City employee recovering from burns

Staff Writer A 53-year-old city of Big Spring employee was listed in good condition at Malone-Hogan Hospital this morning after he ignited some gas while reading a meter at the hospital yesterday, officials said.

Sonny Crocker, 1740 Purdue, who was reading a water meter with a coworker in a concrete manhole at the hospital yesterday morning, was admitted to Malone-Hogan with firstdegree burns on his face and right hand after the gas ignited.

The accident happened at about 10:30 a.m. as Crocker and another city employee, Pat Mendez, 1305 Elm, were attempting to read a water meter in a concrete manhole about 50 feet west of the hospital building, said City Manager Don Davis.

Crocker, who went down in the hole with a flashlight that wouldn't work, asked Mendez for her cigarette lighter, according to hospital spokeswoman Emily Ward.

"When he flipped the lighter on, there was some gas in the hole and it started," Ms. Ward said.

pulling Crocker out of the hole and applying initial aid to him, according to Ms. Ward. Proximity to the hospital emergency room allowed for speedy treatment of Crocker who has been associated with the city of Big Srping about 15 years. Crocker is the son of retired Fire Chief H.V. "Burr"

Ms. Mendez was examined by hospital personnel and released shortly afterward, Ms. Ward said.

"We don't know what the source of the gas is," City Manager Don Davis said yesterday afternoon.

Pittman added that investigators were unsure whether the explosion was caused by natural gas "or some other accumulated gas.

HC information director resigns

By BOB CARPENTER Staff Writer

The Howard County Junior College District board of trustees accepted the resignation of David Partlow, director of Information for HCJC, in a special meeting yesterday. Partlow's resignation is effective March 10.

Partlow, who has worked for HCJC for two and one-half years, said he had chosen to pursue a long time dream of becoming a filmproducer.

"I have two offers from the private sector which will allow me to work in video and films. I was able to work here at Howard College and gain experience in video and now I have a chance to put that experience into working toward being a film producer," Partlow said.

In other business the board adopted an order and notice for the April 3 trustee election. There will be three at large positions open on the board -

two six year terms and one unexpired four year term. Additionally, the board determined the order the names of the candidates will appear on the ballot by drawing names from a hat.

For the six year terms the names will appear in order as follows: Harold Davis, P.W. Malone and David Huff. Davis and Malone are incumbents.

For the unexpired four year term the order will be: Gail Earls, Jerry Higgins and Louis Stallings.

Attending the meeting were Mrs. Earls, Higgins and Huff. In other business the board okayed several price changes in the school's upcoming college catalog. 'Basically what the changes entail are price changes. The catalog is a kind of contract between the student and the school so we like to have prices as current as possible," Dr.

Charles Hays, president of HCJC, said.

The board also approved a bid by Craftsman Printers, Inc. of Lubbock for $5,988 to print a brochure for

Dr. Hays said the colorful, graphic brochure would serve to attract students and promote SWCID. He said the brochures would be less expensive to mail out than bulky catalogs

"The brochures will be less expensive for our recruiting people to hand out at high schools. Then if a student is really interested in the school he can write for a catalog,' Hays said.

The board accepted a $5,036 bid from Phillips Brothers Printing in Springfield, Ill. to print the new 1982-83 HCJC catalog.

In final action the trustees okayed a preliminary faculty roster for 1982-83 to be used for budget planning.

Driving habits, oil glut drop gasoline prices

By BOB CARPENTER

Staff Writer A change in driving habits and an oversupply of worldwide oil has helped the consumer to reap some savings at the gas pumps lately.

A textbook lesson in economics is happening at neighborhood gas stations. Consumer demand for gasoline has dropped off creating a surplus of petroleum products which producers are anxiously trying to

The oil companies need to turn over inventories to turn a profit and the only way to do that presently is to cut

Local distributors say refineries have cut prices recently from 3 to 5 cents for wholesale gas and retailers have dropped prices accordingly at the pumps.

And it appears that prices will continue to dip even further as companies struggle to clear their storage tanks.

Prices for gasoline in Big Spring have dropped as low as $1.13 for regular and $1.18 for unleaded.

"I think the main reason we're seeing cheaper gas is that there's a glut of oil and the refineries' tanks are running over and they're looking for a way to get rid of the excess," said Earl Newell of ENOC

Newell estimated that gas prices will drop a bit more, but he doesn't think prices will go under $1. "If they (prices) do that then it'll be only because the oil companies help the wholesalers because right now wholesalers are paying way above

A survey of Big Spring self service stations showed regular gas prices to range from $1.13 to $1.19. Unleaded prices hovered from $1.18 to $1.23.

Full service station prices for regular averaged $1.27 and unleaded

Despite the recent drop in fuel prices local distributors say Big Spring is not in the midst of a gas war.

"There isn't a gas war among the service stations. They couldn't afford to offer full service and also cut prices," said Bob Park, Gulf oil distributor

"I wouldn't call it a war. Really, it's just the oil companies pressing to sell gasoline. They want stations to cut prices to keep gas moving and this is keeping the oil companies happy, as well as the consumer," Newell said.

Parks said it was possible the price decline could continue into the middle of summer

Colin Sandison, a marketing specialist for Exxon in Dallas explained the situation this way: 'People often think of demand as staying the same and supply fluctuating, but right now demand is doing the changing.

"It's not like there's so much more oil, it's the fact that people are drving less and buying fuel efficient cars. The economy is sluggish also,' Sandison said

Sandison said the soft economy has led to an increase in the competitive market. Wholesalers and retailers have cut profit margins which translates into lower pump prices, he

Big Spring's declining gasoline prices apparently are part of a current statewide trend. Prices for regular gas in Dallas have been reported at $1.07, in Lubbock at $1.15 and in Abilene at $1.09. Prices in Abilene for self service have dipped as

"As long as demand remains depressed then prices will continue to gradually decline until supplies tighten up." Sandison said.

OIL pays $18 million for Dallas drilling firm

By BILL ELDER Staff Writer

Oilfield Industrial Lines, the Big Spring-based maker of oil rigs and other oilfield equipment, recently moved into the oil production business by acquiring Sunbelt Oilfield Services of Dallas for $18 million, according to Chris Christopher, chief executive officer for O.I.L.

The Dallas company will be named O.I.L. Drilling Inc. and expects to increase its personnel, Christopher said.

O.I.L. alone has about 775 persons employed locally, a company spokesman said, making it the largest private employer in Howard County. Cosden, with about 800 local employees, is in the process of reducing its Howard County work force to approximately 700 employees due to slumping demand for petrochemical products made at Cosden's local

An O.I.L. spokesman declined this morning to estimate how many additional persons would be employed after the acquisition of Sunbelt, but it is known that O.I.L. had planned to employ 2,000 persons by the end of 1982 prior to announcing the Sunbelt purchase.

The earlier expansion was prompted by demand for O.I.L. products and has meant a major expansion of O.I.L.'s facility at the Big Spring Industrial Park.

O.I.L. had been in the production side of the oil business for some time prior to the acquisition of Sunbelt. The company has five drilling rigs operating in the Permian Basin, a spokesman said.

Now that production operations have been expanded, O.I.L. Drilling Inc. expects to add another five to seven drilling rigs, primarily in the Permian Basin, Oklahoma and Louisiana, the spokesman said.

TV, electricity knocked out when truck hits utility line

By BILL ELDER Staff Writer

A truck hauling an oil rig struck a utility line spanning F.M. 700 near 11th Place late yesterday afternoon, causing disruption to electric service and cable television service on the east side of town.

The accident happened at about 5 p.m. when a truck owned by Killion Trucking Co. of Odessa struck an overhead wire and caused three poles to break, said Jean Lancaster, a spokeswoman for Big Spring Cable

One Texas Electric Service Co. pole and two cable company poles broke as a result of the accident, Mrs. Lancaster said.

Cable services to about 1,000 customers between the city limit and Coahoma was cut off for several hours as a result of the accident, she said, while electric service to five customers went off for about two hours, according to Hooper Sanders, manager of the Big Spring TESCO of-

Sanders explained that the cable TV line was connected to TESCO poles and supported by a steel guy wire. The strength of the wire being pulled caused tension which broke the poles,

That service was restored about 9 p.m., Sanders said.

"He dragged down our main trunk line that goes out to Coahoma, and that's a lot of customers," she said. "It looked like spaghetti out there," she added.

Cable repair crews went to work on their two poles after TESCO repairmen replaced the broken TESCO pole. Cable service to affected customers came back shortly after midnight, she said.

Big Spring police were not called to the scene and made no report of the accident. There were no injuries involved, Mrs. Lancaster said.

Marcelo Torres, a spokesman for Killion, said the truck was carrying a rig to the San Angelo area. He declined further comment until he received more information.

Doctor testifies coma can't be pinned to insulin

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Martha von Bulow's present coma cannot be pinned conclusively on insulin — it could have been caused by liquor, drugs and the cold bathroom floor she collapsed on in her mansion, a doctor said in her husband's attempted murder trial.

The utilities heiress had a "profound" physical disability that left her body unable to control the level of blood sugar fueling the brain, Dr. Milton W. Hamolsky testified Thursday as a defense witness for Claus C. von Bulow

The prosecution claims von Bulow tried to kill his wife with insulin shots, and prosecution testimony indicated injections of the hormone, which lowers blood uugar, are the only explanation for her present coma

Mrs. von Bulow, known as "Sunny," also had "potentially serious psychiatric problems," suffered from a lack of faith in herself and became paralyzed because of hysteria for six days in 1966 after the birth of the couple's only child, Hamolsky testified

Terrorist issues threat against French government

PARIS (AP) — The shadowy terrorist "Carlos" has surfaced after more than six years, sending a letter bearing his thumbprints and threatening "personally to attack the French government" unless it releases two suspected extremists arrested in Paris, the Interior Ministry said today.

A ministry spokesman said the threat came in a halfpage letter in Spanish delivered to the French Embassy in The Hague on Wednesday. The letter was signed "Carlos" and included two thumbprints verified by French police as belonging to the terrorist, the spokesman said.

The French news agency, Agence France-Presse, said the French ambassador in The Hague was under heavy security since receiving the letter. It was the first real indication since an attack on an OPEC meeting in Vienna in December 1975 that Carlos, a 32-year-old terrorist born in Venezuela as Illich Ramirez Sanchez and also known as "The Jackal,

Airline wars

Braniff President Howard \Putnam, returning from the CAB meeting in Washington, was welcomed Thursday night at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport by 700 to 800 employees, some carrying banners. One sign read,

"We're behind you, Mr. Putnam." "I'd say we've got better than a 50-50 chance" of turning the airline around and surviving, Putnam said. Air Florida, which made money in 1980, was reporting a loss of several million dollars today, President Eli Timoner said.

In 1980, Air Florida earned $5.7 million. It had earnings of $11 million for the first nine months of 1981, but the fourth quarter wiped out the early black ink. Timoner

He blamed decreased patronage and air fare wars, particularly an attempt to attract travelers from the Northeast to Florida.

Last September, Timoner cut fares — briefly — to $69 between New York and Florida. "Nobody beats Air Florida at its own game, he said at the time.

Air Florida planned to announce a totaled $300 million. Three of the new schedule today, with fewer carriers had a profit of 1000 and 1000 flights in the Florida-Northeast share of New York Air.

Air Florida made its name in recent years by raiding markets and offering lower fares than the competition. But Eastern, Delta and Pan Am — whose chairman, C. Edward Acker, is former chairman of Air Florida - have vowed in recent weeks to match the lowest fares in any market, apparently blunting Air Florida's advantage.

In Houston on Thursday, Texas International Airlines announced "the largest airline giveaway ever" 5,000 free tickets.

The airline will give away the round-trip tickets on Sunday to people who bring the airline a bus ticket - new, used or even a reasonable facsimile - and tear it in half, said Ron Woesterneyer, the airline's vice president for marketing.

Haig perceives outside direction of Salvador leftists

M. Haig Jr. is insisting that the capture of a Nicaraguan guerrilla is further proof of his contention that the insurgency in El Salvador is directed and controlled from Nicaragua and Cuba

Thursday, Haig found himself on the defensive before a congressional subcommittee that demanded more evidence to support his charges. Haig expressed dismay that his word was not enough, but promised to provide more evidence to mounting counter congressional skepticism. Initially, he said he hoped to make the information available Friday, but State Department officials later said it probably would not be ready until next week. Meanwhile, a Nicaraguan official said in Washington that his government is the target of a CIA-directed plot that includes attacks by counter-revolutionaries from across the border in Honduras.

Jaime Wheelock, minister of agriculture for the Sandinista government, said it's the same kind of destabilization plan that toppled the leftist government of Salvador Allende in Chile in 1973. However, he acknowledged at a news conference that he lacked concrete proof.

Proof also was a problem for Haig, who told a foreign operations subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, that Nicaragua and Cuba were directing the fighting against the Salvadoran government.

Meanwhile, the intelligence committee chairman, Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., issued a "Today, for the first time, statement on Thursday's

One Wichita man was scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Tuesday with a speeding charge. The court was closed because of the heavy snow, and the following letter arrived in the court clerk's office

"I was scheduled to be in court February 23, 1971, at 12:15 P.M. concerning a traffic ticket. Well, I was there as scheduled. And to my surprise I was the only one there. No one called and told me that

"After going through the snow to be there on time, I decided to go ahead with the hearing as scheduled, which meant that I had to be the accuser (the patrolman who gave me the citation) and I had to be the accused and also the judge.

"The citation was for going 46 miles per hour in a 35 mile per hour zone. I had the speed alert on my car set on 44 miles per hour. As the accuser I felt that I was going over 35 miles per hour, but as the accused I knew that I was not going 45 miles per hour and as the judge, and being the understanding man that I am, I decided to throw it out of court this time, but it had better not happen again."

In confession of sin, two extremes are possible. Guard against these:

1. Act as if there is little or nothing to confess. Unconfessed sin leads to a guilt hangup. 2. Morbid introspection — This person sees more than God sees.

The psalmist had a simple but excellent plan. On his knees in prayer, he asked God to reveal things to him — "Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: and see if there be any wicked way in me" (Ps. 139;23). If you ask him to reveal things in you that are displeasing to him, you can bet he will!

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service predicts for Saturday rain along the East Coast from Connecticut to Florida and inland to Appalachia and the northeast Gulf Coast states. Snow is expected in parts of Montana and North Dakota.

Rare March snow falls in Panhandle

By The Associated Press

Snow was falling in the Texas Panhandle today and forecasters warned of the possibility of a rare March snowfall across portions of North Texas, including the Dallas-Fort Worth area, tonight and Saturday.

About half of an inch of snow covered the ground at Amarillo by 6 a.m. while 1-2 inches of snow was on the ground at Stratford. Driving conditions were hazardous in the Panhandle, prompting the National Weather Service to issue travelers advisories. Conditions were expected to worsen today. Forecasters at Dallas-Fort Worth said snow or sleet would be unusual for that area in March, but said weather conditions hint of that possibility by tonight and into early Saturday.

An upper air disturbance to the northwest was expected to intensify and move southeastward today, forecasters said. That would combine with cold air moving into the state from Canada to provide proper weather conditions for snow across the western and central portions of North Texas.

Rain was forecast to begin in North Texas this afternoon and change to mixed with snow and then to snow tonight before the snowfall in the state ends from west to east Saturday.

Scattered showers were forecast today for West Texas and South Texas.

Getting smarter by the day.....

It was refreshing to visit local schools during Texas Public School Week this week.

Big Spring parents can be extremely proud of our local public schools because the programs are dynamic, the teachers are dedicated, and the students are learning — more than ever

It appears some of the "freestyle" methods of the past have been abandoned, and a concentration on fundamentals of education has been resumed. That does not mean creativity has been abandoned, far from it. On the contrary, it appears the best of both worlds have been combined to produce one of the most stimulating learning environments in our city's history.

THE MOST IMPORTANT thing we noticed during our visit was the emphasis on positive reinforcement.

This is a key factor. The teacher-student relationship is not unlike the employer-employee relationship. A recent article about job burnout in "This is West Texas" said: "A hypercritical boss quick to complain when things go wrong, but aloof when a worker does a good job, can adversely affect the morale and productivity of all employees." The same principle can apply to teachers and students. We're glad to see teachers have gone back to giving gold stars for excellence, as was evidenced during our recent visit.

MRS. HELEN GLADDEN, elementary local curriculum coordinator, is a strong believer in the positive reinforcement approach. When we visited several classes this week she made a point to congratulate the students in each class for their good work.

"You're getting smarter by the week," she told one beaming class

'No ma'am,' one youngster replied. "We're getting smarter by the day.

What about homosexuality?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Why are Christians so prejudiced against homosexuals? To me, my homosexuality is a private thing, and entirely normal. - E.B.

DEAR E.B. I know this is a very controversial issue today, but that is all the more reason why we should see carefully what the Bible says. Otherwise we can only swap personal opinions which may not necessarily have much value.

I know there is a growing acceptance of homosexual behavior in our society. As a Christian who takes the Bible seriously, however, I cannot agree that homosexual behavior is "normal" or acceptable. God created the world perfectly in the beginning, and part of that perfect creation was the creation of both men and women in his image. Homosexual behavior was severly punished under the Old Testament law (see, for example, Leviticus 20:13). In the New Testament it likewise is seen as wrong (I Corinthians 6:9). One of the evidences of the Roman Empire's moral corruption, Paul suggested, was its tolerance of homosexual behavior (see Romans 1:26-27). Such behavior is a distortion of God's original creation, and has come about because sin has entered the world.

It is difficult in a few words to say all that needs to be said on this topic to you. However, I want you to know that God loves you and is concerned about you, and he wants to help you. His concern is not simply that you face the fact that your lifestyle is wrong in his eves. His concern is that you have left him out of your life and have chosen instead to live for yourself. God wants you to become his child in a special way through faith in Christ, and he wants you to learn what it means to live for him and follow him every day. It is not easy, I know, for someone in your position to leave your present lifestyle and become a disciple of Jesus Christ, but I promise you - on the basis of God's Word - that you will find lasting happiness and joy and purpose and hope only in Christ.

The regal presidency

WASHINGTON — In this winter of Republican discontent, a melancholy question is asked in the confines of the White House: How was Ronald Reagan transformed in a brief year from blue-collar champion to regal president?

The answer partly lies in the unexpectedly deep recession. But Republican politicians, including some within the administration, believe the tone set by Reagan and his top lieutenants must share the blame. "I think some of us forgot how we got here," one presidential aide confessed to us. Elected as the candidate of Main Street while Wall Street mobilized behind John B. Connally and to a lesser extent George Bush. Reagan in office has evoked more the country club than the Moose lodge.

Reagan himself has not abandoned his middle-class-worker roots, proved by his instinctive decision to overrule policy advisers who wanted higher taxes on liquor, tobacco and gasoline. Nevertheless, White House polls show that voters agree with Democratic claims that Reagan favors the rich Americans. other This is blamed on the regal tone of House White Republican politicians, scrutinize with concern guest lists for state dinners. Captains of industry, few of whom supported Reagan before Detroit, abound: grassroots politicians who were for Reagan even before he decided to run seldom make CRITICS OF SUCH patterns target one of the Reagan administration's least publicized, most powerful figures: Michael K. Deaver, deputy chief of staff and principal guardian of whom the president sees and when, including final veto pattern over those coveted dinner invitations. It is Deaver they are talking about when disillusioned critics grumble cryptically that some longtime Reaganites have been dazzled by Washington and have unwittingly built the regal presidency.

Excesses of style at the White House, however, may be less important than the outlook of policymakers who have no feel for the rightwing populism inherent in Reagan's appeal. Cabinet members, most of whom have never sought elective office, have taken all too literally the president's early admonition to make decisions as though there never will be another election.

Recent internal whether to deregulate natural gas prices shows the disregard for the arts of elective politics. The Cabinet was overwhelmingly in favor of capping one of the worst winters in history with a proposal guaranteeing higher fuel prices for the short run. Those White House aides who deal with the outside world — Congress, governors, politicians, consumer groups - convinced the president to delay such a step.

A similar split emerged on the excise tax decision one month earlier. It likely will come up again in the forthcoming battle over whether to suspend tax cuts for individuals but not corporations. The political mindset of the Cabinet can be seen in what it might have in store for Joe Sixpack in this recession-election year: He would pay more for beer and cigarettes, to drive his car and to heat his home, while getting 40 percent of this tax cut taken away.

Likewise, concern by Republican politicians that the unprecedented turnout of terrified black voters in the 1981 off-year elections will be duplicated nationwide in 1982 is not matched in the Justice Department. Instead of trying to calm black fears about Reagan's intentions, the Civil Rights Division keeps raising objections to the bill extending the Voting Rights Act (to the dismay of White House aides)

THE TRUTH IS THAT only a handful of Cabinet members (most notably Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis and Interior Secretary James Watt) have a compelling interest in the Nov. 2 congressional election. Many see their function as emissaries in the White House of their constituency groups, not the other way around.

It, naturally follows that Cabinet members show little enthusiasm for intervening in the congressional campaign, tending to elevate themselves beyond the crass demands of politics. Secretary of Agriculture John Block is battling the White House over demands that he campaign against Democratic members of the House Agriculture Committee — especially California's Rep. Tony Coelho, chairman of the House Democratic campaign com-

But even in the White House, there is no overriding resolve to erase the image of the regal presidency that increases Republican burdens this fall. That was shown when two House Republican leaders, Reps. Jack Kemp of New York and Trent Lott of Mississippi, declared it time to crack down on corporate welfare. The reaction of senior White House aides was outrage over the "demagoguery" of the two congressmen seeking to guide the president back to the populistic moorings that helped elect

Federal Reserve privately owned

Dear Sirs, In regards to a couple of articles in your paper dated 2-25-82, I wish to

First of all, "In the mailbag," Mr. Gilstrap has done a lot of homework and done it well. If you think the Federal Reserve System is any part of the Federal Government, I suggest you go to the phone book of any city with a Federal Reserve Bank (Dallas). Look under Government offices and you will not find the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas. It is privately owned.

Regarding the article about San Francisco passing a law similar to the one passed in Morton Grove, Ill., a few facts follow. 1. The Second Amendment was not placed in the Constitution to protect us from burglars and our spouses.

2. Some State Constitutions state that "standing armies," in time of peace, are dangerous to Liberty & Freedom, therefore the right of every citizen to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

3. Registration of guns by criminals violates their 5th Amendment rights against self incrimination. Hayes vs. U.S. 1968 Supreme Court Decision. Only criminals have rights?

4. 25,000 people were murdered in the U.S. in 1981. Sixty per cent with guns (mostly handguns). The World Almanac & Book of Facts, 1981 Edition, states that there were 1,156,000 plus legal abortions performed in the U.S. in 1978.

5. Russia & Polland allow only sticks & stones as defense against burglars and spouses.

Why are the city, county, state & federal governments trying so hard to pass gun laws? Remember Poland, Czechoslovakia & Russia. Wake up America, on a 12 hour clock it's 5 minutes to midnight

Mubarak maneuver

CAIRO — Hosni Mubarak has stopped most of the practices that soured so many Egyptians on Anwar Sadat before the assassination. But the new Egyptian president has yet to define his own policies.

On the contrary, he is postponing decisions and thus piling up pressures on his future freedom of action particularly in relations with Israel and the Arab world. So the American interest is to help Egypt rejoin the Arab fold on terms that permit a continued approach to peace with

The biggest change here since Sadat is in the role of the leader. Instead of cutting a heroic figure, Mubarak comes off as a general manager. He appears in public only rarely. He has delegated major responsibility in foreign and domestic matters to ministerial committees. The most important event since he took over has been a three-day conference on the economy. Mubarak led off with a speech emphasizing population control — "a dreary subject that Sadat never touched," an Egyptian friend of mine observed. Conciliatory moves toward Sadat's foes abound. The well-known journalist Muhammed Hassanein Heikal is only the most famous of the many figures arrested by the late president who have been freed by Mubarak. Each week a new batch of prisoners is liberated. The trial of the assassins moves forward at such a slow pace that some believe - probably wrongly - there will be no executions.

IN FOREIGN POLICY, Mubarak has moved from Sadat's single-

the same of the sa

minded focus on the American connection and peace with Israel. He did visit Washington, to be sure. But he has also visited four other Western countries - Britain, France, West Germany and Italy. He was scheduled to visit Israel later this month, but is balking about a trip to Jerusalem, and he has already visited an Arab country, Oman. He has allowed Soviet technicians to return to Egypt, and his emissaries, have cultivated such nonaligned countries as India and Yuogoslavia. The expectation here is that Mubarak will attend the nonaligned summit meeting scheduled for Baghdad in the fall.

A multitude of gestures, however, does not a policy make. Mubarak has not changed the Egyptian power structure in any way. He has yet to name a vice president. The cabinet he installed on Jan. 1 keeps persons chosen by Sadat in all the major posts.

Big decisions, to be sure, are not expected by most Egyptians at this time. It is well understood that the boat would not be rocked until Israel. under the Camp David Accords returns the last bit of the Sinai Desert to Egypt on April 25. Still, the postponement of decisions leaves room for interested parties to maneuver and Thus various groups of Egyptians are pushing Mubarak to bring Egypt back into the Arab world. The president's closest advisers lean in that direction. Secret talks with representatives of other Arab states have undoubtedly taken place. The president's office has been obliged to deny a report - published by Mr.

Heikal — of offers by the Palestine Liberation Organization and Jordan to act as broker between Egypt and the other Arab states.

IN RESPONSE to these pressures, Mubarak has already edged away from Sadat's position on the phase of the Camp David Accord providing autonomy for the Palestinian Arabs living under Israeli occupation on the WEST Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip. Whereas Sadat was prepared to accept a statement of principles which he would then hand on to the Palestinians, Mubarak is not going to accept a statement unless he feels it will satisfy the Palestinians.

The prospects for success under these conditions distinctly limited, perhaps even dead. At that point, Camp David becomes merely an Egyptian-Israeli accord, and it makes sense to try another approach to peace. American policy comes into play at that point.

At present, most of the Middle East is in chaos. Seemingly insoluble problems beset Lebanon, Syria and the PLO. Nobody can foretell the political outcome of the war between Irag and Iran. But Jordan and Saudi Arabia remain intact. Both countries receive American arms. Both have, in effect, accepted the Egyptian-Israeli peace. So they can renew ties with Egypt and together put forward a new initiative for a general settlement with Israel.

The Israeli government would, of course, oppose such an approach. But Israeli public opinion is not so adamant. Moreover, there would at least be on the table the only good thing that seems possible under current conditions—a framework for negotiating peace.

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Behind the gates of Bob Jones University, its president seethes with righteous indignation at the world outside. Bob Jones III feels his Christian fundamentalist school has been cast unjustly as a symbol of racism and has become a "sacrificial lamb" for face-

"It would be pretty hard for an unsaved man to understand what's going on here," Jones said, "though we have many unsaved friends who appreciate our forthrightness...even if they don't agree with us.'

BJU, founded 54 years ago by Jones' grandfather and later headed by his father, has remained "a straight edge" in the midst of changing public mores. Jones said in an interview.

"This school is a religious institution first and foremost," said Jones, a lanky, pale ordained minister who started preaching at the age of 13. "And as such, we are unyielding in matters of scriptural principle. That's why we find ourselves in this dilemma with the IRS."

"This dilemma" began in 1970 when the Internal Revenue Service first warned that racially discriminatory policies were going to cost the school its exemption from paying federal employment and Social Security taxes, as well as its right to receive tax-deductible contributions.

BJU responded by admitting married black students in 1971 and single blacks in 1975. But the IRS withdrew the school's tax exemptions anyway a year later, because the university would not allow its students to date or marry interracially.

Today fewer than a dozen of its 6,300 students are black. "We teach everything here from the perspective of what does the Bible say," Jones said. "The Bible is the touchstone of truth for everything we

According to the university, the Bible says God created barriers to recruiting from the public at large because what we have here is not for the separate the races. Interracial dating would lead to interracial marriage. breaking down those barriers and creating the one-world system of the Antichrist, the school maintains.

To differing interpretations put forth by other Bible scholars, Jones said, "So what. That's my answer. So what."

Jones is a product of his own school's teaching. He attended Bob Jones Academy, which is BJU's elementary and secondary school on campus. His undergraduate degrees include bachelor's and master's degrees from BJU. He has worked for the university in a number of capacities, starting as a speech teacher. He was assistant dean of men, assistant to the president and vice president before becoming president in 1971.

The school, its 41 buildings located on 200 acres near downtown Greenville, could be taxed millions of dollars retroactively to 1970 if it loses its case, which is now before the U.S. Supreme Court, or if legislation proposed by the Reagan administration is passed.

"We'll exist without our tax exemption," Jones said. "When the government seeks to make tax exemptions a reward for good behavior, ...then we have a government establishment of religion.

"The Constitution protects pluralism in America," he said. "That's why the Church of Satan has a tax exemption. That's why the Black Muslims have a tax exemption," he said.

The makeup of the student body, who pay $3,800 a year for tuition, room tal Bible-believing churches across America," Jones said. "We are not every decent, constitutional, law-abiding citizen in this country."

"Our belief is not something we concocted in order to penalize black-white dating relationships. That was in existence before the blacks ever came

On January 8, the university thought it had won its tax case. That's when the Reagan administration decided the IRS had overstepped its bounds in withdrawing the school's exemption.

But the outcry by blacks, civil rights groups and others caused the Reagan administration, fours days later, to ask for legislation that would deny exemptions to discriminating schools. The Justice Department announced Feb. 24 that it would pursue its case against BJU.

The next day, the Reagan administration said it couldn't defend the government's own ban on tax breaks for racially biased private schools and asked the Supreme Court to appoint a special advocate to support the pro-

On Wednesday, lawyers for BJU and Goldsboro Christian Schools asked the Supreme Court to reverse without further proceedings the federal appeals court ruling that had denied them exemptions. There was no indication when the court would decide on the request.

"I've no good word to say on the integrity of this administration and particularly the Justice Department," Jones said. "The duplicity of governand board, is reflective of the kind of young person "found in the fundamen- ment bureaucracy is making me angrier every day I live and should anger plans and strategy.

The checks were due in mailboxes Wednesday.

Famed authors stung by state tax

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) - Literary giants whose labors have led them to homes in the Connecticut hills let loose a collective cry of pain when they saw their incomes cut by one of the state's many efforts to generate revenue.

TOO CLOSE FOR COMFORT? — Chart shows the random position of planets in the solar system, left, and the projected alignment for next Wednesday. It has been said that this alignment could bring disaster to the earth, but scientists expect nothing unusual.

Rare planetary rendezvous is no threat to Earthlings

By JOY ASCHENBACH
National Geographic News Service
WASHINGTON — March 10, 1982. That's the day that all nine planets will be closer together than they have been in about 500 years, but nothing earthshaking will happen.

A day in 1982 was supposed to be the time, according to the 1974 book, "The Jupiter Effect," that all the planets would line up in a row and trigger a chain of events that would result in the worst urban earthquake of the century, destroying Los Angeles.

"As far as we know there's never been such a 'Grand Alignment' and probably never will be," said astronomer LeRoy Doggett of the U.S. Naval Observatory. "Studies of planetary motion over millions of years have not uncovered a time when the planets would ever be in a straight line or even very close.

BUT EVEN IF the planets were to line up one behind the other, he pointed out, there is no known scientific evidence that their gravitational attraction is linked to earthquake activity. At worst, they would raise the tidal forces on Earth, but not even enough to "trigger" an earthquake that was already about to erupt.

What will happen on March 10 then? "An unusual celestial phenomenon with no cosmic consequences or significance," Dr. Doggett said. "It won't be all earthshaking," agreed astronomer Kenneth L. Franklin, of the American Museum-Hayden Planetarium. "Just enough of a planetary lineup to make people ask if the solar system will tip over."

All the planets will be on the same side of the sun. Viewed from the sun, they will form a jagged line within a 98-degree arc. Earth will be sitting on the outer edge on one side, and Uranus and Neptune farther from the sun on the other side.

From Earth it will be possible to see the other eight spread across the sky just before dawn on the 10th. Most

Genes can be transfered between species: report

HOUSTON (AP) — A Swiss biologist has reported the first evidence that genes from one species can be transferred to another, a finding that undercuts a basic principle of evolution.

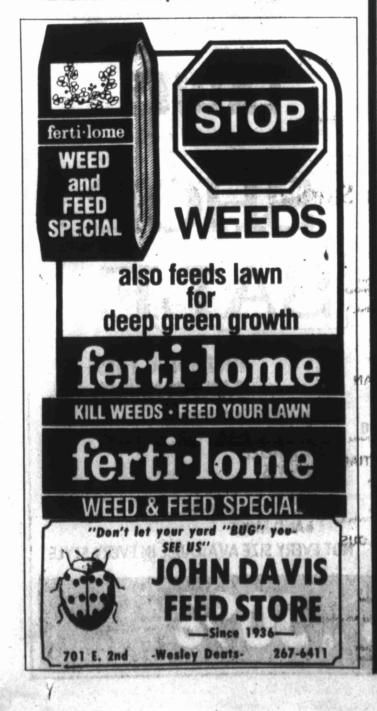

The researcher said Wednesday he has found a nearly identical string of DNA — the chemical that constitutes genes — in two species of sea urchin that live thousands of miles apart.

The two animals can be traced back to a common ancestor 65 million years ago, said Max Birnstiel of the University of Zurich. But he added they have evolved along different paths for millions of years, and there is no reason they would now have similar genes.

It is virtually impossible that such similarities would show up by chance.

Birnstiel is considering a suggestion by a colleague that will start to appear late the night before. Venus will be the brightest; Mercury may be difficult to detect. Neptune and Pluto will be visible only through a telescope.

This is the first time all the planets will have come this close together and to Earth since the late 15th century. It won't happen again for about another 500 years.

According to calculations by a Belgian astronomer, Jean Meeus, the last time all the planets lay within a slightly narrower 90-degree quadrant was the year 949. The next time will be 2492.

IF PLUTO, the outermost and smallest planet, is excluded from the lineup, the other eight come into rough alignment more frequently, about once every 179 years. The closest these eight are known to have been was within a 40-degree arc in 1128.

What brings the planets into alignment? It's all a matter of celestial mechanics. The planets travel at different rates, depending on their distance from the sun. The fastest, Mercury, lies closest to the sun and circles it in 88 days. The slowest, Pluto, takes 248 years.

"The planets therefore overtake and pass each other in

"The planets therefore overtake and pass each other in a cyclic fashion that over a long period of time brings them together in one broad area," Doggett explained.

So far scientists have found that although such alignments increase the tidal forces on Earth, they are insignificant compared with Earth's principal tide-raisers, the moon and sun. At most the tidal forces affected by the planets would be only about 0.0001 of the ordinary tidal action of the moon and sun.

At the Naval Observatory in Washington, D.C., March

At the Naval Observatory in Washington, D.C., March 10 will be observed by routinely tracking the planets as part of its continuing study of planetary motion. "It will be business as usual as long as it's a clear night," Dogget said.

Across the county in southern California, there should be no earthly reason to sell those condominiums on the coast, after all.

Coalition to boycott NBC, RCA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Coalition for Better Television, which said it speaks for 1,800 national and local organizations across the country, announced a boycott Thursday against NBC and its parent company, RCA, because the network has "excluded Christian characters, Christian values and Christian culture from their program.

Last spring the organization had planned a general boycott of television shows it felt objectionable but called that off at the last moment after the television networks promised to review their programming.

Today, the Rev. Donald E. Wildmon, chairman of the coalition based in Tupelo, Miss., said the networks toned down their programming for a month or so but then resumed depictions he considers objectionable.

Wildmon told a wellattended news conference today that NBC was singled out because he considered its shows worse than those of the other networks, but he held out the possibility of expanding the boycott to other companies.

He said the boycott would continue until NBC and its parent company, the Radio Corporation of America, met his list of 11 demands.

Dear Abby

Friendship vs. romance

DEAR ABBY: Jerry, the guy my best friend, Anita, has liked for years, asked me out last week. I turned him down because I didn't want to hurt Anita. Being the close friends we are, I told Anita that Jerry had asked me out but I turned him down. She said I should have accepted, but I got the feeling that she was really glad I didn't.

Anita has had a crush on Jerry for a long time, but he's never asked her out. Although she knows Jerry has no interest in her, she still has feelings for him.

Recently a friend of Jerry's told me Jerry wants to ask me out again, and I don't know what to do. I don't want to hurt Anita, but this guy is really nice and nice guys are hard to come by these days.

It's a sticky situation. What are your thoughts on this,

DEAR CONFUSED: Anita would have to be both immature and unrealistic to consider you less a friend because you dated a guy she "liked a lot" but who had no interest in her. (Merely liking a guy doesn't make him or her property.)

However, since you already told Anita that Jerry asked you out and you turned him down, and you got the feeling she was "glad," you'd probably feel guilty accepting a date with him now.

You're right, a nice guy is hard to come by, but so is a best friend. If you can handle the guilt, go ahead and date

Kawasaki's disease affects kids

Dear Dr. Donohue: Our tive-year-old daughter came down with what three doctors diagnosed as Kawasaki's disease (like the motorcycle). They could not tell us how she caught such a thing. It all started with a very high fever, sore throat, and awful headaches. She also got what they called strawberry tongue, which was very sensitive. She had a loss of appetite. The doctors prescribed aspirin, which she had to take for three months.

Finally, she got a clean bill of health and is getting along terrific now. How did our daughter get this, when none of the children she palyed with got it? How does one catch it? — Mrs. C.D.

I'm sure you know that the disease has nothing to do with motorcycles. Kawasaki's is a "new" illness. When an illness is described for the first time, it does not automatically mean it is really new, or that it is widespread, or that it is a serious threat. What it usually means is that a physician has been clever enough to put together lots of little pieces of a puzzle and place a new name on an illness that had been mistakenly identified as

Thereafter, other physicians can recognize those symptoms, diagnose the illness, and add to the store of knowledge about it. Eventually, a growing store of information about the illness may result in learning causes and Kawasaki's disease was identified only a few years ago, so many important questions are unanswered - what causes it; how people get; how to treat it.

Your description fits the classic symptoms. It is chiefly a childhood illness, striking between 1 and 13 years, although a few adults have been diagnosed as having it. There is prolonged (weeks-long) fever, red eyes, dry and fissured lips, red tongue with swollen taste buds, red palms and soles and a general body rash. Lymph nodes, especially those in the neck, are swollen. For now, some doctors feel aspirin is useful. In most instances, the child with Kawasaki's recovers fully.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Recently I started nutting up the thermostat because of the cold. Sometimes I put it up to 75. Within this same time (two months) I had three nosebleeds. I am 27 and never had nosebleeds before. I've been told there is nothing unusual in this. Do you think it could be the dry heat's affect on my nose? - D.L.

Excessively dry air dries the lining of the nose, which should be moist. The lining then becomes brittle and flakes off. That causes nosebleed. If you are sure you have no illness causing your nosebleeds (clotting disorders, for example), then humidifying the air should solve your pro-

Akron adjusts to loss of tire plant

NEARING THE END — Edward Carnes, a worker at General Tire's Akron plant for 12 years, has to think about finding a new job after the tiremaker announced plans to close the facility. Carnes said he would probably find work as an auto mechanic but might have to leave Akron to find employment.

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The city whose name once evoked tires the way Detroit evokes cars is grappling with an identity crisis as it loses its last major tire

The city of 250,000 people is no longer the boom town it was in the 1920s and 1930s, when fumes from rubber plants were a familiar odor. The most recent state figures show unemployment in the region at 11.5 percent — the highest sin 'he 1940s.

'Things are pretty epressed here,' said Don Pniaczek, who was laio i by Goodyear Tire & Rubber Tire jobs are down from a peak of 70,000 to about 21,000 today, and many of those are in corporate offices and research centers instead of factories. "It's sad," Pniaczek said. "When I was growing up, the belief was you get a job in a rubber company and you're secure for life." The former rubber worker now runs an antique car business in his home.

"Akron is clearly going through a major realignment," said George Knepper, a University of Akron professor and author of a history of the city. "It's now a much cleaner, white-collar oriented city.

The exodus of manufacturing from the city, headquarters to four of the five largest domestic tiremakers, hit hardest on Monday. General Tire & Rubber Co. announced it would close its Akron truck tire plant this year. The factory, built in 1915, is the last large-scale tiremaking plant in the city.

Its bias-ply truck tires are a dying product in an age when longer-lasting radials dominate the market.

Mayor Roy Ray and union officials are scrambling to come up with plans to save the plant's 1,500 jobs. In 1979, workers made concessions in exchange for the company's agreement to build a new radial tire plant

General's chairman M.G. O'Neil said the economy has made building a new plant "not feasible" and that the old plant isn't profitable.

Many workers and United Rubber Workers leaders said the closing was inevitable - but painful nevertheless. Fifteen plants have been shut down nationwide in the past few years, leaving about 50.

The tire industry got started in Akron after Dr. Benjamin Franklin Goodrich moved his small New York factory there in 1870. The business flourished because it was close to Detroit's auto plants, and other tire companies soon grew up in Akron.

Akron has lost 34.000 manufacturing jobs in the past 30 years and 8,600 in the past eight. The city now has 90,000 manufacturing jobs, Ray said.

The Equator is a specially designed training shoe for athletes with excessive rearfoot motion (pronation). It combines superior medial (Inside) motion control with quality shock absorption. Due to the innovative features in the heel area of the shoe, runners experience maximum support and stability.

The rearfoot insert (Cobra Pad) provides support to the pronated foot and aids in shock absorption. This added support is a new senstation for many runners, and we recommend you wear the Equator several times before running in it to allow your foot to adapt to this new position

Region V tournament up to semifinals

By GREG JAKLEWICZ

Sports Editor It was truly an amazing day at the Region V Men's Basketball Tournament. Through the thrillers and the yawners, four teams advanced to the semifinals scheduled from 7 and 9 p.m. tonight in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Slick and quick Frank Phillips embarrassed Ranger in the second half and rolled to an easy 67-49 victory to earn a semifinals berth against Midland. The Chaparrals overcame an 11-point halftime deficit in the second half to crush Clarendon 72-63. Those two teams play at 9 p.m. The 7 p.m. game features amazing Amarillo against even more surprising Cisco. The Badgers, playing with just five players, stayed out of foul trouble and upended Southwest Christian 76-67. Cisco got a bucket at the buzzer to go into overtime and then gave heavy tournament finals favorite McLennan an early exit with a 71-62 victory.

Ranger led 19-17 with 4:24 to go in the first half and then the things went sour.

Frank Phillips ripped on 10 straight points to take a 27-19 lead and the Plainsmen led 27-21 at halftime. If coach Larry Gibson had any hopes for the second half they were quickly dashed as Phillips took a double-figure lead moments into the final half.

Clyde Davis hit a shot for the Rangers at 11:26 to cut the Frank Phillips lead to 49-32 and Ranger did not score again until the 5:27 mark. By then the Plainsmen had built a 55-32 lead and the game was over except for the final Phillips placed four in double figures while Roger Hughes leading the way with 16. James Wright hit 13 while Clifford Morgan and Dwayne McMillon had 12 each. Mike Bell was the only Ranger over 10 points with 13.

If any team has had to overcome adversity in this tournament, the Badgers would be the choice.

Prior to Thursday's quarterfinals game, leading scorer Tony Chennault was declared academically ineligible. That was bad news enough but Chennault's departure left Amarillo with just five players in Big Spring.

Head coach Mark Nixon's group, however stunned by the news, responded with a 65 percent shooting exhibition from the floor and eliminated the Rams from the tourna-

Nixon had to get a hollow feeling in his stomach when Bill Roundtree drew his fourth foul with 15:34 to go in the game. Roundtree was forced to play straight-up defense and back off from the boards. At the buzzer, Roundtree was still on the court along with Eddie Bonner and Robert Dickerson — all with four fouls.

The scoring hero was Nicky Jones who dropped in 11 of 12 shots to lead all scorers with 29 points.

Amarillo led 20-16 with 8:06 left in the first half and then reeled off seven straight points to take a 27-16 lead on a three-point play by Jones.

The Rams cut it to six twice in the second half, the last time coming at 1:04 when Taul Ellis scored to make it 72-66. Tim Price and Jones hit for the Badgers in the final minute to put the game away.

Mack Randall had 28 for the Rams while John Robinson got 17 of his 19 points in the second half.

It took a little over a half for the Chaps to get their opening-game jitters behind them. McLennan's ineptness at putting the Wranglers away at the beginning of each half allowed Cisco to recover and win for the second overtime in tournament play.

The star of the game easily enough was Dwight Burr. Burr tipped in a miss by Charles Houston at the buzzer in regulation to send the contest into the bonus period. After Cisco got a three-point lead, he hit 10 straight foul shots to ice the game. For the evening, he was 15 of 16 from the line and had a game-high 27 points.

It took Cisco six and a half minutes to score in the game. By then McLennan led 10-0 but off-target shooting allowed Cisco to come right back and tie the game 20-20 with 2:48 left in the half. McLennan recovered to lead by two at in-

McLennan had a great chance with less than a minute, holding onto the ball and a two-point lead. That's when a critical turnover came and allowed Burr's late heroics.

Two free shots by Terry White gave Cisco a 61-58 lead with 1:30 to go and Burr hit 10 consecutive free shots to give his team enough of a lead the Highlanders couldn't overtake.

Mike Heller led McLennan, regular season winners of the Northern Junior College Athletic Conference, with 17 points. Cisco was fifth in the league race but now is the lone Northern team left in the tournament.

SWC Tournament

Aggies, Frogs move ahead

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - The rested Arkansas Razorbacks joust the fast-improving and gritty Texas Christian 'Killer Frogs'' tonight in the Southwest Conference Tournament semifinals while Houston plays the Texas Aggies. No. 14 ranked Arkansas, 21-5 and the SWC regular season champions for the fifth time in six years, meet 16-12 TCU in the 7 p.m. opener.

TCU bounced Texas Tech 67-61 in the quarterfinals before a tournament record Reunion Arena crowd of 17,543 fans after the Texas Aggies survived Baylor 64-63. Jim Killingsworth, The Associated Press SWC Coach of the year for bringing the Horned Frogs a fourth-place finish, said "Arkansas will be well rested. We've had to play three games to their one ... we'll find out what kind of condition we are in that's for sure." TCU exploded in the second half against the Red

Raiders behind junior forward Doug Arnold who scored 16 of his 20 points after intermission. "Doug was much more patient in the second half," said

Killingsworth. "He was rushing his shot early. TCU trailed 27-24 at halftime before Arnold went on a tear, hitting four straight shots.

The Horned Frogs scored on 12 out of 13 trips down the floor at one stage.

"We won't have to make any adjustments getting ready for Arkansas," said Arnold. "Arkansas and Tech are very much alike because they goth play tough defense. "The fact that we haven't beaten Arkansas in some time has nothing to do with this team ... they'll be ready to TCU's Jeff Baker said a patient team can beat Arkan-"I don't know how the other teams feel but we think we can beat them," he said. "If you're cool and calm a team can tear them up. Clarence Swannegan was high for Tech with 18 points. Junior Claude Riley scored 17 points to carry the 18-9

Aggies by the 17-11 Bears, who were led by Terry Teagle's 29 points. Guard Reggie Roberts added 14 for the win-"We're looking forward to playing Houston because we came in third during the regular season and we want to prove we are as good as they are," said Roberts. 'Houston has a tendency to let up on defense and I think they had better not let up against us.'

Riley said, "We can beat Houston if we play hard, but they go to the boards well and we will have to block out underneath

He enjoys life's little things

By TINA M. STEFFEN Church Editor

The Rev. David Womack, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church, was called to preach the gospel while attending a Baptist camp near Marfa. "The Lord spoke to me in a still small voice, calling me to preach the gospel," he said.

"I told the Lord to forget it. He had the wrong number. I ran from the Lord for 18 months. It was a very miserable time. One Sunday night, I couldn't take it any longer and said, 'Okay Lord.'' That was in the fall of his junior year in high school. He has wanted to be in the ministry ever

"It is a peaceful and secure feeling knowing you are where you are supposed to be," he said. "I don't have any doubts He wanted me to be in the ministry. I have friends who searched and some are still searching to find out what they are to do in life. It is a neat feeling knowing I'm doing what I'm supposed to be doing.'

Womack has been a full-time minister for four years. He has ministered as a lay person since his sophomore year in high school. As a sophomore in college, he worked as a fill-in minister whenever he was needed to gain ex-

Womack's first nine months in full-time ministry was as an intern at Third Avenue Baptist Church in San Angelo. He pastored senior adults, drove a day care bus, learned the ministry and learned how to put together projects such

His first pastorate as a full-time minister was in Eola. "I was the only full-time pastor in a community that had six churches. The other preachers would just come in on Sundays." he said. He pastored the people of the other churches besides his own church. The other preachers preached sermons while he ministered to the community's needs, gave them help and developed many

There were seven people at my church that first Sunday and when I left we had about 35," Womack said. "I was so green and inexperienced as a minister. If something worked out, it worked out. If not, we just laughed it off. It was a good ministry. I still have a lot of friends

Womack also pastored at Prairie View Baptist Church before coming to Emmanuel Baptist, a year ago.

"My idea of ministry is that a minster is a coach to the church's people ... to help them be better disciples ... and not to be an authoritarian." "I've had many experiences as a minister," he said.

One of his greatest experiences is moving from being a single-staff pastor in the country to having a staff to work with at a city church...seeing the different needs of people in the city compared to people in the country. "In the country, they just want you to be there on Sunday," he said. "In the city it is a different ball game. You are called on all week long.

"When I get frustrated I think about a particular church. The odds were against them in making it. They were financially troubled. They are still there because of the grace of God.

'My greatest pleasure is when I work with a person for two or three years and watch them grow and mature. You are watching a Christian grow. It's with people. It's finding joys in the little things in life...being with people...helping people...loving people and watching them know God. If you don't like people, you don't need to be in the ministry.

Womack and his wife Kathy have been married five years. Kathy is a legal secretary for Roger Brown, attorney. They have two Dalmation dogs, Junior and Prissy, Womack enjoys playing golf, fishing, hunting and working on old cars. "My wife thinks I'm crazy," he said. "An old '55 Chevy is a beautiful peice of machinery!''

He received his bachelor of arts degree in political science and his master's of public administration both from Angelo State University, San Angelo. He has attended University of Texas Permian Basin in Odessa and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth. He also has taken correspondence courses from Luther Rice University, Jacksonville, Fla.

Womack is a member of Howard County Minister's Fellowship, the American Society of Public Administrators and the Academy of Political Science. He is a youth camp director for Circle Six Baptist Ranch and dean of Super Summer Schools at Baylor University,

'My personal and professional goals are the same," he said. "I want to follow God in the best way I can by accomplishing these things: 1.) Being the best educated and best follower of Christ I can be. I can't feed my people unless I'm in tune and a good disciple for Jesus. 2.) By being the best pastor. That is what God called me to be...having the willingness to listen to God and to people and be willing to help. 3.) Not be lazy and 4.) Feed my people. Christ said be willing to give it all up to do it." Womaack said you can't grow or get something without sacrificing something for it first.'

These three fathers have more in common than just a love for their families. They are all members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and they all participate in a weekly program encouraged by the church. Each Monday night is set aside as "family home evening," and families are encouraged to spend time he's doing. Our 12-year-old is together in activities or discussions. The church even publishes a lesson manual with teaching helps and numerous illustrations.

However, a creative family probably won't just follow the manual -- and that's fine. Miller and his wife, Linda, are as likely to have a family long-jump contest as they are to have a lives of the seven Lind teaching session, and they love it that way. The Miller children range from two to twelve years old, and all are involved in home evenings. Sometimes the family plays musical chairs, runs races outside, or has treasure hunts. says. "So one of the kids will pick songs for us to sing, and we'll do something together. Sometimes we'll go out to dinner or we'll have ice cream, or we'll stay home and have a lesson, watch filmstrips, or listen to tapes. The main purpose is to have one night a week when nothing interrupts the family together. What you do isn't as important as the fact that you do it together.

"We play it by ear. If certain problems come up, we might have a lesson on those. We ask the kids if they have any problems they want to talk about - and even if they want to talk about 'Star Wars,' that's what we talk about.

Once or twice a year, White's schedule will interfere with Monday night's home evenings. "There's no way I can change the schedule of the NFL football games," he says, "but it doesn't happen more often for us than for anybody else." When unavoidable conflicts come up - as they can in any family - the Whites reschedule and try to make the conflict a family event.

"It's a matter of getting into a habit, so that when the kids are older and have more activities, they'll know that things aren't scheduled on Monday nights. It's already a special time for us, but I think it's more important that we're laying the groundwork for the future.

Each day of the week is different for White. His NFL schedule gives him free time from January to March, but speaking engagements. public appearances, and promotional commitments that take him away from home about two days a week. And during football season, he has practices seven days a week. But the Whites are used to scheduling their time. JoLynn White is a local president of the Church's women's organization, so she spends hours every week in charitable and volunteer work. And White has an important capacity in local missionary work. When they lived in Mesa, Arizona, where White grew up, they worked as volunteers at the Mormon Temple in Mesa for two years. And he has been a local Church leader and taught a daily Church seminary class for high school students.

Even with those duties. family always come first. White looks at football as the means he has chosen to support his family, and the children know that when he's away from home because of football, it's for their sake.

Because the Whites make Monday nights happen, Mondays have becom family time. "There are no appearances by me, no meetings for my wife," White says. "And whether we go to a basketball game or whatever, we do it

Couple to minister here Saturday

Jimmy and Judy Mamou, Amarillo, will minister March 13 at 7 p.m. in the Dora Roberts Community Center, Comanche Trail Park. Women's Aglow Fellowship of Big Spring is inviting the public to attend the event. Mamou will minister in song and Mrs. Mamou will give her testimony.

Mamou learned to play the guitar by watching others and excelled as a musician. He met many of the nation's rock stars in the 60s and the 70s. Mamou gained success and performed in Las Vegas. Drugs, immorality and craze for fame caused his success to fail. Following an overdose, he accepted Christ as his savior.

Mrs. Mamou, as a child, was rejected by her mother and abused by her stepfather. This molded her into a bitter person by the time she became a teenager. She spent 13 years as a prostitute in San Francisco, Calif. She gained world fame and fortune while she was a topless dancer through a unique nude dance with snakes draped around her. She accepted Christ after her husband's conversion.

Mrs. Mamou has written a book "The Other Woman" and has contracted to write another book on abortion. She also signed a contract with a major film studio to do a movie of her life story. Mamou has a record out entitled "I Am He Said" based on Exodus 3:14 and John 8:58.

The Mamous have ministered in many places including Calcutta, India and Karachi, Pakistan. Mamou has sung in the Graham Crusades and TV specials and has appeared on the 700 Club.

professional and personal lives It's precursor was the

"Bold Ones," but that series did separate medical, legal and police shows under one umbrella title. "Chicago Story' twines them all together, but has the knotty problem of making certain the connections aren't counterfeit.

The story Saturday night. for example, stretches it. Joe Gilland, the beat cop on the show is wounded in a shootout with two brothers. else's they are treated by the two doctors (Maud Adams and Kristoffer Tabori)

Meanwhile, the other brother strolls into surgery and holds everybody hostage. This allows the three lawyers and other two cops to get absorbed into the crisis. One story, divided eight ways, doesn't go. But several stories each week would let the ensemble cast do more than fill clots.

HENDERSON,

Dallas Symphony conductor pleased with pace of career

By MARY CAMPBELL AP Newsfeatures Writer

When he was 20, says Eduardo Mata, music director of the Dallas Symphony, he wanted his career to rush along. Now that he's 40, he's content with the way it has gone.

'Things have happened at the right time," he says, adding with a smile, 'so far. The career has been slow, in a positive sense ... When I was 20 I would have liked things to have happened sooner. But in Guadalajara I learned to be patient.

Mata has conducted 12 albums for RCA Records, composers including Falla, Copland, Ravel, Mozart, Stravinsky, Orff, Gershwin, Tchaikovsky and Mussorgsky, his latest. Four are with the London Symphony, one with the New Philharmonia of London and the rest with the Dallas Symphony.

James Galway is soloist for the Mozart flute concertos and Emanuel Ax for the Mozart piano concertos.

Mata was born in Mexico City, grew up in Oaxaca, where his father was a representative of the government's treasury department. His brother is 10 years older and his sister 11 years

"They were all music lovers," Mata says. "I was about 9 when I told them music was it for me. I didn't have to look anywhere else for anything else to do but music. I studied guitar and piano. Music was the most important thing in my life. It was a matter of maturing enough to be able to enter a

"We moved to Mexico City when I was 11. At that point I was able to enter the conservatory. I composed and had my first concert at 15, conducting a piece I had composed. The concert was done by the conservatory people, put on in a professional hall. When my parents saw my name in print they were impressed and started to take me seriously.

'The trio I had composed was not meant to be conducted. But the musicians, also advanced students, two older than me and one about my age, were having such a big problem putting it together that I had to figure out how I could help them to get it played well. I knew that I could thelp them, and I did. I ended up conducting

Mata studied composition, but when he was 18 fellow students told him he should conduct because he communicated well with musicians.

Mata married at 20 and was having trouble supporting his family as a part-time conductor of a classical ballet company in Mexico City.

"I found myself in 1965, at 23, becoming music director of the Guadalajara Symphony, the orchestra of the second largest city in Mexico." he recalls. "From there on, composing became a much less important activity in my life until I had to give it up completely in 1968.

The two years in Guadalajara were marvelous. I put my life in order and focused on something.

Then Mata went to the University Philharmonic in Mexico City, where he stayed nine years. "That is really where I made my reputation as a conductor. I started to be a guest conductor, first in South America, and

I started to record.'

His first conducting assignment in the United States was in Phoenix in 1969. He returned there in 1971 and later was asked to be music director of the Phoenix Symphony. He couldn't accept because of his commitment in Mexico City but was music adviser and principal guest conductor. He became music director in 1975.

the state of the s

"But in 1976, at the end of my first year in Phoenix, I was requested for the Dallas job and went to Dallas in

Mata has been guest conducting in London since 1973. In 1976, the London Symphony — wishing to build a working relationshpi with five or six conductors - asked Mata for exclusivity in London.

He may not spend the rest of his life with the Dallas Symphony

Mata says, "I would like to see this orchestra go to the next step of its development with me. It is a major orchestra by all standards. It has a 52week season. It records. Last fall we made a tour of the East Coast.

"I would like it to be a world-class orchestra. An international reputation is the next step. It is not far-reaching. It is perfectly possible.'

Mata has been speaking English a long time, since he married an American when he was 20.

He says, "You can't skip grades, like you do in school, in your emotional development. 'But I did, marrying at 20, and I paid a high price — divorce.'

Mata's two children go to school in London, and he sees them when he is there and on holidays
