec. 4.

Robin Byers to interpret at international conference

Under the leadership of the Coalition of Provincial Organizations of the Handicapped (COPH), a steering committee developed a constitution and also planned the first World Congress of Disabled Peoples' International conference to be held in Singapore, Nov. 30 — Dec. 4, said Dr. Doug Burke, vice president of SWCID.

Disability is based on the philosophy of equal opportunity and full participation of handicapped people in all aspects of society as a matter of justice rather than charity. It is based on the principle of integration.

The organization strives toward unity among handicapped people and their organizations, worldwide, and to encourage mutual cooperation, assistance and understanding among all people. The organization is particularly concerned with developing handicapped organizations in developing countries, and in developing self-help efforts in these countries.

250 prospective jurors called in Daniel trial

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — A visiting judge from Beaumont summoned 250 residents of this small town to court today in hopes of finding among them 12 impartial jurors to hear the murder trial of Vickie Daniel, widow of slain Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr.

The 9,000 people of this southeastern Texas community appear divided into two camps, and no one involved is predicting whether a jury can be seated that could objectively decide whether Mrs. Daniel, 34, is guilty or innocent of murder in the shooting death of her husband.

Daniel Jr. was killed Jan. 19 during a bitter quarrel with his wife at the Daniel ranch just outside of town.

Leonard Giblin, who was brought in from Beaumont after the judges here refused to take a case involving the town's most prominent family, has told lawyers he does not want to spend more than a week on jury selection.

"The judge pretty much gave us the impression that he thought we ought to do it in a week or we weren't going to be able to get a jury here," said District Attorney Carroll Wilborn.

Defense attorney Jack Zimmermann said that according to past experience, only about half of the 250 prospective jurors summoned were expected to show up for today's scheduled 1:30 p.m. session.

The judge set aside today to question the prospective jurors himself and said attorneys in the case can begin asking questions Tuesday.

Wilborn said Giblin set aside Oct. 12 and 13 to decide pre-trial motions and actual testimony was not expected to begin until Oct. 14.

Mrs. Daniel had filed for divorce about three weeks before Daniel was killed. She later said her slain husband was a wife-beater and a child molester.

Daniel was the great-grandson of Sam Houston, the son of former Texas Gov., former U.S. Sen., and Texas Supreme Court Justice Price Daniel Sr., and himself a prominent politician who served as state legislator, speaker of the Texas House and president of the Texas Constitutional Convention.

All of the residents here may not know the Daniel family personally, but a lot of them do, and the rest at least know who they are, said Chamber of Commerce Manager Homer Smith.

Details of the shooting came out last spring during a trial to determine who would get custody of the Daniels' two small sons, Marion Price Daniel IV, 1, and Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 4.

Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph of Richardson, Texas, had filed suit to gain custody of her nephews, prompting the six-week trial.

Mrs. Daniel testified that she did not intentionally shoot her husband. After she accused him of beating her, molesting her sons, and said he was advancing on her the night he was shot to death, the jury gave her custody of the children.

Some execs giving both to Clements and Bentsen It's big money time in Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It's big money time in Texas politics as would-be candidates try to get their campaigns financed before making public announcements.

But a lot of the big money in both parties is being tied up by the campaigns of Republican Gov. Bill Clements and Democrat U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

Other candidates say they have to plead just to get promises.

It's no doubt the two races are getting the most money, and GOP State Chairman Chet Epham, Mineral Wells, said, "I'm sure that some are giving both to Clements and Bentsen. They appeal to the same type businessman."

There are a lot of the same people who give to Bentsen who also give to Clements, and vice versa," said a top Democratic campaigner who did not want his name used. "Bentsen has always had biartisan support, and Clements got Democratic support in 1978.

Clements and Bentsen have announced for re-election next year.

Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong says he will announce as a Democratic candidate for governor shortly, "barring a lightning stroke."

And there are recurring rumors that former Gov. Dolph Briscoe will make his decision on a race the latter part of October or early November. Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, and former Attorney General John Hill are still to be heard from.

In the U.S. Senate race, Bentsen apparently will be opposed either by U.S. Rep. Jim Collins, R-Dallas, or state Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston.

Collins has been campaigning, but there were recent reports that his problems in getting campaign backing might force a change of mind.

"Bentsen and Clements are getting the top-dollar contributions, the $20,000 kind," said Armstrong, "but then Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby is getting some of that too. If I make the race it will be something that will have to grow. I want to appeal to the young and successful people

I want to get the $1,000 and $2,000 donations instead of the $20,000 kind."

Secretary of State George Strake, a Houston oilman who has never run for public office, says he will announce Tuesday for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

"You've got to face it," says a Republican campaigner who did not want to be named, "most of the big money in the Senate race, even from Republicans, is going to Bentsen. And I don't see how anyone could get President Reagan to come to Texas to campaign against Bentsen, what with the relations they have had."

Weather Storms forecast for much of Texas

Scattered thunderstorms were forecast today for much of Texas, from southwest regions northeastward into central sections of the state.

Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms were also possible along coastal regions, the National Weather Service said. Thunderstorms, some with very heavy rain, continued into the early morning hours across Southwest Texas. The remainder of the state was clear to partly cloudy.

Predawn temperatures were mild, ranging from the low 50s in the Panhandle to the upper 70s across South Texas. Highs should reach into the 80s and 90s statewide.

WEATHER FORECAST — Warm weather is expected in the forecast period, today until Tuesday morning, for the southern half of the country. Colder weather is expected in the northern regions. Rain is forecast for the Pacific Northwest. Showers are expected from the upper Mississippi to the Great Lakes.

Cities must become self-reliant

The mayors of big cities, most of them Democrats, are screaming that President Reagan's budget cuts will ruin them.

They fear Reagan's plan to shift responsibility and authority to the states will result in less money for cities. That might be true.

But there is good reason for local and state governments to assume the primary role. If taxpayers in Gary, Ind., for example, want to increase taxes for city programs, or if the State of Indiana sees a reason to help Gary, that is one thing. It is quite another for taxpayers in Texas or Oklahoma to be called upon to supply aid to Gary. Mayor Democrat Richard Hatcher is one of the loudest critics of Reagan's proposals.

IN SHORT, it is time that more responsibility be returned to local and state governments.

In the first place, citizens have a greater control at state and local levels over their elected officials. Secondly, most states have tighter laws, many of them requiring balanced budgets.

At the federal level, the temptation of Congress has been to approve massive amounts of aid for cities and to finance that aid with deficits. The results of this practice, not only in regard to aid to cities but in nearly every other social program, is a trillion-dollar national debt and roaring inflation.

BEYOND THAT, it has been demonstrated over and over that an added level of federal bureaucracy is required to receive tax funds to be distributed back to the cities and states, complete with federal red tape and regulation.

The mayors will continue to scream, but it's time they faced up to the fact that Uncle Sam can't continue to throw money at their problems.

Lobbyist Superbowl

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — A prospective Supreme Court justice—fired up and ready to go—has been convicted by the courts. The conviction is part of the federal government's battle being waged in backstage Washington to seek to the outside world.

Former solicitor general Robert Bork, presumed to be President Reagan's future Supreme Court justice, has buttonholed senators and their aides to help his clients out of trouble. He is not alone. Just about every lobbyist, lawyer and lobbyist manager is out there, over billions of dollars in fees and damages.

While struggles over Reagan's subject of the AWACS (air defense) program, members of the Senate Judiciary Committee search for a possible culprit. The search has been going on for more than a year. It is to make past malfeasance possible or retroactively, as for a president, the method of setting an example. The lobbyist superbowl is a high-stakes game. Senators and White House aides, plus members of the capital's superbowl, are involved. There are two sources of Washington lawyers today. One is getting rich on this legislation, and those who wish they were. With the big names retained with each side, an hour, nobody can come out.

SE SAVORS ARE SWAMPED by telephone calls from chief executive officers, back home and Washington representatives, who in the past funded campaign contributions from political action committees of the corporations now seeking relief. In the Washington jungle, it is a matter of administration that chooses to take sides. The Justice Department is studiously neutral.

Key company in the case is the Mead Corp., a Dayton, Ohio, paper products firm found guilty of price-fixing and facing a possible $750 million in treble damages. Mead is owned by three plywood manufacturers: Georgia Pacific, Willamette Industries and Willamette Industries. Mead is found guilty of price-fixing to the tune of $1.5 billion in treble damages. Mead is owned by the textile manufacturer which paid $2 million antitrust treble damages award to Burlington Industries.

All five companies are pushing for a retroactive amendment to a Senate bill that would ease the liability for antitrust damages. Since the companies are pushing for a retroactive amendment, it is not clear if they will be able to settle out of court. If they do, it is a question of how much they will pay. That is the more important question.

all star talent appeared on the scene

The respected Griffin Bell, former attorney general and a federal appeals court judge before that, emerged as a lobbyist for Georgia-Pacific. So did former senator Birch Bayh. Super-lobbyist Charles E. Walker, a master Capitol Hill string-puller, entered the battle in Mead and Weyerhaeuser's colors. Thomas (Tommy the Cork) Corcoran, the veteran wheeler-dealer, is handling Milliken. Mead recruited ex-Du Pont chief Irving Shapiro.

But Bob Bork, renowned conservative theoretician and constitutional scholar, was the most decisive combatant as counsel for Georgia Pacific and Milliken.

Arguing his case in letters and telephone calls to senators and a meeting of business groups, he turned a hopeless cause into a possibility.

When the administration let it be known that Bork will be nominated to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, he eased up on his lobbying. But his work had been done.

PLAINTIFFS AND THOSE defendants who settled out of court had been assured by their Washington offices that Congress never would enact a bailout. But the lobbyists for the five companies have succeeded in repeatedly postponing Senate Judiciary Committee action on the bill while they gathered supporters for their amendment.

Alarmed, the anti-amendment companies found their own all-stars. Super lobbyist Tommy Boggs was retained by Burlington International Paper Co., which had settled in the paper case along with 33 other companies while only Mead insisted on going to trial, hired former senator Robert Griffin. The other side counterattack with more big names. Benjamin Civiletti, Bell's successor as attorney general, has scheduled meetings with a key judiciary committee member to discuss the bill in behalf of an unnamed client.

The notion of a congressional bailout for a company which has been assessed severe antitrust damages in court is considered so outlandish that William Baxter, assistant attorney general for antitrust, is presumed to be opposed. But he refused to talk to us, referring us to the Justice Department press office, which stated the government's position: "Neutral."

Lawyers and lobbyists delighted with the rich harvest of fees confront senators who consider the unbearable pressure a bad dream. So, these senators search for a compromise that would relieve the companies of part of their court-imposed damages for violating the nation's price-fixing laws. That is how Washington works when the super-lobbyists roll into action.

Pitiful state of Army troops

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — This might best be called "The Anatomy of a Pentagon Lie."

Six months ago, I reported that U.S. Army troops in Europe were in a pitiful state of readiness — ill-educated, ill-trained and even illiterate.

Nine out of 10 soldiers assigned to operate and maintain nuclear weapons had flunked tests of their basic military skills, I reported. The figures for inadequate personnel were almost as shocking in other areas, including 88 percent of artillery crewmen, 77 percent of computer programmers, 89 percent of tracked-vehicle mechanics and 82 percent of Hawk surface-to-air missile crews.

IT WAS AN APPALLING report, and the Army responded with howls of protest — and some outright lies, which I can now document. Here's what my April 8 report said, what the Army replied, and what the Army knew the truth to be — as stated in a secret briefing report for the Army chief of staff obtained by my associate Ron McKee.

My report: "While the shocking details have been hidden from the American public, our GIs' inadequacy is no secret to our allies." Army response: a flat denial, coupled with the boast that U.S. troops were now the pride of NATO forces.

The facts: According to the secret briefing document, the situation is "dangerous," and has reached the point where, without sharp improvement, "our Army will not be taken seriously by our allies or our adversaries."

—My report: Most of our troops flunked tests of their basic skills. Army response: The test results I quoted were three years out of date; since then, "numerous actions have been taken which have corrected perceived deficiencies."

The facts: Testing continued, but the results got worse instead of better. When Army Secretary Clifford Alexander saw the frightening test results collated in Human Readiness Report No. 5 in 1978, he was understandably dismayed. He forbade any disclosure or discussion of the report. Then he set about getting better results — not by improved training or recruitment, but by changing the tests! He ordered a new set of "unbiased" tests, designed to avoid "discrimination based on intelligence."

—My report: Illiteracy is widespread in the Army; many technical manuals have to be put in comicbook format because the Army recruits men who can't understand written instructions. Army response: There is no problem of quality among recruits.

The facts: Continuing poor test results of military proficiency are a direct result of recruiting poorly educated personnel, the secret briefing document states. "Although (Secretary Alexander) declared that we have no manpower problems, the vast majority of officers believe otherwise," the report says. More than 80 percent of the Army's officers complained about the low quality of their troops. Incidentally, black enlisted men as a group outscored whites; they tend to be better educated and better motivated than white recruits, seeing the Army as a road to opportunity.

—My report: The dismal state of the Army had led many professionals to conclude that some form of the draft would have to be instituted to get better-educated soldiers. Army response: No draft is needed, nor any drastic change in manpower policy.

The facts: "At this time (the Army) should muster the courage to assert the obvious about our manpower situation and act on it," the top-level briefing document states.

Footnote: Rep. Robin Beard, R-Tenn., a consistent supporter of Pentagon budget requests, has warned the generals that the public won't stand for multibillion-dollar expenditures on fancy weapons our soldiers can't operate. He cited a report showing, for example, that more than 20 percent of our tank gunners have no idea how to work the computerized, laser-assisted gunsight in the $1.75 million MX-1 tank.

POTHOLE POOHBAH: Mayor Jeff "Pirate" Burke of Rio Hondo, Texas (Pop. 1,675), has concocted a unique scheme to raise money for road repairs: He's selling souvenir potholes.

Proclaiming his town the "pothole capital of the world" — due largely to devastation wrought by Hurricane Allen last year — Burke said: "I figured if people would buy pet rocks, they'd buy pet potholes." So he printed up "Certificates of Ownership" attesting that the holder owns "one pedigreed pothole."

The certificates go for anywhere from $5 to $1,000, depending on size and location of the pothole. Gift certificates are available for donation to "some who doesn't know his 'you-know-what' from a hole in the ground." So far, Burke says, he has raised $2,500 from pothole sales — enough to repair five city blocks.

At a recent White House reception, the mayor handed a gift certificate to social secretary Muffie Brandon and asked that it be given to President Reagan. She obligingly forwarded it to the Oval Office.

Burke's gift of a presidential pothole could be interpreted as a rebuke to the Federal Emergency Management Agency, which he says didn't do much for Rio Hondo after the hurricane.

Around the rim My two cents worth

B. J. Carpenter

When the Postal Service is raising the price of stamps again and increasing the second increase of the year, the Postal Service delivered the message that it raises prices I don't believe it will do any good to give them any more money. I mean if they raise the price with one more cent, they will have even more money. Why? Well, on the next increase, they will have even more money. Why? Well, on the next increase, they will have even more money.

THE POSTAL SERVICE has lost most of its appeal as a business to those who are carriers. Probably because of the slow years many packages arrived looking like they had been kicked up and down a road, held by the entire North American mail carrier League.

WHEN I see a mail carrier sometimes I think of the P.O. as a well-kept place. I think of the mail carrier as a well-kept place. I think of the mail carrier as a well-kept place. I think of the mail carrier as a well-kept place.

THE POSTAL SERVICE is going to raise the price of stamps, and you will have to pay more money. But you will have to pay more money. But you will have to pay more money.

and so it must keep compensating the public by boosting prices. The Postal Service is long distance telephone service and many carriers of parcels and mail. It is Federal Express, United Parcel Service, and others who have taken over the cream of the delivery service from the Postal Service. It is a very expensive out-of-the-way place for the Service to handle.

THE POSTAL SERVICE has lost most of its appeal as a business to those who are carriers. Probably because of the slow years many packages arrived looking like they had been kicked up and down a road, held by the entire North American mail carrier League.

WHEN I see a mail carrier sometimes I think of the P.O. as a well-kept place. I think of the mail carrier as a well-kept place. I think of the mail carrier as a well-kept place. I think of the mail carrier as a well-kept place.

THE POSTAL SERVICE is going to raise the price of stamps, and you will have to pay more money. But you will have to pay more money. But you will have to pay more money.

THE POSTAL SERVICE got its two cents worth and now I just got mine.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. Gaham: Why do you try to frighten people into believing in God by talking about hell and eternal punishment? Everyone knows there is no proof of life after death. — J.M.

DEAR J.M.: I do not accept your idea that there is no proof of life after death. Also, remember that fear can be healthy. Fear of sickness can make us take proper health precautions, for example. And in the same way fear of the realities of death and hell should lead us to see the only solution to these fears — Jesus Christ.

I wonder if you have ever asked yourself this question: How could we know definitely and finally that there is life after death? The only way we could know for certain would be if someone clearly died and then came back to life again to tell us. If this were to happen, then we would know beyond doubt that there is life after death. There would be no logical reason to believe otherwise.

And that is just what has happened in Jesus Christ. There are several reasons why the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead is important, and one of them is that it proves beyond doubt that there is life beyond the grave.

We know there is life after death because Jesus Christ came back from the dead and taught us about heaven and hell. "By his power God raised the Lord from the dead, and he will raise us also" (1 Corinthians 6:14).

Your letter suggests that you have never personally accepted Jesus Christ into your life, and you therefore have no reason to hope for the future. But I must warn you, as solemnly and lovingly as I can, that some day you will die and stand before God.

It would be tragic if you were to turn your back on God's way of salvation — faith in Jesus Christ — and go into eternity separated from the presence of God forever. My prayer is that you will humble yourself and discover the joy and hope which is the privilege of every believer in Christ.

Urine calcium portends kidney stones

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I was told a few weeks ago that I have kidney stones in my right kidney. They were caused by consuming too much calcium. I am 21 years old and a female. I would like to know exactly what kidney stones are and how they form. I am in almost constant pain. Is there a cure for the stones, or will I eventually pass them? —D.S.

Kidney stones form much the same way sludge forms in water that has a very high mineral content — hard water. If you fill a glass with very hard water and let it stand awhile, you will notice sediment collecting on the bottom of the glass. The reason for this is that as the water evaporates there is less of it to dissolve minerals, which begin to aggregate as tiny crystals (stones). That's approximately how kidney stones form. A majority of people with kidney stones have too much calcium in their urine. Crystals settle out and form the stone. We cannot explain why these people have more calcium in their urine to begin with. Their bodies may absorb more calcium from food than other people's do. They may have an inherited tendency to do this.

The pain arises as the crystals aggregate and block the flow of urine from the kidney. They may lodge in the outflow tract. The stone is either passed or is removed with a grasping instrument.

You should drink lots of water. That keeps calcium dissolved. Thiazide diuretics block calcium from getting into the urine and so are useful in treatment. You well may have to watch the amount of calcium you get from food if you are absorbing too much of it.

I have discussed only one kind of kidney stone, calcium, and the most common cause of it. There are other kinds of stones — uric acid, cystine, struvite — and there are other causes of formation. Too much vitamin D or a parathyroid gland disorder may contribute. Both can cause overabsorption of calcium.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My sister, now 64, has been told she has Mitchell's disease. Her feet burn so badly that she has to use ice packs or soak her feet in ice water to get relief. She is told she has to learn to live with this. I wish you could print something about Mitchell's disease. —I.C.

Dr. Weir Mitchell's name is used to describe this illness, otherwise known as erythromelalgia. It is a rare condition and its cause is not known. The feet burn, tingle, turn red and often itch. The lower legs may do the same. It is caused by a rise in room temperature. That is why many with it have learned to cope by wearing sandals without socks and keeping their feet uncovered at night. Others have reported some success with use of aspirin or methysergide.

This rare condition can be differentiated from other causes (nerve-related, for example) or burning feet by showing that the symptoms arise from an elevated environment temperature. You can, in fact, actually produce the symptoms by purposely exposing the legs to an elevated temperature.

Helpful Hints For Fire Prevention Week

DEAR READERS: It's Fire Prevention Week again, and I have had so many requests to repeat my column on fire prevention that it has become a tradition. So here it is, with updated figures:

Last year, 7,800 Americans died, and nearly 130,000 civilians, plus 100,000 firemen, were seriously injured in 3,000,000 fires.

The total fire loss last year in property alone was $5 1/2 billion in the U.S.

The chief causes of fires, in order of the toll taken, were:

1. Smoking
2. Electrical wiring
3. Heating and cooking equipment
4. Children playing with matches
5. Open flames and sparks
6. Flammable liquids
7. Suspected arson
8. Chimneys and flues
9. Lightning
10. Spontaneous ignition

Now for some tips that could save your life: Be sure your cigarette is out. Matches, too. Never leave matches and lighters within the reach of children.

Don't run cords under rugs or over radiators where they may get damaged. Replace a cord if it is frayed.

Never leave small children or invalids alone in the house — not even for a few minutes.

Have your wiring and electrical installations done by a professional.

Store oily rags and paints in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.

Never use flammable liquids for dry-cleaning indoors.

Never smoke in bed.

Have a fire drill in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire. Designate a specific meeting place outside so you will all know who's outside of the house.

Remember: Fire extinguishers put out 97 percent of all fires on which they were used, and most large fires start as small fires. So, invest in a compact, easy-to-use fire extinguisher. Keep it handy in your kitchen, or be prudent and buy one for your cottage, car, boat and the back bedroom.

Buy and install a smoke detector and then properly maintain it. It must be cleaned often with the vacuum cleaner hose so that it is dust-free. It is estimated that 6,000 lives could have been saved last year had a smoke detector been in service when the fire happened.

Now, in case of fire:

If you suspect fire, alert the rest of the household. But first feel the top of the door. If it's hot, don't open it. Escape through the window.

If you can't open the window, break it with a chair. Cover the rough edges with a blanket, sit on the window ledge with one leg hanging outside and one inside, and wait for help.

The phone number of your fire department should be taped on every telephone. If it isn't, don't fumble around trying to find it. Get out and call from a neighbor's house.

If you live in an apartment building, use the stairway. Don't take a chance on the elevator. If it falls, you're trapped!

Once out, stay out. No treasure is worth risking your life.

It took less than three minutes to read this column. Was it worth it? I hope so.

Public speaking program offered

According to the Book of Lists, the number one fear of people is NOT inflation, the crime rate, nuclear warfare, or old age — it is the fear of speaking before a group.

A unique program is now being offered in Big Spring to those who want and need to become more comfortable and adapt at public speaking. To help sharpen speaking and thinking skills, Avery and Associates will be offering the opportunity to enroll in a weekly session designed to meet the needs of people who want to or must appear before others.

The classes begin the week of Oct. 12.

There will be six different meeting times to include both day and night classes. For those who get work-release time during the day or who do not work in a structured setting, there will be daytime classes at 3 p.m. Mondays, 9 a.m. Tuesdays, and 1 p.m. Wednesdays. Night classes will be offered Monday nights, Tuesday nights and Wednesday nights.

To make the most of public speaking opportunities, this program has been designed with some of the aspects of a Dale Carnegie course and the Toastmasters Club. It is built around a weekly meeting with participants learning by doing and by watching others perform, said Johnnie Lou Avery.

The full program consists of eight weeks and costs $40 which includes all class materials. Among the areas to be covered are self confidence and attitude, what to say and how to say it, audience rapport, creative speaking and thinking, using visuals, vocabulary and various other speaking tips.

Businesses are urged to send their promising secretarial, mid-management and executive employees, said Mrs. Avery. There is no age limit but class size will be limited to no more than 15 people.

This practical approach to speaking before the public is offered to housewives, students, secretaries, managers, executives, or all those wishing to improve their communication of the spoken word.

All those interested are urged to call Avery and Associates, 263-1451, for more information or to reserve space in the limited places. Deadline for signing up for the classes is Oct. 9.

Medical Auxiliary distributes books

A new book entitled "Marijuana — Time for a Closer Look" is being distributed to young people in area schools by the Permian Basin Medical Auxiliary.

The book, by Crutis L. Janeczek, a senior at Ohio State University School of Medicine, was written with the junior high and high school student in mind. The medical facts included, however, are interesting to persons of any age, according to Doreen Zilberg, local Auxiliary president. Cartoons by Ann L. Schreck, medical illustrator, are featured throughout the book.

Copies of the book are being placed in the Howard County Library, Howard College Library, Goliad Middle School, Runnels Junior High School, and Big Spring High School.

Immaculate Heart of Mary School, St. Mary's Episcopal School and several other junior and senior high schools in outlying communities will also receive copies.

Support of the Texan's War on Drugs is a major project of the Texas Medical Association Auxiliary, of which the local Permian Basin Medical Auxiliary is a member. The group is comprised of spouses of local physicians.

"We want people to know that physician's wives care," said Mrs. Zilberg.

As part of the drug education effort, the Permian Basin Medical Auxiliary will sponsor a public drug abuse symposium in December in cooperation with the Howard County committee of Texan's War on Drugs.

Do you have these 'get rich' personality traits?

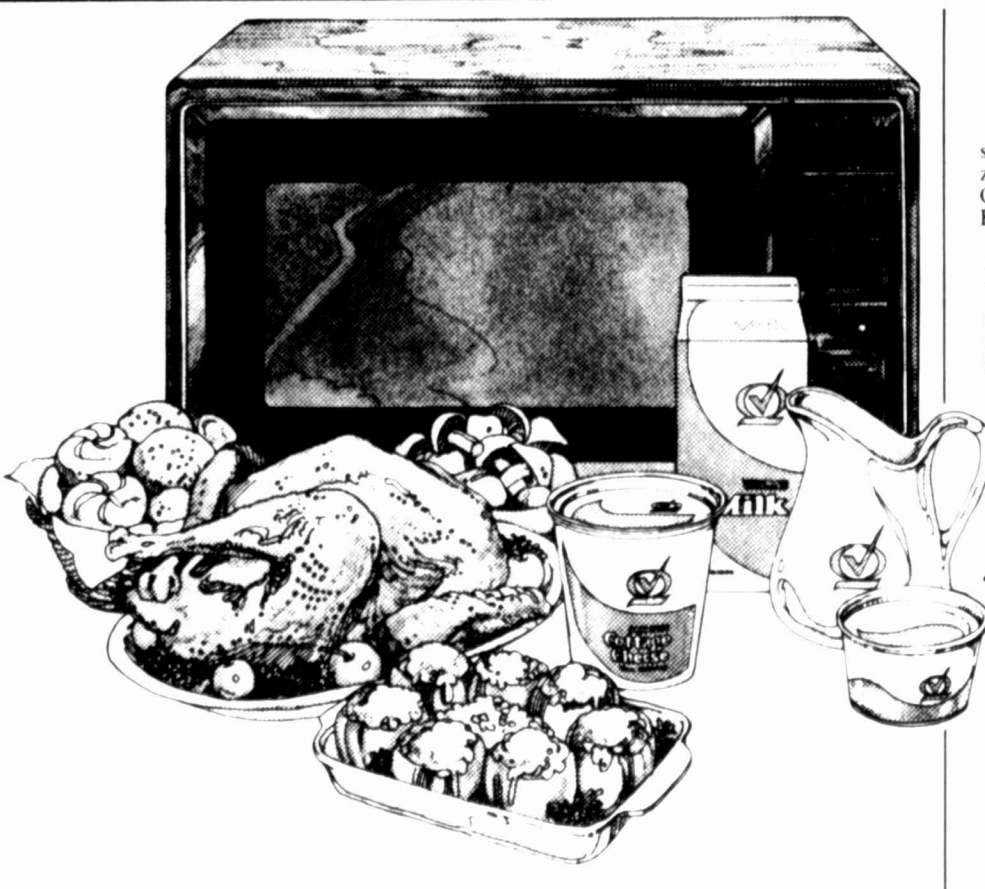

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Recent psychological studies have shown that people who get rich — through their own efforts — usually have certain consistent personality traits. To predict whether you're likely to make a fortune, look over this list of "get-rich" traits, from a recent issue of "Seventeen."

Get-rich people have a sense of their own ability and, sometimes, of their own superiority. At times, this comes across as plain arrogance. More often, though, it's a quiet self-confidence that develops into sureness, decisiveness, and determination. Dr. John Feldhusen, the director of Purdue University's Gifted Education Resource Institute, has found that get-rich people believe they can control their lives. "Things don't just happen to them. They make things happen."

Get-rich people freely admit they want to get rich and work hard to do it. (Those who don't get rich tend to say things like "I wouldn't put my job above my social life," and "I wouldn't take a job that interfered with my evenings and weekends.") Dr. Feldhusen views "get-rich" people as highly committed. "They have the energy necessary to pursue their goals relentlessly."

Get-rich people constantly set very high goals and almost always meet them. According to Dr. Feldhusen, get-rich people are often big risk-takers or gamblers with their careers, and they thrive on challenges.

Imprisoned guerrillas protesting You're apt to be more sexy in daytime Future dim for artificial light

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Jailed Irish nationalist guerrillas still refused to wear prison uniforms today, continuing a protest demanding special status despite the collapse of the IRA hunger strike.

Sinn Fein, the outlawed Irish Republican Army's political wing, said the "blanket protest" by 400 Maze Prison inmates would continue until the British government granted the demands that spawned the death fast.

The blanket protest, which began in March 1976, got its name because the prisoners wrap themselves in blankets instead of prison clothes.

The hunger strikers called off their fast Saturday "for the moment" after the families of five of the six men refusing food said they would authorize medical intervention to save their lives. But the jailed guerrillas said they would continue pressing their demands "by whatever means we believe necessary and expedient. We rule nothing out."

They are demanding to be allowed to wear their own clothes, do no prison work, associate freely with each other, get more mail and visitors and get back all parole time lost due to their protest activities.

As 10 prisoners starved themselves to death during the seven-month fast, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher firmly rejected the demands. The government claimed to grant them would legitimize the IRA's guerrilla war to end British rule in the Protestant-majority province and reunite it with the mainly Roman Catholic Irish Republic after 60 years of partition.

But with the end of the hunger strike, James Prior, the Cabinet minister for Northern Ireland, hurried to Belfast to discuss plans limited prison reforms for all prisoners. The government had said it would make changes after the hunger strike ended.

Prior refused to say what changes would be made or when they would be implemented.

Space Hall of Fame inducts 7

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — The pilot who broke the sound barrier in 1947 told a crowd at the International Space Hall of Fame that the U.S. Air Force deserves the credit for his success.

"They taught me to be a fighter, test and research pilot," said Charles Yeager, of Cedar Ridge, Calif. He said, however, that to be famous, one doesn't have to be good — only survive.

Yeager, one of seven inducted Saturday into the space hall, said he would "love to fly a (space) shuttle, but I had my fun in other aircraft."

Yeager broke the sound barrier aboard the Bell X-1 in 1947 at a level of flight speed of more than 670 mph at Edwards Air Base, Calif. He eventually achieved a speed of more than 1,000 miles mph and an altitude of more than 70,000 feet in the X-1.

He retired from the Air Force in 1975 as a brigadier general.

Others inducted into the Hall of Fame in ceremonies Saturday who were not present to receive their awards were astronauts Alan Shepard, who retired as a rear admiral in the U.S. Navy and lives in Deer Park, Texas; Scott Carpenter, who retired from the U.S. Navy as a commander and lives in Canoga Park, Calif.; Gordon Cooper, who retired as a U.S. Air Force colonel and lives in Glendale, Calif.; and Walter Schirra, who retired as a U.S. Navy captain and now lives in Inglewood, Calif.

The late Virgil Grissom, America's second man into space, was inducted posthumously. He flew the Mercury capsule "Liberty Bell 7" for a flight of 15 minutes and 37 seconds. He later served aboard the Gemini III mission and was killed during a Jan. 27, 1967, ground fire in the Apollo 1 program.

Andreas Anton Frederik Schumacher, an 18th century Danish rocket pioneer, also was inducted into the Hall of Fame, and his award was accepted by Maj. Eric Lyngbye of the Royal Danish Air Force.

SAN ANTONIO Texas (AP) — If you have an office with a window, chances are you're a more comfortable and productive worker, according to a professor at the University of Texas Health Science Center.

You're also apt to be more sexy in the daytime than at night, the researcher contends.

"After living for billions of years with natural light, we have developed artificial light sources and have assumed there are no adverse affects," says Dr. R.J. Reiter of the anatomy department.

But now lighting is being evaluated from a variety of directions ranging from scientists to commercial lighting companies, he says.

Studies are showing, Reiter says, that if natural light is introduced into a work area, attitudes and efficiency of employees are greatly improved.

He predicts that in the future more "open" buildings will be constructed, meaning they will have reflective glass walls. Offices in the core of heart of the building may have walls only eight feet high with three feet above the walls left open for natural light to filter in from the outside.

Reiter's real expertise deals with the effects of light on the pineal gland, a tiny gland in the center of the brain which controls sexual activity.

He said recently that babies are more likely to be conceived during the daytime than at night.

Briefly, the reason for this is that the pineal gland is less active during the day or in light than it is at night in the dark. The pineal gland emits melatonin, a hormone which suppresses sexual activity. As a result, sexual desire is less at night than during the day, the researcher said.

Reiter has gained stature as a world-wide expert in this field and recently was interviewed for a story to appear in Reader's Digest on light and reproductive biology. He is the author of six books on light, the pineal gland and reproduction.

In his research, Reiter also has gained considerable knowledge about the various types of lighting on other activities.

The scientist explains that the pineal gland responds to different spectrums and intensities of light by altering hormones. This may well influence the physical and psychological responses of people.

More simply, people respond in different ways to different lights, just as they react in different ways to different colors and to music. Red, for example, Reiter says, is known to produce an antagonistic attitude, while pastel colors have a relaxing effect on people.

"Background music in grocery stores," the scientist notes, "improves purchasing considerably."

A bevy of studies is under way to find out how light interacts with behavior, the professor says.

One study involves the use of different spectrums of light to alter the psychological attitudes of the mentally ill.

As a result of such studies, Reiter foresees the day when different light bulbs will be used for different areas of the office or home, depending upon the activity involved.

"Places of work will have specific light bulbs, whereas recreational places like gyms will have entirely different lights," Reiter predicts.

Still different lights may be used in other places, such as hospitals to speed the recovery of patients, he adds.

In homes, Reiter says, lights may vary from room to room, depending on the effect desired. In the dining room, for example, lighting will be low and subdued to produce a relaxed atmosphere and aid digestion.

Reiter also envisions that prisoners will be exposed to different lights, as well as colors, to alter their behavior.

Regarding work conditions, Reiter explains that fluorescent lights now used in many offices were introduced for their visual effects.

Dallas upset by Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — To Roy Green, the double-duty wide receiver and defensive back of the St. Louis Cardinals, the plight of the Dallas Cowboys was clear.

"I was thinking in the final four minutes they're going to know how we felt," said Green after watching Neil O'Donoghue's 37-yard field goal saddle Dallas with a 20-17 upset loss Sunday. "We knew that if we went out and executed, we could do it."

St. Louis, in addition to knocking the Cowboys from the ranks of the National Football League's unbeaten, managed to extract revenge.

"Every time we played them, we'd be in the game," said defensive end Curtis Greer in reference to the seven straight setbacks St. Louis had suffered against Dallas. "There were times we just came up short. It was really a moment of relief."

The Cards, usually on the wrong side of the field during the closing minutes against their National Conference East rival, this time gained the upper hand.

A punt by the Cowboys' Danny White sailed out of bounds at the St. Louis 7 with 4½ minutes left only to have a 15-yard penalty rescue the Cards from a hole. Two pass completions by Jim Hart, three runs by Otis Anderson and two more dashes by Wayne Morris then ate up most of the remaining time before O'Donoghue appeared.

"I felt pretty cool," said O'Donoghue, a 6-foot-6 kicker whose field goal with 23 seconds remaining came one play after Anderson rambled 9 yards to the Dallas 20 on third down.

"It was one of those situations where you feel you're going to get the opportunity," said O'Donoghue. "You've got to make the most of it. I just went out there and hit it through."

Ahead of O'Donoghue's winning kick, it had been an afternoon of give and take for St. Louis in quest of its first victory over the Cowboys since 1977.

James Jones fumbled the opening kickoff, enabling Morris of the Cards to sprint 9 yards to the end zone on the game's first play. But Dallas, after ignited by Tony Dorsett's 36-yard run, tied 7-7 on a 7-yard Dorsett gallop. O'Donoghue then booted a 19-yard field goal late in the first quarter that held up for a lead until Rafael Septien's 26-yarder manufactured a 10-10 halftime stalemate.

Randy Love's recovery of Stump Mitchell's fumbled punt return later preceded Hart's 30-yard touchdown pass to Green. Dallas retaliated by rolling 78 yards but needed an exchange of interceptions to set up White's 11-yard scoring peg to Dorsett.

"I'd say we played to our ability," said Coach Jim Hanifan following only the second St. Louis victory in five games.

Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, meanwhile, decried Dallas' lack of execution on third downs but denied his team had been ready to be beaten.

"You're not ever ripe. We had plenty of opportunities. We just didn't do it," said Landry. "Our defense played pretty well. Offensively, it was a hit-and-miss day."

During the winning drive, the 36-year-old Hart whipped a 20-yard pass to Doug Marsh, then found Green for a 19-yard gain after Anderson ran twice for a first down at the Cowboys' 48.

"It's always like that when you play St. Louis. It goes down to the last two minutes," said Charlie Waters, the all-pro Dallas safety. "Hart was confident he could beat us. He's a cagy veteran who performs."

Earlier, Hart moved to No. 9 on the NFL's all-time list with his 197th career touchdown pass on the heave to Green early in the third quarter.

Hanifan, the Cards' coach, was asked if St. Louis had felt it must win the contest in order to keep a season already blemished by three defeats from collapse.

"I know in my case my pressure comes from myself," he said. "I think the guys feel the same way. We're really capable of being a good football team. Obviously you're going to have big plays, and we got the big plays today."

Broncos surprise Oakland

By The Associated Press

When the Denver Broncos scored 70 points in two consecutive victories, it appeared that they were counting more on their wide-open offense than their traditionally tough defense.

But the defenders aren't yet ready to give up the mantle they acquired in 1977 when they went to the Super Bowl known as the Orange Crush.

"We're playing now like we did in '77, but maybe even better because the offense has been doing so well," said Steve Foley, the free safety who made the most important of the Broncos' four fumble recoveries Sunday as they blanketed the Oakland Raiders 17-0.

The Raiders were shut out for the second game in a row after not being held scoreless since 1966. The defending Super Bowl champions were held to 168 yards in total offense.

In other National Football League games, St. Louis upset Dallas 20-19, the New York Jets tied the unbeaten Miami Dolphins 28-28, Buffalo tripped Baltimore 23-17, Minnesota edged Chicago 24-21, Green Bay whipped the New York Giants 27-14, New England defeated Kansas City 33-17, Houston clipped Cincinnati 17-10, Pittsburgh beat New Orleans 20-6, Los Angeles clubbed Cleveland 27-16, Tampa Bay bombed Detroit 28-10 and San Diego tackled Seattle 24-10.

The Philadelphia Eagles, the only unbeaten team left besides Miami, play host to the Atlanta Falcons tonight.

The victory gave Denver a 4-1 record, including two triumphs over Oakland. The Raiders, who were shut out 16-0 by Detroit last week, dropped to 2-3.

Cardinals 20, Cowboys 17

Dallas fell from the unbeaten ranks as lanky Neil O'Donoghue kicked a 37-yard field goal with 23 seconds left.

The kick by the 6-foot-6 O'Donoghue climaxed a 63-yard St. Louis drive in the game's closing minutes, highlighted by Jim Hart passes of 20 yards to Doug Marsh and 19 yards to Roy Green, who earlier caught a 30-yard touchdown pass.

Tony Dorsett scored two touchdowns for the Cowboys.

Dolphins 28, Jets 28

Miami stayed unbeaten, but had to hold off a determined Jets' effort led by Richard Todd.

Todd threw four touchdown passes, including a 36-yarder to wide receiver Bobby Jones with 1:09 remaining in regulation, and completed 28 of 39 tosses for 310 yards.

Pat Leahy missed a 48-yard field goal attempt on the final play of overtime for the Jets.

Nat Moore caught two touchdowns from Miami quarterback Don Strock, who replaced injured starter David Woodley in the first period.

Chargers 24, Seahawks 10

With top running backs Chuck Muncie and James Brooks both injured, quarterback Dan Fouts went to the air even more than usual, but not with less success.

Fouts tossed three touchdown passes and broke his club record for completions with 30 in 41 attempts.

He hit touchdown tosses of 12 and 11 yards to Charlie Joiner and a 9-yarder to tight end Kellen Winslow, finishing with 302 yards passing, none longer than 15 yards.

Oilers 17, Bengals 10

Houston returned to its Earl Campbell-oriented offense after its more wide-open attack failed to jell, and he responded with 182 yards on an iron-horse 37 carries against Cincinnati.

But the Oilers still needed a 95-yard kickoff return by Carl Roaches to beat the Bengals.

Quarterback Ken Stabler threw only six passes for Houston, completing one for 3 yards to Campbell.

Campbell aids Oiler victory

HOUSTON (AP) — Carl Roaches left the Astrodome Sunday night to celebrate his wedding anniversary, while the rest of the Oilers cheered another event worth remembering — the return of Earl Campbell.

Roaches presented his wife with a 96-yard kickoff return for a touchdown in the third quarter that rallied the Oilers to a 17-10 victory over Cincinnati.

Campbell, who had not gained 100 yards since the season opener against Los Angeles, presented 44,350 fans with 182 yards rushing on 37 carries as the Oilers settled back into the I-formation that launched Campbell to three NFL rushing titles.

"I feel like the offensive line knew what they had to do and I was going to have a chance to run the ball like I like," Campbell said.

"I did get a little tired. I asked Kenny (Stabler) to throw a pass. He did and then came back to me three straight times."

Campbell's tireless efforts accounted for all but nine of Houston's 191-yard rushing total and his 37 carries were on short of his team record.

While Campbell was Houston's bread and butter, Roaches was its dessert with his exciting kickoff and punt returns.

Roaches was stopped short of a touchdown with an 88-yard kickoff return against Cleveland this season and he didn't intend for that to happen again.

"Today was my anniversary and I felt like I could break it at anytime against anyone. It was kind of a special 'hello' to my wife. I hope she enjoyed it," he said.

In addition to his kickoff return, Roaches put the Oilers into good field position throughout the game with four punt returns for 93 yards.

There was no doubt from the beginning that Campbell and only Campbell would run at the Bengals. Cincinnati knew it and still couldn't stop him.

After Cincinnati took a 3-0 lead on Jim Breech's 45-yard field goal, the Oilers came back in the second quarter with a 51-yard touchdown drive.

Campbell gained 49 yards in the drive and scored on a two-yard run, trotting into the end zone for a 7-3 halftime lead.

Cincinnati's Ken Anderson filled the air with 52 passes and put the Bengals ahead 10-7 in the third quarter on a 13-yard touchdown pass to tight end Dan Ross, who split two Oiler defenders at the goal line.

But on the ensuing kickoff, Roaches broke to his right, skittered down the sidelines and escaped the grasp of Mike Fuller, his final obstacle, at the goal line. The Oilers

Houston prepares to do battle with Los Angeles in NL West

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When the National League West divisional series begins Tuesday night in Houston, the Astros face the unenviable task of defeating both Fernando Valenzuela and Jerry Reuss, the Los Angeles Dodgers' ace left-handers.

For if Houston fails to sweep the first two games in the Astrodome, they would have to win at least two of three in Dodger Stadium to advance to the NL championship series. And the Astros have won but two of their last 13 games in Los Angeles, including Sunday's regular season-ending 5-3 triumph.

"I'd say we have to win them both," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon of the two games in the Astrodome. "It's tough playing somewhere where you don't play well, especially when you have three games there."

The Astros' last win in Los Angeles before Sunday was their single-game playoff for the NL West title in 1980.

"If they're concerned, that's good for us," said Los Angeles first baseman Steve Garvey.

However, Rick Monday intimated the Dodgers' past record of success at home against the Astros means little.

"We have to play fundamental, sound baseball, we have to play the best baseball we can possibly play," he said. "They've got good pitching, and good pitching is supposed to stop good hitting. But we've also got good pitching."

Dave Lopes, who will return to the Los Angeles starting lineup Tuesday night after missing seven games because of injuries to his back and right hand, says he likes his club's chances.

"I wish we had Ron Cey, but they've got injuries as well," said Lopes. "But I feel good about our club, everything has picked up the last three days. Kenny Landreaux is hitting again, and so are Dusty Baker and Steve Garvey.

"Sure, I'd like to come out of their place 2-0, but we've got to get at least a split."

Nolan Ryan, 115, will oppose Valenzuela, 13-7, on Tuesday night and Joe Niekro, 9-9, will pitch against Reuss, 10-4, on Wednesday afternoon. Don Sutton would have undoubtedly started the second game of the playoffs, but he is out for the season because of the fractured right kneecap he suffered when hit by a Reuss pitch last Friday night.

The Dodgers took a 3-0 lead in the first inning Sunday on a bases-empty home run by Landreaux, his seventh, and Steve Yeager's two-run single. But Houston tied the score with a run in the third on Dave Roberts' sacrifice fly. Denny Walling's infield out that produced a run in the fifth and Alan Knicely's second homer in the eighth.

The Astros broke the tie in the ninth when Gary Woods singled home Dickie Thon, who had led off the inning with a double. Roberts later doubled home Scott Loucks with an insurance run.

Dave Smith, 5-3, who pitched the final two innings and struck out four of the six batters he faced, earned the win. Dave Goltz, 2-7, who gave up Knicely's homer that deprived starter Burt Hooton of a possible 12th win and allowed both ninth-inning runs, took the loss. It was Goltz' seventh straight setback.

Both clubs left immediately after the game for Houston. The Dodgers were scheduled to work out at noon today in the Astrodome; the Astros were not scheduled to work out prior to Tuesday night.

Rogers caps incredible season

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — "Unbelievable," Bill Rogers said over and over as he shook his head, digesting his sudden death victory over a frustrated Ben Crenshaw for his first Texas Open golf title.

"It's been a heck of a year for me," the Texarkana, Texas, native said after blazing to a 7-under-par 63 Sunday and capturing the $45,000 first prize.

The blond Texan sank a 3-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole to force the playoff with Crenshaw after both golfers finished at 14-under-par 266, then curled home a 12-footer on the first hole of sudden death.

Rogers, in his sixth year on the Tournament Players Association tour, became the only golfer to win four events this season — the Heritage Classic, World Series of Golf, British Open and Texas Open — and ran his career earnings to $950,310.

In addition, he won the Sunbury Open in Japan last month and goes to England for next week's World Match Play tournament with three straight wins under his belt.

Rogers also took satisfaction in winning the first of three playoffs he has been involved in, but said a slight edge was taken off the victory because he defeated Crenshaw, one of his best friends.

"I'm excited about winning, but a little something is taken away because I was playing against a good friend. Maybe next time, he'll beat me," the former University of Houston golfer said.

"It was a putt I thought I could make when I got over it," Rogers said of the winning stroke.

Crenshaw, who had to roll in a crucial 18-footer on the final hole to keep Rogers from winning outright, fell one foot short with a 35-footer on the playoff hole. He collected $27,000 for second place.

The playoff loss was the fifth for Crenshaw against no wins and ended a frustrating year.

"I'm not worth a damn in playoffs. I hate them," Crenshaw said later. "I've gone backwards this year — didn't have a good year. I cannot put my finger on what was wrong."

Jim Colbert and Craig Stadler, who shared the lead after the second and third rounds, managed even par 70s over the Oak Hills Country Club course Sunday and finished in a three-way tie with Bob Murphy, two strokes behind the co-leaders, for third place money of $13,000 apiece.

Crenshaw has on more than $1 million and nine championships beginning with the 1973 Texas Open. He lost a playoff to John Cook in the 1981 Bing Crosby, but has not won since the 1980 Anheuser-Busch Classic.

Bobby Wadkins, Tom Kite and Don Levin tied for sixth at 10-under par 270.

Defending champion Lee Trevino, who was in contention as the final round began, came in with a 72 and finished in a four-way tie for 18th.

Drug traffic breeding 'new Mafia'

MIAMI (AP) — Florida's palm trees are trembling to a new kind of tropical disturbance — the sounds of machine-gun blasts that are, some investigators say, the violent birth throes of a "new Mafia."

For the past three years, police reports have read like those from the 1920s mob wars of New York and Chicago. Items from the 1981 police blotter:

—A gunman in an orderly's smock slips into the private hospital room of a Colombian named Jorge Marrero, puts a bullet through Marrero's head, finishing a job he had botched 24 hours earlier.

—A 7-year-old boy is kidnapped as collateral for a $700,000 cocaine debt.

—A young man in jeans places a plastic trash bag on a bank teller's counter. It contains $1.2 million in small bills.

—Joseph Testa opens the door of his Cadillac and steps in. When he sits, a radio signal ignites a bomb. He dies without naming his killer.

This is today's metropolitan Miami, where the murder rate has quintupled in five years — rising from 104 homicides in 1976 to 580 last year. The murder rate per capita in Miami was the highest in the nation last year. This year, barely three-quarters spent, has already seen 445 slayings.

The violence rose steeply this year with the influx of Cuban and Haitian refugees, but experts are most alarmed about the growing violence surrounding the drug underworld.

"We are seeing the birth of a new Mafia," said Arthur Nehrass, a former FBI organized crime specialist out of New York and Chicago who is now commander of the metropolitan Miami police Organized Crime Bureau.

"What we are seeing now is New York City in 1910-1920 when we had Sicilians preying on Italian storekeepers, when Lucky Luciano and Salvatore Maranzano were unknown young men forming what would become the American Cosa Nostra.

"The Colombians are progressing along the same lines. They are very close in structure right now to the original Sicilian Mafia," Nehrass said. "I hadn't thought of them as a Mafia-type organization until about 10 months ago. We sort of felt something growing."

Nehrass, 50, has more than 20 years' experience working against the mob. He made his first organized crime arrest in Chicago in 1960 and spent 15 years in New York City, where he supervised an FBI unit that monitored the families of Carlo Gambino and Joseph Gallo.

It was in New York that he first encountered the Colombians. The Colombians then and now had a worldwide reputation as specialists in counterfeiting. They'd come into New York with the best of counterfeit paper — currency, cashier checks, stocks. These are the same organizations which have gone into narcotics.

"They are built along Sicilian Mafia lines. It is an organization of blood relatives... They are every bit as secretive as the Mafia, but not as disciplined. When a Cosa Nostra soldier wants to kill, he must get permission. The Colombian just picks up a machine gun and shoots."

Nehrass' police unit recently cracked one of the Colombians' more bizarre ventures — the kidnapping of 7-year-old Andrew Martinez from the home of his wealthy uncle. A Colombian crime family demanded a $700,000 ransom as compensation for a cocaine debt the boy's mother owed.

The boy was rescued nine days later. Two kidnapers were killed, two wounded and 17 arrested. Nehrass says the kidnaping was masterminded in Colombia by the crime family's leader, Umberto Londono. Extradition papers have been filed.

"To eliminate witnesses," said Nehrass, "they were going to kill the boy and whomever delivered the ransom, in this case, the boy's grandmother. But they weren't going to kill the uncle because he had the ability to pay."

Fort Worth cartoonist dies

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Harold Pettit Maples, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram's cartoonist for 27 years, died in a local hospital Sunday afternoon. He was 55.

Maples was admitted to the hospital Sept. 7 after suffering a heart attack. He produced more than 7,000 cartoons for the morning paper. Several are on exhibit at the Lyndon Baines Johnson Library in Austin and others have been included in national anthologies of editorial cartoons. Many of Maples' original drawings hang in the offices of national, state and local politicians.

Dollar surges against franc

PARIS (AP) — French officials and importers welcomed the European Common Market's decision to lower the French franc 8.5 percent against the Dutch guilder and the German mark. But the optimism was not reflected in financial markets, where the dollar appreciated almost 3 percent today against the franc.

The U.S. currency was trading at around 5.6400 francs in Paris this morning, compared to 5.4945 at Friday's market close.

The re-alignment of currencies within the European Monetary System was decided in Brussels Sunday during a meeting of the 10-nation Common Market's council of finance ministers. It devalued the franc and the Italian lira by 3 percent and hiked the mark and the Dutch guilder 5.5 percent.

Italian Prime Minister Giovanni Spadolini said Italy had acceded to the devaluation to please France.

A senior French Finance Ministry official said the realignment was "definitely a good thing."

Report 63 leftists killed today in Iran

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Government firing squads executed 129 leftist opponents of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Muslim fundamentalist regime in 24 hours, Iranian officials and newspapers reported today.

The latest volley of executions followed the election Friday of Hojatoleslam Ali Khamenei as Iran's third elected president since the downfall of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's monarchy in 1979.

A spokesman for Tehran's Evin Prison told The Associated Press in Beirut that 61 leftists were executed in Evin's courtyards and two were killed elsewhere in the country at dawn today on charges of street violence and armed insurgency against the Islamic republic.

The spokesman, who declined to be identified in the telephone interview, said all 63 of the dead belonged to the Islamic-Marxist Mujahedeen Khalq, the leading underground opposition group, and its junior partner, Peykar, a Marxist-Leninist organization.

The latest executions brought to 1,195 the total of secular leftist activists put to death since they mounted a campaign of assassinations and bombings against the government following Khomeini's firing of moderate ex-President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr on June 22, according to official tabulations and news media announcements.
