A REALLY GOOD RALLY - A crowd of approximately 400 people relax after a meal of Texas chili and listen to speeches of more than a dozen statewide candidates at a Democratic Party political rally held last night at the Dora Roberts Community Center. Speakers included Bob Armstrong, candidate for governor, Jim Hightower, running for agriculture commissioner and John Hannah, who is seeking the attorney general position.

The Howard County Democratic Club cooked up a recipe of Texas politics and chili last night at the Dora Roberts Community Center and everyone in the crowd of 400 got their fill. The occasion was the club's candidate rally and chili supper which attracted more than a dozen statewide political hopefuls or their representatives.

The evening began at 6:15 p.m. in the Blue Room of the community center with a press conference. The candidates sat in front of hot television lights and answered questions fired at them from the reporters of three newspapers, two radio stations and two television stations.

The candidates - most of them veterans of numerous press con-terences — were eager to bask in the attention and talk of their goals if elected

As the politicians finished their stints with the press a few of them slipped out to the foyer where the crowd was filing in and began shaking hands

"We have to get more people involved in the process where money is not so important. We have to get people used to the idea that if they're not only going to have the extremely rich or those backed by the extremely rich elected to office then they're going to have to participate more by doing campaign work which is expensive if you have to pay for it," Slagle said. "And they're going to have to make a financial contribution too

Slagel said he was pleased with the turnout of candidates and the rally and he said he was optimistic to see that the Democratic party had a good crop of candidates to offer voters in the upcoming primary and general elections.

Taking delight in meeting such a large crowd of supporters were the following candidates:

Cosden cuts 100 workers

By BILL ELDER Staff Writer

Cosden Oil & Chemical Co. announced yesterday that it will reduce its work force by 100 employees at its Big Spring plant due to slumping demand for Cosden's petrochemical products.

The move, which will reduce the plant's work force by about 15 percent, will be accomplished by offering senior workers early retirement incentives, said Cosden spokesman J.W. Cahill

The announcement was made public at a press conference at 2 p.m. - the same time Cosden management and union officials were meeting with a worker's committee to discuss the announcement.

The personnel reduction will be effective March 1, Cahill said, adding that at the same time Cosden will curtail its output of certain petrochemical products.

"The cutback in petrochemical production reflects reduced consumption and recession-related conditions in the housing, automotive and appliances industries," Cosden management said in a news release distributed by Cahill.

He said the company hopes it can accomplish all or most of its work force reduction by offering employees early retirement. If 100 employees aren't willing to retire soon, there "may have to be some layoffs," Cahill said

Clovis Phinney Jr., business manager of the local office of the International Union of Operating Engineers, said workers 55 years or older prior to March 1 would be asked to retire

"THEY CAN MAKE a decision whether to retire or not. Nobody's going to be forced to retire," he said. Retirement will be sought from employees throughout the plant — "from the front gate to the back fence," Phinney said. "Machinists, welders - it's not going to affect any one type of worker.

Phinney said a meeting was scheduled for late this morning with employees of Cosden Pipe Line Co. to discuss the personnel cutbacks with

Phinney said "if there's going to be an amendment to the Cosden pension, it'll have to be offered to those people, too. That's what this is: an amendment to the pension."

Cosden employs about 675 persons at its refinery and approximately 125 employees in its local business office and pipeline company.' Both the refinery and pipeline company are subsidiaries of American Petrofina, headquartered in Dallas.

Phinney described the mood of the workers as one of concern.

"They're concerned about their options," he said at 6 p.m. yesterday. Since the six-man workers' committee, management and union officials had met at 2 p.m., Phinney had been busy discussing the plan with workers, he said.

Cahill said the cutbacks would be permanent and no time frame for returning 100 jobs to the operation was envisioned.

"We are taking steps to control costs and efficiencies in hopes of avoiding more drastic actions," he said

Time and again the candidates marveled at the size of the crowd. They seemed both pleased and surprised at the strength and interest shown by the Democratic party of Howard County

One could sense the growing pride and sense of purpose of the Democratic party whose outlook has been bleak since the advent of Reaganomics.

Bob Slagle, Texas Democratic party chairman, said the gathering was a inspiration to him and every other Democratic candidate who has been tramping the campaign trail. "Before Democrats were always in a position to carry Texas without doing anything and as a consequence Democrats have become fat, lazy, dumb and happy. Now they realize they have to get out and do things. There is a great increase nowadays in party participation among Democrats and I'm very pleased with it."

"Democrats are becoming more cognizant of the fact they have to organize and do some things or alternatively money is going to rule the elections," Slagle said.

Slagle feels Texas is on the verge of being a two party state which means Democrats will have to consider all Republican candidates as serious contenders.

"Having a Republican governor and president puts forward the challenge to us to retire those guys. Republican candidates are usually wealthy and very well financed and anybody who

Also attending the event was Beep Cain, a representative from Congressman Charles Stenholm's office, and Millie Bruner, National Democratic Committee Chairwoman.

Three candidates had to cancel their appearances at the rally last night due to unforeseen circumstances. They were Mark White, candidate for governor; Garry Mauro, running for land commissioner and Sen. Jack Ogg, who is seeking the attorney general's post.

The evening ended with each candidate speaking in turn to the crowd for approximately five minutes. The speeches were garden variety campaign talks as each politico introduced himself, told of his qualifications and explained why he would be the best man for the office.

H.M. "Mack" Underwood, president of the Howard County Democratic Club, said the rally was the largest Democratic gathering in the history of West Texas.

Armstrong said Big Spring was his 107th stop so far on the campaign, while Ratliff said the press conference was his first. Ratliff explained that White had been called away unexpectedly to testify in the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington D.C. for the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Armstrong pledged that under his leadership, "Texas will no longer be a government of the few, by the few and for the few '

He named as his top priorities public education and the control of crime

"Education is not just the province of teachers. Education is not just a matter of money. Quality education is the bridge our children cross to productive lives," Armstrong said.

As land commiscioner, Armstrong said he started a program "to absolutely maximize" the public school fund which derives its income from oil and gas production on state lands under his management. He said the fund had now grown to over $3 billion. Armstrong said crime problems can only be solved by the participation of all Texans.

"I want funded, trained, and able law enforcement officers who have pride in what they do, pride in their ability and training and pride in their fairness," he said.

City audit provides good, bad news

By BILL ELDER

Staff Writer The Big Spring City Council received its annual independent audit at the council meeting held last night, and while the city was commended for mak ing improvements in most areas cited in the previous audit, it also was taken to task for not recording plant depreciation in certain funds.

James Welch of the local accounting firm Lee, Wilson & Reynolds presented the report to the council and went over some of the audit's highlights.

Welch pointed out surpluses in several funds, which in many cases exceeded the balance which the council had estimated it would wind up with (the audit was for the fiscal year which ended last Sept. 30)

The General Fund, for which revenues primarily are obtained by taxes, permits, licenses and fees, had a balance of $477,638 - about $300,000 more than the council had planned when it drew up the budget for fiscal 1980-81.

The Revenue Sharing Fund ended the year with a balance of $144,102, when $127,439 had been estimated at the start of the year.

The Enterprise Fund (composed of the Water and Sewer and Airport-Industrial Park funds) noted a net income of $609,712, Welch noted.

The accounting firm remarked in its introduction to the report that since neither plant depreciation nor value of contributed assets received in previous years was reflected in the city's records, a fair representation of the city's financial position couldn't be determined.

"The amounts by which the financial statements would change, if these amounts were included ... can not be determined," the auditors noted.

The bottom line, however, looked good to councilmen and they accepted the report with little comment.

Councilman Jack Y. Smith, however, took the opportunity to put in a pitch for closer month-to-month monitoring of expenditures.

"Our bottom line is good, but if you look at the middle line, I think we need to watch our month-to-month expenditures," Smith said. "The only reason we're looking good on the bottom line is because we've been real good in some areas." In other matters last night, the council kicked off Phase II of its five-year Capital Improvement Pro-gram. Reaves and the council agreed last month to delay billing Parkhill, Smith & Cooper until September of this year, when sufficient bond revenue is expected to be avaiable. Also last night, the council approved a bid to supply the city with police uniforms. The bid submitted by Donovan Uniform Co. was approved with Chief of Police Elwood Hoherz' recommendation. Although bid prices for shirts were lower by the two other companies which had bid to supply the uniforms, the Donovan bid on pants was lowest (21 per pair). Hoherz told the council the department's principal need was for pants. Another bid accepted by the council last night was for the maintenance contract on the city's radio communication system. The contract was awarded to Motorola Communications out of Midland.

Although four companies had been invited to bid for the contract, only Motorola did so, according to Administrative Assistant Bill Hall, who pointed out that the proposed Motorola contract calls for a 32 percenh price increase.

Motorola has held the contract previously and provided statisfactory service, Hall said. The new contract would amount to a maximum of $12,144 per vear

Hightower: Big biz 'ripping off people' By MIKE DOWNEY

Staff Writer Jim Hightower, candidate for Texas agriculture commissioner, said last night at the local Democratic rally he wants to help Texans with the commissioner's staff "in a new direction." Hightower is running against incumbent Reagan Brown who was unable to attend the function. Hightower told the Herald the 500-member staff of the agriculture commission should be put to work for the people. "People are being ripped off by big business and what could be more important than helping those people?" One method Hightower proposes is creating a "swat team" of lawyers, ac-"Food prices are down for the farmer, but not in the countants and so forth to store — conglometration are getting those increases. We regat to use the power of One agginizations to on-missioner's difference to battle for rural towns

Ex-chief acquitted in civil rights case

TYLER, Texas (AP) - Former Tyles Police Chief Willie Hardy says he will 'proceed very cautiously'' in enforcing drug laws now that he has been acquitted on charges that alleged he conspired to violate the civil rights of two defendants.

Jurors deliberated slightly more than two hours Tuesday before finding Hardy innocent on federal perjury and conspiracy charges. Conviction on the charges carries a maximum penalty of 11 years in prison and a $11,000 fine

Hardy had demoted himself to assistant chief after he was indicted in December on charges that alleged he lied to cover up the drug addiction of his top undercover narcotics agent.

Defense attorney Rex Houston said Hardy had a "gentlemen's agreement" with city officials that he could return to his job as police chief if acquitted.

Tyler Mayor Robert Nail said he is going to urge Tyler City Manager Ed Wagoner to reinstate Hardy.

Hardy turned pale when the verdict was read, and his wife, Beth, shrieked and ran to the front of the courtroom when the jurors were dismissed.

"I think the jurors were intelligent people," he said. "I think they could see the whole thing was a sham — a put-up deal."

Hardy took the stand Monday, denying that he covered up narcotics agent Creig Matthews' drug use. He also denied that he had compiled a "hit list" of 100 people he wanted arrested on trumped-up drug evidence.

'What in the world has that got to do with killing somebody?" Williams asked.

"I've been through a lot all day yesterday, and I'm tired. You keep asking me the same questions over and over again," he said. The question is, did I kill somebody, and I told this man (Mallard) I hadn't.' Defense attorney Alvin Binder conferred

Are you saying that all of these witnesses that came in here and the points you've contradicted, they've all lied against you?" Assistant District Attorney Jack Mallard asked Williams.

"I didn't say all of them," he replied. "I say some of them have lied, some of them have told half-truths. Some of them have been mistaken, and, of course, some of them have outright lied.

Budget rewrite hinted Republicans, Demos edge closer on defense, taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican chairman of the Senate Budget Committee is making what his Democratic counterpart in the House calls an "extremely significant" step toward a bipartisan rewrite of President Reagan's deficit-ridden budget. It calls for less military spending and more taxes than Reagan has proposed.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M, the Senate committee chairman, declared Tuesday that --"in blunt terms" - Reagan's 1983 spending plan "simply doesn't pay for all the good things it wants to do.'

"Congress just won't pass" Reagan's budget, Domenici said, adding that its huge projected deficit "threatens to crush any hope of economic recovery.

Domenici unveiled his counter-proposals in a speech to the Conference Board Tuesday night raising taxes by $122 billion over three years -$18 billion in 1983; $49 billion in 1984 and $55 billion in 1985

But a detailed draft of his plan, made available to The Associated Press, shows the numbers are based on eliminating the July 1983 individual income tax cut; enacting a revised minimum tax on corporations and repealing the so-called leasing provision in the 1981 law that enables profitable companies to purchase unused tax credits from less profitable firms.

However, the draft says repeal of the 1983 tax cut is not the "preferred alternative" and that

Rep. James R. ajones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, had this response to Domenici's proposal: "It is extremely significant that a leading Republican budget spokesmanh as now come forward with a plausible program. Our concepts of what needs to be done are very close.

The proposals Domenici revealed include: -Reductions in Reagan's defense buildup of $20 billion to $25 billion between 1983 and 1985. -Eliminating cost-of-living increases for 1983 for benefit programs, including Social Security. -Raising taxes by $122 billion over the next three years.

-Freezing federal pay raises in the 1963 fiscal year and limiting them to 5 iercent the following two years

-Freezing spending on hundreds of domestic programs at current levels for three years. —Limiting increases in Medicare and Medicaid to the rise in the Consumer Price Index, saving an estimated $22 billion in three years.

Even with those changes, he said, deficits will be $90 billion in 1983; $65 billion in 1984 and no more than $55 billion in 1985.

Reagan's plan projects a deficit of $91.5 billion in 1963, but Republicans and Democrats alike say it underestimates the actual shortfall. Even by Reagan's figures, the deficit would decline only to $72 billion in 1985.

In a speech last week, Jones said an alternative to the president's budget should include additional revenues to trim deficits, tightened defense spending and adjustments in the way many government programs are tied to the Consumer Price Index.

Domenici declared, "This is no time for a quibbling over ideological purity. This is no time for partisan potshots.

He said he believes a bipartisan consensus is developing.

"I hope that I can persuade him (Reagan) to eventually support a plan not dissimilar to that I have outlined today — a bipartisan plan that faces up to the dangers that lie ahead," Domenici siad.

Domenici and other GOP congressional leaders had met with Reagan earlier Tuesday at the White House. Following the session, Domenici said the president had shown no interest in scaling back to delaying the 3-year, 25percent reduction in income tax withholding rates that Congress passed last year.

But "to say that a 3-year or 4-year plan is set in concrete, and that a 5-year approach would be entirely unacceptable is silly," Domenici said.

Domenici's proposal, following by a day a plan floated by Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., for an income tax surcharge, emphasized that Republicans are determined to rewrite the president's budget.

Cosden cutback is unfortunate

The fact that Cosden Refinery has been forced to cut 100 workers is bad news not only for the Big Springers employed there but for the city in general.

But the developments in the national energy picture that led to the work force reduction here are quite the opposite.

It is only a bit oversimplified to say the refinery is reducing its personnel because a drastic drop in gasoline consumption in the U.S. has resulted in a surplus of refinery capacity.

Thus small refineries such as Cosden have been operating at less than optimum capacity and therefore at a loss.

IN SOME FORM or another, small refineries have been supported by federal regulations since 1959. Since the Nixon years, crude oil prices were controlled, held far below their real value levels.

At the end of the first OPEC oil embargo in 1974, gasoline prices were allowed to jump to the 60-cent area and a look back shows that wasn't high enough to convince motorists to change to small vehicles or cut back on their driving.

With decontrol, however, prices in the $1.20 per gallon range proved to be adequate to accomplish those goals. The result has been a dramatic decline in gasoline consumption.

Thus instead of a shortage of refining capacity, the oil industry now has a surplus.

IT IS UNFORTUNATE that Big Spring's venerable Cosden refinery is a victim of that process. Cosden is to be commended for offering attractive retirement incentives to workers over age 55, thereby doing its part to make the necessary cuts as painless as possible.

The city has bounced back from economic setbacks much worse than this in the past, and we are positive the city's economic picture will continue to thrive in spite of this bad news glacial pace of past negotiations, the U.S. and Russia are now speeding headlong toward an arms control agreement at Geneva. But unless President Reagan initiates plans for rehabilitating the Atlantic alliance soon, the arms control race only means this country will be caught in a familiar either-or trap. The current set of Big Two arms control talks began on Nov. 30. On Dec. 13, the military cracked down in Poland. Ever since, the U.S. has been trying to read the riot act to the Russians on Poland and a lot of other places like Afghanistan, the Persian Gulf, the Middle East, Angola and the Caribbean.

Nevertheless, there has been achieved at Geneva forward motion that would have taken years to accomplish in past negotiations. The U.S. has tabled a draft treaty. The Russians have unveiled a full-blown counterproposal.

the U.S. would deploy in Europe, beginning in 1983, 572 new nuclear missiles capable of hitting Russia. Second, there would be Big Two negotiations aimed at limiting these 'Europ-missiles" on both sides. The talks that began in Geneva on Nov. 30 are those negotiations.

A retreat forward

At present the two sides are far apart. The U.S., as President Reagan announced in a speech on Nov. 18, favors the "zero option." That means this country cancels the planned deployment of the 572 new nuclear weapons in return for Soviet scrapping of all the SS-20s, SS-5s and SS-4s. A reduction in their force to about 300 delivery systems has been accepted by the Russians. But they not only want the U.S. to cancel future deployments of the 572 new nuclear weapons. They also seek cutbacks in existing British and French nuclear forces, and in the number of American planes based in Europe pr on carriers that are capable of reaching the Soviet Union. Morever, the Russians reserve the right to move all of their SS-20s behind the Ural Mountains where they would threaten China and Japan and also be available for rapid, secret redeployment to the west. That wide disparity of positions however, is not apt to last long. For the Russians have been steadily sweetening the pot. Back in 1979, Moscow insisted there could be no Big Two negotiations if the U.S. moved to deploy new nuclear arms in Europe Last summer the Russians hinted they might be willing to reduce their force by an unspecified number of missiles. In the fall, when Leonid Brezhnev went to West Germany, he talked of a reduction of "several hundred weapons." Now the Russians

ALL THE RUSSIANS have to do is extract from their offer the proposal concerning American warplanes. That will leave the Soviet Union going down to a relatively low number of Euro-missiles. They can always go a little lower providing the U.S. cancels

The European allies would find such an offer highly attractive. It would put a lid on Soviet missile strength now, and make an opening for further arms control negotiations. If the U.S. rejected the Soviet gambit, it would find itself in the melancholy position of having to compete against the Russians, of all people, for the hearts

I am 22-years-old, married and have a young son. I am proud of my country and the freedom I enjoy as an American.

We, as Americans, should be very proud of our country. Perhaps, not for what it is but at least for what it stands for. Freedom. Freedom to say, to write, to do, to choose. Freedom among all other things. We, as Americans, should be proud of the people who have fought and died to preserve this freedom. Proud of the accomplishments, the success, the life we live.

Even proud of the failures and shortcomings because we learn from mistakes and we better ourselves. But most of all, we should be proud of our freedom and very proud of our country.

If we are to keep this freedom we must be prepared to defend it. If I should ever be called upon to defend my freedom and country, I would not hesitate to do so. If I have to kill to protect it that is what I will do. And I'll do it with honor and pride.

Chronic illness

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have a chronic health problem which makes it necessary for me to take medication every day. I have a friend who says that if I just had faith enough I would not have to do this. Is this what the Bible teaches?-Mr.s H.A.L.

DEAR MRS. H.A.L.: There certainly may be instances when God will work in ways that are beyond our understanding to bring physical healing, and we should always pray that he will heal if it is his will. But I find nothing in the Bible that says God must always heal us, if we somehow muster enough faith.

Look at the example of the apostle Paul. He was one of the greatest Christians who ever lived-perhaps the greatest. After his conversion, he devoted his life to Christ, and he walked with God in close fellowship every day. God even used him on occasion to bring miraculous physical healing to some people (although this was not a major part of his ministry). Yet we find Paul himself had some sort of physical illness which apparently caused him great pain and perhaps even embarrassment. He tells us, "Three times I pleaded with the Lord to take it away from me'' (2 Corinthians 12:8). But God did not do so, telling Paul instead "My grace is sufficient for you, for my power is made perfect in weakness'' (2 Corinthians 12:9). In other words, God knew that somehow Paul would be a better servant of Christ, because he would have to depend on the Lord more for strength to carry out God's task for him.

We should pray for healing, knowing that God is able to heal. We should also thank God for the doctors and medicines he has given-they also are gifts of God. But most of all, ws should pray for God's will to be done. And we should thank him also that with the eyes of faith we can see beyond the sickness and evil of this world, and know that some day we will spend eternity with him in Heaven if we know Christ as our Savior-where there will be no sickness or evil.

THE SUBJECT immediately at issue is intermediate-range nuclear weapons in Europe. The Russians have deployed in the western part of their country more than a thousand warheads targeted on Western Europe. Some 300 are older missiles the SS-4s and SS-5s. Some 250, carrying 750 warheads, are SS-20 missiles deployed since 1979.

The Atlantic allies responded to the SS-20 deployment, in December of 1979, with a two-track decision. First,

WASHINGTON-In his first low-key month as President Reagan's national security adviser, William P. Clark has quietly moved-with Reagan's support-against Alexander Haig's cherished foreign policy turf, predictably arousing resistance from the secretary of state.

Unlike public quarrels between Haig and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger over the U.S. approach to the Middle East or toward the Soviet Union, the Haig-Clark dispute concerns no single policy but how policy should be made. This is a struggle for the power to create, control and carry out U.S. foreign policy that under Reagan often has seemed to wander aimlessly. Clark has issued a secret directive giving the National Security Council (NSC) staff jurisdiction over longrange U.S. policy reviews now con-ducted by the State Department. Haig, a stalwart defender of State Department turf, is fighting that directive. "The orders are that it is to be done here, but Al won't buy," one

White House insider told us, Reagan brought his old friend, Judge Clark, over from the relatively comfortable deputy secretary's niche at the State Department not merely to replace the fallen Richard V. Allen but to bring order out of chaos in making foreign policy. But Haig's opposition to Clark's plans threatens more disarray.

Clark is strengthened by the latest, unseemly outbreak of policy struggles between Haig and Weinberger. In daily headlines, these public battles show disorder within the president's national security bureaucracy. Foremost allies of the U.S. are agree 100 percent with Hector Lopez's letter contents in Friday's Mailbag (Feb. 19, 1982). However, I would like to add an additional comment. It is the responsibility of the city manager to explain in specific details why the water plant is in this condition and why it was allowed to depreciate to this condition. How about some answers for the B.S. public.

privately asking questions about who's in charge while underlings of the two principals fuel hostility with leaks to the press and end runs to promote their bosses.

THAT SETS the stage for Reagan to elevate Clark and his NSC staff, with instructions to take command of the damaging in-fighting. The first step in that direction is Clark's seemingly trivial divective empowering his staff to call its own policy-review meetings in the White House. In fact, the authority to call high-level meetings of top State, Defense and Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) officials and to dominate those meetings is the core of policy power. Moreover, Clark has confided to intimates that he was not ruling out a change more basic than long-range policy review. He wants to upgrade the NSC staff, giving it closer control and management over day-to-day policy

So far, he has made no overt move in that direction. But Clark has been taking charge in a far more personal way than Allen. When Weinberger sent Clark a speech he planned to deliver at a U.S.-West German conference in Munich Feb. 13, Clark ordered two sections changed, one dealing with the Soviets' Yamal pipeline, the other with West German contributions to NATO. White House aides say that Allen never censored speeches of Cabinet members.

Clark's first six weeks on the job contradict expectations that, considering his total foreign policy ex-perience of one year under Haig's tutelage, he would be a highly efficient paper shuffler without touching policy. Those predictions underestimated Clark's clout.

Clark's influence derives directly from Regan himself, and the president is known to be solidly behind Clark in the current struggle for control over long-range policy reviews. White House insiders say Haig's resistance to the new directive has disturbed the president almost as much as the secretary's public protest last spring over Vice President Bush's selection as "crisis manager

HAIG'S FIGHT against the new directive many persuade the president the time has come for major bureaucratic changes, giving Clark and his staff new power to coordinate and control day-to-day national security operations as Henry Kissinger and Zbigniew Brezezinski did in the 1970s. That was foresworn by Reagan during the presidential campaign in what proved a vain effort to prevent the public feuding in his administration that poisoned relations between Kissinger and Secretary of State William P. Rogers and between Brzezinski and secretary Cyrus Vance.

But Reagan has been confronting worse internal disharmony: public debate and private struggle between Haig and Weinberger over how to deal with the Russians, Poland, the Caribbean, the Arabs and Israel. For a year, the National Security Council staff, representing the president, has been locked out of resolving these disagreements. Judge Clark's seemingly trivial directive has opened the door a wide crack; Gen Haig's struggle against it unwittingly may push it open wider.

Notes on federalism

When Ronald Reagan took office a year ago, he promised the American people a "New Federalism," a statefederal partnership which would return to the states the powers and responsibilities that belong to them. This year, in his State of the Union Address, the President outlined a program which will take us a long distance toward the "New Federafism" goal. Under this plan, the states would take over responsibilities for two major domestic programs, Aid to families with Dependent Children and Food Stamps. This would allow administration and formulation of the aid programs to be at the local level where they can be more effective and more efficient. In return, the federal government would take on the considerable burden of Medicaid.

Further, more than 40 federal grant programs would be turned back to the state where they could be oriented toward local needs and their services delivered more efficiently. To finance these programs, federal excise tax intially to provide money for the entire current cost and then to be phased out at a gradual rate. Thus, we would be allowing the states the means and the time to absorb these new - or renewed - responsibilities.

THIS $28 BILLION federalism trust fund, and growing savings from Medicaid federalization from fiscal year 1984 to fiscal year 1987 would provide not only increasing revenue sources to finance new state program responsibilities, but also remove federal funding uncertainty for the rest of the decade. The states would have six years to determine best the mix of program savings and state tax increases before the federalism trust fund begin to phase out in fiscal year 1988 Over the past two decades, we have overloaded the federal government with management and fiscal responsibilities. This program would restore the balance of state and federal reponsibilities. This balance, after all, was the original function of the federal system outlined in our Constitution.

The federalism initiative also would large abolish the existing, unworkable federal-state grant-in-aid system which tends to transform non-federal units into subordinate middle management extensions of the Washington bureaucracy.

This program will restore the balance of state and federal responsibilities. This balance, after all, was the original function of the féderal system.

In other ways, the move toward the New Federalism has begun. During the past year, we have cut the growth of new federal regulations nearly in half. We have begun looking at and modifying existing regulations which are counter-productive or costinefficient

Let me emphasize, though, that neither the President nor the Congress wants the federal government to shirk the responsibilities that belong to it.

THE PRESIDENT'S federalism initiative leaves in federal hands domestic programs including the social insurance system of Social Security retirement, disability and Medicare; transfer aid to the needy elderly; health insurance and medical insurance, and projects of national significance such as Head Start, handicapped education, interstate highways and regulatory protections with interstate impact.

Hand-in hand with the Administration's domestic reforms is a sustained commitment to rebuilding our national defense capability. The signficant and determining fact is that the domestic programs which would go back to the states can be handled more effectively at that level. National security can only be provided by the federal government. And that function is the most essential and most basic of federal functions.

We will continue to improve our national defense system to meet our solemn obligations to protect the American people and their vital interests in the world. We will continue to provide the basic "safety net" of domestic aid programs which have come to be a basic part of the American framework. We will continue to regulate those aspects of American commerce that affect the rights, health and safety of our citizens. But we will work to end federal meddling in those areas in which it is neither justified nor effective.

A shot across Reagan's bow

NEW YORK (AP) - "We were ready to fire a shot across the President's bow," said Julio S. Laguarta. It was just a week ago Monday when that signal was considered by the crew cut, no-nonsense, self-made Laguarta

The shot was delayed at almost the last minute. "We thought we saw a ray of sunshine, and not wanting to take on the President we backed off," he said. "But," he vowed, "we won't remain silent forever." Julio Laguarta, 48, head of Laguarta Gavrel & Kirk Inc. of Houston, is the new president of the National Association of Realtors, whose 690,000 members make it the nation's largest business organization.

What upsets Laguarta, whose determination rather than anger seems to be aroused when he is challenged, is that President Reagan, whom he supports, may not be sufficiently informed about housing problems

Overall, he supports the President's goals. He and the Realtors think the President is correct in his pursuit of greater military security and less inflation. It's the White House budget gap that bothers them.

It bothers them, of course, because the budget deficit, which the Realtors expect will be at least $118 billion, homebuyer

Buyer difficulties quickly affect Realtors, whose membership dropped by 66,000 in 1981 and seems likely to fall again in 1982 Twice the number we lost may be out of the business but remain members he said "We don't know how many arcan business. Some might be working for department stores. We have seen bankruptcies and we will see a hell of a lot more if the present economic scenario does't change

In fact, Laguarta says, it must change. More houses must be built, he insists, simply to provide shelter for the many millions of young households that its being formed.

Dr. Donohue

Fear of unknown

Dear Dr. Donohue: Some five years ago I was told I had sarcoidosis. I have not been successful in getting treatment for this problem, and I am becoming quite handicapped and in constant pain. I am very alarmed about my condition. Do you know anything about its cause and the treatment? It is the fear of the unknown that really bothers me.-F.H.

Here's another of the many illnesses about which we know too little. Almost any organ can be affected, with common ones being the lungs, lymph nodes, liver, skin or eyes. Usually, only lymph nodes and lungs are involved. Symptoms depend on which organs are involved, and how seriously.

Take the lungs, for example. Sarcoidosis there may cause shortness of breath, and a cough may appear. The activity of the disease can come and go, with a period of remission followed by one of painful symptoms. A most unpredictable and poorly understood disease, sarcoidosis, for sure.

One new development has been the discovery that high blood levels of a certain enzyme appear in patients who suffer from sarcoidosis. That does not help us in understanding the condition, but it does help determine periods of high activity or remission. With that information, appropriate courses of steroid drugs can be arranged. If the enzyme level is high, the dose can be increased. That may not sound terribly important, but it is. It allows doctors to keep steroid doses as low as possible for effective control.

I cannot understand why you have not found treatment for your problem, or whether it is really sarcoidosis or some other condition now causing your discomfort. You need to be examined. The blood test for the enzymes will be a good starting point.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Will you please give me some food has potassium. In it? I eat bananas and orange juice, but I would like to have all the foods that have potassium in in them so I can eat a greater variety. — Mrs. A.R.

I can list some of the potassium foods. They include baked potato, raw mushrooms, baked squash, canned apricots, strawberries, figs, cantaloupe and rhubarb. I think the important point, Mrs. A.R., is that you probably don't have to have a diet very heavy in potassium-rich foods.

If you have been told your potassium is quite low you many need supplements. Ask your doctor how low yours is and how much you need to get from special sources.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I get a clicking sensation in my throat. I can almost hear it, but it stops as suddenly as it starts. I feel well, but I'm naturally concerned. Any comment?-B.B.

The muscles of your palate or of your eustachian tube (in the back of the throat) may be contracting. That can be caused by fatigue (just as with an eyelid tic). Tension or nervousness can be the cause. Rest corrects matters. From this distance I cannot be sure if this is your problem. It's a likely one. I want you to see your doctor if the symptom persists to be sure nothing else is going on that need attention.

There's an old saying if your feet burt, you hurt all over. Dr. Donohue's booklet, "Relief and Care of Your. Feet," shows you how to avoid and take care of foot problems. To get your copy, write to Dr. Donohue in care of The Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Should grandpa be told?

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old male, in jail, facing charges of first-degree murder. I was my grandfather's favorite grandchild. In fact I was named for him. He is 97 years old, and he doesn't know where I am because my mother and her brothers do not want to tell him. They say it would break his heart. I think he should be told. For one thing, I could use his help financially. My lawyer plans to have me out in seven years, but by that time my grandfather will probably be dead. I think the real reason my mother and her brothers don't want to tell Grandpa is because they're afraid he will sell some of his land to help me, which will mean less for them after he dies. I feel very bitter about this. Don't you think my grandfather should be told?

BITTER

.DEAR BITTER: I can understand your mother's and DEAR BITTER: I can understand your mother's and her brothers' desire to protect their elderly father from heartbreaking news, but I have strong feelings against withholding information from a competent adult in order to "protect" him. However, until I know the facts concern-ing your family's motivation and Grandpa's condition, it's not possible to make a valid judgment.

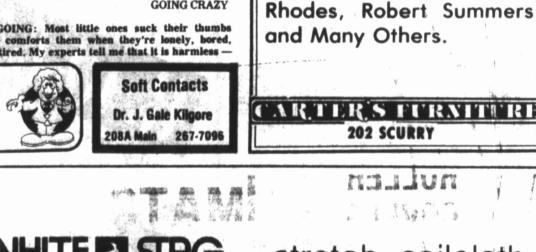

DEAR ABBY: I am going crazy with this problem. I have two kids, 7 and  $1\!\!\!\!\!/_2$  . Both of them were breast-fed and given lots of love, but we ended up with a couple of thumb-suckers. Where have we failed? Is it hereditary, or what? The older one has outgrown the habit, but I still find her with her thumb in her mouth when she sleeps. It's the younger one I'm worried about.

He keeps his thumb in his mouth all the time, except when he eats or cries. It is really maddening to see him with his thumb constantly in his mouth. I tried applying bitter-tasting medicine on his thumb, but he got accustom-ed to it and sucks his thumb anyway. I even made a pair of gloves, but his hands are so small and flexible, it's only a matter of time before he frees his thumb and sucks it. If I scold him, he goes and hides so he can suck his thumb. I am sick and tired of this tug-of-war with him. My pediatrician is no help. He says leave him alone. I have no one to turn to but you, Abby. If you can't find a solution, ask your readers if they know of a foolproof, tamperproof device to keep a child's thumb out of his mouth.

GOING CRAZY

..DEAR GOING: Most little ones suck their thumbs because it comforts them when they're lonely, bored, hungry or tired. My experts tell me that it is harmless — unless they suck so vigorously that they create a malformation of the mouth which later causes crooked teeth. Your tug-of-war battles with the boy could do him more harm than his thumb-sucking. Your pediatrician gave you good advice. Leave him alone. But check regularly with a entist for his advice.

Witnesses say warden was 'non-violent'

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) - Attorneys for inmate Eroy Edward Brown have asked a state judge to force prosecutors to produce the record-ed conversations of three Texas Department of Corrections inmates who witnessed the slayings of two prison officials.

Brown is being tried in the April 4 drowning death of Ellis Unit Warden Wallace Pack.

State District Judge Henry Dalehite said he will rule today whether the conversations taped by a Walker County investigator can be admitted into evidence at Brown's capital murder trial. Defense attorney Craig Washington made the request Tuesday after testimony from the county investigator. Before the testimony, Washington said he thought the only recording that existed was identical to the written statements made by the in-mates immediately after the slavings. But the recording in question contains other material relevant to the case, Washington said. The three inmates said they saw Brown shoot and kill Ellis Unit Farm Manager Billy Max

Moore and chase Pack into a drainage ditch. Prosecutors have said they may later try Brown for Moore's death. Defense attorneys contend both slayings were self-defense. Prosecutors called witnesses to the stand Tuesday who characterized Pack as a nonviolent, but strict, prison official.

"Warden Pack was very fair, firm and dedicated, what you might call a company man," asid Morris Jones, an assistant warden at the TDC's Jester Unit near Sugar Land. "He was like a father to me.'

In addition to TDC officials, former inmate Freeman Sensabough, 67, testified that Pack "was non-violent and non-dangerous, strict is all."

"He went by the book and expected everyone else to do the same," said Sensabough, who served 14 years on a murder conviction.

Sensabough said ex-inmate Tommy Carlisle. who testified that Pack tortured him with a pair of pliers and supervised the deaths of two other prisoners, "was not very truthful."

Sensabough said inmate Al Slaton, who told jurors last week he was hung from cell bars by handcuffs for several hours, was "the same or worse than Tommy Carlisle. ... He had scars from his wrists to his chest. Al Slaton, selfmutilator."

Under cross-examination by Washington, Sen-sabough acknowledged that Pack ordered him to stand against a wall for three hours "and count the bricks all around. And we called it 'Texas television.

Sensabough also said he had six mental illness commitments for alcoholism during his years in prison

lays claims to abandoned woodland Man

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) – Even in densely populated Connecticut, there remains what one expert calls "a lot of lost land," and Lawrence Buck claims he has found a piece of it.

The 39-year-old audio engineer discovered 26 acres of woodland in Middletown 10 years ago while "driving around looking for someplace to cut wood" for his wood stove. When he checked land records to identify the owner so he could ask permission to cut wood. Buck couldn't find the answer.

During the past decade, he has begun taking possession of the two parcels - one 17 acres and the other nine acres - for free under an obscure provision of state real-estate law called adverse possession.

The concept of the law is that someone can establish a claim by using land "openly, notoriously and continuously" for 15 years, in a manner adverse to the interests of the owner, and the a a service was an a service and the service of the owner does not appear to object. Buck, who lives in New Britain, has kept up his search for the owners and is now convinced the last known owners either had no descendants or the descendants - for one reason or another will never claim the land. Last year he filed a formal claim on one parcel.

"I'm confident," he says. "I've researched land records at the City Hall, at the state library in Hartford. I've looked at all the records and tried to locate the people. I haven't found the real owner, and I've gone bck 150 years in the land records.

To strengthen his claim on the land, Buck filed a deed claiming title to the land and paid $800 in property taxes last May on the smaller parcel whose last known owner died in 1907. The payment covered taxes on the nine acres for the previous 10 years.

He intends to pay back taxes on the 17-acre parcel later this year - as soon as Middletown's tax assessor takes care of the paperwork restoring it to the tax rolls.

Contraction and the second s

'They'd lost track of it altogether,'' said Buck. "Didn't know who to send the tax bill to, so they took it off the list years ago.'

The last record of an owner of the larger parcel is in 1877, Buck said.

Buck believes that if no one successfully disputes his claim for another five yeas, the land will be his. It may not, however, be that clearcut.

"You're talking another six years in the courts to establish real title. No one has actually obtained title in less than 21 years," said Lou Grossi, an examiner at the state Real Estate Commission.

Cases like Buck's are rare, but not unprecedented, Grossi said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - In the propaganda battle for the world's hearts and minds, the United States is planning to raise its voice.

Voice of America to strengthen

Officials say over the next few years the Voice of America intends to step up the power of its shortwave transmissions in an attempt to reach more people.

And, to keep them listening, this show business-conscious administration intends to give its message a more "contemporary" sound. Particularly, it wants to sound more youthful, to appeal to the young. These attempts to play a bigger role in the ideological struggle with the Soviet Union have Ronald Reagan's devoted backing.

The president installed a friend of 35 years' standing, Charles Z. Wick, as top man at the International Communication Agency, parent agency of the VOA. Wick, a prosperous businessman, was once the arranger for Tommy Dorsey's band.

Today, when the Voice celebrates 40 years on the air, Reagan is expected to visit the VOA to participate in a ceremony.

GLENDALE, Ore. (AP) — Gerald Snyder is a purveyor of justice 39 today. Texas has about 1,500 non-K. Snyder is a purveyor of justice attorney judges, but in Washington, their numbers have dwindled from about 200 to about 70, according to the National Judges Association. The National Center for State Courts in Williamsburg, Va., reports that in 1979 about half the judges in the country's state courts, or about 13,300 judges, were not lawyers.

Lay judges handle only misdemeanors, the most serious assault or menacing, for example punishable by up to $2,500 in fines and a year in jail. In Oregon, justices of the peace also have authority to issue felony arrest warrants.

Critics of lay-judge courts claim they are a relic of pioneer days, rife with inconsistent rulings, underqualified judges and good-ol'-boy justice.

"I'll be the first to admit, I'm a 'good ol' boy,''' says Snyder. ''But I've sent my best friend to jail. He's still my best friend.

The 48-year-old Snyder, an ex-Marine and former deputy sheriff, is a vocal defender of lay judges. He is the past president of the Oregon Justices of the Peace Association and in 1981 was named the best lay judge in the nation by the National Judges Association, a group that represents non-attorney judges across the rattles and a roof that leaks. the National Judges Association, says there will always be a place for the nonattorney judge in the American judicial system.

'We have the greatest respect for attorneys. However, we feel that the court the people go to should not be regulated to the point where it should only be attorneys," says Huff, a municipal court judge in Yelm, Wash. "It should be the best man for the job.

But Stephen Goldspiel, assistant director of judicial activities for the American Bar Association, says lay judges should be eliminated as part of an overall reform of the judicial system.

Short training courses and seminars for the lay judges are merely window dressing compared with the formal legal education attorneys get, he says.

Snyder is proud of his forum for justice, with antique bottles and pictures lining the room and a jury box packed with plush, leatherbound chairs.

Those working for Snyder include his wife, Flo, his court clerk, and Fred jurors.

Ironworkers tread on the edge of danger

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ironworker Bill Bereznicki treads warily on the slender beams of a growing skyscraper. A safety line his umbilical cord, he avoids looking down and never wears trousers with cuffs.

"Out of all the crafts, it is definitely the most dangerous," Bereznicki says after a day on the iron at One Oxford Center, a 46-story office tower and retail complex under construction.

"We work up in the air a lot, carrying beams, sledgehammers and impact wrenches. With all the heavy-duty equipment, it's fatigung, and you have to be agile.

"But for me working up in the air is like being on the ground," he says.

"You have to learn to respect it. Accidents happen fast. One time and it can all be over. I've seen it."

Bereznicki was on the job when fellow ironworker Mike Grant died in a fall from the framing of the Oxford project last summer. "We were best friends," he says. "We worked together three years." This is a prosperous time in Pittsburgh for workers like Bereznicki. Four major office buildings are in various stages of construction, one has just been completed and several others are being renovated.

"We're enjoying a pretty nice boom for construction workers," says Leo Puma, president of Iron Workers Local 3, one of the largest in the country with 2,500 members.

Puma says downtown projects billed as part of a multibillion-dollar construction program called "Renaissance II" will provide steady work for 500 in his union. PPG Industries is building a complex of six buildings in the city's Market Square. On Grant Street not far from the Oxford construction, the U.S. Steel Corp. is building a 48-story headquarters for the Dravo Corp. that will rise 725 feet above the ground.

"The ironworker is the first one there," says Puma. "He puts up the house before the rest of the trades can start working."

American Bridge, a division of U.S. Steel, was contracted to erect the steel framing for Oxford and the PPG and Dravo headquarters.

The actual construction of a skyscraper starts with the raising gang, ironworkers who "hang" the metal frame. "They put it together and put enough bolts in it to make it safe,<sup>y</sup> says American Bridge construction manager Don Fink.

The next crew, the plumbing gang, uses cables, wedges and levels to make sure the structure's frame is exactly vertical before all the bolts are tightened and the final joints welded

"Once the building is in its final position, when you have all the floors poured, it's a stable structure. But when we're putting up the bare steel, it's a different animal," Fink says.

"With just the bare steel, you're depending on the bolted and welded connections at every point, which we have to figure out exactly," he says. 'We can't just throw up a few pieces of steel.'

There are crews of ironworkers to raise the steel, plumb it, tighten bolts, weld and add detail like handrailings and reinforcing rods for concrete flooring.

"Ironworkers come in all sizes and shapes. You can be small or tall. It's just like anything else," says Mack McGuffey, 13 years on the job as crew chief on a raising gang. "But some people take to it better than others. ZII

Connectors do just what their name implies. They connect one beam to another. But it can be, dangerous because they aren't always tied to a safety line.

"They got to be mobile," says Fink. "They're on top of a column waiting for the beam. If it swings their way, they gotta move. You can't be hampered with a safety line," says Puma.

ZIP code not zapped

LAKE CITY, Ga. (AP) - The U.S. Postal Service won't zap Lake City's ZIP code this year, signaling a truce in the 8-year-old war between Washington and Atlanta suburb 30252.

In 1974, City Clerk Alva Inman wrote the Atlanta postmaster to complain that Lake City's mail was be-ing delivered to towns bearing that name in Florida, South Carolina, Arkansas, California, Illinois, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota and Pennsylvania.

'Our letters would go around the horn two or three times before they got here," said Mayor Harold Bevis.

"They told us we were not big enough to merit our own post office," Bevis said. "But they said they could give us a ZIP code that will give you your own identity."

But last week, post office spokesman Ron Denney said Lake City, a small Clayton County town of less than 3,000 people, should never have been given a ZIP code

Group calls Watt wilderness plan a 'hoax'

WASHINGTON (AP) - A conservation group says Interior Secretary James G. Watt's proposal for a moratorium on oil and gas leasing in wilderness areas is a sham that actually would abolish all protections in 18 years.

"This bill is a duplicitous hoax and we will oppose it," said William Turnage, executive director of the Wilderness Society.

"It is not a wilderness protection bill as Mr. Watt described it Sunday on national television, but a wilderness 'sunset' bill that would end wilderness protection," he said late Monday. Turnage said the society has obtained a leaked copy of the administration proposal.

He said Watt "is guilty of deception by deliberately misrepresenting his intentions to the American people and arrogantly misleading Congress." Watt stunned conservationists Sunday when he said the administration would ask Congess to withdraw all wilderness areas from mineral leasing until the year 2000. At first, conservationists cautiously hailed the development as a major shift in administration policy. But Turnage said examination of the bill, which Watt has promised to submit to Congress this week, showed that, in fact, the administration would repeal the permanent protections afforded wilderness areas under the Wilderness Act of 1964.

More than 80 million acres are designated wilderness areas, which means they are offlimits to developers and motorized vehicles. Harmon Kallman, an Interior spokesman, called Turnage's statements "nonsense" and said the administration has not even provision in law." He said it was clear the drafted its wilderness proposal in final form.

"They might have obtained early drafts (of the bill)," said Kallman. "Whatever anyone claims to have obtained is worth no more than the paper it is written on...has no authenticity," he said. Kallman noted that Watt, in his original statement about the wilderness leases on national television, said Congress could reexamine the entire wilderness question at

However, Chuck Clusen, the Wilderness Society's conservation director, said the wilderness protections outlined in the leaked bill would end, "notwithstanding any other provision would repeal the 1964 protections, not simply be an addition to them

The society also said the Reagan administration proposal mah pose unac-ceptable risks to other undeveloped federal lands.

After Watt described some sections of the bill Monday before the House Interior subcommittee on public lands, the society's spokesman, Gordon, Roberts, said the mineral leasing ban on wilderness areas may be "some sort of trade-off."

Roberts said his group is concerned about Watt's description of the proposal that links the wilderness drilling moratorium with the opening of federal lands outside the wilderness system.

Nuclear shutdowns

Retiring power plants may prove to be a headache

NEW YORK (AP) - Building nuclear plants has become steadily more complex and expensive. Decommissioning the industry's retiring plants won't be any picnic, either.

In fact, the cost of scrapping old plants may run into the billions. Who'll pay? That question, with many others, remains to be settled.

Commercial nuclear power has been around for 20 years. Industry and government are just beginning serious study of what's involved in the elaborate, costly process of decommissioning. On the face of it, there doesn't seem to be any rush about grappling with plant retirement problems at a time when the industry has plenty of more immediate worries, economic and technological.

Retirement date for the nation's oldest plants won't come until the end of the century. Moreover, federal regulations allow delays in the actual dismantling of the plants for 30 years or more beyond retirement.

But unexpected technical problems like embrittlement and pipe fatigue raise potential threats to the life expectancy of a number of plants. It's possible that nuclear power's backend problem will move to the forefront much sooner than anticipated.

"It is not too soon to be concerned or sanguine," says Joseph Fouchard, chief spokesman for the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The agency has recently conducted a flock of decommissioning studies. Thorough revision of NRC regulations on the subject are expected by early 1983, says Commissioner John Ahearne.

Critics of nuclear power say decommissioning could eventually become the industry's biggest and most expensive headache, ultimately even more expensive than plant construction. But experts at NRC contend the procedure of tearing apart a nuclear plant, removing radioactive material, and releasing the site to unrestricted use can be accomplished safely and at reasonable cost.

While 6 small reactors have been decommissioned to date, they were small. The only commercial power reactor that has been fully dismantled was a 58.2-megawatt demonstration plant at Elk River, Minn., about five percent the capacity of today's reactors.

That unit cost $6 million to build and slightly more than $6 million to decommission, a fact critics cite in arguing that the industry is underestimating decommissioning costs.

The NRC points to Elk River as proof that decommissioning can work smoothly. In its "Draft Generic Environmental Impact Statement on Decommissioning Nuclear Facilities, issued in January, 1981, the commission said:

"Though this reactor was quite small compared to present-day commercial power reactors, one lesson stands out: A reactor can be decontaminated with reasonable occupational radiation exposure and with virtually no public radiation exposure.

The Department of Energy's 1980 Decommissioning Handbook cautions: "Although many nuclear facilities, including reactors, have been decommissioned, the large size of present-day reactors overshadows this experience.

A study of current research and interviews with industry experts shows the following among the important issues in decommissioning: -Technique. The industry says there are no major technical impediments. Major portions of the method of large-scale decommissioning, however, won't be refined until the first dismantling of a large-scale commercial reac-

-Regulations. Criteria and regulations for decommissioning are now limited, according to several NRC-inspired studies that show that many of these rules will need extensive revision.

-Cost. Estimates of $44 million in constant 1978 dollars for the dismantling of a major reactor mean the sums will rise substantially.

Costs of labor, machinery, disposal fees are likely to go up. Specialty contractors may be required

-Financial liability. Who pays for decommissioning? Present users, customers at the time of the shutdown, the utility and its shareholders? State public-utility boards and plants already are debating the matter.

-Waste disposal. That's part of the larger problem of deciding on permanent sites for dumping radioactive waste. The government has found no solution so far. Radioactive machinery, fuel rods, piping and debris left by dismantling will add more waste.

--- Environment. Disputes loom over clean air, clean water, land use and tougher radiation standards for workers and public.

-Public pressure. Just as antinuclear and environmental groups have stretched out licensing hearings and other proceedings involving nuclear plants, they may be expected to raise many questions about decommissioning procedures.

Opponents of nuclear power plants think the industry understates decommissioning problems. Richard Udell of the Critical Mass Energy Project contends that as these difficulties come into sharper focus, they may "become a reason not to build any more plants.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission's Ahearne says his agency's chief concerns are safety and health, and he doesn't see decommissioning raising insurmountable problems there. Nor does he see anything else about decommis-sioning that might lead the agency to deny licenses for new plants.

Ahearne disagrees with the gloomier views of nuclear foes but gives them their due for raising questions. Some of them, he notes, started warning a decade ago about the lack of a federal program to manage radioactive wastes and "everybody said don't worry about it now."

National Smoker Study confirms MERIT taste sparks switch from higher tar brands.

The bottom line: taste. That's the result of the latest wave of research with smokers who have switched from higher tar cigarettes to 'Enriched Flavor'. MERIT.

MERIT Earns Taste Trophy.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers who switched from higher tar are glad they did. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT By Wide Margin.

In addition, extensive unmarked pack tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to -or better than-leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

MARDI GRAS FACE — The head of a jester on a float greets the crowd on Canal Street in New Orleans Tuesday during the Mardi Gras celebration. A sunny day with temperatures in high 70s warmed the crowd of hundreds of thousands

Mardi Gras costly, excessive and safe

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Flushed with success but still faced with excess, the city began to clean-up today after what is being called the safest Mardi Gras in recent years.

"It was a lot more organized, there was a lot less crime and the French Quarter was easier than ever to work," said Floyd Webb, who drove city buses for 13 years before becoming a cab driver eight years ago.

Crowds estimated by police at nearly a million drank and screamed and should and jostled for cheap necklaces, specialty doubloons and other gaudy "throws" along the routes for New Orleans' big parades - Zulu, Rex and Comus - or from the spinoff neighborhood truck parades

Many awoke before dawn to review elaborate plans for celebrating Mardi Gras, which translates from the French into Fat Tuesday - the eve of Ash Wednesday, which begins the holy season of Lent.

Thousands wore outrageous costumes, many homemade. They masqueraded as Ronald Reagans, Rubik's Cubes, Pac-Men and Q-Tips; drag queens, clowns, grim reapers and mosquitoes

"I never saw so many people drink that much that early in my life," said Patrolman Rick Cassanova, who helped jazzman Pete Fountain's Half-Fast Marching Band down fashionable St. Charles Avenue at 5 a.m. Tuesday. In the French Quarter, bare bottoms seemed more prevalent than exposed bosoms this year. It was a holiday - no mail was delivered or other government work done - and the celebration was held in sunny, record-tying 81-degree weather

The fashionable masked balls since January and the nearly nightly parades since Feb. 13 ended at 11:30 p.m. when Rex, King of Carnival, toasted the king of the Krewe of Comus, at 125 years the oldest of the Carnival gods, amid formal surroundings.

Extraordinary safety precautions had been taken -- and apparently were successful -- because two children were crushed by parade vehicles last year and because of other trouble

Man charged with locking friend in tank for 46 days

SKIPPACK, Fa. (AP) - A 27-year-old man who was allegedly locked in a converted fuel tank for 46 days by his highschool buddy had his clothes taken away and survived on hamburgers that were dropped in to him, authorities say.

Stephen Mazur, who claimed his friend owed him $20,000, was lured into the un-derground tank on his friend's family farm Jan. 8 and held there until Monday, when a heighbor saw him chained and handcuffed to the back of a truck on the farm and called police, state police said.

Police said Richard Markley, 27, had apparently wanted to give Mazur some fresh air and had let him out of the 10,000gallon tank, which had been converted to a bomb shelter.

Markley was arrested and held at the Montgomery County Jail in Norristown on $20,000 bail after his arraignment Tuesday on charges of kidnapping, recklessly endangering another person, false imprisonment, criminal coercion, assault Markley somehow "tricked" Mazur into Markley, who lives in Worcester Township, had been friends since high school. Police would not say if Mazur had been reported missing state police, Mazur claimed that Markley owed him $20,000. The complaint did not explain what that had to do with the alleged kidnapping, although police said the debt might have been related to Markley's interest in rare coins. Police said they were still investigating the motive for the alleged kidnapping

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new U.S. proposal for a strategic nuclear weapons treaty with the Soviet Union is nearing completion, ac-cording to administration officials. It would reduce the two powers' long-range bomber and missile arsenals as well as their destructive force.

President Reagan may be ready to announce the terms by next summer after clearing them with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies. But the timetable also depends on events in Poland, which is under martial law, and Afghanistan, which is occupied by Soviet troops.

Eugene Rostow, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, is understood to have discussed some preliminary terms with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin, who reportedly registered interest in the new U.S. approach.

Basically, the proposal would limit warheads on both sides, and also reduce overall U.S. and Soviet strength by taking into consideration such factors as the lifting power - "throw-- if the launchers weight" and the weapons' accuracy.

The 1972 SALT I treaty and the 1974 Vladivostok agreement put ceilings on strategic weapons systems setting permissible totals for long-range bombers and missile launch pads.

"That is no longer an adequate indicator of destructive capability," said one official, who asked not to be identified.

Clearance ty the allies is expected to take several weeks.

Houston and Texas A&M wind up their regular-season Southwest Conference basketball schedules on the same court when the Aggies visit the Cougars on Saturday. And the smart money is on the Coogs.

"We're lean, we're mean and we're disciplined," said Houston hot-shot Rob Williams after he scored 30 points Tuesday and led the Cougars to a 75-69 win over Rice. Williams' pronouncement was not lost on Aggie coach Shelby Metcalf.

"Houston is playing the best basketball in the con-ference right now," said Metcalf, who had just coached his 176th career SWC coaching victory, an 83-74 win over Texas Christian

'They (Cougars) have won seven in a row and they got it back together again. They were "on" in December, then hit some hard times, but (coach) Guy Lewis has got 'em playing together again. We'll go to Houston this Saturday as the underdog - I hope we play well enough to stay in the game.

Metcalf got no solace from Rice coach Tommy Suitts post-game comments.

"They executed well and just lined up and whipped us," he said. "If they beat A&M on Saturday, they will have beaten every Southwest Conference team in a row and that is a real accomplishment. The Aggies and Cougars each improved to 10-5 in league lay, ti

The News said its figures have less than a $4,000 margin of error. Cowboy management does not release information about players' salaries, according to spokesman Greg Aiello, because "usually a person's salary is kind of a private thing, in all walks of life.

"I don't know where he (the reporter) got the salary information," Aiello said. "I don't even know if it's accurate.'

The average Cowboy salary of $89,170 was far below Denver's league-leading average of $106,000, but was higher than any NFC East team, according to the newspaper. The Redskins, for example,

But Drew Pearson, the Cowboys all-time leading receiver, got less in base pay last year than Tony Hill and Butch Johnson. Pearson's salary was $125,000, while Johnson and Hill each made $135,000, the newspaper said.

The league average for receivers is $85,873

Fullback Robert Newhouse, who rushed only 14 times in 1981, made $145,000, while starter Ron Springs pulled down $65,000. The average league salary for running backs was $94,948.

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Rockets' one-two combination of Elvin Hayes and Moses Malone put on a boring performance in the Summit Tuesday night, in the asses ment of the Dallas Mavericks.

Hayes monotonously sank 28 points, mostly with his turn-around jump shot, and Malone came up with his same old act, 34 points and 21 rebounds.

It all added up to a 105-95 victory for the Rockets, who matched winning streaks with the youthful Mavericks and came away with their 11th victory in 13 games. Dallas came into the game with four victories in six games.

Hayes hit eight of his 10 first-half shots for 16 points and Malone also had 16 at the half. It didn't improve for the Mays in the second half. The inside game of Malone and Hayes was too much for the Mavericks.

Houston assumed the lead near the end of the first quarter on three straight baskets for a 25-24 lead at the end of the period. Houston spurted again near the end of the second quarter, outscoring the visitors 10-0 over a twominute span for a 50-45 lead at the half.

Dallas never made a serious challenge in the second half as the Rockets remained in the running for a playoff berth.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - What's more boring than a basketball game where one team beats another by 20 points? How about a 20-point basketball game in which the teams try a total of 92 free throws.

The referees were the busiest men on the court Tuesday night when the San Antonio Spurs whipped Golden State 143-123 in the National Basketball Association, as the officials whistled 70 personal fouls.

San Antonio shot 39 free throws, making 35 of them, while the Warriors took an amazing 53 free shots and hit on 40 of them.

"I think it was the most free throws that anybody has attempted against one of my teams since I've been in pro basketball," said Spurs coach Stan Albeck, whose gripe was tempered considerably by the victory. "It was a tightly officiated game, so I was happy with the way some of our players were able to play through their foul trouble," added Albeck, who saw four starters draw four fouls before the half.

"We never seem to play too well in this place," grumbled Warriors coach Al Attles after Golden State fell to an 8-16 road record, 29-24 overall. Attles is hoping his thirdplace club will qualify for a playoff berth despite trailing Western Division-leading Los Angeles by a hefty eight games

"I think we have a good shot at the playoffs, but we have to be more consistent on the road," he said. "We have the fifth best record at home but we're like 15th on the road.

At San Angelo triangular

Steers get five firsts

SAN ANGELO — The Big Spring Steers collected five first place finishes, including three in the distance running events, at a practice triangular track meet here Saturday. Abilene High took home six first, while host San Angelo Central also had five firsts. Central won two relay events with AHS taking sprint event. The Steers dominated in the distance events with Karl Wolfe winning the 3,200 run in 9:54.2, outkicking Central's Richard Lomas to the finish line. Lomas also had a sub-10 minute run with a 9:59.9. Both times are superb for this early in the track season said Steer coach Randy Britton.

James Hodges was fifth with a 10:19.3. The Steers took three of the top five places in the 800-meters with Javier Calderon winning in 2:00.4. Curtis Harrison was fourth in 2:04.5 and Tim McNamara fifth in 2:10.1.

Big Spring completed its sweep with a victory by Harrison in the 1,600 run. Harrison was clocked in 4:34.9 to beat out Eric Morris of Abilene who was second in 4:39.9.

Two million visitors annually tour the maze of limestone tunnels under this Ukrainian farming village where a band of "peoples' avengers" launched raids against German troops in 1941-42, Soviet officials report.

The hideout, nine miles outside the port city of Odessa, is one of the most vid of thousands of war memorials rected around the Soviet Union by communist authorities to promote patriotism and military readiness.

"The Soviet republic is surrounded by enemies. It must be a united military camp, not only in words but also in reality," says a quotation by Vladimir I. Lenin, founder of the Soviet state, inside the fortress.

The catacombs show the harrowing living conditions of the 100-strong guerrilla band that remained behind German lines after the Red Army withdrew from Odessa on Oct. 16, 1941, following a 73-day siege.

The group, which included boys as young as 13, is credited with derailing two German military trains, destroying ammunition dumps and killing 300 Nazi troops in daring raids from the stronghold. Only a dozen of them survived the war, according to Soviet officials.

Altogether, some 45 partisan bands with 5,000 members operated in the Odessa region during the three-year German occupation, finding shelter in miles of limestone mines that provided building blocks for the port city in the 18th and 19th centuries.

Despite the resistance, the Odessa region suffered massive devastation under the German occupation --270,000 Soviet citizens were killed, the port was destroyed and thousands of buildings leveled.

Visitors enter the catacombs carrying candles in the pitchblack darkness for a half-hour walk through 660 yards of musty tunnels no more than about 6 feet high.

It's no place for claustrophobics breathing is difficult in the dank and humid air, and the passages are barely wide enough for two persons to pass.

The tunnels have been enlarged and reinforced for postwar tourism. The guerrillas had to crawl along passages no more than 3 feet high in inky darkness to prevent detection by maurauders.

Located 65 feet and more under the earth, the tunnels have sleeping, bathing and cooking chambers, a workshop and armory, a meeting room and a target range.

"Blood for blood. Death for death," says a motto scrawled on a wall. A photo of former Soviet leader Josef Stalin has the inscription: "Death to the German occupiers.

Food rotted and weapons rusted in the 90 percent humidity of the caves, but the guerrillas resisted grimly.

German troops tracked the partisans into the tunnels, and made one attempt to dislodge them in a frontal attack. They penetrated some 200 yards down a shaft but were wiped out by a machine gun emplacement.

The Germans then pumped poison gas into the catacombs, forcing the guerrillas to retreat deep into the uncharted labyrinth, where they found another exit at a church in a nearby village after 22 days.

Thousands of tourists visit the catacombs every day during the summer season, when Odessa is a resort center on the sunny Black Sea coast. Groups of 35 to 40 persons enter with guides to prevent them from getting lost in the trackless tunnels.

'We are obliged to count everyone before entering to ensure that the same number come out. Take the wrong turn and you might never be " guide Valentina Krasyuk found, said.

About 100,000 foreigners are among the 2 million tourists who tour the catacombs each year.

Aircratt restorer hopes rare plane will start museum

GOSHEN, Calif. (AP) - "My big dream is to develop an aviation museum in the San Joaquin Valley somewhere between Tulare and Fresno," says Ty Sundstrom, a 24year-old Visalia apartment manager and aircraft restorer

And the undisputed centerpiece of Sundstrom's vision would be a battered hunk of metal tubing that currently sits in an airv warehouse in this small Tulare County community.

Sitting on a pair of metal spoke wheels, the rusting skeleton is all that's left of the only known Ryan M-1 airmail plane still in existence, and Sundstrom considers it a priceless piece of avaiation history.

When he first discovered the craft on an isolated San Luis Obispo County ranch, Sundstrom admitted, "I didn't know what it was. I was sure what it was before I made a second trip.'

Sundstrom's initial interest in the 1926-vintage aircraft was primarily because of its rarity. But much to his delight, further research revealed that Charles Lindbergh flew the plane while hunting for the "Spirit of St. Louis" to carry him across the Atlantic.

Sundstrom says the craft has attracted the attention of the Smithsonian Institution, the San Diego Aerospace Museum and the Pacific Museum of Flight in Seattle. The last previous known Ryan M-1 was destroyed in a fire at the San Diego museum.

"The plane is priceless," Sundstrom "The Smithsonian is not insaid.

terested just because this is an old airpland. They're interested because this is the first production strutbraced monoplane in the United States.

As an aircraft restorer, Sundstrom is always on the watch for news of old planes. He traded a set of antique wings for a tip on a downed aircraft that turned out to be the long lost Ryan.

Directions to the find sat around for six to eight months until Sundstrom planned a picnic in the vicinity — a coast range ranch about 20 miles south of Shandon in Bitterwater Valley.

He found the Ryan's twisted remains just where they had fallen from the sky more than half a century ago. The mangled metal fuselage and tattered cloth-covered wings had served as a toy for three generations of farm children. The rancher told Sundstrom that in either 1930 or 1931 a pilot "went up to the house and said, 'The engine quit and I never want to see another plane,' and just walked off.'

Research in Sundstrom's private aviation library and records of Ryan Aeronautical Co. in San Diego disclosed that was not the plane's first crash.

It crashed Christmas Day, 1926, near Bakersfield on a mail run for Pacific Air Transport after the pilot had bailed out. Parts were trucked back to the factory where the plane was reconstituted with its cockpit door in a different place and a new serial number. The manufacturer has loaned Sundstrom the blueprint of the original version to guide his reconstruction. "Planes back then were all made by hand so no two are exactly the same, he said. The metal was reusable largely because its crisscrossed metal tubing was greased with linseed oil.

About 85 percent of the original parts were salvaged, and Sundstrom will construct wings of "a close-grain spruce that gets a lot of strength from its weight." He is negotiating for an engine with people in Chowchilla, 70 miles north of Goshen.

Sundstrom, a licensed pilot, obviously has the utmost confidence in his restoration skills. He plans to test fly the plane himself once it's reassembled.

Dental service now offers 'house calls'

CHICAGO (AP) - How can you visit the dentist if your wheelchair doesn't fit through the office door? How can you clean your teeth if you don't know what a toothbrush is? How do you get a cavity filled if you can't get out of bed?

These are just a few of the obstacles that prevent the institutionalized, homebound and handicapped from receiving the dental care they need, Dr. Robert H. Griffiths, president of the American Dental Association, points out. Many of these people, he adds, need care very badly because their teeth have often been neglected for years

A few years ago, the dental profession decided to do something about this problem, Griffiths reports. Working at the local, state and national levels, dentistry has devised a variety of programs aimed at improving the dental health of handicapped persons and those confined to homes or institutions

Several of these programs are run by the National Foundation of Dentistry for the Handicapped, an organization supported by the ADA and the Kellogg Foundation. More than 33,000 handicapped people in 34 communities across the country now benefit from the foundation's Gampaign of Concern.

In each participating community, a dental hygienist operating under the supervision of a coordinating dentist visits facilities that care for the handicapped. The hygienist dental 292292 health of each individual, cleans teeth, and refers those who need additional treatment to dentists or clinics that have agreed to accept handicapped patients. An important part of the program is teaching and motivating the handicapped to care for their own teeth. a time when physicians who make house calls are a remembrance of the past, increasing numbers of dentists are treating patients in their homes, said Griffiths. The Foundation of Dentistry for the Handicapped and a growing number of dental societies now sponsor mobile dental vans, which are manned by volunteer local dentists. These vans are equipped with everything from chairs to Xray machines that a dentist needs to treat patients. The vans travel to nursing homes, long-termcare facilities and patients' homes. Dentists can either work on patients inside the van or bring portable equipment from the van into the home Surveys have shown that many dentists would be willing to treat handicapped patients if they felt more confident of their expertise in this area, Griffiths notes. Accordingly, many dental schools have added courses in the treatment of the handicapped. Continuing education courses on this topic for practicing dentists are now widely available and the ADA has recently begun publishing a journal entitled Special Care in Dentistry, he says

Farm

Block hopes to sell acreage reduction programs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Secretary John R. Block is asking the nation's governors to help sell farmers on signing up in the government's 1982 crop acreage-reduction programs.

The programs affect this year's crops of wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice. To be eligible for price supports on those commodities, farmers must agree to reduce their acreages. Farmers have until April 16 to sign up at their local Agricutural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices. Block made his comments Monday to a meeting of the National Governors Association. In his prepared remarks, Block said the governors "can be very effective immediately" in promoting the acreage program.

"I encourage you to learn the details of this program from your state agriculture people," Block said. "I encourage you to promote the program to your farmers.

Block termed the plan a "self-help program" for farmers that represents "very important short-term action" for helping to relieve the supply pressure caused by last year's bumper harvests.

"But we need participation to make it work," Block said. "The farmers in your states have to be convinced that this program will work, and they also have to be persuaded to participate in making it work."

For the third year in a row, farmers are in a severe income crunch, caused by rising expenses and reduced commodity prices

Block said the current situation. however, should not detract from the long-range goal of gaining farm prosperity through improved markets.

'The solution will not come by sitting back and expecting the government already too large — to give us a free ride to prosperity," Block said. "Our solution will not be to sit back and whimper and whine and groan until someone hears us and picks us up."

Block said that "in this period of needed budget cuts" there will be some whimpering" because "weaning always begats crying." However, he added, the crying will not come from farmers.

"I expect agriculture to stand up and take the offensive," Block said. "We're going to fight back because we have something great to fight for."

However, he said, "This does not mean that we want government out of agriculture altogether. That would be foolish. Instead, what we have to develop are proper levels of responsibility for the federal government, the state government and the private sector

of family is stressed

Women often help provide the emotional and financial bonds necessary to the operation of small, familyoperated farms, says an Agriculture Department

Kathleen K. Scholl, a consumer economist, told a recent symposium spon sored by the Agricultural Research Service that 'emotional support of the family members can be an asset to both farm and family to cope with the stress

In a report distributed Monday, Ms. Scholl said that if family members do not have "strong supportive relationships" with each other, both the family and

"Among 130 occupations rated in the incidence of stress-related diseases, farming ranks 10th, according to a 1978 study by National Institute for Occupational Safety and Women usually contribute also to the financial stability of th farm, Ms. Scholl said. A 1980 study showed that almost one-third of the farm women received income from off-farm employment. More than half of the working women said they worked off the farm because of financial needs, and farm expenses were mentioned as one of the reasons, she said.

WASHINGTON (AP) -Farmers have indicated they intend to boost sunflower production this year, says

The increase was indicated by last week's crop plantings report which put sunflowers at 4.29 million acres, up 11 percent from last year. That included 4.02 million acres of oil-type sunflowers and non-oil at Plantings of oil-type sunflowers were indicated by the survey to be down 31 percent from last year in Minnesota but up 23 percent in North Dakota, up 22 percent in South Dakota and up 44 percent in Texas.

The non-oil acreage was indicated to be down 41 percent in Minnesota and 4 percent in North Dakota Those two states account for nearly all the production of

According to another report, world production of sunflower seed in 1981-82 is estimated at 13.85 million metric tons, up from 13.2 million in 1980-82 but sharply less than the huge yield of 15.4 million tons in 1979-80.

'First Family Rides Again' for Rich Little

By MARY CAMPBELL AP Newsfeatures Writer

Most of the jokes on the album are dumb. It's silly humor, says Rich Little, talking about "The First Family Rides Again'' on Boardwalk Records.

"When President Reagan says we're going to develop new sources of energy, we're building a pipeline to the sun. And a senator says you'd be burned up before you got halfway there. And Reagan says, not necessarily, we're going to build it at night, the real President Reagan has to like it. He knows it's so silly. Nobody can really take that seriously.

"It's not a class A humor but it doesn't offend; it's too silly. It's my kind of humor."

He hasn't heard from President Reagan, Little says. "Hopefully, he is listening to the album, not using it as a dartboard

The next day, Rich's press representative calls to say that the president answered a letter from the record's producer, Earle Doud, asking him to comment on specific scenes. She quotes, "I could not comment on individual cuts because Nancy and I howled at the entire album. I'm certain that they dubbed in my voice instead of using Rich Little's

Doud produced "The First Family," the best-selling record using Vaughn Meader's voice as President Kennedy. He also did "Welcome to the LBJ Ranch." which is said to have sold well for a comedy album

Little didn't hear either LP "Hail to the Teeth" or "The Washington Hillbillies," done about President Carter. Little says, "Earle Doud wanted to do one with me on Carter. It's a shame we never did. I don't know the reason why we didn't do it.

The Reagan album came about because there were so many things to talk about. You could touch on the movies, his Western image, his family. But we had to wait a year. You know more about them after a year. You learn about things that happen to him, the china, the jelly beans, the expressions he uses.

In the scene called "The Big Game," Rich Little does the voices of President Reagan and Ford. Roger Peltz does President Nixon and Richard Paul does President Carter.

We remark that we were surprised that Little didn't do Nixon. "I was surprised, too," Little says. "I wish I had but we had a good cast of people on the album. We did it in front of an audience. If I got up and did every voice, the rest of the cast wouldn't have anything to do.

"I'm known for Nixon but I haven't got a monopoly. I thought it sounded pretty good. Also, if I'd done it, I think Roger and Roger would have ended up with nothing to do. And these guys are good. We took their air traffic controller bit away. One was doing the voice of Humphrey Bogart and one was doing George C. Scott. It didn't come off too well so we read it later, differently, in a studio.'

Vaughn Meader is heard, briefly, on this album. Little says, "He was brought in to do Teddy Kennedy. Somebody had a wonderful idea for a sketch on 'Family Feud' between the Reagans and the Kennedys. They wrote it and then Richard Dawson decided he didn't want to do it. They needed him to make that piece work, so they didn't do it.

'It's too bad Vaughn had almost nothing to do. He is a very clever man.

The hardest voice for him to do on the album, Little says, was Reagan's. "Most of the others I've been doing for years. I haven't been doing him as long. The morning we taped I listened to a press conference for an hour and put it in my head, to refresh myself.

Has he ever tried to sound like somebody and not been able to? Many times, he says. "I never got Bob Hope too good, or Spencer Tracy or Ed McMahon. Dick Cavett I've never done in public, though I've tried to get him. I make him sound like Rugs Runn CRAZY, MAN - Crazy Ray, the unofficial mascot of the Dallas Cowboys, will be at Highland Mall in Big Spring Saturday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. He will judge a whistling contest, dance and generally act ... crazy.

'Crazy Ray' to judge Whistle Off Saturday

Crazy Ray, the one man cheering section of the Dallas Cowboys, will be in Highland Mall in Big Spring Saturday, Feb. 27, from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m. Purported as "The World's Greatest Whistler," not to mention his sleight of hand tricks and dancing, Crazy Ray will judge a local "Whistle Off" at 1 p. m. in Highland Mall. Everyone is eligible to enter the Whistle Off. There will be gift certificates from Highland Mall merchants for three categories. The loudest whistle, the most unusual whistle, and the best dog call. Other judges will be Dr. Kenneth Patrick and Chris Showalter. Bill Hughes will emcee the Whistle Off.

Crazy Ray has had a long history with the Dallas Cowboys, starting in 1959. He was a shoe shine boy and went over to the Cotton Bowl that year where the new expansion team in the National Football League was beginning operations.

The Dallas Cowboys had a very inauspicious beginning, losing all of their games except one, which they managed to tie, during the first year. Ray's debut as a pennant salesman was equally unimpressive. He was very bashful and not very successful at selling his product

Rather than give up, he decided to act a little crazy. Soon he began attracting a lot of attention and his pennant sales increased dramatically. In time, he realized he could do more than just sell pennants by allowing his personality to come through naturally. As he began entertaining groups of fans, the public recognized him as the Cowboy's unofficial mascot.

His act spread, and by 1958 many fans felt that a Cowboy game just wasn't the same without Crazy Ray leading cheers and entertaining everyone in the stadium. A very real part of Ray's personality is one that loves to see the whole crowd happy and smiling and the character of Crazy Ray is just an extension of his personality.

When Ray comes to Highland Mall he will have no set

When to prune, popular

question at local office DON RICHARDSON

County Agent This time of year, County Agent Don Richardson has many calls relating to pruning problems, and by far the most popular one is when to prune Pruning can actually be before it is removed; if not, done at any time of the year;

however, recommended plant may occur. This is a times vary with different countered in pruning. It also is advisable to limit plants. Contrary to a popular belief, pruning at the wrong time of the year does not kill plants, but continual improper pruning results in damaged or weakened plants. Do not prune at the convenience of the pruner, but rather when it results in the least damage to the plant. There is little chance of damaging the plant if the rule is followed. In general, the best time to prune most plants is during late winter or early spring before growth begins

The least desirable time is immediately after new growth develops in the spring. A great amount of food stored in roots and stems is used in developing new growth. This food should be replaced by new foliage considerable dwarfing of the

And who tells Little when he has it just right? Himself, he says. "That's one of the keys to doing impressions, hearing it when you're doing it. Most people can't hear themselves until they hear it back on a tape recorder. A person who does impressions has to have the ability to hear it as you do it.

'When I'm on stage performing, I'm my own worst critic. I tell myself I'm missing this, not concentrating enough, the tone is bad, the PA system is terrible, this is not working

He considers Jimmy Stewart his most successful, soundwise

"If you look like the person you're doing, it'll help the sound with the audience. And sometimes the sound is so good people will swear you look like the person you're doing

"I used to do Clark Gable on the radio and people would say I looker like Gable. They heard it and pictured it and it was . rfmt

f enjoyed radio more than TV. You made your own pictures

Little, born in Ottawa and still a Canadian citizen, moved to the United States in 1965. He, his wife and daughter live in Malibu, Calif.

He recalls an early engagement at the Copacabana in New York in which he was attacked by a reviewer who thought he was being unpatriotic for what he took as a slighting remark about the Vietnam War. Little got publicity but had to leave before the scheduled end of the engagement

Little recently recorded "Peter and the Wolf" with the Toronto Symphony, using different famous voices for the various speaking parts. He'll do it live with the Dallas Symphony in June. He has also written a TV special of 'Robin Hood'' in which he'll take all the parts. He intends to shoot it in Canada this spring.

Telling tall tales

NEW YORK (AP) - The giraffe is the tallest of all animals. It is not unusual for the male to grow to a height of 18 feet

Females bear a single calf, which can be 6 feet tall and can weigh 100 pounds at birth.

The animal is native to the open savanna south of the Sahara in Africa.

A tree without breakfast

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) - Customers in southern California were surprised recently when treated to 8-inch seedling pine trees with their breakfasts at a national restaurant chain.

A thousand customers at each of 263 outlets received the Monterey pines neatly packaged in white tube containers. The 263,000 pines were supplied from Georgia-Pacific's northern California tree nursery in Fort Bragg.

Monterey pine was selected because it adapts readily to different environments and is a popular decorative tree along the Pacific slope.
