Woman shot, husband jailed

By BILL ELDER
Staff Writer

A domestic altercation between a northside husband and wife resulted in a shooting and the hospitalization of the wife, police said.

Listed in good condition with two bullet wounds at Malone-Hogan Hospital this morning was Tomasa Morales, police said.

Arrested on a charge of attempted murder and held in the city jail overnight was Alberto Morales of 1004 N. Main, according to police reports.

Morales was arrested at his home — the scene of the alleged shooting — at about 8 p.m. yesterday, police said.

Morales, 55, surrendered peaceably after officers arrived on the scene, said detective Lt. John Wolf.

Termining the incident "a domestic situation," Wolf said police believe Morales shot his wife twice with a .22-caliber revolver after the pair had an argument.

A .22-caliber revolver was "recovered in the front yard, in the bushes," Wolf said.

Police were alerted to the shooting by Amelia Morales, the daughter of the suspect and victim, according to Wolf.

Arriving on the scene were Lt. Alvis Jeffcoat and officers Bob Armstrong, J. Sevey and Ron Wood, Wolf said. Also on the scene was Chief of Police Elwood Hoherz, according to Wolf.

Wounded twice in the left chest area, Tomasa Morales was transported to Malone-Hogan Hospital by a Shaffer ambulance, Wolf said. A hospital spokeswoman confirmed this morning that Mrs. Morales was in good condition.

Tax unit delays naming 1982-83 board of review

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

The Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal District board decided yesterday to table the motion to appoint a board of review for 1982-83. The board planned to "work constructively on finding persons to serve" to present at next month's meeting, according to Board Member Jack Watkins.

Chief Appraiser F.E. "Gene" Pereira told the board the review board should have one member with a one-year term and two members with two-year terms or vice versa, as suggested by the state property tax board. Possible appointees were to be approached to ensure they would serve if appointed, the board decided.

With two of its five members absent, the board did not take action on any items other than routine business. The board did receive a report on the status of the computer time needed by the appraisal office from Pereira.

The chief appraiser told the board "things are in a bottleneck now since the computer doesn't have the capacity to handle the information," Pereira said. The problem was when one group was running the computer, the others could not work with it. He added that the county was awaiting new equipment which should solve the problem.

Pereira also told the board the appraisal office personnel had been "misquoted about turning down computer time." The office could not use the computer at the time it was offered because "we could not spare persons to work with it (computer)." Everyone in the office was stuffing envelopes to meet a state deadline, Pereira said.

He added that the state had not announced the deadlines in time for the office to prepare properly.

A report on car allowances given to members of the appraisal teams was presented to the board by Pereira also. The item in question is paying a $250 a month car allowance to persons not driving a car, Jack Watkins said.

"We shouldn't pay someone for not using his car; it's a fringe benefit," Watkins said. Pereira said he had been given the authority to offer the allowance along with salary and so forth.

Board President Roy Watkins said the board just couldn't end the allowance. "We can't just drop it—we can't arbitrarily take it away from someone since it is now part of his income, his living standard." The board took no action on the matter, but the allowances were placed on the agenda for next month's meeting.

The $28,000 Social Security claim the tax appraisal office had filed in November was lost in the Dallas and Austin Social Security Offices, Pereira told the board. He said he would have to refile the claim since no one could find the records of the claim.

Gilstrap not guilty of failure to obey

Cecil Gilstrap, Box 2507, was found guilty of having an expired motor vehicle inspection sticker in municipal court yesterday and was fined $20 by Judge Bobby West, according to municipal court records.

West found Gilstrap, who was arrested at the scene of a motor vehicle accident Jan. 13 in which his vehicle was not involved, was found not guilty of failure to obey a police officer.

In addition to the above charges, Gilstrap had been arrested on charges of having no driver's license and disorderly conduct, according to police Lt. Melvin Duratt.

The latter two charges were dropped prior to yesterday's hearing, Duratt said.

Lanny Hamby was attorney for Gilstrap in the hearing, which lasted nearly four hours, Duratt said. City legal advisor Elliott Mitchell prosecuted the case.

Duratt said Gilstrap paid the fine, which included court costs.

Emergency fund for farmers is tapped

WASHINGTON (AP) — New money for farm ownership and operation loans in Texas and other states has been opened up by an Agriculture Department decision to tap a $600 million emergency loan program, The Associated Press has learned.

The decision by Agriculture Secretary John Block greatly reduces the fear of thousands of farmers that the Farmers Home Administration would foreclose on them because they had fallen behind on existing loans.

The money also will be available for new loans to farmers unable to borrow from conventional private sources.

Under Secretary Frank Naylor and FmHA administrator Charles Shuman came under repeated assault in the past week from congressmen on an agriculture subcommittee who couldn't fathom why funds from the emergency program hadn't been made available.

Naylor told of Block's decision during a meeting Wednesday morning with Reps. Charlie Stenholm, Kent Hance and Jack Hightower — Democrats who represent farming districts in western Texas.

Aides to Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, also attended the meeting in Naylor's office.

A third straight year of low commodity prices left farmers across the nation unable to make payments on FmHA loans, which was set up as a lender of last resort.

"If there ever was an emergency, this is it,"

Bentsen said Wednesday morning.

"I don't think it's fully understood how serious the problem is with the farmers. They're in the worst shape they've been in since the great depression. The rest of the country is having a recession; they're having a real depression," said Bentsen.

Naylor said Block has asked him and Shuman to brief him on how the funds should be released.

"The regulations probably will be on the secretary's desk by the middle of next week as to who will be eligible to receive the funds, and the details probably will be released within two weeks," the gap was told.

One of the participants said Block wants to make sure none of the loans go "to any millionaire farmers."

Reagan aide resigns to 'avoid embarrassment'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph Canzeri, the White House's Mr. Fixit, says he quit his job rather than risk embarrassing President Reagan with questions about submitting double bills for two trips and accepting low-interest loans to buy a house.

Reagan accepted Canzeri's surprise resignation Wednesday night with "deepest personal regret," and said he and Mrs. Reagan hoped Canzeri would "honor us with your presence in our house many times in the years ahead."

Canzeri acknowledged that he billed both the White House and the Republican National Committee for $700 and change on expense accounts for two trips in early 1981. He said it was an accident and that he repaid the White House immediately when it was discovered last week.

At the same time, he said there was nothing improper about accepting low-interest loans from Laurence Rockefeller and Donald M. Koll, a Republican activist and developer, to buy a $380,000 house in Georgetown.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the loans and double-billing matters had been referred to the Justice Department for review, out of "an abundance of caution."

Canzeri, a long-time aide to the late Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, was known in the White House for his quick humor and ability to get things done. As a $60,000-a-year assistant to the president, Canzeri had an office only steps from the Oval Office, but kept well out of the public eye. To insiders, he was the man everyone counted on to take care of details for White House ceremonies and presidential travel — the man who kept the planes running on time.

JOSEPH CANZERI

In an unusually warm letter accepting Canzeri's resignation, Reagan said, "From early morning until late in the evening, both on the road and here in the White House, there was one man I could always call upon for help and know that within minutes I would hear that familiar answer: 'Done.'"

Reagan said Canzeri had "served not just me but our nation with distinction, honor and a personal energy that knows few parallels."

Inn expansion plans include 64 new rooms

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Best Western Mid-Continent Inn at Interstate 20 and Highway 87 has announced expansion plans that will include 64 new rooms and extensive remodeling of present units, according to Diane Welch, manager.

"They let bids in Lubbock Friday and the construction company should start scraping ground at Rip Griffin's Truck Stop on Monday. We hope to have the new units built by the last of August or at least by September, of course, it depends on the weather and availability of materials," Ms. Welch said.

She said the expansion will help to ease the motel crunch in Big Spring. She said Mid-Continent Inn has had 99 percent occupancy since Jan. 1, and Wednesday the motel turned away 65 people looking for a place to stay.

"Mr. Griffin is very well satisfied with how things are coming along in Big Spring. The expansion plans include redecorating all existing rooms, remodeling the truck stop and restaurant and the building of a convenience store," Ms. Welch said.

Plans for an official groundbreaking have not been set, according to Ms. Welch. The 64 new units will increase the motel's room count to 157.

Assassin's drug kills leukemia in mice

DALLAS (AP) — An assassin's drug attached to a cancer-seeking molecule has killed 99.9 percent of the tumorous cells in mice with leukemia, researchers have announced.

Immunologists at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School said Wednesday that the poison ricin, linked to the antibody, might be effective in fighting human leukemia.

"We found a mouse antibody that would react with tumor cells but not the stem cells that manufacture the white blood cells which are part of the immune system," said Dr. Ellen Vitetta. "To that antibody, we attached a form of the plant toxin ricin. The antibody killed only the cancer cells and not the normal stem cells in bone marrow."

None of the mice had developed tumors several months later, she added.

"It may work in cancer therapy because the human and mouse leukemias are similar," said Dr. Vitetta, who worked with Drs. Jonathon Uhr and Keith Krolic.

The trio wrote about the research in the Feb. 11 issue of "Nature."

Ricin gained national attention in 1978, when Scotland Yard detectives linked ricin to the assassination of Bulgarian defector Georgio Marvov, who died after being jabbed with an umbrella tip dipped in the poison.

The treatment might make bone marrow transplants more effective in treating some leukemia and brain cancer, which are resistant to current treatments, the researchers say.

Bone marrow is transplanted only in patients who no longer can be treated effectively with safe dosages of cancer-fighting drugs. The bone marrow is frozen and stored, then is used to replace bone marrow destroyed during radiation treatments. The danger, however, is that a few undetected cancer cells would stay in the bone marrow that is taken out.

The new compound apparently kills those cells and allows doctors to treat cancer patients "with lethal doses of drugs and radiation," said Dr. Vitetta. "The patient is then rescued by injecting his own bone marrow cells back into the body."

The researchers first modified the ricin, derived from the castor bean, making it unable to attack the body's cells. Then they combined it with the antibody whose sole target is cancer cells.

"It's kind of a magic bullet," Dr. Vitetta said. "You can aim it at millions of cells, but it will hit the right ones."

Action/reaction: Courthouse parking

Q. Who is allowed to park in the official parking spaces at the county courthouse?

"Reds," with 12 nominations, and "On Golden Pond," with 10, were selected for best picture of the year along with "Atlantic City," "Chariots of Fire" and "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

The other nominees for best actor had been anticipated: Warren Beatty, "Reds"; Henry Fonda, "On Golden Pond"; Burt Lancaster, "Atlantic City," and Dudley Moore, "Arthur."

Katharine Hepburn, already winner of three Oscars, collected her 12th nomination for her performance as the indulgent wife in "On Golden Pond." The other nominees for best actress: Diane Keaton, "Reds"; Marsha Mason, "Only When I Laugh"; Susan Sarandon, "Atlantic City," and Meryl Streep, "The French Lieutenant's Woman."

Cardinal Cody to retire

CHICAGO (AP) — Cardinal John Cody, whose stewardship of the nation's largest Roman Catholic diocese is being investigated by a federal grand jury, is expected to retire 10 months from now, a local church official says.

Cardinals usually retire at age 75 and Cody celebrates that birthday Christmas Eve. It is expected that he will not spurn the custom, spokesman Peter Foote said Wednesday. Cody long has suffered diabetes and he has an irregular heartbeat, for which he recently was hospitalized.

The apparent retirement plans became public Tuesday when Monsignor Francis Brackin told a meeting of the Diocesan Presbyteral Senate on Tuesday that Cody "expects to retire on Dec. 24, 1982."

'Footdragging' charged on sales to Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Confusion and foot-dragging" by the Reagan administration are allowing the Soviet Union to use American know-how to build up its own strength, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., contends.

In a speech prepared for delivery in the Senate today, Jackson called on the administration to immediately prohibit the use of any American technology to help build a natural gas pipeline from Siberia to Western Europe.

"There is no longer doubt that our technology has materially aided Soviet expansion," Jackson said. "It has improved Soviet weapons, intelligence devices, and economic leverage. We are still much too far away from a vigorous program to effectively meet the danger."

Jackson specifically cited the administration's handling of the proposed natural gas pipeline.

CRMWD directors expected to OK contracts with cities

Directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District will meet Friday to firm up the anticipated approval of new contracts with member cities—Big Spring, Odessa, and Snyder.

Snyder has approved a new contract between it and the District, and Big Spring and Odessa are expected to complete their adoption Tuesday. Assuming that this done, the CRMWD then will authorize execution of the document.

The contract basically is the same as originally signed by the three cities nearly three decades ago. It spells out that non-municipal water revenues may be used to modify municipal rates, and it permits a modification of the rate formula so that cities will pay more for delivery of water (an amount equal to electric energy required to deliver it to a particular city), and less in monthly fixed charges. The totals, however, are the same.

Contract term would be for 50 years, or for so long as there are bonds outstanding which were issued within the term period.

Also, the board will consider how it can work with the City of Midland, if requested, to finance certain water and sewer improvements. If this is done, it will be the first such action

Jurors may visit river site

ATLANTA (AP) — Jurors in Wayne B. Williams' murder trial will be allowed to visit the Chattahoochee River bridge where prosecutors contend Williams disposed of the bodies of two young blacks, a judge ruled today.

Judge Clarence Cooper, acting on a defense request, said a visit to the bridge would help the jury understand evidence presented by prosecutors. He did not set a date or time for the visit.

Williams, a 23-year-old free-lance photographer and aspiring talent scout, is charged with murdering Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of 28 young blacks whose deaths over a 22-month period have been investigated by a special police task force.

There have been no arrests in the 26 other deaths, but prosecutors presented evidence about 10 additional slayings in an effort to show a pattern that might fit the Cater and Payne cases. Prosecution witnesses placed Williams with a total of seven victims, including Cater and Payne, although Williams has denied knowing any of the 28.

Two defense witnesses today attacked the prosecution's contention that Williams was a homosexual who hated members of his own race.

Howard Peoples, a professional singer who said Williams helped develop his career, testified that the defendant never made homosexual advances toward him.

"In all the times you talked to him, in all the days you saw him, did you ever hear him make a derogatory remark about his race?" asked defense attorney Alvin Binder.

"No," Peoples replied, adding he would not be afraid to leave his own 9-year-old son with Williams.

Carolyn Bailey testified that Williams helped her with her singing career in 1979 and never made any slurs about his own race.

"Now, there've been some allegations here that Wayne ain't straight with women and men," Binder told her. "Has he ever done anything that would indicate to you that he was homosexual?"

"No, he dated my sister," Mrs. Bailey replied.

Prosecutors moved to strike Mrs. Bailey's testimony as a character witness, saying the defense had not provided enough background to show how well she knew Williams. Cooper called a recess before ruling on the objection.

Both Peoples and Mrs. Bailey testified they had never seen Williams with any of the 28 victims.

Earlier today, Edward Mays, the half brother of 15-year-old victim Joseph "Jo Jo" Bell, testified that Eugene Laster, a prosecution witness who said he saw Bell get into a car with Williams, told a different story shortly after Bell disappeared.

Republican attorney enters Senate race

John J.C. O'Shea, R-Lubbock, recently filed for candidacy of the 28th Senatorial District, a post currently held by Sen. E.L. Short, D-Tahoka.

O'Shea, 54, is a longtime Lubbock resident and is the senior partner of the law firm of O'Shea and Hall, P.C. O'Shea joins John Smith of Odessa in the contest for the Republican nomination for state senator. Sen. Short has been challenged for the Democratic nomination by John Montford, a Lubbock attorney.

"Our area of the state is facing a void of effective leadership in the next session of the legislature. I feel that the number one issue that will face the next session is how Texas will face up to the responsibilities of the new dual federalism."

"We must accept this opportunity to govern ourselves and manage our own tax dollars with vigor or we will lose this opportunity and be faced once again with a distant, unresponsive federal bureaucracy," O'Shea said.

O'Shea also said the 28th District will be experiencing a possible water shortage in the next few years and "the importation and transfer of water into our semi-arid region must be accomplished. This is absolutely vital to continue the great agricultural economy of our area."

O'Shea said education was another of his strong beliefs and he pledged support of Texas Tech and other learning institutions in the area calling education "the foundation of stone for future growth."

O'Shea is a graduate of the Columbus School of Law, Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. He served in the U.S. Air Force and is a Korean war veteran.

O'Shea and wife, Rita, have four children.

Hundreds killed in Syrian fighting

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Government tanks, planes and artillery are pounding the ancient city of Hama, and hundreds have been killed in eight days of fighting between President Hafez Assad's army and Sunni Moslem rebels opposed to his Alawite minority sect, Western diplomatic sources report.

The diplomats said Syria's fifth largest city, with a population of 200,000, was besieged by 6,000 to 8,000 troops, and the dead were estimated in the "high hundreds."

About 100 tanks, artillery pieces and air force planes were attacking the city continuously, the sources said.

Travelers who escaped the government blockade said Hama's Hadhir district was "razed," and other sections were destroyed. They reported wounded were left unattended in the streets.

Diplomatic sources said at least 360 government troops were killed in a two-day period. Diplomats in Amman, Jordan, said hospitals in Damascus, 120 miles south of Hama, and those in Aleppo to the north and Latakia to the west were filled with casualties.

Sources said the battle for Hama represented one of the sharpest challenges yet to Assad's 12-year-old government.

Hama, in west central Syria, is a stronghold of Syria's Sunni Moslem majority and twice previously rebelled against Assad's Alawites who dominate the government in Damascus. It also is a center of the radical Moslem Brotherhood, which has been fighting to oust Assad and replace his government with a Moslem fundamentalist regime.

Although 65 percent of the Syrian people are Sunnis, Islam's majority sect, and 11 percent are Alawites, the latter control the government and most of the economy.

Communications with Hama were cut and military roadblocks sealed off the city. A news blackout on the fighting was shattered Wednesday when Western diplomats reported the rebellion.

The government denounced the reports as "pure lies" and insisted in a statement Wednesday night that "the situation inside Syria is normal."

Diplomatic sources said the fighting apparently began when security forces discovered a major hideout for dissidents while investigating an arms cache. Townspeople attacked the raiders, and the fighting spread.

Religious leaders broadcast an appeal to revolt from the minarets, and the city rose in open rebellion.

Snowfall possible in Northwest Texas

By The Associated Press

An upper level disturbance approaching from the west was expected to dump 1-3 inches of snow on the Panhandle and bring rain to the rest of Texas today.

The snow and rain was expected to begin ending from the west tonight.

Rex Allen back in $30,000 saddle again

WILCOX, Ariz. (AP) — Rex Allen's stolen $30,000 saddle is home again, thanks to two Wilcox police officers who used it as a pillow all across Texas to insure its safe keeping.

"It's not going to get stolen the second time, I'll tell you that," said police investigator Ron Hazlewood.

He and Police Chief Bill Morales spent the past four days in Texas, where the silver-plated and gold-inlaid saddle was discovered about a month after it was stolen from the Cochise Visitor's Center Dec. 27.

From Temple, Texas, where the saddle was found in a motel lounge, to Austin, to Giddings, to Wichita Falls, to Odessa, the two lawmen hauled the saddle with them as they traced the route of a man accused in the theft.

"I really felt like an old-time sheriff tracking," Morales said. "Just like the Rex Allen movies."

But with front-page headlines about the valuable saddle following them across the Lone Star state, the officers said they were worried that someone else might try to steal it from the trunk of their unmarked police car. So they slept with it in their motel rooms, rarely leaving it even to have coffee.

"Everywhere we went it was on the front page," Hazlewood said of news of the saddle.

Leon Crosley was arrested over the weekend, after riding into Wilcox on a motorcycle and telling authorities he had seen the saddle in the employee lounge of a Temple motel.

The saddle was found at a motel, but the Wilcox lawmen were unsuccessful in trying to find Allen's silverspurs and nickel-plated pearl-handle .45-caliber 6-shooter, which were stolen along with the saddle.

Joyous town officials were poised to give Crosley a $500 reward for letting them know where the saddle could be found, but Morales said discrepancies in Crosley's story convinced authorities to put him up in a jail cell rather than a motel suite.

Crosley was ordered held in the Cochise County Jail in Bisbee in lieu of $55,000 bond pending a hearing Friday. He was also named in a Texas warrant issued in connection with the theft of a motorcycle.

The 60-pound saddle, was also locked up, in the Wilcox Police Department's evidence room, but Hazlewood said the city probably would try to have it released so it can be put back on display.

City Manager Ted Wolverton said the saddle, which is still the property of Rex Allen, will go back on public display at the visitor's center if Allen agrees.

Other Allen memorabilia, including a cowboy suit and boots, had been removed from display until security could be heightened.

A second alarm system already has been furnished, and steel bars on the windows will be installed by Saturday, Wolverton said.

"It's a great pleasure to get that saddle back," Hazlewood said.

"You don't tug on Superman's cape," Morales added. "You don't spit in the wind, and you don't steal Rex Allen's saddle."

McAllen man found innocent in police brutality case

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Months of anguish vanished in a burst of tears as Tom Carter heard jurors pronounce him innocent of police brutality charges.

The heavy-set, baby-faced former McAllen police investigator sobbed as U.S. Magistrate William Mallet told him and two other former officers Wednesday they were free to go.

"It's been hell for all of my family," Carter said afterward. His mother and pregnant wife broke into tears at the verdict.

After Carter, Jaime Contreras and Alfredo Saldana thanked jurors with handshakes, nods and words, the former colleagues on the late night shift huddled together like a winning team.

They had won acquittal in what many thought was the strongest of the government's police brutality cases against five former McAllen officers. Two others indicted in separate incidents have pleaded guilty.

In the misdemeanor case, Special Prosecutor Ross Connealy argued the three violated Pedro Dennett's civil rights when they slapped, kicked and punched the drunk prisoner at the police station on Oct. 23, 1978.

Evidence included a nationally aired videotape of the incident, recorded on police monitoring cameras installed over the booking desk.

Defense lawyers contended the policemen were faced with a potentially violent situation and had to subdue the unruly and uncooperative prisoner.

"I'm convinced that this was nothing but a scuffle and if we are going to indict officers every time there's a scuffle with a drunk, we have problems," Juan Hinojosa, lawyer for Contreras, said in closing arguments.

Jurors agreed after 1½ hours of deliberations.

"There was no willful intent (to violate Dennett's rights)," said one juror who asked not to be identified. "We went through the whole thing."

Mallet told jurors that prosecutors had to prove the men intentionally violated the man's rights by using excessive force.

"Whatever the jury made of that tape is what this case boiled down to," Connealy said after the acquittal. "I don't know why the jury decided like they did. It was a fair trial."

He said he did not know whether the verdict ended the Justice Department investigation of the McAllen police department, which began last spring.

"There are some unresolved questions," he said.

Dennett, who testified at the three-day trial, was not present for the verdict and could not be located for comment. He has collected a $17,000 settlement in a civil suit filed over the beating.

All three defendants had resigned the McAllen force before they were indicted Nov. 4, 1981.

After leaving McAllen, Carter became police chief in Bishop. He was forced to resign that position when the Dennett tape and others were shown on national television.

The tapes had been used as evidence in an American Civil Liberties Union suit against the department. After viewing the tapes, a federal judge ordered changes in police training and internal review practices.

Jim Harrington, the ACLU lawyer for the suits, said he was disappointed in the verdict but felt there was little left to do.

"It's very difficult to convict officers. People don't like to believe officers are going to do something wrong," he said.

"There's not much left to do. Mr. Dennett received a settlement of about $17,000 in a civil suit against Carter, Contreras and Saldana. We've done everything we can do. It's an unfortunate situation," he added.

The defendants said they were anxious to resume normal lives.

"I'll never be a policeman again. The rewards are too cheap," said Carter, a businessman in George West. "I feel like I've been tried and convicted by the news media all over the United States without due process."

Saldana said he has been unemployed since the indictment.

"Ever since the indictment, it's been pretty terrible for me and my entire family. Now maybe I can get a job," he said.

Contreras, like Carter, said his days as a policeman are over. He works in a family auto parts store.

Congressional leaders trying to impress 'realities' on Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican congressional leaders are trying to make sure President Reagan "understands the realities" of the growing Capitol Hill resentment of his deficit-ridden 1983 budget proposal.

But Reagan made it clear he was in no mood to compromise prior to a White House meeting today with Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., House Republican leader Robert H. Michel and Sen. Paul Laxalt, the president's closest friend in the Senate.

The object of their concern: Reagan's $75.7 billion 1983 spending plan and its projected $91.5 billion deficit.

Baker and the Senate's No. 2 Republican, Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska, both said Wednesday that they found merit in a Democratic senator's alternative plan that calls for a virtual freeze on Pentagon spending while trimming by half the administration's three-year tax cut.

But Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan dismissed the Democratic plan as "absolutely ridiculous" and the president himself declared he will stick by his plans for big increases in military spending and deep cuts in outlays for social programs.

Mike Johnson, an aide to Illinois' Rep. Michel, said that although the White House arranged today's meeting Michel intended "once more to make sure the president understands the realities down here (in Congress)."

Baker, of Tennessee, and Laxalt, of Nevada, were expected to deliver a similar message.

Meanwhile, Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia sent Reagan a letter asking him to withdraw the administration's proposed budget.

"I am looking for a document we in Congress can work with; one based on realistic assumptions; one which shows a much clearer trend toward a balanced budget," Byrd wrote.

Byrd urged the president to take a "courageous step" like the one President Carter took in 1980 when he withdrew his original budget and submitted a new one.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., also kept up his harsh criticism of the president Wednesday, saying it was Reagan who should "put up or shut up."

"The product of the Reagan economic sales pitch has been a disaster and all the roadshows in the world are not going to change that fact," O'Neill said.

O'Neill referred to a two-day trip to the Midwest earlier this week in which the president challenged his budget critics to "put up or shut up."

Reagan stood his ground Wednesday, telling a group of women appointed to administration jobs: "We come to government at a time of economic crisis, and we've only begun to sort out the mess that had been building for 40 years. But the difficulties that we face today only prove the failure of the programs that came before."

Baker, in his first major detour from Reagan's strategy, has said that a proposal by Sen. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina is "interesting and worthwhile." Stevens agreed that "it merits a lot of consideration."

Hollings, ranking Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee, said his alternative could cut Reagan's projected deficit of $91.5 billion for 1983 to $42 billion and produce a surplus in 1985 — the year Reagan forecasts a deficit of $82 billion.

The Hollings plan calls for a one-year freeze on defense spending at current levels, elimination of one year's cost-of-living increases for Social Security and government pension recipients and major reductions in the three-year tax cut plan Congress approved last summer.

Judge studies evidence in missionary murders

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A civilian judge has until this weekend to decide whether six members of El Salvador's national guard will be brought to trial for the murder of four American women missionaries in 1980.

The U.S.-supported junta submitted a 57-page indictment Wednesday to Judge Bernardo Rauda Murcia charging the six soldiers with murder. The judge read it and took statements from each of the six in private.

Legal experts said if he decides there is sufficient evidence to warrant a trial, the case will go to another court, and the judicial process could take up to a year. If convicted of premeditated murder, the guardsmen could be condemned to death or imprisoned for 30 years.

The six accused men are Sgt. Luis Antonio Colindres Aleman, who President Jose Napoleon Duarte said shot the four women; Cpl. Jose Roberto Moreno Canjura, and Pvt. Carlos Joaquin Contreras Palacios, Daniel Canales Ramirez, Francisco Orlando Contreras and Salvador Rivera Franco.

Military sources reported earlier that one of the six had confessed, but they did not know which one.

They are accused of killing three Roman Catholic nuns — Maryknoll Sisters Ita Ford, 40, and Maura Clarke, 46, of New York, and Ursuline Sister Dorothy Kazel, 40, of Cleveland — Jean Donovan, 27, also of Cleveland.

Duarte in a televised speech Wednesday night said Colindres Aleman ordered the women stopped after they drove away from El Salvador's international airport on Dec. 2, 1980, because two guards at the airport suspected they were carrying arms in their Toyota van.

Is there a 'right to read'?

Book banning is reaching epidemic levels as self-appointed censors across America select and dictate the educational material of millions. These censors are mostly parents and small community groups concerned with what they see as a general erosion of moral standards and the American way of life.

The material that they want banned ranges widely in content. Where one group is concerned with evolution accounts contained in textbooks, others object to five leading dictionaries that include "offensive language." Some attack major social-issue novels; even children's classics like Robin Hood and Mary Poppins come under scrutiny. One high school principal said, "If we got rid of everything these people object to, there'd be nothing left but Black Beauty and after a while that gets a little too thin for adolescents."

EDUCATION OFFICIALS view the growing wave of censorship with fear. The problem, they claim, is that too often the personal standards of one parent or a small group of parents get mistaken for community standards.

Educators point to the growing number of national advocacy groups — Rev. Jerry Falwell's Moral Majority, Phyllis Schlafly's Eagle Forum and the National Congress for Educational Excellence — as new sources of strength for these self-appointed censors. These groups and others like them work closely with local parent groups organizing and instructing them in censorship tactics: demonstrations, picket lines, petition signings and mail and phone campaigns.

The impact is being felt across the nation. The American Library Association's Office for Intellectual Freedom (O.I.F.) documented three times as many incidents of school-book censorship between 1975 and 1979 as in the preceding ten years — and since the beginning of 1980 the rate has tripled again.

ANTHONY SCHULTE, executive vice president of Random House, stresses that the statistics show only the tip of the problem: "Many teachers and librarians are now so fearful of trouble that they practice unreported self-censorship by simply not ordering or using books that involve risk. The total impact is chilling. Fully half of all reported censorship attacks that succeed do so without any formal hearings or the use of any established procedure for examining and evaluating the book. School authorities simply cave in to placate the censors."

Judge Joseph Tauro of the U.S. District Court in the District of Massachusetts underscored the danger of this arbitrary censorship when he said, "What is at stake here is the right to read and be exposed to controversial thoughts and language. There is no danger in such exposure. The danger is in mind control — especially when that control is exercised by a few over the majority."

Around the Rim

By CAROL HART

So long

After 5 p.m. tomorrow I will no longer be a reporter.

I'm heading toward a new job with the Citizen's Federal Credit Union. I'm really looking forward to it.

But leaving a profession I dearly love isn't going to be easy. I've made my decision, though, and I'm going to stick with it.

So this is my "goodbye rim." I'm going to try not to cry all over my typewriter and to stay unemotional. That's the number one rule in this business.

One reason it will be hard for me to leave newspapers is because I've grown up in the field. Someone named Hart has been with the Herald since 1928.

My uncle started delivering newspapers that year. He later talked my dad into working at the Herald. My dad liked it so much he stuck with it for 48 years.

Having a dad who was a newspaper man definitely was one of the reasons I chose to enter this field. He taught me to respect this business. I may be one of the profession's biggest fans. But I may also be one of its biggest critics.

I started working at the Herald when I was 16 years old. I later worked on two college newspapers and at the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

Then I came back to where I started. And now that I've decided to leave, I'm certainly not bitter about the almost 10 years I've spent in the profession. I'd recommend journalism to anybody. It's one of the best educations in the "real world" that you'll ever get.

Since I persuaded dear old dad to hire me back in November of 1980, I've had the opportunity to meet lots of people and to re-acquaint myself with lots of others.

And how I've loved that part of the job. This town is filled with a lot of special people.

That's one of the parts of the job that I'll miss. I wish I could thank each one of them separately for making my job a joy.

There are four people I'm going to have to thank personally for being so understanding while I made this decision. I hope I can do the same for them someday.

I know I'm going to miss the people at the Herald. There are a lot of terrific people down here. I plan to watch their progress with interest.

Most of all, I guess I'll miss the newsroom and the clutter of the teletype machine and the incredibly fast-paced mornings we shared as we headed toward deadline time.

So, again, thanks to a lot of people. I've really had a lot of fun. And I wouldn't trade the experience for anything.

So long Local calls are cheap

No one knows what is going to happen when the AT&T breaks up, according to the recent settlement they made with the government.

"Ma Bell" will be permitted to keep its long-distance service, its laboratories, and go into all sorts of new electronic communications. But it has agreed to sell off the local telephone companies it owned, which service communities.

According to the people who should know, this could increase the cost of local telephone calls tremendously because AT&T subsidized this service, while it profited from long-distance.

This means a whole new advertising campaign for local telephone companies, to encourage people to use the phone.

The TV commercials might go something like this: "Camera, showing taxi driver. Voiceover: 'Do you realize that you can now call your local delicatessen after 11 o'clock at night for only $3.95?'

Taxi driver: "You got to be kidding. Only $3.95?'

"That's right. For $3.95 you can call anywhere in the city after 11 o'clock, and all day Sunday."

Shot of woman in supermarket. "When was the last time you spoke to your child when she was sleeping over at a friend's house?'

Jack Anderson

"I never call her because it's too expensive."

"What would you say if I told you that if you dial direct you could talk to her for three minutes for $2.75 after midnight?'

"I'd say you were pulling my leg."

"I'm not pulling your leg. The B&S Telephone Co. will now let you call anyone within a 10-mile radius after midnight for $2.75 for three minutes, and only $1.20 for every added minute. Surely there is someone in your town who would love to hear from you."

Shot of conference room in office. Stocky banker-type man walks in and says to people sitting around the table:

"Where's Slocum?'

"He went over to see Ronsetter on K Street about the merger deal."

"K Street? That's three blocks away."

Slocum walks in and everyone looks at him sternly.

Banker-type says, "Slocum, haven't you heard of a local telephone call? For just $6.95 you could have spoken to Ronsetter on the phone."

"Gosh, sir, I never thought of it."

Banker smiles. "That's why you're not going anywhere in the firm. A local telephone call is the only way to do business. Isn't that right, gang?'

Everyone at the table all together, "RIGHT CHIEF."

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's waste-watchers have shown such enthusiasm for tracking down fraud in federal agencies that it has aroused concern in, of all places, the FBI. The G-men are upset at the way some inspectors general have been encroaching on the bureau's turf.

Things have reached such a pass that a closed-door meeting was held two months ago at the FBI training center in Quantico, Va., supposedly to resolve the jurisdictional squabble between the bureau and the various offices of inspectors general (OIGs).

Just how seriously the FBI takes this bureaucratic brouhaha is illustrated by an internal memo directed to the "personal attention" of FBI officials by Director William Webster.

"HISTORICALLY, WITH few exceptions, the FBI has exercised primary criminal investigative jurisdiction involving allegations of fraud and bribery in U.S. government programs and operations," Webster reminds his agents.

But "since the establishment of the various OIGs, the FBI's jurisdiction has been seriously challenged," Webster warned. The FBI chief details some of the gripes against the upstart inspectors general.

Some refer only "low priority cases with which the OIGs chose not to be bothered" to the FBI.

Worse yet, "some OIGs have established a policy of not referring any matters to the FBI, even if they lack the manpower to work the cases developed."

Some inspectors general have invaded the bureau's long-sacred territory by actually handling criminal cases by themselves.

The IGs are demanding "full law enforcement powers," including the authority to make arrests, execute search warrants and even carry firearms.

The FBI, Webster explains, "does not believe this approach to be necessary, nor cost effective, since the FBI is trained, equipped, nationally dispersed and willing to investigate all criminal allegations."

What to do about the impertinent self-aggrandizement of the inspectors general? Keep your eye on them, Webster orders his field commanders. Deploy your troops against the enemy.

"The personnel of your office are to be instructed to be alert for instances where major criminal matters (were not) referred for FBI investigation," the director ordered. When agents report such jurisdictional lapses, "immediate, aggressive action will be expected of you," he warns his satraps.

The White House and the Justice Department have been trying to put a stop to this unseemly Tweedledum-Tweedledee battle between adult professionals whose mutual goals is supposed to be saving the taxpayers' money. But there's more than a small boy's rattle at stake in this family feud; there's bureaucratic territory involved, and that means prestige, power — and budget money.

TO ILLUSTRATE HOW tough the peacemaker's job is in this internecine imbroglio, the President's Council on Integrity and Efficiency — set up to supervise the war on waste — agreed that the FBI and the individual inspectors general would sign "memorandums of understanding" that defined who had jurisdiction over what.

The memos were to be worked out "within the next month," according to minutes of the meeting. Yet nine months after the deadline, sources told my associate Lucette Lagnado, exactly one memo has been signed.

Footnote: The General Accounting Office is investigating the FBI-Inspector General brouhaha. An FBI spokesman said "great progress" has been made in resolving the difficulties between the FBI and the inspectors general.

Shot of grandmotherly type talking into the phone. Grandfatherly type comes into room. "Who are you talking to, mother?'

"Hilda, next door. She seemed so happy to hear my voice."

Voiceover, "You don't need a good reason to call someone locally any more. Just pick up the phone and surprise them. You'd be amazed at how little it costs compared to hiring a Cadillac limousine. Make someone in your neighborhood happy today by saying, 'Hello.'"

Shot of attractive mother in kitchen baking pies. Phone rings and mother answers. Operator's voice can be heard, "We have a collect call from the Giant Food Market for anyone from Connie Marks."

Mother says, "I'll take it. Connie, is there anything wrong?'

"Mom, they're out of heavy sweet cream. Do you want me to buy light cream instead?'

"I'll make do. But it was very smart of you to call collect. By the way, don't forget the cottage cheese."

"Sure, mom. It's on my list."

Voiceover, "When you have a problem and you don't have the money to make a local call, B&S has the answer. Call collect, or charge it to your home or business number. Local calls are cheaper than you think."

SIGNING OFF: The White House's central reference department keeps track of all outgoing presidential letters, including the signatures appended to them. With President Carter, it was simply: He signed either "Jimmy" or "Jimmy Carter."

But President Reagan has used seven different signoffs so far: "Ronald Wilson Reagan," "Ronald Reagan," "Ron Reagan," "Ronald," "Ron," "Ronnie" and — to real old friends — "Dutch." The most commonly used, I'm told, is "Ronald Reagan"; one of the least used is his old boyhood nickname, which means there's little danger that an international agreement will be known as a "Dutch treaty."

WATCH ON WASTE: In 1975, the apparently insatiable appetite of Congress for additional office space swallowed up a building on the fringe of Capitol Hill. The renovators have been busy transforming it into "House Office Building Annex 2." The original estimate for the renovation was $15.5 million; already some $25.5 million has been spent. There's light at the end of the tunnel, however. Current estimates are that the building will be completed by the end of this year, at an additional cost of only $1.5 million.

WHO'S NEWS: Unlike most famous personalities who attend hearings on Capitol Hill, Bianca Jagger doesn't show up with a large retinue and an eye out for the nearest TV camera. Last week, she slipped unannounced and unnoticed into a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing on Central American problems. The ex-wife of Rolling Stone Mick Jagger, Bianca is a jet-setter turned concerned citizen. Nicaraguan-born herself, she is concerned about the refugees displaced by civil strife in El Salvador, and has been quietly lobbying members of Congress on behalf of human rights in Central America.

WHO'S NEWS: Unlike most famous personalities who attend hearings on Capitol Hill, Bianca Jagger doesn't show up with a large retinue and an eye out for the nearest TV camera. Last week, she slipped unannounced and unnoticed into a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing on Central American problems. The ex-wife of Rolling Stone Mick Jagger, Bianca is a jet-setter turned concerned citizen. Nicaraguan-born herself, she is concerned about the refugees displaced by civil strife in El Salvador, and has been quietly lobbying members of Congress on behalf of human rights in Central America.

WHY NOT: The White House's central reference department keeps track of all outgoing presidential letters, including the signatures appended to them. With President Carter, it was simply: He signed either "Jimmy" or "Jimmy Carter."

But President Reagan has used seven different signoffs so far: "Ronald Wilson Reagan," "Ronald Reagan," "Ron Reagan," "Ronald," "Ron," "Ronnie" and — to real old friends — "Dutch." The most commonly used, I'm told, is "Ronald Reagan"; one of the least used is his old boyhood nickname, which means there's little danger that an international agreement will be known as a "Dutch treaty."

WATCH ON WASTE: In 1975, the apparently insatiable appetite of Congress for additional office space swallowed up a building on the fringe of Capitol Hill. The renovators have been busy transforming it into "House Office Building Annex 2." The original estimate for the renovation was $15.5 million; already some $25.5 million has been spent. There's light at the end of the tunnel, however. Current estimates are that the building will be completed by the end of this year, at an additional cost of only $1.5 million.

Billy Graham

Explain the unpardonable sin

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a Christian, but I live in constant fear that I will somehow commit the unpardonable sin and not go to Heaven. How can I avoid this? — P.A.L.

DEAR P.A.L.: You can avoid this by understanding what God says in his Word about the unpardonable sin, and then accepting by faith that what he says is true. If you will understand what the unpardonable sin is, you will realize that you are not in danger of committing it.

Look carefully at Mark 3:28-30, where Jesus mentions the one sin which is unforgivable by God. Jesus said, "I tell you the truth, all the sins and blasphemies of men will be forgiven them. But whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit will never be forgiven; he is guilty of an eternal sin." He said this because they were saying, "He has an evil spirit."

To understand those verses, look first at what has just happened to Jesus as reported by Mark. Jesus has performed many miracles, and many people have come to see him. In the crowd are some religious leaders of the day. But instead of praising God for the miracles Jesus has done and accepting him as God's Son, they turn their backs on him and declare that he has done the miracles by the power of the devil. The miracles of Jesus — done by God's power — witness to the unique divine purpose and person of Jesus. But these men refuse to accept God's testimony to his Son.

Remember also what the Bible tells us about the Holy Spirit and his work. One of the purposes of the Holy Spirit is to convince people of the truth about Jesus. Concerning the Spirit Jesus declared, "When he comes, he will convict the world of guilt in regard to sin and righteousness and judgment" (John 16:8).

Here is the point: the only sin which is unforgivable is the rejection of the Spirit's witness to Jesus Christ. In rejecting his witness, a person rejects Christ, who is the only hope for salvation. Dr. Harold Lindsell in the Lindsell Study Bible puts it this way: "To commit this sin one must consciously, persistently, deliberately, and maliciously reject the testimony of the Spirit to the deity and saving power of the Lord Jesus." If a person keeps doing that until death, then he has no hope of forgiveness and eternal life in Heaven.

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's waste-watchers have shown such enthusiasm for tracking down fraud in federal agencies that it has aroused concern in, of all places, the FBI. The G-men are upset at the way some inspectors general have been encroaching on the bureau's turf.

Things have reached such a pass that a closed-door meeting was held two months ago at the FBI training center in Quantico, Va., supposedly to resolve the jurisdictional squabble between the bureau and the various offices of inspectors general (OIGs).

Just how seriously the FBI takes this bureaucratic brouhaha is illustrated by an internal memo directed to the "personal attention" of FBI officials by Director William Webster.

"HISTORICALLY, WITH few exceptions, the FBI has exercised primary criminal investigative jurisdiction involving allegations of fraud and bribery in U.S. government programs and operations," Webster reminds his agents.

But "since the establishment of the various OIGs, the FBI's jurisdiction has been seriously challenged," Webster warned. The FBI chief details some of the gripes against the upstart inspectors general.

Some refer only "low priority cases with which the OIGs chose not to be bothered" to the FBI.

Worse yet, "some OIGs have established a policy of not referring any matters to the FBI, even if they lack the manpower to work the cases developed."

Some inspectors general have invaded the bureau's long-sacred territory by actually handling criminal cases by themselves.

The IGs are demanding "full law enforcement powers," including the authority to make arrests, execute search warrants and even carry firearms.

The FBI, Webster explains, "does not believe this approach to be necessary, nor cost effective, since the FBI is trained, equipped, nationally dispersed and willing to investigate all criminal allegations."

What to do about the impertinent self-aggrandizement of the inspectors general? Keep your eye on them, Webster orders his field commanders. Deploy your troops against the enemy.

"The personnel of your office are to be instructed to be alert for instances where major criminal matters (were not) referred for FBI investigation," the director ordered. When agents report such jurisdictional lapses, "immediate, aggressive action will be expected of you," he warns his satraps.

The White House and the Justice Department have been trying to put a stop to this unseemly Tweedledum-Tweedledee battle between adult professionals whose mutual goals is supposed to be saving the taxpayers' money. But there's more than a small boy's rattle at stake in this family feud; there's bureaucratic territory involved, and that means prestige, power — and budget money.

TO ILLUSTRATE HOW tough the peacemaker's job is in this internecine imbroglio, the President's Council on Integrity and Efficiency — set up to supervise the war on waste — agreed that the FBI and the individual inspectors general would sign "memorandums of understanding" that defined who had jurisdiction over what.

The memos were to be worked out "within the next month," according to minutes of the meeting. Yet nine months after the deadline, sources told my associate Lucette Lagnado, exactly one memo has been signed.

Footnote: The General Accounting Office is investigating the FBI-Inspector General brouhaha. An FBI spokesman said "great progress" has been made in resolving the difficulties between the FBI and the inspectors general.

'Active threat'

Whatever happened to Khadafy's Libyan hit team?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever happened to the Libyan hit team, variously reported to have slipped into the United States, to be hiding in Mexico, or to have flown to Paris en route to Boston?

Was the plot called off? And was there one hit team or two? Or was there any?

It was late last year — high drama at the White House: a team of assassins trained in Libya was said to be stalking President Reagan. Security was tightened. Presidential appearances were curtailed. U.S. borders were watched. Sketches of potential assassins were distributed.

And nothing happened. No attacks. No arrests. Nothing.

More than 2½ months after the fears first surfaced, publicity about the purported plot has faded. Yet, the vigilance around Reagan and top government officials has not been relaxed.

So what's happened? With rare exceptions, government officials refuse to speak on the record about the sensitive subject.

"We consider the threat as active as it once was," said a senior administration official, who refused to be identified. "We haven't let down our guard."

Indeed, a high-ranking law enforcement official said Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafy might have planted stories the plot had been canceled. "That's what you would do if you were still planning to make an attempt."

As the story slipped off the front pages, there were fewer tips for law enforcement officials to follow.

"There is much less information coming into the bureau than there was a month ago," said FBI spokesman Roger Young.

"Thus far we haven't established the presence in the United States of a Libyan hit team. It's been a lot of extra work without finding a Libyan hit team."

"As the leads dwindle," Young added, "there will be less manpower spent on it." He said the investigation remains a high priority — part of an across-the-board effort against terrorism.

The continued high state of security around Reagan is obvious.

Reagan's motorcade frequently uses two limousines now — one for the president and a decoy car to confuse any attacker. A counter-assault team rides behind the armored presidential limousine in a van, with agents holding the doors ajar in case they have to spring out.

Reagan wasn't even in the motorcade when it pulled away from the White House Jan. 26 en route to Capitol Hill for his State of the Union address. His limousine left the White House by another gate, joined the motorcade in progress, and the entourage took an indirect route to the Capitol.

Flight paths have been altered for Reagan's helicopter trips to the presidential retreat at Camp David. The president's helicopter and Air Force One now carry missile defense systems.

Some CIA and Justice Department officials privately expressed serious doubts about the soundness of intelligence reports about the alleged team, or whether it really existed. Yet a law enforcement official said tips came from various sources, and that the person considered the best source submitted to a lie detector test and passed.

Opinions vary. "We believed at one time there was (a hit team)," said one administration official, speaking anonymously. "Maybe it's disbanded." The official said he never saw anything that pinpointed the location of any team.

Another administration official, who also refused to be identified, said, "I have an idea the United States still thinks they're somewhere on the North American continent."

On Capitol Hill, the purported plot once was the subject of briefings for the congressional leadership and members of the House and Senate intelligence committees. No more, though. There haven't been any briefings since before Christmas.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker retains the round-the-clock protection he was assigned when the threat against Reagan became public. Overall security in the Capitol also remains at a higher level.

Reagan's top three White House aides — James A. Baker III, Edwin Meese and Michael K. Deaver — also remain under Secret Service protection that began in early December.

A review is planned soon about whether Sen. Baker still needs protection, according to a congressional source. A recent review of the need for security around Meese, Deaver and James Baker concluded that it should continue, according to the source.

Sen. Baker has said the threat to Reagan has diminished. Likewise, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, ranking Democrat on the Senate intelligence committee, said as far back as December that, "Now that their cover is blown, the action is known... you will probably see the disappearance of the group involved."

White House aides speculate that interest in the hit team was diverted by the military crackdown in Poland and the Christmas holidays.

Reagan helped fuel the story by publicly denouncing Khadafy. But White House officials insist the story first leaked from the FBI and Secret Service.

The leaks triggered suspicions the White House was laying the groundwork to retaliate against Khadafy — a charge denied by chief of staff Baker.

As the leaks turned into a torrent, Reagan became upset, a White House source said, "and let his anger be known. He mentioned it at Cabinet meetings. It stopped the wholesale leaking."

Braniff, American offer new two-for-one tickets

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International and American Airlines have kicked off a promotional gimmick that allows travelers to buy any ticket on a domestic flight and get a second ticket for $1 or less.

Debt-riddled Braniff initiated the gimmick, starting radio advertisements early Wednesday. American then announced it would match the "ill-advised" plan.

Both airlines want to combat record-low passenger traffic.

Braniff will sell a second ticket of equal or lesser value for $1 for every ticket purchased at the already reduced Texas Class fares — including tickets to Hawaii.

American instituted a similar plan, but does not charge for the second ticket. Hawaii also is included.

Both airlines said the tickets must be purchased between 12:01 a.m. Thursday and 11:59 p.m. Friday.

Jail guard kills self

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A 24-year-old Bexar County jail guard found shot to death in his car apparently accidentally inflicted the fatal wound himself after unholstering his gun, investigators say.

Arturo Cuellar Olivarez accidentally shot himself in the left leg with his military-type .45-caliber semi-automatic pistol, according to Medical Examiner Carrie L. May.

Olivarez was discovered at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the driver's seat of his car, which was parked in the driveway of a service station.

The body was found by San Antonio policeman M.C. Lopez, who said Olivarez apparently bled to death.

500 TEC employees safe

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Congressional approval of emergency funding for employment programs means 500 Texas Employment Commission employees won't lose their jobs.

President Reagan had asked Congress to restore his own cuts into unemployment benefits and job-finding services after an unexpectedly high rise in joblessness.

GOP looks to Dallas for 1984 convention

DALLAS (AP) — The Grand Old Party's quadrennial extravaganza that could bring 25,000 people and $30 million to the host city will be here in 1984 if Republican Party officials keep dancing to President Reagan's tune.

Reagan, writing to Texas' Republican Gov. Bill Clements last December, said Dallas was his preference for the national convention slated to begin Aug. 20, 1984.

Assuming "financial, logistical and legal arrangements" were satisfactory, he wrote, final selection would come after the site committee had reviewed the presentations of other cities.

But on Wednesday, party Chairman Richard Richards told the president one better when, after a tour of Dallas' convention facilities, he said the committee wouldn't even visit the other bidders unless the Dallas deal falls through.

"Our purpose, frankly, is to honor the president's request and go to Dallas if we can," said Richards, who called the city's facilities "impressive" and said he was "pleased with what Dallas has done."

Richards said he saw "no problems yet" in bringing the convention to Dallas, and added that he had already written other cities that were interested in hosting the huge meeting, telling them of Reagan's preference.

"We're looking at Dallas first, and frankly, we won't visit any of them" if Dallas is satisfactory, he said, adding that from what he had seen the city could "put on the convention more expeditiously than our last few conventions."

He said the site committee will come to Dallas in "a couple of weeks" to see if the city has the facilities to house the meeting — which will bring 4,000 full and alternate delegates and about 21,000 other people to town.

Richards declined to say which cities were bidding on the convention, but he sent the letters to officials in Detroit, Kansas City and St. Louis, Mo., and Atlanta.

City officials have estimated the convention will cost about $5.4 million dollars, but Mayor Jack Evans said it was "certainly a good business deal" because it would generate about $30 million.

The Dallas city council has unanimously invited the GOP to meet in Dallas in 1984, and pledged that city funds will not be spent to entice the party to Dallas.

The money to host the meeting would come from private sources, Evans said, and Dallas County Republican Chairman Fred Meyer added that his group was "volunteering" its "time, effort and money" to secure the convention.

Richards said the site selection committee could make its recommendation as early as May, and that the Republican National Committee would decide the convention location at its June 18-19 meeting.

MX plan changed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force is adding 100 nuclear warheads to its current land-based missile force, officials say, as the effort to develop a permanent basing system for the new MX missile continues.

The increase in the number of warheads on existing intercontinental ballistic missiles, Wednesday's Air Force announcement said, "demonstrates our resolve to redress the imbalance in U.S. and Soviet nuclear capabilities."

To achieve the increase, the Air Force will replace 50 single-warhead Minuteman II missiles with an equal number of triple-warhead Minuteman IIIs.

When the replacement is completed, officials said, the Air Force will have 600 Minuteman III missiles carrying 1,800 warheads in firing positions, and 400 Minuteman IIs. The Air Force did not say where the 50 replacements will be installed, nor when, although it indicated the action will come either this year or next.

Regarding the MX situation, Air Force officials said Wednesday night that the first 40 of the giant new missiles will not go in "superhardened" silos as planned because Congress prohibited use of funds for that purpose.

Missile silos are called "hardened" if they are reinforced against nuclear blasts. "Superhardening" refers to a strengthening to the point where the structure can withstand a blast pressure of 5,000 pounds per square inch, believed about double the present strength.

The officials, who requested anonymity, said the prohibition against "superhardening" the silos was a little-noticed provision of the 1982 defense appropriations bill approved late last year.

The Air Force has said it plans to place the first 40 of the new missiles — each of which can carry 10 nuclear warheads — on one of six bases in the West now housing Minuteman missiles in hardened silos.

This is an interim step pending a decision by the Reagan administration on a permanent basing plan for the MX.

Meanwhile Wednesday, Air Force officials said the projected number of air-launched cruise missiles planned for eventual deployment is being raised by about 600 to a total of more than 4,000.

The number of nuclear weapons in the U.S. inventory is not disclosed exactly, but the figure is in the thousands. Officials have said there are about 6,000 in Europe alone.

More nuclear warheads are due for missiles

Man who abandoned dogs at dump sentenced to spend night there

BERLIN, N.H. (AP) — A man convicted of abandoning four puppies in subzero cold at a dump has been sentenced to the very same treatment: two nights with the frozen garbage in this northern New Hampshire town.

"That kind of treatment shouldn't be given to an animal nor any human being, but I felt he should get a taste of it," District Judge Wallace Ancill said Tuesday.

"He'll be rather lonely and cold."

The judge gave Roland Duchesnay, 31, the choice of paying a $200 fine or spending two consecutive nights at the dump, from 5 p.m. to 5 a.m. Duchesnay chose the dump, and he's expected to serve his time there.

"The primary thing is the feeling of isolation and being rather helpless — and cold, too," Ancill said. "I wanted it done before the first of March so it still will be quite cold."

The National Weather Service said the nighttime temperature often dips below zero this time of year in this town of 13,000 people about 60 miles from the Canadian border.

Ancill said that when Duchesnay serves his sentence Thursday and Friday nights, a police officer will check periodically overnight to see if he wants to call it off.

"If he wants to back out, he'll have somebody to ride with, and he can back out any time," the judge said. If the full time is not served, however, Duchesnay will have to pay the fine.

Duchesnay, a paper mill worker, was convicted of leaving the 6-week-old dogs at the dump Dec. 21. The puppies were found the next morning when a truck driver heard a whimper under a pile of garbage, the judge said.

The puppies were taken to the police station, where one of the officers recognized them as belonging to Duchesnay, police said.

Police subsequently found several witnesses to the dumping, and Duchesnay was arrested, authorities said. One dog died, but homes have been found for the three that survived. One was taken in by Mayor Leo Ouellette.

Ancill's sentence forbids Duchesnay from taking shelter at the dump. "I think he can bundle up in warm boots, a good warm coat and hat, and he'll be all right," the judge said.

Duchesnay's lawyer, Edward Reichert of Gorham, said he would not appeal. Reichert said he was surprised at the sentence, and that Duchesnay was surprised at being found guilty.

Reichert said Duchesnay does not have a telephone and declined to say where his client could be reached for comment.

Duchesnay also was convicted of mistreating another dog that didn't receive medical attention after being burned, Ancill said. He said Duchesnay was given a suspended fine and ordered to pay veterinarian costs of $252.60.

Duchesnay also was given suspended 30-day jail terms on both offenses. He was acquitted of a third cruelty charge, Ancill said.

NASA says shuttle space going fast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The space shuttle cargo manifest is getting so crowded the planned fleet of four orbiters eventually will need to be increased, NASA officials are telling Congress.

"The future demand for the space shuttle right now exceeds our capability," Dr. Stanley I. Weiss told a House space subcommittee Wednesday.

During hearings on the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's proposed fiscal 1983 budget, Weiss unveiled a shuttle launch schedule of 70 flights planned through September, 1987, and reported that by 1988 the launch rate will increase to 24 a year.

Maj. Gen. James A. Abrahamson, head of NASA's space transportation systems office, said: "Four orbiters possibly could provide that launch rate. But the practical way to run such a program is to have excess capacity."

He said discussions have begun with the Office of Management and Budget to obtain funds for a fifth shuttle.

Most of the 70 flights already booked will carry more than one payload.

Dr. Donohue

Platelet increase may cause stroke

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have seen you discuss low blood platelets, but I'd be interested in a discussion of high platelets. When I had my stroke, it was found that the platelet count was high and I had to have medicine (radioactive phosphorus and then busulfan) to keep it down. What do you know about the cause of elevated platelets, particularly in my situation? — G.B.C.

Platelets are also called thrombocytes, so having too many platelets gets the name thrombocytosis. When the elevation is sustained over a long period it is called thrombocythemia. To understand what happens, you have to know that platelets are cells (smaller than red blood cells) that circulate in the blood. Their role is to staunch bleeding by forming clots in broken blood vessels. They are nature's corks.

Sometimes, in hemorrhage or after surgery, for example, the bone marrow which is responsible for platelet production may turn out too many of them. That would be classified as the thrombocytosis I mentioned earlier. However, the sustained elevation (thrombocythemia) may occur as part of an actual blood disorder. Or it may occur with no cause apparent.

In any event, because there are too many platelets circulating in the blood, there is always the danger that a clot will form inside blood vessels and cause blockage.

The potential for a stroke exists.

I am not saying that was necessarily the background for your stroke. It might have been. The platelet numbers are reduced with either of the medicines you mention. I wish I could be more specific about your particular platelet elevation. I am sure your doctor will be able to be more helpful. Your other stroke questions are answered in the booklet "Stroke Recovery — Hope and Help." Other readers may obtain a copy by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Can you please explain a little about hemoglobin? What is it? Is it serious? My sister's doctor told her she had it, but she didn't ask him any questions and we're all a bit concerned. — Mrs. T.D.

Hemoglobin isn't serious. It isn't even an illness. It is a necessary part of the blood. It is a part of every red blood cell. Red blood cells pick up oxygen from the lungs and carry it to the rest of the body. Hemoglobin is the "hand" of the red blood cells that "grabs onto" the oxygen in the lungs and lets go of it later when the cell gets to the places in the body that need it.

A hemoglobin count measures how many red blood cells you have. If the count is low, that means you have anemia. Some call that "low blood."

Dear Abby

Words of love best prescription

DEAR ABBY: I received a telephone call at 2:30 in the morning from the emergency room at one of our hospitals. My 18-year-old daughter had been injured in an auto accident.

I rushed there and found her covered with blood and so drunk (or stoned) they had to tie her down to sew up her face! There was little they could do about her teeth. They were back at the scene of the accident.

Now she is trying to recover. Within 48 hours, her "frineds" arrived. Their biggest concern seemed to be what type of drugs she was getting "for free" in the hospital.

As long as my daughter is in the hospital, I can rest at night knowing that she can't drive over an innocent person or kill herself. When she gets out, I will lie awake nights waiting for the phone to ring again. Maybe next time it will be the morgue.

Abby, please write to my daughter and say the words she needs to hear right now but will mean nothing coming from her father. I don't want to lose my little girl!

DAMNED IN DALLAS
DEAR DAMNED: My heart aches for you, but the "words" your daughter needs to hear right now will mean nothing coming from me. She needs to hear her father say, "Honey, I love you. Let's not talk about yesterday. The Lord spared you because he wanted you to live. When you get well, please take a serious look at the previous life you almost threw away. You can depend on me to help you in any way I can."
Father, you alone can't "save" her. She will have to save herself. But letting her know that you love her is a good beginning.

There are some excellent programs in your area for teens with drug problems. If you need further help from me, please write again. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I found this in the "AORN Journal" — a publication put out by the Association of Operating Nurses:

"The Chickenization of Women
"Women are frequently referred to as poultry. We cluck at hen parties. When we aren't henpecking men, we are egging them on. In youth we are chicks. Mothers watch over their broods. Later we are old biddies with an empty-nest syndrome. Is it just a coincidence that so many women's wages are chicken feed?"

'Abused People' is club topic

"Abused People" was the topic of discussion at the Monday meeting of the GFWC Forsan Study Club. The meeting was held in the Forsan High School Home Economics Room.

Johnnie Lou Avery, president of Avery and Associates, described the characteristics of abused people. She quoted statistics on abuse in Texas and Howard County and also outlined the laws concerning abuse. Persons should not be afraid of making a mistake when reporting possible abuse, Mrs. Avery said. Anonymous reports are accepted by the Department of Human Resources. Mrs. Avery said an attempt is being made to obtain a Battered Persons Center in Howard County. A building has been donated and qualified persons are available to staff the center. The estimated $40,000 per year needed for operation, however, is not yet available.

Donna Parker presented the nominating committee's slate of officers for the new club year. Officers will be elected at the next meeting. Those nominated are: Eunice Thixton, president; Kathy Pickett, vice president; Susan Alexander, secretary-reporter; Susan Gason, corresponding secretary; Becky Vines, treasurer; Jackie Harris, Federation counselor; and Kathi Hollingshead and Donna Parker, scrapbook historians.

Each member brought cookies to be taken to Big Spring State Hospital, and members were reminded to attend the Western District Convention March 26-27 in Monahan.

Members planning to attend the Midland Community Theater's production of "Funny Girl," on Feb. 28 should contact Emily Elrod by Monday. Members will meet in Mrs. Thixton's home for a 1 p.m. departure.

Members are planning an evening of Crazy Bridge Saturday evening at Forsan High School Cafeteria. Members' sweethearts are invited to the event which begins at 7 p.m. Babysitting will be provided.

Loretta Yarbrough and Linda Mills were hostesses and served refreshments. Susan Gason won the door prize.

The next business meeting will be March 15 in the home of Claudie Patterson. Members should bring gifts for children at M.D. Anderson Hospital.

Home blazes cause most fire fatalities

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — There appears to be a trend toward lower fire-death rates in the home, but residential blazes continue to be the No. 1 cause of fire fatalities in the United States, according to the annual survey of the National Fire Protection Association.

Residential fires were disproportionately responsible for fire fatalities in 1980, says the report.

Of an estimated total of 6,506 lives lost from fire in 1980, residential fires claimed 5,446 victims, and over the past four years, residential fires have accounted for approximately 78 percent of all deaths by fire.

But on an optimistic note, Michael J. Karter Jr., senior NFPA statistician and author of the report, notes that 1980 residential fire deaths are down 5 percent from 1979, with the number of residential fire victims decreasing a total of 11.2 percent between 1977 and 1980.

Self-defense methods outlined at meeting

M.L. Kirby, long-time Howard County deputy sheriff, spoke at the Ladies' Night meeting of Big Spring Evening Lions Club Monday. The meeting took place at Furr's Cafeteria.

Kirby said a woman without special training can defend herself from attackers. A scream is one of the best methods of protection, he said. "The most vulnerable part of the attacker's body is the face," Kirby said. "Use car keys, nail file, scissors, ball-point pen or any pointed object and attack the face of the attacker."

Should the attacker grab the arms or wrists, the victim should jerk her arms upward, or use high heels to kick. Women should not "fight fair," Kirby said.

"These are not normal people and it is either you or them."

Kirby advised women to be alert. If a woman sees loitering around her car, the car should not be approached alone. The car should always be locked, and persons should check behind the seat each time before entering the car.

Asked why so few rapists are prosecuted, Kirby said, "Too many victims will not appear as witnesses."

Terkel's 'Working' flap

Parents report town red-faced over protest

GIRARD, Pa. (AP) — Parents who complained that Studs Terkel's book "Working" contained some words too dirty for the classroom now say national publicity about their protest has embarrassed this tiny town.

Now they've asked the school board to delay any decision about the issue until the hoopla dies down.

"We have been exposed to the nation as a community that does not have the facilities to take care of its own problems," parents' representatives Robert and Marilyn Richardson wrote in a letter to the Girard school board.

"To follow our present course will probably lead to a iourt battle despite the board decision. This would only lead to more exposure and embarrassment to all concerned."

School Superintendent Jan Calhoun said the board was willing to delay a public session planned for Feb. 15, but he added, "We do not know what they (parents) really want...We're going to ask them to put in writing what they want the school board to do."

Linda Burns, a leader of the parents' group, said in a telephone interview Tuesday: "We just kind of want things to get back to normal in the community, to give people a chance to calm down and think about it without outside interference."

Mrs. Burns said that the parents never asked for an outright ban of Terkel's book but instead seek availability of another book for students who find "Working" objectionable.

School Board President Alice Fulgenzio said Tuesday she opposes removing the book from school and added that if it came to a vote, the board's nine members would reject a ban of "Working."

"I believe in freedom of expression. I really can't hold with banning books, that's for sure," she said in an interview with Phil Donahue on the talk show broadcast live from Chicago.

Controversy erupted when eight students and their parents complained about the use of "Working" in English classes for vocational students.

The 1974 best-seller is a series of interviews with more than a hundred people who sometimes use earthy language in talking about the joys and frustrations of their jobs.

Terkel, saying he was "curious...and a little bit angry," traveled to the community of 8,000 people on the southeastern shore of Lake Erie last week to defend his book.

The white-haired author addressed a student assembly to wild cheers of approval and later debated with parents, some of whom walked out of the public meeting.

"Working" still is used in English classes and the dissatisfied students have continued to do assignments based on the book, Calhoun said.

High costs put children out of Fed lunch program

DENVER (AP) — Three million children throughout the country — most of them from lower-income families — have stopped buying school lunches because federal food subsidies have been cut, according to a study by a school-food industry group.

Schools have increased their prices and tightened the eligibility requirements for free and reduced-price lunches because of Reagan administration budget cuts that went into effect in September.

The study by Dan Wisotzky, chairman of the American School Food Services Association, showed that 1,100 schools — with a total enrollment of 387,000 — have stopped offering lunches because of reduced federal food subsidies.

The Denver-based association is an industry lobbying group of administrators of food service programs.

Of the 3 million children who have stopped buying lunches, nearly 630,000 are from families with incomes between $10,000 and $15,000 a year, the study said. Students' parents report their earnings on their applications for the school lunch program.

Researchers don't know why each of the remaining children dropped out of the lunch programs. But Wisotzky said in an interview Tuesday that most were unable to afford the average price of $5 a week for school lunches.

Studies by the U.S. Department of Agriculture confirmed the findings, said USDA spokesman George Braley in Washington.

The drop in participation was the first recorded since the federal school lunch program was founded in 1946, Wisotzky said. His association annually records the number of participating students.

"Some children are not eating — they're spending their lunch period on the school playground instead of the cafeteria," Wisotzky said. "Some students are standing around begging for food from their teachers or friends."

According to Wisotzky's study, states with the largest dropout rates were Texas, Illinois, New Jersey, Arizona, Pennsylvania and Washington. More than 20,000 students in each of those states do not eat federally financed lunches because their schools have dropped out of the program, he said.

Former President wcarter proposed spending $3.9 billion for the federal food program, but the Reagan administration wanted the figure cut to $2.34 billion. Instead, Congress voted to set the school lunch program budget at $2.8 billion.

Poor children who once qualified for free or reduced-price meals have been hit hardest by the cutbacks, Wisotzky said.

California condors indebted to Andean cousins

PIURA, Peru (AP) — A team of Peruvian and U.S. scientists are breeding Andean condors in captivity in an experiment designed to save California condors from extinction.

The scientists have placed young Andean condors hatched at the Bronx Zoo in New York and at a Maryland wildlife research center in their natural habitat in the Peruvian wilds.

The researchers say they are developing a practical, efficient way to save the fast-disappearing California species, now believed to number between 20 to 30 birds, from going the way of the Carolina parakeet and the passenger pigeon.

Mike Wallace, 31, a bearded wildlife researcher from Westbrook, Maine, who coordinates the project, said in an interview that because the California condor is so rare, it is necessary to test techniques for the capture, breeding and eventual release into the wild of their more numerous South American cousin.

"Captive breeding is being recommended as one of the fastest ways of rebuilding the population of the California condor," Wallace said. "By removing the eggs from a breeding pair in captivity, it may be possible to obtain six times as many eggs as that produced in nature, much as taking the egg away from a chicken causes it to lay another."

"We've found the technique works with Andean condors," he added. "If our present success continues and the techniques we're developing here are used, it seems very probable that any (California) condors produced in captivity could also be released into the wild and live as if they were born there."

It's not a technique that has won universal approval from environmentalists. One U.S. conservation group, Friends of the Earth, says human meddling will hasten the bird's demise.

CONDOR COMEBACK? — A rare California condor eyes the world from a rocky perch in 1967.

Other opponents say more emphasis should be placed on habitat protection rather than human contact with the bird.

Wallace said that although the researchers' immediate concern is to save the imperiled California species, the project's long-term effect would be to further the state of the art of preserving endangered species generally. Successful trapping — using rocket-propelled nets — and radio telemetry — fitting the birds with solar-powered radio transmitters — techniques developed during the course of the project are two research spinoffs with possibly wider application, he said.

Wallace, a doctoral student at the University of Wisconsin, directs the effort from a base camp nestled in the foothills of the Illescas mountain range, which juts into the ocean southwest of Piura. The U.S. government-financed project is sponsored jointly by the university, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Peruvian Ministry of Agriculture.

The California condor, like its larger Andean cousin, belongs to the New World vulture family, a group of carrion eaters. The largest North American land bird, the condor has a wing span of 10 feet. They lay eggs only once every other year, and the survival rate for chicks is said to be only 50 percent.

Marsalis, Glenda Wilson attend seminar in Odessa

Johanne Marsalis and Glenda Wilson, D&C Sales, recently attended the Sales Tax and Title Seminar held at the Holiday Inn in Odessa.

Will Ehrle, president of Texas Manufactured Housing Association staged the seminar to inform the people in the manufactured housing industry of the changes dealing with the sales tax and registering of a manufactured home.

Effective March 1, manufactured homes will no longer be under the jurisdiction of motor vehicles and therefore will require no registering at the county courthouse.

Texas is one of the few states that is making or has made this change of coming from under the motor vehicle jurisdiction and placing the manufactured housing industry in line with conventional housing.

"This will not only be a step forward to present manufactured home owners, but will be of great benefit to future home owners," Marsalis said.

While at the seminar, which was held for the Permian Basin area, Johanne and Glenda gained knowledge of the various forms that will be necessary for this new important procedure of titling manufactured homes.

Former CBN executive, son sentenced for embezzlement

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A former account administrator for the Christian Broadcasting Network and his son each has been sentenced to three years in prison for embezzling more than $115,000 from the network run by evangelist M.G. "Pat" Robertson.

George Allen Morgan, 63, who told U. S. District Judge Richard B. Kellam Tuesday "I wasn't aware I was committing a crime," also was placed on five years' probation, to begin when his prison sentence ends.

He was convicted of having opened fraudulent bank accounts in the name of Robertson both in Norfolk and in Dallas, where he worked from 1977 until 1979.

Morgan's son, Billy Allen Morgan, 35, a Dallas businessman, set up a dummy corporation in Dallas to receive the stolen funds, which were used to finance the younger man's dollmaking business and the purchase of the elder Morgan's new home in Chesapeake, Va.

Gordon E. Campbell, the elder Morgan's attorney, described his client as a man who had spent a life in the Church of God, and who had come to CBN, based in Virginia Beach, Va., in 1977 as a result of his management duties with the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship International.

Campbell said Morgan was a devout Christian who succumbed to the "thousands, hundreds of thousands, and millions of dollars" available at CBN, which has a $60 million annual budget. Most of that money comes through the mail or from gifts supervised by account executives.

By comparison, the Morgans' needs were those of a "family who needed a few shekels," Campbell said.

Billy Morgan testified that CBN did not accept gifts of improved property from CBN supporters. He testified that when his father learned of a such a potential gift to CBN, they would buy the property in a family name, resell it at a tidy profit, and donate only the lower figure to CBN.

FAST-SCAN

It works for you

What is FAST-SCAN CHECKOUT?

Gibson's new FAST-SCAN checkout system is the latest in customer convenience -- computer assisted checkout. It's faster and more accurate than manual checkout.

Most packaged items are now marked with a universal product code consisting of a series of bars and spaces which a computer can read and translate into a number. Each product's UPC symbol is unique and represents the manufacturer and item name.

Gibson's new checkstands have built-in windows, or "scanners," which allow the store's computer to read the item name, match it with the correct price, and present the price on the register display and item name and price on your sales receipt.

FAST-SCAN means greater accuracy

Gibson's FAST-SCAN computer is on target every time with the correct price. The chance of error because of a missed register key or hard-to-read price is eliminated.

We will continue to mark items with current prices for your convenience, and the checker will key in prices of items which do not have the UPC symbol.

More informative sales receipt

FAST-SCAN's detailed sales receipt gives you an accurate record of your Gibson's purchases. All UPC marked items are described by item name and price. You'll have a list of credits for bottle deposits, coupons or food stamps. The receipt shows the amount of sales tax, total of your purchases, the amount you gave the checker, and the amount of your change. It even gives the date and time of your purchase.

Your itemized sales receipt will be useful

- as a shopping list
- to compare prices from week to week
- to compare prices in other stores
- to keep accurate shopping records
- for budget planning

FAST-SCAN AT WORK

As our cashier passes your purchase over the scanning window, a low energy laser beam reads the UPC symbol and transmits a product number to the FAST-SCAN computer.

The computer searches its memory file for the price of the product, and sends back the item description and price to the register.

Instantaneously, you will see the price presented on the register display while the product name and price are printed on your sales receipt.

FAST-SCAN automatically calculates tax amounts, food stamps, and bottle deposits. It even keeps track of multiple priced items on sale, such as three boxes of Jello for 89¢, individually priced at 30¢.

FAST-SCAN means faster checkout

You'll notice checkout lines moving much faster with FAST-SCAN. The computer reads the UPC, recalls the item's price, and flashes it on the register display -- all in a fraction of a second. FAST-SCAN works even when items have been missed in marking prices, so you don't have to wait for someone to look up the missed prices.

No more hassles with sales receipts

FAST-SCAN provides more information than manual checkout and pricing systems. You can easily match your purchases with the descriptive sales receipt. Some grocery and other items and most soft goods will not have the UPC symbol. These items will be keyed in by the checker, and your receipt will show the department and price.

How price changes are handled

Price changes are initiated in Gibson's general offices as wholesale prices increase or decrease. Revised prices are sent to all our stores where they are marked on products and shelf labels. The price changes are also programmed into the FAST-SCAN computer. Test scans are run on products receiving price changes to insure accuracy.

FAST-SCAN... It Works For You!

Gibson's FAST-SCAN system collects vast amounts of information which allows us to provide more help during peak shopping hours, to stock more products, and to display them so they are more easily found.

Greer appointed new postmaster at C-City

COLORADO CITY — Charles L. Greer is the newly appointed postmaster at Colorado City, according to Sectional Center Manager-Postmaster D.E. Holster of Midland.

Greer, 51, was born in Enid, Okla., and has lived for many years in Fort Stockton. He began his postal career in Fort Stockton on Oct. 6, 1958 as a city carrier. On Oct. 17, 1959 Greer transferred within that office to the position of clerk. On Nov. 10, 1962 he became Civil Service Examiner in Charge for the Fort Stockton area.

On Jan. 1, 1965 he was appointed assistant postmaster of the Fort Stockton Post Office. He was detailed to the Winters Post Office for five months as officer in charge and on Jan. 6, 1973 he became foreman, mails and delivery at the Fort Stockton Post Office. Greer served as superintendent, postal operations in the Fort Stockton Post Office from July 19, 1975 until his appointment to the position of postmaster at Colorado City.

Postmaster selections are made on the basis of merit from a list of qualified candidates submitted to the Sectional Center Manager by a Review Committee. The Review Committee, composed of a district director from the same district, a sectional center director or postmaster from the same section center and a sectional center manager or postmaster from a different district, review the applicants for the position and recommend to the sectional center manager those candidates who best meet the position requirements. The sectional center manager then selects and recommends the Postmaster General the best qualified person to fill the vacancy.

Supply of long underwear provides warmth for Polish

CHICAGO (AP) — An American manufacturer is hoping to provide some warmth to people in Poland, where supplies of all kinds are scarce.

Jockey International Inc. of Kenosha, Wis. is sending Poland 16,800 pairs of thermal long underwear, valued in excess of $200,000, said Eugene Rosypal, the Polish-American Congress' Chicago office manager.

He said the underwear will be distributed first to members of the trade union Solidarity who have been confined under martial law since Dec. 13, and the rest will be given to needy Poles.

"It's cold and I'm sure that this underwear will come in very, very handy," Rosypal said. "Some of the reports that are reaching us say you cannot buy clothing or shoes. I'm sure that this is going to be a big, big thing for them."

He said Yellow Freight Systems, also of Kenosha, is shipping the underwear to Baltimore free of charge and from there the shipment will be loaded onto a Polish ocean liner for delivery to officials of the Roman Catholic Church in Poland.

Along with the underwear is a message from Howard Cooley, president of the company, which states, "We hope that our humanitarian contribution will inspire them with hope to carry on in search of the ideals they hold so dear."

Video games prohibited for youngsters

By The Associated Press
A town in Illinois and another in Massachusetts have clamped limits on video-game playing by young people to stop the children from throwing away their lunch money at amusement arcades or getting involved in drugs.

The new city laws came despite a federal appeals court ruling that struck down a similar ordinance in Mesquite, Texas. That case has been appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, which heard arguments Nov. 10 but has not ruled.

In Marlboro, Mass., a central Massachusetts town of 31,000, the fear of drug traffic sparked the restrictions passed by the City Council. Mayor Joseph Ferrecchia said Tuesday.

The regulations passed Monday night ban anyone under age 18 from playing pinball or computer games after 10 p.m. and before 3:30 p.m. on school days. Youths are forbidden to play the games between midnight and 7 a.m. on other days.

"We must not allow the downtown to become a honky-tonk center," Ferrecchia said. Any new video game centers licensed by the city must be at least 1,500 feet from schools, playgrounds and public housing, and at least 300 feet from residential zones, the ordinance says.

In Bradley, Ill., a town of 12,000 about 40 miles southwest of Chicago, an ordinance passed Monday night bans children under 16 from playing computer games in shopping mall arcades.

Thursday Notes

The sports world is full of facts and figures, humorous quotes and interesting features. Each Thursday morning I'll try to gather up these pieces of sports information as they cross my desk in the past week and pass the best ones along to you.

Big Spring's Philip Ringener came within 90 pins of making the nationally televised finals of the $131,000 Bowling Proprietors' Association of America U.S. Open Saturday in Houston.

Ringener averaged 211.4 a game and finished as the alternate to the championship round won by Dave Husted of Milwaukie, Ore. Husted took home $21,000 while Ringener got $4,050 for his efforts.

Howard College's Nathan Givens is taking the Western Junior College Athletic Conference scoring race seriously. With two straight 36-point performances, the 6-6 freshman from New Orleans trails Charles Prescott of New Mexico Junior College by just a half point.

Givens is averaging 25.3 points a contest while Prescott is scoring 25.8 a game. Givens is also second in rebounding with an 11.7 average, just behind Chester Smith's 12.2 average for Midland College.

Hawk Queen Nell Haskins is still atop the women's scoring standings with 22.8 points a game. Cassandra Crumpton of Claredon is second at 22.3.

With the final push towards the Region V tournaments approaching, Howard could finish with the top scorer in both divisions.

Things still aren't too rosy at Texas A&M University after the hiring of Jackie Sherrill as football coach and athletic director.

Dr. Frank E. Vandiver told his 150-member Academic Council recently that his office had been damaged by A&M's controversial hiring of the Pittsburgh coach for an estimated $237,000 each year. Sherrill's base salary of $95,000 is $5,000 more than that made each year by Vandiver.

Professors at the university make an average of $36,900 annually and Vandiver is concerned with both his loss of control in the selection of Sherrill and his university's seemingly greater attention to athletics than to academics.

Things are out of wack at Texas after the loss of big forward Mike Wacker. The Longhorns were undefeated and ranked at No. 5 by the Associated Press before Wacker destroyed his knee in his team's loss to Baylor. Since then, the 'Horns have slipped to 6-6 in the league and are now also-rans behind front-running Arkansas.

Wacker joins such notables as Kentucky's Sam Bowie on the sidelines this year, spoiling what could have been highly successful seasons. The finger has now been pointed in the direction of coach Abe Lemons for doing too much moaning and not enough to remedy the loss of the team's No. 2 scorer.

Kentucky without Bowie is 15-5 and ranked among the top 15. Texas still has super center LaSalle Thompson but the 'Horns have lost six of seven. Perhaps those fingers are pointing in the right direction.

The Big Spring Steers lost six District 5-A-A-A-A-A games by an average of 10 points a game in the first half. The Steers have lost three in the second half after opening with a three-point win over Abilene High by a combined total of 14 points, that's 4.6 points a game.

No wonder Coach Ed Haller gazed into the rafters of the gym Tuesday night and wondered if those "almost wins" would ever become realities.

So you always wanted to be a Dallas Cowboys Cheerleader?

Applications are now being accepted by director Suzanne Mitchell. Ladies must be high school graduate at least 18 years of age at the time of auditions and must relocate in the Dallas-Fort Worth area if not a current resident.

Applications must contain a letter explaining why the young lady would like to be a Cowboys Cheerleader and information on her background, education and interests. A non-returnable photograph, return address, zip and phone number must accompany the packet.

Address is "Cheerleader Auditions," 6116 North Central Expressway, Dallas, Tx., 75206. Deadline is March 17.

Semi-finals in selection are April 24 with finals May 1-2.

Foster inks baseball's biggest contract

NEWEST MET—Former Cincinnati Reds slugger George Foster stands with a giant replica of the $10 million, five-year contract he signed with the New York Mets Wednesday in New York.

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Armed with the second biggest contract in baseball history, a $10 million deal that could grow even larger, slugger George Foster has joined the New York Mets, determined to help the perennial also-rans become contenders in the National League.

"I'm used to winning and I'm hoping to make the Mets used to winning, too," said Foster.

The Mets acquired Foster, baseball's leading run producer for the last six years, from Cincinnati for catcher Alex Trevino and pitchers Jim Kern and Greg Harris and then signed the veteran outfielder to a five-year contract which guarantees the $10 million. The agreement is second only to the 10-year, $23 million deal Dave Winfield received from the New York Yankees.

"There is a sizable signing bonus and meaningful incentives based on most valuable player and substantial attendance bonuses," said General Manager Frank Cashen, who negotiated the contract with Foster's agent, Tom Reich. "It could go higher than $10 million."

The contract also includes a two-year option beyond the five guaranteed seasons.

"At no point didn't I feel we could complete it as long as I came up with the dollars," he said. "The numbers were a little stronger than I expected but not beyond what I was willing to go."

Foster introduced himself at a packed news conference in Shea Stadium, saying, "I'm not changing what I do or how I do it, just where it's going to be done."

His 671 runs batted in are tops in the majors for the last six seasons and he has pounded 198 homers over that period, second only to Mike Schmidt's 221. Foster batted .295 with 22 homers and 90 RBIs in 106 games last season.

Despite that production, the Reds felt they could not satisfy Foster's projected demands after his 1982 contract expired and asked Reich to supply a list of teams he would accept in a trade. "At first, we gave them two teams and the Mets were one of them," Reich said. "That list was later expanded."

The Mets, who have never had a slugger of Foster's dimensions in their lineup, pursued the trade vigorously. A year ago, they went after Winfield with the same kind of determination and lost out to the Yankees. This time, they brought the prize home.

Did Foster think that having baseball's two highest-priced players both playing left field in New York would create a rivalry between himself and Winfield?

"There was no rivalry between us when he was in the National League," he said. "Why should there be one with him in the American League?"

College Basketball Roundup

'Bama next to fall

By The Associated Press

Although LSU is tied for the Southeastern Conference lead, the Tigers are not the basketball powerhouse they have been in recent years. Maybe that's why Coach Dale Brown was so ecstatic about the Tigers 73-68 victory over 10th-ranked Alabama Wednesday night.

"This may be the proudest I've ever been in my 10 years at LSU," Brown quipped after his hotheaded Bengals used a second-half delay game to upset the Crimson Tide and retain a share of the SEC lead with Tennessee.

"It may be the most gallant performance of any team I've coached."

With Leonard Mitchell scoring 18 points, LSU raced to a 40-20 lead with 4:15 left in the first half. But an ankle injury one minute later put Mitchell out of the game after he hit on nine of 13 shots and grabbed eight rebounds.

In the second half, LSU went to a delay offense, going without a field goal in the final 4:09. But the Tigers hit 10 of 14 free throws, four by Howard Carter, who scored a game-high 20 points.

Alabama was the only member of

The Associated Press Top Twenty to lose, but two others had close calls.

Top-rated Virginia needed two free throws by Ralph Sampson with three seconds left to ensure a 39-36 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over North Carolina State, while third-ranked DePaul nipped Evansville 59-58.

In the Second Ten, 12th-ranked Kentucky turned back Mississippi 56-49 and No. 16 Wake Forest flattened Clemson 94-76, but Oklahoma knocked off No. 15 Kansas State 68-58.

LSU's victory was its 23rd straight at home.

ON THE RECEIVING END—University of Texas Center LaSalle Thompson grasps a pass on his way to the goal Wednesday night in Texas Christian University's Daniel-Meyer Coliseum.

SWC Roundup

Horned Frogs top 'Horns

By JOE STROOP

Associated Press Writer
When your basketball opponent has a dominant big man parked under the bucket, the best strategy usually is to try to neutralize him, make him as ineffective as possible.

It worked twice and backfired once in Southwest Conference play Wednesday night.

Texas Christian beat Texas by finding the solution to Longhorn center LaSalle Thompson at the critical time and Rice shackled Texas Tech by limiting big center Clarence Swanegan's effectiveness.

But woebegone Southern Methodist, sinking ever deeper into the league cellar, put an effective collar on lanky Texas A&M center Rudy Woods and still got beat.

The Ponies limited the 6-11 Aggie senior to nine points and got him in early foul trouble, so A&M coach Shelby Metcalf just shifted gears and let his guards do all the scoring.

"Texas A&M is a smart team," said Pony coach Dave Bliss.

Reggie Roberts, Milton Woodley and Tyren Nauls proved him right by scoring a total of 41 points and the Aggies moved into sole possession of second place in the SWC standings with a 67-58 win.

The Horned Frogs gave Thompson 30 points until they switched to a man-for-man defense and ran off a 21-4 scoring binge midway through the second half to beat Texas 81-69, the 'Horns sixth loss in their last seven games.

"This was really a big win for us," said Frogs coach Jim Killingsworth, whose team now stands alone in third place. "We had one clutch time in the game where we got a run going on them and they (Longhorns) seemed to get their heads down."

And Rice gave Swanegan just nine points while Owl forward Ricky Pierce was collecting 35 to lead Rice's 76-56 mauling of the Red Raiders in Houston.

WIMBERLY HARDRICK ... gives Hawks punch

SPORTS NOTEPAD

The Big Spring Lady Steers host Abilene Cooper in a 6:30 p.m. District 5-A-A-A-A-A game in the BSHS gym. Big Spring is 1-4 in second half play.

A big game tips-off at 8 p.m. in Midland's Chaparral Center when the third place Howard College Hawks, winners of three straight, meet first place Midland College. Midland is 12-1 in conference play after knocking off Amarillo 88-86 Monday night. The Hawks have been idle since a win Saturday night over New Mexico Military Institute.

On the Courts
For the third time, Big Spring and Permian will try to play a District 5-A-A-A-A-A dual match. First two tries were snowed out. Steers and Lady Steers are 3-3 in league play. Today's match closes out district play.

At the Links
Big Spring is in San Antonio for a two-day tournament at the Riverside Municipal Golf Course. The tourney marks the season opener for the Steer golf team. Girls were sixth in same tournament last week.

SO LONG MEAN JOE—Pittsburgh Steeler defensive tackle Joe Greene stands in the Steeler office lobby with his jersey over his shoulder after he announced his retirement from football on Wednesday in Pittsburgh. Greene was a first round draft choice for the Steelers in 1969 and went on to become the leader of the "Steel Curtain."

Mean Joe hangs 'em

PITTSBURGH (AP) — After 13 years of waging war in the pits, defensive tackle Joe Greene of the Pittsburgh Steelers is looking forward to a peaceful life of retirement.

"My plans are to live, to enjoy the easy life. I'm a non-combatant now," Greene said Wednesday at a luncheon called to say he was quitting.

"I came here as a boy. I leave here as a man. I tend to think of this time as a graduation," he added.

Greene, 35, was the first draft choice that Coach Chuck Noll made in building a football dynasty that produced four Super Bowl titles in six years.

Greene, the pillar of the "Steel Curtain" front four, has played in 10 Pro Bowls since coming here in 1969 out of North Texas State, and Noll believes he was the best defensive lineman ever.

"He set the standard for us. Physically, he had quickness, speed, agility, strength, the ability to find the ball. But he also set the standard for attitude. There will never be another Joe Greene. Joe will always be something special," Noll said.

Greene's eyes glistened under the glare of television lights as he made the announcement, but he remained unemotional and brushed off eulogies just as he cast aside blockers in his prime.

"I wanted this to be a happy occasion," he said. And when asked how he would like to be remembered, "Mean Joe" laughed.

"I think our recruiting went very well."

A&M coach Jackie Sherrill

SWC hauls in bluechippers

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

The University of Texas can turn an excellent football recruiting crop into one of its best ever if either holdout running back Marcus DuPree of Philadelphia, Missouri or Anthony Byerly of Newton, Texas decide to sign with the Longhorns.

Both passed on indicating the school of their choice on national of letter intent day Wednesday.

Oklahoma and Texas were reported at the top of DuPree's list while Byerly was pondering Texas and Nebraska.

Texas Coach Fred Akers made new Longhorns out of such bluechippers as Gene Chilton, Houston Memorial offensive lineman, James McKinney, Austin Johnson defensive lineman, Johnny Cooper, Port Arthur Jefferson defensive lineman, center Todd Parks of Ennis and lineman Terry Steelhammer of El Paso Eastwood.

The Texas Aggies did well considering new Coach Jackie Sherrill only had a few weeks to recruit.

Alternate fuels from renewable resources tested by scientists

By ROBERT L. HANEY
TAES Science Writer

A variety of alternate fuels from renewable resources are being tested by scientists at Texas A&M University, according to Dr. Ed Hiller, Head of the Department of Agricultural Engineering.

The work is in cooperation with the national effort to reduce our dependence on petroleum, both domestic and imported. Imports of petroleum in some recent years have contributed heavily to the creation of a trade imbalance. Since 1978, gains in exports, (primarily agricultural), have more than balanced deficits created by imports of petroleum, cars, electrical goods, etc. but recent gains in the dollar could change this situation.

State and federal legislation has been developed establishing a policy of encouraging the making of ethanol for fuel from agricultural crops.

Plant breeders with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station are developing crops with high yields of biomass which can serve as a source of ethanol fuel and other products.

Experiment Station engineers are seeking to develop ways to use such fuel as a substitute for natural gas powered irrigation pumps, since irrigation is the largest single user of energy in Texas agriculture.

The state has in excess of 90,000 irrigation wells which provide ground water for irrigating seven million acres. Power units for irrigation pumps are presently fueled by natural gas, 65 percent; electricity, 33 percent; and others (diesel, L-P gas, gasoline), 2 percent.

Ethanol may be substituted for natural gas and other petroleum products as fuel for spark ignition power units. Dr. William H. Alred, Experiment Station Engineer, is testing ways to modify existing irrigation power units to burn ethanol.

Necessary modifications include altering the carburetor and adding a heat source to insure complete vaporization of the alcohol, according to Alred.

Alred says his research team is testing techniques for vaporizing ethanol that were developed in the Texas A&M University Chemical Engineering Department. Though these techniques were developed for gas engines, Alred believes they can be adapted for diesel engines.

Extensive testing of such units now under way will determine such things as the maximum practical compression ratio, power characteristics, crank case pollution, rapidity of engine wear, and exhaust gas components.

Other major users of liquid fuel are farm tractors and other field machines but the diesel is the predominant type of engine, and ethanol is not the best type of fuel for such compression-ignition engines, according to Dr. Wayne LePori, another Experiment Station engineer.

He is involved in research to determine the feasibility of using ethanol and vegetable oils as the major fuel component in diesel engines.

For using vegetable oils, blends of vegetable oil and diesel fuels will be evaluated and vegetable oil-ethanol fueling techniques will be investigated.

In tests on six sunflower seed oil fuels, crude filtered sunflower seed oil was found to be unsuitable as a fuel, even in mixtures with diesel fuel.

Complete results for the 50 percent diesel-50 percent crude sunflower seed oil, the 25 percent diesel-75 percent crude sunflower seed oil, and the 100 percent crude sunflower seed oil were not obtained, due to the very high rate of lubrication oil fouling.

The lubricating oil became contaminated and "sticky" after only one hour and four minutes of operation at full load, when using the 75 percent crude sunflower seed oil mixture. However, degummed and degummed-dewaxed sunflower oil has potential as a substitute without blending in engines with precombustion chambers. It appears that the thermal efficiency for 100 percent degummed sunflower seed oil and degummed-dewaxed sunflower seed oil is a little higher than diesel.

Similar results to those with a 75-25 mixture were obtained with the 50-50 mixture and the 100 percent crude sunflower seed oil. These crude sunflower oils were considered unsuitable for fueling diesel engines. However, degummed and degummed-dewaxed sunflower oil does have potential if the oil contamination problem can be eliminated.

Work is being intensified by these Experiment Station engineers on cottonseed oil and animal fats, since Texas is a leader in production of both cotton and livestock.

LePori says that as a resource, in meeting the emergency liquid fuels shortage, the U.S. rendering industry has been largely ignored. The current U.S. ratio of inedible fats to total plant oils is 0.6 to 1.0.

Inedible animal fats traditionally sell for several cents a pound less than the lowest priced plant oil, and would be the first economic choice in shifting from fossil to replenishable fuels.

ROUGHNECKING — Tim Blakeman climbs to the top of an oil rig near Evanston, Wyo., last week, during sub-zero temperatures that covered most of the west. Blakeman feels that working the rigs "gets in your blood." He has been roughnecking for five years in Nevada, Texas and Idaho, and plans on going into the production end of the business.

English teacher files suit over grade flap

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) — A high school English teacher who resigned because of "harassment" by administrators who accused her of failing too many students has sued the school district for $500,000.

Patricia F. Wicker, a teacher at J.J. Pearce High School in this Dallas suburb for seven years, claims she was denied freedom of speech and academic freedom and was harassed by administrators who observed her classes at least twice a week.

Mrs. Wicker resigned Dec. 7 after parents, school officials and trustees became embroiled in a controversy over the grades she gave her students. About 33 percent of her sophomore students received failing grades during the 1980-81 school year and 38 percent the previous year. None of her senior students failed either year.

The school board rejected Pearce principal Robert Stamps' recommendation last May that Mrs. Wicker be given a probationary contract for failing too many students.

After about 50 parents complained to school officials over the summer, Stamps ordered 24 administrative observations and evaluations over four months last fall.

The suit, filed in federal district court Tuesday, claims Mrs. Wicker suffered diminished earning capacity, damage to her professional reputation and mental anguish from the harassment.

Barbara O'Neal, president-elect of the Texas State Teacher's Association, which is financing the legal action, said such actions by officials are the reason "teachers are being forced out of the profession."

The suit seeks $250,000 in actual damages, $250,000 in exemplary damages and up to $37,000 in legal fees.

Named as defendants are Stamps, Richardson Independent School District Superintendent John Roberts and the seven school trustees.

Roberts said the suit "was not unexpected" and would be treated as "rather routine."

Trustee president Robert Warner said Mrs. Wicker's suit is "not founded... We would be derelict in our duty if we didn't take the action we did."

Stamps said he was "surprised" by the allegations, but that he could not comment further.

Mrs. Wicker said she had been advised not to comment on the case.

Cattlemen, restaurants fight over meat grading proposals

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Cattlemen, feeders and meat packers lined up against restaurant owners, and grocers were divided as the U.S. Department of Agriculture opened hearings Tuesday on proposed changes in meat grading.

The hearings, which now go to Atlanta Thursday and then to Washington, Des Moines and Dallas, are on the USDA proposal to reduce the amount of marbling, flecks of fat within the lean, required in the prime, choice and good grades. Standard grade would be eliminated.

Similar changes were made in 1976. Restaurant owners contend reducing the marbling reduces the tastiness and tenderness of the beef, while the cattlemen contend it would make no significant change.

The cattlemen and their allies contended the amount of marbling required for choice should be reduced even further, but, to make sure the animals have been on feed, 3 inch of fat cover should be at the 12th rib and the color of the fat should not be too yellow.

Nearly 90 percent of the graded beef sold is choice. Most meat that doesn't meet choice standards is sold ungraded, but has still passed federal inspection.

The only grocers' representative to testify, Jim Olsen, president of the Utah Retail Grocers Association, said the association was unable to take a "clear-cut stand."

"Those grocers who sell strictly prime and choice grades are opposed to the changes because they feel there is a good selection and variety of grades presently on the market," he said.

Grocers in favor of the proposal feel "the average consumer doesn't know the difference. Most of the grocers in this category have already moved away from strictly the top grades and have gone to leaner cuts."

Cattlemen want the marbling requirements reduced to cut the time cattle spend on expensive feed. They say cattle often become too fat.

"If cattle could grade choice with slight marbling, it would not be necessary to feed those last few days where so much fat is produced," said William D. Farr, Greeley, Colo., representing the National Cattlemen's Association.

"A majority of the weight gain in the final finishing phase is fat. Research has shown that it requires more than twice as much energy to put on fat than it does to put on muscle protein," said John Ferry, Corinne, representing the Utah Farm Bureau Federation.

He said the proposed standards would save about $450 million per year in cattle-feeding costs.

Edward O. Elliott, Mount Victory, Ohio, representing the National Restaurant Association, and Hersh Ipakchian, Salt Lake, of the Utah Restaurant Association said customers demand marbling.

They contend the choice category already encompasses too wide a spread of quality, and the grading system is being eroded. They say restaurateurs have trouble obtaining high quality beef, and there are increases in customer complaints.

"Credibility of beef quality had eroded. Our biggest problem today is the unreliability of the system to deliver consistent grade quality."

"The bottom half of the present choice grade is so inconsistent in eating satisfaction that it drives consumers away from the beef counter," he said.

"The public cannot be fooled. They know what they want and no amount of labeling changes can alter it," Ipakchian said.

The restaurateurs called for a return to pre-1976 standards and creation of a committee with representatives from throughout the beef chain to study the grading system.

They also spoke favorably toward a suggestion, which originated with cattlemen and the USDA but is not part of the proposal under consideration, to create a new grade, "select" out of the good and bottom of the choice grades.

Cattlemen contend consumers are moving toward leaner meat, and they cite increased sales of ungraded beef.

They also cite studies at Iowa State and Texas A&M that found "palatability will not suffer markedly," under the USDA proposal.

Opponents of the grading change contend the beef served people in the tests was cooked in ovens instead of broiled. They say broiling heightens the difference in tenderness in the different grades.

Embargo rumors hurt farmers, Block says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rumors and speculation about the possibility of the administration imposing a trade embargo on the Soviet Union are hurting farmers, says Agriculture Secretary John R. Block.

"Everyone seems to want to talk about embargoes," Block said. "I don't want to talk about embargoes because they make the market nervous and they cause apprehension and concern, and they hurt prices."

Block made his comments Tuesday in response to a question during a telephone interview with a group of farm broadcasters.

President Reagan suspended forthcoming grain talks and imposed other sanctions on the Soviet Union for its role in the imposition of martial law in Poland.

Moreover, Reagan has threatened further action — including the possibility of total trade embargo — if the situation in Poland fails to improve.

Many farmers and their organizations are fearful of another embargo, perhaps tighter than the partial lid ordered by then-President Carter on Jan. 4, 1980, as retaliation against the Soviet move into Afghanistan.

That embargo was lifted by Reagan last April after months of pressure by Block and other farm leaders.

"The president has made it quite clear that there won't be a grain embargo (by itself) because he would not want to single out... agriculture," Block said.

Displaying edginess at the question, Block added: "I just need to remind people — No. 1, this administration is the administration that took the (previous) embargo off, and, No. 2, this is the administration that has not imposed an embargo on grains. I think it's important for people to keep that in mind."

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you try to force your ideas on others today, you are bound to have trouble, so be more diplomatic. Follow your hunches.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Not a good day to handle private affairs. Wait for a better time. Strive for increased harmony with associates. Be happy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get busy improving business methods so that you can get ahead faster. Concentrate more on the practical aspects.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can now expect pleasure coming your way, so be on the alert for the enjoyment you have missed in the past.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Going off on a fun spree could be disappointing and expensive, so be more devoted to the tasks at hand for best results.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) An associate can give you a fine idea that will open new vistas of advancement for you, so be sure to go along with it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) You understand much better now what should be done regarding financial affairs. Try not to argue with an associate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) Handle only important affairs early in the day and then be off to recreations that will lighten your spirit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan how to have more abundance in the future and cut down on recreational expenses. Show that you have wisdom.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Talking over mutual projects with associates can bring greater success in the future. Engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Discussing finances with experts helps you to run your own affairs more intelligently. Be careful in travel today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study a monetary matter carefully before taking any action. Sidestep one who is thinking only of your assets. Be logical.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she must be taught to handle difficult problems intelligently, and then the life becomes a successful one. A fine college education is needed here. Show the importance of religion and ethics early in life.

Path to cigarette smoking gradual for most teen-agers

WASHINGTON (AP) — With "peer pressure" long cited as a major reason teen-agers being to smoke, a psychologist at the Catholic University of America here is trying a novel approach to understand how this peer-pressure process works.

Based on data collected from about 200 smokers, ages 12-18, Wade Martin says "one clear finding" has emerged: "Kids don't jump one day from being a non-smoker to being a regular smoker."

Prior research into adolescent smoking always compared smokers to non-smokers, an approach Martin calls "well-intentioned" but which ignored intermediate stages on the way to becoming "hooked" on cigarettes.

"A substantial proportion of all kids have smoked at least one cigarette by the time they reach ninth grade, but not everyone who smokes a cigarette becomes a regular smoker," says Martin, an assistant professor of psychology and associate of Catholic University's Boys Town Center for the Study of Youth Development.

"There's a gradual process in going from one day sitting there hating cigarettes and hating people who smoke cigarettes, to two years later going out and buying a pack of cigarettes and sitting around with people who smoke," he says.

For his research, the professor focused on "what kids think of themselves" — including in the study only teen-agers who classified themselves as smokers and asking them, among other questions, to label themselves as "regular or habitual," "social or occasional" or "beginner or experimenter."

Data was collected on questionnaires and during interviews conducted by a group of high-school psychology students Martin trained as interviewers. Martin was also assisted by sociologist Douglas Sloane, a visiting professor at Boys Town Center, and psychologist Wendy Zevin, a Catholic University graduate.

While Martin only recently began analyzing his research data, the project has already yielded several findings, he reports. Among them:

- "Most teen-agers don't really have a good idea why they start smoking," Martin says. Assuming that teen-agers could fix a specific time and reason for when and why they started smoking has been a major fault with prior research into adolescent smoking, he adds.

- Social smokers, the label applied to teen-agers who smoke only occasionally or only in certain situations such as with friends, consider themselves to be a "smoker" only part of the time.

- Intermediate smokers believe they can quit any time and that they are not really harming their health. "They've developed a positive identification of smoking and the negative ID hasn't caught up with them," Martin says.

- Social smokers aren't worried about the health hazards associated with smoking, although some regular smokers have noticed its effect on their health. "Everybody knows smoking is bad for your health, but teen-agers really aren't interested in whether they'll die from lung cancer when they're 45," Martin says.

- The enjoyment aspect of smoking, often cited by social smokers, diminishes once a teen-ager crosses the line to become a regular or habitual smoker.

- Teen-agers have noticed a group of "anti-smokers" emerging among their peers. This group, distinct from teen-agers who are simply non-smokers, refuses to associate with smokers.

Funded by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, Martin's research is a pilot project which he hopes will lead to further research into how smoking affects adolescents' identity.

CATS CRADLING — If the cats in the zoo have nothing to do, they can always curl up and snooze. These cats at the Berlin Zoo are caracals, which come from Africa. They are somewhat larger than a fox, have reddish-brown fur and long lux-like ear tufts.

Pekingese is winner of dog show

NEW YORK (AP) — Anne E. Snelling of Ottawa has retired her Westminster Kennel Club dog show winner, Ch. St. Aubrey Dragonara of Elsdon, from competition. But she conceded the champion may still be seen in the show ring.

"No more of these all-breed shows," Snelling said Tuesday night. "From now on she's going to live at home and I'll spoil her. But maybe I'll enter her in a specialty show here and there just to let people know she hasn't been fed to the cat."

Dragonara is Snelling's Pekingese on the competitive trail, but she was not her first Westminster winner. In 1979 her Irish Water Spaniel, Ch. Oak Tree's Irishtocrat, was sent to the top. Several owners have produced two winners in the 106 years of Westminster — but Snelling is the first to win with two different breeds.

Dragonara was selected by Mrs. Robert Lindsay over five other finalists at the closing session of the two-day Westminster before a crowd of about 7,500 in Madison Square Garden.

Dragonara was handled as usual by Bill Trainor. She stayed with Trainor at his Oxford, Mass., home during the show season and lived with her owner during the rest of the year.

"Bill really spoiled her," Snelling said. "So now it's my turn. When Dragonara gets turned on in a show, as she did here, she really has it."

Dragonara was the first Pekie to win the top prize in 22 years. The last (and first) Pekie to go to the top was Ch. Chik T'Sun of Caversham, in 1960. As for Trainor, he joked that Lindsay recognized quality in the competitors in the final.

"You know," he said with a grin, "I have been around Westminster for over 30 years. It took 28 for me to win my first best with Irishtocrat. Now I've won two in four years. Remarkable!"

The crowd was somewhat disappointed with the result. Most of the spectators cheered for Ch. Beech Hills Benji von Masco, a German Shepherd entered by Mary Ellen Thomas of Bensalem, Pa. Beech Hills won the working group.

$8,000 award made in 118th

Jerry C. Jamison was awarded $8,000 in 118th District Court Monday in his civil suit against the Texas Employers Insurance Association. Jamison had filed his original suit in August, 1981.

The final judgment in the workers' compensation suit had come from District Judge Jim Gregg. Jamison was represented by Big Spring attorney Jack Thompson. The insurance association was represented by Michael McKinney of Midland.

Jamison filed the suit after failing to receive compensation from an accident he suffered in 1980.

Cold weather blamed for retail sales drop

By The Associated Press

Severe weather in much of the nation contributed to a 1.1 percent drop last month in retail sales, the government said in a new economic report.

The decline was the fourth in the past seven months. Adding more evidence of the recession's strength were layoffs announcements Wednesday by two major companies.

The Commerce Department said a 4.6 percent drop in car sales led the overall decline in retail sales. The department also changed its earlier estimate of a 0.4 percent increase in December retail sales to a drop of 0.2 percent.

Malcolm Baldrige, the department's secretary, said he expected sales to pick up this spring as the weather improves. Bigger gains will be made when the 10 percent cut in personal income taxes takes effect July 1, he added.

President Reagan, meanwhile, predicted his tax-cut policies will produce a "vigorous" recovery later this year although unemployment will remain high.

Also Wednesday, the Senate gave final congressional approval to an additional $2.3 billion in jobless pay and services to deal with the unemployment problem.

While saying the unemployment rate will remain at an average of 8.9 percent throughout this year, Reagan refused to retreat from his economic policies.

"I am convinced that our policies, now that they are in place, are the appropriate response to our current difficulties," Reagan said in a statement accompanying his economic report to Congress. The report is required each winter.

Reagan's new budget plan projects budget deficits averaging $91 billion a year from 1982 through 1984. That has drawn a steady stream of criticism from Democrats and some Republicans in Congress.

In apparent response to Reagan's challenge to his critics to "put up or shut up," Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., called for a one-year freeze on defense spending at current levels, elimination of one year's cost-of-living increases for Social Security and government pension recipients and major reductions in the three-year tax-cut plan that took effect last October.

ASKS INTERIM SUPPORT — Sheila Dena Al-Fassi is escorted back into the courtroom Tuesday by her attorney, Marvin Mitchelson, during a break at Los Angeles Superior Court. Mrs. Al-Fassi is asking interim support of $75,000 a month and claims her husband, Mohammed Al-Fassi, has cut her off without a penny.

Interest grows in alternative budget idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan remains opposed to an alternative to his 1983 spending plan proposed by one of the Senate's leading Democratic budget experts, despite GOP senators' interest in the idea, a White House spokesman says.

Alaska Republican Ted Stevens said on Wednesday that the proposal by Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., "merits a lot of consideration."

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia, meanwhile, said Hollings' ideas "will be looked at with all other proposals." And he called on Reagan to take the "courageous step" of withdrawing his budget and submitting a new one.

Hollings, ranking Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee, said his alternative could cut Reagan's projected deficit of $91.5 billion for 1983 to $42 billion, and produce a surplus in 1985.

But word from the White House was that Reagan is flatly opposed to Hollings' proposal.

Reagan's proposed budget calls for a $33 billion increase in defense spending, $27 billion in additional cuts in domestic programs and no major tax increases.

In other congressional business Wednesday: Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker told the House Banking Committee the Fed won't try to "buy the economy out of recession" by releasing a flood of new money to finance a recovery.

Hance testifies at foreclosure hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The gloomy, prolonged depression for Texas farmers has taken the fun out of holding town hall meetings, laments Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, of Lubbock.

"You always want to stand near the door whenever you speak," he said Tuesday during testimony before a House agriculture subcommittee that is holding hearings into the foreclosure threats that have forced thousands of farmers nationwide to consider putting their land and equipment up for sale.

"We kept saying three years ago, it can't get worse. Two years ago, we said the same thing. We told the farmer it can't get worse, and he believed that. Now, I'm supposed to tell him that again?" Hance asked.

During his visit to his district during Christmas, there was a farm sale at Hereford, in the Texas Panhandle, "and nobody showed." Farm machinery now is bringing 25 cents on the dollar, he said.

Prices have plummeted again in the past year, he said. Corn prices dropped from $3.45 to $2.80 a bushel, wheat from $4 to $3.70 a bushel, grain sorghum from $5.65 to $4.40 per hundredweight, and cotton from 80 to 38 cents a pound.

"In a year like the one just past, when the Secretary of Agriculture asked farmers to plant fence row to fence row, the farmers in West Texas do not understand why low price is not an acceptable reason for repayment," Hance added.

"With no set-aside or diversion programs, the farmers have a better chance of stopping floods, hail, wind and fire than they do of stopping low prices."

The U.S. Department of Agriculture could help by implementing a $600 million emergency program that is available but lying unused, Hance said.

"We kept saying three years ago, it can't get worse. Two years ago, we said the same thing. We told the farmer it can't get worse, and he believed that. Now, I'm supposed to tell him that again?" Hance asked.

During his visit to his district during Christmas, there was a farm sale at Hereford, in the Texas Panhandle, "and nobody showed." Farm machinery now is bringing 25 cents on the dollar, he said.

Prices have plummeted again in the past year, he said. Corn prices dropped from $3.45 to $2.80 a bushel, wheat from $4 to $3.70 a bushel, grain sorghum from $5.65 to $4.40 per hundredweight, and cotton from 80 to 38 cents a pound.

"In a year like the one just past, when the Secretary of Agriculture asked farmers to plant fence row to fence row, the farmers in West Texas do not understand why low price is not an acceptable reason for repayment," Hance added.

"With no set-aside or diversion programs, the farmers have a better chance of stopping floods, hail, wind and fire than they do of stopping low prices."

The U.S. Department of Agriculture could help by implementing a $600 million emergency program that is available but lying unused, Hance said.

"If Congress did not think the program was absolutely necessary, we would not have appropriated the funds for it," Hance said.

The subcommittee spent most of its morning session grilling Charles Shuman, FmHA administrator, who said he felt adequate funds are available without using the emergency program.

But other congressmen, citing situations in their districts similar to those Hance mentioned, were unimpressed.

"We think the situation is drastic. If you don't, we understand why you have not recommended it, as you have the power to do," said Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., the subcommittee chairman.

"If you do recognize it as drastic, then I for the life of me don't understand why you haven't recommended it," Jones said.

In a similar hearing by his panel last week, Jones said he'd never conducted a hearing on a subject on which he had been deluged by so many calls from colleagues who reported deep concern.

Members of the subcommittee said they have been inundated by calls from farmers who have been told by the FmHA that they should get out of the business and that their loans would not be renewed.

Shuman acknowledged he sent FmHA state directors a memo last fall urging them to reduce the number of loan delinquencies. Low commodity prices were not to be considered an acceptable reason for farmers' inability to pay.

But he told the subcommittee Tuesday that he sent out a new memo last Wednesday superseding his previous instructions. The latest memo, dispatched following a meeting with Hance earlier in the day about Texas problems, emphasizes that low commodity prices should indeed be a factor.

"FmHA will consider all available resources, reamortization and deferral of present FmHA loans under certain conditions to give the borrower the best possible chance to succeed," Shuman said.

The FmHA considers itself a lender of last resort for those unable to get conventional loans.

Rep. Ron Marston, R-Mont., said even if Shuman feels the FmHA has enough money to keep owners from making their payments, the agency also owes an obligation to other farmers who are trying to get loans for the first time.

Hance said of 16,000 farm ownership and operating loans made by FmHA in Texas, 38 percent are considered delinquent. The FmHA wrote 1,250 of them informing them they would no longer continue to be financed, including 400 in his district, he added.

With 400 borrowers facing foreclosure or voluntary liquidation, "every county supervisor I have talked with tells me that his appointment book is completely full through April and some are full through May," Hance said.

If farmers don't know by the end of March whether they are going to get operating money, there will be no reason to talk to FmHA in April or May, he said, since it will be too late to plant a crop.

Yet the FmHA said termination notices in January to 69 emergency personnel in Texas, including 51 in his district.

Lee Majors called 'unhappy' about Farrah Fawcett's dating

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Farrah Fawcett says her dates with Ryan O'Neal upset her husband, Lee Majors, very much, but Majors wanted to salvage the marriage and proposed a second wedding ceremony on the couple's anniversary.

The actress, who rocketed to fame on ABC's "Charlie's Angels" TV series, balked at some of the questions put to her Wednesday during a property-settlement hearing in her divorce case.

"You are not to argue with the lawyer," Superior Court Judge Harry Shafer told Miss Fawcett as she was being questioned by Majors' lawyer. Real trials, the judge said, are "not like what you've seen on TV."

Miss Fawcett, wearing a bright red sweater and an ankle-length plaid skirt with boots, frequently ran her hands through her tousled blond hair as she testified about her separation from Majors, now starring in the TV series "The Fall Guy," and their failure to reconcile.

O'Neal has been linked romantically with Miss Fawcett since her marriage to Majors hit the rocks in mid-1979.

"In November or December of 1979, when Lee returned from Toronto, he was very upset that you were seeing Ryan O'Neal, is that right?" Majors' lawyer, Harry Fain, asked Miss Fawcett in cross-examination.

"Yes," Miss Fawcett replied.

"At that time, didn't he tell you he hoped you and he would still get back together and redo your marriage vows on July 28, 1980, your anniversary?" asked the lawyer.

"Yes," Miss Fawcett said.

The confrontation, the actress said, came several months after the couple decided to announce their separation in July 1979, just before their sixth wedding anniversary.

"I was going on a trip to publicize the film, 'Sunburn,' and I knew the questions would come up: 'How's the marriage, are you going to have a baby?'" she recalled. "I wanted the announcement made so I could say, 'No comment.'"

The property-settlement issue is the final hurdle in the estranged couple's divorce case.

FARRAH LEAVES COURT — Actress Farrah Fawcett enters a car with an unidentified companion Wednesday after testifying at the divorce property settlement trial involving her and her actor-husband Lee Majors.

The key dispute at the trial is who owns the $2.5 million house the couple lived in during their marriage. They disagree as to when they stopped living there as husband and wife.

Miss Fawcett acknowledged that as late as the fall of 1979, she and Majors gave a party together at their home. But she insisted the actor wasn't living with her at that time.

'60 Minutes' tops ratings again

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' "60 Minutes" was the No. 1 show in prime time for the second straight week and the sixth time this season, and that helped the network to another first place in its race with ABC and NBC, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

The only real challenge to "60 Minutes" in the competition for the week ending Feb. 7 was from the first installment in ABC's two-part TV premiere of "Superman," which nudged CBS' "Dallas" out of second place.

NBC scored, meanwhile, with the conclusion of a two-part made-for-TV movie, "World War III," in second place, but the struggling network had only one other show — No. 17 "Real People" — in the week's Top 20.

CBS, with 13 of the week's 20 highest-rated programs, had an average rating for the period of 19.9 to 18 for ABC and 15.9 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute, 19.9 percent of the nation's television-equipped homes were watching CBS.

The rating for "60 Minutes" was 30.2. Nielsen says that means of the country's homes with television, 30.2 percent saw at least part of the show.

"Falcon Crest" on CBS and ABC's "Fall Guy" were the highest-rated of the season's new shows — tied for 13. Six newly introduced series were, in contrast, among the week's 11 lowest-rated programs — No. 61 "Code Red" on ABC, ABC's "Open All Night" 63rd, "McClain's Law" on NBC 67th, ABC's "King's Crossing" 69th, "Cassie & Co." on NBC 70th, and "Billy Crystal Comedy Hour," also on NBC, 71st.

Rounding out the week's five least-watched list was "NBC Magazine," No. 68.

One made-for-TV movie, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," on CBS, was moderately successful in the ratings — No. 20 — while three others did not fare as well. "A Piano for Mrs. Cimino" starring Bette Davis, also on CBS, was No. 40, with "The Day the Bubble Burst" on NBC, 64th, and CBS' "Million Dollar Infield" No. 66.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows:

"60 Minutes," with a rating of 30.2 representing 24.7 million homes, CBS; Movie: "Superman," Part I, 29.6 or 24.2 million, ABC; "Dallas," "8.4 or 23.3 million, CBS; "Trapper John, M.D.," CBS, and "Too Close for Comfort," ABC, both 25.2 or 20.6 million; "Three's Company," 24.9 or 20.4 million, ABC; Movie: "World War III," Part II, 23.5 or 19.2 million, NBC; "Hart to Hart," 23.1 or 18.9 million, ABC, and "Dukes of Hazzard" and "Magnum, P.I.," both 22.8 or 18.7 million, both CBS.

The remainder of the Top 20:

"M.A.S.H." and "The Jeffersons," both CBS; "Falcon Crest," CBS, and "Fall Guy," ABC, tie; "Archie Bunker's Place" and "One Day at a Time," both CBS; "Real People," NBC, and "Alice," "Walt Disney" and Movie: "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," all CBS.

New center tries to ease culture shock for refugees

HOUSTON (AP) — Most Indochinese refugees living here know they can never go back. That, says Khoi Tien Bui, formerly a cabinet minister in South Vietnam, is one of the things that makes them so homesick — many suffer from severe depression.

But because of the efforts Houston Community College and others, the 35,000 refugees who settled here can visit a little bit of "the old country" at the school's recently opened refugee center.

Right now, the center doesn't look like much. It is little more than some filing cabinets and a glass case containing a few artifacts from the Orient. But refugees who come here can learn American customs, get job information or simply listen to the folk music of their native land.

Houston has the second largest population of Indochinese people in the country. Most came here from Vietnam in the last seven years, and many have not yet recovered from the culture shock, Khoi said.

"The refugees came here looking for freedom but lost everything else," Khoi said. "Many are still fighting this. We are thinking about the emotional and cultural depression a lot."

"My people were coming from an underdeveloped country, a heart-oriented country, to a might-oriented country. They asked 'How can I adjust to the very high standards of living here?'" he said.

Khoi himself left his parents, a brother and sister behind when he fled a crumbling Saigon in 1975. His father died in 1978 and he only occasionally gets letters from his relatives in Vietnam.

He is a poet, a former cabinet minister in the department of agriculture and winner of his country's highest literary prize.

But the center is not designed for people like Khoi, who spoke English fluently before he arrived, and was able to get a job quickly. Many of the refugees arrived here without command of the English language or any knowledge of American ways, he said.

The center tells them how to ride a bus, make change or use indoor plumbing. How to get a job, tell time, or use a stove. They can also learn how to start the process toward gaining U.S. citizenship.

Printed information is available in three languages — Vietnamese, Khmer and Lao. Pamphlets tell the refugees about American history, its customs and legends.

They are told about Ben Franklin, George Washington and the first Thanksgiving. But they are also reminded of their own heritage at the center.

"The Indochinese refugees want to learn English and learn American customs but they don't want to forget their own ways and cultures," said Eli Zal, the college administrator who runs the school's refugee programs. A series of slide presentations, record albums and oral history cassettes have preserved traditional dances, customs and folksongs as well as documenting the refugee's journey to this country.

The few artifacts on display — including woodcarvings and Buddhas — are, ironically, on loan from Americans.

The college also sponsors a weekly one-hour radio show in which the announcers speak in Vietnamese. It supplements the center's historical information with current news and features.

"It's a general knowledge program. It helps people overcome the language barrier and outlines what's happening in Houston, in the United States and in Vietnam," Khoi said.

"Some people say they are very, very moved when they hear their language on the radio," he said.

Most of the materials have been donated by various community groups, citizens and the U.N. High Commission on Refugees. The center receives no public funds.

"Hopefully, in the future, we will have more of a budget to set things like lectures by people concerned about Indochinese problems," Khoi said.

Zal said the center was the recommendation of refugee leaders after the college asked them what they needed.

"I see it as a place that will grow in importance. Somewhere where the children and grandchildren of Indochinese refugees can come and see how the American press and people perceived them when they came here and what sources they had available for help."

Police Beat

Woman bilked of $50

A Big Spring woman lost $50 yesterday after two men conned her into giving the money to them in exchange for splitting a large sum of money the men supposedly had found, police said.

According to Detective Avery Falkner, the woman, Elinor Morrison of 218 N. Johnson, was approached by one of the men at Gibson's in the 3200 block of Scurry at about 2 p.m. The scheme, called a "pigeon drop" or found money scheme, then developed.

The man told Ms. Morrison he had found a large sum of money and would split it with her if she gave him and his partner, who was waiting at the post office on Main, $50 in cash. The $50 was "to show good faith" on the woman's part, Falkner said.

After the man and Ms. Morrison drove to the post office to meet the second man, the three then drove to a local business where one of the men supposedly worked, the detective said. It was there that the man's boss would vouch for the man's character.

"She got there," Falkner said, "and found out they didn't know anything about him." When she stepped outside, the men were gone.

Falkner said the money the men claimed to have found was "supposed to be gambling proceeds. That way the victim wouldn't feel too guilty about sharing it."

Based on past experience with such schemes, Falkner said he suspected that the two men weren't local residents.

"They were probably out of town by the time we got the report" at 2:45 p.m., he said.

Doyle Cunningham of Sweetwater told police he was stabbed at about 4 p.m. yesterday in an alley between Lancaster and Gregg. Cunningham said two black men approached him, called him names, and then one of the men stabbed him in the lower right side, according to police reports.

Cunningham was sent to the Veteran's Administration Medical Center for treatment of his wound, police said.

Sandra Gonzales of 200 N.E. Third told police she was assaulted by someone she knows at 4:55 p.m. yesterday.

Frank Cieminski of 501 Union told police he was assaulted by a stranger Monday night.

Lary Don Stephens of 2522 Dow told police someone broke into his home and took pearls worth $600 between Feb. 1 and Feb. 8.

Janie Reed of 800 E. 14th told police someone tossed a rock through a window of her Ford automobile while the car was parked at her home at about 6:20 p.m. yesterday.

Keaton Kolor at 1309 Gregg lost a movie projector after it was rented to a person and the person moved to a new address, failing to return the projector, police said.

Linda Green of 1511 Main told police a person known to her stole a purse and $140 from her home at about 8 a.m. yesterday.

A female juvenile was arrested on a theft charge at 10:15 p.m. yesterday after she allegedly stole a carton of cigarettes from the Gregg Street Safeway, police said.

H & R BLOCK SAYS "MANY WILL OVERPAY"

Most taxpayers feel their return is done correctly and to their advantage if they are not audited and they receive the refund shown on their tax return. This is not always true. The IRS does not check every return to see if the taxpayer took all legitimate deductions or if the taxpayer's financial circumstances have changed from year to year. H & R Block, using a thorough interview, makes the law work for the client. Every return is then double checked for correctness in both math and theory.

This is the 25th year for America's largest tax service. The company was built on the $5.00 and up tax return and still today charges only $7.50 and up for a 1040A. The average fee last year in Big Spring was less than $25.00. H & R Block this year is instantly processing 1040A's, which means the guaranteed 1040A return will be done in only one visit.

H & R Block does all types of income tax returns, not only the 1040A's but also business and farm returns are done at a modest fee.

H & R Block will make the laws work for you at their Big Spring office — located at 1512 Gregg — Telephone Number 263-1831. Appointments available. Closed Sunday. ADV.

Various rights of landlords and renters are spelled out

Understanding is vital in good relationship

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

So you've just moved out of the Shangrila Apartments for swinging singles and you're having trouble getting the landlord to return your security deposit. Or perhaps you're the manager of the Shangrila Apartments and have a tenant who won't pay his rent and you want to get the rent, but stay within the boundaries of the law.

Renters and landlords alike often are confused as the rules of the renting game and wonder what their responsibilities are. Texas has a tenant and landlord code which helps both sides to better understand their rights and what they may or may not do when confronted with a problem.

With the help of local attorney Bob Miller and Linda Truitt of the Better Business Bureau in Midland, several common misunderstandings between renters and landlords were explained.

SECURITY DEPOSIT: According to Ms. Truitt, this is one of the most misunderstood and abused parts of the landlord-tenant relationship.

"The security deposit is a specific sum of money given to a landlord guaranteeing him that the tenant will pay the rent before moving, and protecting him against any damage the tenant may purposely or accidentally cause to his property."

Since it is not considered rent, the landlord may retain the security deposit only under certain conditions when the tenant leaves," Ms. Truitt said.

Ms. Truitt said for a tenant to insure the deposit will be returned he must: 1) Give advance notice of termination 2) Provide the landlord with written notice of termination and a forwarding address 3) Fill all rental obligations under the lease 4) Leave the premises clean according to lease instructions.

"If the tenant has followed the above procedure, the landlord is obligated to return the security deposit within 30 days, or provide a written description and itemized list of all deductions," Ms. Truitt said.

Miller said if the landlord does not return the deposit within 30 days the tenant has the right to sue for three times the amount of the security deposit, $100 and reasonable attorney's fees.

REPAIRS: Miller said, according to the law, "after notice of a condition which materially affects the health and safety of the tenant, the landlord must, within a reasonable time, make a diligent effort to repair the situation. However, the landlord is not liable for any condition caused by the tenant other than normal wear and tear."

Miller said the tenant must give notice to the person or place where rent is paid and the tenant must not be delinquent in his rent.

Once a reasonable time has gone by the tenant must send a second notice, written in all cases, stating an intention to terminate the lease or sue if repairs are not made in seven days.

If relief is not forthcoming the tenant may sue for actual damages, one month's rent and $100. The tenant may also seek an injunction ordering the landlord to make the repairs and to reduce rent until repairs are made, Miller said.

RENT WITHHOLDING: Miller said if the tenant withholds rent because of the landlord's failure to make repairs the landlord can sue for one month's rent, $100 and reasonable attorney's fees. The landlord, however, must give the tenant written notice of these civil penalties for rent withholding.

EVICTION: "Evicting tenants due to failure to pay rent or follow apartment complex rules seems to be on the increase in the Permian Basin. Landlords know that another tenant can easily be found. A tenant may keep from being evicted if he knows his rights," Ms. Truitt said.

She said a landlord may not use force or threaten to use force to remove a tenant. Also if a tenant abandons the housing the landlord cannot remove the tenant's property.

"If he does, you have the right to move out without being liable for breaching the rental agreement and sue for actual damages, plus one month's rent and reasonable attorney's fees, minus any delinquent rentals or other sums owed the landlord," Ms. Truitt said.

Under Texas law, only a justice of the peace can lawfully evict a tenant by physical force. The first step a landlord must take to evict a tenant is to deliver a notized letter to the tenant stating he has three days to move or be sued. Delivery must be to a tenant 18-years-old or older and delivery must be witnessed by a third party, Ms. Truitt said.

If the tenant does not leave, the landlord must file a forcible entry and detainer with the JP. The justice will prepare a citation stating the date time and place the tenant must appear in court, usually six to 10 days.

If the tenant loses the trial and still chooses not to leave the justice then can issue a writ which instructs the proper law authorities to order the tenant to leave. If necessary, the law officials can legally throw the tenant off the premises, according to Ms. Truitt.

FAILURE TO PAY RENT: "A landlord of any residential property has a lien on all non-exempt property in the case of a tenant's failure to pay rent, but by the time you name off all the exempt property under law there's not a whole lot a landlord can take from an apartment or storage room," Miller said.

The landlord can seize a portion of the tenant's non-exempt property which has the approximate value of the amount owed, however, the landlord's lien is enforceable by self help (non-judicial process) only when the lien is outlined in the lease in conspicuous bold print, Miller said.

Under Texas law, exempt property includes: wearing apparel, all tools, professional books, school books, one automobile, one truck, family pictures or portraits, household furniture, foodstuffs, medicine and medical supplies, all goods known by landlord belonging to other people than the tenant or his family, any property known to be recorded in a chattel mortgage or financial agreement and all agriculture implements.

LOCK OUTS: Under Texas Law, a landlord may not willfully exclude a tenant except by judicial process even when the rent is delinquent.

However, the landlord may change the locks provided he leaves written notice on the front door informing the tenant who to see to get a key to the new locks at any hour of the day or night. The key must be provided even if the tenant is behind with rental payments.

The idea is to give the landlord the opportunity to confront the tenant and demand rent.

SUBSTITUTING SECURITY deposit for rent: Miller said the tenant may not substitute the security deposit for payment of the last month's rent or any portion of the rent.

Mortgage payments take bigger bite of family income in 1981

Record high mortgage interest rates and housing costs meant that those buying a home for the first time in 1981 needed to spend almost $4 of every $10 earned to meet their monthly mortgage payments.

This is reported by the Family Housing Bureau, a public information service of Chicago Title Insurance Co. that has studied home buying trends over the past six years.

Based on an annual survey conducted in 11 representative markets nationwide, the Family Housing Bureau found that the average monthly mortgage payment as a percentage of income rose to 38.4 percent for first-time home buyers in 1981, up from 35.6 percent the previous year.

Repeat or second-time home buyers also spent a greater percentage of their monthly income on mortgage payments in 1981, with the percentage rising to 33.4 percent from 30.3 percent in 1980.

In 1976 first-time buyers spent only 23 percent of their monthly income on housing while repeat buyers spent 24.9 percent. Since then, the percentage has risen steadily each year as housing costs have soared and mortgage rates have hit record highs.

Between 1976 and 1981, the average monthly mortgage payment, which includes principal, interest, taxes and insurance, rose to $694 from $329, a gain of 110 percent. Average monthly mortgage payments for first-time buyers rose to $665 from $313 during the same period, while the average payment for repeat buyers went to $725 from $342.

The survey revealed that home prices continued to rise faster than median household income in 1981. The median price of a home purchased in 1981 was $78,200, up 13.8 percent from $68,714 in 1980. But median household income rose only 8.2 percent, from $29,670 in 1980 to $32,130 in 1981.

Since 1976 the median price of a home purchased has risen from $43,340, a gain of 80.4 percent. During this same period median household income has risen 54.1 percent, from $20,840 to $32,130.

However, the study showed that the median cost of a home purchased by first-time buyers slowed appreciably in 1981, rising to $63,180 from $61,450 in 1980, a gain of only 2.8 percent. In 1980, the median price of a home purchased by first-time buyers was up 20.9 percent from $50,800 in 1979.

The rate of increase also slowed for repeat or second-time home buyers in 1981. The median price of a home purchased rose to $82,220 from $75,750 in 1980, an 8.5 percent gain. This compares to an increase of 17.2 percent between 1979 and 1980 when the median price rose from $64,600 to $75,750.

Median household income for first-time buyers rose to $30,470 in 1981 from $27,430 in 1980, an 11 percent increase. For repeat buyers median household income rose to $33,490 from $31,820 in 1980, a gain of 5.2 percent.

The Family Housing Bureau survey is part of Chicago Title's continuing program to foster interest in home ownership. The company issues real estate title insurance, which insures the existence or non-existence of rights to property for lenders and home owners. The insurance pays the policy holder for any losses if the title insurer is found to be wrong in its determination.

deliveries exceed billion mark

January deliveries by the Colorado River Municipal Water District were up by nearly one-fifth over last year.

The total was 1,252,141,728 gallons of water, 202 million gallons more, or up 19.22 percent.

The municipalities served by the district took 1,040,172,000 gallons, a gain of 17.35 percent over January 1981. This also was the first time in the district's three decades of operation that municipal deliveries passed the one billion-gallon mark in a January.

Although there was a disposition on the part of oil companies to reduce the volume of water used for secondary recovery, there was a substantial gain of 29.23 percent in reaching 211,969,328 gallons of water for this purpose. The reason was the availability of surface water by two operators, who took 50 million gallons more from this source.

During January Big Spring used 238,509,000 gallons, up 28.66 percent; Midland 255,520,000 gallons, down 7.72 percent (only part of Midland's supply comes from the district); San Angelo 13,521,400 (San Angelo used no water from the district in the previous January); Snyder 69,364,000 gallons, up 12.03 percent; Stanton 10,220,000 gallons, up 35.05 percent; Odessa 453,036,000 gallons, up 27.76 percent.

Cotton pricing seminar set for Feb. 25

A cotton pricing strategies seminar will be held Feb. 25 at the Dora Roberts Fair building with registration beginning at 6:30 p.m. The seminar is sponsored by the Howard County Farm Bureau in conjunction with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Speakers for the event are expected to be Dr. Gary Condra, area economist with TAES from Fort Stockton, and Michael W. Woods, a commodity specialist with Stotler & Company in Lubbock.

The seminar will focus on alternatives to be used in marketing producers' cotton with discussions on cash sales, cotton loans, contracting and futures hedging.

The public is invited to attend. Interested parties should RSVP by Feb. 23 by calling 267-7466 or 353-4419.

TCU lands high school standouts

The Texas Christian Horned Frogs signed two schoolboy All-America football players from the same high school today as Southwest Conference schools fanned out to harvest national letters of intent.

Egypt Allen, a 6-1, 185-pound defensive back, and Gerald Taylor, a 6-3, 230-pound linebacker signed on with TCU and Coach F.A. Dry. Both are Parade Magazine All-Americans from Dallas South Oak Cliff.

The Texas Aggies, under new coach Jackie Sherrill, landed Dallas Times Herald bluechippers Todd Tschantz, an All-State placekicker from Richardson Lake Highlands, Gary Rogers, a 6-5, 225, defensive end from Dallas Roosevelt, Jeff Bolton, a wide receiver from South Garland, and Tony Slaton, an All-State wide receiver from Decatur, Georgia.

Low-sodium, low-cholesterol recipes given

Booklets offer help for special diet needs

A reader has asked for any recipes for persons having hypoglycemia (an abnormally low level of sugar in the blood). Anyone having recipes for this medical problem are requested to send them to the Recipe Exchange.

This week's Recipe Exchange contains recipes for special diets such as sodium-restricted diets. The booklet "The Sodium-Restricted Diet" put out by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service lists the rules to go by when adapting most recipes from standard cookbooks to sodium-restricted diets. The booklet has a great deal of valuable information for the person who has been prescribed a sodium restricted diet.

The extension service has several booklets available free to the public for a variety of special diets. They may be picked up at the extension office in the basement of the courthouse during the week.

Rules for adapting recipes to a sodium-restricted diet are as follows:

- Omit salt in any recipe.
- Use potassium bicarbonate instead of sodium bicarbonate (baking soda). Use the quantity specified in the recipe.
- Use sodium-free baking powder instead of regular baking powder. Many stores which sell dietetic foods have one of several brands on the shelves. Companies with potassium-based baking powder are listed elsewhere. Use 1/2 teaspoon sodium-free baking powder for each teaspoon regular baking powder. If you are unable to find a sodium-free baking powder, have a druggist prepare one using the following recipe:

Potassium bicarbonate 39.9 grams
Cornstarch 28.0 grams
Tartaric acid 7.6 grams
Potassium bi-tartrate 56.1 grams

4. Prepare vegetables from the fresh form as much as possible. One-half cup fresh green beans boiled in water without salt contains 2 milligrams of sodium.

5. Foods may be canned or frozen at home and be relatively low in sodium. Preserve foods without added salt and process in distilled water if water in the area is high in sodium.

6. Non-nutritive sweeteners. Most non-nutritives are made of sodium saccharin and are usually not prescribed on a sodium-restricted diet. Some non-nutritive sweeteners made of calcium saccharin might be used with a physician's approval.

7. Egg substitutes. Most egg substitutes in supermarkets have lowered cholesterol content. Most of these products are not intended for the person on the sodium-restricted diet. Many are primarily egg white, the part of the egg where most sodium is concentrated. As a result, egg substitutes may be very high in sodium. It's extremely important to read the label on egg substitutes to know the sodium content.

Below are some recipes for sodium-restricted diets

HALIBUT CONTINENTAL
1/2 cup seedless grapes, cut in half
2 Tablespoons dry sherry
2 pounds halibut steaks, cut into 6 serving-size pieces
1/2 cup thinly sliced onion
1 Tablespoon lemon juice
Generous dash each pepper and paprika
Basic medium white sauce
White Sauce:
2 Tablespoons unsalted margarine (1 for thin, 4 for thick)
2 Tablespoons flour (1 for thin, 4 for thick)
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 cup nonfat milk
Grated peel from 1/2 lemon
Halibut: In a small bowl, combine grapes and sherry; let stand 30 minutes. Meanwhile, arrange fish in lightly oiled shallow 2-quart baking dish; top with onion. Sprinkle with lemon juice, pepper and paprika. Pour Basic Medium White Sauce over fish. Cover, bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until fish flakes easily. Remove fish to serving platter. Add grape mixture to white sauce; stir well. Spoon sauce over fish. Garnish with lemon wedges, parsley and additional paprika if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Basic Medium White Sauce: In saucepan, melt margarine; blend in flour and pepper. Stir in milk and lemon peel. Cook over medium-low heat, stirring until thickened. Makes about 1 cup. Count milk in dieter's portion or use low sodium

GROUND BEEF PATTIES

1 Tablespoon lemon juice
1 Teaspoon chopped parsley
1/4 teaspoon pepper

1/4 teaspoon rosemary leaves, crushed
Thoroughly combine all ingredients; shape firmly into 4 patties. Place on broiler pan 4 inches from heat; broil for 5 minutes.

BASIC LEMON "BUTTER"
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1/4 cup soft unsalted margarine

Turn and broil 2-4 minutes longer to desired doneness. Garnish with tomato and lemon slices and parsley if desired. Makes 4 servings. One serving equals 3 ounces cooked weight and contains 51 milligrams of sodium and 189 calories.

2 teaspoons lemon juice
Stir lemon peel into margarine; gradually beat in lemon juice. Makes about 1/4 cup. Variation: Add one of the following: 1 teaspoon chopped parsley or 1/2 teaspoon garlic or onion

CHICKEN PAPRIKA
3 pounds chicken, cut into serving pieces, skinned
1 Tablespoon vegetable salad oil
1 Tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon paprika

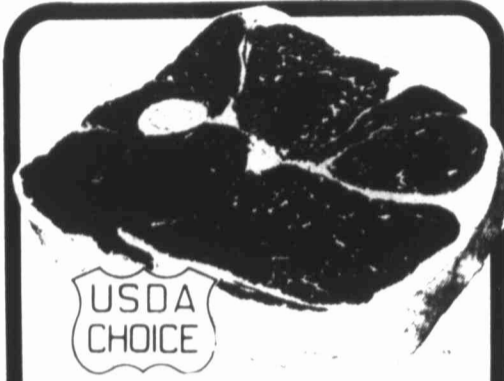

1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon tarragon leaves, crushed
Place chicken pieces on a rack in a shallow baking pan; brush lightly with oil. Sprinkle with lemon juice, paprika, pepper and tarragon. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes or until tender. Garnish with lemon slices and parsley if desired. Makes 6 servings. If gravy is allowed, drain off all fat before thickening. Add 1 small can unsalted mushrooms, drained. One serving equals 3 ounces cooked weight with lemon juice and without gravy and contains 63 milligrams sodium and 166 calories.

FRESH DRESSING
1/2 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup vegetable salad oil
1 Tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon finely chopped onion
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I just can't stand to see another TV commercial showing a lot of fannies wiggling around in jeans so tight there is no way a person could sit down in them! This goes for men as well as women.

That bra commercial in which a man measures a curvy blonde's dimensions was bad enough, but a new low in vulgarity was reached when some swivel-hipped gal bragged that the underwear she was wearing under her clothes made her look like she wasn't wearing nuthin'! Disgraceful!

Please tell me where to write to complain about such tasteless commercials. If enough people object, maybe they will take them off the air.

DISGUSTED IN TULARE, CALIF.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Write to: Action Line, Direct Mail

Marketing Association, 6 East 43rd St., New York, N.Y. 10017. Also send a copy to the president of the company that manufactures the product. If enough complaints are received, the advertising agency that's responsible for the commercial will be told to shape up or ship out.

DEAR ABBY: I'm thinking seriously about seeking psychological or psychiatric help, but I'm worried about how it might look on my record for applying for a job. I'm 20, and if I did get professional help and was later asked if I'd ever been under the care of a psychologist or psychiatrist, I would answer truthfully, but I don't want to risk losing a job because of it.

I guess I really owe it to myself to get professional help, but I don't want to have to choose eventually between being honest and getting a job. I'd appreciate your comments. Sign me...

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: If you need professional help, it would be a serious error to avoid getting it for the reason you have mentioned. Millions of people are receiving, or have received, psychotherapy. Many of them occupy positions of great responsibility — lawyers, judges, doctors, government officials, corporation executives, etc.

Your ability to get a job in the future will depend much more on your record and on how you present yourself than it will on that single question, even if it were asked. If it is asked, answer it honestly, adding that you have benefited from it. (You will be respected all the more for it.)

Stallings seeking HC trustee position

Local insurance man Louis E. Stallings, 50, has announced he will run as incumbent for a seat on the Board of Trustees on the Howard County Junior College District.

Stallings, partner in the Patterson Insurance Agency in Big Spring, is a graduate of Stanton High School, and a native of Howard County. His father was a trustee on the first Board at Howard College.

After graduating from high school, he attended McMurry College in Abilene

...incumbent announces for one year and then transferred to Howard College and graduated in 1950. He was the first president of the HC Ex-students Association. He then transferred to North Texas State University in Denton and graduated in 1952 and was awarded a Bachelor of Business Administration degree.

Upon graduation from NTSU, he served two years in the Army and was stationed at Fort Bliss in the personnel department.

He came back to Big Spring in 1954 and entered the insurance business and with the exception of ten years has remained in Big Spring. He is active in the Chamber of Commerce and is currently serving on the Industrial Committee working to attract new industry to Big Spring. He is a member of the Big Spring Independent Insurance Agents and Big Spring Life Underwriters. He also belongs to the Permian Basin Chapter of Certified Life Underwriters and has attended many advanced Estate Planning seminars at various times and at different parts of the country, including the Insurance Marketing Institute at Louisiana State University.

Stallings is a member of the First Baptist Church. He is married to the former LuAnn Creighton. She is also a native of Howard County. They have four children: Dian Griffin, 27, resides in Vincent, Kyle, 25, resides in Midland, Layne Froman, 22, resides in Big Spring, and Todd, 20, a sophomore at Texas Tech.

Stallings states his reasons for running for the HCJCD Board of Trustees as: "From a long time back, I have been very interested in HC. I think it is a great asset not only to the immediate area but to the vast area of West Texas. I think it is a real credit to Big Spring and Howard County. Ever since my Dad served as a trustee and being a student here myself, I have had a strong interest in Howard College. I want to do something personally to help continue the progress it has made."

It's sell out time in D.C., Gramm says

By BILL GARLAND
States News Service
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Phil Gramm, D-College Station, who helped carry the banner for President Reagan last year, said this week he has some creative ideas for handling the administration's 1983 spending proposals that went to Capitol Hill Monday.

With the federal deficit expected to rise next year to $91.5 billion, Gramm says "it's time for Washington to get out, sort of."

He said the federal government owns some of the best of the country's real estate, worth uncalculated billions of dollars, and that the sale of small portions of it would prop up the budget that seems always to fall into a deep ditch of spending.

"I want to put this new found fiscal conservatism to a test," said Gramm.

He noted the country has $141 billion worth of gold, in addition to the real estate which includes choice property on Hawaiian beaches that he said stimulates the spiciest dreams of developers.

A federal "presidio" is "one of the most valuable land in California," he said.

Although he said that neither Reagan nor Budget Director David Stockman had reviewed the proposal, he would consider seriously offering it as part of his plan to cut into the seemingly untamable deficit.

Gramm will attempt to gain support for his proposals with fellow members of the Conservative Democratic Forum, known as "Boll Weevils." 47 southern conservative congressmen considered crucial to Reagan's budget plans.

Police await dental records of slain priest

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — It may be several days before authorities receive the dental records needed to determine positively whether a decomposed body found in Mexico with a bullet in the head is that of a missing priest from Texas, police say.

After viewing the body and personal effects, friends and relatives were unable to say Monday whether it was that of the Rev. Simon Thomas Flores, who was reported missing in Laredo a month ago, said Dr. Francisco Gonzalez, a Laredo pathologist. The body was examined by Gonzalez after it was found by farmers Saturday at a tenant farm near the border city of Nuevo Laredo, Mexico. The body was covered with brush and had a piece of barbed wire tied around the waist, he said. Because the body had partly decomposed, Gonzalez said he could not determine whether a bullet found in the skull was the cause of death.

Valentine banquet is planned

Sex education guidance for children was the topic of discussion at the first 1982 meeting of Coahoma Alpha Tau Rho Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. The meeting took place in the home of Tommie Perez.

The group's next meeting took place Jan. 18 at Alberto's Restaurant. Jan Nichols was hostess. Helen Vaughn, owner of Helen's Shoe Stop, allowed members to visit the store following the dinner. The new line of spring shoes were displayed. The Feb. 9 meeting took place in the home of Judy West. Mrs. Joyce Baggett, kindergarten teacher with Forsan School District, was guest speaker.

Mrs. Baggett stressed the importance of helping the small child develop certain skills before first grade. Members were given handouts outlining ways to help children develop.

Cynthia Anderson and Judy West have begun pledge training. The group discussed plans for a Valentine banquet to be held Saturday at Alberto's Restaurant.

District governor to attend meeting

Mrs. Geraldine R. Eidson, District 9 governor of Altrusa International, will be featured at the Thursday meeting of the local Altrusa Club.

The meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the Patio Room of the Holiday Inn. A board meeting at 6:30 p.m. will precede the regular meeting.

Mrs. Eidson, Fort Worth, is vice president and loan officer of Ridgela Bank in Fort Worth. She is a member of many civic and professional organizations and has held the office of District governor for one year. The public is invited to attend the 7:30 p.m. meeting.

NARFE to meet

Ray Green of Texas State Highway Dept., will present a slide show at the Thursday meeting of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees. The meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m. at Kentwood Older Adult Activity Center.

Refreshments will be served prior to the meeting. Green's presentation will be on "The Missions of Texas" or "The Scenic Beauty Along Texas Highways."

All retired federal employees and interested retired citizens are invited to attend.

Rotary Club honored for contributions

The Big Spring Rotary Club was honored Tuesday as one of the top 40 Rotary Clubs in the world in support of the world-wide Rotary Foundation.

John R. Seay, governor of Rotary District 573, presented a plaque to the local club in honor of reaching 10,000 percent in contributions to the foundation.

Big Spring Rotary is one of only 40 clubs out of more than 19,400 Rotary clubs around the world to pass the milestone, Seay said. The local club passed the mark in September, 1981.

Rotary Foundation is an arm of Rotary International and was founded to foster international understanding among peoples, Seay said. The foundation currently sponsors the largest student exchange program in the world by providing scholarships for youngsters to study in foreign lands.

The foundation also sponsors group study exchanges of business and professional leaders to other nations. A worldwide social program called Health, Hunger & Humanities also is part of the Rotary Foundation.

Following the award, Hal Boyd, Big Spring Rotary president, said the club is accepting applications for next year from students who want scholarships for study abroad.

Two Big Spring residents attend TMHA meet in Dallas

Johanne and Denton Marsalis, D&C Sales, have returned from Dallas, where they attended the board of directors meeting for Texas Manufactured Housing Association (TMHA). Both Johanne and Denton are on the board of directors for TMHA.

While in Dallas, Denton Marsalis also attended the Park Council Meeting of which he is the state chairman. Among the items discussed at the various meetings was the upcoming Texas Manufactured Housing Association Show to be held in the Ft. Worth-Dallas area.

Hard times ground terminal

HOUSTON (AP) — High interest rates and rough financial times for major airlines have forced city officials to ground plans for a $250 million new terminal at Houston's Intercontinental Airport, officials said.

But Mayor Kathy Whitmire vowed Monday to pursue a scaled-down version of the huge project which was to serve international traffic with 26 gates designed for wide-bodied aircraft.

"We still do plan to proceed with the construction of Terminal D," she said. "It's just at this time, in this financial market, it has not turned out to be feasible."

The full project is expected to be officially scuttled Wednesday when the City Council considers a recommendation from Aviation Department Director Bill Brackley to reject all construction bids for the primary structure in the proposed complex.

Mrs. Whitmire said talks have begun on the feasibility of a scaled-down fourth terminal.

VIDEO LISTING SERVICE...at HOME Realtors in Big Spring

HOME Realtors knows what you're looking for

The hit T.V. show of the season is being shot in HOME Realty offices, and anyone considering selling or buying a home can't afford to miss this Big Event.

Some time ago, HOME introduced the Video Listing Service, one of the most innovative approaches to selling homes since the MLS.

With the VLS HOME Photographs homes inside and out, in detail and in color. Whenever someone is interested in seeing a home for sale, we show them our "library" of homes for sale on our special television, with pleasing "background music and voice-over" describing the home in full.

Says President Jeff Brown, "VLS eliminates many of the problems of showing homes, because it's like having an open house 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. It's a very timely tool — it can save considerable time and gasoline."
"After all, looking for a home is an ardous task, whether you're new to the area or a native. The video service makes it easier on everyone — the buyer, seller and agent."

Advantages to the home seller are obvious: if the family is moving out before the home is sold, VLS can photograph the home to its best advantage. And the homeowner no longer has to stay at home evenings or weekends in case someone wants to see the house.

Probably, though, one of the most popular benefits of VLS is that it "qualifies" the people who do personally visit the home.

Homeowners using the service have called it "inspirational" and "One of the best ways to shop for a home," sales associates certainly agree.

HOME Realtors-Appraiser is located in the Coronado Plaza on FM 100 and Gregg. Check with them today.
