Convicted commissioners do time here

By BILL ELDER

A number of Oklahoma county commissioners convicted in a statewide kickback scandal may be sentenced to the federal prison in Big Spring, The Herald has learned.

So far, 115 county commissioners and former county commissioners have been convicted in an on-going federal investigation, according to Assistant U.S. Attorney Bill Price in Oklahoma City.

One commissioner, 47-year-old Eston Fisher of Marlowe, Okla., recently arrived at the Big Spring prison to begin a three-year sentence for a scheme to commit mail fraud, said prison Superintendent Joh Allman.

Allman said he has been told by U.S. marshals to expect the arrival of two more commissioners at his prison in the near future.

The commissioners are being sentenced to the Big Spring facility because the Federal Prison System — a branch of the U.S. Department of Justice — has a policy of putting convicted criminals in prisons located near where the criminals live, Allman said.

As Oklahoma residents, the commissioners could be sent to any minimum-security prison in the five-state South Central Region of the U.S. prison system.

The nearest prison set up to receive non-violent criminals such as the commissioners is in El Reno near Oklahoma City, Allman said.

Sentencing all the commissioners to El Reno would overload the facility, so a number of the commissioners are expected to do their time in Big Spring, the next-nearest minimum-security prison.

Most of the convicted commissioners will wind up in minimum-security prisons such as El Reno and Big Spring because of the nature of their crimes.

"They don't have criminal records and they committed non-violent crimes," Allman explained.

Crimes for which persons are typically sentenced to Level 1 (minimum-security) prisons include drug smuggling, counterfeiting, tax evasion and mail fraud.

Price said most of the commissioners were convicted of either conspiracy to commit mail fraud or tax evasion.

The commissioners were convicted of kickback schemes that spread through numerous county commissions in Oklahoma, Price said.

"In western Oklahoma, we convicted about three-fourths of all the commissioners," he said.

The commissioners were found to have participated in schemes with suppliers of road building equipment and other materials. The schemes usually involved accepting personal cash payments for supplies bought with county funds, Price said.

About 50 suppliers have been convicted along with the commissioners, he added.

Because of the money returned to the commissioners, prices in the road building supply industry in Oklahoma were as much as 30 percent lower than normal, according to See 'Commissioners', page 2-A

The winter fights back

By The Associated Press

Six-foot snowdrifts stranded thousands of motorists in the Midwest, while ice jam breaks sent six feet of water rolling through parts of Oil City, Pa., and inundated Marlinton, W. Va.

Sunday's snowstorm gave students and government workers a holiday today, while residents waited for snowplows and the National Guard to tackle the high drifts and up to 22 inches of new snow. At least five people died in the storm.

Ten families near Oil City were evacuated and downtown businesses were flooded when an ice jam broke on Oil Creek, a tributary of the Allegheny River, said police Lt. Greg Dauberger.

"The main intersection in town is flooded. ... Water surrounds some homes six feet deep," said Frank Stacy of radio station WOYI.

Dauberger said the homes might get washed away and police abandoned their station when it was flooded with 1 1/2 feet of water.

In Marlinton, a city of 1,300 in a valley between ridges of the Allegheny mountains, an ice jam on Knapp Creek gave way, sending 3 1/2 feet of water through parts of the town. Police and fire officials said four of families were evacuated.

In the winter-weary Midwest, the deepest snow was reported at Greenville, in south-central Illinois, where 22 inches fell. Chuck Jones of the Illinois Emergency Services and Disaster agency said 2,000 motorists were stranded in temporary shelters Sunday night.

The surprise storm developed when warm, moist air from the Gulf of Mexico suddenly moved up and collided with cold air from Canada, which kept temperatures in the northern Midwest as low as 36 degrees below zero in Detroit Lakes, Minn.

January rainfall is almost normal

By BILL ELDER
Staff Writer

Part of the time it was snow flurries, and part of the time it was good old rain water, and when it was through falling, about a tenth of an inch of precipitation fell on Big Spring over the weekend.

Recorders at the U.S. Big Spring Field Station on the north side of town measured .05 inches Friday night and .07 inches of precipitation Saturday, according to Charles Yates of the farm station.

For the month of January the Big Spring area received .58 inches, Yates reported.

"That's about normal — almost on target," he said. Normal rainfall for the month of January is .62 inches, Yates said.

"It puts a little moisture into the soil, makes it clottier and keeps it from blowing," said Bill Fryrear, a farm station researcher, about the month's rainfall.

"But it won't do much for adding to the soil-water needs for next year's crop. We could take three or four inches of a nice gentle rain."

Late tax penalties really add up

Today is the day delinquent penalty and interest charges begin to add up on unpaid property taxes for 1981, says Dorothy Moore, Howard County tax assessor-collector.

Mrs. Moore said business was "brisk" in the tax office Friday, the last day to pay without extra charges. She added that taxpayers have had practically the entire year to pay their property taxes, and no grace period will be extended.

Moore noted that delinquent 1981 taxes will incur a six-percent penalty and one-percent interest charge Feb. 1.

Combined penalty and interest charges will total nine percent in March, 11 percent in April, 13 percent in May and 15 percent in June.

Total penalty and interest on delinquent taxes reaches 18 percent in July, 19 percent in August, 20 percent in September, 21 percent in October, 22 percent in November and 23 percent in December.

If not paid until January 1982, delinquent 1981 property taxes would be subject to a combined 24-percent penalty and interest charge. And,

Moore noted, the interest would continue to increase by one percent per month.

In addition, if a taxing jurisdiction or appraisal district has contracted with a delinquent tax attorney, its governing body may add an additional penalty to any tax delinquent July 1.

The additional penalty may not exceed 15 percent of the taxes, penalty and interest due.

Prices up 400 percent in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Prices are going up by as much as 400 percent in Poland today, and the martial law regime is taking extra precautions against demonstrations. The guard is tightest in Gdansk, where 14 people were injured and 205 arrested in the first major outbreak of violence reported in Poland in six weeks.

Witnesses reported groups of special police moved into several Warsaw hotels. Travelers said the main north-south highway between Warsaw and Katowice was closed to civilian traffic, possibly to clear the way for troop movements.

But observers said the martial-law crackdown Dec. 13 was likely to enable the regime to impose the price hikes without major immediate protests.

Rumors circulated that workers would try to stage some sort of "non-political" protest in Warsaw today, but there were no outward signs of preparations.

(British newspapers quoted Solidarity sources as saying a smuggled message from union chief Lech Walesa urged his colleagues to encourage protests against the price increases but to take care that they did not lead to the total destruction of the union. Walesa has been detained since martial law was imposed.)

The demonstration that police broke up Saturday in Gdansk, the Baltic coast birthplace of Solidarity, apparently was unrelated to the sweeping price hikes for food and other goods.

Judge lowers suspect's bond

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Kendall C. Webb Jr. is free from police custody on $35,000 bond but only after an administrative process involving the chief of police, the Howard County sheriff and the district judge.

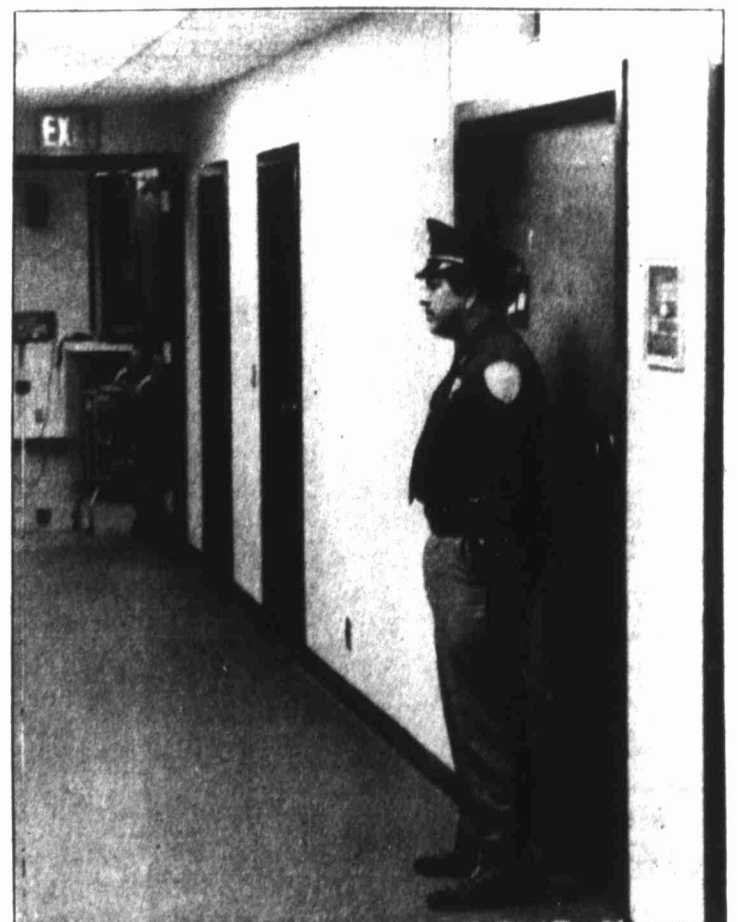

Webb is charged in a Jan. 16 incident in which Big Spring police were allegedly fired upon by Webb after officers chased him in connection with an apparent break-in at Gibson's department store. Webb was shot by an officer during the pre-dawn chase.

Webb filed a writ of habeas corpus in Judge Jim Gregg's 118th District Court Jan. 25 through his attorney, Wayne Basden, asking that his bond of $75,000 be reduced. The bond was set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Hefflin.

The writ claimed the bond was an "unnecessary and unreasonable restraint upon (Webb's) liberty and ability to make bond." Gregg granted the writ and lowered the bond to $10,000 for a burglary charge and $25,000 for an attempted capital murder charge.

Sheriff A.N. Standard accepted the bond of $35,000 and notified Chief of Police Elwood Hoberz that bond had been made in the Webb case. Standard said Hoberz then released his men from Malone-Hogan Hospital where they had been guarding Webb round-the-clock since Jan. 16.

According to a Malone-Hogan Hospital spokesman, Webb was discharged from the hospital Jan. 26.

Saudi navy plans to expand

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — France and Saudi Arabia signed a contract to expand training facilities for Saudi navy personnel, the Saudi Press Agency announced.

The contract was signed by Prince Sultan, the Saudi defense minister, and French Defense Minister Charles Hernu, who arrived Saturday night.

France signed a $1.8-billion agreement in 1980 to modernize the Saudi navy.

IRA candidates seek parliament

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing says it will run at least six candidates for the Dail, the lower house of the Irish parliament, in the general election Feb. 18.

The Irish Republic permits residents from Northern Ireland to seek office in its government because it contends Britain's 1921 partition of Ireland was illegal. Two IRA guerrillas imprisoned in Northern Ireland were elected to the Dail last June during the hunger strike in the Maze Prison but could not take their seats because they were in prison.

Hard work evident at stock show

By CAROL HART
Staff Writer

The casual observer at the Howard County Junior Livestock Show might not understand all the hard work which goes into the event.

But after talking to judges, show participants and coordinators, the dedication of the people involved becomes clearly evident.

A couple of winners in the show talked with the Herald about what a stock show involved.

Twelve-year-old Lance Robinson, a student at Sands High School, took the Grand Champion award in the lamb show Saturday. Robinson's face reflected his happiness at winning the award.

Did he expect to win? "I was surprised," Lance said. "I feel glad, and happy," he added.

But to win the Grand Champion award, Lance had to spend many mornings and time after school working with his prize-winning lamb.

exercise him, and teach him to show." Lance worked with the lamb in between practicing basketball, track, football and working with a calf.

His older brother, Scott, said "Lance likes to show lambs almost as well as showing calves."

"I'm showing a calf this evening," Lance said.

Eighteen-year-old Milissa Maddin agreed that "It takes a lot of work" to get a lamb ready for a stock show. This is her first year to enter a show, and she won the Reserve Champion award.

Lambs "are pretty gentle animals altogether," Milissa said. But at times, "They can be hard to handle."

That was evidenced by the fact that some stock show participants had trouble keeping their calves in line. But most of the participants had long since learned the tricks of calming their entries.

Why did Milissa enter a stock show? "I love working with animals. I love horses," she said. "I've never had a chance to get in a show before, so when a chance came up, I took it."

Milissa, who is in agriculture classes at Big Spring High School, and is a member of the Future Farmers of America, said her teachers helped her prepare for the show, and "I learned by watching other people."

What do judges look for when judging stock show animals?

Milissa explained that in the lamb division, the judge was looking for a lamb with muscles, for good shoulders, and a long body.

She summed it up by saying the judge kept an eye out for "High price cuts of meat."

That seems a little brutal to the casual observer of the show.

Milissa admitted that sometime people who participate in a show get attached to their animals.

"I'm taking mine (entry) to a show in Houston," Milissa said. "then I'll have him slaughtered."

Right now, thinking about having him slaughtered was a little hard to take, she admitted.

Local March of Dimes chapter is 'outstanding'

The Caprock Chapter in Big Spring has been named the "Outstanding Texas Chapter" by the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation.

The award was presented to Mrs. Billie Davis, Caprock Chapter executive, and to Barbara Holdampf and Dianne Austin, two Caprock Chapter board members, during the recent annual March of Dimes Program Orientation Meeting which was attended by volunteers and staff from throughout the state of Texas.

"It was very good news to our chapter since it was closed down for a couple of years," Mrs. Davis said. "We feel we've done a lot of growing in the past year. This award was given to the chapter that showed the most growth in all areas of endeavor, the public and professional health education, community service and fund-raising."

The local chapter was closed during the years of 1978 and 1979.

Mrs. Davis joined the chapter in October 1980.

The two-day meeting, held at the Marriott Hotel in San Antonio focused on the development, recognition and training of chapters within the state of Texas. The goal of the meeting was to give these chapters information and resources necessary to strengthen and broaden community involvement in their respective March of Dimes chapters.

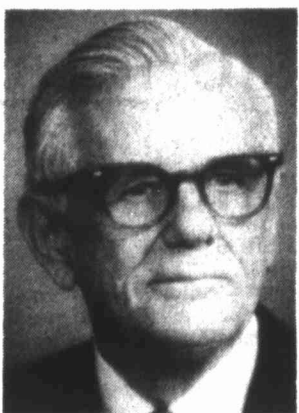

Highlighting the meeting was guest speaker, Dr. Russell Deter, an obstetrician and gynecologist from the Baylor College of Medicine who spoke on "The Technological Advances in Defeating Birth Defects."

Volunteers and staff were shown films, attended lectures, and workshops dealing with the educational, promotional, and the organizational aspects of the March of Dimes. All program orientation meeting attendants were informed of how they can work with the March of Dimes in the battle against birth defects through programs of research, community service, and public and professional education.

Commissioners to Price. Most of the commissioners pleaded guilty, some only a few hours before they were scheduled to go to trial, Price said.

"There's been a few that went to trial," he added. Sentences for those who did go to trial ranged from seven to 20 years in a federal prison, he said. Those who entered guilty pleas typically received two to five years in prison. Almost all the commissioners will have to make restitution for the money they illegally accepted.

"A lot will pay the restitution before being sentenced," said Price.

In one case, he said, the restitution amounted to $24,000. After the men are sentenced, federal probation and community programs officers determine the level of the prison to which the men will be sent to serve their time, according to Allman.

There are six levels, and the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp can handle inmates on the bottom two levels, Allman said.

"These are community-cleared inmates," he explained. "In other words, the inmate is of no danger to the community."

Anti-Communist Afghan rebels rescued three prisoners from a jail adjacent to the residence and office of the governor of Kabul, but 15 people were killed in the attack, including some of the rebels, Afghan exile leader Said Mohammad Maiwand reported.

Maiwand said the attack occurred last Thursday. Meanwhile, Radio Afghanistan reported government troops killed scores of guerrillas in heavy fighting in the provinces of Badghis, Kunduz and Nangarhat.

Need voter card? Courthouse has it

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Some Howard County voters are going to wander into the polls this April, May or November to discover they are not registered to vote. County Tax Assessor-Collector Dorothy Moore has hundreds of new voter registration cards which have been returned to her office unopened.

Voter registration cards are not forwarded by the postal service, Moore said, so if voters have moved within the county, their new cards will not get to them.

"If you don't have your new orange card by now, contact or come by the tax collector's office in the courthouse," Moore said.

If a person does not have a new card showing proof of registration, the only way he could vote would be by signing an affidavit at the polling place, Moore said. However, the affidavit would leave them eligible only until August, she added.

"If the voter does not get his address and registration corrected by then, he will be struck from the voter list," Moore said.

All a voter needs to do is drop by the tax collector's office to make an address correction if he has not received his new card, Moore said.

"They can even mail in their old white card with the address correction on it," she said.

Israel rejects Syrian conditions

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel today rejected a published Syrian three-point plan for peace with Israel, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said. "The plan does not talk about peaceful relations with Israel or recognition of Israel or negotiations with Israel and should be seen as nothing more than a propaganda exercise," spokesman Yossi Amihud said. The Foreign Ministry reaction was given in response to a plan set down by Syrian Minister of Information Ahmed Iskandar this week in an interview with the Beirut English-language weekly Monday Morning. Monday Morning reported that the plan called for Israeli withdrawal from all territories captured in the 1967 Mideast War, the recognition of the right of the Palestinian people, under the Palestine Liberation Organization, to establish a state and an end to the state of war between Israel and the Arabs. Israel has refused to recognize the PLO or to permit the establishment of a Palestinian state. Last Dec. 17 Israel annexed the Golan Heights which it captured from Syria in 1967.

Reagan house

Sale fell through because of 'altered' copy of papers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan's attorney said that the discovery of an "altered" photocopy of papers he signed two weeks ago in the sale of the Reagan home in Pacific Palisades caused the deal with a Nevada corporation to be called off. The home was sold Friday to another buyer — attorney Steven J. Halpern and two Halpern family trustees — for an undisclosed price. "There was an irregularity about (the first deal), there is no question about it," Roy D. Miller said Saturday when asked about the transaction with Zoller Industries that collapsed Jan. 18. A man who answered the phone at Zoller on Saturday night declined to give his name and said company executives would be unavailable for comment until today. Miller said that he had signed an escrow agreement on the Reagans' behalf listing the sale price at $1.03 million. But on Jan. 15, Ted Clarendon — an executive at Valley First Federal Savings and Loan of Palm Desert, which was considering financing the sale — told Miller he had papers in which the price was listed as $1.93 million. "He (the bank official) had a photocopy which contained my signature and figures different than what I signed," Miller said, calling it an "alteration" of the original document. He said he could not say who had made the changes. Reagan was "upset" about the problem, Miller said. On Sunday, White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes declined to comment on the matter and referred questions to Miller. The president's White House counsel, Fred F. Fielding, was out of town and unavailable for comment. Federal and state law makes it illegal to forge documents or to knowingly submit false papers to a financial institution. However, it was possible to value the sale at two different prices, Miller explained, because the payment was being made partly in bonds currently worth less than their face value at maturity. The negotiations with Zoller called for a cash payment of $490,000 plus bonds currently worth $600,000 but with a face value at maturity of $1.5 million. So the sale was worth $1.03 million or $1.93 million — depending on how the bonds were valued.

Trade houses to cut costs of vacation

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer A growing number of Americans are cutting vacation costs by swapping their houses with other families for a home away from home. A successful trade takes advance planning, however. You should start making arrangements now for a summer holiday.

States and overseas. You can list your house in the directories or you can simply subscribe to them. The Vacation Exchange Club of New York publishes two directories — one in February and one in April. The deadline for a listing in the April edition is Feb. 15, but you can get a subscription alone at any time. The price of a subscription is $14; if you want a listing as well, it will cost you $21. For information, write the club at 350 Broadway, New York, N.Y., 10013. Travelers Home Exchange of Denver also publishes directories in February and April. The deadline for listing in the April directory is March 31. A subscription costs $40; a listing and subscription is $45. For information, write: P.O. Box 1511, Denver, Colo., 80201.

Handgun ban starts today in Chi suburb

MORTON GROVE, Ill. (AP) — Residents in this Chicago suburb were ordered to drop their guns starting today, but city officials say no one will have to come out with their hands in the air.

Enforcement of the nation's first local ordinance prohibiting the sale and possession of handguns takes effect today while a federal appeals court considers whether it is constitutional. The law previously survived state and federal court challenges. But authorities in this suburb of 26,500 northwest of Chicago dismiss predictions of a mini police state, saying they do not plan to raid private homes in a bid to root out handguns.

New Year brings new hikes at supermarket

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer The first month of 1982 brought sharp price hikes at the supermarket, with grocery bills rising faster than they have since last June, according to an Associated Press market-basket survey. Butter and eggs led the list of items that cost more at the end of January than they did a month earlier, but there was a wide range of other increases as well. More than one-third of all the items checked by the AP went up in price last month; fewer than one-fifth declined.

The AP survey is based on a list of 14 commonly purchased food and non-food products, selected at random. The cost of the items was checked on March 1, 1973 at one supermarket in each of 13 cities and has been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. The latest survey showed that the marketbasket bill went up during January at the checklist store in eight cities and went down in five cities, for an overall increase of 1.2 percent.

Storm alert posted in North Texas

A winter storm watch was posted for the western two-thirds of North Texas tonight and for all but extreme southeast portions of North Texas Tuesday as a winter storm moved southeastward out of the Colorado Rockies. The upper level storm was moving toward Texas, forecaster said, warning that North Texas may again be hit with winter weather tonight and Tuesday. The storm is expected to bring rain, snow and colder temperatures. Accumulations of 2-4 inches of snow are possible, forecasters said. The storm is expected to be aided by a low pressure system over South Texas that is expected to send moisture northward from the Gulf of Mexico and add to the snowfall. The snow is expected to begin ending from the west Tuesday and end in eastern sections of North Texas Tuesday evening.

The January boost compared with a December increase of only two-tenths of 1 percent. It was the steepest increase since a 1.3 percent rise in June 1981. The increases are due, in part, to seasonal production declines in things like dairy products. The bitter cold weather across much of the country during January also affected production and prices.

Setting limits

Members of the American Automobile Association seem to be rather typical Texas motorists. They approve of the 55 mph speed limit but don't observe it.

An AAA survey showed 61 percent in favor of the 55 limit, but less than one in five responding said they always obeyed it.

That's another of saying that the limit is fine for everyone but me, which probably is the consensus of Texas drivers.

One of the reasons most motorists violate the 55 limit at some point is because it applies across the board to a wide variety of highways and road conditions.

If one were to establish speed limits according to highway accident statistics, the 55 limit would be lowered on many state highways and raised on interstates and other multi-lane facilities.

As it is, law enforcement officers rather obviously enforce the 55 limit in a way that reflects this reality.

Thus Texans (and the nation) put the 55 limit in the same category that Texans put their liquor. We have the law for those who want it and the liquor (and speed) for those who want it.

Around the Rim

Wasted days

Redistricting — that's a hard word to pronounce, as well as understand. Most of us have seen headlines telling of remap woes, gerrymandering and Democrats and Republicans accusing one another of political chicanery. And by now most of us are lost in confusion and don't really care what happens anymore.

What happened in redistricting is this: House and Senate proposals drawn up by an all Democratic Legislative Redistricting Board composed of Bill Hobby, Bill Clayton, Mark White, Bob Armstrong and Bob Bullock was declared in violation of the Voting Rights Act by the Justice Department.

Under the Voting Rights Act, all electoral changes in Texas, eight other states and sections of 13 others have to be okayed by the Justice Department before they can go into effect.

Knowing that they possibly were violating minority voting rights the LRB went ahead and divided the state up.

ALMOST AS SOON as the LRB agreed on a plan litigation was filed against the proposals by minority groups. The Republican party, led by Gov. Bill Clements, took up the cause of minority voting because it felt it was shortchanged in the plan.

And last week the Justice Department decided it didn't like the way things were shaping up so it threw out both the plans and appointed a three-judge federal court to settle things.

The judges decided they would draw new boundaries for the 1982 election in the trouble spots of the state and leave the rest of the districts largely alone. However, the court is going to let the Legislature handle the problem of redistricting in 1983 when the 68th session cranks up.

THIS MEANS the whole thing will begin again in 1983 and, if it follows historical patterns, the Justice Department will have to intervene once more.

Religious nuts

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am in high school and in many ways I would really like to accept Christ into my life. But I am afraid that all my friends will call me a religious nut or something. How should I deal with this? —T.S.

DEAR T.S.: I can understand the pressures you feel, particularly at this time in your life when the approval of others may mean a great deal to you. But I sincerely hope that will not keep you from accepting Christ into your life and following him. Following Christ is the only real life there is; everything else is phony and will lead you astray.

How should you deal with this problem? First of all, realize that being a Christian is often difficult and means you are going against the crowd. I have to be honest and tell you that it may cost you something to follow Christ — although what you gain will be much greater. Jesus warned us, "Enter through the narrow gate. For wide is the gate and breathing room the court also extended the Feb. 1 filing deadline to March 19.

Nobody really won anything in the final redistricting decision. The proposal were illegal and apparently railroaded through without much thought by the LRB except to possibly establish certain political friendships throughout the state.

If you'll notice White, Hobby, Armstrong and Clayton were all thinking about re-election or running for different offices at the time they drew up the plans.

For the taxpayer it means money. It is discouraging that the Legislature spent millions of dollars preparing a plan which ultimately was not acceptable or very compact. Howard County, for example, is in the 69th House District which stretches 300 miles to the El Paso County line. This shows blatant disregard for the community interest of our county.

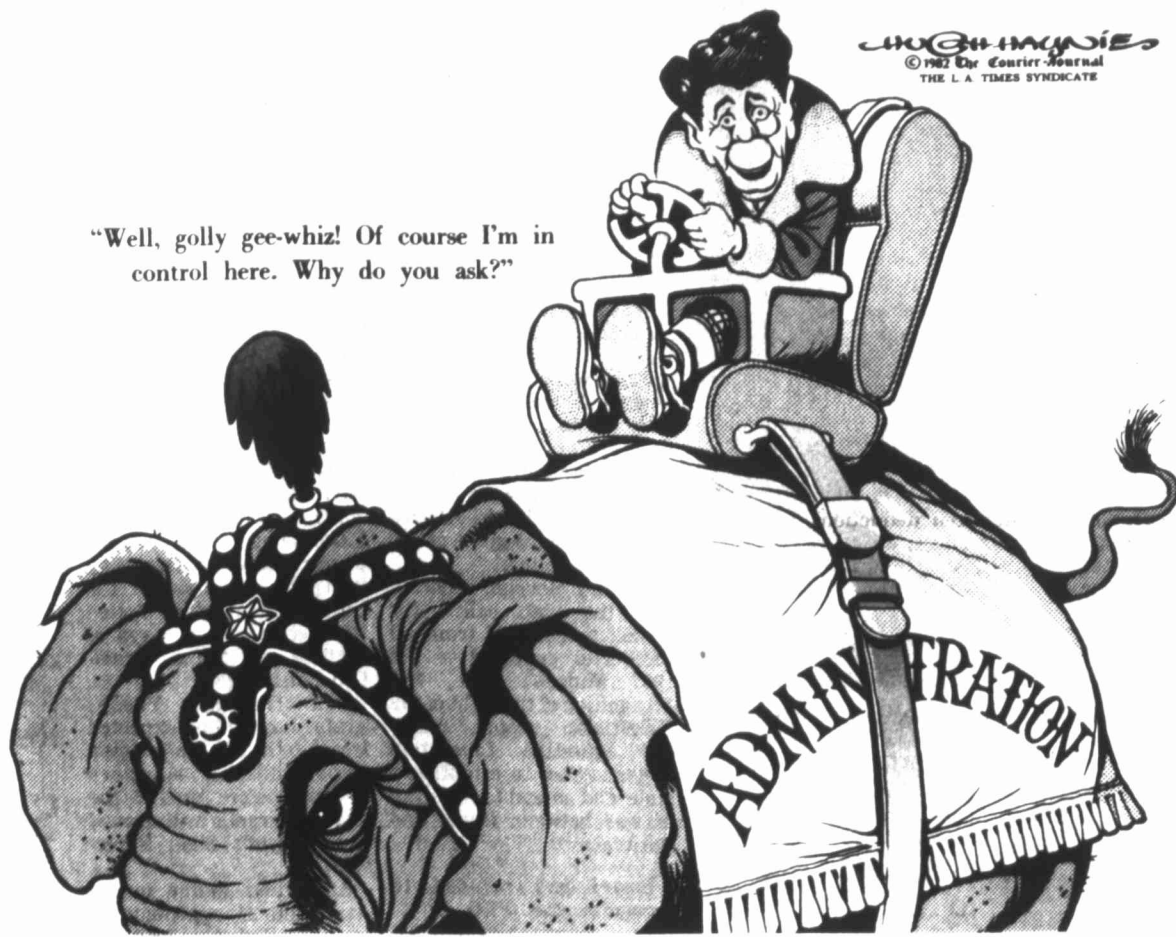

THE LONGER redistricting goes on, the more confused and frustrated candidates and incumbents become as they worry about filing deadlines and which district they will represent. And the voters become bewildered about who to vote for.

There have been some reports that politicians have dropped out of races because they became so disgusted with the remap plans. Who can really blame them? It's too much aggravation to take when you only make $7,200 a year.

Hopefully the Legislature will learn from its past mistakes, but that might be hoping for too much. You would think by now that politicians would forget their gerrymandering and logrolling techniques and try to work toward what is best for the people of Texas.

It seems sometimes that politicians and law-makers forget who elected them to office. As prechy as it sounds it wouldn't be a bad idea for us to start letting them know we care about the decisions they make.

Write your congressman, representative, governor or president. I think they need our help.

The forgotten GI kids

WASHINGTON — For most Americans, the Korean "police action" of 1950-54 is the forgotten war of this century — a bloody conflict that occurred between the enthusiastically supported World War II and the controversial involvement in Vietnam that tore the country apart.

Unhappily, there is a less amusing reminder of the Korean War than "M.A.S.H." It is the thousands of children left behind by American GI's in Korea, products of the loneliness and human frailty that have marked every war since the world began.

In many cases, the offspring of American soldiers and Korean women were abandoned by the GI fathers who either didn't know the kids had been born or didn't care. These hapless Korean-American children have been denied their right to immigration into the United States by bureaucratic bluenoses.

Legally, any child of an American parent is an American citizen, and thus entitled to come to this country. But legalistic nitpickers in the State and Justice Departments have succeeded in denying this right to the children of American citizens who happened to be serving their country in Korea.

Here are just a few examples, compiled by my associate Lucette Lagnado, of the Korean-Americans who are being kept out of this country because of bureaucratic officiousness:

— Kim Young Mi is 28 years old. He was light-complexioned at birth, and recalls that as a small child his mother used to shave his head so that no one would spot his blonde hair and know that he was a despised "GI kid." Despite this precaution, Kim was easily identified by his schoolmates as a Korean-American. His face still bears the scars of the fights he got into as a child.

When Kim's mother married after his American father left, his Korean stepfather made no secret of his distasteful of the "half-breed" in his family. "We would be eating our meals and all of a sudden my stepfather would point his finger at me and scream out that either he must die or I must die," Kim recalls. "Then he would reach across the table and beat me." The boy would run out of the house and cry.

— Kim Nam Soon is 23. She looks more Korean than Caucasian, but she still suffered as a child. The neighbors looked down on her as an Amerasian. "I was ridiculed at school and on the street," she remembers. She longs to come to the United States.

—Lean Sum is 28. Unlike many Amerasians, he has a trade. He's a barber. But Koreans don't want him cutting their hair. They prefer to wait for an all-Korean barber. "Why do you abandon the mixed babies here?" Lean asks.

— Victor is another 28-year-old Korean-American. He fell in love with a Korean woman and wanted to marry her. But her parents refused because he is of "mixed blood" in their eyes. Understandably, he is desperate to come to the United States — "my father's country" — to escape his hopeless situation.

For the past three years, Rep. Stewart McKinney, R-Conn., an Air Force veteran, has tried to overcome the bureaucrats' opposition and get certain American-Asian offspring admitted to this country under relaxed immigration rules. Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., has also tried to liberalize the immigration policies.

What McKinney and Denton are fighting is a bureaucratic bughbear: that ineligible Eurasians might seek to take advantage of relaxed immigration policies to sneak into the United States. They're apparently afraid that half-Korean children of

or throw it away

Dear Editor,

In this final segment of response to the erroneous presuppositions in the editorial "Creationism not for public schools," I want to address the general misconception of the article that implies that we're better off to leave the teaching of creation out of public schools. I have a personal friend who teaches high school biology in the public schools of the Los Angeles area. He has found from his experience of many years of teaching both the creation and evolution models, that these have tremendous effects on the students. (By the way, the teaching of scientific creationism in public schools is not against the law anywhere as of yet.) This teacher has learned to teach the creation model during the first week of classes because it results in a positive effect upon class control for the remainder of the year. He believes the reason seems to be that if indeed there is a good possibility scientifically that the world was created, then we become creatures who are responsible for our actions to some creator. Thus morality has a basis, and a reference point rather than "to thine ownself be true." Students perhaps for the first time realize that it just might be true, what our forefathers believed; that we are indeed "One nation under God."

This brings us to the real reason scientists and any other persons object to the possibility of creationism being true. If there is indeed a creator, then I must bow my knee before him! That's what our sick society that worships "self" is really afraid of. Yet the majority of those opposed to the teaching of creationism would most likely consider themselves to be Christian. I'm sorry, but as a Bible-believing Christian and theologian I believe I can categorically state that you cannot be a Bible-believing Christian and also believe in evolution, even if you call it "Theistic evolution." The Biblical text simply will not allow for it, as there are at least 25 flat contradictions in Genesis One alone between the evolutionary model and what the Scriptural text says.

I'm very aware that such a comment will anger most liberal theologians who will instantly brand me as narrow-minded, but I must be honest about what the Bible does indeed teach if we're going to take it seriously and literally. Many will say "The Bible teaches only spiritual truths and doesn't claim to be a science textbook!" There is only a small germ of truth in that statement and I respond by saying, "If you can't believe the Bible when it speaks of origins, how can you claim to trust it when it speaks about spiritual things like our salvation and future destinies? How do you know God hasn't deceived us about salvation as well, if He has indeed deceived us about the creation of the world?" John 1:3, tells us that Jesus Christ himself is indeed the creator of all things.

In John 3:12, Christ put this question to Nicodemus, "If I told you earthly things and you do not believe, how shall you believe if I tell you heavenly things?" That question is still true today. If we cannot believe the many "earthly" type of things (facts) recorded in God's Word, then how can we pretend to trust in those "spiritual" things pertaining to eternal life, etc. Christians, stop fooling yourselves; be honest enough to either accept all of God's Word or throw the whole thing into the garbage can! You cannot pick and choose only what you like to accept of God's Words, because He didn't give us that option.

If evolution is true, then live with the logical consequences of such a belief: "the survival of the fittest." If man is just an animal, then let's have an open hunting season on human beings just like we do on any other animal. (That seems to be the logic behind abortion on demand today). Stop playing hypocritical games, because if evolution is true, it's contradictory to try to steal some morality from the Bible like "Blessed are the meek." On the basis of evolution there can be no basis for Christian compassion or charity. In fact, apart from Biblical morality, you couldn't give me one reason why I should get along with or like anyone else! In evolutionary theory selfish rights reign supreme!

Firm still open at Industrial Park

Dear Sir:

In the recent weeks there have been several news items on the television and radio stating that the entire east side of the former Webb Air Force Base, now known as the Big Spring Industrial Park, has been taken over by the O.I.L. Corporation. I feel that this may have been confusing to many of the residents of Big Spring who have known that the West Texas Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy Center was located at the old golf course club house on the east side of the Air Base.

I would like to state that our Oxygen Therapy Center is still open and is still located in Building 1018 at the south end of the golf course. We established the Center in Big Spring to provide this newest treatment specialty for the residents of West Texas and we hope to keep it there indefinitely. Milton Raskin, M.D., is the Medical Director of the Hyperbaric Oxygen Center. We have been providing 24 hour a day treatments for West Texas since early in 1980 and it has proven to be life saving in many instances. There have also been many legs and arms saved by the use of this new treatment. The only Hyperbaric Oxygen facility between San Antonio and Long Beach, California is our Big Spring Center.

I am living in Kerrville and working at the Kerrville State Hospital but I keep in close communication with Dr. Raskin and with the Center, and I am endeavoring to do everything possible to keep the Center in Big Spring.

Sincerely yours,
LANIER DUNN, M.D.

Lisa Gilstrap explains background

Dear Editor,

In relation to Mrs. Armstrong's letter to the editor, in which she avoided the issue of the Police Depts. performance and made assumptions about my friends and I.

Mrs. Armstrong one should not "assume" things about another's lifestyle or friends until you have met the person or know something about them! This gives me the perfect opportunity to show "your ignorance" and to explain my background of which I am very proud.

I have two Bachelor's Degrees, one in Education and one in a Specialized Field. I have worked as a Gymnastics Instructor, Director of a Day Care, and as a Radio Dispatcher & Teletype Operator for Detectives of an organization which worked close with their local Police Dept. So, you see, I have first hand knowledge of how public servants should treat the public, in my working for State and Community Organizations. I am presently learning about and working in the business world. Of course, none of this is any of your business, but you made it your's and everyone else's business, when you wrote your article!

Mrs. Armstrong, when I'm not participating in sports, spending time with my family, or working, then I dedicate my time to supporting the Conservative side of the Republican Party. I make trips to Washington D.C. for meetings and fund raising dinners with such "scum" as you called them, as Vice President Bush and Senators and Representatives of the Republican Party.

The complaints I have received about the B.S.P. have come from some of the most prominent people in town.

Your assumptions were of "poor taste" and very "lacky"! I know for a fact, you have never met any of my friends or myself. So, how could you possibly pass judgment on us?

So, you see, Mrs. Armstrong, your "Little Plan" to try to discredit me and avoid the issue (a few police officers who are lacking in the control of their behavior), may have BACKFIRE!

After reading your article, you made true the Old Saying, "when the truth hurts, it brings out the ugliest in people."

There is only a small germ of truth in that statement and I respond by saying, "If you can't believe the Bible when it speaks of origins, how can you claim to trust it when it speaks about spiritual things like our salvation and future destinies? How do you know God hasn't deceived us about salvation as well, if He has indeed deceived us about the creation of the world?" John 1:3, tells us that Jesus Christ himself is indeed the creator of all things. In John 3:12, Christ put this question to Nicodemus, "If I told you earthly things and you do not believe, how shall you believe if I tell you heavenly things?" That question is still true today. If we cannot believe the many "earthly" type of things (facts) recorded in God's Word, then how can we pretend to trust in those "spiritual" things pertaining to eternal life, etc. Christians, stop fooling yourselves; be honest enough to either accept all of God's Word or throw the whole thing into the garbage can! You cannot pick and choose only what you like to accept of God's Words, because He didn't give us that option. If evolution is true, then live with the logical consequences of such a belief: "the survival of the fittest." If man is just an animal, then let's have an open hunting season on human beings just like we do on any other animal. (That seems to be the logic behind abortion on demand today). Stop playing hypocritical games, because if evolution is true, it's contradictory to try to steal some morality from the Bible like "Blessed are the meek." On the basis of evolution there can be no basis for Christian compassion or charity. In fact, apart from Biblical morality, you couldn't give me one reason why I should get along with or like anyone else! In evolutionary theory selfish rights reign supreme!

Inflation, high interest rates encourage itemizing

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the fourth in a series of five articles written to help taxpayers prepare their 1981 tax returns. This article explains advantages of itemizing deductions.

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — About 30 percent of Americans itemize deductions when filing a federal tax return, but soaring interest rates and inflation in general could make the extra work worthwhile for millions more.

A couple filing a joint return usually will save money by itemizing if total deductions exceed the $3,400 standard deduction. For a single person, itemizing could pay off if deductions exceed $2,300. One drawback: The extra calculations increase the chance of error, which could delay your refund and cause even more work. For most itemizers, the biggest deduction is for interest paid on a home mortgage. Since interest rates were at record highs for most of 1981, anyone who took out a new mortgage during the year or whose old loan rate rises with inflation could find the deduction worth more than ever.

Itemizing requires the filing of the long Form 1040 and the accompanying Schedule A, on which deductions are listed by categories.

Although you don't have to file proof of your deductions with your tax return, you must be capable of substantiating any item you claim. While there is no "magic figure" that Internal Revenue Service considers acceptable for itemized deductions, IRS statistics from 1978 tax returns serve as a guide for averages claimed by others.

Couples and individuals with incomes of $12,000 to $14,000 claimed deductions averaging 35 percent of their earnings. This included $1,004 for medical expenses, $1,255 for taxes, $1,868 for interest and $557 for contributions.

Those earning between $20,000 and $25,000 had deductions of 24 percent, including $561 for medical expenses, $1,876 for taxes, $2,280 for interest and $570 for contributions.

Again, these figures are not guidelines for what you may claim, they are simply averages of what were claimed in 1978.

A new provision on this year's returns allows a deduction for up to $1,500 of expenses paid in 1981 in connection with the adoption of hard-to-place children, such as older or handicapped children. Check IRS to see if you qualify.

Some of the more-common deductions:

—MEDICAL: Anyone who itemizes may claim half the cost of medical insurance premiums, up to $150 a year. Any medical and dental expense above that must exceed 3 percent of adjusted gross income — which for most taxpayers is the same as total income. If income is $20,000, only medical expenses above $600 may be deducted.

Once that threshold is crossed, deductible expenses include the other half of medical insurance premiums, medicine and drugs whose cost exceeded 1 percent of income, unreimbursed hospital and doctors' fees, transportation for medical purposes (actual expenses or nine cents a mile), nursing care, and such devices as eyeglasses, hearing aids and wheelchairs.

—TAXES: Including state and local income taxes; property taxes on your home and (if based on value only) on such personal property as cars and boats; and general sales taxes. To claim the sales-tax deduction, you may use tables in the instructions or (if you can prove it) list exactly what you paid.

You may not deduct license and inspection fees, excise taxes on alcohol or tobacco, gasoline taxes or assessments — such as for paving and sidewalks — that increase your property value.

—INTEREST PAID: For such non-business purposes as a home mortgage, automobile loan, credit cards, or installment loans. Do not deduct service charges, loan fees or interest paid for money borrowed to make tax-exempt investments.

—CONTRIBUTIONS: Including cash, property or out-of-pocket expenses to charitable, religious or educational organizations. A deduction for a gift of property must include a statement showing the recipient and how the value of the gift was determined. Don't deduct lodge fees, lottery tickets or the value of your time or services.

—LOSSES: For certain unreimbursed losses above $100 involving theft, fire, vandalism or storm.

—MISCELLANEOUS: Including union and professional dues; education expenses required to keep your present job; gambling losses up to the amount of gambling income; and certain expenses for business use of home for the convenience of the employer.

Preacher says evil message may be hidden in records

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — You've heard of reading between the lines. But what about listening between the lyrics?

A Kaufman preacher thinks messages of evil and wrongdoing on rock 'n' roll records may be affecting listeners on a subconscious level, and a Lufkin teacher agrees.

They are particularly concerned with a subliminal technique called backward masking whereby messages that cannot be heard when played forward are implanted in the song.

James Gilbert, a Church of Christ minister in Kaufman, southeast of Dallas, says he's trying to find out how it's done and why, and what effect it is having on the young people who listen to it.

And they are listening to it, he says, every time they turn on the radio or phonograph and hear Led Zeppelin's "Stairway to Heaven" or Queen's "Another One Bites the Dust," among others.

Backward masking is apparent to the conscious-level mind only when the record is played backward. These masked messages cannot be heard by the conscious mind when played forward, but the mind is able to retain, unscramble and understand it, Gilbert said.

"So I was talking with some of my kids about it and some rumors we'd heard about some songs containing backward satanic messages and decided to get some of these albums and see for ourselves what they had to say," Gilbert said.

"We listened to these backwards segments by putting the record on a neutral turntable and then spinning it by finger backwards at approximately the right speed," he said. "It surprised us. These rumors seemed clearly to be true."

A Lufkin News reporter who listened to the records Gilbert and others have pointed out found in "Stairway to Heaven," when played backward, a segment says, "My sweet Satan. The one will be the sad one who makes me sad, whose power is Satan." Forward the lyrics are, "Yes, there are two paths you can go by, but in the long run there's still time to change the road you're on."

Although some words are not clearly discernible, the word Satan is, the reporter found.

Gilbert says the two messages, the conscious and the subliminal, together can influence the listener to believe Satan's path is the path to follow.

When Frank Latimer Jr., television lab instructor and drama teacher at Lufkin High School, read about backward masking, he decided to do some research on it with the help of his students.

"I have the neutral turntable and the kids have these records," he said, "so we turned them backwards by hand just to see if we could hear something being said."

Led Zeppelin's "Stairway to Heaven" was again the target of the experiment. "Most of us could hear something, but not entire sentences," Latimer said. "We could hear words and phrases here and there."

Some students said they could clearly hear the satanic message, but others were skeptical.

Rock songs that seem to contain masked messages, according to Gilbert and Latimer, include Queen's "Another One Bites the Dust," and the Beatles' "Revolution No. 9."

Played in reverse, the segment at the end of the Queen song that repeats the line, "Another one bites the dust," again and again, says,

"Decide to smoke marijuana," over and over.

"Revolution No. 9" contains a segment that, played backward, has another message. The repetition of "number nine, number nine..." in reverse says,

"turn me on, dead man, turn me on, dead man..."

Gilbert says he has listened to these selections and has heard rumors of others. But, he says, he doesn't point out a particular song until he's heard it for himself.

Gilbert says a Black Oak Arkansas song, "The Day Electricity Came to Arkansas," contains the backward message, "Satan, Satan. He is God. He is God. He is God."

Latimer and some area disc jockeys say they know that the backward masking technique is used in recording studios. Efforts to reach some of these record producers were unsuccessful, they all failed to return calls from the News.

"Can the mind interpret or understand these lyrics backwards?" Latimer asks. "I don't know, but I'd like to know."

At least two psychologists say they do not know of any data on the subject. "I don't know of any experiments being done to prove if a sequence of words played forward on the conscious level, can have an unconscious effect of the words embedded backward, without them, in fact, being played backward," says Dr. Hal Becker, president of Behavioral Engineering Corp. in Metairie, La.

Asked whether the mind can understand a subliminal message like that or be affected by it, Becker said, "I think it's entirely within the realm of the neurophysiologically possible — at least for a short message. I don't think so for a very long message."

Electric Light Orchestra not only backward masked a segment of lyrics, but an entire song, "Fire on High," on their "Face the Music" album. When played forward, a garbled voice can be heard just before the music begins. When played in reverse, the voice can clearly be understood to say,

"The music is reversible, but time is not. Turn back. Turn back. Turn back. Turn back." Then the music begins.

Latimer, a Sunday school teacher at First Baptist Church, says there are two questions to answer: "First, is there something there or isn't there? Second, is the $64,000 question — is it affecting and how is it affecting the mind?"

Answering his first question, Latimer says, "I heard it. Others heard it, and record producers say backtracking is done. So, yes, I say something is there."

Latimer and some area disc jockeys say they know that the backward masking technique is used in recording studios. Efforts to reach some of these record producers were unsuccessful, they all failed to return calls from the News.

Experts planned to compare dental records to establish whether a skeleton found covered with brush in Town Lake during the weekend was that of Helen Durio, one of 13 people who died during the 1981 Memorial Day flood.

Fishermen found a woman's skull Saturday afternoon, and investigators found the rest of the skeleton several yards from the shoreline.

Authorities determined the skeleton was that of Mrs. Durio by identifying jewelry and clothes, said a spokesman for the West Lake Hills Police Department.

The spokesman said the Travis County medical examiner would compare dental records, probably today, to make positive identification.

Mrs. Durio, 47, was returning from the city airport with her husband and daughter when floodwaters swept their car into Bee Creek.

Last refugees' transfer delayed

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — The last 23 Cuban refugees at this western Arkansas resettlement center face still another delay today in their 1½-year struggle to gain freedom in the United States.

The Cubans — the last of about 25,000 who have found refuge at the center since it opened in May 1980 — were to leave for a halfway house in Seattle, Wash., on Monday. But in a telephone interview Sunday night, Mac Coffman, director of the Cuban-Haitian Task Force at Fort Chaffee, said the transfer was delayed to allow officials to ready the halfway house. He said delays in licensing the halfway house caused this week's postponement.

Coffman said the refugees would leave Chaffee in a day or two by bus and then board a non-stop flight from Tulsa, Okla., for Seattle.

The remaining refugees, he said, are disappointed by the postponement but happy because they are bound for Seattle instead of federal prisons along with most of the 400 Cubans transferred in January.

Meanwhile, Coffman said, the 23 refugees are helping clean up Chaffee. Last week, the Army said it would cost up to $7 million to repair damages at the barracks.

"They're working like troupers," he said. "They offered to work on Sunday. They're knocking down beds, hauling mattresses and sheets and blankets, cleaning up."

"After this coming Friday most everybody will be gone," Coffman said.

Dr. Donohue

Blood chemistry always changing

Dear Dr. Donohue: I had a blood test taken this summer and everything seemed normal, except my eosinophils, which registered 600 when I have heard they should be about 200 for an adult. What can be done about it? Is there something I should take or some change in my diet? Please explain what this means.—D.C.

First let me tell you what eosinophils are. They are a kind of white blood cell, the kind involved in allergic reactions. There are other kinds of white cells. Neutrophils, for example, are white blood cells that attack germs. Lymphocytes are white blood cells that make antibodies. So you can see that in and of themselves they are harmless body protectors.

You learned that your eosinophil count was high. Actually your count would be considered only mildly high. Remembering what I said about this type of white blood cell being involved in allergic reactions, you might ask yourself if you were possibly exposed to an allergic situation at the time the test was taken.

Were you taking any drugs? That can elevate the count because of an allergic reaction. Do you have hay fever or asthma? The eosinophil count goes up in those conditions. Sometimes in rheumatoid arthritis and certain other illnesses the eosinophil count will rise, perhaps meaning only that the body perceives a "foreign" invasion and is mounting a counterattack. Certain parasite infections, such as trichinosis, makes the count rise.

However, in many instances, when the count may be mildly elevated, the person feels OK, and no specific cause for the rise can be found. Nothing needs to be done. If this is your situation, then stop worrying about your test.

The body is never a static organism. It is always changing, reflecting the veritable sea of organisms in which it must survive. Many test results reflect only this ever-changing environment.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please tell me what you can about hemophilus infection. My doctor told me I have this and gave me and my mate some medicine for it. Is this an infection I will have the rest of my life, and can it travel to other parts of the body, like the kidneys, or can it travel to a person's head? Is it something I will have to live with?—A.R.

Hemophilus is a germ that is a common cause of vaginal infection. With it there is often a grayish discharge and offensive odor. Hemophilus can be passed to the male partner, but he rarely develops any symptoms. Metronidazole is an effective drug that eradicates the infection. That is the generic name for the medicine your doctor has prescribed (described in another part of your letter.) You should not have to live with this. Your partner is being treated because he can harbor the germ without ever knowing it and yet still pass it back to you after you have been cured.

As an aside, hemophilus means "lover of blood." But it gets name only because parts of the red blood cells are used to make it grow in the laboratory. Actually, hemophilus has been renamed. It is now called gardnerella. This germ will not travel to your kidneys or to your head.

There is another kind of hemophilus that does cause kidney infections and can cause meningitis. This is not what you have.

Dear Dr. Donohue: For the past two years my tongue has become enlarged and puffy. What causes it to be like that?—V.V.M.

Because so many varied problems can cause an enlarged tongue, the best I can do is list a few and urge you to have your doctor check you over. Low thyroid hormone level can do it. And the tongue gets bigger when there is an overproduction of growth hormone (along with inordinate growth of other parts of the body). An illness, quite rare, called amyloidosis, also makes the tongue larger.

Finally, infections, allergies or growths have to be looked for. I am at a loss to be more specific. You should not ignore your symptom, but arrange to have yourself examined.

Vaginitis can strike any woman at any time in her life. You can read about the causes — and cures — for this troublesome complaint in the booklet, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment." To get a copy, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of The Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Mother is at wits end

DEAR ABBY: It's another usual day. Broken stereo, broken toys, spilled milk, shouting matches, temper tantrum, tears—his and mine. I am at my wit's end. He's not quite 4—how can I have these problems already?

Everyone else has the answer except me. Spank him? Make him sit on a chair? Take away his favorite toy? Make him stay in his room? Ignore him? Give him extra love? Make him eat only natural foods?

My head is spinning and my stomach is in a knot. Nothing seems to work.

His father says, "There's nothing wrong with him—you're looking for a problem!" Grandparents say, "He's just a boy." One sitter says, "I never had a problem with him." Another sitter says, "I can't handle him either."

Is it me, Abby? I keep saying I won't yell at him any more—a promise soon broken. He sees me crying, then he cries too, and says, "I love you, Mom."

I feel so bad. Am I his problem, or am I cracking up?

BAD MOM, NOT BAD BOY

DEAR MOM: First, have your pediatrician examine the boy to rule out the possibility of some physical irregularity that may be affecting the boy's behavior. Then describe your frustrations to the doctor just as you did to me. Ask for his recommendation. Professional counseling for you? For the child? Or both?

A physical checkup for you might be a good idea, too. Mom. Nobody said motherhood was a piece of cake. But it shouldn't turn your noodle to strudel either.

DEAR ABBY: My wife, who is nearly 50, is as trim and beautiful today as she was 30 years ago when she was a professional model.

Recently while looking around in our attic, I came across two full-page newspaper ads in which my wife was featured. I had them framed and hung on the wall of my office where I enjoy looking at them.

A few months ago we had our garage made into a lovely finished playroom. I would like to hang these "ads" on the wall in that room because I'm very proud of them and very few people see them in my office.

My wife thinks it would be in bad taste and look like she was bragging. I disagree. Among other things, we display her bowling trophies, my "Man of the Year" plaque from the local Kiwanis Club, and a tremendous mounted fish my wife caught.

Please give us your opinion about hanging these ads in our new room.

PROUD HUSBAND

DEAR HUSBAND: "Bad taste and bragging" to display one's loveliness of years gone by? No way! I think it would make a fine conversation piece.

DEAR ABBY: Please run a line in your column to remind people that when they write to someone asking for help or advice to please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

I answer literally hundreds of letters a year from people seeking help and information about their hearing problems. Yet I doubt if five people have been thoughtful enough to enclose a postage stamp for my time and trouble.

I would like to continue answering their questions, but with the cost of stationery and postage these days, it is a considerable burden. Can you help me?

Overprotective parents protect themselves

A parent's own dependence on a child, often what actually triggers an "overprotective" attitude, several family counselors today advised teens trying to cope with the problem.

"Often, the way the parent has defined the child's ability to be independent is based on the parent's own needs," Dr. Michael Solomon, a Denver family counselor said. Conflicts with parents often occur because they "don't see you as you see yourself."

Another counselor interviewed, Kathy McVicker, claimed that marital problems frequently cause parents to hold on to the child. "If kids remain dependent on their parents," she explained, "then the parents have them around to serve as a buffer in a bad marital relationship." When the child is the only factor keeping a couple together, a parent may fear that the child's independence will destroy what's left of the marriage. Parents may also become overly restrictive when only one child is left at home.

However, parents aren't solely to blame. Teenagers often prefer to have their parents make decisions for them because they're afraid of making a mistake. "Some teenagers wonder why their parents exercise so much control," Solomon stated. "But these same teens will continue to ask their parents everything, even how to dress."

According to Solomon, the best way to cope with overprotective parents is to 50 coup plotters are executed?

By The Associated Press
Western and Arab sources say Syrian President Hafez Assad has executed 30 to 50 military officers and jailed more than 300 military personnel after uncovering what may have been the most serious challenge yet to his 12-year old government.

The Assad government has issued a flurry of statements denying reports of a military plot against his regime, which is embroiled in a two-year-old fight with Islamic fundamentalists of the outlawed Moslem Brotherhood.

However, usually reliable Western and Arab sources in the Middle East provided specific details of the alleged plot and the crackdown that began with a series of arrests early last month. The plotters "planned to have air force units bomb the Republic Palace in Damascus during a meeting of the (ruling) Baath (Socialist) Party leadership while tanks rolled into the capital," said a Western intelligence source who declined to be identified by name or position.

Western sources said the conspiracy was uncovered when the plotters approached an officer loyal to Assad and the officer informed the president. The London Sunday Times said the plotters planned to bomb the homes of Assad and his brother Rifat, the armed forces commander. Quoting diplomatic sources in Damascus, the paper said more than 300 army and air force officers were arrested, and "sporadic clashes continue between the military and Assad's feared security police."

The Kuwait newspaper Al Qabas reported Saturday that Maj. Gen. Naji Jamil, a former air force commander and deputy defense minister, was executed last week in Damascus in connection with the plot, and 150 army officers were arrested. Syrian newspapers and television carried pictures Sunday of Jamil meeting with Baath Party leaders.

Oil group meets here

From February 2 to 10, members of the largest state oil marketing trade group will be meeting in several Texas cities.

The Texas Oil Marketers Association represents over 4,000 independent distributors of petroleum products who supply about two-thirds of the state's service stations.

Members of the organization will hear updates on legislative and regulatory issues affecting marketers and elect new district directors for the association.

The group will meet in Big Spring at the Holiday Inn on Wednesday.

Watermelon is Texas' biggest produce crop

AUSTIN — Watermelon was the biggest produce crop harvested in Texas during 1981, but onions brought in more money.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said 43,900 acres of watermelons were picked last year compared with 24,200 of onions. Onions brought growers $99,095,000, watermelons $37,002,000.

The figures were released by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service which placed Texas third in total harvested acreage, production and value of fresh market vegetables. Growers harvested 156,920 acres, one percent above 1980 but eight percent below 1979.

The state ranked first in harvested acres of fresh market spinach and onions. It was second in cabbage, cantaloupes, bell peppers, honeydew melons and watermelons.

The 14 principal fresh market vegetables and melon crops had a total value of $338.4 million, 34 percent higher than last year.

Cabbage, a major crop, fell slightly in acreage but rose more than $4.3 million in value. Cantaloupe value increased more than $3 million despite an acreage decline.

Broccoli acreage rose from 3,500 acres in 1980 to 5,300 in 1981. In 1979 Texas growers harvested only 950 acres of broccoli.

Horrible Massacre?

Army kills 20 in raids

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — El Salvador's U.S.-supported army killed 20 or more people during house searches for rebels in a San Salvador neighborhood, but relatives of the victims denied they were leftist guerrillas.

"It was a horrible massacre," said one woman who reported her son and daughter were shot after soldiers dragged them from her home.

Another woman said her three daughters were raped before they were shot.

About 200 government troops raided homes before dawn Sunday in the working class district of San Antonio Abad. Residents said as many as 27 men and women, most of them in their teens and early 20s, were killed.

"The soldiers said I had nothing to worry about as they took my daughter away," said Miriam Villanueva, the mother of another victim. "A short time later we started hearing gunfire."

A Defense Ministry spokesman said 20 people were killed and five soldiers were wounded in "confrontations" during a search of rebel hideouts. It said the dead were members of the Farabundo Marti Liberation Front, a coalition of leftist guerrilla groups fighting to overthrow the U.S.-backed junta.

Families of the victims, who came to a courthouse where judicial authorities were identifying the dead said they were workers or students.

"The operation was a success," said the Defense Ministry spokesman. "This action was a result of training and professionalization of our officers and soldiers."

But the families' claims were likely to provide ammunition for opponents in the U.S. Congress of the Reagan administration's plans to increase aid to the junta. Reporters for the Washington Post and the New York Times who toured guerrilla-held areas in northern El Salvador reported last week that the army massacred hundreds of unarmed peasants in anti-guerrilla operations in Morazan province in December.

The Reagan administration approved $65 million in economic and military aid in December, and congressional sources said Saturday it decided to provide $55 million more worth of emergency military equipment. Part of the increase was to replace helicopters and fighter planes destroyed in a guerrilla attack on a government air base last week.

The New York Times reported Sunday that the administration was considering asking Congress for a $100 million increase in aid for this fiscal year.

In Washington, Ruben Zamora, a member of the guerrillas' diplomatic and political commission, told The Associated Press Sunday that government forces "are not going to be able to win the war with just more equipment."

He said 30,000 U.S. Marines could probably keep the junta in power, but "the problem then would be how to get out."

TWELVE KILLED IN AVALANCE — With the help of others a doctor carries one of twelve killed people to a car in Werfenweng Sunday night, when rescue works were under way here near Salzburg to find all the victims of an avalanche, which buried a West German tourist group in the afternoon. Twelve people were killed, police said and four were found alive.

Rescuers hunt child missing in avalanche

SALZBURG, Austria (AP) — Rescuers fanned out across a snow-covered mountainside early today, renewing the search for the last student missing in an avalanche that killed at least 12 West Germans on a school ski tour.

They had suspended the hunt by searchlight Sunday night when it appeared more snow would roar down the mountainside.

Nine students, aged 12 to 22, and three teachers, all from a private school in Berchtesgaden, West Germany, are known dead in the disaster Sunday at Mount Elmualam, 35 miles south of Salzburg.

The 18-member group was on its way down the slope to a farmer's house they had rented when a giant wall of snow crashed down on them, authorities said.

One 16-year-old boy, who regained consciousness after being buried, dug his way out and went for help.

The survivor, who was unidentified, later told reporters that he suddenly heard a thunder, felt a strong wind and saw snow whirling about him.

Some 200 rescuers, alpine police, ski instructors and volunteers from nearby villages joined the hunt for the skiers.

They saved four students, although a 16-year-old girl showed little signs of life at the time of her rescue, a radio reporter said. All four were hospitalized.

Solidarity 'propaganda' gets lukewarm reception

NEW YORK (AP) — "Let Poland Be Poland," the pro-Solidarity television show produced by the U.S. government's official propaganda agency and beamed around the world, received a less-than-cordial reception in several of the countries where it was shown.

The 90-minute program was broadcast Sunday to a potential TV and radio audience of 400 million people.

The show-business aspects of the program, which featured several Hollywood stars, drew criticism in West Germany, the Netherlands, Denmark and England.

In the United States, where Congress approved a special exemption to allow domestic showing, a few Public Broadcasting Service stations telecast the event as it was fed. Officials at others said they had not decided whether to show the program.

Many of the PBS stations that did broadcast the program inserted disclaimers at the beginning and end, explaining that the show was produced by the U.S. International Communication Agency, the government's official propaganda arm. The ICA is not allowed to broadcast its productions in the U.S. without special permission.

First reports from abroad indicated an audience of 90 million, said Phyllis Kaminsky, a spokeswoman for ICA in Washington. She said the entire program was shown in the Bavarian region of West Germany and in Luxembourg, Ecuador, Jamaica, Mexico and the Dominican Republic.

Venezuela, Costa Rica and a Bonn station broadcast an hour of the show, while Italy and the Netherlands carried half of it, she said, and two French stations each carried 35-minute segments.

South Africa and Greece were among the countries that did not broadcast the program. Thailand turned down an offer from the U.S. Embassy to provide satellite transmission because "the subject is too politically sensitive," one source said.

In England, the BBC screened about one minute of the program, showing several scenes of Poland and fading to about 10 seconds of remarks by President Reagan.

Other governments planned to review the show before deciding whether to broadcast it.

The slick production consisted of speeches, music, poetry and film and photos of the Polish people.

More than a dozen world leaders, including Reagan, French President Francois Mitterrand and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, spoke in support of the Solidarity labor movement and against martial law, which was imposed by the Polish government Dec. 13.

Frank Sinatra sang "Ever Homeward," adapted from a Polish folk song. Orson Welles read the "No Man is an Island" segment of a sermon by John Donne, and Charlton Heston walked through a studio floor filled with lighted candles, explaining: "Tonight, we're lighting a candle for the people of Poland."

Kirk Douglas recalled a visit to Poland, Bob Hope discussed airwave jamming and Henry Fonda spoke on the importance of Polish freedom.

PBS stations in New York, Washington, Detroit, New Orleans, Richmond, Va., Indianapolis, Chicago, Tempe, Ariz., and Miami were among those showing the program as it was fed or shortly thereafter.

Doctors undertake study of herbicides on veterans

HOUSTON (AP) — Doctors have begun the first major government study of the effects of herbicides on 73,000 Vietnam veterans who claim they were harmed by the toxic chemicals used in the war.

The Kelsey-Seybold Clinic of Houston, under a $5.1 million contract with the Air Force, is testing 2,400 airmen to determine whether contact with chemicals such as Agent Orange used to destroy enemy food supplies and ground cover was harmful.

About 12 million gallons of the defoliant Agent Orange were dropped on 3.5 million acres of land in Vietnam between 1965 and 1971, according to Air Force records. Since then, more than 73,000 veterans have sought damages for ailments ranging from treatable skin disorders to cancer and birth defects in offspring. The Veterans Administration refuses to pay until conclusive evidence is found to support the claims.

Doctors at Kelsey-Seybold will spend eight months examining the airmen, said Mai Sam Giannino, a spokesman for the Division of Aerospace Medicine, which is coordinating the study.

Each serviceman also will be quizzed about family history, job background and previous medical problems.

2008 Birdwell Lane

IT'S MINE — Western Conference's Lonnie Shelton, left, and Eastern Conference's Julius Erving, center, and Larry Bird all have their eyes on the rebound during second half action in the NBA All-Star game at the Meadowlands Arena in East Rutherford, N.J. Sunday. Bird, named the game's most valuable player, led his team to a 120-118 win.

Celtics players guide victory

NBA East All-Stars win

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Coach Bill Fitch relied on three of his Boston Celtics players and well-rehearsed patterns to pilot the East to a 120-118 victory over the West in the National Basketball Association All-Star Game.

"We had three Celtics out there and they know what this means and that means," Fitch said, pulling his right ear and waving his arms to simulate the coded gestures he made to Boston's Larry Bird, Robert Parish and Nate "Tiny" Archibald during Sunday's game at the Meadowlands Arena.

"Three Celtics were out there in the end, because it was a close game and that's the thing to do — just like Pat had three of his Seattle kids out there at one point," said Fitch. West Coach Pat Riley played SuperSonics Jack Sikma, Gus Williams and Lonnie Shelton together in the closing minutes.

"We ran a play down the stretch that the Celtics use throughout the year," said Bird, who was named Most Valuable Player after scoring 19 points, including 12 in the final quarter, and pulling down 12 rebounds.

Bird said his ability to complement Parish, who scored 9 of his 21 points in the final period, "was definitely the key" to the East's victory.

"You play with somebody for two years, and you kind of know what they're going to do in certain situations," said Bird, a 6-foot-9 forward.

With 1:15 remaining, Norm Nixon of the Los Angeles Lakers narrowed the East's 120-116 lead with a left side jump shot.

Julius Erving of the Philadelphia 76ers missed an inside layup and fouled Sikma with 17 seconds to play, and the ball returned to the West.

The West found time for two more shots. Seattle guard Gus Williams' three-point attempt fell short, and Laker guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson missed a layup. Parish rebounded Johnson's shot in the final second, assuring the East its third consecutive victory and a 21-11 lead in the All-Star series.

"With Parish and Bird flying on the wings — and Parish is a great running center — it was a great move for them," Riley said of Fitch's fourth-quarter squad.

Eleven players scored in double figures, but Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Los Angeles, the second most prolific scorer in NBA history, finished with just two points for the West.

Abdul-Jabbar blamed his lackluster performance on fatigue.

"The game started at 10 a.m. Los Angeles time, and I wasn't all here," Abdul-Jabbar said.

AFC takes Pro Bowl, 16-13

HONOLULU (AP) — Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula may have cringed the last time he saw Dan Fouts and Kellen Winslow in action, but this time he was cheering them.

When the American Football Conference all-stars, coached by Shula, needed a late score to take a 16-13 victory in Sunday's Pro Bowl, the San Diego Chargers' Fouts-to-Winslow combination helped get it.

Fouts took the AFC 69 yards, with the big gainer a 23-yard pass to Winslow, to set up the deciding 23-yard field goal by Kansas City's Nick Lowery with three seconds remaining.

"It was anything but a dull game," said Shula, who recently had watched Fouts and Winslow help the Chargers knock the Dolphins out of the NFL playoffs.

"On the final drive, our offensive line dominated play," said Fouts, who completed eight of 16 passes for 143 yards on the day. "The pass to Winslow down the middle (putting the ball at the NFC 5-yard line) broke their back."

Winslow, the NFL's top receiver for the past two seasons, had six catches for 86 yards and shared Pro Bowl Most Valuable Player honors with NFC defensive end Lee Roy Selmon of Tampa Bay.

"It's a real honor to be named co-MVP and an honor to be on the field with the finest players in the game," said Winslow.

"There was more intensity this year," added the two-time Pro Bowler. "Pride was a factor."

Selmon, in his third Pro Bowl, recorded four quarterback sacks for losses totaling 35 yards, and was in on eight tackles.

"I was just running around trying to do what we practiced all week," he said. "They were picking up Randy White (of Dallas) a lot and I waited for him to clear out and then I rushed."

Lowery, a second-year pro out of Dartmouth who was turned down by eight NFL teams before catching on with the Chiefs, said he wasn't nervous before his game-winning kick.

"I thought before the kick, 'I've done it before and here it is again,'" he said.

He had missed a PAT attempt on the AFC's first touchdown when the snap from center was off, and also missed wide on a 52-yard field goal attempt earlier in the contest.

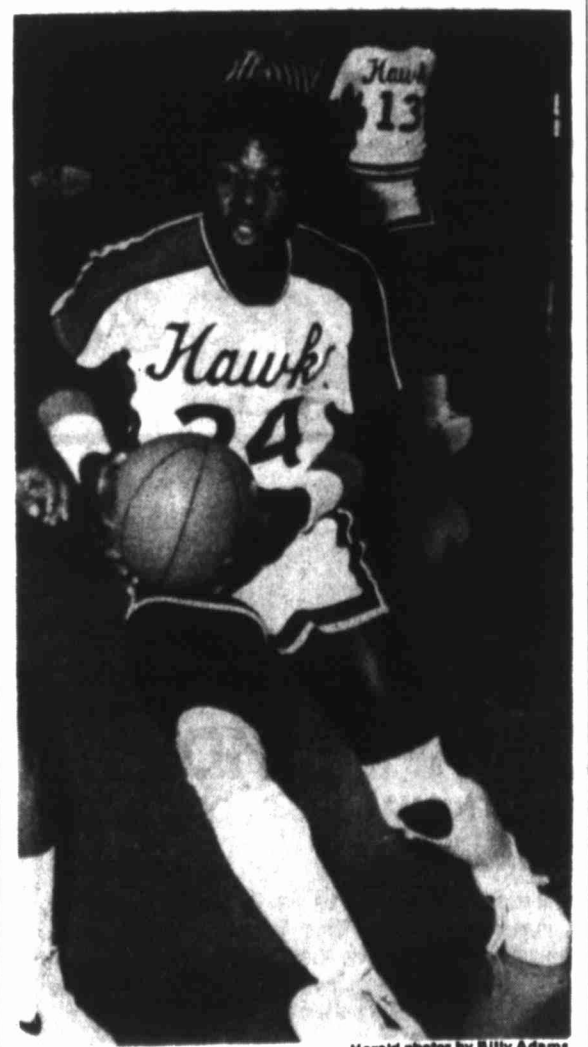

"I figured it would be a low-scoring game," said NFC Coach John McKay of Tampa Bay. "There was just too much defense. It takes longer than a week to get an offense coordinated."

The NFC, trailing 13-6 late in the final quarter, tied the game on a 4-yard touchdown run by Dallas' Tony Dorsett with 2:43 left.

The American Conference took a 6-0 halftime lead on a 4-yard scoring pass from San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana to Tampa Bay tight end Jimmie Giles just before the intermission. The score came after Dallas rookie Everson Walls made the first of his two interceptions of Fouts, returning the ball 18 yards to the AFC 4-yard line.

The PAT kick by Dallas' Rafael Septien was blocked by Kansas City's Gary Green.

The AFC bounced back with two third-period touchdowns, the first a 2-yard dash by San Diego's Chuck Muncie and the other a 1-yard spurt by Houston's Earl Campbell. The second score was set up when the New York Jets' Mark Gastineau plucked a Montana fumble out of the air and returned it 21 yards to the NFC 1-yard line.

For Johnny, it was Miller time

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Johnny Miller had a little talk with himself after playing poorly in the Phoenix Open a week ago.

"Boy, don't tell me," Miller said, recalling the one-way conversation, "I'm going to have a bad year after a $500,000 start."

He put those doubts to rest Sunday with a one-stroke victory over on-rushing Jack Nicklaus in the Wickes-Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

"It was important to turn it around," Miller said. "I'm happy to get that off my back. There was a lot of pressure on me. Jack really put it to me."

But it wasn't quite enough. "I'd figured, the night before, that a 64 ought to be enough to win the golf tournament," Nicklaus said. "But it wasn't."

He got that target score, 8-under-par and a record on the 7,002-yard South course at the Torrey Pines Golf Club. The effort included eagle-3s on the ninth and 18th.

It put Miller's back to the wall. But he nursed home the diminishing lead with a 2-under-par 70 and a 270 total, 18 shots under par.

Nicklaus was one back at 271.

The victory was the 21st on the American tour for Miller, tying him with South African Gary Player for 16th place on the American winning list. It also provided Miller with the successful attainment of a couple of goals.

The victory was worth $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000. That compares with the $500,000 first prize Miller won in an unofficial $1 million tournament in southern Africa the first week of the year.

His front-running effort was just good enough. He was never caught, but Tom Kite and Nicklaus each got to within one.

Kite, the 1981 leading money-winner who lost a playoff at the Bob Hope only two weeks ago, rolled in a 12-foot birdie putt on the 15th hole to pull to within one shot. But Miller dropped a 10-footer on top of it, and had his margin again.

Nicklaus, playing in front of Miller, hit a 3-wood to within five feet of the cup on the par-5 finishing hole. And he, too, got to within one when he made the eagle putt.

Kite's challenge disappeared when he dunked his second shot in the lake in front of the 18th green, and Miller needed only the routine par to win it. He got it, 2-putting from 20 feet.

College Basketball Roundup

Aggies stagger Longhorns

The Texas Longhorns must have felt as though they were heading for the last roundup...and in more ways than one.

Basketball became very much of a contact sport Saturday as the fifth-ranked Longhorns bowed to Texas A&M 71-69 on Claude Riley's jump shot with five seconds remaining in overtime.

"First thing I do Monday is go out and buy LaSalle (Thompson) a saddle so people won't have to bareback him when they ride him. He got a good, quick wallop in there," Texas Coach Abe Lemons said sarcastically of his star, who led all scorers with 24 points.

It was a lost weekend for Texas, and the early part of the week wasn't much better. On Tuesday, the Longhorns, off to their best start in 47 years with a 14-0 record, dropped a 69-59 decision to Baylor and also lost No. 2 scorer and rebounder Mike Wacker for the season with a knee injury.

The outcome left A&M and Texas tied for second place in the Southwest Conference at 5-2, just behind 6-2 Arkansas. The 12th-ranked Razorbacks dropped a 49-48 nonconference squeaker Sunday to No. 18 Wake Forest.

With Texas falling by the wayside, No. 1-ranked Missouri was left as the nation's only unbeaten major college team...barely. The Tigers edged 14th-ranked Kansas State 59-58 on the road for their 18th consecutive victory despite a subpar 6-point performance from star Ricky Frazier, who averages 15.2.

Six-foot-11 center Steve Stipanovich led Missouri with 20 points, and guard Jon Sundvold added 14. Stipanovich's layup in the waning seconds gave Missouri a 59-56 lead before a K-State basket at the buzzer.

"Stipanovich was a big factor in the second half, particularly down inside," said K-State Coach Jack Hartman. "They have good athletes and do a good job of getting the ball into the hands of the people they want. They do deserve to be No. 1."

Ironically, although K-State came mighty close to knocking off Missouri, the Wildcats were the only member of The Associated Press Top Twenty to endure a winless week. They lost 56-53 to Oklahoma State on Wednesday.

In other games involving ranked teams, runnerup North Carolina trounced 17th-ranked North Carolina State 58-44, third-ranked Virginia turned back Duke 77-65, No. 4 DePaul got past Syracuse 92-87, sixth-ranked Iowa defeated Ohio State 76-66, No. 7 Kentucky beat Georgia 82-73, No. 8 Oregon State trimmed Southern California 72-55, No. 9 San Francisco shaded St. Mary's, Calif. 86-84 in double overtime and No. 10 Minnesota beat Indiana 69-62.

Lamesa Golden Tors begin baseball

Lamesa High School baseball workouts begin today as Coach Lee Almaguer begins preparation for his first year at the helm of the LHS baseball program.

Almaguer inherits a team that won just two non-district games last season and a team that failed to win a District 2-4A game.

baseball player who is expected to move to the outfield this season and pitcher Lasero Aronondo who will be relied on heavily for his valuable mound work.

The season begins March 2 at Big Spring.

However, the outlook is not that bleak as there is quite a bit of talent coming back to the squad including seven starters from last year's team.

Among those returning is catcher Blake McKinney who did a fine year behind the plate last year as a freshman; third baseman Steve Teague who is a steady hitter and fielder; outfielder Phillip Parsons, a speedster expected to be lead-off hitter, Tony Lara, a second GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) This is a fine day for making new arrangements with associates. Go to the right sources for the information you need.

MOON CHILDREN (June 21 to July 21) You can now think clearly and can make plans to have more abundance in the future. Try to budget your assets.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are most magnetic now and can easily make a fine impression on others. Attend an important social affair tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Concentrate on personal matters today and get excellent results. Prove your devotion to loved one. Be more understanding.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Think over what your true aims are and then make a part in the right direction. Avoid taking risks at this time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY — he or she will be easy to raise and can get ahead in school and will be popular with others. There is much ability here and the education should be directed toward the arts for best results. Be sure to give ethical training.

TIPS FOR ENERGY SAVERS Building a Home Place your refrigerator in the coolest part of the kitchen, well away from the range and oven. Install the water heater as close as possible to areas of major use to minimize heat loss through the pipes. Insulate the pipes. If you live in a warm climate, remember that light-colored roofing can help keep houses cooler. Install windows you can open, so you can use natural or fan-forced ventilation in moderate weather. Drug raid jails 28

LOCKHART, Texas (AP) - Law officers here arrested 28 suspects in drug raids in 10 Central Texas counties. Joffices said the suspects were dealers in heroin, marijuana, Percodan and other drugs.

Twenty-five people were arrested in early morning raids Saturday in Caldwell County, and sheriff Dan Reed said, "As far as I know, it's the biggest bust that's ever been pulled in Caldwell County. I'm just tickled to death with the way it turned out."

In adjoining Gonzales County, a laborer, a truck driver and a fruit vendor were jailed on charges of delivery of marijuana, and their bond was set at $50,000 each.

The bond was high, said Caldwell County deputy Rod Roberts, "because these three are believed to be the mainline suppliers of marijuana to Luling and Lockhart."

Assisting Reed and his deputies were state narcotic agents, game wardens, park rangers, Lockhart police, District Attorney Jeffrey VanHorn and representatives of the Greater Austin Area Organized Crime Unit.

Quake insurance fails to sell

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - About 80 percent of Californians believe a major earthquake will strike their state within their lifetimes, but 95 percent of the state's homeowners bypass earthquake insurance, said the Insurance Information Services.

"If a home is owned by a native Californian, chances are it won't be earthquake-insured," said Thomas Flynn, a spokesman for Santa Ana-based Allstate Insurance Co., the third largest insurance writer in the state. "But if it's owned by an Easterner, the odds increase that it is earthquake insured."

The cost of a policy is only about $2 per $1,000 valuation, or $200 a year on a $100,000 home. The study was conducted recently by the trade association.

Sen. Hayakawa pulls out of race

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) - Sen. S.I. Hayakawa withdrew Saturday as a candidate for re-election, saying he couldn't campaign and perform his Senate duties as well.

His announcement stunned more than 1,000 delegates to the California Republican Party's annual convention here.

Hayakawa, 75, was running a weak fourth place in polls of GOP voters and his campaign had been plagued by disorganization.

His press aide, Sandra Conlan, said Hayakawa had discussed the "hard facts of life" with Senate leaders Wednesday and had talked with President Reagan on Thursday. But she added the senator felt he could have won the race.

His withdrawal still leaves seven major contenders for the Republican nomination - Reps. Barry Goldwater Jr., Pete McCloskey and Bob Dornan, San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson, state Sen. John Schmitz, Reagan's daughter, Maureen, and former Lear Corp. president Ted Bruinisma.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. is expected to be the Democratic candidate.

The senator's own supporters were taken by surprise at his announcement. State GOP chairman Tirso del Junco interrupted the regularly scheduled convention session to let Hayakawa deliver his speech.

Hayakawa had been scheduled to appear later in the day along with his rivals, and rumors that he might pull out started to spread as soon as it was announced that he would appear separately.

In a 20-minute speech, Hayakawa did not directly mention his poor standing in the polls, but he conceded that he was unable to both campaign and perform his duties in the Senate.

Japanese youths face tough times after returning home

TOKYO (AP) - The estimated 7,700 Japanese children who return each year from living abroad often find themselves misfits in their own country. Some are unable to communicate well enough in Japanese to enter the most competitive schools.

Criticized abroad as being clannish, the Japanese come here to discover that their foreign experience isolates them from neighbors, classmates and business associates - leading them to feel like aliens despite Japan's vigorous "internationalization" campaign.

Some 30,000 Japanese youngsters yearly live abroad with their families. Back home, they face educational and social barriers, largely brought about by limited language ability and differences in the way they think, scholars say.

One repatriated mother said her children came home from school in tears, upset at being called "foreigners" and laughed at by their classmates. Another said returnees "must discard their uniqueness" to be accepted.

Michiko Yawata, who returned with her husband and two children after three years in California, said, "The children lose their identity. It's sad because they grew up (in America) to be very individual and free. But once back in Japan you must disappear, lose yourself."

The problem is not confined to students. Entire families face sometimes difficult social adjustments on re-entry into Japan's homogeneous society, with its stress on group action and peer pressure, says Dr. Hiroshi Inamura, a psychiatrist and university professor.

Higher prices, lower salaries without overseas allowances and smaller living quarters in Japan contribute to the frustration, he said. A returning businessman must regain his colleagues' trust, drinking with them after work - which in turn strains the family relationship - while a wife may miss the personal interests she had while living abroad.

Abroad, "The way of thinking, expression is different," Inamura said in an interview. "The face is Japanese but the way of thinking is not. In Japanese companies cooperation is valued. Everyone works together. Japanese want to feel as if they share one heart."

Inamura noted that in Japan, a university degree largely determines the course of a person's life, employment, even marriage, and Japanese companies generally hire only graduates of Japanese universities.

Thus for returning students, school is especially hard. Written Japanese - with more than 2,000 characters in daily use - is often an obstacle to passing vital, and tough, entrance exams to prestigious universities that virtually guarantee employment security.

A steady rise in the number of Japanese going abroad has led scholars to question the fairness of the exam-oriented system which begins as early as grammar school. A few universities have revised entrance procedures; others have created special programs.

Worried that prolonged stays abroad hurt their children's chances to compete, some parents choose to live apart, keeping their children, especially sons, in school here.

"Usually parents who go abroad are intelligent, graduates of good universities, and want their children to enter the same level universities so they try to enroll them in good high schools," Inamura said. "But no matter how hard the child studies abroad, he is not prepared for the exams."

Anne Murase, a university lecturer, said, "It is a real problem for most of the families from the Foreign Ministry or big trading companies who are well-educated and socially aggressive. If the child does not get into a good university, it is a setback for the family."

Inamura said, "If the child goes through high school abroad, his life - university education, employment, marriage - becomes centered abroad. For the sake of internationalism, Japan should accept the returnees and learn from their viewpoint. Otherwise Japan cannot become international."

Last year, the Education Ministry said, about 13,800 students in 70 full-time, government-supported Japanese schools abroad studied subjects similar to those taught at home - in Japanese. Another 10,400 in 82 part-time schools were tutored in Japanese language, math, science and social studies after regular classes at local schools, and about 6,000 attended only local foreign schools and receive no instruction in Japanese.

The Education Ministry has no program to reorient returnees, leaving it to individual schools. A child may attend special classes available at some, or go directly into a regular classroom.

Inamura said the majority return to regular Japanese schools because they need the strict preparation for examinations.

Mrs. Murase, who met her husband while he was a graduate student abroad, said Japanese who have lived abroad actually may feel less stress because they "have seen two ways of doing things" and can reject pressures to conform.

Mrs. Yawata, whose two children returned to a neighborhood elementary school, said: "The experience of living abroad gave us confidence. If we could master English and do well in the American system, then we have the strength to do the same thing here."

IRS interest rates rise to 20 percent

DALLAS—Whether you plan to file your tax return early or wait until the April 15 deadline, payment penalty accrues at the rate of one half of 1 percent per month for a total of 26 percent in addition to the tax due.

This is especially good planning in light of the increase in the annual interest rate IRS charges on overdue tax bills to 20 percent. According to R.C. Vaskul, director of the Dallas District of the Internal Revenue Service, the annual interest rate charged on delinquent tax accounts and paid on overpayments rises from 12 percent to 20 percent effective Feb. 1. Hutton troubled over roles

NEW YORK (AP) - Timothy Hutton, gaining a reputation as a box office draw at 21, says some people confuse him with the roles he plays in his movies.

In "Ordinary People" he plays Conrad Jarrett, a suicidal high schooler. That's where his trouble began with his fans, he says in the current issue of People magazine.

"They'd come up in restaurants and say, 'Are you OK? Are you better now?'"

Now it's the movie "Taps" that is causing trouble. In it, he plays the leader of a group of military academy cadets who break out their weapons to stop authorities from closing the school.

He says students whose

Senate beginning work on 'new federalism'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is ready to begin work on President Reagan's plan for shifting dozens of federal programs to the states, but House Democratic leaders are taking a go-slow approach.

Reagan's "new federalism" proposal gets its first airing in Congress this week before the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, which begins a series of hearings on the subject on Thursday.

But while Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. claims the plan can be enacted this year, Democrats who run the House say otherwise.

"I don't think Congress is going to sit here and discuss new federalism all year," said Rep. Thomas S. Foley of Washington, the House Democratic whip.

"This is not a program the administration has put great emphasis on in terms of speed. It is unwise to rush into (such) basic reorganizations," Foley said he and other House leaders will find out how governors, mayors and state legislators view the plan before they do much with it in the House.

"If it's not supported by local officials, it won't fly in Congress," Foley said. "Congress is not going to preside over a shotgun marriage."

Reagan outlined the $47 billion plan in his State of the Union message last week to a joint session of Congress. More than 40 federal social programs — ranging from food stamps to child welfare — would be transferred to the states, along with revenue sources to pay for them.

In exchange, the federal government would take over Medicaid, a program of medical care for the needy which is now financed in part by the states.

Budget director David Stockman will be the leadoff witness at Thursday's Senate hearing.

Little floor activity is scheduled in either chamber of Congress this week, with lawmakers essentially marking time as they await the president's fiscal 1983 budget, to be submitted Feb. 8.

On Thursday, senators will vote on a motion that would prevent Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., from resuming his 1981 filibuster in support of school busing. He has been using delaying tactics against a proposal that would withdraw the Justice Department's right to go to court to have students bused for purposes of racial integration.

Meanwhile, tax-writing committees of both houses will hold hearings on legislative clarifications on denying tax exemptions to private schools that discriminate on the basis of race.

The Senate Finance Committee will open hearings Monday; the House Ways and Means Committee takes up the issue on Thursday.

Faith sustained him, Dozier says

VICENZA, Italy (AP) — Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier says he wasn't really worried during the six weeks the Red Brigades held him captive because he believed "the good Lord knows what he's doing."

"I've been in a number of situations where my physical existence was in danger, but I've always felt I had a special relationship with God," the 50-year-old Vietnam War veteran told the congregation Sunday at the U.S. Army chapel on the NATO base at Vicenza.

Dozier won the Silver Star and Bronze Star for heroism in Vietnam and got the Purple Heart for a shrapnel wound in the arm.

The 170 other Americans at the Protestant service stood and applauded when the chaplain, Maj. Robert Bendick of Allen Park, Mich., escorted Dozier, his wife, Judith, and their daughter, Cheryl, into the chapel. Dozier was wearing a blue-gray tweed suit with vest.

In a seven-minute talk at the end of the service, the general said he prayed during his captivity for himself, his wife and children and for the Italian authorities searching for him.

"I prayed that both Judy and I could maintain a proper perspective during this time," he said. "It was easy for me. I knew what was happening to me. But Judy did not, and many conflicting reports published about me offered her little help."

The Red Brigades kidnapped Dozier from his apartment in Verona on Dec. 17 and held in an apartment in Padua until police rescued him Thursday and arrested five of his captors. A base spokesman said the Italian police would be questioning him for a few more days.

"The general is responding very accurately, providing every minute detail of what he saw, felt and sensed," said the spokesman, Lt. Col. Jack Barham.

Barham confirmed that the general was kept blindfolded most of the time and spoke only English with his captors. He told investigators earlier he was "fed sufficiently" and was not mistreated physically.

On Friday, police arrested 18 more people suspected of being Red Brigades members in the Venice area. Another suspect was arrested in Florence Sunday.

TIPS FOR ENERGY SAVERS

How to Save Electricity Before It Comes To You

During late afternoon and early evening hours, the load on the nation's electrical systems usually reaches its peak. To meet the heavy demand, electric utilities often must use back-up generating equipment that is not energy efficient.

Try to use energy-intensive appliances such as dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers, and electric ovens in the early morning or late evening hours to help reduce that peak load.

This energy-saving tip is brought to you by the classified advertising department in the interest of energy conservation.
