and her tigers were one of many acts which dazzled local audiences in two shows at the coliseum.

Circus dazzles crowds

The lights went down, the elephants and jugglers and trapeze artists took center stage... and "children of all ages" (as the ringmaster referred to the audience of moms and pops and wide-eyed tykes) were treated once again to the annual display of circus splendor.

Each year the Howard County Sheriff's Posse brings the circus to town, and each year the audience comes out in droves to witness the spectacle.

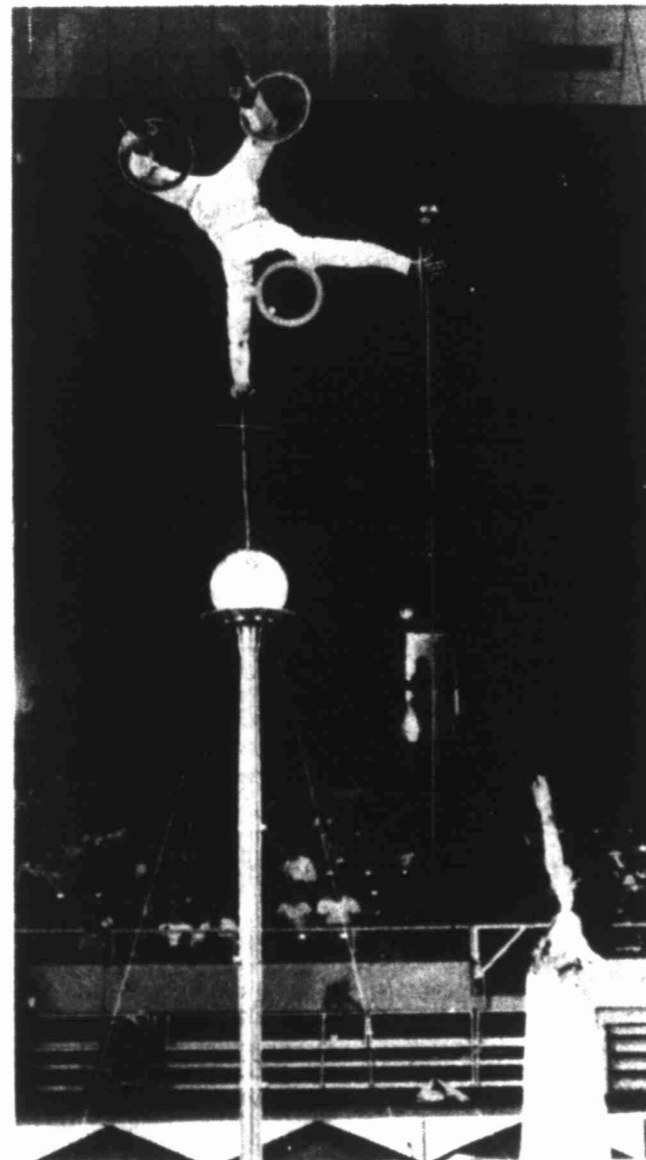

This year, the American Continental Circus pulled into the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum for two shows (2 p.m. and 7 p.m.) yesterday. As always, there was daredevilry to astonish, clown antics to amuse, buttered popcorn and a swirl of sights and sounds.

Some highlights:
Kay Rosaire's mixed wild animals: A surprising departure from the usual beely male trainer of tigers, the fragile-looking Mrs. Rosaire commanded her snarling charges with authority and control. So obedient were her tigers, that she even got one to walk on his hind legs.

Goldfinger: Hardly the arch-enemy of James Bond, this Goldfinger literally lets his fingers do the walking. Summoning incredible skill, Goldfinger hoisted himself in the air and remained balanced on one little biddy finger.

The Lemke Chimpanzees — Whether riding a motorcycle or walking on stilts, these chimps proved that you don't have to be human to pull off all the stunts in a circus.

The Dancing Gauchos — Whirling and whistling, stomping their feet to latin percussion and flailing their bollos at lightning speed, the four Gauchos brought a show-stopping electricity to the center ring. One wonders where they find the energy to keep going, performing in two shows a day, day after day.

But find it they must, for the show must go on. After Saturday's local performance, the circus folded up and took its act to Midland, then San Angelo and Arizona, according to circus manager Allen Turknett.

Tornadoes sighted; no damage

By BILL ELDER

Tornado-ripe conditions traveling through West Texas last night sparked a flurry of sightings of funnel-shaped clouds which caused no apparent damage, according to a check with local public safety agencies.

Big Spring police reported a sighting about 20 miles northwest of Big Spring and a few miles south of Ackerly. The tornado apparently had touched down but no damage was done, said Officer Troy Hogue. A caller around 8 p.m. reported the sighting, Hogue added.

The Lamesa Police Department sent out a teletype to area law enforcement agencies reporting a sighting about 10 miles south of the city, according to Martin County Sheriff's Office dispatcher Bill Teichman.

"I don't know if it hit the ground or not. I don't guess there was any damage," Teichman said, adding that Lamesa police had sent the teletype out about 7:30 p.m.

The National Weather Service office in Midland confirmed a Dawson County sighting at about 7:30 p.m., locating the tornado southeast of Lamesa, said Charles Nichols, NWS spokesman.

A tornado watch for numerous counties in West Texas was issued about 5 p.m. by the NWS. Large hail and funnel clouds were sighted near Andrews at about 6:30, according to a National Weather Service teletype received by the Big Spring Police Department.

High winds and thunderstorms appeared to be accompanying the tornado sightings, moving in a northeasterly direction across the state.

The tornado watch was due to end in most West Texas counties at 11 p.m.

O'Bryan's crime repulsed even his fellow convicts

By JAMES R. KING
Associated Press Writer

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Even the hardened convicts on death row, all condemned for murder of one kind or another, were repulsed by Ronald O'Bryan's crime. They taunted him as "the Candy Man" and refused to associate with him when he arrived.

That was 7½ years ago. Today, O'Bryan says he has no trouble getting along with the others, whose memories of the Halloween crime may have faded with time.

Most of the 165 men on death row arrived after O'Bryan was already here, and may not be fully aware of what happened on that rainy Thursday night in Deer Park, Texas, Oct. 31, 1974.

For that matter, no one, except perhaps O'Bryan himself, has all the answers about that night — and if he knows, he intends to take the information to the grave with him. For he insists to this day that he is innocent of fatally poisoning his 8-year-old son, Timothy. He vows he will not change his story at his hour of execution.

"My last words would be no different than what I've said all along — I still maintain my innocence," the slightly overweight, 6-foot-tall convict said in a recent interview at the Ellis Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections where condemned men are housed.

So far, O'Bryan's appeal has gone all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court. Not only was it turned down each step of the way, in one rejection a Texas appeals court judge wrote, "A more calculated and cold-blooded crime... can hardly be imagined."

The jury foreman at O'Bryan's trial said the evidence that the Deer Park optician murdered his son and intended to poison his daughter too in hopes of collecting more than $60,000 in life insurance policies was "overwhelming."

Since then, O'Bryan has had one execution date, Aug. 8, 1980, but his court-appointed attorneys won a stay to give them time to prepare a new appeal.

O'Bryan, 37, claims he did not know that the "Giant Pixie Styx" he fed his son that night was impregnated with cyanide. Prosecutors said he put the poison there himself.

The chilling story shocked the nation and scarred the Houston suburbs of Pasadena and Deer Park, where it ended the tradition of "trick or treating" for a time. Even today, neighbors say, only newcomers dare let their children knock on strangers' doors on Halloween night.

O'Bryan was at home alone with his kids, Tim and 6-year-old Elizabeth, after having taken them on a trick-or-treat outing that night. O'Bryan's wife was away visiting a friend.

Earlier, O'Bryan had promised his youngsters one piece of Halloween candy each if they behaved. Now they were in their pajamas, ready for bed, and it was time for the payoff.

O'Bryan held the brightly colored plastic straw and watched as the powdered candy poured into the boy's eager mouth. O'Bryan told a detective when the candy stopped coming out, he rolled the straw between his hands to prompt out the last bits. Tim complained the last gulp did not taste good, so O'Bryan gave him some Kool-Aid to wash it down. The little girl, who is now 13, did not eat her Pixie Styx.

Tim got sick at once and collapsed in his father's arms. The cyanide in the candy in the straw swiftly attacked his heart and central nervous system. He fell into a coma and died within an hour after arriving at a hospital.

O'Bryan, who was troubled with mounting financial debts but had recently enhanced life insurance policies on his children, figured he was $31,000 richer.

He says the circumstantial evidence against him was all a coincidence or lies told by witnesses who were coerced by detectives anxious to find a "scapegoat" for the sensational crime.

Among the 51 witnesses who testified at his trial was his wife of 10 years, Daylene Ruth, who divorced him after he was sentenced to death. She told jurors she knew nothing about the $20,000 extra life insurance on the children O'Bryan had bought less than a month before Tim's death.

"She has come (to death row) twice, when I first got down here, with two specific purposes about property. She wanted me to sign property to her. That's all," he said. He said he has not seen his daughter since his arrest.

"She was 6 when this happened. I send her birthday cards, Christmas cards — several cards each year, and I don't even know if she gets them. The initial ones I sent in care of my wife were returned to me," O'Bryan said.

O'Bryan's ex-wife has since disappeared from the public eye to escape the notoriety of her ex-husband.

"I know where she is. She's doing fine, raising her daughter. That's all I want to say about it," said Jim Bates, 40, the neighbor who was with O'Bryan the night the two men chaperoned their children on the fatal trick-

O'Bryan lived in Big Spring

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

Ronald "Candy Man" O'Bryan, who was sentenced to death for poisoning his 8-year-old son, Timothy, with a cyanide-laced Pixie Styx on Halloween 1974, was once a resident of Big Spring.

For five months in 1967-68, O'Bryan and his family lived in Big Spring while he worked for an optical dispensing chain.

While here O'Bryan joined the Big Spring Police Department reserve, according to records kept by the department. The records show he was 23 years old when he lived here and his son, Timothy, was 21 months of age.

In interviews conducted by The Herald in 1974, O'Bryan's fellow employees remembered him as a very likeable and amiable young man who often attended a local Baptist church.

O'Bryan left Big Spring in April 1968 because of a terminal illness in his family. In a letter to the chief of police O'Bryan said he had to leave Big Spring "because my wife's father has a terminal illness. I am the only male left in the family and will have to be responsible for my wife's mother and little sister."

He also asked for a letter of recommendation from the chief so he could join the Houston Police Auxiliary.

Shortly after leaving Big Spring, O'Bryan called back to the optical business requesting his wife's optical prescription. He revealed to the employees that his father-in-law had died and he had moved from Houston to Baytown.

He also said his wife had given birth to a baby girl, Elizabeth, who is now 14 years old. Apparently, O'Bryan moved from Baytown to Deer Park sometime between 1968 and 1974.

It was in Deer Park, a suburb of Houston, on Halloween night 1974 that O'Bryan poisoned Timothy.

Young scientists gather locally for annual fair

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

This week young minds from the Permian Basin will gather in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum to explain the wonder of electricity, the usefulness of solar energy and many other intriguing facets of science.

The event is the annual Permian Basin Regional Science Fair sponsored by the Big Spring Independent School District and Howard College.

The science fair will be held Thursday and Friday in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. This marks the fourth year in a row the fair has been held in Big Spring.

According to fair officials, the event promises to be an inspiring and educational experience for the participants, judges and all who contribute to its success.

Joe Reed, Big Spring school district science teacher, who is helping to coordinate the event, said the entries in this year's fair total 371. Reed said entries were up about 40 from last year.

"The first year we had it here, we had 65 entries and now we've got 371. So you can see we're growing," Reed said.

Reed said there will be two divisions — elementary and senior. The elementary division includes two categories, which are physical and life science.

The senior division has six categories: biology, chemistry, environmental science, math, space science and physics.

Reed said the entrants will begin setting up their projects on Thursday from 8 a.m. until noon and the actual judging will take place on the same day from 1-6 p.m.

The science fair will have approximately 35 judges from the surrounding area, Reed said.

An awards assembly will commence Friday at 8:30 a.m. and at 10:30 a.m. the public will be let in to view the projects. Approximately 4,000 persons attended the fair last year, Reed said.

Special awards from the following organizations will be presented to deserving students: Army, Air Force, Navy, Marine Technology Society, American Meteorological Society, American Society of Microbiology, U.S. Department of Energy, Eastman-Kodak, NASA and Howard College.

Action/reaction: Booze laws

Q. The new law forbids the sale of alcoholic beverages to persons under 19 years of age, but is it legal to give alcohol to 18-year-olds since they are legally not minors?

A. According to a representative of the county attorney's office, the purchase of alcohol or the furnishing of alcohol to a minor is against the law. Vernon's Annotated Penal Code, Article 666 says a person "commits an offense if he purchases or knowingly makes available" alcohol to minors. For the purpose of this law, a minor is anyone under 19 years of age, the code states. A parent, spouse or legal guardian can buy or give alcohol to their minor children, charges or spouses, but they must be present when it is consumed.

or-treat outing along the tree-lined streets of a quiet Pasadena neighborhood.

Bates testified it was toward the end of the outing that O'Bryan began handing out the poison-filled candy straws.

Things in the community have not been the same since. "It's become an entirely different neighborhood, and we date it from that period," said Carolyn Melvin, who still lives in the house on Donerail Drive where O'Bryan said a man with a hairy arm handed him the deadly straws.

Bates said O'Bryan lingered in the shadows of the Melvins' front porch after the children had rung the doorbell, gotten no response and run to the next house. O'Bryan then alighted from the darkened porch holding the straws, Bates testified.

Mrs. Melvin said she was at home at the time, but had run out of candy and had stopped answering the door. Her husband, Eugene, has hairy arms, but he was at work that night at Hobby Airport, as several co-workers testified.

Bates said he harbored private suspicions of O'Bryan at the boy's funeral on Saturday just two days later, but O'Bryan was not arrested until the following Tuesday.

In the meantime, "Everyone wanted everyone else in the neighborhood to be guilty," Mrs. Melvin said. "It really caused hard feelings. There are very few of the original families still here."

But the Melvins and the Bates have stayed. They have remained friends through the years, perhaps drawn closer because of the bizarre crime that threatened each of them for a time.

The Bates' two older children, now teen-agers, were among five youngsters who received one of the poisoned straws. The fifth child was 11-year-old Whitney Parker, who knocked on the O'Bryans' door later that night with some other children and testified that O'Bryan held up the last Pixy Stix and said "Who wants this?"

"I said, 'Me! Me! I go to your church,'" the boy testified. He was handed the lethal straw, but only Timothy O'Bryan actually ate the substance. The others were warned in time after Tim's death.

In his solitary cubicle in the J-23 cell block of death row, Ronald Clark O'Bryan, showing the trace of a middle-aged paunch at 210 pounds, does sit-ups and push-ups to keep his weight under control.

He reads, watches television and hopes for the day he may win a new trial. One point he harps on is the fact that prosecutors never said where he was supposed to have purchased the cyanide or the candy.

"Prove something to me," he complains in a high-pitched voice. "Prove I bought the candy they said was used. Prove I bought some cyanide somewhere. Don't just say, 'Well, we think this is where he got it.' If you can prove any of those things, then I will have no argument."

6 die in Arizona plane crash

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — An Air National Guard aerial tanker on a refueling flight and a light, civilian airplane collided over the desert Saturday, destroying both planes and killing at least six people, including the entire tanker crew, officials said.

Air Guard spokesman Sgt. Jerry Knau said there were four people aboard the KC-135 tanker when it took off on a "routine refueling flight."

Air Force Lt. Col. Jim Reinhart, public affairs officer at nearby Luke Air Force Base, said from the crash scene that the entire tanker crew and two people aboard the civilian plane died. He added that the bodies would stay in place until investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration arrived at the crash site, about 80 miles west of Phoenix.

Spokesman Bill Jury of Boeing Co., which makes the KC-135, said the planes can carry 30,000 to 31,000 gallons of jet fuel for its own power and refueling operations. However, it was not known how much fuel the plane involved in Saturday's crash was carrying.

Authorities at the scene said the model, ownership and origin of the civilian plane was not known.

Not all inflation news is good

WASHINGTON (AP) — The good news, the Reagan administration is quick to note, is that inflation is coming down very rapidly. The bad news, an unemployed auto worker or bankrupt businessman says just as quickly, is that a severe recession is the reason why.

What President Reagan calls "supply-side" economics appears in distinguishable thus far from traditional Republican economics.

It's no secret that recessions cool inflation. Rising unemployment and consumer uncertainty reduce demand for goods and services, and that curbs wage and price increases.

Last month, wholesale prices fell for the first time in six years, the government reported Friday. The rare price drop, at an annual rate of 1.7 percent, occurred because the recession has "knocked the stuffing out of excess demand," observes Walter Heller, chief economist to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson.

The trade-off of slower economic activity and higher unemployment for lower inflation has been used repeatedly by Republican administrations as a policy tool — a tool that candidate Ronald Reagan, and later President Reagan, pledged not to use.

Reagan and his advisers insist they never intended to fight inflation with a recession and high unemployment. Nevertheless, they heartily endorsed the Federal Reserve Board's decision to ease inflation by slowing the growth of money and credit in the economy — a policy that triggered the recession by pushing up interest rates.

Reagan's initial economic forecast, prepared in early 1981, predicted inflation would come down significantly, but it did not predict a recession. Once the downturn hit, the administration, at varying times, blamed it on the economic "mess" inherited from the Carter administration, Congress' refusal to enact a tax cut early last year, the Federal Reserve's poor management of the nation's money supply and the financial markets' refusal to show their belief in the president's program by lowering interest rates.

The administration is sensitive to suggestions that it is resorting to recessions and unemployment to slow inflation. Deputy White

UAW, GM Deaths at odds on sacrifices

DETROIT (AP) — After one day of negotiations, bargainers for the United Auto Workers union and General Motors Corp. already are at odds over how many sacrifices blue-collar workers must make and whether labor cost savings should be passed on to buyers.

Friday's face-to-face meeting between the union and the nation's No. 1 car-maker was the first since a previous round of early contract negotiations broke down Jan. 28.

GM's top negotiator, Al Warren, said after the meeting that the proposal for passing cost savings on to car buyers, endorsed by both sides in the earlier talks, now was a "dead" issue.

In the earlier talks, GM officials had said they wanted to cut car prices by about $1,000 if they could get enough labor savings.

"We were injured badly by that," Warren said. "The public and dealers expected something out of that and it didn't (pan out because the talks collapsed), so we put our sales in an unbelievable tailspin."

Owen Bieber, UAW vice president in charge of the GM department, said, "We want to continue to talk about the pass-through concept."

Warren said GM, which will present a proposal to the union when bargaining resumes Monday afternoon, after a sudden illness. Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday in the First United Methodist Church with interment at Mount Olive Memorial Park.

'Silver Tea' time at County Library

By ROSE VON HASSELL

Cataloguer To most people St. Patrick's Day means "wearing of the green," parades, and corned beef and cabbage. Here at the Howard County Library it also means it's time for our Silver Tea and Open House.

This custom was started in 1917 to raise funds for the library to buy books. After several years the Tea was discontinued, last year we revived the custom and it was a real success.

Now instead of using the donations for books, we are earmarking it for our long-awaited and much-needed basement renovation.

Another important reason we revived the "Silver Tea" was to let the people of Howard County know about the many services the County Library has to offer. Besides just loaning books, there are films, film projectors, filmstrips and records that can be taken out. We also offer information services, interlibrary loan services, and all you need is a library card. There are film programs on Saturdays, group tours, magazines, newspapers and many other services to offer our patrons.

You do not need to contribute anything in order to attend our Tea (although this would be greatly appreciated). We would just like you to be our guest, meet the staff, enjoy some goodies and find out what your library is all about.

So on Wednesday, March 17, between 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. why not take a coffee break, meet your friends and join us in celebrating St. Patrick's Day and the 75th anniversary of public library service at our Silver Tea and Open House.

Nobody wins in Pecos

Sheriff vs. newspaper

PECOS, Texas (AP) — Sometimes, investigative reporting results in scandal, public outcry and discredit of public officials.

Other times, the sequence of events builds to an anticlimax, no matter how solid the evidence is.

That's the case in Pecos, where the local newspaper caught Reeves County Sheriff Raul Florez using county jail inmates to paint his home. Most of the 12,855 residents of the city quietly watched the events — there was no outcry.

A county grand jury reviewed the case and ruled that the sheriff had not intentionally broken the law.

"I'm disappointed that nothing was done because it was so blatant," said Pecos Enterprise publisher Ray Stafford. "It's like a speed limit. You're either going more than 55 mph or you're not. The law doesn't give you any leeway."

It all began in October when Stafford and a newspaper employee drove to Florez's home and found two county inmates painting the porch. Stafford photographed the inmates and the sheriff, who greeted him and invited him in to chat about the painting.

Texas law says county jail inmates can be worked on projects deemed public works as long as they are paid $15 a day, either in actual pay or in time deducted from their sentence. However, there is no provision that allows the inmates to be used for private work.

Stafford took the photos of Florez and the inmates to District Attorney Mike Wade, but Wade said any offense that may have been committed would have been a misdemeanor and should be handled by County Attorney Paul Hanneman. Hanneman pondered the evidence for two months and then turned it back over to Wade, saying misconduct by county officials was in the district attorney's bailiwick.

Finally, Stafford published the photos and articles outlining what the sheriff had said and done.

Florez said he asked to go before the grand jury to clear himself after the articles were published Jan. 28.

"I called the district attorney and told him I need to go before the grand jury," Florez said. "The district attorney said, 'With what?' I said, 'What they've got in the ... newspaper. I want the ... thing cleared up.'"

After hearing an hour of testimony from Florez, the grand jury issued the following ruling Feb. 12:

"The Grand Jury has considered the allegations of official misconduct against Sheriff Raul Florez. The Grand Jury has determined that no offense was intentionally committed. However, all public officials and private citizens are to note that prisoners cannot be used for any projects but those determined as public works by the Commissioners Court."

Grand jury foreman H.P. Bryan of Pecos said the jury arrived at the decision after considering the newspaper articles and testimony from Florez.

"He admitted that he broke the law and he said he was sorry and we just didn't think it was that serious," Bryan said. "If we thought it was bad, I guess we would have indicted him."

While he never denied the inmates painted his home, Florez said he believed it was legal to work the inmates on private projects because of a May 1981 change in the state law. The law was changed to raise the daily pay to $15, but still does not allow the private work.

Florez also said the inmates were paid at least $15 a day for their labors, but he didn't keep records of the payments.

He said there was a tradition of using county inmates for private jobs in Reeves County and he thought the changes in the law allowed him to continue it.

"I felt like we got an OK on this thing people had been bugging me to start up again," he said. "I felt like (the law) said public work is work for the public. I didn't know if I was right or wrong."

Stafford wrote an editorial saying Florez had betrayed the public trust.

The sheriff, Stafford said in a deposition, threatened Stafford and other newspaper staff members. In a deposition he wrote in November, Stafford quoted the sheriff as saying, "I use old-fashioned justice, just like your daddy believes in ... I don't arrest them, take them to jail or go through the courts ... I settle it physically myself."

Florez said recently that Stafford had misunderstood him, but admitted that he had talked about physical violence.

The public appears unconcerned. The newspaper has a circulation of 2,600, but not one of the readers has written a letter to the editor taking either side.

"We've had our share of people who voiced support for us," Stafford said.

Dental hygienist selected

Gwendyth M. Gordon recently was named as directed of the dental hygiene program at Howard College, according to Dr. Charles Hays, president of the HCJC district.

Miss Gordon comes here from Michigan City, Ind., where she had been a dental hygienist in private practice for one year. She has been in private practice as a dental hygienist for a total of eight years.

She has a bachelor of science in dental hygiene and has done additional work toward a master of science in business administration at Indiana University.

One of the reasons Miss Gordon accepted the position at HCJC was to develop the new dental hygiene program at the college. A new dental clinic will be built in the Horace Garrett Building and should be ready for the 1982 fall semester.

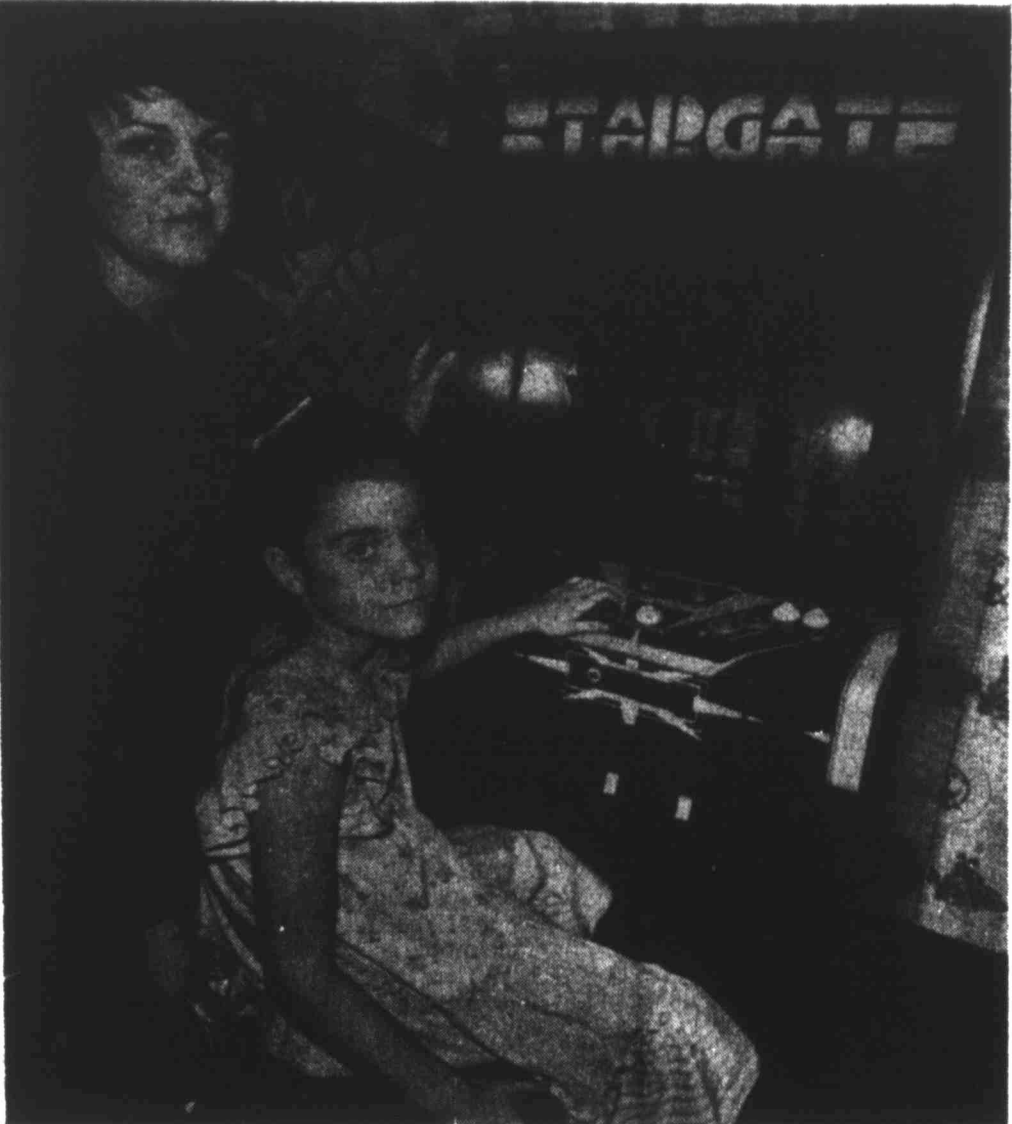

"I feel very positive about the dental hygiene program and will have a beautiful clinic in which to work," she said, "and I also plan to continue education courses for the dental community including dental assistants, hygienists and dentists."

'BLEEP' GAME — Mrs. Donald Underwood and daughter Amy, 8, pose by the video game they say showed an obscene message to the girl and another 8-year-old friend in Garland, Texas, last week. Mrs. Underwood and the mother of the friend are now asking the City Council to license only games that allow two or three initials.

Moms crusade against foul-mouthed machine

GARLAND, Texas (AP) — Two mothers of 8-year-old girls are battling to rid this Dallas suburb of video games capable of transmitting obscene messages.

Cindy Eberhardt began her crusade against the Stargate video game last week when she and her daughter Cindy visited the Nickelodeon arcade here.

Eight-year-old Amy Underwood was intently battling intergalactic invaders when the screen suddenly displayed a message asking her in no uncertain terms if she wanted some companionship that night.

Amy, who didn't recognize the four-letter word in the sentence, called over her young friend, and Cindy showed it to her mother.

Unlike many video games, the Stargate allows the machine's highest scorer to write a 20-letter message with a display of the score during the game. Most games allow only two or three initials.

"But you can say a lot in 20 letters," said Mrs. Eberhardt, who had an employee unplug the machine.

She called police when she returned a half hour later to find the offending game back in action. The arcade employee said a customer plugged the machine back in.

Mrs. Eberhardt and Amy's mother now are asking the City Council to license only games that allow two or three initials to be displayed.

"These ladies are out for blood," said Nickelodeon supervisor Ramon Alaniz. "We don't condone what happened, but what can you do? We erase it (the message) and go on."

He compared the message to obscene graffiti in theater restrooms.

Jazzercise classes open

The Big Spring YMCA will begin a new five week team of ladies jazzercise and fitness fantasia classes Monday.

The ladies jazzercise class will be under the leadership of Mica Drinkard and Linda Brett. The class will meet from 4:15 to 5:15 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. The five week term will end April 15th.

Any current Big Spring YMCA member, who brings a new participant (member or non-member) to the class, will receive a term free. Fees for the five weeks are $11 for YMCA members, $22 for Non-YMCA members.

Linda Ward's Fitness Fantasia class will meet from 6-7 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday. The class is for ladies who have been participating in an exercise class.

The fee for the class is the same as the jazzercise.

For additional information, call the YMCA at 267-8234.

"Sure, kids read stuff like that on fences and concrete," Mrs. Eberhardt said. "But when it's programmed into a machine, they don't realize another kid did it. They think the guy who owns the place did it, and they're always looking for role models."

Garland Planning Director Bob Mitchell said the city already had planned to review video game policy and that a full policy will be developed after council elections April 3.

Bonzo goes to college

FIRST there was the silent generation, then the love generation and the me generation. Judging from the bestseller list these days on college campuses, now we have the "amuse me" generation.

SINCE 1971, the Chronicle of Higher Education has tabulated a list of the best-selling books on college campuses. The results of that survey sometimes have been interesting, titillating or frightening. Now, boring.

The Chronicle notes a trend in college reading over the past 10 years. College students have turned increasingly to pop psychology ("I'm OK, You're in Serious Trouble") and sex (Joy of, Toil of, How to, How not to...).

NOT TERRIBLY SURPRISING really. Those topics seem to reflect college students' concerns, though one might expect pop psychology to finish second behind tomes on more constructive matters such as beer-drinking and Frisbee-throwing.

The 1981 list, however, is another matter. Students, it seems, are regressing. Number one, for example, was "The Official Preppy Handbook," a tongue-in-cheek guide to how students of today can dress and act like people they're not.

SECOND ON THE list was "101 Uses for a Dead Cat," a book few of us would want to be without. Third was "What Color Is Your Parachute?" — a guide to writing job resumes. And number four was the incomparable "Garfield Gains Weight," a cartoon study of an over-eating feline. (Garfield had best beware, lest his overeating move him from book number four to book number two).

While Garfield becomes a heavyweight, it seems college reading becomes more lightweight.

Editor's Column

By LINDA ADAMS

Three sisters find New Orleans 'delightful'

NEW ORLEANS — I'm writing this column at a park bench in Jackson Square.

There are 100 or so pigeons at my feet, and the clock at St. Louis Cathedral is striking 12 noon.

This is a column I was supposed to write before leaving for four days of vacation with my two sisters. But somehow the time slipped away, so City Editor Walt Finley probably will have the honor of taking this column from me over the telephone. I'm sure he'll be thrilled to end.

(As usual, Finley dodged the task and Sports Editor Greg Jaklewicz had the pleasure.)

I'LL NEVER FORGET the last time I was here in New Orleans. Two years ago, in June, my husband and I were walking down Bourbon Street, when I bumped into Muhammad Ali. Literally. He was just standing on the sidewalk sparring with four or five youngsters, when I walked right into him.

He turned around, flashed his famous smile, and said, "Ain't I pretty!" I stood there in openmouthed awe, not believing what was happening.

"You've seen how pretty I am on TV, and now you can see how pretty I REALLY am!"

I didn't argue.

There was a Mercedes Benz parked next to the sidewalk, and my husband and I leaned up against it to watch Ali. The word spread quickly that The Champ was in the French Quarter and the crowd began to grow.

ALI WAS IN NEW ORLEANS that summer of 1980 to face a slander suit filed by a New Orleans city councilman and a businessman.

"They are suing me for twenty million. TWENTY MILLION! Can you believe...twenty million!" (He later won the suit.)

But he also was preparing to fight Larry Holmes and when he discussed it, he spoke in rhymes.

"I got the speed, I got the endurance, if Holmes beats me he'll need more insurance."

And then: "Holmes' behind is mine in the nine. Not the seventh, not the eighth, but the nine. But if Holmes starts to jive I cut it to five."

MY HUSBAND, his camera ever-ready, began to shoot pictures. Ali widened his eyes and began to perform for the camera.

"I'm hot, hotter than I've ever been. I've been hot since 1960 — can you believe — since 1960!"

The crowd grew and grew. Ali was soaking up the adulation. He entertained us for a good half hour. People went crazy — adults were screaming and jumping to get a better view. I wasn't about to give up my place on the front row.

Then Ali playfully tried to get the crowd to chant for Holmes.

"Holmes! Holmes! Holmes!" he shouted, using his fists for emphasis. We boomed, to his delight.

"Who's the greatest?"

WE SHOUTED what he wanted to hear, "Ali! Ali!" Suddenly Ali's wife appeared from nowhere and got into the car. Then Ali's bodyguards escorted him to the car. But he emerged from the car to conduct one last pep rally.

"Who's the greatest?"

"Ali! Ali!"

"Who?"

"Ali! Ali!"

"Are you sure?"

"Yes! Yes! Ali! Ali! Ali!"

"I am the greatest there ever was and ever will be!" Then the champ got into the car and rolled off into the night of New Orleans.

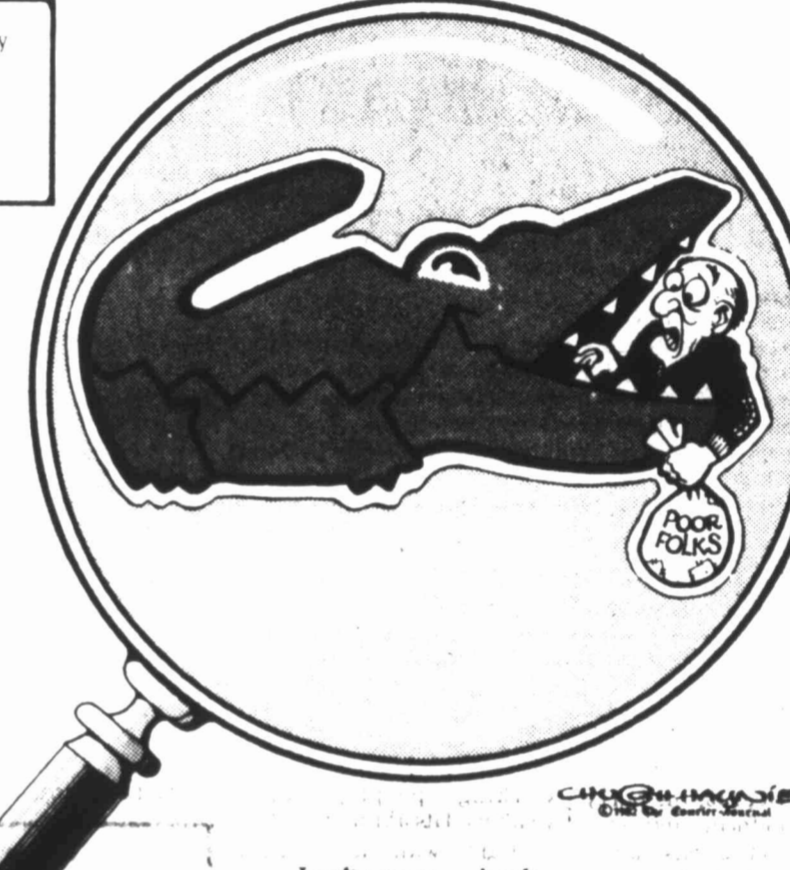

THE CLOCK on St. Louis Cathedral has just struck one o'clock. We didn't see Ali this time, but last night, Al Hirt stood at our table and blew the sweet strains of "Of All Delight" into our ears. Three sisters from Sweetwater thought they had died and gone to heaven.

Be back in the office Monday.

Have you ever wondered why preppy rich folks who wear Supply-sider shoes also seem to prefer shirts with those cute little alligators?

The noodle

President Reagan has been very harsh on people who cheat on welfare, students who don't pay back their loans to the government, and those who are constantly looking for hand-outs from the government. He's ordered the Justice Department to go after them with a vengeance.

But to my knowledge not one person in the Pentagon, or a defense firm executive, has ever been censured for wasting the taxpayer's money on a military system that doesn't work.

There is a reason for this. Weapons have become so sophisticated now that no one ever stays around long enough to be blamed when the final product is unveiled.

This is what would happen if Congress held a hearing on the new MT Noodle, four-seater jeep that the Army claims it cannot do without.

"Will the witness identify himself and tell us his present position in the Pentagon?"

"Gen. Mark Dowdy, management director of the MT Noodle weapons programs."

"General, according to our records, the Army told us that the Noodle would cost $15,000 per unit. The first one to come off the line this year is priced at $250,000. Could you explain the price differential?"

"As it was originally conceived the Noodle was going to be an armored jeep which would be used to transport mail and pay from headquarters to the front lines. But then Gen. Savage..."

"Who is Gen. Savage?"

"He was the officer originally in charge of designing and constructing the Noodle, with the aid of the Wellback Motor Company."

"When was that?"

"My records show that was in 1961. I never knew Savage, but I understand he was a very fine officer."

"Where is he now?"

"He was buried with full military honors at Arlington Cemetery, in 1979."

"Then it was his program?"

"The original Noodle was his idea, but after he left, the project was taken over by Lt. Gen. Witherspoon Rolf, an anti-aircraft expert."

"Rolf and his people came up with the notion of installing two heat-seeking ground-to-air missiles on the fenders of the jeep, which could be fired from a radar-controlled turret in the back seat."

"Would you say this added to the cost of the vehicle?"

"Well, let's say it didn't lower the price."

"What happened next?"

"When Gen. Rolf retired and was made chairman of the board of Wellback Motors, Gen. Freeman Druthers took over the Noodle. I believe this was in 1971. Druthers, a former judge advocate, was going to go ahead on production, but tests showed the radar turret made the jeep top heavy, and every time it moved in mud it fell over on its side. So it was decided to put a torpedo underneath it to balance the weight."

"This necessitated an entire new chassis. Gen. Druthers was working on this when he decided to run for Congress, and the project was then given to Col. Mike Gilardi of the 101st Airborne Division. His team added a parachute to the front and back bumper, and replaced the motor with a 105 howitzer gun."

"What good is a jeep without a motor?"

"Gilardi asked himself the same question after seeing a prototype. So he took the problem to the consulting firm of Riggins & Druid, who designed an armored tow truck to pull the jeep along when it had to be moved. It added $100,000 to the cost of the vehicle. But without the tow truck we would have had to scrap the entire Noodle program, and right now we have nothing to replace it with."

"As the officer now in charge of the program, can you guarantee us that you can produce the Noodle for $250,000 each?"

"I could if I was going to stay with it, sir. But I've just been reassigned to head a feasibility study to see what it would cost to launch a cruise missile from an armored tow truck."

Federal revenue hikes urged

Dear Editor,

As a member of the American Association of Retired Persons (otherwise known as AARP) and with its permission, I write through your paper, to draw the attention of the U.S. Senator and the U.S. Representative of Howard County calling for a balanced Federal budget through increased revenues instead of further reductions in programs which are vitally important to the nation's retirees. In my opinion, some of the areas which should be considered for increasing federal revenue include:

(1) Elimination of all revenue-losing provisions of last year's tax bill which do not serve useful economic purposes, such as provisions which allow corporations to buy and sell tax breaks.

(2) Discarding the all-savers provision of the tax bill and restoration of full tax exemption for income derived from dividends and interest.

(3) Reduction or elimination of tax deductions, exemptions and credits which result in substantial federal revenue loss, such as the exemption available for hospital construction bonds without any requirement to show that new hospital space is needed in a given area.

(4) Increases in excise taxes on non-necessities.

(5) Windfall profit taxes on deregulated natural gas; and if revenue from other sources is insufficient, delay or scale back personal and corporate tax reductions scheduled under 1981 tax bill.

(6) Cost of living adjustments in Social Security, the rail road and Civil Service retirement programs, and Supplemental Security Income will be in serious jeopardy as long as we face the prospects of budget deficits in excess of $100 billion annually.

(7) So many older persons are at the poverty threshold already, that any cut-back in cost-of-living adjustments could more than double the poverty rate among the elderly. The rate now stands at 15.7 per cent, and is rising rapidly.

(8) According to the latest public projections, deficits of more than $100 billion are anticipated for the next three years. Some forecasters see soaring interest rates, little economic growth and, inevitably, another recession — all with little impact on the hard-core inflation rate which currently is between eight and nine percent a year.

Local hospital draws praise

Dear Editor,

In late October, while visiting your city, I had a cardiac arrest. I've been told it was quite serious. I remember very little about it. But, I do know you have a very fine hospital. The Malone-Hogan Hospital. And, the hospital has a most efficient staff.

I am writing to thank everyone who attended me while I was hospitalized. I would like to mention names, but I do not have all the names of the many fine people who helped me during my stay. So, to the Doctors, the RN's, the LVN's, the PA's, the ambulance drivers I say a prayerful THANK YOU.

I especially want to thank the ladies and gentlemen of ICU-CCU whom at times I gave a very hard time.

And Pete, I quit smoking.

Billy Graham

Isn't God just a guess?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Can we really know anything about God? I look at all the ideas people have, and all the different churches and religions, and it seems to me that everyone is just guessing about what God is like. —D.O.

DEAR D.O.: It is true the world is full of many religions. Humanity is almost incurably religious; no matter how primitive or sophisticated a society may be, the idea of a Supreme Being is still present. I believe you are also right up to a point in suggesting religious ideas are little more than man's ideas about God. When Paul visited ancient Athens he found an altar "to an unknown god."

But can we know what God is like? Yes! Furthermore, not only can we know what God is like, but we can know him in a personal relationship. That is a wonderful truth, and I pray that you will come to know this great truth for yourself.

How can we know God? We can know God because he has not left us to grope around and guess about him. No, he has instead revealed himself to us. The Bible says that he has shown us something of himself in the created world — "his eternal power and divine nature" (Romans 1:20). But the Bible goes beyond this and tells us God has revealed himself in human history. The Bible records this for us, and tells us God's greatest act was when he sent his Son, Jesus Christ, into the world. The Bible says, "No one has ever seen God, but God the only Son, who is at the Father's side, has made him known" (John 1:18). How do I know Jesus was really God's Son and tells us the truth about God? I know it because Jesus Christ rose again from the dead — and that sets him apart from all others who have ever lived.

You can know God personally by committing your life to Jesus Christ. My prayer is that you will take that step of faith, and then that you will grow in your relationship to God as you learn of him in your Bible.

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
 AUSTIN — U.S. Supreme Court justices couldn't have known what they were unleashing on Texas with their one-person, one-vote business that led to regular decennial redistricting of legislative and congressional districts. They had to do it, of course. Protecting minorities and insuring that the political process works fairly are high and honorable goals. The problem is that the redistricting process doesn't work very well and brings pain to us all. Pain isn't the exact word. Weariness is more apt. Like the central character of a B-grade 1950s horror film, redistricting is "The Thing That Wouldn't Go Away!" It is the tar baby of a cartoon without laughs. This wasn't always the case. A little more than a year ago, redistricting seemed exciting. Texas lawmakers had armed themselves with a massive computer system to provide instant information on unlimited possible configurations of districts. They promised themselves and us to avoid the mistakes and ghosts of redistricting past. We observers eagerly awaited the political intrigue we knew was coming. We waited to see who would stick the political knife in the back of whom. We knew that the result could affect the nature of Texas politics for the 1980s. We didn't know that so much of the 1980s would pass before that effect took place. It now is clear that 1983 will be well under way before we know how the political district's boundaries will be drawn for the remainder of the decade. If more lawsuits follow the court-ordered 1983 redistricting effort, we may be seeing the 1984 election filing deadlines pushed back in the same manner as this year. We're not even sure that the mess is over for this year. If appeals to the U.S. Supreme Court overturn recent rulings on redistricting by three-judge federal panels, things really could get sticky. The May primary may be held in August. Even if the appeals fail, we still face starting the process over again when the Legislature meets in Austin next January. Maybe it will seem exciting again by then, but I doubt it. The current weariness is shown by the handling of redistricting by The Austin American-Statesman. This politics-conscious newspaper started out the redistricting process with a reporter assigned to specialize in covering every aspect. When the Texas Supreme Court in Austin ruled on Senate redistricting, the American-Statesman ran a short wire story. By the time the process ends with new remapping plans next year (or the year after that), we all may be putting the story at the end of the news briefs column. And we won't hear any complaints from the readers. That's a shame because redistricting is important not only to politicians but also to the voters. We just need to find a more efficient and speedier way of drawing the boundaries.

The Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau has fallen victim a second time to the Austin growth boom. Last year we had to move from a downtown building because of the landlord's plans to remodel it and put some extra floors on top. One year later, the same thing happened. The five-story building we were in on Congress Avenue right in front of the Capitol will be a ten-story building next year. A 15-story building is planned right next door, and a couple of other high-rise structures are planned down the block. That has some Austinites upset because the view of the Capitol will be further compromised. Their protests seem to be bouncing off stone walls, however. We were upset too because we were faced with another move with all that is involved, such as moving expenses and hassels with the monopolistic monolith called Southwestern Bell. Luckily, we kept the same postman and he's been good about getting out mail forwarded to us, but anyone who has us on a mailing list should change the address to: 1122 Colorado, No. 204, Austin, Tx. 78701.

Rumors are flying these days about candidates in various elections. That's part of the political process. Most members of the media have ground rules about handling rumors. Here are ours: We will neither start nor promote any rumor about a particular candidate unless we are certain that it is true. We will check out any rumors to the fullest extent possible. In some cases, we must simply take the word of the candidate that the rumor is untrue. But we keep his or her comments on record in case that word turns out to be false. We figure that if a person would lie as a candidate, he or she will lie as officeholder, and the public deserves to know that.

Maneuvers seen as warning

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Soviet, Polish and East German troops began maneuvers in northwest Poland Saturday in what observers called an unequivocal show of force aimed at dissuading Poles from challenging martial law, now in its fourth month. The week-long maneuvers, dubbed "Friendship 82," are the first in Poland since Dec. 13 when martial law was imposed and the independent union Solidarity suspended by Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the nation's premier, defense minister and Communist Party chief. The military exercises were under the command of a three-star general, Eugeniusz Molczyk, deputy commander in chief of the Warsaw Pact forces and Poland's deputy defense minister. The official news agency PAP said only that the "tactical-operational exercises" had been "planned."

The government daily Rzeczpospolita, referring to the more than 16 months of labor upheaval preceding martial law, said, "those 500 days ending Dec. 13 offered many examples" of anti-Soviet and anti-socialist sentiment. "The imposition of martial law frustrated an anti-socialist revolution, prevented fratricidal bloodshed, (and) saved the Polish state." Communist Party activists, meanwhile, launched what PAP termed a "nationwide discussion" about a draft statement entitled, "What are we fighting for, where are we heading?" The document could be the basis for the party's long-awaited statement on ideology, PAP said, quoting Central Committee Secretary Marian Orzechowski.

"Before Dec. 13, the party was not uniform and was unable to act offensively," Orzechowski was quoted as saying, adding that the draft statement "is meant as a move to permit the party to recover its ideological and political identity." Trybuna Ludu, the Communist Party newspaper, asserted that "thousands of paramount political, economic and social problems call for solutions. To face up to them, the party must command awareness of its strengths and weaknesses, clarity of intentions and the will to carry them through." The paper said the party must "shake off (its) vagueness, vacillations, suspicions, (and) internal conflicts which have distanced the party from working people, (and) weakened its ability to put up a fight with a political enemy." A reference to Solidarity.

In the months after Solidarity's emergence in August 1980, the party lost thousands of members. And in the first weeks after the martial law decree, the party retreated into near-total silence. The public discussion recently initiated is clearly an effort to restore ideological and organizational unity.

Officials deny report of 200 people massacred

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Officials of Guatemala's central government are denying a report from a local official that unidentified men wielding machetes slashed the throats of more than 200 villagers in the northwestern province of Quiche. The massacre was reported in a telegram from Jose de Jesus Gomez Pochon, municipal secretary of Zacualpa, to national police headquarters in the provincial capital of Santa Cruz del Quiche, about 100 miles north of Guatemala City. He said the slaughter occurred Sunday night in two isolated villages. "Women, men, old people children of different ages ... all were slashed in the throat and some people were decapitated," the telegram said. The telegram was seen by a reliable source, but the Santa Cruz del Quiche police denied knowledge of it.

Gubernatorial hopeful hates lawyers

By KEN HERMAN
 Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Welder Don Beagle wants to jail all lawyers who hold elected office. Publisher Ray Mayo says Mexican-Americans don't seem to understand the U.S. Constitution and politics north of the border.

Former appliance salesman David Young says "lawyers and business tycoons" are too powerful. Fired insurance agent Lowell "Duke" Embs says $2 bills are twice as good as $1 bills.

Beagle, Mayo, Young and Embs want to be governor of Texas. They are, in Young's words, "the lesser known" candidates.

"Basically," said Dwayne Holman, campaign director for Mark White, a major Democratic candidate for governor, "they are ignored."

However, Holman says a tight race among White, Bob Armstrong and Buddy Temple — the three leading Democratic candidates — could make the minor candidates' efforts crucial.

"I'm sure the minor candidates will get 3 to 4 percent of the vote. If the race is real close it could make a difference as to who gets in the runoff," said Holman.

Young, Mayo and Beagle paid the $1,500 needed to get on the Democratic ticket. Embs paid his way into the GOP race. Their expectations vary. Some see themselves as sure winners. Others are unsure.

"It's not necessarily unsuccessful if I don't win," said Young, 37. "Just like the Alamo wasn't unsuccessful even though everyone got killed."

Beagle and Mayo previously have run for governor and president. Beagle, 60, got 14,791 votes in the 1978 Democratic gubernatorial primary. The Nederland man was angered into a political career after a nasty 1975 custody battle for his son.

He hates lawyers. "I'm talking about the American politburo. The Bar Association. They're in our government and they're in our homes and they're ripping us apart," he said.

Beagle said the U.S. Constitution bars Americans from taking two oaths. Attorneys, who have taken their oath as lawyers, violate the law when they take also take an oath of office as a public official, according to Beagle.

"My first act will be to arrest every illegal officer in the state of Texas who is disobeying the Constitution of the United States and prosecute them for treason," he said.

Will Don Beagle be the next governor of Texas? No, even Beagle admits that, but he predicts, "I will win the next one. I guarantee that."

"I'm a dangerous character. I have helped take the pay-day away from the lawyers," he said.

In 1978, 20,249 Texans thought Mayo was the best Democrat for governor. His name identification is not high. A campaign official for one of the major candidates said, "Mayo? Isn't that one-third of a BLT sandwich?"

The 63-year-old publisher of The Snowbird magazine in San Juan says Mexican-Americans misunderstand the government and politics of the United States.

"They use group power to advance their special interests. This group power is placing individual freedoms and rights in a secondary position," he said.

Mayo ignored the recent Mexican-American Democrats convention in Brownsville.

"I don't care if I get them. I don't want them. They don't know anything about our Constitution. They are working under the assumption they are in Mexico, where they group up and shoot down the rest. That isn't the way we work in this country. We have a constitution," he said. "The way we work in this country. We have a constitution," he said.

Is Ray Mayo the next governor of Texas? "I think I have a very strong chance," he said. "I'm going to prove it. My policies and platform are good. This thing has gotten big. But hell, I've run before and I haven't won."

Young quit his job in the appliance department at Montgomery Ward in Richardson to run a low-budget race. "It's a well-calculated thing. Basically, I love Texas," he said.

The idea of being governor has been "in the back of my mind ever since I was a small child. I had a sense of mission or destiny to do something like this," he said.

Young taught at Dallas Bible College from 1975 to 1978. He said his background in theology and sales is an ideal combination for a governor.

"To me the big issue is representative government, the fact that the average citizen is under-represented and overtaxed and the average big corporation is over-represented and undertaxed," he said.

Is David Young destined for the Governor's Mansion? "I think I can get in a runoff," he said.

State finances program for battered wives

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — When prospective newlyweds in Montana pay $30 to the county clerk for a marriage license, almost half — $14 — goes to protect against the prospect that their union will degenerate into black eyes, split lips, or worse.

That special fee finances Montana's Domestic Violence Program, which deals primarily with battered wives.

"There are still a lot of women out there who don't like coming out of the closet and owning up to what has happened to them," said Mary Lou Buchman of the Eastern Montana Spouse Abuse Program, located in the farming community of Glasgow. It's one of 15 projects in the state that receives money from the marriage license fee.

The marriage license surcharge, which started at $9 in 1979 and rose to $14 last July, will pay about $100,000 of the $115,500 a year that the Legislature has appropriated for the program. Montana is one of 15 states to finance such programs through marriage license surcharges.

The money goes to local projects in the form of grants ranging from $500 for sparsely populated Madison County to $18,375 for Mercy Home in Great Falls, the state's second-largest city. Most grants go to programs already dealing with family problems, such as Missoula's Women's Place and Helena's Friendship Center.

Joan — not her real name — had never heard of the Friendship Center until the night she fled her home almost two years ago. Her husband had been beating her for four years, but she left that night after realizing that, as he held her against the dishwasher and punched her, she was contemplating using a butcher knife that lay nearby. She smashed through the locked screen door and fled to a neighbor's home.

Police took her to the hotel where the Friendship Center houses women, gave her the phone number of the center and the name of Nancy Feld, then a worker at the center.

Later Ms. Feld "got a police escort to take me to the house to get my clothes, and she took me to various places that gave out free meal tickets," Joan recalled.

"She went all the way to court with me, talking to the lawyer about what could and couldn't be said in court," she said. "Some things had to be kept secret so other husbands couldn't find out."

A mandatory reporting system on spouse abuse in Montana has started to produce statistics, but workers in the programs say they are little better than estimates. Police and other agencies, they say, often fail to report all incidents, and confidentiality laws can cause a single case to be counted by several agencies.

But all involved agree that only a small portion of wife-beating cases — 10 percent is the usual estimate — ever surfaces.

"A lot of (the reason) is just plain public stigma," said Elly Cummins, who oversees the state's Domestic Violence Program for the Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services. "A lot of people just don't want to admit that it's a part of their lives."

A wide variety of state agencies — police, sheriffs, prosecutors, hospitals, mental health programs — are required to report all instances of domestic violence to SRS, which tabulated 2,629 abused wives in 1980 and 2,430 last year.

The term "spouse abuse" is not just feminist semantics: the program counted 152 battered husbands last year and 151 in 1980.

Madison County's program, headquartered at tiny Twin Bridges, has only volunteers to man a 24-hour phone line and, if a woman wants to leave home, to transport her to Bozeman, Butte or Dillon, where more help is available.

In Great Falls, Mercy Home offers a full range of services, including one of only five round-the-clock shelter buildings in the state. The state provides $40,500 a year to help operate the shelters.

Programs without shelters usually rely on "safe homes," private residences where a woman can hide temporarily. The safe homes are always kept secret — sometimes, as in Helena, even from the police.

Glasgow stopped using private safe homes because of REFUGEE FOR BATTERED WIVES — Jill Kennedy is head of the Friendship Center in Helena, which provides food, clothing, shelter and legal assistance to battered wives under Montana's marriage license-financed Domestic Violence Program.

problems such as one resident discovering that a refugee had run up a large telephone bill. Now the fugitive wives are placed in motels.

"We have a limit of three days," Ms. Buchman said. "If they can't go home then, we send them to one of the towns that has a shelter."

Women who flee their homes often do so with nothing but the clothes they are wearing.

"We try to provide food, clothing, shelter, legal assistance — whatever it takes," said Jill Kennedy, head of Friendship Center in Helena.

"In a little over a year we've sheltered 51 women and 83 of their children. I'd say the number is twice that for the women in counseling. A lot of women hear about us and just come by or call. Some say, 'Well, I may be making a break in a month or so, and I'd like to know what services are available.'"

Word about the programs has spread in various ways. "We put stickers in restrooms of bars and lounges, and in phone booths" and even doctors' offices, and beauty salons, said Glasgow's Mary Lou Buchman. "We also put them in men's restrooms in case there's a battered husband."

Man sentenced to life, fined

DALLAS (AP) — A convicted murderer has been sentenced to life imprisonment and fined $2, the amount over which he shot and killed a longtime friend.

Barry Dean Edwards, 24, was sentenced Thursday. The same jury found him guilty Wednesday of fatally shooting Michael Ray Thomas last September.

Government takes over telephones

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government has temporarily taken over Telefonos de Mexico, the country's largest telephone company, because of a dispute within the telephone workers' union.

A presidential order Thursday night giving the Communications Ministry control of the company said the problems had caused service to deteriorate.

The company, operating under a government concession, provides telephone service to nearly all the country's 5 million subscribers, as well as telegraph and telex service, air traffic and defense communications. It operates exclusive government circuits and has most of the country's microwave network.

A conflict between union groups over recognition of a union leader has caused minor interruptions in service in recent days.

About 50 telephone workers were injured

Wednesday in a rock-and-bottle-throwing spree between workers who had taken over union offices and members who tried to regain possession of the building held by dissident members.

Union leader Francisco Hernandez Juarez said the situation was tense and his supporters would not try again to retake the offices.

The union also has threatened to strike March 19 over a wage dispute.

Museum schedules Chuckwagon Party

The Heritage Museum's 1982 Chuckwagon Party will be held in the Dora Roberts Community Center starting at 7 p.m., Thursday, May 6.

Only dues-paying members of the museum and their guests will be admitted to the party, which last year was held in the Garrett Coliseum. The 1981 event was catered by the Odessa Chuck Wagon Gang but local businesses will be encouraged to bid for the catering job this year.

At a directors' meeting held Thursday at the museum, Harry Middleton again accepted the responsibility of heading the committee which will plan the Chuck Wagon Party.

The price of tickets and their availability will be announced at a later date, according to Sue Lewis, president of the museum's board of directors.

It was announced that 109 persons have renewed their memberships in the museum. The directors are renewing their campaign to build the membership.

A committee headed by Jack Cook, former board president, will continue its search for a museum curator. One avowed candidate for the position was interviewed by members of the committee during Thursday's meeting.

Johnnie Gunnels, acting curator, was granted a raise and was commended for the work she has done to sustain the image the museum casts in the community.

Efforts will also be made to hire an assistant curator, who would be paid on an hourly basis.

Rheba Baker, a member of the museum's directorate, is donating $500 to the museum toward the purchase of an electric typewriter. The museum is also in need of a copying machine.

Mrs. Lewis announced that the museum would henceforth be closed on Mondays.

Carrier commissioned; nuclear sub launched

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — The nuclear aircraft carrier USS Carl Vinson was commissioned for duty Saturday amid tributes to the man who gave it his name and warnings of the military challenges it faces.

"Now we have to change our scripts," said Navy Secretary John Lehman. "Instead of bemoaning that the Navy has shrunk to 12 carrier battle groups ... as of today we have 13."

A group of some 70 anti-nuclear protesters lined the street outside the shipyard but were not allowed inside the gates.

Carl Vinson, who served a record 50 years in the U.S. House from Georgia and helped mold the country's modern defense structure, became a congressman in 1914.

He was the only American who lived to see a Navy warship take his name, when the $2 billion-plus vessel was christened March 15, 1980. He died last June 1 at the age of 97.

Elsewhere, at the Electric Boat shipyard in Groton, Conn., the Navy launched its latest nuclear-powered submarine, the USS Albuquerque.

Nancy Domenici, wife of Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., smashed the traditional bottle of champagne across the sub's bow, sending the 360-foot, 6,900-ton fast-attack submarine into the gray mist that covered the Thames River.

The submarine — the 23rd of its class to be built — is scheduled to join the fleet in the summer of 1983. A total of 39 such submarines, which are designed to hunt and destroy enemy surface ships as well as subs, have been authorized by Congress.

Missionaries slated to speak here Monday

The Rev. and Mrs. David Browning will speak at the First Church of the Nazarene at 1400 Lancaster Monday at 7 p.m. The Brownings are missionaries and will be talking about their experiences as missionaries to the Philippines.

The Rev. Browning was born in South Carolina. He received his A.B. from Olivet Nazarene College and his B.D. for Asbury Theological Seminary.

He is married to the former Elizabeth Lumpkin of North Carolina. Mrs. Browning received her education from Hoyles Secretarial School. The Brownings have four children: Molly Ray Pitt, Nancy Gay Campanelli, Elizabeth May and Sally Kay.

In 1944, the Brownings were appointed as missionaries for the Church of the Nazarene. They first arrived in British Honduras in 1944 and in 1955 were transferred to Guyana. In Area Chamber of Commerce rounding up new members

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce reported today it had rounded up approximately 27 new applicants in its membership drive this week.

Chamber ambassadors and members canvassed local businesses to drum up support for the chamber, according to Bill Forshee, assistant manager of the Chamber. He said the drive would end today, but the Chamber would still be finalizing the membership rolls into next week.

Cocaine: The drug of choice in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Comedian Richard Pryor, coming clean about the drug-caused accident that nearly killed him, admits in his new movie that cocaine is the enemy and tells his hip, young audience: "You've been doing it more than two weeks — you're a junkie. You won't be able to stop."

That warning, thrown out in the midst of a macabre comedy routine in Pryor's new movie, "Live on the Sunset Strip," is the performer's effort to offer with a few jokes the grim lesson of his story — the accident which set fire to his clothing and left him with third-degree burns on the upper half of his body.

Pryor could not know how timely his movie monologue would be.

The film opened this week as Hollywood learned that another comedian, John Belushi, found dead above the Sunset Strip, had died of a drug overdose, his arms pocked with needle marks from the cocaine and heroin injections that killed him.

"The surprise was not that Belushi was doing cocaine," says one entertainment industry insider. "It was the heroin. That's still pretty much of a no-no. But coke is everywhere. If he wasn't in-in Hollywood, "The blame will be put off on heroin," predicted one observer. "Everyone will say it wasn't the coke that killed him."

Cocaine, the fine white powder which became symbolic of Hollywood's fashionable decadence in the '70s, has spilled over into the '80s in new variations and combinations.

Its popularity has been traced to two factors — its reputation as a "safe," non-addicting high and its outrageously high price which made it a symbol of affluence.

"I still see coke at most Hollywood parties," says one source. "They bring it out on trays and serve it as dessert. It's a status thing, an ego trip."

Last year, police broke up a ring of drug dealers who operated out of a rambling mansion above Sunset Boulevard and made their deliveries in Rolls-Royces. Their clients jokingly called them the "cocaine caterers."

The darker side of the drug is rarely mentioned. There are whispers about movie stars who are "coke out of their heads" and don't show up for work.

"I know of one star who was snorting so much cocaine on a set that blood was running out of his nose and they had to stop shooting," says a movie writer.

"It's an addiction, a monster," Pryor shouts in his movie, referring to the "freebase" cocaine habit which was said to be part of Belushi's lifestyle too. "I finally got to the point where drug dealers refused to sell me cocaine. They said, 'Man, you're killing yourself.'"

Freebasing, a method of processing cocaine down to its most powerful essence and then smoking it, has gained popularity in recent months in the fast-living moneyed social set that pursues the newest highs in town.

Another practice being seen more in hard-core drug circles is "speedballing," a practice which may have led to Belushi's death. It involves the injection of heroin, a depressant, and cocaine, a stimulant, mixed together with water. Some users say they get a powerful "roller-coaster" sensation, but others say speedballing can "make you feel like you're tearing your body in half."

Police efforts to stem an increasing flow of both cocaine and heroin into the Los Angeles area have been largely futile. So great is the problem that little effort can be focused on tracing the source of drugs in individual deaths such as the Belushi case.

Police Cmdr. William Booth said no full-scale narcotics probe would be launched in the Belushi case. With narcotics so prevalent in the area, he said, the tracking down of one supplier would be given "low priority."

In the past year, seizures of cocaine in Los Angeles have increased by 94 percent. In 1980, the department seized 183 pounds; in 1981 the figure was 356 pounds, according to Capt. Bob Blanchard, chief of the Los Angeles Police Department's Narcotics Division.

"Heroin, unfortunately, is starting to reappear on our streets as well," says Blanchard, and the scarcity of heroin in recent years has driven the price up, wiping out its reputation as "the poor person's drug" and pushing it into upper-class circles.

As for cocaine, he said, it is selling on the street for $120 to $140 a gram, "and it is less and less potent. Right now they are getting 20 to 40 per cent potency."

Asked whether Hollywood figures are among the biggest users, Blanchard hesitated.

"The drug was and still continues to be abused by people with money," he said, "and, yes, you have people in Hollywood with money."

Ford workers won't get bundle of checks

DETROIT (AP) — Laid-off, low-seniority Ford Motor Co. workers who voted for contract concessions in hopes of collecting a bundle of benefit checks are heading for a disappointment.

Jim Gallagher, a laid-off electrician from the Metuchen, N.J., assembly plant, said he had expected to receive about 15 benefit checks under the new contract but has learned he will get only three.

"I think it stinks," said Gallagher, who added he wouldn't have voted for the concessions if he'd known how few checks he would get. "They're literally giving me nothing."

Ford's new contract with the United Auto Workers union, signed March 1, requires Ford to deposit $70 million in the Supplemental Unemployment Benefit program, designed to provide laid-off autoworkers with 95 percent of their take-home pay when added to state unemployment benefits.

Gallagher and other low-seniority, laid-off workers thought the increase in the fund would mean more benefit checks.

But Ford has decided to ration the money into the fund rather than deposit it in a lump sum, and as a result, laid-off workers will receive fewer checks, Ford officials say.

A 12-page summary of the Ford contract that was given to workers before the ratification vote did not outline how the $70 million would be deposited or how individual workers would be affected by the deposit.

UAW spokesman Donald Stillman said the contract provision still is an improvement. In February, laid-off workers with less than 10 years' seniority were receiving no benefits because the fund was nearly depleted.

In return for Ford strengthening the SUB fund, guaranteeing income for high-seniority workers and issuing a two-year moratorium on plant closings, Ford's 170,000 autoworkers, of which more than 51,000 are on indefinite layoff, gave up eight paid personal holidays per year and accepted a wage freeze and a nine-month deferral of cost-of-living allowance increases.

White House favors stronger smoking warning despite protests

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Sun., Mar. 14, 1982 9-A

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is sticking to its support of stronger health warnings on cigarette packages over the protests of conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and other tobacco-state legislators.

The endorsement was made at a House hearing Thursday by Edward N. Brandt Jr., assistant secretary of health and human services, who said a proposal to label cigarette packs with varied health warnings would "increase the public's knowledge of the hazards of smoking."

The Washington Post reported today that Helms had written a letter to Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker complaining about "what is perceived as incipient 'Califanoism' in your department."

This was a reference to the well-publicized anti-smoking crusade of Schweiker's Carter administration predecessor, Joseph A. Califano Jr., who quit smoking cigarettes.

The Post also quoted from a letter to Schweiker by Rep. Eugene Johnston, R-N.C., who said that antagonizing the industry could jeopardize his and other congressmen's election chances.

Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-N.C., wrote Schweiker warning against any additional federal rules that would "injure the revenue bonanza which government receives from this honorable crop," the Post said.

Last December, Schweiker publicly endorsed a proposal by the Federal Trade Commission to develop strong, new warnings about the health hazards of smoking and said the existing warning label — "Cigarette Smoking is Dangerous to Your Health" — is inadequate.

Schweiker told the FTC that smoking is "the chief preventable cause of death in our society," a position taken by Brandt and Surgeon General C. Everett Koop in February, when they released a strongly worded report linking cigarette smoking to a variety of cancers.

At Thursday's hearing of the House Commerce subcommittee on health,

Brandt said the administration generally agreed with legislation introduced in Congress that would replace the current warning label with five new versions to be rotated on cigarette packs.

The five new labels would warn against specific dangers, including the risk to unborn children of pregnant smokers and the benefits of quitting. The legislation is sponsored by Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., and Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah.

Dog uncovers $5,400 treasure

LONDON (AP) — A dog scampering through an English park has ended the 2½-year treasure hunt for a golden hare that bewitched readers of a children's storybook around the world.

Clues to the location of the treasure — an 18-karat gold pendant in the shape of a hare, studded with six precious stones and worth about $5,400 — were scattered through Kit Williams' book, "Masquerade."

"I was dead lucky," the finder said. "I got some of the clues but not all of them. My dog found it for me when it ran off to have a wee against the stone."

But the identity of the finder remains as much a mystery as the hare's hiding place once was.

The 48-year-old car designer "fears an avalanche of calls and letters from 'Masquerade' addicts," the Sunday Times said in reporting the end of the hunt.

Brothers Cavazos: Three extraordinary Texans

EDITOR'S NOTE: He had little education, less money and a Spanish surname, and his death a quarter century ago, while widely mourned, captured a few headlines. But Lauro Cavazos left an extraordinary legacy — his children — including a trio known as the Brothers Cavazos.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Of all the King's men, Lauro Cavazos was in many ways the most remarkable. For nearly half a century he was as identifiable with the King Ranch as the Kings and Klebergs who founded it and the cattle and coyotes who occupied it.

On a ranch bigger than some states, and as historic as many, he was the "cow boss" of the showcase Santa Gertrudis Division.

By today's standards, Cavazos was under-educated, over-motivated, church-mouse poor, hopelessly loyal and patriotic to a fault.

A natural leader, and long on pride, he was more than slightly irritated when renegade Mexicans posted a meager $25 bounty on his head.

He was tall, lean, tough and, when necessary, mean. He arrived at the King Ranch in 1912 as a strapping 18-year-old. He never really left. He lived, worked, married and died on the South Texas spread.

At his death in 1958, he left, by example, a legacy of hard work and high ideals. And five children.

Fate and football led three of them across the state to the South Plains, where they left their stamp on Texas Tech University as indelibly as Lauro did the King Ranch.

One, Bobby, an All American running back, would drift naturally into ranching. Another, Lauro, or Larry, an educator, would one day return as president of the university.

The third, Richard, or Dick, a military student, would become a genuine war hero. And as a four-star general, he would in time head the U.S. Army Forces Command.

"The boys idolized their father so much," a daughter-in-law would say 24 years after his death. "They would do anything for him."

And were he alive today, he would be beside himself with pride.

A fifth-generation Texan, Lauro F. Cavazos was a descendant of the man awarded the original Spanish land grant that embraces the southern divisions of the King Ranch.

Some say today that grant totaled 350,000 acres. "My great, great, great grandfather sold the land to Richard King for 10 cents an acre," jokes Bobby Cavazos, the rancher.

"If I ever meet him, in heaven or hell, I'm gonna say, 'Thanks a bunch!'"

At the heart of the King Ranch is the vaquero tradition, a Spanish culture of horsemen and cattle. The ranch families are known as Kinosos.

That is the word for Kingsmen, the King people. Lauro Cavazos was, in essence, their leader, serving for nearly 40 years as a division foreman.

With King descendants Richard and Bob Kleberg, Lauro Cavazos played a key role in developing the first American breed of cattle, the Santa Gertrudis.

Except for a voluntary combat stint in World War I, the ranch was his life. He met his wife there and each of his children was born there.

The first born, Sarita, was the only daughter. Then came Lauro, Richard, Bobby and, seven years later, Joe. Sarita would in time get her degree at Texas A&I in Kingsville and Joe, after attending Tulane, would graduate from St. Mary's in San Antonio.

But it was Larry, Dick and Bobby who would travel 600 miles across Texas, to Lubbock and Texas Tech, to become widely known as the Brothers Cavazos.

"I guess we were poor," said Dick Cavazos, the general, recalling his childhood on the King Ranch.

"In those days, the 1930s, the ranch was not wealthy at all. The oil hadn't come in yet. But we had all we wanted to eat. Being on a ranch, you got your garden, and all the beef you can eat and milk you can drink."

"It was just a super place for a youngster to grow up." Like their father, the brothers Larry, Dick and Bobby became crack shots and gifted horsemen and kissin' cousins with Mother Nature.

"We lived with rattlesnakes and big animals and everything else," said Dick. "We chased bobcats and coyotes on horseback, and ran our trap lines."

Recalled Bobby: "We had dogs, chickens, rabbits and raccoons, and we even tried to raise armadillos. Once we brought home five or six baby wildcats."

"They tore up everything in sight, and Dad went and turned them loose. But it was always like a zoo out there."

With Sarita nearing high school age, the elder Cavazos moved his clan to Kingsville.

"Dad built a house in town," Larry said. "It wasn't until much later that I recognized what he'd done. In his constant insistence on our getting an education, he built that house two blocks from the elementary school, one block from Texas A&I College and within walking distance of the high school."

"I don't know if that was just happenstance or not, but I'd much rather have stayed on the ranch."

Taking off from wildcats and armadillos, before television and without a radio, the Cavazos offspring reveled in the Saturday movies.

"We'd catch up some chickens and take them to this restaurant, Sleepy's, and he'd give us 50 cents apiece," recalled Bobby. "That was enough for the movie, popcorn, candy and everything else."

"And there'd be money left over."

"Dad would knock him in the head and tie him to a tree until he sobered up."

Regarding his own children, the elder Cavazos stressed only two things. He wanted them educated and he wanted his sons to serve their military duty.

"There's been a Cavazos in every war," said Bobby. "We're kinda proud of that."

Likewise, the Cavazos brood not only got college degrees, all married college graduates. And stayed married.

"Son," Lauro once told his namesake, "educate yourself. It's the one thing nobody can ever take from you. It is forever."

The message took.

"I have pushed hard on that, especially with minority groups," the Tech president says now.

"I am convinced that education is the key to many things. If you have sufficient education, you can solve most any problem in the world."

"Famine. Ecological problems. Nuclear problems. Racism. They're all solved with education."

Dick was between Korean and Vietnam wars when his father died, and the memory is still vivid.

"Friends of Dad's came from South America, and there were ranchers from all over the world. Of course, the family was there, and friends we hadn't seen in years."

"But we could not grieve. We felt it was such a privilege that he had lived, and that he lived his life to the fullest. He had done everything he set out to do."

"He was such a fine, fine man, and he had been such a great example to us."

Instead of mourning, the family barbecued a steer and celebrated not death but life.

"It turned into a first class party," said Dick. "I have since told my wife that when I go, I want a big barbecue."

With a South Plains snow storm brewing outside, Larry Cavazos welcomed a visitor to his stylish presidential suite, in the heart of the Texas Tech campus.

"One doesn't set out to be a college president, I assure you," he conceded lightly.

"I wanted to be a pretty good zoology teacher and researcher. As Dick said at one point, 'I don't know how I got here. I'm a pretty good rifle company commander. How did I get to be a general?'"

Larry was the first of the Brothers Cavazos to arrive at Tech, a 600-mile odyssey, prompted more by fate than design.

He had fallen under the spell of a zoology professor at Texas A&I named James Cross. When Dr. Cross moved to Tech, Larry tagged along.

"He was a marvelous teacher," Larry remembered. "His knowledge, presentation and enthusiasm quickly spilled over on me."

The year was 1947, and Larry was just back from a two-year military stint.

"Larry enlisted as a 17-year-old in World War II," Dick, the general, would joke. "He rose to the exalted rank of corporal in scout dogs. I told his professors that was his most honorable title."

"Corporal, Scout Dog Handler, Infantry."

When Larry arrived on campus, it was Texas Technological College, with maybe 5,000 students. Today it's a university with 23,000 students and a faculty of 1,100.

Not to mention the University Health Sciences Center, a separate, legislatively created institution also headed by Cavazos.

Larry remembered his undergraduate years at Tech as a "pleasant time" despite a shortage of money and long hours of laboratory endeavors.

"I saw many a sunrise out of the chemistry building window," he said. "I'd work all night long."

With his coat removed and sprawled across a chair, he added with a smile: "I was pretty hungry in those days."

Later, when Bobby and Dick arrived, they'd smuggle out sack lunches from the athletic dorm for the elder brother, sometimes tossing them out a window.

"They'd get them to me one way or another," said Larry with a chuckle. "There really wasn't a lot of spare cash."

Bachelor's and master's degrees in zoology at Tech and a doctoral degree from the University of Iowa would lead him in time to Boston and Tufts University.

He served five years as dean of the school of medicine. But before leaving Tech in 1951, he met an attractive young lady named Peggy Ann Murdock, an aspiring nurse from Plainview, a 45-minute drive from the university campus.

Their marriage would produce 10 children, now ranging in age from 15 to 25. Six once were enrolled at Tech at the same time, winning their presidential father a Homecoming plaque.

At Tufts, the med students teased Peggy about her large brood.

"We practiced planned parenthood," she told them. "We planned to have 10 children and then stop."

How many cattle? "You don't ask how many cattle or how many acres," Nancy replied with a laugh. "It's the code of the West."

Later, however, she said the ranch is "small as ranches go."

At 51, Bobby remains robust and borderline rowdy, a pound or so heavier than during the glory days as a record-breaking Red Raider running back.

He was the third to arrive at Tech, rooming one year with Dick, a defensive back whose Raider career ended with a broken leg his senior season.

Bobby was the only player ever to make first-team All Border Conference three consecutive years and he missed the national scoring record by a single point as a senior.

He was "Who's Who" and "Mr. Tech" and "Most Popular" and the Texas Sports Writers "Athlete of the Year."

Bobby led the Raiders to a 10-1 record his final year, capping off his career with three touchdowns and the most valuable player award in a Gator Bowl victory over Auburn.

In one of his most memorable outings, he played four minutes of the first quarter against New Mexico, carrying twice for 99 yards and two touchdowns.

With a rout in the works, DeWitt Weaver, the coach, "sent me to the showers," Bobby recalled. "I went and got dressed and sat in the stands with my date."

Tech historians contend now that Bobby "set the standard for consistency, durability and excitement" among Raider running backs.

A broken shoulder torpedoded a professional career with the old Chicago Cardinals and, once healed, Bobby took off for Korea as a ROTC officer.

"When I got back from Korea, I didn't want to play ball," he said. "I just wanted to go home, back to the ranch."

Perhaps even more so than his brothers, Bobby loved the ranch and its lifestyle. In fact, he majored in animal husbandry.

"I was the only one who wanted the cowboy life," he said. "I spent summers working on the ranch. I was always interested in horses and cattle."

Bobby's father was both a master horseman and, with the Kleberg family, a key figure in the development of the magnificent breed of cattle called the Santa Gertrudis.

In his typically candid manner, Dick once declared: "Dad was one of the few cattlemen who knew what the hell he was doing."

Of the five Cavazos children, Bobby would appear the most like his father, and in some ways the most versatile. "Bobby should have been a politician," said Dick. "In fact, he was. He was a county commissioner down there for awhile (eight years)."

Bobby also flirted with a singing career, befriending and often performing with the likes of Willie Nelson, Jim Reeves and Ray Price.

He cut records for both Monument and Mercury and adopted the professional moniker, Bobby Rio: "I didn't know if the disc jockeys could pronounce Cavazos."

Despite some "fun times," family considerations cut short that adventure.

He and Nancy, a Breckenridge native whom he met at Tech, settled in Breckenridge in 1975.

"We'll stay here unless something so big and so good comes up I can't turn it down," he said with a grin.

With his bags packed, his fourth star pending and a farewell party in the works, Gen. Richard E. Cavazos greeted a visitor to the largest U.S. military post in the world.

Aides at Ft. Hood contend Dick Cavazos is the brightest, least officious and most genuinely agreeable officer ever to wear a star, let alone four of them.

"Truly a soldier's soldier," insisted one.

Said the erstwhile commander of the sprawling Central Texas military base:

"To paraphrase Winston Churchill, I came in the army out of curiosity and I stayed in it out of sheer anger."

Said he: "As a rifle platoon leader in Korea, I saw a lot of the infantry war, up close."

He saw shortages of ammunition, spotty artillery support and inadequate equipment and it angered him mightily.

"I have yet to know of a war the military declared," he said. "And if you're going to send a young man off to war, you send him with the best our nation can arm him with."

"When I was in Korea, I told my battalion commander I was going back to punch holes in the ground and be a geologist."

"And he said, 'Go on back. I know you're mad at the Army and mad at the system. But if all you guys get out, you'll always have a mediocre army.'"

"And I said, 'You're being terribly unfair. You have no right to put that on me. I served honorably. I got shot. Wounded. Everything else.'"

"And he said, 'Well, you have to weigh your own conscience.'"

"So I stayed in the damn army."

Surprising only in retrospect, Dick Cavazos was an even more spectacular high school football player than Bobby, and captained the Kingsville team.

He was, and is, a superb leader," said Larry.

The second Cavazos to attend Tech, Dick was more interested in geology than the military but football and a Gainesville coed named Caroline Green probably outranked both.

He met Caroline in brother Larry's biology lab, and she is now his wife and mother of his four children, one a University of Texas grad, three with a Tech connection.

Thirty years ago, the odds of Dick making the football team were shaky at best. He possessed neither the size nor the Anglo name common to the Raider roster.

"I don't believe Texas Tech had ever had a Mexican-American player for them before that," Dick said.

At any rate, the manager, unimpressed, refused him a uniform.

"Finally the coach told him to give me one," Dick recalled. Two days later, Coach Dell Morgan invited Dick to eat with the team. On the third day, Dick moved into the athletic dorm.

"It never dawned on me I couldn't play football at Tech," he said. "It was not overconfidence. I simply saw no reason not to take the risk."

"I guess the ranch and Dad and a combination of everything conditioned me to take risks."

Though a broken leg did result, Dick had only flirted with risk. He would embrace it in Korea.

As a distinguished ROTC graduate in 1951, he received a regular army commission and headed off to paratrooper training, then to Korea as a young lieutenant.

On June 14, 1953, under enemy fire, Cavazos "crossed a Korean hill to locate and evacuate, one by one, five wounded members of his company."

He returned twice to search for more casualties and found and led scattered groups of confused soldiers to safety.

At that point, he permitted treatment of his own wounds.

That episode of "extraordinary heroism" won him the first of his two Distinguished Service Crosses, the nation's second highest military award.

"He should have gotten the Medal of Honor (the highest)," Bobby insists.

"Bobby doesn't know what the hell he's talking about," laughed Dick. "I got the Distinguished Service Cross once in Korea and once in Vietnam, and I don't believe I deserved either one."

"I'll say this, though, I've been out there when I deserved a whole bunch of things, when nobody gave me nothing. No one saw me and no one knew what happened."

"But I'm alive and well and the Army gave me everything I deserved, so I guess it evens out."

Despite the Army's shortcomings, Dick found much to like about the military, even if it stumbled over Cavazos.

"I couldn't care less that they couldn't pronounce my name," he said. "Shoot, the Army just said, 'What can you do?' From day one, they didn't care if you were polka dot."

"That impressed me a lot."

Maybe only half jokingly, he calls himself "damn dumb" for remaining on active duty.

"I can retire tomorrow at $75 a month. I pay the government $75 a month to be on active duty. My wife looks at me like I don't have good sense."

As head of the U.S. Army Forces Command, Dick would move to Ft. McPherson, Ga., headquarters for 380,000 regular army troops and 600,000 National Guardsmen and reservists across the country.

Pondering his new command, Dick said: "I love this land. It's worth fighting for and it's damn sure worth dying for. And I believe in the soldiers out there. They will do whatever I ask them to do."

"I don't think you can buy soldiers but I damn sure think you ought to make them feel worthwhile."

"What I've asked the people...to do is to appreciate their sacrifices and be proud of them. And more important, to help them be proud of themselves."

The cow boss would like that.

Democrats shun straw poll

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Democratic leaders refused Saturday to try to lure more voters to the May 1 primary with a series of sensational voter-opinion polls such as those approved by Texas Republicans.

"What we need is issues for a party platform, not a bunch of lollipops for the voters," said Millie Bruner, Grand Prairie, a member of the Democratic National Committee.

The State Democratic Executive Committee voted 46-9 against putting any non-binding straw votes on the Democratic ballot.

A week earlier, the State Republican Executive Committee voted overwhelmingly in favor of five referendum questions on the GOP primary ballot.

The GOP ballot will let voters express their views on horse race betting, Sunday closing laws, mandatory jail sentences for drunken driving, private ownership of handguns and initiation of new state laws by referendum.

Both state party committees held mandatory meetings Saturday to certify state, district and multi-county candidates for the primaries. Candidates in single-county districts will be certified by county executive committees on Tuesday except in Harris County, where the certification was Saturday night.

There was no other business other than certification of candidates at the state GOP meeting, a spokesman said.

At the Democratic meeting, committee member Sue Cox, Dallas asked: "If the Republicans need to attract voters so bad why don't they give out

Pickled pigs' lips top prize

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The first annual "Eat Your Art Out" exhibit of edible sculpture at Louisiana State University was marked by more than nutritious artworks — there was a lot of silliness.

"This place has been rife with bad puns," said Susan Davis, an organizer of the event. "Someone told me I looked radishing in my necklace."

Her entry was titled "Veg-jewels," a necklace of radishes, asparagus, baby carrots, black olives and green peas, strung together with dental floss and toothpicks.

Aimee Thomas, an anthropology student from Lexington, Ky., drew a crowd with her "Mona Cellulita Sun Bathes Minus Towel, a Lesson in Bad Taste No. 5." It was a nude made of chocolate chip cookie mix.

Other entries included a cream cheese commode, complete with water, and a Rubik's Cube of marshmallows. "Baton Rouge Boogie Woogie" was done in gelatin. Of course, there was a "Leaning Tower of Pizza."

First place prizes included a dinner for five at the student union restaurant and a jar of pickled pigs' lips.

green stamps?"

Dr. Arthur Raines, Cleburne, first opposed the recommendation of the Legal Affairs subcommittee, that the Democratic ballot contain no referendum.

"This is a simple tactic by the Republicans to draw interest to their primary," Raines said. "I don't think we can write off any group."

"I believe we are missing a bet," said Rep. Doyle Willis, D-Fort Worth.

"It would be a mistake to clutter up our ballot with straw polls," said Bill Sinkin, San Antonio.

"Our candidates should not have to take a stand on such issues," said Charles Scarborough, Abilene.

Patti Ivey of Robert Lee said candidates and voters in her area wanted a chance to vote on horse races again.

"Let's give the horsemen a fair count one more time," she said.

Texas last voted on parimutuel betting in 1978. The non-binding poll failed 676,126 to 729,560 in the Democratic primary but carried 56,893 to 53,883 in the Republican primary.

In 1980, two polls on wiretaps and initiative and referendum carried by a wide margin.

The SDEC also gave official notice Saturday that its state convention would be Sept. 10-11 in Dallas.

Study finds no link between caffeine and birth defects

NEW YORK (AP) — Researchers say they have found no evidence that caffeine use by pregnant women increases the chances of birth defects in their children.

That conclusion was based on a study of caffeine use among mothers of 2,030 children born with birth defects.

It was the second study in less than two months to find no evidence linking caffeine and birth defects.

Suspicion that caffeine could be harmful attracted public attention in September 1980 when the U.S. Food and Drug Administration warned pregnant women to limit their consumption of coffee.

The warning was issued after animal experiments indicated that rats fed large doses of caffeine had an increased change of giving birth to offspring with improperly developed paws.

The FDA said its warning was issued as a precautionary measure in the absence of enough scientific evidence to be certain of the relationship between caffeine and birth defects.

Caffeine, in addition to being found in coffee and tea, is added to many soft drinks and non-prescription drugs.

The first important study of caffeine use in pregnant women was conducted by researchers at Harvard University and reported in January. The scientists examined the coffee-drinking habits of more than 12,000 women and found nothing to suggest that coffee causes birth defects.

The researchers did find, however, that many coffee drinkers were also cigarette smokers, and the study confirmed previous findings that smokers are more likely to give birth prematurely and to have smaller babies.

The new study, reported by the Boston University Drug Epidemiology Unit in today's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, surveyed mothers of 2,030 infants born with a variety of birth defects.

Shaw shili, shindig, $hakedown Saturday

Friends and supporters of State Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, will hold the "First Annual Shaw Shili, Shindig and $hakedown" Saturday night in Big Spring.

The event will begin at 7 p. m. at the Dora Roberts Community Center in Comanche Trail Park. The Shindig will feature at least 15 chili cooking teams, a clown and live music. The public is invited and admission is $12.50 per person or $25 per family.

"This is a family event," Shaw said. "We're just planning to have a lot of fun, eat a lot of good chili, listen to some good music and visit with our friends, so I hope to see a lot of folks there. And be sure to bring the kids."

"By the way," Shaw said, "I want to make it clear that I did not come up with the name for this event. The blame for that goes to a friend of mine who shall remain anonymous."

"I do take credit for the fact that we will provide free Alka Seltzer for anyone who needs it — I know a lot of these people who will be cooking the chili and I figure we're better safe than sorry."

"However, I plan to sample every batch personally, so there may be a vacancy in my legislative seat by Sunday," Shaw said.

Tickets for the Shaw Shindig can be purchased at the door or by calling Kay Burns at 267-6301 Monday through Friday.

How safe are airliners in poor weather?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's investigation into the snowy crash of Air Florida Flight 90 has raised critical safety questions about the way airlines operate in snow or icy weather.

Listening to 46 witnesses during nine days of hearings, a federal inquiry panel focused repeatedly on whether the Air Florida jet that crashed, killing 78 people, was properly de-iced before it took off from Washington's National Airport.

St. Helens building toward new blast?

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — An eruption of Mount St. Helens is expected in the next three weeks and could be the biggest since 1980, scientists say.

Noting several recent earthquakes beneath the Federal safety experts say evidence and testimony gathered since the Jan. 13 crash raises a variety of questions about industry procedures used to protect against ice and snow.

Among the findings that concern investigators are:

—Widespread confusion about the chemical solution used to de-ice aircraft with no consensus among manufacturers, aircraft builders and airlines on what concentration should be used or how long the mixture remains effective.

—Responsibility as to who makes the final inspection of an aircraft was found to be unclear in the Air Florida case and may be at other airlines as well. In the case of Flight 90, the problem was compounded because another airline handled ground maintenance and de-icing — a practice used by an increasing number of carriers.

At the close of the public hearings Friday, Francis McAdams of the National Transportation Safety Board told reporters he expects the board to determine that "a chain of events" led to the Air Florida crash.

Many of those events involved the de-icing procedures and how both ground personnel and the flight crew perceived the potential danger the severe weather posed.

But testimony showed no agreement on what kind of chemical de-icing solution to use. American Airlines suggests a 25 percent solution of glycol and water. But Union Carbide, which produces glycol, suggests a mixture twice as strong.

At certain temperatures, American's manual calls for ground crews to use the solution to clear away snow.

However, a manual by the Boeing Co., which manufactured the 737 aircraft that crashed, warns against using the mixture for snow removal, saying it can mix with the snow and freeze.

Other testimony showed confusion about how long any solution, whatever the strength, will protect a plane against snow and ice accumulation.

Dr. Miller appointed TDMHMR commissioner

The new commissioner of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation (TDMHMR) is Gary E. Miller, M.D. He was appointed to the post by the Texas Board of MHMR.

Dr. Miller, a psychiatrist certified by the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology, presently is the director of the New Hampshire Mental Health and Developmental Services Agency.

He has assumed his duties in Austin directing Big Spring State Hospital and the other 37 MHMR facilities.

The 46-year-old Dr. Miller is a former TDMHMR deputy commissioner for mental health services, serving in that capacity from 1967 to 1970. Previously, he was the director of the Rio Grande State Center for Mental Health and Mental Retardation, Harlingen, from 1966 to 1967.

Dr. Miller attended the University of Texas at Austin from 1953 to 1956 and received his doctor of medicine degree from The University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston in 1960.

He served his residency in psychiatry at Western Reserve University Hospital in Cleveland, Ohio, and the Austin State Hospital. After leaving the TD-

MHMR post in 1970, Dr. Miller joined the New York State Department of Mental Hygiene as a consultant and later became the assistant commissioner of the agency.

In 1972 he was appointed director of the Division of Mental Health for Georgia Department of Human Resources, serving in that post until 1974.

After two years of private practice in Atlanta, Ga., Dr. Miller was appointed director of New Hampshire's mental health and developmental services.

Dr. Miller is the author of several technical study reports and papers.

He has been on the faculties of the Emory School of Medicine, Atlanta, Ga.; the State University of New York at Buffalo, N.Y.; the University of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry, Buffalo, N.Y.; and the University of Maryland.

He and his wife, the former Karen Barrett of Buffalo, have two daughters, Anna Charis, 6, and Rebecca Elizabeth, 21 months.

Legislation fails to net boo or bark

BOSTON (AP) — No one appeared to boo, bless or bark about legislation that would require dogs in Massachusetts to wear diapers when they leave home turf.

The proposal, which would be subject to approval by communities, called for fines of $20 to $100 for owners who permit their pooches to run around with bare botoms. No fine would be levied on the first offense.

The bill was submitted to the Massachusetts Legislature by Sen. Louis P. Bertozzi of Milford at the request of a citizen.

Rep. Charles F. Flaherty Jr., D-Cambridge, chairman of the Counties Committee, said no one — human or canine — showed up for a hearing on the proposal Thursday.

Jackson jolts Concho Belle record books

SAN ANGELO — Cooper High School may have won the team honors for the day, but Big Spring's Carla Jackson was the individual star of the Concho Belle Relays here Friday.

Jackson accumulated four first place ribbons and set three meet records in the process in sending the Lady Steers to a third place finish in the meet behind Cooper and Sweetwater.

Cooper, a winner in this city last week at the Lake View Invitational, piled up 112 points to outdistance runnerup Sweetwater with 92. Big Spring scored 76, two less than last week when the Lady Steers ran at full strength.

Jackson proved again she is the class track athlete in this part of the country. She triple jumped 36-5/4 to set a new record in that field event and matched that feat with an 18-7 long jump. Her long jump was a half a foot less than last week's winner at the Lake View meet but it was better than a foot longer than the second place leap by Cooper's Carla Seldon.

Before running the 100 and 200 meters, Jackson anchored Big Spring to a second place finish in the sprint relay. Sweetwater won the event with a 49.84 with the Lady Steers right behind with a 51.09. Taking the handoffs were Teresa Smith, Tina Smith, Sylvia Randle and Jackson on the final leg.

Jackson sped to a 12.15 clocking in the 100 meters to win over Deborah McCain of Sweetwater and Sandra Green of Cooper. Next came the 200 meters, an event that Jackson does not run but did so Friday because of the absence of District 5-AAAAA record-holder Shell Rutledge.

In her debut performance, Jackson outdueled Cooper's Seldon on the tape in 25.13. Seldon was timed in 25.35 as the pair ran away from the rest of the field.

Jackson's time was a new record in that event, giving her three new marks for the meet.

A double ribbon winner for the Lady Steers was senior Elise Wheat. Wheat tossed the discus 126-8 to outthrow Gayle Stone of Sweetwater. She came back to heave the shot 36-8 to miss second place by two inches to Midland Lee's Terri Minor. Wanda Gardner of Sweetwater won the event with a 38-3 effort.

Janet Fleckenstine was fourth in the 100-meter hurdles with a 16-56. Coach Anna Ezzell reports that she had problems with the first two hurdles and could have turned in a better time. Green of Cooper won the event in 15.31.

The 800-meter relay team was sixth without Jackson. The foursome ran a 1:50.35 last week for a third place but without Jackson turned in a 1:51.09. Sweetwater ran away from its competition with a 1:46.27.

Running for Big Spring this week were Teresa Smith, Randle, Tina Smith and Paula Spears.

The 1,600-meter relay team greatly improved its time from the previous week with a 4:22.85. Last week the group ran a 4:36.0. Still, the Lady Steers did not place in the top six.

Two freshmen ran the 3,200 meters for Big Spring. Leann White ran a 14:11.44 and Dora Dominguez a 15:28.30 but did not place in the event.

Stephanie Russell ran a 2:39.20 in the 800 meters, dropping her time from a 2:44.0 last week. Jane Meyer ran a 2:42.20, bettering her time of 2:53.0 last week. Neither placed in the top six.

Russell was 10th in the 1,600-meter run with a 6:07.81, having to fight off the crowd when she got boxed in.

Ezzell was pleased with the results in the meet and is encouraged that times and distances will improve as the district meet approaches.

Both card 67's at Inverrary

George 'Burns,' Kite flies higher

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — Tom Kite, a winner only last Monday, grabbed the lead with a 5-under-par 67, while Jack Nicklaus grabbed his shoes and headed home, a victim of the cut Saturday in the second round of the $400,000 Honda-Inverrary Golf Classic.

Kite, the defending titleholder here and golf's leading money-winner last season, completed 36 holes of this rain-delayed event with a 132 total, 12-under par.

But his one-shot lead over big George Burns, who had a second-round 67 and a 133 total, was far from comfortable.

"Are you kidding?" Kite asked. "One shot with 36 to go? That's not even worth saying 'Kite's in the lead.' One shot is nothing. With 36 holes to go, five or six shots is nothing. I made up six in 18 holes last week."

"I'm pleased with the position I'm in, but I've got my work cut out for me."

But he won't have to contend with Nicklaus, the man he beat in a sudden death playoff for the Bay Hill title.

Nicklaus, in contention in every previous start this season, could do no better than a 71 and a 144 total, level par on the 7,129-yard Inverrary Golf and Country Club course.

It was not good enough to qualify for Sunday's double-round windup, a situation set up when Thursday's play was rained out.

Another casualty who took it much, much harder was Bob Proben, the young man who held the first-round lead with a 64. He blew 17 strokes higher to an 81 and was fighting back tears when he signed his card.

"Everything went wrong," he said. "Whatever I tried to do didn't work out."

Veteran George Archer held third at 134, only two off Kite's leading pace, after a 6-under-par 66.

It was two more strokes back to Hale Irwin, Andy Bean and Cal Peete at 136. Peete had a 66 in the muggy heat, Bean shot a 68 and Irwin had a 71.

The group at 137 — five strokes back with two rounds to go and very much in the chase for the $72,000 first prize — included Ray Floyd, England's Peter Oosterhuis, Cary Hallberg and Hal Sutton. Sutton and Oosterhuis each had a 67, Hallberg and Floyd 69s.

Bill Rogers, the 1981 player of the year, had a 70 and topped the big group at 138.

Kite, who had an amazing record of 21 finishes in the top 10 in 26 starts last year, is carrying on in the same vein this season. He's won once, lost in a playoff once and was third in another.

"This is fun, a good feeling," said Kite, who got his 67 without a bogey.

He scored from eight feet on the fourth hole, hit wedges to within tap-in distance on the 10th and 11th, dropped a 12-footer on the 14th and 2-putted for birdie-4 on the 15th, shaving the hole with a 20-foot eagle putt.

Greenwood falls in finals

Snook sneaks to title

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Snook and Beaumont Hebert extended their championship winning streaks Saturday and San Antonio Churchill edged Galveston Ball 75-74 in a Class 5A title game that was not decided until Carl Hilton's long shot bounced off the rim at the buzzer.

Hebert piled up 30 free throws in running past Waxahachie 76-71 for its third Class 4A championship in the last three years.

Phil King pitched in a teammate's missed shot with two seconds left in the game as Dimmitt escaped with a 60-59 victory over Linden-Kildare for the Class 3A title.

Shelbyville controlled the backboards and got 22 points from Marlon Suell in defeating Nixon 46-39 for the 2A crown.

Johnny "Clint" Thomas, a sprinter-high jumper in track, tossed in 12 points and 6-foot-3 sub Richard Long also had 12 as Snook won the Class A championship over Midland Greenwood 52-45 for its fifth title in a row and eighth in 15 tournament appearances, a schoolboy record.

Ball trailed by as many as 13 in the first half against Churchill but pulled to 75-74 on the long-range shooting of John Chaney and Oscar White. With 14 seconds left, Jon Moseley of Churchill missed the front of a one-and-one free and Ball rebounded.

The ball went to Hilton in the right corner, a UH tight end recruit in football, and he tossed it up but it bounced off the rim and Churchill rebounded as time expired.

It was the first time a San Antonio team has won the big-school basketball division since 1967, when Lee won the title. It was the first tournament appearance for Churchill and Ball.

Chaney, launching 25-footers from the field, scored 18 points for Ball before fouling out with one minute and 13 seconds remaining. White had 17.

Gary Heyland was high for Churchill with 22. Moseley scored 18 and Pat Hymel 14.

Rahn Bailey, who had only 12 points in Hebert's semifinal victory over Bay City, exploded for 31 and grabbed 17 rebounds to lead both teams in both categories.

Sophomore Todd Alexander scored 24 for Waxahachie and his brother, Deon, tossed in 15. But the Indians fell far short on free throws, making five of nine.

Waxahachie was whistled for 32 fouls, with starters Todd Alexander and Adrian Frazier fouling out. Hebert had only 11 fouls.

Shelbyville outrebounded Nixon 52-33, and only Carlton McKinney of Nixon had any success shooting against the Shelbyville team, tallying 21 points. Nixon shot a poor 28.6 percent from the field and made only three free throws to 12 for Shelbyville.

Thomas, an all-tournament player last year, scored on a variety of shots including a soaring slam dunk, grabbed eight of his team's 25 rebounds and blocked several Greenwood shots. Snook shot a blistering 63.4 percent from the field but did not make a single free throw as it had only one chance from the line.

Long, who did not play in Snook's 44-38 semifinal victory over Grayford Thursday, surprised Greenwood with his scoring, including three first-half goals in just over two minutes.

Stuart Burleson, a 6-1 junior who is the son of coach Hershel Burleson, pitched in 31 points for Greenwood.

Steers tumble in tourney

ABILENE — Abilene High erupted for five unearned runs to break open a tight game and eliminate Big Spring from the Abilene Invitational Baseball Tournament with a 10-2 victory Friday afternoon.

Big Spring opened the tournament with a 14-8 loss to Weatherford and then pounded Permian 15-1 to remain alive. The loss to Abilene was the second to the Eagles already this year and dropped the Steers below the .500 mark with a 6-7 record.

Lubbock Coronado won the two-day tourney with a 10-7 victory over Abilene Cooper. Abilene High finished third.

Big Spring led Abilene 2-1 going into the bottom of the third inning when Alan Trevino and Blake Rosson walked and scored on Tommy Olague's double.

The Eagles grabbed the lead in the bottom of the inning and then broke the game wide open in the fifth. With runners at the corners and two out, third baseman David Anguiano overthrew first after fielding a ground ball and the Eagles went on to score five times and take an 8-2 lead.

Jinx Valenzuela was tagged with his third loss of the year.

Weatherford led 6-0 before Big Spring scored twice in the second. Marty Rodriguez and Oscar Limon drove in the runs but the Steers did not score again until the Kangaroos had built a 12-2 lead.

Bit Spring erupted for five runs in the fifth. A double by Tom Cudd scored one run. Anguiano sacrificed in another, Rodriguez and Marcus Armendariz drove the final runs.

Anguiano drove in the final run in the sixth with a single.

Mike Wallace homered for Weatherford as the Kangaroos collected 16 basehits off loser Adam Rodriguez.

"We decided to play ball," said coach Frank Ibarra of the big win over Mojo. The Steers ripped 16 hits with Rodriguez going 3-for-3, Rosson 3-for-4 and Limon, Olague and Valenzuela getting two hits each.

Domingo Rubio won his third game with a five-hitter, striking out four and walking just two.

It's now about 10:15 Saturday night and the usual perspiration is starting to drip as three Herald staffers desperately try to deliver the loyal readers of the Big Spring area a Sunday newspaper.

News editor Walt Finley has just exclaimed, "I'm beginning to see the light at the end." Meanwhile, this sports writer thumbs through a listing of the NCAA tournament semifinals and finals matchups and wonders how the heck Boston College gets in the Midwest Regionals and Georgetown winds up in the West.

The NCAA probably called on the same folks that put Tampa Bay in the National Football Conference bruiser division with Minnesota, Detroit, Chicago and Green Bay. Somehow it's all supposed to make sense. But not to me.

Then again, Saturday, as a whole, made little sense. The fun began when the Associated Press teletype machine malfunctioned again. While the sports world turned, Big Spring stood still.

What happens in a case like this is the sports comes directly to us over tapes. Only by running these tapes (thin paper with funny holes in it) through the computer can we see just what's going on in the world. And since everything has to run, even stories such as the three-legged camel race in Saudi Arabia, that are not needed, there is no time to set the copy in different size type.

This may not make much sense to you but it definitely provides a challenge for the person trying to design a page.

To further complicate the matter, this sports writer has a terrible pain in the lower right corner of his mouth. The kind dentist he sought out Friday prescribed some painkillers but warned they may cause drowsiness. The choice — fall asleep on the desk while sizing a picture of Georgetown's "Sleepy" Floyd or work with a jaw hurting like it had been tagged by a good Larry Holmes uppercut.

Larry Holmes won out. I should be thankful that this slump we're in happened this weekend and not next. Looking ahead on the agenda, the ABC Relays and a baseball doubleheader between Big Spring and Brownfield are ready for next Saturday. Frank Ibarra has already warned me that mixing track and hardball usually results in a good duststorm for these parts.

Which reminds me, I still haven't had my cable hooked up. I'm not too big on the telly but can you believe I haven't had my set on for the past month. That's incredible! Oh, sorry Fran. I'll have to get it turned on for the NCAA finals, though. Look for Carolina, the Cavs, Mizzou and Fresno in the final.

One more thing. If you are looking for a little action, come on out to the big pow-wow between the softball-hardball folks and city officials at 5 p.m. Monday at City Hall. I was going to Abilene to listen to George Plimpton but this promises to be more interesting. I like those Little League mothers. Get them fired up and watch out.

And here's a late note off the phone. Lubbock Coronado won the Abilene Invitational Baseball Tournament, going undefeated and knocking off Cooper. So what, you ask. Well, Coronado has lost just one game in the first dozen or so they've played. That loss was Wednesday to ... our Steers.

NCAA Tournament

• No. 1 North Carolina survives scare

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — James Worthy's only points of the second half helped top-ranked North Carolina hold off upset-minded James Madison 52-50 Saturday in a second-round game of the NCAA East Regional basketball tournament.

Worthy, who finished with 15 points, connected on a three-point play with 57 seconds left to widen the Tar Heel lead to 50-46. After James Madison lost the ball on a foul, Worthy converted two more free throws with 34 seconds remaining to extend North Carolina's advantage to 52-46.

James Madison refused to quit, however, and two free throws by Charles Fisher closed the margin to 52-48 with 27 seconds left.

North Carolina lost possession when Matt Doherty failed to handle a long pass from Jimmy Black, but got a reprieve when Sam Perkins was fouled with 16 seconds left. Perkins missed the first of a one-and-one and kept the Dukes in the contest.

The crushing blow came when Dan Ruland's pass bounced off Keith Bradley's hands and rolled out of bounds.

After Black missed the front end of a one-and-one, Linton Townes established the final score with a jumper at the buzzer.

North Carolina got off to a sluggish start but managed to shoot 59 percent in the first half, while James Madison shot 61.1 percent.

North Carolina, which now is 28-2, got 17 points from Perkins. Ruland, Fisher and Townes scored 12 points each for James Madison, which ended its season at 24-6.

• Marquette tumbles to No. 5 Missouri

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Ricky Frazier hit 20 points, center Steve Stipanovich added 19 and No. 5 Missouri used late free throws to stop Marquette 73-69 in the second round of the NCAA Midwest Regional Saturday.

Missouri meets Houston, 23-7, in the semifinals of the Midwest Regional in St. Louis Friday. Houston eliminated No. 10 Tulsa, 78-74, in the other second round game at Oral Roberts University Saturday.

Missouri used a 13-3 spurt midway through the second half to jump to a 56-43 lead over the Warriors with 11:34 left. But Marquette guard Glenn Rivers keyed a Warrior comeback that brought the team to within one point at 60-59 with 5:34 remaining.

The Big Eight Champion Tigers went into a delay offense at that point and hit 13 of 16 free throws in the closing minutes.

Missouri, now 27-3, hit 62 percent from the field and 27 of 34 free throws, but was hurt by 24 turnovers to just 10 for Marquette, which ended the season 23-9.

Marquette, led by Rivers' 18 points, shot 32 percent from the field in the first half, but 18 Missouri turnovers in that period kept the margin to 35-30 at intermission.

Michael Wilson had 11 points and Dwayne Johnson 10 for Marquette.

Prince Bridges scored 15 for Missouri, while forward Marvin McCrary had 11 for the Tigers.

In the earlier contest, Houston guard Rob Williams sparked the Cougars with 16 of his 26 points in the second half as the team upset Tulsa.

• Wyoming falls hard to No. 6 Georgetown

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Eric Smith and Eric "Sleepy" Floyd extinguished a late Wyoming surge as sixth-ranked Georgetown claimed a 51-43 victory over the Cowboys in the second round of the NCAA West Regional basketball tournament Saturday.

The victory moved Georgetown, seeded first in the West, into the regional semifinal in Provo next Thursday against the winner of Saturday's West Virginia-Fresno State second-round game.

Wyoming center Chris Engler, the Cowboys' leading scorer with 14, hit a basket with 1:43 remaining to make it 46-43 for Georgetown. But that was Wyoming's last basket.

Floyd made a basket and a foul shot and Smith hit two foul shots to keep the game out of reach. Wyoming threw the ball away twice and guard Mike Jackson missed a jumper with 49 seconds remaining.

Wyoming was plagued throughout the game by turnovers resulting from Georgetown's tight full-court press. The Hoyas forced 18 Cowboy turnovers.

Georgetown, the Big East champion at 27-6, had drawn a bye in the first round, while Wyoming was beating Southern California 61-58 Thursday.

The Western Athletic Conference champions, unranked and seeded eighth in the tournament, finished their season at 23-7.

• No. 9 Memphis St. upends Wake Forest

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Keith Lee's three-point play with 2:27 remaining proved to be the winning basket as ninth-ranked Memphis State downed No. 18 Wake Forest 56-55 in a second-round basketball game of the NCAA East Regional in Charlotte Saturday.

John's-Alabama game. Memphis State advanced to the regional semifinals against the winner of Sunday's Northeastern-Villanova game.

The Tigers, 24-4, trailed by as many as seven points early in the second half, but clawed their way back to a tie at 47 on a three-point play by Otis Jackson with 10:45 left.

The score was tied three more times in the next six minutes, due in part to a slowdown employed by the Tigers. Wake Forest and free throw gave Memphis State a 56-53 lead, but John Toms countered for the Demon Deacons with a 15-footer at the 1:30 mark to cut it to the final margin.

The score was tied three times in the first period, the latest at 26 with 8:32 left. At halftime, the Deacons held a 38-34 advantage.

Lee finished with 18 points, Bobby Parks added 12 and Phillip Haynes 11 for the Tigers. Wake Forest, which finished at 21-9, got 14 points from reserve Anthony Teachey and 13 from Guy Morgan.

James Worthy, who finished with 15 points, connected on a three-point play with 57 seconds left to give the Tar Heels a 50-46 lead in the first game. After James Madison lost the ball on a foul, Worthy converted two more free throws with 34 seconds remaining to extend North Carolina's advantage to 52-46.

• Williams, Cougars upset No. 10 Tulsa

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Guard Rob Williams ignited the Houston attack with 16 of his 26 points in the second half as the Cougars upset No. 10 Tulsa, 78-74, in the second round of the NCAA Midwest Regional Saturday.

Houston, 23-7, advances to the regional semifinals in St. Louis Friday. No. 5 Missouri played Marquette in the second game at Oral Roberts University Saturday.

The Cougars built their lead to 57-43 with 14 minutes left and used a half-court press to shut down Tulsa's attack in the last 10 minutes.

However, the Hurricane was able to close on Houston by hitting 13 of its final 17 points on free throws.

Paul Pressey, who had 16 points and 12 rebounds for Tulsa, hit Tulsa's second field goal of the last 10 minutes as time expired to reduce the final margin.

Williams, who hit 10 of his 15 field goal attempts, scored 11 straight points midway through the second half to stave off Tulsa's repeated comeback attempts before a home crowd of 10,775.

Tulsa, which ends the season 24-6, led only once in the contest on the game's opening free throw by Bruce Vanley. The score was tied at 15-15 and 21-21 before Houston took a 36-31 advantage into the dressing room.

The Cougars, Southwest Conference runners-up, ramblled to a 48-35 lead with a 12-4 spurt to open the second half and Tulsa could get no closer than five points until Pressey's final shot.

Houston, a team fond of fast breaks, commenced a delay game with 30:30 remaining and did not score for 5 minutes. But expert ball handling and a swarming defense also kept Tulsa's attack off balance in the closing minutes.

Steve Harris came off the bench to score 15 for Tulsa while Greg Stewart added 13 and Mike Anderson had 11. Forward Clyde Drexler added 17 points. Lynden Rose had 12 for the Cougars.

• No. 11 Fresno tips No. 14 W. Virginia

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Rod Higgins scored 18 points and Tyrone Bradley had five in the final 1:26 to power 11th-ranked Fresno State to a 50-46 victory over No. 14 West Virginia in the second round of the NCAA West Regional Basketball Tournament Saturday.

The victory moved Fresno State, 27-2, into a West semifinal game Thursday against sixth-ranked Georgetown, which edged Wyoming 51-43 earlier Saturday.

With the score tied at 40, Bradley scored a layup and Higgins hit two free throws to give the Bulldogs a four-point edge with 1:07 remaining.

After a Mountaineer foul shot, Bradley sank two free throws with 46 seconds remaining to make it 46-41.

West Virginia guard Greg

Jones, who finished with 17 points, hit a short jumper but Higgins put the game away with two more free throws with 27 seconds left.

Jones' jumper at the buzzer followed single free throws by Fresno State forward Bobby Davis and Bradley.

Fresno State managed a six-point lead in the first half, but West Virginia came back to tie the score at 27 at intermission. West Virginia owned a four-point margin at 33-29 early in the second half.

Bradley finished with 11 points. Forward Lester Rowe had 14 points for the Mountaineers, which ended the season at 27-4.

In the earlier contest, Georgetown, paced by Eric Smith and Eric "Sleepy" Floyd, survived a late Wyoming surge to hold on to the victory.

• No. 20 Cardinals belt Mid Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Derek Smith scored 17 points and Jerry Eaves led a pressing defense that sparked 20th-ranked Louisville to an 81-56 victory over Middle Tennessee State in the second round of the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball tournament Saturday.

Indiana, the defending national champion, tangled with No. 17, Alabama-Birmingham in the second game of the twin bill.

Louisville, 21-9, advances to next week's regional semifinals in Birmingham, Ala., where the Cardinals will meet the winner of Sunday's game between Minnesota and Tennessee-Chattanooga.

Middle Tennessee, which upset Kentucky here Thursday night, jumped to a quick 12-5 lead over the Cardinals before Louisville went to its full-court press. The Cardinals took a 16-14 lead when Eaves stole an inbound pass and converted it into a three-point play.

The Blue Raiders fell back by six, but rallied for a 20-20 deadlock before Charles Jones took the 1980 national champions ahead to stay at 22-20 with two free throws six minutes before halftime.

The Cards led 30-22 at intermission, stretched that margin to 46-30 four minutes into the second half and held its biggest lead at 30 points, 80-50, in the closing minutes.

Eaves added 13 points, Poncho Wright 12 and Jones 11 for Louisville.

Jerry Beck, two-time Ohio Valley Conference player of the year, had 22 points and Rick Campbell 12 for Middle Tennessee, ending at 22-9.

REACHING HANDS — Steve Harris (20) and Greg Stewart (33), both of Tulsa University, try to put the squeeze on Houston's Lynden Rose (00), as the trio try for control of the ball during their game Saturday in Tulsa. Houston beat the Hurricane 78-74, and will continue on in the NCAA Midwest Regionals, which move to St. Louis, next week.

NIT Roundup

Orangemen super tough at home

By The Associated Press

Syracuse was left in the shadows when four other Big East teams went to the NCAA basketball tournament. But the tough competition of their own conference may stand the Orange in good stead in the National Invitation Tournament.

The first round ended Friday with Maryland defeating Richmond 66-50, Virginia Tech downing Fordham 69-58, Mississippi beating Clemson 53-49, Tulane an 83-72 winner over Louisiana State, and Cal-Irvine edging San Diego State 70-69.

The NIT's only first-team All-American, Cal-Irvine's Kevin Magee, suffered a badly cut hand while trying to stop a dunk by San Diego State's Michael Cage.

The injury knocked out of the game early in the second half, after he had scored 20 points, and there was little optimism about his playing again in the tournament.

beating LSU. It was also the first victory for the Green Wave in 18 games with LSU.

The victory put Tulane, 18-8, into the second round against Nevada-Las Vegas, 20-8, which romped to an 87-61 opening round victory over Murray State on Thursday.

Maryland opened its NIT bid by coasting behind 21 points by freshman Adrian Branch, spoiling Richmond's first-ever postseason game.

With Tony Bruin and Erich Santifer scoring 19 points apiece and a Carrier Dome crowd of 16,435 urging them on, the Orange breezed to an 84-75 victory over St. Peter's Friday night in an NIT first-round game.

That set the stage for a Monday night clash at Syracuse in which the Orange, 16-12, will meet Bradley, 22-10, a 76-65 winner Thursday over American.

Playing in the Carrier Dome is no bargain for a visiting team, as St. Peter's Coach Bob Dukiet was the first to admit.

The Dome is the eighth wonder of the world, and I think the fans here are the ninth," he said after his Peacocks ended their season at 20-9.

Tulane made the first postseason appearance in its 72-year basketball history a successful one, getting 19 points from Paul Thompson and 18 from John Williams in beating LSU. It was also the first victory for the Green Wave in 18 games with LSU.

Tax & financial planning

IRS AUDITS (Don't Lose Sleep)

The IRS has three levels of examination (audits) of income tax returns. All are intended to review the facts and see that your return is properly filed. The agent is not to harass or belittle you. If you have filed your return with the correct numbers, don't lose sleep over an upcoming audit.

The simplest of the audits is a "direct correspondence." You may be asked to send photo copies of a few specific checks or documents.

An "office audit" will often be more detailed and may require you to take certain records to your nearest IRS office. A call to the examining officer for more information on what to bring could save you an extra trip.

The "field audit" is held at your home or place of business. It usually involves a full review of all major income and expense items. If you have income from a partnership or small corporation, they may also be brought into the audit.

The IRS has had excellent results by letting their computer select which returns are to be audited and most likely to produce added revenue for the government. The computer checks for certain "norms" in your return depending on the nature of your business, income level, etc. If you have abnormal figures such as excessive interest expense, high medical bills, etc., you should attach a photocopy of the document supporting the deductions. Such documentation may keep the IRS from contacting you.

If you receive correspondence from the taxing authorities, respond timely. Ignoring their first few notices will not gain you favor when you finally meet, and you will.

MAKING HIS MOVE — Suleiman Nyambui of the University of Texas at El Paso, begins to make his move around Villanova's Ross Donoghue during the finals of the Mile Run at the NCAA Indoor Track Championships Saturday in Pontiac, Mich. Suleiman won the race with a time of 4:00.65.

UTEP again runs to Indoor crown

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Durable Suleiman Nyambui rallied to win the mile for the fourth consecutive year and easily captured the two-mile for the third time, leading the University of Texas-El Paso to its third straight title in the NCAA indoor track and field championships.

The Miners, winning the crown for the seventh time in nine years, got all their points from foreigners for the second year in a row. They collected 67 points, far ahead of runner-up Arkansas, which had 30 points.

Nyambui, a 29-year-old Tanzanian, raised his record total of NCAA victories to 13, including seven in eight indoor races — his only defeat was to Brigham Young's Doug Padilla in the two-mile last year. He took the mile in 4 minutes, 65 hundredths of a second, and about 1 1/2 hours later came back and cruised to victory in the two-mile in 8:38.91.

Nyambui, a former school teacher, is the first athlete to win the same event four times in the NCAA indoor meet.

Texas-El Paso's other points Saturday came from two-time defending champion Bert Cameron of Jamaica, who finished third in the 440; George Mehale of South Africa, the runner-up in the 880; Milt Otley of Canada, who tied for second in the high jump; Gidamis Shabanga of Tanzania, the fourth-place finisher in the two-mile and Fabian Whyms of The Bahamas, the fifth-place finisher in the 60-yard dash.

The Miners also got first places in two finals Friday, from three miler Gabriel Kamau of Kenya and weight thrower Tore Johnsen of Norway.

Points were scored on a 10-8-6-4-2-1 basis.

Meanwhile, three meet records were broken.

In one of the biggest upsets of the day, sophomore Rod Richardson of Texas A&M beat Houston's Stanley Floyd, owner of the world indoor best, in the 60-yard dash in 6.07. Richardson's time broke the meet record of 6.12 set by Greg Edmond of Houston in 1977 and tied by Curtis Dickey of Texas A&M in 1980.

In the high jump, Leo Williams of Navy erased the NCAA record of 7-feet, 5 1/2 inches that he set last year, clearing 7-5 3/4 and matching his personal best.

And in the mile relay, Oklahoma, with a time of 3:11.07, and six other teams bettered the meet record of 3:13.64 set by Mississippi State in Friday's semifinals. Entering this meet, the NCAA record had been 3:14.0 by Seton Hall in 1974 in Cobo Arena's 11-lap track.

'Different' DePaul set for action

DALLAS (AP) — DePaul Coach Ray Meyer says a different Blue Demon team will take the floor in the NCAA Midwest Regionals Sunday than the one that has folded in the playoffs the last two seasons.

"We've struck out twice, but we don't plan to strike out tomorrow," Meyer said Saturday. "We won't come out flat or lackadaisical ... we went into our games the last two years by not respecting our opponent."

The No. 2 ranked Blue Demons, who are 26-1, with their only loss to UCLA at the start of the season, play upstart Boston College at 3:38 p.m. in the second-round game.

In the opener, No. 12 ranked Arkansas and Kansas State tangle at 12:39 p.m. for the right to advance to the Midwest finals next week in St. Louis.

Kansas State, 22-6, coasted through a Friday night 77-68 victory over outmanned Northern Illinois to setup a meeting with Arkansas, which stands at 23-5. Boston College, 20-9, survived a San Francisco rally for a 70-66 first-round victory.

Meyer said the current version of DePaul is "more intense. We realize that when you get to the playoffs, you have to give 100 percent. We've worked hard for two weeks."

"In the past, we just thought that all we had to do was to show up and we would win," he said. "Now, we know it takes a real effort to win."

Kansas State Coach Jack Hartman said Saturday that although Arkansas is a quicker team, the Wildcats have more size.

"(Arkansas Coach) Eddie Sutton and I come from the same school of basketball in theory," said Hartman.

Exhibition Roundup

Rangers, Astros win big

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Rookie third baseman Wayne Tolleson, taking advantage of Buddy Bell's sore shoulder, collected three of Texas' 15 hits here Saturday afternoon as the Rangers pounded Kansas City 7-1 in exhibition baseball play.

Tolleson made six fine defensive plays Friday against Baltimore when he replaced Bell, a Gold Glove third baseman currently nursing a sore shoulder.

Frank Tanana and Steve Comer each tossed three shutout innings, with Tanana picking up the win as the Rangers lifted their exhibition record to 3-2.

The Royals are 2-3 this spring. Their only run was unearned, coming off relief pitcher Danny Darwin in the eighth.

Larry Gura gave up the first two Texas runs and took the loss, although the Rangers pounded rookies Scott Brown and Jeff Schatzinger for 13 hits and five runs in the final five innings.

Houston 8
Los Angeles 3

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Danny Heep hit a three-run homer and a two-run single Saturday to lead the Houston Astros' 8-3 exhibition baseball win over Los Angeles.

Both Heep's blasts came off Dodger starter Burt Hooton, who took the loss. His first-inning homer gave the Astros a 3-0 lead and his bases-loaded single in the fourth highlighted a four-run inning.

Los Angeles catcher Mike Scioscia and center fielder Ken Landreaux each had two hits for the Dodgers.

Nauratilova gains finals

DALLAS (AP) — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova had no trouble Saturday with unseeded Kate Latham, whipping the Californian 6-1, 6-1 and advancing into the finals of the $200,000 Avon Championships of Dallas women's tennis tournament.

Navratilova will meet the winner of the other Saturday night semifinals match — fifth-seeded Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia against Italy's unseeded Sabina Simmonds — in the Sunday championship match.

Navratilova, ranked No. 2 in the world, disposed of Latham in slightly more than an hour, in sharp contrast to her Friday night struggle with Wendy Turnbull that went to three sets, including two tiebreakers.

"She didn't give me as much trouble as Wendy," Navratilova said of Latham. She also warned the rest of the women's tour that her game is coming back into shape, after a two-week layoff for a Superstars competition.

Latham tried to use pacing and placement against Navratilova, but was unable to overcome the veteran's exceptional mobility.

"Well, a player has to have pace to beat Martina," Latham said. "She runs well, she gets balls you don't expect her to get. She's No. 2 and that's why. She still works hard on her game."

"When you don't play for a few weeks, the serve is the first thing that goes. But it was a little better tonight," she said. "I think I'm playing better than in 1978 when I was No. 1. My record has been really good. I don't expect to have any lapses like I did last year."

Medley relay, Loyd score for Steers

LUBBOCK — The Big Spring boys' 200 medley relay set a school record in swimming to a sixth place finish at the regional Class AAAAA swim meet finals here Saturday.

Todd Loyd was sixth in the 100 yard breaststroke and combined with the medley finish, the Steers picked up three points at the meet. Of the 32 teams participating, only 15 scored said coach Harlan Smith.

El Paso Eastwood piled up 65 points to win the boys division while Division 5-AAAAA champ Midland outpointed Amarillo to win the girls division. Midland was third and Permian fourth in the boys race to state.

The foursome of Speight Grimes, Loyd, Tim Plew and Chris Batchelor swam to a 1:49.5 clocking for sixth place. Of the four, Plew and Grimes return for a final swim season next year.

Loyd was timed in 1:05.3 for 100 yards, giving him his best time for that distance this year.

Smith was pleased with the performances of the 10 swimmers he took to the meet and was happy that Big Spring was able to score against some tough competition. Here are point totals for the top six teams in each division:

Boys: 1) El Paso Eastwood 65; 2) Amarillo 57; 3) Midland 30; 4) Permian 23; 5) El Paso Irving 22; 6) Amarillo Tascosa 14.
Girls: 1) Midland 57; 2) Amarillo 51; 3) El Paso Coronado 47; 4) Pampa 24; 5) Monahan 18; 6) El Paso Austin 12.

She also picked up a second place medal in the 25 yard backstroke, fourth place ribbon in the 25 yard butterfly and sixth place in the 25 yard breaststroke. All awards came in the eight and under division.

Big Spring was well represented at the meet with five boys joining Missy at the meet.

Rockets blast off in Portland victory

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Moses Malone scored 49 points, 22 in the fourth quarter, as the Rockets erased an early deficit and rolled to a 112-107 National Basketball Association victory Saturday over Portland.

The Rockets began sluggishly and fell behind by 13 points early in the second quarter as the Trail Blazers rolled to a 40-27 lead.

Houston then started a rally, outscoring Portland 20-4 over a six-minute span and took a 47-44 lead with 2:28 to go in the half.

The Rockets then relaxed once again, Portland's Jim Paxson hit three straight baskets and the Blazers led at the half 52-51.

Houston took a 10-point lead at 84-74 into the fourth quarter and Malone, who also grabbed 12 rebounds, almost single-handedly pushed back a Portland rally.

The Blazers cut Houston's lead to 98-97 with four minutes to play but Malone hit 12 of Houston's final 14 points to secure the victory.

Mychal Thompson led Portland with 24 points while Kelvin Ramsey added 18. Elvin Hayes supported Malone with 20 points and Mike Dunleavy added 12 for Houston.

DALLAS (AP) — Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton put in a plug Saturday for good friend Kansas State Coach Jack Hartman in the University of Texas' search for a basketball coach.

Abe Lemons was fired as head basketball coach this week.

"If I was DeLoss Dodds (Texas' athletic director), I would be camped on his doorstep," said Sutton of Hartman. "It would be a loss to Kansas State but a great thing for Texas."

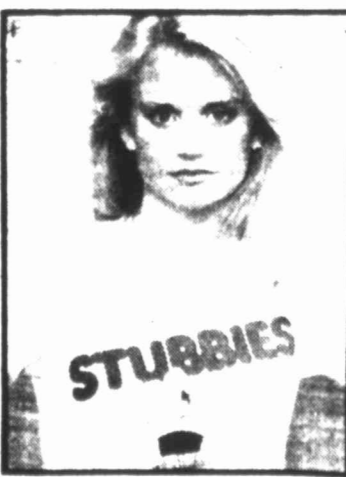

Hartman already has announced that he was not considering the Texas job and said he has not been contacted by Longhorn officials.

Dodds came to Texas from Kansas State.

Sutton was asked if Arkansas, which plays Kansas State and Hartman Sunday in the NCAA Midwest regionals, would continue the series against Hartman.

"If Jack goes to Texas... we have a series every year with them," he said.

Professor says county government 'all right'

COLLEGE STATION — There are a lot of things that are good about county government, according to a professor who spends much of his time studying and teaching about the subject. The problem is that county officials are too modest and don't involve the news media enough in telling about the many good things they are doing. That opinion came from Dr. Willard B. Stouffer, professor of political science at Southwest Texas State University, during an address at the recent 24th annual County Judges and Commissioners Conference here. Stouffer outlined seven major points that he said were "right" about county government:

Bush defends Reagan policies

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP) — Vice President George Bush says recent criticism of President Ronald Reagan's policies makes him want to gag.

"Every morning I wake up to the news that Ronald Reagan has turned Uncle Sam into Uncle Scrooge, or that he takes pleasure in depriving school children of lunches, that he's setting civil rights back to antebellum standards, that he wants to deprive the elderly of medical care, that he's itching to go to war," Bush said Friday.

"Well, I take a deep breath and think of Texas where people don't swallow that stuff without gagging."

Bush was named "Texan of the Year" at the Texas Legislative Conference, then launched a strong defense of Reagan's policies, saying proportionately the current administration is spending more for social programs and less for the military than did Democratic President John F. Kennedy 20 years ago.

"There's been a concerted effort to paint the president as someone who delights in snatching bread from the mouths of hungry children so that a bunch of overfed generals can have more of these fancy, lethal toys to play with," Bush said. "In short, there's been an effort to convince the public that the defense budget represents the most irresponsible profligate bill the American people have been asked to foot."

"These efforts collapse — appear ludicrous — when you do something that is not often done, such as checking the facts."

Bush said that only 29 percent Reagan's 1983 budget goes to defense compared to 46 percent of Kennedy's.

Reagan's defense budget amounts to only 6.4 percent of the Gross National Product, compared to 10.1 percent in the 1950s, 8.6 percent in the 1960s, and 9.9 percent during the peacetime years from 1954 to 1962, he said.

Kennedy, regarded as a champion of the poor, spent about 29 percent of his budget on human resources, while 51 percent of Reagan's 1983 budget is earmarked for human resources, the vice president said.

WINNING LAMB — Marty Glendening of Lamesa poses with his Southdown lamb that captured first place at the Houston Livestock Show in the Southdown light weight division. The livestock show lasted March 4-7 and 1,700 lambs were exhibited in the overall competition.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas farmers are getting into the swing of spring planting at a rapid pace, says Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Planting of corn, grain sorghum and cotton is active in South Texas and the Coastal Bend, and corn and grain sorghum planting is increasing in Central Texas, he said in his weekly report on Texas agricultural activity.

Soil temperatures continue to warm up despite last weekend's cold front, and 4-inch averages (in degrees Fahrenheit) as reported by the Agricultural Weather Service are: Austin 54, Beaumont 58, Beeville 58, Corpus Christi 67, Eagle Lake 54, Dilley 64, Lavon Dam (near Dallas) 50, Longview 58, Lufkin 52, San Angelo 55, Stephenville 56, Uvalde 60, Waco 46, and Weslaco 63. The Extension Service recommends a 50-degree soil temperature for planting corn, 55 for grain sorghum and 65 for cotton.

Planting of early-season vegetables such as onions, potatoes and English peas continues over Texas as spring gardening activities increased. Some early peach trees are starting to bloom in East Texas, Pfannstiel said.

Harvesting of winter vegetables and citrus continues in the Rio Grande Valley, and carrots, brussels sprouts, cabbage, lettuce and onions are moving to market. The sugarcane harvest is nearing completion at 27,000 acres. Carrots and spinach harvesting continue in the Winter Garden, he added.

Wheat and other small grain crops are starting to respond to warmer weather but need moisture in West Texas and the plains. Farmers in North and East Texas are topdressing small grains to boost yields, he said.

Livestock conditions are fair to good, with supplemental feeding continuing although clovers and ryegrass have started to provide grazing in East Texas. Spring lambing and calving are active in most areas.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions:

PANHANDLE: Wheat is progressing with warmer weather but needs moisture; some is being irrigated. Farmers are preparing for planting. Onion planting has started in Deaf Smith County. Cattle look good, with some feeding continuing.

Snyder resident freed on bail

A Snyder man is out on bail today after posting $10,400 in bonds on three charges. Jackie Ray Childree, 30, is charged with possession of a controlled substance, no inspection sticker and a defective muffler on his vehicle.

Bonds were set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin. Bail was posted by B & M Bail Bond.

Sheriff's office records also show Pete Campos, 38, is out on $10,000 bail. Campos, of 108 Caney, is charged with theft by appropriation.

SOUTH PLAINS: Topsoil moisture is short. Land preparation is under way and onions and sugar beets will be planted soon. Cattle are being moved off wheat where a grain crop will be harvested. Wheat irrigation is under way. Cattle and ranges look good, with some supplemental feeding.

ROLLING PLAINS: Wheat is doing well with warmer temperatures and improved moisture. Farmers are topdressing small grains to boost yields. Spring land preparation continues; onions and potatoes are being planted. Cattle are improving as small grains provide more grazing. Supplemental feeding continues and calving is active.

NORTH CENTRAL: Small grains are improving but need fertilizer to boost growth and yields. Farmers continue to prepare land, with a little corn and grain sorghum being planted in some locations. Cattle feeding continues due to limited grazing.

NORTHEAST: Wheat is improving and farmers are topdressing fertilizer to boost growth. Land preparation and planting of early-season vegetables continues. Some early peach trees are blooming. Pastures continue to offer little grazing but clovers and ryegrass are making some growth. Livestock look good, with calving active.

FAR WEST: Some ginning of modulated cotton continues. Farmers are busy getting cropland in shape for spring planting, with some preplant irrigation under way. Ranges and pastures continue to look poor due to lack of moisture. Livestock feeding continues and lambing and calving are active.

WEST CENTRAL: Dry conditions continue to hamper wheat and other small grains as well as pastures and ranges. Livestock feeding continues in most counties and lambing is in full swing. Sugarcane harvesting is about complete at 27,000 acres. Broccoli, carrots, cabbage, lettuce, citrus and early onions continue to move to market. Grazing and livestock conditions are improving due to recent rains.

COASTAL BEND: Wet fields are causing some delays in planting of corn, grain sorghum and cotton. Corn and grain sorghum range from 5 to 10 percent planted, with some early planted corn up. Pasture, range and livestock conditions are improving rapidly. A large calf crop is being born.

SOUTH: Corn, cotton and grain sorghum planting is in full swing. Sugarcane harvesting is about complete at 27,000 acres. Broccoli, carrots, cabbage, lettuce, citrus and early onions continue to move to market. Grazing and livestock conditions are improving due to recent rains.

pastures and ranges are in fair to good shape, with more rain needed in some locations. Livestock feeding activities are increasing.

EAST: Land preparation and planting of such early-season vegetables as onions, cabbage, English peas, potatoes and radishes continues. Farmers are topdressing wheat and oats to boost grain yields. Livestock are in fair to good condition, with clovers starting to offer good grazing.

UPPER COAST: Most farmers are ready to plant corn and grain sorghum, but wet fields are causing some delays. Planting is under way in some counties. Home vegetable gardening is in full swing. Pastures and ranges are improving with warmer weather and recent rains.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Corn and grain sorghum are being planted in some locations although many farmers are waiting for more planting moisture. Wheat also feeds moisture for continued growth. Pastures are starting to green up with warmer weather. Spring gardening is increasing rapidly.

SOUTHWEST: Spring planting is making rapid progress following recent rains. Corn and grain sorghum planting is active in southern counties. Spinach and carrots are being harvested in the Winter Garden and a lot of onions are being replanted. Grazing is still sparse so ranchers continue to provide supplemental feed for livestock.

COASTAL BEND: Wet fields are causing some delays in planting of corn, grain sorghum and cotton. Corn and grain sorghum range from 5 to 10 percent planted, with some early planted corn up. Pasture, range and livestock conditions are improving rapidly. A large calf crop is being born.

SOUTH: Corn, cotton and grain sorghum planting is in full swing. Sugarcane harvesting is about complete at 27,000 acres. Broccoli, carrots, cabbage, lettuce, citrus and early onions continue to move to market. Grazing and livestock conditions are improving due to recent rains.

Withholding cotton plan gaining support

A new proposal for a farmer-held cotton reserve acreage reduction program is currently under consideration by U.S. Secretary John Block. The plan was presented by Cotton Pool, Inc. President Nita Gibson and area farm leaders.

The secretary has said he will make a decision on a cotton reserve program as he has this authority under the 1981 farm bill. His decision is expected within two weeks.

Border chief is not worried about lawsuit

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A Border Patrol official being sued by a group of Mexican-Americans for alleged rights violations says he is not worried about the lawsuit.

"That's what we've got the attorney general's office for," said Jack Richardson. "We'll just let them go at it."

Richardson, 52, who was meeting with his superiors Friday in Dallas, said they had not criticized him in connection with the lawsuit and, in fact, had given him commendations for the get-tough policy he instituted.

The 30-year Border Patrol veteran is the chief agent in Del Rio, but served for the past nine weeks as acting chief agent in El Paso while the search continued for a permanent chief.

During his stay in the city, he began intensified raids on the Rio Grande credited with stopping illegal entry of some 20,000 aliens, undercover work that broke three alien smuggling rings and raids on businesses believed to employ illegal aliens.

Raids on several El Paso taverns Jan. 30 led to a lawsuit being filed Thursday in U.S. District Court by the El Paso Legal Assistance Society on behalf of four Mexican-Americans who said their constitutional rights were violated by the raiding officers.

The filing of the lawsuit against Richardson, Immigration and Naturalization Service officials and city police came one day after Richardson left the El Paso post to return to Del Rio.

Richardson and other Border Patrol officials declined comment on the merits of the lawsuit, saying any comment could jeopardize the government's case in the litigation.

The lawsuit was filed for Pascual Mendoza, Roberto Luna, Jesus Hernandez Luna and Felix Castaneda, all of El Paso. Their attorneys ask the court to declare the lawsuit a class action on behalf of all Mexican-Americans in the judicial district.

In the lawsuit, the plaintiffs' encounters with the raiding officers are detailed. The attorneys contend that singling out Mexican-Americans to question about proof of citizenship is a violation of the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution, which guarantees equal protection under the law.

The lawsuit seeks a temporary restraining order and a preliminary injunction to keep the Border Patrol from continuing the raids and, after a trial, a declaratory judgment saying that the agents violated the Constitution.

Meanwhile, Richardson's successor as acting chief, deputy chief Dale Cozart, said he hopes to continue the intensity of the crackdown, although he wouldn't say whether there would be more raids on bars and businesses.

"As far as our techniques go, I don't want to say anything to aggravate this litigation," he said. "The things Mr. Richardson introduced were things that we've been doing for years, but he brought an intensity to them. I'm extremely interested in pursuing a lot of these things, especially our anti-smuggling operations."

Army College Fund may provide solution

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — With skyrocketing tuition costs and tightening restrictions on loan eligibility, many seniors may find that they are about to fight a losing battle at the college finance office. The Army College Fund may be the solution.

According to Lt. Col. Robert C. Karlseng, commander of Army recruiting activities in New Mexico and West Texas, high school graduates can accumulate a fund of up to $15,200 for serving only two years in the Army.

Qualified soldiers save from $25 to $100 of their pay each month up to a maximum of $2,400 in two years. The government will match the soldier's savings two-for-one, and the Army makes an additional grant of $8,000 to soldiers who serve for two years in selected skills. Soldiers who serve for three or more years can save up to $2,700. The government matches that two-for-one, then the Army adds $12,000, for a total of $20,100.

To qualify for the program, you must be a high school graduate, score in the upper categories on Army qualification tests, and agree to train for the skill for which you are needed most. According to Col. Karlseng, there are more than 50 selected skills, in fields as diversified as military police, armor, law, data communications and broadcasting, which will qualify soldiers for the Army College Fund Program.

Your local Army recruiting station has free copies of the Army College Fund booklet which explains the program in detail.

WELFARE COP — War assistant police chief John Van Dyke and police officer Zack Leon Mitchell believe the city's new policy of hiring laid-off men who are receiving welfare to act as police officers is working out well. Five of the southern west Virginia town's nine policemen are receiving government assistance under a "workfare" program. Van Dyke is on left.

NRC predicts 19 nuke plants to be canceled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission gave Congress a list Friday of 19 nuclear power plants under construction which the NRC staff predicted will be canceled in the next few years.

The list was disclosed as two House subcommittees met to hear commission member Peter Bradford predict a shaky future for the troubled nuclear industry. Friday was Bradford's last day on the NRC.

Since 1979, 30 nuclear plants have been canceled or deferred, with predictions of additional postponements, as costs of the plants skyrocket and the demand for power declines.

Friday was the first time the NRC staff had publicly predicted which plants it believed would be deferred.

The list of 19 plants was culled from the 74 plants that have been granted construction permits. Some of the plants on the list already have been deferred, but the NRC staff thinks they will not be built at all.

There are 72 nuclear power plants now operating. The 19 plants include Cherokee units 1, 2, and 3 in South Carolina; Clinton No. 2, Clinton, Ill.; Grand Gulf No. 2, Port Gibson, Miss.; Harris No. 2, Bonsal, N.C.; Limerick No. 2, Pottstown, Pa.; Marble Hill No. 2, Madison, Ind.; Nine Mile Point No. 2, Scrba, N.Y.; North Anna No. 3, Mineral, Va.; Phipps Bend No. 1 and No. 2, Phipps Bend, Tenn.; River Bend No. 2, St. Francisville, La.; Seabrook No. 2, Seabrook, N.H.; South Texas No. 2, Bay City, Texas; Vogtle No. 2, Waynesboro, Ga.; Hartsville Nos. B-1 and B-2, Hartsville, Tenn.; and Yellow Creek No. 2, Yellow Creek, Miss.

Five of the plants are owned by the Tennessee Valley Authority, which last week postponed construction on three other plants.

Historical panel sponsors Texas fund raising workshop

ODESSA — Each year foundations and corporations give millions of dollars in grants to support community activities and projects. With the elimination of many sources of federal funds for local programs, competition for these private grants is keen.

The Texas Historical Commission is sponsoring a spring workshop in Odessa designed to improve participants' chances for raising corporate and foundation funding. The Odessa workshop will be held March 19-20.

The seminar will cover all aspects of fund raising: where to find funding, how to approach foundations, how to write convincing project proposals. The first day of the workshop will be spent in lecture and discussion. The second day, each participant will write a grant proposal under the workshop instructor's guidance. Many of the grant applications written during earlier THC workshops were successfully funded.

Class size is limited, and the fee for the workshop is $60. For more information, contact the Texas Historical Commission, P.O. Box 12276, Austin, TX 78711, 512-475-3092.

No new trial on Chagra car forfeiture

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — El Paso lawyer Joe Chagra may never drive his forfeited $60,000 Mercedes-Benz automobile again, but at least he'll be able to call home and complain about it.

U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton ruled Thursday that Chagra cannot have another trial on the forfeiture of his vehicle to the Drug Enforcement Agency because Chagra admittedly transported cocaine in the car Aug. 30.

But Bunton granted a motion to allow Chagra to retrieve the mobile telephone bolted into the 1978 luxury automobile.

Bunton had ruled Feb. 20 that although the Dec. 15, 1981, seizure of the vehicle was the result of a failed DEA attempt to set Chagra up in a cocaine deal, the lawyer's intentions to expose the frame-up did not excuse his breaking the law by transporting a cocaine sample.

TRAVEL TIPS

CLOTHING Wear it in good health. Choose your travel wardrobe for health as well as style. Comfort is always important, so, wherever you're going, pack the kind of clothing you feel your best in. Active travelers do best without garments that restrict circulation.

For tropical areas, clothes should be light-weight and loose fitting. Natural fabrics "breathe" better and thus help to keep you cool. Light colors that reflect the sun's rays will help too, as well as a wide-brimmed hat. In some areas evenings get abruptly cooler after the sun goes down, so do bring a sweater.

If you have any doubts, consult your travel agent. Places and Pleasures — an excellent source of information on what kind of weather you can expect at various times of the year.

Sidewinders wind up in state competition

HELP! — Nikki Anderson looks like she is hanging on for dear life, but she really is attempting a sole circle dismount off the uneven parallel bars. The girls on the team practice about five and a half hours a week.

LIKE THIS, COACH? — The Sidewinders look like they are about to take off and fly. Russ McEwen and Brett Roper coach the team. Most of the girls have been involved in gymnastics for two to five years, according to McEwen. "A girl that is fairly athletic could probably make the team in a year starting from scratch," McEwen said, "but like any other team, the ones with talent will pick it up faster."

PRACTICE, PRACTICE — It takes much practice and coordination to be able to do a back walk over the balance beam as with any routine. "I've been in (gymnastics) for two years," said Dionne Stephenson, shown above. "I like the floor exercises because it is easier than most other things." The girls must practice the compulsory routines designated by the United States Gymnastics Federation. Optional routines are developed according to individual strengths.

GYMNAST — Ginger Brooks placed second on uneven parallel bars, fifth on the balance beam, sixth on floor exercises, sixth on vault and second all around at the state meet. "I like to go to the meets," she said. "I like the bars best and I kind of like the beam, but it's not my best thing."

PRECARIOUS PERCH — Kisa McEwen, daughter of coach Russ McEwen, balances on one leg while stretching out the other. Kisa placed first in floor exercises, fifth in vault and second all around in the state competition in Fort Worth.

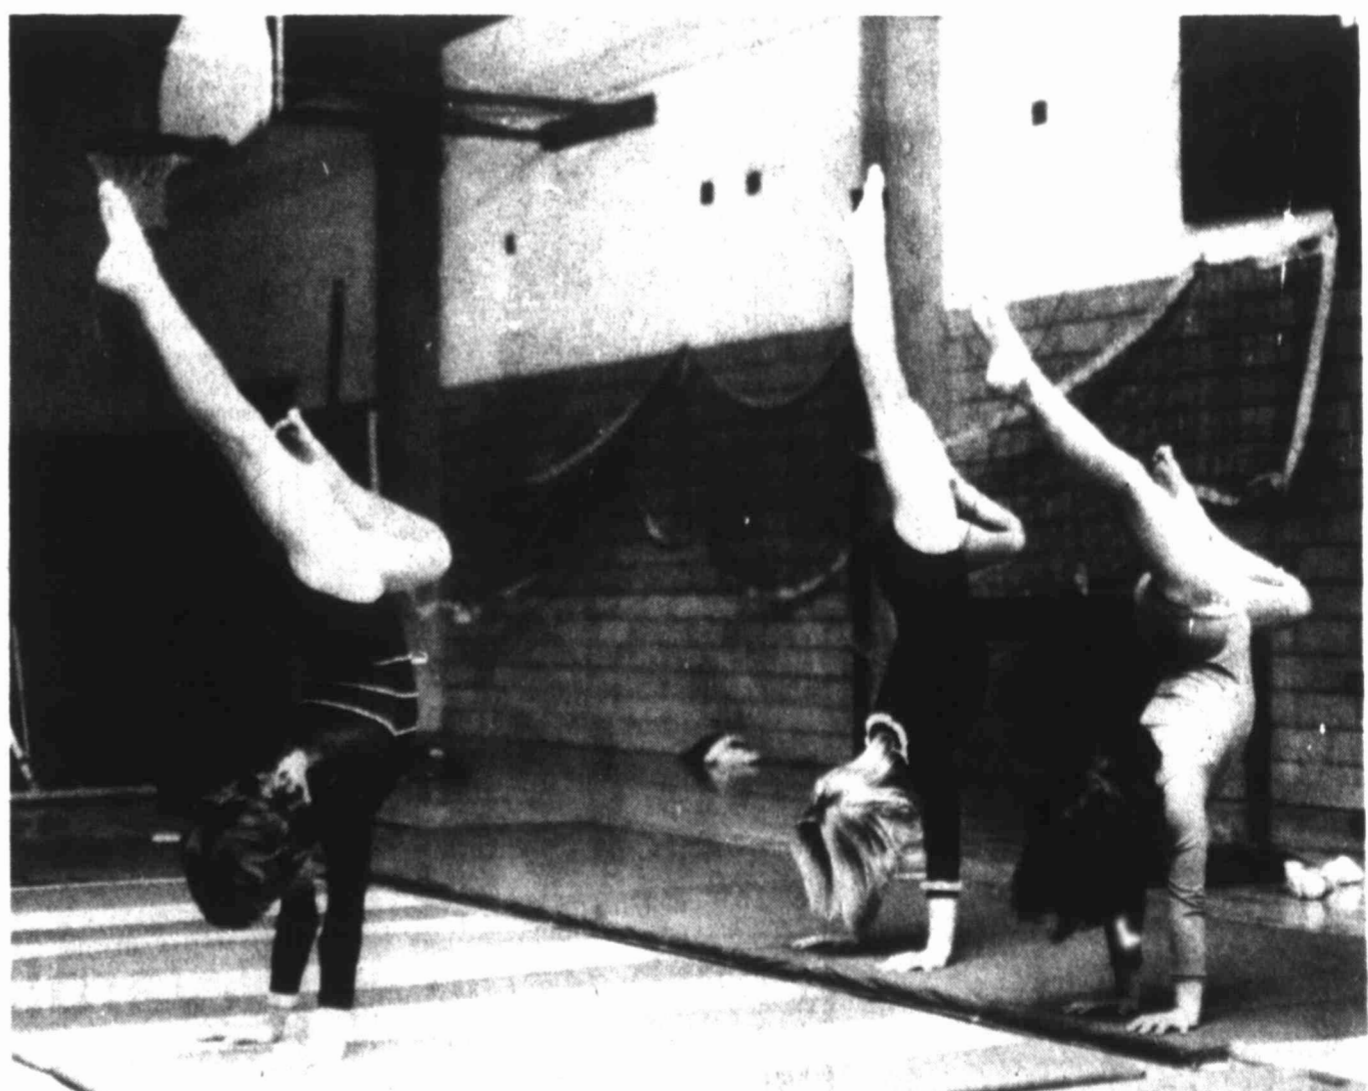

POOPED — Kisa McEwen rests and waits for instructions from her coach. The ten girls on the team range from eight to 12 years old and have competed in one meet so far. They plan to compete every month.

HELPING HAND — Russ McEwen, one of two volunteer coaches for the gymnastic team, aids Dionne Stephenson as she attempts a back walk over on the balance beam. His daughter's involvement led him into coaching for the time.

STAG — The beauty and grace of a deer is exemplified by Stacy Scoggin, Dionne Stephenson and Nikki Anderson in a handstand with a stag exercise. The girls progressed from the beginner and intermediate gymnastic classes before making the team. To make the team, they must be proficient in knowing the routines for three out of four events: uneven parallel bars, vault, balance beam and floor exercises.

Dear Abby

Mourning is private matter

DEAR ABBY: I live in a rather exclusive community for retired people, and I am constantly amazed at the aggressiveness of some of the single women here.

A nice couple in their mid-70s were here for about a year, then the wife died. The husband buried her on a Tuesday and by Thursday he had received six invitations to the Saturday dinner dance! (He showed up at the affair and accepted "condolences" between dances!)

I have already told my husband that if I should die first, unless he wants to be hounded by women, not to put my obituary in the newspaper.

Abby, isn't there a prescribed length of time that one should mourn a loved one to show respect?

FLABBERGASTED IN ARIZONA
DEAR FLABBERGASTED: The time to show "respect" is when the loved one is living. The length of time one mourns is a very individual matter. A brief mourning period does not necessarily show lack of respect.

DEAR READERS: With apologies to those of you who don't like my "moldy oldies," I'm printing a rerun of a timely item that I think will be appreciated by many:

DEAR ABBY: As a professional counselor, I encounter many people who don't know how to handle grief or the loss of a loved one. They are grieving alone because their friends are afraid to visit them. Why do friends stay away? Because they don't know what to say.

I have learned more from dying and grieving people than I have from books. Perhaps these tips on how to give support to those who are terminally ill or are struggling to cope with a tragedy or loss will be useful to your readers.

Please feel free to edit as you see fit and use in your column.

PHYLLIS W. HENDERSON, STAUNTON, VA.

1. When there's a terminally ill person in the family, everyone asks the family, "How is he?" Those who must live with that person need to hear, "How are you?" The family is hurting, yet they're treated as if they were invisible.

2. Don't worry about what to say. Speak from the heart. Or say nothing. Sometimes just hugging or holding someone can convey more than words.

3. Don't worry about what to bring someone who is very ill. Bring yourself. And give of yourself. Don't be like the person who runs in and says, "I've come to cheer you up ... I'm double-parked. Gotta run. Bye!"

4. Be there later. Chances are, their numbness will wear off long after the crisis or the funeral, but by then, everyone's gone home. Anniversaries, birthdays and holidays are hard times to be alone.

5. Don't shut the children out. If there are children in the family, listen to them, and don't hide your tears. You should teach them that tears are healing. (They are.) Ask each child if he — she wants to attend the funeral, and accept each answer as right for that child.

6. Don't stay away. Go even if you have a knot in your stomach. Go even if you're afraid you might say all the wrong things. Chances are they won't remember your words, but they'll feel your touch and remember that you came when they needed someone.

PTA nears membership goal

"We need only 242 more PTA members to meet our 1981-1982 goal." That is the word from the Big Spring Council of the Parent-Teacher Association.

Monday is the last day PTAs at College Heights, Kentwood, Marcy, Moss and Washington are accepting new members as part of the Texas PTA's spring membership campaign.

"Our 1981-1982 membership count is now well over 600,000," Connie Miller, Texas PTA president, said recently. "We need a big spring push to reach last year's 728,156 members."

Texas PTA is awarding two free trips to the national PTA convention in Nashville June 6-10. One trip will go to the PTA unit recording the largest number of additional members since Oct. 15, and one to the PTA unit showing the largest percentage increase over the previous year.

"Be part of the nation's largest child advocacy organization," urges the Big Spring Council of the Parent-Teacher Association. "Children need the PTA as much today as when it was founded in 1897."

Nationally, the Parent-Teacher Association has six to seven million members. Big Spring's five PTAs registered 1,838 members during their fall membership campaign. That was only 242 short of their goal of 2,080 members, or one PTA member for each student enrolled in the five schools.

Parents, teachers and all friends of Big Spring schools are urged to send memberships in Monday. Membership may be dropped by the local elementary schools or sent with students attending those schools.

Individual PTA memberships cost: College Heights, $1.50; Kentwood, $1.75; March, $1.75; Moss, $1.50; and Washington, $1.50.

Focus on family living

By JANET ROGERS
County Extension Agent

You can make dough ornaments

Although bread dough ornaments are currently out-of-season, I felt the information would be of reference value to many homemakers.

Several years ago, Whirlpool home economists developed an easy and fun way to make bread dough Christmas tree ornaments.

Just follow a few simple steps:

INGREDIENTS AND MATERIALS

- 2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 cup salt
- 1 cup water

Cookie cutters, cardboard patterns glass pizza or microwave plastic plate needle and small straw

yarn, ribbon or ornament hangers

In large bowl, combine ingredients. Mix thoroughly with spoon until all ingredients are moistened. Turn dough out on lightly floured surface. Keep dough covered with damp cloth or paper towel until ready to use. If dough is too sticky, add small amount of flour. If dough is too stiff, knead in additional water by teaspoons. Divide dough in half. Keep one-half in covered bowl. Roll out other half on floured surface to 3/8 inch thickness. Cut with cookie cutter or cardboard pattern. Use excess dough to add 3 dimensional trim. Moisten edge and trim, then press down.

Place on ungreased glass or plastic plate. Prick several places with a needle to allow steam to escape. Use straw to make a small hole in top of ornament.

Cook on High in microwave for 3 minute, giving dish half turn once. If ornaments are firm and not wet on bottom, cool on rack. If not firm, add more time in one minute segments.

Paint with watercolors.

When thoroughly dry, spray with lacquer. Insert yarn, ribbon or ornament hangers through top. (Makes about 3 dozen — do not eat!)

MRS. RAY FRANKLIN
...formerly Sharon Savage

Savage-Franklin

First Presbyterian Church was the setting for the March 6 wedding of Sharon Savage and Ray Franklin, Midland. The Rev. William F. Henning, pastor, officiated the 2 p.m. rite before an altar decorated with Boston ferns, baskets of pink gladioli, burgundy carnations and burgundy roses. Wedding tapers were held in spiral candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Savage, 2609 Wasson Rd. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Helen Franklin, Hickory, N.C.

Music was provided by Gene Adkins, organist, and Jay Phinney, vocalist. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal-length gown of ivory organza, which featured a keyhole neckline and a molded bodice of beaded Alencon lace. The chiffon Bishop sleeves, adorned with Alencon lace appliques, ended in lace cuffs. The skirt fell from an empire waistline into a chapel-length train edged with a lace border. The fingertip-length veil edged in Alencon lace fell from a Juliet cap.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of pink and burgundy silk roses and carnations accented by baby's breath and candlelight leaves.

Tammy Hein was maid of honor. D.L. Codianne and Cheryl Franklin were bridesmaids. Sarah Morgan was flower girl.

Gary Franklin was best man. John Mason and Gary Scarber were groomsmen. Following the ceremony, the couple was honored with a reception in the church parlor. The bride's table was covered in a burgundy colored cloth with a lace overlay. It was centered with a dried floral arrangement in a silver candelabrum accented with pink and burgundy ribbons and candles. The table featured a three-tiered cake decorated in pink and burgundy roses and topped with a bride and groom standing in an archway.

The bride attended Howard College and is employed by Forster Real Estate and Construction Company.

The bridegroom attended North Carolina State University, Greensboro, N.C., and is employed by Ingersol-Rand of Midland.

Following a wedding trip to New Orleans, the couple will make their home in Midland.

Neefe-Pant

Mollie Neefe became the bride of Vernon Pant in a ceremony held March 6 at the Barcelona Apartment's party room. The Rev. Kenneth Patrick performed the 4 p.m. rite.

Mrs. Tommy Hill Sr., daughter of the bride, was matron of honor. Russell Neefe, son of the bride, was best man.

Following the ceremony, the couple was honored with a reception in the party room. Relatives of the bride and groom and a few close friends attended.

The couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Extension Homemakers

Four Extensions Homemaker clubs met recently with Saint Patrick's themes and programs that dealt with traffic safety, women's fashions and the effects of caffeine.

Local club members are preparing for the District Six Spring Conference of Extension Homemakers to be held in Big Spring April 14.

CENTER POINT

The Center Point Extension Homemakers Club met Feb. 23 in the Kentwood Older Adult Center for a potluck dinner and workshop, and Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Ireba Griffith.

Gifts were made during the February meeting for the District Six Spring Conference of Extension Homemakers. Ditty bags, which will be given by the Chamber of Commerce, were stuffed with articles made by the seven clubs of Howard County. Merchants are donating articles for the gifts and door prizes.

Miniature felt hats are one of the items being made for prizes. A lucky number drawing will determine the winners of the gifts.

Roll was called with members telling of their favorite magazine. Rosie Lee Hill was reinstated as a member.

"The Effects of Caffeine on the Body" was the program presented by Mrs. Frankie Walker and Mrs. Zella Lindsey at the Center Point Extension Homemakers meeting Tuesday. Mrs. Fannie Kent was co-hostess for the meeting.

It was noted that a small cup of coffee can increase awareness, make one more alert, reduce fatigue and make one more able to concentrate. Eight to 10 cups daily can cause headaches, drowsiness, fast heartbeat and can cause birth defects. Decaffeinated coffee has less milligrams of caffeine than regular coffee. Brewed coffee is less harmful to the body and sugar free drinks are much lower in caffeine content.

Roll call with "why we like Texas."

Members will meet in the home of Mrs. Waymon Etchinson to pack ditty bags of gifts for the District six conference.

Plans for the September Howard County Fair will use Adams Gifts and Extract Company for registration prizes.

The Extension Homemakers are planning a county-wide chili cookout to be held in Dora Roberts Community Center.

The point system of club members will be turned in in July. These points give a summary of the years work and value derived from work.

Three cakes will be furnished to the Big Spring State Hospital March 22. Further plans for the District 6 Spring Conference were discussed. The meeting place will be the First United Methodist Fellowship Hall with registration beginning at 9 a.m. April 14.

Center Point's money raising project will be a Family Bazaar to be held May 11. Gifts will be made by the members.

Mary Leek won the door prize. Other upcoming program topics for meetings include "Energy Saving Ideas" by Texas Electric and "Closet Clutter is Clever Clean Up."

The next meeting will be held at Kentwood Older Adult Center with Fay Iron and Maude Jones as hostesses.

FAIRVIEW

Mrs. Winifred Woods hosted the March 2 meeting of the Fairview Extension Homemakers Club. Bernice Micallef drew the lucky four leaf clover to win the hostess gift.

Janet Rogers, County Extension agent, presented a program on women's fashions and how world situations play a major role in style. E. Buttereick presented the first paper dress pattern in the early 1800s.

The club's next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Bessie Bigony Tuesday.

CREATIVE HOMEMAKER

A program entitled "Planning Your Estate" written by Joy Boyd, officer of State National Bank, was presented by Bonnie Proctor. A piggy fridge was given to Mrs. Boyd as a thank you gift.

Following the program, a short business meeting was held and refreshments were served.

The club's next meeting will be held April 12 in the home of Patsy Foster. Mrs. Foster's husband will present a program on house and garden plants.

CITY

The City Extension Homemakers Club met Friday in the home of Mrs. D.D. Johnston with Mrs. Clyde Johnston as co-hostess.

Jack White, state trooper, presented a program on traffic safety during the meeting. He said speed is the big killer with more than 4700 killed in 1981. He said there are about 10 1/2 million licensed drivers in Texas. Texas' first traffic law was passed in 1907 saying no racing. Pull to the side to let horse drawn vehicles pass. The speed limit was 8 miles per hour in the city and 18 miles per hour in the country. Today there are more than 400 pages of traffic laws.

The most common cause of accidents is the violations of right of way regulations at intersections. In 1981, 98 1/2 percent of those killed were not wearing seatbelts. Statistics show chances for survival are seven times better when wearing seatbelts.

Roll call was answered by members telling of their favorite magazine.

How to Save Electricity Before It Comes To You

During late afternoon and early evening hours, the load on the nation's electrical systems usually reaches its peak. To meet the heavy demand, electric utilities often must use back-up generating equipment that is not energy efficient.

Try to use energy-intensive appliances such as dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers, and electric ovens in the early morning or late evening hours to help reduce that peak load.

This energy-saving tip is brought to you by the classified advertising department in the interest of energy conservation. To buy, sell, trade or rent, place your ad in the classified section. CALL 263-7331 Herald Classifieds Get Results! BIG SPRING HERALD

Dr. Donohue

Spurs also occur in back of heels

Dear Dr. Donohue: I used to enjoy jogging, but now I get severe pains in the rear of both heels when I try to jog. I have been X-rayed and told that I have a spur on the back of each heel. It is under the Achilles tendon and has inflamed it. Can cortisone be used? What about surgery? — T.B.

A spur can form on the back of the heel just as it can on the bottom. Wherever it occurs, a spur means the same thing. It causes inflammation of the tissues that attach to the heel bone. In your case, it is the Achilles tendon — the heel cord.

The first thing you have to do to prevent this is to remove any cause of inflammation — tight shoes or tight muscles. I don't mean you get rid of the muscles, but you condition them with exercises to stretch the calf muscles. You also have to pad the heel cord area to prevent pressure from the shoe.

Cortisone injections may help, so long as they are not injected directly into the tendon. If it is injected directly, the tendon can weaken. If it is injected around the inflammation area it will not hurt the tendon, so long as shots are not repeated too frequently.

If heel-spur pain is not being relieved by rest, supports or pads, or by stretching exercise or the cortisone, the spur may have to be removed surgically. However, please remember that, even with surgery, if you do not take care of things that caused the original spur to form, you will find yourself faced with the same problem again.

Dear Dr. Donohue: We, the biology teachers of this school, would like the explanation from you concerning athletics and the eating of sugars before athletic events. — G.S.

It's not a good practice to munch on a candy bar immediately before an athletic event. That used to be a popular way to supply fuel for an event, but it actually is counterproductive. If you take a large amount of sugar, your blood sugar rises quickly. That sounds good, because sugar is a fuel.

But the blood sugar rise also signals the pancreas to release insulin. Insulin causes blood sugar to drop. That drop added to the rapid burning of sugar from exercise actually reduces the total blood sugar to levels lower than they would be were no sugar eaten.

A good meal should be eaten three hours before an event. No large sugar load should be taken immediately before. However, it is OK to sip on sweetened juices during an event.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, MAR. 14, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to consider what new plan of action you can put into motion in which you and friends will benefit. You can gain the goodwill of others now by being more cooperative.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Talk with family members and find out what is expected of you, and thereby reinforce mutual agreements. Be happy.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Study your surroundings and make positive plans for improvement. Make right preparations for the new week.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Make good use of this day by exchanging ideas with good friends. More affection for loved one brings excellent response.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): An ideal day for establishing more harmony at home. Discuss upcoming projects with the proper persons.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Good day for studying philosophical matters that can help make your life more satisfying. Engage in hobby with congenials.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Fine day to meditate and to make plans to have more abundance in the future. Avoid one who is too talkative.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You are highly magnetic today and fine benefits can come your way. Plan the right way to handle new responsibilities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Study whatever is puzzling to you and come up with the right answers. The romantic side of life is in your favor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Know what your true desire is and make plans to attain it. You have many good friends — contact them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Gain the favor of one who has your interests at heart. Become more dynamic and gain added prestige.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Put those good ideas to work which can help you to advance in your line of endeavor. Making new contacts now is wise.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Your hunches are particularly good now and should be followed to make life easier and happier for you in the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to accomplish a great deal in life because of the ability and willingness to work hard and without complaint. Sports are a must here. There is musical talent in this chart that should be encouraged.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Dawson County to hold 'Sew It With Cotton' contest

The Mesa Cotton Promotion Council is sponsoring the 1982 "Sew It With Cotton" contest. The contest will be held at the Women's Study Club, 101 Juniper Drive, Lamesa, May 1 from 10-11 a.m. Judging will be at 5:30 p.m. April 30 and contestants will need to be there by 5 p.m.

Entries should include the person's name, address, telephone number, where material was purchased, the material brand name, fabric content, category (where garment is to be judged), who made it, who will model it, the pattern brand and number, and the salesperson's signature to verify fabric content of at least 60 percent cotton. Specify if the garment is an original design and the name of the designer.

Attach a completed description of the garment and accessories to the entry form for the narrator's use. Enclose a 3 x 5 inch sample of fabric with the entry form. The entry deadline is 5 p.m. April 24. Entries should be sent to Anderson Fabrics, Lamesa, TX. 79331 or to Alta's Fabrics, Lamesa, TX 79331.

Garments in the first 10 categories may be made by any qualified seamstress. The categories are as follows:

1. Lollipop: ages 1 through 5 — girls, dress clothes;
2. Little Esquire: ages 1 through 5 — boys, dress clothes;
3. Playtime: ages 1 through 5, play clothes;
4. Guys and Dolls: ages 6 through 12, dress clothes;
5. Sleepy time: ages 1 through 12, robes, gowns, and pajamas;
6. At Home Wear: any age, lounge and sleep wear;
7. School Time: ages 6 through 12, school clothes;

 The two categories below will be modeled by the seamstress.

11. Junior Miss: 4th grade through the 9th grade, any garment; and

12. Teen Time: sophomore, junior and senior, any garment.

An original design or commercial pattern may be used. Items must be made specifically for the "Sew It With Cotton" contest. After the contest, entries may be entered in exhibits or shows as permitted. A contestant may enter any county contest. Garments judged in one county contest may not be entered in another. Garments may not be altered or changed in any way after it has been judged in the County "Sew It With Cotton" Contest. Home economics students may enter garments made in class following category specifications listed. Only two entries are allowed per model. Each entry must be in separate categories. First, second and third prizes will be given in each category. The decision of the judges will be final.

Bonus points will be given for 100 percent cotton garments. All parts of the outer garment(s) must be at least 60 percent cotton. A small amount of trimming of another fabric is acceptable at the neck, waist, hem and sleeves. Lining, interfacing and innerfacings may be of any fabric. Cotton bonded to synthetic is not accepted, but cotton quilted to a synthetic is accepted. A portion of an ensemble may not be bought ready-made. For example, if a blouse, skirt, or similar item is needed, a ready-made will not be accepted. A portion of one ensemble (blouse, shirt, or similar item) may be used to complete another entry. Accessories are items not permanently attached such as belts, dummies, ties, scarves, detachable collars and cuffs. Accessories may be any natural or synthetic fabric, leather or plastic.

Garments will be judged according to suitability of garment to category, fit, suitability of style and fabric to model and overall eye appeal. Bonus points will be given according to degree of difficulty, detail of work and original design. Contestants' modeling ability will not be judged. In case of a tie, garments will be re-judged on the model with the entire category reshown.

Bailey Marshall, athletic director, Interscholastic League in Austin said, "Please note that all activities not sponsored by the League were removed from the Amateur Rule and the Awards Rule in September 1971. If the criteria for determining a winner in a contest does not involve a student's participation in a League activity, the Amateur and-or Awards Rules would not be violated."

Entry forms are available at Anderson Fabrics, Alta's Fabrics or T.G.&Y., all of Lamesa, or call or write: Carolyn Cohorn, 409 N. 14th, Lamesa, Texas 79331 (806) 872-2364; Becky Seago at (806) 497-6374; or Sharon Shofner, Star Rt. 2, Lamesa, Texas 79331 (806) 462-7477.

Vitamin E possible cure

With no side effects vitamin E helped cure cystic mastitis, the most common breast disease, among 85 percent of the women in a study sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

This disease affects almost half of all women. This benign condition in which cysts develop, usually in both breasts, gives a "cobble-stone" feeling, and is often painful.

Store paints, equipment properly

Store paints and equipment properly and save big money, says Dr. Jane Berry, a housing and home furnishings specialist.

"Countless dollars are spent on brushes, rollers, paints and other supplies which must be discarded after only one use because of improper cleaning and storage," she says. Berry is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Many paint items should give long-lasting results over several years with proper care. Whether painting projects are scheduled once a month or only several times a year, here are a few tips on cleaning and storage to assure tools and supplies in "ready-to-paint" condition.

Tightly sealed paint containers will keep contents fresh.

Store leftover paints by selecting a small container that will be filled to the brim with the remaining paint.

Secure a piece of plastic wrap around the rim with a rubber band. Then secure the lid on tightly over the wrap. This will keep a skin from developing on the paint surface.

If a skin has developed because of improper storage, cut it away from the surface with a knife and lift it off in one piece — otherwise leftover particles will give paint an uneven finish.

Be sure to thoroughly clean all paint off of paint brushes after use. If a latex paint was used, clean the brush with warm water and detergent. Be sure to rinse all detergent from the brush.

If a solvent-thinned paint or varnish was used, clean the brush with a recommended solvent or paint thinner.

Then wash it in warm water and detergent. After the brush has dried, comb the bristles straight out and carefully wrap the brush in heavy paper or plastic. Either lay brushes flat or hang them from hooks to store.

Store all spray-paint cans under 120 degrees.

To clear a clogged spray-paint can nozzle, turn the can upside down and press lightly on the spray button for a few seconds.
