Miss Robinson To Complete Study On Doctors Degree

Miss Lucille Robinson, who for several months has been a special secretary to Dr. Paul W. Horn, President of the Tech College here, and whose efforts have meant much for the efficiency of the president's office, has resigned her position with the college effective December 22, at the end of the first quarter of the college year, to take up work at the University of Texas.

Miss Robinson holds a Bachelor degree from Simmons University, and has done a great deal of work and study toward a Masters degree at the University of Texas. She will study Economics and Government, and hopes to complete her work for the degree by next August, she said.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary. Breakfast—Gravy, thin cream, creamed dried beef on toast, corn bread, milk, coffee. Luncheon—Margarol baked with tomatoes, Graham bread, jelly, cup custards, milk tea. Dinner—Casserole of lamb, potato, peas in parsley butter, creamed spring beans, spinach salad, whole wheat bread, pineapple and marshmallow pud dings, milk, coffee. If this luncheon menu the desert furnishes the protein we usually find in the main dish. Without the custard the meal will be poorly balanced and lacking in necessary nutrients for children. The dessert suggested in this dinner menu is good winter "company" dessert. It is not particularly cheap but it is good and worth remembering. Pineapple Marshmallow Pudding. Eight marshmallows, 2-4 cup shredded canned pineapple, 1-2 cup whipping cream, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar, 4 thin squares of sponge cake. Cut marshmallows into quarters, using the kitchen shears. Combine pineapple, marshmallows and sugar and let stand in a cold place for one hour or until thoroughly chilled. Whip cream until stiff and fold in pineapple mixture. Pile on square of sponge cake and serve. (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service Inc.)

TALKS TO BIBLE CLASS

Speaking before the Lubbock Bible Club in the First Christian church last night on the "Four Portraits of the Lord Jesus" A. L. Page said in part: Matthew, Mark, Luke and John present distinct pictures of the work of Christ, and should be better understood. Matthew presents Jesus Christ to the Jews as their long promised Messiah and King. Mark portrays Him to the Romans as the Servant of God and man. Luke shows to the Greeks a perfect man, the realization of the national quest, the "Son of Man." John gives the full length portrait of the Son of God. Viewing Him in His positions as King, Servant, Man and God it can readily be understood that a harmony (as called) of the gospels is not intended by the Holy Spirit, and such a treatment produces a blur, rather than revealing the Divine truth intended. There were three representative types on the earth when Jesus was born: Jews, Romans and Greeks.

MRS. M. P. BREWLEY, FT. WORTH TO ASSIST IN DELPHIAN ART EXHIBIT

The Art Exhibit being fostered by the Delphian Club, that is to be given here soon after the Christmas holidays is being planned by Mrs. M. P. Brewley of Fort Worth state chairman of art in the T. F. W. C. Needless to say, with such backing as Mrs. Brewley can give, assisted by the Delphian that this exhibit, will be among the best in the state.

Plans are being discussed where all school children will be admitted free of charge, but because of necessity in all undertakings of this kind, there is some expense incurred. A nominal fee will be charged for grown people. This charge, you may be assured, will be negligible compared to the many wonderful productions to be seen, besides the impetus and stimulation derived therefrom.

This club deserves much credit for this undertaking. Whereby the entire city may receive both pleasure and profit.

Geary Girl Given Honor Among Farm Clubs' Delegates

CHICAGO, Dec. 2. (AP)—Miss Frances Smith, 18 year old high school girl of Geary, Okla., has been picked as the farm youth who in 1925 displayed the greatest qualities of leadership in home, club and community life. She was selected from among 600,000 farm children of the United States.

Miss Smith will be awarded a huge silver loving cup at a dinner tonight, which will be attended by 1200 boys and girls, delegates to the fourth annual convention of girls and boys club work in connection with the International Livestock Exposition.

The cup known as the Moses Leadership cup, will belong to her permanently.

"Since Frances Smith became a club member, seven years ago the products of her hoe and needles have taken 102 first prizes and have placed 278 times in addition to $478.25 in premium awards at all county, state and national farmers fairs," said G. L. Noble, executive secretary of the national committee on boys and girls club by the sale of the produce she raised. "A profit of $2,300 has come to her work."

MARRS ASKS FOR BETTER SCHOOL SYSTEM

DALLAS, Dec. 2. (AP)—Texas should place a free high school education within the reach of every boy and girl in the state, S. M. Marris, superintendent of public instruction, declared in an address before the State Teachers Association here Saturday. Parents should be relieved of the necessity of paying tuition when they are forced to transfer their children into the schools of towns and cities in order to secure high school advantages, he said.

"A free public school education for every boy and girl residing in the state, irrespective of the place of residence, city or rural community, and regard to the financial resources of the parents is the safeguard of modern democracy," Supt. Marris declared, in advocating state support of a system of rural high schools, which will place a high school education in reach of the boys and girls of the rural communities of Texas.

At the present time thousands of rural children are forced to transfer out of their home districts and pay high tuition rates for the privilege of attending high schools of cities and towns, Supt. Marris said. "The state of the school district, or both in cooperation," he said, "should provide for payment of tuition charged transferred scholars when they are forced to leave their home districts in order to secure a high school education, and the Fortieth Legislature should pass such legislation as may be necessary to make it possible for rural school pupils to secure a high school education at public expense. The parents of children residing in rural school communities, should not have to pay tuition in order to give their children high school advantages.

"It is the duty of the state to provide the funds with which educational opportunities may be equalized. There will be inequality of financial ability between school districts so long as we have the district system of a local support of high schools, because of the variability of rates of local taxation, population, and per capita wealth, and it will be necessary for the state to provide funds with which to equalize educational opportunities throughout the state.

Mr. Marris called attention to the fact that he requested the last legislature to make an appropriation to $500,000 for the purpose of paying tuition of pupils in rural school districts which are unable to maintain high school facilities, who are forced to transfer into the cities and towns and pay high tuition rates. The appropriation was approved by the lower house of the 39th Legislature and Superintendent Marris said he would recommend such an appropriation to the Fortieth Legislature.

OVERDRAFT MOVES WOMEN TO ROB BANK

SHOX FALLS, S. D. Dec. 2. (AP)—Fear of a scolding from her husband when he learned of checks she had written causing an overdraft of $100 in their bank account prompted Mrs. Katherine Rogers to rob the First State Bank at Renner, S. D. last night, police said today.

Further questioning of Mrs. Rogers and her daughter, Zera who are in jail charged with robbery, revealed that last summer the Rogers family was in a fair financial condition, but that Mrs. Rogers had been drawing heavily on the bank account.

Another point was cleared up when Zera admitted that $90, found in the bottom of a trunk in her home, was part of the loot obtained in the hold-up. She confessed, police said, that she

Co-Eds At Canyon Frown On Petters As Life-time Mate

AMARILLO, Dec. 2. (AP)—Twenty-six per cent of 200 girls at the West Texas State Teachers College do not want to marry a man who is an experienced petter. Fourteen per cent do not care. Several remark that they would object if they knew that the man is an experienced petter, but "how can we tell?" or "try and find one who's not," they add.

These statistics were obtained by the Amarillo Globe in a survey on "the kind of man the college girl wants to marry."

Only 38 per cent of the girls want a cave man type of the remaining expressing a desire for the Valentino sort of husband.

Eleven per cent of the co-eds indicate they want no club. Three per cent want only one club, 18 per cent want three and 20 per cent want four. Two girls top the list, indicating they would like a family of ten children.

matter of sound public policy which I cannot overlook.

Points Out Laws. "We have on the statute books a law against the unlawful sale, transportation or possession of intoxicating liquors. Also there is a law against intoxication in public places.

"It will not be denied that the foundation of our civilization is our educational institutions, in and around these temples of knowledge from the country school to the college and the university we seek to reach the rising generation the virtue of morality, sobriety and correct living. It is here that the proper precepts and example is set, or should be set, before the young boys and girls that will aid them to become good and intelligent citizens. These simple truths are so self evident that to them is to prove them.

Flays His Example. "If those in charge of the management and direction of our educational institutions shall by their personal deportment display those vices that are repugnant to the idea of strict morality and sobriety then such result in the students of these institutions cannot be expected.

"If as head of the Texas Technological College, you reserve to yourself the right to appear in public in the condition you were in at College Station on Thanksgiving Day, then every student who saw you could justly hold you responsible for doing the same thing. If a student at Tech College should appear on the Lubbock campus as you appeared in College Station the faculty would promptly expel such student from the college. And, yet, in such case the student could plea your case and the example and the precedent set by you in justification. If the heads of our institutions cannot practice and preach sobriety then our hopes for educated citizenship are vain and useless.

"It is with deep regret that I protest against your further occupying a place on the West Texas Technological campus. I plead for a better example for our boys and girls. You have set a standard that cannot be tolerated. For the good of the public service I emphatically affirm that you should resign your resignation.

"Miriam A. Ferguson,

"Governor of Texas." FORT WORTH, Nov. 26. (AP)—Amos C. Carter, whose resignation from the board of regents of the Texas Technological college was requested today by Governor Ferguson, was silent today concerning the letter given out at the governor's office in Austin. His office said he would have nothing to say until after he had received the letter.

NEW TREATIES OF U. S. AND MEXICO ARE READY

THE SCHOOLS

In order to provide in the schools a seat for each child, there would have to be now at least one hundred and sixty more seats than in all the school buildings of the city. At the opening of school next September there will be at least seven hundred children more in all the schools than there are seats, if the proposed bond issue to be voted on next Saturday does not carry. The least that Lubbock can do for her children in an educational way is to provide a seat for each child and some kind of a teacher. Of course, she should do much more than this, but she certainly should do that much and can not claim to be an educational center unless she makes at least this provision.

Lubbock must have a public school system that is in keeping with her standing as an educational center. If people move here to send their children to the Tech and find the public schools poorly provided for, they are very likely to move somewhere else, for the average family that moves here for the Tech has two children for the public schools where it has one for the Tech.

All will agree the children of Lubbock deserve the very best school advantages. About all the average man is able to do for his children is to provide them with a good education. In fact when a man has done this, he has done the best thing he possibly can do for them. The people of Lubbock cannot properly educate their children unless they at least provide each child with a seat in the schools. Half-day sessions are a very poor makeshift to be resorted to in case of an emergency for a part of a year when nothing better can be done.

According to a report of the Secretary of the Treasury for the year 1915, the people of Lubbock spent $56,000 more every year for chewing tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, and snuff than they do for their public schools. Do you think, when such is the case, that it would be impossible for us to increase the expenditures for the schools?

CHRISTMAS ON DISPLAY

It's a relatively new idea in merchandising to emphasize beauty in display windows with just enough of "goods" to stimulate imagination and arouse desire. Over a series of years we have been witnessing the evolution of this idea which seems to have attained its climax in Lubbock this season.

Never within recollection have the windows of our stores, great and small, presented so much of interest and beauty as they do now. Lubbock merchants have vied with one another in placing before the people unique and artistic visualizations of the Christmas spirit with results so striking that we may be sure we have not seen the ultimate in this form of display. Christmas is the children's day and preparations for it ever have been with primary concern for the youngsters' interest. This year's window displays, however are magnets for people of all ages and conditions of life.

They are more than a glimpse into Toyland, the characteristic of old-fashioned displays. They transcend previous representations of Fairyland which have delighted all beholders. This year there is set before us in seemingly endless array artistic and naturalistic exemplifications of fiction and fact that afford tourists in the shopping centers a panorama of them and enlightenment hitherto unequalled.

Cheer Up, Uncle Tom Always Triumphs in the End

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

BY CHARLES P. STEWART NEA Service Writer

Washington—The average man probably will say $17,500 is a pretty good yearly income. An income's sufficiency, however, depends on how its recipient has to live. "How" to live? Can't he live to suit himself? Not always. An Ambassador among others, has got to live up to his job. "Got" is the word. His style of living is a matter concerning which diplomat has no voice.

That's why the nited States diplomatic service is a service for rich men exclusively. This isn't necessarily true of the consular service, consular hasn't a plenipotentiary's social obligations. It isn't true of the foreign diplomats in America. Most of them draw two, three or four times the pay ours do. Our ministers at a very few modest capitals do manage to live on their salaries. But generally speaking it spells ruin for a man with out large financial resources of his own to accept a foreign post under government.

The ambassador, or minister, isn't the only one whose official income won't support him. His whole staff of secretaries and attaches are in the same fix. Their expenses aren't as big as their chief's but neither are their salaries.

This is no argument in favor of higher diplomatic salaries. Most American diplomats are dead willing to foot ambassadorial bills for the honor or they get out of it. They can afford it, too, or they wouldn't be foolish enough to accept appointments. In these days of rapid communication ambassadors and ministers aren't as important as they used to be, anyway. It's a rich man's game, however. There's no getting away from it.

SELECT BREEDING HERD FOR SPRING

While some hog raisers have already selected their breeding herds, there are many that are still undecided as to what sows they will keep to produce next year's pig crop. No doubt the question as to how old a gilt should be before taking her place in the breeding herd, is foremost in the minds of many. This is more a matter of development than of age. When a gilt has reached a weight of approximately 200 pounds, the chances are that her body is developed sufficient to not be affected by the burden of pregnancy. However, care must be taken to supply feeds enough of the right kind.

Successful breeders find that where early breeding is accompanied with sufficient growth-promoting feed, the gilts so handled make better brood sows than those bred later in life. Only sows from large and vigorous litters should be selected for breeding animals.

Whether to use old sows or gilts is no longer a problem with many for it is a common practice to fatten and market the brood sows as soon as possible after the spring litter can be weaned. To depend entirely upon undeveloped sows for the spring's pig crop is not a practice to be recommended, however common it may be. Small, undernourished litters are the almost inevitable result.

A study made among various swine breeds on representative Iowa farms showed that two-year-old and aged sows farrowed 23.9 per cent and 29.55 per cent respectively, more pigs per litter than yearling sows, while their pigs were 8.38 per cent and 12.08 per cent respectively larger than those of the yearling sows and their gains were 28.31 per cent greater.

The boar, like the sows, will be more satisfactory if allowed to become well developed and vigorous. A pig born in February or March, that is well developed, may be used in a limited way in November or December. Failure to observe caution in the management of a young boar invariably results in weak pigs and an early loss of breeding power.

Skim Milk Is Excellent Food for Growing Pigs

Skim milk is one of the best foods for growing pigs, to which may be added cornmeal, wheat middlings and ground oats. If enough skim milk is not to be had, a mixed grain feed of 32 pounds each of cornmeal, ground oats and wheat middlings, to which is added four pounds of oilmeal, making 100 pounds of the mixture, supplies the needed food ingredients. With considerable skim milk, the oilmeal may be omitted. Ground grains are fed as slops, ear corn may be fed in addition and, as fattening time approaches, corn is made a much larger part of the ration. Where only one or two pigs are kept, they are usually fed such household food wastes as are available, to which sufficient grain is added to keep them growing, and, in the summer, green stuffs are given to supplement and economize in grain. Pasture materially helps in saving feeding costs. Young pigs should be kept growing but no attempt should be made to keep them fat.

Salt Is Necessary Item in Ration for Animals

The best way to salt live stock is by permitting them to help themselves at will. Either common, brick or rock salt may be used; however, if common salt is used, it is advisable to protect it from the weather, in that rains will dissolve it, and, of course, wash it away.

The matter of whether live stock can be raised with or without salt has been the basis of many an experiment. Those experiments have usually resulted in added support to the contention that salt is a necessary item in any ration. While live stock will live a considerable time without salt, nevertheless they will not give as profitable returns from feeds consumed as will live stock receiving salt. In fact animals have been known to show a general lack of thrift and vigor owing to the lack of salt.

ENFORCEMENT OF TRAFFIC RULES STARTS HERE

The motorists of the City of Lubbock are now being given their first taste of what is to come in the future toward enforcement of the traffic regulations, both under city ordinances and state statutes. Strict enforcement of the "dollar a mile over twenty" portion of the city statute regulating speed was started recently following warnings issued by Chief of Police T. E. May recently, and several were brought before proper authorities, paying fines in keeping with the offense. Speeding is nothing more than a habit, according to Chief May, and a habit that must be stopped if lives are not to be endangered. Therefore, he continued, we are placing additional men on the police force to do something that the drivers of autos should be more than willing to do themselves. Instructions have gone out from the office of the Chief to the effect that all cars must be equipped with two lights in front, and a tail light, and drivers operating cars without meeting these requirements will also be haled before the city magistrate. He pointed to this as a state statute, as well as a city ordinance. Passing of cars on a street intersection will also be made the center of attack by local officials, the chief said, for this likewise is governed by a state statute, and is supposed to be enforced in every town in Texas. In short, the chief says that he will have the traffic laws of this city and state enforced here, or know the reason why, and he is drawing up his force to this end.

CHICAGO.—Twenty men rated as millionaires formed bucket brigades in the fashionable quarter of Glenview, a suburb, to help the volunteer fire department to extinguish a blaze in the home of one of their number. Highlanders In England Forget Their Tradition

LONDON, Dec. 2. (P)—The Highlanders of the Isle of Skye and the Outer Hebrides, off the west coast of Scotland, have abandoned their traditional custom for a more luxurious diet of tea, white bread and jam. This fact has been brought out by the chief medical officer of Invernesshire, which includes Skye, who declares the change is "dietetic folly" and is result of indolence. The medical officer says that radio, crossword puzzles and other modern ideas are threatening to spoil the islanders and to remove all the picturesque quality of the country of the crofters, as the small highland farmers are called. The authorities of the region are making attempts to introduce easier methods of preparing porridge so that the islanders will not stick to their new tea and bread diet simply because it is easier to make ready for the table. Brighton realtors are picking up their guns and getting ready for the Hollywood boom which they hope will strike this conservative watering place when the proposed, All-English movie studios are erected here. Meteorological experts have advised promoters of the British moving picture industry that Brighton has more sun and less fog than any other suitably located part of England and the combined cinema industries, backed by government support, are preparing to give the America industry a fight for the world market. Eighty five per cent of the pictures shown in England are American and only five per cent are British made. This condition has moved the government to enact new regulations requiring that sellers of pictures must market an increasingly large percentage of English made films over a long term of years. Even the prince of Wales in his various tours has not been able to offset the advertising effect of the American movie. American scenes, American clothing, American buildings, in fact everything American, has been given such wide publicity in all parts of the world, that British industries are suffering and there has been a general movement to offset this American ascendancy in the British Empire as well as in all other part of the world. Report from the United States that clothing manufacturers have been using the name of the Prince of Wales as well as his coat of arms to advertise their goods are being investigated by the makers of ready made clothing in England, who plan to raise a protest. It is contended here that some of the advertisements as used in America included even the portrait of the prince under which appeared the wording "By appointment," along with the royal coat of arms. These advertisements, it is claimed, made it appear that the heir to the British throne started on his tour to South Africa and South America last spring wearing a hand-made down suit made in New York, Pittsburgh or Chicago, and the British tailors are up in arms and have assembled great masses of documentary evidence to show that the prince never had a suit made in America in his life. BROWNWOOD—Fifteen directors for the local Chamber of Commerce for the year 1926 have been elected. H. G. Lucas, Secretary, announced a meeting of old and new board to discuss the date for the annual membership banquet and meeting.

SMALLER BOLL AND EARLY MATURING VARIETY OF COTTON BEST IN WEST TEXAS, EXPERIMENT RECORDS SHOW

Year in and Year out for the largest returns, the smaller boll, early maturing strains of cotton with a staple not to exceed one inch and with a thin bur, will yield larger returns than the larger boll, longer staple cottons, according to D. L. Jones, superintendent of the Lubbock Experiment Station, who said that farmers should be governed not by the gin turn out of the cotton but by the lint per acre production.

Weather conditions are the gauge by which the varieties to be planted are to be governed and two principal things stand out prominently in this Mr. Jones said. They are the rainfall and the length of the growing season. Because of the shorter growing period in this section the early maturing varieties are found most profitable.

Average Rainfall in 1926
Experiments at the Lubbock Station over a period of 14 years show the average precipitation to be about 19.36 inches. About seventy-five per cent of this falls during the growing season making possible the growth of good crops here. The average length of the growing season over the same period is 206 days. The earliest frost free date in that period came on March 11 while the latest came May 6 with an average of April 16. The earliest killing frost in the fall came October 19 with the latest coming November 13 with an average of October 26.

May 20 Best Planting Time
May 20 is about the best time to plant cotton according to the results of the experiment station.

The rainfall is the controlling factor in the maturity of cotton and the drought holds the cotton back from growth early in the season the crop is in danger from late maturity and damage from an early freeze or frost. The freeze which has damaged the crop this year came only two days before the average date of killing frost.

Early Planting Urged
This is a condition which can not be avoided, according to Jones. The only thing that the farmers can do is to plant earlier maturing varieties and do the best they can to get it up as early in the spring as it is safe, thus giving plenty of time to mature before the fall freezes.

Should Test Germination
Seed before it has been given germination tests," Mr. Jones stated. "If a farmer has some seed he should not plant it before making the germination test. Next year with the season we now have in the ground, we ought to get our cotton up early and the moisture ought to sustain it fairly well with only a few showers thru out the summer but if only half per cent of the seed germinate, leaving only about half a stand, the farmer will not be able to leave the crop. It will be hard to secure good seed this year, Jones believes, because of the drought in the eastern and southern portions of Texas and because of the early freeze here.

Production Tests
A few of the varieties tested out in the past fourteen years on the Lubbock Experiment Station and the production of each are given below:
Average yields of lint produced, per acre given in pounds:
Variety Av. 5 yrs. 4 yrs. 3yr.
Burnett 407.96 528.52
Nehalem 357.92 418.79 497.15
Lone Star 288.65 327.14 386.75
Rowden 233.34 279.97 303.38
Acacia 288.83 312.10
Durango 271.79 278.62
Kasch 230.40 242.77
Snowflake 280.05
Bennett 251.60
Belton 220.43

The cotton on the Lubbock Experiment Station was only damaged about 5 to 10 per cent as a result of the freeze, according to estimates of superintendent Jones. This is accounted for by the fact that early maturing varieties were planted and the major part of the crop was matured before the freeze came. Jones expects to gather between one-third and one-half bale of cotton per acre on the 48 acres planted to cotton. This includes all varieties planted, the bulk of which is early maturing strains.

Two U. S. Aviators Killed In Crash

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 2. (AP)—Captain Harry H. Sheppard and Lieutenant John D. Christian, air men attached to U. S. Marine aviation squadron number 1, were killed yesterday when their planes collided at a height of 2,000 feet over San Diego Bay.

M'ELROY TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE TO "NEWSIES"

"The Last Edition" the newspaper drama is being offered theatre goers here by E. McElroy, owner and manager of the Lyric Theatre, is a picture that should be seen by every reader of a newspaper if they wish to know something of the trials and tribulations through which the newspaper fraternity goes to see that readers are not disappointed in receiving their paper "on time," in the opinion of McElroy, who through his efforts to bring this story home, not only to the public, but to the "Newsies" as well, has thrown back his doors and urged that every newspaper man of the city see the picture at his expense.

Director Emory Johnson, Mrs. Emilie Johnson, his author-mother, and the popularity of Ralph Lewis, combine "The Last Edition" one of the most vital and stirring screen pictures seems destined to outdo even its famous predecessor, "The Third Alarm" in point of popular appeal.

The story is tense, interesting and human stuff, Mr. McElroy said, and precisely the kind of material of which a newspaper story would be composed

Along the Oregon Trail

Albert Brown, old and with the burden and sorrows of seventy years telling in his face and body, dropped into a Wichita, Kan., pawnshop the other day.

From the pocket of his threadbare jacket he pulled his watch chain, made of human hair, and held together with bands of gold, and handed it to the shopkeeper.

"Gumsily he brushed at a tear as he pocketed the change. And then with reluctance he told this story. Half a century ago he and his wife, then in the bloom of youth, traveled along the Oregon Trail for the Northwest. They joined up with another wagon train on the way, and then his wife disappeared. She went away with another member of the train. Years he searched over the west, always hoping to find her. Finally in northern Wyoming, tired and hungry, he stumbled into a little shack near Laramie. He knocked on the door. It opened. He fell into the arms of his wife. But from the farther side of the room, a pistol blazed. It was fired by the other man. The aim was poor, and the woman stopped the bullet. She died in her husband's arms.

"The chain is made from her hair," the aged man finished his story. "I cut several locks before I buried them there in the desert."

And the mainspring of its action does not arise from the success of the young "guy" reporter, but they are set down in the bowels of a great metropolitan paper where the real "shells go round." The characterizations brought about by Mrs. Johnson are exceptional yhuman and true to life.

The picture ran yesterday and today at the Lyric.

Certainly the naval chiefs, if they read the papers these days, will not suffer from swelled heads.—Boston Globe.

Delegation Of Texas Solons To Visit Capital To Use Influence For Repeal Immediately Of Federal Estate Tax

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 3. (AP)—Early petition to Texas members of the Congress of the United States to "exercise their full influence and voting power to repeal immediately the federal estate tax," will be made in Washington this week by a delegation of six members of the 39th Texas legislature. The six men were chosen at a state Tax conference and unofficial legislative session held in Austin Monday, when resolutions attacking the federal estate tax as an unwarranted invasion of states rights by the federal government were adopted by the two bodies.

Senator R. A. Stewart of Fort Worth, one of a delegation of 18 Texans who appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee in October, asking for repeal of the tax is making arrangements for the trip to Washington. Senator John Davis, of Dallas, chairman of the senate finance committee and Senator A. J. Wirtz, of Seguin are the other two members of the senate who will make the trip. Speaker Lee Satterwhite, of Amarillo, Representative George Kenble, of Fort Worth, and Representative Eugene Blount of Nacodoches, chairman of the house appropriations committee will represent the house.

Arrangements have been made to give the members of the legislature a hearing before the House Ways and Means committee, the house appropriations committee and before a caucus of the 15 congressmen and two senators from Texas. Under the resolutions adopted here, the legislators will argue that a federal estate tax is a capital levy and as such a confiscation of capital and repugnant to all the ideals of local self government.

The legislature in its unofficial meeting of Monday voiced particular resentment at the proposals of the Ways and Means Committee to credit the individual states with 80 per cent of the amount of taxes collected, and in the same connection deplored the activities of the federal government in influencing state fiscal affairs.

"The federal government has heretofore passed many bills that are pious," the resolution recites, "are read the papers these days, will not matching dollars with the federal government thereby in effect forcing and compelling the states to appropriate money out of the state treasury which would otherwise not be appropriated and the proposed inheritance tax goes a step further and in effect prescribes the manner and means of raising state revenues which is a new and dangerous departure toward the centralization of power in Washington, to exclusions of states, over local matters and deprives the people of the right of local self government as handed down to us by the fathers.

"There should be a distinctive dividing line of revenues that may be raised by federal taxation and revenues that belong wholly to the individual states. Inheritance taxes are taxes that particularly belong to the individual state in which the estate is located and should be left to the state to deal with as it sees proper. We consider the rights of the state in the matter of taxation the most important and most valuable of all governmental functions, which function is impaired in the matter of estate by processes suggested in this bill."

Two Texas Trial Decisions To Be Given Reversal

Austin, Dec. 3. (AP)—Because the trial court erred in refusing to submit to the jury the charge of manslaughter the court of criminal appeals yesterday reversed and remanded two murder cases from Bexar county. Jesse Billings, sentenced to life imprisonment for killing his wife July 6, 1924, with an axe; and Santos Jimenez, given death for cutting the throat of his wife, March 30, 1924, are the men involved in the reversals.

NAVAL AVIATORS TAKE TURN IN REPLYING TO CHARGES OF BILLY MITCHELL IN HIS COURT TODAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (AP)—Naval aviators took their turn today in replying before the Mitchell court martial to charges of inefficiency in government aviation.

Appearing for the prosecution, veterans of two famous overseas flights expressed their opinions as to the capacity of the naval aircraft in which they had flown and in which notable attempts had been made to navigate the air.

Atlantic Flier Heard.

Commander H. C. Richardson, who took part in the attempt to cross the Atlantic in 1923 told the court of that flight and testified also that the plane given the MacMillan Arctic expedition last summer were a scapable as any in existence for that work, although they had been sent north without completion of preliminary tests.

The story of the effort of the PN-9 number 1 to fly to Hawaii was related by Lieutenant Byron J. Connell, a member of the crew, who denied that non-flying officers made any arrangements not approved by Commander John Rodgers, the flight captain.

Asked why there was no station ship at the point where the PN-9 number 1 came down, Lieutenant Connell said:

"There was error in radio bearings given us by the Aristocrat."

King's Testimony Culled.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (AP)—The Mitchell court martial today plunged from it record all mention of the episode of Friday when remarks by Brigadier General King, a member of the court, brought vigorous objections from counsel for Colonel Mitchell.

Representative Frank R. Reid, of Illinois, chief counsel of the accused army officer, asked that the record be amended to obliterate the passage. General King, Mr. Reid indicated at the time, had remarked that certain phases of the examination of a witness were "damned rot." General King apologized at the time.

Gullien Malted.

At the opening of today's proceedings, Major Allen W. Gullien, assistant trial judge advocate, attempted to address the court regarding the defense evidence but the court upheld an objection by Mr. Reid.

Before he was stopped, however, Major Gullien had "utterly failed" to prove the truth of Colonel Mitchell's charges of incompetency, neglect and near treason by the war and navy departments in their conduct of the national defense.

The prosecution mapped out its program so as to give navy witnesses an opportunity to testify as to Colonel Mitchell's charges against that branch of the service. Commander H. C. Richardson, pilot of the plane NC-3 in its attempt to cross the Atlantic in 1923, said the engine craft in which Lieutenant Pearson was killed in 1924 at Fairfield, Ohio, had been stored from the time of the Pulitzer races in 1913 until April 1924, when it was turned over to the army air service.

Colonel Mitchell charged that Pearson was killed in a disjuncted airplane constructed for a race two years before that in which the lieutenant met his death. Commander Richardson declared the machine was in "good condition" in April of 1924, it did not crash until the following September.

ABILENE ROBBERS ESCAPE IN BIG CHASE

ABILENE, Nov. 30. (AP)—Two men and a woman who were caught by Manager John Victor, of the Queen theatre as they were preparing to blow the safe in the theatre office at 6:30 Sunday morning, made their escape by holding Victor at the point of a gun and in a chase with Officer Poston of the local police force, again escaped when the officer's car blew a tire. Sheriff Biggs, of Abilene, was notified by Chief Burch, of Abilene, and met the robbers as they approached a bridge just west of Abilene. They stopped and signalled for him to come across the bridge. When he came to their car they dashed across the bridge, escaping the officer's fire, which punctured a tire on the car.

The safe contained $1,500 in cash and diamonds. Although officers of all counties to the east were notified no further trace of the bandits had been reported to local officers late Monday morning.

Pure Seed Campaign Launched At Slaton

J. J. Ross, secretary of Slaton's Commercial Club, has launched a pure seed campaign after holding a mass meeting at the Club House, at Slaton. The county agent together with all Commercial and Chamber of Commerce organizations both in Lubbock and adjoining counties are fostering and holding pure seed meetings. This means added production per acre and a better staple cotton.

This advance program is spreading over the whole of the Plains and is designed to have the same object as the more feed campaign that was launched last spring by Mr. Ross and Ben F. Smith, editor of the Slaton Times.

There is no step in farming that will produce greater returns than the planting of pure seed. It lessens acreage and over head expense and will increase our production, quality and grade.

Every farmer is in a great measure partial to some special kind of cotton, corn, and other feed products. This desire is better known by the producer, he we think is the proper one to say what kind of cotton has proved best for his special locality or farm.

Since the government and the various state departments have seen fit to spend both time and money in proving to the world the increase production to be gained by the planting of bred up, well matured and well cultivated seed, it is only safe to say that this program will produce the greatest returns of any physical step that could be made.

There is great interest being shown on the part of every progressive farmer to first plant a pure seed and second a more thorough cultivation of the soil. This not only increases both production and grade but increases the price as well.

Pullman Car From Lubbock Will Go On Into Dallas

The pullman car that has been added to the Santa Fe service for this city and the South Plains will now be routed on into Dallas instead of stopping at Fort Worth, as was first announced in the Daily Journal was advised Monday by R. F. Bayless, local agent of the Santa Fe.

The car will be set out here and opened to the public at 9:30 P. M. and will be picked up by the south-bound passenger train that comes in from Amarillo at 11:15 P. M.

HIGHWAY BOARD CANT PAY ITS REGULAR BILLS

GOVERNOR MUST APPOINT ANOTHER MEMBER IF BOARD MOVES

AUSTIN, Dec. 1. (AP)—The Texas highway situation again forced to the front today with announcement that the highway department is unable to pay pressing bills, while other matter agitating the Capitol lagged for the moment.

Vouchers totalling ten of thousands of dollars cannot be paid until the Governor appoints at least one highway commissioner, Eugene Smith, secretary of the commission, said. This leaves 1,800 road laborers without their pay, while many other employees have been compelled to pass up the pre-Christmas pay day for the present.

Resignations of Frank V. Lanham and Joe Burkett from the commission, following disclosures by the attorney general's suit against the American Road company, left the commission with only one member, John H. Bickett Sr., of San Antonio.

The commission therefore cannot function. Sharing interest with this situation was a reply from Amon G. Carter, publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, declining the accede to Governor Ferguson's demand that he resign from the Texas Technological College board of regents. The Governor demanded the resignation yesterday, accusing Mr. Carter of violating liquor laws. His reply declares that this is an effort on the part of the Ferguson to avert attention from highway disclosures.

Another phase of the liquor angle was a statement from Major H. H. White, federal prohibition director for Texas, that enforcement officers could not accept the $500 reward offered by the Governor for conviction of wealthy liquor violators. His department, however, approved the award and believed it would result in much more than a legislative probe.

The surcharged atmosphere, which has surrounded Governor William A. Ferguson for several weeks disclosed but two other developments today. James E. Ferguson, the Governor's husband, announced that his wife had made no formal announcement concerning the demand for a special session of the legislature presented by members of the lower house and Will Hogg, of Houston, one of state's wealthiest men, son of a former governor, announced he was willing to underwrite the expenses for a special session, though he believed a grand

AERONAUTICS TO BE DIRECTED BY HERBERT HOOVER

COMMERCIAL FLYING AND MILITARY AVIATION TO BE SEPARATE

(By Associated Press.)
 WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Legislation already in preparation to give the air board for the creation of effect to the proposal of the president's bureau of civil aeronautics in the department of commerce to promote commercial aviation along with its recommended expansion of military and naval aviation.

Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, a member of the board who joined in the unanimous report of its nine members said today he would introduce a bill giving the government wider latitude in aiding civil aviation than any legislation yet proposed. A companion bill will be introduced in the house by Chairman Parker of the commerce committee.

No Additional Secretary
 At this time, however, it is not contemplated to include in the legislation provision for an additional secretary in the department to head the bureau as recommended by the board along with its proposal for another assistant secretary also in both the war and navy departments to devote themselves primarily to aviation.

Creation of these new offices in the three departments formed the central recommendation of the board in its program for progressive development of both military and civil aviation in the United States. In addition to functioning in their own departments it would be the duty of the assistant secretaries "jointly to coordinate so far as may be practicable" the aviation activities of the three departments.

Board Opposes Drastic Change
 Seeing no need for drastic change in the present organization of army and navy aviation, the board emphatically opposed establishment of a department by Colonel William Mitchell in his public criticism of the war and navy department administration of aviation which was a forerunner of President Coolidge's appointment of the board to meet an exhaustive study of the needs of American aviation.

The board did recommend, however, that the army air service be put on the basis of a separate corps in the army, retaining its present responsibility to the general staff as other coordinate branches of the army. It also recommended special representation for aviation on the general staff, and, for naval aviation, representation in the office of the chief of naval operations and the bureau of navigation.

Eliminate Competition
 In the promotion of civil aviation, it urged adoption by the government of a continuing aviation policy, elimination of governmental competition with civil industry in aircraft production and establishment of air ways and air ports.

The conclusion of the house aircraft committee, now drafting a report on the hearings conducted at the last session, are expected to differ greatly from those on the president's board.

While the committee has not decided on the final form of the report there is known to be strong sentiment among its members in favor of a department of national defense, as urged by Colonel Mitchell, to give equal status to land, sea, and air forces.

Separate Departments
 The air board's rejection of this proposal was based in part on its opinion that it is a dictate of American political principles that military and civil aviation "should remain distinctly separate. Peace time activities in the United States, it observed, have "never been governed by military considerations."

While the United States, the report declared, must "at all times maintain an adequate defensive system, whether it be surface ships, sub-marines, land armies or airplanes" it was a fallacy to suppose that concentration on the latter, as a new weapon, would make for peace insurance more than competitive armament in any other line or shorten future wars.

"The next war," the board said, "may well start in the air, but in all probability will wind up, as did the last war, in the mud."

MELLON SCORES RECENT ATTACK

Treasury Head Raps Letters Written Criticizing Pro-Law Work

(By Associated Press.)
 WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Although he conceded that "conditions are bad," Secretary Mellon today characterized as unfounded and unjustified the latest attacks by the law on the holies of prohibition holies.

The secretary's observations were directed principally at the letters sent to the White House by a group of reform organizations, describing present enforcement conditions as a "national scandal," and declaring the president never had "unreservedly" committed himself to enforce the eighteenth amendment as required by his oath of office.

The letter sent to the White House, Secretary Mellon said, lacked definiteness and apparently was not intended as a class of maneuvers, he said, for serious consideration. If representation would afford treasury officials little assistance in enforcing the law.

Mr. Mellon added that it was the business of the treasury to attempt to curb lawlessness under the prohibition law, and he believed it was making progress in that direction, although "of course, conditions are bad."

The letter of the reform organizations as drawn up here at a meeting under the auspices of the United Committee for prohibition enforcement quoted the oath taken by Mr. Coolidge when he became president and remarked that "it is said that this man of deep conviction and unassuming piety added 'so help me God.'"

"Our appeal must be to him," continued the letter. "It must be made so loud it will be heard. Only the appointing and pardoning power is sufficient in this hour."

WARNING ISSUED MULATTO FAMILY LAWYERS CHARGE

JONES FAMILY PAID NO ATTENTION TO KLAN WARNINGS

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 3. (AP)—Isaac N. Mills, chief counsel for Leonard Kip Rhinelander, who is suing his part negro wife, Alice Beatrice Jones, for annulment of marriage today began his second day of summation for the plaintiff by relating how the Jones family had ignored a warning that the Ku Klux Klan might act against them.

Mills said that Leon H. Jacobs, attorney employed by Rhinelander's father, had warned Mrs. Rhinelander that unless she and her wealthy young husband separated, the Klan might take some action against the family. This warning was given, Mills said, after a window in the Jones home had been broken by a stone thrown by an unknown person.

Mills also continued his criticism made yesterday against Philip Rhinelander, Leonard's father, for neglecting the son, which the lawyer stated was largely responsible for the mistakes made by the young man.

The case is expected to reach the jury some time tomorrow.

Briand Cabinet Asks Confidence In Government

PARIS, Dec. 3. (AP)—The Briand cabinet's ministerial declaration, presented to the Chamber of Deputies today admits that the situation is particularly grave but says it cannot have irreparable consequences provided the government has the confidence of the entire country and the collaboration of both houses of parliament.

The declaration says that realizing that the restoration of French finances cannot be accomplished without loyal agreement with the great nations which are France's creditors "the government will continue earnestly and promptly the negotiations with the allies concerning debts."

CLAUDE—W. H. Vermillion was bound over to the Armstrong County grand jury yesterday following hearing on charges in connection with the robbery of the First National Bank here last month in which a lone bandit escaped with $4,500.

Helpless Innocence

By JACK WOODFORD

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

LOYD McCLINTOCK glanced up suddenly from the depths of the Metallurgical and Mining Review as one will when steadily stared at to encounter the direct and somewhat puzzled gaze of his young wife.

As he met her gaze she smiled at him in a puzzled way, as though she hoped that he was not wrath with her, but, nevertheless would not be at all surprised if he were. She increased the speed with which she waved a diminutive fan.

Lloyd still found difficulty in convincing himself that, after all, the whole thing wasn't part of a dream; his coming down to Mexico to take over the mining properties of the Albatross syndicate and meeting Louisa. That she had married him seemed almost inconceivable.

"You do love me, don't you?" she asked. His answer was convincing if wordless.

"I wish to heaven I could get you out of this country and up into God's country where I could feel safe about you. Suppose some prowling Mexicans—"

"But there are the servants—" "Worse than useless; they're afraid of their own shadows."

A commotion in the patio at the moment interrupted him. Presently a bedraggled native appeared in the doorway.

"What is it Manuel?" asked Lloyd irritably. Manuel struggled to gain his breath.

"Fire!" he managed to get out between gasps.

"At the mine?" questioned Lloyd quickly. Manuel nodded. Lloyd, crossing to the side of his young wife pressed something into her hand.

"Keep it near you every moment that I'm gone, Louisa; this is the first time I've ever left you here alone at night." With a last kiss he followed the excited Manuel outside. As the pair passed out of the gate and climbed into a small car, two unshaven, half-tipsy creatures smiled grimly at each other in their place of concealment behind the stone wall that enclosed the patio. Silently they vaulted over the fence and approached the door.

"Good evening," remarked one of the men pleasantly as they strode calmly into the living room of the little house. Suddenly they both advanced toward her.

When Lloyd reached the mine location a good ten miles away, he jumped swiftly from the car and ran toward the group of shacks which surrounded the main shaft. The night watchman approached and greeted him.

"Where's the fire?" snapped Lloyd; the watchman looked his bewilderment.

"Fire!" is there a fire somewhere?" Lloyd whirled about and glanced toward the car; Manuel had disappeared! Instantly his mind took in the situation. Running back to the car he stamped wildly upon the starter and headed back toward home.

As the car bumped back along the road the perspiration broke out upon Lloyd's body. He reached the patio gate and sprang out. The house was quiet, ominously quiet. As he opened the door his hands trembled so that he could scarcely lift the little latch. Inside all was still and calm. Just as he had left it. Stepping into the center of the room he gasped in amazement at the sight of the two bound forms upon the floor, so trussed with round upon round of rope that they could hardly move an eyelash. He cast a swift look about the room. At first he thought that Louisa was not there. Looking over the back of the high chair, however, he found her quietly reading an American novel.

"Why, what on earth!" he managed. Louisa carefully marked her place, laid down the book and turned up her face for a kiss. Automatically he kissed her. "These men," he gasped out impatiently. "What does it mean?"

"Oh, them," remarked Louisa. "They came in shortly after you left and started to act very badly. I, of course, couldn't shoot them because they are your countrymen, so I used the instruction in this clever novel, for handling the situation—my! Your American writers must be experienced—and it's by a lady, too."

"I begged the larger of the two men to step aside into the little alcove room over there and told him that he must get rid of the other man, because I wanted him only to remain here with me. The big man was immensely pleased, and said he would 'beat it' out of the other one at once. I implored him, however, to let me talk to his companion first and try to get him to leave peacefully. Coming back into this room, where I had left the other man, I told him that I was much fascinated with him and had merely taken his friend aside to implore him to leave us. I screamed a little then and the big man flew into the room and attacked his smaller friend; but the little man was no coward—they fought for an hour and a half—it was very amusing. When they fell exhausted I tied them up, as you see. I hope you're not angry with me for handling your countrymen so—it says in the novel—"

Lloyd stood back and surveyed the diminutive, jet-haired beauty with a new expression in his eyes—an expression which seemed to delight her immediately; for once the uncertainty was gone from her smile when she regarded him.

Are Alligators Poultry?

Here's the evolution of an alligator and the pictures show that this reptile is born exactly like a chicken. Above the baby "gator" has just started to force its way out of the egg, while below it is defying zoologists to explain how so much alligator can be contained in such a small egg.

Governor Has Made No Call For Special Session Says Jim When He Lambasts Texas Newspapers

AUSTIN, Dec. 2. (AP)—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson has made no formal announcement of the matter of calling a special session of the Texas legislature as demanded by a number of members of the lower house, her husband, James E. Ferguson, said yesterday.

It was reported yesterday that she had made an informal statement to a representative of the Baltimore Sun that she would not call a session.

"Now get this straight," Ferguson said. "Governor Miriam A. Ferguson has not made any formal statement as to whether or not she would call a special session."

When asked if the governor had been correctly quoted by the Baltimore Sun representative, Ferguson replied, "I'll let you newspapermen argue that out for yourselves."

Ferguson did not deny the interview was granted.

The Fergusons have been granting interviews to special correspondents representing eastern newspapers and including local correspondents except from the usual formal statements and conversations over the telephone. They have been quoted in these interviews as having said that many newspapers in Texas have not been friendly to the administration.

Ferguson said he believed he would stop granting interviews to Texas newspaper men until their newspapers "learned how to play fair." He was displeased, he said, because many newspapers excluded parts of the Governor's proclamation offering $500 rewards for conviction of wealthy persons for violation of the liquor laws.

He declared the local correspondents gave him a "raw deal" on the liquor proclamation and that in granting interviews he believed he would stop granting interviews to Texas newspaper men until their newspapers "learned how to play fair."

GOVERNOR COMES BACK TO CITY OF AUSTIN FINDING EVEN MORE DEMANDS FOR SPECIAL SESSION

STOCK RAISERS IN HOOF AND MOUTH ZONE WANT SPECIAL MEETING; TEXT BOOK CASE ALSO FACES WOMAN EXECUTIVE TODAY

(By Associated Press.) AUSTIN, Dec. 2.—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson was back on the job today after a two day visit to her home town of Temple, to find a new appeal for a special session of the Legislature and a $600,000 school book contract threatening to widen the breach between her and Attorney General Dan Moody.

South Texas Stock Raisers and Dairymen in an appeal from Galveston yesterday asked for a special session to appropriate funds to reimburse them for stock killed by federal and state authorities combating the recent foot and mouth plague.

Some Need Money

Some of the smaller stock owners were left in "desperate circumstances" if, as represented "by failure of the state to pay for cattle killed." It was charged that some owners gave up their cattle "through force or presence of Texas rangers."

The stock owners plea was added to the demands of fifty legislators who presented a petition to the Governor threatening to have the speaker of the House call a special session if she did not issue the call by December 16.

Moody Dissents

Governor Ferguson's championship of a sub-committee of the state text book commission that made a contract with the American Book company in the face of the attorney general's opposition as possible grounds for further divergence between the two. The sub-committee regarded an adverse opinion from the attorney general and made the contract in the absence of an anti-trust affidavit. The commission recited the affidavit matter after receiving the contract, but that disposition failed to meet the Attorney General's approval and a canvass is now being made to determine whether the text book commission approved its committee's action.

S. M. N. Marx, state superintendent of public instruction dissented in the committee's vote to award the contract.

Appeal Now Pending

An opinion from the attorney general to determine the legality of the return of a $2,500 deposit to the American Book company, which it made while bidding, is now pending.

The federal government is investigating the Texas Highway situation but federal funds are not involved in the state highway contracts which formed the basis of the recent suit against the American Road company, in which the state was awarded a $600,000 judgment. In a statement at Fort Worth last night, explaining their visit to Texas, Captain P. St. J. Wilson, chief engineer of the federal bureau of public roads, and W. J. O'Leary, officer of the bureau, said that the highway matters under investigation by state authority were not in connection with federal aid projects. They explained that the contracts in litigation relate to maintenance while the federal government confines its aid solely to construction.

Error Is Made

Federal officers took cognizance of a statement in court at Austin that payments on federal aid were $250,000 behind and said that this had been erroneously interpreted in some quarters as meaning that there was a shortage of $250,000 in federal accounts. The statement pointed out that federal aid money is not paid until work has been completed and certified.

Red Cross Drive For Finances To Start December 9

The Red Cross roll call, which originally was announced to start here on Armistice day, but which for various reasons over which those in charge of the drive had no control, has been delayed, will start Wednesday, Dec. 9, was announced by L. S. Harkey, who is general chairman in charge of arrangements for the drive.

The team organization which was completed for the drive before the delay was occasioned, will be used, and three days will be devoted to intensive efforts to raise finances for carrying on the work of the organization, Mr. Harkey said.
