COOLIDGE ASKS TAX REDUCTION

Inaugural Address of Re-Elected President Has Three Fold Program Outlined.

PLEDGES STRICT ECONOMY

Full Cooperation With Nations of World Stipulated in Address—Heard by Radio.

By United Press. WASHINGTON, March 4.—Clothed with a direct mandate from the people Calvin Coolidge today dedicated himself and his administration to the lightening of the tax burden at home and to the promotion of peace through mutual understanding with the nations of the world.

These two purposes were outlined in high relief by Mr. Coolidge in his inaugural address, delivered from a simply-decorated stand at the east entrance of the Capitol just after he had taken his second oath of office as President of the United States.

Dividing his attention almost equally between affairs at home and problems abroad, and between things accomplished and achievements hoped for, Mr. Coolidge spoke with assurance as to the future, declaring that because of action already taken, an era of prosperity lay ahead and a firmer courage and a higher hope inspired the heart of all humanity.

"We have been, and propose to be, more and more American," he declared. "If we have any heritage, it has been that. If we have any destiny we have found it in that direction."

Accord with this purpose, he asserted, demands the conduct of government along certain definite lines.

These lines in the field of domestic affairs point, first, to the exercise of greater economy in government, and second, to reduction of taxation, he continued. The recent election, he said had demonstrated that "the policy that stands out with the greatest clearness is that of economy in public expenditure with reduction and reform of taxation."

"I favor the policy of economy, not because I wish to save money, but because I wish to save the people," he continued. "The men and women of this country who toil are the ones who bear the cost of government. Every dollar that we needlessly waste means that their life will be so much the more meager. Every dollar that we prudently save means that their life will be so much more abundant."

He reiterated his advocacy of American adherence to the Permanent Court of International Justice; declared that America having taken the lead in the movement for limitation of armaments, "that lead America must continue to hold;" favored continuation of the policy of participation in world conferences "whenever conditions are such that there is even a promise that practical and favorable results might be secured," bespoke continuation of aid to mitigate human suffering and assist in the rehabilitation of distressed nations, and expressed sympathy with the movement to clarify international law and to bring about the outlawing of aggressive war.

Coolidge Sworn In As 30th President

Thousands Witness Solemn Ceremony That Is Shorn of Splendor Which Has Characterized Inauguration Before.

ADDRESS IS BROADCAST

Far Ends of Nation Hear Oath Administered by Chief Justice Taft as Radio Amplifiers Fling Words Far and Wide

By United Press. WASHINGTON, March 4.—In a brilliant but unpretentious pageant Calvin Coolidge today renewed his oath as President of the United States and took his place as the 30th president of the nation. Standing upon the steps of the capitol, the president reaffirmed his pledge of office and threefold program of economy, tax reduction and cooperation with the nations of the world.

His head bared to the chill March breeze, Chief Justice Taft, himself a former president, administered the oath on the Bible that Coolidge today renewed his oath of office as thirtieth President of the United States in a brilliant ceremonial at the steps of the capitol.

Before the judicial, diplomatic and military peage of the nation massed at the eastern entrance—where presidents of history have launched their administrations—Mr. Coolidge reaffirmed his pledge to his office and to the constitution.

His slow and even drawl leaped out through the radio amplifier in front of him to span the earth. It was the first time an inauguration has been broadcast. He said:

"I, Calvin Coolidge, do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States, so help me God."

The event signalized the coming of the new vice president, new cabinet members and a new congress.

It was a solemn contrast to the scene in the early morning hours of August 3, 1923, when in the dim light of a flickering oil lamp upon the table of his Vermont farmhouse, Mr. Coolidge took the oath administered by his father.

Then only half a dozen witnesses—shocked at the sudden death of Warren G. Harding a few hours before—were present. Today the highest dignitaries of the land came to officiate. Black-robed justices of the United States supreme court stood by his side. Chief Justice Taft, himself a former President, dressed in the solemn robes of his high office, administered the oath instead of the unshaven, aged and horny-handed farmer-father of the President, John Coolidge.

Glittering troops stood round in even rows—soldiers, sailors and marines. Plumed and braided ambassadors, ministers and foreign diplomats were there. Thousands of citizens thronged the square.

The ceremonies started early in the morning when the house and senate convened for their final session. For hours crowds surged along Pennsylvania avenue, in front of the capitol and the White House at places of vantage.

An hour before noon the congressional committee appointed to escort the new vice president Charles G. Dawes, called at his hotel.

The committee was composed of Senator Frederick Hale of Maine and Representatives Willis C. Hawley of Oregon and Arthur B. Rouse of Kentucky. They brought Dawes to the White House where they met Mr. Coolidge and the congressional committee appointed to escort the President. Members of this committee were: Senator Charles E. Curtis of Kansas, Representative W. W. Griest of Pennsylvania and Senator Overman of North Carolina.

For nearly an hour the military escort had waited outside the White House. Cavalry horses, pawing at the hard pavement swung into the lead at the sign from the front door that the President was ready to start. The leading band sailed off with a snappy march and the troops fell in behind.

The quadrennial parade up Pennsylvania avenue from the White House to the capitol was unlike any in recent years. Four years ago today Woodrow Wilson, with little else but his spirit remaining, sat beside the smiling and genial Warren G. Harding in the first automobile. Today Mr. Coolidge sat alone with Mrs. Coolidge and the congressional committee. Behind the first automobile came another carrying Vice President Dawes and his committee. It is just exactly a mile from the White House to the Capitol. The whole way was lined on both sides with cheering crowds. Mr. Coolidge acknowledged their greetings with a tip of his high silk hat. Arriving at the capitol the party was escorted into the senate chamber where Mr. Coolidge affixed his signature to bills passed at the last moment before the hour of noon automatically put an end to the session.

Facing the desk of President pro-tem Cummins in front of the chamber were arrayed chairs for the President, the new vice president and members of the cabinet. The first act was the administration of the oath to General Dawes and then Cummins relinquished the gavel to him. Dawes introduced the chaplain for prayer and then delivered his inaugural address.

Every inch of the small senate chamber was crowded. Only those with high official influence could obtain tickets to the gallery where the fashionably dressed wives of government dignitaries predominated. Members of the house of representatives crowded upon the floor so that there was hardly standing room.

Then the proclamation of the president convening the senate in an extra session to confirm his cabinet changes was read. The new senators who were elected in the Coolidge landslide of last November then came forward to be sworn.

This concluded the ceremonies inside, and a slow march to the center front steps of the capitol where huge stands had been erected was begun. The stands—of Corinthian architecture—were larger than at the last inauguration and accommodations were made to seat 8,000. Thousands of others covered the big square.

The marine band played a solemn march as the little procession headed by Mr. Coolidge and Dawes, members of the supreme court and senators and congressmen wended their ways down to the platform.

In the center at the front, high above the seated audience, was a stand upon which there lay an ancient Bible—the one upon which George Washington placed his hand to give his oath as first President of the United States. The Bible belongs to the St. John's Masonic lodge of New York and is furnished for each inauguration.

Without further ado the oath was administered by Chief Justice Taft while the silent thousands stood with bowed heads. When the last words came through the amplifiers the marine band swung into the "Star Spangled Banner" and the crowd cheered. Mr. Coolidge then began his inaugural address. When it was concluded the band played "America" and the party left the stand.

Souvenir hunters crowded forward to take what they could find. The band went back to their barracks. The President rode back to the White House, swiftly now, escorted only by secret service men. The new senate adjourned to meet again tomorrow.

A new administration of the United States had been launched for four more years. The inaugural was over.

BURIAL OF BOOTHE

Where was John Wilkes Boothe buried? Was he captured and shot shortly after the death of President Lincoln at his hands or did he escape from his captors? Standard histories for years have carried the story that he was shot by the posses in pursuit. A recurrence of rumors has appeared in various publications recently. They are reproduced herewith, including a story from Chicago, one from Washington, Topeka and a clipping from the Carlisle, Ky., Mercury, for which the Reporter is indebted to Rev. B. B. Hestir. The various items follow:

Officer Talks.

Chicago—Col. James Hamilton Davidson, formerly commander of the 122d infantry, revealed what he said was the burial place of John Wilkes Boothe, assassin of President Lincoln, considered a secret for sixty years.
Colonel Davidson was in command at Portsmouth, Virginia, the night of Booth's burial and was told of it by Colonel Baker, head of the secret service of the army. Since then, Davidson says, the information given him has been kept secret. Davidson has been blind for twelve years.

"Just after the shooting of Booth at Bowling Green, Va. by Sergt. Boston Corbett," says Colonel Davidson, "a report came to me about a group of men acting mysteriously in the middle of the night around one of the warehouses.

"I didn't have to wait long for my information. The head of the secret service in the army, Colonel Baker, came to me the next morning and said he wanted to see me in strict privacy.

"This is what he said:
"Last night I brought into Portsmouth the body of Booth, the man who killed the President. Six of my men carried it on a stretcher to the first warehouse on the north. We took it into the basement, where we dug a grave.
"The body was placed there and covered with acid. Then the grave was filled with limestone and dirt.
"I was not able to get in touch with you last night, but since this is your command, I thought you ought to know. Every man of us is pledged to secrecy. Will you promise never to say a word?"

"That was sixty years ago. There can't be any harm in telling it now. The country ought to know."

sions of the burial of John Wilkes Booth have been in circulation for years.

One generally accredited here is that the body of Lincoln's assassin was buried on the ground floor of the old Washington penitentiary and later removed, at the request of his relatives, to Greenmount cemetery, Baltimore.

In an article in the Saturday Evening Post last year, H. H. Kohlsaat quoted from this correspondence, declaring the body had been delivered to the slayer's brother, Edwin Booth, who directed the reburial.

Another story is that Booth's body was removed from under a slab in the Washington prison and placed on board the United States monitor Montauk, one night in May, 1865. Then, according to the story, heavy irons were fastened to the hands and feet and the body deposited in the Potomac about ten miles from Washington

In a copyrighted interview obtained by the Minneapolis Minn., Star, Blanche Booth, niece of John Wilkes Booth, said that her uncle escaped to Canada and from there to Mexico, by way of San Francisco, where he met his mother. Miss Booth declared John Wilkes Booth committed suicide in 1903 at Enid, Okla. According to the niece, he left a sworn statement declaring that Andrew Johnson, vice-president, who succeeded Lincoln, suggested the crime and arranged for his escape. "The man killed in the barn on the Garrett plantation near Bowling Green Va., was named Ruddy," Miss Booth declared.

Topeka—Sergt. Boston Corbett, referred to in Colonel Davidson's story as the man who shot John Wilkes Booth, was for many years a resident of Concordia, Kans. Twenty-five years ago he was identified while working in Topeka, and again disappeared. According to acquaintances, he has never been heard of since.

The Booth Bed.

The Mercury has received from Mr. E. Clark Fritts, of Lexington, formerly of Carlisle, the following interesting letter concerning the bed on which John Wilkes Booth died.

"It was R. C. Garrett who has the famous Booth feather bed. R. B. Garrett was the minister who came to the Carlisle Baptist Church in 1882. He married Miss Anna Laura Howe, of Mt. Sterling and went to housekeeping in Carlisle, after which his two maiden sisters came to make their home with him. His brother, R. C., accompanied his sisters here and was so taken with Kentucky that he returned to Virginia disposed of his property and moved to Kentucky, where he became known as 'Bob.'

"The only witness outside of the Garretts who now survives is a Mr. McDonald of Illinois, who was a member of the cavalymen who captured Booth on the Garrett farm in Virginia. It was on April 26, 1865, a beautiful spring day; the Garretts had their feather beds on the porch, giving them an airing and sun bath. Booth died on the bed on the porch. He was shot in the barn, carried to the porch, and placed on the bed, where he died."

Don't let gray hair suggest age. It often comes long before age is due. Keep your dark hair glossy. Keep it looking like a girl's. The way is quick and easy.

Do it, if you wish, like the women of old times—by brewing sage tea and adding sulphur and alcohol. But there is now a better way.

The preparation is ready-made. It has some additions of great value. All druggists supply it under the name Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. It is not sticky or greasy. It is easy to apply. The results are quick, and so even, so natural that nobody knows you have used it.

This old way is still the best way to darken gray hair. Generations of women have used sage tea, but never so many as today.

Apply it at night as directed, and morning brings an amazing change. Apply it once or twice more and the hair returns to the darkness, the luster, the softness of youth.

The cost is a trifle—not more than 10 cents for every year that it makes you look younger. Think what that means to you.

65 Years of Pain stopped in this matchless way

For 65 years St. Jacobs Oil has been ending pain for millions. It stops at once most of the pains we suffer, and gives Nature a chance to cure. All pains allied to rheumatism, to backache and lameness are among them. And the pains and dangers of chest colds. Some results come through counter irritation. Some by relieving congestion, by bringing the blood to the skin. All are prompt. Before you start rubbing on St. Jacobs Oil the pain ebbs away. Then you forget the trouble, while Nature has a chance to cure the cause. You can afford to wait.

CHAMPION NEWS

Special to Reporter.

March came in like a lamb but February went out like a raging lion. Two or three sand storms in a week is a pretty good record for this part of Texas. How the sand and tumble weeds did blow! Millions of seeds were scattered over farms, gardens and pasture. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. A few hours put in destroying weeds and their seed would save a lot of grief later on.

Farmers have nearly all their land broken and listed or "put up" as it is called. The ground is in splendid condition for a big rain for in its present state of being freshly broken it would absorb it all. March is here and planting will soon be in order.

News items are scarce. This community is "pursuing the noiseless tenor of their way." Merchants say business is dull during the week days as most people are in the fields. The flu epidemic seems to hold on very tenaciously. There have been no real serious cases of it, but not many have entirely escaped.

Grandpa Bankhead is reported able to be up again.

Mrs. Perry is still confined to her bed.

Mrs. Lillian Kirk is on the sick list this week.

Mrs. P. W. Bennett is reported as having an attack of the flu.

The girls and boys basketball teams went to Brownlee Friday and won both games. Our girls still boast of having won 100 per cent of the games played. Champion should be proud of its girls' basketball team. Coach Minor says the team must win some more games and some very intensive practice is in store for it.

The school is doing nicely and the attendance is holding up well considering so much sickness in the community. Several of our young ladies are in the Reporter's voting contest and we may expect some lively hustling around for votes.

The Methodists held their regular church services Sunday.

PLASTERCO NEWS
Special to the Reporter.
Plasterco School Girls Win District Championship.
Plasterco High won the last game of the district championship series from Hitson at Hamlin Feb. 25, with a score of 29 to 10. Although Plasterco was in the lead throughout the game at times the Hitson quintet flashed and threatened to overtake the "Gyp Millers." The game was played on the Hamlin High School court before a frenzied crowd. Plasterco was there with the pep of the school. Hitson centers were likewise in noisy attendance.

The "Gyp Millers" are now the undisputed champions of the northeast quarter of Fisher County and will represent this district in the county finals at Roby. Myrna Belle Mayo was high point player with 18 points. The Plasterco coach, Mrs. J. H. Bankston, a former student of N. T. S. T. C. is much elated at the showing her team has made and declares that barring injuries and sickness, the team will cop the county championship. This team has played McCaully one time, White Pond four times, Hitson two times, Hamlin one time, and the outsiders of Plasterco one time, and still hold the percentage of 1.000.

The line up:
Plasterco: Myrna Belle Mayo, Fannie Terrel, forward; Edith Johnson,

Spring is really the most fascinating time of the year in which to buy frocks—probably because we like our clothes to reflect the gaiety of our spirits. They seem lovelier almost than they have ever been before.
