Officer injured, burglary suspect shot during chase

By BILL ELDER
Staff Writer

A Big Spring police officer was recuperating in Malone-Hogan Hospital last night from a Saturday morning auto collision with a burglary suspect, authorities said.

Sgt. Jimmie Wallace was in "stable and real good" condition, a hospital spokeswoman said, following a pre-dawn chase involving police officers who exchanged several gunshots with the suspect before Wallace finally blocked his escape with a police cruiser, according to Detective Bud Jones.

The 36-year-old suspect, Kendall C. Webb Jr., was in the same hospital recovering from a bullet wound to the left elbow after he was shot by Sgt. J.D. Carter, Jones said.

Carter, Wallace, and officers J. Sevey, Ron Wood and Bill Cooper all were involved in the incident which began with a burglary call, developed into a chase — both on foot and in automobiles — and ended with Kendall's apprehension in the 2300 block of Goliad, according to police reports.

Jones said the incident started when a custodian at Gibson's, 2303 Scurry, came to work shortly after 5 a.m. Saturday and noticed water dripping through a hole in the store roof. He called the store manager and was told to call the police, who arrived on the scene to find a man on the roof of Gibson's, Jones said.

The man jumped to the ground after he was discovered by the officers and fled the store on foot. He reached his pickup truck nearby and the chase spread through a several-block neighborhood as the suspect struggled to lose the officers, Jones said.

At some point the suspect reached out the window of his truck and fired on Cooper, who "saw the flash from the gun and immediately went into a ditch," said Jones.

The pickup truck continued on its way as the suspect attempted to flee the rest of his pursuers, Jones said. Then the truck came to a halt, apparently at a stop sign.

Carter got out of his cruiser to arrest the truck driver. At that point Carter was fired upon twice, escaped the bullets and was nearly run over as the pickup truck sped past him, according to Jones.

Carter then aimed his revolver at the truck and squeezed off four shots — one of which went through the vehicle and struck the suspect, Jones said.

The suspect, however, kept driving and was not stopped until Wallace ran him off the road by colliding into the truck with his police cruiser, according to Jones.

Medical personnel arrived on the scene and took both Wallace and Kendall to the hospital, he said.

A handgun was recovered in the truck, Jones said, declining to identify what type of gun it is until further reports of the incident are compiled. Kendall, he said, was "under arrest and under guard" at Malone-Hogan.

The discharge of Carter's revolver would be investigated according to standard practices, said Jones, who added he thought the shooting "was extremely justified."

The hospital spokeswoman said she was unsure how long Wallace would have to remain in Malone-Hogan and was awaiting an x-ray report to determine the extent of his injuries.

Officer Troy Hogue said it was his understanding that Wallace had back injuries.

"He's in a lot of pain," Hogue said, adding he was planning to visit Wallace on his lunch break.

Wallace's cruiser was not badly damaged and was back in service yesterday, Hogue said.

Siberian Express death toll tops 250

By The Associated Press

A surge of polar cold nicknamed the Siberian Express blew into the frozen Midwest with paralyzing blizzards Saturday, and the mercury sank to painful lows deep into the Sunbelt.

The frigid winds sent the chill factor to 80 degrees below zero in places and the death toll reached 251 in a wintry assault that began writing weather history last weekend.

"It is one of the most severe outbreaks of cold weather mid-America has seen since the 1960s," said meteorologist Nolan Duke of the National Weather Service in Kansas City.

While temperatures Saturday stopped shy of last weekend's records, such as the all-time low of 26 below in Chicago, readings were close to 30 degrees below zero across parts of Montana, North Dakota and Minnesota, with wind chills below zero as far south as San Antonio, Texas.

More than 120,000 people remained without power in Alabama, Georgia and North Carolina. Freezing rain closed many highways again in north Georgia and snow fell in the Texas Panhandle.

Snow was common from the Great Lakes across the Ohio Valley into the Northeast, where New York City got its third plastering in four days.

A blizzard with winds of 50 mph also closed highways and caused many traffic accidents across central and northern Indiana and western Michigan, where 11 inches of snow fell at Frankfort.

Blowing snow was causing headaches for the Ohio Department of Transportation, trying to keep open the state's 16,000 miles of highways.

"We can plow a highway and 15 minutes later, it'll be the same condition it was," said David V. Finley, a department spokesman.

Blowing snow also shut off many highways in South Dakota where the mercury dropped to 24 below at Rapid City, Murdo, Aberdeen and Milbank.

ICE SCULPTURES — Brian Biagrove, 1802 Alabama, Big Spring, took advantage of this week's snow to make an interesting sculpture in his front yard. This photo shows Biagrove's handiwork, a fisherman in a boat reeling in a catch. The unusual snowman was melting Friday as temperatures reached into the 60s.

Police burn marijuana

High in the sky

Several members of the Big Spring Police Department, including police Chief Elwood Hoherz, went to Newsom's Grocery Store Friday afternoon to burn about 150 pounds of marijuana in the store's incinerator.

Police on the scene said several grades of marijuana and various types of pills were burned. The collection had accumulated as evidence at the police station during the past five years.

Chief Hoherz told members of the media present that "we do not need the marijuana for evidence" any longer.

District Judge Jim Gregg approved the burning of the drugs and also approved taking them to the incinerator at Newsom's.

The marijuana, which was bagged in plastic trash sacks and carried in the back of an unmarked pickup truck, was unloaded by several uniformed police officers and carried into the grocery store.

Once inside the store, the officers began pitching the contents of the bags into the incinerators and watching the drugs burn.

Hoherz said the evidence was being properly destroyed according to the Texas Controlled Substance Act. The act says the drugs must be burned with at least two witnesses present.

Angie Airhart big winner at Lamesa

LAMESA — The big winner at the Dawson County Livestock Show this weekend was 17-year-old Angie Airhart of Klondike High School. Angie captured honors in all three major divisions of the show.

In addition to a finewool champion lamb, she took the swine division showmanship award plus a reserve grand champion animal. In the steer competition, she had the grand champion steer as well as champions in the Angus and European cross classes.

The teenager plans to take her animals to all of the major shows including Houston and San Antonio. She has been showing stock for the past eight years and says this will be her last year since she is graduating from high school.

Asked about what animal she liked to show the most, she replied, "I like steers the most because they are easier to handle and are the cleanest. With pigs you have trouble being seen by the judge and sheep you have to keep setting up."

She said her prize money would go to pay her feed bills for her many animals. Her parents are Donald and Barbara Airhart of Klondike.

Divers pull 30 bodies from jetliner

WASHINGTON (AP) — Feeling their way past jagged debris and treacherous ice, divers pulled 30 bodies from the crumpled wreckage of an Air Florida jetliner Saturday and then turned to trying to find a way to raise the tail section that includes the flight recorders.

But after one try at lifting the tail section, which also included a large portion of the fuselage, the recovery team postponed further efforts. Another attempt was expected — but not certain — on Sunday after the arrival of a more powerful crane.

Throughout the day, the diving teams focused their search on the rear section since that part of the wreckage contained the cockpit voice and flight data recorders critical to the investigation of Wednesday's crash that killed 78 people.

The divers first emptied the rear section of bodies to bring the total number of bodies recovered from the plane to 47.

Then divers began to attach cables to the section, but quickly ran into trouble. When darkness and 22-mph winds made it impossible to attach the cables properly, the effort was abandoned for the night.

Meanwhile, some federal safety officials were concerned that salvage operations might be impossible Sunday because of forecast high temperatures only in the teens. They emphasized, however, that no decision had been made on what to do Sunday.

Police Beat

Shots fired at house

Gilberto Franco Sr. complained to police that at 7:40 p.m. Saturday unknown persons fired several shots at his house at 309 NE 8th damaging the screen door and plate glass windows.

Franco said no one was injured despite the fact the entire family was in the living room at the time of the shooting. He estimated damage at $100.

W.E. Hooper reported to police that someone broke into his vehicle and stole a citizens' band radio worth $100. Hooper said the burglar broke the left front window of his vehicle to get to the radio.

Another auto burglary was reported by Robert Fairchild. Fairchild told police someone cut a padlock Lamesa, and Bernard Mathos of Kansas at the 1200 block of Lamesa Drive. Mathos was ticketed for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Minor accidents reported to police include a collision between vehicles driven by Mark E. Kluge,

County Demos to stage giant candidates rally

The Howard County Democratic Club is sponsoring an old fashioned Democratic Candidates Rally and Chili Supper fund raiser, which will be held at Dora Roberts Center (formerly Couden Club), located in Comanche Trail Park, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 23, starting at 7 p.m.

All candidates for statewide office who have filed and all those who will be filing before the filing deadline have been or will be invited to attend this gigantic event.

Among the candidates who have indicated that they intend to run for office, and who have already accepted the invitation to attend the Rally are: Attorney General Mark White, who plans to run for Governor; State Sen. Pete Snelson, who has represented the Midland senatorial district for many years, who plans to run for Land Commissioner; Garry Mauro, former Democratic State Chairman; Jack Hightower, Agriculture Commissioner; Larry D. Shaw, Howard County's own State Representative.

Many more possible candidates have said that they are fairly certain to attend, but will make their commitment a bit later.

Spokesmen for TV channels KOSA-7 and KMID-2 have said that they hope to cover the event, plus all local radio stations, Channel 4TV, and representatives of the Herald.

Some type of entertainment is now in the planning stages, but has not been finalized. Everyone will be notified as soon as plans are completed.

This event will present the opportunity, very unique to the people of Howard County and our neighbors, to meet and greet possibly your next Governor, Lt. Governor, Attorney General, Land Commissioner, Agriculture Commissioner, a U.S. Senator (Lloyd Bentsen) and perhaps many of our state's senators and representatives.

For icing on the cake, all candidates for Howard County office positions who are running in the Democratic Primary will be presented and introduced.

Now the really good news — all Democrats will be able to participate in this once in a lifetime, inflation busting, delightful event for the ridiculous price of $5 (five dollars) per person, and besides the chili (prepared by experts) you also receive beverage and home made dessert.

"Howard County Democratic Club" and the many of those, who have expressed a desire to join the "Club" as well as any and all Democrats in Howard County are urged to attend the regular meeting of the "Club" which will be held Tuesday, Jan. 26, at 7 p.m., in the District Court Room at the Howard County Court House.

Although tickets for the Rally and Chili supper have not officially gone on sale as yet, anyone who so desires may reserve them now by calling 263-0915, 267-6301 or

For the record

Brenda Alexander, wife of Terry Alexander, claims a police beat report published Friday concerning her husband is inaccurate. The report, which was given to the Herald by the police department, said that Nick Reyna had told police that Terry Alexander had been chasing him in a vehicle and firing shots at him. The report said that officers found no bullet holes in Reyna's vehicle, nor could they find a weapon in Alexander's car after it struck a utility pole about 1 a.m. Friday at the intersection of North West Seventh and Lancaster.

Mrs. Alexander called the Herald to tell her husband's side of the story. "My husband was taking a friend that he works with back to his hotel room. He hit a pack of ice and lost control of his vehicle and it struck a utility pole. He does not even know the other man."

Al Schwartz shows top hog

GARDEN CITY — Al Schwartz, 17, of St. Lawrence had a special reason to be proud of winning the grand championship in the swine show at the Glasscock County Livestock Show.

"I'm proud because it's my last year — last chance to win big," he said. "I had won championships before but not the grand champion."

Nevertheless, he had his doubts about whether his July 25 crossbred barrow would win the top prize. "I knew he was a good pig, but I didn't expect grand champion," Schwartz said.

Next stop for the champion barrow will be the San Antonio livestock show. "After that I'll never see it again," he said, explaining that animals must be sold at the major shows.

Schwartz has had plenty of experience with hogs, as he helps his father with 100 to 125 hogs on their farm. "We keep our own sows and we raise them and raise them from babies," Schwartz said.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Schwartz Sr., and of seven children, Al is the only son. Al's younger sister Carol, 12, also participated in Saturday's show.

The family farms about 1,200 acres of cotton and runs 60 head of livestock on ranchland.

The elder Schwartz moved to the St. Lawrence area in 1956 and "really likes" the area. He was beaming with pride at his son's win in the livestock show which concluded Saturday.

Reserve grand champion barrow was shown by Marianne Hoelscher.

Showmanship honors were revealed at the awards presentation banquet last night. This is an honor that recognizes the youths' ability to handle and present the animals.

Senior showmanship winners were Marianne Hoelscher, steers; Duane Hirt, hogs; and Staci Wilkerson, lambs.

Junior winners were Michele Pechacek, steers; Ricky Halfmann, hogs; and Corky Turner, lambs.

First-place PeeWee division winners in showmanship were Marty Pearce, steers; Jody Bradford, swine; and Christi Hirt, sheep.

Judges were Charlie Green, Midland County extension agent, steers; Jay Winters, swine breeder of Idalia, swine; and Fred Wilkinson, retired county extension agent from Crane, lambs.

'Baby' shows Martin winner

STANTON — "This is the last year I was going to show pigs. It's really a great way to go out," said Kara Welch, who showed the grand champion and reserve champion hogs at the Martin County Livestock Show Saturday.

Kara, 17, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Welch of Tarzan.

"She's the baby of the family," said her proud father at the livestock barns in Stanton yesterday. "She's been showing since she was 9. She gets up early and takes care of the animals — it's made her a little late for school a few times. She's pretty steady — a real steady little hand."

Much of Kara's time is taken up by her sheep breeding business which includes 39 ewes. "She borrowed the money and bought her ewes," her father said. "She's got some ewes that's already lambed."

"So far I've had two sets of twins," Kara said. "The last set, one died. It didn't get enough to eat one night. The ewe only had one tit."

What did she learn from that experience? "Watch out for the lambs," Kara said.

Altogether, Kara has 52 animals, including steers, ewes, and hogs. But she is selling the hogs. "This is going to help me pay off my bank note," she said.

Kara is a junior at Grady High School, where she is editor of the school yearbook staff. She hopes to attend A&M when she graduates from high school. "I'm hoping to go into ag journalism and work for stock show magazines," she said.

She also is the District FFA sweetheart and will compete in May for the area title.

Judge should level with public

Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist, recently treated for drug side effects and withdrawal, has declined to answer reporters' questions or make a statement about his health.

That is a mistake. The justice could defuse this issue by offering credible assurance that his medication problems are now under control.

Rehnquist has been under medication for 10 years for back pain. The prescription apparently caused him to slur his speech. That does not necessarily indicate more serious problems, but court observers say Rehnquist has had problems expressing his thoughts and questioning lawyers during oral arguments before the court.

THE PUBLIC WILL not be reassured by reports that during a recent stay in George Washington University Hospital, Rehnquist experienced "disturbances of mental clarity."

The nine members of the U.S. Supreme Court are among the most powerful people in this nation. Their opinions have great impact on us all. For that reason, the public needs assurance that Justice Rehnquist's work has not been adversely affected by the side effects of his medication.

Rehnquist is a particularly influential member of the Court. He is the Court's most conservative member — the intellectual leader of its conservative bloc. And at 57, even after 10 years on the bench, he is the second youngest member of the Court and — health willing — likely to be a powerful intellectual force there for many years.

THAT IS WHY the public needs some assurance that the justice's health is good and that his work is not affected by his medical problems. Rehnquist would do well to level with the public.

Editor's Note: Averages, in our humble opinion, can be misleading. For instance, if you place one foot on a cake of ice and the other foot in a pail of boiling water, the "average" would say you feel just right!

It's kind of hard for me to get used to our new language.

For instance, poor people don't get welfare anymore. They receive "entitlements."

AND WE NO LONGER PAY taxes. The government is going to stick us with "revenue enhancements." I can't help but wonder if next year we'll be mailed revenue enhancement forms headed "May we have this enhancement?"

As long as I'm being nit-picky, what's with the people in Washington who keep referring to Ronald Reagan as "this president?" Of course he's this president (even though some people who don't like him refer to him as "that" and they don't always add the word "president").

AND TRY AS I MIGHT, I'm still not comfortable with the expressions "coming from" and "coming down."

I can accept "space," i.e., "give me some space" since we used to say that years ago, only we weren't so cranky about it. In fact, we laughed and sang merrily, "Don't Fence Me In."

BUT WHAT REALLY TROUBLES ME is the way everybody abbreviates everything. It has grown into a national epidemic — excuse me, eppie.

The other day, I heard a local weatherman say "precipwise."

It took me a while but I finally figured it out.

He was about to tell us whether it was going to rain or not.

The art of telling tall tales

I wouldn't call my father an out-and-out liar, but he has spun a few wild tales in his days. Growing up on a farm in Eskota, I was introduced at an early age to the fine art of telling tall tales.

The sprawling community of Eskota is located between Merkel and Sweetwater, and it abounds with pastures, creeks, gullies, Indian artifacts and rattlesnakes. My father and I often roamed the area hunting arrowheads or visiting the local Indian graves, and all the while my father concocted outrageous tales which I — poor innocent — accepted as gospel truth.

Under his spell, a washed-out hole in the ground would turn into a Promised Land where prospectors once dug for gold. He would dramatically recreate the scene for me, showing exactly how the fortune hunters had counted off the paces from that tree to arrive at precisely the spot where this washed-out hole in the ground was.

For years, whenever I passed that hole, my eyes would glitter with the vision my father had created for me.

But the greatest adventure of all was the one I have mentally dubbed, "The Case of the Skeletal Remains of a Texas Ranger Lost on the Battlefield of Eskota."

It all began, innocently enough, as my father and I were picking pecans along the creek. Suddenly he froze in his tracks, and it was clear to me that something tragic was about to unfold.

"There," he whispered, pointing to a sun-bleached bone which looked suspiciously like the remains of a dead cow.

"This appears to be the hipbone and leg of a man," he solemnly announced. Accordingly, I drew in my breath.

Then (what luck!), he reached down and picked up a rusty, dirty metal disc. A star was carved in the center of the disc, and the word TEXAS and a man's name were inscribed in a circle around the edge.

"He must have been a Texas Ranger," Dad said. "These bones and this badge are all that's left."

It was all very logical. The man's body (or what was left of it) was pointing toward the creek, and the skull and torso had washed away.

"How did he die?" I asked.

"He must have been scouting down the creek for Indians when a gang of Bluecoats jumped him and cut his throat."

Within minutes my father had transformed a bone and a badge into one of the goriest murders of the Civil War.

What excitement! What a story to tell my friends at school! I told my fifth-grade teacher, and she was so enchanted she had me hold up the badge and tell the whole class (a 1960 version of Show and Tell).

I even went so far as to tell the school principal, and I could see that he was impressed.

I told Dad to let the newspapers know, and I think I considered writing a letter to Life Magazine but it must have slipped my mind.

Several years later I was passing through my father's room when by chance I noticed a metallic object gleaming on the chest of drawers.

The Texas Ranger badge! I turned it over in my hand, fondly recalling the memories it evoked.

What impressed me most, however, was the quality of the badge. It was the type that comes out of bubblegum machines.

Concentrate on eternal significance

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What does the Bible mean when it says Christians are strangers and pilgrims on this earth? Does this mean we should withdraw from society and not try to solve any of its problems? — E.A.

DEAR E.A.: The Bible does teach that this world is not our final home, and we are therefore "aliens and strangers in the world" (1 Peter 2:11). Like Abraham of the Old Testament, we are not to live as if this world were all that mattered but are to look forward "to the city with foundations, whose architect and builder is God" (Hebrews 11:10).

What does this mean? It means, for example, that we are not to take our standards and goals from this world but from God. We know that this world and its systems is under the control of sin, and what the unbelieving world often calls of value and importance is the opposite of what God calls important. That is why the Bible urges Christians, "Do not love the world or anything in the world. If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him. ... The world and its desires pass away, but the man who does the will of God lives forever" (1 John 2:15, 17). By "world" the Bible here means the system of values and ideas which dominate unbelieving men.

It also means we are to concentrate on serving God and doing that which has eternal significance. Some day our time in this world will be over and we will go into eternity. Is what we are doing right now going to be of any importance for eternity? Jesus told the story of a man who had everything materially, and yet when it came time for him to die he had nothing. "But God said to him, 'You fool! ... This is how it will be with anyone who stores up things for himself but is not rich toward God'" (Luke 12:20, 21).

At the same time, God also commands us to do what we can to show his love and concern to others in the world. We are not to withdraw from the world, just as Christ did not withdraw. We are to do all we can to share the news of his salvation and demonstrate his love.

Reagan's tax dilemma

WASHINGTON — Insistently prodded by unanimous advisers to raise taxes, President Reagan concluded a 55-minute meeting with House Republican leaders Monday with a cryptic though undeniably plaintive comment that gave fresh hope to anti-taxers.

The president, who had been listening to the congressmen and saying little, apologized that he had to run off to meet two governors. But first, he had one thing to say:

"I have never understood the difference between crowding out — that is, limiting private borrowing — by government spending and crowding out by higher taxes. We were not elected to raise taxes or spend more money."

That was no definitive promise against new taxes in the forthcoming budget (and, in fact, was interpreted by some as merely a polite gesture to Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, who had just pleaded against higher taxes). But it polished the portrait of a president resisting to the end demands of his advisers for consumer taxes that would begin five weeks before the congressional elections.

This poses an agonizing decision for Ronald Reagan. By practice and desire, he prefers to follow the recommendations of aides, particularly when they all agree as they now do on taxes. But that advice goes against all his political intuitions and philosophical leanings.

THE UNITED FRONT of his advisers was established the first working week after the Christmas holidays. As recently as mid-December, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan was telling friends that, no matter what they read and heard, rest assured that only Reagan himself inside the administration was a bigger foe of taxes than he.

But on NBC's "Today" program Jan. 6, Regan threw in the towel by announcing probable tax increases in the fiscal 1983 budget. Shortly thereafter, the White House put a formal lid on public speculation about taxes, followed by predictable high-level leaks over last weekend that the die was cast: There would be excise tax hikes proposed on alcoholic beverages, tobacco and gasoline. Only Kemp resisted the inevitable, said the leakers.

In truth, more Republican politicians than Kemp see electoral disaster in raising the cost of drinking beer, smoking cigarettes and driving cars beginning Oct. 1, a month before the November elections. Rep. Trent Lott of Mississippi, the House minority whip, and Rep. Dick Cheney of Wyoming, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, see a tailor-made Democratic issue in taxing workingmen while cutting capital gains taxes for the rich.

Even Rep. Bob Michel of Illinois, the minority leader, who agrees with presidential advisers on the need for higher taxes, expressed qualms about the excise boosts. They would "tax poor people" back home in Peoria, Michel mourned in the White House.

There was no consensus during the Monday meeting about how the president should confront impending budget deficits. Rep. Barber Conable of New York, senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee delivered a typically blunt conclusion: There is simply no politically beneficial way out. But Conable stressed that if Reagan offered any tax increase he would be "scarred politically" by the Democratic reaction.

KEMP, CHAIRMAN of the House Republican Conference, was the last to speak and he did so at greater length (causing some of his colleagues to shift uneasily in their chairs). Kemp drew an ominous parallel to British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's deadly economic mixture of tight money and consumption taxes. "We're dangerously close to doing what Mrs. Thatcher did," Kemp warned.

As an alternative to excise taxes, several House Republican leaders prefer repealing the much-criticized tax-loss leasing provisions of the 1981 Reagan tax bill or adopting a new minimum tax for corporations and individuals. But Conable is lukewarm about that. He might prefer a progressive excise tax geared to "luxury" items aimed at hitting the rich harder than blue-collar workers.

Kemp is indeed all alone opposing any tax hike. His answer to budget-balancing is economic growth, which requires a new monetary policy. The president opened Monday's meeting on the coldest day of the winter by noting that White House thermostats must still be set at Jimmy Carter's Spartan level. That's not the only surviving vestige of Carterism, Kemp countered; the Federal Reserve Board continues to fight inflation by controlling the money supply, yielding two recessions in two straight years.

It was then that Reagan delivered his parting shot against taxes. But those 55 minutes with the House Republicans may be his last exposure to criticism of higher taxes on beer, cigarettes and gasoline. His advisers now have him all to themselves until he makes his choice: Ronald Reagan's political fate could be determined by whether he follows his advisers or his instincts.

TEXAS LIVESTOCK EXPORTS

valued at $33 million

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The value of Texas livestock exports rose to a record $33 million in 1981, an increase of $18 million over the previous high in 1980, says Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown.

Brown said although export trade with Mexico "continued to dominate the livestock scene," major cattle purchases by African nations helped boost the state's livestock exports to a record. He added in a statement Wednesday that the main interest of the African nations "so far has been in Brahman cattle, but we feel that the prospects for other breeds are equally good."

POAGE GAINS FB AWARD

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Former Texas Congressman W.R. "Bob" Poage of Waco has been honored by the American Farm Bureau Federation — the nation's largest farmers' organization — for his "outstanding service to agriculture."

Poage was awarded the Farm Bureau's highest honor at the group's 63rd annual convention. AFBF President Robert B. Delano said Tuesday the longtime congressman was known as "Mr. Agriculture" during his years in congress.

Poage was elected to the Texas House in 1925 and later served in the state Senate. He won a seat in the U.S. House in 1936 and was re-elected to each subsequent congress for the next 40 years.

Poage was appointed to the House Committee on Agriculture at the beginning of his third term. Delano said Poage, who became chairman of the committee, gave up all of his other committee assignments to work full time for agriculture.

Poage was elected to the Texas House in 1925 and

HAIR FOUND IN CAR LINKED TO COP KILLING

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Hair found on the floor mat of Leonel Herrera's car matches that of a slain Department of Public Safety trooper, a chemist has testified.

The Edinburg man is being tried on capital murder charges in the shooting death of Los Fresnos policeman Enrique Carrizales.

Minutes after the patrolman was shot Sept. 29, 1981, DPS Trooper David Rucker was shot and killed on the same highway.

Herrera also is charged with capital murder in Rucker's death, but will be tried separately on that count.

DPS chemist Steve Robertson said Friday he found one hair in Herrera's car that has the "same physical characteristics" of Rucker's blond hair.

Robertson also testified he found type A blood in Herrera's car. Rucker had type A blood, while Herrera has type O, he said.

Herrera's car was found at his girlfriend's house in Edinburg, DPS investigator Joe Young testified.

Oralia Morales told officers she owned the car but Herrera frequently drove it.

FINNS BEGIN TWO-DAY PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — For the first time in 25 years, the outcome on a presidential election in Finland is not being predicted beforehand with certainty, as Finns start a two-day election process today for a successor to Urho Kekkonen.

Voters cast ballots Sunday and Monday for members of an electoral college that will choose a new president to succeed Kekkonen, the 81-year-old patriarch who has ruled the Nordic nation for quarter of a century.

A heavy turnout is expected in the freezing temperatures, but for the first time since Kekkonen's narrow first victory in 1956, the outcome is uncertain.

A recent poll that said 56 percent of respondents favored Koivisto also showed that only 37 percent would vote for an elector representing the Social Democrats. A victory would make Koivisto, 58, the party's first president.

Premier Mauno Koivisto, a Socialist who became acting president in October when Kekkonen resigned because of hardening of the arteries, leads the eight candidates in the opinion polls.

However, he could fail to win on the first ballot when the 301-member electoral college sits Jan. 26 because electors are committed to vote by party in the initial round.

A recent poll that said 56 percent of respondents favored Koivisto also showed that only 37 percent would vote for an elector representing the Social Democrats. A victory would make Koivisto, 58, the party's first president.

C.H.S. contest churning into action

By TOMMY McDANIEL

Preparation for the annual C.H.S. Contest is well underway at Coahoma High School. The contest is a presentation of the senior class in which students compete against each other for the title of Mr. and Miss C.H.S. Contestants compete in three areas which include the formal walk, talent, and their answers to a question that is asked to each of the contestants. Within these areas, they are judged on poise, appearance, and general effectiveness.

The theme for this year's contest is "A Day With Walt Disney." The Master and Mistress of Ceremonies for the evening will be Brad Grandon and Shana Souter. Brad was chosen as Mr. C.H.S. in last year's contest and Shana was a contestant last year.

Cardholders for the contest will be Jim Rinard, Robin Burchett, Jesse Metcalf, and Brenda Green. Ushers will be Tracy Van Ness, Wanda Scroggins, Bert Sterling, Karen Proctor, Bobby Padron, and Kandi Henry. Working on the crew are Leisa Reid, Shanna Cobb, Teresa Reid, Vinda Huff, Guy McDonald, Ricky Martin, Robbie Ritchey, and Cassie Abernethy. Jeff Thompson and Linda Abergro will be working the spotlights. The sponsors for the contest are Janice Cook, Bob Fishback, and Ronnie Bourland. Cardholders, ushers, and crew members are all members of the senior class who were chosen by the sponsors.

The competition will be held on Feb. 6 beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

Monday, Jan. 18 will be Coahoma night at Howard College. Free tickets for the Hawk and Hawk Queens basketball game can be picked up in the high school office. All Coahomans are invited to attend the game. The Coahoma Big Red Band will be giving a special performance of songs that they played during marching season. The Coahoma High School Cheerleaders will also be at the game cheering the Hawks and Hawk Queens on to a victory.

The junior varsity and varsity girls and boys basketball teams will travel to Crane to play the Crane Golden Cranes Tuesday night. The games will begin at 5 p.m. The junior varsity and varsity girls and boys will challenge the Seminole Indians in Seminole on Friday with games beginning at 5 p.m.

The Class of '82 T-shirts that the senior class ordered have arrived and can be picked up in Mr. Borremans room.

Wins open district Students lead way; donate most for drive

By BEE-BE DOE

This week proved to be a short, but cold, week for the students and faculty at Garden City. School let out at 2:30 on Monday and Tuesday because of semester exams. Wednesday regular classes were held.

The basketball teams opened up their district Tuesday, Jan. 16, with Water Valley. The varsity girls and junior varsity boys both won their openers, but the varsity boys weren't as fortunate.

Friday, the junior varsity girls, varsity girls, and varsity boys played Robert Lee in Garden City. Game time was at 5 p.m.

Jan. 23, Garden City will host a junior varsity tournament. It is a one day tournament and consists of four junior varsity girls and boys teams.

School wasn't held Friday because of the annual county livestock show. The swine show was held on Friday, and the sheep were shown Saturday. The 4-H held a concession stand throughout the entire show and a barbecue dinner in the school cafeteria on Saturday.

Seniors are having a bake sale Wednesday, Jan. 20. Anyone interested in buying homemade goods can purchase them in Mrs. Evans' room.

Howard College is having a Garden City night on Feb. 22. The band and the cheerleaders will be performing for the Queens and the Hawks.

Runnels

Students lead way; donate most for drive

By SAM GLADDEN

Lamesa basketball teams overcame both our girls and boys teams last Monday. The girls succumbed to Lamesa by a score of 35-13.

The boys were also unable to defeat Lamesa. Runnels boys and girls basketball teams hosted a tournament recently. Participants included Denver City, Midland Trinity, Snyder, Sweetwater, and Andrews.

A table tennis tournament was held this week for all girls in p.e. according to p.e. teacher Jane Upton. Naveen Reddy and Martha Urias won first place in the doubles contest. Melicia Gosciniak and Veronica Parks placed second in the tournament. First prize was a trophy for both Reddy and Urias. Gosciniak and Parks received ribbons for their efforts.

Tom Henry, principal, reported that Runnels contributed the most canned foods during the Salvation Army Canned Food Drive. Moss Elementary placed second, with Bauer coming in third.

John Barkley was this week's Calendar Clue winner. The Animal Kingdom answer was Giant Panda.

Nine weeks tests were administered last week. Friday concluded the second nine weeks. Report cards will be issued Wednesday, Jan. 20.

Students did not attend school on Thursday or Friday due to teacher inservice days.

On Friday, Runnels and Goliad teachers visited Big Spring merchants to explore various career opportunities for students. The emphasis on this project was for teachers to build links with community merchants. Teachers learned what business employers look for in employees. Janice Rosson, secondary coordinator, was in charge of the activity.

Withholding Allowances

(Don't Overdo It)

Every employee is required to complete a "Form W-4" telling his employer the number of withholding allowances to which he is entitled. This Form W-4 remains in effect until the employee changes it. However, those employees who filed "Exempt from withholding" on their W-4s for 1981 must complete a new W-4 by February 15, 1982.

If you will lose an exemption in 1982 (for example, a child marries and moves away from home), you must file a new Form W-4 with your employer within ten days from the date of the change.

In general, you are entitled to one allowance for yourself, one for your spouse unless your spouse also works and claims an allowance on his/her W-4, one allowance if you are 65 or older, one allowance if you are blind and one allowance for each dependent. The worksheet on Form W-4 will assist you in calculating other allowances to which you are entitled (for example, estimated itemized deductions, alimony payments, estimated tax credits and the "new" two-earner married couple deduction).

Taxpayers who did not owe any federal income tax in 1981 and will have all withholding refunded to them are allowed to file "Exempt" on their W-4s if they do not expect to owe any federal income tax for 1982. This provision usually applies to students who will not earn enough to owe income taxes. Some taxpayers have been given the impression that filing "Exempt" status on W-4s somehow prevents them from paying income tax. Under the new law, the penalty for claiming withholding allowances to which you are not entitled or filing an "Exempt" W-4 when you do not qualify subjects you to a possible $500 civil and $1,000 criminal penalty.

Employers are required to send to the IRS any W-4s claiming more than fourteen allowances or claiming "Exempt" status if wages are more than $200 a week.

Texas Sesquicentennial celebration planning

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Hot off the press here is Austin's latest copy of the Yellow Pages.

On page 698, wedged between "Murals" and "Music Arrangers & Composers" comes the heading "Museums." This Capitol City, the state's sixth largest, has 11 museum listings running the gamut from the French Legation Museum to something called the Willie Nelson Museum.

And state leaders, led by Gov. Bill Clements, want Texas taxpayers to pay for a 12th in commemoration of an event whose spelling and pronunciation is enough to give a spelling bee contender nightmares — the Sesquicentennial.

The event, marking the 150th anniversary since Texas earned its independence from Mexico, doesn't officially fall on the calendar until 1986.

The Texas Sesquicentennial Commission currently is in the midst of planning other activities in celebration of the event.

Dallas benefitted from the last such celebration, the Texas Centennial in 1936, with the construction of a host of buildings that now form Fair Park, home of the Texas State Fair each October.

Lawmakers appear set on boosting Austin's museum list this time around and it could be the University of Texas that comes out the real winner.

The Texas Legislature last spring appropriated $2 million for the biennium to plan and design such a museum. That compares with the $3 million Texas spent for the entire 1936 Centennial celebration.

To build the state museum, according to some estimates, will cost about $50 million.

"That's what we've been talking about," said State Rep. Chris Semos of Dallas, chairman of the Sesquicentennial Commission. "But I don't know if that's high or low."

On the drawing board, he said, is a "general purpose museum" that could house fine arts and national and Texas history collections.

The proposal couldn't have come along at a better time for University of Texas administrators. Earlier in the year administrators spent $50,000 on a feasibility study for such a facility to house some of its numerous private collections.

Tentative plans call for the state to construct the museum, and then have a nine-member board appointed by the governor contract with the university to maintain and operate the facility.

"We'd be damn fools to continue with our own plans," said Bob Mattien, UT's vice president for administration. "It would be foolish for us to go out there and move heaven and earth for our own facility."

But, Semos said, Clements wants to avoid any semblance of an alliance with the university.

"He doesn't want it in the middle of the university where it will be identified as a university museum," Semos said. "There's a lot of people that went to Texas A&M or other schools that might give to a state museum, but not to the University of Texas."

Museum directors across the state are cautiously eyeing the proposal, some concerned that private collections could wind up in the state museum rather than in city museums.

"I don't think fear is the right word, but it is a cause for concern," said Harry Parker, director of the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts.

Texas wins stays on prison requirements

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Texas has won a delay in some of the prison reform requirements imposed by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler — and Gov. Bill Clements says he had been optimistic all along that the state would be successful in its appeal.

On Thursday, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of appeals stayed three of the prison reform provisions, while ordering implementation of some others. Clements told reporters in Dallas, "I'm not surprised," by the ruling.

The appeals court stayed orders that: —The state must provide 60 square feet of space per inmate in prison cells and in dormitories by Nov. 1, 1983.

There are 31,000 prisoners. —At least one uniformed guard be provided for each eight prisoners by May 1, 1982, and one for each six prisoners by Nov. 1, 1982. —The state said the guard-prisoner ratio is now 1 to 10.4.

—No trusty prison may possess cell block keys, a requirement which the state said would wreck its helpful system of having trusted inmates act as "building tenders."

The state has another 0 days in which to comply with Judge Justice's demand that the 18-prison system provide 40 square feet of living space per inmate in dormitories, the 5th Circuit said, and that it reduce the prisoner-guard ratio to less than 10:1. Both changes were supposed to have been accomplished by Nov. 1, 1981.

Other state requests for stays are denied. The three-judge panel emphasized that the stays were "not a blueprint of things to come."

"Our judgment on the merits is reserved until we can study both the complex legal issues and the evidentiary appendix that, despite the best efforts of counsel, is still voluminous," the ruling said.

Texas Attorney General Mark White predicted the state could meet the 10:1 guard ratio within the extra 60 days. "We're at about that now, so I think we can do that easily," he said.

"It appears that the bulk of our stay was approved by the court and we're very pleased," White said in Austin. Gerald Fall, Department of Corrections general counsel, said he would reserve comment until he has seen the opinion.

A San Francisco lawyer representing David Ruiz, the former inmate who brought the prison suit, said the panel "walked a line down the middle of the court in granting part of the stay."

"It really looks like a middle-of-the-road opinion I'd be hesitant to try to predict what it means," said Donna Brorby.

The 1980 order by Justice sought expensive changes in the system he determined was badly overcrowded. White has said Justice did not give the state a fair shake.

"The court below hop-scotched through the record, choosing to believe all prisoners told the truth and that all prison officials lied," he told the 5th Circuit at a hearing here last Dec. 18.

Texas had asked the 5th Circuit to declare that no further changes need be done under court order, or that a new trial be ordered before a different judge.

There are now no more than two prisoners per cell, the state said, and though many cells may be but 45 square feet, prisoners are in them only about 10 hours a day. The rest of the time, they are at work.

The panel said it hopes to reach decision on the controversies before Nov. 1, 1982, the deadline Justice set for the system to achieve 60 square feet of living space per prisoner in the dormitories.

Judges on the panel are Charles Clark of Jackson, Miss., Alvin Rubin of Baton Rouge, La., and Albert Tate Jr. of New Orleans.

Judge Justice's decree also had forbidden the prison system to accept any further prisoners if, by Nov. 1, 1981, it had not reduced the overall prison population to two inmates per cell, with 40 square feet of space per inmate in the dormitories — excluding bathing, toilet and activity areas.

On this requirement, the 5th Circuit said Judge Justice seemed to be within his discretion. An extra 60 days to achieve it was allowed because, due to the court fight, he deadline already had passed.

However, the 5th Circuit said, "Lack of space alone does not constitute cruel and unusual punishment, save perhaps in the most aggravated circumstances. The Eighth Amendment mandates no specific standard for prison housing."

"The 40-square-foot-per-prisoner requirement is not inexorable," the order said, adding that temporary variations of 38 or 39 feet were permissible.

In regard to administrative segregation, the state's motion to block Justice's rules covering the procedure was denied.

Administrative

segregation means a prisoner has been put in a solitary cell pending investigation of a violation of prison rules.

On the "building tender" issue, Justice decreed that the system be eliminated because it tended to give prisoners authority over other prisoners.

The state argued that the part of Justice's order forbidding any trusty prisoner to have a key would reduce staff efficiency and the 5th Circuit agreed.

Realtors predict housing crunch

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Presidents of the national and state Realtors Association predicted recently a severe housing crunch in the 1980s brought on in part by runaway interest rates.

High interest rates will make it virtually impossible for a person or persons with a combined income of less than $50,000 to buy a medium-priced home, Julio Laguarda, president of the National Association of Realtors said at a news conference.

Laguarda was in Austin for a Texas Association of Realtors conference.

High interest rates and federal housing subsidy cut-backs will make it difficult for poor Americans to find housing in the 1980s, Laguarda said.

"What concerns us is the millions and millions of Americans who will be denied decent housing," he said.

Because more people will not be able to afford to buy a house, there will be a continued shift to rental units, Laguarda said, which will have detrimental effects on communities.

"People (who live in houses) put down roots," he said. "When people live in a home they become more concerned about school systems and the community," Laguarda said. "And that's not going to happen."

Laguarda and Hub Bechtol, president of the Texas Association of Realtors criticized the Reagan administration for not having a strong housing policy.

The two have a meeting scheduled Jan. 19 with the president or a top member of his staff.

"We're concerned about what seems to be a lack of a concrete housing power," Laguarda said. "We don't find a strong housing advocate in the administration."

But realtors plan to do what they can to change things on that state and the national level, Bechtol and Laguarda said.

The Texas Real Estate Political Action Committee, the second-to-spending lobby group in 1980, will be highly involved in 1982 political campaigns, Bechtol said.

In 1980 TREPAC spent $467,631, and according to Bechtol, "We will be much more involved. Our group has determined we must be active in the political process to protect homeowners."

Currently, the 700,000 members of the national realtors group contribute $7 each for political spending. That $4.9 million is divided among states according to what TREPAC perceives as key races, Laguarda said.

Blame Carson for disease

BOSTON (AP) — Diseases often get their names from their causes, and so it was a natural that someone would come up with Carsonogenus — or Johnny Carson disorder.

It is a harmless form of night blindness that may be caused by people who spend their nights watching late television shows.

Dr. Park Biehl of Cincinnati, in a letter in today's New England Journal of Medicine, wrote that one of his patients complained about not being able to see out of her left eye at night. Funny thing, but the doctor told her he had the same affliction.

"She customarily watched a popular late-evening talk show while lying prone in bed with her head turned to the left and her right eye buried in the pillow."

Naturally, when it came time to turn off the set, she could see well only with the dark-adapted right eye.

O. If homes and income property aren't selling as easily as they used to, does this mean real estate can no longer be considered a good investment?

A. Real estate always has been, still is and probably always will be among the best investments. Also, the new 1981 Tax Act has further improved an already good thing. Well-located and maintained homes and other income properties continue to be very sound investments. Many motivated sellers are offering some excellent financing alternatives, making now a good time to buy. Financial experts are underlining real estate as an excellent investment for either a prospective homeowner or for a potential investor looking for a safe and additional income-producing avenue.

Congressmen's new deduction: $75-per-day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxpayers who are collecting their receipts and check stubs for their 1981 tax returns could be forgiven for dreaming of a seat in Congress. There, they could claim a $75-per-day tax deduction without any proof at all.

Acting under orders from Congress, the Internal Revenue Service has announced that, retroactive to 1981, a Senate or House member may write off $75 a day for expenses of living in Washington without showing any substantiation.

Tax experts say that under some extreme circumstances, some lawmakers may be able to escape taxes altogether. But if that happens, it will be because Congress voted itself unlimited deductions last year, not because of the new IRS regulation.

"I would be very surprised if any member was able to 'zero-out' because of this," said one expert, who asked not to be named.

But even though most lawmakers will continue to pay some tax, the new law will provide them an extraordinary benefit that, in a typical year, will result in a tax deduction of around $20,000. That is one-third their $60,662 salary.

Under ordinary circumstances, the IRS can demand that a taxpayer prove he or she is entitled to a certain deduction. (An exception is state and local sales taxes, an average amount of which are deductible without proof). But the new law allows lawmakers the $20,000 deduction for the asking.

If a member wants to substantiate a higher deduction, he or she may. And in some such cases, the new provision could be worth several times $20,000 a year.

For tax purposes, a lawmaker's home is considered his district or home state. Thus, when a member goes to Washington, he or she is treated like any businessman on out-of-town business; such business costs as food, lodging and entertainment are deductible. The difference was that until this year, a member of Congress was limited to a $3,000 deduction.

Was earthquake a preview?

WESTON, Mass. (AP) — The earthquakes that shook homes from Canada to Connecticut earlier this month confirmed that the New England may suffer a potentially dangerous quake within the next 80 years, a geophysicist says.

"We can expect one between now and 2000," said Vladimir Vudler of Boston College's Weston Observatory. "You might have something as big as this one or larger, most likely offshore."

The first quake, centered in New Brunswick, struck early Jan. 9 and registered at 5.8 on the Richter scale of ground motion. At least two aftershocks, nearly as strong, followed.

For scientists, the quakes were a delight, providing a bonanza of new information about the earth's crust.

"This was an ideal opportunity to study large earthquakes," said Vudler. "This is the first large earthquake we have been able to monitor with so many instruments."

When the first quake began, an array of 38 automatic recording stations throughout New England fed the observatory a stream of new information about the earth's crust.

Vudler said the observatory records about 40 slight quakes each year, adding scientists believe the mini-quakes are caused by the "rebound mechanism." That geological theory holds that the Earth's surface is still springing back from the weight of a 2-mile-thick sheet of ice deposited over New England in an ice age 12,000 years ago.

"It's like pushing your hand on a beach ball," Vudler explained. "When you remove it, the surface of the ball springs up."

Scientists believe that major earthquakes are caused by the shifting of land "plates." Current theory holds that continents and ocean floors are gigantic plates that float on the molten rock that makes up earth's core.

New England and the rest of the East Coast are spared the frequent, violent quakes experienced in California because the nearest place the plates come together is in the mid-Atlantic.

Vudler says last week's quakes were something else. Scientists interpreting the seismic readings believe the earthquake occurred six miles beneath the earth's surface. They theorize the quake could have been caused by a small fault, or crack in the earth's crust.

"There is no known fracture at the surface," says Vudler, "but we know for an earthquake of this size, the fracture must be below the surface of the earth at least one to two miles long."

Miss Turner on Wednesday

Lawyer claims DEA tried to set him up

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — El Paso attorney Joe Chagra claims Drug Enforcement Administration agents tried to frame him in a cocaine smuggling conspiracy last summer, according to a copyright article in The El Paso Times.

The Times reported Thursday that Chagra believes his suspicions of a frame-up are correct and that he thinks that is the reason federal agents confiscated his $60,000 Mercedes-Benz automobile on Dec. 15.

Federal agents and Assistant U.S. Attorney Jim Bock refused to comment on Chagra's allegations.

A forfeiture proceeding filed in U.S. District Court by federal agents last week says "on or about Aug. 30, 1981, on land in El Paso, Texas . . . the defendant vehicle . . . was used for the transportation . . . receipt, possession or concealment of a quantity of cocaine."

Chagra said he believes the document refers to a Sept. 5, 1981, meeting with a man who formerly worked for Chagra's wife at her dog kennel. Chagra said the man was trying to convince him to enter a cocaine smuggling arrangement and gave Chagra a 1-ounce sample of the white powder that tested out as 87 percent pure.

Chagra says the sample was the only cocaine that was ever carried in the car, although he admits to having a personal cocaine habit until recently.

The 35-year-old lawyer said he became suspicious of a frame-up attempt after the man first approached him, so he documented his actions and told the story to several local confidants to protect himself. He claims he was urged to go along with the deal by a former DEA agent who now is in law enforcement in New Mexico. Chagra refuses to name the former agent, who he said helped him test the cocaine for quality.

The former agent, Chagra said, planned to set up a "double bust" to embarrass the federal agents they believed were setting up the deal. The bust never materialized because Chagra decided he might get killed if he went through with it.

Chagra said the sample was left with the former agent. Chagra said when the alleged informant first approached him about the drug deal, he thought he "was a little crazy."

He said that once he realized the man was serious, he "tried to discourage him." He said the man told him he knew a Colombian national in Florida who could secure cocaine and outlined an elaborate scheme to ship the cocaine into the country by surgically placing it inside dogs.

Chagra said his suspicions were increased because the former employee said the cocaine could be secured for $10,000 a pound and that Chagra would get one pound free for each pound bought.

Chagra met the man at the El Paso International Airport Sept. 5 and received the sample. He said he noticed several clean-cut men in suits watching him pick up the man at the airport.

He said he returned the man to the airport and said he would keep in touch. But in October, he decided to pull out of the deal because he was afraid it would end up in violence.

"I called the number in Dallas he gave me and a lady there said he wasn't in, but that she would take a message," Chagra said. "Then she asked me if I was Mr. Pool. I hung up in shock."

Chagra said he suspects the woman was referring to Tom Pool, a DEA agent who later helped confiscate his car.

The Times reported that Chagra kept records of his contacts with the suspected informant and that the materials were made available to the Times. Among the materials were telephone records substantiating calls made to the man, letters and taped telephone conversations with him and a personal synopsis of the series of events.

In addition to the documentation, Chagra told several prominent people his story months before his car was confiscated. Their stories match Chagra's.

The El Paso lawyer told his story to El Paso County Court-at-Law Judge D. Clark Hughes; Dallas lawyer Billy Ravkind; Las Vegas, Nev., lawyer Oscar Goodman; El Paso lawyer Richard Esper, and Austin-based free-lance writer Gary Cartwright.

All but Goodman, who could not be reached by the Times, confirmed Chagra's version of the events.

Hughes said he considered the deal an obvious setup.

"The deal was just flat unheard of," he said. "I guess the government has a lot of pressure on it to get Chagra and they've jumped on this."

Chagra thinks federal agents consider him a suspect in the May 29, 1979 slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. in San Antonio. Federal agents have said Chagra's brother, Jimmy, who is serving time in prison for drug trafficking, and convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson are suspects in the case.

He claims that agents have harassed him for a long time, including a search of his home and the confiscation of his car.

"The FBI calls all my friends and my wife's employees and asks them if I've sold them cocaine," Chagra told the Times. "They've destroyed my law practice. It's ironic that because of their actions, I couldn't deal in cocaine if I wanted to."

Hughes said he had never heard of a car being confiscated in a drug case without the owner being charged with a drug offense.

"This case is so flimsy, they must not have had enough to get Joe, so they went for the next best thing — his car," Hughes said.

Ravkind, who represents Chagra, said the possibility of Chagra dealing cocaine was the "silliest damn idea in the world."

He said Chagra may not be "the smartest guy I know," but he said he would know better than "to go for a stupid deal like this when everybody is watching him."

Ex-deputy convicted of arson jumps bond

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An arrest warrant has been issued for a former Dallas County sheriff's deputy who failed to appear in federal court here for sentencing on an arson conviction.

Yasar Nur Dinc was convicted last year of setting fire last April to his store in North Richland Hills, a Fort Worth suburb. A jury also convicted him of filing a false insurance claim and badgering witnesses.

Dinc faced up to 30 years in prison and $18,000 in fines at Friday's sentencing.

Fires kill six people

NEW YORK (AP) — Six people, four of them children in one family, were killed in two separate fires in Brooklyn early Saturday, authorities reported.

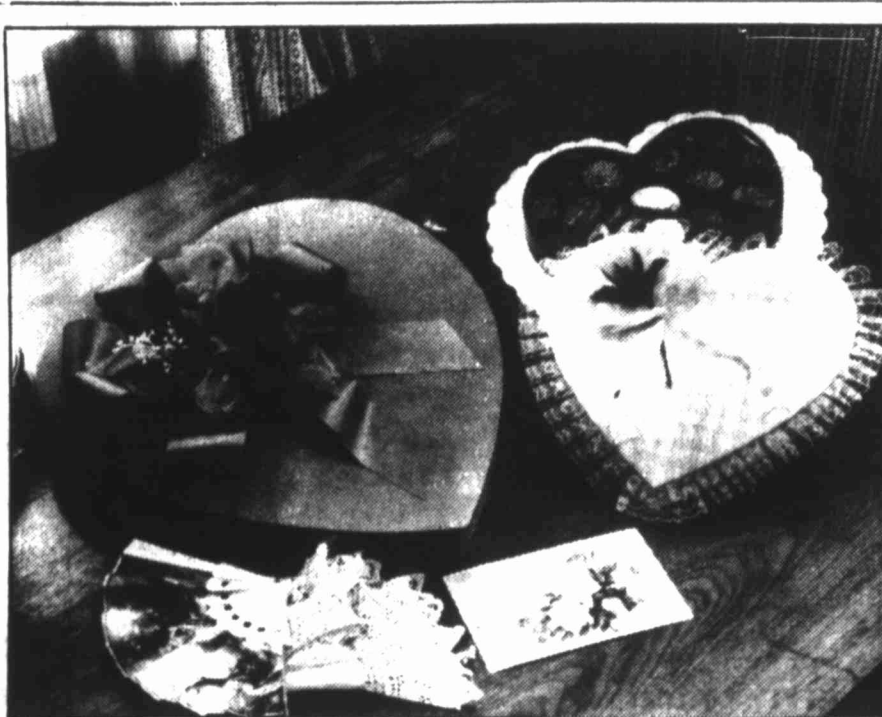

One fire broke out shortly before 6 a.m. on the second floor of a two-story private brick house, killing four children ranging in age from 5 to 15, fire officials said.

About three miles away, a man and woman were found dead in a fire in a four-story brick apartment building, but three other people escaped unhurt, the spokesman said.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — LaSalle Thompson tossed in 32 points and blocked six Arkansas shots as No. 19 Texas defeated the ninth-ranked Razorbacks 87-73 Saturday night before the largest crowd ever to see a basketball game in Austin. The crowd of 16,401 surpassed the previous high in 1978 in another Arkansas-Texas game. Several hundred fans went away Saturday morning without a ticket to the Southwest Conference match.

Fourcade leads South to Senior Bowl win

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — John Fourcade of Mississippi scored two touchdowns on 1-yard runs and Alabama's Benny Perrin returned an interception 84 yards for another score as the South downed the North 27-10 in the 33rd Senior Bowl college football game Saturday.

Fourcade's two scoring plunges gave the South a 14-0 lead early in the second quarter. Perrin's interception return then put the Rebels in control for good, with a 24-7 lead just 5 1/2 minutes into the third quarter.

Golf pro here is calling it career

By TOMMY HART
The days dwindle down to a precious few for C. G. Griffin Jr.

Griffin is calling it a career as the golf professional of the Big Spring County Club later this month, a position he assumed in May 1968 after Buddy Hughes' contract was terminated.

C.G., a native Big Springer, will be succeeded by Gary Hammer, now an assistant pro of the Sherrill Park Country Club in Richardson, near Dallas. Hammer is 29.

Griffin first became affiliated with golf in a professional capacity 27 years ago, when he was hired by a club in Brownfield. He remained there 11 years.

Although he will no longer be associated with the local club in a professional capacity, Griffin likely will be able to devote a lot more time to his hobby — that of playing golf. He likes nothing better than to play a round with friends.

C.G., and his wife, Norma, will continue to make their home in Big Spring. He said that as far as future employment goes his plans have not been finalized but he will remain active.

The Griffins' son, Teddy, once was employed by the club as an assistant to C. G. Although he continues to reside in Big Spring, Teddy is now employed by a local financial institution.

C. G. had considerable equipment to dispose of, before he could yield the reins to a successor. That includes a fleet of 24 golf carts, the kind that demands regular attention before they can offer faithful service. Hammer himself is arranging to purchase the carts.

Although he hasn't been able to play golf regularly, C. G. has managed to shoot four holes-in-one, two on the nine-hole course in Brownfield and the other two on the Big Spring Country Club layout. The aces came on four different holes.

C. G. has twice shot nine-under par rounds, once at Brownfield and once here over a par 71 layout. His feat here included nine birdies and nine pars — no eagles, no bogies.

C. G. played his first round of golf at, of all places, the famed Pebble Beach Course in California, where the Bing Crosby Clambake is held annually. A buddy in a Del Monte Naval Pre-Flight training program talked him into touring the course. The two were staying in a hotel across the street from the scenic layout at the time.

The prettiest course Griffin ever played is the relatively new Horseshoe Bay links at Marble Falls, Tex. Although he is forever enchanted by the course's beauty and its challenges, C. G. was able to tour the 18 holes in even par figures on one occasion. He accomplished the trick despite the fact that the 18th hole has always proved difficult to play for him. He settled for a double bogey on the hole but was two strokes under regulation figures when he attacked the ball on 18.

C. G. who once was in the Venetian blinds business here, came closest to winning a tournament one year in the West Texas PGA event at Andrews, when he finished a stroke behind the champion, Dick Turner.

C. G., has other hobbies than golf, among them hunting and fishing. He relishes the chance to hunt quail and likes to go fly fishing.

No matter what he does, the livelihood he seeks out probably don't demand as much of his time as does that of a golf pro. The fellow who conceived the idea of a 40-hour work week simply didn't have a links professional in mind. The dedicated pro arrives at his 'salt mine' early and stays long after everyone else has departed, trying to get ready for the ensuing day.

But he'll miss the life, no doubt, just as the 400 members of the course will miss C. G. and his cheerful, accomodating demeanor.

HC queens decision Schreiner

Marking time for their all-important Western Conference encounter with Clarendon College here Monday night, the Howard College Hawk Queens buried Schreiner College, 86-50, in Garrett Coliseum here Saturday night.

The victory was the 13th in 19 starts for the Big Spring team. In conference, the Queens are 3-1 while their Monday foe is 2-2. Clarendon lost one of its conference games when its leading scorer was not in uniform. The two teams clash at 6 p.m., prior to the boys' game between the same schools.

Amarillo leads the Western Conference standings with a 4-0 record.

Susan Cordell played her best game of the season for Howard College against Clarendon, scoring 15 points. She blocked nine shots and pulled down as many rebounds.

Howard College built up a 47-23 bulge at half time and coasted in from that point. Coach Don Stevens substituted by platoons and gave everyone a chance to play.

Neil Haskins scored 20 points in the rout while Holli Holloway accounted for 14 of Howard's points.

Lissa Lackey led the Schreiner team with 22 points. She was the only visiting player to hit in double figures.

HOWARD (86) — Yanci Toran 0-0; Andrew Fowler 1-3; Holli Holloway 5-14; Carol Wassermann 2-4; Carrie Lutrick 4-9; Kellie Muli 2-4; Neil Haskins 9-20; Pam Robertson 2-0-4; Christi Adams 1-3; Melissa Luna 1-2; Cindy Robinson 0-0; Susan Cordell 1-1. Totals 86-50.

Pat coach lays it on line

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Ron Meyer, in his second day as head coach of the New England Patriots, laid down the law Saturday.

He said he plans to run a very disciplined, systematic program in which players will be told clearly what their roles are and be expected to follow rules explicitly or suffer the consequences.

"They'll know what is expected of them off the field, on trips, on the field, in meetings, at practices, on the sidelines and in front of cameras and yet they will not be programmed. They'll still have the great uniqueness of their own individuality," Meyer said at a news conference at which he was introduced to New England reporters.

The 40-year-old Meyer was named New England's eighth head coach Friday, succeeding Ron Erhardt, who was fired Dec. 22. The former Southern Methodist coach takes over a team whose 2-14 record this season was its worst ever and the worst in the National Football League.

Meyer said he didn't anticipate serious problems in dealing with professional, rather than college, players.

"When you talk about values, I don't think there are any differences," he said. "When you talk about being at a meeting at 2:15, that's 2:15. There's a difference between 2:15 and 2:16 in my book, and I think this will be quickly pointed out."

Meyer also said he would conduct well-structured practices and a long preseason training camp.

He also said he wants his players to be on a year-round conditioning program and added, "I'm a great believer that you win in the off-season."

He described himself as "very much of a human being when it comes to one-on-one relationships (with players). But I'll tell you one thing. I think they'll know who the boss is."

In Hope Golf Classic

Fiori leads by 1

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Ed Fiori shot a 5-under-par 67 and took a 1-stroke lead Saturday in the fourth round of the Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

Fiori, a two-time winner in four full years of tour activity, played his fourth round in relative peace and quiet at Eldorado, while most of the gallery of some 27,000 flocked to Indian Wells to watch the host comedian, former President Gerald Ford and the show-business celebrities finish their portion of the tournament.

Fiori completed a circuit of one round on each of the four desert courses used for this 90-hole tournament in 268, 20 strokes under par.

"That's the lowest I've ever shot for 72 holes (the length of most other tournaments)," Fiori said. "You'd think that would give me a couple of strokes lead, wouldn't you?"

But it staked him to a margin of a single stroke over Tom Kite and Rex Caldwell, tied for second with 18 holes to go, at 269. Caldwell shot a 6-under-par 6 at La Quinta and Kite, the 1981 leading money-winner and third-round leader, struggled to a 69 at Indian Wells, the site of Sunday's final round.

"It was not an artistic round," said Kite, who salvaged a position among the leaders with a birdie-birdie finish in the warm desert sunshine.

"I really didn't do much right at all," he said. "But I shot 4 under on the back nine and got back in contention. At least I didn't take myself out of the golf tournament, which is what it looked like on the front side."

Caldwell, a journeyman who hasn't finished higher than third in seven years of tour experience, also played his back nine in 32.

"I had to go on the back nine and I did. Now I'm in

AP LASERPHOTO

EASY ED FIORI
Seeking third tour win

shape to win the golf tournament," said Caldwell, who will be paired with Kite and Fiori in the final group Sunday.

Forrest Fezler was fourth at 270 after shooting a 67 at Indian Wells.

It was another 3 strokes back of the leaders to Cal Peete and Scott Hoch, tied at 273. Both played at Bermuda Dunes. Peete had a 68 and Hoch reeled off a string of seven consecutive birdies — one short of the tour record — on the way to a 67.

Jet Ozaki, the Japanese rookie who led the first two rounds, fell victim to a fat 76 at La Quinta and dropped out of title contention at 278, 10 shots back.

Masters champ Tom Watson, who played with Ford, Hope and Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill, shot a 73 at Indian Wells and had a 284 total. Since the amateurs are required to pick up when they are out of a hole, no individual amateur scores were available.

Arnold Palmer, the current seniors champion and a five-time winner of this title, had a 71 at Indian Wells.

Plays Gerulaitis today Lendl upsets McEnroe

NEW YORK (AP) — Methodically and efficiently, Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia chopped down John McEnroe 6-4, 6-2 Saturday to advance into the finals of the $400,000 Volvo Masters tennis championships.

The victory sent Lendl, top-seeded in this eight-man tournament, into Sunday's finals against Vitas Gerulaitis, a 7-5, 4-6, 6-2 victor over Eliot Teltscher in the other semifinal.

Sunday's final, scheduled to begin at 3 p.m., EST, will be telecast nationally on CBS. The winner pockets $100,000, while the runner-up receives $50,000.

The 21-year-old Lendl, ranked third in the world, is going after his seventh consecutive tournament title. He has won 35 straight matches.

Lendl won the coin toss and elected to receive, a decision that proved to be pivotal.

It is the second straight year that Lendl has reached the finals here, last year losing to Sweden's Bjorn Borg in the title match.

For McEnroe, ranked No. 1 in the world, it was yet another loss to the powerful Czech. The two have split their six career clashes, but Lendl has won the last three, including their quarterfinal meeting in the French Open last year and their Davis Cup battle in New York last July.

And it marked the second straight year that McEnroe has been disappointed in this year-ending tourney in his hometown. Last year, he failed to make it out of the round-robin portion of the championships.

Prior to Saturday's matches, Gerulaitis' coach, Fred Stolle, issued a statement saying the blond right-hander was playing the semifinal "under protest because of the lateness of the hour last night."

Gerulaitis played in the final match Friday night, and did not leave Madison Square Garden until nearly 1 a.m.

Because CBS wanted to televise the McEnroe-Lendl match live, Gerulaitis was scheduled to play the day's first match.

"Vitas has played three night matches this week," Stolle said in a statement. "The last two nights he played the last match. We thought it was unfair for him to come out and play the first match."

Stolle said Gerulaitis considered defaulting his semifinal clash with Teltscher.

Nathan Givens 2nd in league scoring

Through games of Jan. 11, Howard College's Nathan Givens ranked second in Western Conference basketball scoring with a 24.0-point-per-game average.

Tops in the conference was Charles Prescott of New Mexico Junior College, with a 26.7 average.

Howard College's Leon Isaac tied for fifth in the scoring derby with a 19.6 norm.

Harold Jones of Amarillo College boasted the best field goal-shooting percentage with a .724 mark. He had hit on 89 of 123 attempts. Givens was second in that department with a .612 mark. Givens had taken 224 shots at the basket and had connected 137 times.

Chester Smith of Midland College was the No. 1 rebounder among conference players, with an 11.3-per-game average. Givens was second with a 10.9 norm.

Mike Smith of NMJC led in assists, averaging 9.1 per game, while Leroy Parris of NMJC was tops in blocks with a total of 44.

Most adept at stealing the ball was Mike Smith of NMJC, with a total of 71 to his credit. Most efficient at picking up turnovers was Anthony Webb of Midland College, with a total of 86.

Two players share the honor of having the season's single game scoring high, each with 45 points. They are Charles Prescott of NMJC, who turned the trick against the Sul Ross University JVs, and Puntus Wilson of Midland College, who was in action against NMJC.

Amarillo College remained the team to beat in the Western Conference. The Badgers won their first 15 games, four of which were conference games.

In the latest National Junior College basketball poll, Amarillo moved from 17th to ninth place.

Kentucky subdues Alabama

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Dirk Minniefield scored 25 points and Derrick Hord added 22 as No. 6 Kentucky blasted No. 13 Alabama 86-69 Saturday night in a Southeastern Conference basketball game.

Both Minniefield and Hord tallied 10 points in the first half, and Kentucky held a comfortable 44-30 lead at the break.

The victory boosted Kentucky to 10-3 overall and 3-2 in the SEC. Alabama fell to 12-2 and 4-2.

Melvin Turpin added 14 points for Kentucky and Jim Master scored 11. Master also sank five free throws to run his school-record string to 34 in a row, snapping Kyle Macy's previous high of 32.

Alabama staged a mild rally early in the second half, pulling within 48-40 at 15:55 after consecutive baskets by Eddie Phillips, Cliff Windham and Mike Davis.

Hord then scored Kentucky's next four field goals against single baskets by Phillips and Davis to push Kentucky ahead 56-44 with 13:23 left. Kentucky's biggest lead was 86-67 after Master's two record-breaking free throws with 20 seconds left.

Phillips led Alabama with 16 points, while Ennis Whatley added 13, Davis 12 and Phillip Lockett 10.

Ponies in front

HOUSTON (AP) — Sophomore Chuck Anderson calmly sank two free throws with four seconds to play Saturday night to complete an amazing Southern Methodist comeback and give the Mustangs a 67-66 upset victory over 10th-ranked Houston.

The Cougars, who led 59-51 with 11:23 left in the game, lost for the second time in five days: Houston dropped a 95-83 decision to 19th-ranked Texas on Tuesday.

Anderson scored 12 points in the first half as the Mustangs edged to a 40-39 lead but was scoreless in the second half until he was fouled by Houston's Michael Young with four seconds in the game.

Following Anderson's game-winning points and a time out, the Cougars' Rob Williams — who took game-winning honors with 23 points — fired off a desperation jump shot that bounced harmlessly off the rim.

Houston dropped to an 11-3 record, 2-2 in the SWC. SMU ended a three-game losing streak and now stands at 6-8, 1-3 in league play.

Williams, breaking out of a shooting slump, hit the first basket of the second half and Houston rolled to its eight point lead early in the final frame. With 9:03 to go, the Cougars went into a slowdown, four-corners offense to nurse a 59-57 lead.

Longhorn swim team places

MIDLAND — Midland High won the girls' division of the Midland Invitational Swim Meet here Saturday, scoring 384 points to 242 for runnerup Lewisville and 201 for third place Amarillo High.

Big Spring finished 11th among 20 teams with a total of 60 points.

Big Spring girls who qualified for Saturday's finals included Carol Davey, 100-yard backstroke; Rita Fleckenstein, 50-yard freestyle and 200-yard medley relay; Paul Willadsen, 100-yard freestyle and 100-yard backstroke; Hartley Newell and Connie Grisham.

In boys' competition, Big Spring placed tenth with 79 points. El Paso Eastland was first with 295 points, followed by Amarillo High School, with 265 and Lewisville, with 227.

Big Spring entries who qualified included Speight Grimes, Todd Lloyd, Tim Plew, Chris Batchelor, Cecil Willey, Glen Slate and Mike McCain.

Coach Harlan Smith said the Big Spring entries did quite well, considering the caliber of competition. The Steers will next compete in a meet at Seminole Jan. 23.

Canadian net team in lead

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Canada held a 2-1 lead over Venezuela Saturday in their Davis Cup preliminary round match.

Jorge Andrew and Inaki Calvo of Venezuela overcame Canadians John Picken and Bill Cowan 4-6, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4, 7-5 in doubles.

Earlier Saturday, Canada's Rejean Genois completed a 6-1, 6-3 victory over Venezuelan Randolph Scheller in singles. Genois had won the first set 6-2 Friday when the match was suspended because of darkness.

Canadian Harry Fritz won the opening singles Friday in a 100-game, six-hour marathon match against Andrew.

The reverse singles will be played Sunday.

Pentathlon star says he used tranquilizers

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A former national pentathlon champion says he used tranquilizers twice during international competition in Europe.

Orben Greenwald, 33, a former Army officer now living in the Central Texas city of New Braunfels, told the Dallas Times-Herald that he violated military and athletic rules by taking Valium and Enderol during European Cup competition in 1975 and 1976.

Greenwald was a three-time All-American swimmer, world military pentathlon champion in 1973 and national pentathlon champion in 1975.

The pentathlon, involving both military and civilian athletes, is an Olympic competition involving horsemanship, fencing, swimming, running and marksmanship.

Greenwald said he took the tranquilizers, which cut down the flow of adrenalin in the body and keep the hands steady, to improve his pistol shooting scores.

But he said the drugs made him feel guilty and did not improve his performance. "I didn't feel right," Greenwald said. "I know I'd always wonder, 'Did I win it, or did this other junk win it?'"

Greenwald also said he worried that Enderol, which can cause an irregular heartbeat, could be dangerous in the 5,000-meter cross country run.

Greenwald said he decided not to take the drugs during Olympic trials or events in 1976 and in 1980 preliminaries.

Greenwald said he took the drugs in the European Cup on the advice of Army officials directing the Modern Pentathlon training.

In sworn testimony given Army investigators two years ago, trainer James Griffin of the Fort Sam Houston pentathlon training center said Greenwald and three other athletes told him they had taken tranquilizers.

A transcript of the testimony was recently obtained in a Freedom of Information Act request by Robert Marbut of San Antonio. Marbut, a former civilian competitor, said pressure in the pentathlon was especially strong on older athletes and those weak in marksmanship, the newspaper said.

Anglers catch bass, strippers

Holiday doldrums have affected the fishermen, but for the few who ventured to Lake E.V. Spence there was good fortune.

This was especially true for those catching white bass. Other reports included striped bass and one respectable black bass.

At Wanoreck's Paint Creek Marina on the southwest side, Charles Von Sickle and Jimmy Kiker reported 62 white bass and three strippers up to 9 lbs. But Whitaker and Jimmy Kiker brought in a 5-lb. striped and 20 white bass. Gary Gardner and Ed Anzaldua of Tulsa included a 3-lb. 6-oz. black bass on their string.

Bears nip Rice Owls

WACO, Texas (AP) — Joe Copeland sank a 9-foot jump shot with just over three minutes left Saturday to break open a tie game and lead Baylor to a 55-53 Southwest Conference basketball win over Rice.

Copeland, who led the Bears with 17 points, busted a 50-50 tie and the two teams exchanged points evenly the rest of the way.

Baylor led 31-26 at the half after leading by as many as 13. The Bears struggled through a second-half cold streak, missing 11 of their first 13 shots after intermission.

Rice used a man-to-man defense with Kenny Austin covering hot-shooting Terry Teagle, who was held to 15 points.

Ricky Pierce, who was able to sink only one of his first seven field-goal tries, nipped 32 points to lead Rice.

The win raised Baylor's SWC conference record to 2-1. The Bears are 9-4 for the year.

RICE (53) — Pierce 13, 6-8 32, Bennett 2-0-0 4, Austin 1-2-3, Washington 1-0-0 2, Wilson 0-0-0, Johnson 0-0-0. Totals 27-10-53.

BAYLOR (55) — Teagle 5-8 15, Copeland 7-3-4 17, Hall 1-2-4, Blake 2-2-5, Shaker 4-2-5 10, Totals 21-13-55.

Tourney opens on February 5

The fifth annual Wallace Community Center Volleyball Tournament will be held Feb. 5-7, at the Wallace Center in Colorado City. Games will be played Friday night, Saturday and Sunday. This will be a mixed adult recreational tournament. There must be at least three women on the court at all times. Any group, company, or club may compose a team and have as many teams as desired as long as each one pays the initial fee.

An entry fee of $25 will be charged per team. Deadline for the roster is Jan. 29 at 5 p.m.

Proceeds from the tournament will go into a fund for physical fitness equipment at the Wallace Center.

Team National is winner

Schlichter leads way

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Quarterback Art Schlichter passed for two first-quarter touchdowns and running back David Tolouma scored twice, leading Team National to a 30-21 victory over Team American in the first Olympia Gold Bowl Saturday.

Team American, after trailing 23-7 going into the fourth quarter, narrowed the gap to 23-21 with 7:22 remaining. But Idaho State quarterback Mike Machurek tossed a 19-yard scoring pass to Tolouma with 2:54 to play to seal the victory.

Schlichter left the game midway in the second quarter to meet a prior commitment in Washington, D.C., but the Ohio State star made the most of his brief appearance here. He threw scoring strikes of 6 yards to UCLA tight end Tim Wrightman and 15 yards to Tulane tight end Rod Holman.

Devils fail in upset bid

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Senior guard Jimmy Black's ball-hawking defense opened the door for an 18-4 spurt as top-ranked North Carolina cruised to a 73-63 victory over Duke in Atlantic Coast Conference basketball Saturday night.

Black had three steals to disrupt Duke's offense and scored 14 points. Michael Jordan led North Carolina with 19 points and James Worthy had 17 as the 13-0 Tar Heels overcame a one-point halftime deficit to take a 56-42 lead midway through the second half.

Duke tried to get back into the game but the accurate Tar Heel shooting put them further into a hole until, with 2:44 remaining, the Blue Devils trailed 71-50.

North Carolina coach Dean Smith then emptied his bench, allowing Duke to close to the final margin.

Duke's Vince Taylor scored a game-high 22 points as the Blue Devils dropped to 4-9, 0-4 in the ACC.

Coahoma boys beaten; girls get 16th win

COAHOMA — The Denver City boys took Coahoma to the woodshed in a District 6-AAA basketball game here Friday night, winning, 64-29, after the Coahoma girls had powered their way past the Denver City feds, 58-32.

In boys' junior varsity action, Denver City was the master, 76-32.

The Coahoma boys are 5-12 in seasonal play and 0-2 against conference opponents. They swing back into action Tuesday night in Crane.

The Coahoma team stayed within hailing distance of the Mustangs for a half but the visitors used the press effectively in the last half and combined that with a running game to pull away.

None of the Coahoma players scored more than seven points, so effective was the Denver City game plan.

Sterling City, Forsan split practice games

STERLING CITY — Sterling City's Barr hit a jump shot from out front with four seconds left in overtime to lead the Eagles to a 40-39 non-conference basketball victory over Forsan here Friday night.

In the girls' game, Forsan posted an easy 57-19 victory. The Forsan boys, now 14-6 overall and 1-3 in conference, return to 5-AA play Tuesday night in Plains.

The Forsan girls have won 17 of their 20 starts thus far and are unbeaten in four league starts. They play again Tuesday night in Plains.

Only two of Forsan's boys hit in double figures Friday night. Ricky Bedwell led the way with 11 points while Andre Alcantar tossed in 10.

Iowa State fullback Dwayne Crutchfield scored all three touchdowns for Team American on runs of 1, 1 and 2 yards.

Schlichter completed his first eight passes, wound up with completions of nine of 12 attempts for 129 yards and was named the game's Most Valuable Offensive Player.

Team National Linebacker Clayton Weishuhn of Angelo State in Texas was voted the Most Valuable Defensive Player.

Schlichter was replaced by Matt Kofler of San Diego State, who promptly directed two scoring drives to put Team National ahead 23-7 early in the third quarter.

Tolouma's first TD came on a 5-yard run early in the second quarter. Idaho State kicker Case de Bruijn added a 27-yard field goal.

Heisman Trophy winner Marcus Allen of Southern California was used sparingly, touching the ball only twice in the first three quarters. A crowd of 22,316 booed Team American Coach Tom Flores of the National Football League's Oakland Raiders throughout the second half for keeping Allen on the sideline. Allen played his high school football in San Diego.

Iowa deflates Badger five

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Bob Hansen scored 17 points and Mike Payne added 12 to lead fifth-ranked Iowa to a 78-62 victory over Wisconsin in Big Ten basketball Saturday.

Iowa improved its conference record to 3-1 and 11-2 overall.

Wisconsin was led by Cory Blackwell with 16 points and Brad Sellers with 14. The Badgers fell to 1-3 in the Big Ten and 4-8 overall.

After the Badgers, who never led after the game's first basket, had rallied to within 22-20 on a jumper by Sellers with 6:42 left in the first half, Iowa broke the game open with a 13-2 spree. The Hawkeyes took a 35-22 lead on two free throws by Kevin Boyle with 2:14 left.

GAME OF KEEP-AWAY — Pretty Kelly Warrington of Big Spring manages to dribble the ball away from Midland Lee's Gavia during Thursday night's District 6-AAAA basketball game here. Lee pulled away from the Bulldogs in the second quarter and went on to defeat Big Spring, 76-69.

Supe resigns 'demeaning' job

TAYLOR, Texas (AP) - Taylor Independent School District Superintendent has quit the part-time job the local school board said was "demeaning." Mervyn Greer, who gets $40,000 a year for running the Central Texas school system, had been moonlighting as a car washer. "I'm not going to add fuel to the fire," he said. "They got on me about it, so I quit it." At a Monday night board meeting Greer told trustees he did not regard "any employment as demeaning as long as it's honest and ethical." The Saturday job at a local car wash was "preferable to having obligations go unpaid," he said. The obligations included $1,300 in legal fees he has paid to defend himself against board allegations in two evaluations of Greer. The educator-car washer said he picked up $30 or $40 on a typical Saturday at the car wash.

Brazen thief due to court

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Travis County sheriff's deputies have recovered a recently stolen public address system. Now they're after the daring bandit who stole it from a state district courtroom. Sheriff's Department Lt. Henry Marschel said the $1,800 amplifier was taken from State District Judge Mace Thurman's courtroom bench over the weekend. Marschel found it Monday at a nearby pawn shop where it had been hocked for $25. "I lucked out on that," he said Wednesday of finding the amplifier. A felony theft charge has been filed against the man whose name appeared on the pawn ticket. The suspect is due back in court Jan. 25 to face charges of leaving the scene of an accident. "When he comes back into the courtroom I'll arrest him," said Marschel.

BIG SPRING, TEXAS JANUARY 17, 1982

SECTION C

It's hard to run and cry at the same time

By TINA MILLER
Lifestyle Editor

Sherill Easterling loves to run. She runs in the rain, the sand, the snow and the wind. And even though her husband's death has left her questioning her reasons for living, she still runs.

"Only another runner understands that when you put those shoes on and you start down that road, a lot of times I'll get chills all over me just simply because I love to run. Sometimes I just scream. That's how much I love to run. Only another runner will understand what it means not to be able to run. Gosh, I get so uptight, I could just crawl the wall."

In the three short years she has been running, Mrs. Easterling has participated in eight marathons, including the Boston Marathon. Each marathon is 26.2 miles in length. She says she has lost count of all the shorter races she has run.

"Most of the people my age (32) that are running have been running since they were in junior high," she said. "I'm real far behind, especially for marathon runners. They say for long distance runners, marathon runners, you've got to run for about 10 years before you're going to reach your peak."

Though she has always been athletic, Mrs. Easterling's running career began slowly. "One summer Bill, my husband, and I were playing tennis with Donald and Wilma Webb. We got through, and the track was close to the tennis courts. Donald said, 'Let's go over and run.' So I ran one lap... a quarter (of a mile) and it completely wiped me out."

Though the after-tennis running continued, Mrs. Easterling said, "It didn't really occur to me to do anything with it. But after Bill had kidney failure, we had to drive to Lubbock (for dialysis treatment) every other day practically. It ruined my tennis game, which was no big deal, but for me, I've got to do something physical or I have problems. I get too uptight."

EACH DIALYSIS treatment lasted about six hours and Mrs. Easterling was permitted to see her husband for only 15 minutes during that time. "So I started going to a park, and I'd run around this block. It helped me mentally."

The couple continued their trips to Lubbock for dialysis for about two months. Then, Mrs. Easterling was taught how to give her husband the dialysis treatments in their home.

"I'm not a nurse at all. And for me to learn how to do dialysis was pretty traumatic. The thought of me even sticking somebody (with a needle) was upsetting. But the thought in my mind was if I messed up, he died. And that's pretty rough when all you ever wanted and loved is sitting there, and they're completely in your hands and you're not real sure about yourself."

"If I would run before I would go home and put Bill on the machine, then I'd be much more at ease. Running is very relaxing to me. If I'd get kinda of down or something, Bill would say, 'Why don't you go run?' cause he knew when I got back I'd be in a good mood."

'Sometimes I just scream.

That's how much I love to run.'

Mrs. Easterling tried to continue playing tennis but finally gave it up, mainly because she became angry at herself when she didn't play well. "But when running, you know, there's nothing to get mad about. How can you get mad? If I want to run fast, I run fast. And if I don't want to, I don't. Now, I'm not saying that sometimes if I have a real bad race I'm thrilled about it, but... I guess you're so tired you don't get mad."

Running also gave Mrs. Easterling a sense of pride. "I hope this doesn't sound wrong, but when Bill first had kidney failure, and for years, when I'd go anywhere, everybody would say, 'How's Bill?' Of course, I knew they were interested and I was glad. But no one ever said, 'How's Sherill?' I just felt like I was a nothing."

After I started running, most people would say, 'How's Bill?' ... then people would ask me something about me. And I know this sounds bad, but it helped me. At least I felt like I was a person, and it helped Bill because he felt very guilty about confining me, but the fact that he felt like I was doing what I wanted to do helped him a lot."

DONALD WEBB became Mrs. Easterling's running partner, and the spouses of both were very understanding and supportive of the pair, particularly when they decided to start running in races. Their first race was in Abilene during Thanksgiving, 1979, and was 6.2 miles long. "Of course, the first race, we didn't know anything. All the way up there (to Abilene) we ate candy bars and stuffed all this candy in right before the race, which is the worst thing we could do."

"I was in first (place) at the time, and I couldn't believe it... And then, as we kept going, I kept getting more excited (and thought) 'Hey, maybe I am going to win.' Then, about two miles from the finish, some old gal, her name's Kim Linton, she passed me like I was going backwards. Boy, I won't even tell you what I said. It really blew my mind. But really, for a first race, it wasn't bad."

Mrs. Easterling's first marathon, however, was not such a pleasant experience. "The thing about a marathon is that usually between about... the 18th through the 22nd mile, everyone is going to completely use up all the available energy in their bodies. And this is what they call 'hitting the wall.'"

"THE FIRST ONE I ran, I was not in condition for. I had run 12 miles once, and when I hit 15 miles, I did hit the wall. And I started vomiting, and oh, I laid in the ditch. Bill could really tell the funny story about that, 'cause I'd run a while and then I'd lay in the ditch, you know, just awful. And anybody with any sense would have quit. But no, I signed up for that thing and I was going to finish. I wasn't going to quit."

"So Wilma (Donald's wife) and Bill came along and he got me this little tiny Baggie, and he got me a little crushed ice. I was lying in the ditch and he said, 'Here, put this in your mouth.' So I was lying there, and he helped me up after a while. So I started running (while carrying the bag of ice)... and finally I just threw it back at him. And he said, 'Don't you want this?' and I said, 'No, it's too heavy.'"

"He just thought that was so funny. But even your hair gets heavy, your hair hurts. Everything — when you hit the wall — it hurts. You just can't imagine. The more times you're able to run through the wall, the more adapted your body is to it. It's always going to hurt, but you won't go into this violent vomiting and lying in the ditch."

FOR RUNNERS, the Boston Marathon is the ultimate experience. But Mrs. Easterling has mixed feelings about the 1981 Boston Marathon in which she participated. "It was a hassle for us to go. We couldn't even get him (Bill) a dialysis treatment up there and I was worried about him."

"Gosh, I did so many things wrong. I didn't know exactly where to go and I ended up walking five miles to

'I'd run for a while and then

I'd lay in the ditch. And anybody with any sense

would have quit.'

start the thing." Mrs. Easterling said that runners with the best qualifying times are placed in front of those with slower qualifying times, and she was placed well behind the starting line. So far, in fact, that she didn't even know when the race started. An estimated 12,000 to 16,000 runners participated, and spectators were estimated at about two million.

"The thrill of that (race) is to me the fact that there's that many people that want to do that and that can do that. I know there's millions that could, but just to see all that many people that care about their body and try to stay in shape and have this, 'I'm going to do this,' drive and have that much self-discipline, it's a thrill to me. But the crowd is really rough."

Mrs. Easterling's life was shattered in August, 1981, when her husband died. "Bill was the strongest person I've ever seen in my life," she said. "Most people didn't realize what we went through, he more than I. So it was sort of like when he died, I did too."

"But then I'd think, 'Bill had everything in the world happen to him and he always was so tough.' ... He taught me how to live, he really did. Most of the time I try to think about that. But then when you get real, real bad lonely, all I want to do is be with him... so why don't I just go out there and die. And that's bad."

"Some people say, 'You're not a very good Christian if you think that way.' I don't feel like that. They don't understand. People say, 'You'll be all right 'cause you have Jesus.' Well, I am a real strong Christian, but Jesus doesn't hold you at night."

"When I think of God and Christ, I think of them as being in other people. So when people say, 'Your religion will carry you through,' to me, it's God's love through other people that might carry me through."

HAS RUNNING helped her survive the months since her husband's death? "I'm sure it did because... an hour after he died I was talking to his doctor. I wasn't really saying much, but right before he left he said, 'I want you to promise me one thing,' and I just looked at him. He said, 'You've got to keep running. Would you promise me that? You have got to. It's the only thing that you have got to do.' And, you know, I could care less about anything. I didn't really say anything."

"When I came home the first night, Donald came over and said, 'Let's run.' I didn't care what I did. It didn't matter, and in a way it still doesn't. If he hadn't kept on, I might have (kept running) but I might not have. He'd get me out and almost force me to run. And it's kind of hard to run and cry at the same time."

"When you're in that state you don't argue with people. You just sort of do what people tell you. We're still running about every day."

Her husband's death has changed Mrs. Easterling's outlook on races. "Used to, when I'd run a race, I'd know Bill would be there waiting for me. And when I hurt during a race... I'd always say, 'What am I doing this for? I'm

'The fact that I got to have Bill for seven years has made my life.'

never going to do this again.' All runners do this, they really do. (They say), 'This is it, this is dumb, never again.' And then the second I'd cross that finish line and Bill would be there, (she would ask), 'When's my next race?'"

"Now it's the opposite. During a race, when I feel pain I don't care. The pain I have inside of me is so much more than physical pain that it's just sort of, 'so what?' Then, when I cross the line, I go, 'So?'"

"Since Bill died, there's been one race that I really cared about, and that was the (Bill Easterling) Memorial Run in Coahoma." The race took place Oct. 9. "I wanted to do good at that, and I cared." Mrs. Easterling won the race.

WHY THEN does she continue to run? "When I run, a lot of times I'm running for people in Coahoma," she said. "I love that little town and I love those people, and some of them are really proud of that (her running). And when I win something and they see something in the paper it just tickles them to death. And that makes me happy because it makes them happy. They've given me so much love and everything. Maybe this is a way I'm trying to express my

IF IT SNOWS TONIGHT, I'LL BE RUNNING TOMORROW' — Mrs. Easterling proved true to her word by running as usual after Wednesday's snow. Her dog, Marj, trots faithfully behind but may be questioning the sanity of the situation. "Only another runner will understand what it means not to be able to run," Mrs. Easterling said. "Gosh, I get so uptight, I could just crawl the wall."

thanks to them. I don't really know what else to do."

Mrs. Easterling teaches math at Howard College and says her pride in the College is another reason she continues to run. "I'm real proud of Howard College, I really am. When I went to Boston that's what I had on my shirt: Howard College, Texas. They're so supportive of me, like many of the people in Coahoma and other people in Big Spring area."

"Donald has helped me make it this far. What he's done to help me keep living, then I want to help him reach one of his goals (qualifying for the Boston Marathon). So a lot of times I'll run for that reason. If he qualifies, I am (going) because I wish I would have had somebody to tell me where to go and what to do." After her experiences at the marathon last year, she had not planned to return, even though she has qualified again, but she said, "Things aren't like they were."

Though it has been five months since her husband's death, Mrs. Easterling does not believe she is making much progress in adjusting. "I still feel like, ever since he died, that I'm just existing and I'm just going through the motions of living... Maybe eventually I'll do more than just exist."

"I had to quit questioning. I try to figure everything out. Maybe it's my math brain. The fact that I'm running as well as I am right now is really sort of amazing to me. I'm not bragging on myself at all. I just think that I feel like right now that God's sort of carrying me. Because I don't sleep much, my eating habits are horrid. There's no reason why I should be able to do as well as I am."

"When I'm with 90 percent of the people, I appear fine. Now, I'm really not, but I give that impression. And I don't feel sorry for myself. I've been very blessed. The fact that I got to have Bill for seven years has made my life. But just because you don't feel sorry for yourself doesn't mean you don't hurt."

Though Mrs. Easterling runs every day, how far she runs depends on what she's working toward. "I try to shoot for an average of 70 miles per week. But, when you're working out for a marathon, you've got to get in at least four, and any more that you can, 18 mile days. You've just got to if you're not going to hit the wall and die."

"I'M FAIRLY disciplined. You have to be to be a marathon runner. And if I need to get in 10 miles that day, then I'm going to get in 10 miles if I don't have a bad injury. If I hurt and everything, well that's too bad, go ahead. If it snows tonight I'll be running tomorrow. That's just all there is to it."

Life's full of hurts and you just have to be tough and go on.'

Mrs. Easterling's last race was in Carlsbad, N.M., New Year's Day. She and Donald entered the race, and both did very well. "But the rest of the day and a little bit of the next day, we were just sick. It's just like you have the flu. It's something that a runner accepts and you know it's going to happen."

The pair's next marathon will be Feb. 27 at Woodlands (near Houston). "I know that after that I'm really going to hurt, and I know the pain that it's going to be. But that is a goal, and so what things hurt. That's the way I am. Life's full of hurts and you just have to be tough and go on."

"Every day my prayer is that God uses me to spread His love. And that's what I think life's about. I think that's what Bill taught me. That's what we're here for. So when I run, I really feel like, in a lot of ways, I'm doing that. I don't go around saying, 'I'm a Christian,' you know, if they can't tell, then I'm not."

How long does she plan to continue running? "I know a lot of people think, 'Well you old coot, you're getting too old to do that.' But in my mind I'm saying, 'Hey, ... I'm not as good as I'm going to be if I keep at it.'"

"Now, there will come a time when I will be... but people have a bad hangup about age. They use it as an excuse. I'm 32 now, and I'm in better shape than I've ever been. I'm not going to feel old till I hit 80. Maybe when I'm about 90 some truck will run over me."

Running improves physical health and mental outlook

"If I could get everybody running, everybody would be a lot happier," Sherill Easterling said. "The beauty of running is that it is something that you can do by yourself, or you can do it with someone else. You can do it anytime, and it's not frustrating."

Physical benefits of running are many. Improved condition of circulation and the entire cardiovascular system and improved muscle tone are the main benefits. And, even if very little weight is lost, the body proportions improve. Most runners also have healthy, shiny hair. "That's just a trivial little thing," Mrs. Easterling said, "but it's a nice side benefit."

The first thing a beginning runner should do is purchase a good pair of running shoes. Good shoes are vital, she said, and "everything else is immaterial."

Next, just choose a site, such as Scenic Mountain, and begin running. "If you're not in good shape, walk and lightly run a mile," Mrs. Easterling said. "Don't hurt yourself. You've got to be patient. Most people start too fast. If you can't talk (while running) you're running too fast. Make it a pleasurable thing."

Mrs. Easterling suggests maintaining the walk-run program for a week or two, then gradually increase the time spent running.

"People say, 'Oh well, yeah, running's easy for you. You're so skinny and you just run so light.' But when I started, I just hurt awful, just terrible. I didn't know anything (about running)... and I ran in a pair of (name brand) tennis playing shoes. I almost ruined my foot and couldn't walk for a week. But for some reason I had to get back at it. It's very addictive."

Novice runners should not expect to see immediate results, Mrs. Easterling said. "A lot of people expect instant results. You have to run a lot of miles to make any difference. Most runners are thin, not because of their running at all, but because they watch what they eat."

Mrs. Easterling believes that everyone has time to run if they really want to. Some runners run early in the morning, while others run during the lunch hour or in the evening. The runner's efforts are rewarded not only with good physical condition, but also an improved mental outlook.

"If you keep running, you're going to keep young and you're going to keep trying to improve yourself," she said. "When you run, for some reason you have a different outlook. If you want to be the best at running, then you're going to try to do better at your job. It just carries over into everything. Running isn't just physical. It's definitely a way of life."

Microwaves aid singles

JANET ROGERS, COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

HOME ECONOMICS
Do you find that planning and cooking a nutritious meal for yourself is time consuming and wasteful? Most singles feel this way.

Why not consider purchasing a microwave oven to save time, money, food and energy? With a microwave, a single person can prepare a recipe that yields three or four servings, freeze the extras and heat them later. Singleservings can be frozen in microwave-proof containers made of glass, plastic or nonmetallic material. Later the same containers become defrosting, heating and even serving containers.

Preparing meals in the microwave saves time and money as well as providing adequate nutrition. Research shows that a single person is more likely to prepare meals if he cooks with a microwave than if he uses conventional cooking methods.

In addition, cooking in a microwave saves energy. Using a microwave to reheat a single serving of food is far more economical than using a conventional oven.

Equally important is the fact that foods reheated in a microwave retain their original flavor, texture and color.

Use of the microwave also provides the amateur cook with satisfaction and adventure. Instant gratification boosts the ego when you see that little time is needed to prepare food in a microwave.

Arbor Day is meeting topic

The Planters Garden Club voted to plant a tree or shrub on Arbor Day during their meeting Jan. 6 in the home of Mrs. Doris Guy. The tree or shrub will be planted at the Dora Roberts Center in honor of Lavelle Hill, past president.

Members answered the roll call by naming a book on landscape design they have read.

Mrs. Joy Fortenberry presented the program on "Arbor Day - Trees and Shrubs." She said Arbor Day has become a symbol of faith in the future. Its observance in the planting of trees is indicative of continual effort to help nature help us and the determination to better use natural resources.

Love of trees is the essential in understanding the importance of forests to national welfare and prosperity. The planting of trees by organizations and schools on Arbor Day is usually accompanied by ceremonies intended to impress on those present the beauty of trees and their effect in improving the appearance of the environment. The ceremonies also lead to realization of the value of community and national foresight in the use and maintenance of national resources.

Arbor Day is purely American in origin. It grew out of conditions peculiar to the Great Plains - country that is practically treeless over much of its area, but supports flourishing agriculture with soil and climate well able to nourish tree growth.

Arbor Day originated and was first observed in Nebraska in 1872.

The observance of Arbor Day has spread all over the United States and far beyond its borders, but the times of observance vary, and are determined by climatic conditions.

Study Club discusses free enterprise system

A panel addressed the question: "Is the American free enterprise system the best and why?" at the GFWC Forsan Club meeting held Monday at the Forsan High School Home Economics Room.

Becky Vines, moderator, defined free enterprise and introduced the panel members. Susan Gaston, vice-president and secretary of Van's Well Service, spoke about the advantages of being able to make your own decisions in business.

Doug Parker, government teacher at Forsan High School, pointed out the American system has proved beneficial to more people than any other system.

Tom Vines, government and economics teacher at Garden City High School, discussed the individual inceptive aspects of a free enterprise system. Other areas discussed were government regulations, the welfare system and a balanced federal budget.

Members were reminded that the date the club will attend the Midland Community Theater has been changed from January to February. The exact date will be announced at the next meeting.

Donna Parker, Federation counselor, read a poem from "Clubwoman magazine." Members were urged to turn in their volunteer hours from Jan. 15, 1981-Jan. 15, 1982.

Plans were discussed for the Jan. 25 speaking engagement of Norma Gable. All members are to bring six dozen cookies for the reception after the lecture.

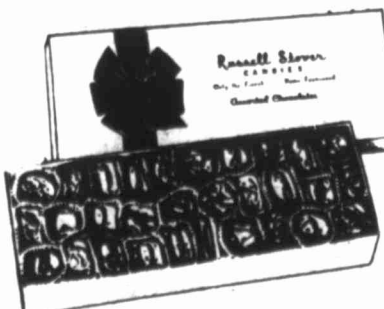

Mrs. Gaston won the door prize. Refreshments were served by Kathy Pickett and Nola Story. Members were urged to vote Saturday in the sales tax election at Forsan City Hall.

Computers study body's actions

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I read an interesting article on using computers in athletics. I lost it and forgot much of what it said. Can you give me some leads on where to find that article, and explain a little about it? — G.R.J.

One of the most interesting uses of computers in sports is in the field of biomechanics. Sports is the human body in motion, and biomechanics is the study of that action. It borrows from engineering, anatomy, medicine and, more recently, computer science. It will undoubtedly be of great value when we get around to designing the $6-billion man.

Here is one way biomechanics is being used on a more practical level. Movies are taken of athletes in motion, with different parts of their bodies marked. From this, movement and direction of arms, legs, torso, etc. can be studied. The results are fed into a computer.

From this, the computer translates the mathematics into images on a television screen. This can provide valuable hints as to the most effective way to produce a desired athletic action — throwing a football, for valuable hints as to the most effective way to produce a desired athletic action — throwing a football, for example. It can also help a coach correct any faulty motion, be it in leaving the starting block in a race, turning around in a swimming lap, or swinging a golf club. This is just one way biomechanics is being used in sports.

Biomechanics has a non-sports role, also. It is used to help design artificial limbs. Gait is studied and adjustments made in engineering these devices. The science of biomechanics is new, but the study of motion is old. It is called kinesiology, and you are likely to find more ready references under that name in a library. I do not know of the article to which you refer, but I am sure that you can write to the physical education department of the college near you for more information.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 13 years old and am on a basketball team. For about a month now I have had a plantar wart on my foot. I didn't find out until about a week ago about using callus removers. I tried but that doesn't work for me. What will I have to do to get rid of this? Will it hurt much? — M.A.

Plantar warts have a special name, not because they are special warts, but because of where they are located — on the bottom (plantar) surface of the foot. Because of this location, they can be the bane of the basketball player.

There are several methods to treat plantar warts, and all of them should be done by a physician. One reason for this is that some of the solutions used to remove the wart are quite caustic and have to be applied carefully. I don't know what you are using.

One removal solution is a combination of salicylic acid and lactic acid. This is dropped on the wart after the area has been softened by soaking it in water. Or the doctor may want to freeze the wart off with a special instrument. Another reason to have a doctor see the foot, is to make sure what you have is a wart. Corns on the bottom of the foot can be mistaken for plantar warts and vice versa. I cannot guarantee that removal will be entirely painless, but it probably won't be any more painful than trying to play basketball with this athlete's plague.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Book review

'Gavels, Grit & Glory' lacks timing

AUSTIN — Timing. It's important in a host of ventures including sports, love and politics.

It's also important in the book publishing business. But, alas, that seems to be one of several things political mag Jimmy Banks didn't think of when penning a comprehensive 378-page biography of West Texan Billy Clayton entitled "Gavels, Grit & Glory."

Clayton, having survived four terms as Texas House Speaker, is undoubtedly carving a niche in Texas history.

That niche, however, isn't nearly as complete as Clayton's near-famed polyester wardrobe.

The 53-year-old Springlake native undoubtedly deserves a biography. The point is, though, does he deserve it now?

Banks, a former newspaperman and current public relations director for the Texas Railroad Association, apparently thought the time was ripe for an expansive glimpse into the speaker's family history and political ideology.

Assuming the book was destined to remain on bookstore shelves for a month, that might be well and good. The problem, however, is that with the passing of each day, the book gets more and more out of date.

Take, for example, the fact that Clayton plans to abandon his speakership throne in favor of a bid to become Texas Land Commissioner.

Campaigning for a Texas House seat is one thing. Running for statewide office is quite another. Too bad future historians won't be privy to the outcome in Banks' book unless he opts to update his work periodically.

A reader may harbor skepticism about the book's lavish praise of Clayton.

Is the book designed to convince Texas voters unaware of Clayton's background, that the site needs to elect a politician of such a conservative Democratic caliber?

The book does, nonetheless, have its good points. It proffers an interesting glimpse into Texas politics, the give-and-take rivaled only by lending institutions.

But other than documenting the heart attack Clayton suffered early in his political career, it outlines few of the speaker's setbacks.

It doesn't dwell, for example, on the voters' rejection of a constitutional amendment authored by Clayton that sought the establishment of a controversial water trust fund.

Banks, apparently in a rush to get the book to the publisher, mentions that Clayton sponsored the measure, but didn't wait to include the outcome of the proposal. That's timing for you.

Sure, Banks delves into Clayton's Brilab woes, but he paints a picture of the pudgy politician as a man who knew better than to take a political payoff but simply forgot to do the right thing.

"Gavels, Grit & Glory," Jimmy Banks, Eakin Press, is 378 pages, $15.95. —JAY ROSSER

Test makeup foundation

Choosing a color for makeup foundation?

Always do the testing in natural light, advises Nancy Brown, a clothing specialist. Many stores do not have adequate lighting, she adds.

Also, use the jawline to test the shade of makeup. Color should blend in perfectly when thinly applied, she says.

Ms. Brown is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Extension Homemakers

Two Extension Homemakers clubs met recently and discussed common topics.

All members turned in their Furr's Trade 'n Tapes to use in obtaining gifts for door prizes. Each club in the county will be responsible for two gifts for the District Six Spring Conference to be held in Howard County April 14.

The Howard County Stock Show was discussed and members volunteered to work and bring cookies, brownies and sandwich and hamburger materials for their concession stand at the show. This is the major money-raising project of the Extension Homemakers for their scholarship fund this year.

The District Six annual training meeting will be Jan. 21 at 9:30 a.m. at Wickett Community Center. All club members are invited to attend. Those desiring to go should call Mrs. Waymon Etchison at 263-0578 or the Home Economics Extension agents at 267-8469 as early as possible. A lunch will be served for $3 per person.

CITY
The City Extension Homemakers Club met Jan. 8 in the home of Mrs. William Priebis. Roll call was an-sured by members telling about their most unusual Christmas gift.

The club voted to keep giving a door prize at each meeting. Hostesses for the meeting will be responsible for the prize. Yearbooks were handed out and hostesses were selected for the year. Francis Zani gave the council report.

"Kick the Caffeine Habit" is the title of a workshop to be held Monday at Texas Electric Reddy Room. The Howard County committee recommendations were voted on and passed.

Following the business meeting, refreshments were served. The next meeting will be Jan. 22 at 2 p.m.

CENTER POINT
The Center Point

Extension Homemakers Club had their first meeting of the year and a pot-luck luncheon at Kentwood Older Adult Center Monday. The club made plans for the 1982 club-year.

New officers were installed by Francis Mason, a guest from Coahoma. Theme for the installation was the apple. The theme denotes the size, firmness and weeding out the inferior fruit as the incoming officers must be firm, ready to be useful, not small as to opinion and able to discard bad suggestions.

New officers are: Jen Davidson, president; Lucille Petty, vice-president; Frankie Walker, secretary-treasurer; Ireba Griffith, council delegate; and Mattie Wren, reporter.

The Boy's Club of Fort Worth expressed thanks for the recycling items sent to them for the Boy's Orphan Home.

It was voted to send three cakes monthly and cookies twice yearly to the Big Spring State Hospital for patients' parties. Members are to bring these to the club meetings — the second Tuesday of each month. Pearl Coffee, Linis Couch, and Mrs. Davidson will furnish cakes for January.

The next meeting will be held at KOAC Jan. 26 at 2 p.m. Mrs. Cleo Eggleston and Mrs. Davidson will host the meeting.

Too much water is harmful

STREAMWOOD, Ill. (AP) — When caring for indoor houseplants, using too much water can be just as harmful as too little, says the maker of Garden Scene planterware. Too much water causes plant roots to rot.

"Watering houseplants once a week is a general rule, but this varies according to the setting and the plant," says Richard Husby, marketing manager.

The correct procedure is to soak the plant thoroughly, then let the soil dry out before the next watering.

Dear Abby

Do something nice, make a will

DEAR READERS: If you want to do something nice for your family, get your affairs in order. I came across this gem in The Survivor, a splendid magazine for widowed people. I obtained permission from the author, Judge Sam Harrod III of Eureka, Ill., to reprint it:

IF YOU DON'T HAVE A WILL, YOUR STATE HAS ONE FOR YOU.

The Statutory "Will" of John Doe

I, John Doe, make this my "will," by failing to have a will of my own choice prepared by my attorney.

1. I give one-half of all my property, both personal and real estate, to my CHILDREN, and the remaining one-half to my WIFE.

2. I appoint my WIFE as Guardian of my children, if she survives me; but as a safeguard, I require that:

a. my WIFE make written account every year to Probate Court, explaining how and why she spent money necessary for proper care of our children;

b. my WIFE file a performance BOND, with sureties, to be approved by Probate Court, to guarantee she will properly handle our children's money;

c. when our children become adults, my WIFE must file a complete, itemized, written account of everything she has done with our children's money;

d. when our son and daughter become age 18, they can do whatever they please with their share of my estate;

e. no one, including my WIFE, shall have the right to question how our children spend their shares.

3. If my WIFE does not survive me, or dies while any of our children are minors, I do not nominate a Guardian of our children, but hope relatives and friends may mutually agree on the one, and if they cannot agree, the Probate Court can appoint any Guardian it likes, including a stranger.

4. I do not appoint an Executor of my estate, and hope the Probate Court appoints someone I would approve.

5. If my WIFE remarries, the next husband:

a. shall receive one-third of all my WIFE'S property;

b. need not spend any of his share on our children, even if they need support; and

c. can give his share to anyone he chooses, without giving a penny to our children.

6. I do not care to learn whether there are ways to lower my death taxes, and know as much as possible will go to the government, instead of my WIFE and our CHILDREN.

In witness whereof, I have completely failed to make a different will of my own choice with the advice of my attorney, because I really did not care to go to all that bother, and I adopt this, by default, as my "will." — (no signature required) John Doe
