SCHOOL RUBBLE — A fire investigator walks past the rubble of the Star Elementary School in Spencer, Okla. An explosion destroyed the cafeteria and kitchen at noon Tuesday, killing five children and one teacher.

School explosion

Officials say faulty water heater to blame

SPENCER, Okla. (AP) — An explosion that killed five children and a teacher in an elementary school cafeteria was caused by a water heater that malfunctioned and built up a mighty head of steam a few hours after being repaired, officials said.

A cook in the elementary school kitchen turned on a tap around lunchtime Tuesday, but the faucet only coughed steam, Oklahoma City fire department spokesman Phil Cooksey said.

The cook went to report the problem, he said, and minutes later an explosion ripped through the kitchen wall, blowing off part of the roof and raining glass, metal and concrete blocks on children in the cafeteria.

Thirty-five other students and adults at the Star Elementary School were hurt, but Oklahoma City schools superintendent Tom Payzant said many children playing in the schoolyard were saved by the unusual 65-degree weather. In severe cold, he said, children often huddled against the wall of the one-story brick building in the northeastern Oklahoma City suburb of Spencer.

Officials estimated the blast did $100,000 worth of damage.

"I don't think there was any question as to the cause," Cooksey said. "The 75-gallon water heater experienced an internal steam explosion. The safety mechanism failed."

The blasted heater was found 200 feet from the building, Cooksey said.

Cooksey said state fire marshals and investigators from Spencer were trying to find out why the heater's safety mechanism didn't work.

Payzant said at a news conference that a school maintenance worker was called to fix the water heater before classes began Tuesday. He said the gas flame under the heater had gone out.

The worker was not interviewed by school officials, and Payzant said he would leave an inquiry into the cause to fire officials.

But kitchen employee Florence Hardy, who was knocked to the floor by the blast, said one of two water heaters located against the northwest wall of the green-painted kitchen had been making water too hot earlier in the morning.

"It had been running the dishwashing water way up above 200 degrees and that's way too hot. They took it (the hot water heater) out and brought it back a little later, and it was supposed to have been fixed," she said.

Frantic parents rushed to the school after hearing of the blast, although officials pleaded via radio and TV for parents to go instead to a community center to pick up their children.

One woman, Susan Brown, ran three miles to the school after her mother-in-law called her. Her 8-year-old child, Holly Chase, said she had finished eating and was waiting for her table to be recessed to the playground when the blast knocked apart the kitchen wall.

"I ducked my head like they told me to during a tornado and it missed me...the glass," she said.

"Somebody told me they saw a brick fall on a little girl's head and a table fall on top of her. A teacher came by and helped me and the other kids out. There were kids running and screaming." She said they were led outside to wait for their parents.

Although one corner of the cafeteria was blown away, lunch tables on the other side of the room stood covered with undisturbed lunchpails.

Ed Forman of the nearby Midwest City Police Department identified the dead children as Paul C. Motes, 7; Latasha M. Brown, 8; Marlow T. Wallace, 9; Gira M. Hiter, 10; and Kareem R. Manora, 8. The teacher was identified as Dinah Manroe, 34.

Dr. Fred Jordan, a state medical examiner who performed autopsies on the victims, said all of them died almost instantaneously of broken necks. It was believed all the victims had been seated at one table waiting to go out to recess.

Forman said the 28 injured children ranged from kindergartners to the fourth graders.

Midwest City Police Sgt. Paul Long, the first officer on the scene, suffered a heart attack after resuscitating some of the injured children. He was reported in good condition at a hospital.

HC trustee races scheduled April 3

By CAROL HART
Staff Writer

Howard County Junior College District board of trustees Tuesday afternoon adopted an election procedure order for upcoming trustee races.

The election is scheduled April 3. March 3 will be the last date for a candidate to file for a seat on the HCJCD board.

The six-year terms of Harold Davis and Dr. P.W. Malone are expiring this year. The four-year term now held by Louis Stallings, who is serving the unexpired term of George Weeks, will also be on the ballot.

Dr. Charles Hays, president of the HCJCD, recommended that the board hold its March meeting on March 4 to comply with an election law which states the board must meet at least 20 days prior to an election.

The board approved the recommendation.

During a study of financial reports, Harold Davis pointed out that several bills were catalogued under the heading "equipment," "building repairs," and "supplies for repairs."

"This needs a little cleaning up," Davis said. "We don't know which campus" the expenditures are for, he explained.

Rep. Shaw received $13,016 in political contributions

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — State Rep. Larry Don Shaw of Big Spring received $13,016 in political contributions in 1981, a non-election year, according to a financial statement filed with the secretary of state.

The West Texas lawmaker, serving his first term in the Texas House, reported expenditures totaling $12,094.

But $5,000 of that, he said, technically should not be listed as an expense because it was used to open an "open daily passport cash trust account" with Edward D. Jones & Co. of Big Spring.

That account, Shaw reported, earned $30 in interest during 1981.

Among the contributions Shaw received in excess of $250 and the sources include:

$2,500 from Cunningham Oil Co. of Big Spring.

$500 from Texas Good Government Fund of Houston.

$250 contributions from Texas Electric Service Co. Political Action Committee (PAC) of Fort Worth; Lawyers Involved for Texas of Austin; Mike Line of Snyder; Mr. and Mrs. Earnest A. Welch Jr. of Big Spring; Ron Medley of Big Spring; automobile dealers PAC of Austin; Texas Osteopathic PAC of Fort Worth; Communication Workers of America PAC of Washington, D.C.

Shaw lists $1,456 in loans from himself to his officeholders' account, and a $800 loan from Larry Zane Shaw of Knott.

Included in Shaw's list of expenses are a $500 payment to Richard Hardy and Associates of Austin, a political consulting firm; $775 to Big Spring Country Club for food and beverages for a reception; $409 to Trans Regional Air to lease an airplane; $415 to MasterCard and $375 to American Express for travel expenses; and $850 to Futura Press of Austin for printing matter.

For the rest of the story about Dawson stock show

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

The black and white results of a livestock show never tell the whole story of the event. The participants and the work involved are all too often reduced to a placing and a name. Saturday at the Dawson County Livestock Show in Lamesa, the Herald talked with some of the winners... for the rest of the story.

Eighteen-year-old Steven Archer collected championships in three divisions in the swine competition as well as taking the grand champion hog. The Lamesa High senior said he had been showing in FFA for four years. "There are some pretty stout hogs at this show so if you win here, you have a pretty good hog."

Archer said he planned to make all the major shows in Fort Worth, San Antonio, Houston and San Angelo this year.

Archer credited his agricultural teachers, Ron Mayfield and Danny Beck, and his parents for help during the four to six months of preparation prior to the show. The work evidently paid off. "I haven't done this well since I've been in ag," Archer said. He added that his considerable prize money would go to pay his feed bills.

His parents are Norma and Don Archer of Lamesa.

Roxanne Airhart, 18, also plans to put her prize money back into paying off her feed bills. The 4-Her, who had a champion medium-wool lamb and a first in the Suffolk class, shows steers as well. Both animals require a great deal of time months before a show. "You have to exercise them and get them used to you," she said. "I work with them whenever I have time — my dad helps, especially in the mornings."

The Klondike high school senior said she planned to hit all of the major shows since this was her last year. "I'm going to miss it, but I'm looking forward to college." Dawson County 4-H extension agent Joe Ed Wise and parents Quinton and Sharon Airhart were a big help this year, Airhart said.

Another 4-Her who spent time working with her animals is Shelly Jones, 15, of Lamesa. Her lambs took champion and reserve champion in the finewool-medium wool cross class. Preparing lambs takes some time and effort. "You get them about the end of the summer and work with them all along to keep them at the right weight," she said.

The six-year veteran of stock shows said the work is tiring, but "in the long run, it pays to work with them." Following her success locally, Jones plans to hit the major shows as well.

The prize money will go towards those old feed bills, but she said she still had some hope of putting the money in on a car.

The "reserve champion" champion at the Dawson County stock show, at least in the sheep division, was 11-year-old Brad Snell. Brad took reserve champion in the finewool, finewool-medium wool and Southdown classes. Asked what the best thing about stock shows is, the 4-Her answered with one word: "Winning."

The Klondike elementary student, in his third year of competition, said he balances out the time spent with his sheep with his dad. "I run them on a three-wheeler, but my dad does the washing and shearing before shows. Sometimes I wash 'em, though."

Since Brad and his parents, Duane and Vickie Snell, plan to make five of the major shows, he will be missing school quite a bit. But Brad is not worried. "It gives you a break but you have to make it up. One teacher I know thinks all we do at these shows is fumble around."

The worst thing about showing is when the judge comes around. "I get nervous when the judge comes by 'cause I want to know what he's thinking," Brad said. Wondering what the judge thinks about your lamb is not any fun, Brad said.

But it is fun when you can beat your big sister. Brad's 12-year-old sister Tracy placed second behind Brad in the Hampshire class. "She was kinda mad about me beating her, but not too much," he said with a grin.

Charlie Mason was 53 when he was found dead of a heart attack in 1978 in the seat of the large truck he used to haul oil from field storage to a dump station.

He had been working alternate weeks of night and day work on 12-hour shifts and had a history of heart problems.

His widow said she had taken him a sandwich and coffee about midnight and he had been red-faced and having breathing problems after climbing some stairs at a tank battery. He was found dead in the field yard in his truck about 6 a.m.

A jury in 118th District Court found that the death was not job related and the judge issued a take-nothing judgment. That was upheld by the court of appeals at El Paso and by the Supreme Court.

Widow of Glasscock worker awarded nothing in her suit

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The widow of a man who died in his oil field service truck in Glasscock County failed to convince the Texas Supreme Court that she should receive worker's compensation benefits.

The Supreme Court agreed with lower court decisions that awarded Judilena Annette Mason nothing in her suit against Texas Employers Insurance Association.

Arson suspected in local fire

By CAROL HART

Members of the Big Spring Fire Department are investigating a case of suspected arson in relation to an early morning fire at 1711 S. Monticello.

Firemen were called to the scene about 12:05 a.m. today.

Laura Ann Coker, 23, a resident in the house, alerted officials to the scene. She, a roommate and two children were inside the home at the time of the fire. Police reports show that a neighbor alerted Ms. Coker of the fire.

Police have a suspect in the case, as witnesses inside the house saw a man known to Ms. Coker in the area shortly prior to the fire.

Police reports indicate the subject committed the act of arson with the intent to commit murder, but no attempted murder charges have been filed.

Ms. Coker and the others in the house escaped without injury.

Rodney Phillips, fire investigator, told the Herald today that major damage was sustained to an attached garage at the home.

Recorders retrieved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two critical on-board recorders from the Air Florida jet that crashed into the Potomac River were recovered today, and one investigator said after a preliminary check that "we don't anticipate any problems" with the devices, known as "black boxes."

Both the flight data recorder and one recording cockpit conversations were rushed to a National Transportation Safety Board laboratory less than a mile from the crash site for examination.

Rudolph Kapustin, chief investigator for the NTSB, said after an initial physical examination that the flight data recorder was "in excellent shape" and that the voice recorder appeared to be in good condition, although the tape will have to be dried before it can be reviewed.

Mine explosion

MINK BRANCH, Ky. (AP) — An eastern Kentucky coal mine exploded Wednesday, possibly trapping seven people inside, a Kentucky Mines and Minerals Department spokeswoman said.

A fire may be burning inside the R.F.H. Mining Co. in Floyd County, said a state mining office manager in Martin who declined to give his name.

Two rescue teams from Martin and Pikeville were sent to mine, in the extreme eastern part of the state.

The mines and minerals spokeswoman said she had heard one report that the seven men were trapped some 700 feet below ground. She said she did not yet have any details.

The spokeswoman described the mine as "a pretty small operation."

Frank O'Gorman of the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration said the mine is a one-chamber operation employing eight men.

He had no further details. Margaret Caywood at state Mines and Minerals Department's headquarters in Lexington said an explosion had occurred but had no details.

State police at Pikeville also confirmed the report but had no further information.

Cable debt-riddled?

TYLER, Texas (AP) — An accountant who worked for millionaire Rex Cauble said the rancher's business was overburdened with debts at the time prosecutors allege Cauble financed and profited from a massive marijuana smuggling ring. Richard Williams said Cauble Enterprises was in a "cash flow strain" position while he was controller for the business from 1976 to 1979.

"The operation was overburdened with debt. It had insufficient income ... and the only way the business kept afloat was by refinancing and renewing loans," Williams said Tuesday in Cauble's federal racketeering, conspiracy and embezzlement trial.

Prosecutors contend Cauble masterminded an elaborate smuggling operation that used shrimp boats to ferry 106 tons of marijuana from Colombia to Texas during 1977 and 1978. They say he did so because he needed the cash.

A carpenter working on the dorm project recently became ill, Dr. Hays said. "It's difficult to give an actual date of completion" because of these factors.

He added that Howard College maintenance personnel "gave up part of their holidays to finish the (dorm) project."

During an enrollment report, Dr. Burke said 124 students had enrolled for the spring semester at SWCID, with three more expected to register before the deadline.

Dr. Hays said 848 students had enrolled at Howard College as of Tuesday, with almost a week left to register.

"I'm not sure what they are sending," Dr. Burke said, but added he expected basketball and football gear.

Dr. Burke said he had talked with the Internal Revenue Service concerning the guidelines for setting up a foundation for SWCID.

Dr. Burke said he was investigating the legal framework for the foundation. Dr. Hays said that a similar foundation for Howard College had already been established, and that the guidelines would be similar.

Dr. Burke said he had also talked with several other foundations, including the Conoco Foundation, who had expressed an interest in the SWCID program.

The political support for SWCID is "growing gradually," Dr. Burke reported.

Sports Afield offers $1,000 reward for missing volume

Sports Afield is offering a $1,000 reward for the return of the bound volume containing the first issues of the outdoor magazine. It is believed to be the only collection of those early issues in existence. The loss was discovered by researchers working on the January 1982 Sports Afield, which celebrates the publication's 95th anniversary.

The 42 issues contained are Volume One, Number One to Volume Seven, Number Six. Sports Afield is willing to pay $1,000 for the volume, which is believed to be bound in black cloth with gold lettering on the back strap that probably reads "Sports Afield, Vols. 1-7."

The editors are also interested in learning of the existence of individual early issues, especially Volume One, Number One through Volume One, Number Six.

Anyone having information concerning the missing bound volume or the individual early issues should write to Tom Paugh, Editor, at 250 West 55th Street, New York, NY 10019.

Unemployment figures wrong?

Reagan takes blame for exemption goof

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, declaring "no one put anything over on me," is taking full responsibility for a decision to grant tax-exempt status to schools that discriminate.

"The buck stops at my desk," the president declared at a nationally broadcast news conference Tuesday, the eve of his first anniversary in office.

"I'm the originator of the whole thing and I'm not going to deny that it wasn't handled as well as it could be."

But Reagan maintained he was trying to change a procedure — not a policy — when he reversed a 13-year precedent Jan. 8 and told the Internal Revenue Service not to deny tax exemptions to schools that exhibit racial bias.

An uproar quickly ensued, leading Reagan to reverse himself and ask Congress to prohibit the IRS from doing what he authorized it to do 12 days ago.

The president acknowledged that the matter could have been better handled, but insisted that he had only been trying to prevent the IRS from making social policy. He said decisions like that should be left to Congress.

At his seventh news conference since taking office, Reagan also said:

•His economic sanctions against Poland and the Soviet Union have had an unspecified impact, but "we're not going to wait forever for improvement" in the case of the Polish people under martial law. We have those steps we can take."

Reagan said there was "no question the situation in Poland is still deteriorating. They have tried to present it as moderating; it isn't."

The president did not spell out — nor was he asked — just what positive effects he believes were produced by the U.S. sanctions on trade, aviation and fishing rights against the Polish and Soviet governments in the wake of the military crackdown on the Solidarity reform movement.

PRESIDENT REAGAN ...completes first year

Reagan said Pope John Paul II, himself a Pole, sent a lengthy communication. "He approves what we have done so far."

•His tax returns show a "small percentage of deductions for worthwhile causes" because he gives "in ways that are not tax deductible with regard to individuals that are being helped." Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said he would not release the names of people Reagan has helped nor the amount of money he has donated privately.

On their 1980 federal income tax return, the president and his wife, Nancy, showed charitable contributions of $3,065 on a total income of $227,968. "And I'm afraid that to avoid future questions of this kind, maybe beginning this year, I'm going to have to start publicly doing some things," Reagan said.

•He sympathizes with Americans who are out of work, but "there are a million people more working than there were in 1980."

That statement directly contradicted figures compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which reported total employment in December was 97,188,000, down more than a half-million from January 1981, the month Reagan took office, and 94,000 fewer than December of 1980.

"He just misspoke himself on that," deputy press secretary Peter Rousell said later. "In reality, it (employment) has slipped...by about half a million during that period."

Rousell said the president was briefed on the employment situation shortly before the news conference and apparently was "off a little bit on the numbers."

•He does not believe American business has rejected his economic incentives. "I think we're just seeing a little caution. They want to make sure before they proceed."

•He does not rule out the use of lie detectors as one method of ending leaks of classified information to reporters. His crackdown on news leaks, Reagan said, was necessary to "protect national security and our ability to conduct foreign policy...What we're doing is simply abiding by the existing law."

On the matter of tax exemptions for schools that discriminate, Reagan said there was no basis in law for the IRS ban, and that the IRS "had actually formed a social law and was enforcing that social law."

"We didn't anticipate that it was going to be as misinterpreted as it was," Reagan added. "I am opposed with every fiber of my being to discrimination."

While the president's legislative proposal to correct the situation is pending, the IRS is being told not to enforce Reagan's earliest decision except in the case of two schools: The administration already had promised the Supreme Court it would grant tax exemptions to the two institutions that have cases pending.

However, if the legislation passes as the administration wrote it, the two schools — Bob Jones University and Goldsboro (N.C.) Christian Schools — would have to give back any benefits they gain from their exemptions.

The two schools acknowledge they have discriminatory policies but maintain they are based on religious belief and are therefore exempt from government scrutiny.

Accused killer is found hanged

DAINGERFIELD, Texas (AP) — A survivor of the bloody carnage that left five people dead and 10 wounded inside a crowded church sanctuary called it fitting that the accused gunman ended his own life.

Alvin Lee King III, accused of directing a flurry of gunfire at worshippers inside the First Baptist Church of Daingerfield on June 22, 1980, was found hanged in his cell Tuesday, officials said.

Morris County Sheriff Joe Skipper said King, the only prisoner in his jail wing, apparently tore a towel in half, tied the pieces together and around his neck and then hanged himself. He said King could "have changed his mind" at any time by putting his feet on various objects in the cell.

"It's a fitting end," said Jack Dean, who was shot in the hand when he tried to wrest a gun from the man firing indiscriminately into the congregation.

"It relieved the pressure and keeps innocent people from having to get involved. He chose his own death. No one chose it for him," said Dean.

Psychiatrists at Rusk State Hospital ruled last month that King, charged with five counts of murder and 10 counts of attempted murder, was mentally competent to stand trial.

"This is the most bizarre thing I have ever handled," noted Houston defense lawyer Percy Foreman said Tuesday. "I've handled homicides, even brutal homicides, but nothing holds sail like this where somebody goes into a church and starts shooting the place up."

"It's unfortunate, we had prepared a defense we thought was adequate and proper considering the mental capacity of the defendant."

FOUND HANGED — Alvin Lee King, III, accused of killing five people and wounding 10 others during a shooting spree in a crowded church in Daingerfield, Texas in June 1980, shows in this file photo, was found hanged in his cell Tuesday, according to Morris County jail officials.

"I've no idea why he would do this," said King's mother, Hazel King, who visited her son in the jail Monday night. "I talked to him yesterday. He said nothing about this. I told him I loved him."

"I'm all alone now. He was all I had." Skipper said King, who had been under heavy security since his transfer last month from a state mental hospital to jail, was found at 5:25 a.m. dangling from a crossbar in his cell.

Talks between GM, UAW collapse

DETROIT (AP) — Talks between General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers union collapsed today as UAW president Douglas Fraser announced that bargainers were unable to reach an agreement on contract concessions.

"The (union bargaining) committee has voted to recess and report to the (UAW's 300-member) bargaining council," Fraser told a news conference.

The negotiations were stalled over economic issues and the question of job security for the union's 300,000-plus GM employees, the union chief said.

"We will report the progress or lack of progress to the council and they will make the decision" on whether bargaining will resume, Fraser said. The union's bargaining council for GM meets Saturday in Washington to consider the current negotiations.

Bargainers for the UAW and General Motors Corp. met late into the evening Tuesday, but talks were held up at Ford Motor Co.

Ford spokesman Roy Paak said that although union and company leaders were talking informally, there were no formal negotiation sessions scheduled.

"Time is getting short," Owen Bieber, UAW vice president and head of the union's GM Department told reporters Tuesday evening. "We have to make progress and meaningful progress shortly or we will run out of time."

Three persons die in plane collision

ROCKPORT, Texas (AP) — Authorities say dense fog shrouding Copano Bay may have caused two light planes to collide in flight when both tried to land at an Aransas County airport here. Three people were killed.

"We found a small single-engine plane upside down in the bay," said Lt. Steve Sparks of the Corpus Christi Coast Guard. "We also found a twin-engine airplane that was nearby in the water broken in half."

Keathley celebrates 15 years with firm

Richard Keathley, a senior loan officer at Citizens Federal Credit Union, was honored by his fellow employees Tuesday as he celebrated his 15th year with the local financial institution. The occasion was marked with a plaque and reflections on earlier days at the credit union.

A native of Colorado City, Keathley began his career with the credit union on Jan. 3, 1967. At that time, the credit union had assets of $4,827,670.32 and a membership of 10,086. The financial institution was headquartered out of the top floor of a barracks on Webb Air Force Base and had $4,789,876.72 in loans.

Since that time, the credit union has weathered the closing of the military installation, a move into the community, and an amendment in charter. However, in spite of these changes, the credit union has continued to grow during those fifteen years and now has more than 21,000 members worldwide. Assets at Citizens Federal Credit Union now stand at $33,814,932.27, with $22,120,018.76 in loans.

Jim Weaver, general manager of the credit union, said he felt Keathley had been instrumental in the credit union's dynamic growth. Weaver pointed to the fact that Keathley had once headed the loan department, the delinquent loan department, and the accounting department. Most recently, Keathley elected in January 1980 to semi-retire as assistant manager of the loan department in order to devote more time to his outside interests.

Those outside interests include rental property in Big Spring, farming and cattle interests in Colorado City, and the stock market.

Keathley graduated from Sul Ross University with a bachelor's degree in business administration in 1963 and he received a master's degree from the same university in 1964. He has also attended numerous credit union schools and seminars and is well versed in the financial market-place.

Cuts? What cuts?

Candidate Ronald Reagan pledged to cut federal spending. Despite the biggest dollar amount cuts from planned budgets in history, the plain fact is that President Reagan has not cut federal spending as measured against the nation's output of goods and services.

In fiscal '81, the last of the Carter Administration budgets, the percentage of federal spending compared to the GNP was 23.1 percent. In 1982, Reagan's first budget, the percentage will be 23.8 percent.

Federal spending is growing faster than the economy.

PROPOSALS TO FORCE Congress to balance the budget by enacting a Constitutional Amendment generally attempt to use the percentage of GNP as the guideline. Most proposals for Constitutional limits place the factor at 20 to 21 percent.

The numbers clearly illustrate what often is overlooked in discussions of the Reagan budgets "cuts," which is that they are not cuts at all but simply attempts to slow the growth of federal spending.

And by this measure — generally agreed to be the most accurate — spending is continuing to grow.

RECESSION, of course, accounts for much of this percentage growth of spending. But it is hard to imagine a political situation which will allow real reduction in the growth of federal government, another way of saying that spending at the federal level is truly out of control despite the efforts of the most fiscal conservative President and Congress in 60 years.

'Reds'

The movie "Reds" is simply magnificent, a splendid example of the marvelous capabilities of the motion picture. "Reds" is the kind of movie that is about people and for people. Despite its misleading title, this three-and-a-half hour epic is almost democratic in its depiction of the worth of the common working man.

I feel myself falling into the trap of other critics of "Reds" who have practically drooled over themselves while piling superlative upon superlative on the movie. The movie is that good, but it is not limited to just being a critic's movie that only six people go to see. "Reds" is a film for everybody who likes to be entertained.

While I was waiting during the intermission of the movie in Midland, I overheard a mother and her teenage daughter talking about the first half of the show. Mom was eloquently describing the historical importance of the Russian Revolution and the philosophical concepts discussed by the characters. After she wound down, daughter chipped in with her critique: "Warren Beatty is so cute!"

THEY BOTH WERE right. Both were easily able to enjoy the movie on the level they were comfortable with — Mom with her analysis of the movie's dialectical aspects and her daughter's involvement with the romantic story.

Briefly, the story line of "Reds" is a few years in the lives of John Reed and Louise Bryant. Reed was a journalist best known today for his account of the 1917 Russian Revolution in "Ten Days that Shook the World."

Bryant was his journalistic companion and wife. Warren Beatty plays the idealistic Reed and Diane Keaton the liberated Bryant. Both become their roles so well that it is easy to forget they are acting.

Although much of the movie is taken up with Reed's fervor with the Russian revolution, Bolshevism, and Communism, this motion picture is not about the Big Bad Communists we have come to hate and fear. Reed and Beatty — is concerned with people, their dreams, their needs, their lives. The movie is filled with the touches of someone who feels for people, whether Russian or otherwise.

"REDS" GIVES A movie-goer a little bit of everything for his money — wonderful dollops of humor that shame entire so-called comedies, majestic scenery to dazzle the eyes, and intelligent dialogue with an interesting story that says something. Plus, one gets over three hours for one's money, not the usual hour and 35 minutes.

I could easily ramble on about the quality of this movie, but the only real judge can be the viewer himself. If you haven't seen a movie for ages, this is the one to see. It is truly a crime for anyone to be denied the opportunity to see this picture. But don't wait for it to come to television.

"Reds" has the epic grandeur of a "Gone with the Wind" but with the humor and power of "One Flew over the Cuckoo's Nest" or "Ordinary People". If you like entertainment, "Reds" is worth the effort.

Depression

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have become very depressed lately. It seems the more I try to get myself out of it, the more depressed I get. Do you have any answers for this? — Mrs. A.M.

DEAR MRS. A.M.: There are, I understand, a number of possible causes for depression and it is important for you to try to pinpoint the reason for your problem. For example, some types of depression are caused by physical or medical problems, and you would need to have competent medical help to overcome it if this is the case. Or again, there may be deep-seated psychological reasons for your depression, and if this is the case you should seek out the help of a Christian psychologist or psychiatrist.

But I have also discovered that many problems of this type have a spiritual dimension — and in fact may be basically caused by a spiritual problem. I cannot say if this is the case with you. But I do know this: regardless of your situation, the most important thing any human being can do — whatever problems he faces — is to yield his or her life to Jesus Christ and let Christ come in as Savior and Lord. Have you ever made that decision personally, and invited Christ to come into your life? If not I encourage you to do that right now.

But it may be there are other spiritual aspects to your life which are part of the picture. For example, some people get depressed because they feel useless and have no sense of real meaning and purpose in life. As we grow in our relationship to Christ, however, we begin to realize that he loves us and he has a purpose for each one of us. We can commit each day to him, knowing that he is with us and will guide us if we will let him. Perhaps you know the story of Elijah in the old Testament (you can read it in 1 Kings 19). He got very depressed on one occasion and felt his life was useless. But he gained a fresh vision of God's love for him, and a new understanding of what God wanted to do in his life. From that point on his depression left and he served God.

Wife tells of con man

WASHINGTON — When I first began reporting on allegations of FBI misconduct in the ABSCAM operation several months ago, FBI Director William Webster invited me to his office and assured me I had been misinformed. The G-men running the famous sting operation against members of Congress, he said, had conducted themselves in the finest tradition of FBI professionalism.

Now it appears that it was Judge Webster who was misinformed. In the last two columns I have reported the documented misconduct of the FBI's key ABSCAM middleman, convicted swindler Mel Weinberg. The evidence I gave the Justice Department has led to a full-scale investigation of Weinberg's alleged misdeeds and the possibility that they were perpetrated with the knowledge and cooperation of some FBI agents.

The disturbing evidence suggests that the federal agents who thought they were using Weinberg for their investigative purposes were in fact being used by the con man for his own greedy purposes. According to Weinberg's wife, Marie, he routinely lied to the FBI agents who thought they were his bosses.

My associate Indy Badhwar has spent three months getting Marie Weinberg's story. He interviewed her extensively, and then corroborated much of her sworn testimony through independent sources.

She is ready and willing to testify under oath to the incidents she witnesses. Here are some further details from Mrs. Weinberg, telling how her husband compromised the FBI agents who thought they had him firmly in hand:

—Mel Weinberg secretly taped his conversations with FBI agents without their knowledge. His wife suspects this was to keep them from turning on him if his misconduct became known.

—With his con man's charm, Weinberg won over the initially suspicious G-men one at a time, according to his wife. In the case of John Good, the chief FBI agent, Weinberg

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration is now in retreat on all foreign fronts. But not, as some right-wingers imagine, because the President's conservative principles have been betrayed by liberal moles in the State Department.

The true problem, on the contrary, is that the administration has not got its foreign policy act together. Instead of making a timely adjustment of campaign rhetoric to the real world, it delayed decisions until the pressure of events finally forced what looks like a rout.

Relations with Communist China provide the model for what has happened everywhere. The President asserted during the campaign that he would improve the defense of Taiwan and still retain mainland China as an ally against Russia. The authorities on the mainland attacked that notion even before Reagan took office. Had he made an adjustment at that point, there would have been no fuss.

In deference to the right, however, the administration kept hinting it was going to sell advanced jet fighters to Taiwan. Peking steadily hardened its position, and last month even came out openly against the sale of spare parts of Taiwan.

LAST WEEK, in keeping with the simply made up a story that depicted himself as an influential protector of the bureau. Early in ABSCAM, Marie Weinberg saw a TV news program that showed one of the undercover agents involved in ABSCAM, Margo Kennedy, escorting a hijacker at an airport. She told her husband about it, and, after swearing her to secrecy, he called Good and told him he had seen the show and had taken steps to insure that Kennedy's identity would not be revealed. He had, of course, done no such thing.

—When the Weinbergs were moving from Long Island to Florida in July 1979, Marie said, her husband donated their excess belongings to FBI agents. Tony Amoroso, the FBI man who posed as the phony Arab sheik's representative in the secret ABSCAM videotapes, got the bedroom furniture, four cartons of books and Weinberg's high-priced wardrobe. Amoroso made two trips for the clothes, according to Mrs. Weinberg.

—When Weinberg extorted expensive watches from potential ABSCAM targets, the FBI agents squabbled, like so many children, over who was going to get them, Mrs. Weinberg reported. Eventually, though, Agent Good decided that the watches might cause trouble later, and they were returned, she said.

—Agent Bruce Brady moved in with the Weinbergs in Florida to keep an eye on the ABSCAM entrepreneur. But the G-man met a woman and "he says to Mel he's got a hot weekend," according to Marie Weinberg. Her husband covered for the agent. "When John (Good) called here for Bruce, Mel said he went out, just 'He's out,' you know, and covered it, see?"

—When two assistant prosecutors complained in December 1980 that Weinberg was getting out of hand and that no written records were being kept, Mel told his wife, "Tony (Amoroso) and I've got to sit down and make up records of everything we did."

—Agent Jack McCarthy, regarded as a "pencil pusher" by the others, "wanted to be president" of the fictitious Abdul Enterprises, Marie said. "They were all fighting over titles ... It was ridiculous, and finally Mel had to get Jack out because Jack was wearing Sears suits."

—The FBI agents subsequently inscribed glowing tributes to Mel Weinberg in a copy of his book, "The Sting Man." Good wrote: "The best in the business and a good friend." Amoroso wrote: "The man I helped make a million." Brady wrote: "You taught me quite a bit, some things I'll never forget." And McCarthy, the man in the Sears suit, wrote: "We did have some fun. Thanks for the experience."

ACCENTUATING THE POSITIVE: Just how desperate the all-volunteer Army is for warm bodies was illustrated by a puff piece the Pentagon distributed to armed forces newspapers recently.

The piece told how a brave Vietnam veteran talked in a deranged, suicidal soldier who had seized control of a watchtower at an Army missile base in Zweibrucken, West Germany, and threatened to kill himself and anyone who came within range of his M-16 rifle. When a friend tried to talk him down, the young soldier forced him to lie face down on the snowy ground for 45 minutes.

Enter the old soldier who had been in Vietnam. "After two-and-a-half hours of ticklish negotiations at gunpoint, the soldier was persuaded to leave the watchtower." The cool Vietnam vet was given a medal for defusing the dangerous situation.

And the freaked-out GI who had neutralized a NATO missile-launch area singlehandedly? "The young slider has been retrained and reassigned," the Pentagon news release, said, adding: "He is once again making a positive contribution to the U.S. Army."

When asked if the phrase "once again making a positive contribution" was a reference to the crazed escapee at Zweibrucken, an Army spokesman was at a loss for words. He was also unable to say exactly what the unbalanced GI had been "retrained" to do.

against Russia or Poland. They insisted that arms control negotiations move forward. The U.S. has gone along, and thus now seems to have capitulated in dealing with Russia on both Poland and arms control.

In the Middle East, the administration talked about "leapfrogging" the Camp David Accords between Egypt and Israel. It promised, through a strategic consensus against the Russians, to add to those two friends such moderate Arab countries as Saudi Arabia, Jordan and the Gulf States.

BUT COURTING the Saudis brought the Israelis out swinging in various anti-Arab moves. The Saudis and the Gulf States were put off by the Israeli actions, and so, especially after the murder of President Sadat, was Egypt.

Last week, Secretary of State Alexander Haig visited Egypt and Israel in a last-ditch effort to impart momentum to the Camp David negotiations before they reach a term on April 25. Even if he succeeds, which is doubtful, the U.S. will have had to abandon the strategic consensus approach.

The losses so far are not staggering. The U.S. now stands a little less tall than it used to in China, in the

The manner in which they handled the whole affair with promptness and courtesy to the personnel of this store was sincerely appreciated by the management. Thanks again members of the Big Spring Police Department. Keep up the good work.

Big is not always better

Dear Editor,

On Friday Jan. 15 there is an editorial "How to raise price of gasoline." The real way to raise oil prices is to form a cartel and that is the way we got our big raise. If you think, as you seem to in your editorial that we can let the major oil companies take over all the service stations and run them with peon help, I doubt that will work either. The major oil companies are buying up every thing in the country now. Even each other. The oil companies huge profits are doing a lot more than just hunting more oil.

The list of business that are being gobbled up is a long one and it is not just the fellow with the towel on his head that is buying them up. The most recent one is Mobil after Marathon. It is a lot easier to buy some 18 billion dollars oil reserves for 6 billion dollars than it is to hunt for them but I seriously doubt that the consumer would benefit. It is my humble opinion that most of our oil is discovered by the independents and then gobbled up by the Majors. Big is not always better.

I disagree with your statement, contrary to public opinion there is more competition in the oil industry than in other major U.S. industry. To give you some food for thought I am enclosing an article that a friend of mine clipped from a recent newspaper and I am not sure which one.

I would appreciate very much if you would share it with the readers of The Herald.

Enclosed is a copy of the article. Thank you.
Sincerely,
CLAY REED

(Editor's note: the clipping, headlined "Oil Profits hurting U.S.," follows:

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. oil companies' vast profits are reducing the United States' status to that of a lesser-developed country, a congressional report concluded Wednesday.

A House Energy and Commerce investigations subcommittee staff report said virtually all of the U.S. economy's growth is flowing into oil company treasuries.

Michael F. Barrett Jr., subcommittee staff director, noted in a summary of the report that of the $19.6 billion in increased profits recorded by all Fortune 500 companies between 1978 and 1980, $19.2 billion — 98 percent — went to 56 energy-related companies.

"An even more staggering statistic is that in the Fortune 1,000 list, 83 oil and gas companies obtained 96 percent of the total net income increase," he said.

"This meant that more than 900 other companies got to share 4 percent of the total profit increase," he said.

alliance, with Moscow and the Middle East. What is truly dangerous is the right-wing reaction to these setbacks. For if the President tries to restore Reaganism, he will be spitting against the wind of reality. He will assure more retreats, and guarantee a continued fragmentation of foreign policy opinion in this country.

The way out is to accept what has happened soberly, and then move forward with one or two basic initiatives. Restoration of alliance harmony — perhaps through a NATO summit meeting this spring — would be one. Expanded arms control talks with Russia, perhaps through a summit session with Brezhnev, would be another.

But even those limited goals can only be obtained if the administration gets foreign policy under control. Secretary Haig has to be curbed in his near obsession to do everything by himself, or with a little gang of State Department professionals. The ideological snipers in the Pentagon and the Congress and the State Department have to be aligned behind policy and made to carry the can. But under our system, that coming together around policy can only be achieved if the President asserts himself as the visible and unambiguous exponent of a well-defined strategy.

Clements, White 'prisoners' of Fed suit

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
 AUSTIN — They may not realize it yet, but inmates in those overcrowded state prisons are going to play an important role in the 1982 gubernatorial race. The role will be indirect, of course. The prisoners can't vote, much less campaign for a candidate. But with the help of a federal judicial activist in Tyler named William Wayne Justice, the state inmates may influence who Texans support for governor. Justice became involved after some inmates brought suit against the state, contending that their living conditions effectively constituted cruel and unusual punishment. After a long hearing, Justice agreed and ordered reforms. No small reforms are involved here. If implemented in full, they could cost Texas taxpayers millions of dollars. Since prisoners can't vote and taxpayers can, state politicians are concerned. State officials' response to the suit and Justice's order unanimously has been negative. They have adopted an under-the-gun attitude of doing no more than absolutely necessary and doing that as slow as possible. Justice's order is being appealed.

Whichever way that goes, the whole thing is going to be a campaign issue, particularly if Attorney General Mark White becomes the Democratic nominee to challenge incumbent Republican Bill Clements in the November election. It would seem significant that both Clements and White view the prison problems in the same way: publicly recognizing certain problems, such as overcrowded conditions, but fighting the reforms ordered by Justice. But such agreement is less significant than it seems. The reason is that Clements and White are politicians as well as officeholders. Each dislikes and wants to politically destroy the other. Each wants the voters to see him — and no one else — as the protector of the public purse against that meddling liberal judge in Tyler. Each will attempt to take credit for any victory in the prison suit, such as last week's federal appeals court decision to delay implementation of the reforms. Each will try to shift the blame for failure to the other. There's no room for sharing the spotlight under such circumstances. The attorney general will be using the prison case for all the publicity possible even in the Democratic primary.

In discussing the case with the media, he drops key phrases about prisons not being country clubs or resort hotels. Those are political comments, not legal ones. Clements makes similar statements and criticizes White's handling of the state's defense against the prisoners suit. White points out that Clements vetoed an appropriation in 1979 that could have provided more prison space. The attorney general also points out that Clements had bragged that his close connections with President Reagan might help lead the U.S. Justice Department to drop the case. And so it goes. And so it will continue ... at least through the elections. *** Recent news releases from George Strake, former secretary of state and now Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, occasionally — almost casually — refer to incumbent Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby as a liberal. That must bring a smile to the lips of those few liberals in the Senate who have found Hobby to be mostly fair but rarely supportive. Remember that Hobby's hardball attempt to force a separate presidential primary bill through the Senate in 1979 was what sparked the famous "Killer Bee" walkout by liberal and moderate senators. That bill was designed to protect the legislature's Democratic conservative majority. Hobby feared that Ronald Reagan would pull so many conservatives into the Republican primary that liberals might score victories in the Democratic primary. His effort failed, and the 1980 election showed that his fears were unfounded. *** The Democratic National Committee's newsletter is the latest medium to pick San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros for special recognition. In a profile article, the newsletter cites the first Hispanic mayor of a major American city as one mayor who is "particularly worth watching." The 34-year-old Cisneros is drawing frequent attention from the Democrats and the media these days. He's been featured frequently in magazine articles and on television. Democratic insiders, pointing to his ability to draw both Hispanic and Anglo votes in San Antonio, says he's a natural for a shot at the governorship or a U.S. Senate seat in the future — if he doesn't fall victim to San Antonio political squabbles or the South Texas Nuclear Project mess.

5-4 worries Hispanics

States News Service
 WASHINGTON — Can a Mexican-American be a true American? Hispanics say this week's Supreme Court decision that resident aliens can be denied even low-level government jobs solely because they are not U.S. citizens is part of a growing trend by White America to regard them as "second-class." The 5-4 decision upheld a California law barring non-citizens from working as "peace officers" of any kind. The law was challenged by two Spanish-speaking men who were long-time U.S. residents. Justice Byron White, writing for the majority, said these types of jobs are part of the "basic governmental processes" which may exclude "those outside the community." "Outside the community" — those words stab at a sore wound in the Hispanic body politic. For years Mexican-Americans have felt out of place, stepped on by whites and fellow minorities who are seeking to climb the social ladder. "It's another slap in our face," laments Frank Garza, legislative director for the National Council of La Raza. The Census Bureau estimates that approximately 20 percent of Hispanics are resident aliens. Many do not know how to apply for citizenship; others have tried but stopped after becoming frustrated over what they see as a complicated process to perform a simple task.

The Supreme Court decision not only means fewer job opportunities for Hispanics. It comes at a time when Hispanics are upset at the Reagan administration's policy toward Mexican-Americans. The president has proposed an immigration plan Hispanics say endorses cheap labor and is designed to limit the number of aliens coming into the country. Hispanic groups say the Supreme Court decision coupled with the administration's new policy tells America that white America comes first. "It reinforces the perception that Hispanics are second-class citizens in society," said Arnold Torres, legislative director for the League of United Latin American Citizens. Torres speculated that the decision could be a gauge of the court's feelings on Texas' suit that children can not enroll in state public schools without proving they are legally in the country. The justices heard oral arguments on the case late last year. New Justice Sandra O'Connor voted with the majority in this week's decision. "This is her first interpretation of the equal protection law ... and it looks bad for Hispanics," said John Huerta, an attorney for the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund. "I wonder if this case would have been brought (before the Supreme Court) if the defendant was of a different ethnic background," Torres said.

Reagan may be ready to shift food stamp programs to states

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is preparing to recommend complete federal takeover of the giant Medicaid program in exchange for turning welfare and food stamps over to the 50 states, sources say. They said the swap of the enormous, multi-billion dollar programs would be in addition to a plan to provide states a greater portion of federal tax money in exchange for taking over as many as 40 social programs in health, education and other areas. This shift would be financed at least in part through an increase in federal excise taxes, according to the sources, who asked not to be identified by name. In addition, Reagan has settled on a plan to create up to 25 "urban enterprise zones" where the federal government will try to induce business investment in hard-hit areas around the country by offering tax breaks or relief from regulatory requirements. Sources put the cost of the program at $100 million or $200 million a year. The sources insisted that all proposals are still tentative and subject to final review, including major, last-minute changes.

But they also said they expect Reagan to unveil his recommendations in a nationally televised State of the Union address before a joint session of Congress Jan. 26. Reagan declined to discuss specifics of the proposals at a news conference Tuesday, but repeated his long-standing belief that states should have a greater role in providing government services. "I know how well states can operate," said Reagan, who was governor of California for eight years. "I believe in many of the things that the federal government has usurped in the last half century and is now doing — that they could be better run at the state level," he added. Citing his experience in California, Reagan said, "We found that the restrictions imposed by the federal government — the red tape, the administration overhead, was such that had we had more leeway, more freedom, we could have given better service to the people that we were trying to help and at a much lower cost." Sources said the biggest change Reagan would propose, in terms of the money involved, would have the federal government pay the full cost of Medicaid, a program that provides health care for 22.5 million needy people. The federal government now pays about 56 percent of the $30.5 billion Medicaid bill and states have long expressed the hope that the federal government would pick up more of the tab. In exchange for that, the states would pick up total responsibility for the $11.5 billion food stamp program that now financed by the federal government, sources said. These sources also said the states would inherit the government's largest welfare program, Aid to Families With Dependent Children. AFDC costs about $14 billion a year to provide benefits to 11 million people, with the federal government picking up about 54 percent of the share. Some sources said that, in addition, Reagan would call for the federal government to start paying the $2.1 billion state share of Supplemental Security Income, a program for the handicapped and elderly poor. The federal government already spends about $6.9 billion on SSI.

Texas Farmers Union urges farmers to political action

Special to The Herald
 WACO — Texas Farmers Union President Mike Moeller called on farmers and ranchers in Texas to "forget the defeats you suffered in 1981 and become more active in voicing your views to elected officials and the general public." Moeller offered his words of encouragement at the conclusion of the 78th annual Texas Farmers Union convention in Fort Worth on Jan. 7-9. "It is time we put 1981 beneath us for economically these are the worst of times for agricultural producers," Moeller said. "Everyone of us knows we are in a crisis and we all know we have a bleak forecast for 1982. But we should not fall victim to defeatism." As he spoke parity prices for agricultural goods are at the lowest level since 1932. Moeller said many things occurred in 1981 which created havoc in the agricultural sector. "The Reagan Administration quickly forgot its promise or parity prices for agriculture. In David Stockman's own words, they feel it is more important to bankrupt farmers than to ferret out 30 billion dollars worth of waste in the Pentagon," Moeller said. Moeller also criticized Congress for "failing to have the guts to stand up for what was right" in the way of the 1981 Farm Bill. The Texas Farmers Union has called the four year legislation covering farm programs the "Farm Bankruptcy Act of 1981." The Farm Bill was passed and signed by the President in December. "We have a lot of weapons in our arsenal that we have forgotten how to use," Moeller said. "But in 1982, we are going to learn how to use them all over again." Moeller urged farmers and ranchers to become politically active since 1982 is an election year. "Despite the low number of farmers and ranchers compared to other areas of the population, there is no more potent political force than farmers when they are organized," Moeller said. "We would all be doing ourselves a favor if we spent more time this spring plowing the political fields than planting in our own fields." The TFU President also urged farmers to form coalitions with other groups of pass needed legislation. "We have the tool through the Farmers Union to carry our case to our city cousins, those who are working men and women, those who own small businesses and every consumer who is concerned about their grocery bill." Moeller also called on farmers to examine their production levels when planning for 1982. "Our most important weapon is our production but unlike other weapons it works in reverse. The less you fire it, the more potent a force it becomes." The Texas Farmers Union has adopted a program which calls on the federal government to undo the work done in the 1981 Farm Bill. The program, called the "Farmers Bill of Rights," is a four point plan designed specifically for acceptance by the Reagan Administration. The plan will free American farmers and acceptance by the Reagan Administration. The plan will free American farmers and ranchers to set their own prices for their products, control agricultural exports and imports and, through a democratic referendum, control production. "We won't get the government out of agriculture simply by cutting off FHA loans and price support programs for commodities," Moeller said. "While we allow oil companies to control production and set prices, and at the same time we are encouraging farmers in Poland to take the same action, our national policy is encouraging the bankruptcy of the family farm system in the U.S.," he concluded.

Ex-Webb AFB captain named to energy post

Special to the Herald
TULSA, Okla. — A new chapter in government's romance with public power in the southwest began Nov. 1 when Richard B. Risk Jr. became head of the Southwest Power Administration.

Risk, a communications specialist at Webb Air Force Base and a newcomer to the political scene, harvested what politicians consider the choice political plum the federal hierarchy has to offer in Oklahoma.

So far, the Reagan administration has not announced its policy for SPA, but if it includes SPA in its efforts to reduce the size of government and balance the federal budget, Risk could have landed the most controversial post in Oklahoma.

SPA, the marketing agency for power produced at 23 federal dams in the southwest, has 200 employees, 2,000 miles of high voltage transmission lines and 32 substations.

It sells and delivers the output of hydroelectric power plants capable of producing 2,147,800 kilowatts.

Unless SPA becomes an exception, it faces the same reductions in force being required of other federal agencies.

In a year's time, SPA sells 37 municipalities, seven co-ops, one industry, three government installations and four private utility companies power worth $140 million for $62 million.

By law, municipalities and cooperatives are preference customers. Since SPA cannot supply the growing needs of these customers, it is not letting others in on the bonanza.

THERE ARE those who question giving certain customers a preference, those who think the government should not be in the electrical business, and those who contend that when the government sells power it should be paid what the power is worth.

At a recent meeting of the Southwest Power Pool, Risk was introduced as "the man who will represent us when we go to Congress for appropriations to buy power."

SPA trades power made at the government dams for power produced by private companies in order to have a firm supply to sell its customers.

When the lakes are low, it buys power to cover contractual obligations to customers; when it has excess water, it sells power to the companies.

The money from sales goes into the federal treasury. Money to buy power comes from appropriations.

Early in 1980, Risk took a leave from Public Service Co. of Oklahoma, where he had been manager of nuclear information responsible for the public relations aspects of the Black Fox project, to spearhead the organization of a broad-based statewide pro-energy coalition favorable to nuclear power.

There he worked with Kent Frizzell, director of the National Energy Law and Policy Institute and professor of law at the University of Tulsa, chairman of the group's

RICHARD B. RISK JR.
...Political newcomer board. After Ronald Reagan was elected president, Frizzell became a member of the administration's transition team as associate director of resources and development.

Prior to coming to T.U., Frizzell had spent four years in the Department of Interior, two years as solicitor and two years as undersecretary.

SPA IS PART of the Department of Energy, but in those days it was under the Department of the Interior.

Frizzell was in a position to know about the SPA and to make a recommendation when the new administration wanted a new man to head SPA. He recommended Risk, whom he describes as a "self-starter" and an "innovator" with skills in the fields of management, planning, organization and personnel.

He sees it as important that the new SPA chief be someone in sympathy with the Reagan philosophy and support. In his recommendation letter to Secretary of Energy James B. Edwards, Nickles cited Risk's management, supervisory and administrative experience as well as his previous association with the federal government and recent employment with the electrical power industry.

"I haven't anything against Hammett," said Frizzell. "I wrote him a letter of congratulations when he was appointed. But it is our turn."

EVER SINCE SPA was created, its supporters have wanted it to have a revolving fund into which it could put receipts and out of which it could buy power, but foes of public power would have none of this.

The size of the appropriations SPA requires to buy power depends in part on to what extent SPA is willing in dry times to buy power instead of lowering the lakes.

Those who live near the 23 lakes in Missouri, Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma for which SPA is the power marketing agency and those who have business operations on those lakes want lake levels kept up. They protest vigorously when the lakes are lowered, creating a touchy political problem for members of Congress from those states.

SPA got a $16 million rate increase, its first in 22 years, under James B. Hammett, whom Risk succeeds.

While receipts last year fell short of amounts needed to repay the government over 50 years, Hammett contends this was because of drought. He said over the years the higher rates will let the government recapture the $850 million it has invested in hydro plants and transmission lines in the SPA area.

RISK APPARENTLY owes his selection by Sen. Don Nickles to succeed Hammett to his performance as executive director and principal founder of Oklahomans for Energy and Jobs.

Risk has never been active in politics. He did not know Nickles and did not participate in Nickles' campaign.

FRIENDS SAY his only political qualification for the SPA appointment is the fact he is registered as a Republican.

His Black Fox assignment was anything but a step up the ladder of politics, but when he left PSO to become executive director of Oklahomans for Energy and Jobs, an associate says there were fears he would catch the eye of executives of some other company and be hired away from PSO.

In the post, he worked with people who would be calling the shots in the energy field for the new administration and with people whose recommendations would carry weight with politicians.

Risk attributes his selection for the SPA post to their

Elevators, chains, wrenches stolen

Two Neilson rod elevators with "WW" welded on top; four come-alongs with "R29" welded on them; four rod wrenches with rod box welded on ends for weight; hardened, polished rod line, 1 1/2 x 72 inches; two 1/4-inch spinning chains; two 16-pound sledge hammers, one with "WW" and one with "R29" welded on it were taken Jan. 4-5 in Archer County.

Twenty-four barrels of distillate were taken from a tank seven miles east of Decatur in Wise County last Dec. 29. The property belongs to Trio Operating Company Inc. of Wichita Falls. A $700 reward is offered for information leading to return, arrest and indictment. Deputy Sheriff Mike Range of the Wise County Sheriff's Office is the investigating officer.

It's OK...Elizabeth Taylor still loves NY

NEW YORK (AP) — She's fallen in and out of love during her seven marriages, but Elizabeth Taylor still has a thing for New York, which solves a problem for officials of the Empire State.

When her separation from Virginia Sen. John Warner was announced last month, officials at the New York State Department of Commerce worried they would have to change an "I Love New York" commercial in which Miss Taylor appears with actor Mickey Rooney.

Book about Jesus' descendants causes uproar among churches

LONDON (AP) — Church leaders are angry and most critics unimpressed by a book suggesting Jesus married, staged the crucifixion and has living descendants.

But the public today was snapping up copies of "The Holy Blood and The Holy Grail."

Marilyn Edwards, spokeswoman for publishers Jonathan Cape Ltd., called the book's sales "really phenomenal." She said two printings had been sold out by Monday, the first day of publication, and another printing of over 10,000 had been ordered.

London bookstores that ordered 200 and 300 copies priced at $17 apiece were reporting their stock exhausted by first-day sales, she said. The book goes on sale in the United States in February.

The book — by British writer and filmmaker Henry Lincoln, 51, American novelist Richard Leigh, 39, and New Zealand researcher Michael Baigent, 34 — is based on more than 10 years of research, including what the authors say are newly discovered and deciphered documents that shed new light on medieval history.

The essence of their contention is that a secret society called the Priore de Sion was founded in the 11th century, and from that day until this, has been protecting Jesus' descendants to prepare the way for his return to power through the accession of his divine offspring.

Building upon that thesis, the authors propose that the reason Jesus had descendants was that he married Mary Magdalene, had at least one child by her and survived the crucifixion with the help of his disciples and Roman co-conspirators.

The book suggests Mary and her children fled to southern France, where their descendants' bloodline mingled with that of the Franks and came down through the Merovingian kings of the Middle Ages to modern European noble houses. Jesus' fate was more obscure, but he was likely to have fled the Middle East, it says.

Speaking for the Roman Catholic Church, the Rev. John Crowley, private secretary to Roman Catholic Cardinal Basil Hume, said "The thesis is incredible in the most literal sense."

"What next?" BBC television commentator Barry Norman asked sarcastically: "Son of Jesus Christ?"

The Sunday Times took the issue less seriously. It lampooned the book with a cartoon of an angel saying, "If Jesus marries, I hope it's a nice Jewish girl."

Dear Abby

Mixed reviews for 'golden oldies'

DEAR ABBY: Being an avid reader of your column, I read with interest the letter from "D. from Big D" imploring you to stop printing all those boring reruns, which you call your "golden oldies." I agree with "D." I never read beyond the first sentence if I've read it before.

When you do get requests for reruns, wouldn't it be wiser (and more profitable) to direct these nineties to the nearest bookstore to buy your new book, "The Best of Dear Abby"? All those "golden oldies," from your Thanksgiving prayer to your annual New Year's resolutions, are in that book.

For my part, you can skip the reruns and give us some fresh new material and good laughs.

BIG B. IN LITTLE L.

DEAR ABBY: "D. from Big D" has my heartfelt sympathy. Apparently "D" never permitted his mother to repeat the same nursery rhyme, has never sung the same hymn in church, or thrilled to the words of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address when delivered by a gifted orator.

I am program chairman for three organizations, and one of my cardinal rules is: "If a guy's good, get him back!" Thus I have had the privilege of hearing the same speaker, often with the same speech, two or three times. No audience has ever complained.

Reruns? Hell, yes! What's wrong with encores?
M.C.W. FROM ROCHESTER, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: So "D. FROM BIG D." doesn't care for reruns. Poor baby. When his wife says, "I love you," what does he say? "You already said that once?"

LITTLE J. FROM THE BIG APPLE

DEAR ABBY: Bravo for "D. from Big D"! Your reruns are invariably maudlin, folksy, corny, vintage 1899, Dr. Norman Vincent Peale "up-by-your-bootstraps" baloney!

Abby, you are super terrific when you cut to the heart of a problem we can all relate to and deliver a sharp and witty answer. But please forget those golden oldies.

ED SLABOTSKY

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad somebody finally spoke up about the reruns. A few are worth reading again — like your New Year's resolutions, but please, Ab, take it easy on all those syrupy poems, prayers, quotes and philosophical "gems" you feel you must share with your readers. I read your column to see what you have to say — not to get a lecture or a sermon from somebody else.

DICK IN DENVER

DEAR ABBY: In regard to the letter from "D. in Big D": I think the "D." in his or her name must stand for "Dummy."

Many times I have clipped out the reprints rather than the original article because I felt that the article was more relevant to my life when it appeared as a reprint than as a first-run article. Keep running the reprints, Abby. I may be only 13, but I appreciate them more than some adults. And they say the nation's youth is going down the drain. Ha!

YOUNGER AND WISER

DEAR ABBY: This is a "yes" vote for reprints. I tend to need reminders, so I appreciate them. Plus, I had misplaced that marvelous pecan pie recipe, and your recent reprint was a welcome surprise in time for the holiday.

As long as I'm writing, I'd like to comment on the letter from "Evelyn from N.J." who took you to task for being "unfair" to smokers. The situations she mentioned — "drinkers, dopers, teen-age unwed mothers and all the sex gluttons who brought VD back, etc." — involve a certain degree of consent on the part of those involved. But when a smoker blows smoke into the face of a non-smoker, the only alternative is to stop breathing. I become so annoyed with people who forget they are not alone on this planet!

REPRINTS, YES! SMOKERS, NO!

'The Third Wave' is meeting topic

The Beta Kappa chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, a professional organization for women educators, met recently at the Howard College Tumbleweed Room. Jean Wilder presided.

Mrs. Jeannette Jones, a transfer member, was welcomed into the chapter. Members were reminded to make applications for continuing education assistance. The nominating committee will propose a slate of officers at the March meeting in Sterling City.

The winter edition of "Texas Outlook" included an article on Annie Webb Blanton. Mrs. Blanton was the founder of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society and the first woman president of Texas State Teachers Association.

Mrs. Blanton organized the society in response to a comment made by a male colleague that women could make great strides, but were incapable of working together.

She urged teachers to be progressive and to keep up with the world.

Gordon Gillette, department head of psychology and sociology at Odessa College gave a review of Toffler's "The Third Wave." Toffler claims one of the greatest changes in the future will be in the family structure. Computers will isolate families making it unnecessary to leave the premises to work, learn or play.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mary Dudley, Eleanor Garrett, Reva Adams, Dorothy Stephens, Ruth Rutherford and Rena Yandell.

RSVP seeks volunteers

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program is currently recruiting persons who want to increase their community involvement by volunteering two to four hours a week for community service.

Volunteers are needed in the fourteen volunteer stations which include the Veterans Administration Medical Center, Big Spring State Hospital, Mountain View Lodge, United Health Care Center, St. Mary's Episcopal School and others.

Many areas of volunteer work are available including pharmacy, escorting, information desk, delivering meals to shut-ins, working with teenagers, assisting children, visitation, crafts and recreation.

Persons at least 60 years old, retired or semi-retired, who would like to brighten up lives of others by sharing their time and talents are needed. Call the RSVP office at 267-2589 to make arrangements for joining the program.

Members enjoy demonstration of cosmetics

A formal buffet dinner highlighted the Coahoma High School chapter of Office Education Association meeting held recently in the home of Wendell Shive. Hostesses for the meeting were Louise Shive, Robin Ethridge, Kristi Franklin and Paula Allen. They were assisted by Mrs. Wendell Shive and Mrs. Marie Ethridge, OEA Advisor.

Mrs. Joyce Phillips presented the program about the history and background of Merle Norman cosmetics. Mrs. Phillips also told about the different products available for personal use and demonstrated the items. She stressed the importance of proper individualized skin care and make up usage.

Paula Allen won the door prize. The next meeting will be Feb. 8. Members will complete preparation for the annual Valentine Post Office activity.

Dr. Donohue

Muscle problem may affect eyes

Dear Dr. Donohue: This letter is from a quiet little Kansas town whose local paper carries your excellent column. I am an elderly person (79) who is having a painful experience with polymyalgia rheumatica. I've learned to live with my glaucoma, but I need help with the other. Will you please tell me what causes polymyalgia rheumatica?

The prednisone I was taking has been discontinued. Limited exercise does help along with heat. Are there any simple things a person can do? The sharp stiletto-like pains really make me nervous, and, I'm afraid, somewhat irritable, which isn't the real me. Bless you in your work. — Mrs. M.C.T.

Polymyalgia rheumatica can appear even in a quiet little Kansas town. Its cause is a question mark, but it does strike those of us, who even though we may have gained lots of wisdom with years, have lost a bit of body bounce. It is often mistaken for arthritis. The joints are fine; it's the muscles that are the source of pain. There is an achesness (myalgia) in the muscles of the upper chest, shoulders, hips and lower back. With the pain comes stiffness, and there may be fever, weight loss and fatigue.

Even though the cause is unknown, we do know that polymyalgia rheumatica responds promptly to steroids, and usually the steroids are used only for a short time. So I'm looking for you to live up to that quiet Kansas town promptly.

At times, polymyalgia rheumatica can go hand-in-hand with another illness — inflammation of the temporal arteries. So in addition to the muscle symptoms, there may be headache and even vision changes. This part of the illness must be treated promptly with steroids to prevent permanent vision problems. I've been in your quiet town — no fooling. It is also lovely.

Students fight to keep SS benefits

By The Associated Press

Some Texas high school students have doubled their academic load, given up traditional senior-class projects and enrolled in college a year early to sidestep a Reagan administration budget-cutting move that will end Social Security survivor benefits for students over age 18.

"I feel like I'm being cheated out of my senior year," said Kim Austin, 17, a senior at Richardson's Lake Highlands High School.

Miss Austin, whose stepfather was stabbed to death by robbers 13 months ago, is one of about 10,000 high school seniors in Texas officials say could lose their benefits if they are not enrolled in college full time by May 1.

Congress set the deadline as part of the administration budget-cutting move that Social Security Administration spokesman John B. Trollering in Baltimore said would save $10 billion during the next five years.

"It certainly was the intent of Congress to eliminate this program," Trollering said. "We had to start somewhere."

The result is that Miss Austin and many other Texas high school seniors counting on the checks that average $260 a month are enrolling in college early. Some are quitting high school, others are trying to attend both high school and college at once.

"The chances are that there are about 10,000 high school seniors in Texas who will lose their benefits unless they get into college by May 1," said John Mallas, vice president of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

Starting Monday, Miss Austin will spend four hours each morning on high school reading, drama, Western literature and dance and spend four hours each evening at Richland Community College studying American Government, American history, English and theater. She said she will have to quit working on the senior prom.

"I'm pretty nervous," she said. "But I'm just going to try as hard as I can."

Her mother, Barbara Braswell said the Social Security checks are "going to be a big part of the money" Miss Austin needs to attend college.

Although there are some exceptions, state colleges require a high school diploma or equivalency for admission. Richland and some other community colleges do not.

Richland has enrolled about 30 high school seniors who are trying to keep their benefits, said academic officer Ruth Shaw. Late registration could add 100 more, said Chancellor

R. Jan LeCroy.

San Antonio College director of guidance and counseling Glen Hamilton said 25 to 30 high school students enrolled there.

Dr. Pat Davis, registrar at Houston Community College, said school districts were bending over backwards to help students remain eligible for survivors benefits.

"The Houston Independent School District is now allowing students to qualify as full-time college students by taking two college option classes during the day and two regular classes at night, which they could not do before," she said.

Other area districts are letting students cut back their course loads to the minimum needed to graduate so they can enroll in colleges, she said.

In Sherman, a spokeswoman in the registrar's office at Austin College said parents had flooded the office with telephone inquiries about the possibility of enrolling their children, or having them drop out of high school.

"It's terribly unfair," said a Lake Highlands student whose father died nine years ago. "I can think of different ways the money could be cut."

"It's like you have to grow up in five minutes."

Glasscock irrigation data contracts signed

GARDEN CITY — During a recent meeting of the Glasscock County Underground Water District, Texas Department of Water Resource contracts were signed to guarantee irrigation data on 10 wells at $225 per well test.

Testing will start in March, and will be performed by SCS personnel.

A newsletter was mailed Jan. 19, it was reported. This will be a bi-monthly publication.

Under new business, the manager reported on the Jan. 7 Appraisal Board District's meeting. Royce Pruitt will be the county's chief appraiser. He presented his collection fee bill and his contract to the board.

Proposed rules were discussed, but no decision was made. Kathy Kohls gave a report on Water Sampling activities to monitor water quality.

Some tests have come back with positive coliform bacteria. It was agreed that the March newsletter would concentrate on informing the public of the coliform problem in the house wells.

The manager was directed by the board to try and contact Ken Stephens on a possible contact meeting for Jan. 27 in the Garden City Courthouse at 2 p.m.

Notice will be given if the date can be confirmed.

Texas veterans will share in $664.6 million dividend

Nearly 192,100 Texas veterans who have kept their GI life insurance policies in force will share in a record $664.6 million dividend during 1982.

The Texas dividends will total more than $34.3 million, according to the Veterans Administration.

Because of higher interest rates earned by insurance funds, the amount to be paid to policyholders during 1982 is $45 million above the 1981 figure.

No application is needed. Dividends will be paid automatically during 1982 on the anniversary date of the individual's insurance policy.

Policyholders will receive varying amounts depending on the type of policy, the amount of insurance in force, the insured's age at issue or renewal and time the policy has been in force.

Nationally, almost $24 million will be paid to 78,000 World War I veterans with current policies. The average dividend for term policyholders will be $307 and for permanent plan policyholders, $303.

Some 3,124,000 World War II veterans with active policies will share $590 million. Average dividend for term policyholders will be $121. For permanent plan policyholders the average dividend will be $246 and modified life plan policyholders will receive an average of $116.

Korean Conflict veterans who kept their GI insurance in force—a total of 496,000—will receive an average payment of $71. Their policies earned $35 million during the past year.

More than 161,000 disabled veterans of World War II and the Korean Conflict holding Veterans Special Life Insurance policies will receive an average dividend of $97. This is only the third year dividends will be paid in this program.

A greater share of the higher interest rates was earned by those veterans who converted their insurance plans to permanent type policies rather than continuing to hold the original term policies.

Each of the four participating insurance program funds are a separate entity, accounting for the difference in average dividends.

Number of illegal aliens in Texas to be known soon

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — The Governor's Task Force on Undocumented Mexican Workers plans to have bottom-line statistics on the number of illegal aliens in Texas by the end of March, members of the group said Monday.

The task force will hire a company that will begin interviewing illegal aliens by Feb. 1, said Rick Montoya, executive director for regional development on the governor's staff.

The task force then will determine a consensus figure for the illegal alien population in Texas to be presented to congressional subcommittees that have requested the information.

"Then, everyone will be working with the same numbers," said Margo Branscomb, task force coordinator.

Currently, no reliable figures on illegal aliens are available, and as a result, any legislative decisions concerning them are based on conflicting estimates, Ms. Branscomb said.

The task force, created by the governor in November, is charged with identifying the number of illegal aliens, their family histories, current living conditions, future residence plans in Texas, wages received and other data.

From information gathered through the Dallas office of the U.S. Department of Justice Immigration and Naturalization Service, illegal aliens are moving away from agricultural jobs into industrial areas, said William Chambers, INS district director.

Heaviest concentrations of illegal aliens in industrial areas are in the Dallas metroplex area and in Houston, Chambers said.

Most illegal aliens don't stay in Texas more than a year before returning to Mexico, although many come back to Texas to work again, Chambers said.

Little fanfare for hostage anniversary

Former hostage Paul Lewis said there was nothing special on his calendar for today — even though it's the first anniversary of the day he and 51 other Americans were freed from 444 days of captivity in Iran.

"I'll be in school, and I don't think I'll notice unless someone reminds me," said the 24-year-old former Marine sergeant, now studying agricultural economics at the University of Illinois in Champaign.

Nationally, there were no reports of plans for big reunions or major festivities to mark the anniversary. Former President Jimmy Carter, who left office the day the hostages were freed, had no special activities planned, said Dan Lee, a Carter spokesman. Neither did President Reagan, the White House said.

A year ago, Lewis and his fellow hostages were hustled aboard a jet on a tense night in Tehran, bound for Algiers and freedom from their militant captors, who had seized the U.S.

Embassy on Nov. 4, 1979. On that day his father, Phil, shouted happily to friends and relatives who jammed around a television set in their home in Homer, Ill., that the "birds are in the air!"

The joy, exhilaration and celebrations that marked last Jan. 20 won't be in evidence today, some of the former captives say. They say they want to blend back into obscurity.

In Bellevue, Neb., Mary Needham, the mother of Air Force Capt. Paul Needham Jr., turns 50 today. Last year, she and her husband, Paul, sat in their yellow ribbon-wrapped home and watched news accounts of the impending release skeptically, refusing to believe until the Americans landed outside Iran.

When the Needhams watched their son walk off a plane in Algiers, they drank a champagne toast to Paul's freedom and wept.

The younger Needham, now assigned to nearby Offutt Air Force Base, said recently that he hates his Iranian captors who "threatened my life and took away my freedom. I lost chances along the way, while friends of mine kept living free. It caused anguish for my family."

Phil Ward, of Culpeper, Va., admits he cried uncontrollably on the flight out of Iranian airspace to freedom.

"It was so intense for me when we came out," said the 31-year-old State Department employee, who was a communications specialist at the embassy. "I went through some things I don't even remember. I think it's selective forgetfulness."

He spent Tuesday splitting a two weeks' supply of wood with his son and stacking it in his basement. "Now let it rain," he said.

Army Col. Charles Scott, 40, of Stone Mountain, Ga., said there would be no special ceremonies for him. Instead, he would do the same things he has been doing for many months now — work on a book about his captivity and give a speech.

Redistrict plan goes to court

DALLAS (AP) — Lawyers representing all sides in a federal court challenge to new boundaries mapped for the Texas Legislature have been asked if they would rather extend the Feb. 1 filing deadline for candidates or have a court-drawn redistricting plan.

The three federal judges presiding over the case asked the lawyers their choice during a court session here Tuesday.

The redistricting plan drafted by the Legislative Redistricting Board has been attacked by Republicans, Mexican-Americans and blacks on grounds that it dilutes both GOP and minority voting strength.

Five Democratic officeholders served as members of the board. Lawyer Tom Crouch said Republicans seeking to have the new Texas Senate and House boundaries overturned will ask the judges "to adopt an interim plan and not change the filing deadline."

Mexican-American challengers also indicated that they favored a court-drawn plan.

Texas Assistant Attorney General Rick Gray said he "strongly prefers" extending the Feb. 1 deadline.

A ruling on the legality of the redistricting plan is not expected until Feb. 6.

The attorney general's office will recommend that the filing deadline be extended only to offices whose boundaries are facing challenge, Gray said. He said the judges also might consider using the existing political lines for the 1982 elections.

SURVIVOR NEWS CONFERENCE — Joseph Stiley, 42, of Alexandria, Va. speaks to reporters Tuesday in his room at the National Hospital for Orthopaedics in Arlington, Va. concerning his rescue from the Air Florida jetliner that he was a passenger on which crashed last Wednesday in the Potomac River in Washington. Stiley also stated that he felt that the man who drowned in the water after passing his life ring to others was "almost but not totally positive" he felt named Theodore Smolen, 48, of Gaithersburg, Md.

MoPac announces record capital improvement plan

ST. LOUIS — The Missouri Pacific Railroad has increased its capital expenditures budget for 1982 by 22 percent over the record $290-million of 1981 to $353-million, James W. Gessner, MoPac president and chief executive officer, announced here today.

For the first time in history, capital expenditures for improvements to track, structures and other elements of fixed plant will surpass outlays for freight cars and locomotives: $241-million to $112-million.

Not included in the capital budget are expenditures for maintenance of equipment and roadway totaling about $800-million in 1982.

"Not one dime of that amount comes from the taxpayer," Gessner said. "Unlike other modes of transport such as truck and barge, we pay the entire cost of building and maintaining our railroad and its supporting structures."

Track projects account for more than $112-million of the $353-million capital improvements program. "Projects include the laying of new main line, replacement of lighter-weight rail with heavy, continuous welded rail, freight yard expansion and construction of additional sidings to permit trains to meet and pass on single-track railroad. MoPac will lay 560 miles of rail in 1982.

More than $68-million will be spent on new structures. The largest project will be the expenditure of $30-million in 1982 for construction of a locomotive heavy repair and reconstruction shop at North Little Rock, Ark., to be completed in 1983 at a total cost of $40-million. Other projects include construction of a locomotive service facility at Fort Worth, Tex.; an additional building at the railroad's car shop in Sedalia, Mo.; expansion of MoPac's Canal Street Intermodal Terminal at Chicago, as well as completion of a new intermodal terminal in Dallas and the construction of new yard office buildings at Muskogee, Okla. and Beaumont, Tex.

The 1982 capital budget also includes 43 bridge projects, nearly all involving the replacement of timber trestles with concrete structures. Other projects include installation of new diesel fueling stations, installation of environmental protection equipment, purchases of maintenance equipment and machinery, as well as extensive improvements of signals and communications, including installation of additional Centralized Traffic Control for remote operation of switches, and expansion of the railroad's microwave system.

Gessner said: "Current economic sluggishness notwithstanding, we will continue to plan for continued future growth, just as we have every year since 1956 when MoPac came out of receivership to become one of the most modern and most profitable railroads in the industry."

MoPac's president said he expects accelerated, industrial expansion in the 12 states served by Missouri Pacific, continued growth in traffic between the United States, Canada and Mexico and greater use of rail by shippers as MoPac continues to improve its efficiency through implementation of sophisticated computer control systems, continued modernization of the physical plant and expansion of its freight car and locomotive fleet.

Reward offered for missing money bag

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Wells Fargo officials offered an $11,000 reward today for the return of a bag containing $110,000 in cash that fell from a company delivery truck here.

Christine Navarro, a Wells Fargo spokesman, said the bag fell from the truck in downtown El Paso after guards apparently failed to close the truck's electronically operated back door.

The guard who was responsible for closing the door faces disciplinary action, Ms. Navarro said.

The money was in a white canvas bag with a bank seal which can be broken easily, Ms. Navarro said. She declined to say where the money was picked up from, but said she was sure of the amount because Wells Fargo got a receipt for the amount.

A search for the missing bag was complicated because the driver and guard in the truck were not certain where on their route the bag fell from the truck.

The incident was under investigation by both El Paso police and Wells Fargo officials.

Reports conflict about hero in crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — With investigators still stymied in efforts to recover flight recorders from the Potomac River, there are conflicting accounts of who may have been the mystery hero who died after passing the lifelines to other victims of the Air Florida jet crash.

Salvage operations are continuing as divers, working mainly by feel in the frigid, murky water, sift through the debris of the aircraft wreckage some 25 feet below the surface. Three bodies were recovered Tuesday.

Officials, who believe 18 other victims still are missing, raised the possibility that some bodies may never be found.

The Florida-bound Boeing 737 crashed into a span of the 14th Street Bridge seconds after taking off from National Airport in a snowstorm seven days ago. Seventy-eight people were killed, including four motorists.

Rescuers have described how an unidentified man repeatedly passed the lifeline to other passengers and then drowned before they could get back to him. One of the survivors, Joseph Stiley, said Tuesday that he believes that man was Theodore Smolen, 48, of Gaithersburg, Md. Speaking from a wheelchair at a hospital news conference, Stiley said Smolen, a Fairchild Industries employee, was still strapped into a seat when he drowned.

Basing his identification on newspaper photographs, Stiley said he was "almost but not certainly positive" it was Smolen who helped a woman survivor grab a life ring that was lowered from a helicopter hovering overhead.

But Bert Hamilton, 46, a Fairchild employee who survived the crash, said he was "reasonably sure it was not Ted."

Stiley's story also conflicts with speculation that Arland D. Williams of Atlanta is the unknown hero.

Williams' body lay among the first 46 recovered and an autopsy showed that he was the only one of the 46 who died from drowning. The others were crushed by the impact of the crash. Smolen's body has not been recovered.

"There's no absolute guarantee we're going to recover all the bodies," said Lt. Cmdr. Stephen Delaplane, head of the Navy diving operation. He said the job may take another eight days.

The recovery operations suffered another setback Tuesday when the plane's instrument panel splashed back into the water as the cockpit was hoisted to a center span of the bridge.

FINDING A WAY OUT — Big Spring Steer Gerald Wrightsil looks for help against the Abilene Cooper Cougars during school basketball action Tuesday night in Steer Gym. The Steers tried hard to come back against the Cougars, but fell short 60-56. Wrightsil led the scoring for the Steers with 22 points.

Steers fall to Cooper

It was tough going all night for the Big Spring Steers as they picked up their fifth division loss, 60-56, against the Abilene Cooper Cougars Tuesday night in Steer Gym.

"We played catch up all night," said assistant coach Everette Blackburn. "At one point we pulled within three points, but we lost out on the defensive end."

The Steers actually outscored Cooper in the second half, but it wasn't enough to overcome the 32-22 Abilene lead at halftime.

Gerald Wrightsil lead the scoring for the Steers, putting down 22 points to his credit. He was followed by Blake Rosson's 16 points. Jink Valenzuela came up with 8 points for the Big Spring team.

Blackburn praised the efforts of Wrightsil, who made 9 recoveries in the game, and Valenzuela, who claimed 7.

"We made some good runs at them," he said, "but we didn't go ahead and get the game."

The Steers will host Odessa here Friday night.

The JV team fared much better against the Cooper JV, handing Abilene its first loss in 13 outings. Big Springers came out ahead 59-58. Big Spring JV is now 9-10 on the year and 3-2 in district play.

"They did a great job," said Blackburn this morning, "even though they were down by 7 points at one time. Anytime you beat an undefeated team like that, you can be proud."

For the Big Spring JV team, Jesse Woodruff was high scorer, coming off the bench to claim 14 points. He was followed closely by Jerry Wrightsil and Juan Williams, both with 12 points.

In other basketball action in the Permian Basin, Abilene High defeated San Angelo Central 73-62. Odessa Permian outpaced Midland Lee 64-56, and Midland High toppled Odessa High 43-33.

The Steers are now 9-12 on the season and 0-5 overall.

Denver clobbers LA

Phoenix took control of the game by outscoring San Antonio 30-17 in the second quarter.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Suns and their third without a loss against the Spurs this season.

George Gervin, the NBA's No. 1 scorer, had 27 points for the Spurs. Celtics 111, Knicks 107.

Larry Bird hit 18 for 24 shots from the field and scored 39 points, including four in the final minute, to lead Boston over New York.

The Knicks batted back from a 90-67 deficit with a 21-6 spurt and then cut the Celtics' lead to two points, 105-103, with 1:57 remaining.

NBA Roundup

Michael Ray Richardson scored 28 points for New York, 12 of them in the fourth quarter when he quarterbacked the Knicks' rally.

Sonics 99, Cavaliers 97.

Jack Sikma scored 28 points and broke a 97-97 tie with seven seconds remaining with a 10-footer to give Seattle its eighth straight victory, while Cleveland lost for the 10th time in 11 games.

Ron Brewer and James Edwards scored 20 points each for the Cavs.

Hawks 112, Blazers 101.

John Drew scored 26 points and Eddie Johnson 23 to lead Atlanta, which saw a 35-point third-quarter lead dwindle to six in the fourth period.

Portland outscored the Hawks 40-18 in the fourth quarter and 30-3 in the first 6:10 of the period after falling behind 94-59 with 47 seconds left in the fourth quarter.

Rockets 120, Kings 112

Moses Malone scored 29 points and pulled down 18 rebounds and front-court mate Elvin Hayes added 19 points and 12 rebounds to lead Houston over Kansas City.

The Kings' 2-0 lead was their only edge of the game, and the Rockets led by as many as 19, at 60-41, in the third quarter.

Bulls 110, Pacers 100

All-star center Artis Gilmore scored 27 points and grabbed 16 rebounds as Chicago broke a four-game losing streak with a victory over Indiana.

The Bulls led by only three points, 85-82, in the fourth quarter before a 21-7 scoring binge led by Gilmore, Dwight Jones and Ricky Sobers saved the victory.

Jazz 123, Pistons 117

Adrian Dantley had 42 points and Rickey Green scored all of his 24 points in the second half as Utah also broke a four-game losing streak.

Dantley had 17 points in the first six minutes and 19 in the first period, but the Jazz could only manage a 31-31 tie with Detroit after the first 12 minutes.

The Pistons had a seven-point lead in the fourth quarter before faltering.

Dallas' Ditka goes to Bears

CHICAGO (AP) — Former All-Pro tight end Mike Ditka will be the new head coach of the Chicago Bears.

Ditka accepted the job Tuesday after an afternoon meeting with team owner George Halas and was to be named formally at a news conference today.

Ditka was unavailable for comment, but other sources, including his wife and his former boss, Dallas Cowboys head Coach Tom Landry, confirmed that he had accepted the job.

"Mike has accepted the Bears' offer and it's fantastic," Ditka's wife, Diana, said.

Also, during an interview with a Dallas radio station, Landry said he had been told of the hiring earlier Tuesday and that he wished Ditka well.

Landry said Ditka, who has worked as one of his assistant coaches for the last nine years, had not sought his advice before seeking the Bears' coaching job.

"I think Mike knew this was something he wanted to do," Landry said. "If it had been anything else, I think he wouldn't have been so quick to take it without talking it over with us. But he didn't specifically ask my advice because he's wanted in his heart to do this (coach the Bears) for so long."

Terms of the contract were not made available, but reports indicated that Ditka might be offered a two-year pact.

Ditka is expected to instill strong discipline in the Bears, who finished last season with a 6-10 record, and improve the team's sagging offense.

Three weeks ago, shortly after he personally took charge of shaking up the Bears coaching staff, Halas said Ditka was the front-runner for the job.

Ditka, 42, was a college star at Pitt before he began his career with the Bears as a tight end. He had written a letter to Halas expressing interest in the coaching job before the dismissal of Coach Neill Armstrong Jan. 4.

"I have never wished anybody to lose a football job or any kind of job," Ditka said later. "The gist of the letter was very simply that if and whenever the job ever becomes available in the future, I would be interested."

While holding his various news conferences, Halas, who will become 87 on Feb. 2, more than once indicated that Ditka would be the man to replace Armstrong.

Ditka played tight end for the Bears for seven years and was a member of the 1963 championship team. In 1964 he set an NFL record for a tight end by catching 75 passes for the Bears. That mark stood until Kellen Winslow of San Diego broke it last year.

The Bears traded Ditka to Philadelphia and from there he went to Dallas where he finished his active career before becoming an assistant to Landry.

Super Bowl a battle of unknowns

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Because they have both been consistent losers until now, the San Francisco 49ers and Cincinnati Bengals come into Sunday's Super Bowl as two of the most anonymous teams in the history of this series.

Their national exposure has been limited at best and Cincinnati linebacker Jim LeClair knows why.

"Not many people like to look at 4-12 teams on Monday night football," said LeClair.

Or 2-14 teams, either, for that matter.

The Bengals were 4-12 three years ago and repeated that record two seasons ago. "Bad," admitted LeClair. "Really bad."

The 49ers, however, were worse at

Sherrill new Aggies' coach

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M Board of Regents chairman H.R. "Bum" Bright is as popular on the Aggie campus as a Texas Longhorns bumper sticker following the firing of head coach Tom Wilson to make room for a new football boss.

A press conference was scheduled for 1 p.m. today to introduce the new Aggie coach and athletic director, former Pittsburgh coach Jackie Sherrill.

What has aggravated Aggies is not Sherrill's hiring but Wilson's firing, and the perception that Bright was almost solely responsible.

"Bum's not so bright," read a sign outside a fast food restaurant.

"We support Tom Wilson," another sign said.

"They handled this thing every way but the approved way," said Chris Groneman, a former chairman of the A&M athletic council.

Bright could not be reached for comment and failed to return a call The Associated Press placed to his Dallas home.

After Sherrill's hiring became official Tuesday, A&M President Frank Vandiver was given the task of firing Wilson, who stayed on the job more than a week after rumors of his dismissal began circulating.

Vandiver said his distaste for the chore almost led him to resign.

"I got a little fed up about all this business with the football coach," said Vandiver, named A&M president less than a year ago.

A&M Chancellor Frank W. Herbert said Tuesday he was "very pleased by the way that the selection procedure was concluded."

But asked if he were as pleased with the way that conclusion was reached, he said only, "Let me just rest on that statement."

Wilson was fired only two months after Vandiver assumed him he would coach the Aggies in 1982.

"He was definitely promised by the president, in my presence, that he would be the coach in '82," said Keith Langford, a past-president of the statewide Aggie Club so deeply involved in Aggie recruiting that he is jokingly called "The Owner" by members of the athletic department staff.

Langford said he believes Wilson's firing was a foregone conclusion after Marvin Tate resigned as athletic director on Sept. 23, 1981, four days after Boston College upset A&M 13-12.

Langford vows he will no longer support the A&M football team and said he believed others would follow his lead.

Rockets walk over Kansas City

HOUSTON (AP) — When Houston's front line of center Moses Malone and forward Elvin Hayes are working together, the combination can be awesome.

Kansas City's Kings found that out Tuesday night when the Malone-Hayes tandem bullied the backboards for 48 points and 30 rebounds and the Rockets waltzed to a 120-112 National Basketball Association win over the Kings.

"They had 21 offensive rebounds to our 12 and out-rebounded us 51 to 34, this was really the key to the game," said Kansas City coach Cotton Fitzsimmons.

Houston guard Allen Leavell agreed.

"Mo and Elvin just did an outstanding job of rebounding," he said.

Houston led almost from the start. Kansas City got the game's first bucket but Malone banged home a layup moments later to give Houston a 4-2 lead and the Rockets were never headed.

"The first quarter was important," said Rockets coach Del Harris. "We built up a good lead. But we seemed to lose a little intensity the rest of the game."

Houston put the game in the bag at the end of the third quarter. Kansas City had pulled within six points when the Rockets ran off seven unavenged points in 51 seconds to take a 13-point lead into the fourth period.

Guard Phil Ford accounted for 39 of the Kings' points, hitting six field goals and three free throws and dealing out 12 assists. Mike Woodson led Kansas City scoring with 21 points and Eddie Johnson added 20.

Houston improved its record to 18-21. Kansas City fell to 14-25.

Bill Rogers 'realistic' about follow-up campaign

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Bill (Buck) Rogers, golfer's Player of the Year in 1981, takes a patient, wait-and-see attitude toward his 1982 campaign.

"You have to be realistic about it," Rogers said after a practice round for the $300,000 Phoenix Open, where he'll start his American tour schedule Thursday.

"I can't expect, don't expect, to have the kind of year I had last season," said the skinny, 29-year-old Texan who dominated world golf last year.

"But who can say? I might win a major. I might win two majors. I might not win anything at all. I'm not a goal-oriented person. My plan is to play as good as I can possibly play in each tournament, in each round. I'm not setting goals, or building my season around one particular tournament or one particular performance.

"But there's no question that the big stuff comes out of the big tournaments. So I'm anticipating the four majors, yeah, let's say it that way, anticipating, the majors more than ever.

"It's from the majors that you get the recognition," he said, and flashed an infectious smile.

"And I've found I like the recognition."

He's received it, particularly abroad. "The British Open opened up a lot of opportunities for me," he said. "People abroad consider it the World's Open. All of a sudden, when I'm playing abroad, my name is in headlines and I'm the man to beat. It's fun."

And he's handled it very, very well. He had a banner season in 1981, winning the World Series of Golf and two other American titles. But it was in foreign events that he really made his mark. In addition to the British Open, Rogers also won the Australia Open, another tournament in that country, took an important Japanese title, didn't finish lower than fourth in a extensive foreign schedule and last week was second in the South African PGA.

"I'll play at least six times overseas this year," he said, and added: "It seems like I've got that many to defend.

"World golf is important. But I won't neglect the American tour. I'll play at least as many American tournaments as I did last year (26) and probably a couple of more."

And he fully expects to get his season off on a positive note this week on the flat, 6,726-yard, par 71 Phoenix Country Club course.

Spurs' Gervin blocked in 108-96 loss

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Phoenix Suns guard Dennis Johnson shrugged it off as "nothing out of the ordinary," but San Antonio Coach Stan Albeck says it was an all-star defensive performance against Spurs' star guard George Gervin.

Gervin, the National Basketball Association's leading scorer with a 32.8 point-per-game average, was held to 17 through the first three quarters as Phoenix claimed a 108-96 victory here Tuesday night.

Although Gervin finished with 27, his last 10 points came down the stretch when the game was well out of San Antonio's reach.

"As George goes, basically so goes our team. And it was one of those nights," said Albeck. "We tried to go to him down low but he hit only 11 (of 27) shots. That's very unlike him."

"But that probably was a tribute to the way D.J. played against him," Albeck added. "D.J. plays George as well as anyone in this league and does it without hand-checking or under-cutting him like a lot of guys do."

Johnson, who paced Phoenix with 21 points, said he "played Gervin like I would anyone else. When you're winning, it just seems like your defense picks up."

The win was the fourth straight win for the Suns, now 23-14, and their 18th win in 21 games here. It was also their third straight victory over San Antonio this season and sixth in a row at the Arizona Veterans Memorial Coliseum since 1978.

"It makes you wonder why we can't win here," Albeck said. "This is just one of the few places in the league where we haven't won."

It was also the seventh time in the last 10 games that Phoenix has held an opponent under 100 points. Despite the loss, the Spurs still lead the NBA's Midwest Division with a 24-13 record.

"You can't let up on a team like that," said Suns' Coach MacLeod. "We've been very, very fortunate against them, but that usually runs in cycles. It can catch up to you eventually."

Phoenix took a 27-23 lead at the end of the first quarter on a basket by guard Walter Davis and a free throw by forward Len "Truck" Robinson.

Then, the Suns reeled off eight of the second period's first 10 points to go ahead 35-25 with 8:03 left. Phoenix also tallied eight of the last 10 points before halftime to grab a 57-40 advantage.

A pair of baskets by San Antonio guard Johnny Moore, plus Mike Mitchell's jumper, drew the Spurs to within 57-46 with 10:20 left in the third quarter. But the Suns reeled off 10 straight points to go up 67-46 and took an 80-60 lead into the fourth period.

San Antonio closed to within 10 points twice late in the game — the last at 106-96 on Gervin's jumper with a minute left. But a free throw by Johnson 10 seconds later finished the Spurs off.

Kyle Macy and Alvan Adams added 17 points each for Phoenix, which had five scorers in double figures. Robinson had 15 more for the Suns.

The Spurs only shot 39 percent on the evening while Phoenix hit 51.1 percent.

"When you shoot that poorly, there's no way you'll win on the road," Albeck said. "We had a night of futility."

Southwest Conference teams unpredictable

By The Associated Press

There is no sense of propriety in the Southwest Conference basketball race this year. None of the teams has any respect for the way things ought to be.

Consider:

- Texas Tech, preseason picks for a second-division finish, beat Arkansas and came within five points of a win over Texas, then lost by nine points on its home floor Tuesday night — to Rice.
- The Owls, preseason cellar choices, knock off No. 5 San Francisco during the Christmas week, then lose their first three conference games before winning Tuesday — on the road.
- Southern Methodist, looking for all the world like the conference doormat, beats the Cougars in Houston last week, then takes a 26-point whipping from Texas A&M — at home.
- And Arkansas snaps out of its SWC slump just in time to ambush Baylor, 70-58, in Fayetteville, knocking the Bears from second place to fourth in the conference standings and promoting the Aggies to second, 1½ games behind the high-riding, unbeaten Texas Longhorns.

"This win gets us back into the thick of the race," said Aggie forward Claude Riley, after the 81-55 win over SMU in Dallas.

Meanwhile, Ricky Pierce hit 30 points for Rice in the 66-57 win over Tech in Lubbock, then said, "We needed this win ... to get our momentum going again. Even if we are 1-3, we are still in the race, especially if we can beat A&M at home next Saturday night."

"We have decided to take them one at a time," said Rice coach Tommy Suits. "Each time, we figure the next game is our biggest one."

Baylor coach Jim Haller had a ringside seat

Tuesday for the Razorbacks' Scott Hastings Show. The 6-10 senior center scored 22 points and dominated the backboards, keeping Baylor from scoring in close.

"We couldn't control him," Haller said. "He's four inches bigger than anybody we could put on him."

Arkansas' two SWC losses have knocked it from the national Top Ten down to 15th in The Associated Press basketball poll, but Haller thinks it's too early to dismiss the Razorbacks.

"I think they're as good as they were two weeks ago when they were ranked No. 5," he said.

The Hogs get a stern test Saturday, when Houston visits. Other SWC games that night include Texas Christian at SMU, Baylor at Tech, A&M at Rice and Texas hosting South Carolina in a non-conference match.

'Superstars' can't block the Super Bowl

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Super Sunday has a different Super ring for Super achiever Dick Button.

It's the XVth birthday for football's Super Bowl. It's the Xth birthday for Superstars, the thriving TV sports spectacle that sprung from the mind of this former world and Olympic figure skating champion-turned-entrepreneur.

"We wouldn't dare go head-to-head with the Super Bowl — it's a religious rite," Button said, "so we are starting our tenth season on the air three hours earlier on Sunday."

The competition designed to determine the premier all-around athlete will begin its ten-week run at 12 noon CST on ABC. The Super Bowl kickoff is scheduled for 3 p.m. on CBS.

Some of the stars of the professional championship game at the Pontiac Silverdome will be seen later testing their athletic skills against hand-picked competitors in other fields.

Superstars began as a germ of an idea while Button was pursuing a law degree at Harvard. He offered it to various networks. They shrugged it off as gimmicky and unlikely to persevere.

Button's persistence finally paid off and in 1973 the first Superstars competition was launched in a remote real estate development in Rotunda, Fla., a men's competition offering $122,000 in prize money. ABC decided to give it a try.

The project caught the public fancy. Since then, it has been expanded to include the Women's Superstars, the World Superstars and the Super teams, matching the Super Bowl football champions against the World Series baseball champions.

Prize money has increased to $870,000. Ratings remain high.

Button's sports experiences triggered his thought process along with a picture he saw in Life magazine of Edward Villella, a former boxer and ballet star over which a caption read, "Is this America's best athlete?"

"I asked myself, 'Who is the best athlete?'" Button said. "That's how it all got started."

In the competition, athletes compete in a variety of sports — cycling, running, rowing, bowling, weightlifting, tennis and golf — while ineligible to vie in their own specialty.

In one of the early events, then-heavyweight boxing champion Joe Frazier almost drowned in the swimming pool. Bob Seagren, Olympic pole vaulter, won the first title in 1973 and the World Superstars Crown in 1977. A soccer player, Kyle Rote Jr., was a three-time winner, earning more than $200,000.

Button presses the buttons from the mid-Manhattan offices of his Candid Productions, Inc. and is still searching to learn who is the best athlete of all.

Close loss pleases Irish

By The Associated Press

Even a close loss by Notre Dame makes Coach Digger Phelps happy. It's been that kind of a season for his once-powerful basketball program.

"I'm excited with the way we played," Phelps said after a 48-46 loss to Villanova Tuesday night. "We played with and stayed with a good basketball team. They do a lot of good things with multiple defenses and getting the ball to key players on offense. We knew we would have to play tight defense on them, and we did."

College roundup

It was, however, Notre Dame's 10th loss in 13 games this season — a sub-par record for a team normally used to 20-game-winning seasons and stature in the polls. The last time the Irish had a losing season was 1971-72.

Villanova, meanwhile, is going in the other direction this year, a fact that amazes Coach Rollie Massimino.

"I would never have thought before the season that at this stage we would be 13-2," he said.

The Wildcats beat the Irish on forward Aaron Howard's baseline jumper with three seconds left. The winning basket came seconds after Notre Dame guard John Paxson tied the game at 46, capping an Irish rally from an eight-point deficit with nine minutes remaining.

"We knew Digger would want to control the tempo, and first our young people were hesitant in front of the big crowd (at South Bend)," said Massimino. "But we hung in there."

Top Twenty
Arkansas, ranked No. 15, was the only Top Twenty team in action Tuesday night. The Razorbacks beat Baylor 70-58 as center Scott Hastings scored 22 points.

Hastings hit 10 of his 17 shots from the floor, sank both of his free throws and grabbed six rebounds in the victory, which improved Arkansas' record to 12-2.

Arkansas' suffocating defense pressured Baylor into 13 second-half turnovers and allowed the Razorbacks to break open a tight game. Baylor finished with 20 turnovers in the game, while Arkansas had 12.

"We opened in an unorthodox zone we thought might shake them up," said Baylor Coach Jim Haller. "It didn't affect them at all."

Unranked Teams
Elsewhere, John Leonard scored 20 points and Luke Johnson added a career-high 18 as Manhattan downed Yale 74-65. Willie White scored 28 points to lead Tennessee-Chattanooga to an 89-72 victory over Furman. Mike Kanieski scored 13 points to lead Dayton to a 63-41 victory over Jersey City and Roy Jones scored 18 points to lead Texas A&M over SMU 81-55.

Also, Ricky Pierce hit a game-high 30 points and pulled down 11 rebounds to lead Rice over Texas Tech. Granger Hall scored 20 points and pulled down nine rebounds to pace Temple to an 82-72 triumph over Marist and Steve Black poured in 28 points as LaSalle defeated Penn 77-75.

Firemen's meals are often interrupted

Firemen spend many hours at their stations passing time until they are needed for emergencies. The Herald thought it would be fun to find out what kind of meals they enjoy (or try to digest) when they are on duty.

There are usually eight men on duty and they are their own cooks. In the middle of cooking or eating, they are often called to a fire as the case was while they were being interviewed. Their food is cold when they return.

Most of the time the men don't pay much attention to measuring ingredients, they just "cook to taste." The measurements in the following recipes are their estimates.

The firemen go on a rotating basis when deciding who cooks each day. The cook for the day usually goes to the grocery store around 8 a.m. and buys the food that he needs.

The firemen also suggest taking a Rolaid or Tums for dessert after eating these meals. Surely the recipes aren't that bad. They're still eating them.

Many businessmen predict recovery

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Two weeks ago when the National Bureau of Economic Research proclaimed that "the U.S. economy is currently undergoing a recession," most people already were looking for the recovery.

To automakers, homebuilders and the unemployed, to name just a few of the affected parties, the obvious need not be underscored. Instead, in the fine American tradition, it was better to put the bad behind.

"We're loaded for bear," said F. James McDonald, General Motors president. According to him, the nation's biggest manufacturer was ready to take full advantage of a rebound in car and truck sales.

Jack Carlson, executive vice president of the National Association of Realtors, was almost as enthusiastic. He declared the worst was over for housing. Interest rates will fall through spring, he declared.

There was less enthusiasm among the unemployed, but labor and business economists were widely quoted as looking for an increase in employment, slow though it might be, as the economy recovered in the second half.

Was it whistling in the dark? Hard to say — but there was a quality to the sound that reminded you of the time when you were a kid and you had to walk right through the toughest part of town in order to get home.

GM, for example, might be loaded for bear but it is the Japanese that they and other domestic manufacturers, have to deal with, and everyone in Detroit knows it. Chrysler has distributed a pamphlet that begins with the stark admission that "the Japanese can place a car in the United States for about $1,800 less than a U.S. manufacturer."

Equally shocking is another admission. "No action by Chrysler or any other U.S. manufacturer can offset the additional permanent tax advantage which results from Japanese government policy," it states.

In other words, the U.S. manufacturers are not able to compete in pricing, and they won't be unless government intervenes. "No U.S. manufacturer," says Chrysler, "will be able to overcome Japan's clear advantage as long as U.S. government policy allows it to persist."

It concedes that $600 is accounted for by poorer productivity, and $550 because of wages, fringes and work rules. But $650 of the difference, Chrysler contends, comes from the tax differential between the United States and Japan. It claims that taxes on the average U.S. vehicle are about $2,500, on a Japanese vehicle about $1,850.

Teacher acquitted of sex charge

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A grammar school teacher who had recanted a confession that she had sex with two boys wept and left the court with her husband after a jury acquitted her of statutory rape and corrupting the morals of a minor.

Her lawyer, who had told the jury that the two boys "got caught in a lie," said after the verdict was announced Monday that he didn't know whether Kathleen Harden would continue teaching.

Mrs. Harden has been on unpaid leave from her sixth-grade teaching job in the Elizabeth-Forward School district since her arrest in July.

Some spectators applauded when the jury returned the verdict acquitting the teacher, believed to be the first woman tried under Pennsylvania's statutory rape law.

The youths and their parents declined comment, and the younger boy wept after the jury foreman read the "not guilty" verdict.

Mrs. Harden, 31, of Elizabeth, had been accused of having sexual intercourse with the 13- and 15-year-old boys last summer after she hired them to cut the lawn at her home.

Mrs. Harden was charged with four counts of statutory rape, one count of involuntary deviate sexual intercourse and one count of corrupting the morals of a minor in connection with the 13-year-old.

In addition, she was charged with two counts of corrupting the morals of a minor in connection with the older boy, who was above the age specified in Pennsylvania's statutory rape law.

In his closing arguments, Steel attacked the credibility of the two boys, who were confused about some of the dates and times of the alleged sexual encounters.

Murdoch paper folds in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — The Suburban Reporter Southwest Edition, part of a chain of newspapers owned by Australian publishing magnate Rupert Murdoch, will put out its last edition Wednesday.

Former editor Ned Peterson said publisher Lance Smith told about 30 employees of the weekly community newspaper, which serves about 70,000 readers in southwest Houston, Friday it would fold this week.

Pat Smith, chief operating officer for the parent firm, Houston Community Newspapers Inc., said, "You can say with the closing of the Southwest office, that (the chain) is now profitable."

Cold cure developed

LONDON (AP) — A nasal spray has been developed after 36 years of research that will prevent the common cold and may cure it, a London newspaper said Saturday, adding that the researchers were seeking 180 volunteers to try it out.

The Daily Telegraph's health services correspondent David Fletcher said the spray was developed by scientists working for the Medical Research Council. The team is headed by Dr. John Wallace of the Common Cold Unit at Harvard Hospital, Salisbury, Wiltshire.

Fletcher quoted Wallace as saying the volunteers will be lodged in centrally heated apartments with free meals for three months. They will be treated three times a day with the spray and then given a cold virus to see whether it develops.

Wallace said the basis of the spray is interferon, a powerful anti-viral agent he described as highly effective against viruses that cause almost half of common colds. Used with interferon is another potent agent called Enviroxime, which reduces cold symptoms once a cold has been caught, Fletcher's report said.

"We urgently want volunteers to test our belief that we can prevent experimental colds with a simple nasal spray," Fletcher quoted Wallace as saying.

"The next step will be to get out of hospital into the world of work and ask a factory of not less than 100 people to use the nasal spray."

He said he expected the testing to take about five years before the spray would be ready to be marketed.

OCAW approves Shell contract

DEER PARK, Texas (AP) — Almost unanimous consent was given to a two-year contract by 2,100 members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union at Shell Oil Co. here.

Barely an hour after voting started Monday night, OCAW officials confirmed the agreement, terming the vote "close to unanimous."

No details of the contract were released but OCAW spokesman Roy Barnes said Monday the oil company's proposal was "in line with the national package."

On Sunday, about 250 workers in Texas City ratified a contract with Marathon Oil and 1,200 workers in Beaumont approved a new agreement with Mobil Oil Corp., union officials said.

The exact vote and the terms of both contracts were not disclosed.

U.S. grain farmers will be hurt by shrinking demands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers may get 5 to 10 cents a bushel less for their grain this season than experts were saying only a month ago, according to a new analysis by the Agriculture Department.

"Weakened economic activity in many countries is dampening global crop demand," the department's outlook board said Monday. "Limited growth in crop use will not match the sharp increases in 1981-82 production."

As one example of the trade slowdown, the department issued another report which showed the Soviet Union's grain imports now are not expected to be as large as U.S. officials had been saying.

Meanwhile, prospective world grain inventories are up from a month ago mainly because of revised figures showing larger U.S. 1981 crops and a slight reduction in projected global use.

Soybean supplies are "slightly below" last month's estimate, primarily because of a downward revision in the U.S. soybean harvest.

Consequently, officials said the U.S. wheat export estimate has been reduced by 50 million bushels to 1.85 billion bushels in 1981-82. Prices of wheat the farm could average $3.70 to $3.80 a bushel, compared to $3.70 to $3.85 projected in December and the average of $3.96 in 1980-81.

Feed grain exports and domestic use also will be weaker than previously indicated, the report said. Prices of corn now are expected to be $2.40 to $2.60 a bushel, compared to an average of $2.45 to $2.70 indicated last month. Corn at the farm averaged $3.10 a bushel last season.

Projections for rice were unchanged at $9 to $10.50 per 100 pounds, compared to $12.90 received by farmers last season. Soybean prices were projected at $5.75 to $6.75 a bushel, unchanged from December but well below last season's farm average of $7.61 a bushel.

Looking at the Soviet Union's situation, officials said grain imports from all foreign sources now are estimated at 42 million metric tons, a decline of 1 million tons from earlier indications. The period is for the international marketing year that will end on June 30.

However, at 42 million tons, the Soviet Union's grain imports would be record large and compares with the previous high of 34.5 million imported in 1980-81.

Officials said the Soviets "appear to have purchased or have commitments for around 37 million tons" of the import total for the 1981-82 year. Canada and Argentina are other major suppliers.

The monthly report said the downward revision was due to a number of factors, including recent reports of port congestion and delays in unloading grain ships.

Another factor cited is the "increased uncertainty" regarding trade "given the sanctions imposed" on the Soviet Union for its role in the military takeover in Poland.

The U.S. sanctions announced three weeks ago included the suspension of forthcoming discussions on a new long-term grain agreement to replace the one that will expire Sept. 30.

Cotton loans, certification major issues

Cotton loans and crop certification are main issues forcing the Howard County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, according to Tim Hall. The newsletter for the county committee reports the following information.

For the Cotton Program 1982 — the loan minimum is 55 cents per pound which is 2½ cents higher than 1981. However, a recent USDA publication stated cotton loan likely to be about 57 cents or 4½ cents higher. Target price of 71 cents, roughly the same as this year's 70.87 cents. "There is a possibility of a set aside for cotton (10-15 cents) in 1982. This is speculation at this point, but just wanted you to know of the possibility. Normal Crop Acreage (NCA) are being abolished on each farm.

The ASCS office is still making cotton loans. Some good news is 12½ percent interest rate from this January until next January on loans processed this month. Things that might influence a decision on the cotton into loan might be set aside possibilities for 1982, lower interest rate, higher loan rate, dry weather, wet weather, etc. for 1982. Loans are available through May 31, on cotton.

Target price payment on cotton (otherwise known as deficiency payments) will not be processed until after Feb. 1. The amount involved is not known yet.

Donnie Reid has been re-elected to a third term on the county committee. Donnie was elected on the first nominating ballot.

Conservation through cost sharing applications will be taken from Jan. 13-22. Applications will be taken on brush control, tanks, terraces, livestock water practices and waterways. A practice cannot be started before committee action has been taken. Please know who your contractor is when signing up unless you are to do the practice yourself.

Those who wish to file late certifications on wheat, corn, grain sorghum, cotton or barley for 1981 are urged to do so. This would be for crops you had not already certified this past summer. Some proof of the acreage reports will be needed as well as late filing fees.

Late File (Certification for Onions for the 1980 and 1981 crops are also requested. No payment will be required for this report.

Feedlot inventories dropping

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's inventory of cattle being fed for slaughter totaled 10.1 million head as of Jan. 1, the smallest for this time of year since 1975, says the Agriculture Department.

Officials said Monday the Jan. 1 inventory was down 9 percent from a year ago and 14 percent below two years ago.

High interest rates lagging consumer demand and harsh weather in some areas have contributed to the decline in feedlot cattle production.

The quarterly report, which covers 23 states, said feedlot cattle marketings during the October-December period totaled 5.45 million head, down 4 percent from a year earlier and 5 percent below the same period in 1979.

Placements of new cattle in feedlots were reported at 6.9 million head, 6 percent fewer than a year earlier and 12 percent fewer than in the fourth quarter of 1979.

Farmers and feedlot operators expect to market 5.93 million cattle in January-March of this year, down 1 percent from a year ago and 4 percent fewer than two years ago.

Lawyers debate premenstrual tension as a murder defense

LONDON (AP) — Christine English, a mother of two boys, stepped hard on the accelerator of her car and drove straight at her lover, pinning him to a telephone pole and killing him.

Sandie Smith, a barmaid on probation for stabbing a woman to death in a brawl, walked into a police station with a 4-inch knife and threatened to kill a sergeant because she said he had insulted her.

Both women claimed premenstrual tension provoked them to violence. Both were tried, convicted and then set free.

The two cases made legal history when they went through the British courts late last year.

Premenstrual tension, or PMT, a long-recognized medical condition that afflicts millions of women in varying degrees, had been used to explain relatively minor crimes such as shoplifting — but never as a defense for murder.

Now doctors and lawyers are debating just how far the rulings have opened, or should open, the courts to women hoping to escape punishment because of stress caused by the start of their natural monthly periods.

Dr. Gerald Swyer, an expert in gynecological medicine and a prosecution witness in the Smith trial, said he believes the way is clear for a barrage of frivolous court cases.

"It is a very disturbing situation," he said in an interview. "Any woman can plead PMT and literally get away with murder."

"I don't think anything is going to set back women's causes more than this thing," Swyer said. "To let women think they become criminal once a month as a result of their physiology is to really debase the status of women. This is to say women are criminal by nature."

However, Dr. Katharina Dalton, a gynecologist who appeared as a defense witness in both cases, said medical tests can easily verify whether a woman actually suffers from PMT and "only a few" women are driven to violence by it.

PMT occurs during the first four days before and the four days after the onset of menstruation. Symptoms include depression, lethargy, irritability, breast swelling and emotional and mental problems. When a woman's period is over, the symptoms disappear.

Mrs. Dalton, who has studied the disorder for the past 30 years and treats sufferers at her Harley Street clinic, said in an interview that an estimated one million women in Britain alone have a form of PMT severe enough to require treatment.

It is among these women, she said, that you find the "once-a-month suicide attempt and baby-batterers."

Mrs. English and Miss Smith both pleaded innocent of murder but guilty of the lesser charge of manslaughter due to diminished responsibility brought on by PMT.

Under British law, murder carries a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment, but manslaughter convictions leave sentencing to the judge's discretion.

Intentional pleas aside, the cases of Mrs. English and Miss Smith contrast starkly.

Mrs. English, a 37-year-old divorcee, had no previous criminal record and no history of uncontrolled violence, before her arrest for running down her lover, Barry Kitson, with her car on Dec. 16, 1980, in Colchester, 52 miles northeast of London.

She and Kitson had quarreled over another woman, but she testified she never meant to kill him, just to frighten him.

After her trial, she told reporters, "I knew my period was due but I didn't expect it with what happened... But I now know I am one of those women who have a bad reaction."

The 29-year-old Miss Smith, on the other hand, "became a raging animal each month" without treatment for PMT with the hormone drug, progesterone, said her lawyer, Keith Evans.

When she was arrested last year for threatening to kill a policeman, she already had some 30 previous convictions, including the manslaughter of another barmaid, theft, arson, assault, writing threatening letters and throwing bricks into windows.

Psychiatric reports said she had attempted suicide "dozens of times."

Mencken's new hoax

BALTIMORE (AP) — Legendary newspaperman H.L. Mencken never let the facts stand in the way of a good story, and a researcher thinks he's found another example of what Mencken called "the great art of synthesizing news."

John Baer, an economics teacher at Anne Arundel Community College and longtime Mencken fan, says the Baltimore journalist had a penchant for writing convincing hoax stories. He believes he's turned up a new one in "The Secret History of the Cocktail," printed on Dec. 13, 1908, in the Sunday Sun, of which Mencken was editor at the time.

"If I had to make a guess, it was all made up," Baer said Monday of the article, which purports to trace the derivation of the term cocktail as well as the history of mixed drinks.

In his memoir, "Newspaper Days," Mencken explains how, as a cub reporter for the Baltimore Herald, he learned the art of "news synthesis" from an experienced rival reporter, Leander J. de Bekker of the Baltimore American.

'Discover' will fill appetite for science

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Television has been fascinated with science — a subject readily adaptable to the screen — since the early 1950s, when "Mr. Wizard" amazed the kids with some rather simple experiments using "instruments" found around the house.

Recent productions like "Walter Cronkite's Universe" on CBS and the public TV series "Cosmos," "Nova" and "Life on Earth" — using advanced and sophisticated technology like micro-photography — have given altogether new meaning to science on TV.

America's appetite for science-on-the-tube appears insatiable, and it seems there is plenty of TV time available for those with the technology and expertise to package a program or series.

Omni magazine introduced "Omni: The New Frontier" in September, and now Time Inc.'s rival publication, Discover, is about to enter the competition with "Discover: The World of Science."

"Omni: The New Frontier," a half-hour each week, is syndicated to 68 stations, and at least 41 will carry the hour-long "Discover" special in prime time, beginning tonight and continuing through the end of January.

"Discover: The World of Science" is entertaining, though a bit uneven in content and treatment. The show includes a half-dozen segments that vary in length and subject — from the bombardier beetle to something called lucid dreaming, from stopping a heart attack to predicting an earthquake.

The earthquake piece may be the strongest in the show, if only for its unsettling message: "I know it could happen tomorrow," says Dr. Kerry Sieh, a geologist, "I know it could happen in 50 years. I know the chances are about 50 percent — in that time period — the chances are good I'm going to see a great event in California."

The program includes, in addition, an intriguing, though inconclusive, segment on whether the sun is shrinking. The program's producers, Graham Chedd and John Angier, are experts — award-winners with "Nova" — and they've used technology as well as a bit of drama in the "Discover" special.
