

ALL OF FACULTY FOR TEXAS TECH IS NOW SECURED

In the neighborhood of $150,000. Equipment contracts, including practically all of the equipment needed in the chemistry, physics and agronomy laboratories, desks, tables and chairs of students and instructors, and all furnishings of the domestic science department were recently let by the state board of control. The items purchased, with the cost of each and from which company procured will be made public as soon as he is furnished with the itemized list, Doctor Horn said.

A. L. Laidich, dean of agriculture, will soon begin the selection of stock to be used by the agricultural department of the college. Mr. Laidich is at present winding up his affairs at the state agricultural and mechanical college, where he has been head of the agronomy department for the past several years.

To Let More Contracts.

When the regents hold their meeting here on July fifteenth chief among their duties to perform will be the letting of contracts on the dairy barn, the poultry plan and for the laying of sidewalks and the finishing of streets on the college campus. Five thousand dollars for the sidewalks and street improvement work has been named as the sum to be used.

Although he was considerably worried at first concerning the city's ability to furnish housing and boarding facilities for the students Doctor Horn believes now that there will be enough rooms for all the students, provided a large part of the houses and dormitories now being planned by property owners materialize. He estimates that the enrollment will be from 200 to 1,000 students, with men students in a majority of approximately two to one. Requests for information about the college continue to pour in and a great many prospective students and their parents are visiting Lubbock and looking over the situation.

SMALL BOY DROWNED

RANGER.—Paul Plumley, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Plumley drowned in a small lake near Ranger, where the family was seeking relief from the heat. Several children were swimming and he was wading, when suddenly he was seen to sink in four feet of water. He was taken out within three minutes and sent to a doctor, but a plumbot proved of no avail.

MAN FATALLY HURT

CLEBURNE.—J. L. C. Miller, 23 year old, prominent Johnson County farmer, is dying at his home at Godley, thirteen miles west of here, as the result of being struck by an automobile late Sunday night. Miller was walking home from church when the accident occurred. He is the father of eleven children.

New Fire Truck Is Pronounced As O. K.

Lubbock's new fire truck, although yet unutilized, is in perfect condition and as a result L. R. Boone, representative of the American-LaFrance Motor company, builders of firefighting equipment, will return to his home in Dallas today.

The big truck, which is the latest thing in its line, has been an object of interest here for more than a week. It made its maiden run Saturday to a small blaze at 1416 Fifteenth street but the fire which was a small one, was extinguished before the fire boys arrived.

Mrs. M. H. Starnes and brother, Emmitt Adair left Monday for a visit with relatives in Lone Oak and Fort Worth.

Lubbock People Are Not In Wreck, Belief

Following the announcement in state papers concerning the railroad wreck at Hackensack, New Jersey, in which 43 Germans, bound for their ship which was to take them to a visit to their former country, were killed, many Lubbock county people wondered if M. F. Klattenhoff, Lubbock county farmer, and his two daughters, Miss Lena and Miss Clara, were on the ill-fated train. The Klattenhoffs left here more than a week ago on the first leg of their trip to Germany and Holland.

It is not thought that they were on the train because plans given out by M. Klattenhoff prior to their leaving stated that they would sail from New York on June 18, which was the day of the accident. The people in the crash were not to have sailed until today.

Miss Edith Carter is in Amarillo visiting her sister, Mrs. H. E. Wheelock. She will return to Lubbock the latter part of the week.

REGULATIONS ON TRAFFIC ARE TO UNDERGO CHANGE

street will not be permitted to turn to the postoffice from Broadway but will be forced to go at least as far south as Thirteenth street before making the left-hand turn.

Intersections have been laid out on the principal corners of the business section, the painted lines showing the territory taken in by the intersection. With the passage of the new law it becomes unlawful for one car to pass another going the same direction, while the wheels of the vehicles are contained between the painted lines. This means that the traffic will be the chance of accident.

Violations of these laws will be met with rebukes and explanations from the officers at first, but as soon as people become accustomed to the new plan a fine of not more than one hundred dollars will be assessed to violators. Signs telling drivers of the rule against "U" turns and left hand turns will be placed at the designated corners as soon as it is possible.

Mayor Urges Co-operation. The co-operation of every citizen in following the traffic rules is solicited by Mayor Friend, who states that it is impossible to regulate traffic without the help of the citizenship as a whole. He pointed out that it is not the idea of the commission to try to make the people do something just to be making them do it but they are putting these changes into effect to better traffic conditions and to make an improvement for drivers and pedestrians alike.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Harbit have returned to their home after a several weeks' visit in Austin, Brownwood, San Antonio and Houston.

Mayor F. R. Friend and Ross Edwards have returned to Lubbock after a two weeks' vacation spent in Colorado.

E. McElroy and sons, Roy and Frank, will leave next week for a month's trip to California. While in Los Angeles they will visit John McElroy, who has been in California for a year.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Rush and son are in Brownfield visiting Mrs. Rush's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Powell.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dyzart have as their guest Mrs. Joe Woodard of Ft. Worth.

Why Thin, Pale Girls Are Unpopular

It is a well-known fact that thin, pale girls are unpopular. They are thin and pale because they do not get enough iron in their diet. Iron is essential for the growth and development of the body. It is the element that makes the blood rich and healthy. It is the element that makes the muscles strong and the nerves firm. It is the element that makes the skin clear and the hair lustrous. It is the element that makes the body strong and healthy. It is the element that makes the girl popular.

TO BURY WOMAN HELD IN MORGUE OVER TWO YEARS

Mrs. F. H. Leeds, Who Died Here February 8, 1923, Will Be Interred Saturday

The body of Mrs. F. H. Leeds, which has been held in a local morgue since February 8, 1923, will be buried here Saturday, June 20, unless word to the contrary is received from her husband, who disappeared immediately after turning her body over to the undertakers.

Mrs. Leeds was a victim of an attack of influenza and her husband, who said the family was totally without funds, asked that the body be prepared for burial and held until his return from Mississippi, where he went to get money to defray the funeral expenses. Since the disappearance of Leeds numerous attempts to locate him have failed. The woman's body is in perfect condition in spite of the length of time it has been held. It is said that she has two sisters living in Georgetown.

The woman's body was first turned over to the Simmons Furniture and Undertaking Company and when the undertaking business was separated from the furniture business and taken over by L. D. Simmons, the body was still left there. Later Higgins and Burrus, the present owners of the morgue, took over the body when they purchased the business and that firm will hold the funeral services. Rev. E. E. White, pastor of the First Methodist Church, will be in charge and interment will be made in the Lubbock cemetery.

Stars-Informed Ancients When to Start Planting

Too early for record in written history, the orderly procession of the fixed stars about Polaris gave a main means of telling time. From antiquity the stars have told when to plant to obtain the harvest. And it was astronomy, and not astrology, that performed these miracles.

For many centuries the naked eye was the most powerful instrument for astronomical observation. Not until the time of the great Galileo did the telescope allow a deeper glimpse into the heavens. Yet knowledge of the position of the earth in the scheme of things antedated the telescope, bold men had made bold guesses that the sun, and not the earth, was the center of rotation in our own little corner of the universe. Slow but fundamental were the early steps of practical astronomy.

CROPS SPOTTED IN MANY PARTS REPORTS STATE

Northwest and Northeast Parts Of State Are In Finest of Conditions, Estimated

HOUSTON.—In many counties of the northwest, west center, north and northeast the best conditions in years are reported, but over the remainder of the state crop conditions are very irregular ranging from good to very poor. While 800 drains have failed over most of the northern half, moisture has been deficient in the lower half and only a surface moisture exists in all too many localities. Fields are clearer than usual at this time particularly where rainfall has been deficient. Where last year there was an excellent season in the ground which maintained crops through much of the summer this season with very little deep moisture and unless rains fall regularly a large part of the state may suffer heavy losses.

SLATON PEOPLE BEGIN PLANS FOR DIRECT SANTA FE LINE TO FORT WORTH AND DALLAS

MEETINGS PROBABLY WILL BE HELD TO FURTHER PLANS OF RAILWAY OFFICIALS TO BRING THIS SECTION THROUGH CONNECTION

The decision of the Fort Worth and Denver railway company to enter into competition on the South Plains and the fact that the Santa Fe is building one additional branch line and is planning others, has not dampened the ardor of railroad building and already other plans are being formulated.

At the time of the announcement that the Burlington system would connect the Plains with Fort Worth and Dallas by a direct line officials of the Santa Fe line made the statement that they too were planning a direct route by way of Slaton and Post City. One South Plains official of the Santa Fe stated recently that in the light of his company's announcement he would wage a new effort that the Santa Fe "would be the first line to whistle onto the South Plains with a direct line to Fort Worth and Dallas."

Slaton people immediately got busy on the proposition and Editor Ben F. Smith, of The Slaton Times, reports on the subject as follows:

The extension of the Santa Fe to Fort Worth has been revived and there is considerable discussion in Slaton among our leading citizens relative to the possibilities of securing this road at this time. Some three years ago this matter was taken up with the Santa Fe people and a committee of Slaton citizens went over the route and held meetings in all the towns from the corner to Fort Worth. Considerable interest and offer of aid and cooperation was had at that time.

The present outlook for railroad building on the Plains is very bright and it is generally understood that the Santa Fe has in mind the Fort Worth extension in the immediate future. Should the Denver be granted a permit to build into the Plains, the Santa Fe will be compelled to go into Fort Worth in a more direct line than they have at present, and every indication points to Slaton as the starting point. The main line would doubtless be used as far as Post and the branch started from there into Fort Worth. The Post City people would be vitally interested in a movement of this kind and would render Slaton all the aid possible within their power.

It is suggested that a railroad meeting be held in Slaton at an early date and plans laid to get it in motion. At the time the road was sprung before Fort Worth was not very keen to co-operate, but the past few years they have come to realize the importance of the Plains country and more direct lines of transportation from this section into their city. They would now doubtless join us in any movement we would undertake, especially if it is suggested for Slaton to get busy and look after its railroad interest. Slaton is a Santa Fe town and our interest is linked inseparably with that of the Santa Fe. We must look to the Santa Fe for future railroad advantages, and the fact of the company's already heavy investment here would suggest that they would be vitally interested in branching from Slaton as indicated in order to get full advantage of their terminal facilities already established in Slaton.

It has been suggested this week that as a result of a mass meeting held in Slaton a railroad committee should be selected to proceed to Chicago and put these matters up to the proper authorities. We concur in the suggestion both as to the mass meeting and also the importance of a good wide awake committee at this time.

BAD FOOD MAY MAKE BAD TEMPER

Irritable dispositions, bad temper, listlessness, or apparent laziness and poor school work are often caused by poor food instead of by "nervousness," say child specialists at South Dakota College.

The well nourished child is sturdy, bright, he stands erect, and his eyes are bright; he stands erect, and his eyes are bright, he stands erect, and his eyes are bright. He is enthusiastic, active and energetic without being nervous.

Listlessness, nervousness and irritability are apt to be signs of improper nourishment, or poor food. Poor standing in classes goes with malnutrition, and both physical and mental development may be retarded. Bow legs and knock knees are sure symptoms, says the college. Narrow, flat chests and shoulder blades that stick out like wings show that bone building foods have been lacking in the child's food. Such a child is usually thin and his flesh will be pale and flabby. His eyes may have dark circles around them, and his expression is probably dull.

Plenty of fresh fruits and vegetable and milk are good insurance against feeding. When these are included in generous quantities in the regular diet, the child runs little risk of suffering from improper nourishment.

Person-to-Person Long Distance Calls

This service requires a greater amount of operating effort and more circuit time than "Station-to-Station" calls because a particular person must be called to the telephone before you can talk. The rate for such calls is about one-half greater than the "Station-to-Station" rate.

Again, when calling party, in placing a call, names a specific time at which he wants to talk and the conversation is held accordingly, the "Appointment" rate applies. Additional operating labor and circuit time have been required to make the appointment.

$16 INVESTMENT IN OIL RESULTS IN HUGE PROFIT

Ozona Man Sells Cheap Leases To Big Company for Ninety Thousand Dollars

SAN ANGELO, — An investment of $16 a year ago in a lease on a quarter section of land in Crockett county has returned to Tom Nolen of Ozona, Crockett County Clerk, ranchman and oil operator, the princely sum of $90,000. The Matland Oil company has paid Mr. Nolen $45,000 in cash and will pay a similar amount in production for part of section 72, block BB, Narissa Miller survey. The proximity of the property to the World well, first producer in the Reagan-Crockett county district outside University land and marking the opening of a new pool, accounts for the almost fabulous profit of 56,250 per cent.

Mr. Nolen is not alone in reaping benefits from the new treasure which Mother Earth promises to yield to the 4:11, Frank and Ralph Harris of San Angelo, brothers, prominently identified with live stock raising in West Texas since boyhood, already have received $105,000 from leases on Crockett County ranch lands.

Late in the week they closed a deal with the Humble Oil and Refining Company for the drilling of a well on sections 11, 12 and 14; block 2, Washington County Railroad company, survey, six or seven miles west and slightly north of the Matland survey.

PROFITS

Electric service helps to increase the wealth of the country and adds to the comfort and happiness of life. Every home connected with electric lines, every factory which uses electric service, makes a profit from the use of utility service, either in cash or comfort. They are, therefore, vitally concerned in the welfare of the public utilities.

"There is just one condition on which men can secure employment and a living profitable wage for whatever they contribute to the enterprise, be it labor or capital, and that condition is that someone make a profit by it," says President Coolidge.

"That is the sound basis for the distribution of wealth and the only one.

"It cannot be done by law; it cannot be done by public ownership; it cannot be done by socialism.

"When you deny the right to a profit, you deny the right of a reward to thrift and industry."

When a community and its people profit from public utility service, they cannot in justice deny fair rates to the utility and a fair profit to its owners.

MALLET RANCH LANDS TO GO ON MARKET JULY FIRST, OPENING A 56,000 ACRE TRACT FOR FARMS

STANLEY WATSON

The Mallet ranch, owned by D. M. Devitt, of Fort Worth, and W. D. Johnson, of Kansas City, consisting of 56,000 acres of virgin land, is to be thrown on the market beginning July first, Stanley Watson, sales manager, announced yesterday. Mr. Watson has recently returned to Lubbock from several months' visiting in his former home in Kansas City and Kentucky.

Between forty and fifty salesmen will be used on the tract and Mr. Watson is already forming his sales organization. Some of the most experienced and best land men in this territory have already signified their intentions of joining his organization, he stated.

Practically all of the 56,000 acres are located in Hockley county, and the tract extends to within a mile and a half of Levelland, the booming county seat which will be given a railroad connection with Lubbock July fourth, when the new Santa Fe branch line is expected to be completed as far as that place.

The lands will be thrown on the market at a price of thirty-five dollars per acre with a small amount as the cash payment and fifteen years to pay the balance. The Mallet lands are some of the best acreage left unreturned in this section of Texas, according to local land men, and the sale of this tract is expected to add approximately 500 persons to the trade territory of Lubbock and Levelland. For the past number of years the land has been used exclusively for grazing lands for the cattle run by the Mallet Land and Cattle Company. W. D. Johnson, one of the owners of the land, is in Lubbock at the present time and is very optimistic concerning the selling of the land. It is his opinion that late fall will see the land subdivided and sold to cotton farmers.

Slaton To Go Ahead With Plans On Fine New Hotel Building

SLATON.—Monday, fifteen stockholders of the new hotel corporation met at the city hall, and decided to go ahead with the plans and erect a modern hotel on Texas Avenue, converting the Robinson block into same. A change was made in the building plans and instead of a three story building two stories will be used. It will be but a short time until the hotel will be under way. This enterprise is much needed in Slaton and the Texas Avenue is an ideal place for it. The hotel as now planned will have thirty bedrooms. The building will be modern, steam heated and with all the conveniences characterizing a first class hotel. The hotel will be leased to a first-class hotel man who will equip and operate same.—Times.

Panhandle To Grow 6,000,000 Bushels Of Wheat, Estimate

AMARILLO.—The Texas Panhandle will produce 6,000,000 bushels of wheat this year.

This statement was made today by Walter Barlow of the Great West Mill and Elevator company.

Mr. Barlow stated that the majority of the wheat would be produced in what is known as the Central Plains region with the exception of the Groom territory.

Last year the Panhandle produced 14,000,000 bushels of wheat and in 1923 only 8,000,000 bushels, so you see that this is not going to be such an awful year after all.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Posey and daughter, Miss Evelyn, spent last week and visiting relatives in Floydada.

COTTON CONTEST ENTRIES ARE TO CLOSE AUGUST 1

Opportunity To Enroll In 1925 Event Will Be Given To Every Farmer

In order to afford every Texas cotton grower opportunity to enter the State-wide "More Cotton on Fewer Acres" contest the final date for entry has been set for August first. This will give all those farmers a chance to enter who got a late start in planting their cotton and who though they were out of the running. Many a field which started off poorly has developed wonderfully of late and farmers are urged to select any five acres out of their cotton field and enter them in the State contest.

It does not matter what shape the field is in. If a creek or ditch runs through the field that will make no difference as land on both sides can be measured just so that there are five acres, no more, no less.

All land must be measured by Aug. first. The measuring committee should consist of two farmers living in the community or county with the entrants and one merchant or business man from the nearest town. Large counties with many entrants may appoint as many measuring committees as may be necessary to divide the work. Affidavits can be obtained at all chambers of commerce and county agents or from the agricultural Editor of The Dallas Morning News and The Semi-Weekly Farm News.

Closed Car Prices Brought Down Near Those of Open Car

That lower prices and the steady increase of retail sales in the automobile field herald a stability of other industries throughout the country is the contention of Willys-Overland officials who are watching with interest the mounting sales on the new Overland Standard sedan recently announced.

Only by the closest application to detail and the unusual bulk purchase of material, coupled with increased production due to extremely heavy sales in the field, has Willys-Overland been able to produce this five-passenger sedan at $655, the lowest priced sedan with sliding gear transmission.

A flood of orders at the Willys-Overland factory following the announcement of big price reductions on the Overland Standard Six sedan from $2850 to $2450, and the heavy initial production schedule for the new Overland Four Standard sedan, has necessitated a greatly increased production schedule on the models for the summer months, according to company officials.

Although Willys-Overland has maintained a production schedule since January 1st that is well above the production records of similar business at the Toledo factory has necessitated the hiring of more men and greatly increased production.

E. Y. FREELAND CHOSEN FOR FIRST DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS OF TECHNOLOGICAL COLLEGE

SOUTHERN METHODIST UNIVERSITY MENTOR WHO WAS VANDERBILT STAR, TO ARRIVE AFTER JULY FIRST TO BEGIN NEW WORK

E. Y. Freeland, at present a member of the athletic faculty of Southern Methodist University, of Dallas, will be director of athletics at the Texas Technological College, at least during the first year of the new state school's existence, Doctor Paul W. Horn, president of the college, announced here Tuesday.

Freeland has been acting as head basketball and baseball coach and line coach of S. M. U. football teams for the past three years, coming to the Dallas school from Austin College at Sherman, after having had an impressive record as an athletic mentor. In his college days he played football, basketball and baseball for Vanderbilt University and was rated as a star in all three branches of competition.

According to Doctor Horn, Freeland will arrive in Lubbock July first and will immediately take over his new duties. Summer football practice, beginning the latter part of August will be his first work in his new position. Ex-students of Southern Methodist University voiced their approval of the selection of Freeland for this important position, stating that his work at their alma mater had proven him to be a good physical director and coach.

Carl Roberts Jr., a graduate of Southern Methodist University in 1923 said that Freeland was very popular with the student body at the Dallas institution and that he was reported to be one of the best all-around athletes ever turned out of Vanderbilt University.

The selection of Freeland came as a distinct surprise to many persons, especially considering the fact that state papers announced some time ago that Clyde Littlefield, of the athletic staff of the University of Texas, had been given the appointment. Doctor Horn, however, is so sure as the report was seen, denied that Littlefield, who is one of the best athletes in Texas history, had been offered the position.

While it is not expected that the Tech will turn out a champion team for some years the appointment of an experienced man to the position makes the situation look brighter. Many letters have been received by prospective students who have inquired concerning the appointment of an athletic director, officials of the college stated.

SPOKES IN THE HUB

OWEN W. MCWHORTER

A Lubbock county product, exclusively. That's Owen W. McWhorter, county attorney of Lubbock county, who is at present serving his second term in one of the most important offices of the county, and is the youngest of the official family.

Owen W. McWhorter was born eighteen miles west of the present city of Lubbock, on July 19th, 1897, on a ranch operated by his father, B. O. McWhorter. He spent his boyhood in the county and in Lubbock, attending local schools until he finished high school in the class of 1917.

In the fall of 1918 he went to Austin, enrolling in the State University and pursuing the study of law. In the spring of 1922 he completed his collegiate work and was admitted to the State Bar with the right to practice in all courts.

While still a student in the university he announced his candidacy for county attorney and was elected over two opponents and lead the ticket in the county for the number of votes compiled. On January 1, 1923 he took over the office and immediately began upon a record which has favorably grown until now it has placed him foremost in the ranks of the State's prosecutors in West Texas. In 1924 when political office again beckoned he refused and was elected over one opponent by an overwhelming majority, again leading the ticket in the county. Ever since taking office he has upheld his record as a fearless and brilliant prosecutor, teaming well in District court proceedings with Gordon B. McGuire and the late Parke N. Dalton, who were district prosecutors.

County Attorney is not the only public office he has held, he having served as deputy tax collector during the term of Sam Spikes, from June 1922, until January of 1923.

Mr. McWhorter is a member of the First Methodist Church, the Lubbock Country Club, the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Kiwanis Club, and is a member of the board of directors of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. He is not married.

Although not old in years, Mr. McWhorter has seen Lubbock, Lubbock county and the Plains as a whole grow from an undeveloped territory to its present state. He remembers when wagon trains and horse drawn stages were the only method of travel aside from horseback and also remembers when the large part of the country which is now given over to the raising of cotton and other farm products, was raw land used entirely for grazing purposes by the cowmen who then dominated the territory from a commercial and economic standpoint.

The NERVOUS WRECK

BEGIN HERE TODAY
The "Nervous Wreck" is an exciting story of a man who is driven to the limit when they run out of gasoline. At the point of a gun the Wreck takes five gallons from a passing car.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
"Say, are you trying to get me nervous about this?" demanded the Wreck. "Because you're wasting time, if you are, I can just eat this."

Sally eyed him with a speculative look as he began running the engine through the range of the black horse. She had never seen the Wreck looking quite so buoyant. Presently she began to laugh.

"I wish Bob Wells could see you," she said.
"Yes."
"Oh, you needn't get belligerent. I'm laughing at Bob. He'd just die of mortification. He'd either curl up and die or shoot you, I don't know which."

CHAPTER XXII
The Wreck Surrenders
It is not the highest of the hills, but it was bare at the top, so that it afforded them a panorama that boxed the compass.

"What's that?" he asked, pointing.

He stepped out from behind the boulder. She watched him with wondering eyes. Why—he was surrounded.

The Wreck's hands were lifted in the air as he strode down the trail. He had not gone half a dozen paces when the sheriff's gun covered him.

"Where's your gang?" he asked, suddenly.
"Well, if I was a sheriff," drawled the Wreck, "and if I thought there was anybody else I wanted, I'd go and look for 'em."

"Where's that silver of yours?" This was news to the Wreck. He had supposed that the silver was also captive.

CHAPTER XXIII
Getting Engaged
The sheriff felt that he was starting at an apartment. Sally had taken her stand beside the Wreck. Why hadn't she kept out of it? thought the Wreck.

"Don't be a fool, Bob."

JENNINGS TELLS FARMERS NOW TO REPLANT COTTON

Ex-Lubbock County Agent Says Now is Time to Try Out Late Planting
CANYON.—The question of how late can cotton be planted in this section of the Plains country with any degree of success can only be determined through experimentation, and in the sections that were hailed out Tuesday night is a good place to try out some late cotton this year.

County Agent Jennings advises that he does not consider it too late to replant a small acreage of cotton. The chances are about even that cotton planted at this time will make an average crop especially with the splendid moisture that obtains in the hill sections.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE EXPERT IS IN FAVOR OF TESTED FEEDS; TELLS WHY HIGHER STANDARDS NECESSARY

Tentative standards for four of the principal special-purpose mixed feeds, namely cow and dairy feeds, horse and mule feeds, hog feeds and laying mashers were adopted by the South Central States Association of Food, Feed and Drug Officials at Nashville, Tenn., April 10.

Active steps were taken by the Association in 1923 to arrive at higher standards when Mr. Fuller, who was then President of the Association initiated the movement and was authorized to appoint a committee on standard requirements for the special purpose of deciding what should be standard requirements for a good mixed feed for any of the principal purposes for which such feeds are used.

Why Astonishing Mr. Shaw Became a "Jazz Cut-Up" at 68

London Society Says Britain's Prize Playwright Is Learning the Tango as Part of a Plan to Live 150 Years.

Lillah McCarthy, British Actress Who Declares That Shaw's Genius Lies in His Eternal Youth.

LONDON.
FROM the incorrigible Mr. George Bernard Shaw anything was possible. A new play, a new religion, or even a new suit of purple tweeds would have caused no more than a lifted eyebrow or two. Even so, when the Irish orator took up the tango another gasp was wrung from a public that considered itself blasé.

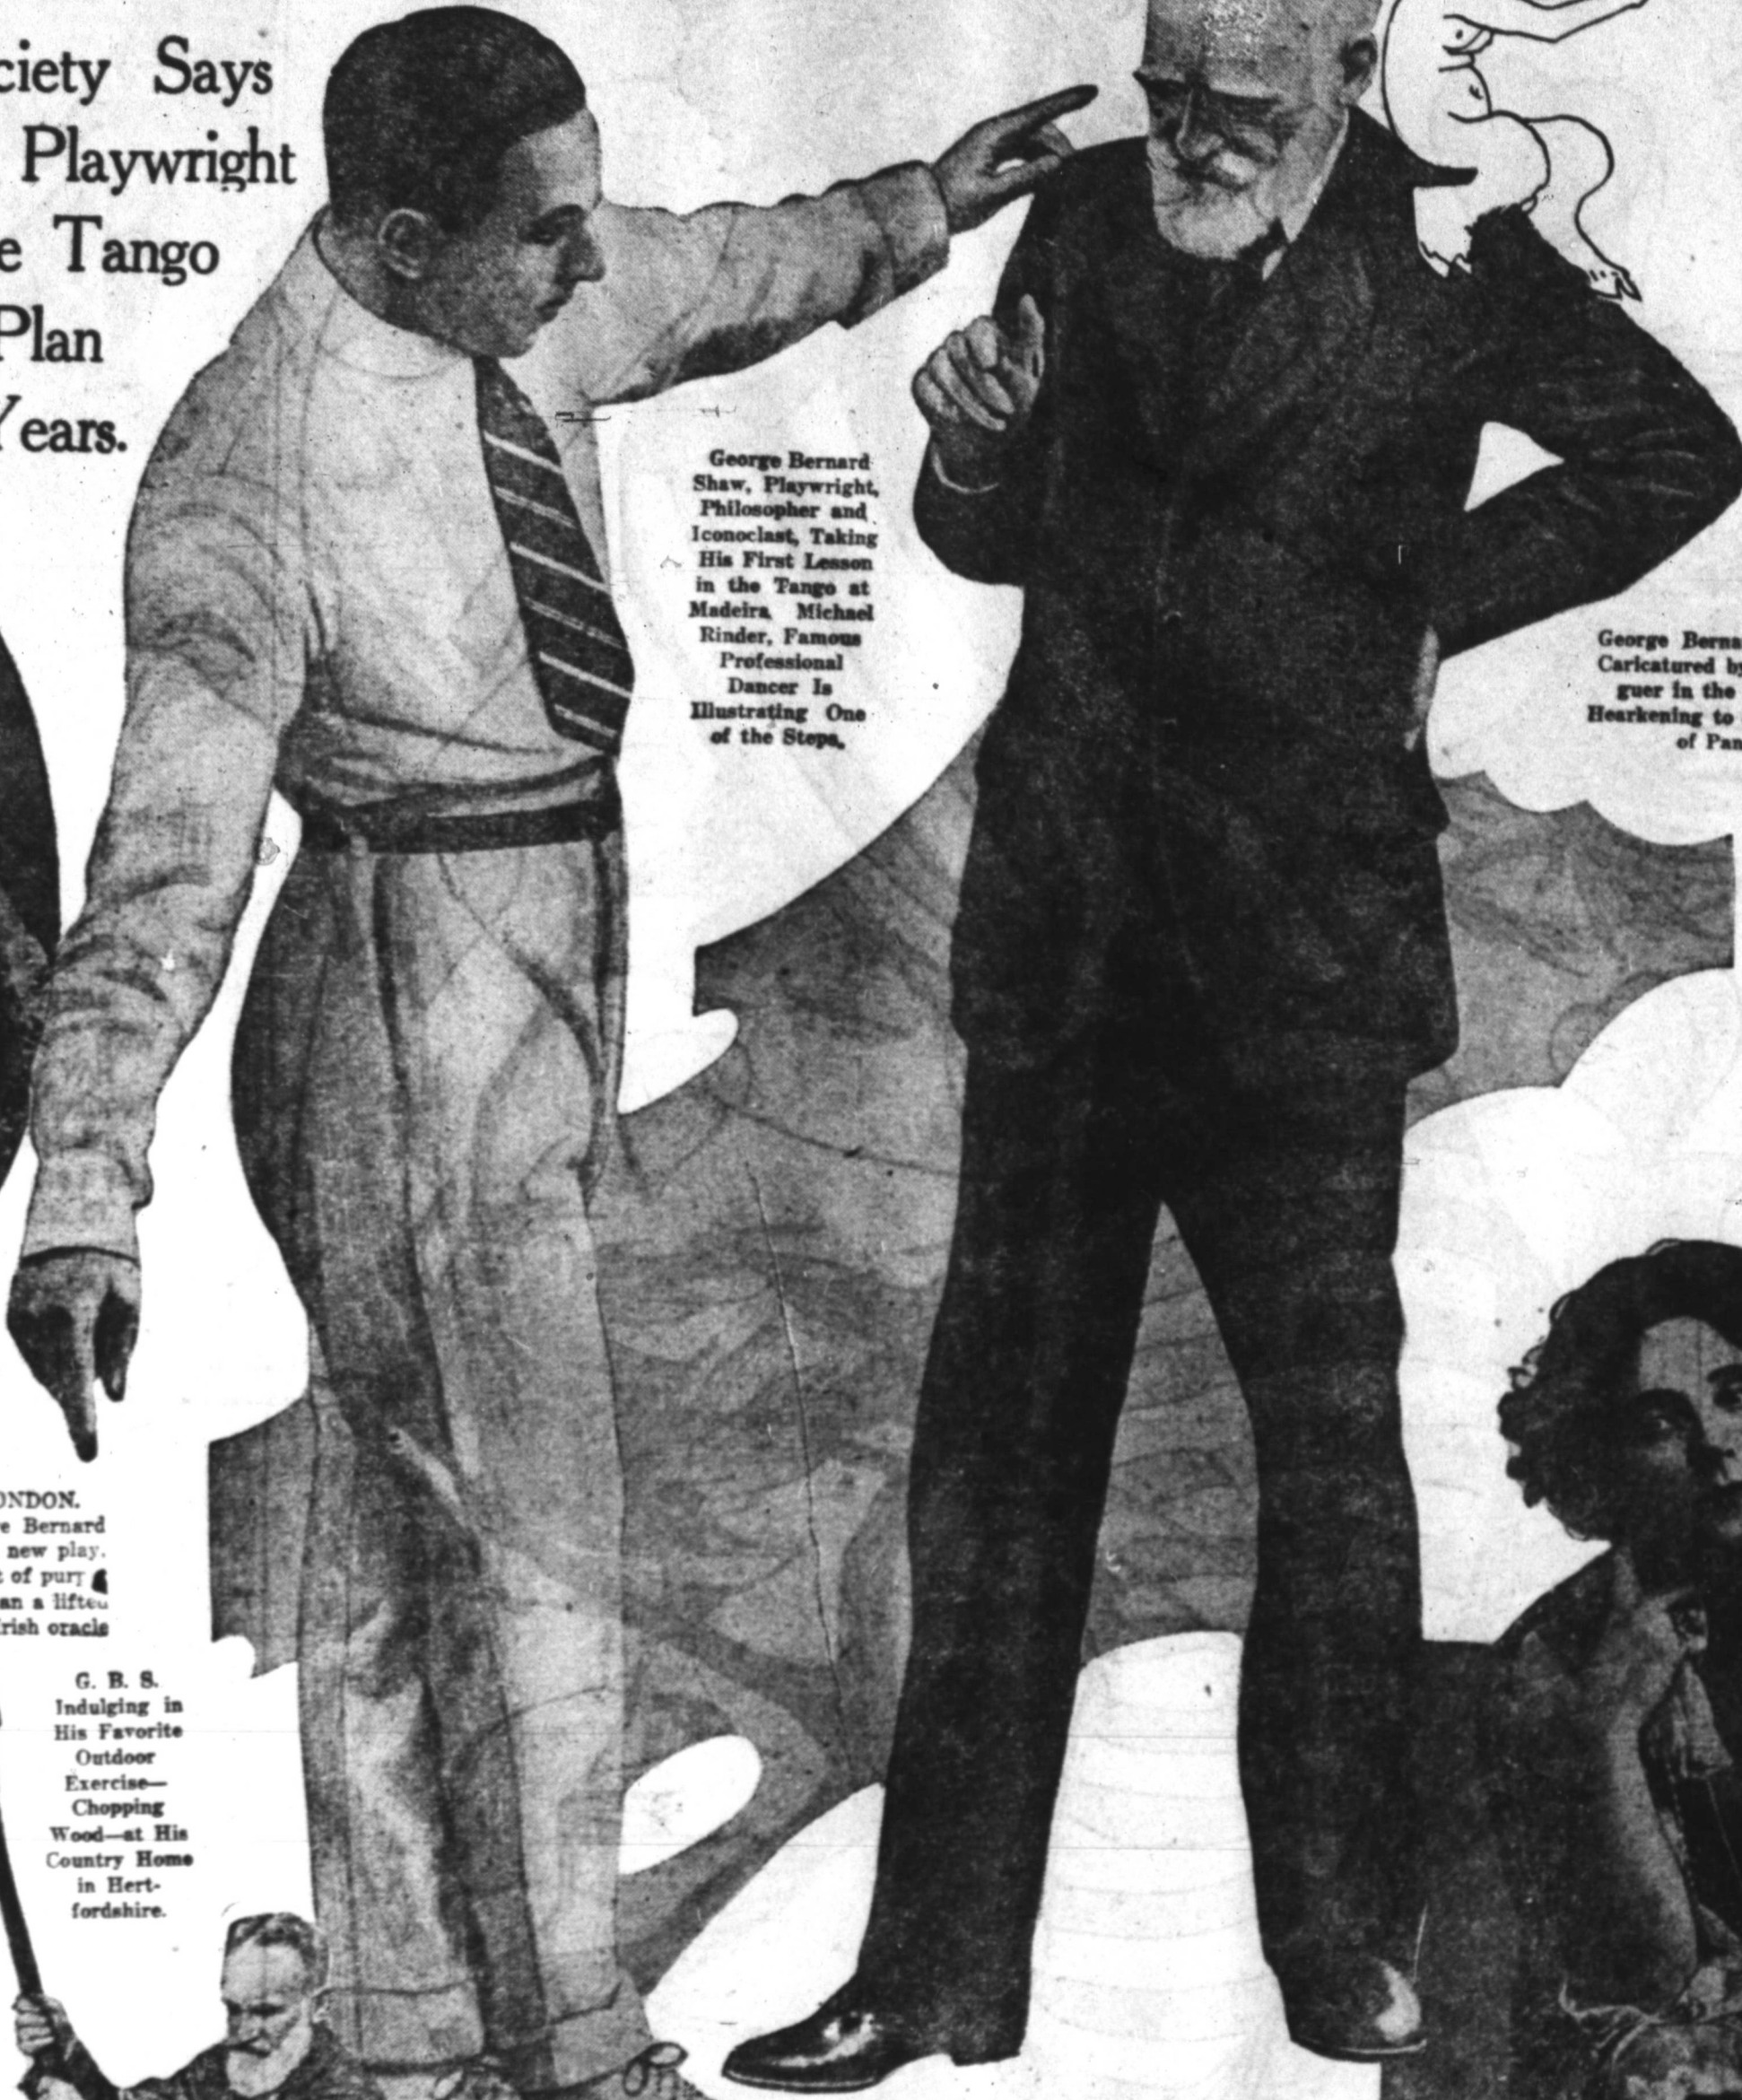

Society simply couldn't imagine those lanky Shavian legs involved in anything so slinky and voluptuous as the favorite dance of the hot-blooded Argentinians. But the photographs that came from Madeira spoke for themselves. Moreover, Mr. Michael Rinder, the terpsichorean master who was responsible for the playwright's instruction, said that Shaw not only took lessons in the tango but that he mastered it.

"It was a study absolutely new to him," explained Mr. Rinder, "but Mr. Shaw's trained mind surmounted the difficulties easily and grasped at once the possibilities connected with this fresh achievement. He told me that he would now be able not only to tell his actors how to speak his lines but to show them how they should move about the stage."

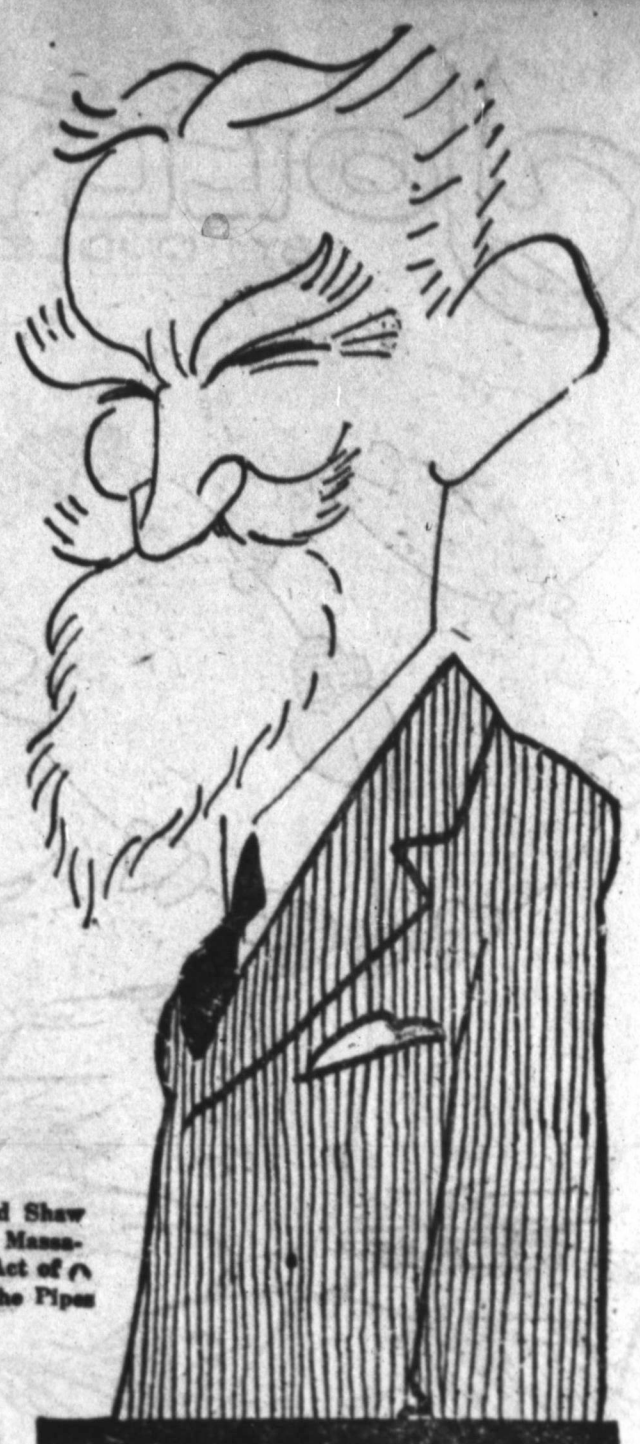

Mr. Rinder's explanation is the only one made so far of why the astonishing Mr. Shaw wanted to perfect himself in the graces of a jazz cut-up. But as an explanation it lacks a good deal of being satisfactory.

Any one who has ever watched the playwright put a company through rehearsal knows well enough that ignorance of Delsartean postures or Argentinian rhythms has never prevented him from telling his actors exactly how he wanted them to walk, talk, hop, skip, jump or anything else that was necessary to the business of the play.

Mr. Rinder must have misunderstood him. At least that's what the amused, excited and interested groups of the London intelligentsia who gather from time to time in the Cafe Royal thought about it. They were more inclined to credit the reports which said that Shaw had actually succumbed to the dancing craze and was going in for it, with all its jazz trimmings, in a serious way. Some of the gossips even went so far as to say that Shaw might hereafter become a regular patron of the night clubs since it was reported that he was planning to devote at least two nights a week to dancing.

The thought of G. B. S. against the background of a night club caused a great deal of hilarity. Somehow those faintly golden Shavian whiskers and those bristling Satanic eye-brows didn't seem to fit into a setting largely made up of perfumed flappers, rich Americans and slightly alcoholic members of British society. Moreover, G. B. S. would never smoke or drink no matter how much he chose to dance, and his appearance there, some thought, would suggest an expert dietitian who was unable to forget his professional manners, at a Lucullan banquet.

On the other hand others felt that if Shaw decided to take up dancing in earnest he would go about it as if it had been the practice of a life time.

"Adaptability is a point of pride with G. B. S.," declared a well known art critic who recently had a tilt with the playwright over the matter of smoking cigars. "He would never allow himself to be confronted with a new situation without adjusting himself to it instantaneously. There is a classic story about Shaw which aptly illustrates that quality."

"Once when he was going down the stairs at Waterloo Station, he lost his footing and slid clear to the bottom before he could stop himself. But without stopping to brush his clothes he immediately leaped to his feet and walked off, swinging his cane, just as if that was his customary way of making the descent. I'm quite sure that those who saw him never dreamed he had been the victim of an accident. They probably thought of him merely as an eccentric and un-naturally active old man, probably an ex-circus performer."

Mrs. Patrick Campbell, one of the few women who ever inspired the romantic enthusiasm of Mr. Shaw, gives it as her opinion that Mr. Shaw has always been something of a cut-up and that if he goes in for jazz dancing at the age of sixty-eight he will not be so far out of character as the general public seems to think.

In her memoirs Mrs. Campbell printed a number of fervent notes addressed to her by Mr. Shaw and they were conspicuous in their lack of the usual Shavian irony. She also told of an incident that marked one of Shaw's visits to her home.

When he called she was not in. But there were two young girls in her drawing room who that Man's evolution had been brought about by an act of will rather than by Natural Selection—Shaw argued that a man's life could be indefinitely extended if he wished it hard enough. "If the weight lifter, under the trivial stimulus of an athletic competition can 'put up a muscle' declared Mr. Shaw, "it seems reasonable to believe that an equally earnest and convinced philosopher could 'put up a brain.' Both are directions of vitality to a certain end. Evolution shows us this direction of vitality doing all sorts of things. . . .

"Among other matters apparently changeable at will is the duration of human life. Weismann, a very clever and suggestive biologist who was unhappily reduced to idiocy by Neo-Darwinism, pointed out that death is not an eternal condition of life, but an expedient introduced to provide for continual renewal without overcrowding. Now Circumstantial Selection does not account for natural death; it accounts only for the survival of species in which the individuals have sense enough to die on purpose. But the individuals do not seem to have calculated very reasonably; nobody can explain why a parrot should live ten times as long as a dog, and a turtle be almost immortal. In the case of man, the operation has overshoot the mark; men do not live long enough; they are for purposes of high civilization more children when they die."

Mrs. Patrick Campbell, One of the Few Women Who Have Inspired Shaw's Romantic Enthusiasm and Who Has Always Thought of Him as the Eternal Cut-Up.

also came to call on her and were awaiting her return. Shaw decided that he would wait too. When Mrs. Campbell came in a half an hour later she found G. B. S. turning handsprings to illustrate a new system of callisthenics in which he was interested, to the immense edification of the girls. Nor was he in the least put out by the interruption.

Another and a more startling reason advanced for Shaw's enthusiasm for the tango is that he expects to live fully 150 years. In that case he might consider himself at 68 just on the verge of manhood and in a logical position to indulge any amusing and youthful fads that caught his fancy.

This explanation was at first suggested in a somewhat jocular spirit. But the more it was discussed the more seriously was it taken. Such a view, it was pointed out, was thoroughly in harmony with all of Shaw's personal habits and his peculiar view of life.

"Back to Methuselah"—one of Shaw's latest plays which has been produced in England and America—was brought forward as evidence. For it was in this play that Mr. Shaw gave a complete and comprehensive expression of his whole political, economic and religious creed.

Taking his stand on the principle of Creative Evolution—a theory originally propounded by a Frenchman named Lamarck which contended

"Presumably, however, the same power that made this mistake can remedy it. If on opposite grounds Man now fixes the term of his life at three score and ten years, he can equally well fix it at three hundred or three thousand."

Now Mr. Shaw has always been a Creative Evolutionist and the care with which he has always conserved his vital forces—by eating nothing but vegetables, by devoting a judicious amount of time to Swedish exercises and Dalcroze eurythmics, by keeping eternally modern in his viewpoint—has now suggested that he may be "willing" very hard to live at least 150 years.

And there is no lack of persons who would testify that Shaw, in all practical ways, is still a youth. Miss Lillah McCarthy who played a number of important Shavian roles has always contended that Shaw would be youthful until he was laid away. Al Woods, the American producer, after a ten-minute interview with Shaw, declared that a man could get drunk just by looking into Shaw's blazing blue eyes.

But the eminent critic, philosopher, iconoclast, playwright, socialist and dancer has refused so far to shed any enlightenment on the discussion. When asked his reasons for taking up the tango, he said: "My views on dancing may be obtained for 500 pounds." Which was his way of saying "I'll not be interviewed."

"Making Over" the Man Behind the Bars

"We Don't Want Coddling or Pampering!" Says Convict No. 49,068 in His Astonishing Inside Story of Educating a Prison Population.

THE problem of the man convicted of crime in relation to society is one of the most insistent of modern times and has been presented from many viewpoints. The further reform of our prison systems has been urged by scientists and by prison officials themselves. The danger of "coddling the criminal" has been vigorously presented by citizens from various walks of life. But in the story below a new viewpoint is offered—that of the convict himself.

The author is Jack H. Smith, an inmate at the present time of the historic Ohio Penitentiary. The editor does not take the responsibility for the writer's opinions, he simply offers the article as an inside human interest story. It is interesting to note the attitude of the man behind the bars as expressed in his suggestion: "What we want is something practical. Not coddling or pampering."

By CONVICT 49,068.

AS I write these lines, I am sitting in a six by eight cell in the Ohio Penitentiary. The music bell has just rung and the harmonicas, mandolins, violas and so on are all going full tilt, each one trying to make more noise than the other.

I can't help but think of Al Jennings, one-time famous train robber and later lecturer and writer, who once occupied the "apartment" where I now am as a guest of the State. His cell buddy, by the way, was the late O. Henry.

If Al could return to this old prison he might easily imagine he had stumbled into a vocational training school by mistake, for that—through the indefatigable efforts of Warden Thomas and Chaplain Reed—is just what the Ohio Penitentiary is to-day.

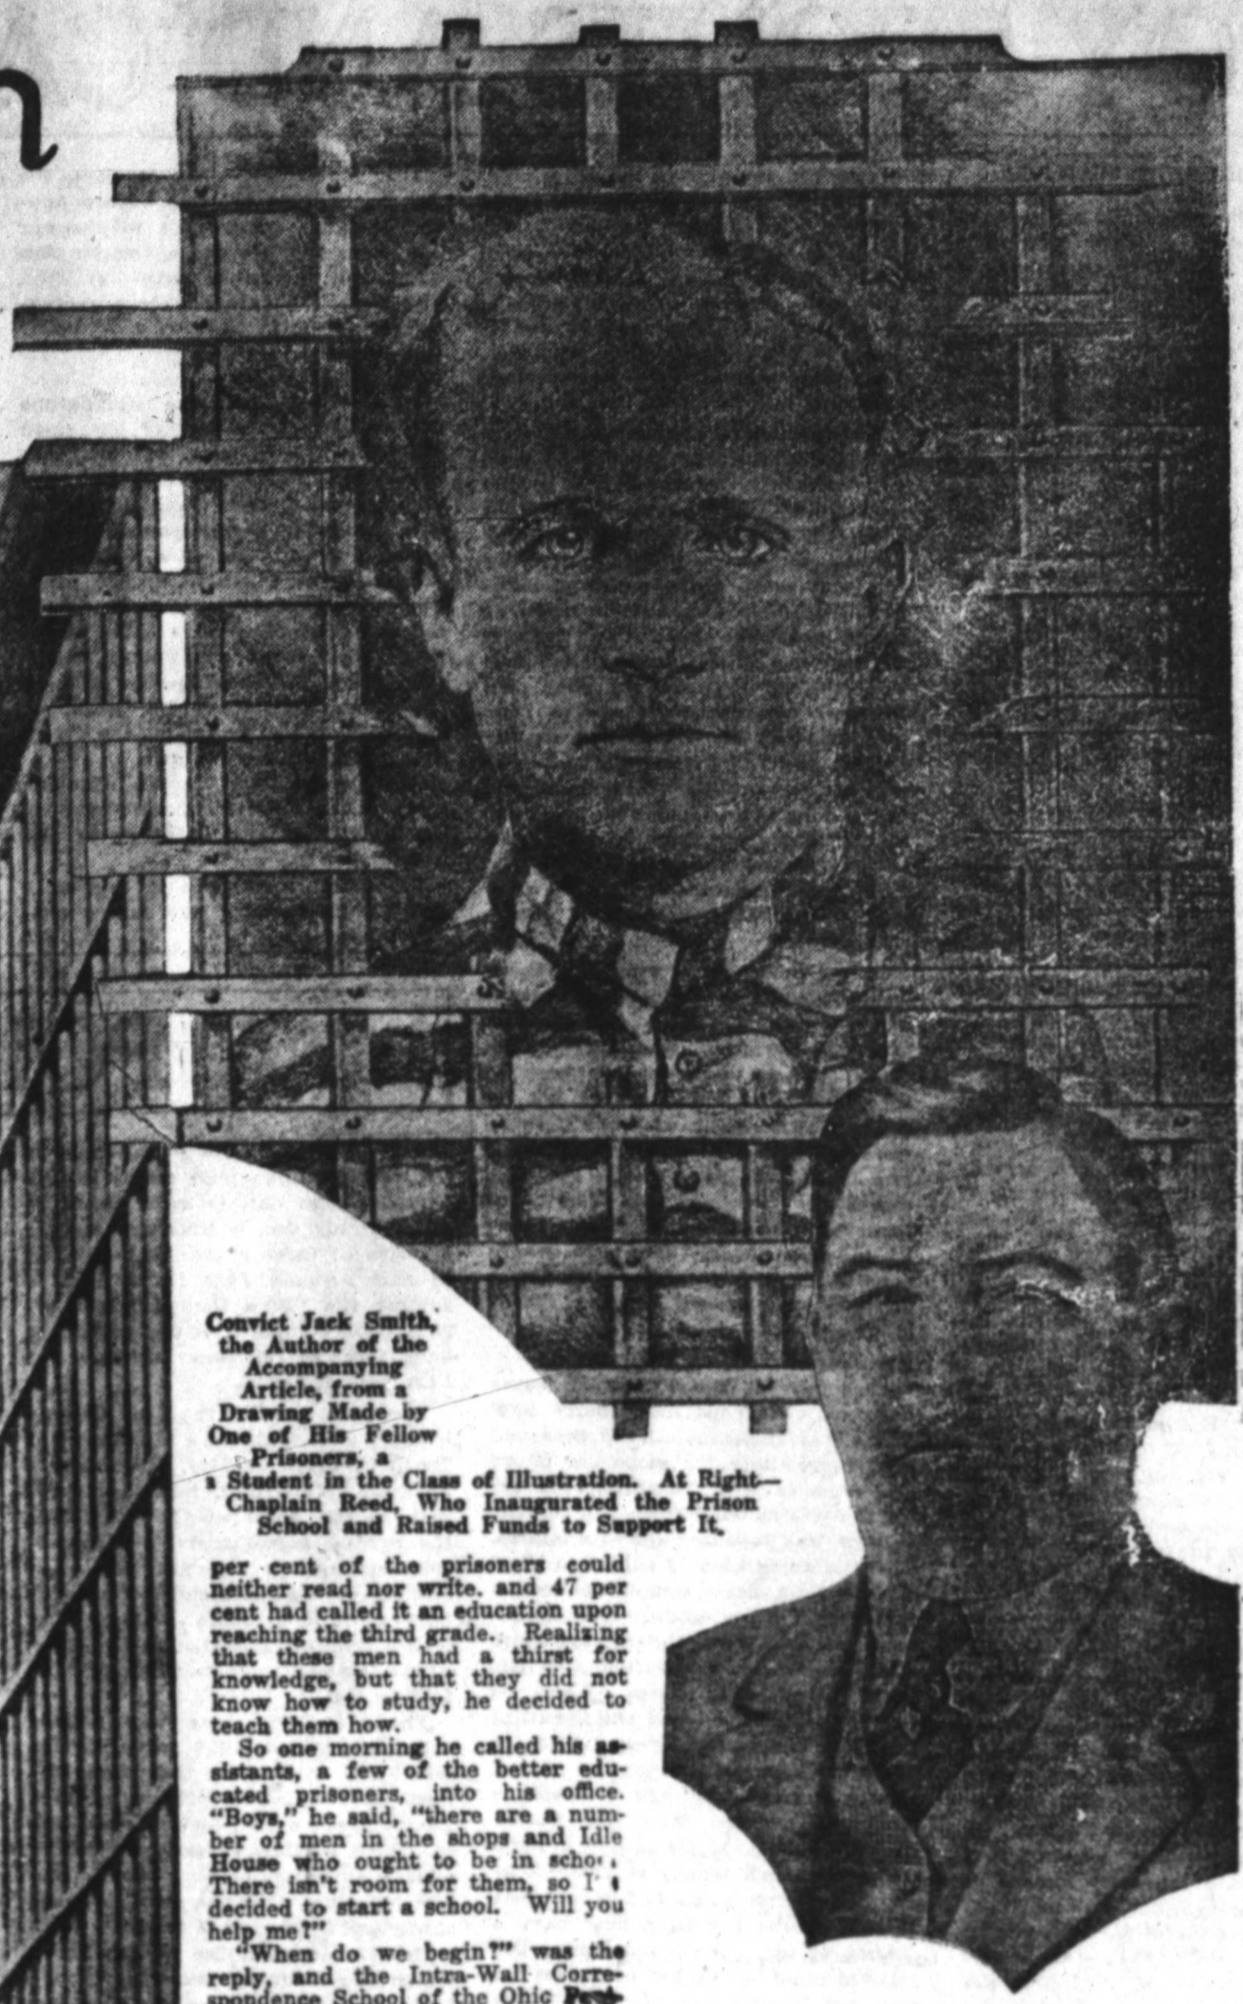

There, in the same old unsanitary cell-block where General Morgan, of Civil War fame, tunneled to freedom, Jennings would witness an astonishing change. He would find the 1925 edition of "Percy the Penman," brush in hand, practicing show-card writing instead of forged signatures, and his cell-mate, "Silk Hat Harry," studying ad-writing. He would find "Second-Story Pete" and "Jerry the Yegg" delving deeply into the perplexing mysteries of cube and square roots; and their next-door neighbors, "Two-Gun Mike" and "Shorty the Dip," handicapped by the life-long habit of talking out of the corners of their mouths, conjugating French verbs as though their very lives depended upon the outcome. And if, at last, Al's bump of curiosity would get the better of him and he would demand to know what in the world they were doing, he would get this reply: "Learnin' somethin', chump. Gwan, git away from here!"

This is how it happened: Some time ago, Chaplain Reed, whose duties include those of librarian, noticed that many of the convicts were drawing out books on technical subjects and returning them in a few days. Being himself a student, he knew that these books could not be assimilated in so short a time. Upon investigating he discovered that instead of being the "master minds" the newspapers are so fond of calling them, 32 per cent of the prisoners could neither read nor write, and 47 per cent had called it an education upon reaching the third grade. Realizing that these men had a thirst for knowledge, but that they did not know how to study, he decided to teach them how.

So one morning he called his assistants, a few of the better educated prisoners, into his office. "Boys," he said, "there are a number of men in the shops and Idle House who ought to be in school. There isn't room for them, so I've decided to start a school. Will you help me?"

"When do we begin?" was the reply, and the Intra-Wall Correspondence School of the Ohio Penitentiary was born.

They started with a few carbon copies and a half-dozen students. But the news that "de sky pilot's dishin' out knowledge" spread around the big prison like wildfire, and within a few weeks 200 additional students had asked for courses and more were clamoring to be enrolled.

This new system began to show such marked improvement in the prisoners making use of it, that it attracted the attention of Warden Thomas, who encouraged and assisted the Chaplain to extend it throughout the prison as widely as possible. Before long more than one-half the prison population of 8,000 were busy at their lessons.

It was then that Chaplain Reed's real troubles commenced. To furnish all these students with books, paper, pens, etc., cost money, and there was none at his disposal. Something had to be done. So the Chaplain asked for and obtained a ninety-day leave of absence, and began a tour of the State to raise funds.

He talked before clubs, churches and other groups and urged his hearers to help in the work of reconditioning prisoners for service in the outside world.

By this sort of an appeal he raised sufficient funds to keep almost 1,700 students in supplies, and to furnish 320 of the most advanced with a complete course of instruction in a useful vocation. And he had not been compelled to return to his post at the penitentiary—for this trip had been made at his own expense and without pay—there is no telling how much more he would have raised.

To help you understand what this school means to us, I will try to give you an idea of our routine. We get up at 6 a. m. After working all day in the shops, or sitting in the Idle House—as hundreds, through lack of work, are compelled to do—with just a short time out for dinner, we are again locked in our "drums" at 4:30 p. m. Lights are turned out at 8:30 p. m. On Sunday, except for the short time we are at meals or in chapel, we spend the entire day in our cells—cells in which no reasonably humane man would care to house his dog.

How long could you live in that sort of environment without losing all hope, without becoming bitter, without plotting vengeance? How long could you live in an Idle House, where you had to sit all day on a long wooden bench, thinking, brooding, doing nothing for days, weeks at a time? How long could you sit there without losing your mind, or coming out, as so many have done, with a firm determination to get even?

This school is no "sob stuff," it's a business proposition. "Sob sisters" and "gush brothers," who visit prisons and other such places, always wanting to do something, and usually ending by doing nothing, don't fool the officials, and they don't fool us. What we want is something practical. Not coddling or pampering.

Warden Thomas and Chaplain Reed cannot reform us, that's a chore we have to do for ourselves. But they can and have made brilliant scholars and even teachers of some of the most unruly and troublesome convicts this place has ever known. There's Monk, for instance.

There have been some real tough "mugs" in this old quadrangle of granite at one time or another, but Monk stood head and shoulders above all of them. And as a consequence, he not only earned the sobriquet of the "Prison Demon," but served most of his time in the "hole." One day Monk walked into the chaplain's office, and rather sheepishly asked if he could have a course.

"Certainly you can, Monk," was the chaplain's reply. "But I don't want you to take one unless you will promise to go through with it."

Monk promised. And when the Chaplain asked him what study he wished to pursue, he asked for a course in poultry raising. Can you beat it? Well, he got one; and from then on Monk was another man entirely. And if anyone wanted to talk to him he had to talk chickens. Monk has been out for over a year now (just eight months more than he ever managed to stay before), and the last I heard from him was a jubilant note, stating that he had a job on a large chicken farm.

Some people may think Monk's reformation is just a flash in the pan, but the officials here have faith in him.

frills peep out from under its lacy beauty. Another way the French couturier has of using lace this season is demonstrated in the deep yoke and sleeves which join a slender body of silk in a dark color.

Little bouquets of silk flowers are tacked to the lace sleeves where the lower edge loops up into a graceful drapery. And then, the French designer tops the costume with a dark dinner hat, achieving a most effective chin band.

Silk crepe and georgette are exploited in a delightful manner in a dainty Summer ensemble suit. Embroidery of the finest kind plays an important part in the loose coat decoration, and a girdle of bone beads holds the georgette tiers in place. Of course, the scarf is in evidence, serving as a part of the coat as well.

Extreme simplicity of line marks the other dinner dress, but in order to give it the flare which Paris sponsors, rows of real lace are placed on the wide chiffon sleeves and on the border. A light-colored bengaline is the fabric. When gold braid is added, the result is truly fetching.

Soft graceful fabrics combined with cobwebby laces and made in the loose, flowing fashion so dear to the hearts of the Parisiennes for the moment compose most of the formal frocks for the Summer.

And when one adds the back-to-fashion picture hat, or the shimmering scarf, she can rest easily in the thought that she is truly gowned a la France.
