Sidney Welk Dies In Electric Chair

First White Man to Be Electrocutated At Huntsville Goes to His Death at 12:15 A. M. Friday Morning—Dies Quickly.

REVEALS NAMES OF AIDES Tells Dallas Sheriff Cost $1,000 to Smuggle Pistols Into Jail With Which Champion Was Killed—Jokes With Jailers.

By United Press.
HUNTSVILLE, April 3.—Sidney J. "Pete" Welk, 31, has paid the penalty for the murder of Willis Champion, Dallas County jailer, and Texas' electric chair claimed its first white victim when Welk went to his death at 12:15 a. m. today calmly and with a smile on his face.
Shortly before being strapped in the chair, Welk bid goodbye to Lavinia Twitty, negro condemned to death.
"You have only 60 days more. You had better come along with me," Welk told Twitty jokingly.
Shortly before Welk went to his doom he is reported to have told Sheriff Schuyler Marshall of Dallas County the names of those involved in the plot to liberate him from the Dallas County jail and that it cost $1000 to smuggle the pistols and ammunition into the jail. The names of none of those involved in the plot were revealed.

The death march began at 12 minutes before midnight. With a firm tread and head erect Welk walked into the death chamber and seated himself in the electric chair. The condemned man turned to Sheriff Schuyler Marshall and said:
"Give all the boys my best regards and tell them I hope to meet them in a better world."
As the attendants strapped the condemned man in the chair he admonished them to "take your time and have the best of luck."
At 12:15 the first charge of 1800 volts caused the erect body to shudder and slump in the straps which held it. After several seconds it was reduced to 250 volts and left for 30 seconds. This was repeated three times. At 12:19 Dr. Bush, prison physician, pronounced Welk dead.

MYSTERY PLANES

Britain Building Fast Air Speedsters To Compete With United States For Speed.
LONDON, April 3.—Britain is putting every available ounce of her best brain power and horse power into a super British effort to letch one the aerial speed kings of the United States, France and Italy.

Acroplanes capable of a speed ranging from 270 to 280 miles an hour are on the way, according to aviation circles. They call the new craft "flying bullets". At least two of them it is said are going to invade Baltimore next October in a desperate attempt to lift the Schneider cup.
A lot of "hush! hush!" surrounds the grooming of the Schneider cup candidates, but a few people who are "in the know" have earnestly let the report get about that the laurel-seeking racers will be capable of doing something like five miles a minute.

Chief reliance is being placed on a plane that was tried out last year, but never took part in any air racing. It is said to have done 215 miles an hour without even fully opening the throttle.
Modifications have now been introduced which add to the "hopes" racing power. Wings have been clipped to secure greater velocity, it is stated, until they are a little more than stubby jutting projections jutting out from the fuselage. Streamlined from end to end, the machine is pictured as the very image of a projectile in flight. It has a 450 horse-power engine, reported capable of developing about 600 horse-power.

GET SMALL PAY

Over 50 per Cent. Pay Envelopes Less Than $25 Week

CHICAGO, April 3.—One person out of seventy-two in the United States has an income of more than $4,000 a year, declared R. B. Cook, of Chicago, in an address at a national convention of commercial educators here.
"Fifty-three per cent of the pay envelopes of America contain less than twenty five dollars a week" said Cook who is general sales manager of one of the large provision companies. "Of the 42,000,000 people who are doing the actual work of America fewer than 4 per cent are in the class receiving above $4,000 a year. At the same time there are estimated to be 750,000 major executive positions in the United States paying salaries up to $100,000 and 10 per cent of these have to be refilled every year."

CANCER BAFFLING

Cause of Disease And Cure Not Yet Discovered
NEW YORK, April 3.—Cause of human cancer still baffles science according to Dr. Michael Levine, biologist in charge of cancer research at the Montefiore Hospital, New York, who asserts that the recent claims of the discovery of the reason of this disease are preliminary reports and lack adequate proof.
Dr. Levine is engaged in an exhaustive study of plant cancers, and in a report to the board of managers of the New York Botanical Garden he says it has been found that certain types of plant tumors—such as crown galls, "are analogous to human and animal cancer."
Dr. Levine's studies, directed largely toward making comparisons between cancer of animals and plants, are still in progress at the Montefiore Hospital which is providing facilities for studying both human and animal cancers. Plant tumors are photographed under the microscope in the process of investigating cancer-like growths of plants.

Widow Slain Man Testifies In Trial

Mrs. Lamar Schrier Details Shooting of Her Husband of Only Few Months on Rankin Dance Floor in July, 1921.

Examination Rebuttal Witnesses Continued At Trial T. F. Hickox Charged With Shooting of Lamar Schrier.

The prosecution resumed examination of rebuttal witnesses upon the opening of the fifth day of the Hickox murder trial Friday morning and rested shortly before the noon recess following a lengthy questioning of Mrs. Lamar Schrier, widow of the man for whose death T. F. Hickox, 70, Rankin, is being tried for murder.
Preceding Mrs. Schrier on the stand were Mrs. Ray McLoflin, daughter of Sheriff Garner who testified Thursday; and Orient Road Master Poland. The testimony given by W. J. Pool at the San Angelo trial was read from the stand by George Thurmond of the prosecution. The cross examination of Pool was read by Dibrell of the defense counsel.
Poland was called to the stand after Pool's testimony was read and was questioned concerning an alleged threat against Hickox. The defense objected, however, and the two opposing counsels retired to the judge's office with Judge Leslie. They emerged after some time and Poland was excused without further questioning.
Mrs. Ray McLoflin, San Angelo, testified that she attended the Rankin dance and saw Hickox approach Schrier and young Tom Hickox.

Griffin will be placed on the stand by the state in rebuttal testimony after the defense has raised the question of the sanity of young Purdy.
The asylum superintendent has long been known as an insanity expert who does not believe in temporary insanity. He said in a recent interview: "I have no patience with men who claim they are temporarily insane when they commit crime. There is no such thing as that kind of insanity."

MARKET & GROCERY

"I saw him draw his gun and saw he fire from the gun," she said.
The crowded court room became suddenly quiet as Thurmond called for Mrs. Lamar Schrier and all eyes turned to the door where the widow of the slain man entered. Calm and composed, Mrs. Schrier took the witness stand and in a clear voice, answered the questions of leading prosecution attorney Thurmond.
She and Schrier were married in February before the killing. Her husband was to go to work on the Y ranch north of Rankin, she said. He drove their household goods to Rankin in a wagon, while she went on the train, arriving at Rankin on July 11. On Tuesday night following their arrival, one of the horses her husband had driven "disappeared", she said. The team was borrowed from Sweetwater, Mrs. Schrier stated.
"Did you and your husband attend the dance at Rankin on the night of July 20?"
"Yes."
"What time did you go to the dance?"
"A little after dark."
"Did you dance?"
"Yes."
"Did your husband dance?"
"No."
"Did he know how to dance?"
"No."
"Did you know W. J. Jameson and his present wife?"
The couple were brought into the court room and placed before Mrs. Schrier. She answered that she knew them.
"Did your husband have a conversation with the Jamesons?" she was asked.
"Yes. My husband and I were standing by the door and the Jamesons came up. Mrs. Jameson said he was ready to go home. I asked her if she was tired and she said yes. I asked her why didn't they stay, and she said she thought the hotel was full. My husband said 'you all stay all night with us.'
"Did your husband ask Jameson to take a drink?"
"No sir."
"Was anything said by your husband to Jameson relative to Jameson staying because Schrier expected to have trouble?"
A defense objection was overruled and Mrs. Schrier replied "No sir."
"Did your husband say to Jameson, making such a statement as this? 'Don't go to kill a ————.'
"I'm going to kill a ————."
A defense objection was overruled and Mrs. Schrier replied "No."
"Was he drinking ———— at the time?"
"No, he didn't drink."
Continuing with questions concerning events leading up to the killing, Thurmond later asked "What was the first you knew of the trouble?"
"I heard the noise of a scuffle," Mrs. Schrier replied. "I jumped to my feet and the next instant the shot was fired. I just rushed to where I heard the shot. I just felt that

THE FARM OUTLOOK

The following excerpts are taken from the Santa Fe System Bulletin: A marked shortage of hogs during the coming year appears probable and hog prices should advance to much higher levels. Increased breeding for fall farrowing, therefore, should be profitable. The feeding demand for 1925 feed crops will be smaller than during the present crop year. Corn and oat acreages, therefore, should not be increased especially by farmers who sell their crops. Immediate prospects for the cattle industry appear moderately favorable. Prices for 1925 should average somewhat higher than for 1924, with the decreased supply of pork products as the chief strengthening factor. All conditions indicate that the industry is gradually working into a more favorable position. The outlook of the poultry industry during 1925 from the standpoint of market egg prices is favorable, but from the standpoint of immediate poultry prices it is not so encouraging. Higher prices for other meats and possibly reduced feed costs should increase poultry profits during the latter part of 1925 and early 1926. Cotton exports from the United States for January amounted to 1,100,000 bales of 500 pounds making the total exports from September 1 to January 31 about 5,300,000 bales as compared with 3,750,000 bales in the same months of last season. This is the first season since 1913-14 when exports for the first five months have amounted to more than 5,000,000 bales. Exports to Germany and Japan were particularly heavy in January. Russia again figured in the exports, taking about 10,600 bales of long staple cotton.

Lines Written in Early Spring.

I heard a thousand blended notes, While in that sweet grove I reclined In that sweet mood when pleasant thoughts Bring sad thoughts to the mind.

To her fair works did Nature link The human soul that through me ran; And much it grieved my heart to think What Man has made of Man.

Through primrose tufts, in that sweet bower, The periwinkle trailed its wreaths; And 'tis my faith that every flower Enjoys the air it breathes.

The birds around me hopped and played, Their thoughts I cannot measure— But the last motion which they made It seemed a thrill of pleasure.

The budding twigs spread out their fan To catch the breezy air; And I must think, to all I can, That there was pleasure there.

If this belief from heaven be sent, If such be nature's holy plan, Have I not reason to lament What Man has made of Man? —Wordsworth

VOTE

As a citizen it is up to you to go to the polls Saturday and vote for school trustees. It is up to you to go to the polls Tuesday and vote for the city officials who will administer the affairs of your city for the next two years.

This is your city. You are vitally interested in its growth, progress and prosperity. Your vote will be a vital factor in determining who will be the men in office.

There is no more important institution in this city than its schools. They are entirely too important to permit a mere handful of voters to determine the policies of the school board for the next year.

Whether or not Sweetwater continues on its upward trend which has been so marked in recent years will depend in no small measure upon the caliber of men elected to city office.

Upon you as a voter rests the responsibility. Let nothing keep you away from the polls on Saturday and on Tuesday. Do your duty as a citizen and vote for the progress of Sweetwater.

WHAT'S THE USE?

Dr. J. W. T. Duval, in charge of the grain futures administration act in Washington has started an investigation into the cause for the drop in the price of wheat. It flopped 51 cents in two weeks, ruining many of the little speculators who thought they were on the way to get-rich-quick heaven while the price was just as remarkably on the way up. More than a hundred million American citizens who were not greatly affected while the price was going up or down will regard this latest inquiry from Washington as a wholly unimportant public business. The report of a scarcity in wheat stocks and prospects sent the price kiting, but as the same inverse influences sent it down. Those who gambled in these uncertainties did so with their eyes open and with due warning from all friendly influences whose lot it is to save the poor sucker from harm. If they lost their savings it was their own fault.

Besides calling a halt on income tax publication, the government at Washington has forbidden giving out information concerning application for passports. The next step, we understand, is to forbid publication of election news until after the electoral college meets and casts its vote for President.

From a Topeka reporter's biography of Dr. Jardine: "The cowboys wear chaps to protect their legs from being gored by the long horns of the cattle."

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The Anti-Saloon League of America, having written the eighteenth amendment into the constitution, but finding its enforcement to date to have been both half-hearted and inefficient, is reputed to be getting "all set" to make prohibition enforcement the deciding factor in the nomination and election of the next president.

Leading the list of presidential eligibles, under the specifications, is said to be Senator Frank B. Willis of Ohio. Willis has been suspected, for the past eight years, of harboring a presidential bee. A regular among regulars on all Republican economic issues, Willis steps out of the ranks when it comes to the matter of prohibition and displays a dry insurgency that not even Morris Sheppard, who introduced the amendment, can surpass.

Willis and the Anti-Saloon League sort of grew up together. His old home at Ada, O., is not far from Westerville, the birthplace and still the headquarters of the league. Willis fought the league's fight in his early political battles in Ohio, and it was in no small part league support that sent him to Congress, made him governor of his state, and finally a senator.

Willis will put in the next several

And best of all it does it at once—quickly and pleasantly. Take one small tablet at bed-time and you will get up hungry and feeling fine. Recalms led by months, while Congress is adjourned, lecturing and speechmaking throughout the country. He is a speaker who fills both eye and ear. Big, handsome, forceful and with a voice that needs no microphone to relay it to the farthest corner of a Chautauqua grove. Willis is expected by his league adherents to scatter far and wide the seeds of a personal popularity that will produce a crop of hardy pro-Willis, pro-prohibition fans in time for the presidential campaign of 1928.

As a presidential possibility on a primarily prohibition platform Willis would be expected to pledge the creation of an independent enforcement unit, the one and only job of which would be to see that the liquor lid was clamped down and kept down. One of the chief handicaps to enforcement from the league's viewpoint, is that it is handled by a subordinate bureau of a department that must look after a lot of things besides prohibition.

The grooming of Willis for possible entry in the 1928 contest is of particular interest because it brings a second Ohioan into the field of likely contenders for the G. O. P. nomination that year. And oddly enough, Willis' Buckeye rival for G. O. P. favor is expected to be none other than the debonaire, bald-headed, genial, Nicholas Longworth, political protégé of wet Cincinnati, recently chosen as speaker-to-be of the next Congress.

Promotion to the speakership is understood to have inoculated Longworth with an active case of presidential itch, which equals in virulence, if not in vocal volume, that of his fellow statesman. So far Longworth is soft-pedaling mention of 1928. Willis, too, for that matter, will disclaim any open activity to influence the result of that still distant day.

But an unmistakable light gleams in the eyes of each of them when 1928 is mentioned. Real Buck-eyes!

Plans for 1928, however, whether by individuals or organizations, seem premature.

If President Coolidge makes good and desires a second term in his own name, his party probably will hand him the nomination. That's a party tradition that would be hard to violate without repudiating his administration. And the next three years may so solve the prohibition enforcement problem that a presidential campaign on a straight wet-and-dry issue may not seem necessary to even the most ardent enforcement advocate.

Boil 6 eggs—20 minutes.
Remove shells and cut in halves. Mash yolks with a fork until smooth and light, then add 1-4 teaspoon salt 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons finely minced ham, enough cream to moisten.
Put mixture back in whites of eggs and press together. Lay in shallow baking dish and pour over them 1 cup thick tomato sauce or tomato soup. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and 1/4 of butter. Bake in hot oven.

DID YOU KNOW—
One-half teaspoon baking powder added to mashed potatoes or carrots, together with the milk, and beaten thoroughly, makes a delightfully light and appetizing dish.
When making an omelet, if a teaspoon of baking powder is added to every four eggs and beaten in thoroughly, the omelet will be considerably lighter, more attractive and tasty.
Boiled frostings or uncooked icings will be much improved by adding a small amount of baking powder.

WIDOW TESTIFIES

"I don't know what hit me." That's the last he said," the witness concluded with a slight break in her voice. The boots which Schrier wore when he was shot were placed before the witness for identification and were offered by the prosecution as evidence. Mrs. Schrier was then asked a question or two by defense attorney Dibrell, was excused, and the State announced that they rested.

Cecil Sammons and Bill Nix were recalled by the defense as rebuttal witnesses and testified concerning Schrier's body. Sammons testified again concerning the gun being taken from Schrier's boot. Nix said Bill Green was not present when he was talking to John Schrier about removing the boots from the dead man.

Rebuttal Witnesses

Seven rebuttal witnesses were examined by the State during the afternoon hearing Thursday.

Miss Marie Scott, Buena Vista, Herman Marchison, Bob Weatherby, Big Lake, and Gribham Taylor were the first four to take the stand following the noon recess. Their testimony centered mostly around events transpiring at the Rankin garage and at the confectionery, where Schrier's body was taken following the shooting.

W. T. Green testified that he sat on the porch of the confectionery near Schrier's head, and testified that he saw no one remove anything from the dead man's body. He said he saw no weapons on the body, except a pocket knife in one pocket.

Green stated that he and Will Nix, owner of the confectionery, pulled off Schrier's boots in the presence of Schrier's brother, John, and others. He testified that there was no gun in Schrier's boots.

A cross examination by Dibrell failed to shake Green's testimony.

Less Heller, Big Lake, followed Green on the stand and testified concerning the shooting which he said he witnessed from the dance floor. He saw Schrier and Tom Hickox in a "clinch," he said, then T. F. Hickox walk hurriedly toward them, walk around nearly back of Schrier, and shoot. Heller was within ten feet of the two boys when Hickox fired, he said.

After a protest by the defense counsel was overruled, Heller placed prosecution attorneys Thurmond and Brooks in a "clinch" as he said Schrier and young Hickox were at the time of the shooting. At the direction of Thurmond, Heller, acting the part of Hickox, "shot" Thurmond in the back with his finger.

It was the third time the killing had been enacted before the jury.

Heller calmly answered the rapid fire cross examination shot at him by Dibrell, and his testimony remained unshaken.

W. T. Stillman, San Antonio, testified that he was present at the Rankin dance, and that he saw the shooting. His testimony was similar to that of Heller's.

PHONE HEAD IS EARLY SUCCESS

Walter S. Gifford at 40 is President of American Telephone Company.

A CLERK 20 YEARS AGO.

He Started From Scratch With Neither Wealth Nor "Pull" and Won Out.

At 40 most men of today have only a fair start on the road to success. Success being that modern term of his material world synonymous with wealth and power. The majority of men never arrive at the goal. To achieve success at 40 is rare. To start from scratch, to have neither wealth nor "pull" lend a hand in the struggle, and reach the top at 40 is rarer still.

That unusual distinction was conferred the other day on one Walter S. Gifford when he was made president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, known as a 2 billion-dollar corporation, and one of the very biggest of our gigantic business institutions. At 19 Mr. Gifford had a Harvard education and a normal ambition to succeed. Nothing more. He wrote two letters asking for a job, one to the General Electric Company the other to the Western Electric Co. and had the old fortune put them in the wrong envelopes. The Western Electric replied, offering him a job as payroll clerk in its Chicago office. He borrowed money to buy a railroad ticket and left his home in Salem Mass., to begin his climb to the position he now holds.

Began With Statistics.

For three years he worked in Chicago figuring "time" in an exacting job, although the mathematics involved in comparatively simple. Gifford became something of a "shark" at it. Short cuts he evolved in the course of his work resulted in the saving of considerable time and clerk hire. This attracted the attention of the management, and the young Mr. Gifford was moved up to a clerkship in the secretary-controller's office. Later he became assistant secretary and treasurer.

About that time the New York manager of the company heard of him. He was summoned to New York and put to work. All this had happened in three years. From a mere beginner he had leaped up a that time to the rather dizzy height for a youngster of an officer in a large corporation.

The Western Electric Company manufactures the equipment used by the Bell company. The two are closely related, and it was only natural that Gifford's success should be heard of in the Bell organization. Soon, therefore, after he went to New York, he was sent to Boston to reorganize the accounting system of the telephone company in that city. It was while he was engaged in this work he began gathering statistics which later led to the establishment of the Bell company's statistical bureau, a bureau that has been worth millions of dollars to the telephone company. By means of it the future of the telephone business was lifted out of realm of guess work and firmly planted on facts. "Launched" on the part of the company's executives, by which means the telephone business had been developed, gave way to accurate information.

The Night Letter.

It was to the Bell company's statistical bureau that Gifford devoted his greatest time and energy. He was brought in constant contact with the late Theodore N. Vail, president of the telephone company. A statistical inquiry into telegraph traffic disclosed that the telegraph wires were not carrying the volume of traffic which they were capable of for long periods in the night they were comparatively idle. Gifford put the facts before his chief with the recommendation that something be done about it. Thereupon was born the now familiar "night letter," and later the "day letter," which simple idea has added millions to the income of the telephone company.

In recent years the financial world has been taking note of a phenomenon. A decade or so ago the ownership of America's many corporations was concentrated in a surprisingly small number of hands. Today the ownership of America's railroads, steel mills, motor industries and miscellaneous industrial organizations has become diffuse, and is yearly growing more so. The rich no longer own so large a share of our national wealth; the laborer, the employee, the middle class American, has become a stockholder. That somewhat mythical division of the population into capital and labor has about vanished. In this development may be found the hand of the new president of the telephone company, the hand at least of a pioneer. A number of years ago, in advising his brother about some investments, Mr. Gifford devised a plan of installment purchase, for his brother didn't have money enough to buy outright the stock he wanted. Later he suggested to President Vail the plan of employee stock ownership somewhat similar to that he had worked out for his brother. The telephone company had been thinking of some sort of an insurance scheme for the telephone employees by which they could share in the company's growing prosperity. Gifford's proposals appealed to Vail, and the latter asked the young man to work it out in detail. The plan was instituted, and today seventy thousand employees of the Bell company own 50 million dollars' worth of the company's stock and 125,000 others are buying on the installment plan.

Seniors Play "Kids"

Wednesday morning the high school senior class played "April Fool" on the faculty and other classes by turning back the year to their "first day" school and came dressed in truly "kid costumes." The hour's entertainment came as a perfect surprise to the other pupils, which made the fun all the more uproarious.

The girls wore short dresses and hair bows and the boys came in knee breeches, flowing ties and blouses and many accessories which belonged to the dim and distant past.

25 Miles to the Gallon
58 Miles per Hour
5 to 25 Miles in 8 Seconds

Never before has there been an organization capable of producing at anywhere near the low Maxwell price such speed and power, economy and absence of vibration in a 4-cylinder car.

Chrysler engineers have combined with unprecedented smoothness a speed of 58 miles per hour and a flashing acceleration of 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds.

They have engineered into this motor a gasoline economy of 25 miles to the gallon, and an upkeep economy which brings replacement and repair costs close to the zero mark.

We are eager to prove these Maxwell facts in a demonstration drive.

A fire in a circus—with a vast audience in a frantic stampede; wild animals, escaped from their cages, loose and hurtling, terrified through the crowds, a huge elephant, insane with fear, trampling the screaming mobs—this is the super-thrill that marks the third episode of "The Great Circus Mystery," Adventure Picture which comes today to the Lyric Theater.

The new story of the ring, features Bonomo, world's champion strong man.

QUEEN

"Teeth," the latest starring vehicle of Tom Mix with Tony, the horse, and Duke, the dog, a William Fox production directed by J. G. Blystone was adapted from the popular novel "Sonny" written by Virginia Hudson Brigham, a former well known newspaper woman, and Clinton H. Stagg. In the original story "Sonny" is an Airedale that has many hair breadth escapes. The book is described by its publishers as "a dog story, a love story and a Western story."

In the screen version the sequence and incidents have been slightly changed to allow greater opportunities for Tony, the horse, and Duke, the dog.

PALACE

The Divine Comedy, by the Italian poet Dante which is composed of three separate allegories known as "Inferno," "Purgatory," and "Paradise," is said to have embodied no single theme or moral. One commentator on Dante describes it as "a supreme effort to epitomize the entire gamut of human experience." It is the effort of one who is conceded to be among the six greatest thinkers of all time to crystallize for his fellow men his own answer to the Eternal Riddle—What of the Hereafter?

Of Dante's motive in writing the Divine Comedy, Charles E. Norton says: "The Divine Comedy had its source in his sense of the wretchedness of man in this mortal life, owing to the false direction of his desires, through his ignorance and his misuse of his free will, the chief gift of God to him. The only means of rescue from this wretchedness was the exercise by man of his reason, enlightened by the divine grace in the guidance of his life. To convince man of this truth, to bring home to him the conviction of the eternal consequences of his conduct in this world, to show him the path of salvation, was Dante's aim. This was not to be done in the form of abstract propositions addressed to the understanding, but in a poetic manner which should appeal to the heart and arouse the imagination; a narrative in which human life should be portrayed as an unbroken spiritual existence, prefiguring in its mortal aspect, and expressing its immortal destiny. The poem was not to be a mere criticism of life but a solution of its mystery, an explanation of its meaning, and a guide of its course."

The allegory "Inferno" is the basis for the extraordinary motion picture, produced by William Fox, which is now being shown at the Palace Theater.

BILIOUSNESS

Retired Minister Tells How He Keeps in Good Form With the Assistance of Black-Draught.

West Graham, Va.—The Rev. Lewis Evans, a well-known retired minister, now past 80, living here, has a high opinion of Black-Draught, which he says he has taken when needed, for 25 years.

"For years I had been suffering with my liver," he says. "Sometimes the pain would be very intense and my back would hurt all the time. Black-Draught was the first thing I found that would give me any relief."

"My liver has always been sluggish. Sometimes it gives me a lot of trouble. I have suffered a lot with it—pains in my side and back, and had headache, caused from extreme biliousness."

"After I found Black-Draught, I would begin to take it as soon as I felt a spell coming on and it relieved the cause at once. I can recommend it to anybody suffering from liver trouble. A dose or two now and then keeps me in good form."

Made from selected medicinal roots and herbs, and containing no dangerous mineral drugs, Black-Draught is nature's own remedy for a tired, lazy liver. NC-168
