Dear Abby

Grandma fears pregnancy

DEAR ABBY: I read in the newspaper that a 50-year-old grandmother of eight just gave birth to twin boys in Michigan. I'm sure it wasn't planned, and now I'm worried because I'm also 50 and a grandmother, and if it could happen to her it could happen to me.

Abby, I have a fairly active sex life and I thought my childbearing years were over, but how can I be sure? I thought I didn't have to. At what age is a woman safe?

NERVOUS IN NEVADA

DEAR NERVOUS: Don't go by age. Ask your gynecologist and take no chances. Medical records show that a baby was born to a woman in her 54th year. And biblical history (Genesis 21) reveals that Abrahams wife, Sarah, laughed when she learned that at age 90 she was pregnant, which today would be no laughing matter.

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from a housewife complaining because they had guests for Thanksgiving and her husband spent the day watching football, which spoiled their Thanksgiving dinner. You advised her to ask him either to sacrifice his football watching or to refrain from inviting guests on a holiday. Why didn't you get with the times and advise that poor woman and thousands of football widows like her that life would be a lot less complicated if she or her husband would simply buy a videotape recorder and record the (stupid) game while the entire family enjoys a lovely meal together? Then afterward, the football "nuts" can see the entire game together.

WINNIE IN S.F.

DEAR WINNIE: It wouldn't work. Football "nuts" aren't content to wait until after the game is over to watch it on tape. They prefer the excitement of "seeing" history while it's being made.

DEAR ABBY: "Fed Up With Football" gets no sympathy from me. So her man watches football all weekend — so what? She's lucky. He's there, she's there, and he's all hers. What more could she ask for?

And a little lovin' at halftime helps even the score and makes the afternoon more fun!

Dr. Donohue

Pills attack potassium problem

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband has been on Dyazide and Lopressor for about three years now. His potassium goes to extreme lows. Would it be good to take a potassium capsule a day, or would that undo the good that the blood pressure pills are accomplishing?—Mrs. V.

Lopressor (metoprolol) is a high blood pressure medicine. It does not lower potassium levels. Dyazide is a water pill, a combination of two different drugs: one does lower potassium; the other raises it. In this way, they are supposed to offset each other so that potassium stays in balance in the body.

Ordinarily, one should not have to take extra potassium with this medicine. However, if your husband's potassium level is going low, he may need extra potassium in the form of capsule supplements. Or he may need a different medicine. NOTE: If one takes potassium capsules while taking Dyazide, blood levels should be measured often to make sure potassium is not going too high.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been watching your column, hoping to hear some remark from you about DMSO, but nothing so far. Is this a no-no with doctors? I will appreciate your commenting on this.—Mrs. L.V.N.

DMSO (dimethyl sulfoxide) is not a no-no with me, but it is a no-know. I just don't know enough about it. My only experience with it is through reading about it. I do know there have been glowing testimonials bordering on extravagance. I also know that there have been other reports equally non-glowing and bordering on charges of ineffectiveness.

I do not know which to believe at this point. The matter will, I am sure, be settled for all of us when studies are completed and the Food and Drug Administration either gives or withholds its medical blessings. That was my stance when I commented on this about a year ago. It has not changed.

DMSO is not a new substance. It was discovered in the late 1800s, and it is still used in industry as a solvent. The medical interest in it arose when it was reported to ease the pain in arthritic joints and hasten the healing of sprains. When applied to the skin, some of it is absorbed into the blood, and for that reason the user has garlicky breath for some time after application.

In summary, I am just not able to give a recommendation or a condemnation in the DMSO controversy. I am awaiting results of current tests, and I would think that we all might do just that. Note: DMSO does have an approved medical use—in the treatment of a bladder condition called interstitial cystitis, a serious urinary bladder disorder.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Romantic love ideal leads to divorce?

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — Traditional marriage vows pledging love and devotion "until death us do part" should undergo some changes that better reflect the realities of love, says Martin C. Dillon, who teaches a course in "Love, Death and Creation" at the State University of New York at Binghamton.

Dillon, associate professor of philosophy at the university, says although most Americans marry for love, the link between "romantic" marriage and spiraling divorce rates could be people's unreal concept of love.

"Most traditional families are in serious trouble because of their expectations about love," he says. "By fostering a romantic notion of ideal love, one that is largely unobtainable, our marriages are being driven apart."

"We have been misled with overly inflated expectations," he adds. "If we marry for romance, we're going to be disappointed because people tend to be in love with idealization rather than reality."

Intimacy erodes that illusion, but "the illusion of romance dies hard," says Dillon, who is preparing two

Hyperion Club tours home

Members of the 1970 Hyperion Club toured the home of Jan Iden Friday. Mrs. Travis Hunter hosted members prior to the tour and Mrs. Harvey Rothell was co-hostess.

Mrs. Iden, of The Biarritz Gallery, said that planning the home in order to prevent costly changes later is important. The architectural design of the home is that of a European villa with French influences.

Following the tour, members met for lunch at the Rock Front.

The next meeting will be March 5 in the home of Mrs. Skip McKenzie.

PLANS ANNOUNCED—Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Savage, 2609 Wasson Rd., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Sharon, Midland, to Ray Franklin, Midland, son of Mrs. Helen Franklin, Hickory, N.C. The couple will wed March 6 in First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Bill Henning, pastor, will officiate.

'Ten Most Wanted Men' named

Harper's Bazaar in its current issue selected "America's Ten Most-Wanted Men" (all unmarried at this time) and asked them how they fell about love, relationships and the pursuit of happiness. Here are their answers.

•Dudley Moore, actor: "Love is such a cliché-ridden subject, but I can't imagine what makes life mean anything outside of that. Having a relationship is the most important thing to me. I look for compassion and passion, humor, and a mix of independence and dependence."

•Ex-football superstar O.J. Simpson: "I like the athletic type. I want a woman who's independent — not to the extent that she's aggressive or defensive ... I don't want to talk about liberation all the time. Health and confidence, that adds up to my type of woman." But, he adds, "I'm very happy with my current girlfriend."

•Reggie Jackson, baseball bombshell: "In order to have a good relationship, she must understand and respect me, be independent, definitely not cling, be a challenge — and be good looking ... I want a woman to be a woman. I don't want someone who is going to shake my hand hard."

•George Hamilton, actor: "I was fully involved once in a marriage (she's now Mrs. Rod Stewart) and I adored it. But I don't have to redo it." He now prefers to limit a relationship and says, "I want to share with a woman, but we don't need to share everything. If that means she sees other men and I see other women that's fine."

•Film star Donald Sutherland: "What does it take to tickle

Donald's fancy? "Humor, intelligence, objectivity and confidence. I've never been in love with a woman who didn't think she was better than I." He "loves" being in love. "It makes me smile a lot."

•Peter Martins, New York City Ballet star: "The most important thing in life is true love; I'd give up everything for it." He's looking for someone who's got "the inner strength, the self-sufficiency and the take-charge attitude" Peter finds so appealing.

•Ron Duguay, New York Rangers hockey star: "I want someone who can show her affection, who's sensitive, and whom I'll always have on my mind." Does she have to love hockey? "Absolutely not. In fact, I'd prefer it if she didn't — that way we can concentrate on other things."

•Andy Gibb, singer: "The youngest of the brothers Gibb can be swept off his feet if she's "sincere, kind and sweet," but his heart can only be captured if she's his friend too. "I know I'm in love when she becomes my best friend."

•Robert Hays, movie star: "A one-woman man with a keen sense of humor. Bob is looking for someone who's "nice looking, athletic, intelligent and has good sense of humor, too."

•New York Mayor Edward I. Koch: "Does he prefer blondes or brunettes? "Neither, in this area I'm very Catholic," he told Bazaar. Why do women appeal to him so strongly? "Apart from the fact that they make up 50 percent of the electorate?" "I think it's purely biological."

'I am a druggie,' troubled teens tell tearful First Lady

FIRST LADY VISITS—First Lady Nancy Reagan sits with a group of students Monday in Pinellas Park, Fla. during her visit to a local school.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Only the names and faces of the troubled teen-agers varied. Their declarations before a huge audience that included a tearful Nancy Reagan were always the same: "I am a druggie."

For three hours Monday night, the first lady sat in a lot auditorium crowded with 300 drug-prone adolescents and 600 anxious parents involved in a treatment program called Straight Inc.

She listened to the songs they sang enthusiastically. She heard an unending tany of substances they once used to "get high." and she watched as a microphone was passed from a parent to parent, some scolding their children for setbacks, others offering praise and love.

And when the microphone finally got to the president's wife, her voice choked.

"My heart is filled with so many things," she told the teen-agers. "I am so proud of you and I love you, too."

Tears welling in her eyes, she turned to the parents:

"Being a parent myself, I know how painful it must be for you. There's nothing as painful for a parent as having something happen to their children and nothing as hurtful."

Then again to the youngsters:

"I wish you all the best of luck and the most wonderful lives and I know you will have it. I know everything will be just fine."

Mrs. Reagan's two-day trip on behalf of drug abuse prevention was concluding today after a stop in Dallas.

Monday night's program was an unusual experience.

First, the children singing from their seats in front of the auditorium while their parents waited outside; loud, loud singing; a cappella; with hands moving in unison; such songs as "America" and "I'm On My Way."

Next, the counselors would ask what was the most outrageous substance they had ever used (roach killer); the most outrageous place they found to hide drugs (parents' mattress); how many had introduced drugs to children they babysat for (about half); and so on.

Girls were pitted against the boys. The competition was so strong that one counselor finally pleaded, "C'mon, girls. You can top the guys." All 300 of the children frantically waved their hands high in the air for a chance to reveal how outrageous they once had been.

Then the parents were admitted.

Slowly and silently they filed in one-by-one, filling all the seats in one row before starting the next.

The true confessions began.

Children who were new to the program stood up and recited the substances they had used — pot, acid, uppers, downers, on and on — always ending with, "I am a druggie."

Individually, they apologized for how they had lied to their families and stolen. They renounced their former "druggie" friends. They set goals, usually a desire to be more honest and open with their feelings and to rebuild their family relationships.

"I was a low-life daughter," confessed one girl, who under Straight Inc. rules must remain anonymous. "I feel real bad about that. My long-term goal is to earn the privilege to go home." She began to cry.

A boy volunteered: "The friends I had, they were druggies. They weren't really friends."

Next, it was time for the parents. Some said simply, "I love you, Laura." The girl would shout out in return, "Love you, Mom."

The children, in unison, would chant, "Love you, Laura."

One father declared: "It seems like a bad dream." Another man told his son, "I'm learning about my feelings. We are more open at home."

A mother told her daughter, "For the first time in your life you're happy." Another mother said she was confused. Still another was "really mad because I have given, given. I am in this program to stay."

And so it went. The audience seemed spellbound. With the least bit of encouragement, they would jump to their feet and applaud loudly.

For many children, the program takes a full year. The first 30 or 40 days are spent away from home with a foster family that has a child who is nearly finished with the program. For the remainder of the time, the child returns home.

Program officials say 50 percent of their participants are drug free one year later, 25 percent "have problems" and return for a refresher course, and 25 percent go back to drugs.

The program costs parents between $1,000 and $2,500. It gets no government funds.

Odessa man denies involvement in slaying

TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES, N.M. (AP) — Charles Ralph Cobb, on trial for first-degree murder in the slaying of a Lordsburg fast-food restaurant owner, took the stand to deny he ordered or participated in the crime.

Cobb, 30, of Odessa, Texas, faces charges of first-degree murder, attempted first-degree murder, armed robbery, and auto theft. The charges stem from the March 8, 1981 slaying of Richard Bejarano and the wounding of Bejarano's wife, Karen, during a robbery at the Lordsburg restaurant the couple operated.

Testifying Monday at his trial here, Cobb told the jury he was surprised when two men he was with drew weapons and ordered Bejarano to hand over money from a cash register.

Cobb said he had stood near the door of the Lordsburg restaurant when his companions, Walter Scott Finnel and Shane Eric Lasiter, ordered Bejarano and his wife into a storeroom.

Cobb testified he walked out of the restaurant and was leaving in his car when he heard a series of gunshots.

The defense contends Cobb was an innocent bystander. The prosecution, however, said it would prove Cobb ordered Finnel and Lasiter to rob the Bejaranos, and then shot them.

Finnel, 22, was convicted of capital murder, attempted first-degree murder, armed robbery and auto theft in October by a jury in Silver City. He was sentenced to death by lethal injection.

Lasiter, who was 16 at the time, agreed to plead guilty to the charges in return for a life sentence. He testified last week that Cobb pulled a gun on him and Finnel, and ordered them to rob the Bejaranos. Lasiter also said Cobb threatened to kill him unless he obeyed his orders to shoot the couple.

Mrs. Bejarano, who survived multiple gunshot wounds, was unable to identify Cobb as the third man who accompanied Lasiter and Finnel. She also testified she did not hear the unidentified man giving any orders.

But Mrs. Bejarano told the jury she saw the other man following the couple as Finnel and Lasiter ushered them toward the storeroom.

Authorities seek mothers of two abandoned babies

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities say they have no clues to lead them to the mothers of two baby girls, one whose body was found stuffed in a plastic bag and dumped in a trash bin, and the other who was abandoned in a schoolyard.

A woman searching for aluminum cans over the weekend in a northeast Houston neighborhood found the baby girl's body. Detectives said the child was fully developed and the umbilical cord was still attached.

Harris County medical examiners conducted an autopsy on the dead girl Monday, but the results were not immediately available.

An abandoned baby girl found in a schoolyard bush across town Sunday was taken to Ben Taub Hospital by paramedics and her condition was upgraded Monday to "improving," said a hospital spokeswoman who did not want to be identified.

The girl suffered from exposure to cool temperatures and light rain.

"She's improving and doing much better now than she was when they brought her here," the spokeswoman said.

Two children playing at a northwest Houston school heard the baby's faint cry and called paramedics.

"She was just a few hours old," said Paramedic William Sivley. "It really kind of tore me up. It looked like no one was going to give her a chance."

Doctors said the little girl was suffering from extreme loss of body heat and would have died had the children not found her, said Walter Tinson, a hospital supervisor. She also received several scratches as her naked body was placed in the bush, he said.

"She's a very, very attractive little girl," Tinson said. "And it's kind of sad, being on Valentine's Day. You would think someone would have had the love in their hearts to have taken her."

Former guard indicted in theater death

HOUSTON (AP) — A former security guard has been indicted for capital murder in the strangulation of the Alley Theater managing director who apparently surprised her killer during an office robbery.

A Harris County grand jury indicted Clifford X. Phillips Monday after hearing the testimony of one witness believed to be the defendant's girlfriend, officials said.

Grand jurors allege Phillips, who also used the name Abdullah Bashir, strangled Iris Siff, 58, on Jan. 13 with a thin cord and then with his hands before he robbed her.

Investigators speculated Mrs. Siff was killed in her office after she surprised the killer while he attempted to steal several items.

Authorities found several of Mrs. Siff's belongings in the rubble, including her purse, fur coat, jewelry and television.

HEAVY SECURITY—Pope John Paul II is ringed by heavy security Monday as he makes his way to an altar in Ibadan where he celebrated a mass for the students of the University of Ibadan. The Nigerian press said four people were jailed for carrying guns at earlier stops by the pontiff.

Pope bears up well despite heat, pace of African trip

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — After four crowded days in tropical African heat, Pope John Paul II has a bruise on his chest, lines around his eyes and about a pound less on his waistline.

But the 61-year-old Roman Catholic pontiff appears to be getting the same boost from this foreign trip that he got from the nine he made before the attempt on his life nine months ago.

"He's trying to prove to me he can do it all the same as before," said Archbishop Paul Marcinkus of Cicero, Ill., who plans the pope's trips.

Speaking to a group of Nigerian workers today at the Holy Cross Cathedral, the pope said strikes are "extraordinary measures for the defense of human rights."

In an apparent reference to the martial law and the suspended union Solidarity in his native Poland, the pontiff said, "Workers have the right to form unions and to ask for proper working conditions, but they also have the obligation to render loyal service, and employers have the right to receive the services for which they pay."

"Workers should not too readily have recourse to strikes, which generally cause much suffering to many."

Nigeria's labor movement is still in its infancy, but recently a strike disrupted Nigerian Airways and other transport services. The strikes were settled by negotiation and the government did not intervene.

The pope chatted with members of the Polish community, church members and diplomats before departing from the cathedral.

Papal aides concede that the pope's gait is heavier, he jokes less frequently and he is more aware of security precautions since a Turkish terrorist shot him in St. Peter's Square last May 13. But even before his departure from Rome, he astounded his doctors.

They were reluctant to inoculate him against typhus and cholera shots, fearing toxic residues of the anesthetics administered when he was operated on six months ago would produce a dangerous reaction in combination with the shots. But there were no adverse effects.

John Paul is trailed as he goes about by his two doctors, Renato Buzzonetti, director of Vatican health services, and Stanislaw Wizlocky, a Polish physician of long acquaintance. An ambulance also is usually in every papal motorcade.

But the pope's only injury so far is a chest bruise suffered when his jeep braked suddenly to avoid a surging crowd in the northern city of Kaduna and jolted him against the crossbar.

John Paul appeared to be pacing himself at the start of his visit, but the pace has picked up. After humid 100-degree mornings, he rebounds after lunch to joke with nuns and laymen and engage in the extemporaneous banter that has endeared him to crowds around the world.

If he has a pet peeve, it appears to be the security precautions that were increased Monday after reports that a man tried to bring a pistol and ammunition into the stadium where the pope celebrated Mass in Lagos Friday and that three Nigerians from Lagos were arrested at the airport in Kaduna with a pistol after the pope left there Sunday.

Polish mood turns toward frustration

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — After two months of martial law, people's fears are turning into frustration.

"After two months, troops still in the streets, armored vehicles, parades of police trucks," said one young Polish reporter. "We don't want trouble. Just a normal life."

Recent good weather seems to have eased a general feeling of depression. Many people are hopeful that Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the premier and Communist Party chief, will lift most martial law restrictions by the end of this month, as he promised.

"If he doesn't do it, his image will be finished," said a 55-year-old printer.

"The argument that the restrictions must stay on after unrest in Poznan and Gdansk doesn't hold," he continued, referring to demonstrations protesting military rule last weekend and two weeks before. "They were just incidents and you cannot treat them as an excuse to continue the curfew."

The 11 p.m.-to-5 a.m. curfew and the ban on travel without permission — both inside the country and abroad — seem to be the major restrictions troubling people as spring approaches.

"Everyone is waiting for them to lift the curfew," said one man. "What kind of a life is it when you have to be home by 10:59 every night?"

"I'm no drunkard or gourmet, but from time to time I like to stay, even with my wife, at a restaurant until 1 a.m. or 2 a.m."

Now that gasoline is being sold again to owners of private cars, people are also beginning to wonder how much they can travel in spring and whether they will have to go in groups.

"Now you can take your car and drive only 30 miles from Warsaw," said one motorist. "And you have to go through the 'border' crossings on the edge of the city. Are a bunch of noisy guys from Solidarity really such a danger that they must punish 36 million Poles?"

High Court to consider book ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — "There are no wrong books," says author Bernard Malamud. "What's wrong is the fear of them."

A decade after Malamud wrote those words in "The Fixer," a New York school district banned that Pulitzer Prize-winning novel and eight other books from its libraries.

Now, the Supreme Court will settle the dispute.

The Island Trees School Board's 1976 ban — which also includes Kurt Vonnegut's "Slaughterhouse Five" and "The Naked Ape" by Desmond Morris — is not an isolated phenomenon.

In Girard, Pa., some parents are protesting the use of Studs Terkel's book "Working" in high school classes because of the profanity it contains.

In Warsaw, Ind., all 40 school copies of a textbook called "Values Clarification" were burned in December 1977 after the book was banned from classrooms.

And the American Library Association reported last month that librarians nationwide are fighting what they say is a "three-fold" increase in attempts to ban books from library shelves.

Some of the book banning and censorship cases are winding up in court.

Attorney Alan H. Levine, speaking of the New York case, said, "I believe quite strongly that if the power of the school board here is upheld, it would give school boards power similar to totalitarian governments."

FINCH GOES DOWN — Challenger Bruce Finch hits the canvas after a second round knockdown as champ Sugar Ray Leonard throws his hands up during their title fight Monday in Reno. Leonard won with a third round knockout.

Sugar's spice flinches Finch

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard said he was cold in the first round against Bruce Finch after the fight was delayed 10 minutes due to television technical problems. But once Leonard warmed up, he was torrid, knocking down the outclassed Finch three times before the fight was stopped at 1:50 of the third round. "I came out a little cold, it took me about a round or two to warm up," said Leonard after he retained the undisputed welterweight boxing championship of the world. "I warmed up for 20 minutes before the fight, but then I had to settle down when it was delayed." Leonard, in his first fight since winning the combined title last September against Thomas Hearns, lost the first round of Monday's bout on the cards of the three judges. But he took command midway through the second round when he unleashed three savage hooks to the body followed by a right that sent Finch reeling. Following Finch across the ring, Leonard threw a right that put Finch down for the first time, but the challenger struggled to his feet. Another flurry of punches put Finch down for the second time, but he managed to get to his feet and last the final few seconds of the round. Finch came out swinging in the third round and landed perhaps his best punch of the brief fight, a right to the champion's head. But Leonard hit Finch with a flurry of punches followed by a left hook that buckled the challenger's knees. Two left-right combinations later, Finch was on the canvas for the third and final time of the fight. Leonard said referee Mills Lane had no choice but to stop the bout after the third knockdown, adding he thought Lane should have stopped it after Finch went down for the second time in the second round. But Lane said Finch was still in control of his senses until the third knockdown.

College Basketball Roundup

Here comes Indiana!

Virginia retained the No. 1 position in The Associated Press college basketball poll and Bobby Knight's Indiana Hoosiers took over the No. 20 slot in what could shape up as a second straight late season run toward the national title. Virginia, which beat North Carolina State and Clemson by a total of just five points last week, collected 57-of-60 first-place votes. The Cavaliers, 25-1 following Monday's night win over Georgia Tech, also received 1,197 of a possible 1,200 points from the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, who voted before Monday's games.

North Carolina, DePaul and Missouri once again held down the Nos. 2-4 positions, respectively. Oregon State and Tulsa each inched up a slot, occupying the fifth and sixth positions. While Iowa, blasted by Indiana last Saturday, dropped two notches to No. 7 and was followed by Minnesota, West Virginia and Kentucky. But the Top 20 news was Indiana, which is making its first appearance in the poll in six weeks. The Hoosiers stunned the college basketball world last season losing nine games during the regular season before putting it all together to win the national title.

Barnett Keys surge

Continued from page 1-B As for Barnett, who had 10 points, a perfect performance from the free shot line and several key assists, Wilder said, "Barnett has been making a lot of improvement. He has the ability to be a big-time guard if he wants to be and does the things a guard needs to do. He made some great team plays and that's what he needs to do. He's making a lot of progress." Howard enjoyed such good first half success thanks to a five-minute cold spell by the Wranglers. Al Penny sank two free throws at 13:53 in the half to give Odessa a 16-14 lead. Howard then ripped off 18 straight points to move into a 32-16 lead on two free shots by Wimberly Hardrick with 9:28 to go. A basket by Eric Brown at 8:53 broke the ice finally for the Wranglers. Odessa got as close as eight, 34-26, but two buckets by Isaac in a 10-point surge gave Howard its 16-point halftime spread. The Hawks started the game without Givens. The 6-6 freshman forward missed Saturday's practice and was benched in favor of Hardrick. Despite spending time off the court for that reason and foul trouble, he still scored 15 points for the Hawks. Isaac topped Howard with 19 points with Childress getting a dozen four to put four Hawks in double figures. Paul Hamilton and Brown each 16 for Odessa with Penny adding 10 and Steve Sula 12. The Hawks play again Thursday night at Clarendon.
