ROOSEVELT MUST WATCH HIS STEP

BEING SON OF AN ILLUSTRIOUS FATHER SOMETIMES EMBARRASSING TO YOUNG MAN.

ALWAYS UNDER OBSERVATION

Took Another Step in Following His Father in Public Life When He Took the Oath as Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington. — Theodore Roosevelt has taken the oath of office as assistant secretary of the navy. In part, so far as public service is concerned, young Roosevelt has followed in the steps of his father. He was a member of the New York assembly, as his father was, and now he is assistant secretary of the navy, as his father was.

Colonel Roosevelt perhaps is not entirely personally comfortable. He bears his father's name, and he looks like his father, and perhaps naturally the people look to him to make good, as his father did. This young man probably cannot help feeling that in a sense he is under constant watch. He is a natural young man, but nevertheless, probably unconsciously, he is constantly on his guard, lest his feet slip. It must be irksome to know that everybody is taking such an interest in you, not always because it is you, but simply because you are the son of your father. Under such circumstances how can a young man with proper ambitions always feel entirely at ease?

Theodore Roosevelt is an entirely human young man. He has all the liking which his father had for out-door life and for the public service. He is willing to work and no Democrat, progressive Republican, conservative Republican, or reactionary Republican ever has entered the mind of the young man's just for the strenuous life. So far, so good for young Roosevelt, but still he must feel, although of course he never would admit it, for he is modest, that the eye of questioning is always upon him, and that the ear of query always is open to his speech.

Wounded in Battle.

In the great war Theodore Roosevelt was wounded in battle; his brother Archibald was wounded three times; his brother Quentin was killed, while his brother Kermit, although in battle after battle, escaped unharmed, the only one of the family of four boys who was not a mark for a German bullet. In being wounded in battle, young Theodore Roosevelt went his father one better so far as record is concerned, although, if one close so to speak of a scratch, the elder colonel was wounded in the Spanish war when a bullet scraped the skin away from one side of his neck.

When Theodore Roosevelt, the elder, was assistant secretary of the navy, he had unusual luck. It was one time during the absence of the secretary of the navy. It became necessary while the secretary was absent for the assistant secretary to act in a high matter. He acted promptly and effectively. It was due to him that Devey had coal and ammunition enough to go to Manila and engage in the battle in the bay, and it also was due to Roosevelt that Devey was where he was in the East and ready to move his ships against those of the Spaniards.

Criticism and some resentment were expressed in the Navy department because of Roosevelt's quick and early action. Everybody said that he should have communicated with Secretary Long, who was somewhere over in Massachusetts, at the moment when action was necessary. Criticism and resentment passed, however, perforce when the outcome of the battle in Manila bay was known.

May Not Get Same Chance.

It is not likely that the present assistant secretary of the navy, no matter what happens, ever will be in a position where it will be necessary quickly to assume the functions of his chief. Secretary Denby is a sailor, or at any rate has been a sailor, and therefore it can be taken for granted that he will sense every situation in advance much more accurately than any civilian secretary might be able to do. In the elder Roosevelt's day the secretary of the navy was a man who knew nothing of the naval service.

Prior to the Republican convention of last June, Theodore Roosevelt was a strong supporter of Leonard Wood, who was one of his father's most intimate friends and comrades. When the convention was over young Roose-

IDLE COURTS BIG WASTE OF MONEY SAYS GOVERNOR

Neff Would Abolish Some District Tribunals; Vetoes Bill For School For Blind.

(Associated Press)

AUSTIN, March 29.—Governor Neff today declared that a considerable number of district courts of Texas should be abolished. He said that more money was wasted by idle court than in any other department of the government.

Governor Neff vetoed the McNeal senate bill appropriating $200,000 for a state school for the blind. He pointed out that our state possessed a "splendidly" equipped school for the blind, saying that if additional facilities are needed, the present plant should be enlarged.

SEVEN BODIES TAKEN FROM ONE SHAFT AT KATLEEN COAL MINE

DOWELL, Ill., March 29.—The bodies of seven men entombed in the Katleen Mine when fire broke out there February 23 were uncovered today.

As the bodies were not burned, death probably was caused by smoke, it was pointed out by rescue workers.

FROST NIPS FRUIT AND VEGETABLE CROP OF N. TEXAS

DALLAS, March 29.—The Dallas Weather Bureau reports considerable damage to fruit and vegetables in North and West Texas last night on account of frost.

Full extent of the damage cannot be determined for several days. A freeze was reported in North and West Texas extending as far south as Taylor and Palestine.

The bureau announced also that the freeze covered the fruit belt of Arkansas and Louisiana.

MEETING OF CHAIRMEN SWEETWATER ORGANIZATIONS TO FURTHER EXPOSITION

Mrs. J. B. Murphy, general chairman of the hostesses' committee, desires to meet the committee of chairmen of all the organizations Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock at the rest room of the court house.

At that meeting Mrs. Murphy and her assistant, Mrs. W. W. Beall, will outline the plans of duties for the chairmen and their respective committees.

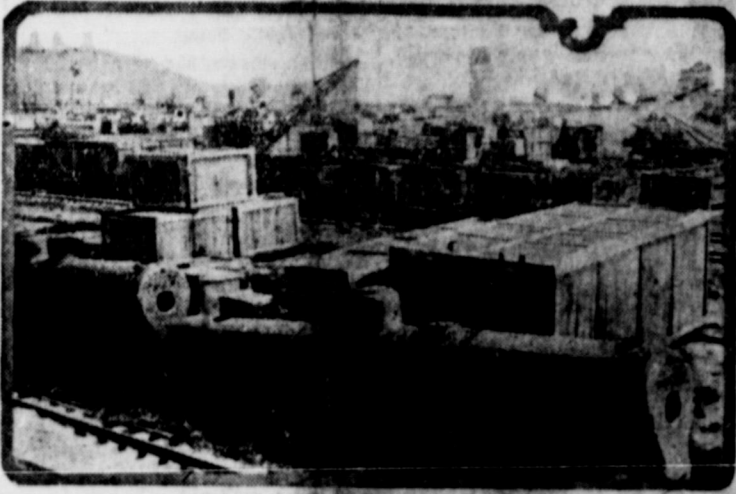

It is the desire of the general chairman of the organization to bring man, her assistant and the chairman of the organizations to bring about the heartiest and happiest cooperation of all the women's organizations of the city. Members of the various organizations who aren't on the publisher's lists are cordially invited to assist the committees in making the Exposition one of the most delightful social affairs ever conducted in Sweetwater. It will be an open reception every day and every member of every society or club or organization will be regarded a committee unto themselves to assist in making the whole affair a decided success socially.

veit promised loyal support for the nominee.

During the campaign of last summer young Roosevelt spoke throughout the West and in some places in the East in behalf of the Harding-Coolidge cause.

There is not an extraordinary number of opportunities in the office of assistant secretary of the navy for a man to distinguish himself, but there is every opportunity for a man to do good work, although the light thereof may not shine forth appreciably beyond the precincts of the Navy department. There is an interest in Washington among men, irrespective of party, in the career of young Roosevelt. It is a perfectly natural thing, for is he not the son of his father?

Russian Mystery in Seattle Yards

Here is more Russian mystery. Since Kerensky's fall valuable railway machinery consigned by American manufacturers to the Russian government, has been lying in Seattle railway yards. No one appears to know its ownership. It was originally intended for export to Siberia. A congressional investigation now in progress may solve the mystery. If Kerensky should get on top again, as now seems quite possible, doubtless the mystery will be quickly solved. The goods are valuable, though they have suffered from frost.

SWATTERS AND SNYDER WILL HAVE 3 GAME SERIES

Rumor Says Possibly Two of Last Year's Favorites Will Return To Fold.

Word was received late last night from Manager Smith stating that after today's game with Post City they will journey over to Snyder for one game Wednesday.

Both the Swatters and the Snyder aggregation will then board the rail for Sweetwater where they will "lock horns" on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Other news of interest to local fans was to the effect that pink slips have been handed first baseman Alford and infielder Dixon. The local squad will not be reduced any by the release of the two players mentioned as duty this morning. Pitcher Davenport will be given a trial upon the recommendation of "Dare" Baldridge, erstwhile Swatter of 1920 and now earning his "ham and" from the San Antonio club of the Texas League. We have only meager information concerning Davenport's baseball record, other than the fact that he played in amateur circles around Santone, is a right hander and seems perfectly at home when juggling the old agate. The other new arrival was catcher Blunt recently released to Sweetwater by the Dallas club. Local fans will recall having seen Blunt in action when Galloway's Martens played here on the 23rd Blunt, in company with Bartel, left this morning for Post to join the Swatters.

Outfielder Claude Harris, who on account of a lame ankle has been allowed to stick his dogs under Dad's table for the past few days, returned this morning with the cheering news that the said ankle is all to the merry now and that he is rarin' to go. The games to be played here between Snyder and the locals ought to furnish a real baseball treat for Sweetwater boosters for the advance news indicates Snyder has imported ball players from all over the state and come with blood in their eyes, prepared to give "Smitty" the surprise of his young life.

Old Dame Rumor has been working overtime around baseball quarters recently and the latest is that one, or possibly two of last year's favorites may return to win further fame on the local lot. The Powers that Be, however, refuse to confirm the report so fandom will be kept on the anxious seat until some official announcement is forthcoming. Prominent among the Swatters that were promoted to faster company last season are Sturdy who is vally trying to beat out two old heads at Little Rock, Chink Taylor, outfielding at Fort Worth; Brother Gressett who in company with Baldridge and little Whitney are displaying their wares in the shadows of the Alamo and Joe Burkhead, sold to Dallas but at last report had retired from baseball. JAP SHIPBUILDERS CUT WAGES OF SEAMEN

TOKIO, March 29.—The Japan Shipbuilders Union, comprising practically all the leading concerns, has decided to cut by approximately one-half the special allowances for seamen during their voyages. SWATTERS WIN GAME AT SLATON 24 TO 6

Special to the Reporter: SLATON, Mar. 29.—Swatting their way to victory yesterday with a score standing at 24 to 6, the Sweetwater team displayed their value as heavy hitters. This afternoon's game will be at Post City, Wednesday, at Snyder.

Two base hits for Mason, Gressett and Neal; Johnson got a couple of two-basers. Graham got one stolen base, Johnson two, Mason one, Ershaw and Williams one each.

ing from Packettown Tazzer, who hit over 400 in Walter Marr's loop last year, is setting the woods afire with his brilliant fielding and hitting and causing Jakey Atz to dream of other worlds to conquer. Of the others we have heard little or nothing this spring. A sweet lot of baseball timber, however, any or all of whom would be welcomed back with wide open arms.

"Big Noise," Fleeharty, acting manager during Skipper Smith's absence, hustled the stay-at-homes out yesterday for a work out. Dickson Bartel, Hank Baldridge, Nixon and Davenport braved the wintry winds. They hugged the right field fence and between each shiver and shake would utter a silent prayer for real baseball weather. Two-Gun Bill Trammell spent the afternoon at home entertaining Mr. Sloan, the friend of all tossers in the spring. Big "Fins" is one of the hardest toiling "young sters" in camp, working on the theory that to get the desired results one has to hit the old nail on the head. That's the proper spirit and if strictly adhered to will win pennants in anybody's league. Daily workouts will continue regardless of weather. Come early and bring your ear muffs.

GREEK TROOPS TAKE ESKI SHEHR AND BIG AMOUNT WAR LOOT

(Associated Press)

LONDON, March 29.—Greek troops today occupied the city of Eski Shehr, capturing many prisoners and a large quantity of war material, says a Central News Despatch from Athens. This city is one of the most important objectives of the Greek offensive in Asia Minor, being located at the junction of the Baghdad railway and roads running southeast toward Konia.

CHICAGO, March 29.—Ten persons were killed today and several more injured in a factory explosion. Half hour after the explosion five bodies had been taken from the ruins.

Four injured were rushed to the hospital at once and many others were known to be injured.

Cause of the explosion has not been determined, although city authorities are preparing to make an investigation.

ROAD VIOLATED WAGE AWARDS IN 1920, IS CLAIM

(Associated Press)

CHICAGO, March 29.—The Railroad Labor Board today held that the St. Louis & Southwestern Railway probably violated certain sections last July of the wage award on complaint brought by the United States Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way employees and railway shop laborers.

The board has set March 31 for the hearings requested by the unions and railways who will have representatives present.

One allegation of the complaint was that this railroad had established a ten-hour day for unskilled labor and paying a pro-rata scale for overtime instead of paying time and a half.

TO ASK FOR NEW CABINET PLACE

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION AND PUBLIC WELFARE IS PLANNED BY HARDING.

WOMAN WILL GET POSITION

Activities Planned for Dr. Sawyer Have Close Connection With Plan for New Department—Doctor's Army Appointment is Cause of Gossip.

By EDWARD B. CLARK. Washington.—Members of the next congress seem convinced that President Harding will submit a plea for legislation to create a new branch of the government service to be known as the department of education and public welfare with a woman at its head who is to have a place in the cabinet.

There is some opposition developing to the plan and the chances are that it will be voted on the floors of the two houses of congress if the plan for the new department is submitted. There seems to be a feeling in both political parties, however, that if the President makes a specific recommendation which of course amounts to a request for the legislation, the party majority in congress will heed his words and pass the legislation necessary to make the new place in the cabinet.

It has been known for a long time that some of the elements in the population were opposed to the creation of this new branch of government. Some of the churches have feared that under the new dispensation education in church schools might be interfered with and that, in effect, teaching might be wholly secularized.

Recently, however, some of the leading churchmen have said that their churches cannot be put in a position of opposition to anything which looks like the educational welfare of the country, and so it is possible that a part of the opposition has passed from the field.

All Will Be Heard. Representatives and senators have said that everybody is to be given a chance to be heard by the committees when the hearings on the measure creating the department are held. It is promised that the legislation will not be passed hurriedly. If the President shall ask that the department be created, the measure for its creation when first formulated for committee consideration will be open to suggestions for amendment, and it is probable that a good many amendments will be brought forward.

The recent appointment of Dr. C. E. Sawyer of Marion, O., as a brigadier general in the reserve corps of the United States army has a close connection with the plan for a department of education and public welfare. General Sawyer is to make a survey of the field of things related to the public health and the public welfare, and under the direction of the President is to make a report thereon. This report, in part at any rate, is likely to be used as a basis for the new legislation. It also will contain many recommendations based on Dr. Sawyer's study, concerning the activities which should be undertaken by the various bureaus which will be brought within the new department. Service for the maintenance of the health of the public is closely connected with much of the work which the government is now doing in rather a scattered form.

If the new department is created, the woman's bureau and the children's bureau of the Department of Labor; the bureau of education and the Department of the Interior, and the war risk insurance bureau and the public health services of the Treasury department, will be transferred to the jurisdiction of the new cabinet officer. It is also expected that the federal board for vocational education and all other governmental agencies dealing with soldier relief will be concentrated in one bureau of the newly created department.

Gossip About Sawyer. There has been a good deal of gossip in Washington over the commissioning of Dr. Charles E. Sawyer of Marion, O., as a brigadier general in the reserve corps of the United States army. It should be said that Dr. Sawyer's appointment will not in any way interfere with the promotion of other officers in the medical corps of the regular army.

One bit of gossip about the matter has its "medical connection." General Sawyer is a homeopathist and most of the medical officers of the army are of the school of allopathy. In fact, it might be said that the basis of practice in the regular army is allopathic. It is not to be supposed that there will be any trouble, but everybody knows that there is a feeling between the two schools and that it never has been entirely kept under cover.

Near Scott Circle in Washington there is a statue of Christian Friedrich Samuel Hahneman, the founder of homeopathy. Back of the figure of the doctor is a multi-colored stone which seems to throw a nimbus of light about the head. The curious have asked, "Why the halo?" The answer of the faithful has been, "Time will tell."

So in a way it may be said that time has told and homeopathy seemingly has gained a high place in the medical corps of the United States.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

SANTA'S XMAS.

"Now, Boy of the North," said Santa Claus to his dog, "Now we will see the fun!"

So Santa Claus took out his telescope, which he takes out every Christmas day, and looked through it.

"I suppose," he said, "that many people might think that I would at once take a rest from all the hard work I've been doing; but, no, Santa Claus waits a little while.

He wants to see the children first. Of course he cannot see them as they open their stockings because he is not back home in time to see all of that and he would rather be busy up to the last minute than see what happens every minute.

"But when he does get back home he likes to see the children and their smiles, doesn't he, Boy of the North?" Boy of the North wagged his tail and looked at Santa out of his great eyes.

"Yes, Boy of the North, your old master must see his children smile!" And Boy of the North wagged his tail again to let Santa Claus know that he understood.

Boy of the North had sat by Santa Claus when he had worked during the days and nights before Christmas and when he had been getting ready for Christmas long before the Christmas season, too.

He had napped while Santa had worked and he had put his nose in Santa's lap when Santa grew tired and when Boy of the North knew he wanted his dog's love.

Boy of the North was so glad Santa was back again and that Santa would rest for a little while and he would see Santa growing younger and younger, or rather so much younger each year that he never grew any older.

It all happened in this way: First of all, as soon as Santa Claus came back from his Christmas travels he got out his magic telescope and looked through it. He saw into rooms in the houses and he only looked into rooms where there were children.

He knew where there were children, too, for hadn't he visited every one of them?

And he always told Boy of the North just what he was seeing and Boy of the North sat by Santa's side and wagged his tail at the right time and gave little barks of joy at the right time, too.

"Ah, Boy of the North," said Santa, "there is Annette. Do you know Annette? You've heard me speak of her. She has golden hair, you know; such lovely golden hair, and her voice is just like music!

"She is smiling over my presents. Oh, Boy of the North, that does make me happy!

"And there is Lucy! She has soft, golden curls, and she is screaming with delight over my presents!

"And I see Phyllis, too. Her hair is dark and it is cut off quite short, and she has a low voice and a very sweet smile. She is pleased, too, at what old Santa has brought her!

"And there is Janet, with very, very dark hair. She is pleased—anyone could tell that! And I'm so glad that Janet is pleased!

"Oh! Boy of the North, their smiles are wonderful, wonderful. How glad I am that I worked hard and that I made them such good toys.

And the girls are hugging their dolls and the boys are anxious to go right out and try their skates. Everything seems to have been just right.

"Boy of the North, old Santa Claus is happy!" Yes, each year as Santa took his sleep and his rest after Christmas was all, all over.

Boy of the North had seen that he had grown younger, or rather he had never grown older. And the reason that he had always kept at the same age was because in his sleep came the smiles and the voices of children who were happy and who loved old Santa Claus, and because his dreams were real he never grew older. For the smiles of children keep Santa Claus from growing any older.

So, while Boy of the North knew that his master became tired each year he knew that it was Christmas time and children that kept his master from growing older, and Boy of the North, too, loved Christmas!

Not Natural.

"England will not stand for pussy-foot methods."

"Could we expect it from such a dog nation?"

Genuine sorrow pervaded the homes of our people when it was learned this morning that Mrs. Sabe Cole had passed away at the family home last night at eleven o'clock.

INDIAN FIGHTERS MEET AT DINNER

GENERALS N. A. MILES, KING AND OTHERS AT ANNUAL FEAST OF PLAINS WARRIORS.

REVIEW THE OLD CAMPAIGNS

Tales of Valor and Hardships Told by Men Who Conquered the Red Men Even While They Felt Pity for Them.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington. — The inauguration drew to Washington many men who had a secondary purpose in coming here, and this secondary purpose was not office seeking. There has just been held here the annual dinner of the Order of the Indian Wars, and it certainly was a fine lot of old warriors of the plains who sat about the board and lived over the days when they were on the trail of the Kiowas, Comanches, Arapahoes, Apaches, Sioux and Nez Perce.

Among those who met at this dinner were Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Gen. Charles King, Gen. William P. Hall, Gen. Anson Mills, Gen. Charles Frederic Humphrey and Gen. Wilds P. Richardson, and a lot of other officers younger in years, but none of whom by any means could be considered a youth.

General King of Milwaukee, who is known all over the country as a novelist and who began his "fiction founded on fact" writing when he was Captain King, told the story of the Sioux campaign of 1875-76. Today, in the overshadowing deeds of the great war, the deeds and hardships of the men who fought on the plains are apt to be forgotten. It can be said, however, with perfect truth that no American soldier of the war which has just ended went through worse experiences than those of their elder comrades who, in broiling summer and freezing winter, hungry and half-clad, hung on the trail of the elusive red warriors.

Sympathy for the Indian.

Before going any further, let it be said that all through the stories that were told at the Indian Wars dinner ran the notes of sympathy for the Indians whom these men had fought. It can be said that in this latter day these soldiers of the Indian wars who had been true to their duty, distasteful as it was, still feel resentment that it was necessary for them to engage in a killing warfare with the Indians of the West.

General King told of a command of troops which, although it had suffered at the hands of the Cheyennes, had such sympathy and admiration for the foe that the soldiers begged the Indians to surrender and not to continue the battle which meant virtually their extermination.

The stories of those days on the Big Horn the Belle Fourches and the Rosebud, and on the plains of western Kansas, of Colorado and the Panhandle of Texas, to say nothing of the mountains of Arizona, may sound like ancient history, but they were as vivid in recital as if they were the affairs of yesterday. Tales of toilsome marches, with the troops subsisting upon horsemeat, with no bread or coffee or tobacco to sustain them or to cheer them, were the same stories that were told in the East constantly from thirty to fifty years ago, and yet brought no proper appreciation of the suffering and the high endeavor of the men who were carrying out the mandate of their government.

General Miles, the greatest of the Indian fighters who still is living, told of his pursuit of Sitting Bull, and told also of his successful attempt to make bands of raiding Sioux surrender and give over the attacks on the settlements. Miles fought the Indians and won their respect, but he knew also how to talk to them when possible, and to bring their feet into the peace path.

Their Confidence in Miles.

One story he told of an interview with the orator, Little Chief, of a tribe which he was trying to induce to return to the reservation so that warrior lives might not be lost in what must be an unequal battle. Little Chief said to the general, in a picturesque Indian way which cannot be reproduced here, that once he had been in Washington to interview the Great Father and that the Great Father had promised that the white man should not go into the Black Hills country, for that was set aside for the red man forever. "I was lied to then," said the chief, "but you have never lied to me and I believe that if we go back to the reservation the fears of my men that there they are to be killed will be found false."

Little Chief led his men back to the reservation. It should be said in this connection that presidents of the United States making promises to the Indians intended that they should be kept, but that adventurous and gold-seeking white men insisted on penetrating the Indian reservations and precipitating trouble. When whites were killed it became necessary, from the War department's viewpoint, to send forth an army, and promises which were made in good faith were broken.

Representative Charles Russell Davis of St. Peter, Minn., was present at the dinner. He was taken by his grandparents into Minnesota in the early '50s, and was reared in the heart of Siouxland. He was a witness of the uprising of 1862 which led to the killings at New Ulm and other places.

GREAT ASSET TO TEXAS IN NEW UNIVERSITY AT STATE CAPITAL

Very Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, C. S. C., the Provincial in the United States of the Congregation of the Holy Cross, the order in charge of St. Edward's College, was recently in Austin, when he officially approved the plans of making the institution a College in fact as well as in name, and authorized the solicitation of funds for new buildings and equipment to begin at once.

Accordingly President Schumacher announces the appointment of a Committee consisting of Rev. Joseph McGuire, C. S. C., and Rev. Michael Quinlan, C. S. C., from the college faculty, who with Leonard J. Schneider and John F. Butler, prominent business men, the Provincial and President Schumacher, will have charge of the expansion plans. Paul C. Gerhart, of Dallas, an experienced campaign manager, has been appointed Campaign Director, and has already begun work.

"Catholic Educational Institutions of actual college standard are limited in number in the Southwest," said President Schumacher. "This will account, in great measure, for the fact that, up to the present time, Catholics have not been getting a college education in proportion to their numbers. 'A Greater St. Edward's' a real college or university, will remedy this, and become an added asset to the state.

Such an institution should attract young men from a wide radius of Texas. They will come to Austin to enjoy our mild climate, to live under our state laws, to make friends in Texas who will be an asset to them in after life, and finally, after graduating from 'A Greater St. Edward's' to go into business in the State, and assist in the moral, intellectual and material development of the Southwest."

St. Edward's already has much in the way of property and buildings to make a University, including a campus, farm and dairy consisting of 700 acres, ideally located and elevated.

A GREATER ST. EDWARD'S PLANNED TO BE NOTRE DAME OF SOUTHWEST

Rev. Dr. Matthew Schumacher, C. S. C., President of St. Edward's College, at Austin, Texas, is one of the leading educators in the Catholic Church in America. For some time he has been assembling some of the "best minds" at St. Edward's, having even then in contemplation the raising of the standard of that institution from a preparatory school to a college, or university. Hence, the faculty is all ready for the college.

Now the change has actually been decided upon, and a campaign for funds begun to make expectations realizations.

President Schumacher was for twelve years Director of Studies in the University of Notre Dame, and was instrumental in the reorganization of the courses of study of that institution which brought it up to its high standard and wide reputation. For years Dr. Schumacher was president of the Collegiate section of the Catholic Educational Association.

The studies at "A Greater St. Edward's" will be under the direction of the former Dean of the English Department of Notre Dame, while the former head of the Chemistry Department there will have charge of the sciences. These men are already at St. Edward's.

Other members of the faculty of St. Edward's are Notre Dame University graduates and members of the Congregation of the Holy Cross, a community known with a world-wide reputation for successful educational work. All of these men make teaching their life work and are there on a basis of service, not of financial reward; so the character of the instruction imparted is unsurpassed.

MCFARLIN TO FIGHT $100,000 HEART BALM SUIT; ANNOUNCED

WASHINGTON, March 29.—In a formal statement Senator Ralph H. Cameron, of Arizona, characterized as "sheer, unadulterated, plain blackmail" a suit filed against him by Edward R. McFarlin, of New York, asking $100,000 damages for alienation of Mrs. McFarlin's affections.

Papers in the case, Senator Cameron's statement said, were first filed in 1916 and he said no effort at service on him was made until last week.

"Now that I have become a United States senator," said Mr. Cameron in his statement, "those behind this ridiculous suit have evidently decided to attack me in the hope of injuring me by giving widespread publicity to the absurd charges made by them."

"I am prepared to fight this suit with both fists fearlessly and in the open."

The statement said Senator Cameron had met Mrs. McFarlin once in the observation car of a train between Chicago and San Francisco in 1912 before her marriage, had met her twice since and met her husband once.

SCHOOLS ASKED TO OPEN COOPERATIVE MARKETING COURSE

(Associated Press)

CHICAGO, March 29.—One of the chief difficulties to be met in the cooperative marketing of farm products will be the lack of trained men to handle the marketing machinery effectively, according to President J. R. Howard of the American Farm Bureau Federation. Mr. Howard has written to the presidents of the various state universities and agricultural colleges suggesting that their institutions would render a great and appreciated service to agriculture by establishing courses in co-operative marketing. The need is so urgent that it is hoped both short and long courses in this subject will be forthwith provided, President Howard said.

AIRPLANES TO BE USED BY OMAHA POLICE DEPT.

(Associated Press) OMAHA, March 28.—Airplanes are to be called on for regular use by the Omaha police department.

While the city is not yet prepared to add the machines to its police equipment, arrangements have been made for the use of planes of a private company, according to Police Chief Eberstein.

It was necessary to deputize the two pilots to give them police power in the case of arrests. Although they returned to Omaha empty handed the Chief said he believed that the use of planes for police work would add greatly to its efficiency, especially in cases of emergency, where great speed was required.

THAT ALONE

Governor Neff has let it be known that the special session of the legislature may be called by June 1, to consider important matters passed up by the 37th Legislature.

There are those who still leave the impression that Mr. Neff and the Legislature are separated by a chasm which is calculated to hamper work of that body, but is without foundation, according to facts in the case.

Governor Neff has shown that his heart is in the work, that he cannot be swayed by political influences or designing lobbyists against the best interests of the people. His actions speak well for an economic administration; a just one. His platform is being followed. The people elected him on that platform and the people should stand back of him in its observance.

Nothing speaks so well for a governor than the steps taken by Mr. Neff in demanding law enforcement, the stamping out of the crime wave, if he does nothing more, that alone should commend him to every citizen who values his life, his home and his happiness.

AUTO CAMP PARK NEEDED

That a few tourists are worth more to a city than a bale of cotton—and are easier to "pick," has never been disputed, and it behooves a city to provide well for auto tourists; meaning, among other things, the establishment of auto camp parks.

Sweetwater is located on the Barkhead Highway, on the main routes to Colorado and other summer resorts, therefore is peculiarly benefitted by tourist travel.

Sweetwater has in the City Lake Park a site for an auto camp, close, convenient, easily arranged as to bathing facilities, and there are two buildings already available for camps in case of bad weather if they were put into proper repair.

Autoists make a special effort to camp at points where camp parks are provided. In bad weather they seek protected camps to harbor them until roads are again passable, in the mean time spending money in the town while waiting.

Here is a good opportunity to add to the income of business establishments from outside sources. Improve the park and let the tourists pay the bill indirectly.

ABOUT DIVIDING TEXAS

The West Texas Press meets in Amarillo next month. That is not unusual, but it is rumored around that those who have tried everything except the Monroe Doctrine to gain favorable legislation for West Texas have under advisement the division of this state into two.

The Quannah Tribune-Chief has a little to say on this delicate subject, as follows:

"There is a rumor that the subject of dividing Texas will come up at the Amarillo press meeting next month, and that an organization to that effect is likely to be formed at that time."

"We have always believed such division unavoidable in the future, and more than twenty years ago wrote to the effect, the interests of East and West being too dissimilar for the two sections to work together in harmony. The time not being ripe for such division we have been content with drawing out arguments from ardent advocates of such division, so as to keep the issue alive as much as possible. West Texas now has sufficient wealth and population to go it

"Hamon Had It Coming To Him" Says One Prominent English Writer

NEW YORK, March 29.—"Clara Smith Hamon did not face trial for murdering Jake Hamon, millionaire oil man and politician," said Gilbert K. Chesterton, English author, today, in giving his impression of the famous case exclusively to the United Press.

"A juryman told me," explained Chesterton, "that what they had to decide was, 'should Hamon have gone?' and the answer being affirmative, 'was Clara the best instrumentality?'"

Chesterton writes crime stories. He said he read no other kind of literature with the exception of Bernard Shaw, "whose stories are crimes."

"The lure of a fine plot drew me alone, and we heartily favor separation from the rest of Texas, believing that a more practical form of government will result."

E. G. Alexander, druggist of Brownfield, accompanied Chas. B. Graham, Star-Telegram representative to Sweetwater yesterday on business.

ABOUT APPROPRIATIONS

During his stay in Waco Governor Pat M. Neff said his mind had not yet been made up regarding some of the large appropriations made during the recent session of the legislature.

These include $1,250,000 for the purchase of 135 acres of land adjoining the present campus of the University of Texas, $4,000,000 for rural school aid, and $3,000,000 for an increase in school teachers' salaries.

Governor Neff said to the press representative that he had not determined whether he would approve the minimum wage bill passed by the legislators at their last regular session. He has until April 1 to veto or approve the acts of the last legislature.

That he has made no definite plans as to whether he will go on the stump to advocate before the people some of the measures submitted by him to the legislature, but which the law makers failed to pass, was announced by the governor. He said that he probably would make some speech between now and the time the next legislature is to be convened in regular session, which will not be before June 1.

All Texas tax payers believe in the strictest economy, in as low a tax rate as possible without crippling state institutions or the public schools and are certain to commend the governor for the use of the pruning knife wherever there is a call for pruning to be done.

There has been a terrific slump in the prices of all farm products; there are thousands idle; wage scales are being reduced and the people expect a tax reduction. These are the facts and why shouldn't they be told—Ft. Worth Record.

The "real summer weather" has fallen into the disagreeable habit of holding off until it can do the most damage to the fall theatrical openings.

It is applying the principle of "like cures like" to use the movies in advertising for farm hands. At the movies is where ex-farm hands are likely to be.

France also has a shortage of servants. However, by putting the superfluities in storage even the work of a twentieth century home can be made pleasant.

That Nova Scotia farmer who wants to go over Niagara falls in a barrel might first try to see if he could put his hand in the corn shredder and get away with it.

Reading reports from all sorts of summer resorts, one is assisted to the conclusion that water, either salted or unsalted, has lost none of its drowning qualities.

THE MULE DEER.

"Sometimes," said the Mule Deer, "I am called Mule Deer, and sometimes I am called the Black-Tailed Deer."

"In fact, here in the zoo I am known mostly as a Mule Deer, whereas, in the Rocky mountains, where I used to live, I was almost always called Black-Tailed Deer."

"But in the zoo they are more correct than they were when they spoke of me in the Rocky mountains, for you would think to hear that other name of mine that I had a black tail, and the strangest thing about me, considering that name, is that my tail isn't black."

"At least that isn't the strangest thing about me, but it is strange that I was ever given such a name. I suppose they got me confused with some of my cousins who have black tails."

"The people in the zoo call me a Mule Deer because I have enormous ears like a mule or donkey. So their name is well chosen, as you will see if you look at my ears."

"Sometimes members of the family have been called Jumping Deer, and that isn't such a bad name, as we often do run and jump.

"We're very enormous. I weigh something like 300 pounds, I've been told. Our antlers are large and beautiful, more so than those of the White-Tailed Deer."

"In fact they often look to people like the antlers of an elk, which I consider a great compliment."

"Our antlers or horns are different from those of the White-Tailed family, because they have three spikes on each of their antlers, and we have two Y-shaped prongs on each of our antlers."

"We care for ravines and mountains, and we love wild life, though here in the zoo we are living happily."

"And now that I've talked so much, what have you to say for yourself, Axis Deer?" Though one of us may have the most important part in a story, it's not fair to take up the whole story unless we've got a great, great deal to say for ourselves.

"You're such a beautiful deer that you should talk and tell folks why you're so beautiful, and you should tell how nice you are. You are used to the tropics, and you get along all right in the zoo, though when it is cold the keeper has you in a nice warm deer house, where there is comfortable heat."

"You ask me to tell my story," said the Axis Deer, "but I have so little to tell. True, they say I am beautiful. My coat is handsome. It is spotted and decorated with light spots, and my coat is beautiful and soft and rich in color."

"My horns, too, are large and graceful, and I am graceful myself, they say."

"But I cannot tell why I am beautiful, except that my family have always been that way."

"And I always was told to follow the example of my elders, and it came quite naturally for me to do so."

"Therefore I cannot get any praise for that."

"But, beauty, beauty, it isn't for beauty that I care! I love it here where I can walk out in the big yard when the early spring days come, and I can see all the flowers waking up in the big park, and then the birds begin to sing and the leaves whisper and tell me secrets."

"Oh, then I don't think of my beauty at all, but only that I am happy."

"I do think of the beauty that is around me. And somehow it seems to me that no matter how beautiful a creature is there is always one thing at least one can see that is more beautiful."

"And no matter how clever a person is, there is always so much that they don't know!"

"It keeps us all from being conceited. We can't think ourselves so very fine, for there are other things finer and better always."

"And while I'm beautiful, I know there are other things and other creatures which are beautiful, too, so when folks admire me and I tell them that I'm glad they do, I want to tell them, too, that we're fond of being admired, but that we admire other beautiful sights, too."

ORIENT CAPITALISTS IN ANGELO TO PLAN MEXICAN EXTENSION

Special to Reporter

SAN ANGELO, March 29.—In making a complete survey of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railway lines, in operation and proposed, in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas and in Mexico, two English investors and a New York banker are in San Angelo today. Upon their report will largely be determined whether or not the Orient will be completed into Mexico, at Del Rio and at Presidio, affording a Kansas City-to-Mexico City connection and a new short route to Topolobampo, on the Pacific coast.

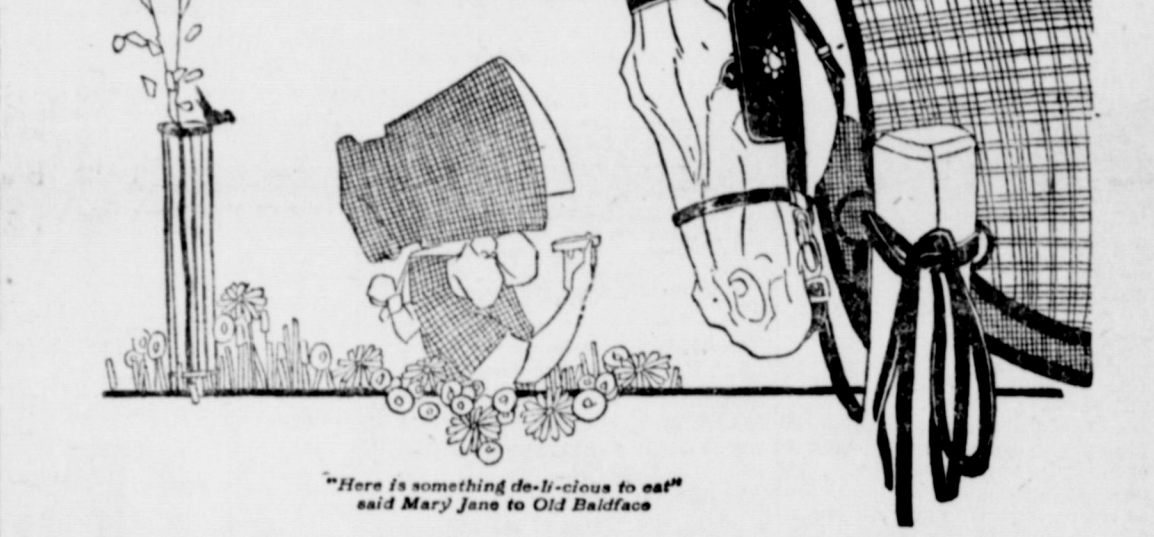

Frederick Hurdle of London, an Orient director, wealthy capitalist and a representative of English bond holders; W. S. Poole of London, a heavy investor in both stock and notes of the Orient and London representative of the road, and Charles H. Jones, New York banker, will comprise the party. The inspection began Friday at Wichita, Kan., the present northern terminus of the system.

The officials were guests here at a luncheon tendered by the board of city development and the Kiwanis club. In the event the visitors decide to make a trip by auto to Del Rio, along the 107-mile grade already established, committees will come here from Del Rio, Sonora, Eldorado and Christoval to accompany them south. The Londoners and the New York banker held important conferences late in the week in Kansas City, from which place reports have stated that the visitors represent interests that are now financially able to complete the Orient, in the event that conditions and prospects are favorable. Consequently, more importance is attached to the inspection than to any similar trip made over the Orient in ten years.

THE MERRY JOURNEYS OF MARY JANE

Mary Jane and Old Baldface the Horse

ONE day the doctor came to see Mary Jane's mother and tied Old Baldface, his horse, up to the hitching post in front of the house. Mary Jane and Baldface were old friends, because he was with the doctor the night the stork brought Mary Jane in the big wicker basket. So Old Baldy said:

"Have you anything good to eat left over from lunch?" And Mary said, "We had some wonderful, delicious corn bread for lunch—you wait here and I'll get you a piece."

Mary went into the house and spread a great big piece of corn bread with Mary Jane Syrup, for nothing in the world ever tasted better to Old Baldy than corn bread and Mary Jane Syrup. She brought a piece for herself too, and so they had lunch together and sat there and visited until the doctor came out. Baldy told the doctor that Mary Jane was the best friend he had anyway, because nobody every gave him anything so delicious in all his life as that spread of corn bread with Mary Jane Syrup.

The doctor told Baldy that everybody ought to know about this, and it made people healthy, strong and ruddy—whether they were little girls and boys like Mary Jane and her brother Bobby, or whether they were grownups, like Mary Jane's mamma and papa and Grandma Susan.

INNOVATION IS CAUSE OF GOSSIP

PRESENCE OF VICE PRESIDENT AT CABINET MEETINGS IS BEING FREELY DISCUSSED.

IS NOT PARTISAN MATTER

Influential Leaders in Congress Do Not Want Coolidge to Share With Cabinet Officers Official Intimacy With President.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—There are some men in Washington, who perhaps know what they would like to have happen, who think that the lease of life of Vice President Coolidge as an outside member of the cabinet is likely to be a short one. In other words, there are some officials in legislative life who do not like the idea of having the vice president sit in at the cabinet meetings and who think that thereby some of their own prestige is to be lost.

So far as one who has been in this town a good many years can remember, there never has been an innovation of any kind which was entirely well received by all the legislative gentlemen who sit on Capitol Hill, and whose desire is to guard their prerogatives in any case.

This thing is in no sense a partisan matter. It is simply a human matter. The Democrats and Republicans alike have shown jealousy of extra powers newly conferred on government officials and occasionally have taken it out in carping at what they call new-fangled notions, generally predicting dire happenings unless reform speedily should be worked.

When President Harding, while yet a candidate for election, said that he thought the vice president ought to have a more important place in the councils of the administration, there seemingly was general public, or at any rate, party approval of the suggestion. There was no Republican legislator at that time who cared to raise his voice in protest, or even in mild criticism of the candidate's suggestion, for no party man with a desire for success of the ticket cares in the middle of a campaign to say anything direct or indirect in contradiction of an expressed thought of the standard bearer.

Leaders Find Fault.

Today things are a little different. The Republicans succeeded in carrying the election. Now with a big majority in either house of congress and with four years of the presidency to run, some few leaders are beginning to speak out a bit. Apparently the influential ones do not want Mr. Coolidge to share with the cabinet officers the official intimacy with the President of the United States which attendance at the meetings of the cabinet necessarily involves.

Why is this? The reason is easy. The Republican leaders in house and senate always have maintained they should be the first ones to receive from the President of the United States any intimation of a new legislative policy, or of the revival of an old one. They do not like to feel that any man except a cabinet officer, even though he be vice president of the United States, shall get advance information or that the leaders should be expected to receive their information from anybody but the President.

In President's Hands.

It must be said that it is likely that the outcroppings of criticism, and possibly jealousy, which have manifested themselves here recently in this matter of the vice presidential cabinet duties soon will disappear from the scene. Legislators, even leading ones, frequently like other people, are given to second thoughts on a subject. In truth, the whole thing probably is in the hands of President Harding. There is no doubt about his desire to have the vice president take part in the administration's cabinet conferences. If a President of the United States, no matter what his party, makes it known to the leaders in congress that he desires a certain thing and intends to stand by his desire, the leaders generally recede from any advanced position which they may have taken and utter a word or two to the effect "we never meant it."

The vice president took part in the first cabinet meeting of the year, and information came that his presence was satisfactory to all the members of the cabinet, and that the President was especially pleased because Mr. Coolidge, when his opinion was asked on any subject, gave it freely, and without any embarrassment arising from the new order of things.

There are some "legal minded" members of congress who seem to feel that because the duties of the vice president are outlined by the law of the land, he should be restricted to the field of those duties, and that any entry which he makes into other fields is not within the spirit of the law. The whole matter has caused some gossip in Washington, and perhaps it is only a small sized tempest in a very large teapot. In fact, it seems likely that so it will prove, but the talk on the matter has not been entirely uninteresting because it has brought out the feelings of men in high positions on this departure from the routine of administration proceedings.

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MASTER MANDRILL.

"I was only given one face," said Master Mandrill.

"Now I am a baboon, and a baboon is a monkey. We're great fighters, we are, and we're quite different from other monkeys."

"We aren't nearly as high-toned as some of the monkeys; in fact, we're not nearly as high-toned and fine as any of them, I do believe."

"But that has nothing to do with what I had to say first. But before I go back to that I have a few more things I want to say before I forget them."

"As a family we've been smart. We've had to fight our way and that has made us take naturally to fighting, which keeps us from being pets."

"Of course, here it would be all right to be pets—here in the zoo."

"But away, where we came from, it was different. There we had to protect ourselves from animals as big as lions, and lions aren't kittens. Of that you may be sure, in case you don't know!"

"And we were clever and we were brave, though here in the zoo we're so apt to quarrel and fight that no one can be friendly with us."

"When we were wild and got mad at some wild animal that would have liked to have killed us, how quick and fierce we were and how we used our great teeth!"

"Ah, we knew how to fight! Our family has always known!"

"But we have lived for so long among such dangerous creatures that we've become wild and dangerous ourselves and no one should try to become friendly with us."

"They say that many of the monkeys get angry because they find there are people who don't know that there are lots of different families of monkeys and some are pleasant and friendly and will make fine pets, and others are cross and cannot be trusted."

"The monkeys say that that isn't fair to the nice ones, for if people meet monkeys that are cross and horrid they get the idea that all of them are that way."

"But I don't mind that. Why should I?"

"Well, I started in to say that I only had one face. No one would or could deny that I spoke the truth. I said, I believe, that I was given one face. So I was, and I've never been given another."

"Never, never, never did any one ever offer me another face. No one ever came to me and said:

"Here, Baboon, have another face and another pair of eyes, and so forth."

"No one ever did."

"Well, because no one ever has I find it necessary to pretend I have more than one face."

"You may think that is strange, but I don't like to look the same at all times."

"Of course, my general looks are always the same, and by my general looks I mean that I have long, shaggy hair, a rather lion-like face, with markings something of the color of the markings of a lion's face, and great teeth."

"I am a species of the Baboon family and my own family name is that of Mandrill."

"Well, as I said, I have these looks all the time—my colorings and so forth and the length of my hair."

"But I like to look different at times and so I make up faces. That's not hard, you know. It sounds almost impossible, but anyone can make up the kind I do, and I guess sometimes creatures who don't care how ugly they look do make up faces something like the ones I make up."

"They're very ugly, but people cannot help looking at me when I am making up these faces."

"They come and stare at me and I look at them in all sorts of ways. I look horrible, horrible—such faces as I do make up."

"And so while I was only given one face I'm able to make up lots of others for myself at different times."

Teacher Didn't Know Sheep.

A teacher in a country school stated the problem as follows: "If there were 12 sheep in a field, and six of them jumped over a low hedge in the highway, how many sheep would remain in the field?" "None," replied one of the young hopefuls. "Why, Johnny," expostulated the teacher; "try again." "None," reiterated the small boy; "you may know all about eggs, but you don't know much about sheep."

Pleasant and Friendly.

apt to quarrel and fight that no one can be friendly with us.

"When we were wild and got mad at some wild animal that would have liked to have killed us, how quick and fierce we were and how we used our great teeth!"

"Ah, we knew how to fight! Our family has always known!"

"But we have lived for so long among such dangerous creatures that we've become wild and dangerous ourselves and no one should try to become friendly with us."

"They say that many of the monkeys get angry because they find there are people who don't know that there are lots of different families of monkeys and some are pleasant and friendly and will make fine pets, and others are cross and cannot be trusted."

"The monkeys say that that isn't fair to the nice ones, for if people meet monkeys that are cross and horrid they get the idea that all of them are that way."

"But I don't mind that. Why should I?"

"Well, I started in to say that I only had one face. No one would or could deny that I spoke the truth. I said, I believe, that I was given one face. So I was, and I've never been given another."

"Never, never, never did any one ever offer me another face. No one ever came to me and said:

"Here, Baboon, have another face and another pair of eyes, and so forth."

"No one ever did."

"Well, because no one ever has I find it necessary to pretend I have more than one face."

"You may think that is strange, but I don't like to look the same at all times."

"Of course, my general looks are always the same, and by my general looks I mean that I have long, shaggy hair, a rather lion-like face, with markings something of the color of the markings of a lion's face, and great teeth."

"I am a species of the Baboon family and my own family name is that of Mandrill."

"Well, as I said, I have these looks all the time—my colorings and so forth and the length of my hair."

"But I like to look different at times and so I make up faces. That's not hard, you know. It sounds almost impossible, but anyone can make up the kind I do, and I guess sometimes creatures who don't care how ugly they look do make up faces something like the ones I make up."

"They're very ugly, but people cannot help looking at me when I am making up these faces."

"They come and stare at me and I look at them in all sorts of ways. I look horrible, horrible—such faces as I do make up."

"And so while I was only given one face I'm able to make up lots of others for myself at different times."

EASTER EGG HUNT

What can create more joy "in anticipation" than to be invited to an Easter Egg hunt in the heart of the average child?

Mrs. Ellis Douthit and Mrs. Oscar Pate utilized that fact, to give joy and Easter gladness to the forty or more boys and girls in this Sunday School classes Saturday afternoon, who had been asked to an "Easter lawn party" at the home of Mrs. Douthit.

All kinds of suitable outdoor games were arranged for their entertainment.

The most enjoyable feature was the long-looked for Easter egg hunt.

The eggs were so cunningly hidden in all the grassy nooks and corners, here, there, everywhere, when it was announced a prize was offered each boy and girl who found the largest number, an added zest was given to the joy of it. With many glad shouts, the merry race was on, and the greatest wonder was, that many eggs were not trampled under foot.

When it became evident no more could be found, the hunt was closed and eggs counted. Miss Elizabeth Carthers had found the largest number in the girl's race.

Master James Jones was declared the winner for the boys and both were given big white Easter rabbits.

Mrs. Jesse Jones, Mrs. C. A. Rosebrough and Mrs. Brasner called for their children in time to see how royally the little folks had been entertained by their hostesses, who had enjoyed every minute of the party with the same Easter spirit, they too, not so many Easters ago, had found the eggs left by the mysterious Bunny Rabbits in the same kind of grass.

BRIDGE PARTY

An ideal conclusion to a week of varied entertainment, parties, and what not—was the Easter Bridge party, given by Miss Grace Ford Saturday afternoon. It was an ideal afternoon for a girl's party and Bridge seemed the ideal game for the lovely Spring weather. It also gave the girls an opportunity to let the other girls see their pretty new Easter dresses, which alas, failed to make their appearance again Easter Sunday, for behold, winter held us in thrall once more and furs and coats were the Easter Style.

The usual two tables were in play and four games were enjoyed.

The hostess featured the Easter idea in her score cards and in a most delightful ice course, with Angel food.

Pots of blooming pansy geraniums and ferns gave a pleasing floral decoration.

Those in attendance were: Mrs. Oscar Pate, Misses Josephine Hamner, Gertrude Vinson, Mable Browning, Peyton Irving, Mary Douthit, Gladys Tingle and Elizabeth Howell.

SOROSIS CLUB

Owing to the ladies being busy in the exposition work there will be no meeting of the Sorosis Club Friday afternoon as usual, but the meeting will take place April 8th with same hostess and program.

MRS. M. E. MITCHELL

MR. AND MRS. MONROE HOPKINS PLAYERS

Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Hopkins scored a big hit at the Lyric Theatre Monday night with "The Brat." It was by far the best attraction that has played Sweetwater in the past season.

The vaudeville presented between acts by Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins exceeded anything in its line that has ever visited this town. And was a big surprise to the people who were present as they have been fooled so often that they rather expected something cheap.

The scenery and stage setting was the best, also was the wardrobe worn by the actors. The pretty dresses worn by the ladies of the company might well furnish patterns for the debutantes who are planning for the coming season.

The play for Tuesday night will be a western comedy-drama in three acts with plenty of comedy running thru the bill. The comedy part being played by Mr. Hopkins. To those who saw him Monday night, it is useless to say how funny he will be in the part of "Jerry" the negro, in "Headed West," Tuesday night. He also will do some singing and dancing between the acts of the play that is very suiting to the character he is playing.

The Wednesday night program will be all vaudeville, consisting of six acts of the best of vaudeville. All these acts played the Orpheum, Interstate, U. B. O. and Pantages vaudeville circuits.

Seats are on sale at the Palace Drug Co. Get them in advance to avoid the confusion at the window and also in order to get the seats you want.

WEST TEXAS ELECTRIC CO. TO HAVE UNUSUAL EXPOSITION DISPLAY

The Manager of the West Texas Electric Company has gone to a great expense to obtain the services of a man from the Commercial Department of the Dallas office, who has been devoting much time to electrical home appliances.

Their booth will be as elaborate as is possible to make it. No doubt every house wife has begun to realize that the new and modern ways of housekeeping are far superior to the old. Her work has grown with the times, and she can no longer keep the house without the aid of modern devices.

Electricity has solved the problem and today the house wife can do her laundry, cooking, sweeping, sewing and churning, in fact there is not hardly one thing in housekeeping that cannot be made easy by the aid of electric current.

You are cordially invited to come to their booth at the Exposition Hall and look over their display, asking as many questions as you like. In fact their representative states that he does love to answer questions and offer suggestions to the house wives when he believes he is doing something to help them lighten their work.

Mrs. J. L. Landrum will bake biscuits upon these electric stoves and you are cordially invited to be a guest at the booth.

SWEETWATER BATTERY CO.

The Sweetwater Battery Company will welcome all automobile drivers at their booth in the automobile row exposition hall.

This company is managed by two energetic young men who combine courtesy with efficiency. Coupled with their own qualifications they represent one of the best battery agencies on earth. Willard Batteries meet the keenest competition and cannot be excelled.

Visit the Sweetwater Battery Company's booth and let their managers tell you about the thrif and star-ration you subject your batteries to. They will tell you about the proper filling of your battery, its abuses and neglects. They will tell you that your battery cannot be merely filled with water and then travel on indefinitely till every drop is gone and meet the demands upon its service. The simplest and surest means of committing battery murder is to run it without giving it sufficient water.

Do automobile drivers stop to think they are using more electricity when they start their motor with the lights on? This is done nine times out of ten and you do not know it. Willard men will tell you if you ask them while visiting the exposition.

Here are five of the reasons why a Willard Service Station meets the demands of a public efficiency.

First.—Meeting every customer more than half way, being really glad to see him, and glad to help him.

Second.—Being properly equipped to help—thoroughly trained and experienced in battery care, maintenance, and repair.

Third.—Showing the car owner how to care for his battery and how to avoid things that will wear it and shorten its life.

Fifth.—Being businesslike, to base fair and just charges on knowledge of actual costs, to give good returns for every penny, and to carry an adequate stock of new batteries, rental batteries, and repair parts.

JAPAN MAY COMBINE AERIAL SERVICES OF HER ARMY AND NAVY

(Associated Press)
TOKIO, March 29.—Japan is investigating the feasibility of amalgamating the aviation services of the army and navy, General Tanaka, the minister of war, told the Diet yesterday, responding to a request for information made by Baron Sakatani, in the House of Peers.

The interpolator contended that Japan's defense scheme has serious defects especially in aviation matters. He said, "Peace is a desire common to all nations of the world. The Japanese are no less in earnest than other peoples for peace. But the fact, nevertheless, cannot be denied that history repeats itself. What did occur in the past may occur in the future. To be prepared against possible emergencies, therefore, is always necessary. The weakest point of the state of defense at present, lies in the aerial service. What is the Government's opinion as to combining the aviation services of the army and navy instead of maintaining separate institutions, as at present?"

The minister of war explained that the government had no objection to unification but the matter required serious consideration.
