get reorganized

By BILL ELDER Staff Writer

The recent hiring of two top-level administrators has meant a shuffling of some city hall duties and should result in a more streamlined government for Big Spring, according to City Manager Don Davis.

With the hiring of Public Works Director Tom Decell and Utilities Supervisor Dana Ehlen, Davis filled three positions and at the same time created two new roles at the top of the city hall hierarchy

One of the positions - utilities supervisor - had been vacant for about a month while the other one -the public works director job - is a combination of the utilities director position vacant since October and a newly created position, that of civil engineer, whch the city had been trying to fill for a year.

THE TWO NEW roles are those held by Paul Feazelle and Bill Hall. Feazelle, as assistant city manager, formerly oversaw most services outside of utilities. His new duty will be to serve as a liaison between the city manager's office and the various division heads. Hall, who has been supervising utilities operations on an interim basis and formerly was director of housing and community development, will become a troubleshooter once Ehlen arrives to handle the utilities supervision.

What the reorganization means, Davis said, is a combination of two jobs in the form of the job held by Decell – a savings as far as taxpayers are concerned. But the new lineup also means a city manager with more time on his hands to pursue public relations. Davis said he hopes to develop greater contact with the public now that Feazelle will be maintaining the daily contact with division directors. A part of that increased public contact may be regular meetings with the news media who cover Big Spring City Hall.

The ball got rolling on the new administrative lineup about a year ago when the city began recruiting for a civil engineer. Someone was sought with detailed knowledge of public works projects - someone who would serve as an important communications link between the city council, city administrators and the outside firm hired to engineer the city's 1981-85 Capital Improvements Program.

Harper trial begins

By MIKE DOWNEY Staff Writer

The capital murder trial of Steve Harper is scheduled to begin today in 118th District Court with jury selection starting at 2 p.m. Harper is charged in the Sept. 19, 1981, slaying of Harold Boy of Big Spring

District Attorney Rick Hamby told The Herald the state would be prepared to present its case on Wednesday following jury selection.

"I don't have any idea exactly how many witnesses we will have probably about 10, including some death penalty in capital murder convictions.

Harper has been held in Howard County jail on bonds totalling $200,000, according to the sheriff's office, since his arrest Sept. 19, 1981. Harper also is charged with aggravated assault and rape in the same incident in which he allegedly murdered Boy.

According to police reports, Boy had been killed by a single gunshot wound to the chest Sept. 19 at his home

Harper was indicted by a grand jury in October on three charges: capital murder, aggravated assault and rape. His original trial in January was postponed following a motion from Coleman and Ford for time to allow Harper to undergo psychological testing in Lubbock, Hamby said.

Program serves gifted students

By TINA M. STEFFEN Lifestyle Writer

The SIGNAL program for gifted and talented students at Big Spring Independent School District focuses on the academic area of communications skills.

Gifted students in the fourth through eighth grades attend special language arts classes conducted by teachers trained in gifted education.

These teachers enchance reading. literature and composition instruction with activities that develop higher level creative and productive thinking skills. Each student is given opportunities for independent and selfdirected learning.

The students engage in tasks designed to promote a healthy selfconcept and sense of responsibility to others

Students are identified through teacher, counselor and administrative committees and are screened for the program. Fourth and fifth grade students attend two sessions a week at Runnels Junior High on a pull-out basis. Other students are served in their regularly scheduled language arts class at their campus.

The program staff includes two teachers and one teacher's aide. Gladden, elementary Helen curriculum coordinator, and Jancie Rosson, secondary curriculum coordinator, work closely with the program. All professional personnel attended numerous gifted and talented orientation and training sessions and continue periodic staff development from time to time.

The word SIGNAL denotes communication as well as something notable or outstanding. A drawing of Signal Mountain is the logo for the program. As an acronym, SIGNAL stands for "Students Involved for Generous Nurturing of Academic Learning.

"It seemed that our other programs were doing well," Mrs. Gladden said about programs for students with learning problems or those who came from deprived circumstances. "So Mr. Hise, our superintendent, felt now was the time to look at the other end of the spectrum. To look at our high achievers and see if we were meeting their needs as best we could in the classroom. We felt we could not meet their needs in the classroom.

"Parents were interested. The board was supportive. Classroom teachers were interested. The time was right to begin gifted and talented education in Big Spring." The coordinators spent five years planning and getting teachers trained for the program. "We wanted to get the best program available. We are not just going to jump right into something, so it came about as an evolutionary process,' Mrs. Rosson said.

Mrs. Gladden said, "We found that the best programs are those that are well thought out with long-term goals, well-planned. In Big Spring, we moved rather slowly to implement gurs, but we did put a lot of hard work in planning into it for years." This is their first year in implementing the program.

SIGNAL's main purpose is to challenge gifted students and meet their educaional needs. "It still hasn't made them start making straight A pluses, but it has helped make them better motivated," Mrs. Rosson said.

"There has been a spill over," Mrs. Gladden said. "One elementary teacher was telling me she felt a certain child was doing much better in a regular program as a result of going to SIGNAL. He is now taking more pride in his work and is more responsible."

'Adding other grades is part of our long range planning," Mrs. Rosson said. "Very few districts have a formal gifted and talented program in See 'Gifted,' page 2-A

The district attorney also said Harper had indicated a preference for Ford as an attorney, and the court had obliged his request. The case will be heard before District Judge Jim Gregg, who just completed hearing the Cosden civil suit that lasted eight days.

Hamby said he did not expect a long trial. Asked whether he would seek the death penalty, Hamby replied, "I can't say at this time; I don't really want to comment on that now.

Action/reaction: Postal stations

Q. Why don't we have a postal station at College Heights or the Big Spring Shopping Center?

A. The supervisor of postal operations, Leland Calvert, says the Big Spring post office would like to have the stations, but these substations are "bid" stations, meaning merchants in these areas would run them. Calvert said the government pays the merchant to run the station. "We need them and we have contacted several merchants about running the stations," Calvert said. No merchants have indicated an interest yet, Calvert said.

Claudene Cooper of O.I.L. and Owen Ivie of the Colorado River Municipal Water District and his wife are in Austin tonight as part of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce annual reception and dinner.

The two Big Springers are among the 125 persons expected to attend tonight's Capitol Hill events.

Their day was scheduled to begin with a breakfast briefing on current national affairs. The briefing was to feature Special Assistant to the President Morton Blackwell and Michael Pate, legislative director for U.S. Sen. Lloyd, Bentsen.

Decell, who began his $30,000-a-year job one week ago, will have three primary duties, Davis said. He will be in charge of water and sewer services, will function as a link between the city and the Lubbock firm engineering the Capital Improvements Program, and will handle the duties formerly held by Paul Feazelle.

Feazelle, who had been in charge of nearly a dozen areas ranging from the cemetery to streets and traffic, will now be "in charge of internal operations — a day-to-day type thing," according to Davis. "He'll be the link between the directors and me.'

Hall won't assume his new-trouble shooting duties until March 29, when Dana Ehlen begins his $25,000-a-year work in areas where we have problems," Davis explained. Priority items include water meters and containerized trash collection for businesses - areas "where we have an inadequate record," Davis said.

AS IF ALL that weren't enough to give the city management a year's supply of headaches, yet another vacancy developed late last year when City Attorney Elliott Mitchell moved on to private practice (he has since been retained on an advisory basis until a new city attorney is found).

Davis said he had seen some resumes but hadn't held any interviews yet for the city attorney's position. Such interviews, he indicated, should start to take place this month

Decell, meanwhile, said he found his first week on the job challenging. He remarked that he and the rest of the city officials have "a big job to do: make Big Spring a better place to live.'

He noted that "one of the big things happening here that is not happening elsewhere is our water and sewer program. We have a very conscientious program to make improvements. A lot of cities just sit back and let their water and sewer problems go."

Water and sewer projects make up two thirds of the city's five-year Capital Improvements Program. The program, funded by bond issues and estimated a year ago to cost about $10.2 million, consists of numerous projects to construct new sewer mains and replace old ones, replace water mains and increase water pressure to Highland South.

students in that community," Mrs. Gladden said. "We selected the area of language arts or communication skills for our program and our rationale has been built around this. Our program goals have to do with helping children develop higher level thinking skills in a language arts context.

"That makes our program somewhat more structured than what might be in just the general academic aptitude or creative areas," Mrs. Rosson said. "The needs assessment indicated that with our higher level students, we needed to do more with them in the areas of composition, reading and speaking.

"We have 125 students" in the gifted program, Mrs. Gladden said. "We feel that these are the highly motivated students who do achieve well and should be in the program and they are doing a good job. We find being in SIGNAL motivates them to excell.

"The students are finding that this is work. Now we hope that it is challenging work and that they are being motivated. There is a lot of work, a lot of thinking and hard work that goes on in our classes. It is not just fun and games.

"We have a lot of criteria from which children are recommended and no one criteria, we tell parents, will admit a child to the program or keep him out," Mrs. Gladden said. The criteria used in selecting and nominating children for the program come from testing, and teacher and principal recom-

Many projects go on throughout the year. "Actually we are more concerned at the steps involved in the projects than in the finished product. Certainly a finished product is nice to have, but we are more concerned at teaching the students the skills involved in higher level thinking," Mrs. Gladden said.

The fourth and fifth grades are bused to Runnels at different times during the week. Runnels had a classroom available for them, was centrally located and had a more advanced library for the students to use. The students go twice a week for two-and-a-half hour periods. The students are pulled out of a regular program to attend SIGNAL classes.

The sixth, seventh and eighth graders have a different system. They are assigned to a special language arts classroom that is their regular language arts classroom. That teacher is their SIGNAL teacher. Not only is that teacher responsible for teaching basic skills, grammar, spelling and literature, but they also go into higher level thinking skills with the gifted students. The entire program is geared toward students of higher than average ability.

Texas 1st in cattle income

AUSTIN - Recently released agricultural production figures for 1980 show that Texas led the U.S. in cash receipts for cattle and calves, and came in second in farm assets, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown reports.

"These statistics show that despite the drought-stricken conditions of 1980, Texas farmers and ranchers still managed to provide their portion to the world's food supply," Brown said.

Leading states for cash receipts for individual commodities were Texas for cattle and calves, Wisconsin for dairy, Illinois for corn and soybeans, Iowa for hogs, Kansas for wheat, ARkansas for broilers, California for cotton and Idaho for potatoes.

Texas ranked second in farm assets, at $79 billion. Iowa ranked first, at $80 billion; Illinois third, at $72 billion; California fourth, at $61 billion; and Minnesota fifth, at $45 billion.

The five leading states for farm cash receipts in 1980 were California, at $13.5 billion; Iowa, at $10 billion; Texas, at $9 billion; Illinois, at $7.9 billion and Minnesota, at $6.3 billion

Next, the WTCC group was to meet with key congres sional office staff members communicating information concerning the WTCC's National Affairs programs.

Tonight, WTCC members and guests will meet with their respective legislators at a dinner honoring the Texas delegation Both senators Tower and Bentsen and the majority of Texas congressmen are expected to attend.

"The purpose of the trip is to better establish lines of communication with the Texas delegation," according to Richard R. Bacon of Abilene, chairman of the WTCC Na-. tional Affairs Committee.

Employees of Oilfield Industrial Lines responded in an overwhelming way in helping to meet area blood needs, according to Shirley Goetz, director of donor resources for United Blood Services.

The bloodmobile recently parked at O.I.L. provided 252 units of blood to help patients in area hospitals. This was the largest bloodmobile conducted in the Big Spring area, Ms. Goetz said.

"This is a clear example of concerned people in our community responding unselfishly to a great need - the need for blood. We can feel proud that these volunteer donors are our friends and neighbors," she added.

Over 1,000 units of blood are needed in the 36 hospitals served by United Blood Services of San Angelo each month

How about free choice?

Common Cause, the redoubtable bastion of purity in politics, is deeply concerned about the proliferation and growing power of political action committees (PACs) in congressional elections. The committees, representing various special interest groups, have become a major source of financing for congressional elections. And Common Cause is worried about concentrating too much power in the hands of these groups.

There are some disquieting trends in the way political campaigns are now being financed. For one thing, a PAC can put unlimited funds into a campaign against an incumbent lawmaker so long as it does not openly support his or her opponent. But there are strict limits on the amount a PAC or an individual can contribute to the Congressman to defend himself from these attacks. This is obviously one-sided and unfair.

But Common Cause has itself to blame, at least in part, for the growth of self-defeating federal regulation of political activity from which the PAC system was spawned.

After Watergate, Common Cause fought successfully for rigid controls on the manner in which an American citizen may voice his political views and support political candidates of his choice.

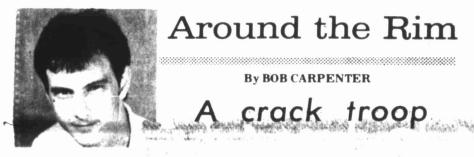

The short version of a long story is this: Every effort to handicap citizens in the exercise of their political rights led to obvious inequities and abuses. So Congress and the courts have continued to tamper with rules, changing one abuse and creating another. The PACs have emerged as a sort of loophole for citizens who wish to express themselves politically but are prohibited from doing so by other means.

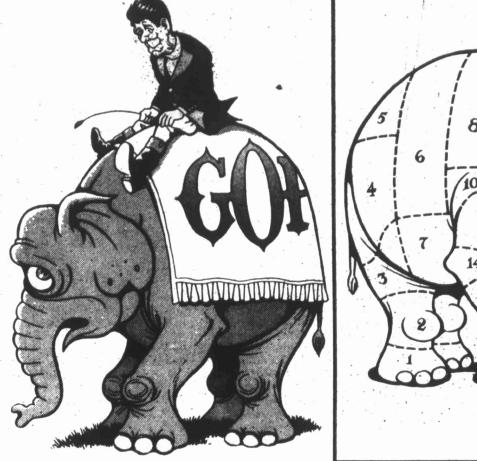

One solution to the problem - which Common Cause would never support — would be to wipe out most of the regulations, and give Americans a more or less free choice in expressing their political views and protecting their own political interests.

This would produce a lot of inequalities. A candidate who could raise a lot of money would have an advantage over a candidate who could not.

But it would put the government out of the political handicapping business. And it would let people do what they want to do.

That's called freedom. And while the word may scare the daylights out of Common Cause, there is much to be said for it.

"Seriously, Ron... If we don't cut that deficit"

Nevertheless, Stockman seems determined to do just that. That hints at an early confrontation with Tower, if the senator takes his case against "back channeling" directly to the president.

Feels guilty about father

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Two years before his death, we had to put my father in a nursing home because we could not take care of him. Now I feel very guilty about this and wonder if we did the right thing. Do you think we were wrong? - S.P.U. DEAR S.P.U.: I know the decision of what to do with a parent who has become unable to care for himself is never easy. Whenever possible it is good to keep a person in a situation where he is surrounded by family, but I know this is not always possible or the best answer.

You loved your father and you did what you thought was best for him by putting him in a place where his needs yould be met. When we love someone, we want what is best for them. If it was best for him - and not just for you - to put him in a nursing home, then you should not feel guilty about this decision. Moving him into your own home if you were not able to take care of him would not have been a loving decision, because it would not have been best for him.

The Bible gives us a very important command concerning our treatment of our parents - it is, in fact, one of the Ten Commandments: "Honor your father and your mother, so that you may live long in the land the Lord your God is giving you" (Exodus 20:12). This is true not only for us when we are young, but as we grow older as well. Tragically, all too often older people are almost abandoned by their children as the years go by, and far too many older people in nursing homes have been put there by selfish children who simply did not want to be bothered with their parents. But from what you say, this was not true with you, and that is why you should not feel guilty. I hope, however, that you visited your father as much as possible and did all you could to let n know you loved him and honored

With spring almost upon us (I hope) a young man's fancy will be turning not to love as most think, but to the baseball diamond

Yes, I'm talking about the boys of Summer - the little leaguers. Pretty soon boys will be donning baseball caps and pounding the kinks out of that old baseball glove that's been in the bottom of the closet since August.

They will troop out to raggedly cut baseball diamonds to hustle, dig for grounders and listen to coaches with Casey Stengel fetishes tell them how to win, win, win.

The coach is a noble man who gives into his duties after being cajoled, begged and duped by parents and little league officials

I know, I've been there. They make you feel as un American as jumping up and down on Babe Ruth's grave if you don't coach a team.

UNFORTUNATELY FOR ME, a couple of years ago I acquiesced and consented to coaching what they called a "tee ball team.

I found out tee ball is played by six and seven-year-olds who hit the ball off of a waist-high tee. There are no pitchers in tee ball for good reason. Tee ballers usually aren't strong enough to throw it to the plate, and if they are they have no control. No one behind the plate would be safe with a seven-year-old pitching a hard ball.

I can well remember the day I first tried to coach my youngsters.

There they were - all with stiff new baseball gloves almost as big as they were. Some of the boy's gloves dragged on the ground when they walked.

When I asked them what position they wanted to play I had 13 pitchers. It took me most of the rest of practice just to explain to them tee ball had no pitcher

After that I sent them out onto the diamond (actually a glorified vacant lot) to test their fielding abilities. About halfway out onto the lot a great many boys doubled over and started grabbing their ankles. For a moment I thought they were sick at the thought of having me for a coach, but I quickly discovered they had stampeded into a patch of grass burns.

I mean these were the green, ripe kind that stick like glue. They always stick in your finger after you've pulled them from your foot. I spent the rest of practice picking grass burrs from little ankles.

BY THE TIME the first game rolled around I had assembled my boys into a crack troop. Only they weren't crack as in precision, but crack as in 'drive me crazy.'

I had assembled a strange team. We had no outfielders. I discovered very few tee ballers could hit out of the infield. I just positioned my guys in a semi-circle around the infield

I also found out none of my peewees could throw to first base. Some didn't have the arm for it, but most of them just had trouble remembering which base was first.

When a ball was hit to any of my guys I just had them hand it to my fastest player — one who fortunately knew where first was - and hope he could get to first before my runner.

My plan worked fine for a few innings until one time a boy happended to lift a fly ball over my infield. My players were stunned. They didn't know what to do as they hadn't been trained for fly balls.

Like the brilliant coach I was I yelled "get the ball." And they did. My whole team including the catcher and the boys on the bench sprinted out into center field like a flock of sheep. There was no one left to tag the runner as he ran uncontested for a home run.

I don't really remember much of the rest of the season, but I know it went pretty much like the above episode. So if someone starts sweet-talking you and saying you have a way with kids and ought to be a coach --- give, into him or her. They'll get you sooner or later. Coach a team It's good for a few laughs and some funny stories. Coaching those little boys is a whole new ball game.

ABC's David Brinkley went to Haig when Brzezinski turned down his invitation. Haig, just back from his European trip, accepted. Haig performed well when he followed Menshikov (who was beamed via satellite from Moscow), but that did not change Brzezinski's distaste for such an unequal bill-sharing. He felt Haig should appear jointly only with his counterpart, Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, or some other senior Soviet official.

REBELLIOUS REPUBLICANS Rebellious Republican congressmen became so upset with the Reagan administration that they deputized Republican National Committee chairman Richard Richards to spell out their grievances at the White House Feb. 17 in a private session with chief of staff James Baker III.

WEINBERGER'S

Weinberger, loyal to his own men, declined to target West as the culprit. He ordered his associates not to name West, and took the heat for the offending word himself

All this does not mean that Weinberger is against shifting the U.S. to a more even-handed Mideast policy, taking equal account of both the moderate Arab states and Israel. That is Weinberger's policy, shared by many other Reagan administration officials - but not, as yet, by Reagan or Secretary of State Alexander Haig. Nor does Weinberger worry about becoming Israel's enemy No. 1.

NEW JERSEY'S SENATOR Prominent Republican senators are hinting to Gov. Thomas Kean of New Jersey that he should fill the Senate vacancy about to be created by the explusion of Democratic senator Harrison Williams with a seatwarmer who would agree to serve only until the Nov. 2 election.

That would relieve Kean of the task of picking between the two main announced candidates for the Republican nomination. Kean would prefer conservative Jeffrey Bell, but liberal Rep. Millicent Fenwick has a long lead over Bell in the polls. Prominent senators advise that the tough Senate votes to be faced this summer would benefit neither Bell nor Fenwick during the campaign. The best guess to be seat-warmer: exrepresentative Peter Frelinghuysen.

Senatorial advice to name a seatwarmer is low-keyed. But the Senate Republican leadership has made it clear to Kean in no uncertain terms that it feels he would make a horrendous mistake to leave the Senate seat unfilled until after the June 8 primary.

For all who may be facing this question in their families, let me add one other point: Treat your parents as you would wish your own children to treat you in your older years. "In everything, do to others what you would have them do to you'' (Matthew 7:12).

WASHINGTON -George Washington made himself the Father of Our Country by repeatedly rising to the challenge of supreme difficulties. Yet he remains the most distant of our heroes, an almost inhuman figure, more a monument than a man. How

An answer, a very modern answer, emerges from the exhibition mounted here at the Smithsonian Institution for the 250th anniversary of Washington's birth. The clear suggestion is that Washington shaped, and reshaped, his own public image. He deliberately made himself an Olympian figure.

The signal achievements of Washington's career have never been gainsaid - not even by the debunkers who moved into shatter the myth of the Parson Weems' figure fessing up to chopping down the cherry tree. In his early 40s, Washington was the unanimous choice of the Continental Congress to lead the American armies. He commanded them through years of bitter battle against great odds to eventual victory. He was picked, again unanimously, to be president of the convention that produced that well-nigh sacred political charter, the Constitution. He was chosen to be the first President of this republic, and he held sway over two of the most brillian political leaders ever produced anywhere -Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton.

Reverence for such deeds inevitably deepened over time. But it is not mere years that lend a godlike quality to Washington. Americans with much closer experience of his Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote of a 'mild, benovolent coldness and apartness," a "formality which seems to have been deeper in him than in any other mortal and which built up an actual fortification between himself and human sympathy." Emerson noted in the line of the mouth "gravity and depth of quiet." Parson Weems produced his version of Washington to offset the impersonal statesman portrayed in the biography written by Chief Justice John Marshall. Abigail Adams, an exact conforbids familiarity."

BUT IF THERE was natural reserve, the dignity was also cultivated. Lawrence Washington, a half-brother 14 years older, served as a role model. From him the younger son picked up a sense of the Virginia gentry and the behavior that won its favor. If not born with "powdered hair," as Hawthorne once joked,

Washington was neat in appearance, erect in bearing and careful in dress from his earliest years. He came to value land, and the qualities of the country gentlemen long before, as a surveyor, he began the accumulation of what became tens of thousands of acres. As a 13-year-old, he put into his copybook the following ambitions:

"A good estate on healthy soil-not got by vice, nor yet by toil...-a strength entire, a sparkling bowl-a quiet wife, a quiet soul-Prudent simplicity, constant friends-a diet which no art commends-A merry night without much drinking-A happy thought without much thinking

The quiet wife Washington found after a self-conscious search. He was rejected by two heiresses, before settling on the rich widow, Martha Dandridge Custis.

As much as land was a thing to have, soldiering was a thing for a Virginia gentleman to do. Washington served with the British against the French, and even sought a regular commission in King George's forces. He thought the common soldiers "exceedingly dirty and nasty people." And he had to work at military leadership. "Be not too familiar," he wrote, "lest you subject yourself to a want of that respect which is necessary to support a proper com-

AS A POLITICAL leader, Washington bore history - both that past and that to come - in his mind's eye. He thought of himself as the model for future presidents and acted with special circumspection to lend dignity to the office. "There is scarcely any part of my conduct which may not hereafter be drawn into precedent," he wrote in 1790. He understood from the first how remarkable it was in the annals of mankind to establish a democratic state under rule of self-written law. In 1788 he wrote to a friend:

"A greater drama is now being acted on this theater than has hitherto been brought on the American stage, or any other in the world. We exhibit at present the novel and astounding spectacle of a whole people deliberating calmly on what forms of government will be most conducive to their happiness." In short, Washington knew what he was about. He cast himself deliberately as an historic figure, a figure larger than life. He held himself above the ideology of faction, the prejudice of place and the fad of moment. He was a partisan of the center, a defender of legitimacy, a man of the establishment.

A healthy credit rating can be as valuable to you as your good name, and it's up to you to protect it and make sure the record of your spending is accurate.

Information on your financial habits is gathered by companies known as credit bureaus, which, in turn, pass the facts and figures to potential lenders, employers and even insurers.

There are nearly 2,000 credit bureaus across the country. The largest of them use computer networks to collect, store and report information on millions of Americans. TRW's Credit Data, for example, keeps files on 86 million consumers - more than one-third of the U.S. population and serves nearly 25,000 subscribers.

The credit bureaus themselves do not decide whether you will get a loan, job or insurance policy. They simply relay information on how you have handled credit in the past.

To help make sure credit reports are accurate, Congress passed the Fair Credit Reporting Act of 1971. The law gives you the right to see your credit record and sets up a mechanism for correcting mistakes.

First, however, you'll have to find out which credit bureau has your file. Start with the Yellow Pages, looking under credit bureaus or credit-reporting agencies. Call each company until you find the right one. (If the credit bureaus are not listed in the directory, ask local credit granters like banks and merchants for the names of the major bureaus in your area.)

Once you know where to go, call or write the credit bureau to find out the procedure for obtaining your file. You will have to provide identification since it is illegal for the credit bureau to let an unauthorized person look at vour file.

Some credit bureaus will give you a copy of your record to take home. Others only let you look at it? If you have

If there is a mistake in your file, notify the credit bureau. The bureau must investigate your complaint and correct any erroneous information. Copies of the correction must be sent to anyone who requested your file for the purpose of a credit check within the last six months. If you are not satisfied with the results of the credit bureau investigation, you may enter a statement of up to 100 words in your file, giving your side of the story. That statement must be included with all future credit reports about you. The information in your credit record varies according to the credit bureau. At a minimum, however, your record will include your name, address, Social Security number, birth date and place of employment.

There is a separate section for your credit history – the type of account or loan, the amount, the terms and the repayment record. Some of the information may be entered in code: An "A," for example, may indicate that you paid promptly; a "B" may indicate a payment that is more than 30 days overdue.

4 Tanzanians jailed following skyjacking

STANSTED, England at two emergency exits and (AP) - "Don't come to at the lavatory doors in the Britain," the British rear of the plane, the police government warned reported.

hijackers today after the takeover of a Tanzanian airliner ended peacefully with the surrender of the four hijackers and the release of their 82 remaining hostages.

"The message is that hijackers coming to this country will not be permitted to leave," said Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher as her government prepared hijacking charges against the four Tanzanians who seized the Air Tanzania jetliner during a domestic flight over their East African homeland Friday. They could get life imprisonment but probably won't. The only reported casualty was the Tanzanian co-pilot, who was shot in the lower back Saturday. A Greek doctor who treated him in Athens said the wound was not serious.

The 76 freed passengers and five other crew members were "safe and well," police said, although four passengers were treated for shock. All were reported to be Tanzanians.

The four foes of Tanzanian President President Julius Nyerere gave themselves up Sunday afternoon after freeing most of their prisoners in groups and then sending two small children out to the police with their weapons - a loaded 38caliber revolver, a fake pistol, a wooden grenade and an empty package labeled "explosives."

Security men found small amounts of explosives places Police said another foe of Nyerere, exiled former Foyeign Minister Oscar Kambona, helped convince the men British justice would deal fairly with them and they should surrender.

"We decided it had gone on long enough, and it was up to us to end it," said Chief Constable Robert Bunyard of Essex County. "We had no intention of making any concessions to encourage people to hijack aircraft."

"We made it perfectly clear from the outset that they were not going to be allowed to go off in the aircraft, and they realized the game was up," said Home Secretary William Whitelaw.

Air Tanzania sent a relief crew to Britain to return the blue-and-gold Boeing 737 and the freed passengers and crew to Africa. But the hijackers reportedly had their families aboard, and Whitelaw said any who shared the hijackers' opposition to Nyerere might be allowed to stay, at least temporarily.

The plane, named Kilimanjaro after the East African nation's famed mountain, was flown to Kenya, Saudi Arabia and Greece before it landed Saturday at Stansted's littleused airport in the English countryside 30 miles northeast of London.

Eight other hostages were released in Nairobi, Kenya, and Athens, Greece.

Dear Abby

Wife's affair becomes nightmare

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged, married professional woman with a problem that is beginning to affect my sanity. Three years ago I foolishly started an affair with a man of a different race. He's attractive, intelligent and very talented, but he can't hold a job because he's an alcoholic

When he's sober, he's a decent, gentle man who wouldn't harm a fly, but when he's drunk he is unpredictable! He gets mean and violent, and he's even threatened to kill me if I stop seeing him. I've paid his rent, bought him clothes, given him money and begged him to leave me alone, but I can't get rid of him

I've been wanting to drop him for two years, but I'm terrified that he may expose me, or maybe kill me!

Lately when he gets drunk he's started calling me at home. Ever time my phone rings, I tremble. I am a total wreck. I can't go on giving him money to keep him guiet. I have a fine husband and nearly gr

DEAR SUZIE: Don't allow anything that offends you to be said in your presence without challenging it. (Silence implies approval.) Respectable people will respect you, and you needn't worry about the others.

DEAR ABBY: Here are the facts: A friend of mine plans to marry a Korean woman with the understanding that they will not live together - it will just be a marriage of convenience. The Korean woman wants to come to this country and set up a business, and for the opportunity to Dr. Donohue

Airway collapse causes apnea

Dear Dr. Donohue: My son, age 32, has very abnormal breathing and snoring habits while sleeping. I know this is not unusual in a lot of people, but his is very extreme. He does not breathe at all for a while, and the gasps to an extreme degree. It is like he is fighting all night long with his breathing, and he does not wake up rested. This is nightly, or while taking a nap. I was told this can be an il lness. Can you give me any information on this? - C.

I would suggest a diagnosis of sleep apnea where I dealing in diagnosis in this space, which, of course, I am not.

People with sleep apnea stop breathing (that's what apnea means) for 15 to 30 seconds at a time during their sleep. The apnea episodes end with loud snoring. Sleep is constantly being interrupted, making for daytime sleepiness and a feeling of never having had a good night's rest

I urge your son to talk with his physician. There are two different problems involved in sleep apnea. One (the more common one) is a collapse of the airway during sleep. The other (less common reason) has to do with the sleep center in the brain.

The first problem (airway collapse) is often associated with obesity. Weight loss goes a long way in alleviating that. Drugs that stimulate breathing have also been tried, and in severe cases it is necessary to create an opening in the airway itself below the area where the collapse occurs.

In its most common form-pemphigus vulgaris-this condition produces blisters of the skin and lining of the mouth. These blisters break easily, and when that happens shallow ulcerations form. The disease appears mostly in people in their 30s, 40s and 50s. Although little is known about it, it probably is one of those illnesses called "autoimmune." That means the body is making antibodies against its own tissues - in this case the skin.

Steroids have revolutionized treatment of pemphigus. They help bring the disease under control. (The thought just occurred to me that readers of medical columns must wonder how medicine survived before the advent of steroids, so frequently are they the answer to so many problems.)

At times steroids may be used with other medicines, methotrexate or cyclophosphamide, somewhat powerful medicines. Like prednisone, they help bring order in this body auto-attack. You can take prednisone for as long as you have to. I say that because without steroids, the outlook for pemphigus is pretty dismal.

Then tell your former friend that if he ever comes near you, or phones you, drunk or sober, you will have the police pick him up and he will be charged with harrassment, blackmail and threat of bodily harm.

Odessa, Amarillo get tourney wins

By GREG JAKLEWICZ Sports Editor

Odessa had to struggle while Amarillo had no trouble as the Western Junior College Athletic Conference took a pair of victories in the first night of competition at the Region V Womens Basketball Tournament Sunday evening

Carolyn Williams hit two free throws and Linda Gentry sank another in the final 1:15 of play to help the Lady Wranglers hold off Weatherford 82-79 in the early game. Amarillo jumped off to a 16-4 lead and was never threatened again in an 87-58 victory over Ranger.

Odessa's win sends the Lady Wranglers into a 8 p.m. meeting Monday with Howard County, champions of the Western conference. It will be the third meeting of the season between the two teams. At 6 p.m., Amarillo will tangle with Cooke Co., the champs of the Northern conference

Odessa led Weatherford by two at the half but moved out to a 12-point lead on several occasions midway through the second half before the Coyotes began their comeback.

Michelle Bailey began the rally with a bucket to cut the score to 73-64 with 6:12 to go. Paula Phillips hit one from the land and then added a free throw, as did Kay Cole, before Bailey put in a shot off a rebound to make it 73-70. Phillips hit a pair of free shots to make it a onepoint game with 4:18 left.

Odessa managed to stay a point on top even after Phillips hit a layup with 1:35 to play to make it 79-78. Williams then sank her free throws and Gentry tossed in one of her two attempts to push the Lady Wrangler lead to 82-78

Karen Durr of Weatherford hit one of her two tries to cut it to 82-79 but two misses by Patti Phillips with 17 seconds left and a handful of misses from the floor by the Coyotes in the final seconds left the score at the three-point difference.

Williams had a tremendous night for Odessa, scoring 33 points. She scored 19 of those in the second half. Cheryl Horton added 15 while foul-plagued Bebe McBride scored 11 along with Denise Pierce.

Bailey topped Weatherford with 16, Cole added 11 and Patti Phillips and Laurie Lampkin chipped in 10.

The Coyotes closed their season with a 17-13 record. Amarillo had no trouble with Ranger after getting an early 12-point lead. The Lady Badger stayed ahead by 14-16 points most of the way in the first half, taking a 51-38 lead into the locker room. A basket by Maria Linggi at 10:32 in the game gave Amarillo a 25-point advantage, 71-46, with the biggest Lady Badger lead growing to 29 points. That included the final score Kelleye Richardson led a great night at the foul line for Amarillo. The 5-10 sophomore hit 12 of 13 tries on her way to a game-high 22 points. As a team, the Lady Badger hit 25 of 29 foul tries.

Kathleen Reeves had 12 and Nancy Kocurek 11 points for Amarillo.

Hawk Queens face Odessa tonight in Region V quarterfinal action

By GREG JAKLEWICZ Sports Editor

Don Stevens hopes three times isn't a charm for Odessa

The Lady Wranglers and Stevens' Howard College Hawk Queens meet for the third time this season in the quarterfinals of the Region V Women's Basketball Tournament Monday night. The Queens have won the previous two encounters and need a third at 8 p.m. to advance in the four-day tournament.

Howard, champs of the Western Junior College Athletic Conference, will send 5-10 freshman Nell Haskins onto the court Monday night. Haskins was second in the WJCAC scoring race with 22 points a game and also averaged over 10 rebounds.

Another weapon in Stevens' arsenal is 6-6 freshman Susan Cordell who isn't asked to do much scoring but has set a school record for blocks in a single game with 13. Her presence around the basket has forced Queen opponents to shoot well below their

Odessa may have finished fifth in the conference race but that doesn't make Stevens relax

The Lady Wranglers have McBride who was third in conference scoring with almost 19 points a game. She was third in rebounding, first in assists and ranked fifth in shooting percentage. When the 5-11 freshman from Chicago isn't doing her thing, four other Odessa players such as Williams can step in guickly and run the show.

Williams was scoring only 10 points a game but came through with 33 when McBride had to spend a lot of her playing time on the bench. Cheryl Horton gets 13 points with Karen Widman contributing 8 rebounds a game.

And, all the while, out there on the mound is this funny looking movie gadget recording every hitter in the batting cage and every pitcher going through his routine motions. The films are processed and then sent to a projector room where the Yankee ballplayers are invited to drop in and examine their errors.

It's all a part of George M. Steinbrenner's "new look" Yankees, with accent on speed, base-running and defense.

Whatever became of the long ball -a trademark of the Yankees from the days of Babe Ruth right on through Joe DiMaggio, Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris and more recently, Reggie Jackson? Forget it Lean and mean - that's the new rallying cry for Steinbrenner's 1982 whiz bangers. But also keen? Who knows?

Slick, spick and quick. But what about the big stick? Time will tell. Steinbrenner hit upon the new formula after seeing his Yankees lose ingloriously to the Los Angeles Dodgers in the 1981 World Series.

At times, the fielding was embarrassing, the base-running atrocious and, as pitcher Tommy John acknowledged, "We were so slow sometimes on the bases it took us three hits to get all the way around."

'We're going to have an aggressive, hard-running, base-stealing club,' promised Steinbrenner.

Dillard, a graying, 58-year-old sprinter and hurdler, was imported from Cleveland to impart running basics for Yankees who might get on base.

As part of the new emphasis on speed, Steinbrenner allowed slugger Reggie Jackson to go to the Angels and gave Ken Griffey, the fleet, consistent-hitting ex-Red who was acquired in a trade, $5 million for five years to take Reggie's place, and signed another fleet ex-Red. Dave Collins, acquired through the freeagent reentry draft.

In view of what befell them in the first round of the NCAA basketball tournament the last two years - and perhaps after digesting the results of an upset-filled weekend — the DePaul Blue Demons aren't setting any lofty goals.

"Our ambition is to get by the first round of the NCAA Tournament, not to win the national championship,' Coach Ray Meyer said Sunday after third-ranked DePaul trimmed Notre Dame 81-69.

Looking too far ahead has resulted in the Blue Demons being eliminated in the opening round of the last two NCAA tourneys. This time, Meyer says his "biggest concern heading into the tournament is to get our boys to blend together and play as a team.

The weekend disaster list began at the top with No.1-ranked Virginia bowing to Maryland 47-46 in overtime. It also included sixth-ranked West Virginia, whose 23-game winning streak, longest in the nation, was snapped by Rutgers 74-64.

Other casualties among The Associated Press Top Twenty included No.7 Kentucky, No.8 Tulsa, No.11 Iowa, No.16 San Francisco, No.17 Alabama and No.19 Tennessee

Iowa was the only one to lose to another ranked team the Hawkeyes dropped a 57-55 three-overtime thriller to No.13 Minnesota — but the pressure may be starting to build for all concerned with the numerous conference postseason tournaments - the qualifying rounds for the NCAA event - coming up this week.

Three teams qualified over the weekend for the NCAA Tournament as fourth-ranked Oregon State clinched its third consecutive Pacific-10 crown by defeating Southern Cal 45-36, Pepperdine won the West Coast Athletic Conference title with a 106-100 triumph over San Francisco and Alabama-Birmingham defeated Virginia Commonwealth 94-83 Sunday behind Oliver Robinson's 24 points to capture the Sun Belt Conference playoffs.

With West Virginia falling to Rutgers, DePaul owns the longest winning streak at 21 games. Sunday's victory over Notre Dame enabled the Blue Demons to wind up the regular season with a 26-1 record. They are certain of a bid when the NCAA invitations go out next Sunday

Terry Cummings had 28 points for the Blue Demons, who broke the game open with a 10-2 burst early in the second half after leading 36-30 at the intermission.

Freshman Adrian Branch scored the last of his 29 points on a jumper from the foul line with one second remaining in overtime as Maryland ended Virginia's 15-game winning streak. The Terrapins, who lost to Virginia in overtime earlier in the season, forced the extra session when Herman Veal sank a field goal as regulation time expired. Virginia star Ralph Sampson was held to one field goal and eight points.

The loss left the Cavaliers in a first-place tie with second-ranked North Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference. The Tar Heels trounced Duke 84-66 behind James Worthy's 20 points and also won a drawing with Virginia to get the No.1 seed in the next weekend's ACC Tournament. North Carolina will meet Georgia Tech while Virginia faces Clemson Oregon State, down by five points at halftime, outscored Southern Cal 20-6 in the first 19 minutes of the second half and beat the Trojans 45-36. Kentucky led LSU 23-20 with 8.43 to go in the first half. Six minutes later, however, the Wildcats trailed 41-23 as Derrick Taylor paced LSU's 21-point string with seven points. Howard Carter led the winners with 29 points and Taylor added 24.

Despite the setback, Kentucky managed a share of its 33rd Southeastern Conference title when Tennessee was upset by Auburn 56-54. FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAR. 2, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day and evening to tune into the new modes of expression which you have decided you want to be allied with in the days ahead. Seek the most practical way to gain your goals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Wait for a better time to make changes you have planned. Be patient in the face of conditions you can do nothing about.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Put those new ideas across to higher-ups that will help you advance in your line of endeavor. Think constructively.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure you carry through with promises you have made. Not a good day for probing an associate about a puzzling problem.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use a spirit of cooperation when dealing with an associate today. Concentrate more on a public matter.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle those duties ahead of you quietly and efficiently and don't expect too much from a co-worker. Control your temper.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Although having fun is on your mind, it would be best for you to show more kindness to an ally who is in trouble now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Being more objective at home is wise. Try not to criticize anyone or there could be arguments. Show that you have wisdom.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have to exercise much care in motion to avoid accident now. Be more understanding of a friend's problem.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try not to spend beyond you means for something you don't really need. Save your money for more important things.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't upset present security until you are sure that you can improve your position. Steer clear of any arguments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Think of ways to get ahead faster in your line of endeavor. Show others that you are a humanitarian. Be happy.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Listen to what wellinformed individuals have to suggest and be grateful of their advice. Strive to gain personal aims.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be capable of solving almost any kind of problem. Direct the education along lines that will help humanity. Give good spiritual training early in life and be sure to encourage where sports are concerned.

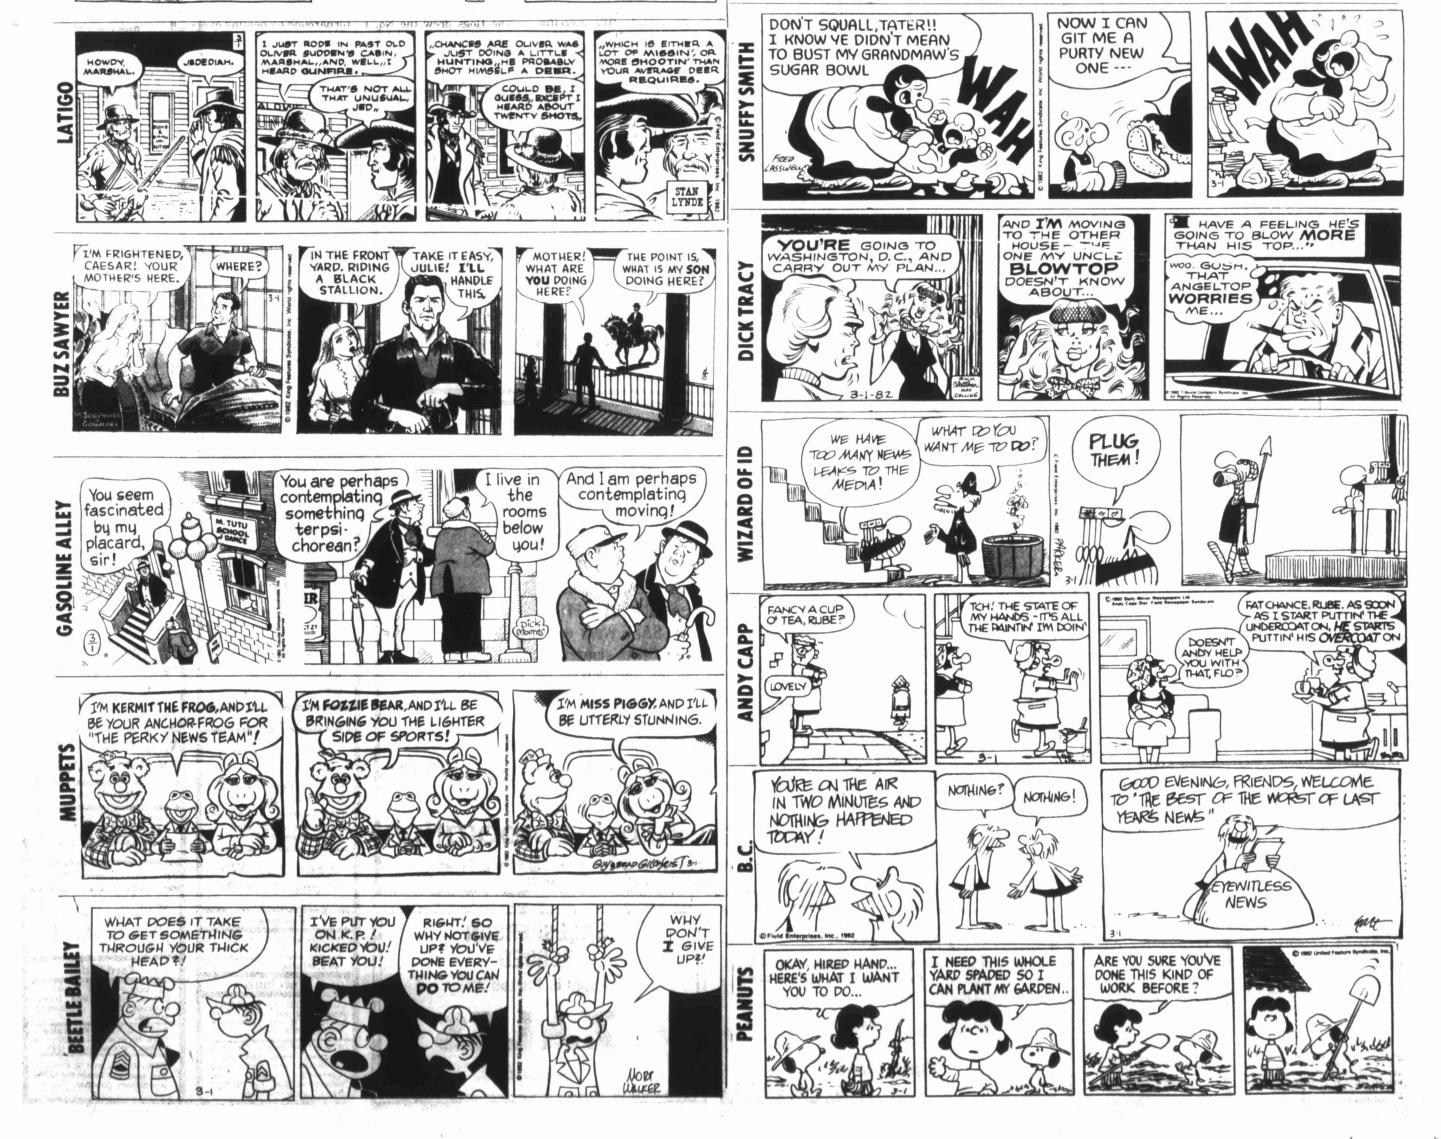

"The Stars impel, they do not compe.." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
