Hotel Settles fate unsettled due to tax suit

By BILLELDER
Staff Writer

Like a rubber ball, the fate of the Hotel Settles bounces this way and that.

When last heard from, a new owner of the vacant, 15-story landmark was planning on renovating the hotel and turning it into rental units to ease the housing crunch in Big Spring's job boom.

Tuesday, events took a different turn. The hotel's former owners wound up in state court with a tax suit judgment entered against them, and unless some taxes owed on the hotel are paid the property will be put up for sale.

About $33,000 in property taxes and penalties dating back to 1978 are owed local and state taxing entities, according to former Big Spring City Attorney Elliott Mitchell.

Last April, the state of Texas reportedly launched a tax-recovery suit for its portion of the allegedly delinquent taxes, a suit which later was joined by the city of Big Spring, Howard County and the Howard County Junior College District to recover taxes those taxing bodies claimed were owed them.

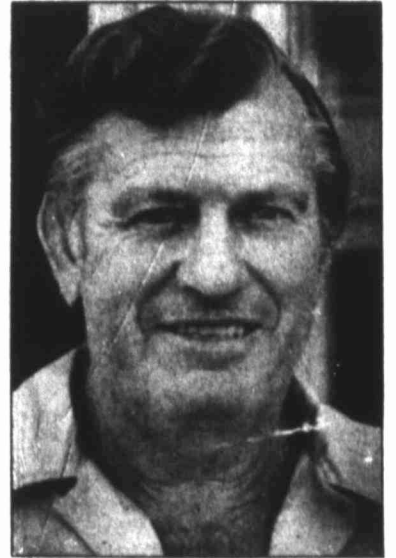

In October, the hotel's ownership passed from the hands of two Dallas businessmen calling themselves Big Spring Associates into the hands of an Odessa businessman named Bo Rich.

Rich said he bought the hotel for approximately $500,000 (the state court appraised it at $423,000, Mitchell said) and assumed responsibility for the delinquent taxes only on a voluntary basis.

Rich, according to Mitchell, made a promise to pay the back taxes and did pay a portion of them: the 1978 taxes owed the state, county and college district (amounting to about $3,316, according to County Tax Collector Dorothy Moore).

"I'd been assured by Bo Rich that he was going to pay all the taxes by mid-December," Mitchell said yesterday from the office of his private practice (he still advises the city on legal matters). "But I set this thing for trial because I wanted to put pressure on him."

Mitchell's "pressure" apparently failed to move either Bo Rich or the two men doing business under the name of Big Spring Associates: William Wortley and Harry Hawk. Big Spring Associates, as far as

BO RICH
Loses Hotel Settles?

Mitchell could determine, was the party liable for the back taxes and thus it was the only party named in the suit, he said.

The lawsuit was filed Dec. 21 in the state's 118th District Court, and on Tuesday Judge Jim Gregg signed the judgment in the case. The judgment declares that the sum of $33,000 is owed the four taxing bodies and the hotel may be sold to recover the money, Mitchell said.

If the hotel is sold, the four taxing bodies will receive what the court determines each is owed, and the rest of the sale proceeds will go to the lienholder, Mercantile National Bank in Dallas, Mitchell said.

If nobody buys the hotel, its ownership will pass to the state or county, according to Mitchell.

Ordinarily, the owner has the right of redemption after losing a tax case, meaning he can recover ownership of the property by paying the tax amount owed, Mitchell explained. It's not clear whether Bo Rich or Big Spring Associates would be the party with that particular right in this case.

Reached in Odessa yesterday afternoon, Rich said he was unaware of the judgment in the case and indicated he might file a countersuit. He also said he was willing to pay the taxes but wants to hold off for income tax purposes.

Remap fight prompts political turmoil

By BOB CARPENTER

The U.S. Justice Department's decision Tuesday to reject the state's new House and Senate redistricting proposals has Texas lawmakers and would-be candidates wondering when the redistricting ordeal will end.

The Justice Department rejection, based on conclusions that state officials failed to prove the proposals wouldn't dilute minority voting strength, throws into turmoil the Monday filing deadline for the state's 150 House and 31 Senate seats.

A three-judge federal court in Dallas that heard Republican and minority pleas to declare the plan unconstitutional last week will meet today and discuss a possible extension of the Monday filing deadline. Reports say the deadline could be extended to the middle of March.

The federal court judges also will decide how to meet the discrimination problems cited by the Justice Department.

Most districts may remain as drawn by the Legislative Redistricting Board last fall, or all may fall victim to a complete redrawing of boundaries by federal judges, the redistricting board or the Legislature.

According to reports from Austin the court has five options it can choose from to decide the problem of redistricting. The options include:

1. Accepting one or a combination of the plans submitted by the Republican and minority plaintiffs in suits against the present redistricting plans.

2. Decide to redraw both House and Senate districts to realign population and protect minority voting rights. In this case, the court or a redistricting board or the Legislature possibly could be chosen to draw the lines.

3. Ordering changes, only to be used in the 1982 elections, for districts that were criticized by the Justice Department. This probably would mean changes also in immediate adjacent districts.

4. Hold the 1982 elections under the districts drawn by the redistricting board because of pressing filing and election deadlines.

5. Ordering the 1982 elections to be held using the present districts that have been in effect through the 1970s since the last redistricting plan.

Under the newly drawn redistricting proposal Howard County is in the 69th House District and the 28th Senatorial District.

In the 69th District Howard would be included with the following counties: Winkler, Ward, Loving, Reeves, Jeff Davis, Culberson, Hudspeth, Crane, Upton, Reagan, Glasscock and Borden.

The 28th District is as follows: Howard, Cochran, Lubbock, Crosby, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Gaines, Dawson, Borden, Andrews, Martin and Ector.

The new House plan paired freshmen representatives Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, and Jerry Cockerham, R-Monahans, forcing the two into a race to see who represents the district.

The Senate plan put Howard County into Sen. E.L. Short's district replacing Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls. Short is a conservative Democrat from Tahoka.

Contacted by The Herald Wednesday for their feelings on the halt in filing deadlines and redistricting makeup the lawmakers appeared frustrated and confused with the proceedings.

Sen. Short said of the Justice Department's decision, "I don't think any new redistricting will affect our part of the state. To my knowledge I don't know of any testimony by Republicans or minority groups about unfairness of the 28th District boundaries."

"Most of the trouble seems to be, at least with the Senate plan, in the Dallas and Houston boundaries. I'm going ahead and making plans to represent Howard County and Big Spring," Sen. Short said.

Sen. Short and John T. Montford, criminal district attorney and Democrat from Lubbock, have filed for the 28th District seat.

Rep. Shaw, who is no stranger to the woes of redistricting after being paired in the new 69th House District, said he wasn't surprised by the Justice Department's decision.

"From the information I have and from what I've read it appears the new plan is unconstitutional. You never know for sure what's going to happen so I don't try to guess anymore, but I felt like the plan

Howard County Junior Livestock Show scheduled Friday, Saturday

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

The time has come again to reap the rewards for man and beast. The time is here for the Howard County Junior Livestock Show this Friday and Saturday. The months of toil cease for but a moment as young men and women prepare their animals for competition in the Dora Roberts Fair Barn.

This year's show is expected to be a good one with the lamb division looking to have the largest number of entries, according to County Agriculture Extension Agent Hank Willemsma. "We look for about 160 to 175 lambs to be entered. We validated (tagged) over 225," Willemsma said.

The capon classes should be the next largest division with 50 to 60 entries expected, Willemsma said. 30 to 40 steers and 20 to 25 barrows complete the expected turn-out, according to Willemsma.

FFA and 4-H members from the area will participate in the stock show this year with events beginning this afternoon with the weigh-in of capons and barrows, or fowl and swine for the uninitiated.

Friday, Jan. 29, will see the beginning of the show competition with the capon show scheduled for 3 p.m. The barrow show is set for 7 p.m. From 1 p.m. to 6 p.m., lambs and steers will be weighing in. The Lamb show is scheduled for 8 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 30, with the steer show expected to begin at 1 p.m. A Buyers' Barbecue will be held at 5 p.m. for all buyers of course. The auction will begin at 6 p.m.

Judges for the four divisions are from various areas of the state. The lamb show judge will be John Kearney, agriculture teacher from Sterling City. The beef cattle will be judged by Spencer Tanksey of Muleshoe.

The swine competition will be viewed by the critical eye of Scotty Windham from Abertamy, according to Don Richardson, Howard County agriculture extension agent. Capons will be judged by Howard College agriculture instructor Lynn Walling, Richardson said.

Gen. Dozier freed unharmed

PADUA, Italy (AP) — Police commandos burst into an apartment in this northern Italian city today and freed U.S. Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier as terrorists from the Red Brigades held a pistol to his head, Italian and U.S. officials said.

The rescue ended his 42-day ordeal in a "people's prison."

"At the time they arrived, a pistol was being held to the general's head," National Security Adviser William Clark told ABC in Washington. He said one shot was fired.

"He's a bit tired and a bit shaken by events, but in good health," said a U.S. Embassy official in Rome. A special commando unit of the Italian security police had located the apartment Wednesday night but held off the raid until daytime for fear a night attack might endanger the 50-year-old general's life.

Five terrorists holding Dozier gave up without resistance, police said. All were Italians.

One of the police who raided the apartment told the Italian news agency ANSA "we found Dozier barefoot but in good condition."

According to U.S. officials, Italian police in recent days cracked the Red See Dozier, page 2A

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second in a series of five articles written to help taxpayers prepare their 1981 income tax returns. This article deals with the question of which forms to use.

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — About 40 percent of all couples and individuals take the relatively easy approach to taxpaying by filing the shorter, simpler Form 1040A. This year the option is available to millions more.

A taxpayer with income less than $50,000 after exemptions and deductions are subtracted may now file 1040A if certain conditions are met. In the past, only single persons with total income under $20,000 and couples under $40,000 could use the shorter form.

If you choose 1040A you won't be able to itemize deductions, claim such adjustments as moving expenses or take such benefits as the energy conservation credit.

You'll have to fill out the more-complicated Form 1040 if, for example, in 1981 you had capital gains from the sale of property or paid or received alimony or income from bartering or self-employment.

Second in a series

In addition, several special circumstances require persons with lower incomes to use the longer form. In most cases, you must use 1040 if your spouse files a separate return and itemizes deductions, or if you can be claimed as a dependent on your parents' return and had taxable interest, dividends or other "unearned" income of $1,000 or more.

Use 1040A if you can do it without losing money. It is two short pages and you fill in only the first unless you had 1981 income from interest or dividends. Except for your W-2 form (which your employer provides) there are no other papers to attach unless you received unemployment compensation during the year.

By contrast, Form 1040 is two lengthy pages totaling 66 numbered lines. If you itemize deductions, you must attach Schedule A. Interest or dividends above $400 require Schedule B. Claiming an adjustment for moving expenses calls for Form 3903; employee business expenses, Form 2106; child-care expenses, Form 2441.

Fourteen Coahoma High School students will vie for the titles of Mr. and Miss Coahoma High School during a pageant at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 6.

The event will be held in the Coahoma High School auditorium.

Last year's winners were Brad Grandon and Ronda Fowler.

Students and their talents routines are Leslie Fisher and Stephanie Dobbs, dance routines; Christy Franklin, tap dance; Jeff Dever, monologue; Angela Smith, puppets; Louise Shive, piano solo; and Kari Robinson, disco roller skating.

Also Ron Clanton, Tommy McDaniel, Treasa Kerby, Tracy Spell, Kyna Kerby, and Rammi Smith will be singing.

Dana Souter will sing and play the guitar.

Theme of this year's pageant is "Disney on Parade."

Official sponsors for the event are Ronnie Bourland, principal of Coahoma High School, Janice Cook and Bob Fishback.

Cardholders for the event will be Jim Rinard, Jesse Metcalf, Robin Burchett and Brenda Green.

Ushers will be Wanda Scroggins, Karen Procter, Kandy Henry, Tracy Van Ness, Brett Sterling and Bobby Padron.

Brad Grandon will serve as master of ceremonies. Shana Souter will be the Mistress of Ceremonies.

Judges for the event will be selected outside the Coahoma Independent School District. A school spokesman said one judge is a music specialist, another has directed professional theater in Los Angeles, and a third has a variety of experience in professional theater.

The Senior Class is paying for the sets for the pageant. All proceeds from the event will go to the Senior Class.

Students will be judged on their talent, as well as their appearance, poise and charm.

Tune indicates third term try

Howard County Judge Bill Tune has indicated his intention to seek a third term by designating himself campaign treasurer in the county clerk's office, but he has not officially declared for the office by paying his $300 filing fee with the county Democratic chairman, according to M.H. "Slick" Boatler, Democratic chairman.

Boatler said he expected Monday, Feb. 1, to be a busy day as several candidates make their final decisions on the last day to file for county office.

Persons paying their filing fees include the following for Democratic precinct chairmans: H.C. Walling, box 21; Cecil L. Hamilton, box 20; John J. Romer Sr., box 16 and Alta Lee Underwood, box 15.

Lamesa City Hall theft probed

LAMESA (SC) — A theft was reported at City Hall from the financial director's office Tuesday. Several $100 bills and several Eisenhower silver dollars were stolen from the top of James McCallister's desk.

The only lead the police department has is the description of a short black male in his mid-20s, 140 pounds, wearing a black leather jacket and a red and black toboggan. Witnesses said the suspect was in the office, sat down and after a few minutes left the office, possibly with the money bags. The bag was not noticed missing until McCallister returned to his office about 1 p.m.

$1 million 'sucker rod' suit

Fiberflex Products, Inc. has filed a $1 million civil suit against a California man for allegedly stealing trade secrets. The suit asks for the punitive damages from Don Dee Nettles of California.

Nettles was also indicted by a Howard County grand jury Dec. 11, 1981 for theft of trade secrets from Fiberflex Products Inc.

The suit alleges Nettles stole a fiberglass "sucker rod" concept from the company by sawing off the ends of several of the company's rods and stealing them Nov. 28, 1980. The suit also asks an injunction be placed against Nettles in order to prevent his use of the trade secret of the rods.

Shaw makes it official

State Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, Thursday announced his candidacy for re-election to the Texas House in District 69 despite the foggy picture created by a Justice Department decision to mix newly drawn legislative districts. Shaw said he was proceeding with his campaign as though the 69th District was set.

Police Beat

Man injured in gun accident

Kirk Wade of 3215 Cornell was sent to Malone-Hogan Hospital yesterday morning for treatment of an accidental gunshot wound, police said.

Joseph Diliberto told police he and Wade were inside Diliberto's motor vehicle in the vicinity of Randolph and Hunter at about 7:52 a.m. when a 22-caliber handgun accidentally was discharged.

Wade was struck in the left thigh by the bullet and told investigating officers the discharge was an accident, said detective Lt. John Wold.

Rosa Bustamante of 1211 S. Main told police a person known to her damaged a screen door to her home at about 2:30 a.m. yesterday.

C.W. Mahony of 4 Highland Heather told police someone recently drove a motor vehicle through a rock border to his driveway, scattering the rocks and causing $50 worth of damage.

Jabor Chavez of 807 N. Nolan told police yesterday he has been receiving harassing telephone calls and would be seeking the aid of Southwestern Bell in tracing the calls if they're received again.

Police said two Hispanic men drove up to the gas pumps at the 7-Eleven on Highway 80 and Willia around 8:45 p.m. yesterday, got some gas and then damaged the glass on one of the pumps before leaving.

Eck McClure of 2616 Central told police someone shot a BB gun through a window to his home at about 4:40 p.m. yesterday.

Bernice Howell of 1009 E. 13th told police a person known to her ran over a trash can on her property at about 4 p.m. yesterday.

The Big Spring Fire Department was called to extinguish a grass fire in the 600 block of Avondale at 7:26 p.m. yesterday. Firemen had the flames under control and returned to the firehouse by 7:46 p.m., according to reports.

Motor vehicles driven by Johnnie Hobbs of 2115 Carl and Michael Williams of 3722 Hatch collided near the intersection of 10th and Johnson at about 3:38 p.m. yesterday, according to police reports. There were no injuries reported.

Brigades terrorist "column" which operated in the area of Verona, where Dozier was kidnapped Dec. 17.

"It was a textbook operation. They cracked the column, the people talked and they followed up every single lead. They did it right and it worked," said a U.S. official, who asked not to be identified.

Shortly after being taken to police headquarters, Dozier telephoned his wife, Judith, who left their apartment in Verona and went to West Germany about 10 days ago, U.S. officials said.

The terrorists, several of whom were dressed as plumbers when they kidnapped the NATO general, transported Dozier 40 miles east, in the direction to Venice, to this city.

Dozier is the highest-ranking U.S. military official at the NATO base in Verona.

The White House said President Reagan was awakened at 6:50 a.m. EST, by William Clark, director of the National Security Council and the president's national security adviser.

"A lot of prayers have been answered. It's difficult to express gratitude to all those who assisted in his release," deputy press secretary Peter Rousell quoted Reagan as saying.

Dozier's sister, Joan Townsend, of Alvin, Texas, told a Houston radio station that she had clung to the hope he would be rescued. "We got used to the hopes. I did have a sense of calm all along that this would turn out positive," said Mrs. Townsend.

A Vatican spokesman expressed "relief and satisfaction" at the release of Dozier.

ANSA said word of Dozier's release was relayed to the head of Rome police by the prefect of Verona, the local representative of the national government, who has directed the probe of Dozier's abduction.

"I think our district could change because of redistricting problems south and north of us. There has been controversy about the 68th District to the south and about how the Lubbock area was divided up."

"Since we are between two controversial districts the information I have indicates some changes could come about which would affect our district."

"It's a kind of wait and see situation. I've already filed for re-election and I'm going ahead as if the 69th District is set. I have no idea how long the three-judge federal court will take to reach a decision," Rep. Shaw said.

Benefit dance set Saturday

The Spring City Senior Citizens' Center is sponsoring a benefit dance Saturday from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m.

The Big Spring Camp Band, the "Outlaws," will furnish the music.

Admission is $2 a person. There will be free refreshments served by the center.

The building will accommodate a lot of people, said a Center spokeswoman. She added, "We have the best dance floor in Texas."

All proceeds will be used for repairs and maintenance on the building.

The Senior Citizens' Center is located in the Industrial Park, building 487, formerly the Officer's Club.

Tax forms

Nevertheless, don't be scared away from the long form if you need it to take advantage of all the tax breaks you're due. The Internal Revenue Service mails to all taxpayers thorough instructions for completing the form, and the IRS has one or more toll-free telephone numbers in each state to handle your questions.

Some taxpayers won't have to bother with either Form 1040 or 1040A, but in most cases this is only because their incomes are at the bottom of the economic scale.

Even if you owe no tax, you must file a return if:

- You were single, legally

- separated, divorced or married with a dependent child and living apart from your spouse for all the year and had income of at least $3,300, if you're under 65, or at least $4,300, if you're 65 or over.
- You were living with your spouse at the end of the year, file a joint return and both spouses were under 65 and had income of at least $5,400; if one spouse was 65 or older and the couple had income of $6,400 or more, or if both were 65 or over and income totaled at least $7,400.
- You were married and file a separate return or were not living with your spouse at year's end and you had income of $1,000 or more

- You could be claimed as a dependent by your parents and had taxable "unearned" income such as interest or dividends of at least $1,000.
- Your spouse died in 1979 or 1980, you did not remarry before the end of 1981, you have a dependent child, you meet certain tests and your income was at least $4,400, for those under 65, or $5,400, for those 65 or older.

Even if you don't have to file a return, it will be to your advantage to do so if income tax was withheld from your paychecks during 1981 or if you qualify for the special earned-income credit of up to $500.

NEXT: Income.

Deaths

Howard Reed Ken Barnett Sr.

Howard Reed, 72, of 706 Andree in Big Spring, died at 5:55 this morning in a local hospital after a long illness. Services are pending with Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home. Mr. Barnett was formerly a Big Spring resident.

He was born July 11, 1909 in Ringling, Okla. He married Olga Lou Edwards on June 3, 1940 in Midland. They moved to Big Spring in December of 1940. He was a retired cattle buyer. He was a Baptist.

He is survived by his wife; one son, Donald Reed of Big Spring; one daughter, Donna Hoenninger of Hawaii; two brothers, Luke Reed of Ringling, Okla., and Bass Reed of Ardmore, Okla.; six grandchildren and one great-granddaughter.

Winnie West

Winnie D. West, 76, of Coahoma, died Wednesday morning at a local hospital after a long illness. Services will be at 3 p.m. today at the First Baptist Church of Coahoma with the Rev. Rick Davis, pastor of Midway Baptist Church officiating, assisted by the Rev. Bernard Gulley, Immaculate Heart of Mary, Catholic Church. Burial will be in Coahoma cemetery, under the direction of Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

Pallbearers will be Manuel Bustamante, Buddy Rice, Delroy Buchanan, Ted Thomas, Ted Fowler and Mike Rice.

For the record

In Friday's Herald, it was incorrectly printed that Tooter Whitmire had been indicated for theft by check by the Howard County grand jury. Whitmire's case was scheduled to have been presented to the grand jury on Thursday, but it was dismissed after Whitmire settled the check with the party pressing charges.

His name was inadvertently left on The Herald's grand jury list and included with the 14 indictments returned by the grand jury.

The Herald regrets the error.

Leftists hold crippled jetliner

HIJACKED PLANE — Policemen armed with automatic weapons keep watch on a Colombian airliner hijacked Wednesday at Bogota's El Dorado International airport.

CALI, Colombia (AP) — Leftist guerrillas were reported holding 74 hostages on a crippled Colombian airliner at the Cali airport today, threatening to blow up the Boeing 727 and all aboard if they were not given another plane.

Shots or explosions reportedly were heard aboard the jetliner Wednesday night when it hit an army jeep that blocked the runway as the plane attempted to take off from Cali. But it was not known if there were any injuries in the collision or in the reported "detonations" aboard the aircraft.

The collision appeared to damage the plane's landing gear and part of the fuselage, but the hijackers would not let mechanics inspect it.

A control tower official said the guerrillas were demanding another plane to take them and some of the hostages to an unspecified destination. They also demanded that the mayor and the Roman Catholic bishop of Cali be brought to the airport to negotiate with them.

The official said one of the guerrillas told the control tower: "Don't delay the matter too long. This is a warning."

Seven guerrillas seized control of the Aerialjet jet with 121 other people reported aboard shortly after it took off from Bogota Wednesday afternoon on a domestic flight to Pereira, in west-central Colombia. They returned briefly to Bogota, then forced the pilot to fly to Cali, 275 miles southwest of Bogota.

The hijackers reported by the plane's radio that they were members of M-19, the nation's most active guerrilla group, and claimed they were armed with automatic weapons, fragmentation grenades and explosives.

A communique signed by M-19 indicated that the hijacking was an attempt to force the government to grant it amnesty and let the organization's leader, Jaime Bateman, run for the presidency in the May 30 election.

The guerrillas had just freed 44 women, children and elderly people Wednesday night, and the plane was starting down the runway to take off from Cali when it slammed into an army jeep that sped across the tarmac, air traffic controller Oscar Franco reported.

He said the freed passengers were still on the runway in a bus, and the bus driver told him he heard shouts and "detonations" when the plane hit the jeep. Franco said he did not know if the driver was referring to shots or explosions, and there was no other word on this.

State officials giving

Reagan cautious support

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — President Reagan's "new federalism" — a plan to turn over federal programs to the states, announced in his State of the Union address — has drawn philosophical support cut with practical caution from Texas officials.

"I was pleased with the speech and I am certainly philosophically in agreement," Gov. Bill Clements told reporters Wednesday. "I have no objection in principle to the proposal at all, but I want to see the details."

"There is a vast difference between making a state of the state speech and the finished legislation on his desk," he added. "This thing is going to take many a zig and a zag in the House and Senate."

Reagan proposed that control of many social service, transportation and education programs revert to the states, with a $28 billion annual trust fund of federal money set aside to operate them.

"I believe the states, particularly Texas, are better able to determine the course of many of our domestic programs," Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said at Wednesday. "However, just as the president stated that he does not propose balancing the federal budget on the backs of the American taxpayer, I hope he does not plan to use the backs of the states."

Reagan proposed that the states take over major welfare programs, including Aid to Families with Dependent Children and food stamps, but said the federal government would assume responsibility for Medicaid.

Labor board looks into #### charges against Texaco

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board is investigating unfair labor charges filed against Texaco Inc. by some locals of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union, a union official said.

Texaco officials declined to comment on the investigation Wednesday except to say the NLRB had notified them it had begun.

NLRB employees interviewed members of Local 4-23 in Port Arthur Tuesday and were expected to talk with others today, a union spokesman said. About 4,000 workers struck Texaco's refinery here Jan. 8 when negotiations of a new two-year contract broke down over proposed changes in the pension plan.

Larry Steffen, chairman of the local's negotiating team, blamed Texaco officials in New York for the charges.

Bus guards are armed

HOUSTON (AP) — An agency's decision to arm guards who run some bus routes is being viewed very seriously and weapons will only be fired "to save a life," an official of the Metropolitan Transit Authority says.

That board voted unanimously Wednesday to let its security guards carry guns and gave them the power of arrest after May 1.

"We truly recognize that this is a grave responsibility and we view it with seriousness," said Beverly Grisby, Metro director of administrative services.

She said the board's decision Wednesday to add nine field officers to the 17 already on the force would cost about $200,000 annually.

Security Chief Tom Lambert said MTA's officers will continue to back up a contract security force that patrols the agency's garages and other facilities. Lambert said crime on buses and at bus stops has been a problem for some time. A bus driver was killed in 1980 and several have been raped, he said.

500 reported killed in flood

TINGO MARIA, Peru (AP) — The first rescue team to reach a remote valley flooded by a jungle river in Central Peru said today that at least 500 people drowned or disappeared.

"Many people died or were swept away when they were sleeping," said Capt. Luis Ramos Tejada, who led 25 civil guards to the disaster zone Saturday morning, only six hours after the Chontayacu River carried an avalanche of mud, rocks and trees down the valley.

"Cruzpampa, the first settlement we reached, was gone," he said. "Nothing was left of the 40 houses that used to be there. I thought it was a supernatural punishment or something."

Ramos Tejada said two other settlements, Aji and Chalón, also disappeared completely, and at least 17 others were hit by the flood.

He estimated at least 500 people drowned or disappeared. But a policeman in Tingo Maria added:

"Many affected settlements have not been visited by the rescue squads and we cannot yet evaluate the full extent of the damage and loss of life."

Uchiza, the largest town in the area with a population of some 2,500 people, was hardly touched, he said. It is 102 miles north of Tingo Maria and 390 miles northeast of Lima.

Because of heavy rains and swollen rivers, Uchiza was accessible today only by airplane and helicopter.

Sister elated at Dozier's rescue

ALVIN, Texas (AP) — Joan Townsend, sister of rescued Air Force Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier, said today she felt all along her brother would survive his ordeal with Italian terrorists.

"I was surprised when I got the call this morning — I was sound asleep — but I felt it was going to work out all right," said Mrs. Townsend, who said she was awakened by a radio station about 5:15 a.m.

"A local reporter called and read the communique to me and that certainly got me awake," she said from her apartment in this small town just south of Houston.

She was worried at times during her brother's six-week ordeal — "Was he warm, was he being taken care of physically,"

"I figured he would be able to handle the emotional and psychological part," said Mrs. Townsend, 48.

She spent the morning answering the telephone and talking with a half dozen reporters in her living room.

She said she would not report to work today at Alvin Community College, where she is chairman of child care development.

"I'm going to stay at home and just react. I haven't had time to plan any specific activities."

Between receiving calls from reporters all over the country, she tried several times to telephone her brother in Italy but got no answer at his Verona apartment. She did not know her brother, two years older, had been taken to a hospital at a nearby NATO base.

Mrs. Townsend lives alone in the two-bedroom apartment. Her 15-year-old son, David, was there today helping her answer the telephone. He lives with his father in Alvin.

One reason Mrs. Townsend was optimistic during the time her brother was missing was the release of photographs by Red Brigade terrorists who claimed responsibility for the kidnapping.

"The first one seemed to be mockery, the way his lip was turned," she said. "The second one looked like 'I will endure this' — kind of a blank stare."

"It was good to see him but it did alarm me, he appeared so dull, such a dull look in his eye," she said.

White says he will disobey Clements' redistrict order

BY JAY ROSSER

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUTIN — Texas Attorney General Mark White will disobey Gov. Bill Clements' order to ask a federal court to draw new boundaries for the state's House and Senate districts to replace those fixed by the U.S. Justice Department.

Instead, he said Wednesday, he will ask a three-judge federal panel in Dallas Thursday to implement the Legislative Redistricting Board proposals that the Justice Department said could result in a dilution of minority voter participation.

"If the governor and his secretary of state want to surrender, that's their privilege," White said. "But I do not intend to do so."

White, a candidate for governor in the Democratic Primary, called the U.S. Justice Department's rejection of the plans Tuesday a "crass, blatantly political decision."

Clements, a Republican and candidate for re-election, praised the Justice Department's decision. He declined Wednesday to rebut White's comments prior to his weekly news conference Thursday.

The Justice Department rejection of the plan imperils the state's Monday filing deadline for legislative offices, a problem the three-judge panel may resolve Thursday.

One of five Democrats on the Legislative Redistricting Board that sketched the proposed boundary lines, White is requesting a meeting with U.S. Attorney General William French Smith in hopes of convincing the Justice Department to drop its objections.

Smith, a close advisor to President Reagan, met with Clements two weeks ago.

Gov. Bill Hobby and a coalition of black and Hispanic legislators also would participate in the meeting, White said.

"I would like to think that they would be open-minded and put aside their political dispositions and make legal decisions as opposed to political ones," White said.

The Justice Department must clear any changes in Texas' election plans under the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

White said the redistricting plans were drafted with the input and approval of minority legislators.

Clements has lambasted the redistricting board's product, at one point threatening political vengeance against panel members.

An odd coalition of Republicans and minorities told the three-judge federal panel last week that the plan is unconstitutional. Final arguments in the case are set for 3 p.m. Thursday.

White blamed much of the redistricting woes on Secretary of State David Dean, a Clements' appointee. Dean, White said, submitted the plans for Justice Department review with a letter noting the plans may not comply with the Voting Rights Act.

Dean said he doesn't object to White's planned appeal to the Justice Department, saying, "Let them have at it and more power to them."

Search continues for two missing from plane wreck

BOSTON (AP) — Four pieces of wreckage from a World Airways jet that skidded off a runway into Boston Harbor have washed up about 40 miles away on a Cape Cod beach, officials said today.

Divers searched again for the bodies of two passengers who were reported missing Tuesday — three days after the DC-10 ran off a runway at Logan International Airport and broke apart in the harbor.

Two of the 208 people who made it safely off the plane have reported they saw a man floating in the water about 25 feet from the plane shortly after the accident.

A Coast Guardsman also reported that he saw a body during rescue operations in the front section of the plane, which broke off and fell into the harbor during the Saturday night accident, said the Coast Guard, which did not identify the guardsman.

But the Coast Guard's Boston operations chief, Richard Griggs, said no search was made because World Airways had reported that all passengers and crew members were accounted for.

It's time to bite the bullet

Last year Congress refused to face up to the fact that the Social Security system is teetering on the brink of bankruptcy. Instead of enacting long-overdue reforms, our lawmakers authorized officials of the three Social Security trust funds to borrow from each other when they run out of cash — which merely postponed the day of reckoning but exposed the entire system to the risk of collapse.

THIS YEAR Congress must bite the bullet and take steps to make sure the system doesn't run out of money. Those steps do NOT include another increase in taxes, since the record-breaking Social Security tax hikes approved four years ago haven't even taken full effect (under present law, many workers will be paying 50 percent more than they are today by 1987!).

The problem, in a nutshell, is that even under the present and projected rates, a steadily declining percentage of workers who pay into the system cannot support a steadily increasing percentage of beneficiaries.

POSSIBLE SOLUTIONS including a slight reduction of future benefits, adjustment of retirement ages, the elimination of fraud and abuse, as well as expansion of the system to include government employees and others not presently paying into the system.

Unless Congress acts swiftly to enact one or more of these reforms, the entire system may soon go broke and millions of Americans will be hurt.

Low shot

Something actor Paul Newman said about making the movie "Absence of Malice" bothered me the first time I heard it.

Newman said "... I was in the frame of mind to take a shot at the press in this picture."

Newman's attitude is dangerous. People who are professionals in journalism have to take care every day that they don't get a name with the same feeling.

WHEN I LOOK at the movie as a whole, the first thing that comes to mind is Sally Field's portrayal of an over-zealous reporter.

She displayed at times a reckless disregard for the people she was using as sources. I think her interpretation of the role set the rest of us back several notches.

My opinion is that a reporter should look at a source first as a person, then as a place to get information. Believe it or not, there really are human beings inside a newsroom.

Field played the role the way I'm afraid many people tend to look at reporters. I'm afraid people tend to look at us like machines, sort of like tape recorders who take down every word, then use what they want in an article.

WELL, REPORTERS aren't machines. And most of us don't look at people like big blocks of possible news.

And everybody needs to keep in mind that people have public and private sides. It's a mistake to assume that there's not a division between the two. I think "Absence of Malice" forgot to ever let Sally Field be off the job. One of the strong points of the movie is when Field says to Newman "Don't expect the truth unless you're willing to tell it."

That's a good line. You learn fast in this business that people will refuse to talk to you, will feed you false information and sometimes will lie to your face.

That makes a journalist's job difficult. Newspapers want to print the facts. They want to get the information out to the people. Getting the information out means putting down both sides of a story, knowing at least one side must be wrong, in an effort to let the reader make up his own mind.

Newspapers also print a lot of things that nobody wants to read. But I've never known a journalist, I mean a professional journalist, who is in this business because he gets his kicks embarrassing people.

Newspapers are reflections of what is going on out in the community and in the world. Not all of that is complimentary and easy to take.

Newman needs to realize there's good and bad in every profession.

AND EVERY PERSON in every profession has done a good job and a bad job at times. You learn from the mistakes. But in this business, your mistakes are sprawled out for everybody to see, and that makes it a little harder to take.

I'm not saying the press should have a free reign. Criticism is good. It's just that constructive criticism is better than hearing it from someone who "want to take a shot" at us.

Presuppositions need re-thinking

Dear Editor, Continuing in response to the editorial "Creation not for public schools," the editor's mind seems to be as biased as the judge's who tried this case. Their attitude seems to be "Don't bother me with the facts, my mind is made up! Creation is religion, it's a matter of faith; but evolution, well, that's science!" That presupposition is totally untrue and is the epitome of a prejudiced mind unwilling to study the facts. Such blind prejudice usually then goes on to label any scientist who believes in creation as a "non-scientist." That type of discrimination in the scientific community today is what is being used to discredit the literally thousands of scientists in the U.S. alone who are creationists.

What is science anyway? A dictionary will inform you that science is "systematized knowledge derived from observation, study, and experimentation." The very essence of the scientific method is observation and repeatability. (By the way the scientific method itself was formulated by a creationist, Sir Francis Bacon). Now, unless we change the entire meaning of science, then only horizontal or microevolution (what creationists call genetic variation) can be considered to be scientific. Vertical or macro-evolution (the emergence of the complex from the simple and changes between the kinds) is not subject to being called scientific because it is neither observable nor repeatable. So creationists are objecting to evolution being called science when they have just as much scientific evidence to support their model. The fact is, when you study origins you go beyond the realm of science by definition. The question becomes "What is the ultimate mover?" You are left to choose between only two basic world views, evolution and creation. Both are believed purely by faith ultimately. The fact that the ACLU paraded religious leaders one after the other to the witness stand in Arkansas's trial proves this point. They all said in effect that evolution fit perfectly well into their beliefs as a tenet to their religious faith. Those fatal admissions prove that evolution itself is the teaching of religion, not science. Variants of the typical evolutionary world view are tenets of religions such as Humanism, Atheism, Theological Liberalism, Hinduism, Buddhism, Confucianism, Taoism, and the pantheistic religions. Therefore, the teaching of evolution is indeed the teaching of religious doctrine in public schools.

The Arkansas case may very well present a legal precedent, and the net result due to the evolutionist's own fatal admissions may ultimately be the outlawing of the teaching of both creation and evolution. Academic freedom would better be accommodated by the teaching of both. The struggle is a long way from over. I'm personally looking forward to the trial coming up in Louisiana because the creationists will be represented well for the first time with Constitutional lawyer, John Whitehead, and Wendell Byrd. That trial should be an educational experience for all those who need to re-think their presuppositions.

Conning the country

WASHINGTON — "This is a procedural matter," President Reagan said about tax exemption for schools that practice segregation. But it is precisely on grounds of procedure that the administration's performance is most repugnant.

For the administration has not only affronted common notions of racial fairness. It has achieved that bad result by first violating even more fundamental norms of strict construction from law and precedent.

When President Reagan came to office in 1981, the legal situation was controlled by the case of Green v. Connally. That case had been brought by a group of Mississippi blacks to challenge the granting of tax exemption to local white schools which practiced racial segregation. The Internal Revenue Service fought their claim, insisting there was no constitutional obligation to use the tax laws to effect school desegregation. The IRS position was supported, in an independent argument, by a group of Mississippi whites representing the segregationist academies.

A three-man District Court, here in Washington, ruled unanimously for the plaintiffs and against the IRS in 1971. The IRS, under instructions from the White House, declined to appeal the ruling. It issued, under orders from President Nixon, specific regulations accepting the principle that tax exemptions should not be granted to schools practicing racial segregation.

The case then went to the Supreme Court on a motion of appeal from the Mississippi whites. The Supreme Court upheld the ruling of the District Court in a summary judgment.

THE ISSUE WAS posed again in slightly different form by two religious schools — Bob Jones University in South Carolina, and the Goldsboro Christian Schools of North Carolina. Both admitted the practice of racial segregation. But they argued they did so on religious grounds, and that they were thus constitutionally entitled to tax-exempt status.

The Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit denied those claims, citing the ruling in the Green case. That decision was then appealed to the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court decided to take the case in September 1981. In its paper urging the Court to take the case, the Solicitor General's office, which handles Supreme Court work for the Justice Department, asserted the common sense procedural position. It said, citing the Green decision in great detail, that the government would oppose the two religious academies.

Up to that point there was no question of the IRS, as President Reagan has repeatedly asserted, "making social policy by itself." On the contrary, the IRS had originally refused to "make social policy." It had been obliged to act by court procedures which were explicitly accepted by President Nixon and then endorsed by the Supreme Court under Chief Justice Warren Burger, and the Solicitor General's office under President Ronald Reagan.

But that wasn't good enough for some Southern right-wingers in the Congress. Nor for some of the politicians at the Justice Department. They argued that since the original statutes providing tax exemption for educational institutions were enacted by Congress in 1897 and 1917, the Congress could not have intended that the tax-exemption clause be used against segregation. They turned a blind eye to 20 years of civil rights

Billy Graham

I broke a commandment

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have always been a pretty good person, but recently I broke one of the Ten Commandments. Now I am worried that I won't be able to go to Heaven. — F.V.C.

DEAR F.V.C.: It is good that you sense you have sinned against God by breaking his commandments, and that you also sense your need for his forgiveness. There are two kinds of people who are especially in danger spiritually: those who feel God is unable to forgive them because they have sinned, and those who feel no need for forgiveness because they think they have not sinned.

Before I deal directly with your question about Heaven, I want to point out something very important to avoid a possible misunderstanding by some people. You say that you have recently broken one of the Ten Commandments. (You will find them listed in Exodus 20 in the Old Testament.) But if you look at them closely I suspect you have broken almost all of them, if you understand them correctly. Jesus stressed that it was not just the outward action which could be wrong; our inward attitude could also be displeasing to God. For example, Jesus declared, "You have heard that it was said to the people long ago, 'Do not murder, and anyone who murders will be subject to judgment.' But I tell you that anyone who is angry with his brother is subject to judgment. ... You have heard that it was said, 'Do not commit adultery.' But I tell you that anyone who looks at a woman lustfully has already committed adultery with her in his heart" (Matthew 5:21-22, 27-28).

This is why the Bible states that "all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23). We sin every day, in deed and thought. We sin not only in what we do that is wrong, but also in our failure to do things that we should (such as help other people).

Your hope for Heaven is not in your ability to live a sinless life. If that were the case no one could be saved, for no one is without sin. But our hope is in Christ, the sinless Son of God who came to earth to die for our sins.

Jack Anderson

Life in South Pole

WASHINGTON — The future of mankind may depend more on the world's climatic changes than on all the nuclear missiles the superpowers build in the next 100 years.

That's one reason why the U.S. government spends about $70 million a year on scientific exploration in Antarctica. The frozen continent is the coldest, windiest, most hostile environment on earth. But its unique conditions may give our scientists the key to unlock vital mysteries of the world's past — and clues to its future.

HERE ARE SOME of the things our scientists have learned or concluded from their icy sojourns at the South

Pole: —It is theoretically possible for man to manipulate the weather for military advantage — like causing a localized ice age or other devastating climatic changes on an enemy country. But for those who might like to blame the Russians for the worst winter weather in recent U.S. history, the scientists assured my associate that the technology "is a long way away."

—Driven by necessity, the Americans in Antarctica invented a promising preventive for the spread of influenza and the common cold. They call it "killer Kleenex" — a facial tissue impregnated with iodine. It was credited with cutting into a flu epidemic that threatened the personnel at one of the four U.S. bases. The only drawback was a cosmetic one: The tissue left a telltale stain on the nose of the user.

—Arthur L. DeVries, who has been to Antarctica so many times he has a glacier named after him, succeeded in isolating a unique glycoprotein found in the region's fish — a built-in antifreeze that allows them to survive in the icy Antarctica waters. It could be invaluable if it can be reproduced and somehow assimilated by humans. The substance might also be used against cancer. —Man's "improvements" are remorselessly swallowed up by Antarctica's ice, wind and snow. A landing field at McMurdo Station lasts only a couple of months, before it breaks up and floats out to sea. A more stable facility, Williams Field, is built on the permanent ice shelf nearby. It never breaks up, but it has to be rebuilt every four years anyway, as the ice engulfs it.

At the South Pole station, plumber Rick Healy explained a unique problem: The base was sinking on its own warm sewage, which had been pumped far below in the permanent ice.

Ma Bell is preparing to pull out of her role as parent corporation, and she's taking inventory. The telephones belong to her.

"They've got to figure out who owns what, and it's going to be horrendous," said Miss Montgomery, an Illinois Bell spokeswoman.

Worried looks on employees also are reminders of Ma Bell's status. Workers may have to make a choice soon or have it made for them.

"Is it best to go with AT&T, or best to be with Illinois Bell?" asks Mel Blackwell, 37, a district manager of residential service centers.

AT&T has agreed to relinquish its 22 operating telephone companies, including Illinois Bell, as part of an out-of-court settlement of an antitrust suit filed in 1974 by the Justice Department.

Under the settlement, which still must be approved by a federal judge in Washington, AT&T will retain the lucrative long-distance network, which it had been using to subsidize local calls. It will cut the local operating companies loose to run their own local networks. It's expected that will mean higher rates for customers, including 3.5 million served by Illinois Bell.

But no one knows for sure how the divestiture will be carried out, or all the effects it will have on employees and stockholders.

These people had always depended on the phone company with more than 1 million employees and assets totaling $137 billion.

Now, many Bell System employees, including 37,631 at Illinois Bell, wonder how their careers will be affected. Some pensioners, including 14,000 from Illinois Bell, wonder whether their benefits will be cut, and some AT&T stockholders are a bit jittery.

The Bell System, with its nationwide network of companies, has been the kind of corporation that encourages people to stay with it for a lifetime. People moved up by moving around.

A good example is chairman Charles L. Brown, 60. He worked in Cleveland, Hartford, Conn., Birmingham, Ala., Atlanta, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Kansas City and was president of Illinois Bell before he reached his present position.

But now employees like Blackwell, who has been with the company for 15 years and spent four of them at AT&T on the East Coast, wonder if they will ever have a chance to do what Brown did.

"To some degree this takes away the opportunity to go higher in the business because you won't be able to transfer easily to Indiana Bell or Northwestern Bell or another company. Unless the local companies are regionalized, you won't have that opportunity," said Blackwell.

Miss Montgomery had similar thoughts when she first heard about the AT&T settlement. She had entertained ideas of a transfer to New York.

"When I first heard the news, I went into shock," she said.

"It's not that I had thought so much about moving up in AT&T, it's just that until Friday (Jan. 8) I had the option. Now our careers will be without the New York umbrella or the New York swinging door, the New York enrichment opportunity."

Higher-ups in the Bell System believe opportunities to advance will still be there, although they say some transfers won't be as easy.

"Some local companies will get together and pool their staffs. I've just got to believe that will happen," said Charles Marshall, 52, a former Illinois Bell president who is now vice president for planning with AT&T in New York.

"The opportunity is obviously better with the whole Bell System than just with Illinois Bell," said Illinois Bell President W. L. Weiss. "Opportunity, yes. Whether there will be as much is hard to say."

Weiss, 52, and other officers can't answer a lot of questions right now. They don't know themselves what shape the local phone companies will take. That is to be decided over the next few months.

When Carl Denk of Springfield, a 63-year-old retiree, asked whether he will keep getting free telephone service and $40 worth of long-distance calls for free monthly, Weiss could not say.

Despite the unknowns, however, Bell employees generally don't expect the company's reputation for treating its employees well to change.

"Bell takes care of its own people," said Kathy Ryan in the engineering department in Springfield and an 11-year Bell employee.

Retirees, although pretty confident their pensions will keep coming, seem more cynical about the settlement than current employees. Most retirees take a fierce pride in the Bell System as they worked for it — the monopoly that was the target of the Justice Department's suit.

"My own opinion is, the Bell System is one of the best communications systems in the world, why mess with it," said Edward L. Brown of Plainfield. He worked for Bell for 37 years before retiring in 1978.

Meanwhile, several AT&T stockholders who have held the stock for years say they are not about to sell, although some of them say they are unsettled.

"I am somewhat nervous about what impact the settlement will have on the long-term value of my stock," said James Wascher, 28, a Chicago attorney who bought the stock while still in college. "I am reasonably confident that it will still be quite profitable."

"I think AT&T will come out in good shape," said Helen Robeck, 81, a retired associate editor of Esquire magazine who has held AT&T stock for over 10 years.

Federal deficit nears record proportions

As the annual federal deficit approached record proportions after only three months of fiscal 1982, the Treasury Department gave credit markets a blow by saying it plans to cover the red ink by borrowing a record $41.3 billion by the end of March.

The government was nearly $20 billion short in December, pushing the gap for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1 to $48.2 billion. That was more than two-thirds of the way to the government's record $66.4 billion deficit in 1976, with nine months of the year to go.

The Treasury said Wednesday it would have to borrow $41.3 billion in the first three months of this year to cover the red ink, breaking its previous record quarterly borrowing of $38.4 billion, set in the first quarter of 1980 when a recession was beginning.

Economists and credit analysts say the heavy Treasury borrowing to pay for large deficits pushes up interest rates, because it boosts credit demands at the same time the Federal Reserve is trying to limit credit availability to fight inflation.

In his State of the Union address Tuesday night, President Reagan confirmed reports the fiscal 1982 deficit will near $100 billion, making the latest official forecast of $43.1 billion obsolete. The shortfall for fiscal year ended Sept. 30 was $57.9 billion.

The new estimate shows the deficit "is going to be large," said Treasury Undersecretary Beryl Sprinkel. "It's very large; we should not be kidding about that matter."

Richard Davis, director of fixed-income research at First Boston Corp., said that the high yields the Treasury pays are attractive to investors and have made it difficult for corporations to sell bonds.

Other analysts said credit markets need a clear signal. George Rocourt, an economist at the Mercantile-Safe Deposit and Trust Co. in Baltimore, said the markets need "some assurance that these deficits will not continue forever and will not lead to more inflation."

Prices of outstanding Treasury notes and bonds declined modestly after the announcement largely because the financing was larger than had been widely forecast by securities dealers.

Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker warned earlier this week that unless Reagan and Congress kept deficits from going higher, interest rates would again rise, smothering economic recovery.

Yet Volcker came under fire Wednesday by Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, who complained about what he called the Fed's "erratic control" over the money supply.

"Steady monetary policy is absolutely essential if we are to steady the financial markets and reduce interest rates," Regan said.

There had been calls for tax increases to help pare the deficit, but Regan in his speech said "raising taxes won't balance the budget." Instead he proposed more domestic spending cuts, plugging tax "loopholes" and strengthening the law requiring larger, profitable companies to pay a minimum tax.

Regan told a congressional committee Wednesday Reagan will ask Congress to withhold tax on interest and dividend income to help trim the 1983 deficit.

Some private economists agree. Despite lowering inflation, the "highly volatile movement" in the money supply "has the financial markets so uptight that they demand a tremendous premium above the inflation rate," keeping interest rates high, said Robert Genetski, chief economist of Harris Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago.

But another administration official said he was satisfied with the central bank's performance.

Lawrence Kudlow, assistant director for economic policy at the Office of Management and Budget, told Wall Street executives in New York on Wednesday night that "the Fed's done a fine job this (past) year" on controlling monetary growth.

"To go after the Federal Reserve Board is an exercise in futility," said Kudlow, a former Wall Street economist. Instead, he said, a sound fiscal policy and "tighter budget" should be pursued to complement steady money growth.

First Lady's gowns may not be tax-free

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan's high-fashion, cost-free official wardrobe may have a price tag after all — if the Internal Revenue Service decides the gifts amounted to income for the first family.

Several tax lawyers say that under existing legal precedent, the thousands of dollars worth of apparel might be considered part of the Reagans' income because it was donated by designers who stood to gain publicity by having Mrs. Reagan wear it.

If that determination were made, the Reagans would be liable for taxes on the value of the clothing, the lawyers said.

White House officials refused to discuss the issue Wednesday and one tax expert said he seriously doubted the Reagans would be forced to pay the taxes if the case ever went to a jury.

Earlier this month, Sheila Tate, the first lady's press secretary, said Mrs. Reagan had accepted evening gowns, designer dresses and sport clothes as "loans" from leading designers. While refusing to estimate the value of the free clothing, Mrs. Tate said much of it eventually would be donated to museums.

But tax attorneys interviewed by The Associated Press said that regardless of what ultimately happens to the clothing, its value could be considered part of the Reagans' taxable income.

MSU lists fall honor students

Midwestern State University honor rolls for the 1981 fall semester listed 53 students on the Dean's Honor Roll and 134 students on the University Honor Roll, according to Betty Bullock, MSU registrar.

Students meeting the requirements for the Dean's Honor Roll made no grade below "A" for at least 15 semester hours. Those meeting the requirements for the University Honor Roll made a minimum grade point of 3.5 on a 4.0 system and had no grade below a "C" for at least 15 semester hours.

Students making the honor rolls include Nita L. Fleming Mouser of Big Spring.

Wyoming oil lottery too good to be true? Yep!!

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Recently you may have read an advertisement: "Wyoming Oil Lottery — Open to All in January."

The advertisement may have explained how you can become the lucky winner of an oil and gas lease. Testimony examples usually explain how winners have sold their leases for a fortune to a major oil company.

If the investment sounds too good to be true then you're probably right, according to Linda Truitt of the Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin. Ms. Truitt said the state of Wyoming leases almost all the land it owns that has potential for oil and gas production. She said 40 to 50 parcels of land are offered for lease each month through a lottery.

The requirements include filing an entry card plus a $15 entry fee for each desired parcel with the Commissioner of Public Lands, Ms. Truitt said.

If only one entry card is filed on a parcel, the lease is automatically awarded to the applicant. If more than one card is filled a winner will be drawn and he or she will have the opportunity to lease the parcel for ten years with a rental fee of $1 per acre per year.

"If oil or gas is not discovered on a lease parcel within the ten-year lease period or if the annual rent is not paid the lease again becomes available. If oil or gas is discovered, the lease is extended until production stops and for this reason none of the parcels offered has an active producing well on it," Ms. Truitt said.

"The Wyoming Commissioner of Public Lands recommends that you not invest money in filing fees or rental payments unless you can afford to lose the money. He also suggests you not file an application unless you have information which will help you determine the potential value of the parcel you are interested in," she said.

The Texas Securities Board recently stopped two companies from implying in their advertising that overnight fortunes could be made from Wyoming oil and gas leases. It was found that the sales literature of the S. Charles Stanton Co. and the Kirk Sanders Co. failed to disclose how many clients the companies represented, the number of applications they were placing into the lottery on any given parcel and the percentage of their applications which actually have been granted a lease.

"A good filing service may help you by providing information on which leases are most likely to be profitable, but since thousands of applications are received by Wyoming for parcels it offers each year, the chances of you obtaining a valuable lease are small. You should be wary if a filing service advertises instant riches from participation in the lease drawing."

"While the chance to acquire valuable oil and gas leases may be attractive, you should always remember that winning a lease is no guarantee you will make money and money should not be spent unless you can afford to lose it. Anyone considering using a filing service should determine if the extra cost is worth the services that are provided," Ms. Truitt said.

Reagan's 'bold stroke' was suggested two campaigns ago

WASHINGTON (AP) — That "single bold stroke" with which President Reagan wants to change the billing address for the nation's major social programs is an idea that bought him a lot of trouble two campaigns ago.

Reagan proposed Tuesday night that Congress approve the gradual transfer of social programs that now cost $47 billion a year from federal to state and local governments, along with the tax sources to finance them.

It is a refined, scaled-down version of a proposal he first advanced more than six years ago, just before his first major run at the presidency.

In those days it was to be a $90 billion transfer and — as Reagan the inflation fighter often points out — a dollar bought more than now.

The plan Reagan outlined in his State of the Union address would change drastically the way governments at all levels do business on social programs. But it is not nearly so drastic as the one he recommended in 1975.

Reagan's political adversaries made that proposition into an issue that hounded him all through his 1976 campaign against former President Gerald R. Ford.

He never renounced it, but he spent a lot of valuable campaign time trying to explain it.

The lesson was heeded in his winning 1980 campaign. He did not make the transfer plan a major point then and what he did say was in general terms. Without specifics, Reagan said he would seek to transfer to state and local governments "programs which do not belong at the federal level."

What he is suggesting now is an eight-year plan that ultimately would shift responsibility for more than 40 programs from Washington to state and local governments.

Three gigantic programs are at the heart of the proposal. The federal government would take over financing of Medicaid, a state-run program that provides medical care for the needy, and the states would become responsible for welfare and food stamps.

The money would come initially from a fund financed by federal excise taxes on alcohol, tobacco.

Adult Education night classes begin Feb. 2

Adult Education day classes are now in progress at the Howard College Learning Center and at the State Hospital Learning Center. Night classes will begin Feb. 2.

Adult Education offers a person the opportunity to improve basic skills, prepare for the G.E.D. Exam, acquire life coping skills, or learn to speak English at no cost to the student.

Adult Learning Centers and Adult Classes are held in a variety of locations with a wide range of day and evening schedules. Materials and teaching aids are supplied for each individual. A student may enroll at anytime during the year.

The Howard College Learning Center is open Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. until noon and from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m. It is also open on Fridays from 8 a.m. until noon. The night classes are held on Tuesday and Thursday from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. The Big Spring State Hospital Learning Center is open Monday through Friday from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m.

FRONT PAGE OBIT — Composer Tom Schubert pastes big double headline on Wednesday's 5-Star late edition of the Philadelphia Bulletin that headlines the folding of the 134-year-old newspaper. The Bulletin is ceasing publication after Friday due to huge financial losses.

Bulletin's exec editor issues bad news

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Even as The Bulletin's executive editor urged his gloomy staff to help the 134-year-old newspaper go out in style, publisher N.S. Hayden said that for afternoon dailies, there was only bad news ahead.

"I have no hope for afternoon newspapers in metropolitan areas," he said Wednesday as he announced The Bulletin, once the nation's largest afternoon newspaper, would cease publication with its Friday issue.

The Bulletin is the fourth large daily to close in the past six months. Its demise follows the closure of the afternoon Washington Star, the New York Daily News Tonight edition and the morning Philadelphia Journal.

The problems of The Bulletin and other afternoon dailies that closed generally have been attributed to competition from evening television news, the migration of subscribers to suburbs and city traffic that hampers afternoon distribution.

"Until Friday, no place in the country will have better newspapers," said Executive Editor Craig Ammerman, who told the 250 editors and reporters that The Bulletin would help employees find new jobs.

Subdued applause greeted Ammerman's conclusion: "We've got two more days to go. Let's do it right."

Charter Co., the oil, communications and insurance conglomerate that owns the newspaper, offered The Bulletin for sale Jan. 6, and ordered it closed when no buyer could be found.

Hayden, who also is the newspaper's president, read the announcement Wednesday at a meeting with employees.

Boy with 'Elephant Man's disease' plays by himself

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP) — Each time Tony Albarran gazed in the mirror, he knew he looked different. Giant tumors covered parts of his 4-year-old face, nose and forehead and made it difficult for him to eat, sleep — and even breathe.

The giant bumps on his face would so upset Tony that he would stare into a mirror in his living room, pulling at the thick tumors. He couldn't understand why he wasn't like the other little children.

He couldn't understand why he had neurofibromatosis — better known as "Elephant Man's disease."

Tony's father, Hector, 28, was so anxious, too, that he recently used his savings to take Tony and his family to Dallas where the boy underwent corrective surgery to remove growths from the upper part of his face.

"I couldn't just sit there and do nothing," Albarran, 28, said Monday. "We didn't want to wait until it was too late."

John Merrick, an Englishman who suffered from the disorder, created an increased awareness of the disease.

When Tony was born, his parents, who have two other children, say they knew something was wrong because their son's left eye was very big.

When he was nearly 1-year-old, Tony's left eye was surgically removed and doctors discovered he had neurofibromatosis. "His eye was filled with the tumor, and the doctors found tumors behind his eye," his father said.

There are growths in Tony's nose and mouth and they interfere with his breathing and sleeping and make it hard for him to eat.

Tony's father says his son's disorder also has made him the target of ridicule. When he started walking and talking, "other kids gave him a hard time," said Albarran, a shipping foreman for a Gurnee glass factory. "He got into fights because he had a big nose and big forehead."

Tony now prefers to play alone with small cars or in his backyard, where he can kick a soccer ball.

And even though doctors say there's a possibility of tumors growing on his face, Albarran said he will take his son back to the doctor as often as necessary to remove the growths.

Study says community colleges are a 'dead end' for minorities

NEW YORK (AP) — Community colleges meet the needs of many Americans but can lead to a "dead end" for students who want to go on to four-year colleges, a new study on minority education says.

The problem is particularly acute for minority students because they attend such schools in disproportionate numbers, according to the "Final Report of the Commission on the Higher Education of Minorities," released Wednesday.

While praising community colleges for their vocational and adult training efforts, the study recommended that students who aspire to bachelor's degrees be encouraged to enroll in four-year institutions at the beginning of their college careers.

The report also said that after more than a decade of gains, growth in minority representation at the nation's colleges has stalled in the past several years.

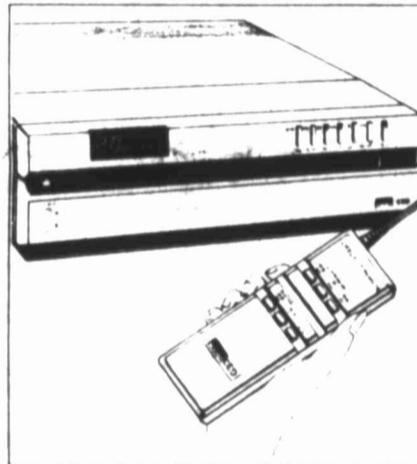

Proportionately, far fewer minority students graduate from high school, get into four-year colleges and receive bachelor's degrees than white students, said the report, financed with a $700,000 grant from the Ford Foundation.

Among reasons the report cited were misuse of standardized admissions tests, financial problems of minority students, and failure of community colleges to transfer students to higher levels.

Mitchell stock show to grab spotlight

COLORADO CITY — Mitchell County Youths are breaking out the mineral oil, the shears, the brushes and the blow dryers as they ready their stock for the Mitchell County Livestock Show this Friday and Saturday.

County extension agent Bob Benson says the show is expected to have 130 hogs, 40 lambs and 40 steers. The weighing-in for the animals begins at 4 p.m. Thursday. The swine competition is set to begin at 10 a.m. Friday.

On Saturday, the steer and lamb competition will begin at 10 a.m. Classes of steers and lambs will alternate — a steer class followed by a lamb class and so forth — until the expected noon completion time, Benson said.

Lambs will be judged by Gaines County extension agent Kyle Smith while the steers are to be judged by Llano rancher Hefton McBride. The large swine complement will be placed by judge Carl Wilson, vocational agriculture teacher from Albany.

San Angelo man released to Garza County officers

A San Angelo man who was being held in Howard County jail without bond has been released to the custody of the Garza County sheriff's officers. Donny Austin, 22, of San Angelo, had been arrested by Howard County sheriff's deputies on a Garza County warrant of bond forfeiture.

The following were processed through the sheriff's office: Connie Mae Alford, 35, of Sterling City route, charged with shoplifting under $200, $2,500 bond posted by B & M Bail Bond Company; Larry Dean Simmons, 24, 908 S. Bell, charged with escape and burglary, $4,000 bond posted by B & M Bail Bond.

Also out on bond is Richard Ray Chambers, 20, of 406 Douglas, who is charged with felony theft on a warrant from Colorado City. His $2,500 bond was posted by B & M Rail Bond Company.

Aerobic dancing tips available

A course in aerobic dancing will be offered by the Adult and Continuing Education Department of Howard College, announced Josie Salazar, acting director. Classes will meet from 5:30 p.m. until 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday, Feb. 2 through April 1 in the Coliseum East Room.

Instructor for the course will be Erlinda Perez. Cost of the course is $18.

Interested persons must pre-register in the Continuing Education Office located in the Horace Garrett Building on campus. For further information, call the Adult and Continuing Education Department at 287-6311, ext. 216. Deadline for registration is 5 p.m. Tuesday.

County Court eight guilty

Howard County Court was busy Tuesday as eight people pleaded guilty before Judge Bill Tune. County attorney Bob Miller said yesterday he expected several pleas as a result of the process of selecting a jury.

The jury, incidentally, was not needed Tuesday. Persons set for trial either pleaded guilty or were granted continuances.

The county collected $1,200 in fines from the eight guilty pleas, plus a total of $538 in court costs. Three probated sentences were assessed and one 18-day sentence.

Merit Taste Unbeaten!

MERIT low tar/good taste combination continues as proven winner over leading higher tar brands.

One low tar cigarette continues to challenge higher tar smoking—and win.

Latest research offers new evidence confirming MERIT as the proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking.

Higher Tars Meet Taste Match.

In impartial new tests where brand identity was concealed, the overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Moreover, when tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Taste Smokers Turning To MERIT.

In a second part of the same study, smokers confirm that MERIT taste is a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar brands.

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT is an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

Dr. Donohue

Galactorrhea usually benign

Dear Dr. Donohue: I went to my doctor and learned that I have galactorrhea. I have discharged milk from both breasts. I am very worried. I am 51 years old and have eight healthy children, the youngest being 15. What causes the problem? — Mrs. A.W.

Many conditions produce galactorrhea, which is inappropriate secretion of milk from the breast. Chafing from rough clothing or fondling will make breasts secrete milk. Drugs, especially some of the tranquilizers and blood pressure medicines, may cause it. So can certain hormonal conditions — of the thyroid, adrenals, or gonads. So can problems with the pituitary, the gland that directs all the others.

I am certainly not trying to suggest that any of these conditions is causing your galactorrhea, only to summarize some of the reasons for it in some women. However, a milky white discharge from the breast most often is benign. Yet, it requires a careful search for all possible underlying conditions. I am sure you must be worried about cancer. That would be highly unusual unless a breast lump can be felt or detected on a mammogram. A bloody discharge would also raise the specter of cancer.

I have not answered your question, because I cannot from this distance. You tell me in another part of your letter that your doctor does not at this time feel that this is something to worry about. I can only counsel you to accept his assessment, and be a little patient as he continues ruling out conditions I mentioned above. It may take awhile, but you and he will get there.

Dear Dr. Donohue: In a recent accident I received a simple break of my collar bone, shoulder blade and rib. They are healing satisfactorily, but I've been told by friends that I am now prone to developing arthritis there from this later in life. What are the chances of that happening? I am 48. P.A.K.

Every bone break does not lead to arthritis. The kind of arthritis you speak of is a special kind — traumatic arthritis. If the tip of a bone, the part that helps form a joint end, breaks, that can lead to arthritis there at a later date. But this does not always happen. I cannot give you statistics on this. I have not seen any.

You have the example of football players, whose knees have been so damaged from repeated breaks and twists that they do end up with arthritis of the knee joint later in life. However, this is not the kind of arthritis that affects the entire system — rheumatoid arthritis. In that, joints in various parts of the body are affected more or less simultaneously because of the system-wide disorder. Distinctions between various forms of arthritis are made in the booklet "How You Can Control Arthritis," which other readers may order by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Abby

Gay marriage is not legal

DEAR ABBY: Two weeks ago I received a telephone call from my youngest son (29) who has been living in San Francisco for the last three years.

He told me that a priest had just married him to his friend, Jerry — another guy. He said he has never been happier in his life, and he asked me to tell everyone in the family about it.

So far I haven't told anybody because I'm not sure how some of our relatives will take it. For my part, I love my son, and all I want is for him to be happy.

Abby, is marriage between two men legal in California? This is a new one for me. And I would like to know what kind of a "priest" would perform this kind of ceremony.

PENNSYLVANIA MOM

DEAR MOM: Congratulations. You haven't lost a son, you've gained another son. Same-sex marriages are not legal anywhere, but there are members of the clergy (Metropolitan Community Churches) who perform such ceremonies.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 18, the oldest of three children in our family. Our father died a year ago. We all felt terrible for a long time, but gradually the hurt subsided — except for Mom. She was always so active and cheerful, but since Dad died she has changed so much. She quit her part-time job and rarely leaves the house, except for church. She sleeps a lot, and when she isn't sleeping she just stays in her pajamas or housecoat, lying around the house. She's gained a lot of weight and doesn't seem to care about herself anymore.

She's still a great mother. She cooks and keeps house for us, but she doesn't want to go to the movies or even for a walk. She says nothing is any fun anymore without Dad.

We have tried to get her to see a counselor or someone to help her deal with her grief, but she keeps saying she'll be all right, it just takes time. She hardly sees any of her old friends, and we have no close relatives.

She's only 42, but she acts like her life is over. Is there anything we can do to help her?

HER CHILDREN

DEAR CHILDREN: Yes. Enlist the help of your clergyman. He will know what help is available in your community. There are counselors who specialize in teaching people to learn to handle their grief. There are also support groups, comprised of others who have experienced grief and learned how to cope with it. Your mother can be helped. Please don't take no for an answer.

DEAR ABBY: "Curious" asked you to define "success" and you replied by quoting Christopher Morley: "There is only one success — to be able to spend your life in your own way."

Please consider another point of view from Ralph Waldo Emerson:

"To laugh often and much; to win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children; to earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends; to appreciate beauty; to find the best in others; to leave the world a bit better whether by a healthy child, a garden patch, or a redeemed social condition; to know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived. This is to have succeeded."

Sincerely,

A FREQUENT READER

Alcohol-pregnancy report premature?

Panel challenges report

The American Council on Science and Health has challenged the recent warning from the Office of the Surgeon General that pregnant women should completely abstain from the use of alcoholic beverages. While ACSH strongly recommended that pregnant women limit their daily intake of alcoholic beverages to two drinks or less of beer, wine, or liquor, the scientific group felt that a call for abstinence was not supported by scientific data.

The ACSH report "Alcohol Use During Pregnancy," which summarizes an extensive review of scientific findings on this subject, warns that heavy drinking during pregnancy is clearly associated with increased risks of miscarriages and birth defects. "Binge" drinking (consumption of a large amount of alcohol on one occasion) should especially be avoided during pregnancy.

ACSH also concluded, however, that "scientific studies have found no increase in the frequency of the birth defects at levels up to one ounce of absolute alcohol (equivalent to two average drinks) daily. No study can prove an absolutely safe level of drinking. But for this consumption level the risks, if any, appear low."

The Surgeon General's recent Advisory on Alcohol and Pregnancy based its recommendation for total abstinence on the judgement that no "safe" level of drinking during pregnancy has been proven and on the lack of evidence that alcohol use has benefits for the mother or child.

ACSH executive director Dr. Elizabeth M. Whelan said, "Our recommendation differs from that of the Surgeon General because our review of the scientific findings does not support the contention that complete abstinence from alcohol is necessary to protect the health of the fetus. While it would be easier to recommend that expectant mothers abstain from all use of alcohol, we are concerned that excessive health warnings may be counterproductive, leading women to equate real risks during pregnancy (such as heavy drinking or cigarette smoking) with hypothetical risks, such as occasional, moderate alcohol use."

Dr. David Roll, associate director of ACSH, said: "We believe that health warnings should be issued only when there is scientific evidence to support them. Public health scientists and officials need to be aware of the possible ramifications of their warnings. For instance, a woman may unnecessarily worry about having had an occasional drink in the weeks before her pregnancy was confirmed. Ultimately she might consider the option of abortion, fearing the birth of a deformed child when actually there is no scientific evidence for such a concern."

The American Council on Science and Health is a nonprofit, independent educational association promoting scientifically balanced evaluations of food, chemicals, the environment, and human health.

Founder's biography presented at meeting

Marion Savell presented a biography on the life of Thomas Wildey to members of Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 284 Tuesday. Olean Melton presided over the meeting.

Wildey was the founder of the Odd Fellow Lodge in America. He joined the Lodge in London, England, at age 21 and came to America shortly thereafter. The first American Lodge was formed April 6, 1819. Before Wildey's death in 1861, Odd Fellow Lodges had been formed in 10 states. A monument stands in his honor in Baltimore, Md.

Norma Newton, lodge deputy, installed Myrtle Gring as financial secretary. Also installed were Mabel Morrison, deputy secretary; Marion Savell, deputy marshal; Gay Smith, chaplain; and Mildred Collins, deputy chaplain.

The next meeting will be held Tuesday. A Valentine party and pot luck supper will be held Feb. 16. Those in charge of refreshments for the party are Mildred Collins, Gracie Lee Grider, Lila Holland and Norma Newton.

Health care crisis is topic

Mrs. H.M. Rowe presented a program entitled, "The Crisis in Health Care" at the Friday meeting of the GFWC Modern Woman's Forum. The meeting took place at K-Bob's Restaurant with Mrs. Fred Whitaker as hostess. Mrs. C.R. Moad presided.

Mrs. Rowe said health care is America's third largest industry. One of every seven Americans will need hospital care this year, she said. Costs for a hospital stay have spiraled beyond the reach of the average middle income budget even though 90 percent of the population have the aid of health insurance.

Mrs. Rowe said that inflation is the main reason for high hospital costs. Advances in medical technology which often require expensive equipment and specially trained technicians, is another major cause of spiraling costs.

To curb these rising costs, federal, state and local review boards are being formed to ensure that new facilities are needed before they are built. Hospitals, clinics and other medical care facilities are being encouraged to share some of the more expensive new equipment.

If passed, the Community Home Health Service Act would expand Medicare to cover home health care visits without limiting the number of home visits. Under present rules, many patients must stay in the hospital longer than necessary in order to receive Medicare benefits.

Refreshments were served following the meeting. The next meeting will be held Feb. 12 in the home of Mrs. Hugh Duncan. Mrs. W.E. Singleton will present a program on Americanism.

EYEING EQUIPMENT — Members of the advisory board of the Outreach Clinic at the Big Spring State Hospital look at a piece of equipment used in the clinic.

Howard County Outreach board discusses problems, progress

By CAROL HART
Staff Writer

The advisory board for the Howard County Outreach Clinic-Family Service, a "liaison group between the public and the Big Spring State Hospital," met Tuesday in the Outpatient Clinic at BSSH for a discussion on problems and progress.

Serving on the committee are Lucy Knox, president, Jane Thomas, vice-president, Bob Wegner, Steve Morgan, Freddie Nelson, Leslie Johnson, Gail Newton and Jean Spalding.

The board recently purchased more than $2,800 worth of equipment for the Big Spring State Hospital Outpatient Center. Among equipment purchased was a video-tape player, a minitor, camera, one-way mirror, speaker system, new carpeting and furniture for the clinic.

Money for the new equipment was raised through tours of Big Spring area homes and garage sales.

Until recently, some funding for the Outpatient Clinic came from the United Way. Money from the United Way helped with the purchase of the new equipment, board members explained.

The advisory board was originally formed to support the Family Service Center at the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center. Due to a funding decrease, the Family Service Center moved last year to the Outpatient Clinic facilities.

W.C. Earnst, coordinator of outreach services, said the board was designed "to meet the needs we have which the state can't meet."

Jack Stovall, director of nonresidential services, said the board provides input to the center "as the eyes and ears of the community."

Larry Sonntag, director of the Outpatient Clinic, added the board "prevents us from becoming a self-contained ivory-tower operation."

The Outpatient Clinic offers a full-range of services through a non-residential program. Diagnoses, evaluations and all types of therapy are conducted through the center.

Board members stressed that someone seeking assistance from the Outpatient Clinic need not have been a resident at the hospital.

Earnst said the Outpatient Clinic offers "a less restrictive method of treating patients," and can provide "continuity care" for patients released from BSSH.

Sonntag added the Outpatient Clinic "stands ready to help people with problems in their daily living" including problems people face "in getting along in life."

The advisory board meets on a quarterly basis to view the program and to discuss future offerings through the Outpatient Clinic.

Earnst stressed the board helps the Clinic with the question of "Do we serve what we see as a need or what the community sees as a need?"

New A&M coach's six-figure pay irks college professors

Agriculture professor John Ross at the University of Wisconsin calls it "outrageous."

Abe Chanin, a University of Arizona journalism professor, says it is "completely out of line."

Mathematics professor Wilfred Kaplan of the University of Michigan thinks it is "inevitable," though "a sad sidelight on American society."

At best, they accept it grudgingly as a fact of academic life. At worst they are infuriated.

But overall, a sampling of campus opinion shows that a reported $287,000-a-year contract University of Pittsburgh coach Jackie Sherrill signed last week to coach Texas A&M's football team is not sitting well with college professors who can only dream about such a salary.

The terms of Sherrill's six-year contract announced by the university put the coach's base pay at $95,000 a year. But he will also receive cash and other benefits from Aggie fans and alumni, and published reports have put his total compensation at around $287,000 a year.

"If that were to happen in Madison, there'd be a faculty revolt. We'd be out marching in the streets," said Ross of Wisconsin, which pays its head coach Dave McClain a $42,000 salary plus about $12,000 in fringe benefits.

Sherrill, 38, became a hot property during five years as head coach at Pitt, where his teams compiled a 50-9-1 record. The Panthers finished 11-1 each of the last three years and were strong contenders for the national championship each time, finishing fourth in national rankings in 1981.

Still, even some athletic directors expressed shock at Sherrill's salary.

"I just wonder how they can do that," says Dave Strack, athletic director of the University of Arizona, which pays football coach Larry Smith about $59,000. "It appears that in some areas the priorities get a little mixed up."

Coaches' salaries reflect the premium colleges place on successful athletic programs nowadays. Some benefits are intangible — the added prestige and attention paid to a football power, increased alumni support.

But there is also serious money involved: television appearances worth an estimated $800,000 per team for regular season games next fall, and lucrative bowl bids.

NBC, for instance, will pay $7.5 million for the right to broadcast the Rose Bowl next year, with the money to be divided among the Rose Bowl Committee and the two contending schools. The Cotton, Sugar and Orange bowls all divide more than $1 million between the schools.

The bull market in college football coach's salaries is especially irksome to some faculty members now because colleges face tough times: a recession, student aid cutbacks in Washington and reductions in federal research grants.

"At a time when federal aid is about to be cut, and average salaries of full professors at major public universities range from $27,000 to $39,040, to pay Coach Sherrill what he is being paid raises serious questions about the way resources are being allocated," says Irving Spitzberg, general secretary of the American Association of University Professors based in Washington.

It's very possible that Sherrill makes more money than anyone in the educational field, from university presidents on down. But other football coaches are making big money.

Chuck Fairbanks, lured to the University of Colorado in 1979 from the New England Patriots, makes an estimated $200,000 a year. He gets a $47,500 a year salary, but much more in fringe benefits, including an expense allowance and his own TV show.

JACKIE SHERRILL
...new A&M football coach

University of Michigan coach Bo Schembechler gets a $60,000 salary, plus perks, including his own weekly TV show that probably brings him to well over $100,000. He was offered the Texas A&M job before Sherrill but turned it down because he had "emotional ties to Michigan."

Oklahoma State University's Jimmy Johnson makes a $50,000 salary and another $50,000 in benefits; Vince Dooley of the University of Georgia has a $60,000 salary, and $40,000 in benefits, and the University of Arkansas' Lou Holtz has a $51,945 salary, plus benefits from TV, radio, a housing allowance and car allowance worth another $125,000.

"It is not just a Texas A&M problem," says Spitzberg.

A breakdown of the salaries of full professors at 78 public land-grant universities conducted by Mike Usher and Merle Gillam of Oklahoma State University shows that even academic superstars fall well short of top football coach salaries.

The survey showed professors of medicine making anywhere from $100,000-plus to a low of $17,344, with an average of $46,262. Top biological science professors earn up to $90,000, and the highest paid business professors make $70,000. Law professors earn up to $66,000.

Big football powers like Penn State insist coaches are not getting rich at professors' expense, and they add football programs more than pay their own way.

"The football program sustains the whole athletic department — 30 sports," says Penn State spokesman Dave Baker, who wouldn't reveal what head coach Joe Paterno earns.

State's crime stoppers line is busy

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Occasionally it's a prankster, more often a worried mother, but the state telephone hotline on crime stays busy, says a staffer with the Governor's Crime Stoppers Advisory Council.

A media consultant also says television and radio stations are contributing an "astounding" amount of free air time to curb crime.

In other comments at a Tuesday council meeting, chairman Maurice Acers described Fort Worth and San Antonio as "hot spots" where local citizen help is needed against crime.

Mark Burk, who works with the council, said all major metropolitan areas except Fort Worth and San Antonio have crime stopper programs, but Fort Worth apparently is on the verge of starting a program. O.L. Watson, a council member, said all that needs to be done in Fort Worth is to elect a local chairman and to set up rewards for tipsters.

Burk, however, told a reporter that San Antonio Police Chief Robert Heuck had written that he would not be interested in a local crime stoppers program.

Burk said the state hotline in Austin had received "quite a few calls" from San Antonio and a "tremendous number of calls" from Fort Worth.

He said from Jan. 1 to Jan. 22 the hotline here had received 500 calls, including 117 "with sound information" on drug deals that were forwarded to law officers. "No arrests were made or offenses cleared" as a result of calls during that period, he said.

Acers, a former FBI agent and past chairman of the Greater Dallas Crime Commission, suggested that Burk contact Clyde Johnson, a retired San Antonio savings and loan executive, and both newspapers about developing a crime stoppers program.

Austin media consultant Fred Miller said in one month TV and radio stations had donated $266,160 worth of air time for crime stopper shows, and $40,000 of that came from San Antonio stations. Miller projected free air time over a year would total $4 million.

Burk said 17 cities "have all six elements" of a complete program: a hotline, full-time staff, local advisory council, rewards, media participation and a televised crime of the week.

Six cities lacked only the TV crime of the week, he said, and 20 others had three or four of the elements for a full program. Also, 10 programs are "in the formative stage."

Acers emphasized the need for crime stopper organizations along the Texas-Mexico border. "If it is true that the majority of crime is narcotics-related, the focal point must be along the border," he said.

He told Burk a good place to start might be to ask the Valley Chamber of Commerce to adopt a crime stoppers program as one of its goals.

Acers expressed concern that anti-crime hotlines are not always answered by a "human voice," and he urged Burk again to contact Col. Jim Adams, director of the Department of Public Safety, about using DPS troopers in this role.

Acers' assistant, Betty Turner, suggested using campus police in answering hotlines, something council member Raymond Shoemaker said already is being done at the University of Texas at El Paso.

Juvenile probation officer pick delayed

The selection committee of the Howard County Juvenile Probation Board was not able to narrow applications to the juvenile probation officer's position at their meeting Tuesday.

According to committee chairman Carol Hunter, the committee will not be able to reach a decision by Feb. 1 to present to the full board.

The committee is expected to meet Friday to consider the applicants again. Hunter said the quality of the applicants made any "ha'y" choice a poor move.

The committee making the selections is comprised of Carol Hunter, chairman, from the Big Spring ISD school board, Bill Crooker from the county commissioners' court and Robert Fuller from the city council.

The rest of the board who will be making the final decision on the juvenile probation position is as follows: City Councilman Jack Y. Smith, BSISD Superintendent Lynn Hise, and County Commissioner David Barr.

Fort Chaffee now quite and 'gloomy'

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — The Cuban refugee population at this western Arkansas military reservation slipped to its lowest levels since May 1980 with a degree of gloom and a sigh of relief.

The Justice Department sent 116 refugees to a federal prison hospital in Springfield, Mo., Tuesday. Another 88 were flown to a federal prison in Atlanta, leaving 30 Cubans and an infant American citizen at the camp. The child was born Dec. 22.

Mac Coffman, director of the Cuban-Haitian Task Force at Chaffee, said Tuesday night in a telephone interview, that three women, one man and the child are to be sent temporarily to a hospital in Washington, D.C. The other 26 refugees are going to a halfway house in the Northwest, but Coffman declined further comment on the location.

Coffman said the base was extremely quiet late Tuesday. The three women were in an observation area and the rest of the refugees were in one barracks. Staff members began closing out the used barracks and cleaning blankets and mattresses for storage.

"I think there is a degree of gloom," Coffman said. He said bonds developed between the refugees and some of the staff. To see the refugees headed for another institution instead of a sponsor was disappointing, he said.

Coffman said there also was a sigh of relief because the refugees' presence at Chaffee was no longer a football. Plans for their future had been tossed around often. There were reports that the refugees would go to Glasgow, Mont. Those changed to Fort Drum, N.Y., and then back to Glasgow, before Friday's Justice Department announcement that the refugees would go to prisons.

Republican President Reagan promised Gov. Frank White, also a Republican, that he would get the refugees out of Arkansas. White said the state had done its share. He campaigned against then-Gov. Bill Clinton in 1980 on the premise that Clinton did not stand up to the federal government to get the refugees out. White was criticized last week by Democratic gubernatorial candidate Jim Guy Tucker of Little Rock for the same thing.

"My personal hope would have been that resettlement could have taken place," said Coffman, who has worked in refugee programs for several years and was at Chaffee in 1975 when it housed Vietnamese refugees. He said he would have liked to see the Cubans on their own, achieving for themselves.

The next transfer is to be Friday and Coffman said the base could be closed by Feb. 5.

The federal government began the move of the final 392 Chaffee refugees Saturday. It said housing the Cubans in the prisons would be cheaper than keeping Chaffee operating or using an old Air Force base near Glasgow.

Chaffee opened in May 1980 as a relocation center for thousands of the Cubans landing on Florida shores as part of the Freedom Flotilla. At its peak, Chaffee housed 19,000 refugees. More than 25,000 of the 125,000 who came to the United States were resettled from the base.

THEY TAKE IT SERIOUSLY UP IN LUBBOCK — Robert Leal evidently can not get enough of video games. Or at least that's how it seems in this photo taken in a Lubbock parking lot.

He is married to the former Doylene Wadkins, a former Big Spring resident.

Indians fight state game laws

INDIAN VILLAGE, Texas (AP) — The Alabama and Coushatta Indian tribes have hunted the dense forests of their East Texas reservation for almost 130 years without interference from the state of Texas.

But now the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is trying to strip them of their traditional hunting rights and force them to comply with state game laws.

Boyd Johnson, counsel for the Parks and Wildlife Department, claims Indians are not exempt from state law and he has asked state Attorney General Mark White for an opinion on whether the wildlife code can be enforced on the 4,600-acre reservation.

Roland Poncho, superintendent of the 500-member Polk County reservation, said he is enraged at the state's attempt to wrest management of the reservation's wildlife from the tribal council, which he claims is the right to control hunting by tradition and state law.

"Our people have hunted in these woods since coming here long ago," Poncho said. "It's a traditional thing. Not everybody hunts, but those who do might kill seven or eight deer, then distribute the meat to elderly tribe members or others who can't hunt."

Texas law requires all hunters to be licensed and limits the number of game an individual can kill during a season.

So when game wardens Robert Hall, of Livingston, and Donald Robertson, of Blanchard, spotted Lyndon Alec, 19, butchering a doe outside his reservation home last November, they asked to see his hunting license.

He didn't have one. Neither did Clayton "Smiley" Sylestine, 49, former chairman of the Alabama-Coushatta Tribal Council and a forester.

Hall and Robertson discovered a few minutes later butchering two does and a duck.

"We were just driving down the road when we saw them cleaning those deer. It didn't enter my mind at the time that the Indians might be different from anybody else," Hall said.

After checking with a supervisor, the officers arrested Alec and Sylestine, even though both men insisted they had hunted all their lives on the reservation and had never needed a license.

The game wardens took the pair before Polk County Justice of the Peace Doris Armstrong.

Mrs. Armstrong said she believed the Indians' story and agreed to release Alec and Sylestine on their own recognizance until the legal question could be answered.

Parks and Wildlife officials dropped the charges against the pair a few days later, and after meeting with tribal leaders agreed to allow the Indians to hunt as they had done for years — without supervision — until Jan. 3 when the hunting season closed.

But the conflict in state law remains, and Johnson said he expects the attorney general to rule that hunting laws apply to the reservation.

That would mean next hunting season, which begins in November, the Alabama-Coushatta hunters would have to get licenses and obey game regulations.

A charter adopted by the Alabama-Coushatta tribe and approved by the federal government in 1938 gives the tribal council — the reservation's governing body — authority to "protect and preserve the property, wildlife and natural resources of the tribe."

The Alabama-Coushatta tribe was one of many American Indian tribes removed from federal jurisdiction with the Indian Termination Act of 1954. The reservation lands were deemed to the state of Texas.

However, that law also terminated "any powers conferred upon the tribe by its constitution and bylaws," including the right to supervise wildlife resources which were approved while the reservation was under federal jurisdiction.

In his letter to the attorney general, Johnson pointed out the legislation which placed the reservation under Texas' control stipulated the "laws (of the state) shall apply to the tribe and its members in the same manner as they apply to other citizens."

Johnson argues that without a specific exemption from state or federal wildlife laws the Indians should be made to follow the same rules as other Texas hunters.

But a 1957 opinion from then-Attorney General Will Wilson complicates the matter.

"The 1938 constitution and bylaws adopted by the Alabama-Coushatta tribes of Texas are still in force," Wilson wrote.

Poncho said Wilson's opinion makes it clear that the tribal council still has the authority to regulate hunting on the reservation and that state laws do not apply.

"When the state begins to take liberties and to dispense with rights that are traditional, it can lead to other things."

"We see this as a direct threat, a threat to our foothold on our tribal land. We have always done a good job of policing our tribal land. We only hunt during the regular hunting season and any of our members who hunt off the reservation do get licenses," Poncho said.

"We've certainly not had any help from the Parks and Wildlife people in controlling white poachers on our reservation. Now they are eager to make us obey the law," he said.

Man convicted for second time in girl's death

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — A Cuero man convicted of capital murder for the second time in the 1973 rape and slaying of a policeman's 10-year-old daughter will be eligible for parole 11 years from his latest conviction.

Jerry Lane Jurek, 30, was sentenced by State District Judge Clarence N. Stevenson to life imprisonment Wednesday for the killing of Wendy Adams.

The dead girl's father, Ronnie Adams, asked prosecutors to accept Jurek's guilty plea.

Jurors, who under state law must approve a plea bargain arrangement in a capital case, deliberated 25 minutes before approving the bargain and recommending a life sentence.

Jurek, as part of the agreement, waived his right to appeal.

Adams told jurors that although he did not feel the imprisonment would serve justice, he decided to ask prosecutors to accept a life sentence to save his family from undue publicity.

Prosecutors were seeking the death penalty in the trial.

NEW APPOINTMENT — Lupe Dominguez has been appointed chief, voluntary service, at the Veteran's Administration Medical Center, according to John Steward, VAMC director. She has been with VAMC since 1968, where she began her career as a nursing assistant. Mrs. Dominguez was awarded a director's commendation in 1978 for her contribution in the area of equal employment opportunity. She also serves as blood drive coordinator and was recently named VAMC chairperson for the 1982 combined federal campaign.

Coahoma is on a roll; Austin is their goal

What high school football is to boys, high school basketball is to girls in the Lone Star State. And few teams in this neighborhood play the game better than the Coahoma Bulldogs.

Coach Billy Gordon has his team rolling towards a return trip to regionals after winning the first half of District 6-AAA play with a 6-1 record. The lone loss came at the hands of Seminole, by just a point, but too late to prevent Coahoma from taking the title.

For the year, the Bulldogs sport a glossy 18-3 record with other losses coming at the hands of traditional powerhouses Comanche and AAAA Stephenville. Both those teams are perennial district champs.

The secret to success, says Gordon, is his team's balanced attack. Three girls are in double figures with wing Gayla Paige topping the charts with a 12.5 average. She is followed closely by post Kari Robinson at 11.7 and post Robbie Ritchey at 10.4. All three girls are seniors along with point guard Cassie Aleregg and wing Robin Burchett.

Not blessed with great height, the Bulldogs make do with what they have. Ritchey is the tallest among the dozen players on the team at 5-9½ and she leads the team on the boards with almost nine rebounds a game.

Coahoma scores an average of 57 points each time they take the court, hitting 42 percent of their floor shots and 58 percent from the foul stripe.

On the other end of the court, the Bulldogs surrender just 41 points and force plenty of turnovers. Ritchey manages at least four steals a game and works well with Paige on defense around the hoop. Pressure defenses such as full, and half court presses and some man-to-man are keys to Coahoma's successful playing style.

Coahoma traveled to regionals last year but ran headlong into an awesome Abertnathy squad which defeated them and went on to take the AAA state championship. The Bulldogs finished with a 24-7 record.

Coahoma opens a three-game homestand Friday night against Crane continuing Tuesday against Seminole and next Friday with Denver City.

Gordon hopes his team will build another long winning streak that will eventually carry them all the way to Austin this spring.

Missouri whips Iowa state

Miss. St. edges Kentucky

By The Associated Press

When he was coaching at Southern Cal in the Pac-10 Conference, Bob Boyd's teams played in the shadow of UCLA and generally played second fiddle.

Now that he's with Mississippi State in the Southeastern Conference, Boyd has another college basketball giant to contend with in Kentucky. But he got off on the right foot against the Wildcats Wednesday night.

"I certainly don't want to negate this fine victory, but I think we caught Kentucky a little flat," said Boyd after a shocking 56-51 upset of the nation's No. 7 team.

To make the game even more significant in Boyd's first year, it was the first victory for Mississippi State in the SEC after 16 losses.

"It was a great win for us, and it was nice to end the conference losing streak," said Boyd. "Our Kalpatrick Wells was by far the best defender on the court. I don't think there is a post man in the league that can play defense better."

Wells blocked three Kentucky shots and made two critical steals late in the game, while Butch Pierre sank key free throws for Mississippi State.

Mississippi State was leading 52-49 with 33 seconds to play when Jeff Malone hit two free throws. Kentucky's Jim Master responded with two of his own, but his team couldn't score in its last four possessions.

Mississippi State last beat a Top Ten team in 1976 when it edged Kentucky 83-76.

Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall credited Mississippi State with "an exceptionally fine game. The tempo was such that it messed up our game. They broke us down offensively and defensively. Their defense intimidated us. They did what they had to do to win, and they deserve it."

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 1 Missouri whipped Iowa State 86-73, No. 2 North Carolina defeated Clemson 77-72, No. 3 Virginia downed Wake Forest 69-66, No. 4 DePaul outlasted St. Louis 99-90, No. 13 Alabama beat Auburn 67-45, Oklahoma upset No. 14 Kansas State 56-53, No. 15 Tennessee nipped Georgia 66-64 and No. 20 Villanova walloped LaSalle 117-82.

The Top Ten Ricky Frazier collected 21 points and four other Missouri players scored in double figures as the Tigers defeated Iowa State. The Tigers, playing their first game since taking over the No. 1 spot, improved their record to 17-0 for the season and 6-0 in the Big Eight. Iowa State was led Ron Harris' 20 points.

"Our players didn't react any differently," said Missouri Coach Norman Stewart of the No. 1 ranking. "It was great the way our players came out on to the court very loose and it showed in the way we shot the ball. I thought we played better in the first half than in our last two to three games." Jimmy Black and Matt Doherty each scored a career-high 21 points as North Carolina overcame a nine-point deficit in the second half to defeat Clemson.

The scoring honors were especially welcome because Doherty did not score in the last game against Georgia Tech and Black scored only three points. Doherty, who averages 8.2 points, was 8 of 16 from the floor. Black, averaging 7.1, was 8 of 11.

Tim Mullen scored a career-high 21 points as Virginia held off Wake Forest. Mullen, a 6-foot-5 forward, got 12 of his points in the first half when Virginia twice spurred to 11-point leads. The Cavaliers made those leads stand up, although the Demon Deacons trimmed the margin to two on several occasions, including a 68-66 score with six seconds left.

Virginia guard Othell Wilson then provided the final margin with the first of two free throws and 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson blocked Scott Davis' shot at the buzzer.

Terry Cummings contributed six of his 24 points in a 12-2 spurt midway through the opening half, leading DePaul to an easy triumph over St. Louis. The victory, DePaul's 12th in a row, was the 667th career triumph for Blue Demons Coach Ray Meyer. The 68-year-old Meyer moved into a tie with John Wooden for fifth place among all-time winningest college coaches.

The Second Ten Ennis Whitley hit four crucial free throws and Eddie Phillips sank 17 points as Alabama defeated Auburn.

"It was a great game from gun to wire," said Alabama

Coach Wimp Sanderson. "Both teams had some trouble early, especially with turnovers. The difference in the first half was their offensive boards. They were able to get the second and third shots, and that really hurt us."

At halftime, Auburn had 22 See "College," Page 2-B

Team swims at Monahans

Lee outstrokes BSHS

Midland Lee dominated both boys and girls divisions to win a dual swim meet with Big Spring Tuesday at the local YMCA.

Lee outscored the Steers 46-37 while defeating the Lady Steers 50-30. Both Big Spring teams hit the pool Friday and Saturday at an invitational meet in Monahans. The next home meet is Feb. 5 against Andrews.

The boys 200 medley relay team finished first with a time of 1:27.90. The team was made up of Todd Lloyd, Speight Grimes, Chris Bachelor and Tim Plew.

Lloyd also won the 400-meter freestyle in 5:44.10 and the 100-meter breaststroke in 1:04.83. Grimes the 200-meter intermediates in 1:57.30 and Bachelor the 50-meter free in 31.81. The Steers collected five second place finishes including two by Plew.

Paula Willadsen got the other first place for the girls with a victory in the 100-meter freestyle in 1:03.61. Both 200 medley and 400 freestyle relay teams finished second.

More sophisticated announcers needed

TV technology upstages commentary

Does television, with its instant replays, isolated cameras, reverse angles and other visual gimmicks, short-change sports fans when it comes to what they hear from the announcers?

Roone Arledge thinks that's often the case. As president of ABC News and Sports, Arledge has helped develop much of the technology which has drastically changed TV coverage of athletics. But now that the split screens, hand-held cameras and graphics generators are available even to the smallest local station of cablecaster, Arledge believes TV must pay more attention to what it says as well as what it shows. "Viewers don't want to listen to people who don't know what they're talking about," he said. "And what you have to say becomes that much more important, when everybody has freeze-frames and other technology."

In more than 30 years on the air, Whitaker has done play-by-play and color commentary on a wide range of events. But he is best known for his essays — signed pieces of commentary, similar to the work of a newspaper's sports columnist — which became a part of CBS' coverage of major events.

In recent years, ABC has been assembling a stable of announcers more known for commentary than play-by-play, such as Jim McKay and Howard Cosell.

His last piece for CBS was aired last Sunday, as part of the coverage of an ice-skating competition leading up to the Super Bowl. This Sunday, he does his first work for ABC, anchoring coverage of the United States vs. the Soviet Union in boxing from Moscow.

This week, it added one of the most respected names in sports broadcasting, Jack Whitaker.

OOPS — Marquette and Memphis State basketball players are caught in a shower of glass during Wednesday night's game at the Mid-South Coliseum. Marquette's Michael Wilson (16), a 6-foot-4, 175-pound senior guard, was the culprit. The former Memphis prep star brought the goal down when he held onto the rim while trying to dunk a rebound at 14:13 in the second half. It took 35 minutes to replace the backboard and Memphis State went on to win, 77-70.

Wacker's knee gives way

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sophomore Mike Wacker, a 6-foot-9 shooting and rebounding force in the best Texas Longhorn basketball start in nearly half a century, will miss the remainder of the season with a knee injury.

Wacker, the second-leading scorer and rebounder on Texas' fifth-ranked team, underwent knee surgery Wednesday after hurting a knee in Texas' first loss — to Baylor — Tuesday night.

Wacker's injury is so severe that team doctors estimate rehabilitation could take as long as 10 months, which would jeopardize his return even next season.

Wacker sustained a fractured and dislocated left kneecap and torn ligament when he hit the floor after missing a tip-in in Texas' 69-59 loss to unranked Baylor at Waco.

Spectators said Wacker clutched his knee and screamed in pain.

Texas had won 14 straight games, tying a school record, before going down to defeat. The 1935 team also won its first 14 games before losing. The Longhorns were leading Baylor 17-16 when Wacker got hurt.

"Of course his loss hurt Texas, defensively, more than offensively," said Baylor coach Jim Haller.

Longhorn fans considered Wacker and 6-10 junior LaSalle Thompson the keys to Texas' impressive start, which had carried the Longhorns to the highest national ranking in their history.

College Basketball

Con't from 2-B
rebounds to Alabama's 12 and held a 35-34 lead.
Clutch free-throw shooting by Oklahoma State's Eddie Hannon and Raymond Crenshaw propelled the Cowboys over Kansas State. Crenshaw and Hannon both connected on two free throws each in the final minute and a half when OSU held one-point advantages. Crenshaw, a sophomore forward, hit a pair with 1:22 left, stretching the Cowboy lead to 54-51. Hannon, a senior guard, dropped in his pair with 34 seconds remaining.

Dale Ellis rebounded a missed layup and dunked it with 21 seconds remaining to give Tennessee a hard-fought victory over Georgia.

"This was an incredibly big win for the team, emotionally," said Tennessee Coach Don DeVoe. "We are a very determined team. What we lack in size, we make up for in pure guts."

Ed Pinckney scored 22 points as Villanova trounced Big Five rival LaSalle. The Wildcats outscored LaSalle 16-4 at the start of the second half, and its lead ballooned to as much as 45 points, at 42:37, with 14 minutes to play.

Thumbless boxing gloves protect fighters from punishing blows

At first glance, it looks like a normal boxing glove. The pillowy padding is just thick enough to keep the mayhem it can generate within reasonable bounds.
But then you get to the business part, the part where a fighter clenches his hand, where the thumb folds in to form the fist. That's when you notice the difference. This glove is not really a glove at all. It looks more like an inflated mitten without the thumb.
There is a thin line over which permissible violence does not tread and boxing gloves are among the best examples. They're built to inflict punishment and yet, at the same time, to avoid serious damage. They are marvelous models of the creativity of sports.
Now that creativity has gone a step farther with the introduction in New York State of thumbless boxing gloves. They became mandatory for all non-title fights in the state two weeks ago and that's why Madison Square Garden, once the mecca of boxing in America, may soon turn into a roving promoter instead of putting on bouts in its own building.

The Garden was supposed to present an attractive six-fight card Friday night in the Felt Forum, a small satellite arena next door to the main building. The show was headlined by a 10-round junior lightweight bout between a pair of undefeated fighters, Hector Camacho and Raphael Lopez.

It was to be the second thumbless show at the Forum. A week ago, former junior lightweight champ Alfredo Escalera headed the first one and the gloves did not get glowing reviews. Some fighters complained that their thumbs went numb inside the mittens and that the lack of feeling extended clear up their arms.

When Bobby Lee, co-manager and co-trainer of Camacho, heard that, he decided he wasn't about to risk the career of his bright, young boxer on what still is basically an experimental glove. And since Lee also had two other fighters, Pee Wee Rucker and Alvin Hayes, on the Forum card, the program began crumbling.

That's when John F. X. Condon, president of Madison Square Garden's boxing division, called Jack Prendergill, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, seeking a waiver of the thumbless rule. Prendergill said no and two days later, the Garden cancelled the Friday night show.

"We have no choice," said Condon. "If the boxers don't want to use the gloves and the state says they must, then we can't put shows on in this building."
But don't for a moment think the Garden is simply going to sink off into the night, discarding its historic link to boxing. That simply won't happen.

"We will move our shows elsewhere," said Condon. "We're open for business and we'll consider promotions in places like Atlantic City, Providence, Hartford, North Carolina, wherever suitable, wherever we can make a good deal and put on a show representative of Madison Square Garden."

Soviets may skip '84 Summer Olympics

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Soviet athletes may not participate in the 1984 Summer Olympics because of inadequate security arrangements, according to reports.
But one report seems to be more affirmative than the other.
Notimex, Mexico's government news agency, Wednesday quoted Soviet Sports Minister Sergej Pavlovich as saying that the Russians will definitely not show up at the Los Angeles Olympics.

This was tempered, however, by a reporter for Excelsior, a Mexico City newspaper, which also was present when Pavlovich was interviewed. The reporter said that the Russian official had only suggested the possibility that the Soviet Union would boycott the Games.
According to Notimex, Pavlovich said his country will definitely not attend the Olympics because "no guarantee of protection" had been offered for Soviet athletes.

from the CARROLL RIGHTEER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JAN. 28, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Make long-range plans to gain your fondest aims in the future. Accept conflicting views you may have with opponents in a philosophical manner. Be more thoughtful of others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Discuss with associates any new ideas you have and they can be helpful to you. Don't force any issues with family members.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handling regular duties in a precise manner can lead to a greater income. Come to a firm agreement with co-workers.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get in touch with those whom you want to enjoy more pleasure with in the days ahead. Make this a worthwhile day.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make plans to have a greater income in the future. Allow time to engage in recreational activities you enjoy.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day to contact relatives and allies and gain cooperation for a worthwhile plan you have in mind. Discuss it wisely.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Fine day for making new investments, after careful study. Concentrate on how you can be more productive in the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Use diplomacy instead of forcefulness with loved one and have increased harmony. Evening is fine for being with good friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get in touch with experts in your own field of endeavor and improve your plans for the future with their aid.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Know what your true aims are and then you can gain them by making wise moves and decisions. Use common sense.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Analyze your true position and make plans to have a greater income in the days ahead. Relax at home tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A clever person can give you some pointers on a new project you have in mind. Express happiness with loved one.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Cooperation is the keynote today, whether in personal or business dealings. Show more devotion to loved one.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very artistic and should be trained along such lines for best results in lifetime. Teach how to handle money matters early in life. Spiritual training is important. A good family life in this chart.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY
Cable testimony concludes
 TYLER, Texas (AP) — Federal prosecutors told jurors today to "use their common sense," put together the whole scenario of facts and convict millionaire rancher Rex Cauble of racketeering, conspiracy and embezzlement in connection with an elaborate drug smuggling scheme.
 Assistant U.S. Attorney David Baugh contended in his final argument that Cauble knew he was financing the marijuana smuggling operation when he made loans to a friend and employee, Charles "Muscles" Foster.
 Roy Minton hammered away in his closing arguments at what he considered the "key question" of this trial — was Cauble aware of the illicit deals.
 "Did Mr. Cauble know ... did he participate ... in the drug smuggling ring," he asked jurors.
 After final arguments, U.S. District Judge William Steger read his instruction to the jury in two parts. He told the panel "it was the most lengthy and difficult charge I've ever given to a jury."
 Baugh said Cauble knew Foster was a "unstable credit risk and he exhibited a reckless disregard" for banks in Denton and Houston when he loaned Foster thousands of dollars in 1977 and 1978, the time the smuggling ring was operating.
 Cauble knew Foster's friends were drug smugglers and allowed them the use of his plane and other holdings to carry on their business, Baugh said.
 The prosecutor admitted there was "not one piece" of evidence standing alone that would convict the rancher, but he urged jurors to consider "all the evidence ... look at the totality."
 Minton contended there was only one witness who testified he knew Cauble was involved and that witness was a liar and convicted drug trafficker.
 He said other evidence that implicated Cauble was that some of Cauble's employees thought the rancher may have suspected something illegal was going on but that was not enough on which to base a verdict of guilty.
 Minton said Baugh wants jurors to believe that Cauble "knowingly embraced drug smuggling" after being so fanatic against dope for so many years and even put his son in an institution for marijuana addiction.

CBS fully subscribes to 'big bang' theory

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS, comfortably moving toward its third straight year as the No. 1 network, subscribes to the "Big Bang" theory, concentrating its programming strength on certain nights.

There's "Dallas" on Fridays, "60 Minutes" on Sundays and, so far, a series of duds on Wednesday nights.

It's prestigious to be top-rated, but advertisers buy programs, not networks, and Wednesday nights are not as lucrative for CBS.

"We know we can't win every night and every half-hour," said Harvey Sheppard, vice president of CBS Entertainment. "That's our strategy behind Fridays and Sundays."

Through mid-January, "Dallas" was the top-rated show and "60 Minutes" No. 2, but none of this programming magic has touched tonight's CBS schedule.

At the beginning of the 1981-82 TV season, CBS' Wednesday night lineup included "Mr. Merlin," a new show, and "WKRP in Cincinnati." The rest of the night had a movie for the first two months, since the writers' strike had delayed production on "Nurse" and "Shannon," the scheduled 9 and 10 p.m. EST shows.

When CBS filled with Kenny Rogers' "Coward of the County," it finished first for the night. But, more often, the replacement movies were stiff and CBS settled for third behind ABC's programs that included "Fall

Guy" and "Dynasty" and NBC's "Real People," "Facts of Life," "Love, Sidney," and "Quincy."

CBS had movie nights on Tuesdays and Saturdays and, once the writers reached a contract agreement with the studios, the network was eager to go with its original plan of "Nurse" at 9 and "Shannon" at 10.

"The backbone of the CBS schedule is our series," said Bud Grant, president of CBS Entertainment.

When "Nurse" and "Shannon" came on board, CBS found these shows were hardly playing for any audience. "Shannon," with Kevin Dobson, was not well received. It is ranked 80th of the 87 regular shows listed by the A.C. Nielsen Co. for this season.

"Nurse" wasn't faring that much better and it was yanked from CBS' Wednesday night intensive care unit in the hopes of recuperating on Thursday nights. It has made some inroads into NBC's "Hill Street Blues," still the top-rated program in that hour.

Meanwhile, back in the family viewing hour on Wednesday nights, "Mr. Merlin" (No. 46 in the ratings in mid-January) was not working any magic and "WKRP" (No. 53) was far from a hit. So earlier this month, "Merlin" disappeared from Wednesdays and reappeared on Mondays, paired with "Private Benjamin."

Network: 105 million watched Super Bowl

NEW YORK (AP) — An estimated 105 million viewers saw all or part of Super Bowl XVI, CBS says, and the prime-time segment of the game registered the highest rating ever for that portion of the pro football championship.

The rating of the prime-time segment, 7-7:50 p.m. EST Sunday, was 50.4, well below the 53.3 rating for the record-setting "Who Shot J.R.?" episode of CBS' "Dallas" in November 1980, but the highest mark for any program this season, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

Nielsen says the prime-time rating for the Super Bowl means of all the country's TV-equipped homes, just over 50 percent saw at least part of the game's conclusion.

CBS won the three-way competition with ABC and NBC for the week ending Jan. 24 with nine of the week's 10 highest-rated programs.

The post-game show on CBS was second, with two consistent hit shows, "60 Minutes" and "Dallas" — also on CBS — close behind.

The rating for "60 Minutes," 34.8, was the highest ever the newsmagazine, which has been No. 1 four times this season, to seven for "Dallas."

At least two previous Super Bowl games, including last year's, began at 6 p.m. EST, and consumed as much as two hours of prime time. The rating for the entire Super Bowl XVI between San Francisco and Cincinnati, which began at 4 p.m., will be available Thursday.

CBS won the networks' ratings race with a rating of 21 to 18.2 for ABC and 15.8 for NBC. The networks say CBS' rating means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 21 percent of the nation's homes with TV were tuned to CBS.

The only non-CBS program in the Top 10 was an ABC movie, "Fantasies," in ninth place.

CBS' "Falcon Crest" finished in a tie for 10th, the highest standing for any of the season's new series. "One of the Boys," on NBC, was No. 18.

Three news shows were among the week's five lowest-rated programs. "NBC Magazine" was No. 68, with an NBC News special, "Nothing to Fear — The FDR Legacy," 69th and a "CBS Reports" production, "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception," was 72nd. "The Making of 'Superman'" on ABC was No. 70.

Suit asking for $58,700

A civil suit asking for $58,700 in damages resulting from an automobile accident has been filed in 118th District Court Billy Ray White is seeking the damages from Donald Ross Smith in a wrongful death action in the death of White's son, Kip Brandon White.

The suit claims that on Nov. 14, 1981, Kip White, 16, was in a pickup at the intersection of Farm Market road 700 and the Interstate 20 north service road when Smith ran a stop sign in his vehicle striking White's pickup and killing young White.

The suit alleges Smith was negligent in his failure to stop at a stop sign, keep a proper look-out and maintaining an excessive rate of speed.

A total of $3,500 is being asked for funeral expenses, $2,500 for medical expenses, $2,700 for damage to the pick-up, and $50,000 for mental anguish.

White is represented by the firm of Hamby, Thompson and Mouton.

CRMWD water contract faces vote of councilmen

By BILLELDER
Staff Writer

A contract with the Colorado River Municipal Water District which would double the cost of water delivery to the city is expected to be voted on by the Big Spring City Council when it meets today at 6:30 p.m.

The water district's board of directors met earlier this month and approved the contract, basing the new rate on increased energy costs incurred by the district.

The new rate would be 13 cents for each thousand gallons of water delivered, compared with six cents under the old fee schedule.

Both of the other member cities in the water district — Odessa and Snyder — will feel the increase as well: Snyder will pay seven cents if it signs the contract, and Odessa 25 cents. The cost is determined by the distance of the city from the source of water.

In other action, the council will review a request from the federal government to return a grant totaling $29,310 which the city used to renovate a building on the north side of town. The city had planned to turn the building into a day care center.

But the center, which primarily would have served low-income families, never opened since an agency to run the center couldn't be found.

City housing chief Bill Hall has told the council in a memo that numerous organizations were contacted about running the center, which would have operated with federal subsidies for families using the facility.

Interest in operating the center dwindled after President Reagan began dismantling "social" aid programs and local agencies decided they couldn't run the center on a self-sufficient basis, Hall said.

The city elections will get their official start if the council passes an ordinance calling for the April 3 elections and designating the polling places.

Mayor Clyde Angel and councilmen Larry Miller and Robert Fuller face re-election this year. So far, Jerry Higgins is the only announced candidate to oppose any of the incumbents. All three incumbents have indicated they will try to retain their council seats.

The filing period for the races open Feb. 3. The deadline for getting on the ballot — and for registering to vote — is 30 days prior to the election.

City voters will vote at one of two polling places: the Northside Fire Station or the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

In other matters, the council is expected to give notice of the city's intention to sell approximately $1 million in airport revenue bonds. The bonds will finance the beginning of a major, $4.3 million relocation of the airport hangars and terminal building.

The council also is expected to sign an agreement with the Howard County Industrial Foundation. The foundation is constructing the first of three fixed-base-operator hangars which will be rebuilt at the airport. The city plans to buy the hangar from the foundation after it obtains revenue through the bond sale.

The council meets in room 205 of Big Spring City Hall, Fourth and Nolan.

Slides of Big Spring available at Chamber

Two presentations featuring slides of Big Spring accompanied by narrations of positive aspects of the city are available through the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, according to Bill Forshee of the tourist and convention committee.

The slides are available to any interested civic group, club, organization, group or business.

One presentation deals with Big Spring hospitality toward tourists who come to the area, and suggests ways and means to bring them back to the city. The presentation is narrated by Chris Showalter of KBST.

The second presentation is directed toward selling the city to convention groups all over the country. The presentation was prepared with the idea of focusing attention on the city for seminars, meetings and conventions.

H & R BLOCK GIVES EVERY CLIENT A PERSONAL INTERVIEW

H & R Block, the income tax people, would like you to read a quote worth quoting. Recently a former IRS official said, "Many taxpayers will leave money on the table, will actually overpay their tax liability."

Taxpayers overpay their taxes because of a lack of tax knowledge and the fear of an audit. People file the form they receive without checking to make sure that they have taken all of their deductions and credits. H & R Block believes every client should have a complete personal interview and the return done while the client is with the tax preparer. Block knows taxes. Not only are they the world's largest tax firm, they also conduct the world's largest tax school.

Most Taxpayers feel their return is done correctly and to their advantage if they are not audited, and they receive the refund shown on their tax return. This is not always true. The IRS does not check every return to see if the taxpayer took all legitimate deductions, or if the taxpayer's financial circumstances have changed from year to year. H & R Block, using a thorough interview, makes the tax laws work for the client. Every return is then double checked for correctness in both math and theory.

H & R Block will make the laws work for you at their Big Spring office — located at 1512 Gregg, Telephone Number 263-1931. Appointments available. Closed Sunday. ADV

The cold, dark interstate highway six miles east of Stanton was illuminated by leaping orange flames this morning as a fire destroyed the business dream of an independent trucker as he watched his new rig go up in smoke.

According to Department of Public Safety Officer C.W. Turner of Martin County, the truck driver, Preston Earl Thomas of Texarkana, Texas, experienced the blowout of two tires on the right hand side of his truck at approximately 3 a.m.

Turner said Thomas then returned to Big Spring to check on buying some new tires for his rig. Turner estimated the tires ignited at 4:50 a.m. from the friction caused by the blowouts.

Turner arrived on the scene shortly after followed at 5:15 a.m. by members of the Big Spring Fire Department, the Howard County Jonesborough Fire Department and the Stanton Fire Department who extinguished the blaze.

By the time Thomas arrived back at his truck two hours later the rig already was reduced to a smoking hulk.

"When tires on a truck blow out they build up a lot of heat which causes them to sometimes burst into flames. I've seen it happen before and the truck really goes up. The trailers are usually just made of plywood and insulation and once the tires catch it's pretty much all over," Turner said.

For Thomas it was a very expensive night. He said he had just bought the truck new in December for a $12,000 down payment and currently he was paying $2,300 a month in payments. He estimated his investment in his truck to be $100,000.

"My first thought when I saw the truck was 'My God, what happened.' This will put me out of the trucking business for sure, you just can't have enough insurance to cover a loss like this. There's not much else I can say about it except it's terrible," Thomas said.

Also lost in the fire were two 1978 Corvettes Thomas was carrying from Texarkana to Salinas, Calif. Thomas said the cars were customized and recently had been entered in a Texarkana car show. He said the cars were owned by Shurway Truck Brokers of Salinas, Calif.

Water contamination problems hearing scheduled Feb. 19

The Natural Resources Committee, Texas House of Representatives, will be at Odessa College, Friday, Feb. 19, 10 a.m., to hear from area ranchers and farmers concerning water contamination problems. Whether the problem arises from injection wells or other sources, the committee encourages local participation. If interested in having their names placed on the agenda to testify, people are asked to call Midge Erskine of Midland (694-8001).

Annual meeting of Cosden credit union set Thursday

The annual meeting of the Cosden Employees Federal Credit Union is set for 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the Big Spring High School cafeteria. Al Valdes of Cosden said he estimates more than 1,000 people will attend the event. A chili and stew supper will be served, Valdes said. There will also be cash prizes, surprise gifts and entertainment.

Local day care center scrapped

By BILL ELDER
Staff Writer

It was a case of too much, too late. One month before Ronald Reagan came into office and began slashing federal aid for social programs, the city of Big Spring completed a spanking new day care center which would operate with precisely the sort of funding which Reagan was earnestly cutting back.

More than three years of planning went into the proposed day care center, which would have served low-income families on the north side of the city. Because a sponsoring agency to run the center couldn't be found, the Big Spring City Council last night decided to scrap plans for turning the building into a day care center.

The timetable of work that went into the center reads like the script for a dream that was never meant to turn into reality.

The project began to take shape in the spring of 1978 with public hearings on the subject, in which considerable support for the project was voiced, city planners say.

The way the center would work was this: the city would try to get a federal grant to start up a center, a sponsoring agency would be found to run the center on a non-profit basis and Uncle Sam would help out and pay part of the cost of using the center, since the users would be the sort of low-income families which need financial support.

In the summer of 1979, a building was purchased at 14th and Main with the intent of moving it to the north side and renovating it into a day care center (the original building slated to be the center burned down, apparently as a result of arson, according to Bill Hall, the city's housing chief).

A small wooden house was bought and moved to the corner of North East Eighth and Runnels in the fall of 1979. Renovation on it began in March 1980.

In between the loss of the first building and the purchase of the second, the city's primary source of interest in the center — a group of citizens calling themselves Northside Day Care Center Inc. — disbanded. But the city pressed ahead and got the $29,310 grant, which enabled the city to buy the house and begin converting it.

In May 1980, however, the person who was awarded the construction bid defaulted on the contract, and another person bid for and received the contract.

On Oct. 3, 1980, the project was completed. The city called on churches, the Salvation Army and existing day care centers to see if they were interested in running the ready-to-open center.

It seemed clear, however, that whatever agency agreed to operate the center would have to be self-sufficient, since cutbacks in federal subsidies for social programs were imminent. And those subsidies — in this case referred to as Title XX funding — were crucial: without them, the operator of the center barely would be able to meet the operating costs of the center, Hall says.

The feds clamped down in October last year and gave the city until Jan. 1 of this year to find somebody to run the center — or else reimburse the U.S. government for the $29,310 the city spent on the center.

Still no luck, and last night it was the city council's task to respond to the federal government's request to have the money returned (actually, Hall says, the money would not be returned to the government, but would be put into a community development fund for a local project that presumably would come to fruition).

Still, the feds were asking for some $29,000 out of the city's pocket — and the council balked. "Through no fault of our own the city has been unable to find somebody" to run the center, said City Manager Don Davis.

"I don't see how we're responsible for this," echoed Councilman Robert Fuller.

Councilman Russ McEwen suggested sending a "polite letter" to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development informing it that Big Spring spent the grant in good faith "and we don't care to return it."

If the money was returned, the building would cease to be federal property and Hall told the council he was confident the city could sell or lease the building.

The council, however, agreed with McEwen to hang tough on the matter and let the federal government be responsible for the building from now on.

"It's a shame," Hall said of the fruitless labor that went into the center. "It's a much-needed facility."

Police Beat

Three charged with auto theft

Big Spring police detectives picked up three men yesterday on automobile theft charges.

Arrested by Snyder authorities after a warrant was issued for his arrest in Big Spring was Robert Hazelwood, 18, according to police reports.

Hazelwood was wanted in connection with the Jan. 20 theft of a motorcycle owned by Daniel Barber of 400 Dallas, said detective L. John Wolf. He was returned to Big Spring in the company of a local officer.

Also arrested were William Dunaway, 20, and James Dunford, 27, who were wanted in connection with the Sunday theft of a pickup truck from Rip Griffin's Truck Terminal. The truck was being driven by William Munden of Midland, Wolf said.

Dunaway and Dunford were arrested by Midland authorities and brought back to Big Spring by local officers, according to police reports.

Joe Gomez of 810 Andree told police three gunshots were fired into his apartment while he and his family were inside Monday at 11 p.m. Damage was done to a window, a screen and a TV set by the gunshots, according to police reports. There were no injuries, police said.

Richard Baloom of 800 Willia told police he loaned out his automobile Sunday and when it was returned a .25-caliber pistol was missing.

Police said they arrested Connie Allford on a theft charge yesterday outside Gibson's, 2300 Scurry, after she allegedly stole $23 worth of clothing from the store.

Police said Austin Sherrill of Corpus Christi was sent by ambulance to Malone-Hogan Hospital after a motor vehicle he was driving struck a utility pole in the 1300 block of Gregg at about 2:30 a.m. today. He was treated for minor injuries at the hospital, according to police reports.

Rep. Cockerham analyzes probable race with Shaw

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

The recent Texas House redistricting plan placed Howard County in the newly drawn 69th District. The plan paired Reps. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring and Jerry Cockerham, R-Monahans, which will probably force them to run against each other to see who will represent the new district.

Cockerham was in Big Spring yesterday on an informal visit to acquaint himself with Howard County and its voters. Cockerham did not make a formal announcement for the 69th District race saying he preferred to wait and see how a three-judge fed court rules on the new redistricting plan.

The plan has several suits filed against it for possible violations of the Voting Rights Act. Cockerham said it is possible the district might have to be again redrawn and he is watching the developments closely.

Cockerham said when the plan was okayed by the courts he would make a formal announcement in Big Spring.

"If the race comes about it will be an extremely close race. I think the race will be determined ultimately on how each of us conveys our political philosophies to the people."

"I believe I'm more conservative than Shaw, he's more liberal than I. There is a large amount of conservatism in the area and I think the people of Howard County want a conservative representative," Cockerham said.

Cockerham is a member of the House higher education committee and the natural resources committee.

He was the sponsor of House Bill 1249. Briefly, the bill says that if the state of Texas brings a suit against a private citizen and the citizen is not found to be at fault then the state must reimburse the citizen for cost he acquires in the suit.

"I'm very proud of this bill. It makes the state be more sure and careful about filing litigation against citizens," Cockerham said.

Parents without Partners

Parents without Partners will hold a group meeting Friday, Jan. 29 at 8 p.m. in the Flame Room of the Energas Building. The purpose of the meeting will be to explain the basics of the organization.

According to a PWP spokesman, the main concern of the organization is the family unit. The main purpose behind the group is "people helping each other," the spokesman said. Anyone who has children and is currently not married can attend the meetings to seek help and companionship.

More candidates pay fees

With the Feb. 1 deadline for filing for county political office rapidly approaching, four more persons have officially filed for office by paying filing fees, according to County Democratic Chairman M.H. "Slick" Boatler.

Bob Smith, who is running for justice of the peace, precinct one, place two, and Shannon Boyles Jr., who is running for commissioner precinct two, paid their fees. Also paying fees are Clifton Crim, county surveyor, and Boatler.

Deaths

Paul West

Barry Paul West, 21, of McMinnville, Ore. formerly of Big Spring, died Thursday in Oregon.

Graveside services were at 3 p.m. today at Trinity Memorial Park under the direction of Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home, with Eric Dickey of Sand Springs Church of Christ, officiating.

He was born May 7, 1960 in Lubbock. His family moved to McMinnville, Ore. in 1969. His father D. Reed West, died on Oct. 4, 1968.

Survivors include his mother, Bette Carkuss West of the home; three brothers, Donald West and Eric West of McMinnville, Ore. and Cyrus West of the U.S. Navy; his paternal grandmother Helen West of Georgia; his maternal grandparents Marvin and Margaret Carkuss of Sheridan, Ore.; several aunts and uncles, including Henry West of Big Spring.

Winnie West

Winnie D. West, 76, of Coahoma died at 2:20 a.m. Wednesday in a local hospital after a long illness.

Services will be at 3 p.m. Thursday at the First Baptist Church in Coahoma with burial in the Coahoma Cemetery, under the direction of Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

She was born July 9, 1905 in Sabine County. She married John Otis (Pete) West March 21, 1925 in Pineland. They moved to Coahoma in 1942 from Pineland. Her husband died on June 8, 1972, and she was preceded in death by three brothers. She was a member of the First Baptist Church in Coahoma.

Survivors include two sons, John Paul West of Lamesa and Bobby West of Big Spring; two sisters, Mrs. J.H. Robinson of Fayetteville, Ark. and Mrs. George W. Bassinger of Dallas; one brother, Hulon Clark of Puna and five grandchildren.

Homemade mixes save time and money

Convenience mixes have become increasingly important in many households with the rising number of working wives and mothers. Singles, too, use the mixes as a time and energy saver. But though the mixes do save time, they are often expensive. The recipe exchange has found that many popular mixes can be made in the home for a fraction of the cost of packaged mixes. A basic mix can be stored and used later to create several variations. The recipe for sweetened condensed milk can be substituted for the canned version and used in many recipes.

1/2 cup water
Mix water and egg. Then add to dry ingredients. Bake 450 degrees for 45 minutes. Yield: 1 dozen

GINGERBREAD
2 cups master mix
1/4 cup sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup molasses
1/2 tsp. each of cinnamon, ginger, and cloves
Beat egg, water, and molasses. Then mix with dry ingredients. Pour into 8x8 pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes.

YELLOW OR CHOCOLATE CAKE
3 cups master mix
1 1/2 cup sugar
3 eggs
1 cup water
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 cup cocoa for chocolate cake

Blend sugar into mix. Beat eggs and water, add half to mix. Beat 2 minutes, then add rest and beat 2 minutes again. (for chocolate cake, mix cocoa with dry ingredients) Pour into 2 greased and floured 8 inch cake pans. Bake at 325 degrees for 25 minutes.

WHITE SAUCE MIX
2 cups instant non-fat dry milk or 1/2 cup regular nonfat dry milk
1 cup all-purpose flour
2 tsp. salt
1 cup butter or margarine

In a large bowl, combine dry milk, flour and salt. Mix well. With a pastry blender, cut in butter or margarine until mixture resembles fine crumbs. Lightly pack in a large air-tight container. Label. Store in refrigerator. Use within 2 months. Makes 1 quart of white sauce mix, enough for about 8 cups of basic white sauce.

BASIC WHITE SAUCE
1/2 cup white sauce mix
1 cup cool water
pepper, herbs and spices, if desired

In a small saucepan, combine white sauce mix and water. For thinner sauce, decrease white sauce mix to 1/4 cup. For thick sauce, increase white sauce mix to 3/4 cup. Cook over low heat until smooth, stirring constantly. Season with pepper, herbs and spices, if desired. Makes about 1 1/2 cups sauce.

Variations: Substitute milk, tomato juice, or chicken or beef stock for all or part of water. Cheese Sauce: Add 1/2 to 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese after mixture thickens. Stir until cheese is melted. Curry Sauce: Add 1 tsp. curry powder to thickened mixture.

CREAM OF CHICKEN SOUP

2 chicken bouillon cubes
2 cups hot water
1 1/2 cups white sauce mix
1 cup minced, cooked chicken
1/2 cup finely chopped celery
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
1 tsp. garlic salt
1 tsp. salt
1 egg yolk, beaten
chopped chives or watercress, for garnish

Dissolve chicken bouillon cubes in hot water. Cool. Combine white sauce mix and bouillon mixture in a large kettle or Dutch oven. Cook over low heat about 5 minutes, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Add chicken, celery, onion, salt and garlic salt. Simmer 15 minutes, stirring constantly. Blend in milk and egg yolk. Simmer 5 more minutes. Remove from heat. Garnish with chopped chives or watercress. Makes 6 servings.

INSTANT SPICED TEA MIX
1 jar (18 ounce) Tang Instant Breakfast drink
1 1/2 cups sugar

3/4 cup instant tea
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground cloves dash of salt
boiling water
Combine Tang, sugar, instant tea, spices and salt. Makes 4 cups dry mix or enough for 12 quarts of tea.
For one serving: Place 1 well rounded teaspoon of mix in cup. Fill with boiling water and stir until dissolved. To make 1 quart (6 servings): dissolve 1-3 cup of mix in 1 quart boiling water. Serve with a lemon wedge if desired. Note: use more or less mix if desired. The dry mix may be prepared in advance and stored in an air-tight container.

CHICKEN-FLAVORED RICE MIX

4 cups uncooked long-grain rice
4 Tbsp. instant chicken bouillon
1 tsp. salt
2 tsp. dried tarragon
2 tsp. dried parsley flakes
1/4 tsp. white pepper
Combine all ingredients in a large bowl. Stir until evenly distributed. Put about 1 1-3rd cups mixture each into three 1-pint air-tight containers. Label. Store in a cool, dry place. Use within 6 to 8 months. Makes about 4 cups of mix

CHICKEN-FLAVORED RICE

1 1-3rd cups chicken-flavored rice mix
2 cups cold water
1 Tbsp. butter or margarine
Combine all ingredients in a medium saucepan. Bring to a boil over high heat. Cover, reduce heat and cook 15 to 25 minutes, until liquid is absorbed. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

FRENCH DRESSING MIX

1/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 tsp. paprika
1 tsp. dry mustard
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. onion powder
Combine all ingredients in a small bowl until evenly distributed. Put mixture in a foil packet or 1-pint glass jar. Label. Store in a cool, dry place. Use within 6 months. Makes about 5 Tbsp. french dressing mix, enough for 1 1/4 cups French Dressing.
Variation: Sweet Italian Dressing. Increase sugar to 1/2 cup. Substitute 1 Tbsp. celery seed for paprika.

FRENCH DRESSING

1 recipe french dressing mix
1/2 cup vegetable oil
1/2 cup vinegar
Combine ingredients in a glass jar. Shake until well-blended. Chill before serving. Makes about 1 1/4 cups of French Dressing.

BROWNIE MIX

4 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
4 teaspoons salt
8 cups sugar
2 1/2 cups cocoa
2 cups shortening (solid vegetable type)
Sift dry ingredients into a large bag. Shake and mix thoroughly. (This is the best way to get any dry ingredients well mixed — especially a large amount.) Then place in a large bowl, add shortening and mix well with hands. Store in cool place. This amount will make 8 batches.

BROWNIES

2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups brownie mix
2-3 cup chopped nuts
Beat eggs. Add vanilla and brownie mix. Mix well. Add nuts. Spoon into greased 8 inch square pan. Bake 20 to 30 minutes at 350 degrees, or until brownies pull away from sides of pan. Cool and frost with chocolate powdered sugar frosting and cut in squares.

HOMEMADE SWEETENED CONDENSED MILK

1 cup instant non-fat dry milk
1-3 cup boiling water
3 Tbsp. melted butter or margarine
2-3 cup sugar
pinch of salt
Put in blender and process until smooth. Equals one can of Eagle Brand milk.

MASTER MIX RECIPE

5 pounds all-purpose flour
3/4 cup baking powder
2 Tbsp. cream of tartar
2 pounds vegetable shortening
2 1/2 cups dry milk solids
3 Tbsp. salt
1/2 cup of sugar
Sift dry ingredients together. Then cut in shortening until mix looks like cornmeal. Store at room temperature in air-tight container. Yields: 29 cups of mix.

Biscuits
3 cups master mix
3/4 cup water
Blend and knead for 10 strokes. Pat out and cut.

Drought over! Steers rally, 61-59

Wrightsil leads Big Spring to first 5-A AAAA win

SAN ANGELO — The drought is over. Jerald Wrightsil converted a three-point play with seven seconds left and Tony Randle added an insurance free shot to lift the Big Spring Steers to a 61-59 victory over the San Angelo Bobcats Tuesday night.

The win snapped a six-game District 5-A AAAA losing streak by the Steers and brought their season mark to 10-13. The Bobcats finished the first half of district play with a 2-5 record.

The Bobcats threw a half-court trap press at the Steers in the second quarter and turned Big Spring turnovers into a 34-24 halftime lead. After a chalkboard session at halftime, coach Ed Haller's Steers regrouped to battle back to within four points with 28 seconds left in the game.

Wrightsil was fouled and calmly sank both ends of a one-and-one to cut the score to 59-57. He promptly stole the ball on the Bobcat inbound pass, hit shot and was fouled. With game tied at 59 and just seven seconds remaining, Wrightsil hit the foul shot to send the Steers into the lead.

Jeff Casner was fouled by the Steers but, like his teammates all night long, failed to capitalize on his opportunity at the line. Randle rebounded his miss and was quickly fouled. He stepped up to the line and sank his first shot to give Big Spring a two-point lead. His miss on the second shot was immaterial as the Bobcats turned the ball back over to the Steers who ran out the last seconds.

"Jerald played an outstanding game," said Haller. "But ten players went down there, ten players played and ten players contributed."

For the game Wrightsil scored 17 points and Randle 11 for the Steers. Wrightsil scored 13 of those points in the second half, nine in the final quarter and, of course, five in the final half-minute of play.

The Steers hit 51 percent of their shots from the floor after hitting only around the 36 percent mark through the first six games of district play.

San Angelo, including blowing a 10-point halftime lead, failed at the free throw line. The Bobcats hit just three of 16 foul shots. Three Bobcats reached double figures with Leland White topping all scorers with 20 points followed by Hercules Miller with 17 and Casner with 11.

While the Steers were solving the San Angelo press in the third quarter, the defense was also doing its job. The Bobcats went the first five minutes of the quarter without scoring to allow the Steers to creep back into the game.

The Steers also cut down on their turnovers, committing just six in the final two quarters after turning the ball over 14 times in the first half.

The Steers open the second half of 5-A AAAA play Friday at home against first-half co-champ Abilene High.

In the junior varsity game, San Angelo topped the Steers 51-48. Juan Williams and Jimmy Brown each scored 14 points in the game. Big Spring fell to 9-13 overall with the loss and finished the first half with a 3-4 record, good for a fourth place standing.

Steers sting netters

Aubrey Weaver turned the trick again on Adam Dixon at No. 1 singles after teaming with Kip McLaughlin for an easy win at No. 1 doubles to lead Big Spring to a 7-2 District 5-A AAAA dual match win over Abilene High Tuesday afternoon.

It was not so pleasant for the girls as the AHS girls team chalked up a 9-0 shutout at the Figure Seven Tennis Center. The Steers are 3-1 in league play while the girls slipped to a 2-2 mark.

Both teams are on the road Saturday with 11 a.m. matches with Permian in Odessa. The next home date for Big Spring is Feb. 9 when San Angelo visits Figure Seven.

A little strategy worked for coach Allen Holiday. Weaver has never dropped a set to Dixon who in turn seems to have the upper hand when playing McLaughlin. Holiday moved Weaver to the No. 1 spot and he responded with yet another victory over the AHS stand-out, 7-6, 6-3.

Holiday expects McLaughlin to be back at No. 1 Saturday for the same reason. Weaver has never beaten Permian's top singles player and McLaughlin has done it twice.

Although the girls didn't win a match, Holiday saw a lot of improvement from his team's first visit to Abilene. Amy Burleson took Renee Cavitt to three sets at No. 3 singles before losing 5-7, 6-1, 6-1 while the doubles team of Loann Biddison and Terri Miller dropped a three-setter to Trisha Hart and Paula Shriver 2-6, 6-3, 6-3 at No. 3 doubles.

"The girls played a lot closer this time than before," said Holiday. "I think everyone coming out brought the players up Tuesday."

Knous elected by Shriners

Verlin Knous, Big Spring resident, recently was elected to serve on the Divan of Suez Shrine Temple for 1982 in an annual meeting held in San Angelo.

Knous office for the coming year will be High Priest and Prophet and he will serve 33 West Texas counties.

The Shriners of North America operate 19 orthopedic hospitals and three burn centers.

Appointed to serve on the Appointive Divan for 1982 by Potentate Dan Hutchinson were Big Springers Lewis Hargrove, Charles Wash and Arvin Henry.
