One of the centers of attraction every minute of the three days of the fair, the flower show, staged under the auspices of the Sorosis Club of Sweetwater, was inspected by judges late Friday and after careful consideration prizes were awarded to a host of winners. Although coming rather early in the year, the efforts of the exhibitors were well repaid by the beautiful flowers that attracted the attentions of thousands of fair visitors every day. The floral department occupied a long counter on the north side of the main building and included three divisions, the cut flowers, pot plants and ferns, and the chrysanthemum and rose department.

RETURN PASTORS AT CONFERENCE

Henson, Stewart, Lawless, Hanks Retain Appointments—Foote Goes to Amarillo.

AGAINST UNIFICATION

Conference Also Adopts Resolution on Sunday Amusements—Canyon Gets Next Meeting.

With the exception of the appointment of Gaston Foote, assistant pastor of the First Methodist Church in Sweetwater, to Amarillo, where he will assist Rev. S. W. Hayne, there was little change in the personnel of the Methodist clergy in cities near Sweetwater effected at the Northwest Texas Methodist Conference which closed in Abilene Sunday night.

Rev. J. R. Henson returns to Sweetwater, Rev. Hanks to Loraine, and Rev. Lawless to Colorado. Rev. A. Stewart continues as Presiding Elder of this district.

The proposed plan of unification of the southern and northern divisions of the church was condemned as "unwise" in a resolution adopted by the conference. A decision was reached to raise a $500,000 endowment fund for McMurry College, Abilene, and Clarendon College, Clarendon.

A resolution was passed condemning the social evil and "it was urged that people of the church refrain from Sunday-base ball, Sunday picnicking, and other worldly amusements of the Sabbath."

The conference will meet in Canyon in 1925.

The list of visiting Methodist ministers who filled the pulpits of Abilene churches Sunday by special request follow:

St. Paul's Methodist at 11 a. m. Bishop James E. Dickey, 9 a. m. Love Feast led by W. B. McKeown, Moran; First Methodist at 11 a. m. J. H. Hamblen, of Clarendon; First Baptist, 11 o'clock S. W. Hayne, Amarillo; 7:30 p. m., L. N. Lipscomb. First Presbyterian, 11 a. m., R. E. Dickinson, Vernon; at 7:30 p. m., E. E. Robinson, Lubbock. Central Presbyterian, 11 a. m., D. B. Doak, Stamford; 7:30 p. m., R. N. Huckabee, Rotan. Oak Street Methodist, 11 a. m., Virgil H. Fisher; 7:30 p. m., J. R. Rich, Texline.

Sunday School Attendance.

Although Sunday was the "next day after" a strenuous three days fair, the attendance held up well and was distributed among the churches of the city as follows: Presbyterian Church, 141, collection $12.50; Methodist Church, 288, collection $76.41; First Christian Church, 188, collection $19.56; Lamar Street Baptist Church, 50, collection $1.78; First Baptist Church, 237, collection, $18.25.

Tyrell charges that Smith was aided by two life prisoners sentenced for murder.

COMING ELECTION IS COMPLICATED

Three Prominent National Candidates, Klan, Soldier Vote, Prohibition All Issues.

ALL MANAGERS CONFIDENT

"Claim Everything and Take What You Can Get" Motto of Politicians—Voters to Answer.

By E. T. CONKLE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The Presidential contest which will send the voters to the polls tomorrow is the most complicated since the Wilson-Taft-Roosevelt election in 1912.

In addition to the presence of three prominent candidates in the field, the situation is further affected by the introduction of the Klan issue, both in the national and state contests. In addition to this, the soldier vote must be reckoned with and the women's vote is expected to more nearly approach normal than at any time since the passage of the suffrage amendment. In many eastern states the wet and dry issue is still active.

The entry of the American Federation and the Railroad Brotherhoods into the independent campaigns as avowed political forces adds haze to the Presidential atmosphere.

The La Follette movement of 1924 is vastly different from the Roosevelt revolt in 1912. The Roosevelt bolt was a personal political crusade. The Republican party of the previous eleven years was virtually a Roosevelt party with a few conservative leaders holding out. The Roosevelt party had, of course, a fringe of Democratic progressives, but the Roosevelt appeal was virtually a Republican party split. The La Follette independent organization of 1924 is virtually different in that it is an appeal to both Republicans and Democrats and bears the endorsement of labor and farmer organizations and carries within itself the germs of a new party organization.

Politicians are asking on the verge of tomorrow's ballots, how far the labor vote will follow its leaders; how far the farmers will go in the trail of their organizations. The labor vote is admittedly normally Democratic; the rural vote equally a Republican vote (in the North).

On the eve of election the Coolidge forces claim victory, confidentially; the Davis managers, hopefully. The most enthusiastic of the La Follette managers also claim La Follette's election, but most of the independent forces would be satisfied with a deadlocked electoral college to throw the election into the Congress.

Such sweeping claims are always made just preceding any election—from dog-catcher to President. The motto for politicians is that of the late John R. McLean, Ohio Democratic leader and editor, who said: "Claim everything and take what you can get."

MANY FINE BIRDS IN POULTRY SHOW

Pens at Fair Filled With Great Variety of Entries Showing Growth of Poultry Raising.

EXPERTS JUDGE EXHIBITS

Nolan County Fair Show is Fore-runner of Great Poultry Exhibit Here in December.

Successful beyond all expectations, the poultry show staged during the Nolan County Fair disclosed quality, quantity and variety in the birds raised by county poultry growers, and scores of fine birds of varied types filled the many pens in the long tent used to house the poultry department. Sweetwater's high position as a poultry distributing center was easy to understand after seeing the fine types of birds displayed, and after hearing the many favorable comments from the hundreds of spectators.

Miss Myrtle Murray, A. & M. College, judged the exhibits, and made an address to the poultry raisers as she proceeded with the judging. This show is the forerunner of the big poultry exhibit to be staged here in December.

THE MEN IN GRAY

Not much is said about the proposed amendment to the state constitution granting additional aid to Confederate Veterans who have been residents of Texas since January 1, 1910, but nevertheless it is one that should be given very careful consideration by all voters next Tuesday at the general elections.

The present aid extended veterans is only a little over $10 a month which, with the increase voted, would amount to about 2c on the $100 valuations and would enable the state to more adequately care for the men who wore the gray.

Most of the ather states of the South are much more liberal with the Confederate Veterans—and if the truth were told, most of the other states of the South have contributed liberally through emigration, of their veterans to Texas, which in turn makes the problem that much more acute in this state. But Texas has never been known to shift its duty or obligations.

One by one the men who wore the gray are stepping quietly into the shadows to join their comrades who have gone before. Only a scattered few now answer roll call. Soon even they will be gone. To others is entrusted the task of preserving the honor of the Southland which they so gloriously upheld. Shall their closing days lack for comfort because a great rich people are negligent?

JOHN W. DAVIS

John William Davis of West Virginia, went into the campaign as the Democratic presidential candidate determined to do nothing or say nothing that would cause him shame when he came out of it win or lose.

While it is not on record that Davis ever had a fist fight as a youngster in his native Clarksburg, he has been fighting all his life. His battles have been fought in the court room, the halls of Congress and the chanceries of Europe. But he has always shown the courage that never backs down before an intellectual foe or hit below the belt as a lawyer, legislator, Congressman, Solicitor General or Ambassador.

And Davis won most of his battles. He won them by the force of superior intellect, backed by a sound education, which includes a profound knowledge of the law, a wide reading of literature, a kindly philosophy, an insight into human nature and an unaffected, magnetic personality.

While there has been nothing meretric about Davis' rise in public life, his own reluctance has held him back. He has moved upward steadily and easily because he acquitted himself with honor in every place he has held. And each successive office has been held by him at a financial sacrifice. But he has never failed to heed the summons of his party or the call to public service.

His nomination by the Democratic Party in New York was in keeping with his entrance into public life. It came unsought. But when it came, he accepted it as a call to duty and hurled himself into the campaign with the vigor that has marked his career.

At the outset of his public career, Davis was drafted at the age of 26 and sent to the House of Delegates of West Virginia. He quit after one term in deference to the wishes of his father, who did not want him to enter politics. But a few years later he

Grindell-Matthews' New Death Ray

This is the first picture of the much-talked-of death ray invented by Grindell Matthews, British scientist. It is being tested during the night on the Island of Flathome, off the coast of France. Its lethal beams, according to its inventor are like lightning. They can destroy airplanes and dirigibles in flight and even wipe out entire armies. None can dodge it, once it is directed at them, for the ray is invisible. If it proves successful and is adopted by some government it may revolutionize even the most modern methods of warfare.

Its Inventor

This is Harry Grindell Matthews, inventor of the new death ray now being tested out on the Island of Flathome, off the coast of France.

was tricked by his fellow Democrats into accepting the nomination of Congress.

It was while he was serving in Congress and rising rapidly in the party organization that President Wilson plucked him from a host of great lawyers to become solicitor general. After he had negotiated a delicate diplomatic mission successfully at Berne, Switzerland, during the war, he was made Ambassador to Great Britain.

Though Davis was born an reared in an obscure town in the West Virginia hills and his rise bears all the earmarks of the typical story of American opportunity, that is not wholly true. Davis has lifted himself by his own talents, but he was not born in a log cabin or even humble circumstances. He was born of well-to-do parents, and had opportunities far beyond the reach of most American youths.

His father, John J. Davis, was a distinguished lawyer, an influential member of the constitutional convention which was instrumental in establishing West Virginia as a separate state and for four years a member of congress. His grandfather, John Davis, was a conspicuous citizen and his great grandfather, Caleb Davis, who came from "Old Virginia," was a Clarksburg pioneer. His mother, Anna Kennedy Davis, was an educated and talented woman, from whom he inherited ed a taste for literature and who guided his early education.

The substantial house, built by his grand father, where John William Davis was born, still stands on Washington Avenue, Clarksburg. Some of his friends believe that it was a prophetic omen that Davis was born on April 13, 1873, the 130th anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, the founder of the Democratic Party, whose principles of government the President elected has followed devotedly.

Throughout his campaign for the Presidency, Davis inveighed against the principles enunciated by Alexander Hamilton, Jefferson foe, in the founding of the Republic—that the "rich, the well-born and the able" should govern. In contradiction to that he held up the Jeffersonian principles of "equal rights to all and special privileges to none."

CHILD FIRE PREVENTION

If all the people of our country were to learn by heart the rules regarding fire prevention which Fire Commissioner Drennan of New York City has suggested for memorization by the school children of the city, so that what these rules require becomes instinctive, we would see a material decrease in our $500,000,000 annual fire loss.

The rules which the Fire Commissioner suggests do not ask for more than ordinary care. He suggests that matches be kept in metal containers; he warns against throwing remnants of

Lighting the Halls and Stairs

The main hall, where we welcome our guests, may be large or it may be small, but probably nothing will light it as well as an attractive ceiling fixture equipped with a total of from 50 to 100 watts of lamp bulbs.

If the hall is large enough, we may add a pair of bracket fixtures on the wall at either end of a pretty mirror, or we may use a small table lamp, or candlesticks on a console table. When we do this, the lights should be well shaded, of course, and not too bright. Economy suggests the use of 15 or 25-watt bulbs.

Upstairs halls or long private halls are usually best lighted with small ceiling fixtures equipped with 25 or 50-watt bulbs. In many homes, however, bracket fixtures may be used on the walls to give satisfactory light. When the house is wired, the lights in the halls should be put in so that they may be lighted from either upstairs or downstairs.

The lighting fixtures in the halls ought to be placed so that they will light the stairway as well as the hall. In large homes where there is a landing half way up, it may be advisable to install a small fixture at the turn to be sure the stairs are well lighted.

LIGHTING THE OUTSIDE OF THE HOUSE

Many homes that are being built now have a duplex convenience outlet installed on the porch so that portable lamps may be used to make an outdoor living room in pleasant weather.

In every room some lighting is needed at the main entrance and other doorways for convenience and safety at night. Lanterns of weatherproof metal are commonly used either as bracket or ceiling fixtures.

The driveway to the garage will need some light, perhaps from a fixture attached to the outside of the house. The lighting inside the garage should be installed so that it may be lighted from either the house or the garage. In more elaborate homes the gateway and driveway may be equipped with ornamental lanterns or posts.

For outdoor fixtures a 50-watt bulb will usually be large enough. However, if a large space is to be lighted as much as 100 watts may be needed.

PROPER WIRING

Hidden in the walls of a home are the wires that permit us to enjoy the comforts of electric service. They are out of sight and we never think about them, but they are very important for they may limit our ability to use electricity for lighting and for appliances conveniently.

Every year we add something to the electric equipment in the home. Perhaps this year it is a new table lamp, last year it may have been a wash machine or a toaster, next year it may be a fan or a curling iron. Five years ago when the house was wired, we did not plan for these new things, and now we remove a lamp bulb to connect one of them, thus depriving ourselves of needed light and spoiling the appearance of the room by the unsightly cord which dangles from the socket.

The wiring in most homes can be made to give greater service today by the addition of convenience outlets (usually the duplex type, which permits two things to be connect to one outlet.) In general, we need one of these for each fifty square feet of floor in the room. These may be placed in the wall near the floor or at a height of three or four feet above the floor to save bending over when we connect an appliance. Another feature of the properly wired home is a wall switch to control each of the principal lighting fixtures.

As a protection against accident, the main switch, which controls all the lights in the house, and the fuses should be a modern metal box so designed that there can be no possibility of an electric shock.

Every householder is interested in these devices for comfort and convenience in the use of electric service, but he should not attempt to make changes in the wiring of the house without the services of a competent electrician who understands the precautions which must be taken for safety. There are specific rules in every city designed for the protection of the public and all changes in wiring must be made according to these rules.

lighted matches, cigars and cigarettes away without seeing where they fall; he tells one not to try to start fires with kerosene, nor to go into dark closets, bedrooms or cellars with lighted matches and not to use lighted candles on Christmas trees; he further cautions against keeping gasoline, naphtha or benzine in the house, and ends the list of twenty-one rules with the commandment: "Do not look for gas leaks with a lighted match or candle."

PARTY AT RANCH

Celebration Saturday Night For Masked Guests.

One of the jolliest parties of the Halloween season was the one given Saturday evening at the J. Polk Harris Ranch, near Maryneal, with Mr. and Mrs. Wes Edwards as host and hostess.

The ranch home was artistic in its Halloween adornment and the yellow shaded lights. Jack o' lanterns made of red pumpkins furnished a spooky light, which corresponded to the ghostly guests who seemed to be guided by the witch in their annual frolic. All guests were masked and the majority were in costumes.

The masks were not removed for some time after the dance began but the surprise to many was quite complete as to who their partners had been.

When the refreshment hour arrived each guest was given a lunch box beautifully adorned in Halloween colors and with it went choice of coffee or chocolate. Everything was characterized by true western hospitality, which was enjoyed to the fullest. Tom Hughes, Fred Rogge, and Dave Anderson of Merkle on the violins, and Lewis Rogge and Mrs. Anderson, piano, furnished the music for the dance program, which included some "square dances."

A number of Sweetwater people were present among whom were: Mr. and Mrs. R. K. McAdams, Dr. and Mrs. K. M. Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Boothe and children; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rogge, Misses Francis Louise Payne, Bernice Sheridan, Vera Music, Margaret Morrow, and Melody Simmons.

Miss Maurine Bower returned Sunday night to her home at Abilene, following a visit of several days here guest of Miss Ruth Davis. Saturday evening a number of Miss Davis' friends gathered at her home to meet her guests. They spent several hours very pleasantly with music and games.

Mrs. Tom Flack and little daughter Louise of Dallas, who returned home with her sister, Miss Janice Dulaney, have gone to Coleman to visit Mr. Flack's uncle, Dr. N. B. Bowie and wife, for a few days, but will return here before going to Dallas.

The Choral Club will meet Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in their regular business session and song rehearsals will begin about 4:15. Each member is urged to be on time.

Miss Edith Bradford was Sunday guest of Miss Jessie Clayton at Roscoe.

Hostess at Rest Rooms.
Among many of the good things to the credit of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Board of City Development might be mentioned the courtesy they showed the women of the county and transient visitors last week by keeping a woman in charge of the rest room at the court house. Mrs. Taylor was in charge and was able to give information to anyone in search of it and to care for packages, etc., left in her charge while they visited at the Fair grounds. Many have hoped that it might be made a permanent arrangement.

Miss Rita Brashear has returned from a week-end visit at Breckenridge with her aunt, Mrs. J. W. Mings, who formerly lived here.

SLEEPLESSNESS

Virginia Lady Says That Many of Her Long-Suffered Ills Have Healed Since She Took Cardui.

Bristol, Va.—"I can sleep good at night now, something I have never done before in my life," says Mrs. Deala Hawks, of 712 Prospect St., this city, "and it is due to Cardui."

"I was always nervous and tossed when I should have been asleep, but since I took Cardui it has strengthened me, and my general health is so improved that many of the ill from which I have suffered for years have fled."

"I used to go to bed tired and, when I would get up in the morning, I was still tired. Now I feel like doing a day's work in my garden or in the house, and I owe all this good health to Cardui, for I had suffered for years until I took it."

"I had had female trouble for years and once, for six months, I was flat on my back. I am glad to recommend to other women a medicine which has helped me."

If you are nervous and run-down in health, suffering as Mrs. Hawks describes above, it is probable that Cardui will greatly help you. Try it. NC-157
