Rape trial

dismissed The attempted aggravated rape trial of Jimmie Padilla Yanez was dismissed today after the prosecution's witness, a minor, refused to testify.

District Attorney Rick Hamby said the victim had cooperated with the grand jury and in trial preparation but now would not talk to him or state District Judge Jim Gregg. "We wasted our time with the grand

"We wasted our time with the grand jury and (we wasted) money. The victim's backing out is becoming more pervasive. We could have spent time with a victim wanting justice," Hamby commented this morning.

The victim, Hamby said, signed a statement that said she wanted the case dismissed. Yanez was to be tried in the state's 118th District Court.

Building in '82 on schedule

Building construction in Big Spring in 1982 has started off at the same pace as it did in 1981, some recently released city statistics reveal.

Figures for construction activity in Big Spring during the month of January were released by Chief Inspector Dewey Byers.

Twenty-three permits to carry out construction projects in the city throughout January were issued the same number as were issued in January 1981.

The city collected $716 in fees for the permits, compared with $810 for the permits issued in the first month of 1981.

Total value of construction activity was down, also: estimated construction costs for January 1982 were set at $234,893 while a year ago the figure was $261,975, figure was $261,975, Shops at the Big Spring Mall continued to take up much of the permit activity, with seven permits issued to open shops or put up signs at the mall. The grand opening for the mall is set for next month.

Residential construction slumped during January and no permits were issued to build new homes, according to Byers' report.

Byers' figures also show that one

32 killed in hotel blaze

TOKYO (AP) - A fire raced through the two top floors of the 10-story Hotel New Japan in central Tokyo early today, killing 32 people and seriously injuring more than two dozen others.

A number of foreigners were among the victims, including an American woman who was badly hurt when she jumped four floors and a San Francisco man hospitalized with smoke inhalation. Some 50 other Americans from Hawaii escaped unhurt.

Officials said there were no sprinklers on the upper floors of the 500-room hotel in the busy Akasaka nightclub district. A new sprinkler system was being installed, but the work was not completed on the top floors, the president of the hotel, Hideki Yokoi, told reporters.

floors, the president of the hotel, Hideki Yokoi, told reporters. Fire officials also said the hotel was built with hollow spaces in the walls between rooms. The fire code now requires fireproof blocks which might have impeded the spread of the flames, they said. Officials said at least three people jumped to their deaths. One guest, Donald Ross McGhee of Melbourne, Australia, said he saw a man clinging to a sheet dangling from a 9th floor window. "Finally the flames got to him and he dropped," said McGhee. "It was extremely hard to breathe and the situation was near panic," said McGhee's son Andrew, 25. "People were falling down the stairs of the fire

"People were falling down the stairs of the fire escape." Most of the deaths were from asphysiation, officials said.

It was the second highest death toll in a Japanese hotel fire since World War II. A fire in the resort town of Kawaji in November 1980 killed 45 people.

Fire officials said more than 60 people were injured, six died in the hospital, 33 others were kept in the hospital, and the rest were treated and released.

One of the injured was Sharon Poff, 33, the wife of a U.S. Air Force officer stationed in Okinawa, who broke her pelvis and both arms when she jumped from a ninth-floor window and hit the roof of the fourth or fifth floor. She was in Tokyo to attend a computer training course.

Missing priest is found slain

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — The month-long search for a missing Roman Catholic priest has apparently ended with the discovery of a decomposed body covered with brush on a farm in Mexico, a pathologist said. The body, which had a bullet in its skull, was thought to be that of the Rev.

The body, which had a bullet in its skull, was thought to be that of the Rev. Simon Thomas Flores, 44, from Christ the King Church in Corpus Christi, Dr. Francisco Gonzalez said Sunday.

He examined the body after it was found Saturday on a tenant farm near the border city of Nuevo Laredo, Mexico.

 $``\mbox{All the signs of identification correspond to those of the priest,'' Gonzalez said.$

Flores, a native of Victoria, had arrived here Jan. 7 for conferences at San Francisco Xavier Church, where he left his car and personal belongings.

He was last seen at 4 p.m., Jan. 8, when he said he was going for a walk, police said. Authorities conducted a door-to-door-search and had dragged the Rio Grande, but found no trace of the missing priest until the grisly discovery made Saturday by farmers cutting brush.

"The body was partially decomposed and partly eaten by animals," the doctor said. However, he added, physical traits matched those of Flores.

"The height, the color of the hair, the appearance of the face ... as far as I can say, it corresponds to the priest," Gonzalez said.

The pathologist also said that a positive identification could not be made until dental records were checked.

"False teeth in front were sent to a dentist in Corpus Christi. To make it official, you have to  $n_{a,c}$  something like the impressions," Flores said.

The medical examiner said the victim had a head wound, but, because of the decomposition, he could not determine whether that was the cause of death. "We found a bullet wound on the back of the head on the left side." he said.

The bullet was found inside. It looked like a .38 (caliber)."

"However, we have no positive finding (because) the body was almost entirely decomposed in the thorax and abdomen," he said.

Council matters due for final vote

By BILL ELDER Staff Writer

Several items of business will go before the Big Spring City Council for a final vote when the council meets tomorrow at 6:30 p.m.

A resolution giving notice of the city's intent to sell $1.1 million worth of bonds will be voted on. The proceeds from the bond sale will enable the city to begin construction of new hangars and terminal facilities at Big Spring Airport. The Howard County Industrial Foundation agreed to finance construction of

The Howard County Industrial Foundation agreed to finance construction of the first hangar with the stipulation that the city buy the hangar upon completion. Up for a final vote by the council tomorrow night is a resolution authorizing the mayor to sign an agreement with the foundation which will enable the foundation to go ahead and carry out the construction.

Also up for a final vote: a new contract with the Colorado River Municipal Water District. The contract contains higher delivery rates for water delivered to the member cities of the district. The new rates aren't expected to make any appreciable difference on the cities' water costs, according to district spokesman Joe Pickle, since the district is lowering the cities' fixed monthly charges (which are set regardless of consumption) at the same time it hikes

The other hospitalized American was identified as Malcolm Kravit, 33, of San Francisco, who was suffering from smoke inhalation.

Lines are drawn for budget battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite administration assertions that President Reagan's new budget is essential for economic recovery, leaders of both parties are suggesting Congress will rewrite it to lower the huge deficits in the president's version.

The $757.6 billion 1983 spending plan formally going to Congress today projects record deficits of $98.6 billion this year and $91.5 billion for the 1983 fiscal year that starts Oct. 1.

To hold deficits to those predictions, Reagan is recommending an additional $2.4 billion in budget cuts this year and about $56 billion in savings for 1963, including cuts of $27 billion in domestic programs.

Top administration officials attempted Sunday to cool criticism of the plan by arguing that major changes in the president's budget would further damage the nation's reeling economy.

Related stories, page 4A

Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III said enacting the spending cuts, reducing government benefits programs, closing tax "loopholes" and imposing the user fees that Reagan wants "will raise the confidence of investors which will ultimately work to bring down the interest rates."

Budget director David A. Stockman went further, declaring "these huge budget savings are necessary, essential to keep the economic recovery program moving forward."

But initial reaction to the new budget on Capitol Hill was less than enthusiastic — from members of both parties.

"There's a little 'Alice in wonderland' view to this budget," said Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee. "I think the task for Congress is to honestly face reality." Jones added that studying the projections in Reagan's budget "you see no credible path for getting those deficits down. You see no credible program to take pressure off interest rates. You see no real letup in the deadening of long-term borrowing."

Consequently, "I don't see any economic recovery" with the president's program, Jones said.

Senior Republicans in the House and Senate agreed that fights are virtually certain over each of the major elements of Reagan's budget — deep, new cuts in social programs such as food stamps and education; another large increase for the Pentagon; the rejection of new taxes; and the huge deficits.

Cockfighting raid nets 49 persons

PEARLAND, Texas (AP) — Law officers arrested 49 people in a raid on a stable where cockfighting matches were being held, including one man who was charged with attempted capital murder, officials said.

Jose Garza, 25, faces one count of attempted capital murder of a police officer, Brazoria County officials said after the Sunday night raid in this town southwest of Houston.

Officers found 17 fighting cocks, six of them dead, said Lt. Guy Clark of the Harris County constable's office. Officers from that department joined Pearland police in the raid.

Rudy Mendiola, 21, and Roberto Quintero, 37, were charged with cruelty to animals, a misdemeanor which carries a maximum penalty of a year in jail and a $2,000 fine. John Esterda, 31, was charged with evading arrest.

Clark said 45 others were charged with misdemeanor gaming.

Officers confiscated a .25-caliber automatic pistol, a 10-gauge shotgun, 20 knives, six cages, 17 razor-edged spurs which were tied to the birds' legs when they fought, small amounts of marijuana and packages of an unidentified white substance, Clark said

The council also will put to a final vote an ordinance calling for the April 3 city elections.

Other business includes consideration of installing some road signs and a session closed to the public in which the council will discuss legal matters.

The council conducts its business in room 205 of Big Spring City Hall, Fourth and Nolan.

Patrolman Investigator Ray Meek was involved in a chase with a man on a black motorcycle about 3:40 p.m. Sunday.

Meek said in a report that he observed the motorcycle on Alyford Street. When he turned on his lights and siren, the motorcycle sped up, and Meek gave chase.

The officer said he found the motorcycle lying on its side under a bush at a house in the 900 block of Aylford. The report shows the motor was hot and gas was spilling out of the tank.

There was no sign of the rider and the motorcycle was impounded, according to police reports.

Budget

"The president's budget will be difficult to pass in its entirety," said House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois.

"I don't believe anybody realistically believes that we're going to accomplish everything the president suggests," said Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

However, Stockman insisted that when "Congress looks at the hard, stark choices available, they will understand very quickly that unless measures of, the magnitude that we have proposed ... are adopted that then there could well be a severe threat to the economic recovery" and "to the financial markets.'

He also said, "It would be dangerous to tamper in any substantive way with the defense buildup we have underway.'' Reagan has proposed a $33 billion increase in Pentagon spending for 1983 - a rise of 18 percent.

But Jones said the political climate "is substantially different" in this election-year.

Jones predicted that with the problems both Democrats and Republicans are having with Reagan's budget proposals, "There is a possibility later this spring that leaders of both parties can get together to rewirite this budget in such a way that it meets the economic problems....I think that's probably what it's going to take.'

don't be spooked by the deficit," Kemp said. But support for Reagan's recommendations has been sparse, even among his congressional allies. Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska, the deputy Republican leader, expressed the feelings of a number of his colleagues. "I was just sort of in a state of shock as I listened" to a briefing on the president's budget on Friday, he said. Stockman said the predicted 1982 deficit is about $50 billion higher than first forecast because of the recession and a an inflation rate falling more quickly than expected, cutting tax revenues. He also insisted the administration has not abandoned its goal of a balanced budget, although administration figures now indicate deficits of at least $50 billion through 1987.

Publisher, former ambassador Whitney dies, age John W. 77

MANHASSET, N.Y. (AP) - John Hay Whitney, the scion of a fabulously wealthy and distinguished family and one-time ambassador to Britain, died today at North Shore Hospital after an extended illness. He was 77.

Known as "Jock," Whitney was an international polo player in the 1920s, a movie producer in the '30s and '40s with partner David O. Selznick, and a diplomat in the '50s as President Eisenhower's ambassador to the Court of St. James's, and in the '60s the founder and board chairman of Whitney Communications Corp., an empire that had as it flagship the New York Herald Tribune.

A graduate of Groton, Yale, and Oxford, Whitney was one of the few men who could boast two grandfathers who had been presidential cabinet members. His mother's father, John Hay, was personal secretary and biographer of Abraham Lincoln and later secretary of state under Presidents McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt.

Clements challenger will run alow-budget campaign

By DANA PALMER

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN—In some ways, Lowell D. "Duke" Embs and Gov. Bill Clements have quite a lot in common.

Both are Republicans, with a good measure of political ambition. Both drive Lincoln Continentals. Both have built up their own businesses -Clements in oil and Embs in insurance. Both think Clements is doing a good job as governor. And, it seems, both want the governorship.

Recently, Embs paid his $1,500 filing fee and became Gov. Clements' lone opponent in the May 1 Republican primary. "I've got no problem with Bill Clements," he said in a telephone interview from his home in San Antonio. "I think he's doing an excellent job."

But, he added, competition is always healthy.

"Clements had competition in his oil business - good competition, cutthroat competition," Embs said. "So, I thought he could use a little competition for governor."

The independent insurance agent, however, already is suffering from that political disorder sometimes known as the What's-his-name Syndrome.

It's an ailment that often afflicts lesser-known candidates who spend a lot of time answering two questions: 'What was your name again?" and "Are you a serious candidate?"

With good humor, the 52-year-old Embs swears he's a serious "word-ofmouth" candidate whm simply doesn't have the money to compete on Clements' level.

"I'm not a wealthy guy," he said, underscoring that with several points: He sold an extra typewriter to a friend to make sure he had enough money to cover the $1,500 filing fee.

He plans to conduct his campaign from his insurance office - the converted garage of his home - and from his 1967 Lincoln Continental convertible

Despite the low-budget campaign plans, he said, "I'm going to give it my best shot.' But, he quickly added, "I'm not

The Chicago native and former Navy pilot said he has no specific campaign platform, but will try to give his views on any topic that might be raised by the voters.

He has expressed concern about a strong military and what he sees as the state's poorly run mental health facilities

To run against Clements was a spurof-the-moment thing that occurred to him while listening to a President Reagan press conference on his car radio

He vowed to become more involved in politics, toyed with the idea of running for the legislature, but settled on the governorship.

"One has a $400 filing fee and the other has $1,500," Embs said. "I said, Well, it's my money. I can spend it any way I want.' It really happened about like that."

Despite the seemingly haphazard approach, Embs emphasized, "I've got some political experience.

Texans may choose form independents

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)— Texas voters will have a chance next Nov. 1 to select political candidates not chosen in the Texas Democratic and Republican primaries.

It isn't easy, but it is possible. State laws say the general election ballot must provide space for qualified independent candidates, for can-didates selected by political parties that do not hold primaries and for write-in candidates.

Although the vast majority of candidates on the ballot will be Democratic and Republican, there's always room for voters who want a third choice.

In the 1978 gubernatorial race, 14,213 votes were cast for a Raza Unida candidate, 4,624 for a Socialist Worker candidate and 115 write-ins for governor. In the 1980 presidential election, which did not include voting for governor, there were 111,613 votes for in-dependent John Anderson, plus 37,643 for a Libertarian and 529 write-ins for president.

This year, application has been made for at least one statewide independent candidate.

Lawrence Sims of Houston served notice before the Feb. 1 deadline that he will attempt to be an independent candidate for the U.S. Senate post now held by Lloyd Bentsen, Democrat.

However, in order to finish his qualification as a candidate, Sims will have to present later, after the primary elections, petitions containing almost 24,000 names of voters who did not vote Democratic or Republican.

Gale Warner, Arlington, served notice of an attempt to be an independent candidate from the new 26th Congressional District. That also will require a petition for completion.

So far, the Libertarian Party is the only party not holding party primaries to serve notice it will select candidates for the general election by the convention method.

State law says any party receiving less than 20 percent of the vote in a gubernatorial election must in the next election select nominees by convention and not by primaries.

The Libertarian Party announced in January it would pick its candidates, including an unidentified person for governor, through the convention system. The first local Libertarian conventions will be May 1, the same day that Democrats and Republicans are holding their primary elections and precinct conventions. District conventions will be on May 15 and the June 12 state convention will pick the state Libertarian candidates for the general election ballot. Libertarians will gather signatures on petitions of all attending their conventions and if they do not have the required 24,000, will have to search for voters who did not take part in the Democratic and Republican primaries.

Haig says Polish situation has doomed Helsinki Accords

MADRID, Spain (AP) - Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. says the Soviet-backed repression in Poland may have doomed the 1975 Helsinki Accords and the spirit of East-West cooperation they were supposed to herald. "It is absolutely essential that the signatories to the Helsinki Pact view the situation in Poland as a fundamental and perhaps fatal threat to the entire Helsinki process," Haig said on his arrival in Madrid Sunday night. Haig is setting the stage for the United States and its allies to confront the Soviet Union, Poland and the other Soviet Bloc nations when the follow-up meeting to the Helsinki Conference resumes Tuesday after a six-week recess

The 35 signers of the Helsinki Accords have been meeting in Madrid for 17 months to review compliance with the 1975 agreements committing them to respect human rights and national sovereignty. The United States and its allies decided to denounce the martial-law crack down in Poland when the meeting resumes, and the foreign ministers of all 15 members of the North Atlantic Alliance are attending to given the denunciation maximum effect.

The Soviet Union and its allies will be represented by officials of lesser rank, and the head of the Soviet delegation, Deputy Foreign Minister Leonid Ilyichev, told reporters Sunday he would oppose any discussion of events in Poland. He didn't reply when asked what he might do.

Haig said on his arrival it is important that "all the signatory states reaffirm their adherence to the spirit and letter of the Final Act of Helsinki and from this moment forward dedicate themselves to the implementation and obligations incurred at that time."

A senior U.S. official told reporters during the flight from Washington that "the future viability of the Helsinki process...is at stake.'

"This conference cannot be conducted as business as usual when the bedrock of the whole process itself has been challenged," he added, insisting on anonymity.

Haig planned to speak Tuesday, when by coincidence, Polish Deputy Foreign Minister Josef Wiejaz will be presiding. U.S. officials speculated he might attempt a filibuster or some other procedural blocking tactic. They said if he did, Haig might lead a walkout.

Haig was meeting today with Spanish Foreign Minister Jose Pedro Perez Llorca to discuss extension of the agreement under which the United States maintains about 10,000 troops at the Torreion Air Base outside Madrid, the Zaragoza Air Base in northeast Spain and the Rota Naval Base in southern Spain

There are not as many complications for write-in candiates. All a write-in candidate has to do to qualify is announce the day before absentee voting begins - Oct. 12 this year. Candidates for jobs involving a single county will file with the county clerk and those for multi-county or statewide jobs file with the Secretary of State.

Of course, the write-in candidate's name will not appear on the ballot. It will be up to him and his friends to advertise and get the word spread that he is available as a candidate

"In a rather quiet way, in a fashion that at best fudges on the rules, the Agriculture Department, at the behest of the State Department, repaid $71 million in interest," Rep. Jerry Lewis, R-Calif., said last week.

"During the last few months, the Reagan administration has been applying pressure against the Polish regime," said Lewis, a member of the House Appropriations Committee. "Now we hear that the State Department is making it easier for the Soviet bloc to finance repression.

Lewis plans to take his case before the full House Tuesday during debate on legislation to replenish the depleted Commodity Credit Corp. fund with $5 billion. The fund is used to cover price support and other cinds of loans

Agriculture Secretary John Block says the fund will run dry before month's end, meaning there would be no federal money for the commodity support loans

The depressed prices of the past year, prompted by the record 1981 crops, have cause a run on the fund, Block said.

The argument over federal payment of the interest centers on the fact that the recent repayment came even though the loan in question had not been declared in default. Such a move, Lewis claims, effectively exempts the banks from any risk in originally agreeing to make the loans.

With more than $400 million in similar interest payments coming due before the end of this year. Lewis says the government must have a policy of making no guaranteed-loan payments until the loans are formally defaulted on.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., has said that not forcing the loans into default means Poland and its backer, the Soviet Union, are still legally liable to repay them.

Congress also gets a a few days to start going over President Reagan's 1983 budget before it leaves Friday for a one-week Washington's Birthday break.

Unwed 17-year-old leaves child behind

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) - Brian will never know his mother, but he will know her sacrifice. Susan Cummings, unwed and a former runaway and drug addict, had terminal cancer and knew if she had her baby, it would hasten her death

"She was very much aware the baby would shorten her life," said her father, Bernie Cummings, told the Brockton Enterprise in  $\varepsilon$ story published Sunday. "But she got a chance to see him, that's what kept her alive.

"You couldn't put into words the struggle she went through. I think she left Brian as a piece of herself," Cummings said.

Brian was born prematurely on Nov. 25, weighing barely three pounds and addicted to the morphine that deadened his mother's pair during her final days. Susan died Jan. 30.

Cummings, 42, and his wife, Marilyn, 39 — the parents of four other children — have custody of Brian. They plan to care for him until Brian's father, a 17-year-old high school senior in Brockton, can assume that responsibility himself

Although opposed to Susan's pregnancy at first, Cummings said he has had a change of heart and added: "How many other parents get a second chance to raise a child?"

Susan was suffering from a tumor in her abdomen and learned two years ago the disease was terminal. To have the child, she abandoned chemotherapy, hastening her death, Cummings said

Brian is no longer addicted but he is still in Boston's Children's Hospital, plagued with Hyaline membrane - the disease that killed a child of President John F. Kennedy - and living from one day to the next.

"He probably won't be out (of the hospital) for a while," Cummings said.

Like other premature babies, Brian doesn't have fully developed lungs. "Up until eight hours before Susan died, he was breathing through tubes. But then the tubes came out and he was breathing without them," Cummings said.

The baby is in an incubator, but now breathes on his own.

The father - also named Brian - met Susan two years ago and knew she was dying of cancer.

"He's kind of special himself," Cummings said Sunday of the youth. "How many kids 16 or 17 would stick by a girl that was pregnant and dying of cancer?

Cummings declined to further identify the father.

"I don't want to embarrass him or his family," he said. "He's still living in Brockton and his parents know the circumstances.

"I missed my kids the first five years because of my alcoholism," said Cummings, who has been treated for the disease for the last 12 years. "I don't want to take his responsibility, I want him to have a chance to raise and nurture (his son)

The Reagan budget

Defense spending explosive

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan says his $221.1 billion budget request for America's armed forces is vitally needed "to restore our margin of safety and counter the Soviet military buildup.

However, Reagan's record $33.1 billion increase for defense in fiscal 1983 is expected to encounter rough sailing in Congress, where even fellow Republicans have been grumbling about the political cost of deep slashes in domestic programs.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, strongly hinted that at least some defense cuts may be looming on Capitol Hill. He noted that "when we're asked to make further reductions in food stamps and Medicaid and nutrition programs plus lower the deficit ... it almost forces us to look at the big item - and that's defense.

"So I think you're going to find a number of us who supported the president down the line on defense spending (last year) taking a hard look and trying to find ways to reduce that budget figure," Dole said.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., an advocate of cost-trimming and reform in the U.S. military structure, charged that the Reagan administration was seeking drastic boosts in spending "with an almost mindless rush

Traveling in Saudi Arabia, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Sunday that the proposal contains only "vitally needed expenditures" and that any cuts by Congress "would mean reductions in our strength."

And in his budget message, the president showed no signs that he is ready to retreat from his huge defense program.

The president bluntly predicted that "real defense spending will rise rapidly in the next several years," and the defense share of the federal budget will climb steadily "to a level of $356 billion within five years."

Reagan called for a $23.1 billion strategic weapons program in 1983 to strengthen America's nuclear arsenal. This would involve starting work on two additional giant Trident missile-firing submarines, as well as pressing ahead with development of the B-1B bomber and landbased MX missile

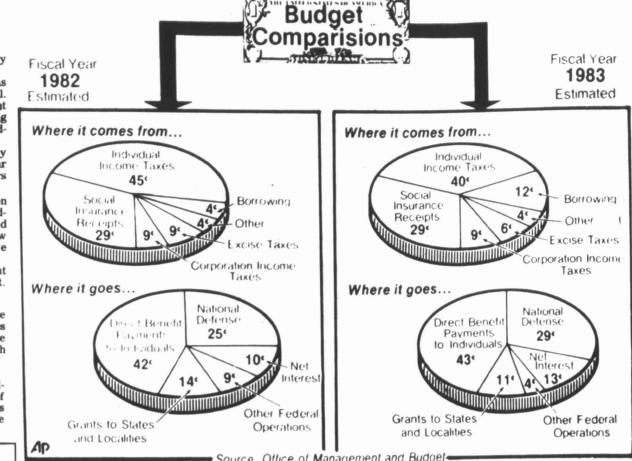

Also, Reagan's budget charted a mammoth new Navy shipbuilding program totaling $18.6 billion for next year alone - to include two aircraft carriers, three cruisers and two attack submarines, all nuclear-powered

Another area considered likely to draw close scrutiny on Capitol Hill deals with chemical warfare. The administration requested $377 million for research and development, troop protective gear and production of new chemical artillery shells and bombs containing nerve agents

Reagan's request contemplates Defense Department spending of $215.9 billion in the fiscal year beginning Oct.

When nuclear weapons programs conducted by the Energy Department are added, the defense total reaches $221.1 billion for 1983, an 18 percent increase over the current year. The total figure accounts for 29 cents of each federal budget dollar.

Reagan and Weinberger blamed previous administrations dating back to 1975 — especially that of Jimmy Carter — for what they claimed has been a serious deterioration of American military power while the advisers' urgings to seek higher taxes and cuts in his Pentagon budget billion a year because Congress is certain to reject some, if not most, of the administration's $56 billion package of budget savings for 1983. Without the savings, deficits would swell to $147 billion in 1983 and $167 billion in 1984.

State treasurer is investigated

DALLAS (AP) - A banker has reportedly told grand jurors in Austin that Texas Treasurer Warren G. Harding. used the promise of state deposits as an incentive for banks to buy bonds from his son, The Dallas Morning News has reported.

In a copyright story Sunday, the newspaper's Austin bureau reported the Travis County grand jury was in-vestigating whether Harding used his control over large deposits of state funds to pressure banks to do business with his 33-year-old son, W. Glenn Harding, a bond salesman.

Harding and his son have refused to comment on the investigation of the elder Harding's office. However, Harding's lawyer, Richard Banks, said it was "absolutely untrue" that the treasurer forced banks to deal with his

He was unopposed until news of the grand jury probe broke four days before the primary filing deadline. On the tast day for filing, three Republicans and one Democrat filed to run for treasurer.

The grand jury has subpoenaed 13 people and various records, including those in a filing cabinet investigators took from Harding's office during an unannounced visit last month.

The grand jury has subpoenaed records from Rauscher. Pierce, Refsnes Inc., an Austin firm where the younger Harding sells municipal and non-governmental bonds, the newspaper reported.

Those records are being checked against treasury department records of state deposits in banks doing business with the treasurer's son, who was subpoenaed and testified before the grand jury last Tuesday, The Dallas Morning News reported. The newspaper reported that the public integrity unit of the district attorney's office learned last fall of bankers' complaints of pressure from Harding.

The state has $2.2 billion on deposit in more than 1,400 banks in Texas, with deposit amounts ranging up to tens of millions of dollars in large banks.

DALLAS, Texas (AP) — Ben Rogers Lee talks turkey. In fact, he talks the language of the gobblers so well people seek him out to learn his secrets.

But Lee says it's no secret. It's all in having the right equipment combined with a certain element of style.

The 37-year-old Alabaman will outfit any enterprising hunter with the right equipment — a variety of custom-made turkey callers — but it's up to the hunter to develop style.

Lee, a self-professed redneck from Coffeeville, Ala., has built a business out of his talent for fooling turkeys. He quit a job as a custodian at a chemical plant seven years ago to hit the streets with his wares.

At a recent gun show in Dallas, Lee told of how he got started in his own business and demonstrated his unusual talent for turkey talk.

'I always worked the night shift so I had days to go hunting a build my calls. I used to give them away. My wife and I made them on our kitchen table.

"But it just got to where, with all the word-of-mouth advertising, I was getting so many letters and calls from people wanting them, I just had to start charging and go into it full time," he explains.

Lee has won many big turkey-calling contests and serves as judge for some of them. He's a performer that promoters use as a drawing card for gun shows and other events.

"I think that anything you do, you want to put the en-tertainment in it," he says. Hunters flock to seminars and demonstrations to hear

Lee putt, gobble, keek and click his way through the entire turkey vocabulary.

He tells his audiences, "A man that's going to turkey hunt needs two things. He needs a real good wife, or he's going to lose her, and he needs one heck of a good job or a good foreman, because it's a disease. Once you start turkey hunting, you're going to do it until you die." Lee suggests to the would be turkey hunter the fallacy of believing that the big birds would be easier game to snare than, say, a dove or quail. "There's no way I can put in words how good a turkey's eyes is," he says. "A turkey's eyes is set on the side of his head in such an angle he can walk up behind a oak tree two foot thick and he can see on both sides of it. I don't know how ... his eyes is set to where he can see just as good backwards as he can forwards," Lee says.

SHOP

FIRST

CALL OF THE WILD-Turkey call manufacturer Ben Rogers Lee demonstrates a turkey call he made from a pill bottle during his visit to a gun show in Irving in January. He promotes and sells the calls manufactured in Coffeeville, Alabama.

And there's more to turkey calling than meets the eye - or ear, according to the expert. Turkeys make different sounds for different reasons, Lee says. A hen makes a lost call when she's separated from the flock. Or there's the satisfied sound she makes when she's feeding. Most important for hunters, however, is the mating sound a hen makes when she's looking for a tom, Lee said. That can drive a tom turkey into a frenzy and a hunter who masters the sound may have to shoot in self-defense, he added.

Last year, Lee made $250,000 from selling turkey callers, how-to books, tapes and records. But he says he plows all but $8,000 of that back into his business, Lee Calls Inc.

His prices range from $4 for a simple mouth caller, a thin rubber reed and aluminum frame that fits into a hunter's mouth, to $29.95 for a Double Gobble Box caller

Echoes of Vietnam

The Vietnam experience hovers over the U.S. role in El Salvador. The Reagan Administration's support of the militarycivilian government there against Cuban-backed guerrillas is being called an attempt to lead the country into a "quagmire."

The criticism stems from recent reports that government forces have killed civilians, including women and children. The killings, if true, are deplorable.

BUT PUTTING THE WORST face on the situation, the U.S. is confronted with a choice between the lesser of two evils, much as it was in Vietnam.

Should it withdraw support from a friendly government that, whatever its faults, almost certainly will be less repressive and brutal than what can be expected from one backed by Fidel Castro?

One of the results of Vietnam, largely ignored, is what happened to the civilian populations of Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos after the U.S. pulled out.

The slaughter of innocents under the Communists has been nothing less than wholesale.

El Salvador once again confronts the U.S. with choices that are not clearcut. Again, the opportunity to back a 20th Century democracy along American lines is simply not available.

THE CHOICE, as it usually is, is between the lesser of two evils. In El Salvador a true civil war rages. Civilians are participating. It is not a nice clean contest between two uniformed armies.

No one suggests the U.S. should condone the killing of innocents. But the alternative, which history shows will result in the deaths of far more people, should be kept in mind.

Roll call 7:03 a.m.

Every week the above words begin one of the most critically acclaimed television shows in the history of the warm, glowing box. "Hill Street Blues" comes into my living room on Thursday nights with its myriad of funny, sad, despicable and heroic characters and their efforts to survive in a crime-infested ghetto called the

For me, the show is a breath of fresh air in the stale, polluted wasteland of television entertainment. I mean let's face it, the sit-coms and overblown melodramatic night-time soap operas are hardly quality viewing.

And there is Captain Frank Furillo and Joyce Davenport, an attorney, who are romantically involved, but amazingly keep their personal lives separate from their professional ones.

Democratic Party strategy

WASHINGTON - The makings of a winning strategy for the Democratic Party emerged last week from a private meeting just outside Washington. The strategy features accelerated tax cuts this year, and a deferment of tax cuts next year, in return for an easing of credit by the Federal Reserve Board

The package not only addresses the country's major domestic problems recession, unemployment, budget deficits, high interest rates and inflation. It also unites liberal and conservative Democrats. It is suggestive that the meeting included both former Vice President Fritz Mondale, an undoubted Democratic liberal, and Congressman James Jones of Oklahoma, a conservative who heads the House Budget Committee

The meeting took place last Friday and Saturday at the Wye Plantation, a conference center on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. It was organized by Dorman Commons, the head of the Natomas Oil Co. in San Francisco, and a major giver to the Democratic Party. Charles Manatt. the chairman of the Democratic Party, was there. So were two Democratic business leaders - Irving Shapiro, the former head of duPont, and Felix Rohatyn, the New York financier. The economists included Robert Solow, of MIT; Otto Eckstein, of Harvard; James Tobin and Richard Cooper of Yale; and Joseph Pechman, George Perry and Charles Schultze of the Brookings Institution Discussion was general, and there were no formal recommendations But Prof. Solow stated explicitly the tactic of tax acceleration, tax deferment and a bargain with the Fed. There was a widespread feeling that it met the principal problems in a coherent way.

Recession and unemployment head the list. The economists agreed that both are apt to deepen seriously very soon - with unemployment rising to 10 percent or more.

STIMULUS, IT WAS argued, is the immediate requirement. To that end, an acceleration of the three-year tax cut enacted last year was favored. Specifically, the cuts due to take effect on July 1 would be made applicable as of January 1 or March 15. That would put into the hands of consumers something like $15 billion extra this year. A stronger recovery and more limited unemployment would thus be fostered

Budget deficits are the next problem on the line. The Democratic economists foresee huge shortfalls over $150 billion for 1983, and maybe close to $200 billion for 1984. Recovery from the recession will be badly compromised, the Democratic economists believe, by the huge deficit in 1983. For one thing, the Furthermore, investors see that the Fed is hooked to its present policy, and assume that interest rates will hang high. They see recovery being aborted. So they hold back on in-vestment, thus fulfilling their own prophecy of weak recovery.

A deferment of the 1983 tax cut would bring about $35 billion into the Treasury. Add to that some of the tax increases already proposed by the administration (about $20 billion) plus some of the expenditure cuts, and maybe some reduction in defense spending, and the 1983 deficit comes way down.

A bargain with the Federal Reserve Board comes into view once the deficit is under control. A that point the leaders of the Fed would have much less reason to worry about reigniting inflation. They could at least think again about adjusting their iron commitment to reducing money supply. Once off that hook, the Fed could, either by explicit agreement or by an implicit understanding, ease up on interest rates, and thus promote a healthy recovery. A healthy recovery, in turn, would cause tax revenues to soar, and make it possible to leave the 1984 tax cut in place.

NO DOUBT, the strategy is easier to

Billy Graham

Bad habits

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have a lot of habits that I suppose are bad for me, but I admit that I enjoy them. If I become a Christian, do you think God will make me give up these things?-B.F

DEAR B.F .: Yes, God's will might well be that you give up these habits. You do not indicate what they are, but if they are things which are not helpful to you and in fact hurt you, they do not honor God and should not be a part of your life.

Let me be clear about one thing: when you come to Jesus Christ, you are in effect asking him to take control of your life and be your Lord. You are acknowledging that you need help, and he alone can help you. The call of Christ is a call to follow him, and that means we must be willing to turn our backs on ways of living that are not pleasing to him and allow him to direct us and change us. Jesus said bluntly, "If anyone would come after me. he must deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow me" (Luke 9:23)

But before you turn away from Christ and decide you want to keep on living without him, I want you to consider several very important questions. First, are you sure these habits will give you happiness and peace in the years ahead? Look around you. Everywhere you will find people who have given themselves to all kinds of habits and pleasures - but they have come to the end of the road and discovered they are empty and unhappy. What makes you think you will be the exception?

Also, I have to tell you frankly that turning your back on Christ will not only harm you in this life but will have eternal consequences as well. Some day you will die and go into eternity. What are a few years of socalled pleasure here worth, when compared with an eternity separated from God? Jesus said, "What good is it for a man to gain the whole world, and yet lose or forfeit his very self?" (Luke 9:25)

Christ came to give you life - far greater than anything you will ever find without him. He loved you so much that he was willing to give his life on the cross for you so you could be saved. Let Christ come into your life now, and you will find he alone will give you lasting happiness.

THESE GUYS AREN'T Starsky and Hutch types. Their suspects don't become docile when the 'hear officers' shout ''freeze turkey.'' The officers' cases get thrown out of courts for failing to inform a suspect of his rights. The cops on the Hill aren't clean-cut All-American types either. In fact, most of them look like criminals themselves.

The characters' lives are rich in action and drama from the time they drag themselves into the crumbling precinct station for early morning roll call to the time they wearily trudge home to salvage a bit of their personal lives and try to become civilians for a while.

There is Phil Esterhaus, the kindly sergeant who talks as though he swallowed a thesaurus. He's almost 60 years old and when the show began he had an 18-year-old girl friend. He cares for the men on the Hill and warns them daily with "Hey! Let's be careful out there.

There is Howard, the SWAT team leader who would use Gestapo-like tactics on the streets if he could get away with them. He also loves to run immigration checks on anyone he considers to be less than full-blooded American.

Did Congress pull a sneaky?

Dear Editor,

Recently a message of the United Press International appeared in one of the Dallas newspapers which is somewhat cryptic. It is to the effect that Congressmen, before closing the session for the year, gave themselves a Christmas gift retroactive from January 1. It is not clear whether there was a raise in emoluments.

If there is a raise-I hope it is not true-the Congressmen will be accused of supporting reduction of benefits to the poor without any sacrifice on their part.

Jan. 9. A later message of the United Press International appeared in the Dallas press, relevant portions of which are interesting and worth quoting: "This year members of both Houses-feeling the pinch of inflation but fearing voter reaction if they raised their salaries-found another way of climbing aboard the gravy train.

They lowered their own taxes and doubled the amount they can get for

IT IS THE ONLY television show I've ever watched that makes me forget I'm sitting in my living room.

I'm a diehard fan of the show that scoffs at Howard's pompousness, marvels at Furillo's cool, moans when the bad guys win and cheers a touching moment between partners on the streets.

To be sure, "Hill Street Blues" is ambitious and giving in its level of entertainment, but it is also rich in portraying the human condition. Pride is apparent in every facet of "Hill Street." I can only hope

Both also adopted an amendment allowing an even bigger potential tax break by letting members deduct certain expenses for buying or renting a Washington home and maintaining it. Exacily how much a tax break members gave themselves may not be known for some time. In an editorial comment, a Dallas newspaper says: "The members of Congress made a mockery of the Christmas spirit this week when they voted a Christmas tree full of benefits for themselves but short-changed the country's senior citizens by voting 'only a slapdash, "stopgap" Social Security funding measure ...

Federal Reserve Board will, rightly or wrongly, see the red ink as an expression of inflationary pressures. The Fed will thus have no reason, not even a pretext, for coming off the present policy of cutting down the growth in money supply. But that policy works to keep interest rates high, which, in turn, aborts recovery.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Have you considered writing a column on the continued effectiveness of medicines that people have to take for years or a lifetime? Don't people become accustomed to medicines after awhile and don't they lose their effectiveness so that they have to increase dosage, or whatever? I have asthma and have been told I will have to take my medicine the rest of my life. Already,

I find it is not as effective as when I started on it.-L.A.J. You're forcing me to answer a toughie, L.J. Your question covers an entire field of study called pharmacology. If the body reacted to every drug in the same way the answer would be simple. But because it reacts in a multitude of ways in breaking down and eliminating different drugs, the answer is complex.

Let me give you a couple of examples. If you take barbiturates for a long while, your liver will learn to make an enzyme that breaks them down. They lose their initial effectiveness and you need increasing doses. Does that sound familiar? It is an example of "becoming accustomed to medicines." The liver does not do that with every drug, but when it does you need larger doses for it to be effective.

Another example of the need to increase the dose of medicine is this: In some diabetics, after having used insulin awhile, their bodies begin to make antibodies against it. Some of the injected insulin is becoming inactivated by those antibodes, so larger doses may be needed. These are only two examples in a complicated story

Not every medicine is affected this way. A good example is digitalis. Usually, this drug, once the proper dose has been established, need not be increased because of how the body handles it. This brings us around to your asthma question.

Many asthma medicines are much like digitalis. But there are a few medicines that do require periodic adjustments. And of course, if asthma or another illness begins to get worse, dosage adjustment may be needed. But that is not because you have gotten accustomed to it. The illness just requires more.

If you want to send me the specific name of your medicine, I can tell you if there is a body mechanism causing you to "get used to it."

Dear Dr. Donohue: My 15-year-old grandson just recently had his school examination, and at the bottom of the report the doctor wrote, "early Osgood-Schlatter" and cautioned him not to play basketball on concrete and nor to ride his bike too much. I would appreciate any light you can shed on this for us.-H.S.

At the top of the lower leg bone (the tibia) is a little nubbin. You can feel it below the kneecap. That nubbin is the tibial tubercle, and that is the place of attachment for the tendon coming from the thigh muscles. Osgood-Schlatter's disease is a disruption of the bone nubbin in youngsters

Why it happens is not known, but it causes pain and tenderness. Rest is essential, or at least a restriction of activity, pain being the key indicator of any activity or degree of activity that has to be avoided. Sometimes, just to insure rest and healing, the youngster's leg has to be put in a cast. The bone nubbin eventually heals and becomes quite strong again.

I repeat: Any activity that causes leg pain should be avoided until healing has taken place. Your problem, H.S., will be in getting an honest evaluation from a sportsminded youngster as to what activity causes him pain.

Dear Abby

Ring causes a smelly problem

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you had a letter from someone who smelled bad and had gone in vain from doctor to doctor in order to dtermine the cause of the mysterious odor.

The following is a true anecdote that I used on my CBS radio program, "Speaking of Health":

Dr. Marion Sulzberger, a San Francisco dermatologist who has been world-famous for over 50 years, tells a story that dates back to his early medical practice in New York City.

A once-prosperous tailor came to Dr. Sulzberger desperately seeking help. It seems the man's wife - and most of his loyal customers - had left him because he suddenly started to smell so bad! He had gone to doctor after doctor who agreed he smelled terrible, but no one could tell him why.

Dr. Sulzberger used his head, followed his nose and started to sniff out the reason — literally. First he smelled the poor man's head, and it smelled OK. Then he smelled his face, his chest, his legs — all smelled all right. When he got to the patient's hand, he discovered the culprit!

It seems the man was wearing an intricately carved ring whose nooks and crannies contained a foul-smelling gunk, most probably a malodorous mixture of bacteria and fungi. The doctor removed the ring, instantly freeing the patient from his offensive affliction.

As in any happy ending, the tailor's wife returned and so did his flourishing business. Oh, yes. the grateful patient insited that Dr. Sulzberger keep the ring. DR. STEVEN ANDREW DAVIS,

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF

DEAR DR. DAVIS: Belated congratulations to Dr. Sulzberger, a distinguished best smeller.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing about that 15-year-old girl signed "Brokenhearted Four Times." She wants to stay a virgin until she's married, but says it's not easy because guys don't want nice girls anymore.

I totally agree with you, Abby, when you say it's not true, but maybe she'll believe it if she hears it from a boy. I'm a 19-year-old guy. I'm not a virgin myself, but I never mess with nice girls. When I get married I hope to get someone like her.

DEAR ABBY: Now that you've scared almost every mother in the world against feeding her children peanut butter, I think a little more should be said on the subject.

Many years ago I read the same warning in Prevention magazine. It stated that peanut butter, when eaten alone, could collect in the throat, obstruct the air passages and cause choking. But when it's combined with jelly and eaten with crackers or bread, it's easy to swallow and causes no problems.

I hope you think this explanation is important enough to print.

PEANUT BUTTER MUTTER DEAR MUTTER: It is. I'll spread it around.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance (I'll call him Harry) has lived in an apartment complex for the last three years, during which time he became friendly with Gloria, the girl who lives across the hall. Gloria is moving to a condo next week, so Harry is taking her out "for a drink" next Friday as a sort of friendly farewell gesture. He says he's never dated her and they are just friends. Since Friday night is Harry's night out with the boys," it wouldn't cut into our time together.

It seems to me that his taking Gloria out for a drink would constitute a date since I am not included. I'm afraid one drink might lead to another, and before they know it they'll be spending the whole evening together, and if that's not a date I'd like to know what you'd call it.

Abby, if Harry takes Gloria out for a drink, and they are "just friends," shouldn't I insist that I be included? PROTECTING MY INTERESTS

Foreigners learn art of fixing raw fish

m AP})$  — Cutting through the curriculum can be a slippery task, but foreign and Japanese graduates of Tokyo's "Sushi University" find tuna-slicing and seaweed-wrapping are skills to be nurtured in a world hungering for Japan's raw fish and rice delicacies.

We can't keep up with demand," said Hirokazu Takeuchi, a 27-year-old entrepreneur who founded the school two years ago to train Japanese for jobs in sushi shops outside Japan. "Sushi restaurants are springing up everywhere around the world, and there is a dire shortage of chefs.

Sushi is a concoction of raw fish - any one of a number of varieties - cut in bite-sized slabs and mounted atop dollops of boiled, vinegar-soaked rice, laced with a fiery green horseradish called wasabi and dipped in soy sauce.

Without the rice, it is called sashimi. Either way, it is Japan's gift to the culinary world, and evidently enjoys growing popularity abroad.

The 100 students in Takeuchi's professional course are all Japanese, heading for jobs in New York, Paris or Rio de Janeiro after a year of intensive schooling in the art of wedding rubbery octopus morsels to fragile rice balls or forming seaweed rolls topped with salmon eggs.

Since last April, Takeuchi also has offered weekly classes, in English, for foreigners seeking initiation into tha mysteries of sushi. There are now 55 students enrolled in the three-month course. A few are Japanese wanting to learn how to attack a shrimp without facing the rigors of a regular school. The rest are outsiders with their own reasons for wanting to learn sushi-making.

"Japanese cooking courses are exacting, and I couldn't handle half-hour sessions of onion-cutting," said Nancy Galloway, 33, of New Orleans. "Here I can relax, although I was shy at first because it's such a Japanese thing.

Restaurant consultant Ramon Toca, 26, of New York said he enrolled in the course because "you are not only learning a cuisine, but also a culture and language.'

I'ew students in the international class expect to don the white uniforms, high-heeled clogs and rakish headbands of the professional sushi "itamae," or chef. Many say they signed up simply because they like to eat it.

"I joined because I am very health-minded and sushi is so good for you," said Marlene Tibbs, an Austrian native married to a California banker. Said Jean Pierre Richard, 26, a student from Paris: "I just like sushi

Jack Nagata, a Japanese-American from Chicago who has worked in sushi shops and teaches the international class, plans to enter a Japanese electronics company this spring. "I'm here because I enjoy it," he said

Students pay an enrollment fee of 10,000 yen ($43) and 3,800 yen ($16.50) for each of 12 lessons, with the fringe benefit that they can eat their handiwork. On the day he was interviewed, Nagata said each student's assignment - bluefin tuna, shrimp, seaweed rolls and scallops would cost at least 3,000 yen ($13) in a restaurant.

The idea for the school originated during Takeuchi's visits to the United States to arrange tours for Japanese students. "I saw how popular sushi was becoming, and how few Japanese were qualified to work in U.S. sushi shops

He estimated there are at least 250 sushi shops in Manhattan alone, 600 in New York state, 200 in Washington D.C. and 500 in Los Angeles.

In addition to the usual lessons in sushi-making, the 720,000-yen ($3,130) course includes instruction in marinelife English, making bigger portions for foreign appetites and the basics of smiling at customers. Takeuchi said that from March five Americans interested in starting their own sushi shops back home will enter the professional course

Although many Japanese think sushi is an intrinsically Japanese food unpalatable to foreigners, the taste for raw fish is believed to have been learned in China during the first Tang Dynasty (618-906 A.D.). The word "sushi" first appeared in Japanese records about 1,250 years ago.

The fish was then usually pickled because of a lack of refrigeration. Rice, in short supply in ancient Japan, was not added until around 1600-and then only as a marinating agent. It was not until about 150 years ago that Japanese began to eat today's familiar sushi of rice and fish

As with most Japanese arts, sushi masters claim that their craft demands humility and mental discipline that requires three to five years to learn. However, Takeuchi says his graduates are first-class chefs after one year.

"In Japan, people believe one must go through a long apprenticeship to a master before striking out on one's own. But the system actually has been perpetuated so there will always be a supply of people to do the buying, cleaning, dishwashing and other menial tasks," he said.

SUSHI STUDENT-Nancy Galloway of New Orleans tries out some sushi she made in class at Sushi University, a Tokyo school that teaches Japanese and foreigners the fine art of making Japan's popular raw fish and rice delicacy.

Miss Galloway and Jean Pierre Richard of Paris, left, are enrolled in the school's "international" course. Some students plan to use their skills overseas.

Elephant faces blood tests

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Officials will conduct blood tests this week on Bomba, an elephant at the Columbus Zoo, in an effort to determine when she became pregnant, a spokesman said.

Elephants are pregnant for between 22 and 26 months, officials said, but they don't know when Bomba became pregnant. The results of the blood tests would help the zoo plan for the birth, a zoo spokesman said.

Bomba remained in good condition, the spokesman said.

Paper's printer feisty despite retirement

KOUNTZE, Texas (AP) — It's been five years since Archer Fullingim turned out the light over the Linotype machine at The Kountze News. But Fullingim is not going gentle into anyone's good night.

Retirement means that Fullingim has quit taking aim at politicians in his front-page column, "The Printer Fires Both Barrels." When Fullingim was at his peak, he could step on toes in the pages of his paper in this small southeast Texas town and politicians in Washington and Austin would say, "Ouch!

When Fullingim quit publishing, U.S. Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, told the House of Representatives, "Archer Fullingim has retired. Now Texas politicians can breathe easier

Surely Wilson did. He was known as "Timber Charlie" in The Kountze News because Fullingim considered his association with the logging industry suspect.

Richard Nixon became "Tricky Dicky" — a name many people credit Fullingtm with coining — in The Kountze News during the early 1950s. Sen. John Tower, R-Wichita Falls, was always "Useless John.

But retirement doesn't mean Fulligim has given up his political commentary. He's still no fan of Republicans

"Everything the poor people in this country ever had was given to 'em by the Democrats," he says. He predicts Ronald Reagan will end up like Herbert Hoover.

"In 1932, at the height of the Depression, you couldn't find anybody who would admit they'd voted for Hoover.' Retirement also has given Fullingim time to entertain.

He might invite friends up to the loft above his bedrooms and play them some gospel music on an old organ. "How's that, Mammy?" he'll inquire of a picture of his mother after he sings a verse. Fullingim's political interests weren't limited to national affairs. He campaigned for years for a national park to protect the Big Thicket, the vast forest surrounding Kountze where Fullingim says he once had a religious experience.

'I sat down against a tree, and pretty soon this feeling washed over me like a wind in my heart, and I felt like I'd been there before," he said. "I was suffused with a spirit something like what Adam and Eve must have felt. It's a feeling of lightness.

More than 80,000 acres of what Fullingim calls the Holy Ghost Thicket are now included in the Big Thicket National Preserve Fullingim founded his paper in 1950 and ran it until Feb. 28, 1974. He was never the editor or publisher. He was the Printer, by thunder!

It started when he bought a defunct print shop for $845. A few years later, an 11-year-old named Dee Ard started showing up on Saturdays to sweep up the place. One day the boy brought his clothes and said he was going to live with the printer Fullingim, a bachelor, protested. But his sister, 73-year-old Virginia Simms, said she told him, "Archer, you're going to hell if you don't help that little boy So Fullingim took Ard in.

"I could have never gotten the paper out without Dee," he says now. Ard, now 38, works in the oil fields, but he keeps the pilot lights burning beneath the lead pots on the Linotypes, just in case the old press rumbles to life again.

College Basketball Roundup

Missouri upset by Nebraska

The Missouri, Minnesota, San Francisco and Alabama basketball teams were all surprised over the weekend.

Actually, Missouri was more like shocked. Among the four upsets Saturday, the most stunning of all was Missouri's, as unheralded Nebraska routed the nation's top-ranked team 67-51 and handed the Tigers their first loss of the season

"Sometimes you catch somebody when it's going their way and when it's not going your ' said Missouri Coach Norm Stewart. "It's way, simple."

The aggressive Cornhuskers outplayed the Tigers in every phase of the game, especially on defense where they stopped them cold with a tough man-to-man defense. The loss was the first for Missouri in 20 games this season and snapped a 29-game winning streak at the Tigers' Hearnes

Arena. It also sent the nation's last undefeated team down the chute.

'We kept Missouri from shooting where they wanted to, and we were excellent on the defensive boards," said Nebraska Coach Moe Iba

Nebraska guard Jack Moore said the Cornhuskers were "mentally prepared" for the game and knew they had to play well defensively

"With them No.1 and playing on their home court, not too many people gave us a chance of winning," said Moore. "The key to the game was that we held the lead, got a couple of big buckets and kept it up.'

Greg Downing scored 14 points and Moore 12 for the Cornhuskers, who blocked six Missouri shots and caused the Tigers to shoot just 34.6 percent from the field, 20 percent below their season's average.

Meanwhile, Indiana beat No.6 Minnesota 58 55: Santa Clara stunned No.7 San Francisco 77-75 in overtime and Mississippi beat No.8 Alabama 79-69. In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No.2 North Carolina walloped The Citadel 67-46; No.3 Virginia crushed Virginia Tech 80-66; No.4 DePaul edged Marquette 67-66; No.5 Iowa stopped Ohio State 69-65; No.9 Kentucky defeated No.16 Tennessee 77-67; No.10 Oregon State outscored Stanford 111-81; No.11 Tulsa routed Wichita State 90-75; No.14 Arkansas tripped No.12 Texas 62-55 in overtime; No.13 Wake Forest stopped Georgia Tech 53-38; No.15 Idaho beat Nevada-Reno 91-79: No.18 West Virginia whipped George Washington, No.19 Kansas State clipped Colorado 65-58 and co-No.19 Memphis State took a 74-65 overtime victory over Louisville.

Am Golf Tournament

But Simons shrugged off the discomfort, donned some dark glasses as protection against the weak rays of the sun filtering through clouds covering the Monterey Peninsula and, with a brilliant, final-round 66. overcame a five-shot deficit and won the old Crosby Clambake

"I'm just as happy as I can be. My whole system is going 200 miles an hour and it'll take me at least two or three days to calm down," the 31-year-old Simons said after acquiring only the third title of his 11-year tour career. He won it with a 274 total, 14 shots under par

Stadler, a front-running winner at Tucson, Ariz., earlier this year, put one over a cliff on the ninth hole, made a double bogey and Simons "saw hope' through his burning

The critical turn-around came on the par-3 17th. Stadler snatched his tee shot to the left. over a cliff and down among the wavewashed rocks on the beach of Carmel Bay. He had to take an unplayable lie, eventually one-putted for bogey and Simons made birdie. It was a two-stroke swing that settled the issue.

Stadler finished with a hard-won 70 that included four birdies, an eagle, two bogeys

The victory, Simons' first in four years, was worth $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000.

Simons, who has a long history of eye troubles, said his problems were heightened this week by the experimental use of two contact lenses in his left eye, one to correct vision and the other to correct astigmatism. The piggy-back lenses, however, caused burning in his eyes, prohibited the eye from "breathing" and caused the loss of some tissue, Simons said.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, FEB. 9, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to think out ex-actly what your personal desires are and then make the right moves that can help you attain them. Make plans to engage in social activities with friends.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Not the right day to involve yourself in any new interest in outside affairs. A close tie can give you the help you need now. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can do much to advance in career activities by getting an early start. Strive to add to prestige you now enjoy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take steps to gain the data you need in a new project. Don't procrastinate any longer on this. Show devotion to loved one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Figure out a better way to handle regular routines. A talk with loved one brings a better understanding.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day to bridge a gap between you and some associates. Show higher-ups that you have ability and gain their favor.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Some new methods in the handling of your work could increase your income. Come to a better accord with co-workers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Contact congenials and get together at recreations that you mutually enjoy. Use common sense instead of taking undue risks.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Strive for increased harmony at home. Steer clear of one who is argumentive. Make sure your work is better organized.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Contact persons who can help you become more successful. Handle your responsibilities in a cheerful manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have to use a more modern system for handling money if you are to become more successful. Use you sbility.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take more time for enjoying good friends you have not seen in a long time. Make sure your appearance is at its best.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Forget an old-fashioned way of operating and become more modern for increased success in business. Be logical. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be truly interested in the welfare of others and should not be discouraged in this. Direct the education along lines that will fit your progeny for work that will benefit others. Give ethical training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - For any couple, two decades of marriage is an achievement these days, but Barry Mann and Cynthia Weil have been celebrating something more than a 20th wedding an-

They're also marking two decades as songwriting partners, a collaboration that has been producing super-smash hits for almost as long, and for artists as varied as the Righteous Brothers ("You've Lost that Loving Feeling," "Soul & Inspiration"), Eydie Gorme "Blame it on the Bossa Nova"), The Animals ("We Gotta Get Out of This Place"), George Benson ("On Broadway") and Dolly Parton ("Here You Come Again").

Between them - and they sometimes work individually with others - composer Mann and Ms. Weil, a lyricist, have written songs that have sold in excess of 140 million records.

And they keep their hit list guite current. Recent entries include the Mann-Dan Hill tune "Sometimes When We Touch"; the Pointer Sisters' "She's So Shy," written by Miss Weil and Tom Snow. The couple just saw their discovery, singer James Ingram, earn a Grammy nomination for best male pop vocal performance for "Just Once," which they contributed to Quincy Jones' "The Dude" LP.

Brooklyn and she in Manhattan. She tried her hand at singing, but gradually drifted into writing lyrics; he worked in the Catskills as a busboy and sometime talent show performer, making contacts that later proved helpful when he dropped youthful architectural ambitions for a musical career.

Barry came up to play a song," Ms. Weil, a slim woman whose face is framed by shaggy blonde hair, recalls during a fireside interview at the duo's roomy home a stone's throw from the Beverly Hills Hotel.

find him?' And one of the secretaries up there told me his name and said he was signed to a publisher named Don Kirshner.

Kirshner, who has since gone on to mass media fame as a late-night television rock concert host, had at the time just recently co-founded Aldon Music, a publishing company which had one of the most impressive songwriting stables of the early '60s with such top writers as Carole King and Gerry Goffin, Neil Sedaka and Howard Greenfield producing dozens of rhythm-and-blues-influenced pop hits .

So Ms. Weil had a double motivation for paying Aldon a visit, and both quests proved successful Kirshner put her together with Miss King and Goffin. and as for her Mann-hunting, "I hung around until he noticed me.

"I noticed her when I played the song," protests Mann, a dark, bearded 42-year-old who still has a Brooklyn twang, "but I thought she was Teddy Randazzo's girlfriend, so I didn't really pay that much attention.

That misimpression quickly was corrected, and soon the two were sharing an apartment, quite a Bohemian arrangement back in 1961. Within a year they were married and writing together

'It was great," Mann recalls of the Aldon years. 'We were all very competitive, and that ripped our guts out, but at the same time it really prodded us. And we also kind of helped each other out. I'd play a song for Carole (King) and say, 'What do you think of this,' and she'd ask my opinion.

Physically unfit TV

NEW YORK (AP) - Evidently, when you get to be as big a name as Olivia Newton-John, a network like ABC will finance your ego trips and inflict them on America. Tonight's "Olivia Newton-John: Let's Get Physical" is a musical non-variety hour that will baffle all but her most fiercely loyal fans.
