HEAVY BREATHER — Scott Williams III lets loose a stream of breath that becomes highly visible in the near zero-degree temperatures that settled into the Chicago area Thursday. Much of the Midwest was belted by a double whammy of cold air and high winds that combined to produce wind chill factors well below the already low temperatures.

Unemployment zips upward

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate surged to 8.9 percent in December as joblessness among adult men, historically the most stable element of the labor force, set a post-World War II record, the Labor Department reported today.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the half-a-percentage-point jump — from 8.4 percent to 8.9 percent overall — left close to 9.5 million Americans out of work as the economy plunged into a deepening recession.

The agency said the number of "discouraged workers" rose by about 150,000 in the fourth quarter of 1981, to 1.2 million, the highest level recorded since the government began keeping those statistics in 1970. Discouraged workers are classified as those who report to government surveyors that they want to find work but have given up the search in futility.

Black unemployment reached 17.4 percent last month, another post-war record.

Department analysts said the overall jobless rate last month approached the 9 percent high in May 1975, toward the end of a months-long recession brought on by the Arab oil embargo.

If unemployment exceeds 9 percent — as many private economists predict it will this year — it will reach the highest level since the government began keeping month-to-month figures in the late 1940s.

Since July, the department said, more than 2 million Americans have been thrown out of work and the unemployment rate has shot up almost 2 full percentage points.

The highest post-World War II annual rate of unemployment, before monthly figures were compiled, was a 9.7 percent jobless rate in 1941, which eased substantially during World War II.

The all-time high was the 24.9 percent annual rate of unemployment registered in 1933, during the depths of the Depression.

Adult males traditionally have composed the largest element of the labor force and December's whopping eight-tenths-of-a-percentage-point spurt — from 7.2 percent to 8 percent — is a harbinger of further employment hardships in the months ahead.

Black teen-age unemployment improved slightly last month, however, falling to 42.2 percent from November's record 43.7 percent.

"Persons who lost their jobs as a result of layoff or permanent separation accounted for all of the December increase in unemployment," the department said. A large part of the layoffs occurred in the durable goods industries, particularly automobile manufacturing.

The department said there was little change in the number of unemployed people "who voluntarily left their last jobs" or entered the labor force in search of work.

High unemployment is likely to plague the nation for several months regardless of whether the economy rallies from the current recession, private economists say.

Strikes at Petrofina, Texaco

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — More than 4,000 workers went on strike today against the nation's largest Texaco plant and an American Petrofina Co. refinery, despite their union's agreement to extend a strike deadline.

Officials of Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union Local 4-23, which represents about 3,000 of the Texaco plant's 5,000 workers, said pensions were at the center of the dispute with Texaco.

About 500 workers walked out at the Petrofina plant. Calls to the union and company offices for details on that strike were not answered early today.

National union leaders, seeking to end a two-month stalemate over contracts for 55,000 oil refinery workers at 400 plants owned by 98 companies, agreed in Denver on Thursday to extend their strike deadline and softened their stand on key contract demands.

Contracts covering OCAW workers were to expire at midnight Thursday, but at the request of a federal mediator the union agreed to extend the deadline "subject to 48-hour notice of termination," said union President Robert Goss.

Contracts between the refiners and OCAW are negotiated on an individual basis, but the trend has been for one of the largest companies, usually Gulf, to reach a settlement that sets a pattern for the rest of the industry.

In 1980, union members struck for 12 weeks, the longest strike in OCAW history.

Negotiators for the Port Arthur local and Texaco met for an hour Thursday afternoon but talks reached an impasse over pension rights, union spokesman R.C. Graffagnino said.

James Saxon, spokesman for the OCAW local, said, "We proposed the (contract) extension to the company and they refused. They refused to extend the contract, as requested (by union leaders)."

Texaco spokesman Charles Rentz said operations at the plant would continue "as usual," with supervisors and technical personnel working in three shifts around the clock.

On Thursday, the national union called for a two-year, 27 percent pay increase for refinery workers. OCAW spokesman Jerry Archuleta said the union represents about 60 percent of the nation's refinery workers, who are now paid an average of $11.66 per hour.

"We have made major changes in our proposal in an effort to arrive at a solution," Goss told reporters in Denver.

Goss declined to predict whether there would be a nationwide strike.

Bell to divest 22 companies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department announced today a settlement of its 7-year-old antitrust suit against American Telephone & Telegraph Co. that will require the telecommunications giant to give up its 22 local operating companies within the next 18 months.

The agreement forbids the local companies, each of which operates as a part of the nationwide Bell System, from discriminating against Bell competitors in providing equipment, services and planning of new facilities.

The chairman of AT&T said the agreement, by increasing competition for both service and equipment, may lead to lower customer rates.

Four city officials in Loraine resign

LORAIN (SC) — The community of Loraine is minus four city employees today following the resignations of City Secretary Brenda Lee, Mayor Vance Dickenson, Mayor Pro-Tem Claude Woods and Water Superintendent D.C. Fowler.

Controversy rocked the Loraine city council in December when Mrs. Lee received official notice that the majority of the council was asking for a public hearing seeking her removal from office.

A review of the situation shows that council members were critical of Mrs. Lee for not keeping city offices open five days a week, for accepting an advance on her salary, and for failure to prepare vouchers and financial statements for the city.

When charged with these points, Mrs. Lee argued that her medical trips once a week for her daughter's leukemia had not been affecting her work.

November voted to fire both Mrs. Lee and Water Superintendent Fowler, but both actions were voted by Mayor Dickenson. It was revealed that the City of Loraine never had a city charter, and to fire a city employee, a charge must be filed, and a private or public hearing held, then a vote taken.

In his letter of resignation, Mayor Dickenson said:

"I am submitting my resignation as mayor of the city of Loraine, effective this date, Jan. 8, 1982. I cannot continue to work with a group where the majority of that group questions the honesty of all their employees and questions my honesty and integrity."

Contacted this morning, Dickenson would not elaborate.

Mayor pro-tem Woods' letter said, "Due to the atmosphere within the council, I feel I can render no further possible service to the city. I am submitting my resignation as mayor pro-tem of the city of Loraine effective this date, Jan. 8, 1982."

Fowler said in his letter of resignation, "Due to the circumstances of my health problem, I find it necessary to submit my resignation effective Jan. 8, 1982. I regret this very much, for my stay with you has been very pleasant. I am grateful to you for the many courtesies that you have shown me. It is a privilege to have been a member of the municipal team."

FINALLY, MRS. LEE'S letter said, "It is with great sorrow that I must resign my position as city secretary effective Jan. 8, 1982. Mr. Dickenson, Mr. Woods and Mr. Green, it has been a great honor to work for and with men like you, who are truly concerned about the welfare of our community. Due to the non-compassion toward my child's illness, the mistrust and personal vendetta of other members of the council, I feel I must resign. I enjoyed working for the city for three years, but the last nine months have been a dreadful nightmare."

Local TEC braces for Lamesa workload

By CAROL HART
Staff Writer

With the recent announcement of the closure of the Lamesa branch of the Texas Employment Commission, employees in the Big Spring office are gearing up to take over duties of the Lamesa office.

"It looks like it will close on the 31st of this month," said Gerald Damm, office manager for the Big Spring office. The TEC has instructed claimants in Lamesa to file claims for unemployment insurance in Big Spring.

Damm said there are only about "five claimants out there right now" in the Lamesa district, which covers Gaines, Dawson and Borden counties.

Damm said the Big Spring office would also have the application files (for employment) from Lamesa.

Will taking on the duties of the Lamesa office in the face of personnel reductions be difficult for the Big Spring office?

Damm said he is not sure how the increased workload will affect the local office.

"It will be more difficult" to deal with the customer load, Damm said. "Waiting time will be increased. We may have difficulty in getting workers out to employers."

Damm said he anticipates as many or more job applicants filing through the office, but "there are fewer of us."

Damm said the local office has "done several things to help ourselves." One thing is use of microfiche viewers. Job applicants may sit down alone with a viewer and scan job descriptions.

Before, without the viewers, a TEC employee had to sit down with an employee and go through the job descriptions with that applicant.

Damm said he regretted that the "personal touch" had been lost through the newer method, but it was a time-saving device.

William Blisset, TEC district director from San Angelo, confirmed Thursday that the Big Spring office will handle the Lamesa caseload.

When asked if the Big Spring office was in danger of a shut-down in the near future, Blisset said "definitely not. The office may suffer reductions in staff. Every office we have (will be affected)."

Blisset said TEC offices across the state are awaiting word from the U.S. Department of Labor, from which TEC funding is received, on further budget cuts.

Lamesa TEC office manager C.J. "Spud" Stuart said today, "We weren't expecting it (to be shut down.) We thought we had done our part in budget reductions."

The closure of the Lamesa office affects four employees who are there now, Stuart said. "We haven't had any final word about transfers," he said.

All employees within the Lamesa office are worried about whether they will be transferred or terminated from TEC employment, he said.

"It's a bad position," Stuart said. "We need to know something. We need to make plans."

Stuart said he expected word from TEC officials sometime today or Monday on whether employees in Lamesa may receive transfers.

"Most people within the (TEC) commission are upset," Damm said. "These types of cuts are destroying the effectiveness of the commission."

"Workers and employers are not going to be served as well because of the size of the cuts."

TEC money comes from the federal portion of the unemployment insurance tax, Damm said. Employers who pay this tax "will not receive a reduction in tax, but will receive a reduction in service."

Cherry checks out of courthouse

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Employees of Howard County Courthouse gathered this morning to pay tribute to retiring juvenile probation officer Ed Cherry. Friends and fellow workers of Cherry said goodbye to the 18-year law enforcement veteran in a ceremony held on the second floor of the courthouse.

As he sat accepting the congratulations and farewells of his friends and co-workers, Cherry expressed his plans for retirement: "I'm just going to mess around and do a little fishing and traveling, maybe go to New Mexico or some lakes within 200 miles."

Cherry said in some ways it would be hard to stop working. "You know you automatically go to the courthouse for 18 years and there are some friends there I will miss. But retirement will give me a chance to sleep late, work with my horses more and maybe farm with my brother. I'll stay busy."

The retiring probation officer said he had had a good career in Howard County — nine years with the sheriff's department and nine years as the juvenile probation officer. "I've had a wonderful juvenile board juvenile judge. I want to thank the community for their cooperation; they've been real nice these 18 years," Cherry said.

Cherry said he had been planning his retirement for about a year and would be spending more time "doing what I want."

Since today was the last working day for the juvenile probation officer, the Howard County juvenile probation board will meet Monday to discuss Cherry's retirement and consider applicants for the position. The 2:30 p.m. meeting should be attended by anyone interested in the position.

Board members include P. Bert Fuller, Carol Hunter, Jack Y. Smith, Lynn Hise, Bill Crooker, David Barr, and Judge Bill Tune.

EPA approves underground injection of wastes in Texas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The underground injection of sewage and industrial waste in Texas by cities, refineries and other industrial complexes is done in such a way that it poses no danger to drinking water sources, a federal agency says.

The approval of the Environmental Protection Agency was announced this week in the Federal Register. The endorsement, given Dec. 30, became effective Wednesday, the federal publication said.

Cities and industries in Texas have been disposing of their sewage or industrial waste by injecting it below underground sources of drinking water, out until the EPA action they had state approval only, Eddie Lee, director of the EPA's office of Public Affairs in Dallas, said Thursday.

Under the Safe Drinking Water Act, the EPA is required to screen and rule on programs in any state, so that it can "prevent underground injection which endangers drinking water sources."

Acting EPA administrator John W. Hernandez ruled that the Texas underground injection program "will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities, since this rule only approves state actions. It imposes no new requirements."

The Texas approval is the first the EPA has given, except for Oklahoma's application for underground oil and gas injection, said Dick Whittington, EPA regional administrator in Dallas.

The federal approval for Texas covers all aspects of underground injection in Texas except for that of oil, gas or geothermal resources.

Nonetheless, Lee said, the ruling is particularly important in areas of Texas where oil and gas play a major role in the economy.

"Such as Houston, all of the Beaumont-Lake Charles area, Corpus Christi, Odessa, all that West Texas area — because of the oil production and the petrochemical areas that have a lot of industrial waste," Lee said.

The reason oil and gas is not included in the EPA's approval for Texas is because the agency was acting on an application submitted by the Texas Department of Water Resources, which has no jurisdiction over oil and gas injection.

"Oil and gas is in the realm of the Texas Railroad Commission, which has made a separate request. It came in later and is still being processed," Lee said.

Oil companies — in Texas and other states — inject water and other substances underground to facilitate recovery of oil.

Under the Safe Drinking Water Act, the EPA administrator was required to list in the Federal Register each state for which he believed an underground injection control program was necessary.

Texas was listed in September 1978 and the TDWR submitted an application last July. The EPA followed with a public hearing on the plan last September in Dallas.

There are five classes of injection wells that come before the EPA for its approval. All except Class II, covering the oil and gas area, were covered in this week's announcement.

Class I covers disposal of municipal and industrial waste; Class III, wells that inject for solution mining; Class IV, wells used to inject hazardous waste into or above formations that contain underground sources of drinking water; and Class V, injection wells not covered in any of the other classes.

With the federal approval, Texas cities and industrial complexes probably will be regulated more tightly than in the past, Lee said.

Red Brigades fail?

ROME (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Maxwell M. Rabb said today the Red Brigades kidnapers of U.S. Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier have "failed in their objectives."

"This event has not altered in the least the closeness of relations between the United States and Italy," the envoy said in remarks prepared for a dedication ceremony at a home for the elderly near Udine in northern Italy.

"It has not touched the Western alliance. I have seen no evidence that it has altered in the slightest Italy's traditional practice of liberty and democracy," he said.

Rabb called the Dec. 17 abduction of the 50-year-old general "a cowardly attack by a small group which lacks the courage and the ideological substance to carry its views directly to the Italian people and have them judged democratically."

Acting on tips by anonymous callers, police scoured wide areas near Pisa in central Italy for a terrorist hideout where Dozier might be held.

Police also searched boats moored along Lake Garda north of Verona where Dozier was kidnapped by four men posing as plumbers.

In Rome, an inter-Cabinet commission on security adopted a series of unspecified anti-terrorism measures. Government officials said the measures would be made public after being presented to the Parliament.

On Thursday, a NATO spokesman predicted Dozier's kidnapping will be drawn out, as was the abduction of former Premier Aldo Moro.

"We're probably are facing a long haul," NATO spokesman Col. Luciano Dalcheggio said. He based his comments on a communique found Wednesday night by reporters in Rome and Padua after anonymous callers told them where to find it.

The communique, the third issued by the extreme left-wing gang since it abducted Dozier from his Verona home, made no mention of the general's fate and posed no conditions for his release.

$8,000 awarded in dog bite suit

A civil settlement in 118th District Court Wednesday awarded $8,000 to a Howard County family.

Richard and Karen Bellinghausen and their son Aaron won their suit against an Iowa family concerning injuries sustained in a June 29, 1981 incident in Carroll, Iowa.

A dog belonging to Mandy, Mark and Greg Drees attacked and bit the face of the Bellinghausens' minor son, Aaron, according to the petition filed by the family.

The petition states the child suffered a disfiguring injury to his nose.

The Bellinghausens' attorney was Robert Miller while the Drees' case was handled by Ivan R. Williams Jr.

Water woes in disaster area

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — Authorities pleaded with 70,000 people to use no water except for drinking and cooking in rain-soaked Santa Cruz County, one of five counties declared disaster areas by President Reagan after storms and mudslides killed 24 people.

Sheriff's Sgt. Bruce Simpson said the county health officer had declared a critical need for water after a water main for Santa Cruz and the surrounding hills ruptured Monday. A second pipe used as a bypass was shut off for three hours Thursday night while it was repaired. Some remote pockets had no water at all.

"We can't take showers," Simpson said, "we can't eat hot food."

Huge earth-moving machines attacked the mudslides after slippery, debris-laden mud proved too big a job for backhoes and hundreds of rescuers trying to dig out roads, homes and victims buried during a 2½-day killer storm.

Reagan's declaration of disaster areas in Santa Cruz, Marin, Contra Costa, San Mateo and Sonoma counties makes them eligible for low-interest loans.

Damage from the storm is estimated at more than $280 million by state and local officials in those five counties and three others — Alameda, Solano and Santa Clara, which on Thursday asked Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. for emergency help.

Eleven of the 24 confirmed storm-related deaths occurred in Santa Cruz County. About 100 homes were wrecked, 300 more damaged, 1,800 people displaced and 40 roads closed or "impassable all the way through," said Dan Forbus, a Santa Cruz County supervisor. Power for 50,000 customers was out for 46 hours, and 4,000 still had no electricity late Thursday.

"People don't realize just how devastated this area is," said Carl Kent, a fire captain in the state Department of Forestry who worked Thursday in Ben Lomond's Love Creek section, where a massive mudslide crashed onto canyon homes. As many as 20 people were presumed killed when their homes were buried, but the devastation was so complete that officials estimate it may

Case involving teacher

HOUSTON (AP) — The Harris County district attorney will prosecute his first case in two years, that of a substitute teacher charged with selling marijuana to a teen-age student.

"I read about this case in the paper and I said 'That makes me mad. I think I'll try it,'" District Attorney John B. Holmes said Thursday after appearing in state district court for a preliminary hearing on the case.

Holmes offered Christopher Joseph Nive, 28, the opportunity to plead guilty to delivery of marijuana to a minor, in return for a 15-year prison sentence.

Nive's attorney rejected the offer and criticized Holmes for taking this case as his first trial in elected office.

"In a city where everyone is living behind locked doors, it seems his time would be better spent on other cases. Why doesn't he come out and prosecute serious threats to the community?" attorney Dan Gerson said.

But reacting to the criticism, Holmes said, "I knew that regardless of the case I picked out, someone would be critical."

The case has special significance because it is one of the first cases to be tried here under a new state law affecting delivery of drugs to a minor, Holmes said.

Under the new law, delivery to a minor is a first-degree felony, with maximum punishment of life in prison and $10,000 fine. A hearing on the case was set for Feb. 1.

Electrical problem cause of fire

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Fire Marshal Tommy Clements says a faulty extension cord may have started a house fire that killed a woman and six of her children.

Martha Burton, 28, and her children, Ethel, 12, Henry, 8, Adam, 3, Linda, 2, Leon, 1, and Antonio, 1, died Wednesday night when the flames jumped from a first-floor bedroom to an open stairwell and to the second floor where they were.

Clements, the city fire marshal, said Thursday that the flames "had a mushroom effect to the upstairs area."

Coroner Harold West of Miller County said the seven apparently died of smoke inhalation, but autopsies are to be performed. Authorities found Ms. Burton's body near an upstairs bedroom window. Five of the children were huddled in a corner and one child was at the top of the stairwell.

Authorities say attempts to reach the victims were thwarted by the intense heat and smoke. Public Safety Officer Charlie Davis said firefighters broke an upstairs window with an ax, but were driven back by the fire. They also could not reach the victims by using the stairwell.

"The stairs were completely engulfed when we got there," Davis said. "There wasn't any way to get to them."

Public Safety Lt. Jerry Brown spotted the fire while en route to work and, along with another officer, climbed a large tree near the house, but was out of reach of the bedroom window.

Maudie Burton, Ms. Burton's mother, said she thought the department had done all it could to save her daughter and grandchildren. She said her son, Nick, couldn't reach the seven because of the fire.

Nick, Maudie Burton, Mrs. Burton's stepfather, Robert Hubbard, and a brother, Timmy, escaped uninjured.

Some neighbors disagreed. Ricky Riggs, a neighbor, said he tried to help, but a policeman ordered him down from a tree. Riggs said he was confident he could have reached the victims.

"I really hate I came down from the tree," he said. He said the officer did nothing but moved his car and waited on the fire department.

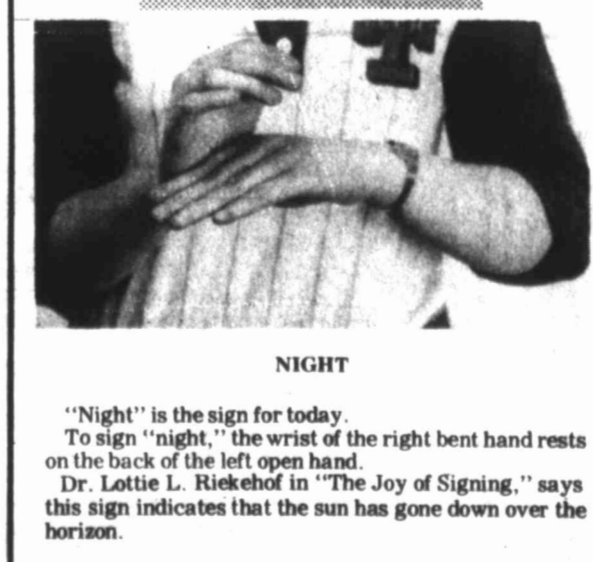

Public Safety Officer Gary Stringer said he was the first officer on the scene. "There was no one on the tree when I got there," he said.

But if there had been, Stringer said, he probably would have made the person get down for the person's own safety. "We get paid for it; they don't," he said.

Firefighter Ervin Lewis Jr. believes the people on the scene did all they could to rescue the victims. "When you find out there are people in a house and there's nothing you can do, you just feel helpless," he said.

The fire was the worst in recent Texarkana history. The worst, according to historical records, occurred July 8, 1888, when a building under construction toppled onto a saloon and fire from oil lamps broke out. Twenty-eight people died in the fire.

Sign language

"Night" is the sign for today. To sign "night," the wrist of the right bent hand rests on the back of the left open hand. Dr. Lottie L. Riekehof in "The Joy of Signing," says this sign indicates that the sun has gone down over the horizon.

Motorcycle officers to escort funerals

According to officials at the Big Spring Police Department, all funeral escorts will now be conducted by off duty police officers on motorcycles.

These officers will be in uniform and their vehicles will be equipped with red emergency lights.

A press release from the police department states, "We urge all citizens to yield the right of way to these officers as the chief of police has authorized these as escort vehicles and failure to yield to the motorcycles is a violation of the law."

"They will be seen most usually leading funeral processions."

Atlanta slayings

Stakeout officer says he heard 'loud splash'

ATLANTA (AP) — A police stakeout officer testified today that he heard a "loud splash" in the Chattahoochee River and saw lights appear on a bridge just before Wayne B. Williams' car was spotted moving slowly over the bridge.

Williams, 23, is on trial for murder in the slayings of Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, and Nathaniel Cater, 27, two of 28 young blacks slain here in a 22-month string of killings. No arrests have been made in the 26 other deaths.

The bodies of Payne and Cater were found in the Chattahoochee downstream from the bridge, which an expert has testified was the most likely dumping point for the bodies.

Bob Campbell, a police recruit stationed on the riverbank under the bridge as part of a stakeout project, testified today he heard the splash in the pre-dawn hours of May 22, 1981.

"I grabbed my flashlight, night stick and walkie talkie, ran up the to bank ... looked out over the river and I could see waves out over the river," Campbell said. "I shined my flashlight and saw the waves moving toward the bank."

"I looked up and all of a sudden lights appeared on the bridge, right above where the splash was. They started moving away from me, across the bridge," he said.

Campbell said the splash was "much larger" than splashes made by beavers which he had seen on earlier stakeouts.

The lights he saw on the bridge were "directly above where I thought the origin of the splash was," he said.

Cater's body was found in the river May 24, 1981, about a mile downstream from the bridge. Payne's body had been found in the same general area a month earlier.

Another stakeout officer, Freddie Jacobs, testified Thursday that he saw Williams' car moving slowly over the bridge after Campbell radioed him about the splash.

The car appeared to be moving "from a parked position," Jacobs said. Under questioning by Williams' attorneys, however, Jacobs acknowledged that he never saw the car stopped on the bridge.

Prosecutors laid the groundwork for Jacobs' testimony by calling two witnesses in an effort to establish that the Jackson Parkway bridge was the most likely spot from which the bodies of Cater and Payne could have been thrown into the river.

A hydrologist with the U.S.

Army Corps of Engineers testified that studies of river conditions indicated that a body found where those of Payne and Cater were discovered could have entered the river at five locations.

But the specialist, Benjamin Kittle, said the studies he conducted for the prosecution found that the most likely entry point was underneath the Jackson Parkway bridge.

Later, Atlanta police Detective Frank McClure identified a series of more than 100 color photographs he had taken showing details of the banks of the Chattahoochee River from a point well above the bridge to the area downstream where the bodies were discovered.

The pictures apparently were intended to convince the jury that a body could not have been placed in the river at any point along the rugged terrain of the river's banks in that area.

WILLIAMS TO COURT — Wayne Williams carries a paper bag toward a Fulton County Sheriff's car this morning as he leaves jail for the trip to court on charges of killing two young Atlanta blacks. Today marks the end of the second week of the trial.

Robber shot in head, bank secretary safe

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A bank robber was in critical condition today after being shot while holding a gun to the head of a bank secretary and marching her toward a busy highway, authorities said.

The man, shot once in the head by an FBI sharpshooter about 7:30 p.m. Thursday, was in intensive care at Wilford Hall U.S. Medical Center after his surgery ended shortly after midnight, said Air Force Sgt. Stephen Mitchell.

The two people abducted during the robber's getaway attempt — 36-year-old bank secretary Patricia Johnson and 19-year-old bank customer Todd Curtis Cummings — escaped uninjured, police said.

Cummings described his captor as "real calm, not harsh in his demands. It was like he had planned this for years. He knew what he was doing. He acted very determined, not insane."

Police said they did not know who the robber was, that he was not carrying any identification. They described him as in his late 20s or early 30s.

The man, wearing a ski mask, robbed the Valley High Bank, took Ms. Johnson hostage, commandeered Cummings' pickup truck and ordered Cummings to drive until he forced him out of the truck two miles away, a mile from Lackland Air Force Base, authorities said.

He then forced Ms. Johnson to stick her head outside the truck and shout demands to police, including that police officers come up to the truck, police said.

After they refused, he started walking toward busy Loop 410 with a gun pointed at the secretary's head, police said.

As he walked, he was trailed by a dozen police officers and FBI agents 10 to 15 feet behind. When an FBI sharpshooter had a chance to shoot the robber without hurting his hostage, he felled him with one shot to the head, said police Capt. James Robinson.

"He stated he would blow up the whole block unless he were allowed to leave. He did not request a vehicle, just said he wanted to get out of there," Robinson said.

Robinson said the man claimed to have dynamite strapped around his chest but in fact had a pillow made to look like he had dynamite. Police recovered a briefcase full of cash.

Death row humorist wins another battle

UVALDE, Texas (AP) — Death row humorist Fred T. Durrrough has won another ruling in his seven-year legal battle against a capital murder charge.

Even before jury selection was completed in Durrrough's third trial, a San Antonio district judge Thursday dismissed the latest indictment because of faulty language.

But Durrrough's latest court victory was short-lived.

As the indictment was being dismissed in Uvalde, a San Antonio grand jury was returning another indictment Thursday against Durrrough in the same killing, meaning he will stay behind bars pending a fourth trial.

Durrrough, 42, has been on and off death row since 1975, charged with the slaying of retired Col. Henry Tyler.

Tyler was shot to death on the front step of his home in the posh San Antonio suburb of Olmos Park on Aug. 11, 1973, while attempting to prevent an intruder from entering.

District Judge Preston Dial, who moved the trial to Uvalde from San Antonio on a change of venue, halted jury selection on the fourth day of trial and threw out the indictment.

Defense attorney Nick Rothe contended that the indictment did not spell out the names of the persons Durrrough allegedly intended to rob or burglarize, the supporting offenses of the capital murder charge, as required by a previous court ruling.

Last September, San Antonio District Judge Pat Priest quashed a capital murder indictment against Joseph John Cannon, accused of the 1977 shooting of attorney Anne Walsh, on a similar motion.

More than 600 Uvalde County residents were summoned for the jury panel and eight had been qualified when Dial recessed the selection process.

Durrrough, calling himself a "pre-trial detainee on death row," has sent several humorous letters to the judge, prosecutors and news reporters while fighting the capital murder charge. One to Dial said, "help, I am being held prisoner with a bunch of convicted murderers."

He also was a plaintiff in a federal lawsuit that is forcing Bexar County to make millions of dollars in improvements to its jail.

He first was convicted of Tyler's killing and sentenced to death in April 1975, but that conviction was overturned by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on grounds Dial erred in not hearing a motion for a change of venue.

The appeals court overturned a 1979 conviction because of an error in jury selection.

Bryant seeks re-election

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Mitchell County Sheriff Wendell Bryant has announced he will be a candidate for election.

Said Bryant: "I was appointed to the sheriff's position March 19, 1980, and would like to continue in this capacity. We've worked hard for the county commissioners, as well as Texas Commission of Jail Standards, to bring our jail into compliance and we're almost there."

"Additionally, we've stepped up drug enforcement action in the county and will continue to do so," he said.

"We have received lots of positive feedback concerning the department, and as far as any long-range plans I might have if I'm elected for my first full-term, I want to continue my effort to build a law enforcement agency that the people of Mitchell County want and need. Currently, we have a deputy in Lorraine and C-City and when Edward Tercero moves, Westbrook will also have a deputy."

The 30-year-old sheriff currently is rounding out five years in law enforcement.

DESIGN FOR LIVING

Bulletin boards outside churches usually reveal the name of the church, the denomination, the worship schedule and the minister's name. Sometimes they carry thought-provoking messages like the one George Buttrick once reported seeing outside a New York City church near Broadway. Showing a simple cross on a plain background, the board had a three-word message underneath, the same three words that titled a hit play by Noel Coward: "Design for Living"

If you are having trouble finding direction in your life, if you have no clear goal or purpose, if you feel lonely, lost or forsaken, there is One who can light your path and fill your life with hope and promise like none other. He is the One about whom it is said, "In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths" (Proverbs 3:6). In Him, you can find peace, rest and a design for living unequalled elsewhere.

Church to note anniversary

Members of Berea Baptist Church will celebrate their church's 20th anniversary Sunday. The day will consist of morning and afternoon services with two former pastors giving the sermons. The pastors are the Rev. Gary Higgs and the Rev. D.R. Philley. A dinner will be served and testimonies shared before the afternoon service.

The concept of the church was formed in the fall of 1961, when a group of people saw the need for a Baptist church in southwest Big Spring. They met, prayed and began planning for the new church. At first there was much opposition until Hillcrest Baptist Church extended the use of their name and baptism. It was understood that Hillcrest was not in the position to give financial assistance.

The William R. Banks family, 2109 Carl, offered the use of their basement as a meeting place and in December the general officers and nominating committee were elected. The Rev. J.F. Fields was called out of retirement to become the first pastor. The first services of the Hillcrest Baptist Mission were held Jan. 7, 1962 with 49 persons attending.

Two months later the Mission accepted the blue-prints of a church building and extended a call to E.O. Hartwell, pastor-builder of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, to serve as pastor while he erected the building. Fields would be retained as pastor following the building program.

Members submitted suggestions for naming the church. The name "Berea Baptist Church" was selected by unanimous consent in May. The name refers to the church at Berea mentioned in Acts 17:11.

Three acres of land were available for a building site. In June Mission members began clearing and preparing the land for erecting the building. On July 8, 1962, the land was dedicated to the cause of Christ and ground was broken for the building.

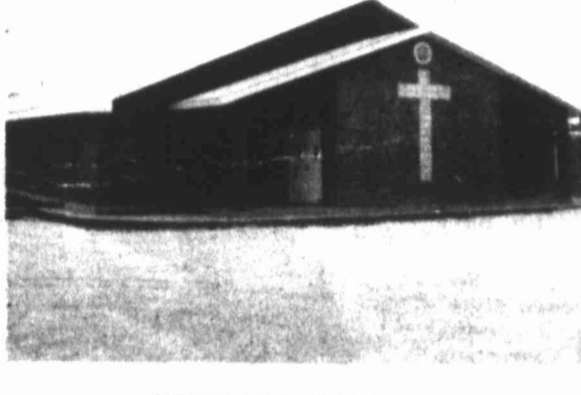

Members sawed; nailed, painted, kept the area clear of debris or did any task needing to be done. The first services were held in the new church building Sept. 23, 1962. Hartwell completed his work, tendered his resignation, and Fields resumed the pastorate.

After a two week revival, on Jan. 27, 1963 the members constituted the mission into a Southern Baptist Church to be known as Berea Baptist Church. The Mission during its first year had 19 baptisms and 88 charter members.

In the spring Fields submitted his resignation and returned to retirement. A call was extended to the Rev. Darrell Robinson to be the new church pastor.

The congregation voted in April, 1963 to double the size of the building. Members did most of the work themselves. The second unit began service in August, 1963.

A committee was appointed in November of that year to study the possibilities of starting a nursery and kindergarten school in the church. A school board was elected in December and the school opened Jan. 6, 1964.

BERIA BAPTIST CHURCH
...to celebrate 20th anniversary

The church had been in almost a continuous building program since 1961, yet the membership growth caused the auditorium to be filled to capacity nearly every Sunday. Another building program was voted in March, 1964 for a new auditorium seating 700 persons. The plans were to convert the first auditorium into Sunday School and office space. An additional acre of land was purchased for parking. The first services were held in the new auditorium July 5, 1964, just under two years after beginning the first unit.

Within two years, the church had gone through three bond campaigns, erected three buildings, purchased, enlarged and remodeled a parsonage, acquired four acres of land, opened a kindergarten and day school and grew rapidly. During the church year ending in August, 1964 the church had 349 members, had given over $2,700 to the cooperative program and mission causes and almost doubled the previous year's budget.

Reagan alternative due in jobs program

OUT OF the Congressional debate this year over what is or is not a "safety net," and who is and who is not "truly needy," one fact remains — the Reagan administration has not yet made clear what its alternative to social welfare-jobs programs will be.

Thus far, the administration's program has been a negative one — we must spend less on food stamps, get deadbeats off welfare rolls and cut the government's responsibility for citizens' lives.

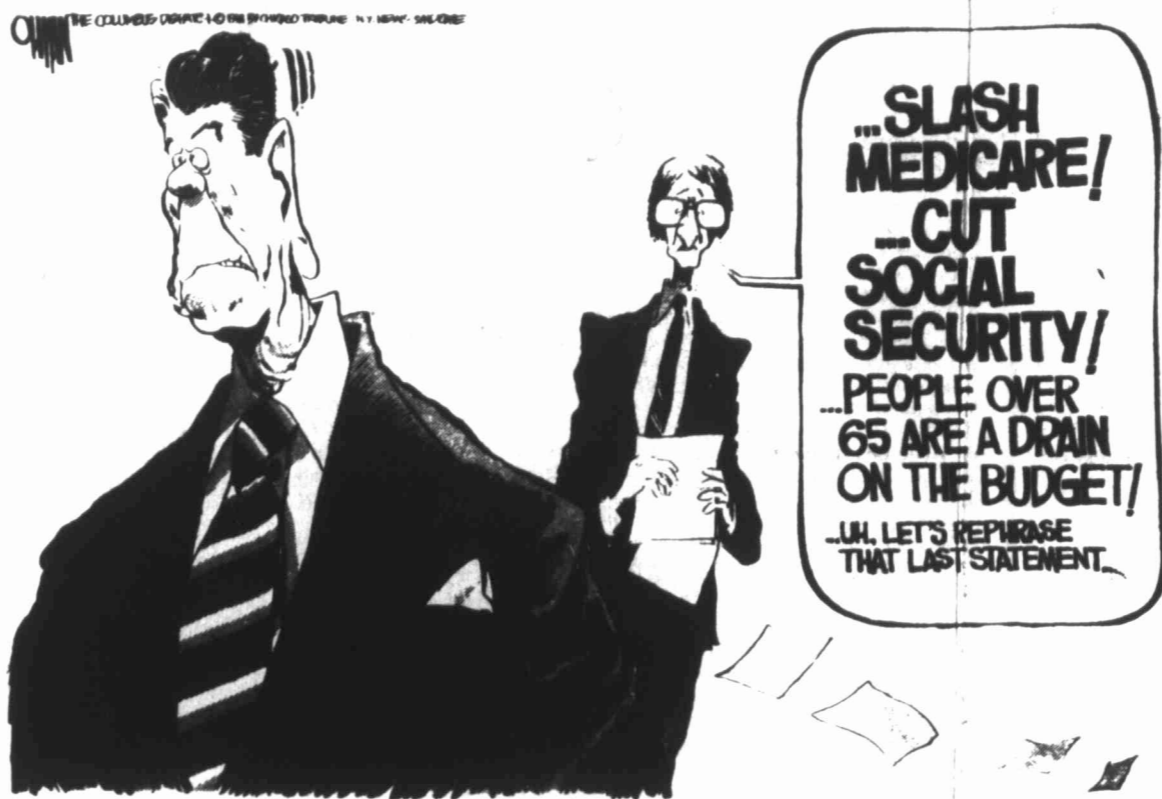

THAT'S FINE. Most Americans agree with that philosophy. But what will replace the employment programs of the past decades?

For some time, government aid to the poor has grown steadily. The government has expanded its role in medical care, housing, food, child care. Those programs have worked in the sense that the nation's poor are better provided for today than they were 30 years ago.

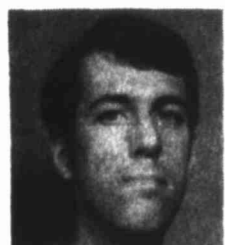

TWO QUESTIONS REMAIN: have those programs been cost-effective? and is it government's job to provide those services?

The Reagan administration has answered "no" to both and is committed to removing people from welfare. That means cutting government jobs programs.

If the answer is find a way to make the private sector pick up those jobs, so be it. But with 9.8 million Americans already out of work, the details of that plan should be developed soon.

Around the Rim

By BILLELDER

Thanks, but . . .

"Dear Mr. Elder," said the letter which came in the mail the other day. "In this country today, there exists a rather small, select group of men and women." (The ones who can actually afford to go on living, I said to myself.)

"A group," the letter continued, "of financially responsible individuals who have come to expect a certain level of service and recognition in their lives." (Nancy Reagan, perhaps? Leonid Brezhnev? Idi Amin? Who the heck are they talking about?)

"These people carry the American Express Gold Card," the letter explained. (Ah, so it's Karl Malden they're talking about, I realized.)

"And with this letter, I am personally inviting you to join them." (Great! Do I get to jump out from behind palm fronds in a Bolivian hotel and scare young honeymooners out of their wits by demanding to know if they've left home without — gasp! — their American Express card?)

THE LETTER WENT on to explain the kind of services I would enjoy if I applied for a Gold Card and got it.

It said I would get a line of credit of at least $2,000 — which ain't bad, considering no institution has ever placed that much trust in me — and it also said I would be able to enroll in something called "Express Cash," which, if it's anything like Federal Express, I don't want to know anything about it.

"If you've ever tried to cash a personal check in a strange town, you'll appreciate the Gold Card's check-cashing privileges," the letter said. Which is dandy, but my problem is the other way around: cashing strange checks in a small, personal town. I don't think a Gold Card can help me there. I think I just need to start demanding cash when I win at pool.

The letter went on, dazzling me with every paragraph — the card "brings you more than just financial security," the card "lets you charge virtually anything you want at leading restaurants, hotels, airlines, car rental agencies and other fine establishments around the world."

And then the clincher. I couldn't apply for the Gold Card unless I had an annual income of $20,000 or more.

WHAT A DOWNER after hiking my way through nearly a dozen paragraphs of lush, enticing prose, the cold hard ironic clincher hit me at the end of the letter: they thought I was rich!

I crumpled up the letter and threw it away. The benefits of capitalism aren't the only thing trickling down to my little corner of the world these days. Some bad information is dribbling my way, too.

"Dear American Express," I wrote back. "I am 27, collect aluminum cans for a living and live with my dog, Spider-man, in a lean-to at the Missouri-Pacific Railroad yard. Please send me your card made out of gold right away. Also, can you tell me where I might be able to sell the gold? I need the money to pay the vet for fixing Spider-man's broken leg. Also, I could buy my first full meal in six years. Thanks for the offer. Signed, Howard Hughes II."

natural body, it is raised a spiritual body" (1 Corinthians 15:42-44).

The Bible, you will note, does not try to describe what our new bodies will look like in Heaven. But it does tell us that they will be glorious and imperishable. They will be like the resurrection body of Jesus Christ, which clearly was similar to his physical body in some ways and yet different in its abilities. To me one of the most important things about our new bodies in Heaven is that they will no longer be subject to pain and death. All the miseries and fears of this life will be over! "He will wipe every tear from their eyes. There will be no more death or mourning or crying or pain, for the old order of things has passed away" (Revelation 21:4).

Although we may be curious about what our new state in Heaven will be like, the important thing for us right now is to be sure that we are going to Heaven. We can know that Heaven is before us if we yield our lives to Christ and trust him alone for our salvation.

WASHINGTON — Unkind cuts from friends all over the world confronted the Reagan administration as it returned to work this week. West Germany, Israel, Saudi Arabia and China have all challenged the U.S. in recent days.

Harsh rebuffs are tempting. But the wiser course is to avoid showdowns now, while the administration, with a new National Security team at the White House, organizes a strategy for dealing with a world that is slipping out of control.

The meanest shot came from Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, who was vacationing in Florida prior to a meeting with the President. In an interview with James Reston of The New York Times, the German leader picked a public fight with the U.S. on half a dozen touchy issues thrown up by the military crackdown in Poland.

He refused to go along with the U.S. in sanctions against Russia. He insisted that the Polish strongman, Gen. Jaruzelski, was primarily a patriot. He scoffed at warnings the U.S. might feel constrained to pull troops from Europe. He said economic difficulties were at least as important as the Polish crisis, and laid the blame for them on Washington.

MENACHEM BEGIN started the latest spate of trouble in the Middle East. He unilaterally annexed the Golan Heights, a piece of territory occupied by Israeli troops, but considered by the U.S. and all Arab countries as due for return to Syria under any peace settlement. The U.S. slapped Begin on the wrist by

Rowland Evans/Robert Novak

LOS ANGELES — Q: Which of the innumerable candidates for the U.S. Senate in California this year is calling for economic growth and defending the conventional wisdom?

A: None other than Jerry Brown, who rose to national fame as the no-growth idol of the wine-and-cheese set, making sure to savage the conventional wisdom whenever possible.

This is not merely another exercise of political agility by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., now eyeing Washington after eight years in Sacramento. While most Democrats are still tongue-tied after a year of Ronald Reagan, Brown again has proved his dexterity in formulating a growth-oriented Democratic alternative based on hope, not despair.

This course only bolsters the guess by California politicians of both parties that Brown's Senate race will not be poisoned by his mishandling of the state's Medfly crisis last year. Although Brown still trails most Republicans in the polls, it is hard to find a seasoned political Republican operative who in private will predict Brown's defeat. Truly, Jerry Brown is the indestructible Medfly.

Brown's political resurrection from Medfly burial is attributed by Republicans to their own indiscipline. An untidy Republican primary in which a half-dozen or more challengers will probably do in eccentric, 75-year-old Republican senator S.I. Hayakawa is not designed for victory.

BUT BROWN'S HIGH hopes also derive from his own political skills and analytic talents. His game plan is based on the fact that the Republican president happens to be Ronald Reagan, not Brown's criticism of Reagan is not reflexive liberal suspending a recent Memorandum of Understanding that established a "strategic" relation between the two countries.

World on hold

Begin then denounced the administration in savage terms that intimated it was anti-Semitic and untrustworthy.

The Saudis, up to that point, had been working with Washington to advance the so-called Fahd plan as a vehicle for negotiations between Israel and the Arab world after the Camp David Accords run their course with the return of the Sinai desert to Egypt in April. At a summit meeting in Morocco on Nov. 25, the Fahd plan met opposition from the group of radical Arabs led by Syria, and including Iraq, Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization. The Saudis, with support from the monarchs of Morocco and Jordan, vowed to keep on trying, and arrangements were made for a visit to Washington by Crown Prince Fahd.

But after Begin erupted on Golan, the Saudis moved with unwonted swiftness to take distances from Washington and restore their standing with the radical Arabs. On Dec. 22, Prince Fahd received the Syrian leader, President Hafez Assad. That day Riyadh announced it was canceling the projected Fahd visit to Washington. On Dec. 26, the Saudis settled a long-standing border dispute with Iraq. On Dec. 31, they resumed diplomatic relations with Libya.

Over last weekend, Saudi officials put it to the U.S. They said they were ready to continue with the Fahd plan, but only if the U.S. first slapped down Israel — presumably at a session of the U.N. Security Council on Golan scheduled for this week. "If there is no change in U.S. policy," Foreign Minister Saud al-Faisal warned in an interview, "all directions lead to conflict in this area."

AS FOR THE CHINESE, contention arose from a campaign promise by Candidate Ronald Reagan to give military support to Taiwan. That commitment has been watered down to a proposal to make available spare parts for weapons the Taiwanese already have. But Peking now insists even such mild support would put the whole U.S.-China connection at risk.

"If the U.S. desires to preserve and develop its relations with China," the official Peoples Daily put it, "it must seek, on the basis of genuine respect for Chinese sovereignty, a solution to the issue of selling arms to Taiwan."

American responses to such pressures are clearly in order. In the long run, this country is probably going to be obliged to come down very hard on Schmidt and Begin, and to let the Saudis and Chinese know they cannot dictate American policy.

But first Washington needs to work out a concerted course of action for dealing with its worldwide problems. So for the time being, it makes sense to let the slings and arrows bounce off. Indeed, when friends turn nasty, a good way to show how much this country counts is to put the world on hold for a spell.

The indestructible medfly sniping. Rather, unlike most California Democrats, Brown perceives a dramatic difference between Reagan's records as governor and, so far, as president.

"Reagan is practicing what he preached in his speeches before he ran for office," Brown told us over dinner at Perino's. "As governor, he followed the conventional wisdom. As president, he has defied it. He has been a polarizing force, shattering the consensus."

But hadn't Jerry Brown made his reputation by defying the conventional wisdom at every opportunity? "I was establishing the conventional wisdom for the future, not reaching back for the conventional wisdom of the past," he answered. Whatever the authenticity of that nimble reply, he is today the candidate for the dynamic consensus. Attacking Reagan for obsession solely with economic market forces, Brown approves in principle of deregulation but also sketches a government-business-labor consensus.

This removes Brown from the pack of Democrats howling for reduction or deferral of the Reagan tax cut ("raising taxes during recession," says Brown, "would be Herbert Hoover"). While attacking new tax "loopholes" passed last year, he sees the Reagan tax cut combining with "technological innovations" and government planning for a new outburst of growth. Thus, Brown agrees with the supply-siders that only economic growth can balance the budget ultimately, but disagrees on the route for achieving it.

GROWTH? Advocated by the American politician most closely associated with smaller-is-better? "I am convinced," he replied, "that economic growth is essential" — hastening to add, in deference to the wine-and-cheese set, that it must be done with foolproof environmental safeguards.

"I am getting in an optimistic mood," said the once-dour prophet of diminishing expectations. Shortly before our conversation, he had previewed snatches of his state-of-the-state message during a party he gave for his supporters a few blocks down Wilshire Boulevard at the Marquis restaurant. Brown declared that California had survived the depletion of gold after the early rush by developing a rich agricultural economy, had followed each economic setback with a corresponding gain and, he was certain, would rise to the occasion once more. The assembled Democrats, accustomed to gloom-and-doom assaults on Reaganism, seemed puzzled.

Brown himself has not thought it all out clearly, but he at least is articulating a fragmentary Democratic alternative to Reaganism that transcends Tip O'Neil's nostalgic yearning for the New Deal. In essence, Brown wants to combine market forces unleashed by tax cuts with government planning. "Planning is essential," he said, thereby framing the debate with Reagan.

Brown tells anyone who asks that he has no interest in the 1984 presidential race (though after his dismal 1980 campaign, nobody asks). Moreover, his track record suggests that his pro-growth, pro-consensus stance may be no more permanent than his opposite positions of the past. Yet, he is making more sense than the tongue-tied Democrat of Congress in a political career that few Californians are betting will end at age 43.

Dear Editor:

I was concerned about your recent article stating that Billy Graham had criticized Jerry Falwell for his stand in Moral Majority. Recently, I received a letter from George Wilson stating, "Mr. Graham stands with Dr. Falwell, contrary to some of the reports. The enclosed copy of Dr. Graham's letter, written earlier this year explains his concern and his position, and his love for Dr. Falwell."

I am enclosing a copy of Dr. Graham's letter, and trust that, since you printed the false report, you will print this one in full, refuting the previous statements.

Sincerely,
LOUISE PAULGER
1700 Scurry St.

Editor's note: Billy Graham's letter, dated Jan. 30, 1981, follows:

Dr. Jerry Falwell
Lynchburg, VA 24514

Dear Jerry,

I am deeply disturbed that there seems to be an attempt to drive a wedge between us. I am deeply grateful for your faithful proclamation of the Gospel of Jesus Christ — the same Gospel I preach — and feel that all of us who know and love our Lord Jesus Christ need to stand together. Only Christ can bring hope to our troubled world, and our proclamation of Him must have first priority.

I share your deep concern for the moral and spiritual issues which face the world today, and for the alarming drift away from Biblical standards in public and private life. I thank God for your boldness, and pray that He will continue to give you wisdom and courage. Our nation needs to be warned that God has brought judgment in the past to nations which renounced His moral law, and He will do it again. If ever a nation needs spiritual revival it is America.

I also warmly support your efforts to feed the starving and bring help and hope to the needy in many parts of the world. We have a responsibility to do such things in the name of Christ, and they go hand-in-hand with our proclamation of Christ's salvation. This is a part of your ministry I have only recently heard about.

While I have been out of the country almost continuously since the middle of September, I have had the opportunity of watching you several times on television. I greatly admire the way you handle the difficult questions that are constantly thrown at you. I am also thankful for the way you seek to relate your answers to the Gospel. God has given you a combination of courtesy, warmth and wisdom for which I am grateful.

You know that from time to time I have expressed some reservations about evangelical Christians becoming so absorbed in political issues that they lose sight of the priority of the Gospel. I am also concerned that such issues could be used to divide us by those who do not agree with the Gospel or our evangelistic, missionary, and social efforts.

However, in recent months I have discussed both in private conversations and media interviews in Japan, the United States, and more recently in Europe the fact that the term "Moral Majority" has often been misunderstood and caricatured.

Some have, for example, claimed that it is exclusively a white Protestant organization with racial overtones, or one which has no concern for some of the deeper social issues which face our world. Over and over again, especially in other countries, I have explained that this is a false picture, and that it is composed of people from a cross-section of our pluralistic nation — including Protestants, Catholics, Jews, and various ethnic groups — who are concerned about the moral drift in our country.

I have promised myself and the Lord that as an evangelist I will continue to make the proclamation of the Gospel my first priority. I support the Reagan-Bush administration with my prayers that God will give them wisdom, but I want to avoid being drawn into partisan politics, for I do not feel God has called me to become involved in them. However, I will continue to take a stand on moral issues which face our nation and world. There are many of these which especially concern me, including not only individual moral issues but matters such as social injustice and the arms race.

I would like to take this opportunity to invite you to participate in one of our forthcoming Crusades and bring a witness for Christ on our telecast. I know we are united on the essentials of the Gospel — the virgin birth, the blood atonement, the bodily resurrection of Christ, the personal return of Christ, eternal life in Him, and the need for people to be converted by repentance and faith in Christ.

I look forward to meeting you in the near future and discussing with you personally these and other matters, and would ask that you pray for me also.

With warmest Christian greetings,
Cordially yours,
BILLY GRAHAM

Heavenly bodies

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have heard it said that we will be given new bodies in Heaven. What will they be like? — B.W.

DEAR D.W.: The Bible only gives us a few glimpses of what Heaven will be like, and that is true as well of the types of bodies we will have. I am sure one reason for this is that Heaven is so wonderful and perfect that we are not really able to grasp it fully in this life.

Yes, the Bible teaches we will have new bodies in Heaven. The place in the Bible which discusses this in most detail is 1 Corinthians 15:35-58. (The whole fifteenth chapter tells us about the importance of Christ's resurrection for us, and toward the end of the chapter Paul shows how Christ's resurrection is the grounds for our hope that some day we too will be raised.) It says, "The body that is sown is perishable, it is raised imperishable; it is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness, it is raised in power; it is sown a

Spine affected by arthritis

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Could you please send me some information about ankylosing spondylitis? My spine is completely fused and I hurt seven days a week. I have pretty well learned how to live with the pain. I would just like a little more information about it. — W.H.

Ankylosing spondylitis is a particular form of arthritis that affects the backbone. The word ankylosing refers to stiffening; spondylitis means inflammation of the vertebrae of the backbone. Just as a hip, knee or elbow can suffer from arthritis, so, too, can joints of the backbone. So with ankylosing spondylitis, there will be pain and stiffness, just as in other joint inflammation.

Usually the stiffening begins in the lower part of the back, where the backbone joins the pelvis. That is the sacroiliac joint. Inflammation and eventually stiffness can then spread upward through the rest of the backbone. Sometimes this progresses all the way to the neck bones. The condition is sometimes referred to as poker spine.

Ankylosing spondylitis is a special kind of arthritis in that it rarely strikes other joints, with one exception — the hip. It is more common in men and the age of onset is usually young adulthood — the 20s. There are certain hints that this illness may be somehow involved with heredity, but this cannot be said with certainty.

I regret that you have to endure this constant pain. Drugs, like aspirin, indomethacin and phenylbutazone, help control pain. Because the condition is chronic, it is unwise to use stronger pain relievers because of the danger of habituation developing (another reader's question). That is an unfortunate, but important factor. It is important for you to try to maintain an erect posture or as near so as possible. Doing that will slow down the tendency of the back to bend forward. You should learn breathing exercises, since the problem affects the ribs where they attach to the backbone. Maintaining good rib mobility will assure that your breathing will not be inhibited.

I hope that with medicine and physical therapy, the edge can be taken off your pain and you can stay as active as feasible. Another name for your condition is Marie-Strumpell disease. You didn't include your return address. Write again and give that and I will send some appropriate reading material.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: About bedsores: I have heard that water beds will help cure this problem. Is this true? — G.W.H.

Water beds, of course, have great give to them, so they should by all rights be ideal. However, they are inconvenient for tending the bedridden patient because they are so close to the floor. There are other mattresses that relieve pressure nicely — flotation mattresses. I am not so sure that a water bed is the answer for most people.

I am still going through mail from readers on the subject of bedsores. It seems to be a topic that elicits much helpful information developed by those who have dealt with the problem. I have already passed on many tips gleaned from such mail. I want to thank those who take the time to write.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Best gift may be some presence

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-year-old unmarried black woman. When I was 16, I got pregnant by a 27-year-old white man. He was married with a family of his own.

The boy's father never wanted to have anything to do with the boy (I'll call him Jimmy). He's never even seen him. I thought maybe if Jimmy wrote to his daddy it might help, so I gave him his daddy's address. Jimmy wrote several letters, begging his father to come visit him, but he never got an answer. Before Christmas I wrote and told him how much his son wanted to see him, but the only response I got was a letter from his lawyer demanding that I quit "harassing" him!

Abby, every birthday and Christmas, Jimmy says, "The only present I want is a visit from my daddy." It's heartbreaking to see the child hurt this way.

Maybe it's my fault, because I never told him anything bad about his father. I've never lied to Jimmy, but I'm considering telling him his father has died so it will put an end to his praying for a dream that may never come true. What should I do?

JIMMY'S MAMA

DEAR MAMA: I know you meant well, but it's regrettable that you encouraged Jimmy to write to a father who made it clear that he wanted nothing to do with the boy. Don't lie. It's time you started telling Jimmy the truth — ugly as it is. In time, things may change. But until they do, facts must be faced, accepted and handled. God bless you and Jimmy.

DEAR ABBY: In response to the reader who couldn't go along with a female Santa Claus, I'd like to pass on what comic Robin Tyler said: "Santa Claus must be a woman. Who else would give so much and get so little in return?"
GLORIA ALLRED, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

DEAR ABBY: An elderly well-to-do aunt and I were at lunch one day and she offered to buy me a "nice" winter coat for Christmas, which she could well afford but I could not. We went to a store where I have a credit card and she doesn't, bought the coat and charged it to my account. I've worn the coat, thanked her for it, told the family it was a gift from Auntie, etc. Well, she never mentioned paying for it after that.

Abby, my aunt is not senile, but obviously she's forgotten. How do I handle this embarrassing situation?
PERPLEXED OUT EAST

DEAR PERPLEXED: Send the bill to your aunt with a warm note thanking her for the generous gift. And enclose a stamped envelope for Auntie to ante up.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: Give someone a priceless gift. Listen.

Survey shows young, old agree

Social Security views aired

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Contrary to popular belief, older and younger Americans generally share the same views about maintaining and strengthening the Social Security System, according to a recent nationwide public opinion poll.

The survey, conducted for the American Association of Retired Persons and National Retired Teachers Association by the Hamilton & Staff research firm, found surprising similarities in the views of those 55 and older and those age 25 through 54 on what to do — and not do — to solve the financial problems that are plaguing the system.

According to the national sample of 1,261 respondents, the overwhelming majority of both younger and older persons do not approve of most proposed reductions in Social Security benefits to help stabilize the system over the next few years.

For example, the survey found that 78 percent of those under age 55 and 81 percent of those over 55 oppose reducing benefits to persons who will begin receiving Social Security benefits in 1982. Clear majorities of both age groups are also against placing any ceiling on cost-of-living benefit increases (74 and 77 percent, respectively), reducing or eliminating benefits to dependent spouses who become eligible in 1982 (66 and 67 percent), and eliminating the $225 Social Security lump sum death benefit (61 percent of both age groups). The only reduction preferred by younger respondents is in the student benefit for dependents (50 percent favor reducing or eliminating this, while 44 percent oppose). Those over age 55 split evenly on the issue, with 43 percent preferring and 43 percent opposing this option.

At the same time, both age groups strongly support the use of general tax revenues to help supplement Social Security payroll taxes (70 percent of those under 55 and 65 percent of those over 55 preferred this option), as well as the financing of Medicare Part A (hospitalization) out of general tax revenues (70 percent and 62 percent, respectively, approved of this idea). In fact, the majority of both age groups (59 and 56 percent) said they would support general revenue financing of Medicare Part A "even though it might mean only lower-income people would be covered."

Taxing Social Security benefits in order to raise revenue for the system is opposed by the majority of respondents in both age groups (61 and 68 percent), as is any further increase in the Social Security payroll tax (58 and 51 percent).

When asked to consider solutions to the long-term problems of Social Security, both young (81 percent) and old (79 percent) strongly endorsed the use of incentives to encourage older workers to stay on the job longer and delay drawing Social Security benefits. The majority of both age groups also support steps to relate future Social Security benefits more closely to workers' earnings and contributions (64 and 62 percent) and to cover any future deficit in the Social Security trust funds out of general tax revenue (61 and 63 percent).

Neither age group supports raising the eligibility age for Social Security benefits from 65 to 68 (64 percent and 58 percent, respectively, oppose this solution).

THE LIGHT TOUCH
By Sherry Wegner

This week it will be "the Enlighten Touch" ... a brief education on today's teenage talk. "Foxy" means good looking, not sly.

Girls no longer refer to their jeans as "blue jeans" ... instead, it is by brand name found on the hip pocket, e.g. I've got a new pair of "Gloria's" ... wear your "Calvin Klein's" etc. Other fashionable names are, Jordache, S.O.B., Bill Blass, Chic & B.S. Incidentally, some of the fashions are "organically grown."

"Let's split" means to leave, not break-up.

"Gross" means awful, not 12 dozen.

"Bad" means great or fantastic ... e.g. it was a "bad jam." (Meaning a great rock concert.)

"In the shade" means weird.

"Out of the closet" means you have announced publicly that you are gay ... and, those out of the closet are "flaky."

To go "cruising" means riding around in a car, not a boat.

Why don't you "cruise" over to BIG SPRING SEED & CHEMICAL, 602 N.E. 2nd, and see our groovy new line of EVER-GREEN FEEDS. Just arrived, a shipment of Dog Food. Insure your 1982 crops at our office with ALL-RISK FEDERAL CROP INS.

Reagan vows to prosecute those who don't register deal announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, opting to continue draft registration, is vowing to prosecute the more than 800,000 young men who have failed to register unless they sign up during a temporary amnesty period.

In a sharp reversal of his campaign statements, President Reagan said Thursday he was retaining draft registration because it would save up to six weeks in mobilizing recruits in an emergency.

Violators of the law — who could face a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine — will be allowed to sign up without penalty during a 30- to 60-day grace period, the administration said. Details on when the grace period starts and how long it will last are still pending.

Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III expressed confidence that most young men would register now that confusion about the future of registration has been cleared up.

And those who still refuse? "Under the law they have to be prosecuted," said Meese.

However, he suggested that extraordinary steps will be taken before the government moves against violators.

"There are several enforcement steps before a prosecution is initiated," Meese said. "They are counseled, they have people come to their home and talk to them about the (law) and explain the law carefully to them."

Leaders of the anti-draft movement denounced Reagan's decision as hypocritical. Sen. Mark Hatfield reminded the president of his 1980 statement that the chief objection to draft registration was on moral grounds, and that the program was morally unjust except in a severe national emergency.

"That moral standard is as valid today as when the president made it," said Hatfield, an Oregon Republican who enlisted Reagan's help in an unsuccessful attempt to block registration in May 1980.

In his announcement Thursday, Reagan said registration did not foreshadow a return to the draft. Quoting his own words from a 1980 letter to Hatfield, Reagan said, "Only in the most severe national emergency does the government have a claim to the mandatory service of its young people."

The next sentence of that letter — which was omitted from Reagan's statement Thursday — said, "In any other time, a draft or draft registration destroys the very values that our society is committed to defending."

Reagan's statement Thursday — which was read by Meese — assured the nation that there was no national emergency.

Barry Lynn, president of a group called Draft Action, and David Landau, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, predicted widespread violations of the law even after the amnesty period.

"The system doesn't work on its own merits because people don't believe it is necessary," said Landau.

DRAFT SESSION — President Reagan meets in the Oval office of the White House Thursday with arms negotiator Paul Nitze. Later in the day, the president announced his intention to continue draft registration.

DALHART, Texas (AP) — Longtime West Texas newspaperman Albert Law has sold his interest in the Dalhart Daily Texan to his daughter and son-in-law, Publisher J. Kenneth Hogue announced.

Law became editor of the paper in 1936 when it was a tabloid, and he and Hogue formed a partnership and bought the Texan in 1947.

The new owners of Law's one-third interest are Zella Beth and Bob Lang, both employees of the paper. Mrs. Lang has been named editor, succeeding her father. Lang continues as production manager.

Law, 76, will continue writing his front-page column, "Fare."

The Texan was founded in 1901 and became a daily in 1931.

Bonilla wants to discuss immigration with Haig

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — An Hispanic leader among those invited to a meeting with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. next week says he wants to talk with Haig about allegations of a mass deportation of Mexican aliens.

Attorney Tony Bonilla, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said he received a telegram from Haig Thursday asking that he join other Hispanic leaders and senior officials at the meeting in Washington at the State Department on Jan. 13.

Haig called the meeting to discuss the administration's foreign policy, especially as it pertains to third world countries, the Caribbean and Central America, and economic assistance and trade policy in the Western Hemisphere, Bonilla said.

Bonilla said he sent Haig a telegram saying "the administration's recent decision to withdraw 'Silva Letters' from Mexican and other Latin American visa applicants has created concern among the Hispanic community in America and within the Mexican government."

"Reports are being received at the LULAC national office that Mexican nationals are being rounded up and deported in different states following the administration's announcement. You are therefore requested to place the matter on the agenda for discussion during our meeting," Bonilla said.

Bonilla referred to reported revocation of the Immigration and Naturalization Service of the Silva Letters, which had allowed more than 100,000 Latin American aliens to remain in the United States as part of a court case involving a Mexican alien in Chicago.

"At the critical time we are trying to deal with an explosive situation in El Salvador and Nicaragua, we are saying to those people, 'you are not wanted here in America,'" Bonilla said. "It is difficult to say to people in El Salvador, 'we want to protect you against communism and stabilize the country,' and at the same time tell the people, 'we don't want you here.' We perceive that as a little inconsistent."

Meanwhile, a veteran immigration attorney in San Antonio said Thursday that the status of more than 2,000 aliens in that area alone, most of them from Mexico, was in limbo pending clarification of the Silva Letters.

"Most of these aliens who were protected under the court order have homes here and children in school," attorney Ruben Montemayor said. "Most of them are working and have been contributing to the economy of San Antonio. Deporting them now would work extreme hardship on them. Most have been here for years."

Montemayor charged that immigration officials began picking up aliens in San Antonio at mid-December, in violation of the intent of the court order which allowed aliens to reside in the United States "without threat of deportation or expulsion until further notice."

The 1977 federal court order required the State Department make available 144,999 visas to people from Western Hemisphere nations who made application between 1968 and 1976 and then immigrated illegally, Montemayor said.

"We are checking each case carefully on a routine basis," said Richard Norton, deputy district director of the INS in San Antonio. "We are calling in about 10 aliens per day to see if they comply. If they have no legal equities here, they will be deported if they are not willing to leave."

Norton, who said it had not been determined how many aliens were involved in San Antonio, said six-month or one-year extensions would be given in hardship cases.

Stanton changes trash firms

STANTON — Following recommendations from City Manager Gary Rudler, the Stanton City Council has decided to terminate Permian Basin Disposal's contract for city trash disposal effective immediately. The council also declared an emergency, which enabled it to swiftly award the contract to Rusty White of W.W. Disposal.

Another recommendation from Rudler concerning the hiring of a police chief calls for a one-month hold on current applications and acceptance of further applicants. The council approved this recommendation as well.

Other action taken by the council included approval for Frontier Cableco to add new stations to the area. According to Rudler, the channels should total 12 now.

The council also passed a resolution concerning the Texas Electric Service Co. The utility expects to see its fuel costs rise due to the expiration of natural gas contracts and the council resolution paves the way for a TESCO rate increase inside Stanton, should the increase be sought by the electric company.

Carrol Yater was granted an indefinite extension on his mobile home park, pending a meeting between Rudler and the zoning board about mobile home park regulations.

Rudler said a special meeting of the council has been scheduled for Monday to hear a proposal from Tamarack Oil of Midland to drill a well in the Stanton city limits.

C-City school enrollment up

COLORADO CITY — The Christmas break may have given Colorado City students a holiday, but school district Superintendent Charlie Useton and his staff worked on enrollment studies during the time between Christmas and New Year.

Said Useton: "As far as the high school is concerned, that's our bad point — we're down. In 1980, the high school had an enrollment of 391 and in 1981 the figures show 350. Of course, this will pick up due to the other schools' increases. In the upper school, for example, we have 19 more students in 1980 — there were 332 in 1980 and in 1981, 351."

"Both Hutchinson and Kelly Elementary Schools show increases too — Hutchinson with 358 students in 1980 and 374 in 1981, while the 1981 enrollment for Kelly was 340 and we now have 353."

Useton concluded, "Even with our high school decrease, we have seven more students in 1981 compared with the 1980 enrollment period."

The total Colorado Independent School District enrollment shows 1,428 students, he said.

Prison generous with blood

The Big Spring Federal Prison Camp has completed its second year of participation in the community blood donor program, according to John Allman, superintendent of the camp.

During 1981, the camp held six drives co-sponsored by the medical staff and camp Jaycees with an end result of 208 units donated, which represents 15 percent of the community drive contributions, according to David Huff, camp coordinator and president of the Big Spring Blood Advisory Council.

Multi-gallon donors include 11 residents and the following employees: Gloria Pappajohn, Jerry Kelly, William Scanlon and Paul Girvan.

There are an additional 21 donors who reached the one-gallon level.

Persons wishing to donate blood may participate through the community mobiles each Monday at the Health Center, 201 Lancaster, or at one of the many locally sponsored mobiles.

Mitchell County Commissioner Preston seeking re-election

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Mitchell County Commissioner of Precinct 4, Bill Preston, has announced he will be a candidate for re-election.

Preston is a native of Mitchell County. He is serving his first term as commissioner.

"I enjoy the job — it's different from what one might expect. Sure, I get lots of calls — mostly about washed out streets, which are a big problem in my precinct. Some of them I can do something about, some I can't. It's a rewarding job — you do the best you can and keep trying," Preston said.

"My goal is to have every road and every ditch in my precinct in tip top shape. Of course, it'll never happen even if I'm commissioner until I'm 75, but it's my goal so I'll do as much as I can to achieve it," he said.

WHAT A MOVE!!! — Howard College Hawk forward Wimberly Hardwick, No. 44, seems to have faked out the whole Sul Ross team as he drives for the basket in first quarter action in the ABC Classic being held at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Hardwick's move has Sul Ross Player Ron Lamb no. 13 all agog and up in the air as he drives by. The Hawks won the game 99-90. Howard College faces Ranger Junior College tonight at 9 p.m.

Midland beats Ranger, 72-61

Hawks soar to victory

The Howard College Hawks came out with a fighting and scratching defense in the opening game of the ABC Classic at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum and clawed their way to a 99-90 victory over the Sul Ross Junior Varsity Thursday night.

In the early stages of the game Sul Ross was intimidated by the Hawk's aggressive man to man defense consisting of Jerome Johnson, Leon Isaac, Wimberly Hardwick, Nathan Givens and James Barnett.

Sul Ross turned the ball over three times early in the first quarter allowing the Hawks' running offense to spurt ahead.

Coach Wilder said of the game, "We won the game—that is the bottom line. We played good in places and not so good in others. It's been a month since we played against New Mexico Military so we were a bit ragged. We didn't rebound as well as we should have or move the ball around well, but that should come together by the time we start conference play next Monday" against Midland College.

Sul Ross was able to stay close to the Hawks due to Howard turnovers and missed layups. Slowly but surely the Sul Ross team pulled to within one late in the first half to make the score 31-30.

At half time the Hawks were leading 44-40.

The Hawks came out slow in the second half and allowed Sul Ross to pull within three with 16 minutes left.

But whenever Sul Ross got close the Hawks managed to pull away. This time the Hawks went on a scoring rampage and scored 10 points in the next three minutes racing to a 61-52 lead. Givens helped the Hawks with three of his patented 10 foot jumpers.

Givens finished the night with 29 points followed by Leon Isaac with 20 and James Barnett with 12.

The rest of the game was purely academic and the final score stood at 99-90.

"Our defense was good and we played pretty aggressively. I noticed Ranger and Midland (second game Thursday night) were ragged just like us, so that's good as far as the team's concerned. We just need to work on getting the ball to Nathan (Givens) and let him do his thing," Wilder said.

The Hawks play Ranger Junior College tonight at 9 p.m. Sul Ross plays Midland starting at 7 p.m.

In other play in the ABC Classic last night Midland College beat Ranger 72-61. Anthony Webb had 23 for Midland and Maurice Dawson also had 23 for Ranger.

Hawk Coach Harold Wilder stressed to his players to keep moving the ball up the court constantly pressuring the Sul Ross defense. In the game the Hawks did a good job of looking upcourt for the open man and getting him the quick outlet pass.

With 4:30 left in the half Sul Ross tied the game at 32 all on a Mike Jones layup. But it was not to be Sul Ross' night as the Hawks Nathan Givens took charge and hit on one of his deadly turnaround jumpers followed moments later by a Leon Isaac layup and two free throws by Zac Sharp to put Howard College up at 40-38. At half time the Hawks were leading 44-40.

The Hawks came out slow in the second half and allowed Sul Ross to pull within three with 16 minutes left.

But whenever Sul Ross got close the Hawks managed to pull away. This time the Hawks went on a scoring rampage and scored 10 points in the next three minutes racing to a 61-52 lead. Givens helped the Hawks with three of his patented 10 foot jumpers.

Givens finished the night with 29 points followed by Leon Isaac with 20 and James Barnett with 12.

With six minutes to go the Hawks began to mesh as they dropped into a zone defense which confused Sul Ross. Sul Ross was not able to connect from the perimeter which made the Hawk lead secure at the 4:30 mark when Givens slammed one home to increase the Hawk margin to 88-77.

HOWARD (99) — James Barnett 6-0; Wimberly Hardwick 6-1-12; Nathan Givens 13-3-29; Jerome Johnson 7-4-8; Leon Isaac 9-2-30; Uyen Coleman 2-0-2; Zac Sharp 1-2-4; Reggie Childress 3-0-4; Jim Lowery 0-0. TOTALS 41-17-99.

SUL ROSS (90) — Mike Jones 9-6-24; John Skilern 3-1-7; David Tandy 6-1-13; Ron Lamb 5-5; Joe Wilson 3-3-19; Fred Lang 0-2-3; Roosevelt Jones 0-0-0; Gabe Garcia 7-3-16; Travis Miller 1-0-2. TOTALS 34-22-90.

Breaking district win drought

Lady Steers smash Midland

The Big Spring High School girl's basketball team and Coach Sandy have reason to celebrate after last night's 57-49 victory over Midland.

It was BSHS girl's first district win in 5-AAAAA competition in four years, which means the Lady Steers are no longer to be taken lightly on the basketball court anymore.

Hats off to the girls and Coach Brown for the fine job they did last night against Midland.

Shirley Dixon. "Shell played all out and Shirley really did a great job of rebounding," Coach Brown said.

"Last time we played Midland they beat us by 21 points, but this time it was different. Our girls were ready to win game and I was ready too. The team's confidence is up and I'm delighted with them," Coach Brown said.

it last night with her red hot offensive play.

The victory raises the girls district record to 1-2 and their season record is now 10-10.

The Lady Steers travel to Odessa Monday night to battle the Odessa Permian team. The team will be back in Big Spring Thursday to take on Midland Lee.

"We're just taking it one game at a time. And we're having a good time because all the girls like each other and like working with each other. I think we're really ready to cut loose now," Coach Brown said.

"We played a good all around game. When we lost to Abilene this week we were bothered by their press and threw the ball away, but last night the girls handled themselves well under pressure," Coach Brown said.

Also to be commended was the crowd at last night's contest. Coach Brown said the excited crowd help with its enthusiasm to spur the girls on to victory.

High scorers for the Lady Steers were Shell Rutledge and Elise Wheat with 14.

Also due praise is Monette Wise who played an excellent game. Brown called Wise "the best sophomore in the district" and she proved Tonight's contest is against Pecos. The JV games begins at 6:15 with the varsity to follow.

GET THAT BALL — Lady Steer Shirley Dixon (right) and a Midland player scramble for a loose basketball in first half action of a game held in Steer Gym last night.

With the help of Dixon's rebounding and aggressive play the girls walloped Midland 57-49. The win was the first district victory for a Lady Steer team in four years.

Ford wins Coach of the Year

HOUSTON (AP) — "When you're winning, you don't need head football coaches," Clemson's Danny Ford said Thursday, minutes after being named major college Coach of the Year.

The 33-year-old Ford, whom Alabama Coach Bear Bryant has described as "a heck of a leader," borrowed a page from his former coach's book and poor-mouthed his own accomplishments in leading Clemson to its first national college football chamampionship with a 12-0 record, the school's best ever.

"When you do the best job as a coach, is not always when you have a good year," Ford said. "When you've got momentum going your way, it's not very hard to coach and they don't need you. It's like a child making good grades — everything's going your way and life is easy. But when things are not going well — to pull a team out of a losing skid is the mark of a good coach. I think I contributed more in past years." In three years under Ford, Clemson's records have been 8-4, 6-5 and 12-0, a sequence which Ford described as "one year was easy, one year was hard, and this year was not too bad."

While Ford was being voted Kodak Coach of the Year by some 2,400 members of the American Football Coaches Association, Vito Ragazzo of Shippensburg (Pa.) State won out in the race for College Division Coach of the Year. Ragazzo, 54, coached Shippensburg to a 12-1 record, its best ever, and the Red Raiders reached the semifinals of the NCAA Division II playoffs.

Ford said Clemson, unranked until the third week of the season, "proved a lot of people wrong. We had so many doubters all year. At the start of the season, I don't think anyone picked Clemson to go undefeated, beat Nebraska (22-15 in the Orange Bowl) and be No. 1 because we didn't have the reputation.

White worried about 49er turf

DALLAS (AP) — One of Dallas quarterback Danny White's strongest features is dodging the enemy pass rush.

He just hopes that somehow Candlestick Park will dry out before Sunday's National Conference championship game against the San Francisco 49ers so his mobility won't be negated.

"I just don't like playing in the mud," said White. "I've played in it...I just like a fast track."

"Your first two steps are very important getting away from the pass rush. The mud keeps you from being effective. All of sudden the defensive linemen look like they have arms eight feet long."

White said former teammate and defensive tackle Larry Cole used to like playing in grass and mud. His theory was "it makes everybody as slow as me."

Handling the ball can be a problem, White said, but not a major one.

"They change balls every down trying to keep a dry one in there," said White. "You've just got to remember to keep two hands on it all the time."

White said "the field will be just as much trouble for the 49ers as it will for us."

Asked if he thought the 49ers would be distracted by having to practice in Anaheim, offensive tackle Pat Donovan said it would probably help them.

"Philadelphia had to go to Florida to practice for our title game last year and Coach (Tom) Landry said it was advantage for them because they were away from their wives and had no distractions...they could concentrate harder," Donovan said.

Donovan said the Cowboys wouldn't be worried about the field even though they may not get to practice on it before the game.

"You can adjust to the situation aside from the fact that it means you're going to get dirty," said White.

White said the Cowboys will have to wear longer cleats than usual to combat the soft turf.

"We'll probably take 10 or 12 different pairs of shoes," he said. "We'll wear either a one-half inch cleat or a three-fourths of an inch cleat."

49ers relying on basic game

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Although Bill Walsh is known for his complex game strategies, the San Francisco coach says the 49ers must rely on good basic football to beat Dallas Sunday.

"They're a fully dimensional football team," he said of the Cowboys, the 49ers' foe in the National Football Conference championship game at Candlestick Park. "They throw the ball as well as anybody, run the ball...you just have to count on your fundamentals to beat them."

Walsh, who transformed the 49ers from losers to division champions in three years, complimented the Cowboys, but added that his team certainly doesn't feel overmatched.

"The Dallas Cowboys should be given credit, they're the mainstay of the NFL," Walsh said. "I wouldn't say we're awed by them. We know them as they are as a team. We have a lot of respect for them, as much as we would have for any of the other teams who have made it to the championship playoffs." The 49ers showed little respect for the Cowboys during the teams' regular-season meeting, whipping Dallas 45-14 in their Oct. 11 contest at San Francisco.

"We executed supremely well and played very good defense in that game," said Walsh. "We just had one of those great games that a given team can have on a given day. It was an advantage to us to have played them, regardless of how we did."

Walsh, whose club was 13-3 during the regular season and beat the New York Giants 38-24 in its playoff opener at San Francisco last Sunday, said he believes the 49ers are building a "tough at home" tradition.

"Teams traditionally have trouble playing at Dallas and we hope to make it that way for us at San Francisco," said the coach, who has guided the 49ers into the playoffs for the first time since 1972.

"We have a lot of confidence going into this game, especially since we're playing at home."

Coryell sick over flu outbreak

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A flu outbreak among the San Diego Chargers is making Coach Don Coryell sick with worry.

Two days away from Sunday's American Football Conference battle in Cincinnati, leading rusher Chuck Muncie and all-pro guard Doug Wilkerson are "extremely sick," said Coryell. And backup quarterback Ed Luther also was out with the illness.

Muncie, San Diego's

leading rusher and scorer, and Wilkerson, the Chargers' pulling guard, represent the heart of the Chargers' running game.

"My only hope is that no one else gets it. That scares you to death," said Coryell as the Chargers, champions of the AFC West, rehearsed for the showdown with the 13-4 Bengals. Cincinnati has been installed as a 4½-point favorite in the final step to Super Bowl XVI.

Muncie, the Chargers' first

1,000-yard rusher in seven years, worked out briefly Thursday, but Wilkerson was held out of practice.

In addition, Ed White, another all-pro offense lineman, has developed a muscle problem in his upper back.

The only good news, Coryell said at a noon media briefing, is that starting defensive backs Willie Buchanon and Mike Williams "are in the best shape they've been in some time. Buchanon has a chronic knee problem and Williams has been hobbled by a groin pull sustained two weeks ago.

"We took them both off the injured list," said Coryell.

The Chargers, 41-38 winners over Miami in a high-scoring overtime classic last Saturday, were to fly to Cincinnati today.

Coryell held a light workout Thursday "because so many people are banged up. We're just trying to get them ready to play."

YOU HAVE TO JUMP THIS HIGH — Wimberly Hardwick of the Howard College Hawk basketball team seems to be taunting the Sul Ross players with the ball in first half action in a game at the ABC Classic Tour-namment being held at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Hardwick scored 13 points in the contest and helped the Hawks to a 99-90 victory over Sul Ross.

Tors ready for baseball practice

LAMESA (SC) — Although the sports scene now centers around the basketball season, baseball workouts are right around the corner, as the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes varsity and JV program begin formal workouts in three weeks.

First year baseball coach Lee Almaguer has been working for several weeks on the baseball diamond at Lobo park, the home site of Golden Tor baseball.

Almaguer said he has been planning seed on the infield in hopes of improving the condition of the field.

Lamesa opens the season March 2 with a non-district ballgame at Big Spring. The district opener will be March 26, at home, against Odessa Ector.

Although Lamesa won just two games during the 1981 season, and did not capture a district victory, Almaguer is optimistic about the team's chances in 1982.

Only two seniors graduated from last year's squad, and the nucleus for a good ball club will return. Almaguer commented that the tough, non-district schedule for Lamesa, which includes Abilene High, Odessa Permian, Lubbock Estacado and Lubbock Dunbar will be an advantage to the Tornadoes when they start their District season.

Warden expects more transfers of inmates to federal prisons

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — There "will probably be" additional transfers of state prison inmates to federal prisons in a continuing attempt to alleviate overcrowding, Oklahoma State Penitentiary Warden Al Murphy says.

Overcrowding prompted officials to transfer 18 "high risk" inmates — six of them women — to federal prisons, Murphy said Thursday.

"Basically, the move to federal prisons is a first for Oklahoma," Murphy said. "Moving that many at once is a first for Oklahoma."

Murphy said three inmates were moved by a Florida air security firm and the rest were transferred by ground transportation to facilities in other states.

The transfer began Sunday and was completed Thursday. Officials said there is no timetable for return of the inmates to Oklahoma.

"We would have airlifted all of them, but they didn't have enough planes," Murphy said.

Under a "gentlemen's agreement" with federal prisons, Oklahoma will pay about $25 a day to federal prisons to house state inmates, Murphy said.

The prison warden said additional transfers are likely, although none is in the works.

"There's no immediate plans for any more, but there will probably be some in the future, yes," Murphy said.

The six women prisoners were moved to federal prisons in California and West Virginia while some of the men were sent to the federal prison at El Reno and others were sent to federal prisons in Texas, Wisconsin, Kansas and Indiana, said Ross Buchner, executive assistant to Corrections Director Larry Meachum.

Dian Copelin, assistant gubernatorial news secretary, said the move was made as part of an agreement the Corrections Department has with the Interstate Corrections Compact to transfer "maximum-security inmates who have been disciplinary problems."

In 1980, the state Legislature approved such transfers but this is the first time the transfer has been utilized, she said.

Corrections officials said the move was made as part of a decision to have maximum-security beds available if an influx of dangerous criminals occurs.

Nancy Nunnally, Corrections Department spokeswoman in Oklahoma City, said the transfers had "nothing whatsoever" to do with double ceiling of prisoners.

U.S. District Judge Luther Bohannon said the state may double-cell inmates if it is willing to pay a fine of $1,000 a day.

Tahoka farmer-rancher files for re-election

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — E.L. Short, a 56-year-old Tahoka farmer-rancher, filed for re-election to the Texas Senate Thursday.

Short, a Democrat, is seeking a third term as senator representing the 28th District, which includes Howard County.

Boundary lines for the state's 31 senatorial districts were redrawn by the Legislative Redistricting Board last October.

Counties in the 28th Senatorial District, under the redistricting board's plan, are Howard, Cochran, Lubbock, Crosby, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Gaines, Dawson, Borden, Andrews, Ector and Martin.

Short served in the Texas House of Representatives from 1969 through 1976.

He was elected to the Texas Senate in 1978.

The filing deadline for state and congressional positions is Feb. 1.

Mexia deaths trial moved again

SAN MARCOS, Texa (AP) — Prosecutors say "a matter of logistics" prompted the third change of venue in the trial of three Limestone County law officers charged with negligent homicide in the drownings of three black youths.

Dallas County Criminal Court Judge Tom Price, who agreed to take the case after Barraca called him Thursday morning. Price said the case could last from three to four weeks.

sides," Price said Thursday from his Dallas chambers.

He said Barraca, a Dallas lawyer who served as a special prosecutor in a court of inquiry, used to be a prosecutor in his court.

"I've been following the case and it just seems like someone needs to take the case and do something with it. I know lawyers on both

"I'm sure they asked me because they know me and think I'll be fair," Price said. "I am ready to proceed as fast as they are."

Prosecutor assailed for letter to jurors

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Lufkin jurors who acquitted four defendants have received a letter from a prosecutor who told them they erred and warned them "almost all criminal defendants lie under oath."

Assistant Angelina County Attorney Joe Martin's letter, which said defense lawyers "are quite adept at teaching their clients how to get away with such lies," earned him a reprimand from his boss and a complaint to the local bar grievance committee.

County Attorney Ed Jones said the letter to jurors was "the error of a young prosecutor." Apologies have been sent to the jurors, the judge and the defense attorney, he said Thursday.

Jones reprimanded Martin, his only assistant. Defense lawyer Jimmy Cassels wants the grievance committee to issue an additional scolding.

Cassels represented four men acquitted in November of illegally using lights to hunt deer at night. About a month after the trial, the jurors got Martin's letter.

"I am not writing this to say 'I told you so' or to try to make you feel bad. However, in case you are ever called to serve on a criminal jury again, I want you to realize that almost all criminal defendants lie under oath, and that they do it quite skillfully."

"Additionally, many criminal defense attorneys are quite adept at teaching their clients how to get away with such lies. I feel strongly that our criminal justice system will not be effective unless potential jurors are informed about the frequency with which defendants lie."

Jones said his assistant's statement "is in conflict with the basic principle of law that a person is presumed innocent until proven guilty."

"(The letter) was sent without my knowledge. If I had known about it it would not have gone out," said Jones.

Martin told the jurors, "While we were out in the hall waiting for your verdict, one of the defendants came straight out and admitted that they were guilty."

The county attorney said he would not allow Martin to comment about the letter Thursday. Martin earlier told the Lufkin News, "There were many things I said I should not have said because I let myself get too involved in the case."

Martin said he did not mean to imply that Cassels, or any particular lawyer, helped defendants lie.

Juror Betty Warren said the letter made her feel "pretty let down."

"I felt like I had not done what I should have done if that was the case. You feel like you spent a day doing nothing," she said.

County Court-at-Law Judge David Cook said he might have filed a grievance against Martin if Cassels had not.

"It has got the legal community here quite upset," the East Texas judge said.

Cook said Martin should not be a lawyer if he believes what he wrote.

"I would hope that he says that out of inexperience and not that he really thinks that way. If he doesn't believe in the system he doesn't need to be working in the system," the judge said.

"It is mainly a matter of logistics," said special prosecutor Larry Barraca of Dallas. "Many of the witnesses we'll be calling are from around the Dallas area."

The move is the third change of venue granted for former Limestone County sheriff's deputy Kenny Elliott, former reserve deputy Kenneth Archie and probation officer David Drummond. The three are charged with criminally negligent homicide.

The victims — Steve Booker, 19, of Dallas; Carl Baker, 19 and Anthony Freeman, 18, of Mexia — died when a 14-foot boat capsized while they were being ferried across the lake after their arrest. The three officers swam to safety.

The trial initially was moved from from Groesbeck, in Limestone County, to Marlin, in Falls County, because of extensive publicity in the Mexia area. In October, a Falls County district judge sent the case to San Marcos for the same reason.

The case will be heard by Rural burglary arrests made

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Two men arrested early Thursday morning in their residence south of Colorado City have been charged with burglarizing a home in the Valley View Community.

They're identified as 17-year-old Bernardo Perez Jr., of Lorraine and 23-year-old Andres Gutierrez Jr., of Snyder.

were set at $10,000.

According to Sheriff Wendel Bryant, the two men were arrested after a short investigation. Some of the items taken in the Valley View burglary were recovered and Sheriff Bryant says he is hopeful the arrests will solve several other rural burglaries in this county.
