PARKER IS DEAD AFTER SHOOTING ON PLAINS FARM

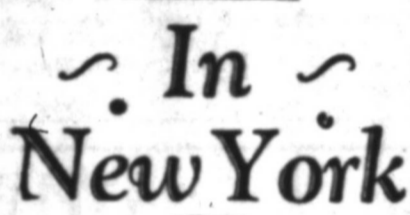

YOAKUM COUNTY FARMER DIES IN HOSPITAL HERE TODAY

Sam J. Parker, Yoakum county farmer who was shot at his farm home northwest of Plains early Wednesday afternoon, died at the West Texas hospital here, where he was brought for an operation, about 9 o'clock Thursday morning.

The body was prepared for burial by the Rix company, and will be taken overland to Plains tonight. Funeral services will be held there tomorrow, and interment will follow in the Plains cemetery, according to present arrangements.

J. T. Hill, hotel man of Brownfield and land owner of Terry and Yoakum counties, is being held in the Yoakum county jail in connection with the shooting, and it probably will be called upon to face a charge of murder.

The shooting followed an argument, which, according to Mrs. Parker, wife of deceased, arose over a drink of liquor. Parker was shot one time in the abdomen. An operation performed at the hospital last night immediately following the arrival of the injured man here after a long drive over slippery roads gave hope for his recovery. He began to sink, however, later in the night, from which he failed to rally.

In New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Warren Street is the place to go to for plumbers' supplies, nuts, bolts, screws, gaskets and caskets. It is just about the last spot in town where one would look for romance except that which lies in commerce.

But almost all of the recent expeditions into the romance in town and parts of the world have had their beginnings in Warren street. It is down there that Major Anthony Flala has his shop. He is an outfitting explorer.

If you're going to Alaska or Africa the major can tell you what you ought to take with you and furthermore, he can sell it to you.

The major knows at first hand what the explorers ought to have in their outfits. He went with Roosevelt on the River of Doubt trip. He has mushed through the white fastnesses of the Arctic. There in his shop is a gun which bears the legend of one great adventure Major Flala experienced. When his ship, the "America" became jammed in the ice he took to that dog sled and his trusty brutes took him to land and rescue.

If a small boy were to go to the major's shop when several old cronies are gathered there he would hear greater tales than ever were written in a book.

Along Broadway there is passing a story to the effect that one of the most capable actresses in town suffering from hay fever and the hay fever season being at its height when managers are booking players, she can not appear at her best. Consequently, when the hay fever season abates and she is restored to her usual pleasing appearance, the manager will get all she can get in an understudy job.

The best job in New York, I've just discovered, is held by a horse. It is a snow-white horse, with well-fleeced rounded curves and a graceful tone of his head. Five minutes work in his day. He is ridden on the stage by Joan of Arc in the pageantry of a Broadway musical show. When the curtain descends the beautiful equestrienne climbs down, the gold and red leather saddle is removed and the horse goes back home to rest and get back in condition for the morrow's task.

"Seeing Uncle Jack" Playlet Given Saturday

The playlet given Saturday afternoon at the benefit party at the Ellis Hall, under the supervision of the Ath-letism Club, was a clever sketch of a crowd of school girls, chaperoned by a young widow, spending a week end vacation in the country, far away from the rest of the city, where no men were supposed to be.

The characters appearing were daughters of some of the club's best members. Miss Doets Tough was the young widow, acting as chaperone. School girls were Virginia Murray, Sylvia and Margaret Almsworth, Haver Sawyer and Ruth Hutchinson. Little Ethel Murray took the part of a little country girl, living near the girls' camp and her cast was perhaps the cleverest of all.

The vacation ended in the happy romance of Uncle Jack and the widow. The club extends its heartfelt thanks to all assisting in both the play and the tournament and a find of about $100 was added to the scholarship fund offered by the club to a girl student of the Tech.

Dallas Woman Is Hard Prosecutor Court Heads Say

DALLAS, Sept. 24. (AP)—A woman has turned the present session of federal court here into a hard place for bootleggers and dope-peddlers. The session has been disastrous for this type of law violators, due to the effect of Mrs. Sarah Meneses, assistant federal district attorney. Mrs. Meneses has handled all these cases all the term from the time charges were filed to the close of the trials. She has made many jury speeches. Heavy fines and jail sentences have been imposed in many cases. Sixteen convictions have been obtained in the last few days.

This is the first time in the history of the federal court here that the prosecution has been conducted by a woman. Opposing attorneys paid her the compliment of saying that "she was hard to beat in arguments."

L. D. SIMMONS, WHO REPRESENTS THE Kansas City Life Insurance company here, was one of the four highest salesmen in the company's business in the state, and as a result won a trip to the Underwriter's convention, to be held this week in Kansas City. Mr. Simmons was planning to leave either today or tomorrow. He will be gone about two weeks. Of all the salesmen entered in the contest Mr. Simmons was the least experienced in selling life insurance.

It Supplies Light and Power Without Effort on Your Part

That is one of the reasons why the service of electricity is growing so fast. It meets the definition of "an essential public service."

No community that expects to grow can get along without electric lights and power. No community can grow unless its electric service grows ahead of it to make its growth possible.

Supplying electric power and light is not selling a commodity. It is doing a service. This service must be ready every minute of the day. It must be ample to meet all demands. It must be supplied to all alike.

These things about this service lend to the great public interest that attend it. They are the things that make it desirable for the community and its people and the electric utility management to understand each other more fully and be perfectly frank with each other.

This company seeks that kind of co-operation with the people that it serves.

FEDERAL REPORT SHOWS INCREASE IN COTTON CROP

FIGURES GIVEN OUT ARE OPTIMISTIC; MARKET IN UPROAR

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23. (AP)—The government's report showing indicated yield of 13,931,000 bales based on condition of 53.8 and total ginning of 4,725,928 bales proved much higher than looked for. On resumption of trading, December at once broke to 23.45, or 185 points down, equal to a loss of 19 a bale. There was some disposition to rally after the first rush of selling.

NEW YORK BREAKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (AP)—A peculiar break of 26 to 27 a bale in cotton prices followed the publication of the government's report on production and ginning today, estimating the condition at 53.8 per cent of normal and a crop of 13,931,000 bales.

Mitchell To Hunt African Big Game If He Is Ousted

DALLAS, Sept. 23. (AP)—Big game in Africa will be Colonel William Mitchell's next target. If he is ousted from the army air service, he said here today on his way to Washington.

Colonel Mitchell, chief critic of the American air service, stopped here on his overland journey from San Antonio to the National Capitol, whence he has been summoned to testify in President Coolidge's air service investigation.

"I'm not thinking about politics," said the flying colonel when congressional possibilities were mentioned. He scoffed at the idea that he might run for congress if ousted.

"As a matter of fact, the first thing I'll do if ousted will be to take a gratuity that President Coolidge has longed for in Africa. I am much more fit to order the probe and I believe it will result in much benefit to the service."

RAIDERS CHARGED TEXAS BANK ROBBERS

DENTON, Texas, Sept. 23. (AP)—Three of the men indicted in the robbery in Denton county after the raid on the Yancey Story farm recently, have been charged with robbery of the First State Bank at Holland, in July. J. C. Wilkerson was arrested here today on a charge of robbery with firearms and Yancey Story and W. A. Martin both held in the Dallas county jail, have been charged in Bell county with robbery of the Holland bank, advice here indicated.

Officers were also advised to hold W. J. Well, held here on charges of murder and assault with intent to murder on complaint in connection with the Holland bank robbery.

Constable Theodore Wilkerson, of Holland, and night watchman of that place have been arrested as accomplices to the bank robbery and are being taken to Dallas by Ranger Captain Tom Hickman, County Attorney Elbert Hooper was informed today by telephone.

The Holland bank was held up the evening of March 19 by five men.

SHERIFF KILLED WITH TWO THUGS ALSO SHOT DOWN

ATTEMPTS AT ARREST IN CAUSE OF DEATH IN ARCHER COUNTY

(By Associated Press) WICHITA FALLS, Sept. 23.—Three men are dead as the result of a gunfight last night between two officers and three men in a pasture one mile south of Megargel, Archer county. Sheriff Harrison Ikard, of Archer county, and two men identified as Charles Crabtree and Frank Looney were killed. The latter two are said to have come to Texas several months ago from Oklahoma.

Another man escaped while Deputy Sheriff R. Munford, who is uninjured, although he kept up the fight after Sheriff Ikard was killed, seized a large automobile in which he said the men presumably had intended to carry away 27 cases of cigarettes stolen from a store at Graham Sunday night. Later, a man who said he was at the scene of the shooting, surrendered at Megargel and was taken to Archer City.

The officers had traced the stolen goods to the pasture and lay in wait last night. Sheriff Foster, of Young county, and his deputy, Don Howard, also were watching the cache, but the shooting had stopped when they reached Ikard and Munford.

Deputy Tella Story.

Deputy Munford told a graphic story of the shooting.

The officers, he said, had waited for over three hours and when a storm brought in by a cold north wind and rain, Foster and his deputy left to get an automobile which had been parked at a house some 400 yards away. They intended to bring the car back to the spot and load the cigarettes to keep them from getting damp from the rain.

"Sheriff Foster and Howard had been gone only a minute or so when another car drove up close to where the cigarettes were hidden. Three men got out of the car. Mr. Ikard and I came out from behind the bushes. The sheriff, 'We're officers, boys, throw up your hands!'"

Shoot At Command. "No sooner had he given the command than the shooting started. I believe Mr. Ikard was struck by the first bullet that was fired. However, his gun flashed one time, as I remember. I don't know how many shots were fired. I heard bullets whizzing and I just kept on using my shotgun and pistol. Soon I saw a man darting off through the bushes and as I walked a little nearer to the car I saw two men lying on the ground. About that time Sheriff Foster and his deputy arrived. Mr. Ikard was dead and so were the other two men."

RULING ISSUED ON GRAIN RATES TO TEXAS POINTS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. (AP)—Grain shipments from Des Moines, Iowa territory to Texas are entitled to the same rates charged for shipments from Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Omaha, Neb., it was held today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

A complaint filed by Des Moines shippers' protests was sustained. Railroads were ordered to fix new schedules before November 30. The action will be taken in what is known as "proportional rates" on shipments originating outside of Des Moines and the other grain centers but moving through those points on their way to Texas.

Council Bluffs and Omaha have been enjoying lower rates than Des Moines.

Cattle Slain In Plague Area Must Be Paid For, Ruling

GALVESTON, Sept. 23. (AP)—Cattle slaughtered by the Texas Livestock Sanitary Commission to prevent spread of foot and mouth disease must first be paid for. This is the gist of a ruling of the circuit court here yesterday in the injunction brought by J. K. Aeborg to restrain the commission from killing his cattle.

Rules of the commission shall regulate cattle slaughtering, the court ordered. The order was entered after agreement had been reached between counsel.

The order frees the commission's agents to proceed with disease eradication methods, including killing of cattle given a brief life respite by the injunction.

The rules prescribe that cattle bought to be slaughtered shall be appraised by a committee composed of one member appointed by the commission, one by the owners and the third by these two.

WEST TEXAS C. C. DIRECTORS MEET PLANS ARE MADE

PROGRAM FOR GATHERING HERE THIS MONTH ANNOUNCED

The board of directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will go into session here at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, Sept. 30, according to a program on the order of business for the gathering received by the Daily Journal Monday. Col. R. Q. Lee, president of the body, will preside at the session.

After routine matters of the roll call and minutes of the last session are read, the manager will submit his regular semi-annual report for approval of the directors.

E. E. Pawllett, chairman of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will file his report, and some manner of action will be taken on the following salient matters that are now before the body:

Large Program Planned

1. Application of western railroads for general freight rate increases throughout the entire Southwest, a hearing on which was recently held at Chicago, when railroads claimed that if service of the roads was not to be impaired, rates on general commodity basis must be increased. Many organizations, including the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, had representation at the hearing, and counter-argument to this charge with the plea that the producer now is burdened down with freight rates, and that instead of an increase, a lower rate on certain commodities was demanded.

2. Construction of the Galveston-New Orleans differential case, which came in for a squabble at the last session of the State Legislature. Galveston at this time, asked state aid in equalizing the rates so that the port there would be at least on an equal footing with the Louisiana port.

3. The present status of the common point, the question on which the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce has been working for many months in an effort to have this city designated on this basis. The discussion of the organization, however, will of course not be confined to this city alone, but the entire West Texas territory. Lubbock now has a common point rate basis for many commodities in the state rate scale, according to R. F. Bayless, local agent of the Santa Fe, but is not recognized on this basis by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the ruling head over the entire railroad transportation facilities in the United States.

These matters have all been under discussion by the official family of the West Texas organization practically since its inception.

HOUSTON, Sept. 23. (AP)—Decks were cleared here today for renewed action in combatting foot and mouth disease south of Houston. The State Sanitary Livestock Commission issued an order throwing a protective belt around Harris, Galveston, and Brazoria counties, which are under quarantine. The belt is two counties deep and includes 19 in all. The commission's order prohibits movement out of the area of cattle, sheep, goats, swine, wool, pelts, second-hand grain bags, and dressed carcasses, all regarded as foot and mouth disease germ carriers.

Arrangements also were being expedited to kill diseased and contact cattle in Galveston county, which had been prohibited by injunction dissolved yesterday.

New business to come before the body will include: Congressional re-appointment, an exhibit at the sesquicentennial exposition at Philadelphia, the pink boll worm situation, especially as it is related to West Texas, and cotton seed distribution in the drought stricken districts of the state.

The boll worm situation probably will come in for much discussion by the body, as the pest now seems to be gaining quite a hold on the lower sections of the Plains territory. Dawson county especially has been invaded by this scourge this year, largely attributed to the excessive rainfall over the area, and crops throughout the county are suffering very noticeably as a result of this visitation. Farmers have become thoroughly aroused to the seriousness of the situation, and in cooperation with their county agent, are using every method known to combat the scourge.

Selection of a date for the eighth annual convention which is to be held at Amarillo will be made.

At 12:30 the program provides for an informal luncheon to be tendered by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, the place and program to be arranged later, subject to action of the board of directors.

Will Gist Fair

At 2:30, the directors will go in a body to the Panhandle South Plains fair grounds, as honored guests of the fair association, where they will view the actual results of farm operations through the South Plains territory.

At 5 p. m., the visitors will be guests at the formal opening of the Texas Technological college, the institution for which they worked so hard to bring it to a realization.

The largest attendance ever recorded, according to W. T. Bennett, field man for the West Texas body, who is here now engaged in a campaign for funds with which to carry on the work of the organization.

LIT CHAPMAN IS GIVEN 99 YEARS IN WIFE MURDER

SNYDER MAN WHO KILLED WIFE IN ABILENE, IS GIVEN LONG TERM

ABILENE, Sept. 24. (AP)—The jury in the case of Lit Chapman, of Snyder, charged with the murder of his former wife here, last April, returned a verdict of 99 years in the penitentiary, this morning at 9 o'clock. The case went to the jury at 12:45 o'clock this morning.

Chapman was unmoved when the verdict was read. The state had made a strong demand for the death penalty. The defense pleaded for mercy and sought a verdict of not guilty on the contention that no evidence had been introduced to prove that Chapman did the shooting; that if he did kill her it was in self-defense since she is alleged to have made threats, and that he was temporarily insane.

An appeal will be made. Mrs. Chapman was shot while at her home here last April 5th.

Legion Head Says Mitchell Support Was Not Ordered

FORT WORTH, Sept. 24. (AP)—Dr. W. T. Dunning, State Commander of the American Legion, has not commissioned Wayne Davis, San Antonio, to obtain support for Colonel William Mitchell in his air service fight, according to Colonel Richard Dunbar, who made official announcement of the denial Wednesday at the weekly meeting of both Well-Kane posts.

Dunning reported that newspaper men at San Antonio had misquoted him.

At 5 p. m., the visitors will be guests at the formal opening of the Texas Technological college, the institution for which they worked so hard to bring it to a realization.

The largest attendance ever recorded, according to W. T. Bennett, field man for the West Texas body, who is here now engaged in a campaign for funds with which to carry on the work of the organization.

POSTMASTER GENERAL REPORTS TO AIR BOARD THE CONDITION OF U. S. MAIL SERVICE BY AIR

EXPLAINS FACTS IN CONNECTION WITH DELIVERY OF MAIL BY AIRPLANE; SAYS TEN MILLION DOLLARS SPENT ON PROPOSITION

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Achievements of the Postal Air service were reviewed before the President's air board, today, by Postmaster General News, as demonstrating that commercial aviation is an entirely feasible thing.

One feature of installing the air service, he said, is to demonstrate that commercial aviation is successful. It is best shown, he thought by the fact that the department recently received nineteen bids for eight new mail plane routes, it proposed to place in operation.

The postmaster general prefaced his statement with an allusion to the controversy over the nation's air defense in which he declared "it is of course to understand that the postoffice department has no place in any differences existing among military and naval authorities as to the best method of carrying on their aeronautical operations."

"Our activities in the air," he continued, "have been directed toward the performance of an important public service in a manner to demonstrate to men of means that commercial aviation is a possibility. This is what we have had in mind in carrying the transcontinental air mail. It is not our belief that the government should permanently continue the service under government auspices and at government expense, but the service is a most important one and if it was possible for it ever to be undertaken by private agencies it was first necessary to demonstrate that it was an entirely feasible thing."

Explains Experiments. "The department, several years ago, in cooperation with the war department, made several well-meant, but unsatisfactory experiments with the air mail, for instance, a service was established between New York and Washington for which the war department for a short time furnished both planes and pilots. It was later taken over completely by the post office department but it was never a success for the reason that the distance was too short to permit any substantial saving in time and it was discontinued."

"It became apparent that if the service were ever going to amount to anything, it had to be undertaken on a much greater scale of operation and between points far more distant separated. Service on parts on the present transcontinental line was inaugurated, and others added from time to time, but it was not until September 8, 1923, that true service between New York and San Francisco was attempted."

"Even then the carriers were not permitted to land at the airports of Salt Lake City, or some other point along the line, then given to the railway mail service for the night, to be picked up again at a point farther along the line next morning. It was not long, however, until it became apparent that if the transcontinental service was to amount to anything it had to be operated by night as well as by day. To do this required the establishment of a lighted air way to guide pilots, illuminated landing fields and many other special facilities including equipment of planes themselves. This air way was established from New York to Rock Springs, Wyo. 1886 miles, at an expense of $514,405.83 and the first through day and night service was started July 1, 1924."

"Since that time, we have been able to meet our schedules with a degree of regularity that has been highly gratifying. Of course, there have been instances of delay and interruption, just as there have been to passenger trains. I am inclined to think that inquiry would develop that our delays have been less numerous than those of the railroads."

"The schedule west-bound, New York to San Francisco, a distance of 2,265 miles is 24 hours and 35 minutes, which includes stops at 15 stations for service and exchange of mail. That is for the east bound trips is 29 hours and 15 minutes, the difference being accounted for by the fact that the prevailing winds are from the west and help the east bound ship while they retard correspondingly the one west bound.

"During the fiscal year, ending the 30th of last June, we flew on this trans-continental route 2,976,764 miles with a percentage of 96. That is to say, we flew that many miles with mail. Including mail, ferry and test we flew 2,961,555 miles.

Rates Explained. "Up to the establishment of the night flight planes had been loaded to their capacity with mail carrying ordinary postage. At this time, however, new express rates were adopted by law creating three zones, the postage for traversing the first being eight cents, for the second sixteen cents and for the entire route 24 cents. At these rates, we carried during the fiscal year of 1925 9,399,520 first class letters or 232,513 pounds, the total revenue being $292,697.54. The express postage for the month of July of this year was $66,423.85.

"As I said at the outset, the prime ideas of the postoffice department were first to supply a highly desirable service and next to encourage and stimulate the creation in this country of an industry capable of engaging successfully in commercial aviation and to build the plane and equipment necessary to that end.

Equipment Needed. "I was a member of the senate committee on military affairs during the war and the member of its sub-committee on aviation and I know some thing of the great difficulty this government encountered in providing the air equipment necessary to the successful prosecution of the war and the tremendous waste at which the effort to do this was carried forward. It is generally known that the government spent nearly a billion dollars in planes during the war, largely because no one in the country knew anything about their manufacture and there were no facilities for it.

$10,000,000 Spent By P. O. "Up to this time, the postoffice department on all its air mail operations has spent about $10,000,000. It may have spent a little more because during the early years most of the air mail expense was paid out of star route and railway mail appropriations, but the amount diverted could not have been very large as the operations themselves were not very extensive. For the sum spent, we have carried on the service to date and are now taking in about $66,000 a month on the trans-continental line alone. We have built about 1,000 miles of lighted air way, built our ships at Maywood, our hangars at all division points, paid all operating expenses and have on hand assets valued at $3,623,000 as of Sept. 15, 1925.

Service A Success. "The service has attracted attention and that justifies itself by results will, I think be conceded. The degree of success of the effort to attract capital to a new industry and stimulate interest in aeronautics is best set forth by the result of the department's recent bids for private conduct of eight new air mail routes.

"We received 19 bids coming from 12 different companies and individuals, some of them were perhaps informal. Some of them may and probably will be rejected for obviously good reasons, but they have been made in good faith and represent a real purpose on the part of the bidder to undertake the service.

"On September 21 we advertised for four new routes, bids for which will be opened November 21, 1925. All of these routes are connected with the trans-continental route.

Planes Not Suited. "I do not hesitate to say that we have never yet had a plane that is really suited for our purpose. To carry mail to good advantage a plane must be specially designed for the amount and distribution of weight to be carried, the distance at which it can take off, the rate of speed at which it can be landed, and various other considerations of importance. "We have recently invited proposals for specially designed planes and if our hopes of success in that line are realized we can do even better than we have in the past."

"It is true of the postoffice department, as it is of nearly everything else that if we had more money we think we could produce better results. We are greatly restricted in the experiments we may make and experimentation is experimentation in a science as new as that of aeronautics and absolute prerequisite of success. Of course, some money spent in that way will be money wasted; but it is necessary to try new devices as there is to any progress. We do not want the government to have to do all this. Private industry, once thoroughly engaged, will do it for itself, just as it has in every other line. One of the bidding contestants for one of the newly advertised routes above mentioned is proposing to light its own airway."

GRAPHIC STORY OF WRECK OF THE SHENANDOAH IS TOLD AS BODY OF INVESTIGATORS STARTS MEETING

By The Associated Press
LAKEHURST, N. J., Sept. 21.—A graphic story of how the forward end of the wrecked Shenandoah was freed ballooned to a landing place near Ava, Ohio, on the morning of Sept. 2, was given today to a naval court of inquiry by Lieut. Commander C. E. Rosendahl, senior aviation officer, in the first official report of the accident to be made public.

After the forward end broke away, Commander Rosendahl with officers who were in this portion, got the section under control and finally landed it on a hillside. There was a high ground wind and the bag thrashed about so that Rosendahl called for pistols and shot guns from nearby farmers, with which to shoot holes in the helium bag.

NOTHING WILL KEEP TECH COLLEGE FROM BEING ONE OF BEST SCHOOLS IN SOUTHWEST, IS REGENT'S BELIEF

"The only thing that is necessary now for one of the most successful openings of any school in the state, is for the people of West Texas to get behind the officials, giving them complete co-operation in their every undertaking," Mr. Carpenter said.

"Responsibility on Lubbock. The bulk of this responsibility at the present," he continued, "rests on the people of Lubbock, for the students which it is now estimated will probably number 1,000, must be provided with room and board accommodations, and these must be provided at a rate that the student from a family of moderate means can afford to pay. The people here must open their homes or build dormitories for the occasion, and despite the present gigantic building program that is under way, both in the business and residential sections of the city, yet more houses must be erected suitable for the housing of these students."

More Money Needed.

In speaking of the growth of the institution, Mr. Carpenter said that another million dollars must be had from the state the next biennium if the college was not to be handicapped from lack of funds. "This money is absolutely essential," Mr. Carpenter said, "in order that the present indications of growth will not be hampered, and I believe that with the proper amount of work among the legislators of other sections of the state that they can be brought to realize the value of the college, not only to West Texas, but to their part of the state as well."

The finishing touches on the buildings has been slowed up slightly by the recent spell of bad weather, Mr. Carpenter said, but it was his belief that everything will be in shape for the formal opening of the school on September 28. A program in celebration of the event is being arranged by college officials, a committee from the Lubbock chamber of commerce, and a committee from West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Praises Departments.

Mr. Carpenter was high in his praise of the several departments and the work that is to be offered in each of them, but he was especially enthusiastic over prospects for the Textile Engineering division, and the exceedingly bright future as he expressed it, that looms ahead of this department for real usefulness to the entire South.

He showed by logical reasoning that this department of the college has unlimited possibilities for usefulness to the nation, and went further to show that the effect of the training to be offered would be felt in foreign countries, especially the principle consumers of cotton from the United States.

In citing his reasons for this statement, he said that some man in the east who is interested in cotton production and its ultimate route to the consumer, may decide to send his sons to the Tech, where he may not only learn the art of spinning and weaving, the effect of climate conditions on the product in certain sections of the South, where practically all the cotton of the world is grown, the manner of grading the staple, following the market, and buying to the best advantage, but he learns the manner of growth, and is subject to become imbued with the West Texas spirit, which cannot be shaken off, once it seizes upon a man.

To Finest Students.

This man, he said, after completing his education here, will be turned back into the world, a finished product in the cotton industry, and returns to his former home, or is possibly sent to foreign countries, where he will spread the name and fame of the Tech, and the section that it represents.

Bringing the situation nearer home, Mr. Carpenter expressed the belief that it is only a matter of time until the wheels of cotton mills will begin to turn in West Texas in great quantity, turning out the finished product right at home, where the staple is raised. By this method, he said, five times the amount of money that is now available will be at the disposal of the banker, which in turn will be passed on into the usual channels of commerce, indirectly affecting the entire population, for it is an undisputed

PLAN TO FURNISH IRRIGATION IN EAST TEXAS IS SKETCHED BY MAN IN CHARGE OF RAILWAY FARMING

Houston, Texas, Sept. 23. (AP)—V. Meyer, agriculturist of the Gulf Coast lines and of the International Great Northern Railroad, is an advocate of irrigation, especially in East Texas which he said abounds in small streams that might easily be harnessed to the land.

"A succession of 'drouthy' years in sections of East Texas have caused the grower, especially the grower of truck, to look about for some means of aiding nature in producing crops," he said. "In this section of the state the solution of the water problem has proved simple. The country abounds in small 'spring branches' coursing between the hills. These streams flow from 50 to 1,000 gallons a minute and on each farm that boasts one of these branches may be found from five to fifty acres of rich, level land along the water course known as 'high bottoms.'"

"Often a large permanent dam is thrown across the branch and the land below is irrigated by gravity; but the practice most in use is the pumping of the water by means of small centrifugals to the supply ditch or directly into the furrows. These pumping plants are simple, inexpensive and so portable that they can be moved easily up or down the creek and thus more land can be brought under water at minimum cost.

"One man at Palestine who irrigates five acres of truck and strawberries mounts his pump on a small automobile delivery truck, drives to the particular patch in need of water, jacks up a rear wheel, attaches the pulley and soon has the water flowing down the furrows. After completing the job he dismounts the pump, loads the truck with vegetables and goes to market.

"A nurseryman at Tyler for two seasons has very profitably irrigated several acres of young peach trees by pumping water from a small spring branch.

"A grower near Palestine has installed a pumping plant on one of the numerous Trinity river lakes and is irrigating 20 acres of feed stuff. Next year he plans to put about 200 acres under water.

"Many other similar projects could be cited where the grower is abandoning the old hit or miss methods. Even in years of abundant rains in the growing of high priced truck crops, there comes a time when application of water by irrigation is exceedingly profitable."

Editorially Speaking

A Town You Like

Something like a decade ago the idea took hold all over the country that aspiring towns should advertise. So universally boards of commerce and citizens' committees and town councils began to think up slogans and the world was exhorted to "Watch Winkville Win," and "Boost for Bingham."

For a long time the making of the slogan seemed to be about all that was done in these local advertising enterprises. It never seemed to occur to any body that people don't rush to a town and plead to be permitted to stop there because of its slogan. Many of the places having the most enticing slogans also had the most wretched hotel accommodations. It was the common remark among those who attempted to drive an automobile through the country that the improved roads of the township were vastly safer and better than the main holes and ruts and so cut up with elevated crosswalks that to streets of the villages. These were frequently left so full of drive a motor car over them faster than 10 miles an hour was a perilous performance. Nevertheless, at the entrance to nearly every village was the hostile warning that anyone driving faster than a certain speed would be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. And village constables and justices of the peace were frequently in a league of watchful waiting to make good the threat.

All this has changed now. A new spirit of hospitality is spreading. Nearly every town and village likes to be known for its courtesy to tourists. Pavements are of the best. Signs at the city limits welcome the stranger and hint without offense that a self-restraint in observing the local speed regulations will be appreciated. The slogan is not necessary in such towns. The stranger not only watches but wishes the growth of a community in which he has been so kindly treated.

Let's Celebrate With Lubbock

The Texas Technological College will hold its formal opening at Lubbock, Sept. 30. It will be an eventful day for Lubbock, and for all West Texas for that matter. It should mean an eventful day for Texas, for the opening of this college means the entrance of the state into a new field of education. It means that instruction in the technical branches and in the sciences, for which Texas students have been forced to go to other states, will be available at home.

Texas Technological College is not a local institution; neither is it a sectional institution. Located to serve the vast and rapidly developing territory of West Texas, it is in no sense a West Texas school. The Texas Tech is for all Texas and it will draw students from every section because of the technical courses in which it will specialize.

The opening at Lubbock should be an event of particular interest to Fort Worth and Fort Worth should display this interest by having on hand a large and thoroughly representative delegation. The community of interest between Fort Worth and West Texas is such that Fort Worth not only should rejoice over every evidence of West Texas' progress, but Fort Worth should be represented and take part in all such celebrations. West Texans are Fort Worth's friends. We should show our friendship and our appreciation of West Texas' friendship on the occasion of the Texas Tech opening. A thoroughly representative delegation will be the best means of doing it.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

The Gold Standard

The adoption of the gold standard in effect if not in theory by most nations is practically an accomplished fact. The new Bank of Mexico, which opened its doors recently as a national bank of issue, will print as currency only gold certificates. This in spite of the fact that the bank reserves are in silver as well as in gold. Gold has become a world basis of money, and no currency of a nation obtains full validity in the world market except as it is redeemable in gold. There are many who say the gold standard is an artifice which gives undue oppressive power to a few nations and a few individuals. Even the Socialists, however, do not reject gold. They seize it.

But gold is not, as many think, an unfluctuating medium. Gold varies directly with its purchasing power in essential commodities. Hence, a nation's real as well as its theoretical wealth is in its resources and products—not in its gold. The possession of gold will give a nation temporary prestige and power, but unless that nation's surplus products exceed its imports its reserve of gold will gradually diminish. So after all, gold is not in ultimate control.

A counterfeit coin often comes to pass but it has a hard time doing it sometimes.

If noses were sniped off when they are poked into other people's business wouldn't we be a funny looking race?

Getting Ready for the Debt Paying Party

Flag Courtesies

The other day, press dispatches tell us, a young foreigner was arrested and sentenced to ten days in jail for alleged failure to show proper respect for the American flag. This happened up in Brooklyn. If it had taken place in Chicago, the great crime center of the country, the picture would have been complete.

Every person, whether native or foreign, should show proper respect for the country's flag when it passes. But you can go into any American town or city in America and find thousands of persons who do not know the details of showing respect for the flag and yet they are patriotic citizens.

It is all right to insist upon salutes to the flag when it passes in a parade. Every good citizen ought to know the courtesies and extend them. Children in school ought to be taught flag courtesies.

But there is a desecration of the flag far worse than failure to salute. The murderers, the thieves, the bootleggers, patrons of bootleggers and men who sit on juries that acquit murderers and thieves or let them off with ridiculously light penalties show far more disrespect for the flag than the ignorant foreigner up in Brooklyn who failed to salute and explained his failure by the statement that the Stars and Stripes was not his flag. His flag was the red one of communism.

A lot of these other people who profess allegiance to the Stars and Stripes are more dangerous revolutionists than an illiterate foreigner who refused to salute. The real menace to this government are those who wink at law violation and still call themselves respectable. It is all right to jail foreigners who insult our national emblem. But we ought to hang and jail a few more of our native stock who insult our national emblem by making a business of violating the laws that the flag represents.

The Air Fight

The aircraft probe now under way is sure to cause considerable strife. There are many factions and each group desires to be dominant. The fight will go to Congress and it probably will be years before many changes will be made in the present grouping.

There are factions in the army and navy that desire each to have its own aircraft group. Then, there is another group that favors a separate airplane department equal in authority with the army and the navy. Others desire a department of national defense with divisions of equal authority for the army, navy and aircraft.

As there is continued development and improvement in aircraft, the right step is all the harder to decide. The public thinks more about safety for the fliers and is more concerned in tragedies like that which recently befell the Shenandoah and the craft on the Hawaiian flight.

Stewart's Washington Letter

BY CHARLES P. STEWART, NKA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — With President Coolidge back in the White House, politics in Washington has popped up noticeably of late.

Senators and representatives are beginning to drift in. Plans for the coming session of Congress are being discussed.

The House Ways and Means Committee is set Oct. 17 to adopt a tax reduction program. There'll be a $400,000,000 cut, according to Speaker Longworth. This is more than anybody has predicted yet.

Most of the cabinet members have returned to their desks. The capital looks more like itself again. It's been a pretty dead place all summer.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S project for a lot of new—and much needed—government buildings in Washington is in difficulties right from the start.

"We're willing to vote for your bill," congressional artists in the city are telling the president, "on condition that you agree to a hundred or two million dollars' worth of new federal buildings in our various home towns, too." Practically none of this kind of "work" has been dished out since 1914 and the whole country is fairly starving for some. ... Paying for it, however, doesn't fit in with the presidential economy policy.

"YOU increased your pay," the National Federation of Federal Employees will say to Congress next winter.

"How about increasing ours?" They want a minimum of $1500 a year for grown up people in the civil service, not counting the postoffice. ... Government workers never were very well paid, but before the war they could live decently at least with due economy. Now it's a tough proposition.

THE coast artillery job was muddled a bit by "Milly" Mitchell and his disciples when even the navy is ... True, the colonel pronounced them equally helpless against air attacks, but whereas Mitchell hasn't been able to prove conclusively that the navy is useless, as he says it is, the coast artillery hasn't been able to prove conclusively that it isn't.

Thus the coast artillery's position is more humiliating than the navy's, and it's correspondingly more about it.

Choosing Occupations

Years ago fond parents devoted winter evenings to deciding to futures of their numerous offspring. Johnny was to be a teacher. Mary would be a trained nurse. Willie would be tutored in the ministry, and perhaps a fourth progeny would be placed in business or kept on the farm. And in the day time the school instructors of Johnny, Mary, Willie and so on believed they had fulfilled their duty if they prepared them for graduation. Few teachers realized that theirs was an exceptional opportunity to help young men and women to pick their life's work on the basis of their individual qualifications and peculiar abilities.

All is different in the educational system of today. Vocational guidance is an established science. The public schools and the institutions of higher learning now strive to fit the curriculum to the student, not the student to the course of study. The student at the same time is directed into a life's work for which he is especially suited.

Many men and women now failures might have been preeminent in their professions or trades had an ounce of direction been exerted in their youth to the selection of a career. A boy with an aptitude for mechanics and the engineering branches should not be forced into a legal or literary career because a parent or an instructor is partial to those later occupations, yet countless have been and many will be in the future.

There is a "destiny which shapes our ends" if it is the power which attracts the individual to that thing to life for which it is most fitted by nature.—Temple Telegram.

DOCTOR HORN PLEADS WITH CITY PEOPLE TO PROVIDE ROOM, BOARD AND WORK FOR TECH COLLEGIANS

"ONE THOUSAND STUDENTS WILL ENROLL IF THESE NECESSITIES ARE OFFERED," HEAD OF SCHOOL SAYS; STRESSES NEEDS

By Dr. P. W. Horn. I have been asked so many times during the past year the question as to how many students we would likely have when the Texas Technological College opens its doors, that I, months ago, adopted a uniform answer as follows: Between five hundred and a thousand. Of course nobody knew. Neither I nor anyone else could forecast accurately. However, I have some conviction that the answer, although rather vague, was in reality a good one. As the time for the opening draws near it becomes a little bit easier for us to estimate our attendance, although even yet we do not know definitely how many are actually enrolling. There are about 1,000 in the registrar's office approximately six hundred entrance credentials from students desiring to enter our institution. Some of these are high school credit cards, properly filled out, showing these are transcripts of work done in affiliated high schools. Others of these are transcripts of work done in other colleges, sent to us on behalf of students who desire to transfer from other colleges. Credentials of this kind are coming in on every mail. There were seventeen transcripts of work from other colleges that came in on one mail Monday. The simple fact of the situation is at present this we can have a thousand students enrolled at the opening of the Texas Technological College, provided one thing—namely, provided that the citizens of Lubbock will furnish board and room for that many people at a rate that the students consider reasonable. In every college there are some students who are quite well-to-do, and others who are not so well off. There are many students who would prefer to pay $35 or even $40 for board and room, provided they felt that they were getting a little extra service for this amount. On the other hand, there are many students whose only inquiry is "Where is the cheapest place at which I can secure board and room?" There are many of them who would prefer to pay $25 per month and have slightly fewer conveniences than to pay $35 and get considerable more. Still further, there are students who can pay $25 per month and cannot pay $25. Ten dollars per month may seem to many people not a very large sum; but if you do not have that amount it seems quite large indeed. We are securing an abundance of rooms with board at $25. The shortage comes in with the lower priced places. We need absolutely and at once rooms for two hundred students at a price of not more than $25 per month for board and room. We already have some of these, but we have not enough. If the citizens of Lubbock will see to it that these rooms are provided, they may count on having one thousand students during our opening year. Otherwise they may count on less. The situation is such that if we fold our hands and do nothing further at all we can now count on having five hundred students. This will make for us a very nice little college during its first year. If we need double that number we can obtain them, but only in case board and room not to exceed $25 per month is furnished for at least two hundred students. Would it not be worth while to make this effort? Are there not people in Lubbock who are more interested in the success of the Tech than they are in the question of their own profit in keeping boards? It should be remembered that every additional student we secure will be an additional argument to the State Legislature for increased facilities and increased support. If our number should be small during the first year the Legislature may infer that we have all at the equipment and all of the support we need. There are one thousand students knocking at our doors this very moment. Shall we let them in if so, it must be because somebody secures room and board for students who are not yet here by agreement. Many of these boys need jobs. There are surprisingly few of them who are there are merely asking the chance to make their own way. Many of the business men of Lubbock have already indicated their intention of giving employment to students. There may be yet more who can do so. Every business man who gives a boy a position is in line with helping to keep our young students. The Young Men's Club of Lubbock is doing a good work in securing places where girls may work for at least a portion of their expenses. Every man and woman in Lubbock, who can give employment either to young men or to young women, should communicate with either Mr. E. M. Chiswood, the business manager of the college, or else with Mr. George Smallwood, whose telephone number is 1281. The excess of the college is already assured. The exact size of it is up to the citizens of Lubbock. Shall we make the first year's enrollment large, or do we prefer it to be small? P. W. Horn, President.

MUSIC TEACHERS IN LUBBOCK ORGANIZE

At the request of Mr. M. H. Duncan, superintendent of Lubbock schools, the music teachers interested in securing credits for high school pupils doing private work in piano and violin, met with Miss Mary Dunn on Saturday evening for the purpose of organizing and perfecting a plan for standardization of work to be done by the private pupil. Each teacher in the city desiring her pupils to receive credit for private work must be a member of the organization, said teacher must have had at least a high school education, two years work in a recognized conservatory and one year's work in a recitatory and one year's teaching experience or the equivalent of each. Said teacher must charge at least eight dollars ($8.00) per school month for her work. It being the belief of the organization that it will take at least that much of a teacher's time to cover the required work. Said teacher must present three-fourths of her high school pupils for examination for credit, registering the same with the corresponding secretary-treasurer, and register all of her high school pupils with the recording secretary. If two-thirds of a teacher's pupils fail in two examinations that teacher is automatically dropped from the organization. The course of study is the one authorized by the Texas State Music Teachers Association, and an examiner will be sent from that Association to conduct the examinations in Lubbock, the last week in April. Each pupil will be classified for the year's work he or she is best fitted, by the teacher, regardless of the pupil's high school classification. Thus a senior in high school may do freshman music work and receive credit. The department, Chief May says is doing everything in its power to have the weeds out and the city otherwise beautiful before the fair and the Tech opening celebration.

SIR DUDLEY GLENISTER, suspected of murder when a crow drops a fleshy finger in the midst of a picnic party, attempts to slay suspicion by asking—

KATHLEEN GLENISTER, sister of the dead man, to marry him, believing that if she were his wife she would let up in her attempt to fasten him with the guilt. Kathleen refuses, and Sir Dudley goes into a rage, threatening her, but—

NORMAN SLATER, Kathleen's lover appears and a fight ensues. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Excuse me," said the new-comer. "I am Detective Inspector Wragge of Scotland Yard, called to make a few inquiries. The maid who let me in was scared of a fight she said was going on and she told me I'd better run up. What's the row about?"

"Sir Dudley made a grab at his sister."

"My cousin Miss Glenister has been accusing me of murdering her brother and this gentleman took her I'm," he replied.

"Come, come," said the inspector soothingly. "You are all traveling much too fast and I am going to be dragged after you. All I want is for Miss Glenister to verify one or two dates which have been forwarded to the Yard by the local police."

"Which means I presume," that the case has not been dropped," said Sir Dudley adjusting his rumpled neck wear.

Picking up his gloves and condescending to that, the latter having been trodden on in the floor. Sir Dudley walked out of the door.

CHAPTER IX

that he held no communication with George, but cabled a report of his discovery to his employer in London. In forty-eight hours he had cabled answer ordering him to return to England forthwith without speaking to my brother. He obeyed the order."

"And that is the sum total of Mr. Trickey's disclosure?"

"Up to the present," said Kathleen. "But he hinted that he had, in his own words, something up his sleeve, and that he had to consult some one before he could impart it. He gave me his address, 14 Lipscombe Road, Brixton, and asked me to call there tomorrow."

Inspector Wragge once more reached for his bag. "Thank you, Miss Glenister," he said. "My time in calling upon you has not been wasted. I will give myself the pleasure again, after you have been to Brixton. You can always get me on the phone to Scotland Yard if, anything crops up."

With a friendly glance at Norman he bowed himself out of the room and went downstairs and outside.

He stood on the curb waiting for a disengaged taxi. One came along presently and the young couple in Lady Murrables drawing-room would have been surprised at the address he gave the driver—14 Lipscombe Road, Brixton.

"With all due respect to Miss Glenister," he muttered as he sat down, "it will be better business if I take Mr. Simon Trickey unaware and interview him before she does."

The cab stopped at a smartly furnished detached villa in a quiet suburban road. Wragge got out and rang the bell, thereby provoking the smart little doormaid's smart little maid-servant. The domestic surroundings of Mr. Simon Trickey were not what the detective had expected after his fleeting glimpse of the exterior in the library at Beechwood Grange.

"Mr. Trickey at home?" he asked.

The girl was evidently taken aback by the question, as though it was an unusual one. She began automatically to close the door on the visitor.

"No, he isn't," she said. "The master won't be in for hours yet—after midnight probably, if you're a pal of his you ought to know."

"Is Mrs. Trickey in?" Wragge fired a shot at a venture.

The maid gaped, but her reply was snatched from her mouth by a gorgeous apparition in a red and white kimono, who pushed her aside and took her place in the doorway.

"People don't generally call me by my husband's name," she smirked at the detective. "What's the matter with 'Maud Blair' for a moniker? Don't you ever go to the pictures?"

Now Wragge's duties did not infrequently take him to the cinema theaters, and he remembered the striking features of the woman on a screen. From that intangible standpoint she had impressed at Wild West melodrama as a lady crook in a New York underworld play, as a duchess in the film version of an English novel. Moreover, his trained memory placed the name of Maud Blair—not as a cinema screen of the first flight, but as a snick back on second-rate films.

"Madam," he stammered the ready excuse, "how was I to know that a celebrity of your fame was connected with Mr. Simon Trickey, a matrimonial lark or otherwise? Simon is indeed a lucky old cove. I recognize you at once, but it took my brain's way. It is like finding a star of the first magnitude harnessed to a—"

For once words failed Mr. Wragge, but "Miss Maud Blair" promptly supplied them. He had tickled her vanity.

"To a whisky bottle," she laughed merrily. "Now, mister, it isn't any use asking you in to wait for Simon, because he'll probably roll up as full as a tick about one tomorrow morning. But if you'll take a glass of port and leave your name."

"MRS. TRICKEY AT HOME" HE ASKED

"The few things he told you, Miss Glenister," insinuated Wragge.

"Simon Trickey," proceeded Kathleen, "was sent to America to find my brother George some time after he went away and he found him—at Lone Wolf City, Montana. It was little better than a mining camp."

"Before we go further," said the inspector thoughtfully, "it would be well to fix things in their proper sequence. How long before your father's death did your brother leave home for America?"

"Roughly speaking, put it at a year," Kathleen replied.

"Did Trickey furnish you with the date of the journey he undertook on Sir Dudley's behalf?"

"It was about a month after my father's death."

"Jump! It would be natural for the next heir to be curious as to your brother's whereabouts," said Wragge.

"What interval passed between Trickey's mission to the United States and the appearance of the paragraph which put the solicitors on the track?"

"So far as I can remember about eight months," Kathleen replied after reflection.

"Now, Miss Glenister, we come to a most important factor. Did Trickey tell you what occurred when he discovered Mr. or to be correct, Sir George Glenister. Did he inform him of his father's death and reveal himself as your cousin's emissary?"

"According to his own account he did not," Kathleen replied. "He says the will of said Paul J. Kraetsch, which bequeathed said one-eleventh interest to said Harry F. Graefe, in trust for said Bertha G. Helmer, expressly provided that the share devised, and bequeathed to said Harry F. Graefe, in trust, should be held and disposed of by said trustee, paying to the income from her share and so much of the principal as said Trustee should believe to be for her best interest and greatest comfort, and that in event of her death, the remaining part of her share should be held in trust for her son, Frank Helmer, and therefore, was not subject to sale.

That plaintiffs allege, that, under the will of said Paul J. Kraetsch, deceased, the Executors were expressly given authority to sell and convey and otherwise dispose of any real estate owned by said Paul J. Kraetsch, and to convert into money any and all property of the estate and to pay to said Bertha G. Helmer, the sum of $500.00 per year until the estate is distributed, said payments to be charged to the share bequeathed to said Harry F. Graefe in trust for said Bertha G. Helmer; that acting under said will and carrying out the provisions thereof, Charles H. Kraetsch, and George H. Kraetsch, Executors of the estate of Paul J. Kraetsch, deceased, joined by all the beneficiaries in said will, including Bertha G. Helmer, conveyed the above land to W. E. Posey, by warranty deed, dated April 3, 1924, recorded in vol. 91, pg. 75, deed records of Lubbock county, Texas, and that the plaintiffs hold title under said deed from W. E. Posey; that Harry F. Graefe is dead, and such will did not provide any mode for appointment of a substitute trustee, and there was no intention to have such appointment; that to make the payments for benefit of said Bertha G. Helmer, provided for, it was necessary to consume the estate in Texas, bequeathed in trust and that the same was sold for its market value.

Wherefore, plaintiffs pray for judgment upon final hearing hereof, holding that under the will of said Paul J. Kraetsch, deceased, the Executors and Bertha G. Helmer had authority to convey said land to W. E. Posey; and that plaintiffs have judgment against all of said defendants for

Heavy Rains Are Good And Bad On Farmers Of Texas

DALLAS, Sept. 24. (AP)—Rain, accompanied by a cool north breeze, fell over north and northwest Texas Wednesday night and early Thursday much to the relief of fall turnip patches. It definitely ended the straw hat season.

The rain was needed by cotton farmers, who declare it did more harm than good. In most of the points where the rain fell there was still a supply of stock water. In Dallas the city reservoirs along the Trinity river already were flowing over their dams as a result of rains north of here on the water shed.

The heaviest rain fell at San Marcos, in the central dry belt, where 3.10 inches was recorded officially. More than two inches fell at Haskell, Seymour and Abilene. Many points in the section around Dallas and Fort Worth reported almost two inches. Brownwood, San Angelo, Llano, Dublin and Waxahachie all recorded well over an inch apiece. The extreme south did not receive rain during the night.

Low night temperatures accompanied the precipitation. The official Amarillo thermometer went down to 48 last night and the highest in Amarillo yesterday was only 50. All other sections felt the cooling effect of the fall rains.

INSECTS ATTACK TEXAS

AUSTIN, Sept. 24. (AP)—A ground butterfly, producing a grass worm that is devastating vegetation in sweeping central Texas. The insect comes from the southwest and flies northeast. It has never been here before.

DENVER—There is snow on the Rock Mountain divide.

Four Year Old Boy Killed In Auto Accident

HOUSTON, Sept. 24. (AP)—Oliver J. Patterson Jr., four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Patterson, was killed in an automobile wreck here today. Edward Patterson, and older brother, and the little boy were returning home after they had taken the father to work, when the car was struck by another automobile. The jugular vein of Oliver was cut by the broken windshield.
