County's 1st 1982 baby: It's a girl!

By BILLELDER
Staff Writer

Weighing in at a good, healthy seven pounds and 12½ ounces, Erin Young won honors as the first baby born in Howard County in 1982.

Erin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Young of Colorado City, entered the world at 12 noon on Jan. 1 at Malone-Hogan Hospital, according to nurse Stacy Miller.

Both Erin and her mother were reported doing fine yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Young checked into Malone-Hogan at about 10:05 a.m. Friday and chose Big Spring to have her baby because she prefers the medical attention given here, Ms. Miller said.

Reached at her hospital room, where she is expected to remain until Monday or Tuesday, Mrs. Young said she was excited by being the first mother to give birth in Howard County this year.

"But we were also a little disappointed — she was due the 30th of December," Mrs. Young said.

Dr. J.W. Kuykendall delivered Erin and delivered the second baby of the year as well: Jami Simpkins, who was born at 3:08 p.m. Friday.

Jami, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kerry Simpkins of Odessa, weighed seven pounds, 12½ ounces at birth, according to Malone-Hogan nurse Karen Hahn.

Mrs. Simpkins had been seeing a doctor in Big Spring and chose to give birth in a local hospital for that reason, Ms. Hahn said.

Mrs. Simpkins checked into Malone-Hogan about half an hour before giving birth, according to Ms. Hahn. Both she and Jami were reported to be doing fine yesterday afternoon.

The first baby of the year born to a local resident was Michael Owens, born to Mr. and Mrs. William Owens of 1806 Lincoln.

Michael was born in Cowper Clinic and Hospital at 10:51 p.m. Friday. He weighed six pounds, 15½ ounces at birth and both he and his mother were in good health yesterday, said a Cowper spokeswoman.

HI THERE, RECORD-MAKER — Little Erin Young probably isn't aware of it, but she gained honor Friday by being the first baby born inside Howard County in 1982.

1 dead in holiday's crime toll

The death of a pedestrian on Interstate 20, a stabbing and a string of alcohol-related arrests kept area law enforcement officers busy over the holiday weekend.

The body of a pedestrian who was struck and killed in the westbound lanes of I-20 near the Gregg overpass Thursday night was identified as that of Roy Leonard Sharp, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Sharp, 31, died at about 7:15 p.m. New Year's Eve when he was struck by a vehicle being driven by Helen Martinez of Odessa, said DPS spokesman Jim Nance.

No address was given for Sharp, who was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Bobby West. His body was picked up by Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home, reportedly for shipment to a funeral home in Tulsa.

Ms. Martinez did not leave the scene of the accident and probably would not be charged in Sharp's death, Nance said.

"I think the pedestrian walked in front of the car, so there probably won't be any charges filed at all," Nance said yesterday.

Sharp's body was carried about 100 yards before it dislodged from the car, said Big Spring police Sgt. Jimmie Wallace, who helped the DPS investigate the accident.

There were at least eight other local traffic accidents reported since the holiday weekend officially began at 6 p.m. Thursday. Six took place within the city limits, one occurred

Thursday night near Sand Springs and the other happened Saturday afternoon near Forsan. Three of the accidents involved injuries, police said.

Details on the accidents outside Big Spring were sketchy, but at least one person was admitted to Malone-Hogan Hospital with a broken leg as a result of the Forsan accident, while one person was admitted to Malone-Hogan with undisclosed injuries as a result of the Sand Springs accident, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

The third accident resulting in injury involved Joe Murphy of 1608 E. 15th, who received minor injuries after his motorcycle collided with an automobile Friday afternoon in the 1500 block of South Johnson, police said. Murphy did not require hospitalization according to police reports.

A stabbing was investigated last night by Big Spring police, who were called to a home at 306 N. Scurry to quell a disturbance. Officers J.D. Hensley and J. Sevey arrived on the scene and found David Combe, who lives at the above address, scuffling in the front yard with John Hyden of 1507 Lincoln, according to police reports.

The officers said they observed Hyden stab Combe in the upper buttocks. As they moved toward the street, Hyden allegedly kicked Hensley in the groin and leg. With the assistance of other officers, Hyden was transported to the police station and booked. Hyden, 28, was charged with aggravated assault

House burns on New Year's Day

By BILLELDER
Staff Writer

The new year didn't dawn too well for Lloyd Langston Jr., who lost a home he owns in a major fire Friday morning.

Seven units from the Big Spring Fire Department responded to the fire, which totally destroyed the Langston home at 110 E. 11th Place, fire investigators said.

Langston rented the home to James Nelson, who was not injured in the fire, said fire department spokesman James Dubose.

Langston could not be reached to comment on his loss.

Dubose said firemen battled the blaze for between two and three hours before they brought it under control. "It was a pretty big fire," said Dubose.

He said no dollar amount would be placed on the damage. The fire began when a floor furnace overheated, he said, adding that arson is not suspected.

Firemen were alerted to the burning house by Big Spring police Officer Bobby Armstrong, who was investigating a call about a suspicious vehicle a block from the blaze. Armstrong called the police dispatcher about the fire at 10:16 a.m., he said.

The vehicle he was called to investigate was gone upon Armstrong's arrival, he said, adding he didn't think there was any connection between the suspicious vehicle report and the fire.

INSPECTING THE DEBRIS — Firemen take a look inside the charred remains of a home owned by Lloyd Langston Jr., which burned in a New Year's Day blaze.

Man shoots family, self in mall

ELYRIA, Ohio (AP) — A man shot his two children, wife and mother-in-law to death Saturday in a crowded shopping mall parking lot, then shot and killed himself, police said.

Elyria officers indicated the incident apparently was the result of a domestic argument.

Police said witnesses told them Clifton Snowden, 21, of North Olmsted approached the car containing his family around 2 p.m., argued with his 20-year-old wife, Patricia, and opened fire.

He also shot at a woman carrying a child who rushed over, police said. Neither was hurt, and their identities were not released.

Snowden then shot each of his two daughters, who were in the front seat of the car, before turning the .22-caliber, long-barrel pistol on himself.

He died at Elyria Memorial Hospital about two hours later from a gunshot wound in his head, hospital spokesman Larry Torok said.

Police said Snowden reloaded the gun once during the episode, and at least eight shots were fired. Officers found a partially empty box of ammunition near his body.

The other victims were identified as Snowden's mother-in-law, Ellen P. Mahon, 46, of North Olmsted, and the couple's children, Shyla Ann, 3, and Amber Lynn, 1. North Olmsted is about midway between Cleveland and Elyria, a city of 55,000 about 35 miles west of Cleveland.

Lorain County Coroner William Kishman said the four occupants of the car were dead at the scene.

"As far as we know, none of the female victims managed to get out of the car," said Elyria Police Lt. L.J. Jezewski. "We don't have really any idea if Snowden came with them, followed them to the mall, whether he had his car there or what, but we will be questioning family and friends."

Snowden's mother, Joyce, indicated she knew a reason for the shooting but declined to discuss it.

"I believe I know why," she said when reached by telephone at her North Olmsted home. She said earlier at the hospital that the couple was having marital problems, but did not elaborate.

Snowden's parents had told family lawyer Milt Schulman that Snowden had marital problems.

"If I remember rightly, his wife wanted to go to Texas with her family and take the kids," Schulman said. "She left him and took the two kids —

I don't know if they went to Texas or not — and then she came back and they were together again. I thought everything was OK."

"To me, he was a decent, stable young man. He had an affection for the children. All he wanted to do was keep his family together. She was talking divorce," Schulman said.

Gienna and Jim Kruszewski, who were neighbors of the Snowdens until the Snowdens moved from Cleveland a month ago, said Mrs. Snowden worked as a restaurant hostess but didn't know what Snowden did.

The shootings occurred in the crowded parking lot at the Midway Mall on the north side of Elyria. All but Snowden were shot in the torso.

"We haven't had anything like that — not five people," Jezewski said of the incident.

Reagan sends signals of foreign policy shakeup

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan met with the secretaries of state and defense at his temporary desert headquarters Saturday amid growing signals of a shakeup in the White House national security staff.

A top White House official let it be known that Richard V. Allen, the national security adviser, could make it easy on himself if he stepped down from that job.

Allen is on leave while an internal White House probe is under way into his activities.

The official, who cannot be identified under the ground rules of the conversation, was asked whether Allen would be given a different job in the administration if he is cleared and steps aside voluntarily.

"I would know of no reason why that wouldn't be correct," the official replied.

He added that he knew of no staff member who suggested flat-out to Allen that he give up his White House job under such an offer, though he could not rule out the possibility that such an offer had been made.

The White House switchboard in Washington said Allen's unlisted telephone was not answering. A message was left for him.

Reagan, concentrating on foreign policy and planning for a meeting next week with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt as he wound up a week-long California vacation, spoke Saturday morning by telephone with Vice President George Bush and presidential counselor Edwin Meese III after Bush chaired a meeting in Washington of the administration's Special Situation Group.

The task force met for about 90 minutes, primarily on the Polish situation, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said. Afterwards, Bush talked with Reagan for nine minutes, starting at 9:43 a.m. PST.

The conference with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., at the 200-acre estate where Reagan is staying, has been on the president's schedule for several days. It was the only official meeting on Reagan's agenda since he arrived Wednesday in Palm Springs.

Later, Reagan summoned Deputy Secretary of State William F. Clark, who has been vacationing here along with Haig and the president, and deputy White House chief of staff Michael K. Deaver to join the meeting with Haig, which lasted about an hour.

The attendance of Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger had not been announced beforehand.

Coffee beans could supply blood substitute

CHICAGO (AP) — Coffee beans may help alleviate the problem of not having enough of the right type of blood available when it is needed, researchers say.

Researchers using the coffee-bean enzyme alpha galactosidase have removed a sugar molecule from the surface of type B blood cells, making them into type O blood. Dr. Jack Goldstein, head of the cell biochemistry laboratory of the New York Blood Center, said in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

People with type O blood are called "universal donors" because their blood can be transfused into people with any other blood type.

Goldstein, an associate professor of biochemistry at Cornell University Medical School, said similar studies were conducted in the 1960s but the type B cells were damaged and their metabolism impaired.

The results of the experiments were announced to the American Association of Blood Banks meeting in Chicago on Nov. 2. Goldstein's research was further detailed in the journal's current issue.

Goldstein said his group spent four years "developing the proper conditions" to remove the sugar molecule from the type B cell.

After animal studies proved successful, he said, three human volunteers representing blood types A, B and O were injected with the converted cells. The cell survival rate was 96 percent after 24 hours and 50 percent after a month, normal by average transfusion standards, he said.

TURTLE GETS NEW SHELL — This mud turtle, about 13 inches long, has a shell made from fibreglass at an animal hospital in Lutz, Fla., and polished smooth at an auto body shop. A motorist, the second driver to hit it, thought the turtle was doomed and rushed it bleeding to the hospital. The fibreglass portion of the shell is the dark area in the photo, while the lighter area right behind the turtle's head is all that remains of the natural shell.

Police Beat

Four from Lamesa charged with theft

Police said they made four misdemeanor theft arrests at 6 p.m. Thursday in the 700 block of North Main.

Arrested were: Clarence Whitely, charged with theft over $20 and under $200, as well as unlawfully carrying a weapon; Johnnie McClelland, charged with theft over $20 and under $200; Karen Jackson, theft over $20 and under $200; and Debra Alexander, theft over $20 and under $200. All live in Lamesa, according to authorities.

They were arrested in connection with the alleged theft of $114 worth of clothing from K-Mart on F.M. 700, the alleged theft of $258 worth of clothing from Montgomery Ward in Highland South Shopping Center and the alleged theft of $51 in shoes from Payless Shoe Source on Gregg, said police Lt. George Quintero.

The three women were released on bail from sheriff's custody Saturday after bonds of $1,500 apiece were set by Justice of the Peace Bobby West.

Whitely remained in police custody Saturday, according to sheriff's deputies.

Anita Askew of 4213 Dixon complained to police that an acquaintance assaulted her in her home at 3 a.m. Friday.

Alesha Bromley of 1703 Aylford told police she was assaulted by an acquaintance of hers at Cactus Jack's club in the Big Spring Industrial Park at 1:50 a.m. Friday.

Manuel Vargas of 315 N.E. 10th told police burglars broke down a door to his home and vandalized several rooms inside the house. The burglars took a small amount of cash with them when they left, Vargas told police.

A 19-year-old Big Spring woman told police Friday she has been receiving obscene telephone calls. She was unable to supply police with the name of a suspect, according to police reports.

Trina Trisinger told police Elaine Bates was the victim of a burglary Thursday night or Friday morning. She said burglars entered a home at 1902 Morrison by using a key, then broke four windows from the inside of the house, according to police reports. The intruders then caused $800 damage by pouring oil on a carpet, police said.

Man arrested on bad check charge

Johnny Dunn of Andrews was arrested by deputies of the Andrews County Sheriff's Office Thursday morning after a Howard County warrant was issued for his arrest, said Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard. Dunn was charged with issuing a bad check, and paid $103.25 in fines and the amount of the check to Howard County Attorney Robert Miller, Standard said.

One White of 307 W. Eighth pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated in Howard County Court Thursday afternoon, according to courthouse records. He was fined $100 plus $71 in court costs. White was arrested by city police Nov. 1, according to sheriff's office records.

Albert Smith of 1503 W. Cherokee was released on bail from the county's custody Thursday after being charged with misdemeanor theft over $20 and under $200, according to sheriff's office records. Bond of $1,500 was set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin. Smith was arrested Thursday in connection with an alleged theft from Payless Shoe Source on Gregg, sheriff's records said.

VA accreditation survey scheduled

The Joint Commission of Accreditation of Hospitals will conduct a survey of the Big Spring Veterans Administration Medical Center beginning Jan. 20. The purpose of the survey will be to evaluate the facility's compliance with nationally established JCAH standards. The survey results will be used to determine whether accreditation should be awarded to, or retained by, the local VA Medical Center.

Anyone believing that he or she has pertinent and valid information about the center's conformity with the standards of the JCAH may request a public information interview with a JCAH field representative at the time of the survey.

Information presented at the interview will be carefully evaluated for relevance and accuracy, and the finding will be included in the survey report.

Requests for public information interviews must be made in writing and should be received by the JCAH at least two working days before the survey begins.

Requests should be addressed to: Department of Integrated Accreditation, Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, 875 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

The JCAH will acknowledge such requests in writing or by telephone and will inform the VA Medical Center of the request for an interview. The center will in turn notify the interviewee of the date, time and place of the meeting.

Sheriff reissues burglary warning

Rural burglaries continue to rise and Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard continues to issue warnings to rural homeowners regarding the trend.

Standard issued a public plea Dec. 23, urging farmers and other isolated home owners to take precautions to thwart burglars.

But the burglary reports have continued to come into his office, and the sheriff is disturbed.

"The point we're trying to make is caution," Standard told The Herald yesterday morning. "Burglaries are still on the increase." He said his office had investigated seven burglaries in the last quarter of 1981.

"That's way out of focus," he said. "We rarely even have one in a period of three months." The sheriff urges homeowners to set up a neighborhood watch program in which neighbors watch your home while you're out, and you do the same for them while they are gone.

Suspicious activity should be reported to the sheriff's office, Standard said.

And, as a final precaution, mark your property with an identifying number such as your driver's license number. Both the sheriff's office and city police department have engravers which may be borrowed to mark your property.

and aggravated assault on a police officer, according to police reports.

A four-inch knife was recovered as evidence. Combe, 30, was transported by Shaffer Ambulance Service to the Veterans Administration Medical Center for treatment of his wound. He was taken to the VA facility because he said he was a veteran, according to medical center spokeswoman Janell Black.

In other incidents of holiday crime, officers had made at least 10 arrests for public intoxication between 6 p.m. Thursday and early Saturday night. At least three arrests for driving while intoxicated were made during the same period, according to a check with local law enforcement agencies.

Sources report Poland run by 'mixed group' of leaders

A high Communist Party source said Saturday that Poland was being run by a "mixed group of generals and top party leaders that meets frequently, but informally, to make all of the key decisions of government," uncensored reports reaching the West said.

The source, who has access to restricted information at Central Committee headquarters, did not identify all members of the unofficial ruling group. He said the group includes party chief and prime minister Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski; his deputy, Gen. Florian Siwicki; Politburo members Kazimierz Barcikowski, Stefan Olszowski, and Deputy Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Rakowski.

He described Poland's government for the moment as a strange hybrid. "It's not a military coup," he said. "But at the same time, the military is not just acting as an instrument of the party. It's somewhere in between."

Normal communications with Poland were cut when martial law was declared Dec. 13 and censorship was imposed. Reliable news reports from within Poland have been few, and Western news organizations must piece together information from travelers, diplomatic sources and others. Western reporters are restricted in their travels.

The official state radio reported Saturday that the government is considering price hikes that include quadrupling the price of beef and sugar.

Word of the proposed price hikes came as Poland's martial law government announced that it had devalued the zloty against Western currencies by about 130 percent to an exchange rate of about 80 zlotys to the dollar, according to uncensored accounts reaching the West from Warsaw. The previous exchange rate was about 35 zlotys to the dollar.

Warsaw radio said the planned price boosts were announced at a news conference by Zdzislaw Krasinski, chairman of the state price commission.

The proposals would increase the cost of 2.2 pounds of sugar, now available at 10.50 zlotys, to 46 zlotys. Beef prices would jump from 44 zlotys for 2.2 pounds to 190 zlotys.

Krasinski did not say who would be considering the proposals or when a final announcement would be made.

Meat price increases in July 1980 sparked the nationwide strikes that gave birth to a reform movement and Solidarity, the first trade union free of party control in the Soviet bloc.

The Communist Party source said he also expects the emergence of an underground resistance movement against the martial-law government. He said the key question is whether it would confine itself to peaceful activities such as leafletting or would turn into a terrorist organization.

The former, he said, could be handled easily by the authorities, but the latter would provoke what he called a severe "counter-reaction."

Authorities — who maintain that industrial peace has returned to Poland — are facing another test of their control Monday, when work is to resume after the New Year's holiday.

According to a Solidarity publication dated Dec. 30, there are some 20 factories throughout the country that have not been operating normally and are scheduled to reopen Monday.

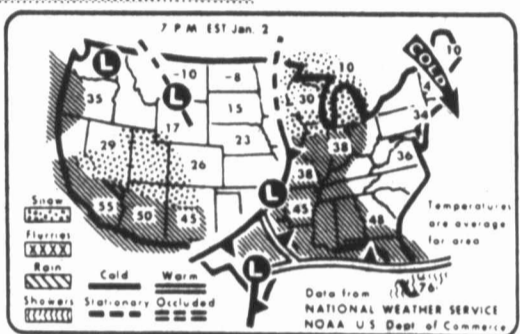

Among these are the Lenin Shipyard in Gdansk, where the authorities have been issuing new work cards in an apparent attempt to weed out troublemakers. It will be the third reopening date attempted by authorities at the yard.

Another center of persistent resistance has been Wroclaw, where the Pafawag Railroad Car Factory is a focus of worker anger. That facility is also scheduled to reopen Monday.

Weather

LATE LOOK AT THE WEATHER — This is the way the station's weather looked at 6 p.m. Saturday, according to the National Weather Service.

Thunderstorms hit East Texas

Cloudy skies with widely scattered showers and thunderstorms covered the eastern parts of Texas Saturday while fair skies prevailed over the rest of the state.

A cold front moved into the state and by late afternoon extended from central Oklahoma to the South Plains in the Texas Panhandle.

Winds were southerly over the eastern third of Texas, northerly in the colder air over the Panhandle, and westerly elsewhere. Wind speeds were near 10 mph over East Texas and 10 to 25 mph elsewhere.

Temperatures were mostly in the 60s and 70s across Texas, and ranged from the lower 40s in the Panhandle to the upper 80s in South Texas.

FORECAST — Partly cloudy most sections Sunday, becoming fair Sunday night and continuing Monday. Colder Sunday and Sunday night. Highs Sunday near 40 north to lower 50s south and mid 40s southwest. Lows Sunday night lower teens north to upper 30s south. Highs Monday upper 40s north to lower 60s south.

EXTENDED FORECAST — Fair and warmer Tuesday then turning colder most sections Wednesday and Thursday. A chance of snow north Thursday. Highs 50s north to 40s south Tuesday cooling to 30s north to 50s south by Thursday. Lows 20 north and 30s south Tuesday cooling to teens north and 20s south by Thursday.

Red ribbons honor fallen Guardian Angel

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The leader of the Guardian Angels asked people Saturday to wear red ribbons to honor a patrol leader of the anti-crime group who was slain by a policeman last week.

The Angels also announced plans for a march from Newark to Trenton, beginning Sunday, to press a request for a state investigation into the circumstances of Frank Melvin's death.

Curtis Sliwa, founder of the organization, repeated his request for an independent probe at a news conference Saturday at the site where Melvin, 26, was shot by a policeman Wednesday night. He was the first Guardian Angel to be killed on patrol.

Sliwa said 100 Guardian Angels would gather at the site at noon Sunday and, led by Melvin's wife and two preschool children, begin a 60-mile march to Trenton.

They planned to arrive at the capital Monday morning and ask state Attorney General James Zazzali to investigate the death, since "we don't trust the Essex County prosecutor, Newark officials or police officials," Sliwa said.

A wake for Melvin was scheduled Tuesday at a Newark funeral home, with the funeral to be held Wednesday.

Sliwa said the Angels have established a fund to pay for the funeral and aid Melvin's family.

Duck hunters stranded

NAHANT, Mass. (AP) — One man died Saturday after a surf capsized, stranding three duck hunters in the frigid Atlantic Ocean for up to an hour, authorities said.

Robert Deveau of Everett, in his 50s, died at Lynn Hospital, nursing supervisor Patricia Sullivan said. His son, Kevin Deveau, 27, and Victor Dragone, 37, both of Everett, were in stable condition in the hospital's intensive care unit, Ms. Sullivan said.

The Coast Guard responded to an 11 a.m. report that a 16-foot outboard had overturned in Lynn harbor, about 250 yards off the coast, but a cutter could not reach the men because the water was so shallow.

About 10 Nahant firefighters and police officers then waded into the water to reach the hunters, who were attempting to swim or wade to shore, said firefighter Bob Lehman, one of the rescuers.

Train crash forces evacuation

SOUTHAMPTON, Pa. (AP) — About 500 people were evacuated after an oil tanker truck burst into flames when it collided with a one-car commuter train Saturday, officials said.

The engineer of the train, Donald Williams, 42, of Philadelphia, was critically injured in the accident in the Upper Southampton Township business district.

The people were allowed to return about 5 p.m., seven hours later.

The force of the collision pushed the rail car into a stopped car on the other side of the railroad crossing, police said.

All three burst into flames at once, police said, and a series of explosions ran under the railroad and into nearby sewer culverts. Smoke from the blaze could be seen miles away.

A local fire company spokesman said the warning lights at the crossing apparently malfunctioned, prompting the driver of the oil truck to proceed across the tracks.

Police and witnesses said the truck driver had come to a full stop while the warning lights were flashing. The lights then went out, however, and the driver apparently thought it was safe to cross.

The driver, Joseph Kelly, jumped from the cab just before the train hit the rear of the truck. He was treated and released from Warminster General Hospital. Two other men were also treated and released.

We enjoy best of both worlds

The most recent edition of "This is West Texas," a magazine published by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, reports the "tremendous economic growth" in Big Spring.

The article notes that in September, 1980, total bank deposits were $180,364,120; and one year later the deposits were $211,370,818, reflecting a 17 percent growth.

Savings and loans assets also showed a 5 percent growth, from $129,970,791 in September, 1980, to $136,581,530 in September, 1981.

SO THE NEWS IS getting around. We wondered how long it would take before the world would realize that Big Spring was not going to dry up and blow away with the closing of an air base.

We suspect that next year's report will show an even healthier economy. What doesn't show up in the financial reports is the quality of life in our growing town.

We are doubly fortunate to be enjoying all the advantages of growth, while retaining the open friendliness and natural beauty that Big Spring is famous for.

There are not many cities so fortunate as we to have the best of both worlds.

Editor's Column

By LINDA ADAMS

A date with destiny in Big Spring

I have told only one or two people this story, because it's hard even for me to believe.

About nine months ago, I was sitting in my office at the Abilene Reporter-News, thinking about the future. I had a great job as assistant managing editor, having worked my way through the positions of reporter, youth editor, copy editor, assistant news editor, news editor, living editor and city editor. I had been assistant managing editor about a year and a half, and while I loved my job and my bosses, I was itching for a new challenge.

Since I wanted to stay with the Harte-Hanks newspaper chain, I started thinking of other newspapers in the chain where an opening for editor might occur in the near future. It just so happens there was an editor's opening in Del Rio: I had seen a notice of it posted on the bulletin board a few days earlier. But I decided the location was too isolated and did not apply for the job.

IT WAS WHILE sitting in my office that the thought of Big Spring came to my mind. "I wonder how old Tommy Hart is," I asked myself. I had met Tommy about a year earlier. I quickly concluded that he looked much too young to retire.

But still, I thought, he might just look young for his age. So I went to the newspaper library files to see if there was a story about Tommy that would indicate his age.

There was indeed a file on Tommy, which included a 1973 clipping of a story by Mark McDonald. In that story, there was a quote by Tommy that said, "I've been watching the Steers for 47 years."

My heartbeats quickened, and I did some rough calculations. If Tommy had begun watching football when he was 10, that would have made him old 57 years old in 1973, which was eight years ago, which would make him 65 years old now. Nah, I thought, he's not that old.

So I put the file up. NOW HERE'S WHERE the incredible part comes in. As I walked out of the newspaper library, I headed for the water fountain to get a drink before returning to my office.

On the way to the water fountain, I passed the bulletin board. As I passed the bulletin board, I routinely scanned it for any new postings. There is no way to adequately describe the sensation that rushed through me at that moment. Was I hallucinating? There, freshly posted, was a manpower requisition form for a managing editor in Big Spring!

One of life's fantastic coincidences — or was it part of a design? You can see why I haven't told this story to many people — it's too unbelievable.

That day, my mind began to play little tricks on me. While driving home, I passed a big sign in front of a store that said "Big Spring." But my first glance read it as "Big Saving." Returning to work the next day, I noticed a One Way sign near the Reporter-News parking lot. The sign was pointed in the direction of — where else? — Big Spring.

My husband and I drove to Big Spring that weekend just to look around. It was then that I began to fall in love with the city — there was so much evidence of community pride, history, and culture. I applied for the job, and the rest is history.

I'VE BEEN HERE six months now, and every day I am happier to be here. During my newspaper career, I have had the privilege of helping train many fine journalists. Many have gone on to jobs at big newspapers in Dallas, Austin, Houston, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, New Orleans. One is working for Women's Wear Daily; another is working for the Tokyo Bureau of the Associated Press. At least one of my former colleagues is at the Chicago Tribune, and others have become publishers.

But I can say, unequivocally, that of all the people I've worked with, none has the potential of the news team I am privileged to work with now. That includes Walt Finley, Richard Horn, Bill Elder, Mike Downey, Bob Carpenter, Carol Hart, Tina Miller, Tina Steffen and Billy Adams. With the addition of a news sports editor soon to be announced, our team will be complete.

Look for great things to happen from this group. We are on the grow.

ONE EVENT THAT happened without fanfare on December 20, the Sunday before Christmas, was the printing of the largest "regular" edition in the Herald's history — featuring 58 pages and more than 6,000 inches of advertising.

The only larger editions in the Herald's history were "special editions" requiring extra runs of the press: the 1947 Centennial Edition celebrating discovery of the big spring by Captain Marcy; the 75th anniversary edition of the newspaper in October, 1979; and the Centennial Edition in May of 1981.

Our next major event will be the 1982 progress edition, entitled "Big Spring — Big Future," to be published later this month. The staff has been working on it for two months, and it promises to be a collector's item.

Also, you may notice some subtle changes in today's paper. We are labeling certain pages in a new format to help you more easily find the pages that interest you.

In the coming year, we plan to greatly expand our farm, oil, business, church and area news coverage.

And, oh yes, this is the first of a weekly column that will appear on Sundays. Happy new year.

Congressional burglars

When a politician says he's running for office by popular demand, it's fair to ask him if it was a 3-2 vote — and if he broke the tie.

It used to be that when people said there was a surplus at the state capitol they meant the number of state employees.

GATHER 'ROUND. It's sermon time.

Like burglars in the dead of night, Congress tried to sneak by another deal designed to add more feathers to an already soft nest.

It is a measure that would allow Congressmen to deduct the costs of maintaining a home in Washington as a business expense, a move that could mean thousands of dollars a year for some members.

At 6 a.m. on Nov. 20, near the end of an all-night fight to concoct a temporary spending bill that would satisfy President Reagan, the Senate attached its latest scheme for more money to the spending bill.

THE PRESIDENT vetoed the temporary measure or Congress would have succeeded in sneaking the house deduction bill into law.

The maneuver only recently came to light. But Congress is undaunted. It could again attach its self-serving bill to a miscellaneous tax measure and tuck the house deduction provision away in the fine print.

If not, you can be sure it will ultimately show up in some other piece of legislation while the public's head is turned.

The one thing you can be sure of is that Congress will never, never offer such a bill on its own merits in broad daylight. That is not in the nature of Congress — or burglars.

ISN'T IT AMAZING how many Reagan Administration officials in Washington have shown up lately wearing $25 watches.

The Richard Allen affair is embarrassing because no one has been able to recall a single official who has given a Japanese bigwig an American made watch.

The gun-control people reveal they didn't have much luck selling their Christmas toy, Electronic Peace Conference.

Several county commissioners in Oklahoma forgot the first rule of crime. Steal all the money you can, but pay every cent due in federal income tax.

Petition signatures come easily to Texas Democrats. All they have to do is stand on street corners in certain areas and shout, "Look what Clements is doing to us now!"

Wasn't it rather ironic that the Nebraska Cornhuskers were favored by 4½ points over No. 1 ranked Georgia in the Orange Bowl.

My fishin' uncle, Russ Harris, says a girl doesn't have to be a brilliant student to win a beauty contest, but she ought to be able to count up to 38-28-38.

Billy Graham

Bad marriage

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Many years ago I married a man who is not a Christian. I knew this was wrong, but I thought I loved him and went ahead anyway. All I have had since then has been misery. I wish you would warn Christian young people about this. — Mrs. N.C.V.

DEAR MRS. N.C.V.: I am sorry that your marriage has been the source of so much misery. This was certainly not God's intention when he gave marriage to us; he designed it to be a source of happiness and joy.

Yes, I hope that your testimony will cause many Christian young people to pause and think about the dangers of marrying outside God's perfect will. It is far too easy for us to make excuses and disobey God in this area of life by letting our emotions control us instead of the Word of God. But God's ideal for a Christian young person who will marry is clear: he will lead them to another Christian so that they may establish a Christian home together. The Bible warns, "Do not be yoked together with unbelievers. For what do righteousness and wickedness have in common? ... What does a believer have in common with an unbeliever?" (2 Corinthians 6:14, 15). On the other hand, a Christian young person who is willing to wait for God's will in this matter will know the joy that Christ brings into the Christian marriage.

However, I hope you also will try to make the best of your situation by trusting God to use you in your husband's life. Are you praying for him, that he will come to realize his own need of salvation and turn to Christ? Are you seeking to live a consistent and loving Christian life before him, so that he sees Christ in you? It may be that you need to repent of your attitudes and actions in your marriage and ask God to help you be the kind of Christian wife he wants you to be.

Don't let bitterness and regret over your decision to marry your husband block God's work in you and through you. Instead, ask him to bring healing and love as you yield your life to Christ.

"Actually, I don't understand this evolution vs. creationism hassle. Do you, Adam?"

Art Buchwald

What did you say?

Once again 1981 was a year during which many people said things they wish they hadn't.

For example, how would you like to have been the person in the White House Situation Room who said to Al Haig, "Mr. Secretary, I think you better go upstairs and tell the American people who's in charge?"

Or the official in the Department of Agriculture, who told his superiors, "I think we better stock up on cheese. My people are predicting a shortage."

Or the press aide to David Stockman who said, "Dave, do you have a few minutes to speak to a writer from the Atlantic Monthly?"

What about the reporter who rushed into the office of the editors of the Washington Post and shouted, "Guess what the Carters did, while the Reagans were living in Blair House?"

Or the aide who told Tip O'Neill, "The Republicans control the Senate, but don't forget, you control the House."

Let's not forget the poor chap who told Senator John Warner, "Your wife called, and she has something exciting to tell you."

Or the television executive who said to his wife, "Freddie Silverman, the head of NBC, got me to quit my job and go over to his shop to be his assistant."

And the President's economic adviser who said to Mr. Reagan, "You can announce we're going to balance the budget by 1984."

Or the friend of Richard Nixon who said, "John Ehrlichman has written a book about his years in the White House and you come out smelling like a rose."

Then there was the fellow who said, "Congressman, I would like you to meet Paula Parkinson. She's a very discreet lobbyist, who likes to have a good time."

Or the person who said to Nancy Reagan, "We've run out of tablecloths."

We almost forgot the agricultural expert who told Governor Jerry Brown, "I can get you a good buy on sterile Mediterranean fruit flies."

And the toy manufacturer who said to Erno Rubik, "Whoever heard of anyone paying money for a colored plastic cube?"

And the priest who said to Cardinal Cody of Chicago, "Have you ever thought of buying a hideaway house in Florida?"

Or the friend of Governor Carey's new wife who told her, "Tell him you've been married twice. He'll never find out about the third one."

Not to mention the Japanese friend of Richard Allen who said to him on Inauguration Day, "Dick, can you do me a small favor?"

And the Middle East expert in the State Department who told the President, "If we sign a defense pact with Israel, Begin can't do anything without first consulting us."

Lest we forget — the Russian submarine captain in Swedish waters who said to his helmsman, as he peered through his periscope, "Hard right, rudder. Now, steady as she goes."

And finally, one of the White House top aides who told another top aide, "The Navy just shot down two Libyan airplanes. But keep your voice down — the President is sleeping."

Dr. Donohue

Skiers should know frostbite rules

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am planning a lot of skiing this winter, and have a question about frostbite. Just what is it? Should a frostbitten foot or whatever be massaged? I have heard about rubbing snow into it. Is this accepted practice? I'd like some helpful information about this. I remember that an uncle got frostbitten when he was younger and never completely recovered. — Miss J.J.

Your notions about frostbite treatment are wrong.

Frostbite is quite literally freezing of tissue. Ice crystals actually form and they damage cells of the skin and the tissue beneath it. In addition to the ice formation, blood supply to the frozen part is impaired. You can readily see what great potential exists for severe injury from frostbite.

Incorrect notions about frostbite treatment apparently evolved in the early 19th Century from some bad advice given by a well-meaning but poorly-informed doctor in Napoleon's army during its retreat through the frozen Russian wastes. The medical admonition then was to massage the frozen part with ice or snow. It was thought, incorrectly, that warming the tissue would cause more damage. Massage is wrong.

Today, we recommend rapidly, but gently, warming the frostbitten area in a bath of warm water at a temperature of between 100 and 106 degrees. The effect is even better if the water can be circulated by a whirlpool.

Do not (repeat DO NOT) massage the part. There is danger in further aggravating the damaged tissue that way. Instead, continue bathing until the skin shows a flushing and some warmth can be felt. The area must remain this way when it is removed from the warming water. Rewarming must be complete. Better to take more time than needed than less. If it is not complete, refreezing can occur. New ice crystals may form and they will be larger than the original ones and do greater damage.

Resolutions for an election year

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
 AUSTIN — With the new year upon us, and an election year at that, perhaps 'tis time for the traditional resolutions promising improvement.
 Texas politicians could promise to suppress the determination to be all things to all persons — or at least to modify it.
 How about a flat, unequivocal stand on something more controversial than loving children, parents and grandparents?

PROMISE YOURSELF THAT you'll say the same thing in the Rio Grande Valley that you do in Amarillo or Richardson. Wrap yourself in the American flag — but promise not to use it to hide your true views.
 Don't talk about the desire to serve when everyone knows that you just need a job or a stepping stone to higher office. Just because your motives aren't totally noble doesn't mean that you wouldn't do a good job if elected. The voters understand that.
 Don't tell us that lobbyists donate thousands of dollars to your campaign only because they want to promote good government. Try admitting that under present political conditions you need money to get elected and the lobby is the only realistic source of big bucks.

 Don't tell us that you don't even know who is giving you the money.
 You don't have to worry about losing votes by admitting that, yes, they are at least buying your attention or an open door when they want to talk.
 Anyone who doesn't know that already probably is locked in a padded cell without an absentee ballot anyway.
 A good resolution for Texas voters would be to promise to look deeper into the quicky television ads in determining who to support.
 Don't fall for a pleasing smile or a heart-warming scene on the screen with little Joey telling you to vote for his dad. Such things are fine, but what do they tell you about talents, education or experience?

TEXAS JOURNALISTS SHOULD make resolutions promising to remember that elections are an important part of the Democratic process, not just biennial excuses to have fun and spend our companies' money on the campaign trail.

 We should redouble our efforts to be fair and impartial. We should promise ourselves and the people we serve to dig deeper than the easy here-is-what-the-candidate-said-today story, to focus on issues rather than personalities, to avoid letting controversy overshadow substance.

We should make such resolutions. Many of us — politicians, voters and journalists alike — may have already done so. We do it every election year — with the same regularity that Uncle Henry promises that he'll stop smoking.
 Probably our political resolutions won't be any more successful than Uncle Henry's annual fight against the nicotine monsters. But it doesn't hurt to keep trying. Maybe we'll at least reduce our excesses.

Governor's mansion ready

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements has been governor 28 months but he has never lived in the governor's mansion.
 That will change next Wednesday when he and Mrs. Clements pack their bags and move out of an Austin apartment into the refurbished mansion. Normally, the Clements spend weekends at their Dallas homes.
 Carla Eudy, assistant to the mansion administrator, said the project has been a total renovation from electrical lines behind walls to plumbing underneath the floors. An elaborate security system also has been installed.
 More than $2 million has been spent on work and art contributions, much of the money furnished by private sources.
 Eudy said the renovation was done with 19th-century furnishings of museum quality in the public portion of the house. In the private quarters more modern and comfortable furnishings were used.
 The mansion will be opened again to public tours in late March.

1981: A year of growth for the county library

By JUDITH GRAY
Howard County Librarian
 Goodbye 1981!
 1981 was a good year for the Howard County Library. It was a year of growth which is reflected in statistics of collection size, use and programs.
 There were 3,133 books, 184 recordings and 18 new art prints added to the collection.

CIRCULATION OF LIBRARY materials was higher. There were 97,479 items (books, recordings, pamphlets, art prints) loaned. In 1980, 88,727 items circulated, which is an increase of 8,752. Our statistical year runs from October through September.

We now have 8,753 registered borrowers on file. This figure does not include recent registrants.
 Growth of service happened also. A small deposit station of large-print books was established at Canterbury. Two groups were added to the Children Librarian's story-time route at kindergartens and day care centers. We began providing subject and title request service to the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp.

Several successful programs of a special nature were held. The St. Patrick's Day Silver Tea and Open House received a custom dating back to the days of the Federation Library. Look for a repeat on March 17, 1982. The days of the Summer Reading Program were well attended: Kelly Draper's puppet show, the magic show and the Giant Monster were some the children enjoyed. The entire Summer Reading Club and Program was successful in terms of total membership and those who completed the program. Then there was the Face Decorating Party at Halloween and Santa Claus' visit.
 The Library participated in the Centennial activities with displays and research. Two staff members were in the "Iron Horse Revue" in the "Pioneers" segment.

There have been exhibits (dolls, music week, Star Wars figures) by members of our community. Classes have visited the library for instruction in its use. Groups have used the Conference Room or Film Room for meetings: Genealogical Society, Sew and Chatter Club, CETA training groups, Friends of the Library, among others.

SEVERAL INDIVIDUALS and groups have donated books, equipment or funds. Some of these were for memorials. The Rosebud How to Grow Garden Club donated money for the purchase of nature books. Ellen Ezzell bequeathed $250. Insurance Agents of Big Spring donated $100. Individuals and groups too numerous to name here donated money at the Silver Tea and Open House for the renovation fund. The Permian Basin Medical Auxiliary gave $400, which will be used to purchase equipment or filmstrips. O.I.L. donated funds for a new 16mm sound movie projector. The Friends of the Library donated an opaque projector and new art prints.

We are pleased to have evidence of support. Such gifts make it possible for service and collection to grow.
 Help, 1982!!
 The Howard County Library resolves to continue to improve and increase collections, service and programs. Another resolution is to continue to raise the funds necessary for renovation of the basement to relieve our crowded conditions.
 We (your county librarian and staff: Rebecca, Milton, Connie, Rose, Donna, Angie and Martha) are pleased to serve you and wish you all a Happy New Year!!

Ups, downs in polls for Reagan's first year

NEW YORK (AP) — Events and issues tarnished President Reagan's popularity during his first year in office, but his honeymoon with American public opinion is not necessarily over.

Ten national Associated Press-NBC News polls during 1981 tracked the president's ups and downs, including steady declines over the last four months in the ratings for his performance in office.

Yet the president continues to command higher marks for personal appeal. And most Americans either say he has kept his campaign promises or say they don't blame him for not keeping them.

In the latest AP-NBC News poll, a scientific random telephone sampling of 1,602 adults Dec. 14-15, 49 percent said Reagan has kept the promises he made during the 1980 election campaign.

Among those who said he has not kept his promises, more than half said his most serious failure to do so has been in the area of the economy.

In various speeches and television commercials during the campaign, Reagan said his supply-side program of tax and spending cuts would result in a balanced federal budget by 1983 and possibly 1982.

But in the last month the government has said the budget deficit will grow to more than $100 billion in the next year, and the president himself has said it is doubtful the budget could be balanced by 1984.

Asked at a recent news conference why public opinion should not judge him harshly, Reagan replied, "Well, because in the first place, I said what was our goal, not a promise."

After an explanation about how unforeseen deterioration in the economy has skewed his program, the president concluded, "But this is not a case of a broken promise; this is a case of circumstances beyond our control, whose foundation has been laid over the last several decades."

The latest AP-NBC News poll reports that public opinion largely agrees. Among respondents who said Reagan has broken campaign promises in his first year in office, 51 percent said it hasn't been his fault, while 37 percent said they blame him for not keeping his promises and 12 percent were not sure.

The percentage of poll respondents who said they agree with the statement, "Ronald Reagan has shown he really cares about people like me," dropped from 63 percent in February to 47 percent in October.

But the percentage saying they trust Reagan to do what is right all or most of the time dipped much less, from 68 percent in April to a still-respectable 57 percent in December.

Through Reagan's first year, the polls reported a parallel decline in his ratings for overall performance and for handling the economy.

In April, when he was recovering from an assassination attempt, 66 percent of the AP-NBC News poll respondents said Reagan was doing a good or excellent job as president, and 52 percent said he was doing a good or excellent job handling the economy.

Since then, however, his ratings in both categories have gradually declined, ending the year at 48 percent for his overall performance and 36 percent for his economic approval rating.

Reagan's dip in the job ratings follows a similar decline in former President Jimmy Carter's popularity during his first year in office, but Reagan's ratings remain slightly better than Carter's at the end of 1977.

Throughout 1981, AP-NBC News polls said people who were more pessimistic about the future of the economy and their personal family finances were more likely to give Reagan poorer job ratings.

Respondents in the December poll were divided over whether Reagan's handling of the economy during his first year in office was one of his strengths or one of his weaknesses: 48 percent said strength, 43 percent said weakness and 9 percent were not sure.

Man denies drugging company coffee pot

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — A 24-year-old former employee denies drugging a company coffee pot with a hallucinogen, saying he too became ill after drinking a cup of the brew.

Virgin Thomas Shuemaker remained free Saturday on $8,000 bond after being arraigned on eight counts of aggravated assault.

He was arrested Thursday afternoon after 10 workers at International Power Machines suffered hallucinations apparently induced by drug-laced coffee. Nine of them were treated and released at area hospitals.

The Dallas man, who was fired from the company two months ago, said he also drank some of the coffee and felt sick while in jail, but that guards only laughed at him.

"I didn't do anything to the coffee," he said.

Police said symptoms, including profuse sweating and some hallucinations, were similar to those produced by a low dosage of LSD. Results of tests on the coffee are expected Tuesday.

$2 million offered for Dozier's release

VERONA, Italy (AP) — A group described only as "friends" of kidnapped U.S. Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier has offered a $2 million reward for information leading to the NATO general's release, a NATO spokesman said Saturday.

However, Col. Luciano Dalcheggio of Dozier's command here said he did not know exactly who put up the money and emphasized that NATO itself was not behind the reward.

Reports have been circulating for days in the Italian press about the existence of a reward in the hunt for the Red Brigades terrorists who abducted Dozier on Dec. 17 from his apartment in this northern Italian city.

Both the Italian and U.S. governments have said repeatedly they will not negotiate for Dozier's release nor offer any concessions to the kidnapers. No demands have been made by the Red Brigades for Dozier's release.

Gaspare De Francischi, who is coordinating the investigation for the government, told reporters he had no information on the reward.

Reports of ransom payments in terrorist cases have surfaced at least once before. The Red Brigades claimed the Christian Democratic Party, Italy's largest political party, paid a $1.5 million ransom for Naples politician Ciriaco De Mita, one of four hostages held by the leftist urban guerrilla gang last summer. The party denied any ransom had been paid.

The Italian news agency AGI said it has not been determined who was behind the reward — Italians, Americans or some "government agency."

In a few days, AGI said, a special telephone number would be set up for tipsters to call. It did not cite sources for its report.

Police reported no new clues in the hunt for the leftist urban guerrillas who abducted the 50-year-old general, the top-ranking American Army officer at NATO headquarters in Verona.

An estimated 400 policemen kept up roadblocks, searches and identity checks in the Verona area and other towns in northern Italy.

Judith Dozier, the general's wife, spent the New Year's holiday at home. She received a visit Saturday morning from Gen. Umberto Cappuzzo, commander of the Italian army, who expressed the solidarity of the armed forces.

There has been no new word from the Red Brigades on the general's fate since they released a photo of their captive a week ago and announced his "proletarian trial" had begun.

Dozier was the first non-Italian to be the subject of a Red Brigades' action since the ultra-leftist terrorist group was founded in 1970.

Kathy Whitmire tackles Houston's problems

HOUSTON (AP) — It may seem to the casual observer that voters of Houston made a strange choice indeed when they elected a mayor, someone to lead them in battle against traffic jams, pollution, crime and other problems threatening this city's explosive growth.

They spurned incumbent Jim McConn, a businessman with the experience of two terms in office. They rejected tough-talking Sheriff Jack Heard, who stressed his ability to lead men and fight crime.

Instead, voters chose a person who was not a member of the established political machinery and in any case could never be called a "good ol' boy." They elected a reserved, bespectacled bookkeeper who used neither charismatic speeches nor political wheedling and dealing to court votes.

But their choice, Kathy Jean Whitmire, 35, who was sworn in Saturday as Houston's first woman mayor, is a magna cum laude certified public accountant who proved while serving as city controller that she could reduce wasteful spending and stand up to pressure.

Voters apparently decided it was not strange at all to give the job to a person — man or woman, old or young, traditional or not — who promised to bring the same common-sense, businesslike approach to the rest of city government.

"If managers within the city know what is expected of them and have goals and know they are going to have to be answerable for meeting those goals, that creates that same kind of motivation (that exists) in the private sector," Mrs. Whitmire said in an interview with The Associated Press before she took office.

The statement and Mrs. Whitmire's reputation for trying to get rid of "deadwood" could make some city workers nervous, but she said as controller she was unfairly portrayed as a boss too eager to fire employees, especially men.

"There was really only one person who has been fired in the four years that I've been controller. It's built up like there were a lot more than that because there were some others that I persuaded to leave, men and women both," she said.

She said she does not necessarily prefer working with women, although at one point the four top positions in the controller's office were held by women.

"I do think there are a lot of women who have a lot to offer and deserve to be given a chance," said Mrs. Whitmire.

She said her own sex wasn't a factor in winning the mayor's race. Nevertheless, to her irritation, being a young woman and being a widow — and the other things about her private life she considers irrelevant to her job — have suddenly become matters of public concern.

KATHY WHITMIRE
...took office Saturday

"I found out very quickly that the difference between being controller and being mayor is dramatic — it is really dramatic," she said. "This is a new experience for me to have so much prying into what I'm doing with my life and where I'm buying my clothes and all that kind of stuff."

"It's an irritation but it isn't the biggest problem in the world. Everything you do has a down side and that happens to be the down side to holding a high-level political office."

She got a taste of being in the public spotlight during her tenure as controller when she was continually making headlines by withholding funds approved by the City Council when she did not agree with the expenditures.

Without the controller's signature, the funds legally could not be released.

Occasionally, like the time she balked at releasing $50,000 to hire consultants to redraw City Council district lines, she later gave in and released the money. That's why she refuses to place a dollar amount on how much she saved taxpayers during her four years in office. "Even if we were not successful in turning around the Council we made the point that the system was wrong and got public sentiment on our side," she said.

Kathy Whitmire: 'I found out very quickly that the difference between being controller and being mayor is dramatic-it is really dramatic.'

During those years she won the reputation as a strict guardian of public funds that she used a springboard to the mayor's office. Today she insists "I do not intend to run for anything else" and says after she leaves the mayor's office she'll "go back into the private sector, I would expect."

But she confesses her No. 1 hobby is, after all, politics. "I don't guess I ever considered it as a career. When I first considered running for office was seven or eight years ago. My husband ran for office and his brother (John Whitmire) is in the state Legislature, and so I've been through all those campaigns," she said.

Her husband, Jim Whitmire, who twice ran unsuccessfully for a City Council seat, died in 1976 from complications of diabetes after a long illness. They had been married 10 years.

"I considered him my mentor," Mrs. Whitmire said. "He was the one who always encouraged me and got me to do things if I didn't have the nerve." The Whitmires had no children.

Her sister-in-law, Linda Niederhofer, said Mrs. Whitmire "continues to talk about how wonderful her marriage was. They were extremely close."

Mrs. Niederhofer said when Whitmire's illness caused him to go blind, Mrs. Whitmire changed jobs so she could drive him to work.

A couple of years ago a possible romantic link between

Mrs. Whitmire and a man who was a municipal judge at the time surfaced in newspaper columns. It was not front page news back then, but today she says she must consider a much more intense public interest in such matters.

The ideal evening out "would be hard to define because anytime I go out anymore everybody knows who I am," she said. She did not rule out accepting a date with a man, but she said, "being mayor is very demanding and it does require a commitment of virtually all of your time."

Mrs. Whitmire, an attractive, 5-foot-tall woman who projects a humorless, no-nonsense image in public but laughs easily in private, claims she was not popular as a student at San Jacinto High School although she did play the oboe in the band and was chosen majorette. Her main achievement was making good grades.

She was offered an academic scholarship to Rice but went to Southern Methodist instead "because I thought it would be more exciting to move to Dallas." After one year she moved back home and finished her education at the University of Houston, where she earned a master's degree in accounting in 1970.

Her parents, Karl and Ida Niederhofer, still live here. Niederhofer, 71, is an electric contractor. Mrs. Whitmire and her brother, Tom, jointly own a duplex in Houston's Montrose neighborhood, and she lives in the upper half.

The duplex has a hot tub and a heated swimming pool, where Mrs. Whitmire says she likes to relax. "But I don't do that much anymore because I'm too busy," she said.

So why — in addition to the $81,000 annual salary — did a shy accountant who cherishes her private life want to be mayor of a city with such complicated and controversial problems?

"For the opportunity to do something that would make a difference in the long run — the opportunity to accomplish something for the overall good of the city that would change the course and improve the future of this city," she said.

"Once you get in on the fringes of politics, you begin to see how badly it is all run and what kind of people are doing those jobs and how inept many of them are and how little attention they give to what really needs to be accomplished."

"That's when you start feeling like, well, 'this is terrible — I ought to be in there doing that.'"

Four killed, two injured in plane crash

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — Federal investigators arrived at the scene Saturday of a commuter airplane crash that killed four people and left two children seriously injured.

Stacey Sadler, 9, of Houston and her 5-year-old brother Jimmy were in serious but stable condition Saturday in the intensive care unit of Mercy Medical Center here. The girl suffered a concussion, a deep scalp laceration and multiple bruises, while her brother sustained burns to his face and arms, a concussion and fractured ribs.

"They have shown some improvement since yesterday (Friday)," said nursing supervisor Barbara Moorehead. "Their improvement will be slow, but we're encouraged."

The children's mother, Joyce Branham of Houston, died in the Thursday night crash, along with the pilot of the Sun West Airlines plane, Kelly Glendinning, 33, of Mesa, Ariz., and passengers Paul Bryant, 41, of Phoenix, and Mary Peters of Albuquerque, N.M.

Related story, page 11A

Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board in Denver and Washington and from the Piper Corp. of Vero Beach, Fla. reached the scene Saturday and began the process of trying to determine what caused the fiery crash.

The seven-seater plane, a twin-engine Piper Navajo en route from Albuquerque to Durango, was attempting an instruments-only landing at the La Plata County Airport but missed its approach to the runway during a snowstorm shortly after 8 p.m. on New Year's Eve, officials said.

The plane then began to climb to circle back for another landing attempt when it disappeared over a ridge and crashed in flames less than a mile from the airport.

The first area residents to arrive at the crash site were Pat Seibert and her four children, who had been at home watching television when Mrs. Seibert's husband Robert, a Frontier Airlines agent, called from the airport to say he feared a plane had crashed near their home.

Mrs. Seibert and all four children set out on foot through the snow and went about a quarter mile when they spotted flames from the burning wreckage.

"The plane was on fire," Mrs. Seibert said later. "It was almost completely burned and there were two small children that we found."

"They were in pretty bad shape," she continued. "We took off our coats and covered them up. They were whimpering but didn't seem to be aware of anything."

Leon Graham, assistant manager of the airport and one of the first officials on the scene, speculated that the children survived because they were sitting in the rear of the aircraft and were thrown from the plane at impact.

Mystery lady crashes Cotton Bowl parties

DALLAS (AP) — Santa Claus brought the Cotton Bowl a mystery guest this week.

She had little money, fewer clothes, no hotel room, the guts of a cat burglar and a remarkable lust for life.

She spent the week dining, dancing and frolicking with a curious press corps and cleverly eluding suspicious Cotton Bowl officials.

She attached herself to a friendly television crew, spent at least one night in a bathtub and, by week's end, announced proudly:

"I haven't slept with anyone. That's as in sex sleep."

After four fun-filled days and nights, a bowl representative seized her credentials and banned her from the festivities.

By then, it was halftime of the Texas-Alabama game and she was, if not a folk hero, at least the best conversational topic since a stripper named Bubbles Cash made a surprise halftime appearance in the early 1970s.

"We've had lots of funny deals but none like this," sighed Arnold Hayes, the Cotton Bowl official who ousted her from the press box.

"I've been here since 1955, and I don't remember anything more peculiar than this."

Say hello, then, to Louise Meyer, 23, a blue-eyed, brown-haired mystery lady from Huntsville, Ala.

"No mystery," sniffed Ms. Meyer in a final, triumphant midnight visit to the Cotton Bowl press room New Year's night.

"I did not pull off anything. I just made the best of being marooned in Dallas without any clothes or any money. It was glorious."

"Maybe the best week of my life."

Ms. Meyer said she got bumped from an American Airlines flight at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport after a holiday visit to South Texas.

"It was fate," she said, that led her to Cotton Bowl press headquarters at the Holiday Inn.

"My daddy went to Texas and my mom went to Alabama."

She surfaced Tuesday morning in the hotel press room, signing in with a visiting television crew.

"I realized pretty quickly that she was a phony," said Hayes. "But she was with the right people and there was no justification to throw her out... until she showed up at the game."

Hayes said he knew of no previous occasion when anybody "crashed four straight nights of parties."

Said an admiring Shreveport sports writer:

"That gal got into everything in town this week. The works."

She also was the belle of a fashion brunch, a young lady in a borrowed sun dress surrounded by women in predominantly wool suits.

"It was real fancy, with chicken, champagne and green beans," she said.

Ms. Meyer also was impressed with the tiny bottles of perfume at each place setting.

"I learned later they were worth $30, and I got two bottles," she laughed.

"That's kinda funny. I went there worth nothing and came out worth 60 bucks."

Aside from the New Year's Eve ball at the elegant Hyatt Regency, where she "shamelessly pigged out," the highlight of the week was a trip to Billy Bob's Texas.

That was no small deal, since Billy Bob's, a giant C&W honky tonk, is not in Dallas but neighboring Fort Worth.

Her escorts that evening said they did not realize that until they paid the $38 cab fare.

"It was worth every penny," Ms. Meyer insisted.

PATCO elects new president

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Gary Eads of Kansas City has been selected to replace Robert F. Poli as leader of the air traffic controllers' decertified union, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Saturday.

Leaders of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization confirmed that a new president had been chosen and that Eads was a front-runner, but would not name the choice until Monday, when an official announcement will be made.

"The decision has been made, but we can't say anything about it," Eads said Friday night. "The decision was quick, harmonious and unanimous."

Telephone committees will notify local PATCO officers of the board's selection over the weekend, Eads said, adding that the new officers do not have to be ratified by a vote of the members.

Executive board member Dominic Torchia of Oakland, Calif., was named executive vice president to replace Robert Meyer, who resigned along with Poli, the Star-Telegram said.

Eads, a three-year veteran of the PATCO executive board and the only member of PATCO nine-member executive board to be jailed for striking, was appointed by PATCO board members in a New Year's Day conference call, the Star-Telegram said.

Poli resigned Thursday, saying he believed he had become an impediment to the solution of the five-month-old controllers' strike.

Both George Brandon, the union's regional vice president in Dallas, and Torchia, the San Francisco-based vice president for the western region, told The Kansas City Times that a president had been chosen and that Eads was a front-runner for the post.

Eads, 37, has been central region vice president for PATCO since 1978. He was a controller at Kansas City Route Traffic Control Center for 10 years after serving four years in the Air Force as a controller.

He spent three days in jail for contempt of court after refusing to return to work during the strike, which began Aug. 3. He was released after a federal judge determined that controllers could not be ordered back to work because they had been fired.

McAllen police brutality trial will open this week

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — One of five former McAllen policemen indicted on charges of abusing prisoners has asked that his trial — scheduled to begin this week — be moved outside South Texas because of "prejudicial" publicity.

"For the past two years, all areas of South Texas have been consistently bombarded with newspaper stories, television news stories and radio reports of lawsuits filed against the McAllen Police Department," said a motion for a change of venue filed on behalf of Roberto Ramos, a former police sergeant.

"A public hostility has been generated that is such that this defendant will be prejudiced and it will be impossible to obtain a fair and impartial trial within the Brownsville with the Dennett arrest. "The videotape of the beating and kicking of Pedro Dennett constitutes the best evidence of the deprivation of constitutional rights charged in the indictment," said Ross Connealy, a U.S. Justice Department lawyer from Washington who will handle the case.

Juan J. Hinojosa, lawyer for Contreras, said the videotape seen on national television was edited and does not show the full sequence of events.

"The question is: What force was necessary to control and subdue a prisoner?" said Hinojosa.

One defendant in the Dennett episode, Carter, has asked to be tried before a U.S. magistrate instead of a federal district judge and jury. Hinojosa said his client and Saldana may join in that request.

The fifth defendant, Isidro Ybanez, is accused of assaulting Joseph Allen Smith on May 20, 1979.

Prosecutors have said they intend to bring up other incidents of alleged police brutality involving defendants Ybanez and Ramos.

On July 16, 1979, prosecutors allege in court papers that Ybanez and another officer verbally and physically abused a handcuffed juvenile who had been arrested on public intoxication charges. Ybanez later was suspended for two days as a result of the incident, government lawyers said.

Connealy said he plans to bring up three "extrinsic offenses" involving Ramos.

The first purportedly occurred Aug. 19, 1977, when Ramos stopped Jose Rivera as the man drove away from the area of an alleged burglary, court papers said. Two other officers arrived.

"Ramos kneed Rivera several times in the groin and stomach, knocking down both him and the other officers," the document claims. "Ramos then kneedropped Mr. Rivera twice in the back."

Ramos also allegedly beat a man July 28, 1976, and on Aug. 28, 1976, he allegedly beat a man arrested for disorderly conduct in a bar. The prisoner required medical attention but Ramos beat him "without reason" as other officers prepared to take him to a hospital, Connealy alleged.

Allegations of police brutality among officers on McAllen's late-night shift first surfaced during a series of civil suits filed against officers, the police department and city officials.

Most of the alleged victims were Hispanics but the officers were both Anglo and Hispanic. Approximately 75 percent of McAllen's 65,000 population is Hispanic.

The city of McAllen has agreed to out-of-court settlements totaling approximately $400,000 in several civil suits.

U.S. District Judge James DeAnda has ordered changes in the department's training and internal complaint procedures.

The brutality controversy caused two police chiefs — Jack Caldwell and Roy Eckhardt — to resign in two years' time.

SIGN OF THE TIMES — Potholes dot the streets of East St. Louis, Ill., a town plagued by a swiftly diminishing tax base. City officials now fear that federal budget cuts could deal a knockout blow to this largest city in southern Illinois. Some of the residents are taking a lighthearted — and a little angry — view of the problem.

The question is: What force was necessary to control and subdue a prisoner?

division of the Southern District of Texas and indeed, the (entire) Southern District of Texas," said Ramos' lawyer, Buck Pettitt, in a sworn statement.

Ramos is accused of ordering subordinate officers to beat Rene Escamilla during an arrest Sept. 24, 1977. Ramos and four others are charged with criminal rights violations, punishable by up to one year in prison and a $1,000 fine.

U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela will consider that request and others Monday in a pre-trial hearing on the case. Jury selection is scheduled for Wednesday.

The case gained national attention after television networks broadcast videotape recordings of officers allegedly abusing prisoners in the booking desk area over several years.

The tape recordings were made by a monitoring system installed to protect officers from harassment suits.

Federal prosecutors say they will oppose the request to move the trial and have asked Vela to allow use of the tape recordings as evidence against certain officers. The incident in which Ramos is accused allegedly took place outside the booking desk area and is not on tape.

In one instance, prisoner Pedro Dennett was seen being kicked, shoved against the wall and slammed into the booking desk by several officers on Oct. 23, 1978. Dennett had been arrested for driving while intoxicated.

Three former policemen — Tom Carter, Jaime Contreras and Alfredo Saldana — were indicted in connection

1981 not an 'off political year'

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas politicians spent most of 1981 getting ready for 1982.

The 1982 elections, highlighted by Gov. Bill Clements' re-election drive, will determine the depth of Republican gains with Texas voters that was that was first signaled by Clements' win in 1978, followed by Ronald Reagan's sweep of Texas in the 1980 presidential election.

Although labeled an "off political year," with no primary or presidential elections, 1981 had plenty of political happenings.

These included: — Reshaping congressional and legislative districts as dictated by the 1980 census and at the same time satisfying current and would-be candidates.

— A voters' decision on seven proposed state constitution changes that turned largely into a political argument.

— A late 1981 scramble to announce for the 1982 races.

The redistricting efforts of the 1981 Legislature are still in federal and state courts, contested by Republicans and minorities. Whether they will be settled by the Feb. 1 filing deadline is questionable. Some suits may be appealed to higher courts.

The Texas Republican Party's challenge of state senatorial redistricting goes before a state district judge in Austin on Tuesday.

A federal court test over legislative redistricting, both Senate and House, is set for trial Jan. 18 in Dallas.

Results of an Austin federal court trial on congressional districts have not been announced.

Under the congressional redistricting plan, first approved by the Legislature, Republicans expected to pick up four more seats making a total of nine GOP congressmen from Texas, which now has a total of 27.

There are estimates the 1983 Legislature will include about 50 new Senate and House members, much of the change caused by redistricting. The normal turnover is about 30 or 35 in the House and only a few in the Senate.

Numerous other political changes were proposed to the 1981 Legislature but only one major act passed.

The successful bill, by Speaker Bill Clayton, would tighten statutes concerning contributions to political candidates. A candidate would have to report any contribution of more than $50 cash or check.

For a while it appeared there would be a big legislative fight over changing primary election dates from May and June to July and August. State Democratic leaders approved the change but the Republican state committee voted it down and Clements said he would veto it if passed. Clements recommended a bill that would allow a five-state regional primary in the 1984 presidential election but neither the House or Senate approved.

A bill to allow a candidate's name on more than one party's ballot was quickly killed by the state Democratic committee.

Another bill that failed to get a vote in either house was one to allow non-partisan election of state judges.

And there was no enthusiasm for a move that elections be held on Sundays, as is done in some Northeast states.

The big interest issue in the Nov. 3 constitutional amendments referendum was one that would allow half of the state's surplus revenue to be earmarked for future water projects. It was originated by Clayton and supported by Clements.

Opponents called the proposal "funny money" and "pay now-plan later." Voters defeated it decisively.

Another amendment would let the governor and top legislative leaders exercise more control over budgets set for state agencies by the Legislature. It also failed by a wide margin.

Even before the November election, would-be candidates got itchy feet and many declared themselves into the 1982 races.

At the end of the year, it appeared Clements would be challenged in November of 1982 by the winner of a hot Democratic primary race featuring at least three well-known officials — Attorney General Mark White, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong and Sen. Peyton McKnight of Tyler.

Texas Republicans will get a chance to select their nominee for U.S. Senate from a three-man primary race to face Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

Other late 1981 announcements indicate hot Democratic races for agriculture commissioner, land commissioner and attorney general.

80-pound cheetahs not welcome in court

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — All those summoned to Franklin County Municipal Court be warned: 80-pound cheetahs are not welcome, not even when accompanied by a handler.

Columbus Zoo employee Karin Johnson, 40, arrived at the door of the court Thursday with a female cheetah named Sukari from the zoo.

Referee Robert Wasyluk took one look at Ms. Johnson's companion and barred it from traffic court.

Pauline O'Neill, a legal intern who was prosecuting cases, said, "My feeling was it would disrupt my courtroom a little."

Ms. Johnson came to enter a plea on a ticket charging her with making an improper left turn. Her court date was rescheduled.

"No pets are allowed in the courtroom," bailiff Larry Hoye said later, "not even a kitty."

Q. I've been hearing and reading quite a lot lately about the enforcement of "due-on-sale" clauses in home mortgages. What is this?
A. You're hearing more about the "due-on-sale" clause because more people are assuming mortgages. The clause is a contract provision which permits the mortgage holder the option of calling the note due and payable when the property changes hands. The provision is also referred to as the "non-assumptive clause," because it blocks the assumption of such a mortgage without the mortgage holder's permission. In effect, this gives the lender the opportunity to investigate the new buyer's credit history, and to renegotiate the loan at current interest levels if the buyer is approved.

Tax & financial planning

(Income or Not)
If you receive a check on December 31, is it income? If you pay an otherwise deductible expense on December 31 by check, can you take a deduction?

If you, as a "cash basis taxpayer," receive a check on the last day of your tax year, without restrictions on its use, it will be income to you even if it is received after banking hours. If the check turns out to be bad, you had no income in the year of receipt.

A cash basis taxpayer is one who reports his income and deductions on the basis of when money is received or money is paid out as opposed to an "accrual basis taxpayer" who recognizes his income as accounts receivable when the transactions is completed and recognizes his expenses at the time they are incurred.

Under the doctrine of "constructive receipt," the money must be available to you for immediate use and enjoyment. Therefore, if a check is mailed to you and you do not receive it until the next year, it is not income to you until received. If, however, you could have picked it up by simply showing up in person, but chose not to do so, you have constructively received the money and it will be taxable to you. The same holds true if your "agent" received a check on your behalf.

If you sell an item and agree, even orally, that the money is to be received at some future date, you do not have constructive receipt. This allows you to perfect a sale and schedule the money to be received at a time agreeable to both you and the buyer.

You will generally receive an expense deduction for checks that you write on December 31. The facts and circumstances on some such disbursements could lead the IRS to challenge your deduction.

Laredo: Both a boom town and a bust town?

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — This is a boom town for some, a bust town for others. And it's paradise for smugglers.

It is a boom town because Laredo leads all metropolitan areas of Texas with $20,149 in retail sales per household, second only to town Casper, Wyo., in all of the United States.

At the same time, it is a bust town for many because its work force ranks second from the bottom in Texas in per capita income at $5,109.

The disparity can be explained by the volume of sales made to both rich and poor Mexicans who jam the downtown area and malls daily to purchase goods, which are shipped legally or smuggled by various methods into Mexico.

Businesses in Laredo, across the river from Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, like those in other border cities, are enjoying an economic boom linked to new-found prosperity in Mexico, while at the same time many of its 93,000 residents live in depressed conditions.

Mexicans come by plane, train, car, bus, bicycle and on foot to pack millions of dollars worth of goods across the Rio Grande, creating a dichotomy of wealth and poverty.

Each morning, streets and malls are littered with discarded sacks, boxes and labels where Mexicans have bought new clothing, stripped out the brand tags and worn them back across the bridge — some with as many as a half dozen sets of clothing on at one time — to avoid paying any taxes when they cross the bridge.

Some Mexicans can be seen donning new shoes and purposely scuffing them to make them look worn, or stuffing clothing into empty suitcases they bring. Others simply pay a bribe to Mexican customs officials to look the other way when they cross with U.S. products.

Other impoverished Mexicans can be seen at used clothing stores picking through six-foot tall piles of tatters looking for something suitable to wear.

While so many Mexicans come to shop that parking and walking space is at a premium on the narrow streets of Laredo, others cross the Rio Grande each day to work at minimum wage throughout the city, helping depress wages.

It all has to do with supply and demand. There's a short supply of affordable goods for people in Mexico, which has a 30 percent inflation rate. And there's an oversupply of people looking for work, because unemployment ranges up to 50 percent in some areas of Mexico.

Smugglers profit in such an environment.

Each night five or six converted military cargo planes laden with television sets, stereos and other goods destined for Mexico fly out of the Laredo International Airport. The planes are back again the next day, empty.

"They (smugglers) are moving Japan to Mexico," said a local U.S. Customs official, who asked that his name not be used. But the U.S. Customs Department says it is the responsibility of Mexicans — not Americans — to stop the smuggling.

Raul Gonzalez Galarza, the Mexican Consul General in San Antonio, said it's illegal to export electronic equipment into his country.

"The importation of television sets is prohibited by the (Mexican) Department of Commerce," Gonzalez Galarza said. "That is the reason the price in Mexico is higher than in the United States. Knowing the difference in price, they take advantage of the situation and they smuggle not only televisions, but all kinds of electronic equipment."

He said his government has stepped up efforts to curtail electronics smuggling and maintains such illegal imports are down 30 to 40 percent this year. "but still smuggling is a big problem."

Merchants in Laredo have come to rely heavily on sales to Mexicans.

Without them (Mexican shoppers), we wouldn't have bread and butter," said Amelia Cervera, manager of a women's clothing store in River Side Mall. "If something happened between our two governments, I don't know what we would do."

"I'd say 85 to 90 percent of our customers are from Mexico," said Alex Becerra at a record shop. "They buy top 100 albums, and I'd say 90 percent of them pay cash."

"Practically everybody who comes in here is from Mexico," said Federico de la Garza, a clerk at a shoe store. "They buy big boots, shoes and clothes. They don't buy anything in Mexico because of higher taxes there and higher quality here. Everyone's from Monterrey. We don't get hardly anyone from Nuevo Laredo."

Laredo's business boom began about four years ago when Mexico discovered massive petroleum reserves. Since then Laredo's population has increased by nearly 10 percent.

From 1977 to 1979, according to Chamber of Commerce figures, Laredo's retail sales increased by 41 percent — the highest increase in the state. During the same period, automobile sales increased nearly 35 percent at a time other areas reported drastically reduced sales.

The boom was enhanced by the discovery of a mammoth natural gas field in Webb County that saw a 280 percent increase in production of from 39 million thousand cubic feet in 1974 to nearly 113 million thousand cubic feet by 1978.

Laredo, founded in 1755 is the busiest U.S. port of entry on the Mexican border and is a conduit for 26 percent of all trade between the two countries, said Lee Gardner of the Chamber of Commerce.

A recent survey of 802 Texas cities by state Comptroller Bob Bullock showed that border cities like Laredo are running away from other Texas cities in retail sales and sales taxes collected.

Laredo's one percent sales tax produced $6,884,210 during 1981, up 32.4 percent from the year before, twice the state average.

Sales taxes also were up in the border cities of McAllen, 36.96 percent; Pharr, 32.32 percent; Mission, 19.25 percent; Hidalgo, 27.24 percent; Brownsville, 31.4 percent; and Eagle Pass, 31.06 percent, Bullock's survey showed.

At the same time, McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg reported the lowest per capita income in Texas at $5,224, Laredo was second lowest with $5,106 and Brownsville-Harlingen-San Benito was third with $5,731. This compared with a statewide per capita income level of $9,513.

Mayor Aldo Tatangelo said he is optimistic that the retail prosperity in Laredo will continue, but at the same time he is pessimistic that anything will happen soon to change the depressed wage structure because of the city's proximity to Mexico's cheap labor supply.

"Mexicans are our biggest customers, 70 percent," the mayor said. "Downtown, especially, all of the stores are programmed for the Mexican buyer. I'm very optimistic about Laredo. We have tremendous potential because of geography. We are the main gateway on the border, the direct route of the old Pan American Highway. We are the lifeline of distribution for Mexico."

Tatangelo said as long as there is a great difference in wages in Mexico and the United States, Mexicans will seek and find work in his city.

"They make $60 a week in Mexico and $130 minimum here. It puts the employer in a position to choose his employees. The only extra effort Mexicans have to make is to cross that bridge each day. I don't see that much change will prevail in a long, long time because of simply economics, the supply of labor is higher than the demand."

Storms blamed for Colorado crashes

DENVER (AP) — Blizzards and storms in the Colorado Rockies brought down six planes and helicopters in a week, killing at least seven people and pointing up the extreme hazards of flying in the mountains — even for experts.

About half Colorado's plane accidents each year involve out-of-state pilots, and some 90 percent are weather-related, said Gary Koch, chief of the Federal Aviation Administration air accident prevention program for Colorado.

Those statistics were borne out by the six recent aviation accidents: All were blamed on the weather, and three involved pilots who were from out of state and had little or no experience flying in the mountains, officials said.

"The biggest danger to out-of-state pilots is that they may come from a state with hills that run up 1,000 feet and they call those mountains," said Colorado Civil Air Patrol Col. Roger MacDonald. "They get up here where the mountains start a mile above sea level and go higher than 14,000 feet and they get in big trouble." He said the rash of aircraft troubles in late December was not extraordinary. "When the weather gets this bad, we have lots of accidents. I don't fly in bad weather unless it's to save a life."

Not all six recent aviation accidents resulted in deaths. But the four people rescued after a Christmas Eve crash and several days stranded in blinding snow were described as "extremely lucky" by Civil Air Patrol officials.

Rescuers, meanwhile, tried Saturday to reach the pilot and three passengers huddled in the cockpit of a television news helicopter forced down in a blizzard near the Continental Divide on Friday. The helicopter from KMGH-TV in Denver had been en route to a plane crash that left four dead and two injured.

A series of powerful storms that buried the mountains with neck-deep snow have been blamed for the aviation accidents since Christmas Eve.

Five of the accidents occurred high in the Rockies where visibility was near zero. The sixth occurred in a blizzard on the high plains of southeastern Colorado.

MacDonald said pilots of small, piston-driven aircraft face two primary hazards flying in the mountains in good weather or bad — downdrafts and loss of engine power.

"The prevailing wind is from the west," he said. "It strikes the mountains, curls over the top and comes roaring down the east slope anywhere up to 3,000 feet a minute. There is no piston-driven airplane that can climb that fast."

Another hazard is that piston engines lose up to 50 percent of their power at high altitude and that drastically reduces climbing speed, MacDonald said.

Man found sleeping outdoors dies

LA CROSSE, Wis. (AP) — DeWitt Henson, who was found collapsed outside an Etrick home Dec. 13 with a 71-degree body temperature, died Friday without regaining consciousness.

Henson, 34, of Fort Worth, Texas, died at Luthern Hospital of heart failure after undergoing a rare medical procedure to raise his body temperature to the normal 98.6 degrees.

After traditional methods of raising the temperature proved unsuccessful, Henson's blood was warmed by pumping it through a heart-lung machine.

Henson was found in 30-degree temperatures wearing a shirt, jeans and boots by friends who lived in a nearby home where he had been staying. A jacket was lying next to Henson. He did not have a heartbeat and friends said he might have been outside for 11 hours.

Doctors said only seven persons who suffered from a combination of low body temperatures and no heartbeat have survived after undergoing the heart-lung machine process.

Dr. A. Erik Gunderson, a heart surgeon, said Henson might have lived if he had been brought to the hospital sooner.

Gunderson said as recently as Wednesday that Henson had a one in 10,000 chance of returning to a normal life.

Gunderson said doctors initially were hopeful that Henson would survive because he began to breathe on his own and his kidneys were working, his kidneys ceased functioning after two or three days.

"It went too long without any circulation," Gunderson said. "It (the cold) did not protect his brain from damage. The brain is the most sensitive tissue of all and it dies first if there is no circulation."

Texas DPS planning extra school for recruit training

TROOPER TRAINING — The Texas Department of Public Safety needs troopers. Each trooper candidate receives firearms training from highly skilled instructors, who teach candidates how to qualify on the military-style DPS firing range.

AUSTIN — The Texas Department of Public Safety will conduct an additional recruit training school this year to help fill state trooper vacancies, according to DPS Director Jim Adams.

"The department usually schedules two of these schools at the academy in Austin each year," Adams said. "Three schools will be necessary in 1982 to bring the DPS up to its authorized strength."

The DPS director said the agency hopes to recruit 268 new troopers during 1982.

"We are intensifying our statewide effort to attract qualified men and women who would like to serve in one of the finest law enforcement organizations in the country," Adams said. "DPS troopers are held in high esteem by their counterparts in other states."

The DPS has 86 trooper vacancies within the Highway Patrol ranks and five trooper vacancies in the Driver License Service due to promotions, retirements and attrition.

Adams pointed out that the 67th Texas Legislature allocated the DPS a total of 20 additional Highway Patrol positions, 10 more License and Weight troopers and 20 additional narcotics investigators over the next two years.

In addition to the basic traffic safety responsibilities, DPS troopers regularly provide assistance in criminal investigations and disaster-emergency situations.

Trainees live and eat in the academy during the 18-week course.

Recruits earn a starting monthly salary of $1,233. Upon graduation, the officers are paid $1,347 monthly plus allowances for uniforms and equipment. When a trooper completes a year with the department following graduation, he earns $1,537 per month. New trooper assignments are based on regional needs. However, DPS academy graduates may request assignments in specific areas.

Adams said all the candidates must be prepared for rigorous demands of the training.

"It's a tough, intensive course which is designed to ensure quality and professionalism in the finest traditions of law enforcement. Some of the trainees will find the course too demanding or decide that another career is best for them," Adams said.

DPS trooper applicants must be between 20 and 35 years old and have a minimum of 60 hours of college level credit. Each candidate will undergo a personal history review and must be in excellent health.

Adams said the DPS has placed a high priority on the recruitment of minorities and females for uniformed service.

Board grapples with burglary insurance law

By DIANE BALLARD

AUSTIN — A new law gives Texans a reduction in insurance premium rates for installing certain burglary devices, but homeowners have yet to see any benefits.

Disputes over the discount amount and the difficulty of implementing the law, which insurance experts say is vaguely written, are stalling the rate cuts.

Rate reductions from two to 10 percent have been suggested, with different amounts for homes along the Gulf Coast, in Central Texas and in North and Northwest Texas.

The discounts only apply to Texans who are eligible for homeowner policies. Some companies already voluntarily offer discounts.

Anti-burglary devices for a home that doesn't have any could cost from $300 to $400, insurance experts say.

Under the law, the three-member State Board of Insurance must set the rate reduction amount. But board members are finding they also must work out the logistics of enforcing the law and getting the actual savings to homeowners because those procedures are not stated in the law.

"In practice, it's much harder to implement than in theory," board chairman William Daves says. "It's going to require a lot of time and expense to do it."

Daves says he's not sure what reduction amount the board will approve or when the problems will be ironed out so the law can go into effect.

The law states that an inspector must examine a home and, if all the specifications are met, give the homeowner a certificate allowing a rate reduction.

The inspector must be a city or county employee of "high moral integrity" who has been certified by the Texas Crime Prevention Institute in San Marcos, which offers crime prevention training courses.

But the law doesn't say how homeowners proceed once they have the certificate or how insurance companies can be forced to give reductions to homeowners with certificates.

The board's staff actuary, Gaylon Daniel, recommends sizable discounts: a 10 percent reduction for homeowners along the Gulf Coast, nine percent in Central Texas and three percent in the North-Northwest area that includes the Panhandle, San Angelo, Midland, Abilene, Odessa and Wichita Falls.

The Texas Crime Prevention Association, a non-profit organization consisting chiefly of police officers from throughout the state, agrees with the Insurance Board staff, saying major incentives are necessary to spur people to crime-proof their homes. While the board is making up its mind, the insurance industry is pushing for much lower reductions, saying anti-burglary devices such as deadbolts and window locks don't keep out burglars.

The Texas Insurance Advisory Association, a coalition of insurance companies in Texas, wants a reduction of less than two percent.

At a public hearing recently before the Insurance Board, professional security people testified for the association that the burglary devices listed in the law don't stop professional thieves and just force amateur burglars next door to an unprotected home. Robert Maddox, assistant national manager of the alarm division of Stanley Smith Security Inc. in San Antonio, called deadbolted doors "one-kick" doors because a well-placed kick can smash through any simple deadbolt.

The insurance industry steadfastly has resisted any reduction for anti-burglary measures. The industry stopped discount legislation from passing two years ago and unsuccessfully opposed it in the 1981 legislative session.

But officer Elaine Martin of the Austin Police Department's crime prevention division says although professional thieves can't really be stopped, most burglaries are done by amateurs.

She says deadbolts and window locks do keep out amateur thieves, especially juveniles.

"You have no idea how many burglaries occur because people just stick in an alarm system and don't bother to put in security devices," Martin says.

The Texan insurance companies that already offer cut rates for burglary devices, however, usually require more sophisticated measures than deadbolts and window locks, according to the Insurance Associates of Austin.

Lower premium rates are given for a combination of protective measures, usually including central alarm systems, representatives of the Austin company say.

But Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland, author of the rate-reduction bill last legislative session, is convinced the program will work.

He says police in Midland have conducted a similar program for eight years with significant results.

"There've only been two break-ins in the last eight years in houses they've done this on," Craddick says.

Austin water turning purple?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Austin's water treatment plant on Town Lake was shut down Saturday while officials searched for the source of a mysterious purple substance found flowing from storm sewers into Shoal Creek Friday night.

"I don't think there is any danger, but I want to be sure," said George Greene, water superintendent. "We don't know what it is but it looks like some sort of oil-based paint."

Greene said he expected no trouble in meeting city needs from two other water treatment plants that draw water from Lake Austin.

He said the substance was floating on top of the water and not getting into the treatment plant.

The colored substance was discovered when a dog named Panda jumped into the lake and climbed out purple.

"It seems to be permanent," said Sandy Kern, the dog's owner. "It's so embarrassing to have a purple dog."

Cowboys bury Bucs

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The National Football League's leading pass defense gave Tampa Bay's young quarterback Doug Williams a playoff lesson Saturday.

The playoff-hardened Dallas Cowboys took Williams to the woodshed with four interceptions, four sacks and forced him into two intentional groundings, rolling into the National Conference title game with a 38-0 rout of the Buccaneers.

Dallas' front four of Ed Jones, Randy White, John Dutton and Harvey Martin panicked Williams into throwing three interceptions that led to Cowboy touchdowns.

It was the most times Williams had been sacked this year.

"This was our best team effort all year," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "We had a great pass rush. We put great pressure on Williams. It's the best effort we've had."

"I was concerned coming into this game because we hadn't played with any intensity in three weeks but we had it today."

Tampa Bay Coach John McKay said "We got mauled. To say we did not play well would be the understatement of the year."

Cutting the interview short, McKay said "I want to get the hell out of here."

Williams said of the Cowboys front four: "They are good, quick agile and tall. They played well... what it boils down to is that Doug Williams had a bad day... I had a lot of fun back there trying to dodge the rush."

Williams added, "They said they were going to put pressure on me and they did what they said."

Dallas running back Tony Dorsett said the Cowboys wouldn't mind playing San Francisco in the NFC title game.

"They jumped on us (earlier in the year) and we owe them one," Dorsett said.

The Cowboys went into Saturday's game with 37 interceptions, most in the NFL.

Cornerback Dennis Thurman intercepted Williams twice in the first quarter to put the Bucs in a deep hole.

"The rush forced Williams out of the pocket," said Thurman. "We knew Williams was frustrated... he just didn't have time to throw... he was running for his life... he may take a lot of criticism and flack in Tampa Bay but the guys on this team respect him... Williams is going to be a good NFL quarterback."

The second of Thurman's interceptions led to a 9-yard White-to-Tony Hill touchdown pass in the second quarter.

Three of Williams' interceptions were converted into Dallas touchdowns. He also was guilty of grounding the ball twice, and he was sacked four times.

Dallas led 10-0 at halftime after Rafael Septien's 32-yard field goal, and the Cowboys struck for three touchdowns in the third period.

A 25-yard White-to-Tony Dorsett screen pass helped set up Ron Springs' 1-yard scoring run on the opening drive of the second half.

Rookie free safety Mike Downs intercepted a Williams aerial on the Bucs 33, and Dallas took advantage of the turnover with Dorsett's 5-yard touchdown gallop.

Williams was victimized yet again when tackle John Dutton tipped a pass into the arms of defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones at the Tampa Bay 25. Backup tailback James Jones scored from 5 yards.

Tampa Bay got to the Dallas 5-yard line in the fourth period on a 75-yard Williams to Jimmie Giles pass but couldn't score.

The Bucs, champions of the NFC Central, ended their three-year stay into the National Football League playoffs with a 9-8 ledger.

It was Dallas' 18th victory in a record 30 playoff games.

PASSING UNDER PRESSURE — Tampa Bay quarterback Doug Williams (12) prepares to release a pass under pressure from Cowboys defensive end Ed Jones (72) during first quarter action.

For the heavily-favored Cowboys, who went into the game 7 1/2-point favorites, next week will mark their 10th appearance in an NFC championship game. They have been in five Super Bowls.

The Cowboys earned their 18th consecutive victory in Texas Stadium, where they are now 3-0 against Tampa Bay in the only times they have played the 6-year-old Buccaneers.

The Cowboys received a gift touchdown in the waning moments of the game when Cedrick Brown interfered with Butch Johnson in the Tampa Bay end zone. Third string fullback Timmy Newsome went the final yard for the touchdown, and the Cowboys equalled their greatest margin of victory in the playoffs. Dallas beat Cleveland by 38 points, 52-14, in 1967.

Williams completed only 10 of 29 passes for 187 yards, while his Dallas counterpart, White, connected on 15 of 26 for 143 and was sacked only once. Dorsett, the second-leading rusher in the NFL, was used sparingly, yet gained 86 yards on 16 carries.

Dallas now has shut out three teams in its 30 NFL playoff games. The last was a 28-0 victory over Los Angeles in 1979, and the first was a 5-0 victory over Detroit in 1970.

Thurman intercepted Williams twice in the first period, but Dallas scored just one touchdown.

The Dallas cornerback returned his first interception 51 yards to the Tampa Bay 30, but the Buccaneers forced the Cowboys to punt.

COWBOY PRESSURE — Cowboys defensive tackle John Dutton rushes the pass of Tampa Bay quarterback Doug Williams (12) during action in Dallas Saturday. The Cowboys defense shut out the Buccaneers to win the divisional playoff 38-0.

Chargers triumph over Miami

MIAMI (AP) — Rolf Benirschke, given a reprieve after he had blown an easy field goal early in overtime, kicked a 29-yarder 13:52 into the extra period to give the San Diego Chargers a 41-38 victory over the Miami Dolphins Saturday night in the American Football Conference playoffs.

The triumph by the Chargers, in a game in which records were set for scoring, wiped out what might have been a most heroic comeback by Don Strock and the Dolphins, who rallied from a 24-0 deficit.

The Chargers, champions of the AFC West, will play in their second consecutive conference championship on Jan. 10. Their opponent will be the winner of Sunday's AFC playoff between the Buffalo Bills and Cincinnati Bengals.

The Chargers tied it 38-38 with 58 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter on Dan Fouts' third touchdown pass of the game, his second to rookie running back James Brooks.

Following that 9-yard scoring pass, the Dolphins drove to the San Diego 25-yard line. But, on the final play of regulation time, Uwe von Schamann's 43-yard field goal attempt was short, barely deflected by Chargers tight end Kellen Winslow.

The game went into overtime, the Chargers winning the coin toss, taking the kickoff and marching from their 13-yard line to the Miami 8. The big play came on a third-and-20 at the Chargers' 45. Fouts completed a pass to Winslow, who dragged a Miami tackler 9 yards to gain 21 and a first down. But four plays later, with 11:09 gone in overtime, Benirschke, who had hit all nine of his field-goal tries from inside the 30 this season, hooked a routine 27-yarder to the left.

The Dolphins charged back late in the overtime, reaching the San Diego 17-yard line. But, with 11:27 gone, von Schamann's 34-yard field goal attempt was blocked, this time by Leroy Jones.

Clemson named national champs

The Clemson Tigers, unranked before the season but unbeaten at the end, are college football's national champions for the first time in the university's 86 years on the gridiron.

It became obvious Friday night that Clemson would succeed Georgia as national champion when the top-ranked Tigers completed a 12-0 campaign, the best in their history, with a 22-15 victory over Nebraska in the Orange Bowl, while runner-up Georgia was losing to Pittsburgh 24-20 in the Sugar Bowl.

And it became official Saturday when 47 of 49 voters in The Associated Press' nationwide poll of sports writers and sportscasters made the Tigers runaway winners in the balloting to decide the national champion for 1981, with 977 of a possible 980 points.

Clemson far outdistanced Texas, Penn State and Pitt, who waged a close battle for the second, third and fourth spots. The rest of the Top Ten consists of Southern Methodist, Georgia, Alabama, Miami (Fla.), North Carolina and Washington.

"That's great," Clemson Coach Danny Ford said when informed of the balloting. "I'm tickled to death for the players, the assistant coaches and the university. It really hasn't sunk in yet, but it will. It's like Satchel Paige said... I keep looking back afraid that someone will catch us. But I guess they can't now, can they?"

The Tigers opened the season by defeating Wofford 45-10 — a late schedule change when Villanova dropped football — and Tulane 13-5. But they didn't crack the Top Twenty until a 3-3 triumph over Georgia on Sept. 19, which earned them a No. 19 ranking.

They climbed to 14th following an open date Sept. 26 and vaulted to ninth with a 21-3 victory over Kentucky on Oct. 3. Victories over Virginia 27-0, Duke 38-10 and North Carolina State 17-7 produced jumps to sixth place, fourth and third.

The Tigers then moved into second place, a position they occupied for four weeks by defeating Wake Forest 82-24, North Carolina 10-8, Maryland 1-7 and South Carolina 29-13. One week later, No. 1 Pitt lost to Penn State, leaving Clemson with the No. 1 ranking as the nation's only unbeaten major-college team.

"It wasn't an impossible dream, but it was a hard dream," Ford said. "Basically, the thing it says is that throughout the whole season we had a better record than anybody else in the country and we had an opportunity to play a game for national attention and we were better than the team we played at that particular time."

"When we scheduled our games and agreed what time to play — well, we were good enough to play and win, and that's all we had to do. It doesn't matter whether you're the best team or have the best athletes. It's like taking final exams — if you're there and you pass, that's all you have to do."

Texas, a 14-12 winner over Alabama in the Cotton Bowl, jumped from sixth to second with 862 points, while the Crimson Tide slipped from third to seventh. Penn State, which trounced Southern California 26-10 in the Fiesta Bowl, climbed from seventh to third with 845 points, while dropping the Trojans from eighth to 14th.

Pitt, which had been No. 1 before Clemson but lost its regular-season finale to Penn State and skidded to 10th place, vaulted to fourth with 834 points for its Sugar Bowl triumph over Georgia.

The final regular-season Top Ten consisted of Clemson, Georgia, Alabama, Nebraska, SMU, Texas, Penn State, Southern Cal, Miami and Pitt.

Making up the postbowl Second Ten are Nebraska, Michigan, Brigham Young, Southern Cal, Ohio State, Arizona State, West Virginia, Iowa, Missouri and Oklahoma. Michigan was the preseason choice to win the national championship.

The Second Ten in the final regular-season poll consisted of North Carolina, Washington, Iowa, BYU, Ohio State, Michigan, Arizona State, Southern Mississippi, UCLA and Washington State.

However, Southern Mississippi lost to Missouri 19-17 in the Tangerine Bowl, UCLA was drubbed by Michigan 33-14 in the Bluebonnet Bowl and Washington State bowed to BYU 38-36 in the Holiday Bowl. Meanwhile, West Virginia cracked the rankings for the first time all year by trimming Florida 26-6 in the Peach Bowl, Missouri returned via its Tangerine Bowl triumph and Oklahoma also reappeared thanks to a 40-14 licking of Houston in the Sun Bowl.

Clemson was the seventh team to be rated No. 1 during the 1981 season. The most No. 1 teams in any one previous year was five.

MAKING THE STOP — Texas defensive end Kiki DeAyala makes the grab on Alabama quarterback Walter Lewis (10) during first half action in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas Friday. Texas won it 14-12.

Brewer's dream came true

DALLAS (AP) — Where do they come from, these Texas Longhorn quarterbacks?

They sneak out of some small, dusty town in West Texas, or show up uninvited from some big-city school near Houston or Dallas.

Some of them are bowlegged, some are splay-footed, one was even left-footed. They can't run, they can't throw — all they can do is beat you.

They have names like Alan Lowry, James Street, Donnie Wigginton, Duke Carlisle, Bobby Lackey and — after Friday's Cotton Bowl victory over Alabama — Robert Brewer.

"Let me tell you about Robert Brewer," said Texas coach Fred Akers. "The first time I ever saw him was at a high-school all-star game. He came up to me and said, 'I'm going to play for you someday.' And, in spite of me, he has."

Brewer engineered the two-touchdown, fourth-quarter rally that gave Texas its 14-12 win, but Akers never even gave him a chance to start for Texas until midway through this, his junior season.

Brewer, a walk-on, says his passing arm is below average, his speed is below average and his running ability is below average.

"Well, he's not real fast," Akers agreed. "And he can't throw very well. All he can do is win. He's a winner. I don't know how else to describe him."

Brewer helped win the Cotton Bowl game by dashing

30 yards on a quarterback draw for Texas' first touchdown. Alabama coach Paul "Bear" Bryant called it "the perfect play," but Brewer had to talk Akers into calling it.

"Robert saved us," Akers said of the play. "The defense they (Alabama) called was better than the play we had called (a pass). They were set up for a safety blitz. Robert saw it and called time."

The two conferred, agreed on the quarterback draw and no defender ever touched Brewer as he pulled Texas to within three points, 10-7.

"The boy did a good job," said Bryant, whose Alabama coaching record against Texas is now 0-7-1. We didn't have anybody touch him. You have to give credit to Texas for the perfect play."

"I thought it had a chance," Brewer said. "but I didn't think it would be that wide open... That play will probably never work as well again."

Texas got the ball back on a 'Bama punt and Brewer fashioned an 80-yard touchdown drive that included four pass completions for 76 yards. It culminated in a 7-yard touchdown run by third-string fullback Terry Orr with 2:05 left.

"I think Brewer showed what a great competitor and operator he really is," glowed Akers. Brewer looked at the floor. "I'm not that good," he blushed.

Tech upsets Arkansas, 79-74

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Freshman forward Vince Taylor blocked three shots and scored six points in a second-half Saturday night surge that carried Texas Tech to a 79-74 college basketball upset of fifth-ranked Arkansas in the Southwest Conference opener for both teams.

Tech, 9-2, had not beaten Arkansas since 1976, a string of 11 straight games. It was the first loss of the season for the Razorbacks, 8-1.

Arkansas led 37-33 at the half, thanks largely to 14 first-period points from center Scott Hastings, and widened the margin to 56-45 on some hot outside shooting by Tony Brown in the first eight minutes of the second half.

But Taylor's rejections helped the Red Raiders put their running game in gear. Taylor scored three field goals off breaks and Charles Johnson added three long-range jumpers as Tech pulled within a point, 67-66, with six minutes to play.

Tech jumped in front for good, 70-69, on Jeff Taylor's layup with 2 1/2 minutes left, and late Arkansas turnovers kept the Razorbacks from rallying.

Johnson got 12 of his 14 points in the second half for Tech. Clarence Swannegan led all Raider scorers with 23.

Hastings took game scoring honors with 24 points for the Hogs, Tony Brown had 17 and Darrell Walker added 14.

Networks have a field day

For NBC, it was a long day capped by the No. 1 college football team winning amid some confusion.

For ABC, it was a down-to-the-wire thriller that even it acknowledged wouldn't mean a thing unless another team on another network was upset.

For CBS, it was visions of Heidi.

NBC, with the Fiesta Bowl, the first of its three New Year's Day games, showed Southern California's Marcus Allen fumbling on the first play from scrimmage against Penn State.

Like the Penn State linebackers, NBC cameras keyed on Allen, the Heisman Trophy winning tailback. He had just 85 yards rushing out the attention paid him by the cameras and announcers Charlie Jones and Len Dawson vividly told why Southern Cal was getting beaten.

"The key to stopping Marcus Allen is defensive penetration and taking away his ability to cut back," Dawson said. There was an isolated replay of three Nittany Lions throwing Allen for a loss.

Almost 10 hours later, football's longest day ended in southern Florida. A Clemson defensive back swatted a Nebraska pass to the ground in the Orange Bowl and the Tigers had their first unbeaten season and an apparent national title wrapped up.

NBC covered the game with John Brodie and Don Criqui announcing, and Bob Trumpy with an innovation that proved enlightening to viewers.

Trumpy was stationed in the coaching boxes of the two teams, high above the field, where assistants plot strategy and tell the benches what should and should not work. He was able to pass along information on several key plays before they happened, and in the second quarter it became clear that Clemson was taking the edge when the Tigers proceeded to do exactly what Trumpy reported they would do seconds earlier.

Trumpy's presence in the coaching booths was most appreciated on an end zone play in the first half. Clemson's Harry Tuttle dove for a pass from Homer Jordan, but a Nebraska defender came up with the ball and the officials ruled it an interception. Replays from three angles were inconclusive on whether Tuttle had possession for a touchdown.

But Trumpy reported that Tuttle had told his coaches he never had the football in his grasp. End of second guessing and a big plus for NBC. The network must get a minus, however, for its handling of the game's final seconds. Clemson had the ball with a fourth down and less than 20 seconds remaining, and on the sideline, Coach Danny Ford was huddling with Jordan. "I think they've finally convinced Jordan to just fall down with the football," Brodie said. And when Jordan then scrambled around before being tackled with six seconds remaining, Brodie and Criqui said that was the final play, since Nebraska had no timeouts left.

But under college rules, the clock stops on change of possession, so the Cornhuskers had a chance at the desperation pass. Many viewers may have tuned out before the ball was thrown and conceivably could have missed the unbeaten season slip from Clemson's hands.

Clemson's victory made speculation about who will be No. 1 in the final poll moot, but it was a question raised often on ABC.

There, announcers Keith Jackson and Frank Broyles were doing the Sugar Bowl head to head with the Orange. The Sugar Bowl featured the nation's No. 2 team Georgia, against 10th-ranked Pittsburgh.

If Clemson had lost, Georgia would have had a shot at a second straight national crown. Bit that was a big if and Jackson made no bones about it.

ABC frequently gave the score of the Orange Bowl game, while NBC mentioned the Sugar Bowl score just once in the first half and again after Pitt had scored in the final seconds to defeat the Bulldogs.

Orange Bowl

Tigers take charge

MIAMI (AP) — Clemson Coach Danny Ford, still savoring the top-ranked Tigers' victory over Nebraska in the Orange Bowl, admitted Saturday that he had some doubts about just how good his team was heading into the New Year's night classic.

"I saw us getting behind by a lot of points early in the football game. I really did," said Ford, whose team capped a perfect 12-0 season with a 22-15 triumph over the Cornhuskers Friday night. "I have that much respect for Nebraska, but I have respect for our football team too."

Ford said the Clemson game plan called for trying to stay close to the Big Eight champions in the opening half and taking charge of the contest in the first five minutes of the third quarter.

Clemson rolled to a 22-7 lead behind three field goals by Donald Igwebuike, Cliff Austin's 2-yard run and Homer Jordan's 13-yard scoring pass to Perry Tuttle.

But Nebraska moved back into the game with 9:15 remaining in the fourth quarter when Roger Craig swept left end for 26 yards to complete an eight-play, 69-yard drive. Craig then ran for a two-point conversion from eight yards out after the Cornhuskers were penalized for delay of game.

Nebraska regained possession after a Clemson punt, but was unable to move the ball, gthe Tigers' offense took possession again with 5:24 left and held it until only six seconds remained.

"We felt before the game that they would be the strongest team we have played, the most complete football team and they were," said Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne. "They didn't make many mistakes. So they deserved to win the game and be the national champions."

Clemson carried the No. 1 ranking into the game but still found itself rated as a slight underdog to Nebraska which also had a shot at the national title after Georgia lost to Pittsburgh in the Sugar bowl and Alabama dropped a decision to Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

Nebraska had trouble getting its high-powered offense untracked until the Cornhuskers' 69-yard scoring drive early in the final period. Osborne said he considered replacing senior quarterback Mark Mauer, who was playing with a sore throwing arm, but decided against it.

Two Nebraska turnovers led to Clemson scores and the Cornhuskers were also penalized eight times 64 yards, but Osborne wouldn't use officiating as an excuse for his team's performance.

"Penalties hurt Clemson too," he said. "The facts are we didn't play well enough to play over those things."

Sugar Bowl

Pitt sneaks by Georgia

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — One of the nice things about capping a surprising season with a Sugar Bowl victory is not having to tackle Georgia's Herschel Walker again, Pittsburgh linebacker Sal Sunseri said Saturday.

Pitt defeated second-ranked Georgia 4-20 on a touchdown pass from quarterback Dan Marino to tight end John Brown with 35 seconds left in the game on New Year's Night.

After going 11-1 last season and finishing second in the college football poll, Pittsburgh sent 19 players to the National Football League. Fourteen of them made NFL rosters.

This was expected to be a rebuilding year — with only six seniors on the roster — and Pitt Coach Jackie Sherrill said so before the season started.

However, Pitt rose through the poll as the season wore on, finally taking over the No. 1 spot — only to tumble to 10th after a 48-14 defeat by Penn State in the season finale.

"We had a lot to prove to people all over the nation, because we didn't play well against Penn State on national television," Sunseri said at a post-bowl press conference on Saturday.

Pitt's defense held Walker to 84 yards rushing, the first time this season that he was held under 100 yards.

"Herschel Walker, I think, is the finest running back in college football today," Sunseri said. "I don't want to play against him every week."

On one of Walker's 25 carries, he bowled Sunseri over backward in a head-on collision. Sunseri said he could remember only one time being hit as hard as Walker hit him on that play.

"My dad hit me once when I was younger," he said.

"I'm not embarrassed to say he got me. But I got him a couple of times, too," he said.

He said that if Coach Sherrill had listened to his sideline advice, Pitt would have settled for a 50-yard field goal attempt and a tie, instead of going for the winning touchdown.

During Pitt's final timeout, facing fourth-and-five at the Georgia 33, Sunseri and Sherrill were huddled on the sideline.

Paterno raps voting system

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Penn State Coach Joe Paterno, after seeing his seventh-ranked Nittany Lions beat No. 8 Southern California 26-10 in Friday's Fiesta Bowl, says a series of playoffs should decide the national collegiate football champion and not a voting system.

"I've always resented the fact that everybody else has a chance to win the title on the playing field and we're the victim of opinion," Paterno said Saturday. "I think we should have a playoff."

"After all the bowl games are over, someone ought to pick four teams — by a point system or coaches getting together or whatever. You take those four teams and play on consecutive Saturdays. That way, you finish the day before the Super Bowl," added Paterno. "You may not wind up with the best football team all the time, but you'd be a lot closer than the way we are now."

USC Coach John Robinson said he has "some mixed feelings" about Paterno's proposed playoff plan.

"I'd love to be in it. I'd hate to be voted out of it," he said. "The problem with that four-team format is there will always be 10 schools who say 'we were robbed.'"

"Also, we tend to look at them as playoffs, but their context can change quickly," Robinson said. "You beat one team and then have to get on a plane the next day and start all that bowl preparation all over again. Put three of those games in a row and it just gets too much."

Paterno said he felt his team deserved to be voted No. 1 because "we feel we can probably beat any team in the country right now."

Penn State's victory over the Trojans was constructed around a 145-yard rushing day by tailback Curt Warner.

Tech names new ### athletic director

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Former Texas A&M defensive coordinator Jess Stiles has returned to his alma mater, Texas Tech, to be an assistant athletic director, Tech officials announced Saturday.

Stiles, an assistant coach at A&M the past three seasons, will work with Tech's athletic money-raising group, the Red Raider Club, said Tech athletic director John Conley.

After 15 years in Texas high school coaching ranks, Stiles rejoined the Tech staff as an assistant coach.

Rose Bowl

Huskies pound Iowa

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — On a New Year's Day that saw Southern Cal beaten soundly by Penn State in the Fiesta Bowl, Washington was a 28-0 winner over Coach Hayden Fry's Hawkeyes.

It was the first Rose Bowl appearance in 23 years for Iowa the Big Ten-Conference co-champion. But Coach Don James' Huskies topped that statistic.

The Washington shutout was the first at Pasadena in 29 years.

The win gave James, 49, a 3-1 bowl record in the past five years at Washington, including a 2-1 mark in the Rose Bowl.

All of his bowl clubs have been underdogs, too.

Iowa was a 5½-point favorite. Washington was a two-touchdown underdog when it upset Michigan 27-20 in the 1978 Rose Bowl. The Huskies were one-touchdown underdogs when they knocked off Texas 14-7 in the 1979 Sun Bowl.

Washington's lone bowl loss under James came in the 1981 Rose Bowl when Michigan prevailed 23-6. The Huskies were underdogs then, too. The Washington team that whipped Iowa so convincingly on Friday was dominated by underclassmen.

The Rose Bowl Player of the Game was freshman tailback Jacque Robinson, a 5-foot-11, 204-pounder.

Playing about half the game in a backup role to starter Ron "Cookie" Jackson, a sophomore who is 34 pounds lighter than him, Robinson rushed for 142 yards and two touchdowns.

James will lose only four starters — two on offense and two on defense — from this season's Rose Bowl club.

Those four are defensive tackle Fletcher Jenkins, a second-team All-America; linebacker Mark Jerue, who had a Rose Bowl game-high 13 tackles; fullback Vince Coby, who scored a touchdown on Friday, and guard James Carter.

In addition, Washington will return its Pac-10 all-star place-kicker, Chuck Nelson, and its punter, Jeff Partridge.

HUSKIES SCORE — University of Washington Huskies Jacque Robinson (28) runs into the endzone after a sweep Friday for the first score of the game at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena. Washington won, 28-0.

Sun City golf chase tightens

SUN CITY, Bophuthatswana (AP) — Johnny Miller, whose brilliant, 6-under-par 66 has elevated him into a tie for the lead going into Sunday's final round of the world's richest golf tournament, would like to see the chase get even tighter.

"It's exciting," the usually low-key Miller said Saturday after his 54-hole total of 206 had lifted him into a tie with Seve Ballesteros of Spain, who had led alone through the first two rounds of the Sun City $1 million Golf Challenge.

"I'd really like to see it come down to the last two holes with all three of us, me and Steve and Jack (Nicklaus) tied for the lead," Miller said. Then he noticed Ballesteros standing in a crowd of reporters.

Wall Street witnessed big winners and losers

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market produced a long list of losers in 1981, ranging from savings and loan and energy issues to silver-mining stocks and several individual companies that fell on hard times.

But there were big winners as well, most notably among companies that became takeover targets in another year of merger mania.

"It wasn't a very good way to start a new decade," said Argus Research Corp. in its summary of 1981. Even the "traditional" yearend rally, when it arrived in the last two sessions Wednesday and Thursday, was unimpressive. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, with a 1.62 gain to 875.00 in the past week, finished the year with a loss of 88.99 points, or 9.2 percent.

Other readings for the week showed the New York Stock Exchange composite index unchanged at 71.11, and the American Stock Exchange market value index down 0.61 at 320.63.

Big Board volume, which had already established a record for the fourth consecutive year, averaged 36.84 million shares a day in the final week, against 39.11 million the week before.

In a computer tally of 1981's biggest percentage changes in the waning hours of the year, several savings and loans — with their much-publicized problems with high interest rates — placed prominently among the losers.

Fidelity Financial, Financial Federation, Biscayne Federal Savings & Loan and Financial Corp. of Santa Barbara had declines of more than 50 percent.

Such prominent silver issues as Hecla Mining and Callahan Mining, as the price of silver tumbled to a 2½-year low in late December.

Two years before, Hecla had been the No. 1 performer of the year among NYSE issues, climbing from 3½ to 30, adjusted for a subsequent split. In the past week, the stock was back down to just above 10.

Among individual companies hit by steep losses, AM International fell from 16½ early in the year to below 5, and International Harvester tumbled from a high of 26½ to the neighborhood of 7½.

Energy stocks, which produced some of the best gains of 1981, meanwhile did a dramatic turnaround. The list of the sharpest declines at the American Stock Exchange was dotted with such names as Great Basins Petroleum, Ranger Oil of Canada, Damson Oil, Juniper Petroleum, Sundance Oil, and Tubos of Mexico.

There were some dramatic exceptions in the energy group, however — companies that became takeover targets. Santa Fe International rose 19¾ to 50¾, and Clark Oil 9¼ to 36¾. Conoco, involved in the year's most celebrated merger battle, soared from 47½ to 96 before settling back to 64¾ as DuPont Co. completed its acquisition of the company.

Among securities firms, which ranked as another prime catch during the year, Dean Witter Reynolds more than doubled in price pending completion of its takeover by Sears Roebuck and Shearson Loeb Rhoades gained almost as much before it was absorbed into American Express.

Conferences will arm farmers for '82

COLLEGE STATION — Farmers and ranchers of Texas will need to sharpen their survival skills as they enter 1982.

They will be faced with rising production costs and lower net incomes, say economists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

To help farmers cope with the worsening cost-price squeeze and be aware of strategies that can move them toward the plus side of the ledger in the new year, eight conferences on "Profitable Decision-Making in 1982" have been scheduled across the state in January and February.

"All conferences are designed to provide up-to-the-minute information to assist farmers and ranchers with decision-making to cope with the many uncertainties that lie ahead," say Dr. Roland Smith and Dr. Wayne A. Hayenga, extension economists.

"New farm legislation will be important to cropping decisions in 1982. The latest developments will be presented along with direct implications to Texas producers. Also, improved marketing decisions have the potential of improving the level of income substantially over inopportune decisions," Smith says.

Hayenga emphasizes that even if farmers can't cover all their costs next year, they are still better off to produce a crop than to stay out of production in many cases.

"This is because as long as farmers can cover variable costs, production can still provide dollars to cover the fixed costs such as interest charges and depreciation."

All conferences will open at 9:30 a.m.

"Specific evaluations and discussions of the local situation will be presented, along with latest farm policy implications, production information, financial strategies and marketing alternatives," the economists say.

Producers are invited to attend any of the following conferences:

If drying the family wash takes more than one load, leave small, lightweight items until last. You may be able to dry them after you turn off the power with heat retained by the machine from earlier loads.

HALSTON ...to quit smoking

Indianans' New Year's resolutions

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Some people make New Year's resolutions and others make fun of them, but a survey of Indiana's more famous folks shows their vows vary from self-improving to humorous.

Former Secretary of Agriculture Earl J. Butz says he doesn't want to make any resolutions that he can't keep.

He said he wants to "do what I can to get agriculture on a profitable basis in 1982. I want to do all I can to get public understanding of the importance of agriculture to the economy."

Choreographer Twyla Tharp, who was born in Portland, Ind., says she wants "everybody to be happy."

Fashion designer Halston, who hails from Evansville and isn't as well-known under his full name of Ray Halston Frowick, plans to quit smoking.

Jared Carter, a poet who won the 1981 Walt Whitman award, had several resolutions.

"I want to tell more people about Indianapolis being a good place to live, change the ribbon on my typewriter more frequently, get my piano tuned and stop fooling around with the Rubik's cube my daughter gave me for Christmas... but not necessarily in that order," he said.

Return with us now to those thrilling days of yesteryear...

Special to the Herald

Remember as a kid being glued to the old black-and-white TV and hearing the announcer say, "Faster than a speeding bullet! More powerful than a locomotive!?" Remember watching Broderick Crawford bark into his 1955-equivalent to a CB, "ten-four, Ten-four!?" Remember laughing at the antics of Lucy and Ethel or soaring with Sky King or cringing at Eddie Haskell's obnoxious greeting, "Good evening, Mrs. Cleaver?"

How much else do you remember?

The following quiz was based on "The Complete Directory to Prime Time Network TV Shows 1946 - Present," a remarkable treasury of television trivia covering every series that was ever on the air after the hour of 6 p.m. Winner of the 1980 American Book Award for Reference, "The Complete Directory to Prime Time Network TV Shows" by Tim Brooks and Earle Marsh is available in a newly revised and updated edition — including, for the first time, 100 of the all-time top syndicated shows — from Ballantine Books.

- QUESTIONS
- 1) What was prime time TV's first rural situation comedy series?
  - 2) What was the name of the eccentric multi-billionaire, whose face was never seen, on "The Millionaire"?
  - 3) In the mid-1950's, before he got his first starring role on "Route 66," Martin Milner played the boyfriend on two sitcoms. Unlike most boyfriends, he actually got the girl, marrying the series' stars' daughters on both shows. Name them.
  - 4) What two famous rock 'n' roll stars of the late 1950s flunked auditions for "Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts"?
  - 5) When he left "Wagon Train" in 1962, actor Robert Horton vowed he would never do another Western. Three years later, in the only series in which he starred after leaving "Wagon Train," he was in, you guessed it, another Western. What was its title?
  - 6) How did the stars of "Route 66" get from place to place in the adventure series that ran from 1960-1962?
  - 7) June Lockhart is best remembered as the actress who played Ruth Martin on "Lassie," but the part was played by another actress during the first season in which the Martins became Timmy's adoptive parents. Who was she?
  - 8) "Gunsmoke" was the longest-running Western on network TV (20 years), but the longest running Western in all of television was the syndicated anthology series "Death Valley Days." The old Ranger (Stanley Adams) was the host from 1952-1965. Over the next decade four others served as host. Who were they?
  - 9) "The Flintstones" was the most successful animated series on prime time TV, running for six seasons (and on Saturday mornings ever since). What was the live-action series on which "The Flintstones" was based?
  - 10) What were the four "lands" in which various stories were set on "Disneyland"?
  - 11) The highest rating ever for a regular series episode occurred last fall on "Dallas" when J.R.'s assailant was revealed. The record it broke had stood for 13 years. What was the previous record holder for an episode of a regular series?
  - 12) What did the title "Surfside Six" refer to?
  - 13) During the seven years that "The Adventures of Superman" was in production all but one of the principal cast members remained the same. Which character was played by more than one performer and who were the two people who played the role?
  - 14) Composer Henry Mancini achieved his first major commercial success providing the theme and background music for two TV series in the late 1950s. The four record albums he released with the music from the shows were all very popular. What were the two series?
  - 15) Eight years before starring in "I Dream of Jeanie," Barbara Eden was featured in a syndicated sitcom playing a role originated by Marilyn Monroe in the movie on which the TV series was based. What was the series?
  - 16) For 14 seasons the Cartwright family roamed the range of their vast Ponderosa Ranch on "Bonanza." Near what real city was the fictional Ponderosa Ranch located?
  - 17) The family of what deceased gangster sued the producers of "The Untouchables," not for inaccuracy, but for using his likeness and name to make a profit?
  - 18) Burt Reynolds starred or co-starred in three series (other than his supporting role as Quint Asper on "Gunsmoke"). What were they?
  - 19) Edd Byrnes had a hit record titled "Kookie, Kookie, Lend Me Your Comb" while starring on "77 Sunset Strip." Who was the female singer on the record?
  - 20) What was Lucy Ricardo's maiden name on "I Love Lucy"?

TV TRIVIA — Tim Brooks and Earle Marsh, authors of "The Complete Directory to Prime Time Network TV Shows, 1946-present," pose with the "all-seeing eye."

- ANSWERS
- 1) "The Real McCoy"; 2) John Beresford (Tipton); 3) "The Stu Erwin Show" and "The Life of Riley"; 4) Elvis Presley and Buddy Holly; 5) "A Man Called Shenandoah"; 6) in a flashy Corvette convertible; 7) Gloria Leachman (J. Roy "Honey" Mooney); 8) Fantayland, Adventureland, Tomorrowland and Frontierland; 9) The last episode of "The Fugitive"; 10) The telephone exchange that served the location where the houseboat office of the "Surfside Six" detectives was anchored; 11) Lois Lane was played by Phyllis Coates and Noel Neill; 12) "Peter Gunn" and "Mr. Lucky"; 13) "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying"; 14) "The Untouchables"; 15) "The Untouchables"; 16) Virginia City, Nevada; 17) Al Capone; 18) "Riverboat"; 19) "Hawk" and "Dan August"; 20) Connee Stevens; 20) McClellan.

Shareholders tie up loose ends

By JAMES PELTZ AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved into 1982 on a rather dull note, but many stockholders briefly put their holiday season on hold this past week to tie up some important loose ends.

It was a busy week for Sears, Roebuck & Co., the nation's leading general-merchandise retailer that is becoming an industry leader in offering a broad range of financial services.

In Los Angeles, stockholders of Coldwell, Banker & Co., the nation's largest real estate brokerage company, approved their company's acquisition by Chicago-based Sears.

The next day, people owning stock in Dean Witter Reynolds Organization Inc., the fifth-largest U.S. securities firm, also approved their company's purchase by Sears.

In just two days Sears, for an investment of just under $800 million, became a vigorous competitor against other financial services giants such as American Express Co.

and Prudential Insurance Co. of America.

At the same time, holders of Allegheny International Inc. and Sunbeam Corp. were approving, in separate meetings, their companies' merger in a transaction valued at about $550 million.

Allegheny, headquartered in Pittsburgh, already operates in several industries, including metals and consumer products. With Sunbeam, Allegheny now will be a leading maker of small appliances and outdoor products both at home and abroad.

Most Marathon holders, meanwhile, already have tendered their shares to U.S. Steel, but the steelmaker under court order is not allowed to pay them a cent of its $6.3 billion offer until midnight Wednesday.

"Maybe a few bosses will buy it," Coulson said. The author was in Cincinnati on Friday to mark the 55th anniversary of AAA, which promotes out-of-court settlements for disputes through submission to impartial arbitrators.

Coulson said he wrote the book for employees who are fired or about to be fired, and for bosses who must do the firing.

He recommends that workers who sense impending job termination be "up front" with the bosses.

Do those "pinch an inch" commercials depress you? Have you been promising yourself that "this-year-I'm-going-to-exercise-more-and-eat-less"? Then begin today with a sensible diet and exercise plan. And stick to it.

Hannah Coleman, YMCA instructor, demonstrated a few simple but effective exercises to trim those problem areas. Exercise programs should be begun slowly, Ms. Coleman said. Increasing the number of exercises and time of the exercise should be done gradually.

Those who have high blood pressure or who are on medication should consult a doctor before beginning an exercise program, she said.

"Exercise can make you lose inches off your figure, Ms. Coleman said, "but to lose pounds one must cut down on the amount of food consumed."

It is often difficult to exercise faithfully, particularly when exercising alone. The YMCA will begin a Jazzercise class Monday. The class meets each Monday, Tuesday and Thursday from 4:15-5:15 p.m. For more information, contact the YMCA at 267-8234.

FOR HIPS AND LEGS — Side leg raises are one of the ways to firm the hips and legs. Lay on the side, supporting the upper body with the elbow. Begin with legs together, then lift one leg as high as possible. Lower the leg. Repeat 10 times. Change sides and repeat with other leg. Increase number of lifts gradually as strength increases.

FOR UPPER TORSO — For the waist and rib cage area, side stretches are one of the exercises recommended. Begin with hands over the head, then bend at the waist to the right side two times. Return to beginning position and repeat to the left side two times. Alternate 10 times on each side.

FOR STOMACH AND ABDOMEN — The stomach and abdomen are problem areas for many people. To firm the low stomach area, lay on the back with the hands under the largest part of the hips. Bring legs together into the chest, then extend legs out together and just above the floor. Repeat 10 times. Then, in same position, alternate legs to the chest 10 times.

DONKEY KICK — Another exercise for problem hips and thighs is the donkey kick. Begin with hands and knees on floor. Bring one knee to chest, then back and up. Repeat 10 times on each leg.

Overeaters find help in OA

By TINA M. STEFFEN
Lifestyle Writer

People comment, snicker and joke about fat people. But it is no laughing matter to the overweight. Theresa and Bob are compulsive overeaters who joined Overeaters Anonymous (OA). They volunteered to tell of their experiences with obesity and OA. Their names have been changed to protect their anonymity.

Theresa had tried all the new ideas, clinics, diet pills, hypnosis — everything except surgery. She had short-term success in only a few of them. "I had no control over my eating," she said. "I just decided my fate was to be obese for the rest of my life... frustration, pain and anger were to the point where I couldn't take it anymore." She read OA in The Herald's calendar on the front page and decided OA would be her last shot.

When Theresa called for information and went to her first meeting, she realized the people there really understood her and her problem. They knew what she was going through and cared enough to help her. "That was the first time I had ever experienced that... They had something I needed," she said. "OA is a plan that really works... It is a livable, workable plan... Everybody in the group is very supportive."

Bob has been obese all his life. He too had tried diet pills and weight control clinics. "I got to the point where I didn't care," he said. "I'd given up hope on it." A doctor told him about surgery and he tried that. He weighed 354 pounds when he had an intestinal bypass operation. "I was sick for a long time and I lost about 100 pounds and maintained about 250. Then about a year ago the weight started creeping back on and I gained about 50 pounds. When I got over 300, I realized something had to be done." Bob joined a diet group and was doing well with it, but then he started not caring anymore. He had read of OA. He saw OA's meeting announcements in The Herald, waited a couple of weeks and decided to check it out. He has been with it ever since.

COMPULSIVE OVEREATING and obesity are illnesses that clutch thousands of people. The willpower, emotional health, and self-confidence many persons once possessed is no defense against this dangerous illness.

Like many, Theresa had considered suicide. "I saw no reason for me to be here," she said. "I became more of a recluse living in my fat little world. I enjoyed my self-pity. I felt mistreated, neglected and unloved. If I killed myself you just can't face another day. It's like the chicken and the egg... which came first... Do I feel this way because I'm fat or am I fat because I feel this way. I don't know the answer to that and I don't know that I ever will. I'm beginning to accept myself now, whereas before there was total self-rejection and hatred."

OA is identical to Alcoholics Anonymous. OA uses AA's twelve steps and twelve traditions method of recovery. The words "alcohol" and "alcoholic" are changed to "food" and "compulsive eater."

Overeating contributes to illness on three levels according to OA. (1) Emotions: every emotion from agony to ecstasy is met by fleeing to the comfort of food. OA members learn to cope with problems, joys and feelings without soothing themselves with excess food. (2) Spiritual: willpower is rarely attained by overeaters. In OA they admit they are willpowerless over food and need a power outside and greater than themselves as they see it to help them recover. (3) Physical: compulsive overeating usually shows on the outside of a person. OA's deal with methods by which they "eat to live" and never again have to "live to eat."

OA is not a diet and calories club. Members follow individual meal plans consisting of three moderate meals a day. Between meals, only low-calorie beverages are allowed.

OA first admit they are powerless over food and that they need a power outside themselves to help them recover. The power can be God, the OA group or whatever power the person believes in. By practicing the steps, the symptoms of overeating are removed one day at a time.

The primary concern of OA is with feelings that lie behind overeating. Members learn self-discipline and to take one day and one pound at a time. Telephone calls reassure members on the verge of faltering.

At the meetings, "You can get problems out in the open... You can say what you want to say," Bob said. "Nobody is going to hit you over the head with a frying pan or anything. It (OA) is a group of people that care. There is a lot of care in other groups and organizations, but you don't have the opportunity to state your mind and there is not the close unity as there is in OA." Members are given lists of people they can call anytime of the day. "When you are grossly overweight, you become a recluse... It is hard to get on the telephone and call someone," Bob said. "The first day after the meeting, I got about three or four phone calls from people just wanting to talk. I figured as long as there are people caring and people I can carry my problems to when I have problems, then I'm sure I can make it."

"The main secret to success in OA," Bob said, "is the support you get from everyone else. Turn it all over to a higher power of your own understanding... and letting Him (the power) run it and the support of the other people, you can make it one day at a time."

Theresa has lost 24 pounds in five weeks. "I've taken baby steps as far as personal growth is concerned, but it is more progress than I have had at any other time. I have more insight into why I am the way I am and accept myself as the way I am," she said. "It's learning to have some self-love and acceptance and not so much anger and guilt. OA is a way of life. It does not even compare to other programs, such as weight loss clinics." Theresa feels she is recovering. "It is a scary thing to start the day and start eating and you suddenly realize you cannot stop," she said. "So many people do not have the concept of what it is like not being able to stop... They say all you need is a little willpower. To me the biggest step is when I realized I don't have any willpower and I'm acceptable that way and it's okay."

"If I'm alone when I get hungry, that is when I'm most susceptible to fail," Bob said. "I have to get out and meet people and just get away from being alone in my apartment."

Bob lost seven pounds in three weeks. "I find a calmness about myself," he said. "I don't get as uptight about things. I'm learning to take it one day at a time, sometimes one hour at a time. I have good days and bad days... times when I get hungry and times when I don't."

"It is a lot easier to do than anything I've ever done... We all know how to lose weight... We are professionals at it. That's not the problem. The problem is finding out how to live with it. Find out what our problem is, what causes it and once we find out what our problems are, we can change them," Bob said.

"OA deals with the compulsiveness of eating no matter which way that compulsiveness goes." Karen, a spokesperson for OA, said. "There are many members all across the nation who have Anorexia Nervosa. Anorexics are also obsessed with food and dieting. They eat compulsively and then try to eliminate all they have eaten. They are starving themselves to death."

"The only requirement of OA is the desire to stop eating compulsively," Karen said. "There is no weighing at the meetings and members are encouraged not to weigh more than once a month compulsively. There is no pressure and the members do not belittle someone if they lose their abstinence. It is a non-profit organization and there are no dues."

OA meetings are held on Mondays at 7 p.m. at the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center and Wednesdays at 1:30 p.m. at First United Methodist Church in the library. For more information call Karen at 267-3740 or Doris at 263-2303.

Balanced diet best says dietitian

Skipping meals, not the answer

By TINA MILLER
Lifestyle Editor

If you're thinking of dieting to make up for all the splurging you did during the holidays, you should know there is a right way and a wrong way to lose those unwanted pounds.

Joyce Mills, dietary director at Malone-Hogan Hospital, says that a nutritionally balanced diet that includes proper amounts of the four basic food groups (milk, breads and cereal, fruits and vegetables) should be divided into at least three meals a day.

This balanced diet, Ms. Mills said, includes two eight-ounce servings from the milk group; four servings from the bread and cereal group (one slice of bread per serving, or one-half to one cup cereal); four one-half cup servings of cooked or raw fruits or vegetables (one serving must be a citrus fruit and one serving must be a dark green or yellow vegetable); and two three-ounce servings of meat or meat substitute (peanut butter, fish, chicken, eggs, cheese).

Skipping meals or eating only one meal a day is not the answer to a weight problem, Ms. Mills said. Between-meal snacks are acceptable only if they are planned in such a way that they do not add to the daily calorie limit. If, for example, you need a bedtime snack, eliminate one serving of bread from a meal and eat it before bedtime.

It is possible to diet without being hungry, according to Ms. Mills.

JOYCE MILLS
...dietitian

Eating raw fruits and vegetables is best because they are more filling. Foods with high fiber content are filling because fiber expands and absorbs fluid. Chef salads, for example, have high fiber content and make the person feel full for a long period of time. Juices, while they can be nutritious, are not filling. "Don't use the juice when you can use the apple because the apple will keep you going longer," she said. Fried foods and rich, heavy foods should be avoided as much as possible, of course. However, if you must have something sweet, Ms. Mills said, eat small portions of sherbet or unfrosted cake.

Though eating properly is probably the simplest method of weight loss, many people become impatient to lose more weight quickly and resort to fad diets. "People do a great deal of physical harm in fad diets," Ms. Mills said. "Most are not nutritionally adequate. If you throw the metabolic balance (of the body) off, the body doesn't function as well."

A slow eight loss (usually 1 1/2 pounds per week), is best, she said, unless the person is under strict medical supervision. Age and activity level should be considered when determining rate of weight loss and exercise is very important to any weight loss program. Contrary to popular belief, moderate exercise decreases, rather than increases, the appetite.

Another key to weight loss is to eat slowly, Ms. Mills said. Persons should usually take 20-30 minutes for each meal.

Americans as a nation should decrease their intake of fats, salt and sugar and increase the amount of fiber in the diet, Ms. Mills said.

"I think dieting can be exciting and it can be fun," Ms. Mills said. Experimenting with spices, salads, cooking on a grill and using the stir fry method of cooking can make eating right an enjoyable experience.

Want to find out how big a benefit your pension will deliver when you retire? It's easy; just ask your employer, says the American Council of Life Insurance. Federal law requires that your employer provide you with a pension summary if you request it. If the summary shows you are vested, you can find what you will get at retirement even if you quit your job today.

Companions aid mothers

Research says women who have companionship during childbirth often experience faster, easier deliveries, reports Dorothy Taylor, a family life education specialist on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

MRS. DAVID BERTON VICKERS
...formerly Carrie Lyn Wheeler

Wheeler-Vickers

Carrie Lyn Wheeler and David Berton Vickers exchanged wedding vows Saturday evening in First Baptist Church. Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor, performed the 7:30 p.m. rite before a background of flowering trees and Greek columns. The scene was lighted by groupings of candles, and arrangements of mixed flowers completed the setting.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Wheeler, 1707 Harvard. Martha June Moreheart, Andrews, is the bridegroom's mother.

Music was performed by The Thouvenel, a string quartet from Midland, and Larry Wheat, pianist. Debra Patchell, Midland, was vocalist.

The bride wore a formal-length gown featuring a bodice of imported, re-embroidered gauze lace. The V-neckline was fashioned of soft ruffles and the full sleeves were also ruffled. The drop tiered skirt of bridal satin was accented at the waist with a pleated cummerbund. She wore a headpiece of intertwined blown glass and satin ribbon.

The bride carried a cascade of gardenias, stephanotis and dieffenbachia.

Beverly Wheeler, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Janis Kuykendall, Wichita, Kan., was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Lisa Wheeler, Claremore, Okla., sister-in-law of the bride; Lisa Shipp, Houston, cousin of the bride; Laurie Churchwell, Lubbock; and Sally Page Stuck, Irving.

Wayne Williams, Odessa, was best man. Groomsmen and ushers were Woody Clary, Monahans; Kyle Wheeler, Claremore, Okla., brother of the bride; J. Wray Warren, Austin; Dalton Wheeler, and Cullen Shipp, cousins of the bride, Houston.

Following the ceremony, the couple was honored with a reception in the church Parlor. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth and teal blue underlay. The three-tiered cake was decorated with angel musicians and cherubs and sprinkled with white glitter.

The bridegroom's table was covered by an off-white cloth and teal blue throw. A pineapple pound cake in the shape of two intertwined rings was served. Marzipan strawberries surrounded the base of the cake, and a brass candleholder centered the table.

Serving at the reception were Mrs. Alton Wheeler, Pasadena, Mrs. L.K. Gladden, Mrs. Leon Taylor, Mrs. Don Priddy, Mrs. Wayne Speegle, Mrs. Herb Miller, Mrs. James Gregg, Mrs. Curt Strong and Mrs. Glen Rex, Andrews. Mrs. Karen Standefer, Lenora, registered guests.

The bridegroom's mother hosted a rehearsal dinner Friday evening at the Holiday Inn. Approximately 30 guests attended.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and University of Texas at the Permian Basin, Odessa. She works as an advertising consultant for radio station KOYL-KUFO in Odessa.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Andrews High School and is an accounting major at UTPB.

Following a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the couple will reside in Odessa.

High blood pressure incurable

In most cases high blood pressure is a lifelong disease and is usually incurable, reports Dr. Mary Ann Shirer, a health education specialist.

"If your doctor tells you your high blood pressure is down to normal, you aren't cured. It merely means that since you're taking your medication and have done the things your doctor advised, you are controlling — not curing — your high blood pressure," she explains.

In order to enjoy a full and healthy life, continue to follow the doctor's treatment plan, she encourages.

Shirer is with the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

MR. AND MRS. HARVEY JOE MANSFIELD
...wed in Hillcrest Baptist

Bell-Mansfield

Donna Lou Bell became the bride of Harvey Joe Mansfield in a ceremony held Dec. 18 in Hillcrest Baptist Church. The Rev. Phillip McClendon, pastor, officiated the 7 p.m. rite.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Billy M. Bell, 2903 Cactus, and B.H. Mansfield, Coahoma.

The couple stood before an archway entwined with peach, lilac and mint carnations, greenery and baby's breath. Columns topped by baskets of flowers flanked the archway, and a unity candle and spiral candelabra completed the setting.

Music was performed by Mona Portillo, pianist, and Mrs. Bill Fryrear, organist. Dale Pittman, Randy Anderson and Barbara Kennedy were vocalists.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal-length gown of cotton lace, organza and nylon. The gown featured lace appliques, beaded trim on the Queen Anne neckline and a fitted bodice. The sheer bishop sleeves ended in lace cuffs and the full skirt fell to a chapel-length train. A veil of nylon net edged in lace completed the ensemble.

The bride carried a cascade of white silk carnations, peach, lilac and mint rose buds. The bouquet was carried atop a white Bible.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I started taking diet pills two years ago. They killed my hunger and made me feel great. Too great—that was the trouble. By nighttime I was overstimulated and couldn't sleep, so I started taking sleeping pills. Then more diet pills the next day. I soon found myself so hooked I couldn't stop. (As a registered nurse, I should have known better.)

Finally my nerves were shot from all the highs and lows, and I knew something had to be done. Even though I'm not a religious person, I did something I hadn't done in years. I prayed. And by God (literally) I somehow found the strength to take all those pills and flush them down the toilet!

I'd be lying if I said the next few weeks were easy. I've never had two more difficult weeks in all my life. More than once I was tempted to get more pills, but I prayed for the strength to keep me from it, and miraculously the strength came to me!

It's been five months since I've taken a pill, and I feel like a new person. I'm "high" on being free from artificial stimulation, which always ends in depression.

I know all of this is too long for your column, Abby, but I hope you'll find space to print part of it. I'm sure there are

Nurse Finds Prayer Power Stronger Than Pill Power

Others out there who are hooked as much as I was, and if I could kick the habit with prayer, so can they. Sign me... FREE IN TUCSON

DEAR FREE: Your inspiring message is well worth the space in this column. Thanks for confirming that the power of prayer can move mountains.

DEAR ABBY: Your flippant answer to "For Natural Family Planning" reflects the pill-pushing, mechanical-solution mentality of Planned Parenthood. It also puts down women by implying that the majority of us are not intelligent enough to read clear signals from our own bodies. Certainly some abstinence and self-control are necessary for natural family planning to succeed, but implying that this is such a great hardship reduces humans to little more than animals in heat. Besides, Abby, a little "Abstinence makes the heart grow fonder."

ALSO FOR NATURAL FAMILY PLANNING

DEAR ALSO: The Planned Parenthood people wrote me to ask that I recommend natural family planning as a safe, effective alternative to other methods of birth control.

ENGAGED — Mrs. Billy R. Hughes, Midland, announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Gina Denise, to Larry Clark Morrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Don Hughes, 1401 Nolan. The couple will wed Jan. 29 in First United Methodist Church. The Rev. Keith Wiseman, pastor, will officiate.

Birth order can affect marriage, job success

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Big sister, kid brother. Baby of the family. Only child. All of these are labels we learn to live with while growing up. But did you know that your particular position in your family can have an important effect on everything from the success of your future marriage to the success of your career?

Below are some theories about birth order that may help you better understand your role in and out of the family.

• The best marriages are made between "completely complementary siblings" — say, between the older brother of sisters and the younger sister of brothers. An older brother of sisters, for example, is used to dealing with a younger girl who accepts his guidance and control, and a younger sister of brothers is accustomed to accepting the guidance and control of an older male. If all other things are equal, the divorce rates among such couples should be relatively low.

• People who marry their counterparts — say, an older sister of sisters who marries an older brother of brothers — are more apt to get a divorce, eventually. That's because both husband and wife attempt to assume the leadership role.

• You often get along best with the parent who has the same sibling position you do. For instance, if you and your mother are both oldest sisters, you're likely to be receptive to each other's needs and problems.

• A small age difference between two siblings — one or two years — will create more conflicts between them than a large age gap.

• Are you a middle child? You're apt to have more problems than most other children, because you have both older siblings to boss you and younger siblings to take attention away from you.

• The only child may be surprised at the competition she finds once she gets to school. Since she's been used to having the attention of her parents, she may be content with just the attention of her teacher and prefer to detach herself from the power struggles going on among her classmates.

Cured, smoked chicken can be stored

COLLEGE STATION — Keep delicious cured or smoked chicken right at your fingertips by storing it in the freezer.

Cured or smoked chicken can be kept in a freezer without losing taste or quality for up to a year, points out Dr. James H. Denton, poultry marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

It can be kept safely in the refrigerator for up to two weeks but should be frozen after that, the specialist says.

Denton explains that cured chicken has been soaked or injected with a brine of salt, sugar and nitrate and that the nitrate acts as a preservative to slow bacterial growth.

Focus on family living

Cleaning vital on antiques

By JANET ROGERS,
County Extension Agent

Is your latest find at the antique shop a gorgeous antique trunk? If so, one of the first things you need to do is clean it.

First focus your efforts on the inside of the trunk. If interior paper or fabric liners are in poor condition and need to be replaced, strip them away from the wooden frame. Removal of paper and fabric is easier if hot vinegar is brushed or sponged on surfaces to loosen the glue. Vinegar only helps to weaken the glue so fabric and paper may be easily pulled or scraped loose, it also helps to reduce musty odors. Where metal parts or staves are fitted over paper, fabric or heavy canvas, cut around the area with a razor knife before wetting down for easier removal.

Pictures, labels or other printed materials that are in good condition and will enhance character and value of the trunk should be left in place.

Protect these areas by covering them with a clear plastic film. A clear protective spray available from art and hobby shops or clear adhesive backed plastic may be used.

Interior fabrics and papers that are in good condition and will be retained should be vacuumed with a brush attachment to remove dust and dirt. Move the trunk to the garage or a protected outdoor area so that it may be exterminated to kill moths, silverfish, and other insects.

Apply a household insecticide containing dursban or diazinon into cracks and crevices of the trunk bottom, lid, trays and other compartments.

Close the lid and leave the trunk undisturbed for 12 hours. Air the trunk before proceeding with renovation and repairs.

Ever wondered why some dinnerware patterns seem to be around forever, while others are only available for a few years? The tabletop industry resembles the fashion industry, in that each year new styles are introduced which reflect the changing tastes of society.

Out of necessity, the less popular or slower selling patterns are discontinued to make way for exciting new looks. Most reputable companies include in their catalogs a list of patterns to be discontinued during the upcoming 2 1/2 year period.

Be sure to check with us here at the ACCENT SHOPPE at least once a year to make sure your pattern is still on the active list. This way, you'll never be caught without that last cup and saucer to complete your set!
