STEER ON THE RUN — Ropers in this weekend's charity steer-roping contest bring down a steer in the Hillman Saddlery arena. The competition drew ropers from around the West and raised over $2,000 for two area organizations aiding the handicapped.

Riders rope $2,000 for charity

By CAROL HART
Staff Writer

Jon Hillman of Hillman Saddlery and Western Wear reports that more than $2,000 was collected for the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center and the West Texas Rehabilitation Center at a charity steer-roping contest Hillman staged this weekend.

"We don't have the total figures," Hillman said today. "But it's well in excess of $2,000."

Recognized as the first-place team in the competition were Jim Rey of Pecos and Bob Spence of Sanderson. Each man won $1,735, Hillman said.

The second-place team was Tracy Glover of Midland, who won $1,000, and Gary Armitage of Portales, N.M., who won $1,135.

Third-place was claimed by John Eicke, who won $600, and Mike Jones, who won $825. Both men are from Snyder.

Fourth-place was won by Weldon Beck, Snyder, who won $500, and Claud Condron, Roaring Springs, $500. Fastest team named Sunday was that of Gary Armitage and Terry Glover. The men scored a 40.42-second run for four steers.

The top 16 teams named Saturday were John Eicke and Mike Jones, Gib Bell and J.B. Whatley, Brookes Gray and Doug Pettigrew, and Joe Fuentes and Eddie Joe Harper.

Others were Rudy Gabaldon and Rex Prather, Jim Rey and Bob Spence, Terry Glover and Gary Armitage and Brookes Gray and Rex Prather.

Also Gary Bruton and Gary Granzin, Melvin Foster and Tooter Jaimeson, J. Ray Basinger and J.B. Whatley, Kerry Bruton and Freddie Mason, Weldon Beck and Claud Condron, Freddie Lucero and Will Black, Clifford Ely and Freddie Mason and Johnny Eicke and Terry Maudlin.

There were 100 ropers entered in the competition.

High court upholds Estes conviction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today left intact the 1979 conviction of Billie Sol Estes for conspiring with West Texas financier Raymond Horton to conceal assets.

The justices, without comment, let stand a ruling rejecting the convicted swindler's claim that his conviction should be voided because of "prosecutorial vindictiveness or bad faith on the part of the government."

Estes, a businessman from Pecos, Texas, who often bragged of his political connections, was convicted in the early 1960s of tax fraud.

He spent several years in prison, and one of the conditions of his parole was that he not engage in any promotional activities.

The 1979 convictions of Estes and Horton centered on the government's undercover investigation of Estes' finances. Estes was convicted, in part, for concealing assets to avoid paying off his back-tax liability, which allegedly numbers in the tens of millions of dollars.

The government also contended that he illegally siphoned off investment funds to help support a struggling electronics firm.

BILLIE SOL ESTES ... conviction upheld

Estes was sentenced to 10 years in prison and is serving his sentence at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp. Last May 28, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the convictions of Estes and Horton.

Schoolbook campaigner due in Forsan

By TINA MILLER
Lifestyle Editor

Texas spends millions of dollars each year on textbooks for public schools. According to recent figures, the average textbook now costs the taxpayer approximately $15. All textbooks, however, are not created equal.

Mrs. Norma Gabler, who with her husband Mel works to improve the quality of textbooks in public schools, will speak at 7 p.m. today at the Forsan High School Auditorium. The program is free and open to the public and is sponsored by the GFWC Forsan Study Club.

Mrs. Gabler will explain textbook adoption procedure in Texas and tell how parents can become involved in the process.

The Gablers, who live in Longview, began their campaign for better textbooks in 1961 after their son complained that his history book omitted important facts. Since that time, the Gablers have taken their fight for better textbooks across the country and have appeared on international television.

The Gablers have been featured on CBS's "60 Minutes," ABC's "Good Morning America," the "Phil Donahue Show" and also were featured in the October 1981 issue of "People" magazine. The couple is the subject of the book, "Textbooks on Trial," by James C. Heffley, which reports on the couple's battle to improve quality of textbooks. The book will be available at the event.

Mrs. Gabler believes textbooks have improved since their campaign began. Other groups, she said, also lobby for better textbooks, and parents are becoming more involved as well.

"There's a different attitude toward parents today because we kept coming back," she said.

What the Gablers label as "objectionable" varies according to the subject matter of the book. Usually, the term means that the book does not adequately portray both sides of an issue.

"The book should present all the information or none of it on controversial issues," she said. The Gablers also object to books which, they say, teach social change rather than basic skills.

Mrs. Gabler believes so many textbooks are bad because neither the textbook committee nor the teachers have enough time to screen the books. Hundreds of books are presented for consideration, she said, and it is impossible to read each one.

Parents, she believes, should become actively involved in the education of their children.

"Parents should take time to listen to their children," she said. "Ask questions about what they are learning." Parents should not rush to the school just because of one objectionable passage. They should read carefully and study the material.

Drops out of land commissioners race

Clayton picks farming over politics

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton, 20-year-veteran of the Legislature, said today he was going back to farming instead of making a race for land commissioner.

"But it would be premature to say I would not be a candidate in the future," he told a Capitol news conference. "I'm just talking about 1982."

Clayton, 53, said he had a well-financed campaign underway and fully intended to announce as a Democratic candidate for land commissioner until "a unique business venture" arose Saturday.

He said his statement turning down the political race was written Sunday night, finished about midnight.

"If you think this wasn't a hard decision for me, you are out of your mind," he told reporters.

Clayton said two sections of land, about 1,200 acres, of choice farmland adjacent to his current two sections became available this weekend when the present owner got out of the farming business.

"My son, Tommy, and I were able

BILLY CLAYTON ... has 'unique opportunity' to consummate a business agreement just day before yesterday which will increase our farming operations by more than 50 percent. This is a big venture, and it will be an enjoyable challenge for this Clayton family," Clayton said.

He said the new land — leased not purchased — would be used for irrigated farming of corn and cotton as the current Clayton land is used.

"Many have encouraged me to make a statewide race, and it will be strange not having an election to face for the first time in 20 years; however, I know my decision is right," he said.

Clayton said he already had raised one-third of the $1 million he thought would be needed for the race, and he felt his qualifications "far outdistanced" the other announced candidates.

State Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson, D-Midland, and Garry Mauro are announced for the Democratic nomination for land commissioner, a job Bob Armstrong is vacating to run for governor.

Clayton, a wealthy Springlake cotton farmer and banker, said last February he would not seek reelection to the House and an unprecedented fifth term as speaker in 1983. His four terms as speaker set a state record.

He said 20 years in the House were enough.

"It's time to move on and let somebody else represent that district," Clayton said in February.

His plan in February was to make a statewide race or retire to his large farm northwest of Lubbock.

There was considerable speculation at times that he would make a race for governor or for comptroller if incumbent Bob Bullock decided not to run again.

Then in November, Clayton began telling supporters informally that he planned a race for land commissioner.

Clayton's original plans for a political future as a statewide candidate were clouded by his long trial in 1980 on FBI charges that he took a $5,000 cash payoff from an undercover informant who presented himself as an insurance man seeking Clayton's help in getting the group insurance contract for state employees.

Action/reaction: Shooting

Q. What procedure does the Big Spring Police Department take following a shooting?

A. In any incident when an officer fires his weapon but no one is injured, an internal investigation handled administratively is undertaken to determine if the shooting was justified, according to Police Chief Elwood Hoberz. If someone is injured by an officer firing his weapon, in addition to the internal affairs investigation, evidence is given to the district attorney to be presented to a grand jury, says Hoberz.

The evidence is used to determine if the officer should be no billed (case dismissed) or true billed (indicted) over the shooting, Hoberz said.

New York N-plant releases radiation

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A steam tube ruptured in a primary cooling system at the Ginna nuclear power plant in Ontario, N.Y., today, releasing radioactive steam into the atmosphere, a federal official said.

Radiation was released into the atmosphere from 9:09 a.m. to 10:42 a.m. and the wind was blowing from the northwest at 14 mph, the National Weather Service reported.

Monroe County Public Relations Officer Clarence Bassett said the release had been "isolated and terminated."

"Further radiological releases are not expected to occur," said Richard Sullivan, spokesman for the Rochester Gas & Electric Co., which operates the plant.

He said radiation checks showed the "dose rates" to be no higher than background level, or what could be expected in nature.

"Surface contamination is not expected to occur," Sullivan said in a late morning status report. "The plant status is now stable."

There is "no danger to the public at this time," said Sullivan.

Court to review Texas voting rights ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a restructuring of the Port Arthur, Texas, city council under the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

The justices said they will study a ruling that basically approves a city council restructuring but adds a key requirement for elections to two of the nine seats.

The change was subject to the 1965 act because of the possibility that the city's annexation of nearby communities in the late 1970s could have diluted blacks' voting strength.

The case could help define the limits of federal court control over voting act cases.

Last July, a three-judge federal court in Washington said it would approve the voting plan only if two of the three at-large council seats were decided by a plurality, rather than a majority vote.

A plurality vote means that the person with the most votes in a multi-candidate field wins. Under a majority vote system, a winner in a multi-candidate field needs more votes than all of his rivals combined.

The city appealed to the Supreme Court, objecting only to the shift from majority vote to plurality vote for the two seats.

"By imposing this additional requirement for approval, the court exceeded its authority under the Voting Rights Act," the city's lawyers argued.

Either the U.S. attorney general or a three-judge court in Washington must approve changes subject to the Voting Rights Act.

Assault trial to begin

Jurors are expected to be selected tomorrow for the assault trial of Travis Floyd. Floyd is charged with a Nov. 13, 1981, assault on his then-wife Claudene Floyd at the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

Jury selection is scheduled for 9 a.m. Tuesday with the prosecution handled by a special prosecutor, Robert Morris, the county attorney for Martin County.

Floyd is to be defended by the firm of Hamby and Thompson.

Former bishop to speak

COLORADO CITY — Retired Bishop Alsie Carleton will be the featured speaker at the kickoff dinner for the Big Spring District McMurry College Annual Fund Drive, slated for Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the First United Methodist Church of Colorado City.

The church will host volunteers from area churches to assist in the fund-raising event. Archie L. Holland of Midland is chairman for the Big Spring District.

A similar meeting, also featuring Bishop Carleton, is set for Jan. 28 at the First Methodist Church of Big Spring. The dinner meeting is set for 7 p.m.

Funds raised by the volunteers sustain the teaching efforts of McMurry College, a four-year liberal arts school established in 1923 in Abilene.

McMurry is owned and operated by the Northwest Texas and New Mexico conferences of the United Methodist Church, which includes the Big Spring and Colorado City areas.

Forsan board seeks bids

The Forsan Independent School District met recently to approve advertising for bids to carpet dressing rooms and offices in the new field house and gymnasium. The board also set the trustees' election for April 3.

Three positions are to be filled in the trustees' election.

Other action taken by the board included extension of the superintendent's contract and the addition of a maintenance position at the Elbow Elementary School campus.

Board President Dr. Robert Patterson presided at the 7 p.m. meeting.

Oilfield company started

Travis Floyd has announced the formation of Western Trailer-Equipment-Manufacturing of Big Spring. The new company, which will be located on the south service road at Highway 350, will be engaged in selling, refurbishing, repairing, leasing and building of oilfield equipment. The new company will also be the area supplier and distributor for all related items and parts.

Talking about the new facility, Floyd said they would be engaged in selling all types of trailers, ranging from the one-ton gooseneck to the 50-ton lowboy used in the oilfields. The company will also carry a stock of all types of chemical trailers, including those used in hauling propane, water, gas, and oil.

In addition, Floyd, the new corporate president, said the company would have the ability to either customize a trailer in accordance to the needs and specifications of their individual clients, or could take an existing trailer and refurbish and repair it to the wishes of its owner.

Western Trailer-Equipment-Manufacturing of Big Spring will also have a complete leasing department for customers who may prefer to lease a trailer rather than buy one.

In addition, Western Trailer-Equipment-Manufacturing of Big Spring will carry all types of hydraulic, high pressure hoses, as well as have a complete facility for hydraulic cranes. The company will have a complete rig-up shop for all types of oilfield equipment and will be the distributor for Fontaine dumps, as well as their lifts and other components.

The company, although new to Big Spring, will be one of four similar plants currently located in the area. Plants are presently in operation in San Angelo, Abilene, and Hobbs, New Mexico, with plans for others to open in the future. Plans are also underway for an expansion program at the local facility.

"We plan to hire as many of our key skilled employees from Big Spring as possible," Floyd said. "I feel the company will be good for the local economy and provide additional employment opportunities for our citizens."

WATERFALL OVER HIGHWAY — An observer stands on an undermined portion of Interstate 90s eastbound lanes where rampaging Olallie Creek dumped tons of rock and dirt, then washed out portions of the highway's shoulder about three miles west of the Snoqualmie Pass summit. Cleanup and repairs on the damaged area of Washington's major east-west highway will take at least a week.

Police Beat

Man shot on Gregg overpass

Police today are investigating the case of a local man who claims he was shot while crossing the Gregg Street overpass about 11:24 p.m. Sunday.

Frank Oliveras, 20, 1206 Mesquite, told police he was walking over the overpass when he felt a sharp pain in his lower left side.

He said he fell on the ground, then got up and walked to the Nichols Laundry, where he was picked up by people there and taken to the Malone-Hogan Hospital emergency room, according to police reports.

He is listed in stable condition at the hospital today, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Police investigating the incident say Oliveras said several cars were passing by when he allegedly was shot.

● Police were summoned to 1100 E. 14th by neighbors who heard a woman screaming for help about 4 a.m. Sunday. When they arrived, they said they found Chris Armstrong lying on the floor with a gunshot wound to his left knee. Police reports show the wound may have been accidental. Armstrong was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital where he is in stable condition.

● Luis Perez, 1600 Mesquite, told police a person entered his home about 5:10 a.m. today through a bedroom window. Police said they arrested Larry Simmons of 908 S. Bell in connection with the incident. Bell was charged with attempted escape after he allegedly tried to break away from officers, according to reports.

● Norma Ochoa, 1205 W. Sixth, told police that at about 6:30 p.m. Sunday, someone threw black paint on the top and back of her vehicle, causing about $600 in damage. The vehicle was parked at the Gibson's parking lot.

● Wade Burroughs, 2803 MacAuslan, told police the front and back windows on his 1978 Datsun pickup were damaged when someone threw a small beer bottle. The incident occurred sometime Friday night or early Saturday morning while the car was parked at Burroughs residence, according to police reports.

● Richard Kent Plemons of Allen told police that while his car was parked at a Fina Station lot on North Lamesa Highway between Tuesday and Sunday, someone stole an AM-FM auto cassette player, valued at $200, and an auto battery, valued at $65.

● William James Munden of Midland told police that a vehicle he was responsible for, belonging to the Valley Steel Company of Houston, was taken from the Rip Griffin's parking lot about 1:20 a.m. Sunday. Munden said that persons unknown to him took the keys to the vehicle from him by diversion, according to police. The vehicle was valued at $9,000.

● Carl Merz of Oklahoma City, Okla., told police that someone broke the window of a truck owned by the Flanagan Pipe Co. of Oklahoma City, about 7 p.m. Saturday in the 1200 block of Gregg. Merz said a person known to him threw a brick at the vehicle, police said.

● James A. Reese, 1405 Tucson, told police that while his 1981 vehicle was parked at the Other Place, 800 W. Fourth, between last night and early this morning, someone took the car, valued at $6,500. Reese told police the keys were in the vehicle.

● Jack Himes, of Jack Lewis Buick and Cadillac, told police that a person known to him took a vehicle from the car lot Wednesday for a test drive, and never returned.

● A minor accident was reported to police about 12:22 p.m. Sunday at Fifth and Nolan. Cars driven by Robert Delgado, 510 N.E. Eight, and Charles Dickerson, 1700 Yale, collided at that time, police reports show.

Banquet recognizes scouts

ANDREWS — The annual recognition banquet of the Buffalo Trail Council of the Boy Scouts of America was held Friday night in the Andrews Civic Center.

Richard Bentley, director of the South Central Region for the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, was the featured speaker. The South Central Region covers a five state area, including Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas. Master of ceremonies was K.D. Van Horn of Midland.

Four adult Scout leaders were presented the Silver Beaver Award, the highest award that can be presented by a Boy Scout Council for outstanding volunteer service. Persons receiving the Silver Beaver Award were: Melvin Moeling of Colorado City; Mrs. Jeanne Lewis of Odessa; Dr. David Norton of Midland; and Ken Peeler of Midland.

The Silver Beaver Award is made for "noteworthy service of exceptional character to boyhood by registered scouters within the jurisdiction of the Buffalo Trail Council." Dr. Paul Hollinshead of Kermit presided over the recognitions.

Approximately 300 adults from throughout the 18-county Buffalo Trail Council attended the banquet.

George Eng of Midland was installed as president of the council for 1982. Guy McCrary of Midland was named treasurer, and J. William Milner of Midland as assistant treasurer. Council vice presidents named were Frank Cowden Jr., Robert M. Leibrock, Rudy Wright, and Kenneth Peeler of Midland; J. Arnold Marshall of Big Spring; Homer Stewart and Judge Gary Watkins of Odessa. Charles Ross of Odessa was named council commissioner.

Outgoing council president K.D. Van Horn of Midland was presented with a special recognition oil painting for two years of distinguished volunteer service to the council.

District chairmen for 1982 named were: Larry Speck of Big Spring for the Lone Star District; Alan Hale of Midland for Chaparral District; Halley Brookshire of Pecos for Sand Hills; Dr. Tom Scannicchio of Snyder for Lone Buffalo; and James Haley of Alpine for Big Bend District.

Grady Cunningham of Big Spring was named as a new adult member of the executive board of the Buffalo Trail Council. The board is composed of 50 volunteers from the 18-county area of West Texas served by the Buffalo Trail Council.

Eagle Scout Malcolm Upton, a member of Scout Troop 9 of Colorado City, was recognized as winner of the 1981 National Boy Scout Public Speaking Contest for Area IV of the South Central Boy Scout Region, which includes West Texas and New Mexico.

County seeks bids for copiers

By MIKE DOWNNEY Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners decided today to advertise for bids on five copying machines for the courthouse following a discussion with Xerox sales representative Manuel Hinojos.

County Auditor Jackie Olson approved the commissioners with the plan to purchase the copiers currently leased by the county. County Engineer Bill Mims also requested that the commissioners replace a copier in his office. Hinojos presented figures and possibilities to the court concerning these copiers.

Hinojos told the commissioners that the copiers currently leased from Xerox, plus a new one for the engineer's office, would cost $30,313. But compared with the present outlay of $1,080 a month for rent and maintenance, the copiers could be bought for $825 a month with financing covering maintenance as well.

Commissioner Bill Crocker pointed out the purchase of the copiers would be a savings of $254 a month. However, Commissioner David Barr noted the county could save $10,804 if the copiers were purchased now for cash.

Following a discussion on whether or not the county would have to advertise for bids, the commissioners approved a motion to advertise for bids for five copiers with bids to be opened Feb. 19 and considered at the Feb. 22 commissioners' meeting.

In other action, the commissioners heard from the county engineer on the progress of work on the Forsan road from Highway 87 to Forsan. Mims told the commissioners the county's fencing work was nearly complete, but the utility companies were not completing their right-of-way work on schedule.

Commissioners were later expected to hold conferences with Dorothy Moore, tax assessor-collector, concerning computer purchases and with Bonnie Franklin, treasurer, about county employees' six-month raises. Commissioners were also to consider bids on beds for the district court jury quarters and hold a discussion with the Howard County Boxing team.

Farmers vs. animal rights groups?

By PHIL SWANN States News Service

WASHINGTON — American Farm Bureau Federation President Robert Delano charged recently that farmers and ranchers could be wiped out by two imminent threats: high interest rates and animal rights organizations.

Unquestionably, soaring interest rates are sending farmers to bankruptcy court. But animal rights organizations?

Delano's disdain, albeit political hyperbole, exposes a deep-rooted concern in the agriculture community: the nation, believing that farm animals receive inhumane treatment, may force farmers to develop new and expensive methods of care.

Lobbying groups, such as the American Humane Society, are stampeding Capitol Hill to push for legislation that would outlaw the use of hormone implants and antibiotics to spur rapid growth, "overstocking" of poultry to ensure high production and other allegedly "inhumane" techniques.

"Most farmers are as humane as the average person," says Marvin Passaglia, executive director of the American Humane Association. "However, we have become such a nation of mass-producers they are forced to do it to meet demand."

Change, Passaglia says with tongue in cheek, would cost farmers "chicken-scratch."

But agriculture leaders contend that it would cost a fortune and, in these financially troubled times for farmers, they add that it is unbelievable that the matter is even under consideration.

Currie named to statewide bank board

John Currie, president of State National Bank, has been elected to the board of directors of the Texas Independent Bank, which opened recently in Dallas.

Capitalized at over $15 million — the largest new capitalization in U.S. history — the bank was formed to serve independent institutions of the state by handling their correspondent needs.

At present, 326 independent banking institutions are subscribing members.

Currie explained that the Texas Independent Bank is a "banker's bank" which hopes to be "an alternative to the big holding companies which are trying to monopolize the industry."

Court permits Indians to tax natural resources

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, giving the nation's Indian tribes new and powerful economic leverage, ruled today that tribes can collect taxes on natural resources taken from their reservations.

By a 6-3 vote, the justices said the Jicarilla Apache tribe can impose such a severance tax on oil and gas extracted from its reservation in northwestern New Mexico.

"Based on ... the conception of Indian tribes as domestic, dependent nations, we conclude that the tribe has the authority to impose a severance tax on the mining activities ... as part of its power to govern and to pay for the costs of self-government," Justice Thurgood Marshall wrote for the court.

And it expanded previous court rulings on tribal taxing powers by stating that such power does not come solely from the authority to exclude non-Indians from reservation lands.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices John Paul Stevens and William H. Rehnquist dissented, stating that the tribe had leased the authority to take oil and gas from its reservation lands without mentioning any tax.

Noting that the tax affects wealthy oil companies, Stevens added, "Neither wealth, political opportunity nor past transgressions can justify denying any person the protection of the law."

Challenging the Jicarilla Apache tribe's taxing system were numerous oil companies, including Amoco, Marathon, Atlantic Richfield, Phillips Petroleum, Getty Oil, Gulf and Mobil.

Charity walk under way

LAMESA (SC) — Today marks a special day of giving and walking in Lamesa as the March of Dimes Mothers March gets under way this afternoon.

A large group of Lamesa High School students under the direction of Iva Beck, home economics teacher, will be walking through town collecting money for the March of Dimes.

Several clubs at Lamesa High School have become involved in the march this year. They include HERO, HECE, FMA, Spanish Club and the Future Teachers of America.

Rita Dyer is chairman of the march.

The town has been divided into five sections and each group of marchers have been assigned a section. A local goal is $2,000.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service predicts showers Tuesday for parts of Oregon and Washington. Flurries are predicted for parts of Montana and Wyoming. Snow is predicted for parts of Minnesota and North Dakota.

Mild temperatures forecast for Texas

By The Associated Press

Clear to partly cloudy skies and mild temperatures were forecast for all of Texas today. Highs were to be mostly in the 60s over the northern half of the state and in the 70s with a few readings in the low 80s in the southern half. Lows tonight will range from the 30s and 40s in North Texas to the 50s and 60s in South Texas. Highs Tuesday will again be mostly in the 60s and 70s. Skies were mostly clear around the state early today although it was cloudy and some fog was reported in South Central Texas. Early morning temperatures ranged from the 30s in the Panhandle and extreme Southwest Texas to the 40s and 50s over the rest of the state. Extremes ranged from 31 at El Paso to 67 at Brownsville. Some early morning readings around the state included 38 at Amarillo, 33 at Wichita Falls.

FORECAST
 WEST TEXAS — Mostly fair through Tuesday except partly cloudy Panhandle Tuesday. Not so warm today, but warmer Tuesday. Highs upper 50s Panhandle to mid 60s south except upper 70s Big Bend. Lows near 30 north to upper 30s south. Highs Tuesday upper 40s to near 70 except upper 70s Big Bend.

EXTENDED FORECAST
 WEST TEXAS: Occasional high cloudiness. Turning cooler Thursday. Highs 40s and 70s north to 70s and 80s south, cooling to 40s north to 70s south by Thursday and Friday. Lows 30s and 40s north to 40s and 50s south cooling to 30s north to 40s south by Thursday and Friday.

Seven Texans killed in Laredo plane crash

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) investigators plan today to inspect the charred wreckage of a twin-engine private plane to determine why it crashed near an airport runway Sunday morning, killing all seven Texans on board.

Warren V. Wandel, an air safety investigator for the NTSB office in Fort Worth, arrived after dark Sunday for an initial look at the crash site, but he said an intensive investigation could not begin until sunrise today.

Wandel said the plane wreckage would be moved into an aircraft hangar for a thorough investigation, which should be completed by Tuesday.

The plane made a refueling stop in San Antonio, Wandel said, but did not file an instrument flight plan.

Wandel said investigators would attempt to trace the plane's route while he looked into the cause of the crash.

"All of this will be compiled into a report and turned over to a five-man board in Washington. They will make a determination that could take several weeks," Wandel said.

Police Chief Victor L. Garcia said the Cessna 402 was approaching Runway 17-Left, 1.5 miles north of the tower at Laredo International Airport, when it suddenly plunged 75 feet to the ground and exploded into flames 50 feet from the runway.

"He just went into a nose dive," said airport policeman K.J. Fischer, who saw the crash while he was driving on a perimeter road.

The craft struck with such impact that it buried its two propellers in a grassy concourse between two runways. It then somersaulted another 20 feet, where its fuselage, wings and tail section came to rest, mostly intact.

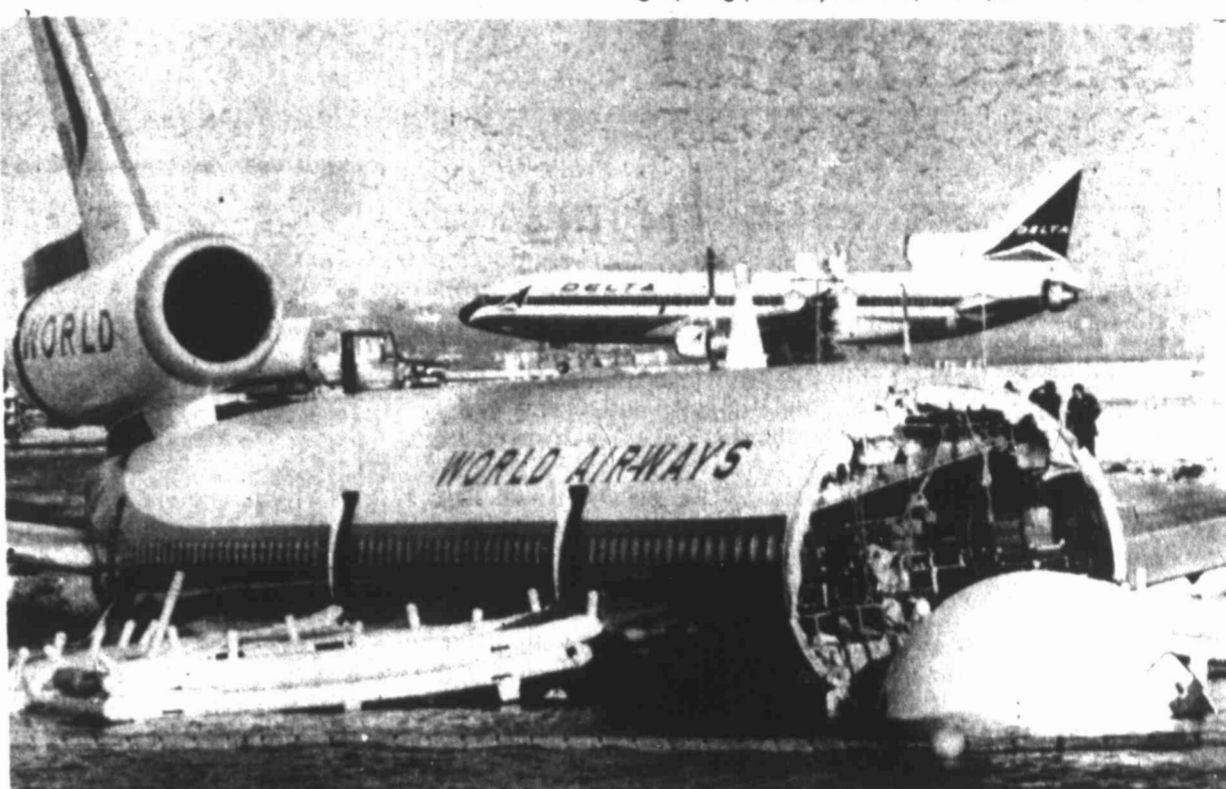

The front portion of the plane was torn open by the impact, scattering passenger seats and bodies on the ground before it. The passenger compartment caught fire, igniting a blaze that blackened grass in an area the size of a football field.

Two charred men's shoes and the sole of a woman's sandal were found near the scene.

Department of Public Safety spokesman Larry Todd identified the victims, all Texas residents, as: Robert Joseph Brandt, 45, of Angleton, the pilot; Vernon Lee Meyer, 46, of Oyster Creek; Shirley Keller Meyer, 45, of Oyster Creek; Sheila Tarrant, 36, of Lake Jackson; Jo Ann Graf, 40; Larry Graf, 20, and Donna Graf, 17, all of Dilley.

Brandt, the pilot, was an employee of Dow Chemical Co. in Lake Jackson, Todd said. Meyer was the owner of S&M Construction Co. and had bought the plane in the past week, Todd said.

DPS Sgt. Robert Rankin said people in an airplane waiting for takeoff said the plane appeared to stall as it approached for a landing.

IN THE WATER — World Airways DC-10 lies in shallow water just at the end of the runway at Logan International Airport in Boston Sunday while a Delta flight comes in for a landing. The World Airways jet skidded off the end of the runway with 208 people aboard Saturday night with none of the passengers being seriously injured.

The jet skidded off the end of the runway with 208 people aboard Saturday night with none of the passengers being seriously injured.

'Runway safe,' official says

BOSTON (AP) — A World Airways DC-10 that plunged into shallow water and cracked in two might have skidded on a slick spot as it landed in icy rain, according to an airline official and some of the 208 people aboard. But an airport spokesman said the runway was "safe."

Federal officials, investigating the third jetliner accident in bad weather in two weeks, say weather and runway conditions at Logan International Airport will be among the prime focuses of the inquiry into the crash Saturday night of Flight 30.

No one was killed or seriously injured when the plane splashed into Boston Harbor, although four people remained hospitalized today, including the pilot. The 196 passengers and 12 crew members scrambled down emergency chutes and waded through waist-deep water.

"A pilot or co-pilot, stunned, walked past us, and he was saying, 'I couldn't stop the plane, I couldn't stop the plane,'" said Jeffrey Carr, a college student from Attleboro, Mass. "He was in a total state of shock."

Passenger Debra Carr of Sandwich reported the runway was "sheer, smooth ice, just like a skating rink" as she walked from the wreck.

"My information is the plane hit an icy slick and skidded. But that's what the National Transportation Safety Board is trying to find out," World Airways spokesman Michael Henderson said.

Patricia Goldman of the safety board, who is heading a 10-member investigative team, said, "Weather conditions and the airport's decision to operate is a key area we'll be looking at. We will be concentrating on the runway environment and the weather."

Officials from the Massachusetts Port Authority, which operates the airport, said runways had been plowed and sanded, and said other jets landed safely.

"The runway was open and operational. As far as we're concerned, it was safe," said Patrick Moscaritolo, a port authority spokesman.

Pilot Peter Langley, 34, who was thrown into the water, was in good condition after being treated for hypothermia, cuts and bruises.

Co-pilot Donald Hertzfeldt, 38, was released after being treated for exposure. "I'm all right, but I really don't care to talk about it," he said Sunday by telephone from his hospital room.

The jet remained in the icy ocean water today, its tail on land and the severed cockpit dangling from the body. The fuel was unloaded, but officials had not decided when or how to remove the aircraft.

The cockpit voice recorder and the flight data recorders were due to arrive in Washington today for lab analysis, said NTSB spokesman Robert Buckhorn.

Officials hoped the recorders would reveal at what point on the 10,081-foot runway the plane, which under ideal conditions takes 5,000 feet to land, touched down. The recorders also were expected to reveal what the crew said before landing, the plane's speed, direction and angle of flight, and "sounds such as switches being thrown, changes in engine noises, and warning horns," Buckhorn said.

Ms. Goldman said it could take four to six months before the board rules on the probable cause of the accident.

'Best' student held in cheerleader death

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Last year Retha Stratton was a high school cheerleader and Wesley Wayne Miller, voted "Best All 'Round" student in the class, wrote in her yearbook, "I'd like to get to know you better."

Now Miss Stratton is dead, brutally stabbed and slashed and left in her closet, and Miller has been charged with murder.

Miller was a three-sport athlete, known to teachers and his friends in the Castleberry High School class of 1981 as clean-cut, outgoing and polite. He and Miss Stratton were "good friends," a schoolmate recalled.

Police said Miller wanted to date Miss Stratton, but was rejected.

Miller, who was arrested over the weekend, is being held on $25,000 bond.

Peace Justice Morris Howeth said he would review the bond, today, in light of a police investigation into three recent rapes, one involving another former cheerleader at the school of 900 students, and another involving an ex-cheerleader's sister.

Miss Stratton's roommate, Amy King, told police she returned to their apartment Thursday evening and found blood on a wall and on a living room lamp. She said she ran next door to get her sister, Jennifer. The two returned armed with a baseball bat and discovered Miss Stratton's partially-clad body in a bedroom closet.

Police said they found no evidence of a struggle and no valuables had been taken.

Tarrant County medical examiner Dr. Nizam Peerwani said Miss Stratton, 18, had been stabbed 25 times in the chest and 10 times in the neck, and her wrists had been slit.

Medical examiners were to determine today whether Miss Stratton had been sexually assaulted.

TEEN TRAGEDY — Wesley Wayne Miller, 19, left, a former Fort Worth Castleberry High football player, is being held in connection with the slaying death of Retha Stratton, 18, right, a 1981 graduate of the same school and a cheerleader there.

Fort Worth police Sgt. H.L. Wyatt said Miller, 19, became a prime suspect after "several witnesses reported seeing his pickup truck nearby about the time of the murder."

"Several people knew the vehicle and knew who drove it," Wyatt said of the maroon 1981 Chevrolet.

Wyatt said Miller had tried to date Miss Stratton after their graduation but was rejected.

Since graduation, Miss Stratton had worked at the Ralston Purina Co. as a computer terminal operator. Friends said she had been cautious because of recent attacks on young women.

Police said that in early December, a former cheerleader and the sister of another were raped on consecutive nights in their parents' homes. The rapist in each case wore a ski mask and entered the home through an unlocked door between 10:30 and 11 p.m., River Oaks Police Chief Walter Schertz said.

Judge OKs linking evidence in Atlanta case

ATLANTA (AP) — Prosecutors in Wayne B. Williams' double murder trial may present evidence they say could link him to the killings of 10 other young blacks, a judge ruled today.

Judge Clarence Cooper said he would allow the evidence "for the limited purpose" of showing Williams' alleged "plan, scheme, pattern, bent of mind and identity" in the deaths of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21.

The jury, which had been sent out of the courtroom Friday during arguments on the question of admitting the fiber evidence, was brought back into court as testimony resumed this morning.

Prosecutors said they would call witnesses in an effort to link Williams to the other killings if Cooper allowed the evidence.

The deaths of 28 young blacks here over two years were investigated by a special police task force. Williams, a black, is charged in two — the deaths of Cater and Payne — and no charges have been filed in the other cases.

Before Cooper's ruling, prosecutors conceded their case is based on circumstantial evidence and said testimony about related crimes was crucial to the case. Assistant District Attorney Joe Drolet said Friday that evidence linking Williams to the other slayings would show a pattern of killings and identify Williams as the likely perpetrator of those crimes.

But defense lawyer Alvin Binder argued that allowing evidence of other killings would be highly prejudicial and legally unjustified.

Big cars die hard

Having gotten the message that big is on the way out, Detroit automakers are in the midst of the biggest downsizing program in U.S. automotive history.

But "big" is dying hard with the American motorist.

Thus Detroit's sales of luxury and full-sized autos grew by 5.3 percent from August to December while total sales dropped 5.7 percent from the 1980 level.

General Motors' total sales were off 7.8 percent from last year but the Oldsmobile division sold 7 percent more of its '88' models and 15 percent more of its luxurious '98.' Similarly, Cadillac sales of full-sized autos were up 10.2 percent.

MUCH OF THIS is accounted for by the fact that the American motorist has a short memory. Gasoline supplies and prices have become stable in the wake of the decontrol of oil and overall reduction in gasoline consumption.

Thus motorists forget the shortages of 1974-75 and 1979, time when big cars went begging for owners.

Additionally, the fuel consumption of big cars of today has been improved drastically. Acceptance of the diesel engine has been tremendous. About 30 percent of all full-sized Oldsmobiles are diesels which deliver fuel consumption figures that compare favorably with many smaller gasoline-powered vehicles.

And, anyone pricing new autos can tell you that small isn't cheap. In fact, the spread between compact and big products from Detroit is much smaller than it used to be.

Although the conventional wisdom is that the motoring public buys only what Detroit decides it will market, the fact is that buyers on many occasions in recent decades shunned automakers' efforts to sell small vehicles.

THE PUBLIC RESISTANCE to smaller cars has been directly tied to the availability and pricing of gasoline. Now, however, Detroit has launched a downsizing program that it couldn't turn around if it wanted to. Redesign, retooling and rebuilding manufacturing plans is running into the billions. In short, the companies have too much invested in the program to change it.

So the long-term still holds much smaller vehicles from Detroit — unless the public simply refuses to buy them — a phenomenon which has frustrated Detroit makers many times in the past two decades.

The idea that big is better is dying hard among American motorists. Apparently there are a lot of us who will buy the big American auto as long as there is a shred of hope that we can obtain and pay for the fuel to run it.

Agony of defeat

On a recent skiing trip I figured out why ABC's Wide World of Sports uses a skier as the symbol for "the agony of defeat."

I spent most of my time on the slopes falling down, struggling to get up, plowing into snow banks and dodging other more skillful skiers gliding down the mountain.

But the real agony comes the day after. For two days it was a struggle to move as almost every effort was accompanied by a dull ache in some part of my body.

I had never been skiing before so you might have guessed by now, but I had always harbored a secret desire to coast down the snowy runs like Jean Claude Kilby or Billy Kidd. However, my skiing style more closely resembled the poor smuck on Wide World who goes flying head over heels off of a jump ramp into a snow bank.

It was also a very depressing and shattering experience to be lying there on my back and watch a four-year-old skier in a pee-wee ski class come flying by me with the greatest of ease.

I FOUND OUT skiing is an expensive sport. There are lift tickets, boot, pole and ski rental fees, not to mention lodging and other miscellaneous expenses. For $18 a day the ski resort let me fall down all I wanted. There is definitely a price to be paid for being a tourist.

The particular resort I was at was owned by American Indians which I thought was appropriate. It's about time the Indians got revenge on us palefaces for all those broken peace treaties and badly acted westerns.

ANOTHER THING I noticed while I was upended along the trail: almost everyone is color coordinated. Most of the skiers looked like they had just stepped out of a ski magazine advertisement. Every color of the rainbow passed by my wet, cold and tired carcass.

I came to believe that color coordination is a very important part of skiing. It seems to help a person keep his balance as he goes by sneering at inert beginners along the way.

However, despite the above observations I did have fun and someday I'll probably go back to the slopes. After all, there's really nothing like wet snow in your ears to make you feel close to nature.

Maybe someday an ABC film crew will be on the slopes and just happen to see me ski by, and once they see me fall down, they'll know they have a new star for "the agony of defeat."

Bank teller retires

Dear Editor,

After thinking it over, I finally retired.

Forty-four years after I was hired. Mr. Currie said, "Until the first of the year."

But he never did make the time quite clear.

So I kept going back day after day. I was very sad when he passed away.

Then there was Robert, a wonderful boss.

When he died, it was such a great loss.

Then John — when I started, he was just a boy.

I took him to the circus, and bought him a toy.

I never thought TGIF or when do I get my pay.

But always looked forward to the next Monday.

Mondays to me, were never blue — Because I was doing what I wanted to.

So you see, until the end of my forty-fourth year.

It was not a job, but a "Great Career."

Taiwan could build nukes

WASHINGTON — Taiwan could build a small number of nuclear bombs within six months; so says a recent top-secret Defense Intelligence Agency report.

But U.S. analysts doubt that the Taiwanese will choose to do so, for fear of unfavorable American reaction and military retaliation.

Mainland China might be provoked into attacking Taiwan.

The Taiwanese military nuclear capability is the result of an intensive seven-year development program that would not have been possible without American technology, training and support — at least in the initial phases. It was begun in 1974 when the United States withdrew the nuclear weapons it had secretly deployed on Taiwan.

Until then, the Taiwanese had seen no need for a nuclear deterrent of their own. But on March 14, 1974, Henry Kissinger signed National Security Decision Memorandum 248, which is still classified top-secret. It stated that President Nixon "directs the following changes in deployments and status of U.S. forces based on Taiwan: ...Withdraw our nuclear weapons during the last half of (1974). Place Taiwan Air Base on a caretaker basis, upon removal of nuclear weapons ..."

Late that same year, the Taiwanese nuclear weapons program began at the Chung San Institute of Science and Technology with the approval of Chiang Ching-kuo, who became president early in 1975 after the death of his father, Chiang Kai-shek. U.S. intelligence agencies kept close watch on the progress of the Taiwanese scientists, according to secret CIA and Pentagon documents seen by my associate Dale Van Atta.

THE MAJOR FACILITY was the Taiwan Research Reactor, which "produces about 10 kilograms of 'weapon grade' plutonium per year" under average conditions, the CIA reported, adding: "The reactor was obtained from Canada along with fuel for more than two full core loadings."

Another report pointed out that the Taiwanese have accumulated an unknown amount of radioactive material, including at least 160 tons of uranium from South Africa purchased in 1977. And in 1980, Taiwan signed a six-year contract with South Africa for at least 3,500 tons of uranium. As I reported earlier, South Africa, Israel and Taiwan have collaborated on their separate nuclear weapons programs.

Lacking proper missiles, the Taiwanese could deliver nuclear devices "only by surface means or by a large transport aircraft such as a C-130," according to one intelligence report.

Such primitive delivery systems would be daunting enough. But there are even more compelling reasons why U.S. experts think it's unlikely — but not impossible — that the Taiwanese will turn their capability into actual construction of nuclear weapons at this time. A Pentagon analysis explains:

"Despite public and private assurances that it does not intend to build nuclear weapons, many officials at high levels on Taiwan continue to believe that a nuclear capability will provide the ROC (Taiwan) with an independent deterrent in the event security arrangements with the U.S. are unsatisfactory."

"However, we believe that Taiwan will stop short of actually developing nuclear weapons for two reasons. First, given the U.S. position on nuclear proliferation, Taipei realizes that we would react sharply if Taiwan developed a nuclear weapon. In this regard, we believe that the ROC will continue to place greater value on continued ties (albeit less formal ones) with the U.S., particularly continued U.S. support to nuclear power programs on Taiwan, than on acquiring a token nuclear capability."

"A second factor influencing Taiwan's acquisition of nuclear weapons involves the possibility of a strong PRC (People's Republic of China) reaction. In this regard, the ROC is likely to believe that any movement toward the actual deployment of nuclear weapons by the ROC would significantly increase the probability of military action against Taiwan."

Police chief should be elected

Dear Editor,

There seems to be a lot of controversy about the police staff and community citizens. I have heard many different opinions about the police force, Chief of Police and citizens.

For instance, many feel a grave injustice against the community citizens. A right to carry on everyday life without the threat of harassment. I am in 100 percent agreement with the law. But "the law" just like the Bible is translated in many different versions.

Another controversy is position of "Chief of Police." Many feel that a position of such great importance should be regarded as such. A man chosen for the position by the community. After all it's our community, don't you think we deserve the right to elect a man who is to lead us in peace and harmony?

Until recently I was not aware of the corruption and injustice in our community. But there is apparently "unrest" in our judicial law here.

Big Spring is my home, my life and my future. I'm proud I live here, and I want it to be the best it can be. But it takes concerned citizens like you and I to become involved. Speak up for what you feel is right. Be better informed! Let us pull together to fight crime and injustice.

Sincerely concerned,

expired inspection sticker a while back and the policeman was very nice.

I think our police department could use the F.B.I., State Attorney General's office and Sixty Minutes brought into Big Spring, so the whole world can know what a darn good job our Police force does.

Crime is bad in Big Spring but it's the courts that let the scum and trash loose in the town that makes it bad.

Our police force from the new chief on down to their job while the police is the ones that are being abused and I wouldn't care if they couldn't track an elephant in the snow if she's the elephant and ever needs help. She'd better get on her knees and thank God we have our police department and change her way of living and her friend's.

However I'm an ex-deputy sheriff's daughter, an ex-cop's wife and a cop's mother and damn proud of it.

'nuts' or 'stupid'

Dear Editor,

I think Ms. Gilstrap is absolutely right about our Police Dept. Whoever wrote that editorial on Jan. 19, 1982 has got to be "nuts" or just plain "stupid." This person wrote an editorial "congratulating the Police Dept."

It sounds like this person got his or her story from the Police Chief, with things said like, "well, the Police Chief feels the reason for this is bla-bla-bla." That's real nice. I'll bet you wouldn't have got such a nice story from some of the people here in town.

People all over town are talking about how Ms. Gilstrap was "right on" about the Big Spring Police Dept. At least she had the "guts" to put her name on the article she wrote. That's more than the "gutless" person who wrote that editorial did.

This person wrote, since the Police Chief "Hoherz" came here to Big Spring, the burglary has gone down. I think that's a lot of "bull." If burglary has gone down, I don't think the Police Dept. had anything to do with it. If it's really down, it's because the people (not the Police Dept.) have set up their own burglary prevention. And, can you blame them? I heard the police are still looking for that "elephant with the slit throat," so I wouldn't count on them to track any stolen goods. My advice to everybody is to "depend on yourself" and not the Big Spring Police Dept.

There are a "few" good police, but the bad outnumber the good. The "bad" do whatever they want to. I don't think the Police Chief even cares what they do. If he did, this harassment and "smart mouth stuff" we've been getting from the police wouldn't be happening. I've heard 5 times more bad about the police than good.

I would just like to be treated with some respect. But, in this town, it seems like that's just too much to ask from our B.S.P.D.

Halfway house needs perspective

Dear Editor,

If one believes Sheriff Standard's comments about the Salvation Army's proposed halfway house, we'd all better hide our valuables, lock up our daughters (or is it the other way around) and prepare for a vicious onslaught of "furriners" (probably Yankess) aiming to do criminal mischief and worse to Big Spring.

Mrs. Heien Smith adds to the uproar detailing 3 break-ins at the defunct Big Spring Halfway House and the life of crime to which all Texas Department of Corrections parolees returned, save one poor benighted mental retardate. Mrs. Smith complained of lax parole supervision, lack of strings with which to control the parolees, and a "vague contract" with TDC.

This affair needs perspective. Perhaps a reporter could interview the ex-parole officer who handled Big Spring. I understand he now is a probation officer at the Howard County Court House. It seems only fair. Mrs. Smith used a pretty white brush in depicting his performance.

The Salvation Army, which has had much experience and success with halfway houses all across Texas, plans to accept a handful of Howard County residents, all who would be released in 3 months, none in prison for violent crimes, and all under strict supervision.

The Salvation Army and its board, which includes Judge Gregg, Chief Hoherz, and District Attorney Hamby, would not blunder into a "vague contract." The Salvation Army is too astute to be led down anyone's primrose path, even TDC's.

What the Salvation Army proposes is not equivalent to the old Big Spring Halfway House, a heterogeneous assembly of approximately 18 individuals from 3 diverse groups. The Salvation Army proposes a well-ordered, well-regulated, small halfway house, an endeavor in which it has expertise.

We should face the fact, that this county will be getting its parolees back one way or another. It's better for them and for us to have them in a halfway house where they can receive support and supervision as they re-enter the community rather than be dumped on the street.

Both the Sheriff and Mrs. Smith beg the question. If their statements to the press are accepted at face value, parolees at the defunct halfway house were problems for law enforcement and the experience at the halfway house with the parolees was unfortunate. In neither case, is the question squarely addressed. Can the Salvation Army, with its experience and history of success, provide supervision and rehabilitation for a handful of parolees?

The people of Howard County should be interested in the selection of a County Juvenile Probation Officer. It is to the credit of the Juvenile Board that time has been allowed to recruit applicants and that the compensation, if it remains near the current officer's salary, might attract persons professionally trained at the Master's level in the behavioral sciences.

The core of the probation process is the therapeutic contact and that cannot be learned on the job even if one "likes working with kids." The casework technique, which requires extensive academic preparation, can make the difference for the juvenile in trouble for the first time. The juvenile probation officer requires "the best and the brightest." To accept less would short-change the children of Howard County.

Dear Editor,

This is my side of the story about our police department. I feel our "concerned citizen Lisa Gilstrap" must be great friends of the scum in Big Spring in order to hear all the complaints of harassment, disrespect, assault, provoking assaults and physical abuse, beatings and the rest that were to numerous to list. Seems to me that she can only know the low life in order to hear so many complaints. I know lots of people and I sure don't hear of it, of course most of the people I know don't get in trouble with the law either.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am facing a decision about whether or not to marry my boyfriend. He has no interest in being a Christian, although I think he would be a good husband. Please pray that I make the right decision. — B.A.

DEAR B.A.: I know that it may seem like your boyfriend would make a good husband, and he may indeed be a fine person in many ways. But I must urge you to commit this whole matter to God and trust that he will lead you to a husband who is a Christian. It is not God's will for you to marry a man who is not a believer. The Bible clearly says, "Do not be yoked together with unbelievers ... What does a believer have in common with an unbeliever?" (2 Corinthians 6:14, 15).

Why does the Bible say this? It says it first of all because Jesus Christ should be the center of every marriage, and this is not possible if one of the partners is not a believer. God's ideal for marriage is that both partners should be people who love him and seek to honor him by doing his will. They are to "submit to one another out of reverence for Christ" (Ephesians 5:21). The problem in a marriage between a Christian and a non-Christian, however, is that one partner wants God's will while the other one is indifferent to God's will in specific matters — and may even be hostile. I get letters every day from people who knowingly married an unbelieving person hoping that somehow it would work, but discovering later that such a marriage was very difficult.

Then you should remember also your responsibility to any children you might have some day. You have a responsibility to teach them about God and his love for them, and the importance of making Christ the center of their lives. But this is especially difficult to do when the husband is an unbeliever and is indifferent to spiritual things — when in fact he should be the spiritual head of the family.

God loves you and wants what is best for you. Trust him and let him lead you to the partner of his choice so that together you can grow in your relationship to Christ.

Dear Abby

Mousy typist may be a rat

DEAR ABBY: On a recent visit to my husband's office, I noticed that the mousy little secretary he hired a few months ago is now a very sexy-looking number.

She was wearing a skirt with a slit to the middle of her thigh. Her whole leg and most of her thigh were showing. When she realized I was staring at her, she started typing with one hand, using the other to try to hold her skirt down.

Abby, I've heard so much about bosses pressuring their secretaries for sex, how about saying something about secretaries who come to work dressed like that?

My husband is only human, and I wonder how long he can resist her "come-on"? Should I say something to him about the way his secretary dresses? Or should I wait until it's too late?

WORRIED WIFE

DEAR WIFE: He may not have noticed, so keep quiet and maybe he never will.

DEAR ABBY: Your original definition of an amateur ("one who does what he does without pay") is correct. You should have stood up for purity of language instead of apologizing to volunteer firemen for calling them "amateurs." There's nothing derogatory in the word "amateur." In fact, in the world of sports, many world records are set by amateurs — not by professionals.

As a former volunteer fireman, I know how dedicated and capable volunteer firemen are. In many communities they provide the only fire protection there is. Most I have known are well-trained and are ready to answer that siren whenever it goes off. Many fire companies require their firemen to take constant training in order to keep their membership.

However, if they are not paid, they are not professionals. It's a matter of definition, not dedication or ability. To call someone a professional doesn't confer any special qualities of ability, dedication, honesty or reliability. (Look at lawyers.)

Recognizing the definition of a word should not be construed as taking anything away from our dedicated, amateur, volunteer firemen.

GENE PHILLIPS, EDITOR, BRUNSWICK TIMES GAZETTE, LAWRENCEVILLE, VA.

DEAR MR. PHILLIPS: I got so much heat for calling volunteer firemen "amateurs," I backed off. Thanks, friend, yours was the lone voice in support of my original definition — until I heard from "Raynard" of Mansfield, Mass., who wrote:

"I earn a very comfortable living as a professional magician, but there are many amateur performers who can teach me a thing or two. An amateur is not necessarily one who lacks the skills to be a pro; he simply does his thing without pay."

"DEAR ABBY: Will you join me in nominating for 'Boob of the Year' those perfectly healthy, active (and usually young) individuals who park their cars in spaces clearly marked 'For the Handicapped'?" ANAHEIM

"DEAR ANAHEIM: A 'boob' is one who makes a stupid mistake. An able-bodied person who would deliberately deprive a physically handicapped person of a more convenient parking place is worse than a boob. He's an inconsiderate, selfish hog. (P.S. He's also 'handicapped': He has a character deficiency.)"

Abby, the above clipping was pasted on the windshield of my car while it was parked in a space reserved for the handicapped.

My car has a "handicapped" license plate, which was totally ignored.

Abby, not all handicaps are visible, but I wish people would realize that in order to get this special license plate, a doctor's certification is necessary.

So I nominate "Anaheim" for "Boob of the Year." He (or she) is most assuredly character-deficient. RUTH IN CORONADO, CALIF.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

How to behave with handicapped people

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Although you've probably been told that disabled people are no different from the rest of us, sometimes it's tough to know how to act when you first meet a person who is blind, deaf, or in a wheelchair. "The key word is acceptance, not sympathy," says Dr. Lester J. Waldman, counsel and director of planning for the New York Society for the Deaf, Alison Moore, of the Meeting Street School, a school for "handicapped people in East Providence, Rhode Island, adds, "Don't stare. Ask questions if you're curious. This approach helps you understand handicapped people and helps them put their own handicaps in perspective."

Here are more suggestions for how to behave when you meet a disabled person. Blindness: "It's unnecessary to avoid using the words 'look' or 'see' when talking to a blind person," says John F. Mulvihill, Jr., public relations director for the American Foundation for the Blind, in New York City. "Don't refrain from discussing TV shows and films. Many blind people watch television and go to the movies," says Mr. Mulvihill. "When offering assistance to a blind person, don't grab her by the arm. Ask if you can help, and allow the blind person to take your arm. If she is unfamiliar with the area, describe any obstacles."

Deafness: When talking to a deaf person who reads lips, face her. Speak slowly and distinctly. "Don't use the expression 'deaf and dumb.' Deaf people take offense. Orthopedic handicaps: Don't push someone's wheelchair without first asking if your help is desired. Never move a person's wheelchair or crutches out of her reach. If someone has trouble speaking, pay close attention, and be patient. Don't talk for her, but give help when necessary.

Dr. Donohue

She has lymph node fixation

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am in my late 20s. Ever since I was a child I have been bothered by swollen glands. Whenever I have a cold or sore throat, the glands on the right side, under the jaw, back of the neck, are affected. When the swelling goes down, I still feel some of the glands. Recently, I came across an article on Hodgkin's disease, and now I am scared to death.

My doctor says I must have lymph nodes slightly larger than normal and not to worry unless they swell for no apparent reason. Then they should be watched. Is this normal, or is he not telling me how concerned he really is? I am a nervous wreck. — Mrs. A.W.

Please, A.W., relax. Your doctor is telling you the truth. Lymph nodes (glands), be they in the neck, the arm, the leg, wherever, are germ traps, barring those germs from gaining further entry into the body. When you have an infection (a cold, for instance) they swell because they are doing their job. Even with an infected tooth the lymph nodes in the neck will swell. They are trapping germs from the infected tooth. So, too, with a sore throat.

Hodgkin's disease is one form of lymph node cancer. The nodes become enlarged and stay that way. They usually are not tender enlargements and there are other accompanying Hodgkin's signs to go on — weight loss, fatigue and general ill health. Granted, that in the early stages of Hodgkin's disease, those signs may not be there, but the lymph node enlargement does not go away the way yours does.

The fact that you can feel the nodes after the enlargement disappears is no sign of illness. You feel them in many normal people. That does not indicate cancer. As your doctor said, if the nodes enlarge for no known reason and stay that way, that is a different story. I can also assure you that you would not have had Hodgkin's disease since childhood without having known it.

You did the right thing by reporting your suspicion. Now forget it.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am hoping you can tell me which doctor I should listen to. Both are great doctors, and it's hard to decide what to do. Four years ago, at age 23, I had a hysterectomy. I've been taking hormones since. That's where my problem arises.

Dr. No. 1 says to discontinue the hormones because I should go through my menopause and get it over with. Along with this, he mentioned the various side effects, some of which I experience.

Dr. No. 2 says I should stay on the hormones. His reasons are to make me look and feel young and not have to suffer with the hot flushes, irritability, etc. So tell me, please, which is the best to do? — Mrs. D.R.B.

You don't say it, but I assume your ovaries were removed along with your uterus. I can give you an iffy-type answer, since obviously neither doctor is flipping coins on this matter.

Here's the general view of this: A woman under 40 who has had her ovaries removed takes female hormones to prevent osteoporosis, premature changes in the lining of her genital tract, and possibly to stave off heart disease. That is the general advice. But there may be some particular reason in your case that prompts the first doctor not to want you to take female hormones. It could be something concerning your own or your family's medical history. Ask him. If there is no such reason, then I would side with doctor No. 2.

49ers super defense bowls over Bengals

PASSING ON THE RUN — San Francisco 49er quarterback Joe Montana (16) avoids a pass rush by Cincinnati Bengals defensive end Eddie Edwards during action in Sunday's Super Bowl XVI in Pontiac's Silverdome. Montana was named Most Valuable Player for his role in the 49ers 26-21 win over the Bengals.

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — It was a victory born in the fertile mind of Coach Bill Walsh, carried out with cool efficiency by quarterback Joe Montana and saved by a determined defense.

The San Francisco 49ers are champions of the National Football League, 26-21 winners over the Cincinnati Bengals in Super Bowl XVI.

Yes, the San Francisco 49ers, that same sad-sack franchise that limped through two consecutive 2-14 seasons just two years ago, now rule the roost, hoisted to the top by a creative coach and his talented quarterback.

"The difference is simple," said flanker Freddie Solomon. "Bill Walsh. Every week, he keeps coming up with some more X's and O's."

The San Francisco playbook is chock full of options for Montana. Most teams have 20 or 25 pass plays in their arsenal. "Bill's offense has 60 or 70," marvelled Montana. "Bill is way ahead of everyone in making game plans. One game last year, we had over 100 passing plays. And there's a formation for every play."

Ah, last year. The 49ers remember it well. They were 6-10 also-rans then and glumly watched their Bay Area neighbors, the Oakland Raiders, win the Super Bowl.

"We couldn't think of the Super Bowl after that," Montana said. "We had to concentrate on improving our record. We had three rookies starting in the defensive backfield and me starting for the first time."

That is Walsh's style. He wasn't afraid to turn his secondary over to those raw rookies, Ronnie Lott, Eric Wright and Carlton Williamson, and he certainly wasn't concerned about giving the football to Montana.

"Joe will be the great quarterback of the future," said Walsh after Montana was named the game's most valuable player. "He is one of the coolest competitors of all time and he has just started. He'll be even better in the future."

That would be hard to imagine for the Bengals, who saw Montana complete 14 of 22 passes for 157 yards.

All Montana's magic, though, might have been wasted but for the defense that refused to bend even a yard late in the third period. Three times the Bengals tried to score from the 1-yard line. Three times — twice with just 10 players on the field because of a mixup caused by the noise and confusion — the 49ers stopped them.

Cincinnati tight end Dan Ross said his team was tense and blowing three scoring opportunities from inside the 10-yard line certainly didn't help.

"It was just like stage fright," said Ross, who caught a Super Bowl-record 11 passes, two of them for touchdowns from Ken Anderson. "I was in awe of everything. The big difference was they played loose and we didn't. They didn't let it get to them."

The Bengals' problems started early. After recovering a fumble on the opening kickoff, Cincinnati had a golden opportunity, moving to a first down at the San Francisco 5-yard line. But the Bengals came up short when Dwight Hicks intercepted an Anderson pass and returned it to the 32.

"We had an opportunity right off the bat to score," said Cincinnati Coach Forrest Gregg. "When we didn't, I think the players started thinking about what could have been instead of what was."

Reality for the Bengals was a 49er march to the game's first touchdown. It was a 68-yard drive, climaxed by Montana's 1-yard plunge. Thirteen of those yards came on a flea flicker, of all things. Montana handed off to Ricky Patton, who turned the ball over to Solomon, who returned it to Montana, who threw for 13 yards to Charlie Young.

"We keep surprises in our back pocket," said running back Earl Cooper, the only man in the 49er backfield who didn't handle the ball on that play.

For their next trick, the 49ers halted Cincinnati at the San Francisco 8 as rookie Eric Wright stripped a completed pass from Cris Collinsworth and rookie Lynn Thomas recovered the ball. That turnover launched a 92-yard drive, the longest in Super Bowl history. For the touchdown, Montana threw an 11-yard pass to Cooper.

Now it was 14-0 and things were getting no better for the Bengals.

Starting from their own 34 on their next possession, they drove to the Cincinnati 5. On fourth and one, with 18 seconds left until halftime, Ray Wersching kicked a 22-yard field goal for a 17-0 bulge.

That would have been a perfectly fine halftime lead, but the Bengals gift-wrapped three more points. Archie Griffin fumbled the kickoff and Milt McColl recovered for the 49ers at the 4. Wersching returned it for a 26-yard field goal.

But Walsh wasn't overly comfortable. "With a Ken Anderson on the other side, 20 points aren't all that much," he said.

As it turned out, they weren't. Before the 49ers knew what had hit them, Anderson had Cincinnati on the

Wadkins grabs lead in Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Jerry Pate, in the hunt for the title in the Phoenix Open, recalled a courtesy extended by this event in his early days on the pro golf tour.

"They gave me an exemption (from qualifying) my first year, and I went on that year and won the U.S. and Canadian Opens. When I came back, they said I'd made 'em look awful good."

"Then I won the tournament that year and they said I'd made 'em look like a genius."

And it's holding true again, this time for Lanny Wadkins.

For reasons known only to the sponsors, a picture of Wadkins — a non-winner for almost three years — was selected to grace the posters that advertise this year's tournament.

And, going into today's rain-delayed final round, Wadkins was in the lead, four strokes clear of the field.

But the former PGA champ wasn't yet counting an end to the winless string that has extended since the 1979 Tournament Players Championship.

"I can't play it safe," Wadkins said after he'd scored a hole-in-one on the way to a spectacular, 8-under-par 63 in Sunday's third round.

"This course has thrown up four rounds of 63 already this week. I've got to keep on truckin'."

Wadkins, who missed at least a month of the 1981 season with a hand injury, took a 198 total into the final round. That's 15 strokes under par for three trips over the 6,726-yard Phoenix Country Club course and four in front of Morris Hatalsky.

Hatalsky, who scored the first victory of his six-year career last season, birdied the 18th hole Sunday for a 68 that left him at 202.

"Lanny's in a pretty comfortable position," Hatalsky said Sunday. "He won't relax tomorrow. I'd like to have been a little closer. We'll just have to wait and see what happens."

John Cook, who had a 67, was another stroke back at 203.

Larry Nelson, the PGA champion and leader through the first two rounds, slipped to a par 71 in the warm sunshine and was six back at 204. Also at that figure were Pate, Scott Simpson, Jay Haas and Mike Reid.

Simpson had a 63, Page 64, Haas and Reid 66s.

Tom Kite, the 1981 leading money-winner was 66-206. British Open champ Bill Rogers had 73-213, and David Graham, the defending titleholder in this tournament and the U.S. Open champ, was 76-211.

Wadkins started the final round two shots back but moved in front with a string of four consecutive birdies — three of them after irons shots left him putts of less than three feet — on the front side.

College basketball roundup

Missouri Tigers new No. 1?

By The Associated Press
Basketball has recently taken a back seat to football in the Big Eight Conference, but this year "We're No. 1 Fever" has taken hold at the University of Missouri.

For the first time since 1959, when Kansas State finished No. 1, a Big Eight basketball team is in position to take over the top spot in The Associated Press basketball poll.

Missouri, at 16-0 one of only two unbeaten teams in the nation, has been No. 2 the last two weeks. But No. 1 North Carolina lost to Wake Forest last week, while Missouri beat Oklahoma 84-64 Saturday night after defeating Kansas earlier in the week.

The fans at Columbia, Mo., are beginning to take notice, too. Saturday night's home crowd of 12,944 was a record for Hearn Fieldhouse and marked the first time since the building opened in 1972 that Missouri has drawn consecutive sellout crowds.

Missouri, which had never been ranked higher than fifth before this season, led Oklahoma by as many as 30 points in the second half as the crowd took up the chant, "We're No. 1."

Ricky Frazier hit all eight of his shots and scored 17 points to lead Missouri, 10 of them in the first half when the Tigers took a 36-25 lead.

Coach Norm Stewart tried to be nonchalant about the team's chances in the poll, but he couldn't contain his enthusiasm.

"On the one hand, I could take it or leave it and not worry too much about it," Stewart said. "On the other hand, why shouldn't we have it? I think our ballplayers have worked as hard as anyone else. Why shouldn't they have it? And why shouldn't this state have it? This university?"

In the only game involving ranked teams Sunday, third-ranked Virginia bombed No. 17 Louisville 74-56.

Elsewhere on Saturday, North Carolina defeated Georgia Tech 66-54, No. 4 DePaul stopped Alabama-Birmingham 79-68, Illinois upset No. 5 Minnesota 64-57, No. 6 Iowa swamped Michigan 56-38, No. 7 Texas ripped South Carolina 88-71, No. 8 Idaho lost to Montana 53-51, No. 9 Kentucky beat Vanderbilt 67-58 and No. 10 Tulsa was upset by Indiana State 60-59.

No. 11 San Francisco nipped Portland 81-78, No. 12 Oregon State routed Washington 63-43, Providence shocked No. 13 Georgetown 50-49, No. 14 North Carolina State trimmed East Carolina 63-

53, No. 15 Arkansas edged No. 19 Houston 67-66, No. 16 Alabama whipped Florida 82-71, Louisville was beaten by Virginia Tech 78-76, No. 18 Kansas State walloped Kansas 70-53 and No. 20 Tennessee stopped Louisiana State 77-67.

The Top Ten
James Worthy scored 24 points and Sam Perkins, who was injured in the loss to Wake Forest, added 18 to lead North Carolina over Georgia Tech.

Ralph Sampson scored 26 points for Virginia, eight of them during a 10-3 spurt at the start of the second half that turned a three-point halftime lead over Louisville into a rout.

Terry Cummings scored 24 points and grabbed 19 rebounds to pace DePaul, which has won 11 straight.

Texas living up to top 10 ranking

By The Associated Press

The No. 7 ranked and unbeaten Texas Longhorns can make more school basketball history this week if they survive a Tuesday night trip to Heart O' Texas Coliseum in Waco.

The Longhorns, ranked higher than they've ever been in The Associated Press poll, mashed South Carolina 88-71 Saturday night to bring their record to 14-0.

The mark ties the 1935 Texas team for quick starts. A victory over the Baylor Bears Tuesday night gives Coach Abe Lemons' crew the school record for the best start ever.

It won't be easy. Baylor has beaten Texas three times in the last four years and Coach Jim Haller's team is particularly tough at home where the seats have been moved closer to the floor.

"We hope we can catch Texas not hitting on all cylinders," said Haller.

"We've had some success with Texas in the past but this team is truly outstanding. Right now all their starters are peaking. They just don't have any weaknesses but maybe we can catch 'em on an off night."

Texas leads the Southwest Conference race with a 5-0 ledger followed by the Texas Aggies 4-1, Arkansas 4-2, Texas Christian 3-3, and Texas Tech 3-4.

Baylor and preseason favorite Houston are each 2-

3. Rice is 1-4 and Southern Methodist is 1-5.

Arkansas inflicted a third consecutive loss 67-66 on Houston Saturday while TCU nipped SMU 63-61, Texas Tech bounced Baylor 78-71, and Texas A&M beat Rice 68-59 in Houston.

The Longhorns won't get to celebrate long even if they beat Baylor.

The rapidly improving Texas Aggies come calling Saturday for a high noon regionally televised shootout.

Texas went all out against the Gamecocks Saturday night because ESPN was nationally televising the game.

"We knew they were televising this game all over the nation and we know there are people who still don't think we belong in the top five," said forward Virdell Howland, who led the Horns with 22 points. "Well, I think we deserve to be there. Maybe we proved it to some people."

Ring fulfills dreams

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Place-kicker Ray Werschling spoke for all the San Francisco 49ers when he said "basically it was a dream that actually came true." "It's hard to describe what we have done," said Werschling, whose record-tying four field goals played a major role in the 49ers' 26-21 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals Sunday in Super Bowl XVI.

What they had done was go from a 2-14 record two years ago to the National Football League championship. For the first time in their 34-year history, they had reached the top.

"It's fantastic. It hasn't sunk in yet. It's unbelievable," said offensive tackle Keith Fahnhorst, one of the 49ers who suffered through the lean years. "I don't know how we're ever going to top this. I'm starting to worry about that already."

Bill Walsh, who came to San Francisco as head coach and general manager in 1979 and blended youth, key trades and offensive wizardry in molding a 13-3 record this season, called Sunday's victory "the highlight of my life."

As they had all season, the 49ers rode the arm, instincts and grit of quarterback Joe Montana to victory. Montana, the game's Most Valuable Player, ran for one touchdown and passed for another as San Francisco ran off to a 20-0 halftime lead.

And when Cincinnati stormed back to within 20-14, Montana coolly engineered the fourth-quarter drive that ended with Werschling's third field goal, a 40-yarder that again put the 49ers more than a touchdown ahead.

For Montana, the 24-year-old three years out of Notre Dame whose captivating smile and disarming innocence stole the spotlight all Super Bowl week, the MVP award came as something of a surprise.

"I really was surprised because I didn't think I did that much out there," he said.

"Montana's our MVP no matter what," said offensive guard Randy Cross. "Just for his leadership."

Walsh said the formula for success was simple:

"Basically, our offense swept them off their feet in the first half and then we had to depend on our defense to hold the fort when they came out blitzing in the second half."

"We went to our running game, that gave us a chance to take apart the blitz, and that's what won it for us," he explained.

Goal line stand jolts Johnson

scoreboard in the third period with a nine-play, 83-yard drive. He went the final five himself and now it was 20-7.

Then, with just under seven minutes left in the period, the Bengals came back for more. Anderson's 49-yard pass to Collinsworth drove them to the San Francisco 14 and on fourth-and-one from the 5, Pete Johnson smashed into the middle of the line for a first down at the 3.

Cincinnati had four chances to gain three yards. A touchdown would put them just six points away. Twice, Johnson barged into the middle of the line, managing two yards on the first carry and none on the second. On third down, Anderson passed to Charles Alexander, but Dan Bunz stopped the play for no gain.

Now it was fourth down and the Bengals tried Johnson again. Nothing. "I saw the 49ers raise up at the snap of the ball," the 250-pound fullback said. "I figured I could go under them. It just didn't work. There just wasn't anything."

Despite the stand, the Bengals weren't done. They held and the 49ers, who had no first downs in the third quarter, had to punt from the end zone.

This time, the Bengals didn't stop until they got into the end zone. Ross grabbed a 4-yard touchdown pass and, with better than 10 minutes left on the clock, Cincinnati was within a touchdown of the 49ers, who now had to go out and win the game all over again.

Starting from their own 27, the 49ers drove the ball for the first time in the second half. It was a crucial march, killing five vital minutes off the clock and adding three points when Werschling kicked his third field goal, this one a 40-yarder.

Anderson came out throwing. His first pass was intended for Collinsworth, but Wright intercepted the ball at the 47 and returned it to the Cincinnati 22. The 49ers took the ball to the 6-yard line and Werschling kicked his fourth field goal, tying the Super Bowl record set by Green Bay's Don Chandler in 1968.

There were less than two minutes left, and the Bengals were all but done. With the 49ers laying far back on defense, Anderson used six straight complete passes to carry Cincinnati to a touchdown.

over Alabama-Birmingham. Oliver Robinson scored 25 points for the Blazers.

Illinois upset Minnesota with a 17-2 spurt after the Gophers had taken a 51-47 lead with six minutes to play by scoring 10 straight points.

Navratilova seeking another championship

CHICAGO (AP) — Martina Navratilova, the No. 2 rated woman tennis player in the world, will be the favorite as she seeks her fourth straight title in the $150,000 Avon Tennis Championships of Chicago opening today.

Although Navratilova will be the highest-rated player on the court at the Rosemont Horizon, the choice of the crowd might be 16-year-old Andrea Jaeger, ranked fourth in the world and a native of the suburb of Lincolnshire.

Both were thousands of miles from the arena,

Gene Griffin scored 19 points to lead the Illini.

Iowa handed Michigan its 11th straight loss as Kenny Arnold scored 15 points, four of them during a 10-point run that gave the Hawkeyes a 39-21 lead in the second half. It was the fewest points scored by a Michigan team since the Wolverines lost to Michigan State 43-32 in the 1950-51 season.

And it was the fewest given up by an Iowa team since the Hawkeyes defeated Ithaca 78-26 in the 1948-49 season.

Virdell Howland scored 22 points and LaSalle Thompson added 20 despite sitting out most of the second half for Texas against South Carolina. The Longhorns, 14-0, are off to their best start in 47 years.

Idaho lost for the first time in 17 games this season as Montana's Doug Selvig scored 1 on a short follow shot win, one second left. Derrick Fope scored 22 points for Montana to lead all scorers.

Derrick Hord scored 12 of his 22 points during a 12-minute, 26-8 spurt by Kentucky that gave the Wildcats a 61-47 lead late in the second half against Vanderbilt. Dirk Minniefield added 10 of his 16 points in the streak.

Lester Wright sank a 15-foot jumper with less than a second to play, lifting Indiana State to its one-point victory over Tulsa. Wright scored 18 points to lead the Sycamores.

The Second Ten

Quintin Dailey scored 28 points and 7-foot center Wallace Bryant had 18 points and 18 rebounds as San Francisco edged Portland. Lester Connor had 18 points to lead Oregon State over Washington.

Otis Thorpe contributed 14 points and 14 rebounds as Providence handed Georgetown its third straight loss after 13 consecutive victories. Derek Whitteburg had 13 points to pace North Carolina State over East Carolina.

Also, Scott Hastings had 22 points and hit a 20-foot shot with six seconds remaining to lead Arkansas over Houston. Eddie Phillips scored 20 points to lead Alabama over Florida. Jeff Schneider's 16-foot shot with five seconds remaining lifted Virginia Tech past Louisville. Tyrone Adams' 17 points paced Kansas State over Kansas, and Michael Brooks and Dale Ellis combined for 39 points as Tennessee remained unbeaten in the Southeastern Conference with a victory over LSU.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"WHY, GEORGE EVERETT WILSON! WHOEVER HEARD OF RENTING A BATHROOM TO A CHILD?"

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"A bread and butter note? Don't you hafta thank them for the rest of the dinner?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JAN. 26, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are now able to exercise your skills in such a way to bring greater efficiency to your work. Be sure not to neglect important paper work that has been piling up.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Good day to discuss plans for the future with associates. Come to a quick decision regarding a puzzling situation.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make plans to be more successful in your career. Don't neglect to handle an important civic matter early in the day.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study new ventures that interest you and pick out those that are most suited to your talents. Take needed health treatments.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Figure out a better way to handle your most pressing duties. Show more enthusiasm for your work.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Although annoying, be sure to handle an important civic matter today. Be careful of an opponent. Think constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you do more than your share of the work, you find that you'll gain more benefits. Not a good day for pleasure.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good time to make arrangements for amusements in the days ahead. Get together with congenials in spare time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take steps to get rid of a problem at home and establish more harmony with family members. A new outlet needs more study.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Become more efficient at your work and put new ideas in operation. Be careful of one who opposes you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be as self-engrossed as you wish now and improve your personal life. Know exactly where you are headed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Ideal time to engage in monetary affairs that are important to your future. Avoid a tendency to exaggerate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Attend to those accumulated tasks without delay. A clever adviser can give fine ideas. Follow them and benefit.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will be one of those gregarious persons who should be encouraged to have as many friends as possible, but of the right kind. Teach to complete whatever has been started. The field of research is fine here.

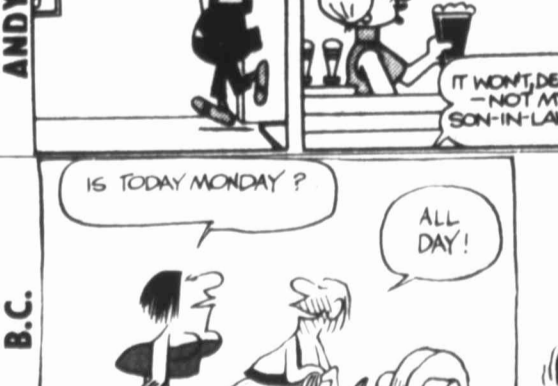

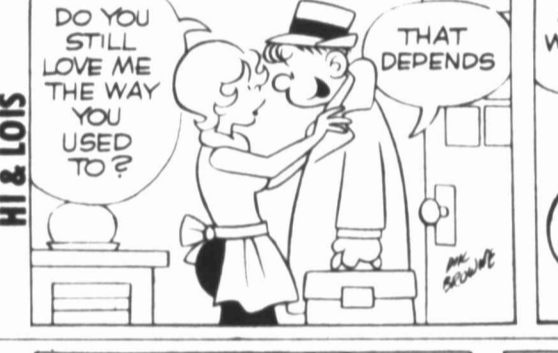

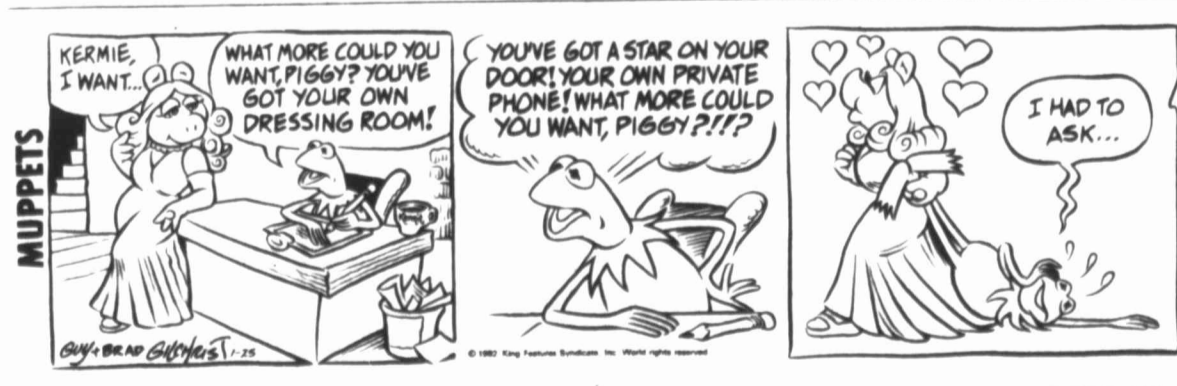

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Glass exec shoots out car windows

NEW YORK (AP) — A part-owner of an auto-glass company crused the streets of a Brooklyn neighborhood with a pellet gun and a police scanner radio and shot out "well over a thousand" car windows, police have charged.

Police said David Merkatz, 22, of Brooklyn, was arrested after a police officer watched a man shoot out the left front windows of three parked cars. The company he partly owns specializes in the replacement of broken automobile windows.

"It was getting so bad that you couldn't walk 10 blocks sometimes without seeing seven to 10 broken windows," said Joe Trizzino, a neighborhood resident. "My scoutmaster had to pay $120 to get his window fixed, and my grandfather had to pay $80."

Another neighborhood resident, Vito Scalgona, said the left front window of his car had been smashed twice in the last two months and each time it cost him $130 to repair.

"It makes you mad," he said. "You got to pay it out of your own pocket because you've got $200 deductible insurance."

Merkatz, part-owner of the Precision Lock and Auto Glass Co., in Brooklyn, was shops in Brooklyn, was charged Saturday night with two misdemeanor counts and one felony count of criminal mischief, said Ned Steele, a spokesman for the Brooklyn district attorney's office. He also was cited on violations for possession of an air gun and police scanner radio, Steele said.

Merkatz is accused of driving around at night for the last several months and shooting out the car windows with his air-powered gun, police said Sunday.

Conservative puts block before Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The concerns of Richard Snelling, the conservative, Republican governor of Vermont, illustrate why President Reagan is having trouble shaping up his next economic offensive.

Snelling once told Reagan he may be heading the nation toward "an economic Bay of Pigs."

More recently he advised Reagan to think twice before raising federal excise taxes, a revenue source seen by most governors as a preserve of the states.

And Snelling is not just a voice in the wilderness. Although he comes from one of the smaller states, he is chairman of the National Governors' Association and is wielding all the influence of that office.

Further, he has put together the most solid alliance of state and local officials since many of these same grassroots leaders forced revenue sharing on a reluctant Congress a decade ago.

This kind of resistance from people who should have been his staunchest allies in shaping a "new federalism" is largely responsible for the delayed decisions and cloak of secrecy as Reagan prepares his State of the Union message and his next budget.

The trouble, according to Snelling, is that the administration has done too much and gone too far already without thinking things through. That was the thrust of his Bay of Pigs reference in a speech to the National League of Cities last month.

Building A Home

- Place your refrigerator in the coolest part of the kitchen, well away from the range and oven.
- Install the water heater as close as possible to areas of major use to minimize heat loss through the pipes, insulate the pipes.
- If you live in a warm climate, remember that light-colored roofing can help keep houses cooler.
- Install windows you can open, so you can use natural or fan-forced ventilation in moderate weather.

Dozen bodies found in Mexico City sewage

PACHUCA, Mexico (AP) — More than 10 days after a dozen mutilated bodies spilled out of a pipe carrying Mexico City's sewage into the Tula River, not even the identities of the victims are known.

The men, in their 20s and 30s, were beaten to death or shot with .38-caliber or 9mm pistols shortly before being dumped together in an opening in the Valley of Mexico's vast underground drainage system, investigators said.

Some had their wrists bound, their eyes gouged or had been burned with cigarettes.

Peasant children playing in a foul-smelling riverbank playground found the partially clad bodies Jan. 14 in the "black waters" that drained into the river from a 40-foot-high sewer pipe in Hidalgo state, 56 miles north of Mexico City.

Four were decapitated and several lost limbs while being swept through a narrow concrete duct in the sewer system, autopsy reports said.

The findings indicated the killings took place early on the day the bodies were found and occurred somewhere in the neighboring state of Mexico, where the sewage pipe has seven unguarded openings in alfalfa fields often shrouded by morning fog.

The case generated banner headlines in the Mexican press, but the reports are based more on speculation than hard facts.

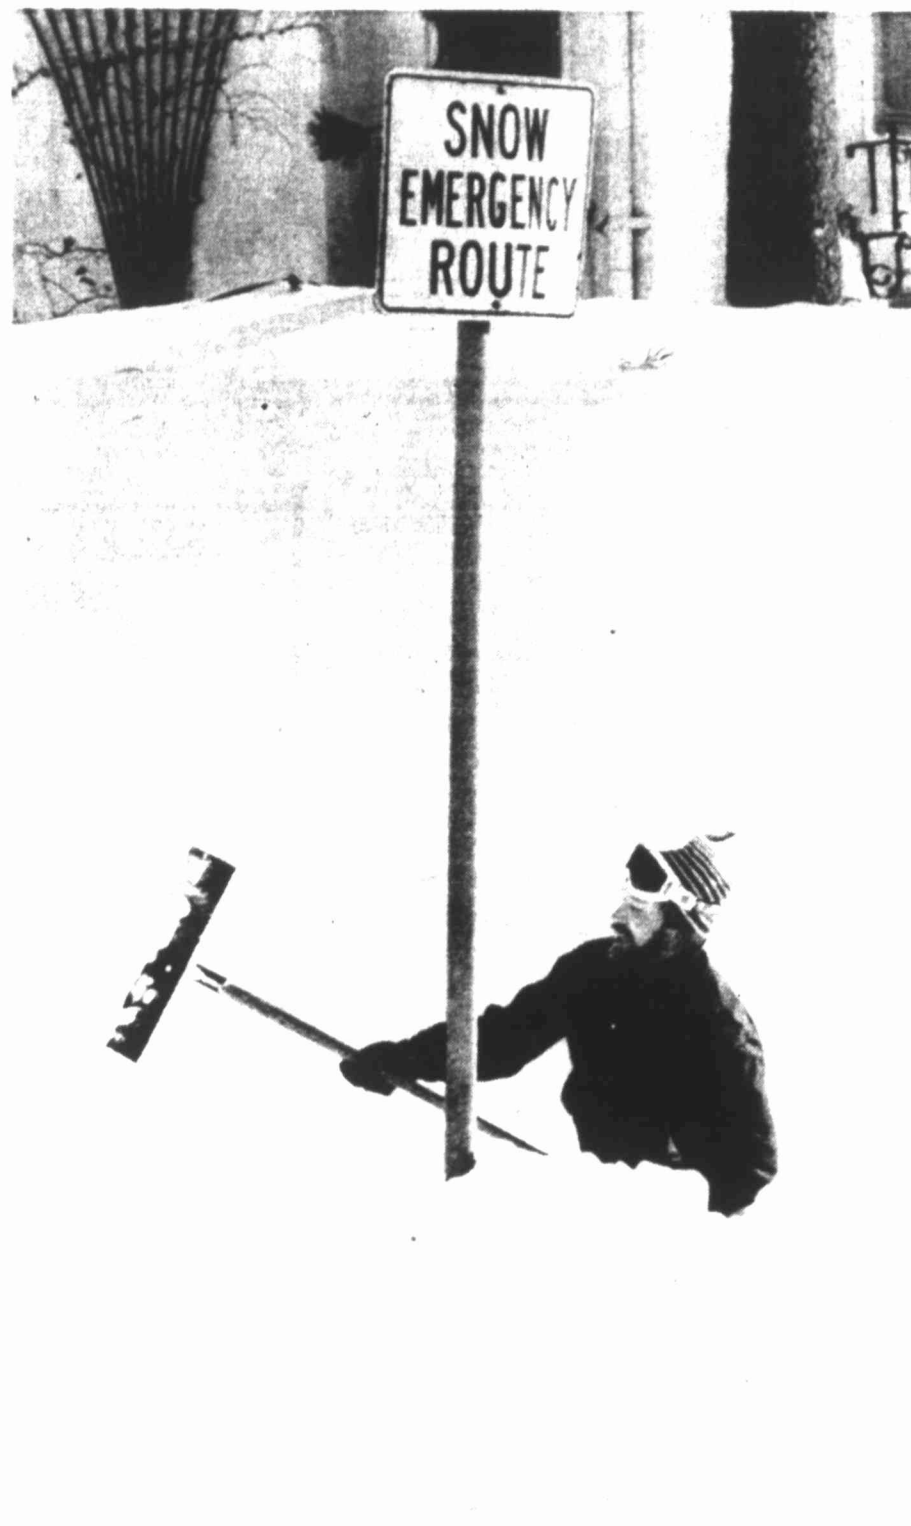

"Nobody is alarmed because these 12 men do not seem to be from around here or even Mexican," said Jonathan Vega, the Hidalgo state prosecutor. "Until we know who they are, we can only guess who killed them and why."

What little police have said about the victims, who carried no identification or jewelry, seems to confirm that some, if not all, were from elsewhere in Latin America and were involved in some high-risk pursuit.

Perhaps the most intriguing clue was the victims' heights, which ranged to just over 6 feet and averaged 5 feet 10 inches — much taller than most Mexicans.

"We know they were not peasants," said Dr. Alfredo Ortega, the Hidalgo medical examiner. "Some had manicures. Some wore Levi jeans. One had on Jean Pierre shoes, made in Mexico. They sell for 2,000 pesos (about $80)."

"They were a very select group," Fernandez said. "Their dental work is often seen among people involved in violence or serious accidents."

SNOW JOB — Lonnie Durham of Minneapolis shovels some of the 20 inch accumulation from his sidewalk Saturday after the record snowfall Friday night. Combined with Wednesday's storm, there is now more than three feet of snow on the ground.

Hunger strikers in Moscow are given one week to live

MOSCOW (AP) — Two hunger strikers in the U.S. Embassy could die within a week, says a medical source at the embassy, but another embassy official says they will be handed over to the Soviets for hospitalization if their condition becomes critical.

The two women, who are Pentecostal Christians, want U.S. officials to do more to get exit visas for them and five other members of their sect who have been holed up in a room in the embassy basement for 3½ years. The embassy insists that it has repeatedly pressed the case of the so-called "Siberian Seven" with Soviet authorities to no avail.

Augustina Vashchenko and her 32-year-old daughter, Lydia, began their fast during the Christmas holidays to publicize their family's 20-year struggle to leave the country.

On Sunday, they both refused to drink liquids for the first time.

"I don't know how many days I can survive," Mrs. Vashchenko, 52, told The Associated Press.

Her 19-year-old son, Lubov, said he and his sister Lilia, 23, would begin a hunger strike if their mother and sister were sent to a hospital. Their father, who also lives at the embassy, disapproves of the fasts, he said.

The five Vashchenkovs and two members of the Chmykhalov family slipped past Soviet guards into the embassy and were granted humanitarian refugee status on June 27, 1978.

The group is known in the West as the "Siberian Seven" because they come from the Siberian city of Chernogorsk, 2,100 miles east of Moscow.

Maria Chmykhalov, who shares the embassy room with her son Timofei and the five Vashchenkovs, said her husband also had stopped taking food and liquids last week in Chernogorsk to press their demands for exit visas. She said she learned about his fast in a telephone call from relatives Friday.

About 30,000 Soviet Pentecostals have applied to emigrate, Western sources say, but very few have been granted visas.

Western sources estimate that there are at least 250,000 Pentecostals in the Soviet Union who are defying a law requiring them to register their congregations with the government. They say the government uses the registration law to monitor religious services and regulate how they worship.

Cuban refugees transferred

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — As the Cuban refugee population dwindles at this western Arkansas resettlement center, so does the hope some refugees have for freedom in the United States.

As Cubans began leaving Fort Chaffee for a federal prison at Atlanta, at least 96 of the remaining 328 refugees signed an open letter Saturday to protest the move.

"We are confused and frightened," the letter said. "We came to your country in search of freedom and a chance to work at any mental labor. We have had to wait a long time because we didn't have any family or friends here, like others who came with us."

The letter said Chaffee employees had given the refugees hope by preparing them for release to work and freedom. "But now, that hope has vanished," the letter said.

"We have no voice," the letter said. "We have no defense. Help!"

Nureyev Austrian

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Soviet-born ballet dancer Rudolf Nureyev, who lost his Soviet citizenship when he defected to the West, says he's "madly happy" about his new Austrian citizenship.

Nureyev, 43, had been a man without an official nationality until he was awarded Austrian citizenship papers today in a ceremony at City Hall.

"I am madly happy to be an Austrian citizen," the ballet star said in an interview published Sunday in the Vienna tabloid Kronenzeitung.

Nureyev said he doesn't plan to make Vienna his permanent home for the time being. "After all, I'm en route 10 months per year," he said.

He could have obtained citizenship in other countries, but said he chose Austria "because I cherish tender feelings for this country."

Education secretary favors race bias bill

NEW YORK (AP) — Education Secretary I.H. Bell says President Reagan should press Congress to pass legislation denying tax exemptions to any private school practicing racial discrimination — even schools that occasionally admit blacks or other minorities.

Bell also said in an interview Sunday night here that the recent furor over the abrupt ending by the Reagan administration of the 11-year IRS policy of denying tax-exemptions to racially discriminatory private schools was "unfortunate," and probably could have been avoided if the administration had a bill drafted as soon as the policy change was announced.

"I think politically it would have appeared better," he said.

Reagan has promised to send Congress legislation giving the IRS unquestioned statutory power to deny tax exemptions to discriminatory schools. Bell said he hoped for a bill with few, if any, loopholes.

"I can't imagine anyone feeling that they've solved, or they've met the requirements for compliance with the civil rights laws when they only look at what happens at the door of entrance. Because a lot can go on behind that," Bell said.
