WHERE SHOULD THE COUNTY SEAT BE LOCATED?

That question is echoing through the mind of every citizen of Parmer county today. It is a vital question and one which effects every citizen of this county.

Of course it is located at present at Farwell but try as hard as we could we could not have chosen a much worse or much more inconvenient location. We might every bit as well have placed it over in New Mexico, in Texico. Of course Texico wants to keep it there because it brings that city lots of trade. Farwell can't accommodate people who are forced to go to the county seat on business, therefore they have to go to Texico. Fine for Texico! Fine for New Mexico! But, is it fine for Parmer county?

The editor of the Friona Star is just "egotistic" enough to think that you, the people of Parmer county, agree with him when he says that Farwell is the worst possible location for the Parmer county seat. He is willing to give $15 in gold to find out if he is right. He thinks that Friona is the logical place for the county seat and he wants to see how many of you people agree with him.

In the six months that we have been in Friona we have talked to many Parmer county people. We have found them to be intelligent people and we are at loss to discover why they ever allowed the county seat to be placed in Farwell in the first place, and still more at loss to know why they have allowed it to remain there.

Every citizen that we have talked to has agreed with us that they did not think Farwell any place for a county seat. By far the greatest majority of them said it should be in Friona because Friona could serve the greatest number of Parmer county people with the greatest convenience. Because people could secure accommodations here and the money they spent on county seat business would be spent in Parmer county and in Texas—not in another state. And because of numerous other reasons. We certainly are anxious to find out what you think about it. To find out where you think the county seat should be located.

We do not think that the people of Parmer county should be forced to maintain their county seat in the extreme southwest corner of the county merely because it aids certain large land owners to sell their real estate. The people of Parmer county are not "catspaws". They are amply able to vote without the instruction of out-of-state interests. And they also would like to have out of state citizens cease voting in Parmer county elections.

We will see what we will see. But we are waiting to see your letters and see who gets the $15 in gold.

Now we guess the State Line Tribune will call us worse than "egotistical" and "Moses". We know what his bosses would like for him to call us, but he can't send that through the mails.

Revival Begins At Methodist Church Sunday

At 11 o'clock Sunday morning at Methodist church, a revival will begin, announces Rev. O. B. Annis, pastor. Everybody of the community interested in the betterment of men and conditions is invited to participate in these services.

This will be a 100 per cent home talent meeting, music by members of the congregation and town and preaching by the pastor. No public collections will be necessary to pay expenses of an outside man. However, the ministers says, the regular plate collections will be made at Sunday services.

"Since announcing this meeting," states Rev. Annis, "I have remembered that next Sunday evening is the date of the regular laymen's joint meeting. We do not wish to hold in conflict with the regular pre-scheduled religious services, and for that reason we shall either call in our night session for that hour or provide for all our people who care to go to the laymen's meeting.

"In this connection, allow me to remind other denominations that since this is purely a local talent meeting, it is unnecessary for them to call in any of their regular services through the usual courtesy. If you will attend regularly through the week days, we shall appreciate it, but we do not ask or expect you to disrupt your regular work in any way."

Subject for the nights of the first week are:

Patching the Pot, Monday night.

Services for Mothers, Tuesday night.

Father's Service, Wednesday night.

Service for Sinners, Thursday night.

Service for young people, Friday night.

A revelation service, Saturday night.

C. of C. Meets At Luncheon Thursday Noon

The Friona chamber of commerce met in Martin's cafe Thursday at noon for a combination luncheon and business session. The cafe served a very nice chicken plate which was enjoyed by all members present.

A long table was layed down the middle of the room and by 1:15 all were seated. After the luncheon at the business session, several matters of importance were taken up. It was explained to the members that they had been asked to meet at this luncheon in order to see how they enjoyed the affair and to see if they wanted to have their meetings hereafter on the same basis as luncheon clubs. It was voted by the body that they meet every first and third Thursday of the month at 1:00 o'clock, in a combination luncheon and business meeting.

The matter of highway designation was taken up and Howard Morris was appointed a delegate to the meeting held at Enid, Oklahoma, the first of the week. Friona is very strongly in favor of keeping the highway at its present designation and pledged themselves to make every effort to do so.

The invitation of the Clovis chamber of commerce to attend a banquet there Saturday night was accepted and seven promised to attend. The banquet was later postponed because of the heavy snows in Western New Mexico making it impossible for western delegates to be there.

All told the meeting was a big success and there was a better than average attendance. Mrs.

NOTICE

The subscribers of this paper read it that they may know what is happening in their home town and among their neighbors.

The merchants who advertise in it spend much money for their advertising space in order that you may become acquainted with their service, goods and the values they offer you. Read their ads and tell them that you do. They will appreciate it and they are really the ones who make it possible for you to receive the paper. Were it not for the money received for advertising our subscription rate would have to be at least $30.00 per year. That is what it costs to print and send you this paper.

Mrs. A. O. Drake returned home Saturday from Centerville, Iowa, where she spent eight weeks ago to have a major operation which was performed by her brother, Dr. W. B. Miller.

The throbbing, vital question in the minds of most of the people of Parmer county today is "Where Should the County Seat Be?"

Where do you think it should be located? Study the above map closely, read the population figures. Then sit down and write the editor a letter telling him where you think the county seat should be located in order that it will serve the greatest number of Parmer county people with the greatest convenience.

To the person writing the best letter we will give $10.00 in gold. To the one writing the second best letter, $5.00 in gold; to the next five best letters we will give a year's subscription to the Friona Star.

Where do you think the county seat should be located? Why?

This contest is open to every man, woman and child in Parmer county. This contest closes April 30 and prize winners will be announced in the first issue of May. You may write as many letters as you wish. Address them to the editor of the Star, Friona, Texas. A committee of three men will judge the letters.

Skirts Clean Pants at Volley Ball

In the volley ball game staged at the high school gym Friday night for the benefit of the P. T. A., between the Pants (townsman) and the Skirts (faculty) the Skirts took the Pants for a most thorough cleaning to the tune of four to one.

Evidently the Skirts were wearing the pants this time for at any rate the Pants could not get going and after the first few minutes of play it was evident from the dust flying from the Pants that they were due for a thorough cleaning.

Owing to the bad weather there was only a small crowd present and the Pants claim they were suffering with rheumatism, neuralgia and alibies, therefore, it is probable that another game will be played to see whether or not the Skirts will rule the Pants. (We are married and know that regardless of whether they will or will not—they do.)

Highway 60 Association Is Perfected

The National Highway 60 association was formed Monday at a meeting called by the Enid, Oklahoma, chamber of commerce in that city. Delegates from chambers of commerce of cities along the designated route from Norfolk, Virginia, to Los Angeles, California, were in attendance at the request of the Enid body.

Howard Morris represented Friona at the meeting, at the request of the Friona chamber of commerce, and returned home filled with enthusiasm as to the benefits that the highway will bring to this section of the country. The objects of the association are to get the highway paved to the extent that it will be the most paved of all the transcontinental roads to hold the present designation of the route, to create interest and travel over this highway, according to Mr. Morris, who returned Tuesday from Enid.

U. S. Highway 60 travels the most scenic and historical part of the United States from Norfolk, Virginia, to Los Angeles, California, crossing the states of Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, Oklahoma, the Panhandle of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California. It is the most important of all the all-weather routes as it strikes through the middle part of the country in a slightly diagonal direction, crossing the Rocky Mountains in a region which permits all-year travel without interference from snow-blocked passes.

The designation and paving of this route will mean a great deal to the Texas Panhandle as it is conservatively estimated that the road will handle an average of 2000 cars daily in tourist traffic. These tourists will spend an average of $10 per car per day, and taking an average of one day to cross the Panhandle will bring $10,000 per day to Panhandle business houses. It is 270 miles across the Panhandle by this route, a full day's travel for the average car, and there are thirteen towns to share in this business. At a mileage of 20 miles to the gallon these cars will consume 13 1/2 gallons of gas each day and pay a gasoline tax of 54 cents each, or $5.40 a day, which is $197,100 per year, to be used for the improvement of our roads and an added $3,650,000 to be spent with our merchants. This will be a great help to the prosperity of the Panhandle, according to Mr. Morris.

Pupils to Sell Subscriptions In Big Contest

The P. T. A. faculty of Friona schools and the Star have decided to put on a big circulation contest among the school children of this district in order to raise the money necessary to pay for the playground equipment which was purchased for the school.

Help your schools and your children by letting them take your subscription to the Star. If you are already a subscriber, renew your subscription through them. The subscription price is $1.50 a year in Texas and New Mexico, and $2.00 elsewhere during the contest. Of this amount the Star has authorized the schools to retain a more than liberal commission and in addition has purchased a beautiful picture which will go to the class securing the largest number of subscriptions in proportion to the number of students in the class.

This picture will be hung in the lobby of the school just as soon as it arrives so that all may see it. It will remain the property of the class winning it until they graduate from high school and at that time will return to the room they occupied as a permanent trophy.

There is no reason why the contest should not net enough money to the schools to more than pay for this equipment and it should bring them enough to enable them to buy more equipment. To every pupil selling ten subscriptions during this campaign the Star will give a beautiful picture suitable to be hung in their homes.

The contest is now open and will close May 10. Help your children and your schools by subscribing to the Friona Star thru the P. T. A., the faculty and the pupils, or if you prefer you may come in and subscribe at our office, telling us which pupil or class you want to have the credit. Any member of the P. T. A., the faculty or any pupil of the Friona schools will be more than glad to take your subscription. These boys and girls are going to work hard in order to pay for their play ground equipment and they will appreciate your cooperation. They will appreciate your giving them your subscription because every one they receive means a substantial payment on the school's equipment.

Subscribe for the Star and help your schools. Remember, a pupil will call on your soon for your subscription.

Farm Women's Club Meets.

The Homeland Farm Women's club met at the home of Mrs. A. O. Brewer March 5 with 23 present. The meeting opened with the club song. After the business meeting the following program was given:

Cherokee Party.

The weekly meeting of the Cherokee society was held Friday at the regular time. After attending to business, both societies met in the assembly hall to be entertained by several musical and literary numbers. The glee club gave a beautiful number and the senior girl declaimers seemed good enough to easily enter the district meet. The main casualty in this event is that we do not have as many as six declaimers who can easily carry off honors in the county meet, but only one can enter.

Next Friday a contest, which will include all events in the interscholastic league meet, will be held between the Cherokee and Stimole societies. The winner receives a banner.

For centuries March 17 has been celebrated as St. Patrick's Day by all Irishmen by wearing the green. It is not the birthday of St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, but the date of the man's death who has credit for driving the snakes from Old Erin.

There is nothing unusual, however, in the custom of observing it with jubilee and merriment, as the day of a true Christian death is supposed to mark his birth into the fuller life of heaven.

St. Patrick's part in shoving Ireland's serpents into the sea is legendary, but the fact remains today that the island still does not have any snakes.

Historians have been unable to determine where St. Patrick was born. When a boy he was held a captive in Ireland, later escaped and studied for priesthood and was commissioned by the Pope to convert the Emerald Isle to Christianity.

It is doubtful if Ireland ever had any snakes. When the first Pat undertook his mission, religious services there were in charge of the Druids who had a form of serpent worship. When St. Patrick was successful in introducing Christianity, stamping out the power of the Druids, it is thought the expression originated that he "drove the snakes" from Ireland.

JESUS AMONG FRIENDS AND FOES

Luke 10:35-42; 11:42-46, 52-54

Luke 10:38. Now as they went on their way, he entered into a certain village: and a certain woman named Martha received him into her house.

39. And she had a sister called Mary, who also sat at the Lord's feet, and heard his word.

40. But Martha was cumbered about much serving; and she came up to him, and said: Lord, dost thou not care that my sister did leave me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she help me.

41. But the Lord answered and said unto her, Martha, thou art anxious and troubled about many things;

42. But one thing is needful; for Mary hath chosen the good part, which shall not be taken away from her.

Luke 11:42. But woe unto you Pharisees! for ye tithe mint and rue and every herb, and pass over justice and the love of God; but these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.

43. Woe unto you Pharisees! for ye love the chief seats in the synagogues, and the salutations in the market-places.

44. Woe unto you! for ye are as the tombs which appear not, and the men that walk over them know it not.

45. And one of the lawyers answering saith unto him, Teacher, in saying this thou reproachest us also.

46. And he said, Woe unto you lawyers also; for ye loan men with burdens grievous to be borne, and ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers.

52. Woe unto you lawyers! for ye took away the key of knowledge ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in ye hindered.

53. And when he was come out from thence, the scribes and the Pharisees began to press upon him vehemently, and to provoke him to speak of many things;

54. Laying wait for him, to catch something out of his mouth.

Golden Text: Ye are my friends, if ye do the things which I command you.—John 15:14.

Time: November and December, A. D. 29, the third year of Christ's ministry.

Place: Bethany and Peraea.

Introduction.

Jesus was a man among men. He identified himself with no class. He, the Son of man, was the friend of all men, glad to receive all who would come into friendly fellowship. With equal readiness he would dine with the Pharisee and Publican. He rejoiced with a happy wedding party and wept with the sorrowing. Both Nicodemus and the Samaritan woman felt the friendliness of his words. Glowing childhood and bent age alike were blessed in the touch of his garments. All sincere souls felt at home in his presence.

But all were not friendly toward him. Men who loved darkness rather than light were uncomfortable in his presence. Joined to the picture of Jesus in the house of his enemies, we have also a picture of him in the house of friends—and in both pictures he is the same Jesus in spirit and purpose.

Bethany, the Home of Lazarus.

"He entered into a certain village." This was Bethany (the name perhaps means "the house of dates"), a small village facing east, situated on the road to Jericho and on the southeast slope of the Mount of Olives. All three synoptic Gospels are reticent regarding Mary, Martha and Lazarus, and even the name of their village, because of the fame obtained by the raising of Lazarus from the dead and the opposition to Jesus thereby aroused, culminating in his crucifixion. John, writing long after the event, after the fall of Jerusalem, could name the Bethany home and family without danger to them; see John 12:1-11.

Jesus Among His Friends.

This incident, preserved by Luke alone, may have been placed here as another item in Jesus' answer to the query, "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" (10:25). Bethany is on the eastern slope of Mount Olivet, a mile and three-quarters from Jerusalem, on the way to Jericho. Here is "Jesus' Judean home"—I can imagine the sisters and brother telling him

Among Arkansas Hunger Victims

You can't blame these sad-eyed children for not smiling. Their parents dead, these youngsters were found living alone in a houseboat near Lepanto, Ark., without food and fuel, by Red Cross relief workers who immediately gave food and warm clothing. Left to right are Mildred Morris, 7; Irene Morris, 15, and Lester Morris, 12.

that it is! Their exceptional hospitality is to become an everlasting symbol of the opening of the human heart-door to the Lord Jesus.

Particularly noticeable in this scene are his frankness and his gentleness. Jesus was kind enough and sincere enough and bold enough to be frank, and it takes all three qualities to be so helpfully. Recall his interview with Nicodemus in which he told that successful and honored man that he must start over again and must become a new and different kind of man. Recall also his frankness with the woman at Jacob's well. And now he is just as open in telling Martha of her faults.

Martha's Anxiety; Many Things. Nervous overdoing is likely to make one irritable. It does Martha. She becomes provoked that her sister isn't helping with the supper and in fixing up the spare room; let's her do it all. She is out of patience with the Master, also, that he takes no notice of Mary's unfairness, or laziness. "She had allowed herself to get hustled; not understanding Jesus, she thought that he would appreciate fussy and elaborate preparations. What he really wanted was quiet and sympathetic listening, and this Mary gave him."

Jesus saw how the tyranny of anxiety could spoil a good heart, and that was a serious matter with him. He reminded her that life is more than meat and that man does not live by bread alone. "His warning and his call come home to us today. How many people, for instance, begin life with certain necessities. As their income grows they add luxuries, and feel aggrieved if they cannot get them. They climb into a higher social scale which demands a larger house, greater spending, more elaborate entertaining. So the tyranny of things grows, while all the time, if only they knew it, they are losing peace and freedom and opening their souls to a thousand petty anxieties and disappointments. . . . We can become victim of plenty as well as the victim of poverty. We can be sunk in a mansion as well as a hovel."—Jas. Reid.

Mary's Choice: the Good Part.

"Mary hath chosen the good part which shall not be taken away from her." Recall Jesus' emphasis upon this fact in the Sermon on the Mount: "Seek ye first his kingdom and his righteousness and all these things will be added unto you." Many good things may be said about the Marthas of the world, and the need for somebody to care for the things, and rightly so. Jesus did not advise indolence. He believed in work. He saw the need of bread, but he protested against making bread life's chief pursuit, and substituting work for worship, and letting the means of physical life become the master of the soul. Martha was hospitable, industrious, wanting to serve her Friend, but she forgot that Jesus was not primarily for a meal, but for fellowship, that he had something to give. Seeing it through and through Mary chose the good part. She sat at Jesus' feet and listened to him, and "listening to Him, loving Him, she was reaching contact with God."—James Reid. "At the Lord's feet"—there alone can real life be found.

The One Thing Needful.

"Mary was perhaps the first of the followers of our Lord to discover that he wants not so much our work as ourselves. In itself, what is our work in the kingdom of God, anyway? How small, how ignorant, how ineffective, and how insufficient it is compared to the power of God to accomplish all that he desires and to bring in the kingdom of Christ when he wills! But he gives us the privilege of working together with him for our sake, rather than for his. The work is for our development and our discipline."—Rev. Henry A. Stimson, D. D.

Three Tests of Friendship.

Holding our lesson to its central thought of friendship for Jesus, let us draw our giving to God's children. In no way, not even in prayer, can we draw closer to the loving heart of God than in receiving fully what he wishes to bestow upon us, and giving freely to others from what God has given to us. Our gifts are the crown of our communion.

Friendship in Service.

What an offense was that of Christ's enemies when they charged that he was in league with the enemies of God, and worked his miracles with the aid of devils! He made it perfectly clear that he was of God by doing the works of God, and we can make certain of our friendship with God in no other way. Let us study Christ's service of mankind. It is all for our imitation, for even the miracles, in their essentials of kindness and of self-giving, may be copied by us. Are we doing the works of the Saviour? Then we are his friends.

Friendship in Obedience.

When the woman in the crowd cried out her tribute to Jesus, he answered with a call for obedience to God. That meant also obedience to himself, as he went on to say, for he was greater than Jonah, and had a right to summon men to repent of their sins and turn to ways of righteousness. We are Christ's friends, as our Golden Text says, if we do what he commands us.

Pharisee Foes.

We turn now from considering friendship with Christ to the sad but necessary topic of hostility to Christ, such as the Pharisees showed. From this point the enmity of the Jews increased until it culminated in history's most terrible tragedy, the crucifixion of the Son of God.

The Pharisees, we must recall, were the strictest division of the Jews. They insisted upon the most scrupulous observance of the letter of the Mosaic laws, which would have been well, for they are wise and salutary, except that the Jewish rabbis had added to them a vast body of childish, superstitious, and endlessly burdensome regulations of their own making, and upon those the Pharisees laid no great stress that they really constituted their life. They were proud of this exaggerated formalism, arrogant, unyielding, and sought by every form of bitter insistence to compel others to adopt their strictness.

Friend or Foe of Jesus.

Our Golden Text sums up the entire matter: "Ye are my friends, if ye do the things which I command you." So spoke Christ during the solemn hours of the last supper. Christ's commands, as was well known, were very few, very simple, very clear. There were only two of them: Love God, love your brother man. Christ's enemies—the scribes, lawyers, and Pharisees, did neither. Their pretended love of God was dead formalism, empty rites. Their love of men was only love of themselves, pride, cruelty, injustice, the murder of the true friends of God and man. Let no one say that because he is not a scribe or Pharisee therefore he is a friend of Jesus. Let him rather answer earnestly the two great questions: Do I love God with all my being? Do I love my neighbor as myself?

F. L. SPRING
 DRY GOODS GROCERIES

Beef at retail declined 14 per cent in 1930. When it is considered that a large part of the family budget goes for meat, the present trends in prices are of great importance to housewives. People may eat more meat now, without straining their outlay, and the hard-pressed cattleman should begin to glimpse better days.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

IN CASE YOU'RE WORRYING ABOUT PENNANT CONTENDERS THIS EARLY, TAKE IT FROM GABBY STREET HIS CARDS WILL BE ON DECK AGAIN

THE resounding smack of horsehide ball meeting stick of ash may be heard in various sections of the south and southwest, heralding spring and the beginning of another baseball season. Consequently, there is no time like the present to make the annual guesses on the outcome of the major league races next September. I am prepared today to tell you that the St. Louis Cardinals will contend for the world's championship next October. If they don't, Manager Gabby Street has been guilty of spinning me a little white fabrication. Heretofore, I have always believed the Old Sarge to be an honorable man so, until he lets me go out on a limb with a false prediction, I'll continue to play ball with him.

"Before the 1930 season opened, I said that in my opinion the Cards were good enough to win," the Old Sarge told me. "Today I believe the club is as strong, if not stronger, than it was a year ago at this time."

You will notice that Gabby actually did not state that the Cards would win the coming campaign. You must agree, however, that his inference is that the redbirds are stronger than anything else in the circuit.

ON the other hand, Connie Mack leaves himself a wide loop-hole. Connie believes in his two-time champions, but with reservations.

"All the teams have been strengthened and it may turn out that some new power in baseball will loom up in 1931," are Mack's words. "I must expect unusually strong opposition from Cleveland, Detroit, Washington and New York. It may turn out to be a five-cornered race."

In the very next breath, the tall, gray pilot of the Athletics voiced wholeheartedly his confidence in the world champions. He indicated that the reserve infield, outfield and catching strength will handle nicely any situation that may arise in the 1931 season. He said little about his pitchers—and maybe there's the catch.

Will they shake again this fall? Opponents in last year's world series, Gabby Street, left, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Connie Mack, right, pilot of the Philadelphia Athletics, have a hunch they will meet again.

The burden of the mound work last year rested on Grove and Earnshaw, Mack's two-iron men. They may be better this year and perfectly capable of carrying the champions along. If they are not as effective, the Mackmen have little chance to repeat.

Rogers Hornsby, pilot of the Cub menagerie, says that new pitching will provide the impetus to send the Chicago entry over the top. The Rajah figures that Bob Smith, obtained from the Braves; Jackie May, picked up from the Reds, and Lester Sweetland, who transferred from the Phillies, added to Malone, Root, Bush and Blake and the sluggers Wilson, Stephenson, Cuyler and Hartnett, will bring the Cubs home ahead of the field.

"Washington is the best-balanced club in the American League and all we need is one standout pitcher to put us over this year," said Manager Walter Johnson. Now the Big Train always has been respected for his honesty and straightforwardness, so maybe it would be well to watch this Senator outfit this season.

And while we're reserving space for dark horses, don't forget that Uncle Wilbert Robinson will have a Brooklyn team in the National League this year.

Gauls and Romans First to Find Value of Soap

Very early in Biblical history it was found that the ashes from fires, which were then always of wood, were useful in removing grease from the hands. Ashes were thus the earliest form of soap, and they remained so for a long time.

The first of the more civilized peoples to discover how to make real soap were the Romans. They learned the secret from the Gauls who used a preparation made from wood ashes and goat's tallow for washing their hair and beards, thus making them a fiery red—a color they considered becoming. The Romans developed the new discovery considerably, but it was many years before improved methods were introduced.

In some parts of the world soap making is even now carried out in much the same way as in Roman times.

An old cask with holes bored in one end is filled with alternate layers of straw, lime and wood ashes. The cask is then placed on a raised, slanting grooved board, and from time to time water is poured on the contents, until there emerges a brownish liquid, which is collected in an iron pot and boiled over a fire with the fat and grease until the soap maker deems it finished.

The fire is then allowed to go out and the contents of the pot is left to chill to a solid mass, after which it is cut into bars.

Wage Constant Warfare on Dreaded Tsetse Fly

The insect most feared in Africa is the dreaded tsetse fly. This insect sucks the blood of cattle and infects them with the germ of sleeping sickness. It will at times attack humans. It is a sight-hunter instead of a smell-hunter. This was proved when thousands of them were caught in nets and marked with small spots of paint so that they could be identified. As these paint marked flies were caught days later in the nets of the fly-hunters, their distribution proved how widely the flies range for their food. Some of them were painted either over their eyes or over their antennae, which are believed to be the organs of smell. Thus groups of artificially blinded flies and of flies deprived of the sense of smell were turned loose and watched. The insects without smell went about their evil work just the same; found cattle to bite and suck the blood of these animals like normal insects. The blinded flies, on the other hand, seemed unable to find cattle or to feed. This proved that they were guided only by sight.

Africans Heavy Tea Drinkers

South Africa probably consumes more tea per head of population than any other country in the world. The Englishman's four o'clock tea is an insignificant habit compared with the constant demand for tea that obtains there. Most everybody has a cup of tea before rising, and this is followed very shortly by tea at breakfast. In every office and shop, and even in most factories, all the employees knock off for a few minutes at 10:30 for tea and again at 3:30 and in between these times there is a cup of tea with lunch. Returning home from work in the evening one is greeted by a cup of tea, and after dinner has been digested the kettle is again singing on the cooker for more tea. Besides this routine, fresh tea is brewed for every visitor to almost every house and for customers in most offices.

Good Form to Smack Lips

Smacking the lips when eating, a mannerism distinctly bad form in many countries, is not so considered in Hawaii, writes Fred Lockley in his column in the Portland (Ore.) Journal. In giving the viewpoint of a native of the islands.

"With us," Lockley was told, "if a man makes no noise eating we think he does not want others to know he is eating, so he will not have to share his food with them. We consider it very impolite not to smack your lips and make a noise when you eat, for by doing so you show you enjoy what you are eating."

Afton Water

Burns' melodious verses, classified as one of his songs, known as "Afton Water," seems to refer to a living Mary, as will be seen by an examination of the passages in the fourth and fifth verses. The last line of the fourth verse states that "The sweet-scented birch (the birch) shades my Mary and me." Here Mary and the poet are pictured sitting together in the shade of the birch. The next verse speaks of "the cot where my Mary resides," and goes on to tell of her gathering flowers in the waters.

Testing Pencil Leads

Wearing qualities of different types of lead for use in pencils are tested by an apparatus somewhat resembling a phonograph, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. An electrically driven turntable, covered with drawing paper, contains a center disk which revolves with the turntable. This disk is connected to two other similar disks, at the rim of the turntable, by a spring belt, thus driving these disks. One of them has four metal tubes in which the leads are inserted.

He's Learning

Robert, who has rounded out a dozen years, was taking swimming lessons not long ago at the Y. M. C. A.

"Well, Robert, how are you getting along?" the youngster was asked after the third lesson.

"Oh, I can swim about twelve feet," he answered, "seven forward and five down."

Memories of Shelley in Small Italian Town

On July 8, 1822, the poet Shelley and his friend, Lieutenant Williams, were drowned when their little schooner founded off Viareggio, Italy, on a voyage from Leghorn to Spezia. Their bodies were washed ashore on the beach, and were there cremated in the presence of Treiawney, Leigh Hunt and Byron. There is a monument to Shelley by an Italian, Urbano Lucchesi, in the Piazza Shelley on the western side of the town.

The boat in which Shelley went to his doom was built after designs made by his friend, Lieutenant Williams, a British naval officer. It was called the Don Juan. Shelley and his wife lived in a bare dwelling on the Gulf of Spezia, known as the Casa Magna. It was there he was en route from Leghorn with Lieutenant Williams and a sailor boy, when the storm in which all three perished overtook them. Capt. Edward Treiawney, a seaman friend of Shelley's, tracked down the bodies of Shelley and Williams, and undertook the burning of them on the shores of Viareggio on August 15. The poet's ashes were then collected and buried in the new Protestant cemetery at Rome.

Wooden Cannon Used by Japs Against Russians

In the summer of 1865, relates the Trans-Pacific Review, when a few British warships hove in sight in the waters near Kyushu, the samurai of Satsuma, seeing the ships were out of gunshot from the shore, put out to sea with several cannon. Arriving within range, they fired, but the shot failed to reach the ship. They were a little confused and fired at random, but none struck. The English sailors, looking from their ships, laughed heartily at them. Suddenly a thundering boom of cannon was heard from the British ships and in a few moments the Japanese ship was seen no more, except her cannon, which were floating in the water. These floating cannon astonished the English sailors. They were made of wood hooped with bamboo.

In the Russo-Japanese war the wooden cannon were again used to blow off the enemy's wire entanglements.

Saved "Bonny Prince"

Flora MacDonald was a Scottish woman of the MacDonald clan, born 1720, died 1793. Like others of her clan she was a supporter of Prince Charles. After the battle of Culloden, 1746, in which the Scottish troops were defeated, Charles was obliged to flee and took refuge at Benbecula, where Flora lived. She disguised the prince as a maid servant to herself, and traveled on horseback and passed through many dangers, finally reaching the island of Skye in safety, from which the prince made his escape. Flora was tried and imprisoned for assisting him in his escape, but was finally released in 1747. In 1750 she married Allen MacDonald, a kinsman, and came to America 1774. She died in 1790, and the Flora MacDonald college was organized as a memorial in 1896.

Holland's Two Capitals

Amsterdam is the legal capital of The Netherlands; The Hague is the actual capital. In other words, the Dutch constitution recognizes Amsterdam as the only legal capital, while The Hague is the seat of government and the regular residence of the sovereign. The constitution provides that the sovereign must spend at least eight days each year in Amsterdam, and all royal baptisms, marriages and coronations must take place in that city.

Orchestra's Real Meaning

An orchestra is a band of performers on various instruments, including especially those of the viol class, adapted for rendering the larger kinds of concerted music, as symphonies, overtures, etc., and the accompaniments of operas, oratorios, masses, and the like, or for playing the slighter concerted music for theatrical performances, dances, etc. It is commonly distinguished from the military or street band of players on wind instruments and from a group of solo players for rendering chamber music.

Nero Model Youth at First

The Emperor Nero when he first ascended his throne was an extremely kind and tender-hearted young man, and the like, or for playing the slighter concerted music for theatrical performances, dances, etc. It is commonly distinguished from the military or street band of players on wind instruments and from a group of solo players for rendering chamber music.

Extreme Degrees of Cold

Air can be liquefied by cooling to a temperature of 140 degrees below zero centigrade or 232 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, and by compressing it to about 39 atmosphere pressure. Absolute zero, which is theoretically the lowest possible temperature that can be reached, is equivalent to 273.1 degrees below zero centigrade, or 459.6 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. According to the Encyclopedia Britannica, the lowest temperature attained is 272.5 degrees C.

Preparing Orange Juice

The bureau of home economics says that orange juice which is squeezed at night and saved for breakfast loses no food value, but due to oxidation some flavor is lost unless the juice is placed in a tightly covered container.

FLY NAMED FILTHIEST, MOST DANGEROUS INSECT

Wherever flies are found you may rest assured filth is close by, and filth is dangerous to health, states a bulletin of the International Harvester company. Filth is easily carried on the hairy legs of the fly. The flies' habits make them ideal carriers of disease. They are the filthiest of all insects, born in filth, live in filth, carry filth, and deposit filth on our food.

Watch the fly hatching on the manure heap, and then see it walk in and around the slop and garbage, wallow in the disease-laden privy vault, bathe in the consumptive's cuspidor and then wing its way to the house where it enters through an unscreened door and proceeds to clean its filthy body in the milk picher or drop its specks on the child's lips or gather on the nipple of the baby's nursing bottle.

Fresh from the act of eating the most disgusting filth, how often has the fly crawled over your face, drinking the perspiration, irritating you with its persistence, its hateful touch?

Mrs. Mouse and Family Visit Foods Laboratory.

Last Wednesday when Miss Gardner entered the foods laboratory she found there were eight visitors feasting on small particles of food left in the wastebasket. She screamed and placed a piece of paper over the basket. The girls heard her scream and ran to her aid and after discovering mice in the basket one of the girls lifted the paper and out jumped Mr. and Mrs. Mouse. When the two escaped mice had made their get-away Mr. Osborne arrived and took possession of the mouse children. We do not know what became of them but it is likely they were punished and if Mr. and Mrs. Mouse appear again and cause another disturbance we feel certain they will be sentenced to life imprisonment if not death.

I take this method of announcing to the public that I have taken over the Magnolia Petroleum Company agency at Friona from J. C. Wilkison, and will continue to run it on the same policy as of the past, and ask a continuance of your valued patronage. To those who are not our customers, see us about opening an account. For the accommodation of the public we have moved our office over to our filling station on Main street, where your orders will be received and promptly filled.

Try some of that good Anti-Knock Gasoline and the New Socony Motor Oil in your car for better motoring.

Yours Both for Quality and Service,

MAGNOLIA PETROLEUM COMPANY
