BUSY SEASON — January is a busy time of the year for employees at the West Texas Industries cotton compress on North West 10th. Employees there have been tagging, weighing and sampling cotton brought from area gins, according to manager Gary Ludwig. The compress will then store the cotton while farmers await orders for shipping the cotton, Ludwig said. He called the recent cotton harvest "a good year" and said the employees were working "at full swing" due to the large crop, some of which is pictured above.

Sheedy new mall manager

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce has lost an officer, but the Big Spring Mall has gained a manager, according to chamber vice president Larry Tilley. Mark Sheedy has resigned from his chamber job as assistant manager to accept the managerial position with the new mall, Tilley said.

"Mark has a good deal for him, but it's bad for us. It is a good thing he is still in the community and we can still use him. He will represent the mall well," said Tilley.

Argerie Wiley, director of marketing at Alhinder-Bramaha Shopping Center, the mall developer, said Sheedy has a strong relationship with the Big Spring community.

"Mark is familiar with the community and was the best representative we could choose to manage the Big Spring Mall," Ms. Wiley said.

"We are very pleased to announce that Mark will be managing the new mall, which is scheduled to have its formal opening March 3. His immediate duties will be to work with the new tenants and get the stores situated for the opening," she said.

Sheedy told The Herald today the mall manager position "is a new challenge for me. The job offers security — important since Ann and I are expecting a baby in February. I'm looking forward to working with the people of Big Spring, whom I've known all my life as I was born and raised here."

Sheedy expressed regret at having to leave his chamber of commerce position, saying, "The chamber has been a lot of fun. It has instilled in me great pride in Big Spring. I've enjoyed working with people through the chamber and am looking forward to serving on chamber committees."

The mall will be a wonderful addition to the community and will complement the existing merchants, Sheedy said. According to the trade publication, "National Mall Monitor," Alhinder-Bramaha is one of the top fifty shopping center development corporations in the country.

"I'm looking forward to working for Alhinder-Bramaha — an aggressive company that will be good for the community," Sheedy said. "I'll continue to be involved in the mall. I invite everyone to the opening March 3."

Joel Perez gets his name cleared

By BILL ELDER
Staff Writer

The fingerprints solved it. Late last month The Herald reported on the strange story of Joel Perez, a Big Springer who was stopped for speeding on Highway 87 earlier in December and told by the Texas Department of Public Safety that his driving privilege had been revoked after a conviction for driving while intoxicated.

Perez denied that his license had been suspended and that he had been convicted of driving while intoxicated. He offered proof — work sheets from Moran Brothers drilling company — that he was in Amarillo just a few hours before he was allegedly arrested and charged with DWI in Nueces County on Oct. 19, 1981.

He found support in his bail bondsman, Milton Lozano, and County Attorney Robert Miller, whose office investigated the case and came to the conclusion that either there were two Joel Perezes born on the same day in the same county or else there was a real Joel Perez and a bogus Joel Perez claiming to have been born in Nueces County on July 3, 1954.

County Judge Bill Tune believed

Perez, too, and issued a court order to the DPS stating that it should return Perez' driver's license to him and clear the DWI conviction and license suspension from his record.

It was the other Perez, Tune and Miller believed, who had been convicted of DWI and had his driving privilege revoked.

The Howard County highway patrol office returned the license shortly after the court order was issued and cleared Perez' record Dec. 22, according to a letter reportedly sent to Perez on that date from the DPS.

After questioning whether it had in fact mined the driving records of two Joel Perezes, the DPS issued the list of those who believed Perez when it obtained fingerprints from the law enforcement agency in Nueces County which arrested the other Perez, said Vernon Cole, a spokesman for the DPS in Austin.

The prints didn't match the prints taken from the Big Spring Joel Perez, he said.

Cole said he sent the letter to Perez informing him that the DWI conviction would be cleared from his record.

"The department maintains the driving record of over 16 million licensed drivers in our state and regrets this entry was made in error onto your record," Cole reportedly said in his letter.

The license suspension apparently was wiped from his record too, according to a DPS spokeswoman who looked at Perez' file upon a Herald request.

So it turned out, from an official point of view, that indeed there are two Joel Perezes who happened to get their driving records mixed up in the DPS' computer files.

"We have that happen," said Cole. "It's unusual, but it does happen."

But were the two Perezes born on the same day in the same county? Or is the other Perez using identification papers for the Big Spring Perez — perhaps in the form of documents sold to an illegal alien?

Says the wife of the local Perez, Erlinda: "I don't think it's really cleared up. (The DPS in) Austin is saying he was born in 1954, but (state Rep. Larry Don Shaw's) office checked and said he was born in 1955."

Shaw's office entered the case at Erlinda's behest "because I wasn't satisfied," she said. "I wanted to find out more about this guy."

As Joel and Erlinda probe the case further, they have the satisfaction of knowing that at least three distinctions exist to separate the two Perezes: the fingerprints, different Social Security numbers and, now, the difference in birth dates, which Erlinda said was discovered by Shaw's office after checking with the city of Corpus Christi in Nueces County.

(The Herald was told by county officials that only one Joel Perez was born in Nueces County on July 3, 1954. The city of Corpus Christi keeps separate vital statistics from the county and has no record of a Joel Perez being born in the city on that day, city officials said.)

"The state representative's office is trying to get the year's distinction entered into the other guy's record," Erlinda said.

"Now that this distinction has been made, this should never happen again," she said. "And that's what we were worried about — what if this other guy went out and killed somebody, and they thought Joel did it?"

Texas oil firm named in fraud suit

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Parishioners dipped into their life savings and took out second mortgages on their homes to raise cash to invest in a sweet-sounding oil and gas investment deal in 1979. Three years later, they're still waiting for their bonanza.

The members of the Conway Assembly of God are part of a group of 19 investors who have filed suit in Texas, claiming they were defrauded of more than $100,000. Investors say at least 600 shares in oil and gas wells were sold across the country, at an average of $2,500 apiece.

The suit alleges that three Texas oil firms and six individuals — including two Orlando men — conspired to sell unregistered securities and misrepresented the sale of "working interests" in the wells drilled in 1978 and 1979.

Two investors, who asked not to be identified, told the Orlando Sentinel Star in an interview Sunday that they bought shares after being solicited by financial analyst John Little of Orlando. One woman said she took out a second mortgage on her home and sold an insurance policy to raise more than $15,000 to buy an interest in the well.

"We risked everything," the woman said. "It was for an extra income for retirement."

The suit filed in state district court in Austin, asks for an unspecified amount in damages, including interest on payments made to the companies — Burden Petroleum of Clifton, Texas; Nicholas Petroleum, Inc. of Abilene, Texas; and Mariah Oil and Gas Corp. of Houston.

The suit says the three firms leased and operated several West Texas wells.

Also named in the suit were Little and his son, Steve, both of Orlando, who are alleged to have "principally conducted" sales promotions for the wells in Florida.

Little claims to be the largest interest holder in the wells in the southeastern United States. He called the lawsuit a "premature gyrations" by investors who are "tired of waiting" for a return on their money. "The whole thing (the suit) is downright crazy. I wish these people would leave these companies alone out there and let them work instead of using their resources to defend themselves," he said.

Members of the Conway Assembly of God began investing in the wells when Little told a friend who was a prominent member of the church, about the project. Later, other church members invested.

Buyers were told at the time of purchase that they could expect a return on their initial investment within two years. "I pointed out to customers that the investment wasn't for just anybody," said Little.

Mike Wynn, investigative coordinator for the Department of Banking and Finance in the Florida Comptroller's Office, said his agency is conducting a "preliminary investigation" into possible securities violations by Nicholas and Burden. He would not elaborate.

C-City chief notes drop in violent crime

By MARGARET BAUM
Herald Correspondent

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The year 1981 is history and as far as crime is concerned, Colorado City Police Chief Jimmy Roundtree says it was fairly brisk in 1981; however, violent crime is down from a year ago.

According to Roundtree, "There were no murders or robberies during 1981. Our department did investigate 45 burglaries, eight auto thefts, 15 assaults, one rape, one attempted rape and one sex-related crime. We also investigated 294 accidents, 275 other criminal activities and made 249 arrests during 1981."

Roundtree continued, "Personnel-wise we had a big turnover due mostly to men leaving to take better-paying jobs. We seldom have a full staff and we certainly stay busy. We're operating with a staff of four and have three openings."

In conclusion Roundtree said "Most of our applicants are uncertified and, of course, they must be certified. So that means they attend the West Texas Council of Governments in Abilene for eight weeks and two days.

Currently we have one applicant for our openings and he is uncertified."

Roundtree sees the pattern of criminal activity decreasing from the more violent crimes of the past to less violent types and "we hope the pattern continues," he said.

Roundtree began his work in 1977 as a patrolman and assumed his duties as police chief Feb. 7, 1981.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: THP or DPS?

Q. Is a Texas highway patrolman the same as a Department of Public Safety trooper?

A. The highway patrol is a division of the Texas Department of Public Safety, so either title does apply. According to Patrolman Bill Jennings of the Department of Public Safety highway patrol office in Big Spring, the formal usage should be Department of Public Safety.

Polish premier expected to fight NATO sanctions

By The Associated Press

Polish Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski, meeting today with Western European diplomats in Warsaw, was expected to argue against the Western allies joining the United States in an economic squeeze on his martial law regime.

In Brussels, Italian Foreign Minister Emilio Colombo today told his nine Common Market counterparts that they should be unified and end all but direct food assistance to the Polish people until Jaruzelski produces guarantees the "repression" of Poland's martial law will be lifted.

"Without this (unity) we will confirm two very grave facts," Colombo said, "the indirect acceptance of the Polish repression and the division of the West." A text of his statement, for delivery at the closed door meeting, was released to the press.

Jaruzelski, head of the military council now ruling Poland, ordered martial law Dec. 13 in what he called an alternative to civil war. The regime moved swiftly to establish order in the workplaces, plagued by strikes since the independent trade union Solidarity was established in August 1980 and began demanding liberalization and reforms.

Radio Warsaw said all factories, administrative offices and public transport in the capital were operating normally today, the first work day of the new year. Broadcasts monitored in London also said most schools reopened "after 20 days' holiday."

Uncensored reports from Poland said 20 closed factories and industrial plants were to reopen today following attempts to purge unionists who led strikes in defiance of martial law.

There were no immediate reports on labor conditions outside the capital today.

Thief returns snakes

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Dave Blody found 10 snakes at his front door and was delighted. But he would have been happier if there had been 11.

Blody is a herpetologist at the Fort Worth Zoo and the reptiles were 10 of 11 non-poisonous snakes stolen from the zoo Wednesday. The snakes were placed in a box at Blody's front door Saturday, along with an apologetic letter from the thief.

The letter-writer wrote that he was sorry he stole the snakes," said Blody.

He said a man telephoned his house Saturday afternoon to say the snakes had been left at the house, and then called again "to make sure that all the snakes had been returned to the zoo."

Blody said the caller sounded like "a teen-age man between 17 and 19 years old."

"He probably knew something about snakes because he took the creme de la creme of our collection," Blody said.

Schmidt, Reagan to meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, back home in the White House after a week-long vacation in California, has a full work menu for the week ahead. Not all of it is tasty.

There is lunch with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, with whom Reagan has differed over the Soviet role in the Polish crisis.

There are some final decisions to be made on the 1983 fiscal budget.

There is a National Security Council meeting on Poland.

There is a likely meeting to discuss a proposal to return certain federal tax revenues to the states.

And there is a meeting with Richard V. Allen, who has shown no public sign of willingly giving up his job as national security adviser despite signals from White House aides that he is on the way out.

"He's got a lot to do when he gets back," deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Sunday as the president flew home from his sixth vacation in California since taking office a little over 11 months ago.

Sign Language

MONTH

Debbie Burnaman, student at the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, signs "month" in the photo here.

To sign month, the left index finger is held up, palm facing to the right, as shown. Then, the right index finger is moved from the tip of the left finger down to the last joint.

To sign the word "monthly," repeat the sign several times.

BIG POT BUST — Los Angeles Police Department Deputy Chief of Special Investigations Lew Ritter looks over some of the $15 million worth marijuana found in a warehouse raided by Los Angeles narcotics officers Sunday near downtown Los Angeles. Joining Los Angeles Police officers in the raid were U.S. Customs Patrol, Coast Guard and Drug Enforcement Administration personnel. They seized 5,000 pounds of marijuana, four trucks, two cars and radio equipment to monitor police broadcasts.

Police Beat

Western wear store robbed

Big Spring Police Department personnel are investigating an alleged burglary at Hillman's Saddlery and Western Wear, in which $3,542 worth of items were taken. The incident allegedly took place about 1:39 a.m. today, according to police reports. The shop is located at 4000 E. F.M. 700. Jon Hillman is owner of the store.

Hillman told The Herald today that men's coats, hat pins, sterling silver letters, boots, ladies' shirts and a belt buckle are missing following the incident. Police reports indicate the burglars shut off the power to the building, then removed the front doors of the building. They then are believed to have entered the building and removed the articles to at least two vehicles waiting outside. The vehicles allegedly left the scene by traveling east.

● A prisoner in city jail told officers he was assaulted by another prisoner about 18 a.m. Sunday.

● Leon H. Hastings, who had been arrested and jailed for public intoxication, reportedly told police that John D. Hyden Jr. assaulted him. Hyden had been jailed following charges of aggravated assault and aggravated assault on a police officer Saturday night, police said.

● Marj Walsh Willinson, 705 Creighton, told police that someone threatened her at 3:10 a.m. Sunday at her home.

● Mitchell Ray Covington, also of 705 Creighton, told police that at the same time a subject known to him used Kung Fu to beat him on the head and shoulders in the front yard of his residence.

● Ronda Newsom, 1604 11th Pl., told police that someone threw several eggs on her automobile which was parked in front of her residence, between 1 a.m. and 3:30 a.m. Sunday.

● Dennis Ray Nixon was arrested in the 1300 block of Gregg about 2:10 a.m. Sunday and charged with disorderly conduct, police said.

● Police reports allege that Nixon used obscene language toward officers Scott McKnight and C.O. Boyd in front of the Phunhaus. He was handcuffed and placed in the back seat of a police cruiser, and then used his feet to kick out the rear driver's side window, police said.

Texas Capitol prepares for 6-year birthday bash

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' old pink granite Capitol is about to have a 100th birthday that will last, off and on, for about six years.

The first centennial celebration comes Feb. 1 to mark the 100th anniversary of the ground-breaking in 1882. The second centennial fete will mark the 100th year since the cornerstone was laid March 2, 1885.

And the third centennial celebration will mark the dedication of the building May 16, 1888.

All of the plans are in conjunction with Texas' big plans for a Sesquicentennial in 1986 to observe the 150th anniversary of Texas independence declared in 1836.

Big plans are being made by the Capitol Centennial Committee, headed by the governor's wife, Rita Clements, and by the Texas Sesquicentennial Commission.

The lord provost of Aberdeen, Scotland, Alexander Collie, will be a guest of honor for the Feb. 1 along a troop of Scottish bagpipe players and dancers. Special honors will be paid the 62 masons who were imported from Scotland to shape the massive granite blocks.

The Texas Capitol, after 100 years, is still one of the top tourist attractions in the state. Several thousand Texans and out-of-state visitors flock through the corridors each month, often as many as 200 a day.

The legislative Tour Guide Service and the state highway department's travel service maintain permanent quarters in the Capitol providing information and tours, including Saturdays and Sundays.

A special exhibit of artifacts and articles connected with this Capitol and those that preceded is on display on the third floor of the Capitol.

Another display case just outside the door to the House reminds visitors of Texas' symbols — the state flower, bird, song, tree and seal. The state's official motto is "Friendship," coming from the Indian word "Tejas" which means friendship.

Barge that hit drawbridge still burning

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Two small explosions, shooting flames about 50 feet in the air, has given new life to a smoldering fire on a barge that hit a drawbridge, a Coast Guard official said today.

The Coast Guard had hoped the fire would burn itself out sometime today, but the 4:30 a.m. explosions may leave the barge burning another 24 hours, the official said.

Duty Officer Lt. J.G. McHenry also said that the six to 12 families evacuated from their homes in Virginia Point because of toxic fumes from the fire have not been allowed to return to their homes.

Specialists from Monsanto Corp., owners of the barge, are on the scene monitoring air quality and say no toxic fumes pose a threat to the area.

● Gloria Munoz, 815 Creighton, told police that between 1:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. Sunday, a person or persons unknown to her broke out a bedroom window, a bathroom window, and cut the screen door at her residence. Damage was estimated at $60.

● Terah Armstrong, 2401 Marshall, told police that at about 7:30 p.m. Sunday in front of the Ritz Theater, 400 Main, she left her car for about 10 minutes and went into the theater. During that time, someone allegedly took her purse from the automobile. The purse contained her checkbook and about $30 in cash. She told police her driver's license was later found at Lee's Chinese Garden, police said.

● Danny Lee Eagle, 1604 Wren, told police at 3:15 p.m. Sunday that a person known to him used an offensive gesture and vulgar language to Eagle and his wife at 17th and Gregg.

● Mary Cuellar, 702 Douglas, told police that someone stole a sleeping bag and a suitcase filled with items for a baby from the bed of a pickup truck parked in front of a room at the Sands Motel, between 7 p.m. Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday.

● Marj Walsh Willinson, 705 Creighton, told police that someone threatened her at 3:10 a.m. Sunday at her home.

● Mitchell Ray Covington, also of 705 Creighton, told police that at the same time a subject known to him used Kung Fu to beat him on the head and shoulders in the front yard of his residence.

● Ronda Newsom, 1604 11th Pl., told police that someone threw several eggs on her automobile which was parked in front of her residence, between 1 a.m. and 3:30 a.m. Sunday.

● Carolina Rojo, 200 N.E. Third, told police that someone took a 19-inch color television from her home sometime between Dec. 23 and 10:50 p.m. Saturday. The television was valued at $585, police said.

New savings plan begins

In an effort to keep up with rising interest rates, Citizens Federal Credit Union in Big Spring began offering PLUS accounts Jan. 1.

These new accounts, which allow current and potential members the opportunity to earn up to 12 percent on their savings, were designed to encourage members to increase their savings and to provide savers a better return on their money.

Jim Weaver, general manager of the credit union, said "the new PLUS accounts at Citizens are fairly easy to understand. Under this program," he explained, "members who deposit a minimum of $2,500 to the new PLUS accounts, while keeping a minimum of $500 in regular shares, can now earn up to 12 percent on their savings."

When asked how the rates would be set on the new accounts, Weaver said the rates would be set at three percent below the cost of federal funds with a legal maximum rate of 12 percent. So, if the cost of the federal funds was 13 percent, the rate on the PLUS accounts would be 10 percent. If the cost was 16 percent, the rate would be set at the maximum of 12 percent. The rate last week was set at 9.5 percent on the new accounts.

Dividends on the new PLUS accounts will be calculated daily and compounded weekly, with the new rates going into effect the first working day of each week. Since the dividends are calculated daily, there's no maturity on the new PLUS accounts — and no penalty should a member ever decide to close his or her account.

According to federal guidelines, each member's account is insured up to an aggregate of $100,000 by NCUA, an agency of the federal government.

The new PLUS accounts offered by Citizens Federal Credit Union said to be the first of such accounts to be offered by a financial institution in Big Spring and are indicative of recent market conditions. These accounts are expected to give more of an edge to savers while providing additional funds for borrowers.

1,281 aided with donations

A total of $17,373.53 was raised by the local Salvation Army in its Christmas campaign, according to Lt. Carroll Braun, commanding officer of the Big Spring SA office.

The amount was $2,626.47 less than last year's total, Braun said.

The Salvation Army was able to help out 1,281 persons with the donations, providing them with food baskets, toys and gifts to institutions, he said.

Additionally, the SA provided 497 persons with lodging and 1,903 meals during the month of December, Braun added.

"We are grateful for the privilege of being able to do this," Braun said, "and for the support of the community that makes this 'year-round' work possible."

Chamber mulls customer plan

The Business Committee of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce will meet at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the chamber office, 215 W. Third, according to George Weeks, chairman of the committee.

During the meeting, members will discuss a customer development seminar to be conducted by Joel R. Combs. Combs will be at Tuesday's meeting to discuss possible times and dates for the seminar, which is designed for retailers.

Items to be included in the seminar are personal attitude development, personal relations effectiveness, sales skills, goal-setting, time management and memory development.

The committee also will reorganize the "Merchants Alert" program, regarding bad checks and credit cards.

Also on the agenda is a discussion of a city-wide retail promotion similar to the Centennial sale. A possible Washington's birthday sale, Feb. 15-22, will be mulled.

43 die in Texas traffic

Traffic accidents killed at least 43 people in Texas during the New Year's weekend, five more than had been predicted by the Texas Department of Public Safety.

The counting period for the holiday weekend began at 6 p.m. Thursday and ended at midnight Sunday, but DPS spokesman Larry Todd said some fatalities might not be reported until later in the week.

Of the 43 people reported killed, 12 were pedestrians, 19 died in two-vehicle accidents and a dozen were killed in single-vehicle crashes, the DPS said.

The latest deaths reported by the DPS were: —Two pedestrians hit by a car about 7:30 p.m. Sunday six miles south of San Angelo on Loop 306. The two men were not immediately identified.

Weather is blamed for 30 holiday deaths

By The Associated Press
A winter storm blanketed the nation's midsection with up to a foot of snow, tornadoes touched down in the South and fog shrouded the mid-Atlantic Coast — a potpourri of weekend weather that caused at least 30 deaths.

In eastern Maine, 20,000 people spent the weekend in 10-degree weather without electricity after a raging snowstorm. Power was restored to all but the most isolated homes late Sunday and early today, utility officials said.

Thousands of Idaho schoolchildren were told to stay home today as many roads were snowpacked and treacherous. Boise struggled out from under a foot of snow — its heaviest in 33 years.

A line of storms stretching from the Missouri's Bootheel to Kansas City dumped a foot of snow in the northeastern town of Kirksville.

A tornado flattened 20 homes, killed one person and injured 17 others in Newton, Miss., on Sunday. Trees blocked roads and volunteers searched house-to-house for more victims, but continued rain hampered cleanup operations in the east-central Mississippi town.

Twisters also struck along the Mississippi River in Lee and Phillips counties in eastern Arkansas. No injuries were reported, but the high winds caused more than $120,000 in property damages.

At least eight tornadoes touched down in central and southern Alabama, but no injuries were reported. A tornado watch also was issued through today for 25 northern and west-central Georgia counties, including part of metropolitan Atlanta.

Trees were uprooted, power lines downed and two mobile homes overturned as hail and winds gusting to 60 mph struck Memphis and continued north to Dyer and Lauderdale counties in western Tennessee. The entire state also was under a flash flood watch.

Trailer park residents in the northwest Georgia town of Ellijay fled their homes Sunday night as the rain-swollen Coosawattee River threatened to overflow. Flooding was reported over much of northern Georgia and a flash flood watch was issued.

In Virginia's fog-shrouded Blue Ridge Mountains, two dozen people were injured in a 37-car pile-up on Afton Mountain.

Storms since New Year's Eve caused at least 30 deaths, including seven people killed in four separate plane crashes in Colorado, New York, North Carolina and Florida.

Traffic deaths attributed to the weather were reported in Indiana, Maine, Iowa, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Virginia and Washington.

STORM DAMAGE — Leonard Hamm, of Verbena, Ala., slammed into it on Sunday night. Hamm surveys damage to his service station after a tornado.

Reggie strikes out on Corvette auction

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Texas-sized bid of $550,000 was too much for New York Yankee slugger Reggie Jackson Sunday when a custom-built Corvette was auctioned in Phoenix.

Milton Verret of Beaumont, Texas, was the successful bidder on the gray and black, turbine-engine Corvette built by Vince Granatelli, son of racing great Andy Granatelli.

Jackson made the second-highest bid, $525,000, on the top attraction of the Southwestern International Collector Car Show and Auction.

Although his bid on the custom Corvette failed, Jackson brought a car of his own to put on the auction block. His 1974 Rolls-Royce Corniche Coupe sold for $43,000.

Bids during the three-day show totaled $11.5 million, and actual sales were between $5 million and $6 million, a spokesman said. The show ended Sunday evening at the Hilton.

The one-of-a-kind Corvette was owned by Herbert Orlovitz of Boca Raton, Fla. He originally paid $750,000 for the car in 1979, promoters of the auction said.

The Corvette is powered by a turbine engine — the kind used by Andy Granatelli in repeated but unsuccessful attempts to win the Indianapolis 500. But this Corvette was designed as a street vehicle, not a race car, the spokesman said.

Elderly man shot

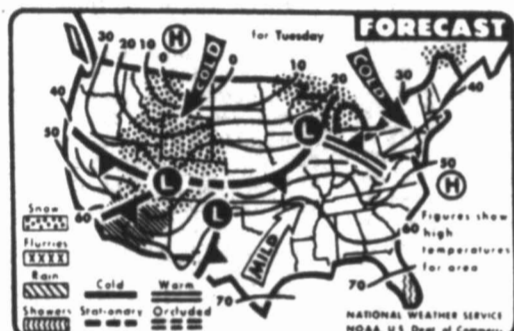

DALLAS (AP) — A 74-year-old man was shot to death by a police officer after the man pointed a loaded and cocked .12-gauge shotgun at him, police spokesman Bob Shaw said.

James Shelton was shot once in the neck Sunday night by police officer Lonnie R. Allen, 23, who was investigating a report that two emergency medical technicians were threatened with a shotgun, Shaw said.

The police spokesman said Shelton's wife, Mary, 61, called the fire department to report that her husband had suffered a heart attack. When the technicians arrived at the Shelton home, a man pointed a 12-gauge shotgun at them but did not fire, Shaw said.

Shaw said Shelton apparently did not want to go to the hospital.

Weather

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service predicts snow Tuesday for parts of Maine, the Great Lakes Region, Montana, South Dakota, Wyoming, Idaho, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and Nevada. Showers are predicted for parts of Florida. Rains are predicted for parts of Arizona, Nevada and California.

Mild temperatures forecast for Texas

By The Associated Press
Clear skies and mild temperatures were forecast today for all of Texas.

Highs were to be mostly in the 60s, ranging from the 50s in the Panhandle to the low 70s in far South Texas.

A cold front that brought sharply colder temperatures and blustery winds to all of the state Sunday moved out of the state during the night.

Skies were clear and temperatures cool over most of the state early today. A few high, thin clouds were reported over Central Texas and far North Texas.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 30s and 40s, ranging from the teens and 20s in the Panhandle and West Texas to the 50s along the coast.

Some early morning readings around the state included 21 at Dalhart, 30 at Wichita Falls, 36 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 42 at Lufkin, 50 at Houston, 47 at Corpus Christi, 46 at San Antonio, 25 at Midland and 17 at El Paso.

Lows tonight are expected to be in the 20s and 30s in the Panhandle and West Texas and in the 30s and 40s over the remainder of the state. Highs Tuesday will be mostly in the 60s and 70s.

FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Fair through Tuesday. Warmer north and far west today. Not so cold most sections tonight. Warmer Tuesday. Highs 50s except 40s southeast and extreme south. Lows mid 20s Panhandle and far west to mid 30s extreme south except low 20s higher mountain valleys southwest. Highs Tuesday 60s except low 70s Big Bend valleys.

EXTENDED FORECASTS
WEST TEXAS — There is a chance of rain or snow, mainly in the north, Wednesday through Thursday. It should be partly cloudy Friday. It will turn colder in most sections Wednesday night and Thursday. Highs will be in the 50s in the north and in the 40s in the south Wednesday, dropping into the 30s in the north and 50s in the south on Thursday and Friday. Lows will be in the 20s and 30s Wednesday, dropping to the teens in the north and the 20s in the south on Thursday and Friday.

Millionaire wants to find a 'real job'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Like many other unemployed people trying to track down work, Paul Smolak resolved on New Year's Eve to find a job — even though he's a millionaire, set to receive $50,000 every July for the next 20 years courtesy of the Pennsylvania Lottery.

"I've been looking everywhere. But you know things are off when some places will take applications for one hour once a week," said Smolak, 31, who was laid off indefinitely in August from his job delivering beer.

"I'm not a brain surgeon or anything, but I've had two years of college," he said in an interview Sunday. "All I want is to make a living and be in a retirement fund."

Smolak, who lives with his parents in Creighton, just northeast of Pittsburgh, was laid off six weeks after coming up a big winner in the lottery. Although he had worked at the distributor for about five years, he had the least seniority.

"I felt bad about it (the layoff)," he said. "I've been laid off at all the companies I've been with. I've always been the last in and the first out."

The lottery payoff was a stroke of good luck, Smolak admits, but it occasionally worked against him during job interviews.

"Some of them know (about the winnings), and some of them don't," he said. "Some of the places I've gone, people look at me kind of funny."

Smolak, who receives unemployment benefits, said he spends most of his time knocking on doors in search of work in southwestern Pennsylvania, an area reeling from numerous steel industry-related layoffs.

Let's choose to have a good year

Zig Ziglar, famous for his positive thinking and motivational success, recently outlined four steps to a "tremendous 1982."

First, he said, we must choose to have a good year in 1982. "You can choose to be happy or you can choose to be sad. You can choose to gain weight or you can choose to lose weight. You can choose to do more or choose to do less." He urges us to choose to have the best year of our lives in 1982.

SECOND, HE SAYS, we must plan to have a good year. "You should prepare yourself physically, mentally and spiritually," he says. He says if we take care of our bodies, they will take care of us. "You would not keep a million-dollar racehorse up late at night drinking coffee or booze, smoking cigarettes and eating junk food," he says. "His body wouldn't stand it, and neither will yours."

Third, Ziglar says, we must work to have a good year. "Some people quit looking for work as soon as they find a job."

And the fourth step is to "say or do something every day to make somebody else feel better." He adds that if you feel close to having a nervous breakdown, you should immediately help somebody else solve a problem. Instant relief.

WHILE WE FIND it difficult to be as totally committed to positivism as Ziglar is — he even answers the telephone "Good morning, this is Jean Ziglar's happy husband!" — we think he's on the right track. He certainly didn't make his millions of dollars by brooding in a corner.

He has successfully carried to the extreme the attitude that we make or break ourselves. Happiness and success — or gloom and doom? The choice is yours.

Reagan takes command

WASHINGTON — Discarding cautious counsel of delay, President Reagan in the next few days will take punitive action against the Soviet Union in the Polish crisis, signaling for the first time his personal control of policy in the grave confrontation between Washington and Moscow.

Reagan's long-awaited personal touch has been manifest in behind-the-scenes disputes over U.S. policy in the wake of the brutal repression of Poland's Solidarity movement. The most important of these was reluctance in the State Department and by U.S. trade representative William Brock to get too far in front of America's European allies. Reagan, to the contrary, believes Western Europe will follow the U.S. lead.

He personally overruled White House aides worried that linking Christmas and the Polish crisis in his Dec. 23 Christmas message would hurt him politically. He flatly refused to make a special Christmas broadcast, a project that deputy White House chief of staff Michael Deaver had long nurtured, without condemning "the outrages in Poland" and Moscow's complicity.

REAGAN RECEIVED a compelling recommendation for anti-Soviet sanctions from his National Security Council (NSC) on the afternoon of Dec. 28, which was sent to the president's California ranch from the White House.

The president's letter to Soviet president Leonid Brezhnev, viewed last week by some hard-liners as a virtual invitation for further American delays, has been answered in a way that gives Reagan new ammunition to go for anti-Soviet sanctions. Brezhnev told Reagan in his four-page response that what was happening in Poland was no business of the U.S.; that the Soviets were in no way involved themselves; that Reagan's anti-Polish sanctions announced in the Dec. 23 speech were interference in Poland's affairs; that the U.S. cannot impose its policy on Poland; that if it tries, the U.S. will bear the consequences; that the U.S. and the Soviet Union should discuss the matter in high-level talks.

As an answer to Reagan's insistence that the Soviets "permit the restoration of basic rights in Poland," Brezhnev's response was a further inducement to Reagan to impose sanctions.

But Reagan needed no further inducement. White House insiders describe the president's mood as "extraordinarily firm" and "unusually serious" about the Polish tragedy and the necessity for the U.S. to react strongly.

IN THE BACKGROUND was a confidential memorandum proposing that Secretary of State Alexander Haig warn the president against any "specific threats" to Moscow in Reagan's letter to Brezhnev "and particularly about making such threats public" in the Christmas message. Drafted by Robert Blackwill, deputy head of the department's Bureau of Intelligence and Research, the proposed Haig-to-Reagan memorandum said that "threats" would force the U.S. "very quickly into unilateral actions that would put us on the defensive, dividing us from our allies."

Although Blackwill's memorandum reflected at least to some degree Haig's own concern about a split in the Western alliance, presidential advisers said it was not used by Haig in the form that he received it from Blackwill. The only concession Reagan agreed to last week was to delay imposing sanctions against the Soviets until after Brezhnev replied to his letter. That was a concession to Haig, who was described by White House insiders as entirely satisfied with the final speech once he had gained the objective of delaying sanctions for another week.

Reagan's move to take personal control of policy in the Polish tragedy may signal a tougher U.S. posture across the board from here on.

$300,000 'cure' for obesity

WASHINGTON — At a time of budget cuts for the underfed, the Navy wants to spend more money on the overweight. The admirals think it would cost about $300,000 to flatten some of the bulging bellies that are popping Navy buttons.

A confidential memo estimates that "13 to 15 percent of all active duty naval personnel are over maximum weight standards." This is attributed more to compulsive gluttony than to the palatability of Navy food.

There are some 23,000 sailors who just can't seem to stop stuffing themselves. Their eating habits have brought them to the point, declares the memo, that they "face disciplinary and administrative actions, including discharge or reenlistment refusal."

Congressional waste-watchers, however, are concerned about the Navy's waist-watchers. In fact, the House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee recently rejected the Navy's request for a $300,000 budget increase for "physical fitness programs" intended to slim down its sailors.

The Navy tried standard methods of getting the tubbies to trim down. Eat less and exercise more, they were told. But this didn't work.

THEN SOMEONE suggested that maybe it was a psychological problem, an obsession like alcoholism or drug abuse. Food "addicts" would respond to treatment like that in the Navy's well-regarded alcohol and drug rehabilitation programs.

A pilot program for fat control was set up in Jacksonville, Fla. Personnel with acute overeating tendencies were given six weeks of "behavior modification" training. Part of the regime was "positive control" — constant supervision to prevent clandestine visits to the nearest fast-food outlet.

But investigators for Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., concluded that the Navy had gone overboard in its zeal to restrain the compulsive gourmands. For instance, my associate Lucette Lagnado learned that participants in the program were being picked up and chauffeured to evening meetings of Overeaters Anonymous in special vans.

Why, the congressional watchdogs wanted to know, couldn't the overweight sailors drive their own cars? Not possible, replied the brass hats. Overeaters had to be "under positive control at ALL TIMES."

Congressional investigators also questioned the need to use "med-evac" equipment and personnel to transport the fatties to the Jacksonville treatment center. Medical evaluation is supposed to be limited to emergency situations only,

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think Christians should be praying for a spiritual revival in our country? — S.A.

DEAR S.A.: Yes, I certainly do. There is probably no greater need of the hour for our society than true spiritual awakening and we should be praying for this to happen.

One reason Christians should be praying for revival in our land is because our nation is now, I am convinced, in a desperate situation spiritually. The signs of this are all around us, from the soaring divorce and crime rates to the general decline in moral and spiritual values. It also could be said of our nation what was said of ancient Israel: "These people come near to me with their mouths and honor me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me" (Isaiah 29:13). We are warned in the Bible that any people or nation that rejects God and turns their back on his will can only expect the judgment of God eventually.

Then another reason we should be praying for renewal is that God has often worked only when his people begin to pray. As long as we feel there is no need for revival, or that we somehow can bring it about by our own efforts and schemes, God will not bring spiritual awakening to us. But when we realize that there is no hope unless God acts, and we seek his face and look to him, then God will act. The Bible promises, "If my people, who are called by my name, will humble themselves and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and will heal their land" (2 Chronicles 7:14).

But there is one thing we must not miss whenever we think about revival in our nation. It is good to pray for spiritual renewal in others, but we must first seek it for ourselves. Are we asking God to renew our love for him, and are we willing to turn from our sins and truly let Christ be Lord of our lives? As the old prayer says, "Lord, bring a revival, and begin it with me."

Around the Rim

By BOB CARPENTER

Just the facts?

I recently saw "Absence of Malice." This is the movie that has journalists and critics up in arms over what they consider to be an unlikely portrayal of newspaper ethics.

In a nutshell the story goes like this: The head of an FBI-like Organized Crime Strike Force is searching for a labor leader, who has disappeared and perhaps met with foul play.

The Strike Force has spent $50,000 on the investigation and no new information has turned up. The Force is getting restless for some action so the feds decide to put pressure on the son (Paul Newman) of a former mob bootlegger in hopes he might have information of mob activity.

The feds leak a file that says Newman is under investigation concerning the labor leader's disappearance.

The reporter Sally Field and her paper print the story almost immediately. It doesn't appear she checked out the file except to try to contact Newman for a comment, and he wasn't around to answer the phone.

The feds hope the story will force Newman to come forward and reveal some juicy information about the mob just to get his name cleared.

MANY CRITICS ARE saying the file would have been double and triple checked before it made the papers. But Field is told by her editor and by the paper's lawyer that the story is fit to print, so she is not actually the unprofessional journalist critics make her out to be.

After the story appears Newman comes to the paper and demands Field tell him where the story came from. She protects her sources, of course, and Newman is powerless to fight the paper. He will not reveal where he was the day the labor leader disappeared, which makes him look suspicious.

A vulnerable, fragile friend of Newman's (played by Melinda Dillon) volunteers to Field Newman's whereabouts the night the labor leader vanished. It so happens Newman was in Atlanta seeing Dillon through an abortion.

Dillon begs Field not to print details that would identify her because she is an assistant administrator at a Catholic school. Her name in the paper and admitting to an abortion would ruin her reputation, as well as turn her job into vapor.

Field tells Dillon she can't promise anonymity and sure enough, Dillon's name, age and everything appear on the front page.

The story helps to clear Newman, but Dillon commits suicide after seeing the story.

brought cries of "foul" from the critics. They say no journalist would be that insensitive and, therefore, would not have revealed the woman's name.

But the woman did not say she would kill herself and she did willfully speak to Field even after being warned her name might appear in the paper. Nevertheless, this is only one of the interesting questions "Absence" raises about journalism. Does the press have the right to invade a person's privacy?

I can't answer that question, but I think the movie is important in that it does raise some questions about modern day journalism.

After Dillon kills herself the movie falls apart somewhat. Newman and Field become romantically involved which tends to be too unlikely and ultimately unbelievable.

Finally a federal judge comes in and gathers the Strike Force, Newman and Field into a hearing and tells us what has transpired. The judge ties the movie into a neat little package and without his interpretations the audience and the movie might be lost entirely.

THE MOVIE WILL be showing in Big Spring soon so I hesitate to tell the whole story, but the movie may be a fairly accurate portrayal of today's journalism.

The more I think about the movie the more I like it. This is a thought-provoking film, which requires a few days of consideration before a final opinion can be reached.

You can ask yourself: Does the press have the right to reveal all it knows if it means hurting someone? Does the government have the right to manipulate the press into doing its dirty work? Is Field's character an accurate portrayal of a reporter? The questions are endless.

Since "Absence" does inspire us to think, the movie stands way above some of the fare we've been getting on the big screen the past few months. Sometimes a little hard reality does us more good than a ton of escapism.

Newman is very good in his role, as is Dillon. As victims of the press they appear real and ring true; however, Sally Field was miscast in her part.

She walks through her part without much emotion or turmoil, which seems strange because of the anguish her writing has caused.

But it's not the characters that matter all that much, it's the questions concerning the rights of the press that make the movie.

Go see "Absence" and you may never look at a newspaper the same way again.

Dr. Donohue

Maternal pox immunity is temporary

Dear Dr. Donohue: While my mother was pregnant with me, my two older sisters had the chicken pox. As a child my mother had had it, so she was immunized to it during her pregnancy. I would like to know if that immunity was transferred to me as a fetus. I am now 22 and have never had the chicken pox, even though I have been exposed to two outbreaks while going through school. Could you please explain? — Miss D.S.B. I'll try.

A mother's chicken pox immunity can be transferred to the fetus. When your mother was first exposed to the chicken pox virus as a child, like everyone else's, her body programmed itself to make antibodies against it. She got the symptoms then because in that first encounter with the virus her body had to stumble around, not given immediately after birth. During that brief period of hesitancy the virus multiplied, causing the skin symptoms and other evidence of invasion. Thereafter, her body was forearmed and was able to make the antibodies "on demand" whenever it detected the virus.

During pregnancy her antibodies passed through the placenta by which she nourished you in her womb. So you too, would have had temporary protection against the virus at that time. But those antibodies don't hang around with a baby very long, perhaps a couple of months. When they disappeared, your body was left vulnerable to attack because, unlike your mother's body, yours had never had to learn to actually produce the antibodies on its own. It is because of this transfer of temporary maternal immunity that infant immunization is not given immediately after birth. Now, to your case in specifics. Your mother's antibodies against chicken pox are no longer with you. You were exposed to the virus twice during outbreaks of the disease and never got infected. Possibly you were just lucky, because chicken pox is quite contagious. Eight out of 10 people who are exposed get the illness. Or you may have had a very mild case that was not recognized.

Dear Dr. Donohue: About once a month I take an overdose of laxatives, usually eight to 10 times the dose. I do this to lose weight. Is this harmful? What can happen? — T.F.Y.

I know you ask this in good faith and seriousness, but think for a minute. Does it make sense to you? Purging is not a good way to lose weight. It only encourages bad eating habits.

Secondly, some laxatives are irritating and can lead to dependency. Even if you did not harm your digestive system from occasional use, you would not be benefiting yourself in coming to grips with your weight problem. That requires a change in eating habits.

Dear Abby

Moon-Mad Reader Is Going Through a Phase

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think this plea for help is crazy. This problem is very real to me. No matter what the experts say, I really believe that the moon in its full phase adversely affects me. I've read about "moon madness" — and the theory is that a full moon affects one's mind. I believe it is true because whenever a full moon approaches, while it's at its peak and immediately after, I can't seem to control my temper, and I really get crazy!

Abby, I am convinced that a full moon affects my mind. I wonder if other people have had this experience.

LOONY IN L.A.

DEAR LOONY: "Loony" is slang for "lunatic," which translates into "made crazy by the moon." For centuries man has theorized that the phases of the moon affect one's mind, moods and behavior.

Although there is no scientific evidence to support this age-old theory, those who are convinced that it's true can be physically affected to the point of looniness.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 20-year-old college student who is currently seeing a girl about twice a week. (I'll call her Cindy.)

However, Cindy has a close friend, Amy, whom I would like to date. Amy's been sending me subtle messages that lead me to believe that she would like to go out with me.

My question is this: If I were to ask Amy out, do you think she'd keep her mouth shut, or do you think she'd tell Cindy? Cindy is very possessive. If she knew I saw Amy she would drop me, and I really don't want to stop seeing Cindy.

How much do girlfriends tell each other? I would really like to see both of them, but I don't want to start in with Amy if there's a chance she'd tell Cindy. Please advise.

DON'T USE MY NAME

DEAR DON'T: From what you tell me about your relationship with Cindy, you've led her to believe that you are far more loyal than you really are.

Don't play around with Amy. If you're out to get something from each, you're apt to end up with nothing from both.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote that her fiance refused to have sex with her until after they were married. You told her how "lucky" she was. I have been thinking about that ever since, and want to tell you my experience.

I was a divorcee making plans to marry. I thought I was lucky because he didn't persist when I said I wanted to wait until marriage.

After we were married I understood why he could be so "patient." Once or twice a year was enough for him. I was 36 when we were married, and it was a terrible shock and disappointment to me.

Now that we are in our 50s there is nothing at all. We have spent much time and money on therapy and counseling, but to no avail. I feel cheated. My personality has changed, and I feel like a vegetable. Nothing could be worse than living this way.

If I were that woman, I would insist on knowing her fiance sexually before marriage. Sign me...

Debt collection regulated

Christmas is over. Each of us has given and received many wonderful gifts. Unfortunately, we will not understand what our generosity has cost us till the bills start arriving.

A few Permian Basin residents will discover that they cannot pay for the Christmas gifts they charged as well as their other bills. If the bills are not paid, debt collectors may be used to secure the money.

From past experience, both the Texas Legislature and the U.S. Congress have realized that abuses can be caused by debt collectors. Therefore, the Texas Debt Collection Practices Act and the federal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act were passed to provide consumers with certain rights when dealing with debt collectors. The major difference between the two Acts is that the Texas Act applies to anyone engaged directly or indirectly in debt collection, while the federal Act only covers those hired to collect the debts of others — namely, debt collection agencies.

According to the Texas Debt Collection Practices Act:

- You cannot be threatened or coerced into paying a debt if you notify the debt collector in writing that the debt is in dispute.
- If you owe the debt, the debt collector can threaten to institute a civil lawsuit, but he cannot collect a debt by threatening to file criminal charges when, in fact, you have not violated any criminal laws.
- A debt collector cannot harass you by using profane or abusive language. He also is prohibited from harassing you by making continuous telephone calls or causing the telephone to ring repeatedly.
- When communicating with you by telephone or letters, the debt collector must at all times disclose that he is attempting to collect the debt;

- A debt collector is prohibited from falsely identifying himself as an agent of the government or an attorney, misrepresenting your legal rights, and collecting more than is legally due.

In certain instances damages have been awarded to victims of unreasonable debt collection practices in the Texas courts. To have a winning case a consumer must prove that the collector conducted a campaign of unreasonable collection practices and, as a result, the debtor suffered physical or financial injury.

If you are being harassed by a representative of a debt collection agency, the federal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act provides these additional protections:

- If you notify the collector in writing that you want all contact to stop, he must comply. He still has the right to file a lawsuit or repossess the disputed merchandise.
- The debt collector is prohibited from contacting you at inconvenient or unusual times or places. Early morning or late night telephone calls are not allowed unless your schedule is unusual. Also, a collector cannot contact you at work if the employer prohibits such contact.

Neither of these provisions applies to the creditor who is trying to collect his own past due accounts.

While both Acts protect you from abusive debt collection practices, neither changes your obligation to pay the debt. Therefore, you should budget your expenses to keep from accumulating debts you are unable to pay. If an emergency arises and you cannot pay your bills, contact each business and explain the circumstances. Most businesses will make new payment arrangements.

Power tool safety tips listed

By ANDY LANG

AP Newsfeatures
Power tools have made do-it-yourselfers out of millions of persons who otherwise might not have tackled projects which used to require some dexterity with hand tools.

Unfortunately, the growing usage of power tools has brought with it an increasing number of accidents while such tools are in operation. Manufacturers, for the most part, have made improvements designed to reduce the number of such accidents, but the operators of the tools must themselves take the precautions necessary to assure safety.

Here are some tips essential to the safe operation of a tool powered by electricity:

- Unless the tool is double insulated, be sure it is grounded. Do not use it in damp or wet locations.
- Loose clothing can become entangled in moving parts. Remove them as well as jewelry before operating a power tool. Ties and long sleeves are among the most common culprits.

Tools should be disconnected when not in use.

Safety glasses and gloves can prevent many accidents. Use them when recommended by the manufacturer.

When doing any work which might send metal filings, wood chips, etc., into the air, be sure that children and visitors are a safe distance from the work area.

Many machines are equipped with safety guards. Use them, even if it appears to be a bit less troublesome to work without them.

Table saws, chain saws and some other power tools have a tendency to kick back the material being worked on under certain circumstances. Modern techniques eliminate or reduce the danger of kick-backs if you use the recommended anti-kickback devices. Use those devices, but even if you do, learn never to stand in back of the work, so that if something goes wrong, the material will go flying back past you and not into you.

When operating a portable power tool, such as an electric drill, never put it down until it has stopped.

Forget about using a power tool (or a hand tool) when you are tired. Fatigue is the enemy of safety.

Even as seemingly innocent a tool as a stationary belt sander can cause trouble if you do not operate it as recommended. In feeding wood into the moving belt, always do so against the direction of the sandpaper.

Finally, don't read the instruction manual when you buy a tool and then forget about it. Reread it the first few times you use the tool until you have the directions clearly in your mind.

Your body language may speak louder than words

NEW YORK, N.Y. — "Body language can reflect a person's views more accurately than any words coming from his or her mouth," writes Gerald Astor. "Sometimes, the messages are conveyed through deliberate, conscious gestures — other times, our bodies talk without our even knowing."

Body language covers the infinite range of facial and body movements, including the many ways to smile, to walk, to manipulate your eyes, and to move your hands and arms. A variety of messages may be drawn from body language, from the subtle "I'm not interested" that a turning away of the head can suggest, to the emphatic "no" that a shake of the head conveys. But, conscious or not, Astor points out that nonverbal communication does portray a wide range of feelings.

• The eyes are the most revealing instruments of body language. In fact, many people, including some policemen, believe eye contact is a good test of honesty. Eye contact is a clear way to show interest in another person. When one individual looks at another and continues to do so, it indicates where his attention is focused.

• Like the eyes, the smile is remarkably varied. The genuinely happy smile flashes both upper and lower teeth and is accompanied by open eyes and relaxed brows. In the sheepish smile, the corners of the mouth are turned up, the eyebrows lifted.

• Hand movements are another area where there is a common understanding of the action. Shake your fist, and the message is clearly one of anger. Rubbing the palms of your hands together means you're probably anticipating something good. But, rub the palms and the backs of your hands, and you're probably just cold. Point, and a direction is signaled. Point a finger at someone, and you're making an accusation.

• Sometimes a person brings a hand up to his mouth while talking. That gesture could be an effort to stop others from hearing, or an unconscious admission of doubt, or that there's something being concealed. A hand at the throat may indicate some uncertainty about the words being spoken.

• When someone is sitting with his legs or ankles crossed tightly and his arms folded over his chest, this person is closed off and uninterested. If an individual feels relaxed, giving, and receptive, he's usually in an open position; his arms are unclasped and his legs are apart.

• Posture is wrapped up in a person's self-image. People who are uncomfortable with their bodies may adopt a round-shouldered slouch and wear baggy clothes.

• Body language can also serve as a dialogue between two people. For example, if two people are sitting on a couch with their arms and legs in similar positions, it usually means they're in agreement. A man and a woman sitting down facing each other are announcing closeness.

KLAN RALLY IN RALEIGH — An unidentified robed klansman is framed by the American and Confederate flags during a rally at the capitol in Raleigh, N.C., Sunday to protect the continued imprisonment of a white man convicted of fire bombing a black-owned Wilmington, N.C., newspaper in 1973.

Judge may rule this week on creation-science lawsuit

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A federal judge is expected to rule this week on whether Arkansas' creation-science law is constitutional.

Judge William Overton said last week that he would wait until after New Year's Day to rule on a lawsuit challenging the statute's constitutionality. The lawsuit, filed in May by the American Civil Liberties Union, was tried in U.S. District Court last month.

Attorneys for the ACLU filed the lawsuit on behalf of 23 plaintiffs — most of them religious leaders, scientists and educators.

The lawsuit says the statute, Act 590, is too vague, violates the constitutional separation of church and state and impinges on academic freedom.

The Arkansas Legislature approved the Balanced Treatment for Creation-Science and Evolution-Science Act with little debate during the waning days of the regular legislative session. In March, Gov. Frank White signed the bill into law. Later, he said, he had not read it but still supported it.

The statute, the first such law in the country, requires public schools teaching evolution to teach creationism as well. If upheld, it will take effect in September. The ACLU is challenging a similar law in Louisiana. That lawsuit is to be tried later.

Evolutionists say life developed slowly over millions of years. Creationists say a supernatural force formed the world suddenly and relatively recently. Although most creationists believe that force to be God, the law forbids the use of religious writings in the classroom.

Nevertheless, the ACLU, represented by Little Rock attorneys Philip Kaplan and Bob Cearley as well as New York attorneys, says the law is an attempt by fundamentalists to force a literal interpretation of Genesis into the public schools as science.

The state, represented by the attorney general's office, says there is scientific evidence to support creationism.

At the end of the nine-day trial, which began Dec. 7, Overton said constitutionality, not Scripture or evolution, was the issue in the case.

During the trial, antics outside the courtroom included clowns, jugglers, a man in a demon suit and a man in a monkey suit. Events in the courtroom, however, usually were orderly, often highly technical. About 250 people filled the room daily.

The ACLU, which presented 17 witnesses and 130 documents during the trial, said it would appeal if it lost the case. Attorney General Steve Clark, whose office presented 11 witnesses and 120 exhibits, said that if the state loses, he probably would appeal to the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis. But first, he said, he would have to see the judge's opinion.

Some creationists, including some who pushed for the enactment of the law, accused Clark of poor preparation for the trial. He denied the allegation. ACLU legal director Bruce Ennis said Clark did an excellent job but said, "he simply has an unconstitutional statute on his hands, one beyond rehabilitation."

HC '25 years or older' orientation set

Howard College will host a "25 years or older" orientation in two sessions. One will be held at 9:30 a.m. and the other at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Howard College Counseling offices, announced Mary Dudley, dean of admissions for the Howard County Junior College District.

"We will be offering this type of orientation for the first time because we have a large group of students over the age of 25 attending Howard College. Our present average age is 26 1/2," said Dudley. "We feel that these students haven't had access to high school counselors like many of the entering freshmen at Howard College."

Mary Dudley and Harvey Rothell, Howard College counselor, will be in charge of the program. Rothell noted that attending this orientation does not commit a person to enroll at the college. Its purpose is to give older students a chance to find out the pros and cons of attending college.

Eight persons killed in light plane crashes

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A light plane emerged from a "very, very low" cloud ceiling during a rainstorm and crashed in a wooded area, killing eight people, authorities said.

Authorities were unsure if the bad weather was responsible for the Sunday evening accident, and an investigation was to be launched today.

Among the victims were three members of a family returning to Virginia from a Florida holiday vacation. State police were withholding the identities of the other victims.

The lateral visibility was "pretty good," although the cloud ceiling was "very, very low" when the twin-engine Cessna 414 crashed about 5 p.m. while trying to land at Hanover County Municipal Airport, about 10 miles north of Richmond, said Stephen Hoffman, a pilot who was at the airport.

"I heard the missed approach and went outside," Hoffman said.

"They were probably circling for two three minutes" and then the engine noise stopped, he said, adding the aircraft's engines sounded out of synchronization.

Charles Vaughan, state police information director, identified three of the victims as Troy O. Leadbetter, 53, of nearby Glen Allen, his wife, Shirley, 52, and son, David, 14.

Employees of the Leadbetter Construction Co., which Leadbetter owned, said the others aboard were believed to be family friends.

Tom Smiley, tower supervisor at Richmond's Byrd International Airport, said a flight plan filed in Boca Raton, Fla., listed Leadbetter as the pilot. Company employees said both Leadbetter and his wife were licensed to fly.

State police said the plane slammed into a creek-crossed area west of the airfield. It was buried up to its wings.

Controllers spoke with the plane's pilot as it began an instrument approach into Hanover, and they approved a change to the Unicom frequency, the radio advisory service at the small airport, Smiley said.

But Smiley said the Byrd's control tower kept a radar watch on the plane, which "appeared to make a second approach" to the airport.

"It then just disappeared from the screen. That's when I got a call from (a pilot at the airport). He said he heard (the plane make) a second approach."

Grocery prices moderated in 1981, survey shows

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The last month of 1981 brought only a small increase in grocery bills, according to an Associated Press marketbasket survey which shows that prices at the end of the year were lower than at the beginning.

The good news was tempered, however, by the fact that the drop was due mainly to a single item — sugar. When sugar was removed from the marketbasket totals, the AP found prices almost unchanged in 1981.

Economists predict that food prices — which have risen less than most other items during 1981 — will continue to provide a bright spot in the inflation picture for 1982.

The AP survey covers 14 food and non-food products, selected at random. Prices were checked on March 1, 1973 at one supermarket in each of 13 cities, and have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. A 15th item — chocolate chip cookies — originally was included in the marketbasket, but was dropped when the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

Among the findings of the latest price check:

- The marketbasket bill rose during December at the checklist store in seven cities and went down in six cities. Overall, the marketbasket bill increased an average of two-tenths of a percent last month. That compared with a rise of half a percent in November.

- Comparing prices today with those a year ago, the AP found that the marketbasket bill at the checklist store — including sugar — dropped an average of 5.9 percent. Without sugar, the bill dropped an average of half a percent. In 1980 — when sugar prices were rising sharply — the marketbasket total rose 14.5 percent when sugar was included and 8.2 percent when it was not. Because the AP survey results are not weighted to reflect actual family spending, a sharp increase or decrease in one item — like sugar — has more impact on the marketbasket totals than it does on family budgets.
- The AP found prices for pork chops, coffee and detergent went up during December. Prices of chopped chuck and eggs generally declined. Beef prices generally have been stable this year because of large supplies which reflect a cyclical increase in cattle production.

Over-all food prices had been expected to rise as much as 15 percent in 1981 because of 1980's drought. There were bumper corn and wheat harvests, however, as well as large supplies of meat. Now, the U.S. Department of Agriculture expects an 8 percent boost in food prices for 1981 followed by a rise between 5 percent and 9 percent in 1982.

The day of the week on which price checks were made varied depending on the month. Standard brands and sizes or comparable substitutes were used. The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

DOWN HE GOES — New York Giants quarterback Scott Brunner (12) gets sacked by San Francisco Forty Niners

Willie Harper (59) Sunday during their NFC playoff game. San Francisco won the game 38-24.

NFL Roundup

49ers, Bengals win

Here's a tip on the National Football League playoffs. If the current pattern holds, the teams that score first will win next Sunday's championship games between the Cincinnati Bengals and San Diego Chargers in the American Conference and Dallas Cowboys and San Francisco 49ers in the National.

The first touchdown has been the tipoff to the eventual winner throughout the first six playoff contests — two wild-card games a week ago and four conference showdowns over the weekend.

Sometimes, though, it's not always a sure thing. Cincinnati blew an early two-touchdown lead against Buffalo Sunday, but recovered behind some pinpoint passing by Ken Anderson to beat the Bills 28-21.

San Francisco raced to a 24-7 lead behind quarterback Joe Montana against the Giants Sunday and then came within 4 yards of blowing all of that edge before recovering for a 38-24 victory.

The prime example, though, was the Chargers, who scored 24 points before the first quarter was over against Miami Saturday and barely survived with an exhausting 41-38 overtime victory on Rolf Benirschke's second-chance 29-yard field goal.

Dallas had no such problem. The Cowboys not only scored the first points, they scored all the points in a 38-0 wipeout Saturday of Tampa Bay.

So now San Diego and Cincinnati in the AFC and Dallas and San Francisco in the NFC are all one step away from Super Bowl XVI set for Jan. 24 in Pontiac, Mich. Three of those teams learned, however, that this road can get slippery sometimes.

Cincinnati, before the first period was over, had a 14-0 lead and it seemed Anderson and Company could do nothing wrong.

But Joe Ferguson brought the Bills back on a couple of TD runs by Joe Cribbs and when he hit Jerry Butler for a 21-yard TD on the first play of the fourth quarter, it tied the score at 21.

Anderson came right back with a 16-yard TD pitch to Cris Collinsworth and Ferguson, stripped of his main offensive weapons when both Cribbs and Roosevelt Leaks went out with injuries, couldn't rally the Bills again. A delay of game penalty stalled a Buffalo drive in the final three minutes and helped seal the Bengals' victory.

"The feeling is kind of beyond description," said Anderson, an 11-year veteran who threw for 169 yards and led the Bengals into the title game for the first time. "We are not really surprised that we're here. We thought we had a good team from the start."

"The reason we are where we are is No. 14 (Anderson)," said Coach Forrest Gregg, crediting the NFL's top-rated passer with Cincinnati's reversal from a 6-10 record last season.

Montana's 58-yard TD pass to Freddie Solomon was part of a 17-point San Francisco explosion within 4½ minutes of the second period that opened a 24-7 lead and seemed to bury the Giants. But the 49ers almost let New York off the hook.

The lead had dwindled to 24-17 by the third quarter and Scott Brunner, who threw three TD passes in the game, marched the Giants to the 4-yard line. But the drive stalled when Eric Wright stripped the ball from receiver Earnest Gray at the goal line. Joe Danelo then missed a 21-yard field goal try and the 49ers recovered.

Bill Ring climaxed a San Francisco drive with a 3-yard score and Ronnie Lott returned an interception 20 yards for another wrapup TD as the 49ers finished off the Giants.

Montana finished with 20 of 31 for 304 yards. Solomon caught six for 107 yards and Dwight Clark grabbed five for 104.

The 49ers, like the Bengals, were 6-10 last season and, also like Cincinnati, posted the best record in their conference this season, clinching the host role for the championship game.

The victory over the Giants came in San Francisco's first playoff contest since 1972.

The Chargers also looked like a sure thing against the Dolphins, racing to that big first quarter lead. But Don Strock came off the bench and brought Miami back. By the fourth quarter, the Dolphins had a 38-31 lead.

But San Diego wouldn't quit. Dan Fouts' third TD pass of the game, this one to James Brooks in the final minute, tied it again, setting the stage for some place kicking dramatics that left just about everyone in the Orange Bowl wiped out.

First Miami's Uwe von Schamann had a 49-yard field goal attempt blocked at the end of regulation time. Then San Diego's Benirschke missed a 27-yard attempt. Now it was von Schamann's turn again, and this time the Chargers blocked a 34-yard try. That put it back in Benirschke's lap and this time, the San Diego kicker connected.

Dallas, in its romp over Tampa Bay, was playing its 30th postseason game, a record, and handled the Bucs easily with a defense that bordered on awesome.

The Cowboys intercepted quarterback Doug Williams four times, three of the interceptions leading to touchdowns. They also sacked him four times and pressured him into two intentional grounding penalties, completely dominating the Bucs.

The victory by San Francisco Sunday set up a rematch for Dallas, which lost to the 49ers 45-14 early in the season. Tony Dorsett was happy about playing them again.

"The 49ers humiliated us earlier in the year and we owe them one," he said.

College Basketball

Virginia's Sampson is tough opponent

Facing 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson once is enough to cause nightmares for a basketball coach, but twice in four days could lead one to give up sleep altogether.

James Madison University started the week unbeaten, but the Dukes are now 8-2 after two meetings with Sampson and third-ranked Virginia.

The Cavaliers beat James Madison 57-44 in the finals of the Richmond Times-Dispatch tournament Wednesday night, and Virginia Coach Terry Holland was a little leery of meeting the Dukes again in three days.

James Madison led by six points three times in the first half Saturday night and it was 28-28 at intermission. But then Sampson took over with 13 points and 12 rebounds in the second half as undefeated Virginia ran away to a 73-65 triumph, the Cavaliers' 11th victory this season.

Sampson took only one shot and had two points and two rebounds in the first half, and Holland said, "Obviously we were trying to get the ball to him, but James Madison did a good job of keeping it away from him. I thought we got better shots overall in the first half than in the second, but some of them didn't drop."

James Madison Coach Lou Campanelli said his team "played a terrific game. To play Virginia twice in four days is a tremendous challenge, and our kids rose to it. Virginia couldn't get away from us on either occasion."

But Campanelli was upset because the Dukes were called for 29 personal fouls to 19 for Virginia: "They outscored us 14 points from the line — that says it all."

Othell Wilson led Virginia scorers with 17 points, while Darrin Dandridge led James Madison with 18 points and 12 rebounds.

In other games involving Top 20 teams, No. 2 Wichita State beat New Mexico State 63-50; No. 4 Kentucky nipped Georgia 68-66; Texas Tech upset No. 5 Arkansas 79-74; No. 7 Missouri walloped Notre Dame 92-70; No. 8 DePaul routed Penn State 86-60; No. 9 Minnesota stopped Long Beach State 75-67; No. 10 Iowa whipped South Carolina 57-47; Tennessee trimmed No. 12 Alabama 88-67; No. 13 Tulsa edged Oklahoma 98-96; No. 14 Louisville defeated Duke 99-61; No. 15 Oregon State crushed Arizona State 74-43; Washington State edged No. 16 UCLA 57-51 in three overtimes; No. 17 Georgetown turned back Robert Morris 75-58; and No. 20 North Carolina State tripped Clemson 75-59.

In major college games Sunday, Western Kentucky ripped Murray State 71-54 and Oregon whipped Arizona State 82-65.

Top Ten
Antoine Carr scored 22 points to help Wichita State beat New Mexico State and get back in the win column after losing two games at the Rainbow Classic in Hawaii last week. The Shockers, 9-2, were playing their first Missouri Valley Conference game.

Melvin Turpin scored 20 points, including a tip-in of a missed shot with two seconds remaining to lead Kentucky past Georgia. The Bulldogs tied the game at 66 on a basket by Dominique Wilkins, who led all scorers with 28 points, before Turpin's dramatic play.

"Turpin had an outstanding game," said Kentucky Coach Joe Hall. "On the last play, we wanted to make sure he was on the weak side to put back any missed shot, and that's the way it worked out."

Vince Taylor blocked three shots and scored six points in a second-half surge that carried Texas Tech over Arkansas on the first night of Southwest Conference play. Tech had not beaten Arkansas since 1976, a string of 11 straight games and it was the first loss of the season for the Razorbacks after eight victories.

"I think things in the Southwest Conference will be this way all season," said Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton. "Texas Tech played a whale of a game."

Ricky Frazier scored 27 points and led Missouri, 9-0, to a 34-20 halftime lead over Notre Dame. The slumping Irish never got closer than nine points in the second half and fell to 2-6.

DePaul built a 44-25 lead over Penn State at the half behind Bernard Randolph's 17 points and coasted against the Nittany Lions. Teddy Grubbs scored 14 points in the second half for the Blue Demons.

Randy Breuer scored 25 points and Trent Tucker added 22 as Minnesota, 8-1, held off Long Beach State.

Steve Carfino scored 11 points in the second half to lift Iowa over South Carolina. Carfino scored 15 points overall and shared team scoring honors with forward Mark Gannon.

Clemson coach knows how to stay No. 1

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Clemson coach Danny Ford knows the secret for holding on to the No. 1 spot in college football — something six other teams were unable to do this season.

"The best way to do it is to go undefeated," Ford said Sunday shortly after returning to South Carolina from Miami where the Tigers defeated then-No. 4 Nebraska 22-15 in the Orange Bowl Friday night.

The victory was Clemson's 12th without a loss and it gave the Atlantic Coast Conference school its first national championship in 86 years of playing football.

But Ford realizes that it's going to be harder to hang on to the top spot next season, and he said he plans to hit the recruiting trail as soon as he and members of his coaching staff get back from the national coaches' convention in Houston this week.

Ford must replace three starters on the offensive line and both wide receivers, including Perry Tuttle, who owns nearly every Clemson career reception record.

He must also fill in the gaps left by the departure of five starters from the nation's eight-ranked defense, including linebacker Jeff Davis, tackle Jeff Bryant and both cornerbacks.

The Tigers received 47 of 49 first-place votes and 977 of a possible 980 points in The Associated Press poll, which has named the national champion since 1936.

Clemson outdistanced Texas, Penn State and Pitt, all of whom moved up as the Top Ten underwent a vast reshuffling. The rest of the Top Ten consisted of Southern Methodist, Georgia, Alabama, Miami of Florida, North Carolina and Washington.

Lamesa Tors squeak by Brownfield, 47-46

The Lamesa Golden Tornadoes boys varsity basketball team defeated Brownfield Sat. nite 47-46 to push their overall season record to 17-2. Leading Lamesa was senior guard Lasaro Arrendondo with 16 points. Lamesa led 27-17 at halftime but Brownfield inched their way back into the contest in the second half behind Fuller and Senior guard Mike Jones. It took a three-point play by Junior forward Victor Spencer with less than a minute to go to assure the victory for Lamesa. Brownfield dropped to 5-12.

The next action for Lamesa comes in a crucial district battle Tuesday nite at home against the Andrews Mustangs.

O'Donnell girls defeated the Lamesa Golden Tors varsity girls 63-39 in basketball Sat. nite. Lamesa was led by freshman Angela Hawkins with 17 points. In the JV contest, Lamesa pulled out a 34-32 win.

It was a final tune-up for both schools prior to district action as O'Donnell will host Forsan tomorrow and Lamesa will travel to Andrews tomorrow.

However, the 49ers will definitely have the advantage because they know the field they are playing on better than we do."

Dallas lost to Philadelphia in the NFC title game last year.

The Cowboys' coaches went to work at halftime on their 49er plans when it became obvious it was not the Giants' day.

Dallas will fly to San Francisco Friday for Sunday's 3:30 p.m. CST kickoff.

Cowboys looking for revenge in San Francisco

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys figured they would be going back to Candlestick Park, the site of a 45-14 humiliation Oct. 11.

The San Francisco 49ers assured themselves of the homefield advantage in the National Conference title game Sunday with a workmanlike 38-24 thumping of the New York Giants.

"You had to figure the 49ers would win playing at home and all," said Dallas linebacker D.D. Lewis.

"Now, we've got to get back to California and that bad field."

"That's OK. We seem to play our best when we owe a team something and we certainly owe the 49ers a payback."

Dallas qualified for its 10th NFC title game Saturday with a 38-0 rout of Tampa Bay in Texas Stadium.

The Cowboys had hoped for a Giant upset so they would get the homefield in the championship game.

"It would have been sweet," said Lewis.

"The field is treacherous but we've just got to get it out of our minds," said Lewis.

"The field didn't beat us the last time. We just flat weren't ready to play."

The Cowboys came on strong in the second half of the season after the 49er thrashing.

"The 49ers humiliated us earlier in the year and we owe them one," said tailback Tony Dorsett.

Dallas' defense devastated Buccaneer quarterback Doug Williams, who suffered four interceptions and four sacks.

Twice he grounded the ball and completed only 10 of 29 passes for 187 yards.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said "San Francisco has changed a lot since we played them so we really don't know that much about them."

He added "I think we've improved lot since that day.

Miller claims Sun City

SUN CITY, Bophuthatswana (AP) — American Johnny Miller subdued Seve Ballesteros of Spain with a routine par on the ninth hole of a sudden death playoff and won the biggest prize ever offered in the history of golf in the Sun City Million Dollar

Golf Challenge. Miller claimed $500,000 when Ballesteros three-putted from 50 feet on the ninth playoff hole. Both regulation holes were tied at 177, with each Gary Player Country Club shooting a 71 over the last 18 holes of regulation. Jack Nicklaus, who missed the playoff by a single stroke, finished with a final round of 73 for a 278 total, 10 under par. The 1981 Sun City Million Dollar Country Club course.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JAN. 5, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to display your creative skills and gain a feeling of achievement. Do whatever tasks that will enable you to attain those goals that are important to you in the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make arrangements with congenials for amusements you desire with them. Strive for a more successful life.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A new project that looms large on the horizon today is the right one for you. You can now make a good impression on others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find the right sources where you can obtain the information you need to become more successful in career matters.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A time to show others that you are capable of adding to your present abundance. Be more practical.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Being more positive-minded now can help you gain the objectives that are uppermost on your mind. Express happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can now make plans that will bring excellent results in the future. Show that you are an artistic person.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) According to your planetary aspects you can now easily gain a most cherished aim. Handle your money wisely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Analyze your regular routines and be sure you are realizing your finest potential. Express your finest talents to higher-ups.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) An associate may try to get you to do something you don't approve of, so be tactful and rely on your better judgment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study your monetary matters more diligently and you will know how to improve on them. Try to please loved one.

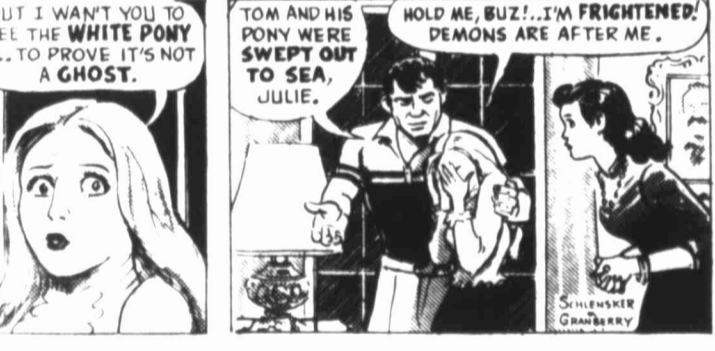

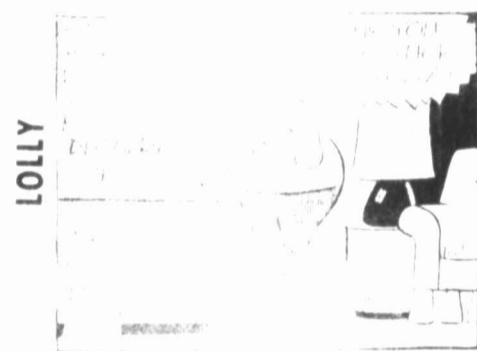

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you cooperate more with associates you will have more rapport and success in the future. Strive for happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can easily handle a difficult task today. Take no chances where your health is concerned. Guard your reputation.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will need much encouragement in order to do best work. There is great imagination in this chart. Education should be directed toward governmental work. Give good religious training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

 For that reason we make working at Dennis's more than simply a job. It's the foundation for a great future and here's why:
 • Top Pay
 • Company Paid
 Insurance
 • Profit Sharing
 • Paid Vacations
 • Flexible Schedules
 • Promotion From Within
 So if you are seeking a full time or part time opportunity that makes good sense to look into a position with Dennis's.
