HEALTH OFFICER TO INSPECT CITY

Official From State Board of Health Will Make Survey of Sanitary Conditions Here

FAIN URGES CLEAN-UP

City Health Officer Stresses Importance Using Trash Truck—Urge Weeds Be Cut

A health officer and sanitary inspector from the State Board of Health will arrive in Sweetwater in the near future to make an inspection of sanitary conditions of the town, and to arrange a report from his survey, here on the general cleanliness, health conditions, and beautification of premises in the residence districts.

This announcement was made by City Health Officer Dr. G. Burton Fain today, who stressed the importance of continuing the clean-up campaign over the city.

A great improvement is seen in premises throughout the city since the commission ordered free use of a trash truck over the city, indicating that citizens are taking advantage of the opportunity to dispose of trash and rubbish accumulated over a number of months.

There are many places, however, the health officer said, where filth and dirt and trash lie uncovered, and where no attempts have been made to clean up the premises.

The health officer asked that citizens everywhere gather trash and rubbish, burn what they can, and place the remainder in sacks or boxes and place where the trash will be accessible to the truck. It is desired that the trash be gathered at the rear or side of houses, rather than at the front, it was said. If any residence is missed by the truck, and the trash is not hauled away within a reasonable length of time, residents may call the city health officer, Number 747, and the trash truck will be sent.

"It is important that Sweetwater take advantage of the trash wagon, and the clean-up campaign, to make all premises clean and sanitary," Fain said. "The city has offered the services of the truck to people free of charge, and now is the time to clean up yards and alleys, dispose of all trash and rubbish, before an epidemic of contagious disease starts."

Dr. Fain stressed the necessity for cutting weeds throughout the city and the necessity of raking up dead weeds and trash in order to make the city pleasing to the eyes as well as clean and sanitary.

"We want a city beautiful as well as a clean sanitary city," Fain declared. When the health officer from the State Health Department inspects the city, he will divide the town into several sections, and give a separate rating to each section. High credit will be given to the sections that are clean, free from trash and rubbish, and beautified with flowers, trees, and free from weeds, it was stated. In his report, those sections of the city where trash and rubbish are found, where unsanitary and filthy conditions prevail, and where weeds cover walks and yards, a low sanitary rating will be made.

THE woman who carries this type of handbag can be assured of a seat at any time and any place. To the unsuspecting mind there is nothing unusual about the bag except that it may be a little overgrown, but that is nothing as bags go. Inside, however, it contains a framework that is capable of being erected to form a comfortable seat for the not too heavy. For races, sports, sketching—and even in street cars when the men set pot, it is highly recommended.

TRADE TRIPPERS MADE WELCOME

Crowds Greet Sweetwater Evangelists of Commerce at Each Stop on Long Swing Thursday

MANY CARS ARE IN LINE

Largest Representation of Any Day Features Last Trip—Band and Speakers Spread Cheer

ENROUTE WITH THE SWEETWATER TRADE TRIPPERS, REPORTER STAFF SPECIAL.

The greatest Trade Trip in the history of Sweetwater approached its close today when the huge caravan of cars, swept in long circle through portions of Mitchell, Scurry and northwestern Nolan counties spreading the contagious enthusiasm of goodwill for Sweetwater among its good neighbors.

Snyder was reached shortly after the noon hour with banners flying and honking horns. After parading around the court house square, the Trippers disembarked for dinner. They were officially welcomed by L. M. Harris on behalf of Snyder and Scurry county. Judge A. S. Mauzey responded. The band played a much appreciated concert in the band stand on the court house lawn amid much applause. There was a splendidly large crowd.

At 2 o'clock the caravan wound its way south with stops at Hermleigh and Inadale scheduled on the closing lap of the three-day tour.

With cool weather again favoring the Trade Trippers and contagious enthusiasm very much in evidence, more than 70 cars, the largest number of any day, swung into line early Thursday morning for the last leg of the Three Day Trade Trip spreading advertisement of the American Legion picnic here July 4th as well as general goodwill for the town.

THE WRONG PLACE FOR KIDDING

Several weeks ago, George W. Wickersham, a former attorney general of the United States, addressed the American club in Paris. Falling into the facetious strain of the after-dinner speaker, he said that the United States owed and would recognize its debts to France—such as well-dressed women and good cookery.

The jape was apparently made in good faith. Some Frenchman, however, interpreted or professed to interpret his quip as the protest of a former high official against the American policy in the foreign debt.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer, commenting on this and other instances where the speeches of touring Americans brought embarrassment to the state department, says "It might be well for Americans who go to Europe expecting to address public gatherings first to apprise themselves of the official position of the government toward the subject they may wish to discuss."

The applicability of this homely truism to the Wickersham case is hard to see. It would be more to the point if American speakers who expect to strut their stuff across the water were told that there are two places where dinner will be served to difficulty—in a love letter and in dealing with someone who is trying to get out of paying a debt he owes you.

It is hard to believe that the French are as slow-witted as their reaction to the Wickersham speech would indicate. The alternative conclusion is far more plausible.

THE STINNES COLLAPSE

One by one the bubbles which were inflated during the World war are bursting. The most recent to pop was that of the Stinnes fortune, which has reached the point where the bankers are carrying its obligations to avert a general panic. Old Hugo Stinnes, the man with the dream and the various qualities, admirable and otherwise needed to make a captain of finance, is dead, and since his death the sons of the family have been running the roost. Like brothers the world over, they have failed to get along in harmony. News that one of them had withdrawn from the concern was followed closely by other news that a measly two and a half million dollar debt, due presently, had made the remainder of the Stinnes concern, embarrassed by the wretched condition of its assets, turn its affairs over into the hands of the bankers. Had Hugo Stinnes the elder lived, the story might have been different. Or it might not. Rapid growth is a dangerous thing. Too often it is merely financial adipose tissue, leading directly to fatty degeneration of the board of directors and sugar daddy-leten. With the experience the Stinnes boys had and the contacts they established in the business world, it shouldn't be hard for them all to get good jobs and start building up modest fortunes. A come-back is easier for a deposited financial prince than for a deposited crown prince.

The Way of Man

We may live without poetry, music and art,
We may live without conscience, and live without heart,
We may live without friends, and live without books;
But civilized man cannot live without cooks,
He may live without books—what is knowledge but grieving?
He may live without hope—what is hope but deceiving?
He may live without love—what is passion but pining?
But where is the man who can live without dining?
—Lord Lytton.

LET THE BOSS PAY THE HELP

Henceforth, the Pullman porter will eye the traveling consul with cold distaste; the shine boys will make him wait his turn. The pretty waitresses will let his soup grow cold in the kitchen and the taxicab drivers will beat him up when they reach his destination. For the government has frowned upon tipping on the part of its traveling employees.

Comptroller-General McCarl, himself, a man of some travel, has decided that too much money was going into the avid palms of the Great Gimme Army. Henceforth, says he, this much and no more shall be given the cabin steward, the Pullman porter and the guide. The check girl, the bootblack and the taxicab-hailer must—if they get anything at all—get it from the private purse of the government agents.

This is a little bit, perhaps, in the sum total of things, but it helps. It is not a comforting thought to reflect that the tax from a $5,000 income melted away in tips during a fortnight's official excursion.

For many years, the beginning of the movement against tipping has been heralded and awaited. Maybe this is it. If it is, hail!

The tip, as it was originally given, was a present to some faithful servant for special attention. From this it has degenerated to the point where it is merely the employer's way of keeping down the payroll. Mediocre waiters in ordinary restaurants must be tipped for serving run-of-mine food in a casual and hurried manner. The average diner dislikes to omit the tip because he knows that the waiter depends upon it as part of his wages. The custom reached its apex when taxicab drivers started getting tips, and knocking off passengers who didn't come through. There is no more reason why anyone should tip a taxicab driver than why he should tip a street car motorman or the ticket puncher in a movie house. The tipping evil can't get any worse. If it changes at all, it must change for the better.

And the public looks forward with enthusiasm to the day when this tendency will assert itself.

CHICAGO'S MURDERS

Dr. C. H. Mayo is not emotional about death. If he were, he would not be as good a scientist. One must remember this when one reads that he told the American society in London that Chicago's high murder rate doesn't matter, because it is the undesirable killing of the undesirables. His viewpoint deviates from that of the generations of lawyers who formulated our codes. Their contention was that life—any human life—was sacred, and that any man who took it usurped a prerogative which was not his own and should pay the highest penalty which could be inflicted.

Dr. Mayo's theory, carried out to its logical conclusion, would lead to the formation of a commission to determine the degree of the crime by estimating the slain citizen's value to the community.

In another way he is wrong in contending that Chicago's perpetual blood-fest is not harmful. Murder, like suicide, is contagious. A man living in a city where murders are numerous and frequently unpunished will set a smaller taboo on the taking of life than a man who lives in a civilized neighborhood. And even if it were true that the Chicago murders consisted mainly in no-good killing no-good (which is anything but a fair statement of the case) we should still object to having it happening around our premises. If it were happening on some unclaimed island out in the Pacific, it wouldn't need to bother us so much. But no good citizen likes to have the rowdies tumbling in his front yard.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Capitol Hill is being cleaned, polished and painted. A score of workmen have assumed control of the home of the national legislation to drive out the dust and dirt left by the hectic 68th Congress.

Every room in the Senate and House office buildings is getting a thorough renovation. Rugs are to be washed, woodwork scrubbed and windows polished. In some offices the woodwork will feel the painter's brush.

Preparing for Rep. Nicholas Longworth, Ohio speaker-elect, and Rep. John Q. Tilson, Republican floor leader, is costing Uncle Sam approximately $8,000. Offices to be occupied by the two leaders are to undergo complete redecoration and painting.

New floors in the Senate office building will cost $15,750. Senators will have additional storerooms when the freight elevator shaft is extended to the fifth floor next November.

Heated debates and arguments in the House and Senate chain the next Congress, may go on with all their fury. Both chambers are being outfitted with fireproofing at a cost of $5,000. This will complete fireproofing entire building.

An improvised ventilating system which is hoped to improve the air, is to be installed in the Senate Chamber. Many Senators in the past two or three Congresses have complained about the "stuffy" condition of the Chamber. The proposed ventilating system will give new circulation.

When the interior of the capitol and office building is completely ren-

Brig. Gen. James E. Feehet, who followed Gen. "Billy" Mitchell as Assistant Chief of the Army Air Service," tells the following story to illustrate that some sarcastic officers think the new branches of the army, such as aviation and chemical warfare, are "not worth a tinker's damn for anything but show."

"In the Industrial War College of high ranking officers were working in a maze of figures trying to estimate how to save our industries in case of invasion by an enemy. One of them suddenly stopped in the middle of a large four column set of figures, looked up with disgust, and said: "Now, what's the use in our going into all these complicated figures, when we don't need them in the next war?"

"Why is that?" asked the high officer by his side.

"Well, from what I hear the next war will be won in this way: Billy Mitchell is going to get into his airplane and Amos Fries will get in the backseat with a bucket of smoke and a squirt gun and after they make a pass over the enemy, the war will be ended."

Why let flies ruin his meal when they're so easily killed?

Flies contaminate everything they touch! They find their way into the most carefully screened home. With every movement of their wings they fleck filth and disease germs from sick rooms, manure piles and garbage cans.

Why not be rid of them always? Use Ni-Late once and you will find that no insect can possibly live where it is sprayed.

Ni-Late Kills Insects Instantly!

Ni-Late brings instant death to insects. This is because it closes up the small openings in their skins through which they breathe. It forms a moist, deadly gas from which there is no escape.

Yet, Ni-Late is harmless to humans and animals. It will not injure the most delicate fabrics of any kind. The cost is small, and a fair test will quickly prove it to be the surest, safest and most convenient insecticide known.

Making the Groom Wait

What the World Is Doing

(As Seen by Popular Mechanics Magazine)

Automatic Cranker on Motor to Prevent Stalling

Attachable to any automobile that has a Bendix drive, an automatic cranker starts the engine the moment it stalls and also saves the ignition. It is actuated by magnetic force, throwing the starter into action as soon as the engine stops. In emergencies, such as being stalled on a railroad track, the cranker starts the motor immediately. It may be placed on the instrument board, behind the dash, under the hood with its two small buttons showing on the instrument board, or under the floor. In the latter case, the starter pedal is removed. All that is necessary to start the engine is to turn on the ignition, and as it must be turned off to stop the car, this scarcely will be forgotten.

Handle for Small Cameras Serves as Tripod

Holding small cameras steady without the use of a tripod has been simplified by a wooden handle which is screwed to the underside of the instrument and is held with the left hand while the shutter is pressed with the right. Further stability is gained if the top of the camera is lightly pressed against the operator's forehead. When not in use, the handle may be detached and carried in the pocket or

Drink of Ultra-Violet Light Aids Throat Treatment

Treatment of certain throat diseases is given at a London hospital with a special ultra-violet light apparatus. It has long funnel-shaped tube, the small end of which the patient puts in his mouth. The rays are directed through it so that they fall upon the affected parts and little of their beneficial powers is lost.

Oldest Child in the Family Most Likely to Succeed

Studies made by Prof. William Ogburn, of Columbia University, indicate that the oldest child in the family most frequently succeeds in life, the youngest ranks next and intermediate children third. Three thousand names were selected at random for a survey: 1,000 artists, including poets, musicians, authors and painters; 1,000 scientists of all grades, and 1,000 of a more general classification, including business men, journalists and men of "good mixing qualities." Questionnaires were sent to these individuals with the request that they indicate their position in the family. Replies were received from 1,700. Turning to "Who's Who" as a criterion of success it was found that of the 577 who were the oldest sons in the family and had brothers less than five years younger, 242 appeared in the lists of noted men; 155 out of the 398 who were the youngest children with brothers five years older were in the book, but of the 729 who were intermediate children, only 237 could be found in it. These data were regarded important in measuring early influences.

Patching Auto Tops

The application of a patch to a torn auto top without removing the covering from the frame is often a failure, as it is difficult to apply pressure evenly over the surface of the patch while the cement is drying. A novel method of overcoming this is practiced by a Wisconsin motorist. After the patch has been cemented and applied, a small muslin bag, filled with sand, is placed over it, and the car is left standing in the sun until the cement is dry. The bag of sand accommodates itself to the curved surface of the top with the result that the patch will adhere along all the edges.

Loud Speaker Made from Paper Cone

A simple loud speaker, which gives a good tone and volume can be made by anyone from a disk of thin cardboard or stiff paper. The disk is cut radially and the edges of the cut drawn up to form a wide cone. A pin is fastened in the center and soldered to an ordinary telephone diaphragm, as shown. The cone may be placed as shown in the illustration, but this need not be done unless desired.

A regular "sell" was enjoyed when Mrs. Bullock made vigorous preparation for everybody to "draw," with pencils poised and spectacles adjusted everybody was told "to draw their breath." A clever contest, with answers of well known auto names, was enjoyed. The feature of the meeting was the revealing of the "Peanut Sisters" for the past month and the drawing new ones. Dr. Morony turned artist for a moment and took a kodak picture of the party on Mrs. Bullock's lawn, following the refreshment course of sherbet and angel food cake. The Misses Granville Lawrence and Jimmie Crenshaw assisted Mrs. Bullock and Mrs. Trammell in entertaining.
