tensive mapping.

The now-mighty Humble Baytown Refinery was started in 1919 on 2200 acres of a boggy rice field on the Ship Channel. It was a monumental construction task, involving so many additions and improvements that when the refinery began unofficial operations in late 1920, the cost of completion had risen from a projected $1 million to $10 million. Starting out with a rated capacity of 10,000 barrels, in five years it had a capacity of 50,000 barrels. In 1927, two years later, it rose to 100,000 barrels.

Before the end of 1919, occurred probably the most important single financial event in the history of Humble. Doubling the number of its shares of stock, Humble sold fifty per cent of the stock to Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. This gave Humble a vital market outlet, and it gave Jersey a source of crude and products.

Sales kept pace with expansion in production, transportation and refining. In 1926, sales volume passed the 2½ million-gallons-a-month mark. The next year Humble moved to multiply sales by setting up a greatly increased number of outlets. From 1926 until 1931, Bulk stations increased from 68 to 161. Humble products went on retail sale at 244 fee service stations, 69 leased stations and 681 dealers throughout Texas. Three important new products—Flashlike gasoline, Esso gasoline and 997 motor oil were introduced by an extensive advertising campaign in 1929-31.

In 1943, Humble achieved a position it has held ever since

The Diameter of the Well Cannot Be Used As Guide for Gauging Water

By W. E. CRABTREE
Agriculture Engineer

In a recent article on irrigation, I tried to show the importance of test-hole information and drilling. Now, I would like to discuss the completion of the well.

The diameter of the well cannot be used as a reliable guide to the amount of water it will yield. Wells do not yield water in proportion to their diameter.

Research has shown only an approximate 15 per cent increase in yield by doubling the well diameter in an identical formation. For most wells the important consideration is to have the diameter large enough to install the pump easily with a few inches clearance around the bowl assembly.

Where water is coming from a rather thin sheet of fine water-bearing material, a large diameter hole will often have an advantage. In fine materials the increased velocity of water entering a small diameter hole is often partly to blame for sand pumping troubles.

Also if there is a small total open area of the screen the high velocity of water entering the well could cause trouble. Where a gravel treatment is to be used the bore is ordinarily drilled about 12-18 inches larger than the casing diameter. It is important for the well to penetrate the entire depth of the water-bearing formation.

With deeper penetration more water is obtained per foot of drawdown; also the coarser water material is often found just above the impermeable underlying strata. Well studies have proved that doubling the depth of penetration in water-bearing material is much more effective in increasing the well discharge than doubling the diameter of the well.

There is no particular advantage in bottoming a well more than a foot or two into the underlying impermeable layer.

A gravel treated well consists of placing five to nine inches of gravel between the screen and the natural formation. This practice is helpful primarily in a uniform sand formation.

There seems to be many conflicting opinions on the use of gravel treatment. A few known — America's largest domestic producer of crude oil. After the war, production dipped briefly, but by 1948 it had surpassed the wartime daily record and stood at 368,000 barrels. Last year for the first time this figure was exceeded, as 1956 production hit 371,000 barrels.

Although the bulk of Humble's producing operations are in Texas, exploration and producing activities have been expanded broadly in the past several years. Humble's first offshore well was brought in off Grand Isle, Louisiana in 1948. Production in Mississippi dates from 1944 and in 1943 Humble completed the first producing oil well in Florida.

principles should be kept in mind in deciding whether and how to use a gravel treatment.

First ask yourself, "What is the purpose of the gravel treatment?" Most would agree it is used to keep sand particles from entering the well. This being true, there is little benefit in treating a well in which the lower portion of the water-bearing formation particles are larger than a sorghum seed.

Many wells have actually been harmed by gravel packing. This could result from improper size and uniformity of pack or packing when there is no need for such treatment. In fine, uniform sand the well should be gravel packed to enable a larger, more practical size perforation or screen openings.

Researchers generally agree that the average size of the gravel should be four to seven times the average size of the water formation to hold back the sand. In a fine water sand, the so-called gravel treatment might be the size of coarse building sand.

One would never expect to hold wheat in a corn crib, but it isn't uncommon to see someone try to hold fine sand back with coarse gravel. A sieve analysis is the only reliable method of determining proper use of gravel treatment.

Since the selection of a gravel treatment will depend on the size and uniformity of formation sands, a screen should be selected that will not permit the passing of gravel material. It is further desirable to have a gravel and slot or screen size relationship that will minimize the reduction in effective open area of the screen. If the gravel treatment is fairly uniform, a slot opening such that 90 per cent of the gravel is coarse is recommended.

Researchers agree that the gravel treatment should be of rounded material, quite uniform in size. Few well owners or drillers go to the trouble of double-screening to a specified size by passing it through one screen and using what is retained on a smaller size screen. In a naturally completed well a screen is selected to allow 50 to 60 percent of the immediately surrounding formation to be pumped into the well and to be removed in the "development" process of the well before new equipment is purchased.

If the right size screen is selected and the well is developed properly by surging, intermittent pumping, or compressed air, it will not pump sand. No gravel is placed into the well but the well is "developed" to remove the "fines" around the screen and obtain a gradual grading of particles away from the screen.

The amount of water flowing through a formation will be determined by the smallest particles. This type of well completion is best in mixtures of sand and gravel where the main portion of the material is larger than 25/1000 of an inch. With a naturally completed well it is usually best to purchase a specially manufactured screen of corrosion resistant material.

Provisions for the water entering the well in loose materials are made by many methods and materials. The well drilling low should serve as a basis in choosing the best type and length of screen or perforated casing. Generally, casings slotted with a cutting torch will not give a well its best possibilities for a maximum quantity of sand-free water. This is particularly true in the finer water-bearing materials.

It is well known that when a well is being pumped the water draws down as it approaches the well. This drawdown will increase depending on the rate of pumping. Screen placed above the drawdown level during pumping is a needless expense.

It is important to have a sufficient open area in a screen or casing so that there will be very few feet differences in the water level inside and outside the well during pumping. A screen or casing will need at least 10 percent open area. The larger the percentage of open area up to about 25 percent the better the opportunity of producing a good well.

All perforations or screen openings should widen toward the inside. A long narrow opening is more effective than a square or round shaped one. With an opening wider toward the inside, particles passing the entrance section are prevented from accumulation in the passageway and blocking water entrance.

Now that the well is properly completed why not take care of it. A drawdown gage is very important equipment. The pumping depth can be checked every few days and the water level kept in the upper portion of the water-bearing formation.

I hope that this series has helped in the putting down and developing irrigation wells. If the local Soil Conservation Service can be of help to you please let them know.

DEMOCRAT LYNDON JOHNSON Destruction, Not From War, But From Preparations for Wars Seen by Senator

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson declared Sunday that for the first time in history mankind faces the prospect of destruction not from war but from preparations for war.

"No two scientists agree on the amount of risk involved in the nuclear test explosions," Senator Johnson pointed out in a statewide radio broadcast. "But they all agree that there is some danger from what they call strontium-90 in the fallout."

The United States cannot stop such tests unless Russia also stops them, the senator said, adding, "And we cannot assume they have stopped unless we have absolute, airtight safeguards."

Senator Johnson called for American and Russian leaders to exchange uncensored views over television facilities in the two countries.

"I think that if the Russian people had the facts even Krushchev would be unable to continue the mad communist arms race," he said.

The "cold war" has cost the United States more than 416 billion dollars, Senator Johnson stated, and Congress has appropriated 44 billion dollars more that has not yet been spent. He declared that total is 100 billion dollars more than the cost to this country of World War II.

"Some way must be found to bring both the 'hot war' and the 'cold war' to an end," he declared.

20-Pound Son Puts Ranking Guard Out of Action at Tech

Golden Glove boxing, two years of paratrooping and six of high school and college football couldn't sideline Floyd Hood, but because he lifted his 20-pound son last week, Texas Tech will be deprived of its standout guard next season.

Hood, a junior from Wellington, hurt his back when he bent over to pick up the six-month-old boy, and x-rays now show torn fibers between two vertebrae. Doctors consider his chances of ever playing again to be slim.

After lettering as a sophomore last fall, Hood was being considered for sectional honors in pre-season ratings.

With Hood out, Tech will have only 10 lettermen returning to face a rugged schedule this fall. Tech's leading ground-gainer, another Wellington grad, fullback Doug Duncan cut the list to 11 when forced out by low grades.

At Wellington Hood made all-district and all-regional twice and was chosen for the school-boy All-Southern and All-American squads in 1953. He won district and regional Golden Gloves titles at 135, 147, and 175 pounds.

After two years of duty with the Army paratroops, Hood won his freshman numeral at Tech in 1955. He began his varsity play as a third stringer last fall but became a starter before the season was over.

Tech Net Team Will Return Intact in '58

All five Texas Tech tennis lettermen announced by Coach George Philbrick will return to compete in Southwest Conference play next year.

In the group are three who will be seniors, Billy Edd Gowen of Wichita Falls, David Kent of Amarillo, and Dick Spiers of Kermit, and two juniors, Johnny Kniffen of Clyde and Scott Cantine of Amarillo.

Bob Macy of Coral Gables, Fla., received a freshman numeral.

For the season, Tech compiled an 8-3-2 record, taking decisions from Texas Christian, Southern Methodist, Texas A&M, North Texas State, Colorado, Hardin-Simmons, and West Texas (two), losing to Texas, Abilene Christian, and East Texas, and deadlocking with Baylor and Abilene Christian.

Season Tickets Will Be Mailed July 15 To Games At Tech

Season tickets to Texas Tech home football games will be mailed July 15, according to Jimmie Wilson, business manager of athletics.

"So many persons told us they mis-laid their tickets when we mailed them out in the spring that we decided on the later date," explained Wilson.

Both renewals and new orders are being received in good quantities, Wilson said. The home schedule includes West Texas State, Texas A&M, Baylor, Louisiana State, Tulsa, and Hardin-Simmons.

ELDERS—Elders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints arrived in Brownfield this week for two months of gospel teaching. They are, from left in picture, Ralph Wallis of Granger, Utah, and Don Weaver of Seattle. The duo, living at 303 East Lake, will be here to discuss and answer all questions concerning the religion of their church, popularly known as the Mormon religion. There is no paid ministry within the church, each elder supporting himself. This summer will mark the beginning of two years of gospel teaching for both men. After that time, Wallis will return to his ranch in Utah, and Weaver will enter the University of Washington. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters in Salt Lake City, Utah, is organized exactly like the church of Christ, when he was on earth. It is governed by 12 apostles, one of whom is Secy. of Agriculture Ezra Benson. Its president is David O. McKay. (Staff Photo)

Not So Humble, Humble Oil & Refining Company To Observe Its 40th Birthday Friday; West Texas Major Source for Firm

West Texas—back in 1926—did not figure much in the production picture of Humble Oil & Refining Company.

Yet, two years later, this area was supplying nearly half of that company's total oil production.

The difference was a highly successful exploration program in the Permian Basin — highlighted by the Hendricks field discovery in Pecos County — which jumped Humble's West Texas production from a 200,000-barrel trickle in 1926 to a 7,000,000 total in 1928. West Texas has been a major source of Humble crude ever since.

Forty years ago this month, in Houston, Humble Oil & Refining Company came into corporate existence — the pooling of properties and experience of a group of pioneer Texas oilmen who believed in themselves, each other and the future.

Although June is the company's official anniversary, the story of Humble begins months earlier. Without a charter or a single signature, the company began its operations on March 1, 1917, under a gentlemen's agreement among the principals.

A third original incorporator of Humble, W. W. Fondren, started in the oil business at Amarillo with a drilling rig purchased from money saved when he worked there as a roustabout. He went to Humble, Texas, in 1906 when the field was discovered, and his equipment was part of the Humble Company when it was organized.

The Sterling family—Ross S. Sterling, Frank P. Sterling, and Miss Florence Sterling—organized the old Humble Oil Company, from which the present organization took its name. Another block of property came from the Wiess family of Beaumont, brought into the new company by H. C. Wiess, who took over the Wiess properties

'Oklahoma!' To Be Given Five-Day Run At Rialto Theatre

With its opening Saturday at the Rialto Theatre, at popular prices Rodgers and Hammerstein's screen version of "Oklahoma!" will begin another phase in its illustrious career.

The history of "Oklahoma!" began March 31, 1943, when the play debuted at the St. James Theatre in New York, marking the beginning of the partnership of Rodgers and Hammerstein.

The picture stars Gordon MacRae, Gloria Grahame, Shirley Jones, Gene Nelson, Charlotte Greenwood, Eddie Albert, James Whitmore and a Rod Steiger.

Sammy Jones, theatre manager, said, "It is one picture the whole family will enjoy and will long remember." If you already have not seen this picture put it on your "must" list for the best in theatre entertainment.

Quality has everything in its favor including the price.

IN ONLY 10 YEARS

She Made 1,000 Quilts

In Texas there's a little 80-year-old lady who probably is the quilt-making champion of the world. Mrs. M. E. Baccus, who lives in Castlepeak community close to Abilene, has made 1,087 quilts in the last ten years.

Sewing for her family and neighbors, "Granny" Baccus turned out a quilt on the average of every three days. She used a sewing machine, a practice frowned upon in most quilting circles. Her designs are simple, and her workmanship is neat and sturdy.

During her ten years of quilting, Granny Baccus figures that she used more than 10,870 yards of cotton material. This includes cotton feed and flour sacks, domestic prints, and outing. She used approximately 300 pounds of lint cotton and 1,500 pounds of cotton thread. Granny can tell you the whereabouts of just about every wooden spool that furnished thread for her quilts. Some 1,200 decorate the walls of her homestead, and another hundred lie in a box ready for stringing. Hundreds more have been given away as children's quilts. Just recently Granny Baccus quit quilting. But she already has a new hobby—serious reading. In addition to magazines and newspapers, she's read more than 100 books, and her friends are betting that she'll top the thousand mark before she stops.

Willow Wells Club Has Cheese Study

The Willow Wells Home Demonstration Club met Wednesday in the home of Mrs. W. C. Faulkenberry.

Mrs. O. D. Kennedy gave the devotional, and Mrs. Shelby Baucum led the prayer.

Tau Phi Chapter Has Hamburger Fry At Park

A hamburger fry was held at Coleman Park Friday night by members of Tau Phi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

Those present were Messrs. and Meses. Bill Noble, Jay Harris, Charlie Maple, Glen Mitchell, Kenneth Feagins, Billy Bob Price, Randal McBride, Alan McBride and T. R. Fleeman; Misses Wanda Cornelius, Nancy King and John Lou Callison; Mrs. Betty Patton and Mrs. Betty Smith; and Don Noble.

Roll call was answered with "My favorite way of serving cheese". Mrs. Kennedy gave the program on "Cheese", discussing the importance of cheese in the diet for the health of individuals. The group sampled several cheese spreads and cheese cookies which were made by Mrs. Kennedy.

Mrs. Baucum gave the council report.

Refreshments were served to Medames Shafter Bailey and Buddy and Tanya, Baucum, Kennedy, W. M. Nelson, E. G. Lampp, Orville Williams and Rita Kay, and Faulkenberry and Jeanette and Miss Betty Kinney.

The next meeting will be held June 26 in the home of Mrs. Kennedy.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bright returned Saturday from a vacation spent in Central Texas.

CHAMPION QUILT-MAKER

Mrs. M. E. Baccus, who lives in a farming community outside of Abilene, Texas, has made 1,087 cotton quilts in the last ten years. Using a sewing machine, the 80-year-old grandmother concentrated on practical rather than artistic quilting. She told her neighbors: "You furnish the material, and I'll make you a quilt for $1."

"Saga of Scurry" Is Chronicle Of West Texas By Outstanding Author

By GEE GEE PRIYITT
NEWS Staff Writer

Saga of Scurry by Kathryn Cotten. (The Naylor Company, San Antonio, $3.)

Tracing the earliest roots of the beginning, "Saga of Scurry" by Kathryn Cotten could easily be called "Saga of Terry" or of almost any of the counties in our surrounding area.

For "Saga of Scurry" is a chronicle of the people who settled Scurry county and of the growth and development of this ranching region which has recently boomed with oil.

Mrs. Cotten is a native Texan whose talent with words has brought her upon several occasions to the attention of the Texas reading public. She is an author of note, having written the prize winning novel "Tomorrow's Here", as well as other novels with historical background. She has, in times past, held a number of diverse occupations. Widowed in 1930, with four children to rear, she carried on her husband's abstract business. She held three terms as county clerk of Scurry county, entering politics at a time when women office seekers, as well as holders, were regarded askance.

"Saga of Scurry" deals with the early settlers of Scurry county and their activities. According to Mrs. Cotten, the first man to set foot in Scurry was a buffalo hunter, J. Wright Mooar, a native Vermont turned hunter. He and his brother built up a lucrative business in buffalo hides, dealing with William H. Snyder, founder of the county seat of Scurry.

Snyder appeared upon the scene in 1883, digging a cave in the banks of Deep Creek and setting up business with a general store of sorts. Mrs. Cotten said of him: "He now set up a temporary store of sorts. He cut poles, secured buffalo hides for the sides of his store; it was soon finished, if not exactly to his liking. He immediately set up storekeeping. There was not much merchandise to be sold, maybe a few cans of Bull Durham tobacco, a few hats and some guns he treasured. He had a few matches which he had managed to save through his perilous journey to this new land." A few men began appearing at his store, trading buffalo hides for merchandise and the first trading post in Snyder was established.

The history of this county is, of course, wrapped up in the pioneers and Mrs. Cotten has set down a brief history of each of the families who contributed so much to developing Scurry. In 1876, the first pioneer family landed in Scurry... the John C. Webbs and their children. Mrs. Cotten describes the building of their home and, in part, she says: "Ten yoke of oxen were hitched to a wagon that Mr. Webb had purchased from the government, and it took several weeks to freight the lumber from Fort Worth."

In reading of the pioneers of Scurry, Mrs. Cotten relates the hardships of drought and sandstorms, as well as prairie fires, that harried them. Reading of these happenings in Scurry can bring back memories to any of the early settlers of this territory. The "Saga of Scurry" deals with the people in that county, but is also a saga of this entire area of West Texas.

Mrs. Cotten, in relating her saga, also has included the history of the churches, as well as the businesses in Snyder, and special tribute was paid the early pioneer doctors. She has brought her story up through the years to its present standing. Her account of her asking for public office is a particularly clever one.

Although Mrs. Cotten's "Saga of Scurry" is strictly a chronicle, it is both interesting and delightful reading, and will be accepted warmly by lovers of Texiana.

Jim Elliott, former teacher in the Brownfield school system who spent last year teaching in Japan, was in Brownfield Monday. He will teach in England next year.

—the "built-in conscience" that buzzes when you reach the miles-per-hour you want to stay under, keeps silent when you drop below that pace.

YOU could add up the figures on size, weight, room, power.

From that alone you'd discover an important fact: how much more automobile you get in this Buick that's priced so close to the smaller cars.

But in your heart you know you want even more:

You want action. You want fun. You want lift and life and response. You want to feel absolute master over your going and stopping.

So try this Buick—just try it.

It drives and rides and brakes and steers and handles like no other car you've ever known before.

It has a brilliant new V8 engine—like silk with the flow of Niagara.

It has a spectacular new Dynaflo®—instant and smooth to the infinite.

It has powerful new brakes, new roadability, a new precision in its handling.

But the total feeling you get from all this is far, far more than words can bring you.

Come in, sit behind the wheel, and see for yourself why this great buy is the dream car—the hit of the year—to drive.

MRS ARVIN STAFFORD Miss Crabtree, Mr. Stafford Married

Miss Mary Crabtree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Crabtree of 1204 Tahoka Road, and Arvin Stafford, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Stafford of 107 North D, were united in marriage at 7:30 p.m. June 15 in the home of the bride's parents.

Dalt Kelsey of the Church of Christ officiated at the double ring rites.

Attending the couple were Miss Dolores Burney as maid of honor and Wilbur Lidsey as best man.

The bride wore a white princess style street dress with a white dress and pink carnation corsage. Miss Burney wore an identical dress in pink, with white carnations.

At a reception honoring the couple, the serving table was laid with a white lace cloth over pink and was centered with an arrangement of yellow roses. Misses Wanda Duncan and Mary Jo Campbell and Mrs. Wilbur Lidsey served punch and cake.

After a wedding trip to Wingate, the couple is at home here.

IN MEADOW CHURCH

Miss Fulford Married

Before an archway of greenery flanked with baskets of gladiolus tied with blue ribbons and branched candelabra, Miss Elizabeth Sue Fulford and Hubert Wayne Sanders were married at the First Baptist Church in Meadow June 15 at 7 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Fulford of Meadow and Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Sanders of Woodville, Okla.

The Rev. Alton Polk, pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Miss Glenda Belew, organist, offered wedding music and accompanied Mrs. L. L. Nunley as she sang "Walk Hand in Hand" "True Love" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Bride Wears Lace

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white imported French lace and nylon tulle over net and satin, designed with a portrait neckline framed in scalloped lace and embroidered with iridescent sequins and seed pearls. Tiny sleeves complimented the lace bodice. Tiers of ruffled tulle formed the bouffant skirt, topped by a fully shirred lace peplum. The skirt terminated into a full train at back.

Her veil of silk illusion net depended from a coronet of iridescent sequins and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses caught with tiny love knots and white streamers.

Attendants in Pastels

Miss Carol Ann Hester of where the bridegroom is employed with Terry County Printing company. Both attended Brownfield Schools.

Brownfield was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Misses Allene Brown and Jenelda Carroll of Meadow. They wore street length cotton satin dresses fashioned on princess lines, gathered in back and finished with large bows. Miss Hester's gown was blue and Misses Brown and Carroll wore pink and orchid, respectively.

Dale Fulford of Brownfield, brother of the bride, and Jerry Andrews of Plainview, brother-in-law of the bride, lighted candles.

Arnold Patton, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were James Fulford of Brownfield and Lonnie Fulford of Lubbock, both brothers of the bride, Truett Babb of Slaton and Hollice Smith of Brownfield.

Reception in Parlor

For a wedding reception in the church parlor, blue and white colors were used in decorations. The three tiered wedding cake was trimmed in blue rosebud confection and topped with a miniature bridal couple and centered the lace covered table. Bouquets of the wedding party also decorated the serving table.

Assisting with hospitalities were Miss Betty Jean Eubanks, Mrs. Jerry Andrews of Plainview, Mrs. Myrna Fulford, sister in law of the bride, and Mrs. James Fulford of Brownfield, also a sister in law of the bride. Mrs. Betty Fulford registered guests.

Trip to Oklahoma

For a wedding trip to points in Oklahoma, the bride chose a blue sheath dress of imported Irish linen, designed with an empire waistline accented with a white crystaletta sash, with

MALES HELPING TO SHORTEN OWN LIVES

Facts Are Inescapable: Man Belongs To the Weaker Sex; Is Outnumbered, Outwitted and Outlived by Sturdier Female

AUSTIN—It may come as a blow to the male ego, but the facts are inescapable: Men belong to the weaker sex—outnumbered, outwitted, and outlived by the sturdier female, says state health commissioner, Henry Holle.

Are women biologically more resistant to disease and death than men? Is the male animal shortening his life by greater aggressiveness, greater exposure to stress and disease, or by ignoring the laws of health? Can anything be done to reduce male mortality?

Male birth rates — 106 boys for each 100 girls—as well as death rates have always been higher than the female rate. It long has been assumed that women are more resistant biologically to disease, tolerating pain and illness better than men.

There also are striking sex differences in causes of death. Lung cancer kills six times more men than women. The male peptic ulcer rate is four times as high, and tuberculosis and syphilis are twice as high. Three times more men than women commit suicide or are murdered. The odd thing is that higher male mortality, compared with females, extends to most animal species as well as to humans.

It differences in longevity of men and women were due solely to female biological superiority, the difference in death rate should remain constant. But instead, the female death rate actually has declined more rapidly than the male rate. In 1900 the white American female averaged 1.9 more years of life than her male counterpart. In 1953, she was living 7.2 years longer than the male.

Men are helping shorten their own lives. They have insisted on carrying the greater responsibility and have had to develop aggressiveness to meet that responsibility. Result: more worries, more stress, more contact with disease and physical dangers.

Women, on the other hand, are more likely to release pressure through tears, rest when they feel poorly, consult their doctor early when ill, and follow medical instructions better than men.

Much can be done to reduce excessive male mortality. One investigator has suggested a nationwide inventory of the physical, mental, and emotional assets and liabilities of men in preparation for intensifying the attack on accidents and occupational diseases and the research into cardiovascular diseases and cancer.

Alleviating the stresses of competitive living in a materialistic age requires that the fragile male continuously be instructed in the laws of health and encouraged to follow them.

Johnson's Newsletter

By LYNDON JOHNSON
U.S. Senator

Dear Friends:

Throughout my life, I have held firmly to a fixed belief. It was summed up by Thomas Jefferson when he said:

"I know of no safe depository of the ultimate power of society but the people themselves; and if we think them not enlightened enough to exercise their control with a wholesome discretion, the remedy is not to take it from them, but to inform their discretion by education."

Because of this belief, I did not deplore the fact that the Russian communist leader Nikita Khrushchev was able to come into our homes by television and state his case. I believe Americans have too much sense to be deceived by open communist propaganda.

I did regret, however, that we did not answer his broadcast with a demand that the Russian leaders grant spokesmen of our own choosing the right to appear—uncensored—on Soviet case any time—because I am confident the American case will win.

Since the end of World War II, this nation has taken the lead consistently in trying to rescue mankind from atomic conflict. We have offered to reduce armaments; to share our atomic secrets; to allow "open skies" inspection to enforce disarmament agreements. We have asked in return only reasonable safeguards to insure that the Soviets will not violate the agreements and use them to further the communist cause.

These agreements have come to nothing because the communist leaders have been able to conceal the facts from the Russian people. Future agreements will meet the same fate unless we find a way of penetrating the "iron curtain" so the Russian people will hear our side of the story.

I believe we should demand the right to make weekly telecasts and radiocasts to the Russian people. They should have the chance to hear our businessmen; our labor leaders; our professionals; our leaders of agriculture.

In return, we should be willing to grant them the same privileges in our country.

This offer should be pressed upon Nikita Khrushchev every time he is within earshot of an American representative. And if he refuses, he will have to explain to the whole world why we are willing to let him state the communist case to our people but why he is not willing to let us state the case of freedom to the Russian people.

Let the people know. Once they have the facts, they can make the honorable, just and fair decisions that will rid us of the fears of world wide atomic war and the arms race.

SOME IN FOR 10 YEARS

Community Improvement Groups Will Receive Awards in Progress Program

Special recognition awards are being made to 18 rural Texas communities which have participated continuously for five and ten years in the Rural Neighborhood Progress program.

Reagan Brown, extension rural sociologist, said four of the communities had participated in the program since its inception 10 years ago. They are Mt. Maxey and Tigertown in Lamar county, Pleasant Hill-Rocky, Blanco county and Upland, Caldwell-Hayes counties. Brown said these communities would be presented silver trays.

He listed the 14 communities which have participated in the program for five consecutive years as Sunnyside, Castro county; Downard-Fairplains, Cooke county; Cottonwood and Jiba, both of Kaufman county; Midway, Red River county; Amity, Comanche county; Harmony, Anderson county; County Line, Houston-Anderson counties; Zimmerscheidt, Colorado county;

Ward Bend, Austin county; Bailey's Prairie, Zrozenia county; Zion Hill, Guadalupe county and Axtell and Willow Grove both of McLennan county. The last five named are Negro communities, said Brown. These 14 organized groups will receive special framed certificates of participation.

Brown said the awards were being provided by the Farmer Stockman magazine which sponsors the program in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Presentation of the awards will be made in connection with ceremonies to be held in the neighborhoods when the regular cash awards are presented. Each of these communities, said Brown, can point with pride to a long list of goals completed in their community improvement work. Each, because of the combined efforts of all neighbors, has become a better place to live, he said.

Farm and home improvement in these communities can be noted on every hand and Brown cited the groups as examples of how cooperation and planned action can be used to rebuild and revitalize communities and rural life.

Alfalfa Is Principal Legume for Hay in Texas, Says Record

About 318,000 acres of alfalfa, having a value of 18 million dollars, were harvested for hay in Texas in 1955 making it the principal legume used for hay in Texas.

A publication just released by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, "Alfalfa Production in Texas," contains much information on the economic importance of alfalfa, the more important areas of production and the varieties grown including L a h o n t a n which may be used widely in the next few years because of its high degree of resistance to the spotted alfalfa aphid which is causing increased damage to alfalfa crops.

The publication also contains valuable information on the regional adaptation of alfalfa, seed production, better utilization through pasture, silage,

Insects Pose Threat To Stone Fruits In Texas, Says Expert

Injurious insects pose a threat to stone fruit production in Texas, but effective control programs can be used to lessen damage and improve fruit quality, say D. R. King and H. F. Morris of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

In a recently released Extension Service publication, "Peach and Plum Insects and Their Control", the research workers have made available much information on the nature of damage caused by various peach and plum insects and their control.

The types of insects discussed include those feeding externally on the fruit causing gnarling and distortion, insects whose larvae tunnel and feed inside the fruit, insects attacking the trunk and larger limbs, stationary insects on the trunk and branches, larvae feeding inside the twigs and insects feeding externally on the foliage and twigs. This publication gives individual control for each of these insects as well as a general control plan to be used on a monthly basis.

dehydration and soiling, plus helpful tips on production practices including soil, climate, land preparation, fertilization, inoculation, seeding and irrigation.

Alfalfa is not only one of the most palatable and nutritious of forage crops, but, according to Raymond D. Staten, A M Agronomist, it has a favorable effect on soil by adding nitrogen and acting as a protective cover for the soil.

HEAVY GRAZING CAN HURT NOW

Rest Prescribed for Texas Rangeland

Your rangeland needs a rest. Perennial grasses are slow to recover, and heavy grazing can hurt more now than during the drought. A deferred grazing system with proper use of supplemental pastures is essential for maximum range recovery. Chances are your pastures currently have considerably more weeds than grasses, says Extension Range Specialist A. H. Walker. An abundance of weeds is always expected after a drought, he says, but properly-managed desirable plants will crowd them out.

From a range recovery standpoint, Walker says this is a poor time for restocking. Breeding back into the live-stock business is a lot cheaper and safer than buying. Don't base stocking plans on spring green, he warns, or it may cost plenty this fall and winter.

Keep livestock numbers in balance with expected feed for the coming year. A plentiful grass supply is your cheapest, safest bet for livestock profits.

Naturalized citizens of the United States are entitled to all privileges except that of becoming president.

Lincoln was assassinated at Ford's theatre while attending a play entitled "Our American Cousin."

Cattle Numbers Are Down in U.S. For First Time 7 Years

For the first time in seven years, cattle numbers are down in the United States. A nationwide drop of 2 percent in total cattle numbers last year coupled with recent widespread rain creates a better-than-average chance for higher prices.

The long drought was largely responsible for this decline, and cattle numbers have not yet turned downward in either the South or Midwest although Texas registered a 7 percent reduction in 1956.

Actually, national numbers are now at a point of balance and could swing either way if moisture conditions keep on improving.

Extension Economist John McHaney says cattle prices will probably improve if rains continue to fall at the right time and in the right places. He figures this would cause many ranchers to restock, holding back a good many heifer calves from slaughter. He says it also might create a better demand for steer and heifer stock.

McHaney says American cattlemen can generally expect higher cattle prices in a few years if the over-all economic activity and non-farm income remains high.

He bases this prediction on the declining cattle to people ratio in recent years with the assumption that it will continue.

The economist advises cattle raisers to finish animals out by late June to avoid heavy July and August marketing. There were 4 percent more cattle on feed in January than a year earlier and indications this year point to a longer feeding period. Feeder cattle prices won't increase greatly by next fall, but they will probably be slightly higher. Increased pork and poultry supplies will compete with beef.

Exports for dollars are now being emphasized more and more. Dollar sales now total about two-thirds of all CCC disposals. Wooten says the 31 friendly nations now buying from America with foreign money will probably soon develop into dollar markets. A billion dollars in farm surpluses have been bartered for strategic foreign materials and vital defense needs, he says.

ON JULY PLENTIFUL LIST

Turkey and Ice Cream Featured Foods

Turkey and ice cream are the featured foods on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's July plentiful foods list. These two foods will get special promotions during the month... Mid-Summer Turkey Time.

Turkey 25-August 4 and Ice Cream Festival, July 1-31.

Turkeys have long been thought of in terms of Thanksgiving and Christmas, but changes in production methods have made this old favorite available the year-round. Ice cream just goes with summer time and increased supplies of milk and butterfat have also increased the amount of ice cream available.

John J. Slaughter, southwest division chief of the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service says monthly surveys form the basis for determining the plentiful foods.

Fresh fruits are prominent on the July listing and include peaches, lemons and limes. Frozen strawberries will also be in good supply.

Milk and other dairy products, in addition to ice cream, will continue seasonally plentiful. Eggs are another high protein plentiful.

Texas new crop of onions will be abundant, but other fresh vegetables are not listed for the state. Peanuts and butter and vegetable fats and oils are shelf items included on the July list.

Government run by women is called gynarchy.

"Veto" comes from the Latin meaning "I forbid."

The width of United States ships is determined by the Panama Canal, and the height by the Brooklyn Bridge.

To protect the life of the President and to suppress counterfeiters are the two statutory duties of the U. S. Secret Service.

Wooten attributes much of the recent export success to better promotion tools. We now have top-notch agricultural attaches, marketing specialists, special export programs and trade fairs to facilitate movement.

16-MILE HAUL—4300 FEET UP—When Sheriff Cal Boles of Maricopa County, Arizona, sends his 4-wheel-drive GMC to his radio transmitting station on a mountain peak, one round trip deals out more punishment than a year's ordinary use.

IT CROSSES 3 MOUNTAIN CHAINS, wades through shifting sand, picks its way over boulder-strewn passes — goes where no sane horse would set foot. The deal includes climbing up a 65% grade. But — "It hasn't even breathed hard yet," says the Sheriff.

How tough could you make it for this GMC 4-WHEEL DRIVE?

You probably never would push a GMC truck this far.

But it's great to know that GMC's can do incredible jobs, beyond all normal requirements for their class — and still run longer, cheaper and with fewer repairs than other trucks.

Got some tough assignments for this GMC 4-wheel drive? It's just about the handiest truck ever built — goes anywhere, makes its own roads, has full traction in muck or deep snow, has clearance on high-crowned roads.

With a few accessories, it pulls stumps, drills postholes or wells, stretches fence, pumps water, hoists anything. It takes a king-size cargo and — in 2-wheel drive — gives you full road speeds.

The GMC 4-wheel drive is really two trucks in one — and it costs surprisingly little. Just ask your GMC dealer!

SAYS WRITER JOHN BARTLOW MARTIN

'The Deep South Says Never'

Desegregation in the Deep South seems unlikely in the foreseeable future, according to the current (June 15) issue of The Saturday Evening Post.

The observation is made by John Bartlow Martin in the first of five articles entitled "The Deep South Says Never," a report which tells what has happened there and how the attitude of the people has undergone a change since the Supreme Court decision three years ago.

Martin, who recently won a third Benjamin Franklin Award for distinguished reporting, says that the first reaction to the Court's ruling was that desegregation seemed inevitable and not far off.

"At that time, the South was divided, perplexed, resigned," he comments. "Today the Solid South is a fact, and its resistance to desegregation is granitic."

Martin's report tells that an important factor in the change was the initiative demonstrated by Robert Patterson, of Greenwood, Miss., who was instrumental in calling a meeting to mobilize public opinion through "a grass-roots organization."

The outgrowth of that gathering of about 100 townsfolk, in July 1954, was an organization called the Indianola Citizens' Council. This, it is reported, was the first Citizens' Council, a movement that in a few months swept the South and gave loud voice to the Southern resistance to school segregation.

Martin finds that this resistance movement is a remarkable achievement since it has uncompromisingly set its face against the mainstream of American thought as expressed by the Supreme Court of the land—and thus far has gotten away with it.

Elsewhere in the report, Martin explains that, to Southerners, the Court's decision seemed to do far more than break down segregation in schools; it rent the seamless garment of apartness.

"Apartness of the races," he tells his Post readers, "is a black and white thread woven into the fabric of Southern life — its social, political, sexual, cultural, economic life. Apartness is like a vine which, rooted in slavery, never uprooted but merely twisted by the Civil War, flourished and by now entangles everyone and every thing in a suffocating net from which no one, white or black, knows how to extricate himself.

"Its manifestations have an infinite richness and complexity."

World peace will not last if it is to be based on the cash that the United States scatters around the globe.

Civilization may be the product of the world but it depends very largely upon the United States for its present defense.

The tornado season is now upon us; one of these twisters is enough to convince man that he doesn't know it all.

Accidents can happen without anybody being to blame, but most highway fatalities are due to liquor or carelessness.

In this day of stiff competition, you must not only put out a good product, but you must advertise it.

Housekeeping would be ideal if there really were little fairies to do the work.

IT'S THE LAW IN TEXAS

Principal Is Responsible For Agent's Acts In The Eyes of The Court System

Suppose that you hire your neighbor's teen-age son, Jimmy, to cut your grass, and he runs your new mower into another neighbor's hedge. The hedge is ruined. Are you responsible for the damages? Quite likely you are.

Or let us suppose that you find you need a loaf of bread for the evening meal. You ask a friend to take your car and run to the store for it. On the way, he runs down old Mr. Peabody, seriously injuring him. Can you be held responsible? It is possible that you can.

In both instances, an "agent" was acting for you. His acts while performing those duties are, in the eyes of the law, your acts. In legal terms, you are the "principal."

You may be liable despite the fact that you may have cautioned him to be extremely careful.

The average individual expects to answer for his own actions. He does not usually consider that he may be responsible for the actions of other persons. That, however, is frequently the case.

Suppose you ask another person to do something for you, that is, to act as your agent. You may pay him, or he may be doing it without compensation.

You may ask him to buy or sell property for you. Or, his responsibility may be to negotiate an agreement for you with a third person.

If representations or warranties are made by your agent in performing the task which you assigned to him, you are responsible.

In a like manner, you are responsible for the contract made by him while he was acting for you.

You may be held responsible for the acts of a person who customarily represents you even though he entered into a contract for you without your consent or approval.

For example, you may have a partner in a business, and you and he have agreed that certain contracts shall be made only upon the signature of both of you.

Unknown to you and without your consent, your partner signs such a contract with a third person involving partnership business. If the person with whom this contract is made has no knowledge of the terms of your partnership agreement, you are responsible for the contract which your partner has made.

You may have agreed between you that neither of you would buy, without the other's consent, any items of merchandise costing more than $50. You did not give this information to salesmen who called on you. In your absence on a Thursday afternoon, your partner ordered merchandise for your store costing more than the $50 limit.

When the merchandise is delivered, you can not refuse to accept it because you can be bound by the contract of your partner. This is true in many situations, and the salesman is not bound by your partnership agreement because you did not advise him of the $50 limitation.

Answer: Big Enough To Do The Job!

THE AMERICAN WAY

A PLACE TO DIG IN

By George Peck

Is there any hope that political action can halt America's drift toward socialism? Certainly not as long as the rank and file of voters are either misinformed or lethargic. What possible benefit can come from changing party or the leader in power, if the same old practices of government patrimony are simply continued under different names?

George Peck

Some Americans feel that IF we can organize politically now with sufficient energy and enthusiasm, 1958 will see a change, not as to party name or leader personality, but a change in direction and policy. Others say it is too late; that we've gone too far in the direction of big government to reverse direction. Still others, not content with dragging their feet, prefer to take action now to remedy an intolerable situation.

It is certain that whichever conclusion we tend to support in our secret hearts, we must all keep working. Those who feel that something can be done politically in 1958 or 1960 have several avenues of action open to them. There are any number of splendid organizations with which they can affiliate, groups such as "For America"—"The Congress of Freedom"—"We the People"—"The Campaign for the 48 States" and many others, including the Constitution Party itself.

But let us suppose that those who feel that problems created by politics can scarcely be solved by politicians, are correct. Then what? One cannot simply sit down and give up. Some action must be maintained unless we are to surrender docilely to communism, socialism or some other foreign ideology.

Fortunately, there is a method now available for those who wish to accomplish something and are disillusioned as to the effectiveness of political action in the immediate future. The answer is in The Freedom

School. In the lovely setting of the Rampart Range of the Rocky Mountains not far from the site of the new Air Force Academy, Robert LeFevre, his staff and a number of leading libertarian luminaries, have organized and built one of the most unique educational institutions in America.

The course of instruction is available to anyone 16 years of age or older, who has leadership potential and is dedicated to preserving "The American Way." One of the merits of the course is this. The guest instructors for 1957, including Leonard E. Read and Dr. F. A. Harper, both of the Foundation for Economic Education; Frank Chodorov, author of "The Income Tax, Root of All Evil"; Fred G. Clark, head of the American Economic Foundation; Percy Greaves of the staff of Christian Economics; and Dr. James L. Doenges, an expert on socialized medicine and social security, are dedicated to helping Americans think.

"It is not enough," says president of the school, LeFevre, "to tell Americans what to think and what to do. Rather, it is essential that each of us as individuals learn HOW to think and HOW to do. The organization of a political movement is only as effective as the leadership of that movement. The people in the movement do not have to think. They simply must follow their leader."

Looking into the future, LeFevre declares: "So long as we depend upon political majorities, we will lose out to the largest crowd of persons who follow their leader. What is desperately needed is sturdy individualism, knowledge and know-how within the working capacity of each person. Any individual who knows how to think and who knows the facts respecting communism and socialism is, without further guidance, able to refute the errors and misconceptions of collectivism. Such a person is not dependent upon any leader no matter how wise. Such a person is himself equipped to handle the various problems confronting him. And he can and will put to rout all collectivizing efforts so far as he is concerned.

"It is unreasonable and inconsistent to suppose that we can offset the effectiveness of See No. 2 Page 8

These Forty Years!

Forty years ago, in June of 1917, the Humble Company received its charter from the State of Texas.

The Company was formed through a merger of the properties of a number of independent oil operators. Its founding brought together a remarkable group of men who occupy an important place in the annals of the oil industry:

R. S. Sterling and his brother, F. P. Sterling, the principal organizers of Humble Oil Company from which the present company acquired its name; W. S. Farish and R. L. Blaffer composing Blaffer and Farish; H. C. Wiess with assets from Paraffine and Reliance Oil Companies; Walter W. Fondren and C. B. Goddard, producers; and L. A. Carlton and E. E. Townes as lawyers.

All of these men contributed greatly in adopting the principles, in shaping the policies, and in laying out procedures that have guided the Company's progress through these forty years. Their influence will survive as long as the Company continues.

They possessed courage and business judgment. They established high standards of performance. They built a strong organization of competent men and women.

The Company, as it stands today, is a tribute to the leadership, the vision, and the work of its founders.

But it is doubtful that these men, with all their foresight, visualized the changes that have occurred in the oil industry since 1917, or the size and complexity of Humble's present operations, or the extent of the Company's contributions through the years to the progress of our society.

To all who have made those contributions possible—employees, customers, shareholders and the people of the states in which the Company operates—Humble extends its thanks.

Conservation Is The Keynote To Two 4-H Works Under Way

Conservation is the keynote of two highly important 4-H projects vital to the future welfare of the nation. They are the Soil and Water Conservation programs.

Thousands of 4-H boys and girls are now participating in the activities which benefit themselves, their homes and communities.

Last year over a third of all 4-H Club members enrolled in the health program, according to the Cooperative Extension Service, while those taking part in Soil and water conservation worked on a total of nearly 400,000 acres.

"Learning by doing" pays worthwhile dividends, too. At the wind-up of the 4-H Club year, members' records will be reviewed by the State Extension office, and recommendations made for individual 1957 awards.

Based on outstanding program achievement and all-around 4-H performance, awards are given at the county, state, and national levels.

All awards in the health program will again be provided by Eli Lilly and Co., of Indianapolis, Indiana. The soil and water conservation awards will be given for the 14th consecutive year by Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., of Akron, Ohio.

As many as four qualifying members in each county may win gold-filled medals. The top ranking boy or girl in the state will be a delegate to the national 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next fall with all expenses paid. The highest honor — a $400 college scholarship — goes to the national winners.

Many splendid opportunities for community service are offered through these programs.

Local volunteer 4-H leaders lend moral as well as active support in helping club members to develop good personal health habits and to improve health conditions generally.

The soil and water conservation program covers a wide variety of undertakings ranging from erosion control to long-range plans that will eventually reclaim hundreds of acres.

Mr. and Mrs. Pate Collier and Claudette and Coleman of 901 East Oak and Mr. and Mrs. John Dick Moorhead and Rhetta Kay and Mrs. Ocie, all of Sundown, along with Mr. and Mrs. Bunk Proctor and Douglas, Donald and Darwin of El Paso attended a barbecue Sunday in Odessa with the Pete Proctor family.

KNOW YOUR RIFLE is the lesson being taught to Texas recruits at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center. Members of the all-Texas company attentive to Navy instructor J. C. Sease, boatswain's mate first class, are 1 to 7 (first row) Alan R. Clay of Midland, Hector A. Strubell of Brownsville, (second row) Richards S. Piekell of San Antonio, Frank J. Raske of Yoakum, and Edward F. Follett, Jr., of Texas City. The Texas company's graduation on July 6 will highlight Great Lakes Navy Homecoming's "Salute to Texas" week, July 1-7.

Your Protection Is Speed Control, Says

Speed control is for your protection. Cooperate with your enforcement officers."

That advice was given to motorists today by J. O. Musick, General Manager of the Texas Safety Association, as he urged all Texans to support the Slow Down and Live program of the Texas Safety Association.

"To hear some motorists talk, you'd think speed regulations were made by grouchy policemen just to make life tough for drivers," Musick said. "The fact is there's a very good reason for every regulation made."

"Speed regulations represent the combined thinking of traffic engineers and police," he said. Before a speed limit is established for a given area, many factors must be considered. Studies made prior to the establishment of speed limits deal with such things as the number and frequency of intersections, winding roads, residential areas, location of schools, heavy traffic, hilly areas, and wide open country.

Flouts Speed Signs
"The driver who flouts speed signs based on such careful study has very little respect for his own safety," Musick said. "And don't forget that a driver might be driving below the posted speed limit and still be driving at a speed that is too fast for conditions, and therefore unlawful."

The Safety expert pointed out that posted speed limits give the speed that is safe ideal conditions of weather, road, traffic, driver, and vehicle. If any one of these conditions is not up to par the driver must compensate by reducing his speed," he said.

"All it takes to determine a safe speed is plain common sense," Musick said. "The wise driver is his own policeman. He makes the job of the traffic officer a lot easier, and he saves the taxpayer enforcement dollars."

The word salary comes from "salarium" meaning salt money, since Roman soldiers received part of their pay in salt.

Texas High School Mathematicians Scientists At Work

AUSTIN — Texas' most promising high school scientists and mathematicians are getting a taste of college life this summer on five Texas campuses. Some 130 of the talented youngsters, all with IQ's above 120, are enrolled in experimental classes at the University of Texas, Texas A&M, Rice Institute, Southern Methodist University and Texas Technological College.

Special courses in physics, biology and chemistry are being offered June 10-July 12 at each of the college. During the five-week program the students participate in group discussions, lectures, problem and project sessions and field trips.

The youngsters enrolled in the program represent 62 high schools in 65 Texas cities and towns.

The University of Texas conducted a pilot course last year for about 30 exceptionally talented high school chemists.

New Book To Tell Of Ill-Fated Movement

AUSTIN—A book which won a prize in manuscript form will be published June 24 by the University of Texas Press. "Negro Militia and Reconstruction" by Dr. Otis A. Singletary, history instructor, was awarded the biennial Moncado Prize of the American Military Institute for "the best original book-length manuscript in any field of U.S. military history."

The project was enthusiastically endorsed by the Fund for the Advancement of Education which made a $25,000 grant to the University to coordinate the program in the other institutions.

The grant will cover expenses of the participating colleges, as well as cost of the student's books and field trips.

The experimental classes are not designed to take the place of the usual high school and college offerings, but to increase the students' enthusiasm for science and develop a greater understanding of scientific careers available.

Much of the violence which characterized Reconstruction was directly associated with the Negro militia movement organized by Radical politicians to support their precarious regimes in Southern states. The new book tells the story of that ill-fated movement, "a story with important implications for our own times," the Press points out.

Moncado Book Fund judges said Dr. Singletary "handled a controversial and little understood topic with great objectivity, originality and lucidity." They praised the "thoroughness of his scholarship and the clarity and liveliness of his presentation."

Dr. Singletary is a graduate of Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss., and has Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees from Louisiana State University. He served with the Navy in the Pacific during World War II and was recalled during the Korean emergency.

$2,000,000 per mile for 6-lane divided highways, a million and a half dollars per mile for 4-lane divided highways in cities and three-quarters of a million dollars for rural four-lane roads.

Maintenance costs on highways averaged, even before the recent heavy rains, $7,225 annually on the six-lane roads.

"The public simply got tired of paying more than its share of the huge road building repair bill and decided to halt the additional damage that would come from heavier vehicles thundering over the roads," declared McCalla.

Wood Preservative Can Add To Life Of The Lawn Furniture

Homeowners invest considerable money and effort in furnishing their lawns and backyards with picnic furniture, wings and gliders and other accessories to outdoor living and entertaining. If you are among these persons, naturally you would like these things to last as long as possible.

You can add years to the useful life of wooden outdoor furnishings by treating them with a wood preservative, suggests C. W. Simmons, extension farm forester. Such a material is pentachlorophenol, often referred to as "penta" and is sold under different trade names but the container label will indicate its presence.

Wood decay is caused by the action of fungi—small plant like organisms present everywhere in soil. Numerous insects also attack wood. Both need warmth, moisture and air in which to work. Rain-soaked wood and all wood in contact with the soil are ideal for their destructive activity, says Simmons.

The preservative suggested by the forester is poisonous to both insects and fungi. When mixed with oil, it is not soluble in water and wood soaked with it becomes water repellent.

Soaking is essential. Surface treatment, such as painting, is inadequate, points out the specialist.

For some furniture, such as tables, benches and chairs, Simmons suggests letting each leg stand overnight in a container filled with the solution. Other vulnerable spots can be treated by repeatedly flooding the surface with the preservative and allowing it to stand until it disappears into the wood.

Habeas Corpus literally means, "you may have the body."

The Press Battles for its Freedom

JOHN PETER ZENGER was arrested "for printing and publishing several seditious libels dispersed throughout his journals or newspapers."

Zenger was a New York printer in the days when Governor Cosby ruled the colony. Governor Cosby ruled in such an autocratic, overbearing manner that several indignant citizens started a newspaper to arouse the public against his tyranny. Zenger undertook to publish the newspaper.

Zenger was thrown into prison, and his bail was fixed at $50 pounds, a large sum for those days and quite beyond his ability to furnish. He stayed in jail for months, and his situation appeared hopeless.

The case finally was called to the attention of Andrew Hamilton, a distinguished Pennsylvania lawyer, who took up Zenger's cause as a public service. Hamilton forced the case to trial, and his speech to the jury, which led to Zenger's acquittal, is a ringing statement of what the press in America must still vigilantly fight for.

All men have the right, Hamilton maintained, "publicly to remonstrate the abuses of power... and to assert with courage the sense they have of the blessing of liberty... and their resolution at all hazards to preserve it."

Today in our country encroachments by governments and private interests alike upon freedom of the press are counter to law. Nevertheless, even today the press must battle constantly to keep this freedom intact.

Curves don't come too sharp or hills too steep for this nimble new Chevrolet. With its new velvety V8 power, new roadability and ride, you're the relaxed master of any road you travel.

Bring on the mountains! This new Chevy takes steep grades with such an easygoing stride you hardly even give them a thought. There's lean-muscle power tucked away under that hood, just rarin' to handle any hill you aim it at. And no matter how curvy the road may be, a light touch keeps Chevrolet right on course. You'll like the solid, even-keeled way it stays put on sharp turns.

A car has to have a special kind of build to handle and ride like a Chevy. It has to have Chevrolet's low, wide stance, its out-rigger rear springs and well-balanced weight! Drive this sweet, smooth and sassy performer at your Chevrolet dealer's.

20 Years Ago Here

Joe Chisholm, who owns Chisholm Hatchery, returned from Waco, where he attended a special course in poultry diseases.

Jim Massengale, who cultivates 700 acres about 25 miles northwest of Brownfield, was in town Thursday afternoon attending to a few business matters.

A new soda foundation is being installed in front of Terry's White Kitchen and will be in operation on Saturday with a complete line of popular fountain drinks.

Mrs. Bill Aschenbeck entertained a group of friends Wednesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Millard Holloway. Refreshments of lemonade and cake were served to about 25 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Houtchens and son, Raymond, and Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Martin of Lubbock enjoyed a picnic dinner Sunday in the Lubbock park.

Miss Marion Chisholm of this city and Harold Boston of Lubbock were married last Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the home of Rev. J. H. Kilion, pastor of the Church of Christ.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Webber are vacationing in California. They were accompanied as far as Ruidoso, N.M., by Mrs. G. W. Webber, who will visit there, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Longbrake.

James King and Don King have returned from a trip to Waco, where they visited in the home of their uncle, Clyde King.

'Public Finally Has Halted Additional Weight Increase for Trucks on Roads'

AUSTIN — An aroused public finally has halted additional weight increases for highway-damaging trucks, it was pointed out here today by the Texas Railroad Assn.

Truck operators, who legally could carry only 38,000 pounds on Texas roads as recently as 1945, sought to increase their vehicles' weight from 58,400 pounds to 72,000 during the session of the legislature just ended.

"The bill easily passed the house, but informed Texans, in immense numbers, increasingly aware of the high cost of highway building and repair, let members of the Senate know their sentiments," said Kenneth McCalla, general counsel of the Texas Railroad Association.

"The newspapers made available to the public the facts and editorially opposed the weight increase which neither the roads nor bridges of Texas are strong enough to support.

"The result: Conscientious senators put the brakes on the onrushing highway giants and for the first time in a dozen years a truck increase measure failed."

Since 1945 the trucking interests, without additional taxes being levied against them, other than assessed ordinary motorists, consistently had gained larger and heavier vehicles.

Truck weights were upped from 38,000 to 58,400 pounds; the height was increased a foot to 13 feet, 6 inches, and the length from 45 to 50 feet.

County commissioners and organizations, such as the Southwest Cattle Raisers' Association, joined the public clamor in calling for a halt to highway-wrecking legislation.

"Never have so many county commissioner's courts displayed their ire," said McCalla. "Approximately half of them adopted resolutions condemning weight increases. County judges and commissioners knew how many secondary roads and bridges they had to repair and replace out of county funds after the boxcars on rubber tires tore them down."

Adverse public reaction was set off by many things, including:

State Highway Department officials testified before legislative committees that not a single bridge on the state primary system had been designed to carry the loads sought by the truckers under a short axle spacing formula.

Highway engineers stated that a 72,000-pound load limit would definitely shorten the life of bridges.

They also said that nearly 2,000 more bridges would have to be placed on a list of structures forbidden to large trucks. There are already 800 such bridges.

Under a proposed 38-foot distance between axles, Texas trucks could legally move 72,000 pounds in only two states, Louisiana and Indiana, although trucking spokesmen charged opponents of the weight increase were impeding Texas' economy.

Highway construction costs have climbed to as much as
